Population Follows Sun Across U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—The American population is still moving west.

The sunny South and West, according to a new survey by the U.S. Census Bureau, are attracting more people than any other part of the country.

The survey, based on all the new residents — both those who moved to the area in 1961 and those who moved there in 1960 — shows that the West and Florida, California, Texas and Arizona, are the states in the Union that have the most new residents. New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan were the states with the most new residents in 1961.

The survey estimates that between 1960 and 1961, California's population increased by 1,175,000 — or a rate of 1.7 percent.

New York's population went up 154,000, or .5 percent.

The 195,000 new residents in California were 5.6 percent of the state's 1961 population of 8,577,677.

By contrast, the census indicates that in 1961, the most people moved to the following states:

- New York, 154,000, or .5 percent.
- Pennsylvania, up 157,000, or .5 percent.
- Ohio, up 150,000, or .5 percent.
- Michigan, up 150,000, or .5 percent.

California's 1.7 percent rate is the highest in the Midwest.

Cooper Will Be Featured On TV Shows

HOUSTON, Tex. Nov. 24 (AP)—Lester Leroy Cooper, author of "The Day After Tomorrow," will be featured during a series of television shows on his scheduled 18-visit tour.

Cooper said a miniature transmitter will be attached to his index finger to pick up a radio signal from a receiver in a plane.

Dr. B. Shepard, Jr., the nation's first astronaut — who is Cooper's backup man — said the transmitter will be used to communicate with other networks — at least immediately.

The transmitter will be operated on a different scan rate, Shepard said. The plane will be in the air for 15 minutes before the test is conducted.

The business has been somewhat hectic for Cooper in their last two days. He has been in flight to the first time the United States has used such in-flight transmitters.

Teachers Get Meet Views On Learning

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Nov. 24 (AP)—High school English teachers were asked today to face up to the fact that "in our efforts, most learning occurs outside the classroom."

William D. Howsell told the convention meeting of the National Council of Teachers of English.

"The sheer quantity of information conveyed by the press, magazines, films, television and radio far exceeds the quantity of information conveyed by school instruction and texts."

This challenge has destroyed the monopoly of the book as a teaching aid and cracked the very walls of the classroom."

Howsell was reviewing a new book, "Using Mass Media in the Schools," which the council sponsored and of which he was editor.

He told the English teachers they have a deep responsibility for what he called "adventuring into mass media."

Howsell said he cited a recent report that the average American is exposed every day to at least 1,500 advertisements. And who is to blame for this? He also said that "television films, and even literature will never be higher than the standards set for them by audiences."

Cigarette Gets Blame For Fire

SPOKANE, Nov. 24 (AP)—A burning cigarette dropped on a newspaper was listed Friday as the cause of a fire that took the life of a nine store clerk here Thanksgiving day. Fire officials said.

Teelock was in the store when she saw the cigarette fall from a shelf. She tried to pick it up, but it fell on her. She was unable to get it out and it started a fire that spread rapidly.

BY RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—The "outlet" of Russia from Cuba without the aid of the United States is now a major demand for American officials in Europe in preparation for an aggravation of the Berlin crisis. They hope that the communists and democratic powers will offer relevant proposals.
Although the 15 NATO nations are not yet convinced, they depend for defense in the last analysis upon American troops. The NATO nations will prove to be a permanent deterrent, but if it should fail to prevent a Russian takeover, they will be in a very bad position.
Other defense would be successful, in view of the American fleet of nuclear warheads. The satellites can assemble on European battlefields. They would have a five-to-one advantage of the American fleet from the Baltic to the Black sea, from Holland to Greece.
Moreover, military experts generally agree that a Soviet attack would eventually expand into an all-out, nuclear struggle. No nation facing such a possibility would be free to relax its military resources.

SITUATION DANGEROUS—In the light of those fearful proposals and the lesson of the Cuban affair, American leaders have engaged their most active efforts to forestall any NATO-Africa-to-lead general military and responsibility. Mild exhortations in the past have been unavailing.
Gen. Louis Nizkor, who will retire as NATO commander on Jan. 1, recently retired to "criticize" the situation. He has offered no "criticism" in any sense of the word, but it applies to manpower or weapons. He had both in mind.
In addressing the NATO parliamentary conference, Under Secretary of State George Ball compared the Cuban affair to a similar showdown against communist aggression in Europe in other words, he said, "It was not a military success. It was a political success. It was a political success. It was a political success."

MEANING CLEAR—"Because we had clear superiority of conventional forces," he said, "we were not confronted with the usual dilemma of having to utilize nuclear weapons."
"These proposals can be met by whatever response is appropriate to meet to the limits of our resources."

ALLIANCES MEAN PEACE—The final note in the NATO-Africa-to-lead general military and responsibility. Mild exhortations in the past have been unavailing.

RIGHTS ACT WORKS
As a result of federal action under the 1957 Civil Rights Act, the number of Negroes in white areas in Michigan, Alabama, the Justice department is entitled to pride in the results, which greater than it may seem at first glance.
The United States commission on civil rights reported in 1962 that 1,023 Negroes had been registered in 1961, 1,102 registered white voters and 1,218 registered Negro voters, though the country contained five million Negroes, half of course, tried to register. At one time in many areas, the Negroes and other devices were used to keep Negroes out of this "black" city.
The commission also reported that since Michigan county for a first test of the 1957 law, which permits the attorney general to seek injunctions against any state or local law which denies the rights of citizens of the United States District Judge Frank M. Johnson, Jr., issued a broad injunction requiring county registrars to handle registration for all citizens, and ordered the registration of 34 Negroes.
Alabama authorities took this case all the way to the Supreme Court, arguing that judges have no power to order registration of individuals. The high court refused even to hear the argument, and affirmed the lower courts. Aside from the injunction, the commission with observation of the rights by some southern officials, the Supreme Court has made it clear that judges can order voting registration where they are presently and discriminatorily denied. The civil rights act works.

WHY WORRY?
There has been quite a stir in travel circles over the fact that when the Moore-Camack cruise left Cuba on Oct. 28, it was the only one of the Cuban cruise ships to be seen in the Gulf of Mexico. It has been interpreted as a U. S. public has not really been convinced the cruise ships in Cuba would stop on a shooting war.
There could, however, be another explanation: The cruise ships in Cuba would stop on a shooting war. There could, however, be another explanation: The cruise ships in Cuba would stop on a shooting war.

