Kennedy to Try to Ease Red Tension

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—President Kennedy was described today as ready to take the initiative in steps to ease East-West tensions—including U.S. negotiations of "mutual aid with the Soviet Union over Berlin."
This is the picture as it emerged from various authoritative sources in the wake of the 2-day talks in London between Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.
Participants going to the U.S. ambassador in Moscow, Llewellyn Thompson, in about a week, are expected to authorize Thompson to talk to the Soviet foreign office about possible solutions to the explosive Berlin issue.
This is something of a switch from the inconclusive U.S. diplomatic contacts with the Soviet Union early this fall which were described as "prober" or "exploratory" talks aimed at learning whether there is some basis for a negotiated settlement.
In that first round of talks with Soviet Foreign Andrei A. Gromyko, Secretary of State Dean Rusk found only slight differences between "exploring" what the Russians might be willing to do and "prober" or "exploratory" talks aimed at learning whether there is some basis for a negotiated settlement.

Peace on Earth

What would be wrong with defining peace as a permanent Christmas spirit all over the world? Tolerance and understanding, harmony of human relations, all are especially vital when the Christian world celebrates the anniversary of the birth of Jesus Christ, and those are the same virtues that are imbedded deeply in peace.

It's a large order. The Christian world enjoys today a remarkable degree of religious freedom, but such was not always the case. Many persecutions of the past have their origins in religious prejudice. Indeed, the first settlers of this nation had been persecuted to such an extent that they risked a voyage of extreme peril to win the prize of freedom of worship.

Small and sometimes fanatic—religious groups in the U.S. still come face to face with religious persecution, although such cases are fewer with each passing year. If it is so difficult to live up to one of the cornerstones upon which the nation of the free was founded, why chance is there for religious freedom on a world basis?

Tolerance, understanding and harmony. Are they present in the Deep South even on Christmas day? Are they present in Bengal, so near Asia, where the British are in India, which served as something of a world conscience until only the other day? In the absence of the foundations of peace, there is discord, distrust and fear, which serve as the basis of war to a degree or another.

Anyone who contends the world is at peace today also must admit it's a peace based on fear—fear of what could happen during retaliation against an act of aggression or such principles as tolerance, understanding and harmony.

Examine carefully the peace in your own personal life or in your community. If the Christian principles are present, then you may claim you are at peace. Even so, you will discover traces of fear, of discord, distrust and fear, signs of a personal war. Compare the size of the personal problem with the size of the world-problem.

Peace on earth, the popular slogan, which complicates of attainment, which leads directly to the question of whether there can ever be true peace on earth so long as religion is rejected by large segments of the world's population.

PRESENT FOR IDAHO

Announcement of plans to give the famed Railroad ranch to the state of Idaho for use as a public park constitutes a fine Christmas present for the state. The 20,000-acre ranch adjoins an area in the Targhee forest that has been developed fast in recent years as a summer recreation area.

Use of the area as a state park will be particularly significant because the vast outdoor movement is resulting in readily accessible recreation areas. Many contend that overcrowding creates a good deal of the fun in an outing. So the proposed Harriman state park should be eventually in taking, in addition to pressure over other sites, in addition to door recreation.

While the improvements can be spread over a number of years, it is not often such a difficult is handed to a state.

Beginning skiers of Twin Falls are reminded they must register at 8 a.m. Wednesday at Harmon Park in order to take advantage of the city's low cost recreation ski instructions, reports Ernest Craner, superintendent of the Twin Falls parks and recreation department.

The first dry-land ski lesson will begin at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Harmon park, Craner said. SKIERS are asked to bring their skis and other equipment for the basic instruction.

The second lesson will be Saturday at Mt. Agie mountain, he stated. The other seven lessons will be every Saturday thereafter at Mt. Agie mountain, he noted.

During Christmas week, Sun Valley Stages will schedule transportation to the ski area at 8 a.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday rather than just the weekly Saturday run.

Good conditions are described as ideal at the area with more snow for this early in the season than in many recent years. Craner said. At least three feet of snow covers runs with a hard-packed base covered by a light amount of new powder of snow.

HIGHEST HONORS ever accorded a freshman at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point went to Cadet Louis S. Coaka, Lewisburg, Pa., shown polishing his hat in preparation for inspection at any time by upperclassmen. The cadet and his family fled from Hungary in 1945. He has been named cadet commander for the Christmas holidays with the temporary rank of first captain and brigade commander. He heads almost 800 plebes remaining at the academy during the holidays. (AP wirephoto)

Youth Given High Honors By Academy

WEST POINT, N.Y., Dec. 23 (AP)—A youth who fled with his family from communist Hungary at the age of 4 has won the highest honor that ever is accorded a plebe (freshman) at the U.S. military academy.

He is Cadet Louis S. Coaka, 20, Lewisburg, Pa., who has been named cadet commander for the Christmas holidays.

Cadets of the upper three classes leave the academy during the Dec. 22-Jan. 3 Christmas vacation, but the almost 800 plebes are left behind.

Coaka heads those remaining with the temporary rank of first captain and brigade commander. The youth expressed himself as "in a state of shock" at the honor. He described his duties modestly as "learning. He is on the cadets of their responsibilities and privileges," but a West Point announcement put it this way: "Bluntly, he's running the place."

Coaka, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kalmán Coaka and a brother and sister, fled from Hungary in 1945.

The family lived on a German farm, where another son and daughter were born, until 1953. Then the family moved to Lewisburg, except for the elder sister, Magdalene, who had returned to Hungary to study. The family has not heard from her since the Hungarian uprising in 1956. The mother died in 1953.

Coaka attended Lewisburg elementary school, Lewisburg Junior high school and Valley Forge military junior college before coming to West Point.

He speaks English without difficulty or accent, though he says he still is learning. He is on the dean's list of superior students.

His selection as "Christmas commander" was based on academic standing, military performance and aptitude reports.

Queen Invited

EVANSTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—Miss Rodge Amelich, Karen LeVina Jerome, has been invited to the sixth annual Stockmen's ball here Jan. 11. She is a coed at Idaho State college, Pocatello.

Even state rodeo queens also were given invitations to attend. They include Carma Jean Esten, St. George, Utah and Jan Beamer, Hermiston, Ore.

Christmas Baskets Donated To 125 Needy T.F. Families

Approximately 125 needy families in the vicinity of Twin Falls will be supplied with baskets of food and toys, reports Edward Swartley, who assisted in the clearing of names. The baskets were delivered Friday and Saturday by members of YWCA, Salvation Army, churches and civic groups.

