Ski Season Starts at Magic, Soldier Areas

Two more ski areas in Magic Valley will open for the season Saturday, operators announced today. They are Magic Mountain, south of Hansen, which is opening for the first time in two years, and Soldier Mountain at Fairfield. Claude Jones, Magic mountain area operator, said snow is in excellent condition and 24 inches in depth. He said the runs have been packed by a new snow packer he used for the first time this year. The area did not open last year because of lack of snow. At Fairfield, Robert Frostenson, one of the owners, said there are two feet of packed snow at Soldier mountain ski area. Roads are in good condition but snow tires or chains are needed. No grades or necessary to reach the ski area, he added.

New England Wants Sugar Beet Lands

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — Twenty New England members of congress supported today a request by Maine for a 50,000-ton beet sugar allotment to stabilize the potato growers' fluctuating income.

At least one house member from each of the six states signed a letter submitted at an agriculture department hearing into 33 applications for sugar beet allotments through 1966.

Sens. Margaret Chase Smith, R. Me., and Edmund S. Muskie, D. Me., appeared in person to urge approval of the application of the Main Sugar Beet Growers association.

Gov. John H. Reed, in testifying in support of the application yesterday, said Aroostock county needs a new cash crop to offset the unpredictable potato market.

Two applications from Kansas — from the southwest Kansas Sugar Beet council and the Tri-County Beet Growers association, Goodland — and one from the Southern Red River Valley Sugar Beet corporation, North Dakota and Minnesota, also are scheduled for a hearing today.

During the first two days of hearings, the department received applications for 704,000 tons of beet sugar allotments through 1966 compared with the available tonnage of 175,300.

The 1962 amendments to the sugar act permit the department to allocate additional sugar beet acreage yearly to produce 65,000 tons of sugar primarily in new production areas.

Any unused allotment for one year carries into the next. The law bars the department from carrying more than 35,000 unused tons into 1966.

Allotment saw now in effect for 45,700 tons for a factory near Mendota, Calif.; 50,000 tons for a planned factory near Hereford, Tex.; and 50,000 tons for a factory to be built near Drayton, N. D.

Idaho Highways Are Improving, But Still Icy

By The Associated Press
Condition of Idaho highways was reported somewhat improved today but state police said there still is snow floor on many routes. In many areas the snow is patchy, however, with stretches of bare pavement.

All mountain passes were reported snow covered. U.S. highway 10 in Fourth of July canyon and U.S. 95 at Whitebird hill had snow floor.

Snow floor or black ice was reported on highways east and south from the Pocatello area.

Dragon Snorts

TOKYO, Dec. 12 (AP) — Red China has denounced the United States as a "ferocious imperialist country" with "the mad strategic aim of conquering the world."

Peking blasted the United States in a propaganda barrage calling on the Soviet Union to turn its foreign policy from a "soft line" to the "hard line" pursued by the Chinese in dealing with the West.

New Order Closes 33 U.S. Posts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced today the government will close 33 military installations in 14 states over a period of three and one-half years. The sweeping action will save an estimated 106 million dollars a year and will eliminate 16,300 jobs, he said. McNamara conceded that he has been bombarded with protests from indignant congressmen since word of the action began leaking out yesterday. But he said the decision had not been reversed as a result.

Farm Bureau Federation Meet Ending

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP) — The American Farm Bureau federation's annual convention headed for adjournment today after turning back a proposal to seek repeal of a controversial 250 million dollar soil subsidy program for farmers.

This program, authorized in 1936, has been making government payments to farmers for carrying out approved soil and water conservation practices. The practice of making payments for application of fertilizer, lime and seed at a time when too much was being grown has been criticized for years.

After a lengthy debate the delegates voted Wednesday to stand by last year's resolution which pledged the big farm organization to work for legislation and administrative regulations that would limit payments to permanent type conservation practices, such as terracing, leveling and irrigating cropland and the building of stock ponds and wildlife refuges.

On the big agricultural issues of crop controls, price supports, compensatory payments to growers for reducing production the delegates voted to reaffirm last year's platform directing the organization's officials to seek a greatly reduced government role in farming.

He said every employee whose job is eliminated will be "offered another job opportunity" and said career employees who have to move as a result of the action will be reimbursed. He estimated that nearly 80 per cent of the civilians whose jobs are eliminated are U. S. MILITARY, Page 2)

Second Auditorium Drive Luncheon Set

Henry Wills, chairman of the Twin Falls community campaign to raise $500,000 of equity capital to construct and equip a civic auditorium-convention center, announced the second executive committee organizational luncheon meeting will be held Friday noon in the Roundup room of the Rogerson hotel. Sixty members are necessary to insure that the executive sales committee will be an effective, working organization, Wills told the 25 members present today. "We have been calling on all the community leaders in Twin Falls every day and night this week so that by Friday's luncheon we will have given the top leadership in our town an opportunity to serve on the biggest project this community ever has undertaken," Wills stated.

Each of the sales committee members accepted an assignment to bring at least two prospective new members to the luncheon Friday.

"I'll get my $1,000 investment back in no time at all from the new dollars that will be spent in Twin Falls every day the facility is used," emphasized Earl Faulkner, an executive committee member.

According to the survey report, recently completed by the community fund-raising company for the auditorium-association, when a city of comparable size to that of Twin Falls has been successful in raising $500,000 by means of public subscription, there have been about 1,250 individuals and/or business firms who purchased subscriptions.

"We already know how many individuals and business firms will financially support the project, but we don't know which ones," explained the campaign director, Larry Lidstrom. "That's why it takes 60 volunteer executive salesmen and 170 additional volunteer general salesmen and women working three or four weeks to locate those 1,250 persons who want to see the project succeed."

It was emphasized at the meeting that in order for the campaign to be a complete success the executive committee will at least have to double its present membership, which now stands at 25 members, before the end of December.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — President Johnson is sending another diplomat David G. Nes to South Viet Nam to serve as the key U. S. man, under Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Authoritative sources said today Johnson personally approved the selection of the 46-year-old foreign service officer who has a distinguished World War II combat record. Nes replaces William G. Trueheart, whose two-year tour of duty expired last October.

The appointment comes at a time when Lodge's name is figuring in speculation about the 1964 Republican presidential nomination. But he has stated he is not a candidate and does not intend to run.

Lodge, the 1960 GOP vice presidential candidate on the ticket headed by Richard M. Nixon, was named to the Saigon post last summer by the late President John F. Kennedy.

Nes was a company commander in the famed Merrill's Marauders, who fought a guerrilla war against the Japanese in Burma during World War II. He joined the foreign service in 1936.

Washington, Dec. 12 (UPI) — Congress is taking a hard look at a law designed to force reluctant bureaucrats to open records to public view but which some officials have used to justify greater secrecy.

A so-called "freedom of information bill," introduced by Sen. Edward V. Long, D. Mo., would make it tougher for officials to cite the administrative procedures act of 1946 as justification for withholding information from the press and public, and sometimes from congress itself.

The new legislation would forbid the withholding of information by federal agencies except when specifically directed by statute, or when it involves the national security.

Those who want to change it say the law, by spelling out vaguely the conditions under which officials might withhold information, has been perverted to block access to public information.

Slick Roads Get Blame For Mishaps

Snow-covered and slick roads caused three accidents Tuesday in Twin Falls county and one accident occurred on a good road. The accidents were investigated by Idaho state police and the Twin Falls county sheriff's office.

State police investigated two accidents, the first of which occurred at 3:30 p. m. in Filer. A 1958 Plymouth driven by Mrs. Doretta A. Hoskin, 87, Filer, was going west on U. S. highway 30 and started to turn left onto Adell street when the car slid sideways and collided with a 1958 Edsel driven by Cecil Calhoun, 68, Buhl. The Edsel also was reported sliding on ice.

At 4 p. m. Tuesday, a 1967 Ford driven by Rex W. Quanstrom, 31, Heyburn, going east on U. S. highway 30 in Hansen, slid into the rear of a 1962 Oldsmobile driven by John W. Jenkins, 36, Twin Falls, which was attempting to turn right into a parking lot.

Two drivers were cited by the Twin Falls sheriff's office when a 1955 International truck driven by Carl W. Beams, 63, Buhl, stopped on Robbins avenue and was struck by a 1958 Renault driven by John R. Hull, 17, Twin Falls.

The sheriff's office reported Beams had stopped with the back end of the truck sticking out into the other lane of traffic, when it was struck by the Hull car.

Beams was cited for improper standing of vehicle and Hull was cited for no registration on his vehicle.

SYNOPSIS AND AGRICULTURAL SUMMARY

Winter weather is continuing its grip over the valleys of southern Idaho, with light snow and very cold temperatures being reported. Snowfall, although mostly light and fluffy, has been generally heavier in the eastern valleys of Idaho and is presently being reported as falling at most reporting stations in southern Idaho. Some snow depths on the ground early this morning were Arco five inches; Rupert four inches, and Gooding five inches, with only traces of snow on the ground in the Boise valley.

The air flow aloft into the northern intermountain region is from the north, bringing into our valleys cold air from the Arctic. A weak impulse moving southward in this air flow and the associated pocket of cold air is in effect squeezing us out of our cloudy shroud. The air now in our valleys and basins is moving quite rapidly with the strong upper winds, some clearing is expected tonight and Friday before another light snow again. With cold air over the region late Friday, bringing light snow again. With cold air over the region late Friday, bringing light snow again. With cold air over the region late Friday, bringing light snow again.

Passage of this act will cause more strife and accomplish less good than any act proposed in congress in many years, all to the satisfaction of the communistic powers who will then glory in the fact that we have taken a long leap in their direction and thereby made the transition from our form of government to theirs more simple and much more certain.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to the Idaho congressional delegation. Chamber members also approved a request of the state of Idaho for $670,000 in federal land funds for construction of state highway 21, but they also requested that the state speed work on highway 68 from Fairfield to Boise.

Dr. Arthur Richards reported Explorer Scouts had cut 20 Christmas trees to be used by merchants in front of their stores. Ira Hoffman, president, requested each merchant to decorate his own tree.

Richard Stephens reported Santa's official visit via dog team is set for Dec. 21. Treats will be given. The first open race at Rotarun Dec. 29 was announced.

The next chamber meeting will be Jan. 13.

Hailey C of C Opposed to Civil Rights

HAILEY, Dec. 12—A resolution opposing the civil rights act of 1963 now being considered by congress was adopted by members of the Hailey Chapter of Commerce at a meeting Monday at the Star cafe.

"We believe the civil rights act appears to traverse practically every basic principle of liberty and justice contemplated by the constitution and can only be proper as part of a communistic society or other totalitarian regime," the resolution reads. It was prepared by V. K. Jeppesen, Hailey attorney.

"We believe the act is saturated with undemocratic principles. It is completely impossible of fulfillment," the resolution continues.

"Passage of this act will cause more strife and accomplish less good than any act proposed in congress in many years, all to the satisfaction of the communistic powers who will then glory in the fact that we have taken a long leap in their direction and thereby made the transition from our form of government to theirs more simple and much more certain."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to the Idaho congressional delegation. Chamber members also approved a request of the state of Idaho for $670,000 in federal land funds for construction of state highway 21, but they also requested that the state speed work on highway 68 from Fairfield to Boise.

Negligence Case May Go To Jurors

When Fred Schwartz, attorney for the Habermans, questioned him on the significance of the half teaspoon of liquid taken from the baby's trachea, Dr. Katz replied it was not enough to totally obstruct the child's breathing.

Questioned about the temperature of 101 the child had after the episode, Dr. Katz said he thought it probably was caused by minor reasons such as being too warm or a decrease in liquid.

Dr. R. C. Matson, staff member at St. Benedict's who was on the staff committee on nursing and obstetrical ward in 1959, also appeared on the stand Thursday morning.

Testifying Wednesday afternoon were Mrs. Jerry Davis, Richfield; Mrs. Harold Burgess, Jerome, and Mrs. Floyd Vance, Twin Falls, all patients on the obstetrical ward the night of July 20, 1959. All three told the jury when they had been checked by nurses and that they had all slept most of the night.

Sister M. Cornelia, superintendent of the obstetrical floor, testified during the afternoon session and confirmed testimony given during the morning session by Mrs. Clark. She also told of her own actions when she was called to the floor to see the Haberman baby at the time of the incident. She checked the baby's mouth and applied the respirator and then called for the doctor.

Mrs. Mary L. Davis, a licensed practical nurse who was on duty the same night in the medical ward, testified that she answered the emergency alarm and summoned Sister M. Cornelia and Dr. James Bloat, who testified Tuesday.

Written testimony of Patricia Smith, a registered nurse who was in charge of the night shift on July 27, 1959, was read during the afternoon session. The testimony had been given by her when she appeared in May of this year during a previous trial on the case. The earlier court proceeding were ended after four days and declared a mistrial.