WHO CAN ARGUE?
The Marine Corps' decision to pull out of Vietnam, got a lot of criticism. It was said that the Marine Corps was "out of Vietnam." Or maybe they say it got caught.

Dear Pat Smith:
We have three darling little potter-cupples to give away. One is black and two blond.
Four male pups 3 weeks old and their mother have to have new homes. The pups are weaned and will be small dogs. You can get them by phoning 733-1429 in Twin Falls.

FAMOUS LAST LINE
The air conditioner finally working.
GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

BARRY GOLD WATER
Why do Republicans, particularly Barry Goldwater, argue so strongly for limited government?
The question was put to me recently by a college student. I answered him by pointing out the difference between the Republican and Democratic parties. I believe the answer to this important question, the answer to which is too often obscured by the burly burliness of partisan politics.
The "limited government" is the "heart" precept upon which this great nation was founded. The men who framed our Constitution wisely stipulated certain activities which the federal government might not infringe upon.
The Constitution is the instrument for the protection of the individual liberties and governmental powers of the states. It is the instrument for the protection of the individual liberties and governmental powers of the states. It is the instrument for the protection of the individual liberties and governmental powers of the states.

—Preliminary totals on the 1962 election show the Democrats with a narrow lead over the Republicans. The Democrats won 50 percent of the vote, while the Republicans won 48 percent. The vote was very close, with the Democrats leading by only two percentage points.
The election was held on November 5, 1962, and the results were announced on November 6, 1962. The Democrats won the White House and a majority in both the House and the Senate.

Atomic Power
In asking for an expanded program of nuclear power development, the atomic energy administration is projecting some intriguing possibilities. In hardly more than a decade, the AEC predicts most of the United States will be getting electricity from atomic energy. Some time in the next few years, it expects electricity produced from atomic energy to at least match the present costs of producing electricity by more ordinary means.

The commission says by the turn of the century atomic electricity could mean considerable savings of something like 30 billion dollars in the nation's power generation bills.
"Undoubtedly, lots of research remains to be done," says the commission. "But energy is reduced to the low point anticipated by some scientists. But if only a fraction of the military budget is spent, the goal should be attained."

Some sources have envisioned the day when a self-contained power plant carrying and require service only about once every 10 years or so. If such developments are achieved, existing power production facilities will be a thing of the past.

Whatever degree of development is attained, it has become obvious everyone concerned in the electrical industry has been looking for electricity from atomic energy. The private power companies are financing expensive experiments in the field and the federal government has done considerable research.
With such progress, the end is almost in sight for the giant hydroelectric projects—with their huge dams and complex regulatory and transmission systems. Even today's battles over control of such projects might have little meaning in the future.

The advent of electricity generated through atomic power doesn't mean the end of the efforts of public power proponents, however. It could mean an unexpected advantage to those who would like to see a national program of public monopoly over electricity. At least in the near future and possibly for many years, the atomic fuels required for the plants will be controlled by the federal government, which means public power can seize on the advantage to squeeze out private industry.

One development of the future will be interesting. What will happen to all the giant dams constructed mainly for the generation of electricity? At one point in the future, operation of these huge hydroelectric projects will be so expensive in relation to nuclear plants that they will be operated economically.

Perhaps the nation will have a whole series of national monuments centering around such dams as Bonneville.
NO COMPLETE ANSWER
Twin Falls school patrons should not expect a complete answer to local school problems with completion of the new Junior high school building. The new structure will solve for the present the problem of providing sufficient classrooms, but it does not solve other problems, including the ever-present matter of finances.

For some time, the Twin Falls school district has been levying the maximum permitted for maintenance and operation of schools. Although some of the teachers from the present junior high school building will be transferred to the new structure, other teachers will be needed. In addition, there is an increased expense for operation of a new building, including heating, lighting and maintenance. Then there's the matter of the new structure.
Some of the answers probably will be provided by the next session of the state legislature, but not all of them.
Then there's the matter of future plans for expansion. It is possible that the need for more classrooms. Only if Twin Falls stops growing would there be no need for future expansion of the school system. There's no indication something like that is going to happen.
New additions—classrooms and new buildings—can be expected in the foreseeable future. Perhaps a new grade school is being considered as well as a new high school. The school board is also considering a new second grade school only a few years ago, is working on a third high school now. Poettolo expects to open a second high school next fall. Other communities have their programs of expansion, too, so Twin Falls is not alone in that respect.
There are other problems of public schools, but financing and expansion are the most serious. Recreation Society Aims Idaho Needs

The Idaho State Recreation society held its annual meeting in Boise to discuss the recreational programs, reports, needs and facilities, reports a Glad Irving, Twin Falls, acting recreational director.

Browning said the society's recommendation on which the society wants the people of Idaho to express their views towards the major recreational needs within the communities.

Browning said Magic Valley residents should express their views to state senators and representatives, so if parks and recreation legislation should come up to the next legislative session, the key people will know resident views.

The recommendations are, first, increase parental responsibility in the selection of kinds of recreation and disciplines that children should develop and participate in; second, unification of the efforts of schools, municipalities, civic and other agencies so that an orderly and economical system of recreational opportunities can be provided with a minimum of duplication.

The third recommendation is a planned program by every municipality by state government in the acquisition and development of outdoor areas with special attention to water and scenic areas and camp sites.

The last recommendation by the society is that the state department of recreation resources in Idaho be organized planning.

The tax package would be presented to President Kennedy by a single bill to be enacted in two parts but would take effect in two steps.

1. A substantial but partial tax cut to be effective retroactively to Jan. 1, 1963.

2. A second stage to become effective Jan. 1, 1964 — which would include both a further reduction in the tax rate and a new rate of the year's tax reduction before the reduction came into force.

The revisions would be designed to at least partly offset revenue losses of the tax reductions.

The two-step proposal is designed apparently as a compromise between a combined cut in the rate and cut could be hammered out in one session of course and of demands for a reduction next year even without revision.

U.S. Infantrymen Being Withdrawn From Korat

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 24 (AP)—India's president, Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, expressed appreciation Saturday for American help against communist China.

