One study indicates that to provide the food requirements for a family of four ordinarily takes more than 200 shopping trips in a year. An electric freezer can save you at least half of those trips to the food market.

Saving shopping time is only one of the many benefits of freezer ownership. You save food preparation time, too. Prepare two meals at a time; serve one, freeze the other. Have extra meals always on hand. With a freezer you can take advantage of quantity discounts, enjoy off-season treats, serve better-balanced meals.

Your family will live better—eat better—with an electric freezer. See the new models at your favorite dealer's soon!

Jerome Levy Is Compared To Those in Other Counties

JEROME, Aug. 11—School officials today released a comparison of the Jerome school district levies compared to the surrounding counties.

The comparison points up the need for the five-mill plant facilities levy on which an election is set Tuesday. All taxpayers or parents of school age children are eligible to vote in the election.

More than 35 mills were levied for school district purposes in about one-fifth of the school districts in Idaho during the 1961-62 school year. Caldwell and Lewiston received revenue from levies of just slightly over 60 districts named have a plant facility levied which varies from two to 10 mills. In several districts voters have approved an additional mill levy in the plant facility fund for the coming year.

A one-mill levy in the Jerome county and school district will raise $8,000. A five-mill levy will raise $40,000, Rubeel said. An approved plant facility levy may be reduced or discontinued by the board of trustees but it may not be raised above an amount approved by the voters.

Dr. Rubeel said after studying and comparing mill levies of the various school districts, "The farmers in the Jerome area are every bit as good and prosperous as the farmers in the neighboring areas." He concluded, "The taxpayers in the Jerome school district want their youngsters to have an education that will prepare them to compete favorably with the youngsters in the next district."

City's Recreation Program Praised By Local Citizen

Editor, Times-News: On the morning of Aug. 4, my wife and I, along with other mothers and fathers attended a program at the city park bandstand. This program consisted of a summer recreation program for children of all ages. We saw the children playing, jumping and bawling. We certainly enjoyed watching these youngsters do what they had been taught.

Woman Calls Congressional Spending Revolting Action

Editor, Times-News: I only wish it were possible for every newspaper in these United States of America to publish a series of articles on congressional spending which appeared recently in a leading Salt Lake City newspaper; to say that it was a revolting disclosure is putting it mildly. Sometimes I wonder just how long it will be before the people get their heads out of the sands of apathy and really assert themselves.

JEROME PLANS for Monday visit of Red Cross bloodmobile

are discussed by William Burke, Jerome accountant, and Mrs. Leslie T. Robinson, sr., chairman, of the Jerome bloodmobile program. The bloodmobile will stop at the 3000 hall in Jerome from 2 to 4 p.m. Monday. Burke says he never realized the value of the blood program until surgery in June. The left lobe of his lung was removed and he required 11 pints of blood when he started hemorrhaging four hours later. The blood would have cost $50 for the first pint and $25 for each subsequent pint if the Idaho Red Cross program had not replaced it. He plans to become a steady donor as soon as he has recovered completely. Quota for the Jerome drawing is 150 pints. (Staff engraving)

Walker Says Barbs Cued By Editorials

Charges that the Republican party is using newspaper editorials as a cue for statements were made by Lloyd J. Walker, state Democratic chairman, Saturday morning.

Walker further stated that the gaming issue will definitely arise in the November elections and that the voters will make their own decision.

"Following is a statement:—

"Upon my return from a most enlightening convention of the Western State Democratic party in Seattle, I have been catching up on the news and in particular John Mackmurray's sidekick. The thing about them that is most impressive is there almost complete lack of originality. Mackmurray appears to wait for an editorial line to develop from the favorite news media and then blazes forth with a crass and original statement.

"For example, the Idaho Daily Statesman on Aug. 8, in an editorial, stated that Mr. Church carried on his campaign of confusion and division and ended up by stating, 'Gaming is a game that demands a stand. It either is opposed or accepted. On Aug. 8, the always amiable, progressive and original Republican party through its chairman issued a press release headlined as follows, 'Mackmurray Says Stand on Gaming Issue Needed.'

"Come on now John, why not do a little of our own thinking. I could suggest a couple of good fellows to help so that you wouldn't need to plagiarize so directly. Obviously in this campaign we will hear many wonderful political clichés, but very little original thought from the Republican party.

"Seriously, fellows, let's stop beating the dead horse. The plank adopted at Idaho Falls recognizes that gaming is a controversial issue and it also recognizes that in a democracy such as ours, only the people who vote are entitled to make the decision.

"The party adopted a plank which allows Vernon E. Smith to campaign on this issue along with many others. The party did not feel itself so all wise or all important that it should attempt to preclude this issue before the election. The voters of this state will make that decision in the constitutional election. It is to that time we are just going to all back and watch Smith campaigning. I am sure that even if the campaign will be a little uneven because Smith has so many wonderful letters to use. It is undoubtedly the opinion of most of the citizenry that: 'Smith—has a few more letters to use. It is modern times. So why try to outsmart the people now? They are going to make the judgment in November and we in the Democratic party have always had respect for the intelligence of the people.'

Vandalism

MELNER, Aug. 11—Mr. and Mrs. Donald Webb returned from a vacation in the hills to find the home on the farm they rent from Clarence Sears, Utah, in shambles. Obnoxiousities and initials had been printed over the walls and windows.

The house was not occupied by the Webbs but had been converted into a "day-house" for their children. Mrs. Webb's garden beside the house had been torn up and almost completely ruined.

A tenant house owned by the Webbs had been entered and ransacked about the same time.

21 Policemen Suspended For Bribes

CHICAGO, Aug. 11—Twenty-one Illinois state policemen, accused of sucking bribes from truckers violating overweight laws, were suspended from the force for five days yesterday.

Public safety Director Joseph Ragan told them: "The practices which were being followed in your district have brought discredit and disgrace to a fine organization."

The officers, from district 3 in northern Chicago and Cook county, were told by Ragan they would remain on the force despite the fact that "most of you were involved to some extent in a violation of the rules and regulations of the state police."

Another trooper was suspended indefinitely and a 23rd was transferred to district 10 earlier.

Bid Opening Set Aug. 29 on New Road to Stanley

STANLEY, Aug. 11—Bids for the forest highway canyon creek project between Stanley and Lovell will be opened Aug. 29 by the state highway board.

Gov. Robert E. Smylie told Glenn Brewer, Challis, in a letter.

The governor says "according to the bureau of public roads, the project was not planned to be advertised until early summer because prospective bidders would have to wait until all the snow melted to view the proposed project on the ground prior to bidding."

The original project was for an eight-mile section. With the grant for additional funds last fall, the bureau was able to develop a 12-mile project, projected at $200,000, the governor writes.

The 12-mile section will open traffic from the end of the present Canyon creek job off the south fork of the Payette river to the present Stanley-Bear valley road at the Banner-Bird Trout lake junction, Smylie notes.

Three Boys Get $15 Reward Each For $17,000 Find

CLEVELAND, Aug. 11 (AP)—Three Cleveland boys who found a metal box containing $17,000 in cash have received rewards of $15 each, and police persuaded the owner of the money to deposit it in a bank.

The box was found by Thomas Jurkiewicz, 12, and Jeff Lehman, 14.

The boys were playing in a wooded gully in western Newburgh Heights near their home Thursday night and saw a man looting a metal box after unsuccessfully trying to open it.

