West German Soldiers Different Than Goose-Stepping Fathers in Last War

BY JOHN WEZLAND
BONN, Germany, Nov. 3 (U.S. Press) — A new type of soldier is being trained by the German military's own civilian instructors, according to the great mass of the West German Bundeswehr soldiers who are being trained to duty and blind obedience to authority that characterized the Prussian military tradition.
The disciplining of this tradition through defeat in two world wars is partly responsible for the production of democratic institutions and a strong American influence.
Today's questioning, critical attitude prevails among the 400,000 men in uniform. They insist on being treated like human beings, and the external disciplinarian have been reduced to the view that, all things considered, the change is for the good.
The defense ministry takes the view that, all things considered, the change is for the good. It feels that the new soldiers, now being trained to fight as well as their fathers and grandfathers, will be more responsible.
Col. Gerd Schmucke, spokesman for the defense ministry, praises the new soldiers, most of whom are drafted serving 18 months in infantry and other units. He finds their type better suited to the technical and modern forces of today than the former goose-stepping fathers.

former goose-stepping, heel-clicking automatons.
To quiet fears about the military capability of the present generation, Schmucke wrote a study based on experience since World War II.
"The Bundeswehr was created in 1955. To serve is no ideal in itself of these young soldiers," Schmucke said. "It is a disservice to the people of this country if they find something that belongs to the older generation. Their national feeling has been trained to a high level."
"The people of this country are not in their own words, 'let away,' and for some even a hostile thing."
"Feelings of hate against other people—even the people of the east—are foreign to them."
"They sweat no more from fear of rank when a superior draws near. Even to generals they show an attitude that one could call lacking in respect."
"To real or imagined injustices by their superiors these young men react sharply. If they are blamed at all, they show anger and opposition. Commands that are not really understood they want explained."
"They express criticism of the service without hesitation in the presence of their officers."
"Schmucke says the new type of German in uniform is generally admired by allied officers, who despised the old Prussian type."
"An inspector general has been assigned to protect the men against abuse of authority by superiors. This office did not exist previously."

Jordan Support Listed by Aide

HAZLETON, Nov. 3 — A surge of bipartisan support for Sen. Jordan throughout the state was reported Saturday by Mrs. W. H. Detweiler, co-chairman of the Jordan-for-Senator committee who has returned from a trip covering most of Idaho.
"Sen. Jordan seems to be everybody's candidate," for senator. Both Republicans and Democrats and independents recognize that there is a man of outstanding experience and wisdom most qualified to represent Idaho. Women in particular have been increasing their efforts in supporting Sen. Jordan," Mrs. Detweiler declared.
"Idaho has the chance next Tuesday to elect one of the most qualified men ever to run for high office in the state. From all indications, Senator Jordan will be elected by an overwhelming majority," Mrs. Detweiler said.

King Hill Plans Fallout Shelters

KING HILL, Nov. 3 — Committees to investigate the available fallout shelters in the King Hill area were appointed at a civil defense meeting Thursday night at the Orange Hill, reports P. C. Anderson.
Anderson, who has attended several meetings on the subject in the area, was assisted by Daniel Kelley in arranging the meeting.
Committee members to include Frank Jones, Earl Anderson, Cecil Watson, George Allen and Rodney Rubery, south side of the Snake river; Mrs. William Knox and Mrs. Elbert Lawson, north side; Mrs. Earl Ellis, Mrs. Joyce Robbins and John Park, southeast area; Charles Kasi, Eugene Gabert, and Mrs. Nellie Wheeler, northwest area; and Thomas Timbers, Ted Moore and Lynn Sherman, for "the town area."

Millionaires Also Can Be Scrooges

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (U.S. Press) — Millionaires are not as miserly as some persons may think but there are a few real Scrooges among them, an internal revenue service analysis of 1960 tax returns indicated today.
The IRS published a 165-page statistical report of various facets of taxes paid during 1960.
Among other things, the report showed that 208 millionaires claimed deductions for contributions to charitable organizations, churches and the like. The deductions averaged nearly 19 percent of their adjusted gross incomes.
Persons in the $5,000 to $10,000 and $10,000 to $15,000 income brackets claimed deductions for the same purpose averaging between 3 and 4 percent.
The average of the millionaires was pulled up by 231 of them who claimed deductions of $10,000 or more for the contributions they made.
On the other extreme, one of their number claimed a deduction of less than $100 or less than one thousandth of his gross income, for contributions.
Other millionaires listing low contributions included two who claimed between $100 and $200, two between $200 and $300, five claiming from $300 to $400, and two claiming $400 to $500.
The analysis also showed that millionaires claim bigger deductions for medical purposes. Three were claimed on the returns of 103 persons reporting incomes of one million dollars or more.
The average medical deduction for millionaires was almost one million dollars or more.
The report noted that even those eligible to use the standard deduction, rather than itemizing them, were turning to the latter procedure.
It said 24,000,000 of the persons with adjusted gross income of less than $5,000 those to itemize their deductions in 1960.
According to Twin Falls Deputy Sheriff Clarence Nuss, who investigated the accident, both vehicles were going west. The white Buick, a left turn, was struck in the left rear of the Chevrolet, which was driven by Earl F. Layman, Modesto, Calif.
The accident occurred when a 1959 Ford truck driven by Irwin E. Kerman, 45, route 1, Burley, was struck in the rear by the Chevrolet, which was driven by Earl F. Layman, Modesto, Calif.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—Despite an attitude of guarded caution here, there exists a glimmer of hope that Nikita Khrushchev's strong overtures may result in the peaceful solution of the Cuban problem.

Two of the more serious differences that have kept the world's two greatest powers on the brink of a nuclear war for months are the American demand that Khrushchev's child's declared willingness to accept a "no first use" of nuclear weapons, and the American demand that Khrushchev's child's declared willingness to accept a "no first use" of nuclear weapons.

United States was the "paper tiger" which he and Khrushchev had long been trying to persuade the world to believe was a paper tiger.

He also was shocked by the unanimous support given Khrushchev's strong overtures by one NATO ally and the 30 members of the Organization of American States. Still another shock was the fact that Khrushchev's child's declared willingness to accept a "no first use" of nuclear weapons.

It is recognized here that Cuba is not so strategically important to Russia as the situation in Berlin. Khrushchev would back away from a potential atomic conflict over the Caribbean island, but he will come to terms on the general German problem.

Both statesmen, in exchange worked so peacefully that the agreement was a surprise. A strategy adviser, listed the possibility of agreements on the military confrontation in Europe, the Caribbean, and the Middle East. Another summit conference preceded by careful diplomatic preparation seems likely.

Is He Sincere?

American experts on Russia will be spending long hours trying to figure out one of his notes-to-President-Kennedy over the Cuban crisis. If the words are to be taken at face value, they could have terrific significance. Yet there's an excellent chance the words are just more sham in the communist's never-ending campaign against the free world.

"We desire only peace," Premier Khrushchev wrote to President Kennedy. "Our country is now on the verge of our people enjoy the fruits of their peaceful labor. They have achieved tremendous successes in the economic revolution, have created supreme material-culture treasures. Our country is making use of these treasures, and wants to develop—the successes further, wants to ensure further development on the road of peace and social progress by the peaceful labor."

"We value peace, perhaps more than other people because we experienced the terrible war against Hitler, but our people will not flinch in the face of any crisis."

"Every American will recognize instantly that these words might well have been written by the President of the United States. If they were written by the responsible head of a nation who was vitally concerned over the well-being and happiness of his people, they would have been written in a different way. How do you reconcile the words of peace with the record of the communists and Premier Khrushchev's statements of the past? How does the new statement fit in with the blistering, threatening, 'We will bury you'?"

Perhaps it would be the American inclination to take the new words of peace at face value. Yet they should be regarded in the light of past events and until the Russians have proved otherwise by their actions, it is necessary to continue the words of peace with suspicion.

POT SHOTS

NO COMPETITION
Dear Sir:
When the Idaho theater had a contest for boys and girls, the one that brought a god that most resembled "The God of the Trump" was to receive a prize.

Well, out of a line half a block long, my little boy, Lonnie Trump, was the only one there with a god.

The manager of the theater presented Lonnie a long playing record of "The God of the Trump." Lonnie presented to the show and Cuddles, the dog, went home with me.

TERrible TIMING

Communist China cannot be too concerned pursuing its bid for membership in the United Nations. The Red Chinese knew full well the application was due before the U. N. general assembly again, yet they went ahead with their military operation against the border of India. Under the circumstances, it's impossible to escape the conclusion that China actually does not want to be a U. N. member.

If the obvious conclusion is correct, then there's the question of why Red China and Russia keep plugging away at the project of gaining admission to the U. N. for Communist China. Their efforts are at face value, but that hardly explains the persistence.

Even more difficult to understand is why India would vote for admission of Red China while fighting a desperate border battle against the Chinese communists.

DOESN'T TAKE LONG

One way or another, every child gets "spoiled" sooner or later, and usually sooner. Many of them are spoiled by their parents. Some others are spoiled by the world.

Some mothers may manage a smile over the report of a Twiddle child: "My husband got me a new car!" It took me only two weeks to spoil this one!

Times-News Public Forum—Voice of the Reader

Legislators Are Important For Idaho, Writer Declares

Editor, Times-News: One session of the legislature will go to the polls to exercise our precious right of choosing the officials we wish to represent us. Perhaps more voters will vote in the election than will vote for one. Especially for the office of governor.

Editor of the candidates for that office was able to obtain the necessary three signatures respectively in the primary election. I think the rate of Idaho for the next four years will be the hands of the legislators.

I think the vital issue is to elect candidates who will not be tied so closely to either party that they can be starbated into supporting any measure, just because a political leader pressures them. In other words, someone who has votes for stands not only on gambling laws, but also on the reding stamps and education. The Times-News would show it to be very unpopular.

The last legislature spent days in spite of the many letters they received opposing it. I hope the letters were heeded by the trading stamp commission.

Why should we maintain the Leyton college and train teachers when we cannot pay for them? Perhaps it would be wise to use that money to increase the teachers' wages and instead of training teachers for better pay, let's train them elsewhere to come to Idaho.

Forum Rules

Letters are limited to 200 words on matters of public controversy. Writers must comply with the laws of libel and slander and must be in good standing in their community or profession. Letters must be signed with the true name and address of the writer. Length of letters will be limited by words. Longer letters will be returned to the writer.

Letters with an unbecoming opinion of common sense are those that are more important than the government. They can control our population.

ACA Records of Candidates Are Given by Writer

Editor, Times-News: Some few years ago former President Hoover and several of our best Americans formed the American Society for Constitutional Action.

Feeling that the voting public should have a tangible record of their congressmen's voting that could be used by the voters, they put in use the ACA record. In this record the congressmen's voting record is presented in a factual manner what we call "A"

Editor, Times-News: Much has been written and said about Mississippi during the past few weeks. Unfortunately, the Mississippi viewpoint and the reasons for Mississippi's situation and attitude seldom get a hearing before northern audiences.

