Wheat Sales Hit Snag in Freight Rate

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—U.S. officials sought today to resolve a shipping snag which could prevent a large amount of wheat to the Soviet Union and other communist countries of Europe.

The obstacle is that freight rates on U.S. ships are higher than those charged by other nations in international trade.

U.S. officials left the impression that no insurmountable obstacle has arisen and that some deal of the sales might go through as planned if the communist countries still are not ready to make purchases.

One informed source said a proposed sale of about 200,000 tons of wheat to Hungary by the U.S. is being upped on U.S. grain traders. But officials here indicated that extraordinary efforts were being made to work experts who have advised the negotiations said they have been informed that the U.S. government has authorized special deals on the Hungarian deal and that it might still be consummated.

There is a difference of about $1 a ton between international rates and those charged on U.S. exports to Black sea ports. President Kennedy in clearing the way for such sales specified that the U.S. government would pay the difference.

U.S. officials here said they are available, meanwhile, some uncertainty greeted about a Soviet wheat purchase mission which was supposed to have left Moscow on Tuesday to discuss wheat transactions. A U.S. department official said today that visas have been issued for an unannounced number of mission members but the understanding here is that one of the head men in the group had been taken ill and that the trip has been delayed at that reason.

Relations of Viet Nam, U.S. More Chilled

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Ngo Dinh Nhu's tart criticism of the Kennedy administration appears to have chilled relations between the U.S. and the Viet Nam governments.

Nhu's officials directly contacted with South Viet Nam officials in a bid for reconciliation in the immediate future with the 2 1/2 year regime headed by President Ngo Dinh Diem, Mrs. Nhu's niece-in-law.

In her part, the outspoken Kennedy first lady has decried her appearance in the Viet States as "like walking a tightrope without a net."

She made an obvious boycott by 23 prominent officials, Mrs. Kennedy's officials of the Kennedy administration — "I do not know precisely who" — of coming "treason" by cutting off fuel and other supplies to the country in the midst of its war against pro-communist forces.

Washington officials, a week ago the charges, said a foreign aid directive issued last July cut off such supplies to the country but they would have to buy petroleum supplies with their own resources.

37 Hurt as Train Slams Into Freight

WILLOW SPRINGS, Ill., Oct. 19 (AP)—The Santa Fe Chief, crack passenger train bound for California, slammed into a freight train north of Willow Springs today.

Thirty-seven passengers and crew members were injured as five diesel units and five mail and passenger cars left the track and rolled upright. Five cars of the 100-car freight also were derailed.

A dozen or more ambulances from surrounding communities took all but four were treated and released, Robert Breeze, 60, Port Madison, Ill., engineer of the passenger train, and three women passengers were hospitalized for further treatment.

The crash, 25 miles west of Chicago, occurred as the long eastbound freight, using the same tracks as the Chief, was pulling onto a siding to let the passenger train pass.

Witnesses said the 17-car passenger train, moving slowly, crossed into the freight just behind the locomotive with a shattering impact that hurled passengers from their seats.

The accident occurred shortly after the train left Chicago for Los Angeles with 271 passengers aboard. Railroad officials said it appeared a mix-up of signals was responsible for the crash.

No one included in U.S. aid to South Viet Nam.

However, the officials said that supplies, oil and other business needed for military purposes are still flowing to Viet Nam and have not been stopped.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 19 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury C. Douglas Dillon said today he had found strong support for President Kennedy's 1 1/2 billion dollar tax cut bill in sessions here with the business council which includes top leaders of the industrial world.

Dillon urged the politically influential council to throw its weight behind the measure. He told members later: "I think there is very real support for the bill."

He added that with both labor and business promoting the legislation, he was certain it would be passed. But the big question was still when.

"It's just a case of getting it through as rapidly as possible," Dillon said.

Dillon was among the principal speakers during the two-day meeting. The council is an advisory group to the government and includes many corporation presidents. None of its recommendations are binding but they are weighed carefully in forming government policy.

The secretary was part of a contingent of administration speakers who were trying to drum up business support to get the tax legislation through congress this year. Some of the speakers placed varying emphasis on the possibility of a re-election next year if the bill is enacted.

President Kennedy himself has issued such warnings.

GOLDWATER

United States policy in Latin America is now little more than a sham. The Alliance for Progress, with all its grandiose aims of bringing about a new social, economic and political reformation in the western hemisphere, there, might as well not exist. Just the same, the Alliance has taken place in the Latin American countries since the first of the year. Four governments have been overthrown in military coups. The present in the Dominican Republic, Honduras, earlier coups were engineers in Ecuador and Guatemala.

Barry Goldwater

In none of these places did the United States have any military involvement. And an important factor to overlook in this situation is that the obvious fact that in some seven months the Alliance for Progress has failed to prevent communist takeovers. No matter how hard the administration attempts to claim that it has isolated Cuba and neutralized Castroism in Latin America, the fact remains that the Alliance has failed to prevent communist takeovers in the western hemisphere. The result of Castro's successful communist coup in Cuba and the Alliance's failure to prevent establishing a military state 500 miles off the coast of Florida. Even the New Frontier's staunch supporters are finding it difficult to explain the fast-moving events in Latin America. For example, the perhaps the Alliance's most important supporter of the Kennedy administration to be found in this country is the New York Times. The helpless-looking posture of the United States in Cuba, from far and near, in actual fact, started a chain reaction of usur-

NOT A PERFECT WORLD—Recently there has been considerable talk in that area, and the deal with Spain is some measure of reassurance to the U.S. with Charley de Gaulle acting in Morocco and Algeria in ferment and Italian can be a solid anchor in Spain. Enviably Record

Most cities in the northern tier of states will enjoy the record set in the past few days by weather. Twin Falls now has a new record for the first freezing temperature and each passing day adds to that record.

This fall is in sharp contrast to what happened last year. Bean growers will remember too well the first killing frost of autumn on Sept. 8 last year, ending the growing season for many crops.

Last spring when weather conditions were anything but conducive to plant growth, farmers and others were certain crops would never mature.

What the future holds is anyone's guess. It's interesting to note the trained technicians have issued an outlook (not a forecast) for the month of November.

Some self-styled weather experts, who have no scientific approach, have their own ideas, to which they are entitled.