Miss Smith's father, Paul Smith, Jerome, appeared in court and told the jury that his daughter lives in Seattle, Wash. An Idaho state law prescribes that if a witness lives out of the state, testimony from previous trials involving the same parties can be read at subsequent trials.

Miss Smith's previous testimony explained that she had checked the babies at least once an hour and the mothers two or three times each night. She also checked expectant mothers at least every 30 minutes and glanced in at the babies at the same time.

She testified at the earlier trial that since there was an expectant mother in the labor room that night she had checked the babies frequently.

The trial adjourned at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday and the jury was taken by the bailiff to visit the hospital's obstetrical floor. Judge Ward said none of the lawyers or hospital staff could speak to the jurors while they were in the hospital and that the jurors would be allowed only to look at the equipment and plan of the ward, but not discuss it.

Erhard Raps Weapon Aid By Germans

BONN, Germany, Dec. 12 (UPI)—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard told the West German Interior Ministry Wednesday to prevent German scientists from working on weapons of mass destruction in troubled areas of the world.

Israel protested vigorously earlier this year that German scientists were in the land of its enemies—the United Arab Republic—helping President Nasser build military rockets and jet aircraft.

The government will try to draft new passport regulations, to keep German scientists out of the UAR or any other potential danger spot.

Independent Status Given To Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya, Dec. 12 (AP)—Kenya became Africa's 35th independent nation today. There is frontier trouble in the north and the economy looks shaky, but people of this former British self-governing colony celebrated joyously.

Among the first to recognize the new nation was the Soviet Union.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Premier Khrushchev described Kenya's achievement of independence in a cable to Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta as "another outstanding event in the historic process of the liberation of the entire African continent from the last remnants of colonial rule."

Next comes admission to membership in the United Nations along with Zanzibar, the island sheikdom freed Tuesday after 73 years under British protection.

Skies cleared over Nairobi after several days of rain and the sun began drying out bedraggled flags and bunting.

Dancers representing Kenya's 40 tribes added color to the festivities.

Independence celebrations were marked by parades, receptions, banquets, sports meetings and cultural exhibitions. Hundreds of foreign visitors bore gifts and messages of good will from all over the world.

But this will be the last big spree for the 8.5 million Kenyans for a long time. They face a belt-tightening campaign and hard work to get the country out of the red.

Complaints Are Received About Phone Removal

RICHFIELD, Dec. 13—Many complaints are being registered in Richfield because of the removal of the public telephone outside the telephone office building.

The telephone was particularly needed by tourists, many of whom seek out a telephone office for placing calls. Richfield's modern telephone office building is no longer used for office purposes, but the outside pay telephone was available until last summer.

The telephone was removed and placed in the local telephone company's exchange at Mountain City, Nev. At the time Edward L. Striegel, manager of the Gem State Utilities corporation, said a new phone booth and public telephone would be placed at the drugstore corner of Richfield's Main street and highway 93A intersection.

Richfield's telephone manager and serviceman was not available for comment this week as he is Berlin Mayor Wille Brandt has come up with a frightening explanation of recent Russian blockades along the Allied access routes to Berlin.

In an interview while he was in America to attend the funeral of the late President Kennedy, Brandt said he believes the Soviets may have possession of Allied emergency plans for Berlin and the vulnerable access routes to the communist-encircled city.

If they have these plans, Brandt contends, it is entirely probable that the Russians blocked the access routes to test them out—in other words, the Allies presumably decided upon a pre-arranged course of action in the event of Russian blockades.

The Soviet motive in blocking the routes, he added, would be to discover if the Allies reacted to the action in a way laid out in the captured plans.

According to Brandt, he learned about the "leak" of Allied contingency plans from a source high in the North Atlantic Organization (NATO). He said the plans blueprint western reaction to Soviet harassment in Berlin and along the access highway leading into the divided city from West Germany.

At this writing, American officials have refused to comment on Brandt's suggestion. They said they were in no position to either confirm or deny whether the Allied contingency plans for Berlin have been stolen.

The mayor of West Berlin said he felt that the plans should be reconsidered in light of their possible capture by the Russians. However, he said, he didn't believe there was any reason for a drastic or immediate overhaul of the top-secret arrangements in existence for about 10 years, according to informed U.S. officials, and they are subject to constant re-consideration because of shifts in the international political situation which have some impact on Berlin.

Fortunately, they are not believed to have included machinery set up in advance for publication operations in the case of emergencies involving the Soviets and the western powers that were described as the kind of plans which would provide the Allied powers with a "common vocabulary" to speed up western reaction to Soviet moves.

When the first Soviet blockade was thrown up on the Allied access autobahn last October, there was a theory that the incident may have been the result of a "misunderstanding" among low-level Soviet officers. However, this theory was dropped when another Allied-convoy was held up in early November.

Mayor Brandt said that if the Russians threw up the blockade to find out whether the plans they have are accurate, they undoubtedly know by now if they got false papers.

An important point to remember in all of this is the fact, the Soviets have not engaged up to their international espionage efforts. Despite the partial nuclear test ban pact and all the talk about easing world tensions and a "thaw" in East-West relations, the Russians are still doing business at the same old stand. They are still interested in staying ahead on all fronts toward their goal of world domination.

I suggest that it is important for us to realize that the so-called "spirit of Moscow" does not extend to such operational functions of the international communist conspiracy as espionage.

How do you stand, sir?

BY ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—I will tell you a place you are not going to catch me until after Dec. 25 and that is in a store. Send me to rattle a lion or to call Khru-shev a bum in Red Square, but though you cut off my toes one by one and jab lighted cigarettes at my eyeballs I will refuse to do even one fleeting moment of Christmas shopping.

It is not that I have no desire to lavish costly baubles on my kith and kin. After Jan. 1, 1964, I personally will venture forth and purchase the Taj Mahal, several Rolls Royces and Montgomery county, Md., for those who are dear to me. But these purchases will be made when the stores are safe again, to wit, when they are comparatively empty of women.

THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES—Usually I do not shrink from female companionship, being a man who applauds the fact that there are two sexes, one consisting of girls. Especially after a hard day's toil over a hot typewriter, dames seem almost human and if they are not exactly the delicate flowers the poets sing about, they do not slug you out of hand so long as you are adept at handling a short phrase that reads, "Yes, dear."

But during that horrible period between Dec. 1 and Dec. 25, broads become fiends in human form. It is then that women, who have been striking terror in men's hearts ever since Eve sinned, are at their worst. To the average female, the Christmas season is not only her big chance to spend her husband's bank-rupty, but a challenge to her gladiatorial instincts.

GRIM REALITY—A mother tiger protecting her young is a tender plaything compared to a dame taking aim at a necktie counter or slanting off-lankies to the corner where they sell fuchsia lounging robes. To the female these days, every downtown shopping sector is one huge arena where women charge about beating up unwary—and even wary—males. At this time of year, it is safer to step into a Caracas street riot than to stray within a hundred yards of a doll seeking a $5 bagatelle for Aunt Agnes.

It is a woman's premise that a man has a nerve to get in the way when she is stocking up on green and yellow polka dot socks. There is, first, the icy glare which turns almost at once into a menacing scowl. Then there is the strong right arm, ostensibly reaching across the man's face for a perfume bottle, but actually aimed at breaking a man's nose and, if possible, blacking an eye.

NO ROUNDS WON ON FOULS—Women's feet these days are used not so much for walking as for crippling male shoppers who dare to cross their path. A high heel is fine for the slashing type wound in a man's instep; a sensible shoe when properly stomped will leave a male's toes swollen and painful for days. Yet they do not forget their manners. What man has not been touched by the little-girl apologies of some Amazon as she sobbed from the agony of a two-inch wound in his ankle or sought to staunch the claret flow from a battered nose?

Even if a male were as strong as a female, he could not win that kind of a battle. He is inhibited by society's rules which say a man may not tussle physically with a female and, besides, the store is full of feminine reinforcements. His best bet is to beat a hasty retreat and perhaps escape with only contusions and abrasions.

It will all be over soon, but in this time of the "floss the male had best keep away from these balls of fluff and limit his activities to such safe pursuits as sneering at the boss. We are all, gentlemen, too young to die.

THE FIREMEN LOSE AGAIN
The ruling of the federal arbitration board in the case of the railroad firemen is consonant with the conclusions of earlier objective studies. It is fair and reasonable, and the unions ought to accept it. Instead, at least two of the five involved plan to attack the award and the law under which it was made in federal court, as is their right. But if they do they will lose whatever shreds of public respect they still enjoy.

The arbitrators ruled that 80 per cent of the 40,000 firemen's jobs on diesel engines and freight trains must be eliminated. But only about 2,000 men in low seniority categories could be dismissed immediately after the ruling goes into effect Jan. 25. Complete job protection for firemen with 10 years or more of service is provided; this covers 65 per cent of the men affected. Most firemen with less than 10 years service must be offered other jobs with comparable pay. Severance allowances were ordered for nearly all of the few who could be dismissed in January.

Thus the rank-and-file members of the union are protected, with the majority having the assurance of jobs during their working years. This is the fair answer to automation—if jobs must be eliminated there should be protection for the men holding them, but not for replacements. The union officers will suffer, but the unions should be run for the men and not for their officers.

The issue has been an irritant for four years. The arbitration law under which Tuesday's ruling was made was passed by congress last August to avert a nationwide rail strike. It ordered compulsory and binding arbitration by a special temporary panel on two points at issue—firemen on diesel freight engines and the size of work crews. The board bypassed the second issue, but established machinery for handling it. Minor issues were not involved, and the board appealed to the unions to negotiate seriously on these.

The two union members of the seven-man panel filed a dissenting report, as was to be expected. But we concur in the statement made by J. E. Woire, the chief railroad negotiator and member of the panel, that the ruling "will best serve the interest of the public." It is the public interest that the unions have overlooked in holding so tenaciously to the dead past.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The defense research institute is not, as one might suppose, an organization devoted to national defense. It is concerned with putting up an effective defense against claims on insurance companies for astronomical amounts of money in personal injury cases, often regardless of who was to blame.

It is an offshoot of the International Association of Insurance Counsel and has recently circulated a reprint of the report of the president of that organization for 1963. By his estimate the annual "take" of the "injury industry" in the United States is well above 4 billion dollars annually.

This amount comes not out of the capital of insurance companies, or most of them would be out of business in a few years and automobile insurance in particular would be almost impossible to obtain. It has to be raised by increasing premiums on automobile owners, more than half of whom earn less than $6,000 a year and to whom a car is more often a necessity than a luxury.

If this sum were imperative in order to assure justice, there could be no objection. But there is strong indication that lawyers representing plaintiffs have obtained gradual changes in law which tend to "socialize" the cost of injuries by assessing them regardless of responsibility, and that juries grant awards on an assumption that "Oh, the insurance companies have plenty of money."

If this is the trend, it is an unwholesome one, and everyone who insures a car, whether Lincoln or Jolopy, has to pay for it.—Christian Science Monitor.

MARQUIS CHILDS WRITES ON WASHINGTON
WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—Of all the memorials to President Kennedy none promises more for the future than one which in a sense he initiated himself.

In the deep frustration he experienced in the last months of his administration, as a balky and often hostile congress held up the principal proposals in his legislative program, one salient fact stood out. That was the 320-million-dollar mental health program finally passed and signed into law. With the help of powerful allies in and out of congress he had pushed this important step quietly and persistently.

Although congress cut his initial request by more than half, shearing away important aspects of the program, it is nevertheless a big step forward. The goal is community mental health centers which, in the testimony of Dr. Robert H. Felix, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, can cut down in institutions by half within 15 years. One of Kennedy's last acts on the day before he was assassinated was to send a congressional request for three of the five separate programs so they could be started as quickly as possible.

How much this meant to the late President he revealed to only a few friends and co-workers. Behind the triumphs of the Kennedy family, their worldly success, was a private sorrow. The eldest daughter, Rosemary, mentally retarded, has spent much of her life in an institution.

This gave President Kennedy a special interest in mental rehabilitation and psychiatric care. The Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr. foundation was given large sums for the study of retardation.

The President's concern was, however, much broader than this.

one phase of a branch of medicine still in a formative state and in urgent need of expansion both in research and in training. He was convinced that the program he initiated would provide a broad, new base for treatment of the mentally sick. He felt gratified that at least a start had been made.

Lee Harvey Oswald, it has been disclosed, showed in early adolescence symptoms of a serious mental disorder. That was while he lived briefly in New York. Commitment for psychiatric care was recommended but never carried out. Facilities are always overcrowded, waiting lists long. Oswald and his mother resumed the wandering that took them from state to state in search of a livelihood.