Need for Secret Briefings Doubtful by Twin Falls Man

Editor, Times-News: What justification is there for secret briefings in any crisis? I can think of no reason at all. There could be a reason in Russia, where people are not given the truth and are not supposed to think at all. They are expected to act and think as they are told to do.

It was not for the purpose of giving the complete information together that these "secret briefings" were held. Where will this information go? Will it be given to the future president? Will it be given to the future cabinet? Will it be given to the future legislature? Will it be given to the future people?

She's Proud of Republican Party and Its Campaigning

Editor, Times-News: I have had my faith in humanity renewed. My husband and I have just returned from a through Idaho, Montana and into Washington. Everywhere we went, we saw and heard a new type of campaigning that their electioneering was taking precedence over all other activities. What were these people dedicated to? What were they fighting for? The fundamentals of truth and liberty established by our forefathers and fought for by all the generations of our truly great America.

These people still have faith in this country and are willing to sacrifice everything they have to preserve the basic cornerstone on which this great nation was founded—freedom. We as a nation did not become great because the government gave us the greatest economy the world has ever known or the liberties of free enterprise. We are proud of our efforts as individuals. I am encouraged to know there is still a majority who are still willing to fight to preserve these rights and stop the mob-ball from growing to an avalanche of a socialist state.

I am proud of the Republican party of which I am a member. I am proud of the candidates who are running in this election, who are Republicans. They are not "yes" men, but have offered constructive ideas for the betterment of Idaho and the nation. They are tired of the high government taxes which are sent to Washington to be doled out by a bunch of dictating politicians, who tell us how and when the money shall be used and then say as if they gave it to us. We never have nor never will get anything for nothing. Our Idaho Republican candidates are tired of the Washington dictators telling us how to farm, how to educate, how to practice medicine, etc. If we allow this to continue any longer, they soon will be telling us how to think and how to worship.

Nikita Khrushchev said, "We should expect the Americans to jump from capitalism to communism, but we can assist their elected leaders in giving Americans small doses of socialism until they suddenly awake to find they have communism."

The time to stop this socialist trend is now. Tomorrow will be too late.

Answer Is Given On Trade Stamps By T. F. Citizen

Editor, Times-News: We'd like to answer Mrs. Lynn Lake's query in Thursday evening's Times-News as to what the county commissioners do with the trading stamps they receive on purchases made by the county for its needs.

Beginning with the Jan. 1, 1961, purchases and since, a discount of 3 per cent (the value of the trading stamps) was asked and has been given on all coal purchased for its needs from this company.

Larson Says Neutral Vote Out of Place

"There should be no undecided or neutral votes in this election," Larson said. "The national insurance program is far too important for any individual to postpone his vote before the election." Larson, a Republican candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives, said he is not a member of either political party but believes in the principles of the Constitution.

The greatest problem facing free America today is the creeping socialism of the federal government, Larson said. Larson said the federal government is becoming more powerful in the hands of the President and less in the hands of the Congress. Larson said the federal government is constantly proposing welfare programs that will take care of all people under all circumstances. Larson said the national insurance program is far too important for any individual to postpone his vote before the election.

Clyde Preuss Named Farmer Of Year by Rupert C. of C.

RUPERT, Nov. 3.—Clyde Preuss, Northside farmer, was named farmer of the year at the annual Farmer Appreciation dinner sponsored by the Rupert Chamber of Commerce. Mrs. Preuss holds a bouquet and the award was presented by Richard Westendorf, left, president of the Northside Homesteaders association. Speaker for the event, headed by about 200 businessmen and farmers, was Dr. William E. Folt, head of the agriculture department at the University of Idaho.

He predicted that by 1980, there would be in excess of 50 million acres in production. He also pointed out the necessity of large numbers of farmers to produce food for the expanding population.

Large areas of former farm land are being taken out of production for industrial and residential development, Dr. Folt said, making it imperative that farmers produce more food for the expanding population.

A great readjustment is imperative in the agricultural picture, the speaker pointed out, and that the federal government has a responsibility for more acres to produce food for the expanding population.

Program numbers included two vocal solos by Katie Hollebenack, accompanied by Mrs. Howard Brunns.

George MacDonnell was master of ceremonies, and introduced the honored guests.

Other candidates for the name of farmer of the year in addition to Preuss were: John Lynn Coons, Bernard Scott, Frayne Shouse and Clair Fowler.

Chamber President Fred Prieke spoke briefly, explaining the formation of a committee to

The military junta would not particularly welcome the ousted president, the spokesman added.

Hansen Is Confident Of Victory

State Rep. Orval Hansen said Saturday in Twin Falls that he was "confident" of victory on Tuesday, and expressed his sincere gratitude to the hundreds of people throughout the second district who have helped in his campaign for congress.

"As the 1962 political campaign draws to a close I want to thank all those who have helped me tell voters the things I stand for and about my program for Idaho and America," he said.

"The months of traveling and speaking have been long, rigorous, and yet, at the same time, have been richly rewarding. I have met and talked to thousands of people. In hundreds of speeches, statements, informal talks and answers to questions I have tried to give my views in a positive and constructive way on how to help Idaho grow and meet the test which our country faces.

"We must build our moral and material strength. In view of the world crisis it is more urgent than ever before that we strengthen the principles that have made this a great and free nation.

"My objective if elected to congress will be to restore common sense to federal spending by reducing every spending proposal to the most rigid test of necessity. There is need to cut non-essential spending so that we can reduce the tax burden and still balance the budget.

"To free our farmers from the burden of burdensome government controls, to develop Idaho's agricultural potential we will protect the right of our farmers to run their own farms by giving them more freedom under government control.

"To create more jobs in Idaho by reversing the trend of the past two years which has seen Idaho's share of federal spending drop sharply while most states have made substantial gains, Idaho's case for full partnership in the nation's defense program must be clearly and convincingly stated.

"To put Idaho's federally controlled mineral and timber resources to work to pay a fair share of the cost of educating our children and supporting our state and local government.

"The Bill strengthens our own capacity to solve our problems with Idaho resources without undesirable federal intervention and control.

"To put our unemployed people back to work and get our economy rolling through policies which encourage job creating investment and will minimize the production expenses of a free economy.

"This is my platform. These will be my goals as the congressman from Idaho's second district," Hansen said.

HELLO! ... OR GOODBYE ...
A Friendly Letter from J. Ray Cox
Democratic Candidate for ATTORNEY GENERAL

In a few days you folks will go to the polls and close your State Government for the next four years. When the votes are counted, I will either say "hello" to you as Attorney General, or bid you a fond "goodbye," and wish my opponent well.

Before I head back home to my family, I want to say a couple of things to you all.

This hasn't been an easy campaign for State Candidates. The gambling issue has been on everyone's mind, and it has been hard to interest people in anything else.

Because of this, there has been a temptation to create issues, or do just about anything to get a little attention. I haven't done that, and neither has my opponent and I congratulate him for it. Publicity just for publicity's sake doesn't serve the people—it only makes them tired.

As a matter of fact, the only real difference I can see between my opponent and myself is that he seems to have associated himself pretty closely with Governor Smylie. I don't blame him for this... they are on the same ticket. But I kind of feel that I'd be better off as Attorney General if I stayed pretty independent of the Governor's office, and I have tried to do that.

As far as I'm concerned, if I see somebody's hand in the cookie jar, I want to feel free to speak it, no matter whose it is! That's the way it is around my house, and that's the way it has always been in my law office. If I'm elected, I intend to keep it that way.

The most important thing to me has been to keep my self respect throughout this campaign, and although I've had to grit my teeth a couple of times, I think I'll have my head high and be whistling in the car when I head home this week-end.

If you elect me, I'll head back down to Boise and get to work. If you don't, I'll get back to my law office and get to work. Whatever happens, I know you will vote the way you think best, and that's good enough for me!

Sincerely,
J. Ray Cox

Dial Phones Begin Sunday For Fairfield

FAIRFIELD, Nov. 3—Use of the new dial telephone system will "officially" begin Sunday for Omsay prairie residents.

Most of the phones have been connected and some of the residents are using them this week. Crews are busy finishing the last minute details so that they have the system in full working order by Sunday.

The local system is owned by the Idaho Telephone company with headquarters at McCall. It was operated as the Fairfield Telephone service for 17 years by Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Baldwin who sold it to the present owner.

Lots were purchased in Fairfield and a new exchange building was built last winter. Crews have been busy all summer learning the old lines and poles and installing new equipment. They have also extended the lines to provide service for more residents.

Hoffa Trial Now Appears To Be Long

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 3 (AP)—The U. S. Justice department's attempt to put Teamster union chief James R. Hoffa behind bars gave every indication today it will be a long and bitter trial.

The trial was in recess today for the week-end after two weeks of delays, charges, counter-charges and painstakingly detailed testimony. Federal judge William Miller has admonished Hoffa to appear in court for the trial.

The government charges that Hoffa shared in an illegal $1 million dollars payoff from a nationally automobile transportation firm. Hoffa, who has been watching proceedings intently, has pleaded innocent.

Three of the first five days of the trial were spent in picking a jury. Hoffa did not begin until the second week and at the close of the week yesterday only two witnesses had appeared and attorneys will resume questioning one of them when the trial resumes Monday.

Changes Listed By Idaho Power

PERSONNEL changes at the Twin Falls office of the Idaho Power company have been made, according to E. E. Hamblen, division manager.

Lawrence M. Hall, veteran of 30 years with Idaho Power, has been named southern division accounting manager. He replaces Melvin C. Olsson, who moved to the general office in Boise to become auditor of division operations.

Walden E. Clark, division storekeeper, replaces Hall as assistant division accounting in a new office. Other changes are Maurice D. Hartmut, clerk accountant, replacing Clark and Robert L. Ryan, stores accountant, replacing Hartmut.

George W. Wilcox Honored at Rites

Gravide services were held for George W. Wilcox at 11 a.m. Saturday at Sunset Memorial park with the Rev. Robert Jackson officiating.

Palbearers were Floyd C. Deane, Larry E. Hawkins, Dale Henman, Charles Collins, Robert I. Harney and Henry Brown.

Further, the navy and marine corps months ago set up the plan for the annual training exercise in Puerto Rico. It is in the name of the exercise, amphibious landing exercises.

As the Cuban crisis began to boil, the ships and marine units assigned to this exercise already were concentrated in Puerto Rico. The admiral, Harold R. Ryan.

In short order, 9,000 more Marines were flown to the West Coast from Camp Pendleton, Calif. A supreme striking force, the 1st Marine Force, was sent to Lebanon in that crisis in 1958—quickly came on the scene. Thus, in a military sense, the race against time was not so desperate.

