Crowley said Utah educators have exhausted every peaceful possibility of obtaining better pay for Utah public education.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 18 (AP) — Gov. George D. Clyde, of Utah, was hanged in effigy at Utah State High School in Salt Lake City today.

Home of the students did it as students came to school, but school officials took the dummy down.

John C. Evans, executive secretary of the Utah Education Association, which called the two-day recess, told teachers to ignore the court orders unless they were individually served.

At issue are long-standing teacher demands for more money for education of the state's 570,000 pupils.

Can Deport

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP) — On a 4-4 tie vote, the supreme court upheld today a decision that Herman P. Marks, known as "The Butcher" for his role in the execution of Fidel Castro in Cuba, could be deported from the United States as an alien who entered this country without proper documents.

Marks was born in Milwaukee, Wis., in 1921, and became a lieutenant of Castro after the overthrow of the Batista government.

The justice department said Marks was in charge of the execution of numerous persons at La Cabaña prison.

He was notified in Havana of his loss of nationality, but in 1959 he entered this country at El Paso, without any immigration visa or other document.

The U. S. circuit court in New York ruled he could be deported as an alien.

Clergymen, Laymen Gather at Capitol and Plead for Rights

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP) — Marching two by two in a silent, prayerful procession, clergymen and church laymen—white and Negro—from 40 states marched to the steps of the Capitol today to urge quick passage of a strong civil rights bill.

They paused on the way for a prayer on the steps of the supreme court, where the 10-year-old decision to end school segregation was praised.

The demonstration came as the senate began its 11th week of debate on the measure, stalled by southern oratory.

The Very Rev. Francis B. Sayre, dean of the Episcopal Washington cathedral, led a prayer service before the march began at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, two blocks east of the Capitol.

Some 200 persons, representing states as far away as Alaska, took part in the demonstration, sponsored by the commission on religion and race of the National Council of Churches.

Sayre, in the brief service, said civil rights and particularly school segregation, was one of the most important moral issues of our time.

That the group held an hour-long briefing session to plan the day. They also heard from staff assistants to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D., Minn., and Sen. Thomas H. J. Smith, R., Calif., floor leaders for the civil rights bill.

John Stewart, Humphrey's legislative assistant, said he felt the civil rights bill "is in the hands of God."

Justice Byron H. White wrote a dissenting opinion, in which Justices Tom C. Clark and John M. Harlan joined.

The conviction was that of Winston Mauts in New York. Mauts and a co-defendant, Jesse Colson, pleaded innocent to narcotics charges and were released on bail.

Colson invited Mauts to take a ride in the car. The agent in another car, was enabled by the electronic device to pick up the conversation between Colson and Mauts.

Weather, Temperatures

MAGIC VALLEY—Variable high clouds and warmer today and Tuesday. Low tonight 35-45. High Tuesday 57-73. Today and Tuesday, low tonight 35-45. High Tuesday 57-73. Today and Tuesday, low tonight 35-45. High Tuesday 57-73.

Weather Summary
The latest weather charts show pressure higher over the Intermountain region with a weak low pressure center off the British Columbia coast. High pressure over the Pacific will weaken Tuesday but after midweek more vigorous systems are expected to sweep across from the ocean. In the meantime temperatures under fair skies will rise with daytime readings in the 70s to lower 80s over valley sections today. Tomorrow and Wednesday nighttime temperatures will be in the 40s and 50s with a few showers to the mid 50s over the upper Snake and the upper 30s to mid 40s elsewhere. Minimum temperatures are expected to show slight rises Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

FIVE-DAY FORECAST
The pressure pattern is expected to change slightly during the next five days with lower pressure becoming more pronounced along the West Coast. This pattern will allow Pacific disturbances to swing inland over California and the central Intermountain region during the latter half of this week.

Temperatures through Saturday are expected to average from normal over eastern and central Idaho valleys to about two to four degrees below normal over the Snake and lower Malheur valleys. A warming trend will prevail through the first portion of this week before giving way to cooler weather during the latter portion. Temperature normals for this five-day period are Boise 73-45, Coeur d'Alene 71-43, Twin Falls 67-41 and Burley 67-41.