Who can say that the course of history would not have been different if this sick adolescent, growing into warped and menacing manhood, had adequate care or had been confined if necessary, and who can say how many Oswalds, harboring murderous hate and paranoid fear and suspicion, are abroad in the land?

Thousands of words have been written since the assassination about the sick hatreds that have spread like a plague in recent years. It may be that this terrible act will make a true awakening and put a stop, as President Johnson so movingly said, to the virulence that breeds violence and a defiance of law.

The border line between reason and irrationality is a narrow one. That any substantial number of Americans could follow a leader, who found John Foster and Allen Dulles to be members of the communist conspiracy and General Eisenhower a dupe if not an agent of that conspiracy, is hard to believe. Likewise, that any considerable number of Americans could have accepted the dictates of Leninism and the savagery of Stalinism that followed seemed impossible.

Yet, the damage that even a few disciples of the extremes of hate and violence can do is great. It lies not alone in a single act, however monstrous. Poisoning the wells of thought and belief is as destructive in the long pull as to poison the sources of the water we drink.

The mental health program now adopted will mean a great upsurge in mental care and understanding of the problem throughout the nation. Congress has an opportunity to act quickly to repair the damage done during the passage of the measure. The most serious blow was elimination of help in the staffing of the local mental health centers.

Kennedy said so often, "It is better to light a candle than to curse the darkness." As a testament to the belief in reason of the murdered President, no light could shine so far.

Well, we done it! We done went and got our Christmas cards mailed. But Christmas spirit or no Christmas spirit, we'll be thinking twice about it next year.

Back when you could mail Christmas cards for two cents each it wasn't so bad. Then the price went up to three cents, paused and climbed to four. We figured that was the end. But now it's up to five cents, or if you want to be a little on the cheap side, you don't seal the envelope and it costs only four.

By the time you buy 200 stamps, that's $10 down the drain and it sure seems steep. That's only a drop in the bucket to the original cost of the cards, but it's all too high.

The Doctor Says

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Physical fitness is like money in the bank in more ways than one. You can squander it but you can also get it back. It can be built up and maintained through a combination of factors.

Most important is an annual physical checkup by your doctor. Recognition of the warning signs of impending ill health can lead to preventive measures. Such measures Dr. Brandstadt are far more effective than treatment after a disease has become firmly established. A dental checkup twice a year is also important.

All athletic coaches urge members of their teams to maintain a good state of nutrition, but you don't have to be an athlete to achieve such a state. The well balanced diet should include two glasses of milk and two helpings of meat a day. Bread or a cereal should be a part of each meal and you should get enough vegetable and fruit to make it necessary to use laxatives. When these requirements have been met, if you're still hungry, allow yourself a piece of candy or cookies if you are not overweight.

As we grow older we tend to exercise less. Although a person who is over 40 does not require as much exercise as a child, he must give his muscles, heart and lung a workout every day or their effectiveness will diminish. Fortunately the person who has allowed himself to get soft can regain his former fitness through a systematic program of increasing exercises.

Exercise that is fun is most likely to be faithfully adhered to. This may take the form of games but for persons who are 40 or over (bodily contact sports or those that are highly competitive should be avoided).

If you take up golf or tennis, don't feel that you have to find the experts. Swimming, fishing, rowing, archery, hiking, badminton and dancing are excellent means of keeping fit. It is of value, however, they should be pursued two or three times a week and preferably every day. If this cannot be done, they should be supplemented with daily calisthenics.

Exercise should be strenuous enough to cause a good sweat but should stop short of causing exhaustion. If your heart is still fast and pounding hard five minutes after you have stopped exercising, you have overdone it and should increase your exercises more gradually. Bending forward is fine but bending backward and deep breathing exercises are not recommended.

Rest and relaxation should not be neglected in your physical fitness program. These are favored by a change of pace, a hobby that doesn't require great physical exertion, and through sleep.

South won the spade lead and tried to get a heart discard off dummy's diamonds. East ruffed the second diamond, cashed the ace of spades and two more hearts and chucked up 200 points on his side of the ledger.

It not only looked easy, but it should have been easy. The nine of hearts opening indicated either a singleton or doubleton. South was marked with the ace of clubs as part of his bidding strength.

Proper Education

There have been demands for several years for greater opportunity in vocational education of youngsters. Finally, the state board of education has approved plans for a broadened program of vocational education in Idaho. Such a program can't start too soon. It's desperately needed in high schools now and will be needed even more as competition increases for available jobs.

Some educators have recognized for many years that equal education is not equally available to all youngsters. Some children's talents lie in the direction of skilled work with their hands while others are more suited for work that requires mental organization. Neither is suited for the other's work and neither would be particularly happy at the other's work. Acceptance of that basic fact is needed before schools can move in both directions to develop whatever talent and skill a student possesses.

It makes little sense to try teaching bookkeeping, for example, to a boy who would make a crackerjack automotive mechanic. A girl who shows aptitude for being a fine steamstress gets no help when someone tries to direct her into the stenographic field. Everyone loses from mis-direction of a student's time and talents, including the student and society in general.

Until now, vocational studies have been limited on the secondary school level. Most Idaho schools have offered some sort of vocational agriculture course for boys and there have been the usual home economics classes for girls. Even these basic courses seldom go far enough to be of much help.

Part of the gap has been filled by various businesses, professions and unions that have instituted apprentice programs. It's a practice that has become increasingly popular and hasn't reached its peak yet. Still, it isn't the full answer, because those programs of apprenticeship are limited necessarily and are not available equally to all youngsters.

The apprentice program as conceived by labor unions has been a continuing source of craftsmen down through the years. It's satisfactory in its fields—carpentry, printing, etc.—but there just aren't enough fields. Mostly, youngsters who get training as salesman or waitresses, for instance, get such training accidentally rather than intentionally.

If a youngster demonstrates a skill along vocational lines, every effort should be made to develop that skill. And there should be no stigma attached. It's impossible for every youngster to be a lawyer, doctor or city manager, both because there isn't that sort of demand and not every youngster has the necessary talent or inclination.

On the other hand, some segments of society attach more importance to the repairman who fixes the television set or perhaps the plumber who clears a clogged drain. When such a repairman is needed, the lawyer, doctor or city manager just won't do.

Society benefits when more persons work at the vocations for which they are best suited.

UP AND GOING
In the annals of conservation, there could be no better success story than that of the trumpeter swan. Forty years ago, the swan was believed extinct. Where once the big white birds had numbered in the thousands, they had disappeared. Or so it was thought until 1932 when bird biologists discovered 57 adult swans and 12 young birds. Of special interest in Idaho, the big birds were found in the general area of the borders of Idaho with Montana and Wyoming.

An intensive campaign to save the trumpeter from extinction started immediately. The Red Rock lakes area of Montana was designated as a bird refuge and steps were taken to safeguard trumpeters in all adjacent areas of Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. To this day, it is illegal to shoot snow geese in the Idaho counties bordering on the Montana and Wyoming area to prevent accidental shooting of swans.

Biologists spied on trumpeter swans to learn everything possible about their life cycles, migration routes and nesting patterns. Utmost publicity was given the trumpeter swan in every area where it might possibly be observed. Even with all these efforts, hunters downed the big birds occasionally. Others just disappeared or were victims of natural enemies.

The effort to save the trumpeter met frustration after frustration and the numbers inched upward at an agonizingly slow pace. Now it appears the 30-year program has been successful. The fish and wildlife service counted more than 300 trumpeters this year, including more than 300 young. That's nearly four times the number of birds observed only 20 years ago.

Why save the trumpeter swan? Well, why not? Man proved long ago he could eliminate any particular species. Now he's also proving he can save and perpetuate a bird that has no peer for size, beauty and grace. That's enough incentive.

Back when you could mail Christmas cards for two cents each it wasn't so bad. Then the price went up to three cents, paused and climbed to four. We figured that was the end. But now it's up to five cents, or if you want to be a little on the cheap side, you don't seal the envelope and it costs only four.

By the time you buy 200 stamps, that's $10 down the drain and it sure seems steep. That's only a drop in the bucket to the original cost of the cards, but it's all too high.

How many of our friends would notice if we just stopped?

Dear Pat Shots:
I am interested in contests and would like to know if there are others who would be interested in starting a contest club.

It would be a chance to get acquainted with others in the contest hobby.

Dear Sir:
Well, we done it! We done went and got our Christmas cards mailed. But Christmas spirit or no Christmas spirit, we'll be thinking twice about it next year.

WELCOMING HIS STEPFATHER—Gordon James McDonald, home from prison in Vancouver, to 5-year-old Bradley McDonald, a victim of leukemia. McDonald, who admitted theft of $680 to pay for toys, clothing and medical care for the boy, had a six-month prison term cut off when an appeal court said mercy was warranted. By LEON DENNEN
NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (NEA)—The state department has decided, however reluctantly, to continue negotiations with Russia for a new cultural-exchange program.

The talks were suspended in November after the Soviet secret police arrested Professor Frederick Barghoorn on the usual charge of espionage.

To be sure, even while the Yale scholar was held incommunicado in Moscow, an unofficial delegation of Russian cultural "tourists" roamed the United States in an effort to gain friends and influence Americans.

In the state department's view, cultural exchanges might benefit the West since they will expose visiting Russian scholars and artists to the free atmosphere of American institutions. However, a check by specialists of Moscow's latest 16-member delegation revealed that a majority of the emissaries were seasoned communist party members whose mission in America was anything but cultural.

Two of them, writers Boris Polevoi and Aron Vergells, are also believed to be veterans of the Russian secret police.

Boris Polevoi is no stranger here. After his first visit in 1955 he printed a volume of "impressions" in Russian entitled "American Diaries," which was full of slander and fantasy but contained few objective facts.

Truth is no part of a red intellectual's baggage, and Polevoi is no exception. During his 1955 tour he was asked at a press conference about the fate of the famous Jewish-Russian poet Lev Kvitko.

"Kvitko is well and happy," Polevoi replied. "I saw him before my departure for America and he asked me to convey his best regards to his friends."

Some weeks later Moscow announced that "the poet Lev Kvitko" was executed in August, 1952. He was one of 800 Jewish writers murdered by Stalin.

Kvitko had been dead more than three years on the day Polevoi brought his "best regards" to friends in America.

The Kremlin's "cultural" emissary told this writer recently in New York that he was "misunderstood." But, unhappily for Polevoi, he told a similar story about the dead Kvitko to the American novelist Howard Fast, who subsequently printed it in his biography "The Naked God."

Fast has since quarreled with the communists. But in 1955 he was a Stalin prize winner, Polevoi's friend and a shining literary light in the Red world.

Equally unsavory among Moscow's recent cultural emissaries is Aron Vergells, editor of the only Yiddish-language publication in Russia.

Even before Vergells landed on United States soil the Synagogue Council of America warned Americans not to fall into the trap "of one of the architects of the destruction of Judaism" in Russia. Vergells was also charged with having been a "participant" in the purge of Jewish writers under Stalin's rule.

Some of Russia's cultural delegates, like the young poet Robert Rozhdzestvenski, are undoubtedly honest and able practitioners of their art. But they are generally a minority among the emissaries and are never permitted to travel unescorted or mingle freely with Americans.

Of what value, then, are cultural exchange programs if Moscow continues to send to the U. S. dehard communists disguised as cultural emissaries?

If culture means the refinement of manners, morals and optimists would find it difficult likely to fit the definition than civilization, even Foggy Bottom's to think of two candidates less Boris Polevoi and Aron Vergells.

FILTERED THROUGH A "MOUNTAIN" OF CHARCOAL

Why crystal clear Smirnoff makes a better drink

Smirnoff is filtered and refined through 7 tons of activated charcoal, literally a "mountain" of charcoal. This "black magic" removes most of the congeners. No wonder Smirnoff is the world's finest liquor, smooth and flawless. It blends perfectly with fruit juices or soft drinks. Try breathless Smirnoff on-the-rocks or in a Martini and find out why.

Ghosts From Bay of Pigs Summoned

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Fidel Castro was quoted Wednesday as saying Soviet missiles were sent to Cuba last year because President John F. Kennedy had implied privately that the United States was going to invade Cuba.

The Cuban prime minister's account of the missiles story, reported by French newsmen in an article in the New Republic, conflicts with the U.S. version of the events which climaxed in the historic nuclear confrontation between the United States and Russia in October 1962.

The U. S. interpretation was that Soviet Premier Khrushchev tried to break in the missiles for nuclear blackmail against the United States. Washington denied intending to attack Cuba. Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger Wednesday dismissed a key element in Castro's account, given to Daniel in an interview in Havana two days before Kennedy's assassination.

Daniel also interviewed Kennedy Oct. 24.