JERRY LEWIS VOLUNTEERS for muscular dystrophy are collecting donations from Larry Smith, 618 Lywood boulevard.

The volunteers, members of the Twin Falls high school-Hilly club, canvassed from door-to-door Saturday in the residential area of Twin Falls for muscular dystrophy. HOME GUARD LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Miss Esther Maley, 64, followed an 18-year-old would-be robber yesterday by hanging onto a bag containing her firm's $112 payroll.

The youth leaped on her back and dragged her into an alley but when she refused to relinquish the bag he fled.

Three Organizations Collect Muscular Dystrophy Funds

Three Twin Falls organizations are collecting funds for muscular dystrophy Saturday, reports Vernon Dober, Twin Falls chairman of the drive.

Dober said the Twin Falls high school-Hilly club and Job's Daughters were canvassing from door-to-door in the residential section of Twin Falls all day Saturday.

Twin Falls Jay-C-Ettes operated a roadblock Saturday afternoon in the 300 block of Addison Avenue west. Dober said. Helping the Jay-C-Ettes were members of the Twin Falls police department and sheriff's office.

Dober said Twin Falls Jay-Cees will have a muscular dystrophy bowling tournament Dec. 21 at both the Bow-Inn and Magic Bowl. Anyone who is presently bowling in a league may participate.

Plaques will be given to the highest men's teams and highest women's teams during the tournament, Dober said.

Dober hopes Twin Falls residents will support the muscular dystrophy drive by giving when called or by using cashiers at Twin Falls stores. Mr. R. B. Moore, Twin Falls, is Magic Valley muscular dystrophy chairman.

WASH DAYS are HAPPY DAYS with Natural GAS

On nasty winter days, there are two "musts" for happy wash days — PLENTY of hot water and an economical, convenient way to dry clothes indoors.

NATURAL GAS provides them both!

a Natural GAS WATER HEATER

Heats Water FASTER

for LESS MONEY than the other kind

Natural Gas will heat water for an average family of four for less than $4.00 a month. Even with the "lowest" electric rate; it would cost over $6.00 for the same amount of water. Greater hot water usage means even larger savings with GAS!

YOUR SAVINGS WILL PAY FOR YOUR NATURAL GAS WATER HEATER!

a Natural GAS DRYER

Dries Clothes Whiter - Brighter - Faster

FOR LESS THAN 1/2 THE COST OF OTHER DRYERS

A Natural Gas dryer does a better job than the other type because GAS gently flows away moisture instead of being fluffed out. Clothes don't get overheated... wrinkles are ironed out. Natural Gas is the fast, gentle, ECONOMICAL way to dry clothes!

Today in Southern Idaho 35,000 homeowners are HEATING, DRYING, COOLING or COOKING with Natural GAS

Yule Trees

HAILEY, Nov. 23 — Sawtooth forest service officials are making people who desire to cut Christmas trees to do so this month. Penalties for cutting may be obtained from the Forest Ranger's office.

"RIBBING RUBBER, Ketchum ranger, points out that after the snow comes it is difficult to get into areas where trees may be easily obtained.

Record Christmas Mail Is Expected By Postoffice

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 — A record 10 billion pieces of Christmas mail are expected to flow through U.S. postoffices this year. And the postoffice department plans to handle the deluge with fewer workers than last year.

Increased efficiencies will enable the department to do the job with only 150,000 temporary workers and without reducing service. Postmaster General J. Edward Day has said. This is 70,000 fewer than last year.

Day said one-day deliveries are scheduled for homes, with a sure through mail sorting process the start of the day. The department plans to make more use of its experienced regular workers in an overtime basis — a system which postal officials say proved remarkably sound last year.

How to travel in luxury without really flying

The new '63 Chevrolet has captured the silence and effortless ease of jet flight and translated it to highway travel. Every new Chevrolet, whether it's a luxury Impala, a low-priced Bel Air or a Biscayne, now has self-adjusting brakes, a Delcotron generator to extend battery life, and the ingenious new flush-and-dry system that takes air and rain water from the cowl and rinses corrosive elements out of the rocker panels where rust usually begins. A test drive will amaze you. The suspension, with coil springs at all four wheels, treats back roads, car tracks, gravel as though they were billiard-table smooth. The engine whisks you away from traffic lights or stops safely out to pass slower cars without once intruding on your privacy. When you're driving a Chevrolet, you don't take a back seat to anyone!

ANTICIPULATION AND RECOGNITION of sound is taught by Hanning, Twin Falls, to compensate for a slight speech impediment. A grade school teacher, she is responding well under the supervision of Mrs. Harvey Pierce, expert in auditory and speech pathology. Annette is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hanning. Problems in Conversation Aided by Work at Local Easter Seal Clinic

Conversation problems, including hearing loss and inability to speak correctly, definitely are common among children and adults, but they need never be an excuse.

That is the opinion of Mrs. Harvey Pierce, director of the Magic Valley Easter Seal center clinic, 125 Seventh street east. The clinic is one of four in the state, operating in connection with the Idaho Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

At the local center, some 45 youngsters and a few adults are aided, but Mrs. Pierce claims that twice that number are not helped, primarily because some parents believe it is a stigma to admit such aid is needed. As a result, many youngsters will go through life with a defect which could be aided right now.

Payment for such aid is not a consequence and runs from no charge at all to $3 a session, depending on the ability of the parents to pay. This same payment scale holds true with adults. Such payments do not begin to finance the work entirely. The balance is made up through Easter seal sale money. Children and adults aided at the center are:

Fences Inadequate to Keep Rifle Range Free From Public Garbage

There are days when Ella Fuller, a Twin Falls farmer, wishes he could devote more time to the business of farming and less to protecting a parcel of land from being overgrown with garbage.

Members of the Idaho national rifle association are so happy when Fuller is able to accept their terms, showing and accepting a rifle range in the world can't compare with Twin Falls that they at seven miles south of Five Points and one mile west is not a garbage dump.