The youngsters took the box to their apartment of the Jurkiewicz and home. They opened the box and found bundles of money, loose bills and a check for $17,000.

The boy identified the owner as Adam Blorkowski, 77, Cleveland. Blorkowski said police had not known the box was missing from his hiding place.

Appointments will not be necessary. A report of the findings for each child will be sent to school principals and nurses.

Assisting doctors will be members of the Twin Falls high school Future Nurses of America under the direction of Jeanette Jankowski.

Joanna Melton, Fraena Exchange Nuptial Promise

FILER, Aug. 11—Joanna Melton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Melton, Filer, was united in marriage to Jerry Odell Fraley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Fraley, Aug. 5 at the First Baptist church, Filer.

The bride's beholding performed the double ring ceremony before an arch entwined with pink gladioli and greenery, with white bells falling from the center. Baskets of pink gladioli and yellow-tipped glimmantinas were on brass stands and white tapers in candelabras formed a background setting. The pew's arched arch were marked with white satin bows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace lined with white satin. The gown, which had been fashioned by the bride's mother, featured a rounded neckline edged with seed pearls and longly point sleeves also edged with seed pearl trim. The length of illusion was held by a crown of seed pearls.

She wore a bouquet of white carnations and white satin streamers on a white ribbon and a silk hat grandmother, Mrs. E. A. Brabb.

Becky Melton was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a mint green dactron dress with a bodice of Chantilly lace and a bouffant skirt with a ribbon of green satin ribbon and veiling.

Charlotte Melton, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Her yellow dress and hat were fashioned like that of the maid of honor. Each wore a pearl necklace.

Richard Melton, brother of the bride, and Royce Fraley, brother of the groom, were ring bearers. They carried the rings on small lace pillows ornamented with green ribbons.

Ardean Lang was best man and James Field, cousin of the bride, and Kelly Riet, were ushers.

Patricia Field and Maxine Rabh, cousins of the bride, were candlelighters. They were dressed in pink dactron streamers and dresses with ruffled necklines and bouffant skirts.

Carol Schuyler sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "With This Ring," accompanied at the organ by Donna Farmer.

A salmon-colored afternoon dress with brown accessories and a brown orchid corsage was the choice of the bride. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy and white dress with matching hat accessories. She wore a white carnation corsage.

Donna Finston, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the reception which followed the ceremony. Gifts were displayed by Mrs. Riet, Mrs. Lang and Greta Hoag. The gift tables were decorated with flowers from the gardens of the bride's mother, grandmother, and Mrs. Fred Wilson.

The reception table was covered with a green cloth and a white nylon ruffled skirt. Small nosegays of flowers tied with yellow ribbon adorned the edge of the table.

A three-tiered wedding cake decorated with pink roses and love birds centered the table. The cake was topped with bells and was flanked by cupid tines holding yellow carnations and pink and white roses.

Mrs. Ruth Hughes, aunt of the bride, served punch. Mrs. Frank Blades, cousin of the bridegroom, presided at the coffee service. Cake was served by Mrs. Price-Holloway, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Norman Kessler, cousin of the bridegroom.

Also assisting were Mrs. Mildred Nelson, Vada Nelson, Mrs. Wayne McCandless, Mrs. Thomas Lucas and Sue Lucas.

Dolores Butts and Sandra Abel

presented background piano music during the reception.

For a honeymoon trip to Boise the bride changed to a Jersey dress of green and orange flowers on a white background and wore a yellow carnation corsage.

The bride was graduated from the Filer high school in 1962. The bridegroom was graduated from Sadler high school, Sadler, Tex., in 1960 and is employed at the Twin Falls Tractor company, Twin Falls. The couple will live in Filer.

Out-of-town guests attended from Boise, Twin Falls, Kimberly, Murtaugh, Boise, California and Texas. A special guest was Elaine Finston, cousin of the bride, stationed with the marines in Hawaii and home on leave.

Showers honoring the bride were given by Mrs. Lois Abel, Mrs. Marie and Maxine Rabh, Mrs. Kelly Riet, Mrs. Veia Herd at the First Baptist church, and by women of the Filer Church of the Nazarene.

A wedding rehearsal buffet supper was served at the home of the bride's parents with Mr. and Mrs. Fraley as co-hosts.

Future Activity Set by Hansen Worthwhile Club

Committee chairmen appointed are Mrs. Vernon Ball, welfare; Mrs. Raymond Johnson, gifts; Mrs. Micho Tuley, cards; and Mrs. L. P. Larsen, flowers.

Woman Barber Sees Nothing Strange in Job

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (AP)—If a barber shop "quartz" ever needs a soprano, there's Marjatta Allen, 34, blue-eyed and blonde, available.

Mrs. Allen is among the few women barbers in the nation and sees nothing unusual about a woman having a career in what in the United States is a traditionally masculine world of lather and razor "strop."

"In Finland," she said, "the barbers are women. It is not a career for men."

(No accurate count of the number of women professional barbers in this country is available, but the trade publication barbers journal and men's hairstylist said she was rare.)

Mrs. Allen, a barber for 12 years, spent eight of them in her native Finland, came to the United States four years ago with her husband Ray, a salesman. "Because we wanted to see another part of the world," and has been barbering in New York shops since.

Marjatta (she pronounces her name as if it were spelled Marjatta) most recent job has been stopping traffic on busy Madison avenue, advertising row of Manhattan.

She's been trimming mannequin heads to size in full view of passersby through a picture window at a shop called the roving chair. The shop, a new one, features a lounge filled with Boston rockers where waiting customers can copy President Kennedy's method of relaxation.

But Mrs. Allen said she was moving to Delta Hairstylist, a smaller shop uptown, where she would have more time for her steady clientele which she said numbered 400-plus.

The morning we talked with her she was putting the finishing touches on a trim for Estelle Adler, employed at a well-known men's wear firm on Madison avenue.

"I don't think it matters whether the barber is a man or a woman," said Adler. "It's just does the barber do a good job? The hairdresser do a good job? I've followed Marjatta for some time now."

Mrs. Allen, tall and on the plump side, works in pale blue linen overalls, topped by the barber's white smock, fitted instead of loose in her case.

To go with her shoulder length bob of blonde hair are long, pink-lacquered nails and blue eyes shadow.

She was born in Ylivieska, a Finnish ski resort town near Lapland.

Daughter of an engineer, she is the only member of the family in barbering. She explained the career in Finland paid more for a woman than would a stenographer or secretarial job and was

Identity Tags Necessary; May Help Save Life

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (AP)—Mobile Americans off on business and pleasure trips, seldom carry a medical history that can save the difference between life and death in an emergency.

Some diabetics wear tags that will tip doctors off if coma strikes when they are away from home. But many do not.

Tags also are worn by persons allergic to penicillin, heparin and other drugs or insecticides. Again — many do not.

The problem facing the mobile considered just as fitting for a woman.

She studied at barbering school in Helsinki for three years then did two years of apprenticeship before she got her license.

Getting a start in barber shops in New York was not easy, she said, because owners were reluctant to hire her. And more customers were "afraid of the woman barber." But gradually she built a following which she said includes some important names in the advertising business, show business and other professions.

"I call them my boys," said Mrs. Allen, who has no children of her own. "They are all gentlemen."