According to the Castro version, Khrushchev's son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubel, reported Kennedy had noted during a Jan. 30, 1962, conversation that the United States had not intervened in the Soviet suppression of Hungary's 1956 rebellion.

Castro was quoted as saying he and the Russians interpreted Kennedy's words as an effort to get the Soviets to keep hands off in case of a U. S. invasion of Cuba, and both Moscow and Havana decided "a landing in Cuba might happen at any moment."

Therefore, Castro said, the Russian missiles were rushed in for Cuba's defense.

Salinger said he attended Ad-zhubel's meeting with Kennedy and he never heard the subject of non intervention in Hungary come up. He also said Kennedy did not use Daniel as a messenger to Castro.

Castro portrayed the U. S. central intelligence agency as mortified by the failure of the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, and said "We had our doubts as to the state of mind of the President (Kennedy)."

Johnson Tells Cabinet to Cut Spending

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—President Johnson has put members of his cabinet on notice that he expects them to give their personal attention to his campaign to hold down federal spending.

Winding up another busy day in which he again put heavy emphasis on economy in government, Johnson called in his cabinet Wednesday to talk over a variety of matters.

These included, in addition to the federal payroll, the health of the nation's economy, unemployment and methods for dealing with it and an evaluation of the strategic nuclear forces of the United States and the Soviet Union by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The cabinet meeting followed a trip by Johnson to the Pentagon where he told top men of the military establishment that he is counting on them to protect the country's purse as well as its safety.

But Johnson assured the military leaders that he does not "intend for one moment to give up the gains and strength" of the last three years.

White House sources said Dr. Walter W. Heller, chairman of the council of economic advisers, reported to Johnson that the gross national product—the value of all goods and services produced—soon will pass 600 billion dollars as an annual rate.

Heller reported that the economy is moving ahead steadily but not fast enough to cut down the current unemployment rate of about 5.9 per cent of the labor force.

News Around Idaho

BOISE, Dec. 12 (AP)—The office of Secretary of State Arnold Williams is sending out 1,000 copies of books containing changes in Idaho laws approved by the 1963 legislature. The additions to the state code, just arrived from the printer, are stamped with the notice that they are property of the state and distributed to county officials and state offices.

BOISE, Dec. 12 (AP)—A spokesman for Idaho Allied Civic forces said Wednesday that disclosure of hopes for constructing a one-million dollar horse racing plant puts opponents of the new mutual betting law in the position of being able to say "I told you so." Vance Pollett said, "This is exactly what opponents of pari-mutuel betting were saying at the time the bill was before the legislature." Pollett is the editor of the Challenge, official newspaper of Idaho Allied Civic Forces. "We said that once a law was enacted permitting betting on horse races, efforts would be made to bring in big-time gambling. We understood the measure would simply make it possible for the county fair to have pari-mutuel betting on horse races and thus promote the breeding of better horses. Now we find out that there are plans for a first-class grade A horse racing setup, which is what we felt was the plan all along." Pollett referred to the statement by Joe Hansen, Wendell, vice president of the Idaho Horse Breeders association, that his organization wanted big-time racing or "none at all."

POCATELLO, Dec. 12 (AP)—Area law officers were alerted Wednesday night to look for 18-year-old Clyde Robinson. Chubbuck, reported missing after he failed to report to his job at 4 p.m. scheduled. Authorities said checks with the boy's friends had failed to turn up any trace of him. He was last seen about noon, driving his car.

BOISE, Dec. 12 (AP)—Doyle L. Scott, administrative officer for the Idaho soil conservation commission, said Wednesday the Benewah soil conservation district in north Idaho is the first in the state to become a soil and water conservation district. "It has become common practice," he said, "to add the words 'and water' to the name of soil conservation districts in many states. It does broaden the scope somewhat and more clearly indicates a true multipurpose. This is especially true since water has become so critical an item to all segments of industry and living conditions both in the rural areas as well as the metropolitan areas." Richard Lawson, Tensed, is chairman of the Benewah district.

BOISE, Dec. 12 (AP)—A Nez Perce Indian, Joseph Leggins, pleaded guilty in U.S. district court to a charge of burglary on the Nez Perce reservation, court records showed Wednesday. Judge Chase A. Clark sentenced Leggins to nine months imprisonment, but suspended the sentence and ordered a one-year probationary period. In other court action on indictments filed by a recent federal grand jury: Howard J. Brobst and Robert J. Slatery, both Boise, pleaded innocent to forging an endorsement on a government check for $78. No date was set for their trial. Carter Jarrell, Jr., Mountain Home postal employe, pleaded guilty to stealing from the U.S. mail. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered.

BOISE, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Idaho State Horticulture society begins its 89th annual meeting today. Sessions will continue through Friday. First day speakers will include H. D. Robinson, Winchester, Va., vice president of the National Apple Institute; Walter Krause, Merced, Calif., who will discuss new plum varieties, and Keith Schofield, assistant Idaho attorney general, who will talk about legal aspects of orchard management. Maury Sanders, Emmett, society president, said about 250 fruitmen from throughout the state are expected to attend.

BOISE, Dec. 12 (AP)—Local civil defense organizations considered problems of refugees, nuclear detonations and radioactive fallout Wednesday in a mock nuclear attack on Idaho. A communications network linked the North American air defense command with county civil defense offices, which in turn had contact with county offices. Administrative officials who would have responsibilities in a real emergency were alerted. All five Northwest states participated in the alert, one of a series of four conducted on a quarterly basis under the region eight civil defense office.

Smylie Says Men Who Covet

Top Post Will Frown on Tax
BOISE, Dec. 12 (AP)—Gov. Robert E. Smylie said Wednesday he bases his prediction that there will be no sales tax in 1965 on the "political crosscurrents" that will be moving in the legislature. A number of legislators will be looking ahead to the 1965 election, he said, declaring, "I don't know whether there will be 10 or 18 on the third floor running for governor."

His point is that legislative leaders thinking of the governorship aren't likely to get behind a sales tax for fear it would be a political liability. A sales tax passed the house during the 1963 session, but failed by a wide margin in the senate.

Smylie also said he believes the 120 million dollar state budget estimate for 1965-67 by Max Yost is excessive.

Yost, executive secretary of the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho, predicted that 12.5 million dollars in new revenue would be needed. He suggested there may be more backing for a sales tax.

Celebrezze Warns of Job Problem

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Dec. 12 (AP)—Anthony J. Celebrezze, U.S. secretary of health, education and welfare, warned Wednesday of "the very serious and growing problems of youth unemployment."

Celebrezze, addressing the 57th annual convention of the American Vocational Association, said youth unemployment was a major factor in the "great and urgent American need" for "many more jobs to keep up with the snowballing effects of population growth, automation and technological advances."

He told the 3,000 delegates that "although present employment is at a record high of more than 70-million, this is not good enough."

Regarding youth unemployment, Celebrezze called for "the reaching of our children in the earliest grades so that they understand that school is a place where they belong and that learning is important to the future."

Dr. Benjamin C. Willis, general superintendent of schools in Chicago, received the vocational association's top award for "many years of outstanding, vigorous and effective support of vocational education."

The award is given to "a person who has made an outstanding contribution to all phases of vocational education."

Aid Bill Slowed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—In another shift in plans Wednesday, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D. Mont., senate majority leader, put off a final action on the compromise 3.6-billion-dollar foreign aid bill.

Mansfield told a reporter the bill, on which a vote was tentatively scheduled for Friday in order to take up other legislation.

Solons Deny Leadership Change Eyed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—A report that the two aging congressional leaders next in the line of presidential succession plan to step down so younger men can take their places drew angry denials Wednesday.

When a reporter at a news conference asked Speaker of the House John W. McCormack, D., Mass., whether he plans to give up his leadership post, he flared up.

"I am amazed you would ask such a question. Is there no limit of decency?" he replied.

McCormack, who will be 72 next week, began to stammer angrily from the room after his reply and suddenly turned and declared: "I was elected speaker and I'm going to remain speaker."

The report that 86-year-old Sen. Carl Hayden, D., Ariz., plans to relinquish his post as senate president pro tempore was scotched by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana as not possessing "a scintilla of truth."

"These reports should be seen as they are—absolutely without any responsible foundation," Mansfield said in a statement.

A columnist had circulated a report, which also was broadened, that Hayden might step aside to let Mansfield take his place as presiding officer of the senate, with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., now assistant Democratic leader, moving up to succeed Mansfield.

The reports, Mansfield said, "in my opinion seek to bring about a discord and disunity within the Democratic party and its leadership in the senate which does not and will not exist."

When President Johnson succeeded the slain President John F. Kennedy, leaving the nation without a vice president, this put McCormack as speaker next in line of succession with Hayden behind him.

As for Hayden, Mansfield said Johnson is "proud of the fact that Sen. Hayden is the president pro tempore of the senate and has given him full and complete confidence."

Hayden has been added by Johnson to those invited to his weekly meetings with Democratic congressional leaders.

"So far as I am concerned, and I am sure I speak for the entire membership," Mansfield said, "the senate has never elected a more capable and respected president pro tempore. And this body, to its last member, needs no other and wants no other."

Budget for Lincoln Fair Is Proposed

SHOSHONE, Dec. 11 — The proposed budget of $9,673.30 for the 1964 operations by the Lincoln county fair board will be presented to county commissioners for the approval at the January meeting.

The board lists $3,250 as necessary fair operations, $700 to enlarge the wash rack and building new bleachers on the grounds; $250 for construction of railings in the women's and 4-H display buildings, $600 for painting the barn and interior of the women's and 4-H buildings.

The boards asks $350 for repair of one roof and interior of all buildings; $300 for improvement to riding club grounds; $500 for proposed lighting program, $1,000 for labor for care and maintenance of grounds, $2,000 for construction of a new barn and $1,017.30 for rebuilding the interior of the cinder block building.

Balance from this year's expenses is $3,987.30 and anticipated revenue is set at $6,000. This comes from taxes and for charges and gifts for fair operations.

Tax receipts for the past year were $6,183.05, with an amount of $289.50 received in 1962 accounts, $28.50 from fair book sponsors, $400 from the school district for their share of the caretaker's salary (for use by the school of the grounds and facilities), $360 from the city of Shoshone for caretakers salary, $129.10 for 4-H awards from donors, $85 for display and concession booth fees, $7.46 from miscellaneous receipts for ribbons, etc., and $264.17 on 1963 accounts receivable.

Disbursements of the past year were $5,198.76, for all phases of work connected with the fair board, including fair operations, awards, improvements at the building, office expenses, caretaker's fees, maintenance and insurance.

The only major improvements listed during the year was for repair to the riding club grounds, at a cost of $200. However, over the past 10 years, considerable construction and improvement was done on the fair grounds, from building to barns and outside booths.

The fair board is appointed in January of each year by county commissioners and serve without pay.

Rail Robbery Suspect Had Cash Cache

ROY JOHN JAMES ... known as "The Weasel."

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP) — Roy John "The Weasel" James, 21st suspect arrested in Britain's great mail train robbery, had more than 12,000 pounds ($33,600) in his possession when he was caught after a rooftop chase, police testified in court Wednesday night.

James, a bearded man with close-cropped hair, was ordered held for further hearings next week. He faces two charges of theft. He takes two charges of robbery which netted 2,262,747 pounds ($7,354,891).

Detective Chief Supt. Thomas Butler, head of Scotland Yard's flying squad, told how James was arrested after the chase in the fashionable St. John's Wood section of London Tuesday night. James ran along the roof as officers were breaking into his apartment.

Butler said he asked James where he was on Aug. 7-8, the night the mail train was robbed on a lonely stretch of track near Linslade.

The superintendent said James replied: "Nobody can remember that far back. One thing for sure, I was not on that farm. I have never been."

James was referring to Leathemside farm, which the train gang used as a hideout after their raid.

Asked what he was doing with more than 12,000 pounds in his possession, James was said to have replied: "You don't need me to tell you blokes anything about that, surely."

It was noted 344 persons attended the county Farm Bureau convention banquet and that Dansk Martens, Buhl, was elected county Farm Bureau vice president.

Waldo Martens reported on a proposed amendment for youths between the ages of 21 and 25 being supported by their parents could hold their Farm Bureau insurance without having to take out Farm Bureau membership.

He also gave a resume of the state Farm Bureau convention held recently at Pocatello.

A potluck dinner preceded the meeting with Mrs. Sedivy, chairman, in charge of arrangements.

Support for Lodge Unconcerns Rockefeller

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP) — Partisans of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller swore Wednesday that they are unworried by the newest threat on the political horizon, namely: "Nary a furrow" was the reply. "This kind of effort requires time, organization, work, people, money."