Forecasters in the face of scattered showers and a few thunderstorms are likely after midweek with precipitation totals ranging from 10 to 25 of an inch. However, localized shower amounts may exceed these limits. Rainfall will not be general enough to provide adequate soil moisture in all agricultural sections so irrigation scheduling should be made by the end of the week. Some irrigation will be needed around 75 to 75 per cent of possible with cloudiness increasing after Wednesday. Winds will average near normal with quiet morning and evening hours into mid week but the tendency will be for more wind during the latter portion of the week. Soil temperatures will remain at favorable levels with average depth to eight inch depth in the 60s.

The agricultural weather outlook this week is for ideal conditions to prevail into midweek followed by less favorable conditions toward the end of the week. Temperatures will remain near seasonal marks this week with prospects for nighttime readings to remain above freezing. Last week was the first complete week this season that was near or above normal with field work with these excellent conditions expected to hold good through Wednesday at least. Field work such as planting, cultivation and thinning and land preparation for beans will have mostly favorable conditions this week. Stock will respond to better feed conditions as growth is expected to continue making good gains.

TEMPERATURE AND PRECIPITATION

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON, May 18—Congress, which gets all the tough ones, will deserve a national vote of confidence if it comes up with a solution to the school prayer problem that is both constitutional and palatable to the majority of the electorate. Right now it is lost in a jungle of partisan maneuvering in which both sides can't prove their cases.

First, the supreme court has ruled simply that it is a "violation" of the first amendment to prescribe a school prayer. The argument now is whether congress should offer an amendment to the Constitution to make voluntary prayers possible.

CONTRADICTIONS—Some distinguished citizens including Walter E. Craig, president of the American Bar Association, have opposed such an amendment as a dilution of the freedom guaranteed in the first amendment. It is their view that a government cannot be trusted to sponsor religious worship. It is a step further and control that is really. That is what the authors of the Constitution, aware of the abuses of the era's established religions, sought to prevent.

But there are the paradoxes. The Declaration of Independence speaks of "Nature's God," and of all men being "endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights." Every time the supreme court sits publicly, God is exhorted to "save this honorable court." The phrase, "In God We Trust," is inscribed on our coins and currency, and the President wears his oath of office with the words "So help me, God."

CHILD OVERLOOKED—Supporters of the amendment also note quite properly, that it would not be an attack on the court, but a reassertion of the rights of congress to express its will in legislation. After all, they point out, congress still has the law, and the court merely interprets the Constitution and rules on what a given law means.

In all this legalistic infighting, however, there seems insufficient consideration for the person involved—the child. It is our children who matter, and yet neither side puts enough emphasis on this point.

Probably it would be beneficial to a child brought up to believe in God to be reminded of his Creator every time the school day begins. In all men is the right since the first amendment "guarantees" the "free exercise" of religion. But young atheists and agnostics have rights, too, and it would infringe these rights to force them to take part in a prayer offensive to their beliefs.

SHUN SOLITARY CRUSADES—Great emphasis is put on the word "voluntary" by proponents of a legalized school prayer. They note that a child would have the right to walk out of the schoolroom during daily prayers. In the cold language of law, this is the freedom of choice. Children like to belong to the group, and they shun making themselves conspicuous. Few children care to stage solitary crusades for causes unpopular with the majority.

Therefore, for the child's sake, congress should be sure to work out a compromise. A voluntary prayer session in the school auditorium every morning might be the answer. Then no one would have to know whether a child skipped it because he was an atheist or because he was trying to memorize one in particular for his history chapter on the era of good feeling.

OPEN TO INTERPRETATION

Panama and the United States appear to have reached a satisfactory formula to end their two-month-old dispute. The canal is to be restored immediately, and discussions will start within 30 days on problems arising out of differences over the canal treaty.

It is of semantic maneuvering is involved in the dispute, and has caused the court to intervene in the future. Apparently Panama persists in believing that the U. S. has agreed to negotiate a new treaty. The U. S., on the other hand, contends that it has merely agreed to "negotiate differences" and that any new treaty is likely a new treaty will come out of such talks.