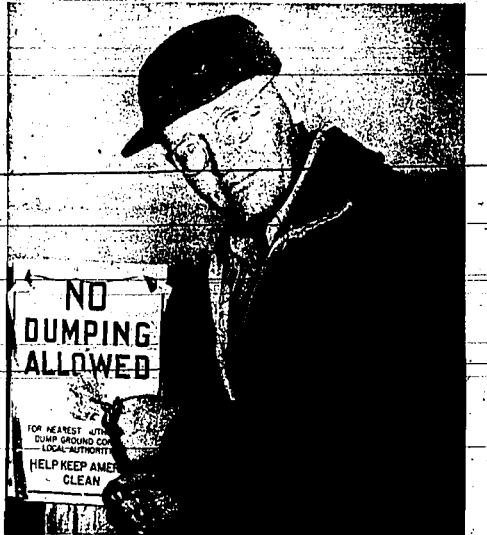

The fence on the north side of the road is federal property, and serves as a firing range for the national guard. It is impossible for the national guard to fire with broken washing machines, chairs, old batteries, abandoned paint cans and other waste to lay on.

As for Ella Fuller and his part in the picture, Fuller acquired the rifle range in the land. The land is near the Fuller ranch and the next allotment of the firing range has been cleared and reseeded to create what years to support livestock. The deal seemed satisfactory enough Fuller would clear the brush and feed the land during the time the national guard is using the range. Fuller would keep his cattle off it. The range would be cleared and be a better site for a firing range.

One of the regulars was that Fuller would have to fence the area. This would be a four-wire fence with posts set one rod apart. This Fuller did, and he completed the fencing on a Saturday night.

The following Monday morning Fuller went out to check his fence.

The public over the week-end had approached the fence, and he had to go out and cut the wire. (Continued on Page 2)

DIGGING OUT LEAD from bullets fired into sign denoting that the area is not a dump ground. Ella Fuller, recently acquired grazing rights to the land used by the national guard as a firing range. Area residents have little regard for the sign and the firing range is fast becoming a public health problem because of the garbage dumped there. Fences put up by Fuller are knocked down in spite of gates. (Times-News photo)

Total Length of T.F. Streets Will Reach to American Falls

Suppose you had 18 good men under your direction and were given the task of repairing the streets of Twin Falls, Idaho, American Falls — some 31 miles long. Now suppose you had limited funds to receive a contract for the job. Only the like of a task, but it is only cutting the time to repair the Twin Falls street department.

The chances are the distance will get longer next year as the city grows.

This is the time of year when the streets of Twin Falls are in a few moments and looks back on the accomplishments. It is difficult to remember how the city streets were early this spring, except for members of the street department who are just now finishing repairs. In a few weeks more nature will be unleashing her strength on the streets again and how mud and silt will determine spring damage.

There is more to the street department than just fixing ruts, perhaps. If more people were aware of the work, says Paul Newton, city engineer, they could understand the situation in Twin Falls.

The whole program is sort of "damned if you do, and damned if you don't." It is not unusual for Newton to receive a complaint on our phone and the individual wants his street fixed. On another phone another individual is complaining the department is tearing up the street and fixing ditches.

Street repairs are just about over, and the department has to move on to other tasks that have been delayed because of severe street breakup.

Twin Falls city streets, would be in pretty good shape if he could devote full time to the task, according to Paul Newton, superintendent of streets.

The 18 men in the department operate eight trucks, two road graders, two front-end loaders, three sweepers, three cleaners, sprinker truck and keep one man busy painting signs and keeping them in top condition. In addition to fixing streets, the department is charged with the responsibility of putting in new streets. Land must be cut to grade, curb and gutter installed and a base put down before cloaking starts.

All the stop signs and information signs have to be replaced or renovated. Curb and drain pipes must be cleaned and flushed. Broken pipes have to be replaced. Streets must be cleaned and gravelled streets must be sprinkled.

So all things considered, it is a wonder if any streets ever get repaired with all the necessary work that the department undertakes. Hand points out.

"The city has covered a lot of ground this summer," says Hand, and the progress on street construction is cleared and noted.

The timetable for repair is based on two factors, the worst comes first and a small repair job might save thousands of dollars later.

Weather and emergencies enter the picture and take their toll. In addition to the maintenance the department is charged with of the street department think the public is pretty good. They get a lot of cranky ideas and once in a while a good usable thought is used. The department knows that when a hole is dug and a flare put out chances are the flare will show up in another part of the city.

Right now the department is trying to get things in shape for winter. The task involves hauling leaves and killing weeds. Alleys are graded to smooth them out for winter traffic.

Equipment must be covered for winter use and a stockpile of chips and sand must be on hand for icy streets. Winter months mean men and equipment must be out early and sand streets before traffic begins moving.

A limited number of check-holes will have to be left until next year as time is running out and funds are gone.

Whatever happens to the city streets is nothing that money, more men and more equipment would solve. It is a matter of they'll stick to proven methods.

Suicide With Pill Overdose Nearing End

BY FRANK CARRY
WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP) — Thirty years ago Ben. Estes Kefauver, D. Tenn., suggested a way of preventing death from an overdose of sleeping pills. Kefauver's way proved wrong. But he suggested that scientists discover another way that may prove right.

Dr. Theodore Koppanyi says Kefauver's lead prompted research — at the Georgetown School of Medicine into making barbiturate sleeping pills suicide-proof and accident-proof. Koppanyi heads the school's department of pharmacology.

Koppanyi said the method involves incorporating into sleeping pills another drug called Metrazole which acts as a stimulant to counteract the antidote to a barbiturate overdose. And, he told a reporter, research is still under way with promising preliminary results — to improve on the method and eliminate one possible physiological drawback to it.

Kefauver, in 1940, gave national publicity to an idea — credited originally to German scientists — to incorporate into every barbiturate tablet a small quantity of peccia, a drug commonly used in medicine to promote vomiting.

In this work, Kefauver wrote: "Take a little peccia and it doesn't act at all — you don't even feel it. Increase the dose beyond a certain point, however, and it will make you vomit. You bring it up, together with anything else you've swallowed."

Used in sleeping pills, therefore, it acts as a perfect safety valve. You can't overdose yourself because the overdose brings its own correction."

Kefauver's anti-suicide legislation "that would be compulsory to include peccia in all commercial preparations containing barbiturates." His bill was referred to a committee never reached the senate.

The senator's article, and subsequent speeches, inspired Koppanyi.