That a slate of delegates favoring Henry Cabot Lodge for the Republican presidential nomination may be entered in New Hampshire's primary on March 10, first in the nation. "Are your brows furrowed?"

POPE GIVEN STAMPS VATICAN CITY, Dec. 12 (AP) — The U.N. food and agriculture organization has presented Pope Paul VI an album containing stamps issued by 150 nations in support of the organization's freedom from hunger campaign.

He said he could see no sign of this combination forming behind Lodge.

Since there is supposed to be a moratorium on politics until Dec. 22, when the official mourning period for the late President John F. Kennedy ends, the above-quoted Rockefeller man must remain nameless.

But not so Richard L. Portin, past president of the Manchester, N.H., Young Republican club. He said he has written former President Dwight D. Eisenhower asking that he encourage Lodge to enter the preference primary.

chester man, Victor Lenoux, said he put in a radiophone call to Ambassador Lodge in South Vietnam and got the impression Lodge would enter the primary "as soon as he receives the word from Eisenhower."

Horn Gagged SHEDIAC, N.B., Dec. 12 (AP) — A horn blows here at 9 p.m. to warn children under 14 it's time to be off the streets.

But the curfew is to be silenced by order of the Town Council. Some parents complained it awakened their children.

not likely to go forth, at least in written form. Eisenhower and Lodge had a talk when the latter was here recently for consultations. Then the word was leaked that Eisenhower had urged Lodge to make himself actively available for the nomination.

This upset backers of some of the other potential candidates, who include Rockefeller, Richard M. Nixon, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, Gov. George W. Romney of Michigan and others.

Despite disclaimers from Eisenhower associates, an impression won't die that the general was casting himself in the role of kingmaker.

candidate, "that General Eisenhower would stop interfering and go on his latest book ('Man, date for Change')."

An Eisenhower aide insisted that the former president's position had been misunderstood. "He is playing no favorites," an aide said. "He doesn't dislike any of the men prominently mentioned. He will assist the candidate the convention nominates."

"I wish," said one middle-echelon backer of one potential

Boise Man Starts Out on Trip To Test Country's Courtesy

BOISE, Dec. 12 (AP)—A Boise, Wyo. man set out Wednesday on a 10,000-mile journey to test the courtesy of 40 countries. He will travel from Denver to Terre Haute, Ind. From there he will follow U. S. highway 41 to Tallahassee, then return by way of U. S. highway 90 to Phoenix, Ariz., then north to Idaho, then south to Los Angeles, Calif., and back to Boise.

Williams Evans said he is heading for Tallahassee, Fla., and expects to walk unless motorists pick him up voluntarily. He plans to ask for overnight lodging at some ranches along the way.

"If people stop and offer to pick me up," Evans said, "I'll take the ride and will keep track of the rides I get."

But he said he will walk on the left side of highways and "won't bum for meals or rides."

He said he plans to travel along U. S. highway 30 to Cheyenne,

Kenya's First Leader Organized Mau Mau

By United Press International
 Jomo Kenyatta, independent Kenya's first prime minister, once sought through naked terrorism the political position he finally won in free elections.

It was only a decade ago that the bearded African leader—whose name means Burning Spear in his native Kikuyu tongue—was convicted of organizing the dreaded Mau Mau movement.

Kenyatta spent the next nine years in prison and detention, but he emerged to lead the African National Union party to victory in Kenya's national elections.

The Mau Mau was pledged to exterminate all whites in Kenya as well as the natives who remain and the orphaned son of a herdsman.

Kenyatta's arrest in 1952 until the terrorist organization was crushed in 1958, it took a fearful toll of both blacks and whites.

During the six year emergency, the Mau Mau killed 95 Europeans, 29 Asians and about 2,300 Africans. Security forces killed more than 10,000 of the terrorists and hundreds more were hanged.

In 1961, the man whom Kenya Gov. Sir Patrick Renshaw had denounced the year before as "the African leader to darkness and death" was freed of all restrictions. By then, the British already were working toward an independent Kenya under African rule.

Piercely proud of his tribal affiliation—Kenyatta is the grandson of a Kikuyu medicine man and the orphaned son of a herdsman.

Even he is unsure of the date of his birth. The nationalist leader says he is about 73, but he looks almost 10 years younger.

He was about 10 when he showed up at a Church of Scotland mission near Nairobi with a spinal ailment. It is said that an operation probably saved his life.

The missionaries baptized him Johnstone Kenyatta and trained him as a carpenter. He took his present name when he went to work as a clerk in Nairobi.

At the mission, according to one account of his life, he early showed a wild imagination. It was said of him he could spin yarns like a sailor.

But the grown man, next to Ethiopia's Haile Selassie, is the most physically impressive of all the African leaders.

Kenyatta has strong hands and tremendously powerful shoulders. His movements are graceful. His eyes slant somewhat, and he gazes out of them like a sleepy tiger.

He speaks slowly and deliberately. The faster his brain works, the slower his speech becomes, producing an almost hypnotic effect upon those who hear him. But all the time, his eyes move swiftly back and forth.

Kenyatta gives the impression of complete fearlessness. Since his election, he seems to have cultivated a "father figure" pose. He talks to his people with extreme gentleness, like a grandfather telling bedtime stories. But in anger he is fearsome. At those times, Kenyatta's eyes flash, his lips become taut, and he hunches his huge shoulders as if ready to spring at the object of his wrath.

Kenyatta began his career as a nationalist nearly 40 years ago.

In the 1920's he joined what became the Kikuyu central association and began agitating for reforms. A compelling speaker, he eventually became secretary of the association and in 1929 was sent to London to present tribal grievances over land and to appeal for a larger share in government for the Africans.

He visited Europe and Russia, then returned to Kenya but went back to London in 1931 on another mission. While in London he shared an apartment with Paul Robeson, controversial American singer.

Kenyatta remained in London for 15 years, studying anthropology and economics at the University of London and working on a farm near Sussex during World War II.

He married a white school teacher, Edna Grace Clark, in 1934. They had a son, Peter. Kenyatta left them when he returned to Kenya and married an African woman by whom he has two daughters.

After the war Kenyatta joined Kwame Nkrumah, now premier in a Pan-African movement.

In 1946 he returned to Kenya where he joined the Kenya African Union and was elected its president the following year.

Quints Will Probably Go Home Soon

ABERDEEN, S. D., Dec. 12 (AP)—The Fischer quintuplets, three months old next Saturday, probably will all be home for Christmas.

Arrangements are being made for two of the four girls to go home Saturday noon. James Andrew, the only boy, went home Nov. 30. The other girls should go home soon, too.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fischer, are acquiring more domestic help for their rented home in northeast Aberdeen.

James Andrew went home when he weighed 10 pounds, 5 ounces. He has been described by the family as "a very good baby."

The four girls, still in the hospital nursery, are growing. Latest hospital reports list Mary Ann's weight at 6 pounds, 13 ounces; Mary Magdalene 8-5; Mary Catherine 7-3 and Mary Margaret 8-1.

All are reported doing fine. The quint's father has returned to his job as a shipping clerk in a wholesale grocery warehouse here and at the same pay.

A financial windfall came from the sale of rights to exclusive stories and pictures. Mary Ann Fischer, the quint's mother, is picking up the family routine. Her mother, Mrs. Elmer Brady of Hecla, S. D., is helping her.

A new home promised by the city of Aberdeen is still in the planning stage.

SOLOMON KING

known from coast to coast and in Mexico as movie actor and television star Randy Lee (his stage name), will be guest speaker at the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship banquet at 8 p. m. Saturday at the Twin Falls American Legion hall. Reservations may be made by calling 733-2908. King has appeared on television with Dick Clark, Ed Sullivan and many others. He was raised an orthodox Jew, was recently converted to Christianity and is now using his talents to proclaim the gospel.

Mormons Plan World Fair Mural

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—A gigantic mural of Mormon history is being painted by two artists for the Mormon pavilion at the New York World's Fair, it was announced Tuesday.

A spokesman for the Mormon church exhibit said the mural would be placed in the gallery of the pavilion. The painting is half the length of a football field.

Artist Harold T. Kilbourn of Salt Lake City originated the mural and is being aided in its realization by Alexander Rosenfeld, noted portraitist and muralist. The murals span a 133-year period of Mormon history.

Among the scenes depicted will be the organization of the church in New York, the expulsion from Missouri, the building of Nauvoo, Ill., the martyrdom of Joseph Smith, the trek to the great Salt Lake valley, the building of the Salt Lake tabernacle and the Mormon temple, and the driving of the transcontinental railroad's final spike.

School Aid Bill's Impact Is Unknown

By The Associated Press
Idaho education leaders said Wednesday the $1,022,811 available to the state under the federal college construction aid bill approved by congress should provide more classrooms for Idaho schools.

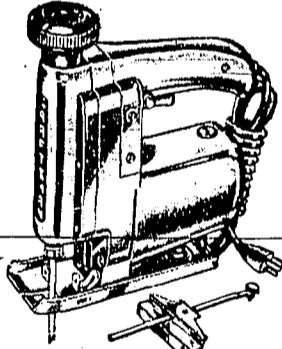

But they said further study will be needed to determine just what use can be made of it because of restrictions in the bill. Dr. D. R. Theophilus, president of the University of Idaho, said he doesn't know whether a multi-purpose classroom to be used by all departments would qualify. He described it as the school's greatest need.

A $10 student fee increase was authorized by the board of regents to pay for the building. The bill specifies that money can be used only for libraries, or classrooms designed specifically for teaching the natural or physical sciences, mathematics, foreign language or engineering, if the buildings promise to expand enrollment.

Included was $751,565 for undergraduate facilities in Idaho and $271,246 for public community colleges and technical institute facilities. D. F. Engelking, state superintendent of public instruction, said private institutions in Idaho may find the bill more helpful than the public universities, "but it would still be a help."

"I would like to see our higher institutions make all the use of it they can," he said. "We have no real knowledge how this will effect Idaho or the university until a study is made," said Theophilus. "Especially important will be the impact of amendments on the original bill, which we haven't had a chance to evaluate."

"The greatest problem for most colleges in recent years," said Theophilus, "has been securing adequate financing for academic and housing facilities. Most colleges have been at a serious disadvantage recently because of a lack of sufficient laboratory and classroom buildings."

Bears' Halas Named NFL Coach of Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—George Halas, 68-year-old pro football pro and hall of fame member whose Chicago Bears are close to another title, has been named coach of the year in the National Football League by an Associated Press panel of sports writers and sportscasters from the 14 league cities. The veteran owner-coach and his Bears need only to win or tie their last game Sunday with the Detroit Lions to clinch the Western conference championship. Two major victories over the defending champion Green Bay Packers are included in the Bears' 10-1-2 record.

Wally Lemm of the St. Louis Cardinals, a top Eastern contender into the final weeks, also drew solid support. So did Blanton Collier, the man who succeeded Paul Brown at Cleveland and was the coaching sensation of the first half of the season.

Buddy Parker, whose Pittsburgh Steelers overcame the problems of a difficult schedule that included Green Bay and Chicago as out-of-conference foes into a winner-take-all game with New York Sunday, was another contender.

Allie Sherman, winner in 1961 and 1962, drew support for another term for his job of handling the New York Giants after early season disasters against Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

But it was Halas' year in the NFL, for the old boy had been under heavy attack. They said his coaching methods were outmoded and his style was outdated. Critics called for a fresh coaching approach at Chicago.

Revamping his defense for simplicity, Halas built a contender and probable winner out of a team that finished third with a 9-5 record last season.

The Bears had primarily the same personnel last year, but the tougher new defense was the answer, along with a ballcontrol offense.

TOPS BOWLING GREEN
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 12 (AP)—Notre Dame found Bowling Green's basketball team by using sharpshooter Larry Sheffield as a feeder Tuesday night and the Irish won 79-65 in spite of a 41-point show by the Falcons' Howard Kornives.

Utahns Edge Oakley in Last Minute

OAKLEY, Dec. 12 — North Cache came up with four straight free throws in the last minute to nip the Oakley Hornets 47-37. The victory opened a four-game swing through Magic Valley for the Utah club. North Cache moves to Minico Thursday on Friday and Buhl to Saturday.

Anderson and Eissen pointed the charity losses that broke a 37-37 deadlock and spoiled a game-long rally by the Hornets.

North Cache burst into a 12-0 first quarter lead and held a slender two to five-point edge until midway through the final period. Then Oakley slipped in front 36-33, thanks to the hustling play of Ramon Rodriguez and Dennis Smith.

But North Cache caught up at 37-37 to set the stage for the free throws.