By drawing up an agreement that can be interpreted two ways, the two nations have achieved a face-saving position for both, and can now get on with settling the differences.

The U. S. did gain an important goal. That is resumption of relations between the two countries immediately. President Johnson had insisted on this.

The disagreement has dragged on too long. Let us hope that the record here is not checked now, and that Panama and the U. S. can negotiate—whether it be merely differences or a new treaty—in a spirit of good will.—Wichita Eagle.

CALIFORNIA YARDENSE

An editorial in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner on the coexistence of Idaho water is most revealing and illuminating.

California, the editorial states, should seek not only surplus water from the Snake River in Idaho but surplus water from the Columbia river as well.

The Los Angeles newspaper, of course, handles the counter arguments deftly with this profundity:

"The people of Idaho will say, but we will need this water ourselves in the future." The people of the Columbia river basin will say the same.

"But the water chiefs of California, and probably all of the other states of the great Southwest, will say to you:

"If that time ever comes, we'll give it back to you."

Yes, spoon by spoon.—Idaho Falls Post-Register.

SECOND GUESSESS

You have all heard about second guesses but they have nothing on some of our head folks down at Washington that can outguess any three individuals we have ever known.

From newspaper stories we gather that some of the folks down there have a panacea for just about every known ailment of the body politic. They think nothing of handing out millions for the cure of things never heard about in the past but are now claimed to be very necessary for the preservation of the masses. Thus—that's only for voters' consumption.

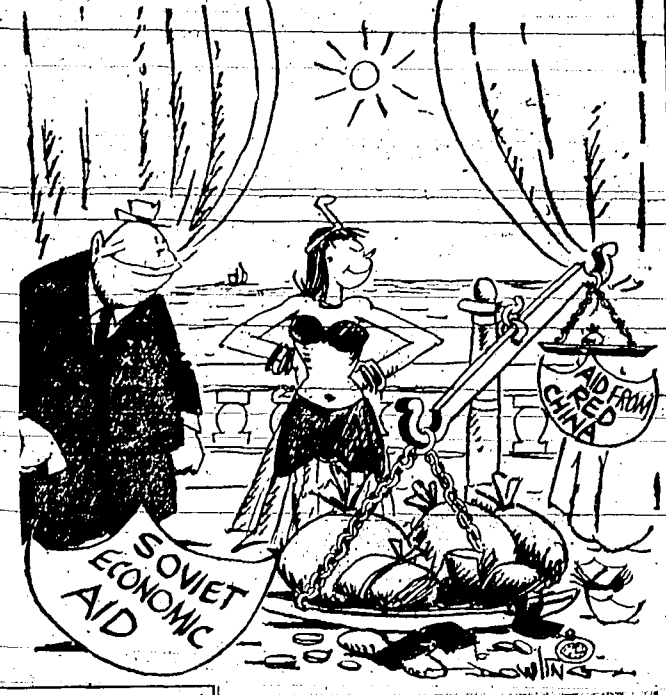

They seem to think that every new fantastic scheme for solving a problem is more valid for their side. Someday, but not in our time, the public business may be run on sound business principles. We never heard of any country or individual that prospered by deficit spending.—Medina (Ohio) Leader-Post.

A DAWNING—OR A DARKNESS?

A twilight time has come upon us and men of affairs are using Americans to look at the world as it is, and the world as it is, and our country must view these changes realistically in order to act realistically abroad.

In one way or another, the dogma of political religion was preached by President Johnson, by Ambassador Stevenson to the United Nations, by Defense Secretary McNamara, and by Senator Fulbright, chairman of the foreign relations committee. What they had to say—and why they said it at this time—deserves thoughtful attention for the doctor who seeks to shape the foreign policy this country will be committed to practice.—National Observer.

THRIVE ON IT!

The older a person gets, the less chance he has of understanding how a young person manages to stuff all sorts of things in his tummy and not turn up his toes.