"Everything that is used in this project has been donated," Swartley stated. "Even the manpower used to deliver the baskets was volunteered."

The YWCA desired all the names of families this year instead of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce. The chamber was in charge of the project for many years. The Boy Scouts took charge of the toys this year instead of the YWCA and YMCA.

Youth Saved From Blazing Home by Man

UNION GAP, Wash., Dec. 23 (AP)—A 26-year-old construction worker saved Bobby Shreve, 14, his most precious Christmas present last night — his life. Bobby, trapped in the bedroom of his home when a fire started, was rescued by Ed Cefroh, a neighbor, who made two attempts to get into the home before finding the boy.

Fire Chief William Ackerman said Bobby would have died from suffocation "in a couple of more minutes" if Cefroh had not reached him. The boy was given artificial respiration and taken to a hospital where he was released a few hours later.

Ackerman said the fire, which caused damage estimated at $100,000, was in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shreve, a General Electric employee at Hanford. Shreve had gone to work and his other children at a Christmas party when the fire started about 11:30 p.m.

Young T. F. Junior Club Stresses Service, Charity

While in the beginning of the third year and the club is beginning to take its final shape, we are realizing some of the ambitions we had at the moment of organization.

Members of the Twin Falls Junior club describe their group at that moment. Although the club is relatively new, its basic purpose of community service has a great deal toward fostering member interest in the social, economic, educational and civic conditions of the community and making efficient its members' volunteer services.

As with every club in the beginning, it has taken some time and work to find exactly where work needs to be done. The first club year was spent helping various charity organizations with fundraising drives.

For the most part, it was "not too tiring" and members describe at the beginning of last year to find varied projects with a personal appeal. New ideas were contributed by provisional members and their enthusiasm gave new life and impetus to the work of the club year.

Between 900 and 1,000 hours of volunteer service to the community have been given by club members. The largest single club effort in 1967 was a benefit show and card party for the holidays. The event annually themed "Toss 'n' the Holidays," a success also was donated to Mrs. Harvey Pierce of the Easter Seal clinic.

Throughout the year the club continued to support Mrs. Pierce's therapy program at the cerebral palsy school.

A number of the 31 club members, aged 21 to 40, help regularly at the school by conducting a rhythm band on Friday mornings.

In May, the group sponsored Beverly Hackney's spring dance recital. The proceeds, $115, were used to help children from Twin Falls county attend Camp Easter Seal at Lake Coeur d'Alene.

In addition to group activities, individual members contributed to the community in a variety of ways. Aid was given on every major fund-raising occasion, such as those of the Heart Association, Red Cross and Salvation Army.

Clothing was donated to wards of the probate court and Christmas baskets for needy families were assembled.

Several members sold tickets at the Chamber of Commerce office for the Diligante production of "Brigadoon." They also participated in a contest sponsored by ELIX.

Last week, the club decorated rooms at Horton Guest home. Members also delivered Christmas boxes of candies, fruit and cookies. The Lyndon Salfway store donated fruit, candy and fruitcake for the boxes.

General chairman of the project were Mrs. Cary Koppell, president, and Mrs. Robert-Henley, projects chairman.

In charge of decorations was Mrs. John Christensen, Mrs. Robert Eberhart and Mrs. Harriet.

Greenery was donated by three local LDS sisters.

During the present year season, the club assisted Dr. John Menece with the tuberculosis seal campaign and staged another benefit card party and style show.

Proceeds amounting to approximately $100 will be donated to the YWCA-YMCA. A Christmas basket for a needy family also was prepared.

Future projects include selling tickets for the Diligante production of "Kiss Me, Kate."

Each member of the junior club must donate 45 hours per year. Hours may be credited for work on projects of the Red Cross, Community Chest, tuberculosis fund, March of Dimes, YWCA, the Cancer Association, "Hear", Cerebral palsy, etc.

Work on projects of 4-H groups, Scouts, Boy Scouts, civil defense, Camp Fire or Blue Bird units also may be credited.

Hours cannot be counted unless money earned benefits a charity project.

Other officers of the club include Mrs. Jack Taylor, vice president; Mrs. Robert-Henley, secretary; Mrs. Lambert (Buz) Langdon, treasurer; and Mrs. Peterson, publicity chairman.

Past presidents are Mrs. Howard Green and Mrs. Dennis Lowe.

The group plans another benefit style show for 1968 and other projects will be repeated from 1967.

The club is looking to new provisional members for fresh ideas. The year's accomplishments will depend upon what each member contributes to the organization, in time, enthusiasm and ideas.

Camp Fire Unit Officers Noted

SHOSHONE, Dec. 23 — Noted officers for the Odahe Camp Fire Girls are Marilyn Pearson, president; Doris McDonald, vice president; George Eldredge, treasurer, and Maxine Fries, scribe.

The girls went caroling Wednesday night.

Without letting any necessary work suffer, said Marilyn Hudson, director of the company's six-member staff kitchen.

Suppose you take a quick look around the kitchen each day and then go out and spend an hour marketing.

This habit adds up to about six and a half hours a week.

You could, instead, take half an hour to make a complete list and market once a week, taking two hours to do the entire job. You have saved four hours, not counting the energy otherwise spent.

All household jobs have three parts, the experts said. They are the "get ready," the job itself and the "cleanup" after. Often the get ready and cleanup take longer than the actual work. Try cutting time here.

For example, combining the cleanup of one job with the get-ready of another.

As you do the supper dishes, put on the table those needed for breakfast.

Eliminate work when possible. For instance, why peel tomatoes, complaints or apples when your family may like them just as well with the skins on.

If you have a dishwasher, you are saving what some sources estimate is a staggering amount of work—it has been said that the average housewife does 135,000 dishes in the first five years of marriage, taking about 75 days to do it!

Doing dishes by hand, you still do not need to dry them. Modern detergents and hot water clean them and they dry just as well on a rack.

You need not polish floors if you use a no-rubbing wax and simply spread it on, said the test kitchen experts.

Changing the locale of your work often can help. Segregate citrus fruits at the sink and make any mopping up of spilled juice unnecessary. Fill jars over the sink, too.

Four sugar or flour into containers with a newspaper beneath to collect any accidental spill.

Combining chores is another time saver. Mending can be done as you iron—just lay aside those garments in need of repair. They mend them before storing them.

Try to arrange your work—so that your hands don't do all the chores. Use a foot-pedal garbage pail and a foot-pedal refrigerator if possible.

Have multi-purpose tools to save time and space.

When possible, try to have dishes which can be used for trays for carrying a number of things at once and wheeled tables for getting several things simultaneously.