One bit of weather that can be predicted now with utmost accuracy is that one of these fine mornings frost will have thickened flowers, tomato plants and any other growth that may be continuing.

Every Idahoan should have a new bill in congress to prohibit the use of the "Grown in Idaho" label on potatoes not grown in this state.

Another development of equal importance is a machine and dye that apparently will make it feasible to stamp "Idaho" on every potato grown in the state.

Idaho has too much at stake to lower the quality of its potatoes. Likewise, the Idaho label would mean a good deal of value if Idahoans were to stand idly by while federal average and marketing regulations are rolled out on the public.

Idaho growers have spent years and many thousands of dollars through the complex committee of the superior quality and distinctive Idaho potato.

Who Recovers From Flu at Williamsburg

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Oct. 19 (AP)—The title of Yugoslavia, president Tito of Yugoslavia, made his first public appearance today since being laid to rest in the Yugoslav capital on Thursday night.

The 71-year-old communist leader said he had no intention of leaving his bed until he had recovered from the illness that he had contracted around the 18th of September when he had been hospitalized in Belgrade.

He said he would soon be able to go to his second visit to the United States. Tito came to Williamsburg from his second floor apartment about 1 p.m. He came alone and carried briefcases with him. He was accompanied by a nurse and a doctor.

He was seen by photographers for about 2 p.m. Tito said he hoped to take a walk through the streets of this colonial city.

He was seen by photographers outside the home and watching the West Virginia-Pittsburgh football game on television.

His wife, and the official interpreter of about 50 arrived there about 6 p.m. He spent the evening in Washington on Thursday with President Kennedy and returned to his home at 8 p.m.

Yesterday night, his temperature rose to 102 degrees.

Chief of the Middle Duke, chief of the U.S. state department, said it had been expected when the Yugoslav president was in Washington.

criticism of Williams Now

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—Secretary of State Arnold Williams, target of a "show me" campaign because of a charge that he is a Communist, said today that he doesn't object to similar charges against his government.

Williams said he still is in the U.S. He said he will be taking a two-week trip to Japan.

The Republican Chairman of the Senate, J. Edgar Hoover, said that he was leaving today with Williams for a week at the secretary of state's conference in Chicago.

Williams now is in the other room and is traveling to Chicago.

Williams, referring to his earlier criticism of the Soviet Union, said that he didn't really differ from the two trips that I can make to Moscow.

Williams said he is being held in the context of the state department and the state department and Mr. Williams' trip to Moscow was leaving today with Williams for a week at the secretary of state's conference in Chicago.

Chances for Tax Cut Are Getting Slim

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—The chances for enactment this year of President Kennedy's 11-billion-dollar tax cut appeared slim today as the House of Representatives moved the first week of Senate hearings.

Sen. Russell B. Long, of Louisiana, No. 2 Democrat on the finance committee, had this comment on the opening four days of testimony:

"Let's not kid ourselves. Not even an ounce of effort has been shown so far to move this bill this year."

Long told a reporter he found the questioning of the first and only witness heard last week, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, "very loud and redundant."

Sen. George A. Smathers of Florida, No. 2 Democrat on the committee and also a supporter of the bill, said in an interview the "first week that has been shown but that he was hopeful the pace could be speeded up drastically."

Sen. Albert Gore, D., Texas, an ally of the bill, found the opening sessions enlightening and said many more are needed.

"The actual contents of this bill are now being debated contrary to the debate in the House," he said. "The main bill is looked at in detail, the less enthusiasm there is for it even among its supporters."

Terrorists Bomb Studio In Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela, Oct. 19 (AP)—Pro-Castro terrorists bombed an American-owned motion picture studio in Downtown Caracas today. A 14-year-old girl was killed by the blast.

One woman terrorist was injured in the explosion and two other persons were reported hurt. First reports put the damage to the bombed building, one of the city's biggest, at nearly half a million dollars.

The blast was set off in the offices and warehouse of Columbia Pictures of Venezuela in the Polar building, situated on a main plaza 300 yards from University City, a stronghold of communist strength and a known refuge for pro-Castro terrorists.

At least two of the attackers were believed to have been women, a number of whom are members of the Communist National Education armed forces (Fuerzas Armadas) which supports Cuba Premier Fidel Castro.

The bombers painted Palm Shogun in red letters on both walls of the corridor leading to the Columbia offices in the basement of the 20-story Polar building.

Pornography Influence Is Aired at Meet

CHICAGO, Oct. 19 (AP)—Doctors must scientifically research sex crimes and anti-social behavior to determine the relationship of such acts to pornography, Dr. Donald Gartman, chairman of the national convention of Citizens for Decent Literature said today.

He said doctors have not spoken out vigorously enough against unproven scientific conclusions that allegedly prove sex crime and perversion are not related to pornography literature and films.

Delegates from 200 of the 300 DCL units in the nation are attending the two-day convention.

Gartman said few surveys have done more than ask if obscene material had a bad effect on the person interviewed. He compared these surveys with asking a child with a fever of 102 degrees if he had the measles.

New CHEVELLE!
by Chevrolet

New Chevrolet Malibu Sport Coupe (foreground) with Malibu Super Sport Convertible

Only this could come between Chevrolet and Chevy II. The Chevelle is a highly polished car on a trim 115-inch wheelbase. With its weight down in the 3,000-pound range. All of which makes it a sweet-handling, easy-to-innovate automobile.

But it's really not really in the kind of ride you'd expect in a higher car. And it's styled with a lively grace and refinements that the curved side window and pillars, for example, that make its modest price all the more remarkable.

A neat trick? We agree. But not so difficult really when you have the skills of renowned Body by Fisher craftsmen to draw upon.

And the advantage of Full Coil suspension developed by the same engineering talent that came up with the Jet-smooth Chevrolet's ride. And that irreplaceable Chevrolet spirit in a choice of four engines—V8 or 6—including optional extra-cost versions all the way up to 230 hp.

Small wonder this one turned out the way it did. Did you say new? Actually there are 11 models—vansons, sedans, sport coupes, convertibles—in three series.

Even more cars that have been around for quite a long time don't give you a choice like that.

Sound like something you ought to check into further? Consider this invitation for a real head-rubbing, door-planning, seat-bouncing, wheel-turning time of it at your Chevrolet dealer.