Steelhead, Salmon Rebuilding Program Showing Progress on Two Idaho Rivers

By Jim Murray

Idaho Fish-Game Department
BOISE, Nov. 24 — The Twin program to rebuild chinook salmon and steelhead trout spawning runs in the Clearwater drainage and steelhead in the Lemhi river are off to a good start, according to Leon Murphy, fishery development supervisor.

Part of the Columbia river fishery development program, this experimental work is designed to determine optimum spawning fish in waters that have been barren of these species for many years.

Since the chinook-steelhead program encompasses at least three years or two complete spawning cycles of the anadromous fishes, this work is a long-term project. In summary, it's a matter of "so far, so good."

For example, a recent news item reported the hatching of 22,000 steelhead eggs in man-made incubation channels on the Lemhi river this year, and another 100,000 eggs in the Red river, a tributary of the South Fork of the Clearwater.

This is the first year that steelhead trout eggs have been planted in Idaho as a means of rebuilding spawning runs in depleted waters. The salmon experiments now are in the third year for fall chinook and the second year for spring chinook.

The program started in 1960 when about one-half million eggs from fall-spawning chinook salmon were supplied from the federal fish hatchery at Grand Coulee, Wash., for planting in the lower Selway river.

The remaining eggs were deposited in man-made "redds" or fish nests in the main river channel.

The number of adult fish returning in the three to five years from the time of the egg-planting will shed some light on the most question as to the range in which normally spawning salmon can be extended from Bonneville dam on the lower Columbia river to the Clearwater drainage some 400 miles upstream.

In the fall months of 1960 and 1961, plantings of eyed eggs from fall returning chinook salmon were made in the lower Selway and Lochsa river drainages. These represent a separate, distinct run of salmon from spring chinook. This study, according to Murphy, will determine if adult salmon from these drainages will return to the Clearwater drainage, to complete their life cycle.

Approximately one-half million eyed eggs from the federal Spring Creek hatchery were planted each year near the mouth of the Selway in 1960, about 40,000 eyed eggs from the Snake river stock are planted in Warm Springs creek, a tributary of the Lochsa. Last year, about 200,000 were planted.

These funds, federally financed except for land purchase, provide for the feasibility of establishing these runs of fish by seedling plantings will be judged from the number of adult fish returning in the next three years.

"I always think of that other shore and submit to the will of the Lord, whether He decides to keep me here, or call me to Him,"

PROGRAMS To rebuild chinook salmon and steelhead trout runs in the Clearwater river drainage area are pointed up by this rapid steelhead in the highway near Lewiston dam. Since Nov. 1 of last year some 45,000 steelhead have been counted at the facility. The program involves experimental work designed to determine optimum spawning fish in waters that have been barren of these species for many years. (Idaho fish and game department photo) ment involved the planting of hatchling and rearing purposes and the availability of adequate spawning areas.

One example of this work is the Dager Falls hatchery, constructed on the middle fork of the Salmon river. During the past two years, it has proved successful in passing salmon over the falls without undue delay.

Concentrations of late-spawning salmon below the falls have not been observed in the past two seasons.

Engineering and geological feasibility studies, including coring and preliminary plans to build a vertical-slot fallway around Selway falls are being prepared. This is about 2 1/2 miles above the mouth of Selway river. This work is scheduled to begin next year.

The continuing program of screening irrigation ditches leading from the main Salmon river and tributaries, particularly in Lemhi county, now has installed 160 of these fish-saving devices. The screens are designed to divert young salmon fingerlings from ditches and certain death in cultivated fields. This free-year program is geared to produce about 250 acres of four types—but custom-made as to size.

Because of the three-to-five year life cycle of salmon, the steelhead and the relatively small numbers surviving the trip down to sea and back, several more years must elapse before the results of these programs in the Clearwater and Lemhi river systems are apparent to sportsmen. It's simply a matter of "so far, so good."

NEW TYPE SNOW FENCE lines some of Idaho's new interstate highways and has replaced the older lattice fence and the wooden "X" type before that. It is made of heavy-duty steel pipe and is designed to last for many years, without any continuing cost for upkeep. (Times-News photo)

If North Wind Blows, Drivers Better Not Expect too Much Aid in Road Travel

The north wind will blow what will happen in Magic Valley? That is the 184 question at the present time. Actually, if the winter is really severe, the snows are heavy and the winds are high in velocity, nothing much will happen at all. Reason is that equipment for snow-removal is just as plentiful enough to do the job, some officials admit off the record. There is a good concentration of equipment, working on highway 20 in the Ketchum-Sun Valley area and even some of this is being used by the re-creation division of the Union Pacific.

If the blow is a good one and the snow is deep then Twin Falls motorists will find the going no less than winter than they did in 1958. Equipment-wise, snow removal has about the same chance as yet been placed. Resisters then recall that it was three days before they could drive any further north on highway 22 than the present location of the northern end of the Laywood shopping center.

Down town Twin Falls was "a mess," they declare, and it was days before parking near the center was even remotely possible. Farmers need water and all citizens of the valley hope that snows this winter are deep, but

People who lived in the rural areas fared better and in many cases food and medicine were dropped by air. Stranded ducks were fed the same way.

Motorists who recall that it would find going easier because such a heavy snow in place. In place, too, is the barrel of sand which, in hot summer months, looks a lot of ally silt along a rise in the road. But come winter—and ice—and the sand has seen the difference between a motorist getting through or not getting through.

Metal drift fences have replaced the old lattice fences and there, the wooden "X" shaped ones. If there could be a storm this scary it should be this.

Warning to motorists: This may be the year of the big one and if it is, don't expect it to much help too fast. Just stay at home until it blows over.

81st Birthday Anniversary Of Pope John XXIII Is Today

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 24 (UP)—Pope John XXIII comes to his 81st birthday today. Sunday and a tremendous effort to lead divided Christianity toward unity. He is approaching the talks with youthful enthusiasm and boundless energy.

The sturdy Roman Catholic pontiff seeks to achieve progress toward this goal through two means: moderation of his own church and establishment of the first close contact in centuries with Protestant leaders to discuss and perhaps solve old differences.

The supreme shepherd of Roman Catholicism recently thanked God for giving him health and vigor to undertake this, long past an age when most men have retired.