Magic Valley Teams Set 31 Games for Week-End; Jerome Opens Loop Slate

Magic Valley's biggest week-end of the season strikes Friday and Saturday with area high school teams participating in 31 games. Two games will count in conference standings while the remainder will still be "prep" games for the title races. Of the 26 high schools in Magic Valley, only eight got through the first week-end without falling at least once and one of these hasn't played yet. But that list will shrink by at least one as two undefeated clubs collide when Twin Falls takes on Buhl—the Indians making their first appearance.

The two conference games will find the Jerome Tigers, stunned in their opener, taking on the Mountain Home Tigers, who can count victories over Boise and Glenns Ferry so far. This will be the first game of the newly organized South Central Idaho league. The other, also coming Saturday night, will bring the Gooding State Redskins to Bliss for a Northside loop encounter.

Another Saturday night feature will find the highly-regarded Borah Lions moving into Minico. The complete Friday schedule finds Meridian moving into Jerome (0-1) while the unbeaten Gooding Senators (2-0) tangle with the Indians at Shoshone (1-1). Valley, which also won its first two games, will travel to Halley (1-1) while the Piler Wildcats (0-3) will entertain the Glenns Ferry Pilots (0-2).

Mountain Home sharpens up for their Saturday date at Jerome by hosting the Nampa Bulldogs, the same bunch that surprised the Tigers. Hagerman, holding two straight wins, will be at Wendell (0-2) while the Murtaugh Red Devils (0-1) will invade Kimberly. The home-standing Bulldogs hold a 2-1 record.

Raft River returns a visit to the Burley junior varsity in a preliminary to the Bobcat-North Cache game. The Bob Kittens nipped Raft River 52-47 in overtime in the season opener and Raft River has bowed twice more since then.

Hansen, breaking a 28-game losing streak by beating Bliss Tuesday night, has a chance to prove it wasn't a fluke as the Huskies pay a return visit to Bliss (1-2).

North Cache, in its third game of a mid-week swing, will be at Burley where the Bobcats are hoping to break into the win column after two defeats.

Following the feature of Mountain Home at Jerome, the Saturday slate holds out 16 top games. Wendell will try to even the score against the Senators when it goes to Gooding and North Cache winds up its tour by playing at Buhl.

Glenns Ferry will be at Valley and Meridian will slip across the river to test the Wildcats at Piler. Camas County puts its unbeaten boast on the line at Shoshone and Raft River is at Declo for an all-Cassia county squabble.

Castleford moves into Kimberly and Hansen will be at Hagerman. Borah, one of the state's tallest teams, will be at Minico and Bliss will host Gooding State.

Several of the teams also will be traveling out of the district: Friday evening, Richfield will be at Grand View and Dietrich at Bruneau. Carey is slated to appear in a two-night tournament at Leadore.

On Saturday, Richfield moves across to Bruneau while Dietrich is at Grand View. Burley leaves home to test Preston and Oakley has its only week-end game at Malad.

Browns Win Bidding War For Warfield

CLEVELAND, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Cleveland Browns of the National Football league signed Paul Warfield of Ohio State, their No. 1 draft choice, Wednesday. They plan to use the speedy back at either defensive half-back or a pass receiver.

The Browns won the battle for Warfield after a financial struggle with the Buffalo Bills of the American Football league.

The Bills dropped out of the competition Tuesday.

Warfield, a 6-footer who weighs 185 pounds, also was a sprinter and broad jump star on the Ohio State track team. He can run 100 yards in 9.6 seconds.

Terms of the contract were not announced, but Art Modell, president of the Browns, said he had offered considerably less than did Buffalo.

"We made an offer within the bounds of good business logic and without destroying team morale," said Modell.

He said the Browns dropped out of the competition for Don Shuckelford when the bidding against Denver "became ridiculous."

Shuckelford, a 250-pound tackle from the University of Pacific, was the Browns' fourth draft choice. He signed with Denver of the AFL.

Red Wings Spill Maple Leafs 3-1

TORONTO, Dec. 12 (AP)—Detroit's injured Red Wings got good performance from a couple of farm hands Wednesday night and spilled the Stanley cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1.

George Armstrong's goal, early in the middle period, tied it briefly at 1-1 for Toronto, but the Red Wings came back on a power play goal by Andre Pronovost and defenseman Ron Ingram's third period marker while each team was a man short.

Davidson Ends Ohio State Skein

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 12 (AP)—Ambitious Davidson shattered Ohio State's home court-victory streak of 50 games Wednesday night with a 95-73 basketball upset.

The Wildcats from North Carolina, shooting a sizzling 59 per cent for the game, opened up an 11-point bulge at intermission and were never headed.

The setback for the Buckeyes was their first since March 7, 1959, when Purdue won 93-87.

Davidson, scoring its fourth straight triumph, dominated the contest in every department.

Celtics Trounce St. Louis 104-95

BOSTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Johnny Havlicek sparked the Boston Celtics to a 104-95 victory over the injury-crippled St. Louis Hawks Wednesday night in a National Basketball association game.

It was Boston's ninth straight victory at home.

Havlicek scored 33 points. He started in place of Sam Jones, the Boston's top scorer who is nursing a twisted knee. Both Havlicek and K. C. Jones went the full distance, as did Bill Russell.

Royals Top Pistons

Wrestling

The Twin Falls Bruins will host the Piler Wildcats in the first home wrestling program of the season at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the high school gymnasium.

Piler has dropped one match while Twin Falls' first taste of action came in the Minico invitational tournament last week-end.

Rams Rally in Final Minute, Edge Minico

POCATELLO, Dec. 12 (AP)—Highland recorded its second consecutive victory, downing the Minico Spartans 48-43 Wednesday.

Highland now has a 2-1 cage record. Minico has lost both of its games.

The Rams had to halt a fourth quarter rally which cut the victors' margin to two points, 43-41 with a minute and a half to go. Five free throws by Highland in the final minute provided the triumph.

At Piedmont, Highland guard, hit consistently off Highland's shuffle offense, to register 18 points, tops for the evening.

Pacing the Spartan attack was Mike Manning, who bucketed seven of eight field goal attempts. Most of Manning's shots were jumpers from the left corner.

Ortiz-Lane Title Match Rumored

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Lope Sorreal, the Manila promoter who has been trying to sign lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz for a title fight, said Wednesday night that Ortiz may defend his crown soon against top-ranking Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

"I'm very disappointed that I couldn't get Ortiz to agree to defend the title against Flash Elorde in Manila," said Sorreal, who is the manager and father-in-law of the Filipino fighter. "I've been here since Nov. 29 and I think Ortiz and Bill Daly (Ortiz' adviser) have been giving me the run-around."

Bowl-Bound Teams Seek Scout Data

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Dec. 12 (AP)—The coaches of the two teams playing in the Camellia bowl Saturday for the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics football title have been staying up late watching movies.

Coaches John Gagliardi of St. Johns of Minnesota and Bill Nix of Prairie View A and M of Texas swapped game films. It provided each with the first look at the other man's team.

"They look real good," said Gagliardi Wednesday. But he said he was worried about the lack of advance information.

"This is the first time we have ever gone into a game learning about an opponent this late," he said. "It creates problems for both teams."

HEISMAN TROPHY WINNER Roger Staubach, Navy quarterback, poses with the award he received at a special luncheon in New York City Wednesday. The trophy is presented annually to the collegian considered the outstanding gridders in the nation. (AP wirephoto)

Staubach Expects to Be Better Next Year When He Learns About Passing

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Roger's answer to the question of a pro baseball career is a resounding "no." He played center field for the last season and hit .481 — was the same as for football.

"My thinking," he explained, "has always been along the lines of a Navy career."

Among the other things, Staubach discussed was the best team he played against this season, and the support he received from the entire Navy team.

He said Pittsburgh was the best team. "They gave us a hard time. I was on my back more in that game than any other."

As for the Middles, Staubach said:

"I can't say enough about the support they gave me. Tom Lynch would do anything for me on the field or off and I feel the same way about him. If I hadn't been getting that second block I'd be scrambled eggs."

Lynch, the Navy captain, and Coach Wayne Hardin accompanied Staubach to the Heisman awards dinner. They let Staubach monopolize the talking but Hardin had this to say:

"I think we have the finest four backfield men ever put together although I'll admit I never saw the Four Horsemen in action. Staubach is a stick of dynamite. Johnny Sal runs the 100 in 9.7 and can break up any game. Pat Donnelly is the finest fullback the Navy ever had. Skip Orr is our leading pass receiver."

"But," he emphasized, "I can't say too much about Roger."

Neither could his father, Robert Staubach.

"We only had one child," he said, "but the good Lord gave us a good one."

Rookie of Year Award for NFL Goes to Flatley

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Paul Flatley, rangy split end of the Minnesota Vikings, was named rookie of the year in the National Football league Thursday by an Associated Press panel from 14 league cities. The 6-foot, 1-inch, 187-pound former Northwestern star, ranked eighth among the top pass receivers in the league in the latest statistics. He had caught 51 passes for 867 yards and four touchdowns and was the only newcomer among the leaders.

The Vikings' scouting staff selected Flatley as the club's No. 1 draft a year ago at Chicago. A fullback as a sophomore, a running halfback as a junior and a flanker as a senior, Flatley was second among the ten receivers, topped only by Pat Richter, now of Washington.

"Paul has great hands and uses his head," said Coach Norm Van Brocklin recently. "He has everything but blazing speed."

"Flatley, 23, is concentrating on learning the pass patterns from the split end position. He has called himself a 500 per cent better receiver than he was last year."

John Mackey, Baltimore's 6 foot, 3 inch 220 pound tight end from Syracuse, a No. 2 draftee, also received mention from several of the 42-man committee of sports writers and sportscasters, three from each NFL city.

Don Brumm, defensive end of the St. Louis Cardinals who made him their No. 1 draftee from Purdue, was outstanding despite injuries. Ron Goodwin, Philadelphia offensive end from Baylor, also impressed the panel after a slow start due to injuries.

Lionel Aldridge, Green Bay defensive tackle from Utah State who replaced Bill Quinlan on the front line; Lee Roy Jordan, Dallas linebacker and All American from Alabama; running back Don Lisbon of San Francisco via Bowling Green and Daryl Sanders, Detroit via Ohio State, were others who drew backing.

Larry Benz, picked up by Cleveland as a free agent on the recommendation of Art Paschagian, his Northwestern coach, was mentioned for his play as a defensive back.

Levy Quits Grid Position At California

BERKELEY, Calif., Dec. 12 (AP)—Larry Levy announced his resignation Wednesday night as head football coach at the University of California.

In making his announcement to university officials, Levy said: "I have decided that it would be in the best interests of the university and all parties concerned to resign. My reasons are purely personal in nature."

"It has been a wonderful experience working at the university and I wish every success to the members of the team in the future."

Director of Athletics Pete Newell expressed surprise at the announcement.

"This is a very regrettable decision," he said. "The suddenness of this catches us off guard. Larry has put forth a tremendous amount of effort for the university and we regret that this has come to pass."

Newell did not mention any possible successor to the head football coach position.

Levy has just completed his fourth season with California's Golden Bears, who wound up the year with a 4-5-1 record.

On Nov. 16, 1962, the university's regents gave Levy a two-year contract and a raise in pay to an estimated $15-20,000.

Finkle Colt Fans Idolize Unita's Again

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12 (AP)—"In the only game we moved the ball yet couldn't score," said Coach Don Shula of the Baltimore Colts Wednesday.

The fight caused a lot of grumbling among the fans as the Colts suffered to a 3-5 record. How the way a team goes reflects on the quarterback, the matter centered on John Unita.

That'll all over now.

The Colts have won four of their last five games and in doing so scored 154 points. Unita has been percolating at a rate exceeding 1958 and '59, when the Colts were champions of the National Football League.

Completing 92 of 140 passes for 200 yards and a dozen touchdowns, Unita has zoomed from 10th to second place among the passers in five weeks.

Counting the earlier games, Unita has passed for a total of 4,138 yards, the most in his illustrious eight-year career. His completion percentage of 57.9 also is tops for him.

If Unita can complete 14 more in the final game Sunday against Los Angeles, he also will surpass his best previous season total of 229 in 1961.

Pirates See Battle at Third Base

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12 (AP)—"I'm the bonus baby Bob Bailey, veteran Gene Freese or rookie Gene Alley at third base for the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club next year?"

Manager Danny Murtaugh narrowed the selection to two Wednesday at a luncheon for freemen, television and radio broadcasters.

Freese and Bailey will have to battle it out," Murtaugh said. "Alley from all reports is to be recognized as an infield possibility."

The Pirates gambled on $200,000 bonus boy Bailey and a revamped infield in a major retooling of the team last year, but Bailey didn't live up to expectations.

Recently, General Manager Joe L. Brown plunked down a bundle for Freese.

In an analysis of his club, Murtaugh blamed the dismal showing in 1963 when the Pirates finished eighth on the defense.