Opera "Madame Butterfly" Scheduled Here for Nov. 2

by MRS. MARSHALL LEBARON
The Twin Falls Opera Company is proud to announce the presentation of "Madame Butterfly" at the home of the opera. This production is the result of the hard work and dedication of the company members.

To complete the scene, the opera house will be decorated with flowers and lanterns. The production is a masterpiece of Japanese opera and will be performed in English.

Over the years, the opera house has become a landmark in Twin Falls. The production of "Madame Butterfly" is a testament to the company's commitment to the arts.

Some one said, "To really enjoy an opera, you must listen with your eyes and ears and not with your ears alone." This production is a feast for the senses.

When Puccini first saw the opera upon which the opera is based, he was struck by how much more dramatic the death scene could be made with the proper music.

Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" is a masterpiece of opera. It tells the story of a young Japanese girl who falls in love with an American sailor.

The opera is performed by a talented cast of singers and musicians. The production is a true work of art that will captivate the audience.

Idaho Joins 14 States Over Issue

BOISE, Oct. 19 (AP)—Idaho has joined 14 other states in urging the United States supreme court to take the question of reapportionment of state legislatures to the states.

Gen. Allan G. Shepard said today that the 15 states are acting in concert to get the court to decide that the reapportionment question is a matter for the people and not the courts.

Shepard supports the state of Maryland in an appeal of a decision of the Maryland court of appeals which held that the state of Maryland had no right to sue to force the reapportionment of its legislature.

Shepard said the Maryland case is scheduled for argument before the high court in November.

Changes Are Outlined on U. S. Forces

CHICAGO, Oct. 19 (AP)—Defense Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatrick said tonight changes he has in mind for the size and disposition of U.S. forces overseas.

He commented this with development of a capacity for massive and rapid shifts from the United States, mentioning the huge "Operation Big Lift" of a whole army division to Europe this week. This will be the broadest test yet of the new swift deployment technique.

Gilpatrick did not suggest a time when changes in the overseas forces might come about, but the choice of words suggested it might not be in the near future.

The defense department has insisted for months that no drastic cuts in combat strength of the six divisions and air units in Western Europe are scheduled, although noncombat support and supply forces have been trimmed.

Here is the way Gilpatrick prepared the matter in a speech prepared for the annual conference of United Press International editors and publishers:

"There has ahead of the U.S. military establishment a series of evolutionary changes in the composition and disposition of its military units stationed overseas. For years the United States has backed up the protection of its vital interests and its alliance commitments by keeping in large proportion of its active forces—over a million individuals including dependents—on duty abroad.

Influence of Kingmakers Hit in GOP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—A national Republican organization has lost their touch and will have little influence on the choice of a 1964 presidential candidate.

This is by way of saying that Goldwater and his friends do not have the support of the GOP in the contest for a nomination that will yet be on record as being in favor of Goldwater's associates, the power of the Eastern States Democrats who have been active in putting across their choice of a nominee since 1940 has been diffused.

They doubt the effectiveness of the party organization, Thomas E. Dewey of New York, former U.S. Sen. Herbert Brownell, former National Security Council member, and others as candidates for any would-be kingmaker.

Quite simply they say, a whole generation of Republicans has come into power since these two welded heavy influence within the party organization.

The Goldwater people are counting on support from young Republicans, who were in their prime when Dewey was running twice for president, but there has been personal contacts with Goldwater in his election campaign of the country in the last few years.

Beyond that, the party leaders who have been relegated by time to an Old Guard status can't seem to agree among themselves on a candidate to oppose Goldwater.

He said the workshops are designed to aid laymen in their stewardship responsibilities.

There are many other fine boys doing a good job and it is with deep regret that we are unable to mention the name of one of the best sources of developing character, learning responsibility, the importance of service, the value of money and meeting the public.

Work Starts Monday at NRTS Plant

IDAHO FALLS, Oct. 19 (AP)—Work will resume Monday on all projects halted by a walkout of some 250 men at the national television plant after this week's strike.

"We have had enough contact with enough of the workers in our effort to get them back at the job to assure that work on all projects can proceed Monday," said Jim Fortner, business representative of the Southern Idaho Television Guild, local 1000, trade union.

The craftsmen walked off their jobs Wednesday and Thursday in an apparent indication of displeasure that work on two experimental sets is not being resumed.

Corporate Profits and Auto Production Pep up Economy

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—Soaring corporate profits and a dizzy pace in automobile output, and sales signaled new pep in the economy today, analysts said. A rising flood of reports on July-September business earnings pointed to a new pep for the economy. The comfortably above the 208-billion dollar annual rate checked up in the April-June period. Automakers plunged ahead with plans to assemble over 800,000 cars in October, a record for the month. Three assembly plants worked on Saturday last week. TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1963

Vocational Training Is Offered by Army Reserve

After this year an election for junior college in Twin Falls seems to have nothing at all in common with the change in status for the army reserve unit. However, the new quartermaster unit (company 11, 372nd quartermaster battalion) opened the way for young men to Magic Valley to have training in several vocational courses—training which eventually in 1964 will be available at a junior college.

A couple of instances, to point out some of the training available in schools for army reservists, are the courses chosen recently by two new recruits—Ralph Reinke, 29, route 3, Twin Falls, and Glenn W. Buscher, also 29, route 1, Hansen. Both men had their choice of several courses in fields of training which can be used in civilian occupations. After completing their basic training and their vocational training, they will return to the Twin Falls unit and will be able to use their training locally.

Reinke will attend a 13-week heavy equipment repair school at Ft. Lee, Va. He'll learn installation, repair and adjustment of special equipment, which the reserve unit eventually will obtain.

Maj. Harlan Mayer, local army reserve unit adviser, noted recently that Reinke could have chosen a shorter, eight-week course but decided to enroll in the longer course, which offered more detailed instruction. Employed as a farmer, Reinke will be able to use the training in maintenance and repair of farm equipment.

Buscher will attend a 20-week

Buckskin Billy Prefers Life in Gem Wilderness

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
FIVE MILE CREEK, Ida., Oct. 19 (AP)—The age of hypertension holds no terror for Simon Gouffier Buckingham, Sylvan Ambrose Hart, otherwise known as Buckskin Billy.

Buckskin has been retired longer than most people have been working.

At the age of 25 he renounced his career as a petroleum engineer to live as simply as he could in the most primitive region he could find.