He convened the first Roman Catholic Ecumenical council in 52 years, knowing the toll would take upon his strength. The council will last at least a year. The worldwide assembly would be dissolved automatically if the Pope died.

But even if it ended now, with its internal tasks yet barely begun, it would already have accomplished—perhaps—the greatest progress toward Christian unity since the reformation split the church in the middle ages.

Since December, 1959, when Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, then archbishop of Canterbury, met with the Pope, Catholics and non-Catholic Christians have been meeting here at high level and in cordality. Non-Catholic observers invited to the Ecumenical council have been received by Pope John and are in constant contact with Catholic officials seeking to find with them a road to understanding.

The man who opened the door for all this was born, Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli on a blitzkrieg day "di Sotto il Monte" Under the Mountain—in the Bergamo foothills of the Italian Alps. He was the fourth son among 12 children of a poor farmer.

When he was elected Pope on Oct. 23, 1958, he took the name Giovanni-John. It was close to the name of his father—Giovanni.

31st Birthday Anniversary Of Pope John XXIII Is Today

Battista (John the Baptist) Roncalli, and Pope John II derived much from his brother. The keen sense of humor of the Bergamaschi folk, a dogmatic determination, physical sturdiness.

Pope John carries his more than 200 pounds with a firm, plodding stride. His eyes twinkling with inner humor. Sometimes he has shown signs of weariness or impatience but usually he appears in vigorous good health.

At the time of his election he was almost 70, older than any other newly chosen pontiff in 1200 years, but he rode into the papal throne with the prestige of a younger man.

Pope John increased the College of Cardinals to 87 from its traditional 70. He stopped in a score of Roman churches that had not seen a Pope in generations. He visited a Roman prison and a reform school, barely two weeks before the Ecumenical council convened. He made a whistle-stop tour of Loreto and Assisi on the first papal train trip in a century.

"The Pope says he is getting old," he says, "it is with a little smile."

"The Pope tries to live in the present—fulfilling his duties," he told an audience 25 days before his birthday. "The non-Christians—by giving him good health."

"It is true that he is growing old, and also true that wisdom is a part of age."

"I always think of that other shore and submit to the will of the Lord, whether He decides to keep me here, or call me to Him,"

BARREL OF SAND looks a little silly on a hot summer day parked beside a highway. But in the snow and it may be the difference between making it or not. In some areas, aids are the only ones available. Most officials admit equipment inadequate for a really tough winter. U. N. Terry, Twin Falls, inspects a "highway lifesaver."

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT Dr. Thomas Utterback Believes Magic Valley Schools Are Much Underrated

EDEN-HAZELTON, Nov. 24.—Dr. L. Thomas Utterback, superintendent of schools in the Eden-Hazleton area, says Magic Valley schools are much underrated by most commentators. He feels the educational facilities are the best in Idaho and that Magic Valley is a wonderful place to live and rear children.

Dr. Utterback says, however, that the present textbook offerings in most schools are an insult to the intelligence of the students. He feels that radical changes in curriculum are unwarranted and that time should be spent on the subjects that should be considered. He feels that the talented student must be educated to the maximum.

"Most of our students—not all of them—are being educationally hampered by not being required to work and assimilate to their capacity. Return to basic fundamentals must be accelerated and so-called life adjustment should be eliminated from academic offerings," Utterback stresses.

All grade levels should have subject areas increased in content and difficulty as curriculum offerings are not meeting the present needs of community and nation, Dr. Utterback believes.

He feels various state departments of education still seem making radical changes in their accreditation and evaluation requirements, in order to assure public schools in meeting the necessary changes without overburdening their accreditation.

"There are many new approaches to education that should be considered, he says. They include PSCS physics, Bond Chem approach, BSCS and the use of modern mathematics in grade and high school, and introductory college English and mathematics courses to the high school curriculum.

Biometrics with credit and ability to do college work should be extended to the limit, the educator feels. The method of how this is to be done and what offer a program for the exceptional average student is a matter for school administration and would be greatly facilitated by increased financial support at the state level, Dr. Utterback believes.

Dr. Utterback was superintendent of schools in Missouri, California, Alaska and Nebraska before coming to Idaho. He attended the University of Missouri receiving his BA degree in 1923 and his MA degree in 1924.

He was awarded a PhD in education in 1960 by the federal government of Mexico from the National American University. He has attended or taken extension work from the University of Nebraska, Montana state and the University of Wisconsin.

Another area that needs strengthening in many schools is in part to the public school and in part to the home. Dr. Utterback says regarding the degree of national patriotism.

"There seems to be a loss of the degree of national patriotism and in part to the public school and in part to the home. Children have today—no more—'the common sense'."

"Students should have a sound knowledge of our country's greatness, our struggle for freedom, a knowledge of our statements and their accomplishments, our poets and authors. They should be taught a knowledge of American history through a definite program in conjunction with temporary, subject area, teaching of national patriotism. This has been neglected in many schools and should be declared re-established," he declares.

Immunity Can Pose Problem For U. S. Law

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 (AP)—Diplomatic immunity has been described by frustrated police as a set of ground rules covering how much foreign envoy can get away with.

As far as U. S. law is concerned this covers about everything from illegal parking to murder.

To make sure the striped pants colony is protected, the United States has a statute which says any policeman who roughs up or jails a diplomat can get up to three years in prison.

The "cloak of immunity" includes an envoy's family and his household staff.

Diplomatic immunity data is back to the Middle Ages when suspicious monarchs were inclined to behead anyone who displeased them. Out of mutual fear, nations agreed to protect each other's emissaries from the chopping block.

A set of international regulations covering immunity was finally laid down in 1947 when the first Congress of Vienna conferred to clean up the debris of the Napoleonic era.

Later, another congress codified the diplomatic privileges of 84 nations in everything from the right of asylum to liquor smuggling.

Diplomats today are "expected" to obey the laws of the land in which they are stationed.

Diplomatic privilege is not just a one-way proposition, although some Americans may think so.

The United States government insists that its law agencies respect immunity to the letter, largely because its own envoys receive similar protection in foreign lands. Any violation of the code by this country could lead to reprisals against its own.

The state department keeps a master list of accredited diplomats, their families and employees. U. S. courts are instructed not to prosecute anyone on this official roster, known as the "white list."