Occasionally, a customer — not one of her regulars — will ask her for a shave. She's found a simple way of handling the answer—"I tell them 'I must first ask my husband,'" she said.

"When I tell this to my husband, he laughs, and says—'See that shows I have good taste.' His other husband when he came into a barber shop in Helsinki for a trim. 'I still cut his hair once a week,'" she said. "But things are different since we married. Now, he doesn't tip."

American. In a medical emergency was one that occurred many times to Dr. Kenneth Goss when he practiced medicine in Rochester, N. Y.

"I thought of the cardiac patient who had an emergency hundreds of miles from home," he said in an interview. "And I lamented over the time involved in getting a medical history that came from scratch — time spent learning something noted in the patient's files in my office."

Dr. Goss said he also thought of the predicament of a patient allergic to horse serum — contained in tetanus antitoxin — and what could happen to the patient given the antitoxin if involved in an automobile accident and suffering puncture wounds and abrasions containing road dirt.

If the patients could carry their medical histories with them for viewing by doctors when an emergency strikes far from home, treatment could be facilitated and mistakes avoided," Dr. Goss said.

Now a medical consultant, Dr. Goss, of New York, recently developed a system enabling persons to carry their medical records with them. It works this way:

The family doctor's records of a patient are transferred to microfilm and sealed in a plastic case not much thicker than the typical driver's license.

The microfilmed information contained on two frames of film not much larger than a postage stamp — includes miniaturized copies of X-rays and excerpts from electrocardiograms.

The patient is instructed to carry the card in his wallet. On one side, the life service record contains the patient's name and address. The other side tells the emergency doctor to cut the pocket along the dotted line to retrieve the microfilm containing the patient's medical history.

"If the doctor doesn't have a microfilm reader handy," Dr. Goss said, "He can use a hand lens or low power microscope to read the microfilm."

The general practitioner, a graduate of the University of Rochester medical school, and there are practical reasons for microfilming the record.

"I have had patients with cardiac conditions carry records until the papers became so tattered that they couldn't be read," he said.

"And usually, when an emergency happened, the records the patient so faithfully toiled out of town with him were tucked in a piece of luggage back in the hotel."

Another reason for the microfilm, according to the physician, is that there is a limitation frequently on information a doctor wants a patient to know about his particular condition.

"Some things," he said, "you don't want some patients to know about."

Dr. Goss said some of the information will be coded according to the six-digit code used by medical librarians.

He gave one example: "Yoo-yoo," that means an undiagnosed disease at an undetermined site — a kind of hypochondria, that is.

Why Don't We
Get Formed by Modern Women.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (AP)—The fashion industry is looking for a way to improve its production and to help the consumer get more out of his money—since the fashion industry and manufacturers are losing money—because they don't know what the women want. These are the reasons from a survey of 100 women from 10 different cities who are members of the National Consumer Council, Inc., a consumer group with headquarters in Washington.

The persistent "why don't they" question in recent years has been "why don't they make better clothes?" Several readers wondered why they don't make better clothes. Mrs. J. Brownell, Minneapolis, said she had bought several of the "why don't they" coats last winter. Mrs. J. Brownell, Minneapolis, said she had bought several of the "why don't they" coats last winter. Bardot 'Beehive' Hits Dust, Says I.F. Wig Woman

IDAHO FALLS, Aug. 11 (AP)—In case you hadn't heard, the Brigitte Bardot-inspired "beehive" hairdo is now "out"—but women are still buying those colored wigs.

That's the word from a former amateur opera singer from Utah who now handles the ladies' wig trade in this area.

Replacing the beehive, or bouffant, will be a "straight, smooth" straightened hairdo, "Max-Jenabed," says Mrs. A. Wendell Holmes, Idaho Falls, a milliner who is in the recent rush for ladies' wigs.

The name comes from the hairdo worn by French actress Delphine Berrie in the motion picture "Last Year in Marienbad."

But replacing the ladies' wig, which caught fire here only four months ago, will be nothing less than more wigs, Mrs. Holmes says.

"I don't think it's a fad," she says. "It has been going on in larger cities such as New York for two to three years and it's still going strong."

The ladies' desire for wigs, especially platinum blonde wigs, was sparked by Paris fashion designers and emulated in the U.S. by New York personalities.

"I understand it got started when a Paris designer decided models could change clothes faster and not muss their hair if they wore wigs," Mrs. Holmes says.

Then, personalities such as Dorothy Kilgallen and Ariane Francis said they wore wigs, and this caught the women's imagination.

The most popular colors in the past four months, and still holding strongly, are platinum blonde ("there is normally no such thing, you know") red, and black respectively, she says.

"Women don't mind if people know they are wearing wigs; their friends would all know the platinum blonde hair isn't theirs."

Young and old alike have caught the bug, she says.

"Age makes no difference—they all buy them," says Mrs. Holmes. "The youngest are high school students, some of whom baby sit to pay for them."

"The oldest, well, I've sold some to women up to 60, especially those who travel or are going on vacation."

"Women wear wigs because they like a change and to please their husbands, or the men in their lives, rather than to gain notice from other women," she says.

"Most of them are concerned with what the men think, but also the change means a lot. It's the same as getting one's hair dyed—it has an impact on their personality."

Low cost wigs are made from a synthetic hairlike material and are sold for $15 each, while wigs made from Italian hair start at $50. Some made from French hair start at $100 and run as high as $1,000 apiece, she says.

"I get wigs either unstyled or semi-styled from New York," Mrs. Holmes says. "After they are purchased, the women take them to get them styled—we can't do that ourselves or we might get in trouble with the salons."

"Some of them want wigs that 'don't look like myself,' but they buy them for fun as a rule—frankly take and frankly fun."

Fabric, Color Mix Prominent In-Fall Fashions

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (AP)—Next thing you know the nation's pace setting designers will ditch pink to go to denim sheath, add a few sequins and pass the works off for an evening dress.

The mixing of fabric, colors and furs in the nation's garment district hasn't reached that point yet. But collections of fall apparel viewed to date are so mixed up that there's room to speculate about pink trimming on denim skirts, or burlap and other homey fabrics.

In the Sarni collection, for example, mixes of fabric ranged from velvet and chiffon to fustian with velvet. Color combinations include brown and black, pink with olive green, jade with all-ver, and the black with blue look.

The latter feature in a midnight blue and black velvet costume—that is jet embroidered.

Other combinations of fabric include wool worsteds with chiffon or satin blouses; crepe with silk, and velvet with brocade.

With all the mixes, the little black dress cropped up a stabilizing factor.

Little blacks in the Sarni designs range from princess silhouettes to those with deep décol-

BY LARRY HOVEY

Writing on a baseball is one of the most difficult talents a professional ball player can learn. Many attempts for years, however, the "unconquerable" round thing in various ways. For, are we satisfied with the finished product?

Into this situation comes George Bosnak, a Pioneer league umpire, who not only can auto-graph a baseball, but is well known throughout the country as a baseball "painter". In fact, Bosnak's fame is spreading to every spot on the globe where baseball is played.

Although he calls himself a baseball painter, this hardy fella, but it's difficult to come up with another description. Bosnak, who hails from Pittsburgh, uses colored ink to draw anything on a baseball.

Needless to say, he also can handle the othe and case, too.

His charge is nominal and his work is put some comparison to the artist who thrived before the camera.