Take our teen-ager son, for instance. Here's just a partial list of the things I know he consumed in the course of one day:—a small box of cereal, two quarts of milk, half a loaf of bread, half jar of jelly, half of peanut, hamburger, two milkshakes, half a fried chicken, mound of mashed potato and gravy, large dish of ice cream with chocolate topping, two candy bars.

Like I say, it's a partial list. I don't know what he had for lunch and there may have been a couple more hamburgers and milkshakes I didn't know about. And no indignation!

YUP, THERE'S A LAW

We were out for a Sunday drive when a car zipped past us and then slowed down to the point where we had to go around it or virtually stop. The car kept dawdling along until it was no longer visible in the rear view mirror.

Then suddenly, here came the same car. It went around us like we were standing still. About 200 yards ahead of us, something went sailing out from the car into a field.

The object, you may be better off I should think, that I have a law against that sort of thing. Even if there isn't, it's quite thoughtless to throw bottles or anything else out into a farmer's fields.

Dear Pot Shots:

Not long ago I read where it is judged (I think it was back east) sentenced a driver to pick up all the bottles and debris along a highway for a certain distance. I think it's a good idea.

Magic Valley's court could divide up the highways and drink on drivers or those convicted of being drunk in a car could be sentenced to clean up the roadside for a mile or so.

I'll bet it would make more of an impression on them than some little fine. So far as that's concerned, it would be a good idea to hand down such sentences for other offenses, too. It wouldn't take long to clean up a lot of that litter we find along our highways now.

A key area of potential conflict between the Soviet Union and Red China is the border which divides the USSR's Kazakhstani republic and Sinkiang, the huge province of rich minerals and important minerals.

Instead, the late Josef Stalin made a deal in which the Russians were to share in exploitation of Sinkiang's resources, which include both uranium and oil.

In return, the Chinese agreed to allow the Ulgars, Kazaks and others in China to use the Kazakhstani employed by their khitman just over the boundary in the Soviet Union.

But by 1959 things were changing. The Chinese halted construction of a trans-Sinkiang railway which would give the Russians greater access to the province.

Russian consulates were closed. The tribesmen were told they would have to learn to write all their letters this time in the Latin alphabet.

Recent Chinese broadcasts have hinted that large units of the Red Chinese army have been moved into the province.

Modern farms run by army personnel were credited with boosting the province's grain output by 20 per cent in 1963 over 1962.

The broadcasts reported the reclamation of 100,000 acres of wasteland and irrigation facilities extended to another 150,000 acres. Consumer goods produced in Sinkiang also were reported on the upswing.

Sinkiang also is the center of a vast resettlement program. The Chinese population there is reported to have jumped from 2,000,000 to more than 2,000,000 since the communists took over. Sinkiang's future is more promising than its present. Meanwhile, the Chinese are taking out insurance.

Red Chinese took over the China mainland, Russia easily could have seized Sinkiang province, a vast area of more than 700,000 square miles composed of desert, lowering mountains, howling winds, forests, occasional rich valleys and important minerals.

Clashes between frontier forces have been frequent. Latest reports from Moscow say that "Moscow's tribesmen are fleeing Sinkiang into Kazakhstan at the rate of 1,200 a month."

The Chinese have accused the Russians of kidnapping thousands of Turkic-speaking Ulgars, Kazaks and Ichirgizhan tribesmen from across the Sinkiang border. On their side, the Russians have accused the Chinese of systematically persecuting minority populations.

Several reasons make the area a favorite subject of speculation among those who are no necessity of future armed conflict between the two communist giants.

One is that a huge segment of the Kazakhstani republic is shown on present-day Chinese maps as properly belonging to China.

The Russians got it in 1964 through the treaty of Chiquahak, one of those "unjust" treaties by which the Red Chinese have been accused of carrying out imperialism.

A second is that the nomadic Modern tribesmen inhabit both sides of the border, traditionally friendly but for decades torn by the pressures from either the Russians or the Chinese.

The working stiff and his family may be appalled before the end of the month by the prospect of some more money to make some more votes for the politicians.