"I headed as to where was the wildest, the most desolate, the most inaccessible part of the country, and they told me the Salmon river canyon," said Billy, stroking his long flowing beard and settling back in his rocking chair made of congar hide stretched over elk antler runners.

"So I came here and began learning about myself. That's what the country teaches you. It teaches you how to live with yourself. There are no fire people in the wilderness, and no other things either save your own."

Now 57, Buckskin lives in a mile-deep canyon at the edge of the wild rushing Salmon river in a pink clay cabin with a tin corrugated roof, deer antlers for door knobs and a book-lined bedroom with a bay window fashioned from the planks of a crashed B-17 bomber. Almost any morning, he can see elk and moose, Rocky Mountain sheep and big black bears ranging to his vegetable garden.

Buckskin stoutly insists that he is not a hermit, but his nearest neighbor is five miles down river, the nearest town 50 miles over the mountains. He cooks his meals himself, sits in lawn chairs over an open fire, dresses and preserves the game that abounds at his doorstep and once a year, in the fall, flies to town to replenish the tea and sugar. From the rafters of his cabin hang white cotton sacks full of dried elk meat, reared Mexican beans and ground corn meal.

Buckskin yearns for the days of a wild when men could live off the land with only their strength and ingenuity to support them. He earned his technique from the Indians, and the same thing he loves to wear, along with other period piece garments, such as an antlered cap, moccasins, beaded leggings and a shirt with the faded outline of a Civil War Zouave.

Born in the Oklahoma Indian Territory and educated at the University of Oklahoma, which gave him a B.A. degree, Buckskin came to the wilderness because his father did the same thing years ago in the Creek Indian country.

"It's been a tradition in our family to go to the back woods to seek your identity. People are in a rut. They don't develop their abilities."

Buckskin doesn't think he has wasted his educational opportunities. He thinks he has a third house and given that purpose.

An avid reader whose paper-back library includes Dante, Rablath, Jackson, Thackeray, and all the works of Winston Churchill, Buckskin believes that good literature and films can afford the imagination to lead in hand. "If

Buhl Youngster Abandons Hobbies While Patient at Local Hospital

By G. H. CHAMBERS

The party turned out to be a tragic episode for Vicky. Vicky Marie, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Maehl, Buhl, can go back to riding horses and helping her father with farm chores.

The Buhl farm girl was badly burned some time ago and is now going about the difficult task of recovering from those burns. She received first, second and third degree burns on her face, lips and left arm when a grass skirt she was wearing at Blue Bird "Hawaiian party" caught fire.

The party turned out to be a tragic episode for Vicky. She knows that one of these days she'll be back on top of a horse, going to do when her hospital stay is over is "go down to Beth Hill's and ride a horse."

She is a determined girl—determined that she will be back on the farm, better than ever.

Her parents have maintained an almost constant visit in the hospital. Usually her mother can be found near her bedside every day.

As the end of the day approaches, mother has other children and other chores. Her father then spends most of his evenings with Vicky. For a short period out of the day she is joined by both parents.

The episode points out one thing. In any incident a person cannot be too safe. The overly cautious person might be a bit aggravating, but when one considers Vicky's situation, the cautious approach has to be appreciated.

TALKING TO HER daughter is Mrs. Earl Maehl, left, Buhl, Mrs. Maehl is a regular visitor at Magic Valley Memorial hospital since her daughter, Vicky, was admitted with first, second and third degree burns received as the result of a mishap with fire at a Blue Bird party. It was difficult for the youngster to get her hair washed and pressed up for the photographer. The little came here as the girl has considerable "agonie" and wants to get out on the can go horseback riding. (Times-News photo)

MRS. HAROLD LaCROIX, Gooding, and her 10-year-old daughter, Cindi, are shown admiring the picture which won Mrs. LaCroix the honor of being voted best of show at the art exhibit for the Gooding county fair this year. This was the first time such an award has been given. Not available at the time of the picture was "Sweetie Pie," the other subject in the picture. Being a temperamental cat, she was out at the time. Life in MAGIC VALLEY

In honor of being the first winner of the best of show title for the GOODING county fair exhibit went this year to Mrs. Harold LaCroix for her painting, "Cindi and Sweetie Pie." The picture, which was chosen by the popular vote of persons attending the art exhibit, is of Mrs. LaCroix's 10-year-old daughter and their cat. People visiting the art exhibit were asked to vote for their favorite picture either by name or number, and after the close of the fair, the votes were counted with "Cindi" coming in first. Much favorable comments first. Many favorable comments were heard about this picture and the many others, which made the exhibit this year one of the most outstanding ever featured.

Mrs. LaCroix said she began oil-painting when she was a freshman in high school, then didn't work at it for several years after her marriage and birth of her three children.

Then, about three years ago, when Cindi, subject of the picture, was confined to bed with rheumatoid fever, she began again, and has been painting quite a lot since.

This year, she exhibited five oil paintings at the fair, and two pen and ink drawings, one of which won a blue ribbon.

Six four-footed deer hunters gave five RICHFIELD and CAREY boys some high adventure last week. The youths, in two separate parties, were fishing about a mile above the Fish Creek dam when they kept hearing odd sounds.

The Richfield youths, Kenneth Patterson, 12, and Johnny Paulson, 11, together with Patterson's cousin, Rusty Baird, 11, Carey, trying at first that something was nearby, then that something was strange.

Suddenly some weird screams close by galvanized the three into action. They raced to a parking lot where they had seen the car. En route to the creek, the boys and their parents were nearby, then that something was strange.

As Johnny Paulson described the scene, a mother also died and four baby bobcats were deer hunting. Four deer burst out of the brush followed by the howling, screaming bobcats.

The night and sounds were

Editor Feels Ideas Need Integration

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—Ideas, as well as schools, need to be integrated, says Mrs. Margaret Friskey, author and editor of books for children.

As editor-in-chief of Childrens Press in Chicago, Mrs. Friskey is convinced that children's literature should be representative of life in America and, therefore, depict all races and creeds "in a natural way."

Although her own publishing house has been a pioneer in this field, she concedes that "none of us in the children's book publishing industry has gone enough along this line."

She says it is the "responsibility of editors working on books for children to make a contribution in this direction."