He works grace the desks of many major league owners including Bob Carpenter of the Phillies, Walt O'Ryan of the Dodgers and others in various positions in baseball's hierarchy. Most of the major league umpires have had work done by him.

He did a ball on Roger Maris' 60th and 61st homers last year, for the ump behind the plate and afterman. The number of major players and managers who have his prizes is too many list.

He currently is doing Louis Aparicio's 1,000th major league hit, which he got, incidentally, on the same day, Baltimore. He chronicled Roberto Clement's batting title, and Harvey Kuenn's 1,000th hit off Dick Donovan. The list goes on and on.

The biggest single item was Bill Mazeroski's dramatic home run that won the world series title for Pittsburgh two years ago.

"I did that year just about anything. All of them were different although I had to re-use some different balls.

That's just too many baseballs to do and not run out of ideas," he smiles.

So far as Bosnak knows his works are in South America, Japan, United States and a few other places. "I don't remember how many countries," he says. "I get letters asking for balls from people everywhere who've never even known."

Many of the Pioneer league boys have taken advantage of Bosnak's ability, hitting closest to home is the one he did for Boise's Garner Stulting, commemorating the aide-armer's no-hit decision over the Cowboys early this year.

He has done one on just about everyone in the baseball hall of fame and one of his exhibits is on display there. However, his biggest single display is in a bank in Pittsburgh. "They should have 283 balls on display there. At least that's how many I sent them," Bosnak says. "This guy wants balls on just about every event that happens in the game."

Through his hobby, for that's about all Bosnak considers it, and the nominal fee he charges, he bears out the theory he has discussed much about the othe and history of the game. For instance, he was asked to chronicle an event which happened in Knoxville, Tenn., in 1927. It seems a centerfielder, John Mostel, turned in the greatest catch ever. From his centerfield position, Mostel ran down a wind-blown fly and caught it in foul territory.

Bosnak puts in long hours at this picked-up trade. The 14 dozen observing Mazeroski's homer in ranks as the most or any one subject, Bosnak says he averages between three and four hours per ball. The longest time spent and most difficult assignment came at the order of Wall O'Malley, Dodger owner.

On this ball, which took six full hours, Bosnak drew a map of the eastern half of the country, including the Rockies. On the other portion were the western states with Los Angeles the focal point. Chavez Ravine and the old Ebbetts field also were pictured and the Dodgers' world series victories in 1955 and 1958 duly listed. To top it off, Bosnak included a head of Emmet Kelly, well-known clown who performed for the Dodgers regularly at Ebbetts field as a crowd drawer.

"That was the toughest," he says. "It took me six hours and had to get away from it many times. Usually I need only one break to do a ball but this one took more."

The evolution into becoming a baseball painter was in the army for Bosnak. He received 11 purple hearts during World War II and the Korean conflict and spent the postwar service going out for all kinds of service sports, football, baseball and basketball in particular.

"Finally one of the officers got tired of me going out for every sport that came along and sent me to a school. I was a hard labor sergeant at the time. He didn't know I was a painter and sent me to umpire school and was quite disturbed when I returned with my chest protector. Bosnak recalls with a chuckle.

He left the army in 1954 and began umpiring in professional leagues, hitting the Pioneer league in 1956. "I got started in baseball painting that year," he remembers. "A woman in Boston knew I had done some painting and suggested I try a baseball. I did and it came out pretty well. I've been doing it ever since."

This hobby, which is threatening to overwhelm him, fits in well with his off-season employment. Since 1954 he has worked with the Pittsburgh recreation department. The bulk of his baseball painting also is done during the winter.

The three occupations make odd bedfellows, particularly difficult for children to understand.

Two years ago Bosnak heard of a one-armed, red-headed kid in Topeka, Kansas, who played Little League ball, pitching and in the outfield. "I got interested from the club there and painted a ball for the kid. Then before one of the games, the managers of the club came out and we asked this boy to come to home plate. I gave him the ball and the kid started to cry, he was so happy and touched. I started to introduce him to the manager. Get back in there and swing you bum! He's doing okay, and stuff like that. I never had it so good. The crowd was wild and I couldn't make a bad call if I tried," he laughs.

This summer, while in Billings, Bosnak read in a paper that Great Falls youngster was in an accident and had the attorney taken to see him up. The Great Falls ball club, all 18 players, called on the boy in the hospital.

"I painted up a ball for the kid and went to see him the next time I was in Great Falls," he umpire continues. "He was real tickled to get it. Bill a little later he got out that I had run Ronning (Al Ronning, Great Falls manager) and he told me to take the ball back."

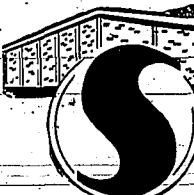

And add insult to injury, Bosnak once painted a ball for a friend who in turn traded it for a 23-pound turkey. "I did all the work and I didn't even get a bite of the turkey," he laughs.

Football to Honor Stagg On Birthday

STOCKTON, Calif., Aug. 11 (AP)—America's patriarch of sports, Jimmie Stagg, celebrates his 100th birthday on Thursday, Aug. 16. Stagg, who was born in 1862, is a dedicated teacher of men. Twelve dinners are scheduled throughout the country to pay tribute to this man from a humble origin who is honored by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame as player, coach and "the game's greatest teacher."

Stagg himself can take only a small part in the ceremonies. He is now 93 years old and has been confined to a rest home. At West Orange, N.J., where Stagg was born Aug. 16, 1862, during the Civil war, a week-long celebration honors his own centennial as well as that of his nation.

As a youngster, Stagg was intrigued by the history of ancient Greece and the discipline of Sparta. He determined that he would face life on his own terms, physically, financially and spiritually. He became the best collegiate baseball pitcher of the era and a member of Walter Camp's first All-America football team as an end in 1889.

Stagg had studied for the ministry but felt he didn't have the gift of speaking well for the pulpit. "I felt specially called to preach," he said recently, "but I decided to do it on the athletic field."

His coaching career spanned 25 years, extended from coast-to-coast and included the greatest athletes who became leaders of their day. Stagg's ruling was that the best of San Francisco's Willie Mays made the smallest of contacts with the ball. "Podres knew what happened," he thought. "The ball was high, it wasn't even a strike. But Mays swung at it and missed it. If he had tipped it, the way he swings it would have gone over Rosboro's head."

The turning point came with one out in the bottom of the sixth and the score tied 2-2. The count was 3-2 on Mays when he swung at a Podres offering. Almost simultaneously, Willie started for the dugout. Dodger catcher John Rosboro dropped the ball and Sudol ruled foul tip.

"Don't ask me what happened," said Willie later. "I know something hit the ball, I heard something. But I thought Rosboro caught it for strike three."

"I don't know how much Willie missed it by," said Rosboro, who was also mentioned about the incident after the game but had been notably open-mouthed about it to Sudol on the field. Podres knew what happened, he thought. "The ball was high, it wasn't even a strike. But Mays swung at it and missed it. If he had tipped it, the way he swings it would have gone over Rosboro's head."

The comments might have all been superfluous except that Mays' outplayed Podres' next pitch for a double to left, that started Dodger's comeback. It also brought Alton and Coach Jim Durocher's attention to the score for an argument retroactive to the tip. It gained was an early shower for Durocher.