Murtaugh pointed out, however, that the pitching staff showed signs of greatness and with Bob Friend, Bob Veale, Don Cardwell and Don Schwall and others the mound corps should perform equally as well in 1964.

Brown said he has talked to Freese a few times "but we've literally exhausted trade possibilities with most major league clubs."

Utah Breezes Past Texas A-M

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 12 (AP)—Texas A and M lost its second straight game in Utah Wednesday night losing to the University of Utah 98-71 in a game that was almost a carbon copy of its 94-71 loss to Utah State.

Utah's sporadic all-court press confused the Texas Aggies and forced numerous errors.

The Redskins even rebounded better than their taller foes. The Aggies are three inches taller on the average.

Utah took a quick lead and built it to a 15-3 margin in less than five minutes.

Texas A and M didn't come close after that.

Black Hawks Bomb New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (AP)—Stan Mikita's three goals and Bobby Hull's 20th goal of his National Hockey league career paced the league-leading Chicago Black Hawks to a 6-2 rout of the New York Rangers Wednesday night.

Ken Wharram scored twice for the Black Hawks while Phil Goyette and Don Marshall tallied for the Rangers. Mikita also collected an assist and moved to within two points, 39-37, of leader Hull in the scoring race.

Hull's goal, his 18th of the season, came on a slap shot from beyond the blue line, the puck bouncing past goalie Gil Villemure.

Bonneville Tops Idaho Falls

IDAHO FALLS, Dec. 12 (AP)—Bonneville played at mid-season Wednesday night and ridded a flat Idaho Falls basketball team 63-42 with ease.

Dale Peterson paced the Dees with 24 points, 10 of those coming in the second half to put Bonneville in front 37-20.

Idaho Falls was ahead only at the start 5-1, but Bonneville caught up at 11-11, went ahead 17-11 at the end of the first period and were never headed after that.

Giant Official To Visit T. F.

Jack Schwarz, farm director of the San Francisco Giants, will arrive in Twin Falls Thursday evening to acquaint himself with the local baseball operation.

Magic Valley will be affiliated with the Giants in the new all-rookie Pioneer league, which will open in four Southern Idaho cities in June.

Warren E. (Ben) Jewell, general manager of the Cowboys, said Schwarz will meet with the club directors Friday afternoon.

Schwarz is regarded as the major league figure who did the most to keep professional baseball in Southern Idaho after the class A circuit folded early this fall.

Canada Loop Left Out in Grid Signings

WINNIPEG, Dec. 12 (AP)—The battle for college stars by the National and American Football league is making it tough for Canadian pro teams to lure Americans across the border.

The two American leagues are making such big offers that the Canadian teams become casualties in the war of dollars.

"It's tougher than ever to get them," said Bud Grant, coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football league's Western conference. Grant just returned from an almost fruitless recruiting trip to the states.

"There we were," he said Wednesday, "prepared to spend more money than ever before and it seemed like we couldn't give it away."

Grant, assistant coaches John Michels and Joe Zaleski and General Manager Jim Ausley managed to sign two players on a just-completed talent hunt. They didn't name the players, but neither was high on the draft lists of the NFL or AFL.

Five others sought by the Blue Bombers signed with American teams.

Outbid by the American leagues, Grant said his club will try to get a line on lesser-known players with star potential through U.S. college coaches.

Ausley said, "The NFL has simply made up its mind to sign a good percentage of the top draft choices and they're prepared to spend any amount to do it."

"They're offering no-cut contracts to all of their top five draft choices. The bonus money is going as high as $15,000 to $20,000. We can't match that."

Nomellini to Take Field For Last Time

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12 (AP)—Leo (The Lion) Nomellini, one of pro football's toughest performers, will play his final game Saturday.

The San Francisco 49ers tackle will be playing in his 174th consecutive National Football league regular season game when his club goes against the Green Bay Packers.

"Yes, it's definite," the former Minnesota All-American said when asked about retiring. "It's been quite an era, hasn't it?"

Over his 14-year career in the NFL, the huge iron man has missed only two exhibition games. Until injured in the early practices this year, he had played in 237 straight games, pre-season and regular season.

One of the few players to win all-league honors both on offense and defense, Nomellini was selected for 10 of the 12 Pro bowl games.

Never shy in a game, big Leo did exhibit shyness when it came to age.

Back in 1960, when he was 36, he suggested the program give him the benefit of a couple of years. So, for the game against traditional rival Los Angeles that year, the program showed him as 28.

Now 39, Nomellini plans to give full time to his business enterprises.

Jet Quarterback Will Miss Game

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—Dick Wood, the New York Jets' injured quarterback, won't play against the Buffalo Bills Saturday and is probably through for the rest of the American Football league season, Coach Weeb Ewbank said Wednesday.

Wood was injured on his first scrimmage play in the 45-14 loss to the Bills at Buffalo last Sunday when ligaments of his left knee were stretched.

The lanky 200-pounder had led the AFL with 18 touchdown passes going into the game.

T.F. Shifts Lineup For Game With Buhl

Reshuffling in all three units topped practice sessions for the Twin Falls Bruins Wednesday as they prepared for their encounter with the Buhl Indians here Friday night. Coach Paul Ostyn moved three juniors and a senior into the starting unit for experimentation Wednesday.

Ostyn said his absence will hurt the Indians on the backboards. The Friday game will be the Bruins' only outing of the week-end.

"We had some very pleasant surprises and some disappointments," Coach Ostyn said in reviewing his club's opening victory over Filer. "Our shooting wasn't very good among the lettermen but (Steve) Humphreys and (John) Astorquia picked us up. We weren't as good on the boards as I expected us to be. George Smith and (Art) Vandenberg rebounded well but they were the only consistent ones."

The biggest reason for the reshuffling was the height problem. The junior class is considerably taller. The shakeup sacrifices some team speed for better rebounding balance.

"It wouldn't do any good to list a starting lineup now," Ostyn said. "I don't know myself who will be out there."

Twin Falls will find Buhl to be a club with good average height at around 6 feet, 2 inches. The game will be coach Gerald Harding's first at Buhl and if he holds to the tradition he established at Oakley, the Indians should be a fast-breaking ball club with a hustling defense. With five lettermen, the Indians should be improved over last year but still have to prove they can score consistently. Four to six-minute scoring droughts hampered them all last season. Buhl's Allen Dowd is a doubtful

Faux Scores Win In City League

Faux Cigar Store, Buhl, coasted to another easy victory during the three-game slate of the city adult recreation basketball league Wednesday night.

Faux, based on a fast break and 11 points each from Mel Hine and Doug Pember, ripped Reliance Credit 60-14. Gary Peterson topped the losers with four.

Mountain View Nursing home dropped Volco Builders 43-24 despite another sharp performance by Lefty Slater. Burks got 11 for the winners.

Tom Cunn and Floyd Blevins divided 16 points to lead the Sapphire lounge past the Times-News 37-22. Mike Green got seven Times-News points.

WHIPS KNICKS PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12 (AP)—With Johnny Kerr and Hal Greer collecting 56 points between them, Philadelphia's 76ers defeated New York 113-103 Wednesday night and pushed the Knicks deeper into the cellar of the National Basketball league's Eastern Division.

East Berlin Makes Pass Appreciated

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
BERLIN, Dec. 12 (AP)—There's no better way to appreciate your American passport than to pass through Checkpoint Charlie into communist East Berlin.

Checkpoint Charlie is the one opening in the Berlin Wall through which Americans and other foreigners are allowed to cross into the Red part of the capital city.

After showing your passport to U. S. soldiers in a small guardhouse-type building in the middle of the street, you walk past carbine-armed West German policemen into a kind of no-man's land.

This is when one reporter at least had a feeling of leaving reality behind.

Your course lies toward an opening in a shoulder-high barrier of concrete slabs. Once through, you move into a long wooden shed to the right of the street.

You are now on communist soil.

The first thing you come to is a window not unlike the $2 betting cage at a race track.

A skinny youth in a green uniform reaches for your passport and studies it wishfully for about a minute. He looks at you, then at the picture inside the passport.

You get a receipt for the passport and move along to sit down at a hard bench facing a row of small desks.

It's then that the uneasy thought passes through your mind—"was it a good idea to give up that passport?"

About 10 minutes go by. Officers in short-jacketed green uniforms stride importantly about, their knee-high black boots squeaking.

Then an elderly woman, also in uniform, calls your number and you step forward.

She, too, studies the passport and in labored English asks you to produce any money you have on you. Out of your pocket you dig a collection of U. S. dollars and coins and West German marks and pennings.

You give her a precise count of your money. She enters it on a form. Then she asks if you have a camera, and what type. That, too, goes on the form.

Again, your passport disappears into an inner office and again you wait. In about five minutes you get it back, and you're free to go on.

If you want to buy anything in East Berlin, you have to stop by another window and exchange your German or U. S. money for East German currency.

With your passport safely in your pocket, you ball up the receipt and throw it aside.

Opening a door at the other end of the long shed, you stroll a zigzag path through a series of barriers and at last you are at the final one—a red and white striped pipe.

A soldier in a long brown coat and peaked cap reaches for your passport. He stares inside. He examines the form made out by the woman in the shed. He flips the pages, looking for something

AMERICAN AUTHOR John Steinbeck peers across the Berlin wall, background, with binoculars during his visit to the border with East Berlin at Checkpoint Charlie in West Berlin Wednesday. The 61-year-old Nobel prize winner at one point defied red guards and stepped across the white line which marks the border. He is on a two-month European tour which has included a stop in Moscow. (AP wirephoto by cable from Berlin)

He can't speak English, you can't speak German. He gestures. The dawn breaks. He wants that little receipt you threw away. You gesture to show what you did with it. He shakes his head firmly, gives you back your passport. You can't go through.

Back you trudge, searching the ground. You find the scrap of paper and carry it back to the guard.

You're ready—but now there's something else.

The guard looks puzzled. He summons another soldier and they exchange guttural words.

Once again, the light breaks through. He's wondering where your camera is. You take it out of your pocket—that's it, all right.

Now everything is in order. He hands you your passport, which you place carefully in an inner pocket.

The guard salutes, says "danke schon," and lifts the red and white pipe.

After hours of wandering around East Berlin, watching the shabbily dressed people and poking around in drab, cramped shops, you are ready to return to West Berlin.

Again you approach the barrier. You show your passport to a guard, a new one. He lets you through and waves you toward another building, a duplicate of the shed you visited on your way into East Berlin.

Here, the procedure is a bit less cumbersome.

But there are more people waiting. One of them is a thin youngster wearing metal-framed glasses. He wants everybody to know where he comes from—in the belt of his jacket he's jammed an outside Union Jack.

It's dusk now as you pick your way toward brightly lit Checkpoint Charlie.

You pass wordlessly by an East German soldier, a sub-machine gun across his back.

You cross the line into free Berlin.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, Dec. 13 — Born today, you have a sense for beauty in all its forms — a sense which may be expressed in a number of ways — art, music, literature, the theater, etc. And though you may make a career of none of these, one of them will surely have a big place in your life, for through it you will strive to perfect your in-born vision of all that is good.

You have an exceptionally acute sense of analysis, and understand people sometimes even better than they do themselves. Further, you know how to adapt theory to practice, a knowledge that should give you a quick step up the ladder of success, no matter what your objective may be. Only take care that in your great idealism you do not unintentionally sow the seeds of dissatisfaction through never being satisfied with what you attain!

You are not the type to live alone and like it, and should such circumstances prevail that you do not live in the midst of your own family group, you will be extremely active socially, with hosts of friends of both sexes, seldom wanting for company or activity. Indeed, on this score you might make the effort to seek your own company more often, since a little quiet time alone might enlarge your appreciation of self!

Among those born on this date are: Gustav Flaubert, French novelist; Frank Sinatra, singer, actor; Erasmus Darwin, English physician, scientist, poet.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Drivers Warned of Added Dangers in Winter Season

With the winter season here Magic Valley motorists are warned to be extra careful when driving in bad weather and on slick roads.

Lieut. M. J. Bays, Jr., supervisor of the fourth district, Idaho state police, notes this time of year usually is marked by tragic automobile crashes and "most of these could be prevented if everyone could simply slow down and drive with caution."

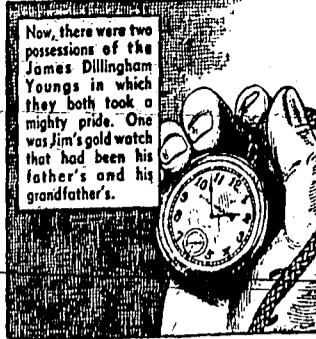

"This also is the time of year when windshields get frosted or fogged up," Bays said.