Kennedy's other advantage, visible in the conference room where the quarantine decision finally was hammered out, was that he had a close-knit team.

The Bay of Pigs, naturally, is still a sore subject in Washington. Kennedy was at the scene of the abortive Cuban invasion April 17, 1961.

Nevertheless, decreasing the conference machinery, one of the central figures harked back to the Bay of Pigs.

"We were in office only a little over three months when that one came up," he said. "I didn't know each other very well. The President had no clear sense of what was going on and that was the other."

They examined confessions, as well as the intelligence section. They tried to envision anything that could go wrong. They tried to envision anything that could go wrong. They tried to envision anything that could go wrong.

THE STORY OF TEN LITTLE FREE WORKERS

THESE ARE THE WORKERS

DOCTOR RAILROADER MINER STEELWORKER FARMER LAWYER GROCER SALESLER REPORTER

Reddy Knows

Ten little free workers in this country live and fair. But if you cherish your freedom—worker have a care! Ten little free workers—Reddy was doing fine. Until the scoundrels got him—then they were nine.

Nine little free workers laughed at Reddy's lie. Along came federal medicine—then there were eight.

Eight little free workers thought this country heaven. But the government took over the railroad, then there were seven.

Seven little free workers—'till the miners got a fix. Uncle said coal's essential and took over leaving six.

Six little free workers—'till the day did arrive. The steel mills too were federalized—then there were five.

Five little free workers—but the farmers are free no more. The farms have been collectivized—then leaves only four.

Four little free workers till the government did decree. All must have free labor advice—then there were three.

Three little free workers—the number is getting few. But with government groceries selling food—then there were two.

Two little free workers—our story's almost done. With checks at work in federal stores—then leaves only one.

One little free worker—the reporter son-of-a-gun. Mustn't criticize government—so now there are none.

Ten little workers—but they are no longer free. They work when and where ordered, and at a fixed rate you see. And it all could have been prevented if they'd only sent it to agree. And work together instead of saying "It never can happen to me!"

Yes—this could happen to you. This little story could come true unless each of us works to preserve free enterprise and keep government out of business.

IDAHO STUDENTS in Idaho schools is the main theme behind the Kimberly-Hansen-Murtaugh Educational Trust. The plan is to provide scholarships for graduates of these three schools. ## Fairfield Man Salvages Old Bell From Abandoned County School

FAIRFIELD, Nov. 3.—Country schools no longer call children to school in Cass county. All the frame schoolhouses and their equipment have been abandoned and the county's children attend a consolidated school here. The schoolhouse that perched on top of these buildings, usually enclosed in a four-cornered box, have been a source of interest in demand by antique collectors.

One huge bell, from the Manard school, with perhaps the clearest tone of all of them, has found a permanent place of honor under a modern structure located three miles east and two miles south of here. This dedicated spot is adjacent to the Frostenon home and, not far from the Manard schoolhouse, where the bell rang out for many years for children and parents alike. The contemporary structure was designed and built by Jack Frostenon and assisted by his father, Bob Frostenon. The idea came to Jack last spring when he was a sophomore majoring in architecture at the University of Idaho. Although he never attended Manard school, his father, a brother and sister, cousin, aunt and an uncle attended elementary grade there. His mother, Mrs. Gladys Hill, and two aunts, Mrs.

NO MORE CLEAR tones will ring from the Manard school in Cass county. The schoolhouse which once hung in the bell-ringing place near the Frostenon ranch to house the bell is being rapidly becoming a thing of the past in rural areas. The students who would have attended school at other individuals who were interested in establishing funds for scholarships. After much discussion with interested parties from other communities, a decision was reached to form one sort of trust fund.

Accordingly Blandford the group had specific goals in mind. The fund was established to make a reasonable and deductible. In May of each school year a letter is mailed to the people of the three communities soliciting funds for the awards. This solicitation is all the group sees in their only expense and only time.

After the solicitation, applications are taken from the various graduates.

To qualify, the student must show three things. He must desire to go to college, be in need of financial assistance, and have high grades. Top grades are not mandatory, but they are helpful. Desires and need play a more important part in the selection of a student for assistance.

Lack of Training Is No Hurdle for T.F. Artist

Missile Base Boosts Gem City Growth

MOUNTAIN HOME, Nov. 3.—The fact that 200,000 square miles of Idaho desert has been changed into a city of 10,000 people has not dimmed the interest in the big Titan missile.

On the surface, only a wire mesh fence, two small structures and three flat concrete pads at each of three missile locations give any indication that the area is no longer the exclusive domain of the jackrabbits and the coyotes.

Every 24 hours at each of the sites a half dozen men ride in an elevator 70 feet down to the underground city. Others come up.

During the time they occupy the control center, filled with banks of electronic gear they have at their fingertips enough destructive power to level several modern cities.

Few of the motorists know what lies under the desert. But if they drive into the city of Mountain Home, they find visible evidence that something has been happening.

Mountain Home sits with the crisp colors of fresh paint. In the last two years it has added or is in the process of adding a supermarket, a bank, a department store, a radio station, two drug stores, seven service stations, three school buildings, a skating rink, bowling alley, dry cleaning establishment, two laundries, a sporting goods store and an office building.

The city has 228 new homes that were constructed within a period of 15 months. Around it are two new trailer courts. Work started on the missile site in 1950. At that time Mountain Home's population was 1,250. Last February, at the peak of the missile construction, it had 10,000.

Mayor Philip Gridley estimates another 2,000 or 3,000 were living in the area last February. Many in trailer courts.

After the work force reached a peak of 4,400 men in February, the total gradually declined. Six weeks ago with construction nearly complete, the missile site was turned over to the strategic air command.

Hundreds of construction workers still visit the Mountain Home area.

Mountain Home is popular to many of its recent home buyers. It maintains its population. Other nearby communities, which also have been built up as the result of the missile site construction, can also expect to benefit.

BOB NEMPE, Caldwell, and Mrs. Berks decided to buy a pair of boots lost during a storm along the Oregon coast. Berks was inspecting the back of his pickup when the boots arrived in the mail and Mrs. Berks brought them right out. A windstorm swept a camper from the Berks pickup, dumped it into a river and it floated out to the Pacific ocean. An Oregon group came across the wreckage and salvaged some 80 per cent of the Berks' loss. The boots were only a portion of the items salvaged. Berks has since purchased another camper which will be tied down more securely. (Times-News photo)

DISPLAYING DRAWING made with crayons is Mrs. Ernest Parr, 164 Eighth Avenue east. From this small drawing she painted a large picture which she gave to a friend in Hawking, Wyo. Mrs. Parr is a self-taught artist. Her only guide is she knows what she likes and that's what she paints. The scenes for her paintings are from magazine covers, calendars or just out of her head. Often she gets more requests than she can draw. Her home is full of handwork she has undertaken over the years. (Times-News photo)

To say she never had a lesson and the rest of the family was taught by her mother. Any art endeavor then was limited to sketches in a notebook. The stay in Canada only lasted a few years, but as Mrs. Parr she pulled out some oils and went to work on the kitchen wall. However her chance to enter the art world came when she and her husband moved to Twin Falls. The surprising part about all this is Mrs. Parr has never had a lesson or even studied art. She is one of those few people that has a natural talent for painting. However, the price that she pays for her art is without schools and Mrs. Parr

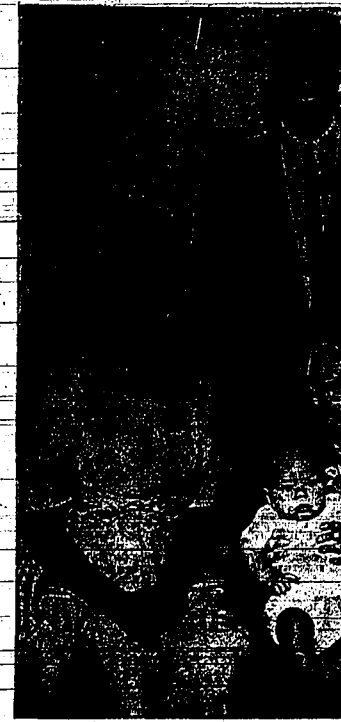

BACK FROM THE OCEAN is a pair of boots that Joe Berks lost during a storm along the Oregon coast. Berks was inspecting the back of his pickup when the boots arrived in the mail and Mrs. Berks brought them right out. A windstorm swept a camper from the Berks pickup, dumped it into a river and it floated out to the Pacific ocean. An Oregon group came across the wreckage and salvaged some 80 per cent of the Berks' loss. The boots were only a portion of the items salvaged. Berks has since purchased another camper which will be tied down more securely. (Times-News photo)

Oregonian Comes to Aid Of Twin Falls Travelers

As far as Mr. and Mrs. Joe Berks, route one, Twin Falls, are concerned, there is only one thing better than being a good Samaritan and that is being a good Oregonian. Little did the Berks realize that an ordinary trip would encounter a hard time.

The original plans called for leaving Twin Falls and spending a few days in the area around Prineville, friends and relatives and then push on to the coast. The Berks decided to push on to Coos Bay and stay with a friend.

However, they decided to leave the preparation of a sliding mountain road conditions. They were told

Five generations in a MILLER family span the years from 87 to 6 months. The youngest member of the family, Bradley Mark Lammer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lammer, is the fifth generation of the family. He has a grandmother, Mrs. Edda Lammer, Filer; a great-grandmother, Mrs. Frank Eastman, Filer, and a great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Nancy Davis, TWIN FALLS. Mrs. Davis, who was 87 years old on Oct. 18, is a patient in Sky View Manor and is very active and mentally alert. During the two years she has been at Sky View Manor, she has made 90 attempts to give to friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Edda Lammer, who also made a notable gift for each of her 17 grandchildren, those who were given to them for high school graduation gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Edda Lammer, who were born in Kansas, have seven children and nine great-grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Edda Lammer and Mrs. Eastman and Mrs. Lammer were born in Kansas. Len, 77, and 6-month-old Bradley were born in Idaho.

One of the residents at the Federal fish hatchery, near HAQUIMA, is "Cooney," a tame coon, who is near and dear to each and every heart in the hatchery home area.

Cooney was found as a baby by Kenneth Higgs, a hatchery employe, and raised as a pet. He was given the freedom of the grounds when old enough and

...a bad one. Traffic was moving at a snail's pace around the fall line and many of the smaller compact cars were being blown to the side of the road. One man was stuck in pickup truck. As the Berkas were pondering the question of seeking shelter, another pickup truck and a smaller truck moved the camper. They debated heading the camper into the wind and the Berkas decided to check the load. The force of the wind prevented him from opening the door.

A third gust of wind changed the entire complexion of the F.P.D. That third gust took the camper off the back of the pickup and sent it bounding over the countryside. It finally rolled 300 yards in the Tropicana river.

The Berkas finally pulled off the side of the road and Joe was able to get down to the river to secure the camper with a rope.