TOUCHDOWN PLUNGE by Paul Hornung was successful Friday night as the Green Bay Packers opened their exhibition season with a 31-7 decision over the Dallas Cowboys. (AP wirephoto)

Villaneuva, Bratkowski Lead Rams Past Redskins

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11 (AP)—The winning lead of Danny Villaneuva and the accurate arm of Zeké Bratkowski gave the Los Angeles Rams a 27-17 victory over the Washington Redskins tonight in the first game of the year for both of the National Football League clubs. A surprisingly good sized crowd of 62,201 saw the Rams roll up a 37-0 advantage in the first three quarters and then ease up as coach Bob Waterfield experimented with a number of rookies in the final 15 minutes. Villaneuva booted three field goals good for 40, 15 and 11 yards respectively, while Bratkowski threw two touchdown passes—one to Ollie Matson for 58 yards and the second to Jon Arnett.

The lone Washington score came with but three minutes to play when flippy quarterback Glenn Hall slipped an eight-yard pass to end Fred Dugan in the end zone. "The other two Rams scores came on short plunges over left guard—and both in the third quarter. Veteran Dick Bass knocked the first one and rookie Art Fekina picked up the second."

The Rams defensive display was one of the best in recent years with a number of good performances keyed by those of Les Richter, Merlin McKee, Dave Jones and Urban Henry. Merlin Olson, the rookies' defensive lineman from Utah State, turned in one of the outstanding jobs of the evening among the rookies. He played better than half of the game on defense and before the evening was over the Redskins were double and triple teaming him but without any notable success.

Other good showings by first year men were those of Bobby Smith, a UCLA graduate and the only rookie starter for the Rams, and the Washington Redskins' tackle Ron Miller and Perkin, the last starting fullback from North Texas State. The Rams' holdover of the Rams defense showed in the debil aide of the Redskins statistics. The Rams' starting quarterback, starting quarterback Norman Snead and his substitute, Hall, lost a total loss of 106 yards. And the Rams secondary intercepted four passes, returning them for 177 yards.

Firm Policy Wins Alabama Stakes

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y., Aug. 11 (AP)—Firm Policy, a stretch-running daughter of Princequillo, put in a strong bid for the 2-year-old filly championship today when she won the $57,000 Alabama stakes by 1 1/2 lengths at Saratoga. In chalking up her third straight stakes victory and boosting her 1962 record to five wins, one second and one third in seven starts, Firm Policy covered the 1 1/2 miles of muddy going in 2 minutes, 6 seconds.

For her owner, E. B. Ryan, the victory was worth $37,050 and increased the filly's bankroll for the year to $129,461. For her backers in the crowd of 21,388 the triumph paid off at $170, one cent and one third in seven starts. Disappointments in this 62nd running of the stakes were Cleo from C. T. Cheney's Mesa Farm, Cicada, the 1961 2-year-old champion, and Brama from John Galbreath's Darryl Dan Farm, Cicada, the 1961 2-year-old champion did manage to get third.

Porterhouse Has American Trotting Title

WESTBURY, N.Y., Aug. 11 (AP)—Porterhouse, a 4-year-old son of Rock, came with a surprising world record smashing victory in the 450,000 American Trotting Championship, a past-Rosewell raceway tonight. Driven by the veteran Earl Avery, Porterhouse closed the final yards in 2:00.4, besting his nearest rival, beat Duke Rodney by a neck with a closing of 2 1/2 miles, 32 3/4 seconds for 14 miles. The time clipped two-fifths of a second off the world standard of 2:01.2, established by Floridan in 1953 and equaled by Su Mac Lad in winning Roosevelt's International trot last year.

The victory automatically qualified Porterhouse for next Saturday's International, which Su Mac Lad also will represent the United States against the best trotters of seven other nations.

Wins in Stetch

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (AP)—Harbor View farm's Royal Politics, a 2-1 favorite, charged from behind to win the $61,800 Tucker stakes by one length at Arlington park today. Polydad, another eastern invader, finished second in the mile and one-eighth race for 3-year-old fillies. Dinner Partner finished third, 3/4 lengths back of Polydad's and the same distance ahead of Rudona in the field of 10.

Giants Beat Dodgers on Foul "Tick"

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11 (AP)—The umpire Ed Sudol's decision on a little foul was just that, say the Los Angeles Dodgers, a little foul.

The turning point came with one out in the bottom of the sixth and the score tied 2-2. The count was 3-2 on Mays when he swung at a Podres offering. Almost simultaneously, Willie started for the dugout. Dodger catcher John Rosboro dropped the ball and Sudol ruled foul tip.

"Don't ask me what happened," said Willie later. "I know something hit the ball, I heard something. But I thought Rosboro caught it for strike three."

"I don't know how much Willie missed it by," said Rosboro, who was also mentioned about the incident after the game but had been notably open-mouthed about it to Sudol on the field. Podres knew what happened, he thought. "The ball was high, it wasn't even a strike. But Mays swung at it and missed it. If he had tipped it, the way he swings it would have gone over Rosboro's head."

The comments might have all been superfluous except that Mays' outplayed Podres' next pitch for a double to left, that started Dodger's comeback. It also brought Alton and Coach Jim Durocher's attention to the score for an argument retroactive to the tip. It gained was an early shower for Durocher.

Ancient People Were Litterbugs

The hills were full of litterbugs. There was no Chamber of Commerce around at that time to lure people into Magic Valley but they were here. The fact they were litterbugs made it possible for modern man to know something about them, because the time of their visit was as far back as 10,000 years ago.

The report on these people, their customs and some habits and the climatical changes which took place in those early times makes interesting reading in an information circular just released by the Idaho bureau of mines and geology and titled "Primitive Man on Browns Bench."

It remained for members of the Leslie V. Dean family to draw attention to the site as a possible important one for research purposes. Initial archeological surveys and tests of sites in the area, including the principal site at the head of Cedar creek some 15 miles southwest of Rogers, were made during the summers of 1937 and 1938. In order to assess the full effects of geologic history and local rock materials upon the cultural development of man in this region, the Idaho bureau of mines and geology conducted an investigation in August, 1939, this report relates.

During the summer of 1939, a field party from the University of Idaho, jointly financed by the National Science Foundation and the university, carried on an intensive study of the area, exposing 78 to 80 inches of culture-bearing deposits adjacent to a large spring where Cedar creek heads.

The report continues that during the cooperative study, it became apparent that the geological and climatological history of the region southwest of Twin Falls was primarily responsible for the presence of early man in the area and for the uses he made of the natural habitat.

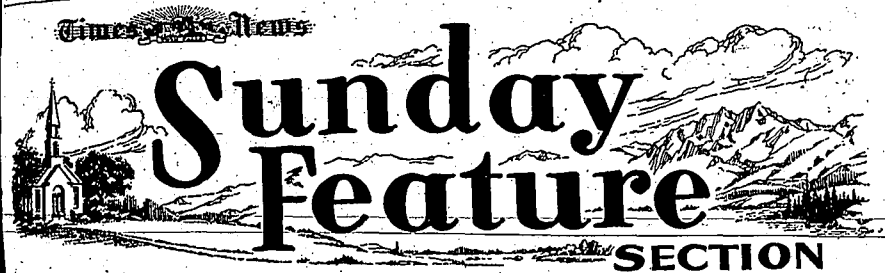

Providing the geological and archeological interpretations of the data presented are correct, primitive man was present in southern Idaho as early as 10,000 years ago.