Mrs. Friskey is quick to point out that illustrations depicting Negro and white children at play should be quite natural. An illustration of a classroom scene, for instance, should show children of all races and backgrounds, she feels.

She feels there's a need for more realism in books for children. "Not everyone in America lives in a vine covered cottage with a white picket fence surrounded by green grass," Mrs. Friskey explains. "Therefore, why should illustrated books for children portray this concept if it is not universal?"

She points out that many first and second graders are familiar with surroundings vastly different from those that they see in the books given them to read at school. Mrs. Friskey feels that it is up to authors and editors to strive for more realism.

The author of 20 books herself, Mrs. Friskey points out that the concept of realism in books for children is accepted by both educators and librarians. Some of Mrs. Friskey's books, such as "Chicken Little 'Go-Ten,'" have sold as many as 100,000 copies.

Out behind the cabin, Buckskin promptly displayed his bomb-shells, a "den cave" under a huge boulder where he occasionally goes to all and read on his days. "I know this is going to be a career area, but I got to see a good sample for the rest of the job as I built myself a shelter."

On most days, Buckskin gets up at dawn, works at his gun or in his garden until noon, spends the rest of the day loafing or receiving visitors. If there are any, and returns about 8 o'clock after an hour or two of reading by lantern light. Sometimes in winter he goes for months, without seeing a soul, which doesn't really bother him.

"People," he explained, "bring germs. I'm not sick very often because there are seldom people around. Mail brings germs, too. You have to be very careful opening your mail."

Buckskin neither smokes nor drinks, but he does fortify himself against people's germs with a full tablespoon of 150 proof rum in a glass of spring water on summer mornings when rat parties are apt to come down the river on rubber boats and drop in for a visit.

Buckskin's parting advice to a city fellow heading back to the snarl of civilization: "Watch yourself in New York. It's a very dangerous place to be in. You might get run down by an automobile—if people and their germs don't get you first."

Stamp Window

By DAVID SWIFT

A powerful new showing from Houston in the prime of life has been picked as the design of the 5-cent U. S. stamp to be issued at Houston on Dec. 13 honoring the great Texan.

The vertical format stamp, designed by Texas artist Tom Lea, shows the first president of the Republic of Texas standing with rifle in a heroic full-length pose. A shotgun and powder flask hang his frack coat, and a facial expression under an early Texas hat is stern and forceful.

A facsimile of Houston's signature appears at the bottom of the stamp, which will be printed in black or white paper, in sheets of 50, with a quantity of 120 million.

Houston, born in 1793 was commander of the army which won Texas' independence from Mexico by defeating Santa Anna at San Jacinto. In addition to serving two terms as president of the republic, he later was a senator from the new state and also its governor.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, with payment for the stamps, to the Postmaster, Houston, Tex. The order envelope should be marked "First Day Covers, Houston Stamp," and be postmarked by Dec. 13.

Santa Claus, Indiana, has been chosen as the first-day city for the 5-cent Christmas stamp to be released Nov. 1. The village, with a population of 35 to 50, has been postmarking about three million Christmas cards each holiday season in recent years. Collectors desiring first-day covers of the new stamp, which shows the national Christmas tree near the White House in Washington, may send addressed envelopes to the Santa Claus postmaster, with payment for the stamps. The order envelope should be marked "First Day Covers, Christmas Stamp," and be postmarked by Nov. 1.

NEW ISSUES: The Netherlands Antilles plans five semi-postals, featuring art work by school children in the third through sixth grades, for the benefit of the Antillean Youth federation. . . Pakistan released four stamps picturing notable archeological finds in the Asian subcontinent.

Turkey marked the Istanbul '63 international stamp exhibition with five stamps, each depicting a Turkish scene and a Turkish stamp, and an imperforate souvenir sheet with four of the stamps.

Western Samoa released four stamps to commemorate its independence. They bear the seal of the territory and portraits of the joint heads of state—H. H. Togiola, Tammesee Atafu and H. H. Malietoa Tanumafili II.

This column is a public service of the Society of Philatelic America, a non-profit group which has served stamp collectors for 84 years. Information on the society's membership benefits can be obtained from Mrs. P. W. Bredford, Robert Haughman, Box 1178-K, Liberal, Kansas, 67091. The volume of mail, however, prevents Mr. Haughman from answering general questions about stamps.

FINDING GEODES in a highway cut near the Nevada line on U.S. 93 is getting harder all the time. Rockhounds and collectors have almost stripped the cut bare. William Hodkins, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hodkins, tilts his hand at locating a few samples. Young Hodkins spends a large part of the summer on a ranch near Rogerson, and exploring the area is one of his pastimes. (Times-News photo)

Rockhounds Have Just About Picked Highway Embankment Clean of Geodes

ROGERS, Oct. 18—“Picking” is getting hard at the geode bed in a highway cut a few miles north of the Nevada line on U.S. 93.

During 1959 and 1961 the Idaho department of highways decided to reroute a section of highway through this stretch. The old road followed the natural topography of the area. The new route took a more direct line and, consequently, there are a few cuts and fills.

In one of these cuts, construction crews of the Duffey Reed Construction company bit through a geode bed. A geode is a small, round rock that is somewhat hollow.

Most of the geodes found throughout the world have a crystallized center around the hollowed part of the geode. The geodes found on the Nevada line are a little different. Basically they are composed of solidified volcanic mud, or lava, on the outside with an uncrystallized center. A small trace of uranium could be

Maryland Is Trying New Prison Plan

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19—An advertising salesman clears his desk at the end of the day. South of town, a construction worker borrows his employer's pickup truck for a six-mile drive.

A laborer in a nearby quarry telephones to say he will be late he must work overtime again. All three are serving prison sentences. They are participating in Maryland's new work release program for prisoners.

There are 19 prisoners—18 men and three women—taking part. They include a truck driver, farm hand, kitchen worker, laundry worker, nurse, a domestic, a construction worker and mechanic.

Their offenses include robbery, burglary, housebreaking, larceny, assault, domestic cases and fraud. The prisoners spend their nights in seven of Maryland's nine correctional institutions.

James W. Curran, commissioner of the Maryland department of correction, says the offenses of the participants, other than burglary, “they are only labels,” says Curran. “Most of the time there are extenuating circumstances.”

Only narcotics and sex offenders are excluded from the program.