The wind prevented them from staying on the west side of the floodplain and reported their damage.

Practically everything they had taken on the trip was in the camper. All that was in the cab of the pickup truck was a portable radio, a "Thermos" jug and some minor incidentals. They reported to the fact that on the next day they ventured back to the river to see if anything was salvageable. To their dismay, the camper was gone. High tides had worked the camper loose from the mooring and the camper was on its way to the Pacific ocean.

By this time the Berkas were recommended to the fact that the trip was a total loss. Berkas stopped into the police department to report the accident.

They were able to do some salvaging, but it was minor. Shaler claimed it first and then notified the police, who in turn notified Berkas.

The camper was a total loss. Shaler was able to salvage a pair of boots which he pointed out before returning. Many other small items were returned. The canned goods in the camper were taken to the daughter in California.

MEET YOUR REPORTER . . .

Oregonian Is Helpful to Local Couple

RUPERT, Nov. 3—While hard-pressed for a "hot" story, Mrs. Forrest Badger, the Rupert Times-News reporter, helped a local couple, the Berkas, who were stuck in a camper on the Tropicana river. She is one of its most versatile residents.

Each fall she shoots her own deer and likes to keep good wild rabbit. Her interest in shooting sports is not limited to the Tropicana river. She is also a reporter for the American Red Cross and she has a special interest in the welfare of the people.

She has been an active worker in the PTA, both local unit and county.

The camper had floated more than 1/2 mile downstream to the mouth of the river. It had become wedged on a reef.

Without realizing it, when Berkas let down the rope he used to tie the camper, he had forfeited his right to ownership. The camper was recovered in water, hence was eligible for marine salvage. In other words, anyone who found it could claim it.

There were other people trying to get to the camper, but Shaler claimed it first and then notified the police, who in turn notified Berkas.

The camper was a total loss. Shaler was able to salvage a pair of boots which he pointed out before returning. Many other small items were returned. The canned goods in the camper were taken to the daughter in California.

With help like that, the Berkas are sure to continue their life. Their loss has been recovered. The rest of the trip was a pleasant one. The Oregonian in Oregon has returned, any reward for his efforts, claiming he just does these things.

One of Rupert's Most Versatile Citizens Is Mrs. Forrest Badger

For several years and she is a well known figure in the community. She is also a member of the county council. Mrs. Badger also is a life member of the Oregonian.

She is presently women's chairman for civil defense in Mindoc county and a member of the state advisory board.

As if these didn't keep her occupied she is home service chairman for the American Red Cross and also serves as relief help.

She recalls the general head of Jersey cows, a piano, a horse, a buggy and two dogs were among their "treasures." Her family spent the first night in a hotel in the village of Mindoc, where a friend came for them the next morning.

They stayed with friends at Acquia until her father returned. The family moved to Rupert and her father worked for the late Judge Hardy Justice in the Peace. The family lived on what is now South P Street.

Mrs. Badger was graduated from the Rupert high school in 1911 and was married in 1912. She learned typing in self-defense a few years ago when she was asked to write and couldn't read her writing. She worked on the local paper for several years. The Badgers have four children, three daughters and one son. One daughter and the son are married and live in Salt Lake City. The other two girls are at home.

Mrs. Badger also likes to read any and all "book" material. She enjoys taking new pictures and says she wishes she could afford to make a trip each year before she gets a regular collection.

LEN JORDAN STANDS TALL

IN WASHINGTON D.C.

Len Jordan has stature. He didn't acquire it in the office of United States Senator in Washington. He brought his own stature with him. His record is a solid history of service to Idaho; the west and the nation.

Len Jordan is a living legend of achievement in the spirit of competition and free enterprise in Idaho.

Born in Mt. Pleasant, Utah; raised in the Oregon "High Country" and educated in Enterprise, Oregon. Served as an infantry officer during World War I. Worked his way through the University of Oregon. Played football and graduated with honors, did post-graduate study in economics. Married Grace Edgington, who later wrote chronicle of Jordan life on Idaho ranch.

Before Idaho he had served in the U.S. Army. Moved to Northern Idaho in 1932, ranching in Hells Canyon area, farmed on Camas Prairie.

Len Jordan's record of personal achievement and service to his community and state has few parallels in Idaho history. He is a former successful farmer, rancher, auto and farm equipment dealer in Grangeville, operated an insurance and real estate business, and managed, for others, grain and seed storage processing facilities. He has a working knowledge of agriculture.

In 1946, he served in the State Legislature. In 1950, he was elected Governor by a sizeable majority and served with businesslike efficiency, honor and distinction. As Governor, Len Jordan cut taxes and displayed a keen interest and knowledge of our mining industry, timber and other natural resources and the science of governmental administration. He was appointed by President Eisenhower to serve on the U. S. Section, International Joint Commission. He served also as a cabinet advisor on national water rejoin policy. He was sent on special assignment to make an economic study and report on the Helmand-River-Valley Development in Afghanistan in 1956.

He is a board member of the Methodist Church and has shown a lifetime interest in education and community work.

In August of 1962, he was nominated to fill the unexpired term of Idaho's late Senator Robert E. Dworshak and was appointed Senator by Governor Robert E. Smylie following his unanimous nomination by the Idaho Republican State Central Committee.

Because of his wide experience in state and national government, United States Senator Len Jordan is a singularly effective spokesman for his state. Len Jordan "knows his way around" in Washington and he knows and understands the people he represents . . . the people of IDAHO!

When Len Jordan was Idaho's Chief Executive, State Law limited the government to public service as an Executive. Len Jordan continued his unusual ability to "separate wheat from chaff" and to get to the core of a problem in a hurry. This ability and his energetic appetite for hard work are the ingredients of his success.

Because of his abundance of experience, knowledge and talent in state and national government, Len Jordan has the respect and confidence of the leaders of the United States. His knowledge is sought often by national figures such as Senator Eisenhower of Iowa and Senator Republican leader Dillman of Illinois, above.

Len Jordan has owned and operated an Idaho wheat farm and has managed grain and seed storage operations for others. He has a working knowledge of the problems of Idaho farmers.

Len Jordan has remained active in farming and ranching throughout most of his life. The experience he gained as Governor, as a member of the Land Board and university faculty, and his extensive business dealings with state affairs, gave him the background and know-how which are assets for an experienced and well-qualified representative for Idaho.

Demos Win In Hagerman School Vote

HAGERMAN, Nov. 3—If results tabulated from a recent general election vote conducted in the Hagerman schools can be taken as indicative of the voting results Tuesday, the Democratic stem has won the majority of the offices, winning 14 out of 21.
Church Harding and Smith won by a large majority. Mrs. Post, however, gave a large lead to Jordan. The other successful "Republican" candidates were: Link, Gov. Arnold; Attorney Shepard; State Sen. Harold Butler, County Commissioner Emerson Pugmire; assessor W. A. Trueman; and Coroner, R. A. Bodner.

The school was shown a film, "The Importance of Voting" by Capt. George Campbell, before they were given sample ballots. Elections were held in home rooms in both the junior and senior high schools.
Election poll atmospheres were simulated as nearly as possible. The students responded readily and showed much interest in their balloting, Camie said.
The results are U.S. senate: Hanson; House: 18—Woods; Hatley; 59—U.S. senate, four-year term, Jordan; 75, Post; 67 representative in congress, second district, Harding; 61, Hansen; 40, governor, Smith; 82, Smylie; 55, lieutenant governor, Arnold; 70, Drayton; 61, state treasurer, Moon; 78, Swenart; 67, state auditor, Williams; 67, Deffenbach; 63, attorney general, Shepard; 67, Cor; 85, superintendent of public instruction, Engelking; 69, Frazier; 68, mines inspector, Adams; 70, Hansen; 67, state senator, Harold Butler; 75, Don Fryderickson; 67, state representative, Emerson Pugmire; 66, R. NEW HOLDING POND on the Clearwater river near Lewiston was used this year in one phase of the eight-year experimental program to restore spawning and breeding runs in the Selway and Lemhi river drainages. ### All-Out Effort Is Needed to Boost Recreation Capacity of Public Land

By JIM HUMBRID
Idaho Fish-Games Department
Today's all-out effort to increase the carrying capacity of the public domain for fish and wildlife is a reminder that man always has wanted more game than he could hunt.
American pioneers were dependent on nature's bounty for their very existence. Earlier Indian tribes followed the migratory patterns of animals. They hunted wild game for making the troubled journey from ocean to inland spawning beds.
Even now in the space age it is a necessity for man to hunt and fish, not for food and fiber but for his internal well-being, both physically and mentally. Civilization man is not wholly self-sufficient. He needs the technological demands of everyday life. Outdoor recreation is a growing industry.
Thus the demand is ever-present, this desire in all ages for more game than there is. Even the current "population explosion" is new in name only. A British clergyman named Malthus, for example, wrote fearfully in the early 19th century that an uncontrolled human population would increase exponentially in ratio, reaching their every 25 years.
Some of the methods used down through history to increase the abundance of fish and game populations still are parts of modern management programs because they are sound. One of these controls the amount of fish and game harvest.
Hunting seasons and bag limits, of course, are the heart of any program designed to control the amount of wildlife harvest. But historically, at least, the restrictions that spelled out who could hunt and fish, a kind of class legislation that still persists in most European countries.
In Idaho, game people are restricted from hunting certain species that cannot withstand a general open season but which can support limited harvest. This is accomplished by the most democratic process possible, the controlled hunt where everyone files an application and permits are allocated at public drawings. While harvest restrictions and their enforcement do not solve birds, developed by the Idaho department of fish and game. Private farm windbreaks, using deer, rabbit, and quail, are planted. One that already is paying big dividends is the chemical treatment of lakes and streams for the removal of undesirable species of fish. A vast fishery of this method concentration on carp and squawfish during spawning periods each spring while they are congregated in the shallows and vulnerable to chemical treatment.

More than three score and ten eradication projects have been completed by the department since the chemical treatment program was started in 1948. Success has been better than 50 percent in eliminating competition for food and habitat between a number of different species, including trout. Other states have similar methods.

Progress reports this year for the eight-year program show that about 4,200,000 salmon eggs were taken at four Bear Valley fish trapping sites and spread-up in the new Sweetwater location near Lewiston. These were planted in artificial hatching channels in the Selway steelhead stream. Another 959,000 salmon eggs taken at Bonanza Valley "spread-up" in the canyon hatchery were planted in Bear Creek, a tributary of the Selway.
In addition, 92,000 steelhead eggs were planted in artificial incubation channels in the Lemhi River, and 107,500 others in the Red River. Follow-up studies show that there was a 72 per cent hatch of eggs on the Lemhi and 89 per cent on the Red River. These examples are cited to show that what already is being done to provide more fish and game than now exists is most growing pressure. Nevertheless, it is recognized that fish and game habits, land management and improvement programs to increase the carrying capacity of the public domain are still "exploding."