The test kitchen experts don't try to estimate how much time some of their tips will save you, but they guarantee some bonus.

TIMES-NEWS PUBLIC FORUM

Talk Impresses Jerome Man By Sincerity and Ignorance

Editor, Times-News: Recently this column carried a lament from our reader deploring the fact that our "distinguished junior congressman" was not given time to speak to the Hagerman schools. I was one of those who did hear Mr. Harding and would like to point out a few things relevant to his talk.

He told us, several times, that he was a patriotic American. I have no reason to doubt this, in that I was much impressed with his sincerity. I was also much impressed with his ignorance. When he stated and re-stated he was for the free enterprise system, yet in the same talk said he voted for public housing, it is obvious that he has lost faith in the ability of the free enterprise system to get the people housed or he would not have voted to take the housing problem out of private peoples' hands and into government hands and into government hands.

Item: He boasted that he had voted for the minimum wage law, so "everyone could have a reasonable, adequate home and a fairly good car." Now if he thinks that all that is necessary to raise someone's life is a bill through congress, why didn't he vote for a minimum wage of twice as much as we do—so we could all have a bigger home and a better car!

One of the students asked him why it is that our national debt and didn't he think that when the government took 25 cents out of every dollar we make, that we are becoming slaves of the government? He answered the first part by saying that the reason our national debt was so large was that we spend so much on defense—about 75 per cent of our budget. (The defense budget was somewhere around 48 billion, yet we spent 11.1 billion—showing ignorance of something he should be most familiar with.) He answered the second part by saying that he was not afraid of big government that even if the government took 70 cents out of every dollar "we would still not be slaves."

Here's where a lot of the students lost off. Even they know that when a person is forced to work for someone else 70 per cent of the time he is a slave. A lot of them also have read enough history to know that big governments have always trampled on the people, and why should ours be any exception?

Writer Is Opposed to U. S. Aid of U. N.'s Congo Policy

Editor, Times-News: On Dec. 25 we will honor the man who died for us, but how many will give thanks to those men who have died and are now dying for us in Katanga. There we have a scene that only a Hitler or a communist dictator can duplicate.

The U. S. government is aiding the United Nations forces in Katanga, killing the citizens of our country who have refused to accept a communist form of government.

Four or five European nations have appealed to U. S. officials to cease such cold-blooded tactics for us in Katanga. There are no effect on our state department or the U. N.

Some French officials have proposed that France break relations with this country, Americans who realize the seriousness of the situation are asking the question, "What has mummified the conscience of the American people?"

As we ponder these facts, the radio "blare," "Eichmann found guilty" and will be hanging as a war criminal." It is appropriate to quote here the words of Winston Churchill:

"Still, you will not fight for the right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not too costly; you may come to the moment when you will have to fight with all the odds against you and only a precarious chance of survival.

"There may even be a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no hope of victory because it is better to perish than to live as slaves."

It is not necessary to join a foreign legion and go to a faraway place to slug it out with the enemy. All that will be required of the American

Ranger Congratulated for Regional Incentive Award

Editor, Times-News: Congratulations to Ranger John J. Lavin for his regional incentive award of $150 for apparently performing extra duty and services over and above the regular duty of a forest service ranger.

The award is part of the forest service program designed to increase work performance, J. J. Lavin, forest supervisor of the Sawtooth national forest, noted.

Other forest districts have made similar awards for new and novel practices or definite methods or ideas to increase efficiency that should be recognized in some manner, but this publicity received by the Sawtooth forest suggest to this editor that Ranger Lavin is the only live-awake employee in this division, who has done an excellent job of performing his duty, required duty.

As a former livestock man, know that the forest service and all its employees have done an excellent job in range management. With their help and economic trends the range sheep industry is disappearing very rapidly leaving more range for water production, timber, wildlife and recreation sources. So many of the services today, stressed in multiple use of the forest service, feature socialistic or non-economic uses, which is the selling point stressed by the wilderness bill, an actual competitor of the forest service for appropriations and power. Lock up any productive use or harvest, and stress recreation, game management or mismanagement, etc. which the great majority of people in or out of the state do not know about and will not participate in anyway. The states that have the forest service and/or the bureau of land management and have to live and work with these bureaus have very little to say about their policies and application.

As in all governmental agency releases, they seek and spend a great deal of time effort and money to build up the need and justification for their growth, even in these perilous times of national emergencies.

At any rate this release proved the above thought and feelings in regard to the forest service, and there is nothing personal between the writer and the two mentioned officials, who are loyal cogs in a bureaucracy familiar to the writer.

Wolves Split Two Games With Carlin

CARLIN, Dec. 23—The Castleford Wolves dropped tatted Carlin in 57-48 tonight to split a two-game series with the Nevada crew.

Young Curtis Sillar, who looked good Friday night when the Wolves dropped a 67-41 decision, was rewarmed with a starting nod tonight and came up with 14 points. He was joined by a strong showing by all his teammates although Benny Reynolds, in addition to scoring 18 points, played a smart floor game and his nifty passing resulted in many more points.

Friday night, Carlin put together a 12-point spree in the last two minutes to carry the first game.

With just less than two minutes remaining, Castleford playing its best game of the year, bounced into a one-point lead, Carlin, defending Nevada state champion with eight men returning from that squad, then hit a field goal and two quick free throws. The Wolves went in to a ball-hawking press and the Nevada crew dropped through the resulting free throws to win going away.

USC Topples Utags From Unbeaten List

LOS AN, Dec. 23 (AP)—Southern California had to put on a sulzing second half rally and then stall for a minute and 40 seconds before sinking the winning basket to hand Utah State its first defeat in nine games.

Utah State, which had been ranked fifth in the nation, were down 30-27 at the half. They came back strong in the early minutes of the second half to tie the score at 42-42.

After the score was tied the largest margin was a four point advantage held briefly by the California quiet. Ruidomein scored 24 points in the game. Green had 24 for the game.

The USC record is now 8-1 USC shot 47.3 per cent for the game after hitting only 27 per cent in the first half. Utah State shot 36 per cent for the game.

Southern Teams Are Favored in Four Major Grid Bowl Battles

If the football bowl games run true to form, there will be little variety in the Jan. 1 victory feasts—the winners will be hominy grits, black-eyed peas and turnip greens. Teams from Dixie's bowl-minded Southeastern conference—Alabama, Louisiana State, Mississippi and Georgia Tech—are favored in four of the major games.