The program began under a law introduced by Democratic State Sen. Edward O. Weant, Jr., and passed this year by the general assembly. The first participants arrived on the job July 1.

Only North Carolina has a similar statewide program, created in 1957, although Wisconsin authorizes local cities to operate their own work release program.

About 2,000 of Maryland's 5,000 prisoners are trusties and work each day, weather permitting, outside the prison. But they wear uniforms and are under supervision and guard.

It's a different story for the work release prisoner. He leaves the prison without supervision and wears whatever clothes are appropriate for the job. The ad man, for instance, changes into a suit.

Some walk to work. Others ride public buses. Sometimes the employer provides transportation.

“Our ultimate goal,” says acting director Frederick E. Terroni, “is to get the prisoner paroled.” He says the work release program “teaches the prisoners to accept and learn obligations.”

To be eligible, the prisoner can be serving a term of no longer than five years. Curran estimates that 50 per cent of the 4,000 prisoners committed each year fall into this category.

“Short-Change” Artists Fined

William Howard Denny, 20 and Larry Benjamin Smith, 22, both Yakima, Wash., were fined $100 and $24.25 costs each by Twin Falls Police Judge Dale J. Adamson for petit larceny.

They also are to pay back the $9 they took when they short-changed Andrew Magneff, Twin Falls, Sears, Roebuck and company, and the Idaho Department store. The two were in Twin Falls Wednesday and were arrested in Idaho Falls Thursday evening.

Local CAP Members Sponsor Special Pilot Course in Instrument Flight

Instructors and flight checkers donate their time and the only thing the instrument student must furnish is a plane with the required instruments.

Every year, records show, some pilots are killed because they got caught in weather. It is practically impossible to keep a plane in controllable flight when flying blind, without proper instruments or training.

Instructors also point out that an untrained pilot, in blind flying, is apt to panic. The course presented in Twin Falls is designed to teach enough instrument “know-how” to enable the flier to get out of the situation he got into, and without panic.

For instance, certain instrument flight maneuvers are now required before a pilot can gain a private or commercial license. In the case of the private flier, he is required to demonstrate six as was the sight of land, sun and sky once more when the “blinders” were removed.

The program here has resulted in a dozen pilots being graduated from the course and in another 15 in various processes of training from the approach to a climbing stall, to a pre-determined altitude; make shallow, descending turns at reduced power to a pre-determined altitude, and also keep the plane in straight and level flight.

Although this Times-News writer has not flown much in the last 10 years, he had flown actively for more than 20 years and had held a commercial ticket with instructor's rating.

But with a long-billed cap over the head which prevented noticing anything but the instruments, things changed rapidly. Hence, the instructions from Major Butts.

Even at that, the demonstration was worth it. Just to make things seem better, the Major contended the flight was a better one than some flown by certain pilots who flew regularly and that about three hours of practice with instrument flying the test probably could be easily passed.

This praise was appreciated. The program here has resulted in a dozen pilots being graduated from the course and in another 15 in various processes of training from the approach to a climbing stall, to a pre-determined altitude; make shallow, descending turns at reduced power to a pre-determined altitude, and is proving a aid to night flying. It gives the pilot the knowledge that he can have positive control of the aircraft in an emergency.

One thing it is doing is convincing pilots who have never had the practical training that they need the practice,” Major Butts said. This same conclusion has been reached by Masoner, who gives free instructions, and Orval (Matt) Mathiesen, chief pilot for Reeder Flying service, who, as FAA examiner, gives the final check rides.

Key instrument in the program is the gyro-horizon, or artificial horizon, which indicates to the flier the altitude of the plane in flight. Four other instruments come in for scanning during “blind” flight, the directional gyro, the altimeter and the turn and bank indicator and the wing leveler.

The course at the CAP headquarters at Joella field will be completed sometime during November. Next spring it is anticipated other courses will be set up, one probably at Burley, Minnville, this writer discovered that flying is like swimming. Once you learn you never forget. You might be a little hesitant and rusty, but you can get by in an emergency.

As for instrument flying, well, that's different. You have to be able to fly the instruments and your own senses (tell you otherwise), the query, “How did I do?” the major had the answer: “You got down, didn't you?”

If tax bills could be itemized—

Some items we'd pay with pleasure — for schools and roads, among others.

Some we'd pay with pride — veterans' hospitals for one.

Some grimly, for defense — and seeing it labeled in the billions, we'd demand it be wisely spent.

And some we would pay under protest, in anger, for money thrown down rat holes — to buy “friends” who proved enemies . . . to pay for “projects” that compete with taxpaying private enterprise . . . and to feed and clothe and protect millions of foreigners who then, if you please, “decide” whether they will side with capitalism or communism.

If our tax bills came itemized like this, we'd demand reduction by throwing our waste — the sound, safe way taxes can be cut. We all pay the tax bill, directly and in the price of everything we buy. Hadn't we better try to make sure we get value for our hard-earned dollars?

Sawtooth Forest Douglas Fir Seed Farm Near Hailey Is First in Idaho

HAILEY, Oct. 19 (Decision of Sawtooth forest officials to establish a Douglas fir "seed farm" is proving successful. The five-acre piece of ground, which will produce selected Douglas fir seeds, is located on Deer creek about 21 miles from Hailey. It is under the direction of John Combs, district ranger, who has supervised here. The forest service's special operation is that by providing for the best seeds obtainable, production in future years will result in more perfect trees. Six to seven acres, for example, a total of 307 of the best Douglas fir trees have been planted, while more than 7,000 have been cleared out of the area. A buffer zone has been established around the five-acre plot at the present time. Little or no brush remains on the plot, but this will be burned away this fall. The individual trees have been checked and numbered. They also have been tagged by a district ranger. The diameter of each tree has been measured and other data recorded. The trees will be maintained by the district ranger according to Combs. The first stage of fir seed can be expected every five to seven years. A second stage of the same kind should be completed in another eight to 10 years. The trees will be collected and stored in a special area, which will be a warm area, as a cone crop grows. When the cones pop open the seeds are cleaned. The number of seeds from 20 to 30 seeds from each cone.