Big Island Park reservoir is an example. When it reopened to fishing, the reservoir was overfished in the fall of 1958, nearly 6,000 anglers were on-hand for "opening days" 1960. At the start of the season, the rainbow trout were 11 inches long, by season's end they weighed more than a pound. It still is a good fishing spot as it was before the introduction of Utah chub.
Another fisheries management program is attempting to restore self-sustaining runs of chinook salmon and steelhead trout in

MAGIC-VALLEY PORTRAIT Former All-America Swim Star Finds Idaho Outdoors Inviting for Family

Ducks are not the only things that take to water. Another swimmer, Dr. John F. McNeese is one of the latter.
He was selected as a member of the all-American swimming team in his senior year in high school, and came from a "backpack" of the school swimming team. He considered a major sport on the same level as basketball and all he should ever get another chance to guess.
Dr. McNeese was born in Whittier, Calif., in January, 1934. He attended the grade school and also attended and was a graduate of the Whittier Union High School.
That was only 26 years ago. Growth of that area in that short span of time is amazing. In the fact there are now eight high schools there and all have student bodies of 1,000 or more. There are also major swimming pools.

DR. JOHN F. MCNEESE

McNeese was interested in all sports, through the school including baseball and football. When he entered high school he decided to concentrate on swimming and water polo. The popularity of water polo is shown by the fact that there are leagues in Idaho with football and basketball.
Being a major sport, swimming and water polo have a separate coach on the school athletic staff. The average swimming team has 10 listed positions and it is possible that 20 to 25 club members will enter in any one year, depending on the number of points scored individually.
While attending high school, classes are arranged that members of the swimming team work out four hours each school day from 2:10 to 5 p.m. Before important meets, this practice is extended until 7:30 p.m. Swimming pool exercises are in addition to regular training and drill over his high school days. McNeese specialized in the 200 yard free style event and as sophomore, junior and senior made his varsity teams in both swimming and water polo.
As a senior he won the southern California 200 yard free style competition in a meet which extended over a period of three weeks.
At the end of this elimination he was informed that he had been selected on the high school all-American squad.
And yet today, McNeese said during an interview, "my time then would probably not result in my receiving in the meet at the present fast times recorded."
In addition to all-America on the swimming team, he also was named a member of the southern California water polo team. Following graduation from high school he entered the University of California at Berkeley in the pre-olympic course and completed in the 200 yard free style and 44 yard events as a member of the college team. He lettered in both water polo and swimming all three of his varsity years and also as a freshman. He was selected on the Pacific coast conference all-star teams in both his junior and senior years.

After using up his eligibility in college, he was invited to become a member of the Olympic club team in San Francisco in water polo in 1957, while a member of this team, he won the national championship in New York City.
Again in 1958—the same year he was graduated with a degree in optometry—the Olympic club team won the national championship and placed third in the Pan-American trials. The following year the team placed third in the Olympic trials.
In 1960, McNeese was lecturer with a contract and was employed by a company in San Francisco, and in this capacity visited Idaho and the Twin Falls section. Both he and his wife like the area and he and his wife have decided to return to live here.

PLAY OPENS

IDAHO STATE COLLEGE, Pocatello, Nov. 3—Playing the title role of Annie Get Your Gun which opened Thursday for a three-night run is Judy Glasgow, Burley. Life Myers, also Burley, is taking the part of the clown.

He thus became associated with Dr. O.A. Puller, pioneer optometrist of Twin Falls, with his wife, Leona and two children—Scott S. and Nancy, 3—at 1192 Main St.

Although residing in Twin Falls such a short time, he nevertheless has entered into community work through many organizations.
It is his opinion that a community worth residing in is one in which all citizens should take an active part toward its development.
A member of the Kiwanis club, he is president of the special committee engaged in fund raising for the many projects of the club sponsors for boys and girls. In his profession, he is chairman of the contact lens committee of the state association and also treasurer of the legislative committee.
But perhaps the greatest pleasure still goes toward swimming his first love.
He is coach of the Twin Falls swimming team and plans to continue in this project next spring and summer.
Swimming is the great hobby building sport there is," McNeese declares, and he should know. Standing six feet one inch tall, he tips the scales at 200 pounds.
"He and his wife like Twin Falls and his wife like Twin Falls," he said. "Both of us like the outdoors and there is a lot in it here. It is not crowded as yet."
Life most men, he has hobbies—fishing, skiing and hunting. He does not pursue them for acquiring trophies or fame, but rather "just to take us into the outdoors."
Where his native southern California had practically no "open" space, he enjoys the change which comes in Idaho.
"Actually, it gives you something to look forward to," he decided to return to live here.

Meeting Held by Toastmistresses

Using the theme "Friendship," the Twin Falls Toastmistresses met on Friday morning at the Rogerson hotel.
Toastmistress for the morning, Mrs. Jack Wagoner, gave the invocation and Mrs. Judy Gruber used surprise songs titled "table topics." Mrs. Evelyn O'Connell's winners was a guest.
The next meeting will be held Nov. 16.

At the end of this elimination he was informed that he had been selected on the high school all-American squad.
And yet today, McNeese said during an interview, "my time then would probably not result in my receiving in the meet at the present fast times recorded."
In addition to all-America on the swimming team, he also was named a member of the southern California water polo team. Following graduation from high school he entered the University of California at Berkeley in the Gradually management workers realized that wildlife, like any other crop, is a product of the soil. Whether animals, fish or birds, all creatures need food, cover and water as basis to their existence. A dearth of any of these things immediately imposed a severe limiting factor for numbers and quality of wildlife.

Logically developing from this idea came the program for through-range reforestation projects and tree-planting programs on rangelands.
Reforestation is needed on the desirable browse plants because of past over-use, fire or insect damage. Since 1930 about 6,000 acres of big game rangeland have been planted to browse species. The bulk of the resulting growth is utterbrush and most of the reforestation was done in the past three years. However, range reforestation is slow and costly. A "thinner and more" desirable method is to adjust range use to carrying capacity.
Likewise a million trees and shrub reforestation around the program was just a decade or less ago. This was done in a cooperative program of habitat improvement, mainly for upland game their enforcement do not solve birds, developed by the Idaho de-was always "the good old days" before he was born. Consequently he decided to have a part in the rural Americana that is fast disappearing.

Manard was at one time a good sized community in the early 1900's. He boasted a complete grocery store, a blacksmith shop, a postoffice and the school. Now the school house has been made into a machine shed by the present owners.

His first work on the project had to be done in his spare time since his college expenses came from his employment on his father's ranch. He began the project in July by clearing the road across the land where the school

Lava was gathered from the vicinity of Shoshone for caves and was "blended" into the masonry supporting the bell.  other communities all gained from the missile work.

After a big boost of construction workers in August, department store sales dipped in the Boise area. But, in September, with the help of back-to-school purchases, they rose two per cent.

News in the area is unhappy over the economic boost brought by the missile, even though some of the gain was not permanent.

Nor are southwest Idaho residents concerned about having a prime enemy nuclear target in their desert doornies.

"There was no public reaction against the installation," says Mr. Raymond Henderson, chief of program management for the project. "The people of Idaho have been very helpful and very wonderful."

His sentiments are echoed by community leaders in the area. "We've been having public relations that were quite," says Mountain Home Mayor Ordley. "City officials and the air force and everyone concerned worked in harmony."

Southwestern Idaho community leaders were shown, around the underground missile command center, 30 miles east of Boise, Aug. 27 when it was turned over to the strategic air command.

Air force officers praised the community for co-operation in helping get the work done. The installations here were the only one of six Titan I projects completed ahead of schedule.

"Surgeon" Is Booked as Hot Spot

By KERNON COOZART
HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (AP)—It's not every brain surgeon who gets booked into a Las Vegas hot spot on the strength of his buck and wit.
 But Dr. Ben Casey lays aside his scalpel and dons a tunic to sing and hoof his way through a bling crowd in a couple of months.
 Vince Edwards, who portrays the short-faced surgeon in the television series, has signed for two weeks at the Riviera hotel in Las Vegas to prove that the operating room hasn't frozen his face in a perpetual stupor.
 Edwards' characterization is misleading. Off-screen he can smile as pleasantly as anyone else.

"It really makes people up when they meet me for the first time," Doc Edwards said, dispatching some medicinal no-nonsense about. "They expect me to be as snooty and irritable as Casey."
 That's one of the reasons Tim Vincent wants to keep active with other things—TV guest appearances, movies, recordings. It's dangerous to fall into a specific pattern. I have to think of what happens after Casey dies."
 By way of favor, insurance the actor recently completed a new movie, "The Victors," and cut a new album, "Sometimes I'm Happy, Sometimes I'm Blue." His first recording, "Vince Edwards Sings," is the latest best-seller in the country, according to Vince.
 "Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Van Heusen are writing my act," he continued. "It will mostly be singing, ballads and things. Eddie Adams will be on the same bill with me. I hope to go out on the stage and just entertain the people for 45 minutes or an hour."
 "You can bet your last dollar I won't do any doctor jokes," he said with a grin.

Edwards, a former Ohio State swimming star, is better equipped to sing and dance than he is to perform a prefrontal lobotomy.
 "I got my start more than 10 years ago as a song and dance man in clubs," he explained. "I played the torch circuit in New York and all over the place on Long Island."
 "I was all ready to go out on the road again when the opportunity came up to play the Ben Casey character," he said.
 Before returning to his tunic and buddy, Dr. Zorba, Vince fired a parting shot at a spite of old movies being re-released.

Perry to Show's Surgery Have Format Changed
 NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP)—Necessity may prove to be the mother of welcome dramatic invention as far as CBS' "Perry Mason" show is concerned.
 Raymond Burr, who has played Eric Stanley Gardner's indomitable trial lawyer for five seasons, will enter a Los Angeles hospital for minor corrective surgery in December. The network announced. As a result, the company must make several show changes to accommodate the absence of Burr.
 According to present plans, Patience Production, which makes the weekly courtroom dramas, and of which author Gardner is an office-plum to star in name guest stars, including Bette Davis to substitute.
 The unavoidable absence of Burr could have a salutary effect of boosting the program out of the format to which it has adhered through the years, including that weekly courtroom competition by the runner-up usually from a spectator's seat.
 The program, pitched this season by Gardner from his old Saturday night spot, has dropped out of the "Masters" top 100 rated shows but even in its new position it is still pulling a hefty share of audience.

"Cleo" Producer Is Fired Before Picture Is Edited

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (AP)—George's latest rhapsody, the film of Joseph Mankiewicz by 20th Century-Fox boss Darryl Zanuck. Some observers felt that it was Zanuck's first error since he assumed command of the motion picture company.
 "Darryl's biggest job in rebuilding Fox is to lure top directors and producers to make pictures for him," said one producer. "The really good ones are pretty independent nowadays. They want to work their own way without front-office interference."