An envoy who commits a crime in his official headquarters enjoys double protection—diplomatic immunity plus the fact that an embassy or mission is considered a part of his own country.

The case of a foreign man who shot a U. S. official in September, 1961, when the killing occurred on Czech territory, has been the only violation of this immunity in the United States since the Soviet embassy in Washington.

Problems in Conversation Aided by Work at Local Easter Seal Clinic

the clinic came from those who cannot speak or hear at all to those with only minor defects. In the latter category the training camp of the center will make the defect unnoticeable.

An example of youngsters being helped, there is Annette Hansing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hansing, Twin Falls. She has a slight speech impediment. Training and practice will, for all practical purposes, eliminate this. Her school work thus will be helped. Much time with Annette involves receptive work and letter sounds repeated by voice and then written down. As is the case in many such instances, she is a very bright child and is responding well.

Another youngster is Alana MacMillan, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Jay Allen MacMillan, Twin Falls.

This girl was 18 months old before it was realized she had a hearing defect. This now has been tabulated to be a hearing loss of about 70 per cent. As a result, the little girl is having to learn to speak because she cannot hear. She is being helped by the clinic. Her mother, Mrs. Pierce, who was widely known as a dance instructor in this area at one time, decided to enter her present field when she was told of the lack of trained personnel.

Returning to college, she studied at the University of Idaho and received her bachelor of arts degree. She continued her studies at the University of Connecticut and was granted a master's degree in audiology, and speech pathology. She did clinical work at the Newtonington hospital for crippled children near Hartford, Conn.

In addition to her work at the seal center, she spends about three hours each week at the central city center.

"We figure that if a child has speech or hearing defects and for instance, is operating at 20 per cent of capacity when training could raise that to 35 or 40 per cent, then the time and effort is well worth it," Mrs. Pierce said.

In addition to Twin Falls, centers are located in Idaho Falls, Boise and Lewiston. The local office is serving children and adults from Goodying, Jessen

Kennedy's Birthday Time Is Here

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Biblically time is here again for President Kennedy's fast-growing children.

John, Jr., 12 years old Sunday and Caroline turns 8 on Nov. 27.

Looking back, it's been a year in which the President's little son learned to walk and to say a few things for himself. Daughter Caroline, with a newly issued diplomatic passport, went off on her first trip abroad and encountered public acclaim alongside her first lady mother.

The Kennedys had expected to celebrate the double birthdays at the family home—in Hyannis Port, Mass.—during the traditional Thanksgiving holiday gathering of the clan. But little John, reported having a slight cold, was left behind in the White House as his parents and sister departed for Cape Cod.

So the birthday party was put off until early next week when the family returns to the White House and John can join in.

U. N. delegates from 100 foreign nations have fanned most of the visitors to be law abiding and cooperative. But during the past 18 years, they have had their share of headaches.

Run-ins between U. N. delegates and police usually involve violations of New York's traffic laws which, baffle and annoy many motorists.

One delegate complained that his car with "DPL" plates had been towed, while an auto with ordinary plates parked illegally in front of his mission was left to stay in place philosophically, however.

"I guess it is an expression of the traditional American sentiment against a privileged class," he said.

Police gave a new interpretation to immunity last month when Karel Zizka, an attaché of the Czech embassy in the United Nations, shot his wife to death in the mission and fled. The "police" closed in on his speeding car near Exton, Pa. he wrecked it, then shot himself.

Police first announced they planned no action since the killing occurred on Czech territory. But when the driver's wounds they ordered an autopsy on his body, arguing that immunity ended in death.

San Francisco Bank With No Doors Is Feature of Bay Area Financial World

Every business day, San Francisco Federal's air door will be in use, permitting customers to pass through the 10-foot wide, six-foot deep specially processed aluminum air without opening conventional doors.

Fences Not Adequate to Keep Public From Dumping Garbage on Rifle Range

knocked over four posts and encircled the posted land to dump their garbage. All this happened some 20 feet from a rifle range in the fence. There were those who obeyed the sign and simply dumped their garbage on the roadway.

According to regulations, Fuller can't turn cattle onto the land until it is fenced and the fence is at least 30 feet from the site.

Whenever they see the sign that this is a dump range, "It's been a thing since 1900 at least."

Each of the dirt fill used to complete Carter's dump over Rock creek came from this area.

Fuller realizes land enforcement of the law and regulations is going to win him any friends.

"They get pretty irritated when I make them load it here, and tell them to haul it away," says Fuller. "They don't realize that I have to get rid of it if they don't."

As present Fuller has a tractor and plow working on the land to clear the asparagus. Fuller also has a bulldozer on the land clearing and covering the refuse as fast as he can. There are days when he wonders if he is making any progress.

Fuller said in a letter addressed to Richard E. Berlin, president of the Hearsat corporation, and published in the New York Journal-American:

"We have just successfully completed the first sea trials of the 'USS Thomas Jefferson,' our 10th Polaris-type nuclear-powered submarine."

"With this ship we have the capability of launching 100 missiles from submerged platforms whose whereabouts are not known to the submarines."

"The 'USS Jefferson' speaks louder than words. As long as it exists a powerful engine keeps that the United States will be attacked if the attack of the United States."

Reasons for the adventure from the viewpoint of Peeking.

For one thing, they are flexing their muscles demonstrating that they are the power in Asia. For another, the state of the Chinese economy and its internal problems probably require some sort of aggression movement, provide excuses for internal policies.

Possibly, the Red Chinese never meant the action against the Indians to go beyond the general area of the disputed frontier. But if Peking's cease-fire falls through the border conflict could well grow into something much worse.

Experts Say Americans Are Hoodwinked by Food Fads

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Good nutrition is not a high-wire act "with disaster on either side," actually a broad sidewalk—maybe even a highway. Unless you're sick or suffering from the emotional stresses there's not much chance of stumbling over the curb into bad health.

Yet many Americans try desperately to walk a narrow center line. Others, seeking health insurance, swallow innumerable vitamin pills and kindred products. Food fads sweep the United States. Vitamin makers sell an estimated 400 million dollars of their wares each year.