These seeds are then sown in the forest service nursery at Lucky Peak dam, near Boise, where they are planted, and in two or three years the seedlings will be returned for planting in the area from which they started. This method is expected to assure a high rate of genetic selection of cones for seed, and, in the past, been more or less of a hit and miss proposition. Combs points out that the method of collection is expected to assure a more uniform and more easily available supply after some 20 to 30 years of the new method, and seedlings would be established on a much larger scale. Combs said all of the Douglas fir in the Deer creek five-acre plot are being fertilized to all growth. Fertilization has been done with about 40 pounds of 14-11-1 fertilizer, he said.

Selection of the trees from the thousands on the piece of ground proved hard work, the ranger said. For instance, the stand had to be young, between 30 and 50 years old. Trees had to number around 70 to the acre after clear-cut operations. Trees selected had to be dominant, straight, with no forks and medium limbs. They required a minimum of five feet, no artificial growth and had to be free of disease and insect attack. The clearing area required a total of at least 21 acres. "The Douglas fir seed farm has been established on a much larger scale," Combs said. "The Douglas fir in the Deer creek five-acre plot are being fertilized to all growth. Fertilization has been done with about 40 pounds of 14-11-1 fertilizer, he said.

Test Site Is Junk Dealer's Nightmare

IDAHO FALLS, Oct. 19 (AP) - The national reactor testing station is a junk dealer's nightmare. For at the atomic energy commission site near Idaho Falls, broken glassware, rags, and other junk aren't just thrown away. They're sorted, catalogued and packed, then buried. Delegates to the annual meeting of the Nuclear Materials Management association were told Friday how painstaking the whole process is. Denzil K. Johnson, a Phillips Petroleum company official, said regulations at the Idaho site call for extremely careful handling of radioactive solid materials. And that, he said, can include about anything imaginable. Radioactive junk is boxed in cardboard cartons, taken by truck to a special site and buried in trenches or pits at least three feet deep, Johnson said.

PHASANT SEASON BEGINS in all southern Idaho counties which are open to pheasant hunting at noon Oct. 20, and these boys are hoping to fill out as they did last year on opening day. From left to right are Ward Williamson, Dr. Richard Meiers and Dr. Wayne Blakenstaff. Only roosters will be legal targets for the first nine days of the season. Beginning Nov. 4, one hen may be included with cocks in the four-bird bag limit. (Fish and game photo)

Southern Idaho's Ringneck Pheasant Season Will Be Better Than Average

By JIM HUMBERT
Idaho fish and game department BOISE, Oct. 19 — Southern Idaho's ringneck pheasant harvest this year is not expected to set any new records. But it will be above average. That is the word from Elwood Bizeau, state bird supervisor, fish and game department. He adds that the long term average for pheasant kill in the state is about one-half million of the gamey cockles. Hunter questionnaires show that the fall of 1958 produced a bumper crop of 706,500 pheasants in the bag through out Idaho. That is the highest since records have been kept by the department.

Pheasant season began in the state's 10 northern counties Oct. 5 and 10 days later, one hen legally could be claimed along with two roosters for the daily bag limit of three birds. Since Oct. 15, two hens have been allowed in the six-bird possession limit. The season in the Clearwater and Panhandle regions ends Nov. 3.

The north Idaho pheasant hunt this year has been exciting. For example, hunter success in Nez Perce county opening week-end, Oct. 1-2, was better than it has been for 10 years. This information is based on reports from checking stations. It must be remembered that north Idaho provides different pheasant habitat, different weather, different brood conditions than the southern part of the state. Because hunter success in north Idaho is the best in a decade doesn't necessarily mean that it will be across southern Idaho.

Pheasant season in all southern Idaho counties which are open to pheasant hunting begins at noon Oct. 20. Cocks are legal targets for the first nine days of the season. Beginning Nov. 4, one hen may be included with cocks in the four-bird daily bag limit.

However, there are two season periods in southern Idaho. The 10 southwestern counties have a season running through Dec. 31. These counties are Adams, Blaine, Canyon, Elmore, Glen, Layton, Puleite, Valley and Washington. This is a 43-day season—14 more days than last year.

In the 22 counties of central and southeastern Idaho, pheasant season runs through the usual 29-day season. These counties are Blaine, Blinnell, Blinnell, Bonneville, Caribou, Cassia, Clark, Custer, Franklin, Fremont, Gooding, Jefferson, Jerome, Lemhi, Lincoln, Madison, Shoshone, Oneida,

Doctor Is Cleared in Wife's Death

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 19 (AP)—A doctor who told police he blacked out while slipping marjams and arguing about divorce with his wife has been cleared in her strangulation death.

The jury returned a no bill in favor of Dr. Charles H. Newell, who had been charged in the death of his socially prominent wife, Patricia, a granddaughter of a founder of the Maxwell house coffee company.

Newell, 36, a radiologist, had been held without bond after he told a coroner's jury he "blacked out" during an argument over domestic affairs and came to later to find his 35-year-old wife dead.

Newell, a handsome, bespectacled man, was released from the county jail within minutes after the grand jury returned its report.

At the preliminary hearing Newell said he and his wife had been discussing their forthcoming divorce when she last heard temple and scratched his face.

He said his wife had screamed, "You don't love me or the children. I'm fed up with doing everything for them."

He said he told his wife, "Patricia, you've got my heart out until there's nothing left, but I tagged vessels" when she blacked out.

Mrs. Newell, granddaughter of Joel C. Clark of Nashville, a founder of the Maxwell House coffee company, and a former debutante, met Newell while both were studying at the University of Nebraska.

"Records are available from the Twin Falls fish and game club members or local ski shops."

Power and Twin Falls. Bizeau explains the longer pheasant season in southwestern Idaho by pointing out that one-half to two-thirds of all the pheasants harvested during a season are shot during the opening week-end. The second week-end brings out a much lower number of "fair weather" hunters. After that, veteran pheasant hunters have the field more or less to themselves, and the extra days of the season provide more hunting without much additional kill.

The annual pheasant sex ratio survey made last winter by the department yielded a statewide ratio of 47 cocks per 100 hens. "This was no significant change from the 14-year average of 48 cocks to 100 hens. The mild winter during the survey period was excellent for pheasant survival, but poor for obtaining good sex ratio counts. Pheasants were widely distributed over their familiar range instead of concentrated in heavy cover areas."