"They are going to the wary of trying to go with Fox after seeing Mankiewicz' picture taken away from him before he had a chance to put it together."
ABSENT-MINDED ACTRESS
 Loretta Young is famous as one of Hollywood's shrewdest business women, but even she has had absent-minded moments. Not long ago she decided that her swimming pool needed a heater, so she called a company and asked for an estimate. A man came over, looked at the pool—and told her she already had a heater. Later she checked and found it had been installed nine years before.

Where's Marshal Dillon and Garry? Out Voting

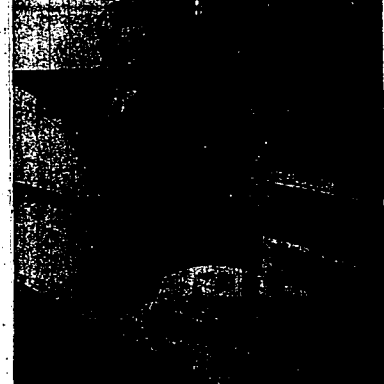

Who won't be on TV Tuesday night? Garry Moore won't. Neither will Dick Powell, Marshal Dillon, Quik Draw McGraw, Martin Miller, his sidekick George Marshall, Ed Caesar, Peter Gun and Jack Benny. Connie Stevens and Troy Donahue won't be in "Fin" at Walkill and Lloyd Bridges, Red Skelton, Yogi Berra and Mickey Mouse also will be missing on most locally received channels, depending on each station's election night programming.

Changes are they'll either be out voting in Tuesday's general election or watching results from throughout the nation being tabulated by several ingenious methods on all three networks. The three networks will turn their entire Tuesday evening time over to extensive coverage of the nation's major elections.

Each network will utilize its own system of counting incoming results and all three will use some form of electronic calculation.
 At CBS, where several hundred thousand dollars was spent on intensive research and testing of various digital devices and tabulation techniques, specially designed IBM computers will be used. A streamlined digital display system, developed and produced by CBS laboratories for this important election year, will feature a continuous flow of pictures giving an at-a-glance picture of the nationwide race.

 CBS' display of equipment consists of a group of console control desks. Twelve will be used to cover the 120 key races in the nation (about 90 each in the East, South, Midwest and West). Five more will be used to post the 50 races in the New York area.
 According to CBS' schedule, the last seven minutes of each half-hour will be allotted to local coverage. Its Salt Lake City outlet, KSL channel 5, will cover Utah elections in color. Walter Cronkite handles the reins for CBS' nationwide coverage.

NBC will tabulate election results by computing machines perfected by the network's parent company—Radio Corporation of America (RCA). Famous news team Chet Huntley and David Brinkley will be anchor men for NBC.
 Following the trend to be followed by CBS, Huntley and Brinkley will cover the election in color. NBC's election news, anchored by Edward R. Smith and William Lawrence.
 Starting times for the TV election coverage will vary from network to network and station to station, and will continue until most of the major races are decided.

COMMENTS AND COMMENTS will be featured Tuesday night on all three television networks, as they focus their attention on the 1962 general election. Harry Keenan, pictured above, will supervise part of CBS' election returns coverage. The network has spent months and lots of money to develop special IBM equipment for rapid tabulation of returns, as they gear up from throughout the nation. An IBM representative is shown tabulating operation of one of CBS' 12 computing systems in Kansas.

Actor Relates Memories of 'My Fair Lady'

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (U.P.) — Memories of "My Fair Lady" which the musical closed after six and a half years on Broadway recently it evoked a rush of memories Stanley Holloway, who devoted the better part of four years to playing Eliza's father in New York and London, had a 20-year membership in the show.

"I don't remember a study nights" he mused. "There was the first night we closed. A Sunday night benefit before our own profession. The corporation was an enormous stagehands waived their usual finishing fee so they could work overtime."

"There was the night a 1,500-piece orchestra, a memory (of) package with a great crash. Rex Harrison was doing a number and he didn't make a note," he said later. "He thought someone was shooting at him."

"It was the night I heard a commotion by the theater but he was on stage. I learned later that a man had fainted in the aisle orchestra seats. They had to carry him out over people's heads."

"One time Rex was out with a bad throat and his understudy played the part. What with the show and all the noise he was steadily performing his part. As the evening progressed he said, 'The curtain rang up at 8:35 and down at 9:10.'"

SYMPATHETIC NEIGHBORS
 Little Funtaine, one of the stars of "The Gallant Men," is due to leave his two sons, 11 and 12, live with him. "It's a great way to get sympathy from women," he notes. "At night all we have to do is sit at the dinner table with a glass in our hands and some neighbor, who feels sorry for us, comes along and cooks dinner."

Stars Debate Over Hollywood or Rome Being World Movie Capital

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (U.P.) — Will Rome take over as the world's film capital?

Actor Peter Falk, who has never made a movie there, thinks it could happen. Jack Palance, who has been making movies in Italy for five years, says never.

In interviews on the same day, unknown to each other, the two actors leave diametrically opposed views on European filmmaking as compared with the Hollywood variety.

"These Italian directors have something mostly love and imagination, that's lacking over here. We have it in a few directors like Frank Capra but not in many," declared Falk.

Falk, who won a television Emmy last year nominated for a movie Oscar twice, "It's quite a record because he is now making more of his money in Italy than in Hollywood," before the bankers and the selection took over."

Palance, admitting there have been some good Italian films, said they are mostly due to luck.

"I think the Italian directors are lucky," he said. "They consider themselves with such trivial things as making an actor kick his heel a certain way when walking, the actors themselves make the movie."

Palance is home for a visit and wants to stay for good.

"Kovienmaking in Europe suffers from too much of a lack of statistics, don't give a damn attitude."

But one fact remains—Italy is making three times as many films as Hollywood, and lots of them are runaway American productions.

Rex Is Set for 'Lady' Repeat

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (U.P.) — Rex Harrison is all set to repeat as Professor Higgins in the film version of "My Fair Lady," and it seems in retrospect insane to have considered anyone else. Richard Burton was mentioned. But Higgins is supposed to be a woman-hater; and even Burton's considerable talent couldn't effect that characterization.

With Harrison and Audrey Hepburn as stars, it now appears probable that Stanley Holloway will re-create his original role as Eliza's father, George Culter, reportedly wants him, and Holloway would be able to go a little from his television series, coincidentally titled "Our Man Higgins."

"Cameo" Bribes Big Stars Into Taking Brief Roles

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (U.P.) — "What did we do before like Todd revealed the term 'cameo'?" said a film producer recently. "It's a magic word that can get a star to do a bit part."

The dictionary defines cameo as a gem carved in relief. That was the word that helped Todd, the great persuader, talk a platoon of top names into accepting tiny roles in his epic "Around the World in 80 Days."

Produced today can think the late showman for starting a trend that continues. In the old days a star wouldn't think of accepting a role in which he had less than 60 per cent of the footage.

Now you see stars taking roles their agents would have scoffed at. See Rex Frank Lancaster, Kirk Douglas, Tony Curtis, Shirley Maese and Robert Wagner, who have been heavily disguised in tiny parts in "The List of Adrian Messenger."

The all-star comedy "Fit in Mad Mad Mad Mad World" will feature in brief part, three names as Jack Benny, The Three Stooges, Buster Keaton, Tom Knott, Carl Reiner, and Paul Ford.

"The Longest Day" has an entire cast of cameo players. Stars like Anthony Quinn and Alec Guinness find themselves playing support to the actor in the title role of "Lawrence of Arabia." Peter O'Toole, Tony Curtis plays a bit in "Paris When It Sizzles" as a Tony Curtis-like movie star.

After the light bulb came crashing to the stage not too far from the main hall of the Madison place, the script in the audience at the first Community Cooperator series program that have wondered what possibly could happen next.

It was the crowning piece for the evening; but there was enough time left for most anything to happen. Early in the evening flickering light on stage had distracted the performers and the audience. (It seemed to be under control when at the beginning of the second intermission, the bulb cracked the stage.)

At that point the fully equipped the excellent pianists to conclude their program on their knees after the legs on the pad disintegrated.

On your calendar for November: First up is the Nov. 11 "Stars of Lawrence Welk" show featuring several of the regulars of the Walk show. On Nov. 22 the Civic Symphony orchestra presents its first concert of the season. Fine entertainment.

The nurses have a problem. No, it's not bedpans, sponges or floor mops, it's television advertising. Because some companies insist on using nurses to advertise their products (L. Derman-Fresh) the American Nurses Association has said that nurses who appear in advertising violate their professional code and run the risk of losing their license through "professional misconduct" charges. In cooperation, some products such as Ivory Soap have quit using nurses; others plan to go right ahead. And we don't blame them. While we get as sick of the people in white as anyone who watches TV, it's that who the advertisers want to use, let them so it. The nurses can scream all they want to, and they probably will, but they should have no more to say about who is used in commercials than any other group. This ethics kick is enough to give us and we hope the advertisers by who they darn well want to.

If you doubt the speed of newspapers in this age of electronic wonders, we offer you one example of speed during the Cuban crisis. The Chicago Tribune mentions in an advertising puff that President Kennedy's speech was over at 4:25 P.M. (CPT) and less than three hours later the Tribune was on the streets with the complete text of the speech, a full color half page map of Cuba and accompanying illustrations to fully develop the story. Nice going.

If you use a bleach you can expect quite a clamor for your money in the ensuing months. Present indications are that the soap giants, Colgate-Palmolive, Lever Brothers and Procter and Gamble, are entering the bleach market. Each company is expected to have a multi-million-dollar budget for its dry-bleach product during the coming year. At stake is the total bleach market of 200 million dollars. Chlorox is the field leader. And the race for the consumer's dollar goes on and on and on and on.

Some observations on coverage of the Cuban crisis by radio and television.

By and large the networks did an excellent job of coverage of the rapid changing situation during the week of crisis. Most commentators, who have learned from experience that theirs always someone ready to scream "sensationalism," played it cool and if anyone did find their best "reaction" voices to avoid scaring the citizenry.

Our hats off to Chet Huntley of NBC who over the week-end voiced his opinion on different aspects of the crisis and had the nerve to admit he was just guessing. Too many times commentators prefer to make the listener believe he has a direct line to "somebody up there."

Earlier in the week one commentator came on with his best "news" — the whole idea of the crisis and the regular program and when the listener of viewer wanted to know what was going on, fortunately his interruptions were warranted and not done just for promotional purposes.

Mutual radio news had some fine "in-depth" stuff, featuring interviews with experts on missiles, aircraft, defense, security, etc. With the promise of more crises to come, it is encouraging to know radio, television accept their responsibilities and perform as best they can.