It is concluded that the geologic history of the region undoubtedly was an important influence on the presence of ancient man in the area.

The broad valley in which Salmon falls creek is located must have been desirable as a route of travel for early man because of the presence of local rock materials upon the

THOUSANDS OF YEARS AGO these two men probably would have been surrounded by their own litterbugs. They are inspecting famed Browns Bench, southwest of Twin Falls at a point on the edge of Cedar creek. A report just released after intensive study of the area shows occupation of the area probably started 10,000 years ago and continued until about 2,000 years ago when the Snake river plains became more inviting, and not so hot, and the early visitors moved down. Andrew Harrell, left, Rogers rancher and pioneer resident, and Peter Goertzen, curator for the Twin Falls County Historical society, visited the site last week. A good dirt road leads right to the site, now on fenced ground. (Times-News photo)

Aerial Crews Aid Ground Units in Forest Blazes

Blaine, Aug. 11—Skies over the Blaine area were filled with activity as day and night the fire season is in full swing. Falls and Horton peak on the westwaters of the Salmon river. For many years men have climbed the steep inclines of mountains on which the forest lookout stations are located at the beginning of the fire season to remain there continuously until fall storms eliminate the fire hazard.

Comparatively new is fire observation by airplane and helicopter, which is supplementing the lookout vigil.

Lawrence Johnson, local pilot at the Blaine county airport who measures snow depths on courses, impossible to reach by snow-cat during the winter months, is flying Doryl Martindale, fire observer, over the forest almost daily.

David Serp is piloting the helicopter contracted by the Northwest national forest from Ellis McClure and John Bowman of Oregon for the fire season. He is also stationed at the Blaine county airport. Serp is called out on call duty only occasionally. His principal duty is to carry and dump benconite onto a newly-discovered blaze, thus holding it under control until fire fighters can be brought either by foot or dropped by parachute from airplanes.

The helicopter pilot also carries fire-fighting equipment and men. Two men can be flown in

Girl, 11, Proves Tests Are Easy

If you are an adult and have been driving for a few years you should have some ideas about the simplicity of the written test for drivers.

An 11-year-old Twin Falls girl, Stephanie Dick, took the test without prior notice and came up with a grade of 88. She had never driven a car, never read the driver's manual and, for that matter, did not even know she was going to take such a test until it was handed her by Sheriff James H. Benham.

The whole idea was a Times-News arrangement to prove the written test for driving as now required does not amount to much.

The morning of the test, the girl was told the Times-News feature editor was going to pick her up and use her in a story for the paper. She was told nothing else.

A few minutes before 10 a.m., she was picked up at her home and taken to the sheriff's office. She still had not been told what was up. She did, however, look a little concerned when ushered into the office. She was introduced to the sheriff and, when he handed her the test paper, she was told to answer as many questions as she could without outside aid of any kind.

It was just 21 minutes later that she announced she had answered all the questions she could figure out.

The paper was handed to Mrs. Stella Clark, in charge of the

Many Pioneer Graves in Idaho Showing Results of Long Neglect and Vandalism

Many of Idaho's early residents, remembered in story and song and deed, are not doing so well when it comes to caring and preserving their last resting places.

Unlike most eastern areas of the United States where old burial places are kept up and, if nothing else, made attractive to casual viewers and historians alike, graveyards in Idaho are not caring so well.

The neglect of pioneer resting places is not the rule in every instance. An exception is the cemetery at the old town of Rock Creek. But in too many cases nothing is being done to preserve these areas for posterity.

No Fund Available

Modern, privately-owned cemeteries set up an endowment perpetual care fund which assures that the area in question will be maintained. But the old cemeteries had no fund of this nature so, as a result, are falling into decay—too many cases it is not possible to find out which people are even buried there.

Example of such resting places in this section of the state are those at Galena, Sawtooth City, Custer and Bonanza, just to name a few. All are not so far away from Twin Falls, and all are not so old. But many are being forgotten.

As a result the old cemetery continues to drift away and only a few tombstones are left. In Rock Creek not too long ago disappeared those left had all been toppled by vandals.

Artesian was once set to be a flourishing town around James E. Bowser's hot, Artesian well. Some 40 acres were laid out in lots 25 and 50 feet wide and several five and 10 acre tracts surrounding the area. Two swimming pools were located there. But that is not all. There were

IMPRESSIVE TOMBSTONE, with Emerson Fugimore, Hagerman, civil leader standing alongside, is one of the few still left in the old Hagerman cemetery. It has been neglected since the new cemetery was started, and new many graves are not even marked. Fugimore is attempting to instigate a restoration program which perhaps it is too late. The old cemetery is located off Highway 26 at the edge of town. The new cemetery is just west from the old. (Times-News photo)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Four young ground squirrels were the unusual pets early this summer at the home of Camas county Sen. Lloyd Barron. The baby squirrels were rescued and revived by Leo Barrow, a son, when they had been flooded out by irrigation water on the Barron farm south of CORRAL. The animals were they but had their eyes open when rescued and brought to the Barron home in FAIRFIELD. Mrs. Barron, who is a registered nurse, made a fairway for them and fed them with an eyedropper. When they grew older they learned to eat a doughnut-shaped commercial oat cereal. By the time that they were half grown they would sit on their haunches and hold the cereal in their front paws as they ate them.

They were the special pets of the Barron children, Joe and Beal, but they got the lion's share of attention from all the family. They were kept in a box until they got big enough to get the habit of wanting to wander around the house. On one occasion one of them got outside and Mrs. Barron found it in thick grass being guarded by the family bulldog, who wouldn't hurt the little squirrels.

When they got too large for their box, Mrs. Barron obtained a cage for them. They loved to race on the wheel in the cage until they became dizzy and fell off. The sad ending to the story is that they kept gnawing their way out of the cage and getting outside where they were all eventually killed by strange dogs.

Even the building of a summer cabin can create problems as the Heberlein family, FILER, have discovered.

Now everyone knows that one of the prime requisites for a summer home is the "little house out back." Summer living in the mountains is usually kept on the simple side and the plumbing is mostly the outdoor type.

So Herman decided he would build his little structure in his shop on his farm, and when it was completed, would haul it up to the mountains on the back of his truck. But at this time a curious thing happened. When he started making plans about driving up north, all the members of the family who usually were so eager to go along, seemed reluctant to accompany him on this trip. Each one seemed to have some excuse or other for not going this time to the mountains. It finally boiled down to the fact that no one wanted to be seen riding in the truck which

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

"Born Again a Necessity"

By REV. WAYNE GURSHALL, Pastor, First Avenue Church of God

"Ye must be born again" are the words of Jesus spoken to Nicodemus. The new birth is a necessity to see and enter the kingdom of God. The experience of the new birth is a fund a m'ra t'is. The new birth is a reality of New Testament, and is the pivot upon which all Christian experience hinges.

Fascism Is Stirring in Quiet Britain

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP) — A rotten tomato splashes against the side of a young policeman's face, knocking off his helmet. Flat fights break out around a platform where chest-thumping fascist speakers are marooned in a pulsing swarm of angry humanity.

Somewhere in the crowd a pretty young woman screams her hatred of long-dead Hitler and, faintly, she is passed from one pair of hands to another over the heads of the throng like a limp rag doll and receives treatment in an ambulance parked in a side street.