Results of the pheasant winter sex ratio survey were combined with spring crowing count routes to follow the trend of pheasant breeding populations in the state. Brood count routes were operated in late summer after the young were large and were widely distributed over their familiar range instead of concentrated in heavy cover areas.

Department records in the state are accepting the idea that they are "getting more shooting" and their families are setting good habits as the result of harvesting some hens that likely would be taken by nature anyway. 25000 60 to 80 per cent. of both

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT Reclamation Director Says Farming Is Key to All American Businesses

JEROME, Oct. 19—Alex Coleman is certain of one thing—as agriculture goes, so go other businesses in America.

He should be well qualified to make the statement, because since childhood he has been active in farming, cattle and stock raising and today is national director of the National Reclamation Association, representing Idaho.

ALEX COLEMAN

As such, he and his wife will be host and hostess for the national convention starting today at Sun Valley. It will be the biggest convention the famed resort ever has had.

Agriculture, Coleman points out, is the preeminent industry in Idaho. As of Aug. 1 there were 13 million acres under cultivation in the state with three million of these being irrigated. Livestock industry is next in importance.

"But it all comes right back to reclamation," Coleman said, "without it nothing would be possible."

The theory behind the association is to promote reclamation in 17 states. The national group was formed in 1921-22.

"We fight for reservoirs and projects which are economically feasible to promote agriculture," he declared.

He adds that the officers keep an "eagle eye" on all legislation which may affect reclamation, or agriculture and take a definite stand against legislation that would be injurious.

Coleman's love of agriculture and related occupations started when a boy. He was born in Tassdale, Utah, where his father, A. S. Coleman, was a caterer. The family moved to Blackfoot where young Coleman attended grade school. He was graduated from the Rexburg high school and then went to Ricks college for a year. About this time he filled a mission for the LDS church in California.

"When I returned from the mission, I had my eyes set on becoming a lawyer. My father, however, had different ideas. He said that I was too old to be in school and ought to get married and settle down."

He didn't get married right away, but he did get into the cattle business with his father. He points out his father liked cattle and he liked sheep, "so we had a pairing of the ways." He entered the sheep business at Rexburg.

"Nowadays it makes no difference whether a fellow is a cattleman or a sheepman," Coleman points out.

He went into the sheep business in a big way with an acreage at St. Anthony. He also had acquired a wife, Emma Rigby, whose grandfather gave his name to the town of Rigby.

Business was fine for eight years and then Coleman suffered a series of heart attacks which forced him into semi-retirement. He decided to move to Jerome to be near a son, John, a Twin Falls attorney. This move was accomplished in 1961.

The semi-retirement, however, looks somewhat like a fulltime job with Coleman active in real estate transactions here and over this area. His wife teaches school here.

In order not to "go stale," as he puts it, he also maintains an active interest in the Idaho Chamber of Commerce, the Jerome Kiwanis club and the local LDS church.

His position as a national director in the Reclamation association also serves to keep him busy. In addition to attending meetings on an area basis, he also attends the directors' session held in Washington, D.C. each year.

"The convention at Sun Valley marks the first time the association has ever met there, but it will be the biggest convention Sun Valley ever had,"

Coleman declared.

Among other things, Coleman is a member of the Columbia river compact commission, having been appointed to the post when Sen. Len Jordan was governor of Idaho.

The Colemans have six children, including a set of twins, Emma Lou is a student at Ricks college, while the twins, Rhea and Reia, are married. Rhea is Mrs. Darrell Orr and Reia is Mrs. Bud Asgard. Both were married at St. Anthony. Mrs. Gerald (Jull) Powell resides in Jerome and another daughter, Mrs. Cleon (Anna Jane) Anderson, lives in St. Anthony. A son, John, is an attorney in the firm of Parry, Robertson and Daly, Twin Falls. There is a total of 10 grandchildren—including another set of twins.

"Life in Idaho has been a good life," Coleman declared. "And for those who do not think you can live again through your children, just take John, for instance. I wanted to be a lawyer but never got the chance. John wanted to be one and made it. I lived his ambition right along with him."

FACTORY Radio TV Center

PHONE 733-2222 420 MAIN AVENUE SOUTH TWIN FALLS, IDAHO

October 20, 1963

Open letter to all Magic Valley:

Making a decision to leave a business that has been our way of living for over 30 years was not easy.

In the beginning, 1933, it was simply radio. Conducting a business then was simple too. The electronic business has developed to an enormous complex and respected business with a heritage and culture all its own. It has been a privilege to have been a small part of this growth pattern.

Our decision was reached partly because the pioneering and the swashbuckling of the early years of radio and TV have given away to stability and order, and perhaps because the combat has been exhausting, even though stimulating, maybe because of continuous means of regulation, maybe it is diminishing incentive, maybe it is the old man with the yoke, but probably most of all, a 10 year obsession to bring more and better television to Magic Valley by coaxial cable.

With the steady growth of Cable Vision, we are faced with one of the facts of life. You can't give your best to more than one thing — so with mixed emotions we are divesting ourselves of Factory Radio TV Center.

Two fine ambitious young men, Jack Gentry and Ken Nukoya will be the new owners. Both are anxious to have the opportunity to serve you. Arrangements have been made with them to handle all outstanding guarantees, service and replacements on any product sold by us in the past.

The full line of the magnificent Magnavox products will be stocked, sold and serviced as before.

Mel Reither who has been with Factory Radio from almost the time of its inception will remain with the new owners.

The important point we want to make is that Factory Radio TV Center and the traditional service will be going on with renewed vigor.

We are happy that we will, along with our good associate Gus Pene, still be doing business with many of you in Cable Vision.

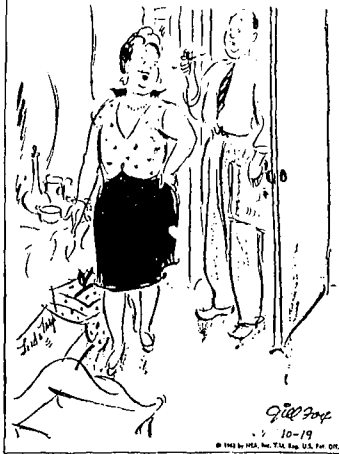

To our several thousand customers, to our employees, present and past, to our suppliers, to our competitors, we leave our sincere appreciation for a fascinating and profitable 30 years — from the bottom of our hearts...

Thanks a million