WOMEN DRIVERS aren't as bad as many comedy writers make them out. In fact Kirkman Brothers, who operate the school bus transportation system, is quite pleased with many of the women they have hired as drivers. Typical of some women who drive for Kirkman Brothers is from left to right, Mary Edwards, Myrna King, Georgia Thelton, Loma Sprilly and

Kirkman Brothers Rate Women Drivers Excellent for Transporting Children

Women drivers "that phrase" has furnished gag writers with countless jokes. Considerable "punch" routes are all women drivers. But as far as Garth Kirkman is concerned, it is all a "bunch of bunk" for a woman, he likes women drivers.

Kirkman Brothers operates 21 school buses in Twin Falls school district and most of the drivers are women.

The first woman driver hired by Kirkman Brothers was in 1955 when Mary Edwards first took the wheel of one of the school buses. She was followed, a few months later, by Laura Holman. The idea of hiring women to drive school buses was two-fold, as far as Kirkman Brothers was concerned. First of all, the idea interested them and secondly it was becoming harder and harder to find men to take the jobs.

"The job is a thankless one," said Garth Kirkman, "and it isn't a full time job."

The job of driving a school bus actually fits a woman's schedule better than a man's. First of all, many men are available only during the morning and others are available during the afternoon. Finding someone who works early is sometimes a difficult task. There have been times when someone was sick and could not report for work. Replacing a driver when they became more difficult. It was hard to call a man off another job to take on a bus route.

"With women it is, and is a different story. Usually a woman's route needs to be covered. It's not a full time job that keeps her away from the house for eight hours a day. And, when a replacement is necessary, a woman is generally free to answer the call. This means that her young children have to be brought along. Bringing children along on a bus route isn't encouraged at Kirkman Brothers. In fact, if necessary, it is tolerated. . . . How do women perform on the job? Kirkman Brothers is sold on them. A timid child climbing on the bus often feels more at home seeing a woman at the wheel. The women do a pretty good job at handling the college or the University of Idaho. Any other college is out. The group feels it should give the most of its money. However, the awards are given to students they feel will "bring college" the group also has another idea. Should a student receive an award and say, finish all but one semester, that student is eligible to reap for additional money. The group feels an investment in a student is important and will take steps to protect this investment. The application will be reviewed closely by the group and by the decisions of the schools and the recommendations of the leaders. The student can spend the money for books, fees or room and board. Owning an automobile is one sure way to get disqualified. The group feels it should not provide funds for such expenses. The group consists of 10 interested residents of the three communities—Blainland, McCarley, J. W. Henry, Willard, Rose, W. G. Allen, O. H. Odell, G. D. McDowell, E. L. Dugg, Herbert, Thomas, and O. L. Colner. Children of great members are not eligible for any awards. It makes little difference to the group if the student is an exceptional athlete. If the student has no other help, the award is given, whether or not the group was nominated in September, 1958. In 1959 through 1960 scholarships were given, one for each school. In 1960 three $200 and one $100 scholarships were awarded. In 1961 a total of $150 was awarded. The fund is established so anyone who wishes can make it the recipient of an estate. For those who might be curious, $1,500 has gone to the University of Idaho and $1,500 has gone to Idaho State college. The split is better than the group anticipated. The group has no overhead except for postage and mailing; which is covered in putting all the money into good use. "It would be nice if we could provide help to all students; maybe some day it will come to that. However, we feel that we have been more than successful."

Lincoln 4-H Leaders Eye Plan on Fair

SHOSHONE, Nov. 3 — Suggestions for ways to improve the Lincoln county 4-H fair were made by the 4-H leaders' council this week at the home of Mrs. J. Howard Manning. Ralph Riley, Richfield president, said the annual 4-H fair sponsored by leaders' hands was set for Nov. 17 at the American Legion hall. Committee members in charge of arrangements include Mrs. Thurman Starnes, Mrs. Ralph Riley, Mrs. Carl Riley and Mrs. Clifford Stutman. Junior leaders from Shoshone and Richfield will be requested to arrange the program. Appreciation was expressed for the identification cards made to identify animals for judging and showing at the 1962 county fair. In this way visitors at the fair know who the winning animals and their owners were. Riley expressed satisfaction with the livestock training session held at Richfield prior to the fair, which he hoped the youth use of the same judges at the county and district fair. If this cannot be avoided in the future, particularly, council members feel the judges should refrain from telling what happened at the county contest, as it may appear that because of the judge's experience on the county basis, that particular project is favored at the district fair. Suggestion was made that Lincoln county add a poultry trophy for next year's fair, and that alternatives be selected for judging teams in order to insure having a full team on hand at the district fair. The matter of older girls who have completed upper division clothing projects who have dropped back in division two and are competing with younger girls in both quality and style revue was considered and members of the council went out to discuss opposing to permitting this. Opposition also was voiced against sending clothing exhibits to the district fair without the record books, because judges run into the problem of not knowing if the garments has been made off-pattern, so to speak, in order to fit the girl, or if it is a mistake in sewing.

THE FLAG MUST NOT FLY says Dr. Tom Utterback, Valley high school superintendent. Utterback, third from left, tells students Myron Husting and Jim McCallow with red flag that the only flag he wishes to see is the green one. State patrolman, Marvin Wright, right, agrees with Dr. Utterback if any one of the 90 members of the Valley High School Safe Driving club receives a citation when a red flag will fly over the high school. If no violations are reported then a green flag will fly over the high school. The members of the club have signed a pledge that they will drive in a safe manner, obeying the law, and will report their own violations to the club. The safe driving program is supplementary to the drivers education program. (Times-News photo)

SHOWING DRIVER'S LICENSE is Ronda Olson, a senior at Valley High School, to State Patrolman Marvin Wright. Miss Olson is one of the 90 Valley high school students that are participating in the Safe Driving club. The Olson car was inspected and checked by the patrolman, to make sure the vehicle was in satisfactory running condition. After this step is taken Miss Olson will sign a pledge to drive safely and a sticker will be placed on the car denoting the fact that she is a member of the club. ### Valley High School Forms Driving Club to Promote Safety on Highway

EDEN-HAZELTON, Nov. 3.—Valley High School Safe Driving club was organized here today under the sponsorship of the student council, to stimulate and encourage proper and acceptable driving habits. The Safe Driving club is unique at Valley and the first of its type in Magic Valley.

This program will be coordinated to some extent with the driver training program being offered at Valley high school. Each member of the club will be required to accept and sign the following obligation:

"I do hereby affirm that I will obey all safety rules and regulations and traffic laws of the state of Idaho. I will faithfully report all my violations and accidents and citations to the student council. I understand that all members who do not comply with these rules will be expelled from the club."

Since 90 students from eighth through the 12th grade have registered their cars with the school and have signed the pledge. Another requirement to become a member of the club is that all cars must be safety checked by the Idaho state police. This was done by state Patrolman Marvin Wright. Since Idaho has no mandatory vehicle inspection, the inspection of the cars driven by students is voluntary. The state patrolman checks headlights, on bright and dim parking lights and blinkers. In addition he inspects tail lights and brake lights. Windows and brakes are also checked. The patrolman will stop the student if the hood and the patrolman makes a quick inspection of the motor to see if anything is hanging down or check a leaky gas line. Upon inspection of the car the patrolman signs the pledge he was in satisfactory running condition. After this step is taken Miss Olson will sign a pledge to drive safely and a sticker will be placed on the car denoting the fact that she is a member of the club. The safe driving program at Valley High School is unique among Idaho Valley high schools. (Times-News photo)

the new project. He believes that the proper function of the club will do much to stimulate better driving habits.

The safe driving program is supplementary to the regular drivers education program. The club provides incentive while away from school and under the supervision of the drivers education program.

"The success of this club will illustrate the desire of the students to abide by the laws of the state of Idaho," said Utterback. He is heartily supporting the club and its program.

Message to the People of Idaho

No one could ask for a higher honor than representing a great state like Idaho in the U.S. Senate. I have tried to live up to this honor in a manner which would always reflect credit upon the people of Idaho. I have considered the merits of each issue, and have voted only as I believed to be right.

The needs of Idaho have come first with me, and I have worked hard to represent the interests of our state in the nation's capital. But it would be a grave mistake to conclude that our most vital interests are confined within our state borders. For we are living on a shrunken planet under the shadow of a mushroom cloud. Peace, freedom, a future for our children, all hinge upon the national decisions which must be made in the U.S. Senate.

For these reasons, I have taken seriously my oath to be a Senator of the United States. It isn't easy to measure up to such an office, and I have sometimes fallen short of the mark. So it meant a great deal to me, last year, when one of my colleagues, Senator Lee Metcalf of Montana, commented: "Frank Church can serve a Senator's dual role of performing for his nation and his state better than any man I know."

To be a Senator for Idaho, one must ever be a Senator for the United States. The two obligations are inseparable. This was the trust you, the people of Idaho, placed in me when you elected me. So long as I serve in the Senate, I shall strive to uphold that trust as God gives me the strength and the judgment.

Sincerely,

Frank Church

Why they say:

Church is one of our most respected U. S. Senators . . .

"Church is perhaps the most widely respected of the young Democrats in the Senate . . ."

These words—from conservative national columnist William S. White—sum up the general esteem in which Idaho's Senator is held in our Nation's Capital.

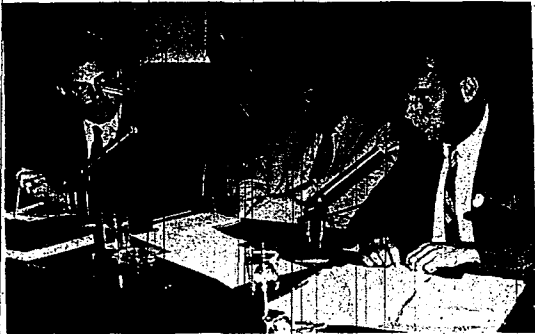

The reasons for this respect are many, but two stand out most: hard-work and fair-mindedness.

Frank Church thrives on hard work. But the most striking side of his personality is his ability to win the confidence of the people . . . people of both political leanings. They admire Church's integrity. They respect his ability.

At age 38, Church occupies a unique role in the Senate. He can fight for a cause, win it, and keep the friendship of the opposition. When Alaska and Hawaii needed an eloquent spokesman to help make their case for statehood, which added to the West's political strength in Washington, Church was chosen—and he did the job. Commented the Philadelphia Sunday News: "Democrats have a rising star for the future in Senator Frank Church of Idaho."

Frank Church, Chairman John L. McClellan and then counsel Robert F. Kennedy on the Senate Selects Committee listen to testimony exposing gambler racketeering. The disclosures led Church to introduce legislation banning pay-off pinball machines from interstate commerce.

Frank Church presents Idaho's case against potato controls to President Kennedy. The President listened and did not request potato controls in his farm message to the Congress, even though most other potato-growing states favored them.

A strong advocate of peace through strength, Church inspects one of the new fighter planes in America's military arsenal, before addressing the 8th Annual National Security Forum at the War College, Maxwell, Alabama.