An alternative would be to tap the treasury and elect a government which could borrow the money. Congress could do all that for that matter, but the working stiff and his family. Ordinary fiscal prudence—a scarce commodity in this time of rampant inflation—has been raised to pay increased benefits.

The old folks couldn't care less about that. They do not pay the taxes. The taxes are paid by the current crop of workers in the hope—there is no guarantee—that they also will draw sugar from the U. S. treasury when their time comes.

the working stiff's money is used to buy some of those votes for the Republican party or the Democratic party? So, nothing? There will not be a single yelp of protest, not even if the voters are yanked by the ears.

The voters are accustomed to mismanagement. Former U. S. Chamber of Commerce President Edwin W. Nelson denounced the present whereby politicians buy or cajole the voters with treasury funds, thereby obtaining the reelection of the politicians. "The politicians of both parties presented to be shocked by Nelson's bold challenge. But that could not have been for real. Who knows better than the politicians themselves how much and how often they have bought votes with tax money? They all do it. As the late Harry L. Hopkins, the famous social worker, once expressed it:

"Tax and tax, spend and spend, elect and elect!"

President Johnson is a practical man. DFI was told last month that the President had passed the word that the Democratic party must have an election-year reinvestment to point out to voters and 1964. Hence, group finance, Medicare of some kind and/or a sweetening of the cash payments to the old folks.

Social security rates were increased across the board two years ago for election day in 1960, 1952 and 1954. Rates also have been increased in off years, but rarely ever without votes in view. Taxable earnings have been increased from the original $3,000 to the present $4,800.

The railing in the path of social security, Medicare, and/or a hike in benefits is chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House ways and means committee. Mills has not responded easily to persistent calls for something must be achieved for the old folks.

TAYLOR'S VIEWS ON WORLD NEWS

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

The missing $100 million in President Johnson's war cost Appalachia poverty is the administration's continued and grinding failure to smother down state department timidity. There is no doubt under this rock some place and the public is entitled to know what it is. The effort of the state department to smother the news of Appalachia unemployment. He has not acted on it. Neither did President Kennedy. Why?

They got the facts from the non-partisan National Coal Policy conference, representing not only the miners' union but all major coal producers throughout Appalachia and the nation as a whole—more than 30 coal-carrying railroads, many electric utilities, mine machinery makers, etc. The most important element in the stricken area is the job-maker. These diversified conference members are the job makers.

The conference explained to President Kennedy throughout his tenure of office, and has continued to explain to President Johnson that the administration's residual oil policy is a complete reversal of everything said and promised for the relief of unemployment in Appalachia. The waste product from petroleum refining is dumped here in enormous quantities from Saudi Arabia, Colombia, Venezuela, etc., at whatever prices any market will bear. The effect is lethal on jobs in the very region that our taxpayers money is supposed to rescue the tragic situation. This is not "free trade," since when it is dumping free.

As this writer recently reported, every million barrels of foreign waste oil dumped here displaces about 250,000 tons of coal. Each million tons displaced costs the jobs of about 427 miners and 200 workers in transportation industries.

When President Kennedy took office, the allowable annual import of 10 million barrels. His administration lifted it three times to 191.8 million barrels. The effect was felt not only in distressed Appalachia but in Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Colorado, Alabama, Arkansas and Kentucky.

How come?

During the next 13 months while the taxpayer's money is being poured into Appalachia, the region's oil waste oil will flow into our markets at an all-time high of 25 million barrels. The dumping here will displace 6.5 billion tons of coal. As a result, as Macbeth discovered, you can murder a man with your own hands.

Failure in most of our national affairs is seldom due to an absence of plans. There is usually an abundance of plans, but the proposed employment benefits in Appalachia. The fact use arise out of the plans do not work. Success in these may require government spending. It first required sound political health and happiness, they are indivisible.

Charity begins at home. It perfectly preposterous to be nervous about our relations with Saudi Arabia, Colombia, Venezuela, etc. We are writing off a heartbreaking distressed area. Only five days before the has horror. National Coal Policy conference representatives appealed to President Kennedy for a fourth time, without avail. Secretary-Udall is completely tied with the effect in Appalachia. The effect was felt not only in distressed Appalachia but in Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Colorado, Alabama, Arkansas and Kentucky.