DRIVING THE BASELINE, John Green, New York Knickerbockers, charges toward the basket for a cringe during the Knicks' game with the Boston Celtics Saturday afternoon. Willie Naulls (6) of New York and Tom Heinsohn, Boston, are in background. Celtics won 122-111. (AP wirephoto)

Rose bowl at Pasadena, the rival coaches are pupils of Tennessee's Bob Neyland. With a little more than a week before kickoff time, here is how the slick—rule specialists are picking the big games.

Rose bowl—Minnesota (7-2) 8 points over UCLA (7-3).
Sugar bowl—Alabama (10-0) 12½ points over Arkansas (8-2).
Cotton bowl—Mississippi (9-1) 3 points over Texas (6-1).
Orange bowl—Louisiana State (6-1) 13 points over Colorado (4-1).
Gator bowl—Georgia Tech (7-3) 3 points over Penn State (7-3).

The Gator bowl will be played Dec. 30. The others are scheduled Jan. 1.

Around 400,000 persons are expected to view these live games alone. The number of live spectators will be pushed close to the million mark by attendant post-game spectators. The game of the East-West Shrine game at San Francisco; the Blue-Gray game at Montgomery; the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., and All-American bowl at Tucson, Ariz., all Dec. 30; the Senior Bowl at Mobile, Ala., Jan. 6 and the U. S. bowl at Washington, D.C., and the Hula bowl at Honolulu Jan. 7.

Of the big established fixtures, only the Orange bowl game at Miami, to be televised by ABC at 1 p.m. EST, has run into an unusual difficulty on advance sales.

Everett Clay, Orange Bowl committee president, said 10,000 of the estimated 75,000 tickets remain unsold, forcing a television blackout for a 15-mile radius of the game. But he adds: "We are confident we will have a sellout."

The biggest turnout, as usual, will be at Pasadena where 100,870 will watch Murray Warmath's Minnesota Gophers attempt to stop the Senior Bowl's Rose bowl setback in the battle with Billy Barnes' UCLA champions of the Pacific Coast.

The game, starting at 5 p.m. EST, will be televised by NBC. Warmath and Barnes both attended the University of Tennessee where they learned their football at the knee of the famed General Neyland, now retired.

The Sugar bowl at New Orleans reports a complete sellout sellout. There Alabama, the national champion with an unbeaten record for 10 games, goes against Arkansas' Southwest conference co-champions.

The 124 points given the rugged Razorbacks appear pretty generous in view of Arkansas' victories over such teams as Texas Christian, Baylor, Texas A and M and Rice. The Razorbacks, mean and tough, are noted fierce fighters who don't give ground easily. NBC is telecasting at 2 p.m. EST.

One of the most attractive contests—on the basis of performance—promises to be that at Dallas' Cotton bowl between Mississippi and Texas, two offensively minded eleven which ranked in the top five of the final Associated Press poll.

Texas, ranked No. 4, is the best rushing team in the nation with a lightning-quick ball carrier in All-American Jimmy Easton. Mississippi, No. 8, has a team which gained 2,260 yards rushing and 1,237 passing. It has speed, size and depth.

The Cotton bowl is a "75,000 sellout, with the public sale already over-subscribed. The game will be televised by CBS at 2:30 p.m. EST.

The Orange bowl features the big, mobile Louisiana State team which upset Mississippi and lost only to Rice during the regular season. LSU, ranked third nationally behind Alabama and Ohio State, is believed to have too much depth for Colorado's Big Eight champions, beaten only by Utah.

Gator bowl officials expect a crowd of 50,000. Georgia Tech carried the best bowl record of all teams (11-3) into the game against Penn State, winner of the Lambert trophy by the best in the East. CBS is televising it at 2:15 p.m. EST.

Shrine Game Coaches Continue To Evaluate All-Star Lineups

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23 (UPI)—Shrine gridders went through their second day of work-outs at their training-camps today and when the smoke cleared away from the sizzling workouts, the head coaches had something of an idea on their first-stringers. "We'll look them all over and give them all good tests," said coach Joe Kuharich, the Notre Dame man who heads the East. In his No. 1 backfield, quarterback Roman Gabriel of North Carolina State, halfbacks Ernie Davis, Syracuse, and Angelo Daberio, Notre Dame, and fullback Bob Ferguson of Ohio State. The ends, who will be the major pass catchers, were Gary Carr of Maryland and Lou Kircour of Boston college.

But there was some belief that there'll be serious made. Tom Miller of Wisconsin playing with the second unit, was much more impressive in his passing than was Gabriel. Miller loses the soft pass, easy to handle, while Gabriel was throwing slurs. Several of which the intended receivers couldn't handle.

The workouts of both teams at Santa Clara and Stanford (about 15 miles apart), were in balmy, sunny weather.

Coch-Jim Owens of Washington, head man for the West, tried out a combine that had John Hadl of Kansas at quarterback; Curt McClinton, Kansas, and Mack Burton, San Jose State, at halves, and Ronnie Bull, Baylor, at full.

Hadl and McClinton were the standouts in the first tests of this unit. Hadl's passes were to the West.

Both head-coaches were miffed on whether they planned series or ground offense—leaving 11 up to the opposition to guess. However, in recent years the passing games have been in vogue because they can be put together faster than the running game which requires so much intricate blocking.

With the announced signing of Merlin Olsen by the Los Angeles Rams yesterday, it means that 10 of the West strikers are ready are under contract to the National Football league; six under contract to the American Football league and one with the Footballers—Mel Melin, Washington State, quarterback. That leaves seven still undecided. Several of some of them haven't been drafted by any league.

Records Fall in Chicago Races

CHICAGO, Dec. 23 (U.P.)—Three new field house records were broken last night as 300 athletes from 33 schools and colleges competed in the ninth annual meet of the University of Chicago field team.

Rimas' Valcic of the host school walked the mile in 6:27.9, bettering the previous field house record of 6:33.3.

In the two-mile run, Jared Nourse of Duke was timed in 9:00.9, shaving the previous record of 9:15.4.

John J. Jones, a marine from Quantico, Va., set a new record of 1:10.1, topping the previous mark of 1:12.7, 1 inch.

Dallas Hosts Rodeo Finals This Week

DALLAS, Dec. 23 (U.P.)—The best of the nation's arena cowboys begin five days of grueling contests Wednesday in the National Finals rodeo.

The rodeo is the windup of a year's effort of 68 of the top hands and national titles are at stake in five divisions.

One rodeo cowboy already is unofficial national champion. For no contestant can overcome the lead Dan Oliver, Boise, in his calf roping.

Letters to Santa Claus Display Children's Faith

Each year at this time the small fry take pen in hand, put their wishes on paper and mail the result to Santa Claus, North Pole.