These are incidents in Britain as Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of Britain's strutting prewar Blackshirts, tries for a comeback and other rightist groups voice their demands.

These small, but noisy, groups preach an anti-Jewish, anti-Negro political line. Mosley himself has been mainly handled in the frequent street fighting in this island kingdom which prides itself on orderliness and tolerance.

The violence is causing increasing public concern. Pressure build-up on — Prime Minister Macmillan's government to ban fascist street meetings. Some people also want the 1938 public orders act amended to provide stiff penalties for preaching racial hatred.

Yet this is a field where a democratic government must tread carefully, Home Secretary Henry Brooke asserts. Restrictions on expressions of opinion creation. The wonderful grace of God makes us "new creatures in Christ and translates us out of the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of His dear Son. Even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, by grace ye are saved, and hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus"; Eph. 2:5-6.

To experience the new birth the Spirit of God must regenerate the heart and create a new life in us. Men can make themselves artificial Christians but God must make us real ones through the Spirit. The experience does not come by signing a card, shaking hands with the preacher, or joining the church of our choice but it becomes a reality in our hearts when we have repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

You can't see the kingdom except you are born again. Paul said, "The kingdom is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." No wonder Jesus said, "Ye must be born again."

can limit the entire population's liberty.

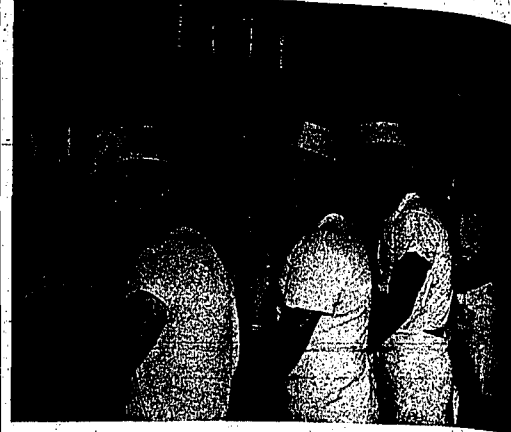

"The problem turns on how to preserve the right of free expression of opinion while effectively discouraging wanton incitement to racial hatred," Brooke says. Aware of the government's dilemma, Mosley claims to be defending free speech and insists that the police protect him.

The new fascism in its various forms commands the wholehearted support of probably no more than a couple of thousand people in the entire country. These men are recognizable types.

Their enemies, the militant antifascists, include communists, socialists, nuclear disarmers and probably even a few people who vote for the conservative party.

ZEBRONKEY

MANTILA, Aug. 11 (AP) — The Manila-800 today proudly announced the birth of a male "Zebronkey." A 800-spoken man and the zebronkey — a cross between a zebra and a donkey — was sired by a donkey named Duncan. The mother is a zebra named Suzie Wong.

Twin Falls County Boys Among Those Attending Forest Camp in North Idaho

PRIEST RIVER, Aug. 11—Four youths from Twin Falls county are among those from over the state attending the 1962 session of the youth conservation camp sponsored by the department of forestry.

The camp is located on Priest lake near here and has been designated as Pioneer camp No. 2. The four youths are John Dahlin and Andy Hillverda, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Dahlin and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hillverda, respectively, both Twin Falls; Elaine Parker and Joe Babington, sons of Mr. and Mrs. George Parker and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Babington, respectively, all Buhl.

The camp was established to provide an opportunity for school youths to learn forestry conservation and related fields. Conservation projects include clearing debris from streams and in fish spawning. The boys also are clearing debris for new campgrounds, setting culverts and building splash pans to prevent erosion washouts.

Non-denominational religious services are held each day in a nearby grove of trees. At present, camp officials point out the boys are sharpening up their chopping and sawing skills in preparation for the annual logger's festival at Priest river late in August.

Interest in Guns Has Become Hobby of Rupert Resident

RUPERT, Aug. 11—An interest in guns that has grown over the years has developed into a fascinating hobby for Martin O'Donnell, Rupert businessman, who now has one of the largest collections of antique guns in the United States, with special emphasis on the West.

Life often depended on a ready gun and a quick shot. A warning for all persons coming in contact with old guns was voiced by O'Donnell, and he pointed out the dangers in handling the so-called "unloaded" gun, especially an old one that could still have the load of old powder and shot which could be very dangerous if fired.

New TV Stars Twang Guitars for Relaxation

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11 — The young TV actors pushing their way up the ladder these days also have licky fingers. There appears to be a big do-it-yourself kick going on in music — the youngsters are all playing guitars. Ricky Nelson started it all — twanging away to a brand new extent. Then came Elvis, rock'n'roll and the upsurge of coffee houses where youngsters listen.

Two years ago the bong craze was on. Even actors who couldn't afford tight pants had a set of bongos. At night the hills and apartments thrived to the notes. Now that phase is over and apartment managers even smile occasionally this summer.

Guitars are in. For one thing, guitar playing is healthy. An actor who plays at a party, is the center of attention and he works off excess alcohol if he imbibes. He can awake to a six o'clock call minus a hangover and report to work. Love fingers are the only after-effect.

Callused fingers are also a tip-off to a seasoned player. And those who go a step further, and take classical guitar lessons, pride themselves on their hardened fingers. The classical guitar requires serious discipline, but few will go that far. The appeal of the guitar comes from the fact it is relatively easy to learn and is far cheaper compared to taking up the piano. One can widdle around with a guitar and have fun. "You don't have to make a career out of it," says Troy Donahue.

Marty Miller of "Route 66" is the latest victim. He just took up plinking on strings and is teaching himself. Currently he is driving his wife, Judy, crazy, and crew members of the TV series, with his wrong notes and constant upward repetition. Still Marty is happy with his progress and says it's a good way to take his mind off his work.

There could also be another reason why the likable, freckled actor took it up. His pal on the series, George Maharis, cut a record, "Teach Me To Swing" which appealed to the kids, and so far has earned about $50,000 in royalties.

"Hobbies in guitar music vary among the actors. Smooth, part-time writer Roger Smith of "77 Sunset Strip" studies self-published books. Troy Donahue, who moves from "Surfside 66" to "Hawaiian Eye" in the fall, prefers serious musical records. Connie Stevens from the Hawaiian series wants more bounce. It's hard for her to sit still, so she hasn't concentrated on the instrument, but she can manage a few songs. Ty Hardin from Texas, likes to sit back and twang slowly. "Give me the girl-middle finger," he says. (Guitarist's Dennis W. a w/p. (Chestnut) is almost a pro, so he really can't be counted in the group of pure amateurs.

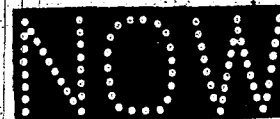

CONNIE STEVENS, a star in the "Hawaiian Eye" series on television isn't happy until the music has plenty of bounce. She's another of the young TV stars who plays the guitar for fun, not for money.

ROGER SMITH, one of the private investigators on the highly successful "77 Sunset Strip" takes time out on the set of the show to bang out a lively melody tune. He is serious about the guitar and tried to do right by the instrument.

New Home Extension Agent Believes Modern Housewife Puts in Day's Work

If you think today's modern housewife has push button living and life for her is simply a dream, Mrs. Agnes A. Hurst, new home extension agent for Twin Falls county.