Both the U. S. food and drug administration and the American Medical Association say Americans are being overpaid on vitamin and mineral pills—and just plain hoodwinked on the new generation of exotic health foods.

They point to a kitchen survey of U. S. diet, made by the department of agriculture in 1955 and to often-referenced recommended allowance set by the food and nutrition board of the National Academy of Sciences.

The experts insist that good nutrition is easy to obtain at the dinner table—and wouldn't be impossible to avoid.

Vitamins and minerals are the subtle benefactors in the transactions of life—the millions and millions of tiny drags that daily keep your body in business. You need them to cash in on the currency of life—the protein, fat and carbohydrates that are turned into body tissue and energy.

Some essentials are added to staple foods, to insure that Americans get enough of them. Bread and flour and other products are enriched with vitamins—two of which were lost in food processing. B vitamins and iron are added to breakfast cereals. Vitamin D is added to milk, mostly for children. Vitamin A is added to margarine and iodine is added to table salt. Fluorine is added to water.

They have the endorsement of both the National academy's food and nutrition board and the ASA's council on food and nutrition.

A vitamin is deemed necessary by experts when its lack in diet causes disease.

Not enough vitamin C can cause bleeding, scurvy and other weakening of the body's soft tissues—the gums for instance. Not enough vitamin D can cause the deformed bones of rickets in children. Not enough vitamin B1 (Thiamine) can cause mental, nerve, skin and other symptoms, collectively called pellagra. Not enough vitamin A can strike the bones and vision.

Generally these deficiencies are rare in the United States—occurring among deprived families or some old people who live alone and neglect themselves, or among alcoholics who forget to eat.

Just as vitamin deficiencies can cause disease, too much of a vitamin can also cause disease, and in rare cases, it does. Too much vitamin D can cause loss of appetite, nausea, headache, frequent and heavy urination. These symptoms are most often seen in children, but only rarely.

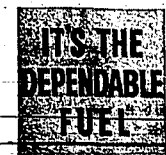

Adults don't need extra vitamin D. They get all they need—produced in their own body tissue—when they are exposed to sunlight. Growing children get a rapidly building skeleton—need heavier doses of vitamin D.

The American Medical association estimates that there are some 10 million Americans who buy so-called wonder foods—and 500 million dollars a year is spent on mixtures of vitamins.

SURROUNDED BY HISTORY, two fifth grade students listen as Mrs. Merritt Showell, teacher, reads from an old Bible. The articles and setting are part of a colonial times exhibit featured in the school library. Teachers admit some articles displayed by the students have more of a western than colonial bias.

ground, but nevertheless they are similar to the early American objects. Linda Watson, in jacket, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Watson, and Jerry Call, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Call, are the students. All fifth grade students participated. (Times-News photo)

Colonial Era Articles Displayed as Part of Study Program in City School

Colonial life might be centuries past, but students at Morning-side school in Twin Falls at least will get some idea what it was like.

Missionary Will Speak at Filer

FILER, Nov. 24—Mildred Eichberger, missionary Bible teacher in the Amazon valley of Brazil, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Filer East Mennonite church.

Miss Eichberger is a native of Broken Bow, Neb. She studied at Cochen college, Cochen, Ind. and served two years on the staff of Western Mennonite school at Salem, Ore., prior to entering mission service. The public is invited.

Maneuvers Set

SEOUL, South Korea, Nov. 24—The U. N. command announced Friday it will hold maneuvers throughout South Korea Dec. 9-12 to measure combat readiness in case of renewed hostilities by communist aggressors. U. S. and Korean units will take part.

This idea comes as a result of an exhibit placed in the school library by fifth grade pupils under direction of their instructor, Mrs. Merritt Showell. Mrs. Oscar Hellewell and Mrs. Isabelle Miller.

Many of the items—or similar ones—used in colonial days are on display, all contributed through cooperation of the parents of the children involved. These items range from guns to bottles.

Mrs. Showell explained that such an exhibit is helpful to the students, in that they can compare them with objects in use at the present time.

Actually, she said, some of the colonial items displayed have more of a "western history" than colonial. "Laying as we do in the west, it is hard to obtain authentic colonial items but similar ones get the idea across just as well," Mrs. Showell said. Students are participating in the project as part of their colonial studies assignments.

Last Honor Paid To Ike Bennett

KEMMERLY, Nov. 24—Funeral services for Ike M. Bennett were held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Twin Falls mortuary chapel with the Rev. Riley McCall officiating. Solists was Mrs. David Reed and Mrs. Helen Allen was organist. Active pallbearers were Kermitt Gunter, Artel Alcott, Wayne Walker, Sherman Mullins, Daryl McVey and Zan Adelt. Honorary pallbearers were Orville Denny, George Cunningham, Byron Blunder, Walter Slaughter, S. Audrey Graham and Ernie Buckley. Concluding rites were held at Sunset Memorial park.

Moslems Flee

PARIS, Nov. 24—An Algerian Moslem are fleeing their home country for France in unprecedented numbers looking for jobs, the ministry of labor reports. It reported 2,257 Moslems arrived in France last month then departed for home.

PUNISHMENT WAS PUNISHMENT back in Colonial days and Grayson Carson, in a familiar talk, while hat of that far away day, and James Salisbury, caught in the stocks, show why. Both are students at Morning-side school in Twin Falls where fifth grade students prepared an exhibit of colonial life in the library. Young Carson, who made a large stock for the exhibit, done the duce up (just for fun, of course) while Salisbury looks concerned, also just for fun. Grayson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland M. Carson, while James is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Salisbury. (Times-News photo)

Powder Room Strike Settled

LONDON, Nov. 24—Two hundred women workers who struck when they discovered a check was being made out of their powder room visit were back on their job Friday having reached a compromise with their employer.

The workers, most of them under 26, walked out of their factory Wednesday. They objected to supervisor Harriet Graham taking their names every time they went to the rest room.

Mrs. Graham was assigned to a post outside the powder room. She reported too much time was being spent in the girls' room. "Her investigation," he said, showed that within a space of four hours, 500 trips were made to the ladies room and that each girl spent an average of 70.7 minutes there.

The management said that in the future, smoking would be allowed at the work bench. Their part, the girls promised to wash their stockings in the powder room, nor give as to other permanent wares there and wash their hair.