No one knows how many of these letters actually get there, but nevertheless these written wishes usually are made known to the right party.

During the Christmas rush, the mail for Santa Claus pours into the postoffice and the letters themselves, and the "downright amusing, are often beautiful examples of juvenile persuasion. Examples that would make a public relations counselor turn green with envy.

They want everything from a doll that "cries to a constructioner" set and a "survival" station. But they are easy enough always to end the letter with either a promise or a plea — a promise to give Santa something (usually milk and cookies) or a plea to give someone else something (which demonstrates they are firm believers in the Golden Rule).

Many of these little letter-writers do not unlike the individual who goes into court, sue for a large amount and is then glad to settle for a fraction of the original amount.

One girl wrote, "Dear Santa, I would like a toy kitchen, a doll that cries, a doll that writes, a ironing board, a toy milk master, some red boots and a lot of other things."

But she was shrewd, for she added, "P.S. If that is too much I'll just take the doll that cries."

Some of their phrasing is unique. One girl wanted a "World that the states will come off."

Another writer wants, "Remember the piano you gave me two years ago? The keys are broken. See if you can fix them."

One excited little boy wanted plenty of gifts, but didn't forget to get in a plug for himself.

He wrote, "Dear Santa Claus, I want a pistol and an airplane and a jet and a pool and a swimming pool and I want a boat and a horn and a monster and a train. And I have been a good boy."

Some of the small fry pull all stops and ask for what they really want. One boy wrote with the laborious printing of the beginning writer, "Dear Santa, Please bring me a .38ct. gun and a .45ct. gun."

A little girl, who evidently felt some shame after writing a list of about 20 wants, added at an afterthought, "Please bring daddy a deer gun. And a rabbit gun too."

Some children are very businesslike in their approach. They make an itemized list of their wants, note that if there isn't room enough in the sleigh that Santa should bring just the first choice, and then continue the letter with a sly bribe of milk and cookies if the endro list is ignored.

But although the letters are filled with requests, the most obvious element is the degree of faith that the writers possess, and maybe that is what gets the letters to the North Pole — then without stamps.

LETTER TO SANTA is posted by small fry, one of the hundreds of letters that pour into the postoffice every year addressed to "Santa Claus, North Pole." The young writer asks for everything from oryxons to jet liners and stamp the letters with everything from the printed word "stamp" to Christmas nuts. (Staff photo-engravings)

VISIONS OF SUGAR PLUMS will soon dance in their heads, but before that happens this pair is going to get their stockings in place on the fireplace mantel. Millions of children throughout the Christian world go through this same formality every Christmas, demonstrating their belief in Santa Claus and the spirit of Christmas. These children are Lisa Rae, 4, and Mark, 6, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gerber, Twin Falls. (Staff photo-engraving)

Yule Tale, as It May Have Been

EDITOR'S NOTE — History never recorded what was on that night in the inn. But perhaps it was this way. The inn was owned by a man named Joseph. He had a son named David. David was a poor, young, simple man. He had a few cows for the farm. He had a few chickens. He had a few pigs. He had a few sheep. He had a few goats. He had a few horses. He had a few donkeys. He had a few mules. He had a few oxen. He had a few camels. He had a few elephants. He had a few giraffes. He had a few kangaroos. He had a few koalas. He had a few platypuses. He had a few armadillos. He had a few sloths. He had a few anteaters. He had a few porcupines. He had a few hedgehogs. He had a few armadillos. He had a few sloths. He had a few anteaters. He had a few porcupines. He had a few hedgehogs.

BY HUGH A. MULLIGAN

Josephus the innkeeper was both delighted and vexed to have his son at home again.

Delighted, because Joel, tall and dark-eyed like the prophet "whom" he was named, was the only son of his old age, the apple of his fading eyes.

Vexed, because the young man — for in truth he was a boy no longer — seemed like a stranger to him. So moody and restless after his seven years of studying at the temple in Jerusalem and working with the merchants in the bazaar. So impatient to try out new ideas, and so irascible when the servants failed to respond.

Only yesterday there had been that regrettable scene in the kitchen, with the cook weeping

Yule Wreath of Candy Popular

More than 300 pounds of candy have gone into a Christmas project of Mrs. Neal Garrison, who makes candy wreaths for Christmas gifts.

The largest one she has made is now in the main room of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust. It weighs about 20 pounds, or at least it did when it first was placed there on Dec. 12. It is equipped with a decorated pair of scissors, and the idea is for the customers to help themselves and clip off a piece of candy when they pass by.

So far Mrs. Garrison has made more than 100 of the smaller wreaths, which weigh about three and one-half pounds. When she first started making them three

Fifth Graders Construct Nativity Mural of Paper

With hundreds of pieces of brightly-colored paper, a pot of glue and a few dozen eager hands, the fifth grade class of Mrs. Claude Jones, Washington elementary school, has fashioned its annual Christmas mural.

The mural depicting the traditional Nativity scene, and as large as a classroom blackboard, was drawn with their made last week by the students who took turns working on the project. Mrs. Jones says every student in her class took part.

The scene was copied from a picture about the size of a bill-fold photograph. Mrs. Jones outlined it on a large piece of butcher paper and then the children drew with their pieces of paper and paste.

Before the paper was pasted to the background sheet, the eyes from the star of Bethlehem were painted on with water color. Then the children tore small bits from Christmas wrapping paper. These pieces were dabbed with paste and put in place. The result is a

Collection of Iran's Jewels Not Insured

TEHRAN, Dec. 23 (U) — The biggest jewel collection in the world carries no insurance.

The crown jewels of Iran are so rich that their value has never been estimated and so vast that the stones have never been counted.

"Unfold millions of dollars" is the closest evaluation made by the national Mitrani bank, where the gems are stored in an unguarded vault.

"We don't know how many loose stones there are," said Abbas Allpour, of the bank treasury, pointing to a batch of diamonds piled on a plate like breakfast cereal. "But we have 3,000 set into necklaces, 1,000 set into vases — have been appraised, and they total $340,000."

Flashings like fire from velvet cases, the collection leaves a visitor speechless: A breathtaking rainbow of glittering gems. Only-encrusted swords from the ancient shafts of Persia, emeralds as big as a flat, a golden throne, diamonds the size of bottle caps, and a jeweled pipe made of ostrich eggs.

"There is no insurance," said Allpour, "because the collection is safe here in the vault, except perhaps in case of war. Besides, you cannot insure the historical value."