It is commonly assumed with electrical appliances and scientific know-how, homemaking is as simple as A.B.C. Mrs. Hurst says it just isn't so and she is prepared to back up her claim.

Mrs. Hurst will concede the usual arguments that automatic washers have taken the drudgery out of the laundry; vacuum sweepers make cleaning the living room easier; an electrical appliances make cooking easier. The trouble is that, after these arguments are put forth they are not pursued.

The modern housewife uses her washer several times a week; sometimes it is used several times a day. This compares with the once a week system of yesterday. She also washes a greater variety of clothes and more of them. We live much cleaner than we used to, says Mrs. Hurst. Farmer Jones no longer wears his workclothes for one or two weeks at a time. Today he can have a clean shirt every day. Usually in the old days the entire family's clothes went into the same tub, including what young people use some of the fabrics we use today get such treatment.

The vacuum cleaner is a real aid to house cleaning. Rural homes of yesterday had only one real center, the kitchen. After eating, the kitchen was the center of activity. Bedtime was early. The living room was used on Sundays. When a guest used the family was dressed and behaved differently. Once the bed was made in the morning the bedroom was closed until evening.

A thorough cleaning once a week sufficed for the rest of the house and the kitchen was cleaned every day. Speaking of other rooms and being clean, Mrs. Hurst points out that the trend in modern living is more family living space. While the old homes had several bedrooms upstairs, they were rarely visited. Today we live all over the house. With record playing on every day, young people may spend more time in their bedrooms than they do sleeping.

On Tuesday, barbecued ribs on Wednesday, fried chicken for Thursday and lobster for Friday. Our eating habits have changed considerably says Mrs. Hurst. All this tends up to one thing and that is Mrs. Hurst's ideas on homemaking after the extension service should be geared to modern living.

The home extension service outlines a general program, the ladies of the committee make their own plans. Mrs. Hurst notes that many women are taking up knitting and sewing not to ease the family budget, but to serve as an outlet for their creative instincts. Because of this, modern women take extra pains with some of their handiwork. Here again, many modern women can fruits and vegetables to satisfy their creative instincts. This preserves many of the old customs and tastes.

didn't know too much about it. The modern housewife needs more than passing knowledge about food. Proper food preparation, even with modern methods calls for skill in food preparation. How many home-makers of days gone by would ever think of fixing chow mein on Monday or Tuesday, barbecued ribs on Wednesday, fried chicken for Thursday and lobster for Friday.

There are family buying programs, kitchen efficiency studies, home planning information and family living projects at the disposal of the home extension agent. This is ammunition she can use in battling modern problems concerning the modern housewife.

WATER SO CLEAR that a boat appears to be sitting on dry land features Blue Spring, located on Snake river 36 miles west of Twin Falls. The unique spring, with two heart-shaped sand beds near the center, is easily reached by boat from

Hagerman Writer Sees Blue Spring as Exquisite Jewel Beside Muddy River

By Jeanette Fox LeMoine
HAGERMAN, Aug. 11.—When Hagerman writer Hal Brown in his book "A River Never Sleeps" told his readers "rivers have life and sound and movement and melody of variation," he was speaking as a supply for irrigation purposes, not in fishing facilities and has adapted easily to modern boating and water skiing. Nevertheless, it remained for this river, depleted in early days for the trachery of its waters, to contain a cove of charm which even the Mississippi, whose reputation is linked with romance, does not surpass.

Three charming attractions in Snake river are paramount. The Blue spring, has crystal clear water and is unbelievably sky-blue. Two beautifully shaped, heart-shaped islands of fine, white sand rest on the plainy seabottom of the pool, which are the two heart-shaped islands of the curves in each heart. Blue spring-water bubbles in the form and drifts to the surface of the pool, which alone fills the cove. The river water does not enter the cove.

The supply of water passes it to the west side of the river. Where this cove is only eight miles south of Hagerman, the river, traveling north on highway 20, which skirts Snake River along this stretch, it is 36 miles west of Twin Falls.

The location of the cove would lead the suggestion of romance. The cove, against the rim-rocked red sand of the river, to that from the river's west side, the cove looks like a swamp. To the east, it is an oblong-shaped pool about 150 by 120 feet in size. It contains only pure spring water. The water is so clear that it and yet the cove is quickly and easily reached by boats launched from outside of the cove area.

The north and east sides of the cove are walls of shale and loose black lava rock. They rise steeply to a height of from 120 to 200 feet. The two walls form a half circle, resembling an amphitheater. The cove is a narrow strip of land thickly covered with various docks along the river in the area. River sounds seem to cease when the spring exits and glides into the section the spring offers. (Thayer photo)

Driving License Written Test Passed By Girl, 11, Without Prior Notice

This is really unusual," Mrs. Clark said. "The grade this girl received was a good average grade for people who have driven for years and who have studied the book."

Which all goes to prove that if you fail the written portion of the Idaho driving test there must be something wrong—not with the test, but with the driver.

Sheriff Benham said that "too many" adults fail the written test and are forced to take it over, some more than once. He added that most youngsters coming up for the test the first time show they have really studied and a great majority pass it.

Something you should think about if you're about to buy a truck:

If all trucks were built the same way, cost the same to keep up, were worth the same at trade-in... then probably the price tag would be your only concern. It can't be, of course, because some trucks have more quality than others. And marks of quality are the real keys to low cost. Chevrolet trucks, for example, have double-wall construction, which gives bodies and cabs more strength. Cabs are insulated against heat, cold and noise. A big part of road shock, which shortens truck life, is damped out by Chevrolet's suspension system; it also makes riding in the truck a pleasure. Pickup bodies and cabs are separated to eliminate stress between them.

"Excellent location for a budding young chemist."

ABOUT 80 YEARS AGO, some parent stopped near the trail to Oregon south of the present city of Twin Falls and carved this epitaph in the lava rock. It is being inspected by L. F. Wiseman, kneeling, of the Twin Falls County Historical society, and Robert Day, manager of the local plant of the Amalgamated Sugar company. Chalk was used to line the letters in order that the world would stand out in a picture. (Times-News photo)

INSPECTING GRAVESTONE of a pioneer woman who died and was buried in 1880 near Murtaugh, in the old Artesian cemetery, is Floyd V. Morrison. A pioneer himself, Morrison deplors the neglect of pioneer resting places. The cemetery where the grave-gravestone is located is in fairly good condition because it is located on private land and is not easily accessible to the public. Others are not located so fortunately. (Times-News photo)

Many Pioneer Graves in Idaho Showing Results of Long Neglect, Vandalism

In 1882 a 2-year-old girl died and was buried there, probably by her parents en route through the area by wagon because it is only a few feet off the original trail to Oregon.

Carved into the hard lava rock wall are the words: "In Memory Of Mollie T. Smith, age two years and four months. Died June 10, 1882."

The burial site was, at one time, a considerable distance from rock creek but the chertline has been changed and now runs

Only the legend carved into the rock remains. It is still there because someone took the time to do the carving and it is off the present well-traveled paths.

In many cases even the pioneer resting places in full sight of present day residents are not faring this well.

WOODEN GRAVE FENCES fall apart without care at a burial site near the old town of Ter, on Yankee fork of the Salmon river. Vandals and the elements have combined to wipe any trace of names which used to mark the final resting place of two pioneers. Investigations disclosed neglect of old burial grounds is quite typical in Idaho. (Times-News photo)