Frank Church represents the U.S. Senate at the Inter-American Economic Conference in Buenos Aires. Sitting next to him is former Republican Secretary of Treasury, Robert B. Anderson. Church has represented the United States at several important international conferences in both Europe and South America.

. . . From the pages of an Idaho Family Album

Frank Church comes from a great Idaho heritage . . . a heritage that dates back to our state's territorial times.

The Idaho story of the Churches begins with Frank's grandfather . . . a man from Maine who headed West to Idaho in the Gold Rush days after the Civil War. He settled in the booming pioneer town of Idaho City, where he remained until President Grover Cleveland appointed him United States Assayer in 1894!

This moved the family to Boise, where his son, the second Frank Church, grew up and became an independent businessman. He and his wife, the former Laura Elderbach, raised two sons—Richard, now a Colonel in the U.S. Marine Corps, and Frank.

Frank Church, born in Boise in 1924, showed his promise at an early age. In his junior year at Boise High School, he won the American Legion National Oratorical contest . . . and a $4,000 college scholarship.

But Church had to wait to accept the scholarship. In 1942, Frank—although only 18—enlisted as a private in the U.S. Army. By his 20th birthday, he had earned lieutenant's bars . . . and served overseas in the China-Burma-India theater, where he was awarded the Bronze Star and the official commendation of the Chinese Combat Command.

The war over, Church obtained his undergraduate degree in less than two years . . . returned home to marry his childhood sweetheart, Bethine Clark, daughter of Federal Judge and Mrs. Chase A. Clark . . . and then entered law school, graduating from Stanford University with honors in 1950.

In 1956, Church left his Boise law practice to stage one of the most remarkable political campaigns in Idaho history . . . coming from relative obscurity to win a landslide victory to the U. S. Senate.

1890—The Church family home in Idaho City, with Frank's grandfather, grandmother, and their children, Albert, Eva, Elmer and Frank's father standing on the sidewalk.

1892—Frank's Uncle Albert—later an Admiral in the U. S. Navy—shinying the crewed pole at the Fourth of July celebration in Idaho City.

1896—Frank's grandparents sit together in front of their New Boise home, after President Grover Cleveland had appointed his grandfather U. S. Assayer.

1916—Frank's father (in dark suit) was a partner in owner ship of this grocery store in Boise, his first business venture.

1924—Frank was born in Boise. His mother holds him on her lap, with his older brother, Dick, standing beside them.

1941—Frank is greeted by his high school sweetheart, Bethine, as he returns from winning the American Legion's National Oratorical contest.

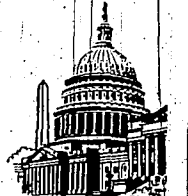

1946—1st Lieutenant Frank and his brother, Dick, then a Marine Major, enjoy an end-of-the-war reunion as their return from overseas, where Frank had served in China (circle).

1956—Campaigning for the Senate, Frank Church shook hands and traveled more miles than any candidate in previous Idaho history. Above he shakes hands with a supporter while Bethine (extreme left), Congressional Grace Frost, and Presidential candidate Atila Stevenson look on.

A Foldout Gallery,
Young Leaders of the Big Breakthrough

A RED-HOT HUNDRED

Life Magazine, in its September 14, 1962, Special Issue, honored Senator Frank Church as among "One Hundred of the Most Important Young Men and Women in the United States," selected from all fields of endeavor.

Said Life of its selections:

"The 100 had to meet a rigid set of criteria: 1) tough, self-imposed standards of individual excellence; 2) a zest for hard work; 3) a dedication to something larger than private success; 4) the courage to act against old problems; 5) the boldness to try out new ideas; 6) a hard-bitten undaunted hopefulness about man."

Senator Church was selected by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce as one of the Ten Outstanding Young Men of the Nation in 1957 and was awarded this symbolic trophy.

In Congress, as elsewhere, it's RESULTS that count. Hard working Frank Church's legislative box score makes clear that he has earned a high ranking among the nation's most effective United States Senators.

... Among Senator Church's achievements for Idaho and the Nation:

For River, Road and Reclamation Projects:

1. Fought for and won Congressional authorization of nearly $300,000,000 in Idaho projects, in the 1952 Rivers and Harbors Omnibus Bill—the largest water development program in Idaho history. (The projects include Bruce Eddy Dam near Corral, Asotin Dam above Lewiston, Ririe Dam near Idaho Falls, and improvements for the Blackfoot Dam and Reservoir. One-eighth of the total national construction authorized by the Rivers and Harbors Bill is for Idaho, thus bringing dramatic fulfillment of Church's campaign pledge in 1956 to "bring an end to Idaho's decade of stunted growth.")
2. Accelerated progress on Lower Snake River waterway by securing additional funds, which will bring slackwater navigation to Lewiston a year ahead of schedule.
3. Secured extra $2 million in special authorization to enable completion of Lewis-Clark Highway in North-Central Idaho.
4. Cosponsored Church-Pfeiffer Bill authorizing $15 million Spangler Dam on Mann Creek near Weiser.

For Idaho Industry:

1. Persuaded President Kennedy to halt further Treasury sales of silver at a hold-down price, which resulted in abrupt improvement in price for Idaho silver.
2. Helped Tubokat Chemical Corporation obtain much-battled Naval Ordnance Plant in Pocatello, which will mean big new payroll for the area.
3. Urged the President to adopt Spool program to aid lumber industry of Northwest, including negotiations with Canada seeking to restrict Canadian softwood imports.

For Small Business:

1. Cosponsored bill which established "set aside" timber sales for smaller lumber operators.
2. Sped approval of Area Redevelopment projects in North Idaho which will bring many new jobs to that area.

For Idaho Farmers:

1. Convinced the President not to ask for potato controls, and blocked control legislation in Senate.
2. Won a major victory for Idaho feed grain producers by getting President Kennedy to rescind harmful mixed grain orders.
3. Obtained legislation long sought by livestock operators allowing appeals from Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management orders to be brought in Idaho's Federal Court.

For Building Idaho's Future:

1. Worked for sound conservation of Idaho's natural resources including preservation of selected wilderness areas, the protection of the migratory fish runs on the Salmon River, and feasibility studies for a national park in the Shoshone Mountains.
  2. Requested Secretary of Interior to investigate practicality of extending Bonneville Power Administration marketing areas to Southern Idaho, to make low cost power available for stimulating new industry and growth.
- #### For Serving Idaho People:
1. Saved television reception for many of Idaho's outlying communities by getting TV booster stations legalized after Federal Communications Commission had ordered them abolished.
  2. With Representative Ralph Harding, obtained over $3 million in Federal loans and grants for drought and flood-stricken farmers in Southwestern Idaho in 1961 and 1962, including $250,000 for removal of flood debris.
  3. Was instrumental in obtaining more than $100,000 in emergency aid after the "mud flows" struck Boise in 1959.

For the Freedom and Growth of America:

1. Was one of the three sponsors of key trial amendment to Civil Rights Bill of 1957.
2. Helped lead the fight for Alaskan and Hawaiian Statehood.

In Foreign Affairs:

1. Sponsored amendments putting nearly half a billion dollars more out of foreign aid during the last six years.
2. Aided invasion to UN Bond purchase bill quashing full re-examination of principal and interest to the United States.
3. Proposed treaty for limiting anti-aircraft nuclear weapons test which has since become official letter of U.S. policy in nuclear test ban talks.
4. and Kennedy Administration.

Senator Church leads an outstanding Democratic team of Idahoans who will give their state effective representation in the Nation's Capital. Front left: veteran Congressman Grant Frost, candidate for a four-year Senate term; Representative Ralph Harding of Idaho's Second District; Senator Church, Senator F. White, candidate for Congress in the First District.

Last year, Utah State University honored Frank Church for his contributions to good government. Also honored were Gene Fulmer, middleweight boxing champion (center) and automobile executive George Romney (right) for contributions in their respective fields.

Frank Church brought a major honor to Idaho when he was chosen to keynote the 1960 National Democratic Convention at Los Angeles. Church is the first Idahoan of either party ever selected to play such a role at a national political convention.

Frank Church and Ralph Harding confer with General Cassidy of the Corps of Engineers about new flood control projects for Idaho. Close teamwork on the part of Church, Congressman Harding and Congressman Gracie Frost resulted in congressional authorization of the largest water development program in the state's history! The five new projects, representing an ultimate investment of some $300,000,000, will mean major payrolls during their construction, and their completion will add permanent new wealth to Idaho's economy.

No elected official in Idaho history has done as much as Frank Church to bring government to the people. In his courthouse tours, the Senator has made himself available to Idahoans in all 44 counties. Above, Church meets with a group of citizens in the Elmore County Courthouse at Mountain Home.

Church—Chairman of the Subcommittee on Indian Affairs—talks with members of the Nez Perce Indian Tribal Council regarding a proposed development program for their reservation.

Senator Church led the Alaska statehood bill to victory in the Senate, bringing to the 49th state and strengthening representation for the West. Senators Jackson (D-Wash.), Church and Kuchel (R-Calif.) above provide a 49th star for Sade Bartlett, 17-year-old daughter of the Alaska Territorial Delegate, to sew on the U.S. flag.

Church . . . "has a way of getting things done" . . . Twin Falls Times-News Editorial, Feb. 8, 1962

An outdoor enthusiast and champion of conservation, Frank Church readily displays his fishing party's catch of steelhead from the Salmon River.

Wong Wing Bo (left), now in the Idaho Air National Guard, whose mother was tortured to death by the Chinese Communists, and his father, Frank B. Wong (right) of Boise, thank Frank Church for getting legislation passed which allowed the boy to enter this country.

Frank Church, with officials of the Thiokol Chemical Corporation, inspects the Naval Ordnance Plant at Rexfield. Church and Congressman Ralph Harding were instrumental in Thiokol acquiring this surplus plant from the government, which will result in a big, new payroll for southeastern Idaho.

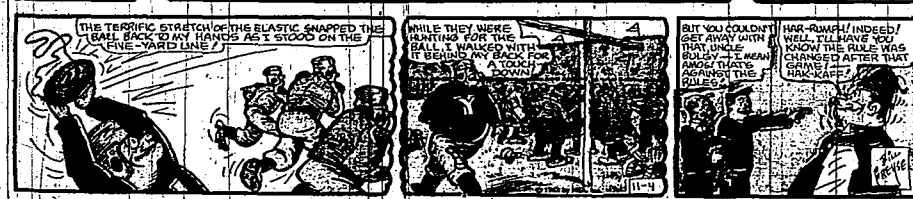

Frank Church's interest in Idahoans of all ages is reflected in the above picture as he chats with the young daughter of Howard Potter of Rexburg. Looking on is John C. Porter, Editor of the Rexburg Standard.

Frank Church likes to learn about Idaho problems first-hand. Here he discusses pending farm legislation with Sam Frewell, a diversified farmer in Canyon County.