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Memories of the first Christmas celebrated in Marsh basin, now known as ALBION, are recalled by Rachel Lewis, DELO, whose grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis, were among the first persons settling there. As Christmas came over the first frontier cabin in 1812 it found the young mother and her two children alone since the husband had gone to Orderville, Utah, to get supplies for the winter. With no gravel or good highways, the travel became impossible after heavy snow began to fall and the father was separated by mountain ranges, deserts, and snow from his family.

Isolated from civilization during the winter months, with no letter or word, the mother wondered if her husband had perished in the blizzard.

She feared when the snow melted in the spring, his body would be found under snowdrifts which were as much as 30 feet deep.

As blue smoke from lumber fires rose from the chimneys of a handful of one-room cabins one morning in Dec. 24, the mother and two children looked wistfully to the east, the direction from which the father would come if he should ever return.

The roads were unbroken and the mother knew the freight wagons from Nelson and Corinne, Utah, no longer lumbered through Marsh basin. She wondered if she had enough food to last until spring. She had plenty of wood to chop for the fireplace stacked outside the cabin.

Only a few nights earlier, the mother and children were awakened by a noise from a wild animal and the next morning they found tracks of a mountain lion around their one-room house. Neighbors killed the animal.

As Mrs. Lewis gazed toward the site of Albion she wondered what holidays her neighbors miles away would have. She also thought of the happy Christmas spent in her native land of Sweden which she left after accepting the faith of the Mormon missionaries.

Suddenly as they stood at the open door their attention was drawn to a dark object bounding over the snow drifts coming directly toward their cabin. Soon the three could make out a team of horses and sleigh.

The messenger brought Christmas greetings and invited Mrs. Lewis and her children to his home for a few days during the Yuletide. Perhaps no invitation was accepted with more gratitude and soon all were on their way to the home of R. R. Potter, some eight miles distant.

On their arrival the two families felt they must have a Christmas tree. A cedar tree was cut but the problem was how to decorate with nothing at hand resembling ornaments.

But pioneer industry won out and soon a piece of soft pine, pocket knife in skillful hands produced a pile of the shining curls to decorate the tree. In some mysterious way a piece of silver tinfoil appeared—five curls.

HAS SURGERY

KING HILL, Dec. 23—Mrs. Van Morgan underwent major surgery at the Samaritan hospital, Nampa, this week.

"TOY FOR BOY" scrapbook and homemade bank are just a few of the many items children in Washington school elementary grades have collected for 4-year-old Roy Culler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Culler. Roy Culler received third-degree burns when a space heater fuel leak caused a fire in his home. He has had skin grafts and will have to be in Magic Valley Memorial hospital through the holidays. The students have worked in their spare time to brighten his days in the hospital. School Children in T.F. Try to Make Christmas Happy for Boy in Hospital

One week ago the Times-News carried a story telling about a 4-year-old boy who will spend Christmas in Magic Valley Memorial hospital. Even with the attention paid such a patient by the staff members of the hospital, such a holiday could be unhappy.

But not if the students of Washington elementary school have anything to do with it. They heard of the little boy, Roy Culler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Culler, and spent the next week working to make his stay in the hospital a happy one.

The idea was sparked by the school superintendent, Mrs. Mary Helen Perry, at a faculty meeting. The teachers presented the idea of helping Roy to their students and the students responded with vigor.

Five hundred-and-sixty students from all 20 rooms worked in their spare time and during their art periods throughout the week. They made scrapbooks, brought toys, made Christmas decorations, and started a Christmas collection for him. One classroom, under the supervision of Mrs. Ernest England, made a money tree—a Christmas tree decorated with dimes. Students brought toys they purchased with money they had saved, and they brought toys they had outgrown. One little boy—brought a huge, stuffed poodle he won at the Twin Falls county fair. He explained it was

Oakley Potato Farmer Asserts Idaho Needs to Stress Quality of Product

W. B. WHITELEY

OAKLEY, Dec. 24 — "We are living in a consumer's world and we better produce for them or someone else will."

The Idaho comment made recently by W. B. Whiteley, long-time resident of Oakley, and pioneer hand-picked farmer in the Oakley valley and north side areas.

"But the woman was with child," he gasped, barely able to keep back the tears forming under his eyelids. "And they seemed to have come a great distance on day."

By the time he had strength enough to return outside, night had fully fallen and the couple had long since disappeared down the road. Even the shepherds had deserted the rocky slope of a crippled herdsman wild-eyed and noticeably superstitious.

He was too tired to pursue to the end of the dress, and too tired to listen to Joel's gloating about the day's receipt. "Somebody," he felt, "heard the boy as he headed up to bed, 'We'll be able to fix this place up so it's fit for a king.'"

Some are too big to lift, such as the golden globe of the world twice the size of a basketball, with the seas and continents made of jewels—21,200 of them. The oceans are emeralds, the lands are rubies; Iran, Asia and England are diamonds and Tehran is, marked with the huge Ashraf diamond, presented to a 19th century shah along with the owner's head.

Smaller but more impressive is the Darreh Noor—Sea of Light—diamond, the size of a cigarette lighter and a sister to Queen Elizabeth's Kohinoor stone. Together, the two diamonds are thought to equal the entire daily expenses of the world, but Shah Pahlahi ruined the Darreh Noor's market value by having his name carved on it.

Showpiece of the vault is the coronation throne—sometimes called the bed-like Peacock Throne—encrusted with gold and emeralds but without a king. The present shah, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, has reigned since 1941 waiting for the birth of a son before sitting on the throne.

Now a father, the shah plans to take his seat in 1963 and accept the Pahlavi crown with its 3,652 diamonds—a far cry from the simple jeweled turbans of the ancient Iranian kings.

Fish and Wildlife Restoration for State Boosted by Federal Projects

If a super Santa Claus had the wizard and affluence to trim a giant Yule tree for the benefit of Idaho, now and in the years to come, his gifts could do no more than expand and enrich those already made possible over the past two decades under twin federal aid programs for fish and wildlife restoration.

Under these laws of 1939 and 1950, federal aid appropriations amounting to over five million dollars have gone into the Idaho program. This is over and above regular operating budgets of the fish and game department during those years.

Called "Pittman - Robertson" and "Dingell" chapters after the laws authorizing them, the fish and wildlife restoration projects include the following:

1. Land acquisition—for rehabilitation of wildlife and public access to major hunting and fishing areas.
2. Development—to make areas more suitable for wild mammals and birds, including seed and cover plantings, water impoundments and stabilization, release of birds, game animals and fish where "seed stock" is needed.
3. Investigations—to research the present wildlife management problems and increase harvests in keeping with the potential of these renewable resources. Perhaps even more important than the money in excess of regular operating budgets, is the prohibition against the diversion of license fees paid by fishermen and hunters for any purpose other than the administration of state fish and game departments cooperating in these programs. This clause is found in both the P-R and D-J acts.