He explained, "Driving with windows all frosted over or fogged up is like running along the edge of a cliff blindfolded. One obstacle, one deviation in that path ahead could spell disaster. So always clear your windows completely before trying to save your life."

Bays added several Magic Valley motorists have been cited for driving with their windshields frosted over and seeing out only through a small peephole.

Another hazardous obstacle to traffic is ice on the highway, commonly known as "black ice." Bays said throughout the winter months there probably will be hundreds of black ice spots on highways and county roads throughout Magic Valley and all drivers should use caution when driving over the ice.

"Now is a good time to get into the habit of leaving more distance between your car and the one ahead—just in case your car hits some black ice and starts sliding," Bays said. "It could completely before trying to save your life."

Now, there were two possessions of the James Dillingham Youngs in which they both took a mighty pride. One was Jim's gold watch that had been his father's and his grandfather's.

The other was Della's hair. And now it fell about her, rippling and shining like a cascade of brown waves.

Once she faltered for a minute and stood still while a tear or two splashed on the worn red carpet. And then she did it up again, nervously and quickly.

First Lady Visits Youths In Hospital

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson went on her first official good-will mission as First Lady Wednesday, keeping an appointment of Mrs. John F. Kennedy to hand out toys at a C. General hospital.

She made a tour of children's wards, wishing the small patients a merry Christmas, responding to requests for her autograph with her trinitite "L.B.J." and playing a gracious Santa.

She told the little patients, some in wheel chairs, she hoped they'd get better by Christmas. Mrs. Johnson made two brief speeches to let the children know Mrs. Kennedy had been looking forward to coming "before everything happened" and had "suggested that I might fill the date."

Office Open

SHOSHONE, Dec. 11—During the 10-day vacation of Mrs. Hazel Haddock, city clerk, the office is being kept open by Mrs. Eldon Gehrig.

Mrs. Haddock has gone to California to visit relatives.

North Side Canal Firm Slates Tour

VERONA, Dec. 13 — A tour of the main canal of the North Side Canal company will be held Wednesday, Dec. 18 if the weather permits.

Douglas Finkelnburg, general manager, said the tour is for the board of directors and any interested stockholders. The purpose is to review the work completed during last winter's rehabilitation work program and inspect the program for this coming winter.

The group will meet at 9 a.m. Wednesday at the canal office. The tour will then go to the east end of the county. A stop will be made at the controlling works to inspect major repairs that have been completed.

From there the group will proceed down the main canal and tour the area where improve-

Examine Rolls

SHOSHONE, Dec. 12 — Lincoln county commissioners are meeting as a board of equalization on the personal migratory livestock tax rolls. The third successive meeting as such will be next Monday at the courthouse. Justice of the Peace W. L. Austin reported having collected $543.61 in fines and fees the past month.

Months were made last year, as well as the work planned for this winter.

Because of the rough terrain it will be necessary for those interested in making the tour to drive pickup trucks or high-centered vehicles.

Luncheon arrangements will be made at Hazelton and Eden. Those planning to attend are asked to notify the office by Tuesday.

Finkelnburg extended an invitation for all interested stockholders to attend the tour.

Budge Tempted to Run Again for House Job

By KEN ROBISON
BOISE, Dec. 12 (AP)—The lure of a place on the powerful house rules committee is keeping Judge Hamer Budge of Boise interested in a possible bid for his old congressional seat in 1964.

The district court judge, a former five-term congressman, is one of three Republicans considering a try for the GOP nomination. A fourth, Assistant Atty. Gen. Keith Schofield, has already announced.

The others are State Sen. Dick Smith, R., Madison, a wheat farmer who offers the only potential new face in the congressional race, and Orval Hansen, Idaho Falls.

Smith, Schofield and Hansen are interested in seeing what the 62-year-old Budge will do. He says he will make his decision shortly after Jan. 1.

Rules is considered the most powerful committee in the congress. Budge would have first chance at any Republican vacancy if he were elected. He has been advised that Rep. Elmer J. Hoffman, R., Illinois, does not plan to run again, leaving a vacancy he could fill.

Republican congressional leaders have indicated they would like to see Budge on the committee because they know from his former record how he would stand on important issues. Rep. Charles Halleck, R., Ind., house Republican floor leader and a close friend of the Idaho man, is believed to be urging Budge to make the race.

Budge says the possible rules committee assignment is the only reason he would consider it. He is the only Idahoan ever to sit on the committee, and was the only member from west of the Mississippi.

Budge would also be in line for a place on appropriations, another important committee.

He believes that Rep. Ralph Hardin, D., Ida., has hurt his chances for reelection with criticism of Rep. John Saylor, R., Pa., ranking Republican on the interior committee, and former secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

The other potential candidates are also weighing the possible effects of Harding's criticism of Benson, an apostle of the LDS church.

There are 154,000 members of the church in Idaho, most of them in the second district.

Harding complained that Benson was lending the prestige of his church to the John Birch society, and its founder, Robert Welch. Harding is also a member of the LDS church.

Some Republican members in eastern Idaho who formerly would not actively oppose him, are reported now willing to work for Harding's defeat.

However, some Republicans believe the possible significance of the Harding-Benson disagreement has been overemphasized. Backers have listed as one of Harding's assets that he is willing to speak his mind without fear of the consequences.

And even some who think the Benson speech hurt him, still regard Harding as a candidate who will be hard to beat.

Observers agree that some of the reaction among church members was nullified by his appearance in Boise last month of Reed Benson, son of the former agriculture secretary. Their point is that the younger Benson went too far in trying to convince people that Harding acted contrary to church policy in criticizing an apostle.

Benson's statements brought a denial from the church hierarchy that apostles are above criticism when they spoke out.

It was also apparent that the younger Benson, a John Birch society organizer, was trying to give the impression that the church favored Birch society views. In doing so, he gave credence to the point Harding was making.

Harding defeated Budge by a narrow margin in an upset in 1960. Harding was also expected to lose in 1962 until shortly before the election.

Republicans concede that President Lyndon Johnson's appeal in the West could make it hard for GOP congressional candidates to win that it would have been with the late President Kennedy as the Democratic candidate.

Smith should win the support of Republicans who want to see a new face in the contest. He has the backing of many GOP legislators.

The decisions of Hansen, Smith and Budge will hinge to a degree on the amount of support they can claim in the next few months. The deadline for filing declarations of candidacy

News of Record

Twin Falls Justice Court
Henry G. Knoepfel, 356 Filer avenue west, forfeited $15 bond for failure to appear. Melvin I. Gresky, Buhl, fined $3 for failure to transfer registration.

Twin Falls Police Court
John Angerbauer, Twin Falls, fined $7 and costs and assigned three violation points for failure to be reasonable and prudent.

GOODING COUNTY
Michael H. Barnett, Jerome, $25 and costs, with $10 suspended, for hunting water fowl after hours.

BLAINE COUNTY
A marriage license was issued to Joe Elchelberger and Myra Williams, both Bellevue.

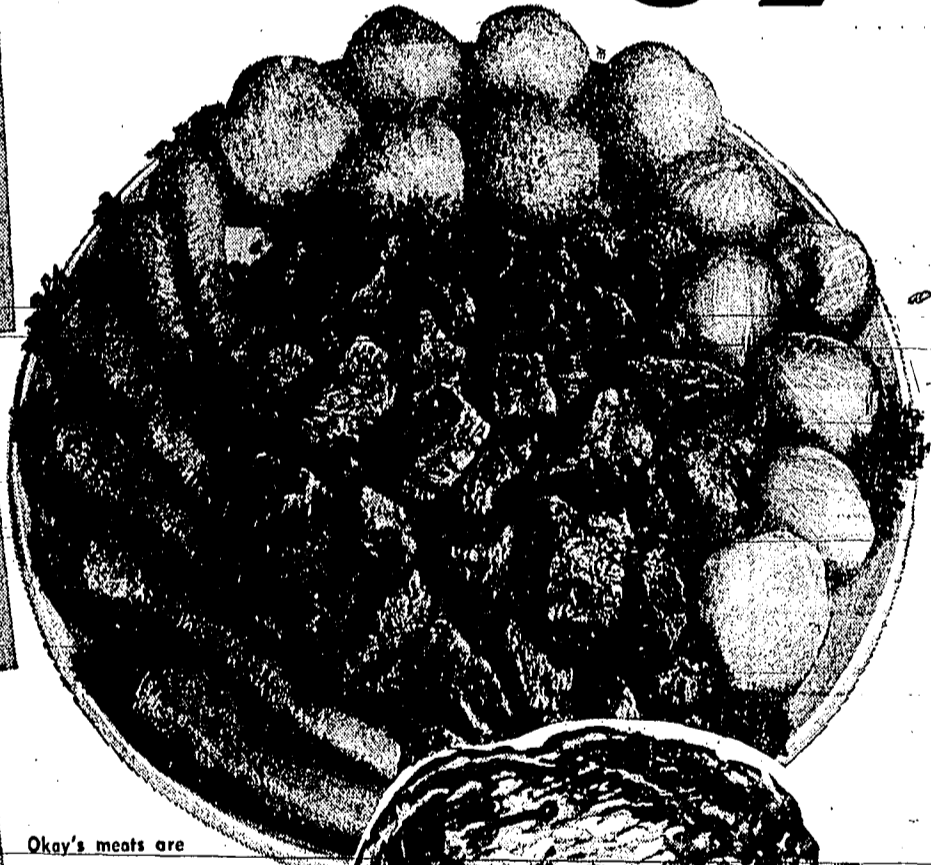

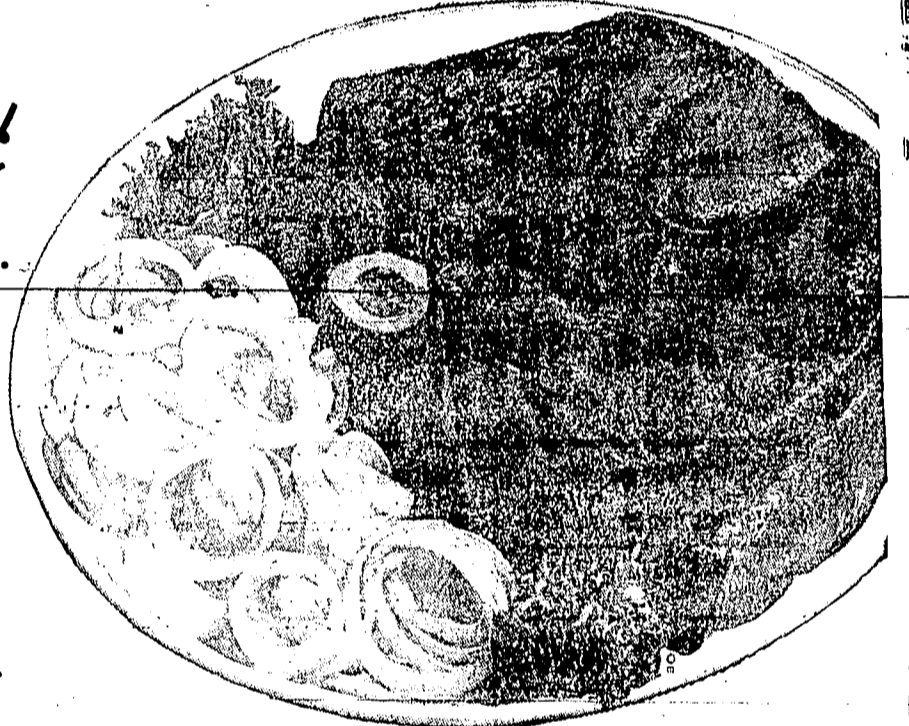

In May 7, Republicans will choose two, or possibly more, candidates for the nomination at their June convention.

HOLIDAY FUDGE

IN FIVE MINUTES

No Beating! No Thermometer! No Softball Test!
Makes About 2 Pounds

- 1/2 cup (small can) undiluted Morning Milk
- 1 1/2 cups Sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon Salt
- 1 1/2 cups (about 16 medium) Kraft/Min. Marshmallows
- 1 1/2 cups (1 1/2 6-ounce packages) Semi-sweet Nestle's Chocolate Morsels
- 1 teaspoon Vanilla

Combine Morning Milk, sugar and salt in saucepan over medium heat. Bring to boil, and cook 4 to 5 minutes, stirring constantly. (Start timing when mixture starts to "bubble" around edges of pan.) Remove from heat. Add marshmallows, chocolate and vanilla. Stir vigorously for 1 minute (or until marshmallows are completely melted and blended). Pour into 8-inch square buttered pan. Garnish with nuts, if desired. Cool. Cut in squares.

FOR NUT FUDGE: Add 1/2 cup chopped walnuts, pecans or peanuts to fudge mixture before pouring into pan.