A special important feature of both acts is the one dealing with the reversion of funds. Each participating state is given two years from the date of appropriation in which to obligate its funds. Otherwise the money reverts to the migratory bird conservation fund or to the sport fisheries research program of the fish and wildlife service. This encourages long-range planning and efficient administration.

Idaho's share of P-R funds, which come from a 15 per cent excise tax on sport firearms and ammunition, totals $4,139,207.37. Four types as follows:

- Globe Seed & Feed

1. Purchase or lease of public access routes.
2. Acquisition of specific areas for migratory waterfowl and upland game birds.
3. Acquisition of land for big game range, principally in critical wintering areas or along vital migration routes.
4. Acquisition of land for administrative sites for fish research units, federal stations and other purposes.

The various and enormous benefits which have come to Idaho sportsmen through the federal aid programs make bulging Christmas packages during this or any other Yuletide.

Bridge, Tunnel Link for France, England Studied

PARIS, Dec. 23 (AP)—The climate was never brighter for building a dry land link across the English channel, but an angry quibble of words is swirling over the relative merits of a bridge or a tunnel.

The French and British governments already have agreed to start shopping for a permanent connection between the Dover and Calais regions. Experts are expected to start talking soon on the choice between the temporary bridge or the economy model-tunnel.

Great Britain's bid to join the common market has injected a new spirit of urgency into the project. Reversing their long tradition of insularity, the British now seem convinced that they must tie their economic fate to that of the continent. The physical link with France fits perfectly into the plan for increased commerce.

The preliminary discussions have disclosed these two certainties:

1. There are no technical obstacles to either a tunnel or a bridge.
2. The two governments, already suffering from strained budgets, have no desire to take on the job themselves. They don't want to pick up even part of the tab. This leaves the field open to private capital, with costs to be repaid from tolls charged for the crossing.

The bridge promoters envisage a glanz-span stretching 30 miles over the straits. The roadway would have five lanes for automobile traffic, two railway tracks and two paths for bicycles and motorcycles. The massive piers would be spaced 1,200 feet apart for most of the distance. The roadway would tower 240 feet above the water, leaving passage room for even the largest ocean liners.

Special wind deflectors would protect the traffic from gusts that sometimes hit 100 miles an hour in the channel area. Bicyclists and foot lights would keep traffic moving during the pea-soupers.

Planned for a different site, the tunnel—actually two parallel tubes—would be bored through the chalk bedding over a distance of 32 miles, 23 miles of it underwater, with a diameter of 41 feet, four inches. Cars and trucks would be loaded onto railway cars for the trip.

With tunnel or bridge, trains could make the run between Paris and London in about four hours, 20 minutes. The fastest train at present has an eight-hour schedule.

All travelers must allow at least three and one-half hours for travel between the centers of the two cities. This includes travel time to and from the airports, delays for baggage handling and the 30-minute flight.

The tunnel promoters estimate their project would cost 308 million dollars and take five years to complete. The bridge sponsors

EASTER LILIES bloom in mid-December. Who said it couldn't be done? Mrs. Clyde Galley, route 2, Twin Falls, admires one of the two five-inch diameter blooms which burst forth on her Easter Lily last week. She said she purchased the lily last Easter. It was in bloom at that time. After the blooms died, the plant was placed outside. The last of September she placed the plant in a flower pot. Asked what made it bloom this time of year she replied, "I'm not sure. All I did was add water and that good Idaho soil did the rest." The plant was six inches tall when she bought it. It now stands 24 inches high. (Staff photo-engraving)

Sharp-Shooting Civilians Are Set to Defend Nation

TORRANCE, Calif., Dec. 23 (AP)—The call comes every Thursday afternoon somewhere in the United States. Its summons: to test-fire a pair of Nike air defense missiles.

It sounds like a strictly military job. But the summons frequently is directed at men like Jon Lyster. He is a civilian, one of 22 supervisors of civilian Nike missile battalions.

These outfits are saving Uncle Sam money, yet providing the country with air defense as efficient as at army-manned sites.

"The call shook me up a bit," says Lyster of a recent surprise, unannounced order informing him his unit was next on the test schedule.

Though he had bossed the unit for only seven days, Lyster took more than 30 men to McDougall range, N.M., Oct. 8 and rolled up the highest score of the test run, outshooting military and civilian Nike units from all over the country.

"We needed a bit of luck," says the deep-voiced middleman who is 21 and looks like a pro football player. But the performance of his battery B of the fourth missile battalion, 251st artillery, was no surprise.

It was an honor roll battery in 1960-61, as were three companion batteries which help guard Los Angeles. Their record made the fourth the only 100 per cent honor roll battalion in the nation.

Organizations like the fourth were created in April, 1958, when the army decided to turn some of its Nike sites over to civilians employed by the national guard.

To assure mobilization of the sites in event of attack, the guard said all employees must join its reserve program.

The employees wear military uniforms at work and salute the officers. But they're civilians, employed by the states and are subject to the terms of employment laid down by their states. Most importantly, they work because they want the job.

LEAVE FOR HOLIDAYS SPRINGDALE, Dec. 23 — Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ellis and family have gone to El Paso, Tex., to spend the holidays with Mrs. Ellis' relatives.

USE TIMES-NEWS WANT ADS. During the week following Christmas, the guild will give stockings to all new arrivals.

The project was started last year, the idea of Mrs. Claude Delweller, who was then president of the guild. She got the idea from attending a convention in Denver. Another guild group in a Denver hospital has had such a project for several years.

Last year the guild made 58 of the stockings for children born that week. Most of the stockings this year have been made by Mrs. Lyle Schmitker, chairman of the pinky puppet committee.

Mrs. Schmitker has been at work for the past several weeks preparing the stockings and already has made 80 of them.

"It's cheaper for the army because there are no fringe benefits for civilian employees. An army private gets $78 a month and a beginner here gets about $400. But the hidden costs are eliminated and the army saves about 50 per cent."

There are no commissary privileges; full-scale medical programs, quarters allowances or retirement plans for the civilians.

At present 70 Nike-Ajax battalions in the continental United States are manned by 4,232 full-time civilian employees.

Seven Twin Falls High School Girls Form Vocal Group to Entertain Clubs

Since late September the "Off-beats" girls sextet has appeared before many gatherings in the community and have made quite a name for themselves. All are juniors at Twin Falls high school, members of the class of 1953. The girls explain they formed the group for several reasons, and one of the main ones was because their graduating class didn't have a small vocal group. According to the girls, it's a necessity. They formed the group, named it and started rehearsals shortly after school started.

The name really is a misnomer. They depend on old standards, traditional ballads and modern ballads for their material and stay away from the "offbeat" type of song. But the name was chosen because it is unique and because one member belonged to a trio in the ninth grade that used the same name.

The girls have been kept busy ever since they made their first public performance in September, appearing at many organizational gatherings. They have sung for the Girls' League, the Twin Falls County Medical society dinner, Twentieth Century Club, Business and Professional Women's club, D.A.R., Job's Daughters and the No. 19 American Legion auxiliary. Youth for Christ state rally, Women's faculty tea and others.

enough of the members are in town, they intend to practice all summer.

Linda Pond and Susan Oliver note that one reason they never get tired of so many practices and performances is because they continue to alter and vary their repertoire.

"If we get tired of singing one song," Linda says, "we stop singing it for awhile and start learning a new one."

The girls also point out that because they have appeared before such varied groups they always have tried to suit the program to the group. It helps make every performance new and interesting.

In order to make a more professional appearance when they sing, the girls designed their own costumes and either had them made or made them themselves. The costumes are brown wool sheath dresses with matching shoes.

"OFFBEATS" crowd around a piano to practice a Christmas song. The sextet is a Junior girls' group at Twin Falls high school, the only vocal group in the class of 1953. Twist Theme Draws Blast

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP) The Pan American union, usually a regal place of gold and white, had a different twist for Diane Dow Buchanan's coming-out party.

Thursday night it became a pink palace with pink plumes and giant peppermint sticks and a sign that read "Dede's Peppermint lounge."

Not everyone was pleased with the transformation. Some Latin American diplomats whispered disapproval.

But Diane, better known as Dede, was pleased. She is fond of dancing the twist—a dance that has gone high hat after being "discovered" among the "rock 'n' roll set" at a New York cafe called the Peppermint lounge.

Dede, a pretty 18-year-old blond, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley T. Buchanan, Jr. He was protocol chief for the state department during the Eisenhower administration.

Project of Making Candy Christmas Wreath Turns Into Holiday Business

years ago she made them for her friends and relatives, but the requests poured in and before she knew it she was in business.

Now she has to order candy in mid-summer to make sure she doesn't run out during the holiday season. Last year she bought candy as she needed it, but soon had to go out and purchase all the candy in stock from three major stores. She can use only paper wrapped candy in colored paper.

She made 100 wreaths the first year and has added about 100 wreaths to her output each year. The first one she made for the bank, where her husband is the assistant cashier. It was admired by the women there and the word got around.

The candy is tied onto the wreaths with fine metal wire. Most of the wreaths are constructed on a frame made from clothes hangers, but some of the larger ones are made on special frames.

The wreaths are made to hang on the front door. Mrs. Garrison notes that when she first started making them it was almost a family project. Her oldest son, Billy, still helps her and her husband works on the wreaths.

After working on them for three holiday periods, Mrs. Garrison has become quite speedy.

It takes another 30 minutes to finish decorating it with ribbons.

Yule Tricks Cause Priest To Send Note

By The Associated Press
Canadian kids are up to their Christmas tree tricks again. As they have often done in the past—because they found Uncle Sam to be Uncle Santa—they're flooding the United States once more with pitiful pleas issued to church Christmas trees.

But the bells ring may not be thinking so merrily on sleighs of modest going northward. In fact, the tear-jerking tots may have pulled Santa's whiskies once too often.

A tree from the little town of Tracadie, New Brunswick, toughed the hearts of men at MacDill air force base in Florida, and then touched off the fire of the "Tracadie Pariah" priest.

On the tree was not a toy from a boy mystic: "Will you have the kindness to help a poor boy?" It asked for a box of candy to be shared with seven brothers and sisters.

The MacDill men hastily associated a planeload of food, toys and clothing, and sent it ainging to Tracadie. Back from Tracadie today came winning some stiff words uttered by the parish priest, the Rev. A. Trudel, about the incline of the local kids.

He denied that residents of the New Brunswick village are in dire straits, as the air force men were led to believe. He said only two families in the population of more than 4,000 were in need, but that they were being well looked after.

"Children these days want everything," snapped Father Trudel.

SANTA CLAUS faces decorates the workbooks that fifth-grade students of Mrs. L. M. Hall have made for their parents. The workbooks serve as a project for the children and a permanent record for their parents of creative writing the children did in school this semester. Mrs. Hall is a firm believer in offering creative writing in the elementary grades. Demonstrate the workbooks in the

Teacher Uses Creative Writing in Third Grade as Help for Teaching

Many persons associate elementary school class subject matter with learning the alphabet, spelling, arithmetic and systematic location of states. But some teachers feel it is time for students to attempt creative writing, frequently a difficult task for graduate students in college English departments.

Mrs. L. M. Hall, third grade teacher at Washington school, has used creative writing as a teaching device for many years. Writing serves many purposes in her classroom—everything from teaching the students how to think and express themselves as serving as a Christmas present for their parents. Last week creative writing workbooks were given to parents for Christmas.

Mrs. Hall has used creative writing not only to teach the children how to use the language, but also how to think with precision and how to be content with content. "I like for them to be able to think what they are writing, not how they are writing. If they learn to do this in the early grades, they will be better writers in later grades, and it will have an influence on their grades and the quality of work they do throughout their school careers," she explains.

All written work in her class is done during class hours. Often the children are given a broad topic, such as Christmas holidays, and then encouraged to write anything they wish. After the work is turned in, she checks it and children often offer constructive criticism to their fellow classmates.

"They really enjoy the work," Mrs. Hall says, "because they are able to express themselves and release the way they feel about things." She adds that the writing is a great aid in helping her get to know the children. "You can get some lovely thoughts from a 'naughty' boy," she adds.

Mary Lou McMill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McMill, also wrote on Christmas.

"I wonder what Christmas is. But still no one will tell. It seems they always give presents To those who don't feel well.

It seems that Christmas is giving Joy and peace. For all the wonderfully Christmas days, And also Christmas eve."

Christina Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Russell, wrote on the subject of Christmas eve.

"It's cold outside, And Santa's right, He's going to catch A cold tonight. The toys will go Through the wind and snow, And Santa's not going to Get to the show. How is he going to make his trip? How is he going to get on his ship? How is he going to be there on time? How is he going to pick out what's mine?"