How come?

Q—My doctor says my son may be in a leukemic state. Why can't he tell me definitely whether this is leukemia?

A—The early diagnosis of leukemia is not simple. Early signs are varied and are common to many other diseases. The victim may complain of loss of appetite, vomiting, and pain in the abdomen. As the disease progresses there is weakness and easy fatigability. The number of white blood cells is usually an increase in the white blood cells and a decrease in the red cells but of even greater importance is the presence of certain abnormal cells. If the diagnosis is in doubt, the blood smear should be examined by a consultant who is an expert in diseases of the blood.

Leukemia is a disease which has been diagnosed as having valley fever. What causes it and what is the treatment?

A—Valley fever or desert fever is caused by inhaling the fungus Coccidioides immitis which this organism is common in southwestern United States and is usually mild. In 75 per cent of cases, however, it causes a pneumonia-like disease and may spread to the spleen, liver, kidneys and brain. After recovery, the victim is usually sensitive to this mold which may be carried in the air on dry days.

The sensitivity may result in recurring attacks of pleurisy with effusion (water on the lungs) and a disease called rheumatism nodosum. The antibodies which are produced in the acute early attack.

If a chronic lung involvement occurs, a portion of the lung may have to be removed. Any swelling and working at a job which shows some promise for persons who live in areas where this disease is prevalent.

Q—From the time our children (4 to 13) were able to walk they have had flat feet and pain in the knees. It usually occurs in the evening and waken them from a sound sleep. My husband and I both had rheumatoid arthritis, but this rheumatism or diabetes, both of which seem to run in our families? What can be done for the children other than aspirin massage therapy?

A—Flat feet, which is current flat feet, pains that occur in the evening or at night are almost never due to rheumatic fever. They may be due to flat feet, weak ankles or muscular cramps. In the absence of unusual things and frequency of urination, diabetes is unlikely. If the pain persists your children should have a complete physical check up.

Pope Views East, West Church Ties

VATICAN CITY, May 18 (UP)—Pope Paul VI is creating a Vatican secretariat to work for closer relations between the Roman Catholic church and non-Christian religions. It may bring religious leaders of East and West together on a regular basis for the first time in history.

The Roman Catholic ruler announced Friday that he would create the Vatican agency soon to promote contacts with Buddhists, Hindus, Moslems, Jews and members of other faiths outside Christianity.

Paulo Caselli, 60, will head the new congregation. He is archbishop of St. Peter's and a former apostolic delegate to Australia and Japan.

Roman Catholic churchmen in different parts of the world have numerous contacts with clergymen from other religions. Representatives of non-Christian faiths are received at the Vatican during visits. But this will be the first concerted official Vatican effort to promote close ties with such religions.

The Vatican already has a secretariat to promote unity with non-Catholic Christians.

Pope Paul did not specify how the secretariat would work, but problems it would take up with non-Christian religions. But it was believed that regular visits, and perhaps even assignments, of non-Christian spokesmen to the headquarters of the Catholic church were a strong possibility.

Vatican sources stressed that the secretariat—like the secretariat for Christian unity, would not be active for conversions.

"It is a question of trying to achieve better understanding all around," said a spokesman.

2 Fliers Released by Communist Say Assassination News Withheld Days

SEOUL, South Korea, May 18 (UP)—Two army helicopter pilots disclosed today their communist captors withheld word of President John F. Kennedy's assassination from them for days.

The two U.S. officers also said they were kept apart during most of their years of imprisonment in North Korea.

Capt. Ben W. Statin, 31, Fortson, Ala., and Charleston Voltz, 28, Frankfort, Mich., repeated some aspects of their captivity in a brief meeting with Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Dunn, U.S. commander in Korea.

The conversation was tape-recorded at the military hospital and the army released a transcript to newsmen. The army has refused to allow a news conference.

Dunn raised the question of Kennedy's assassination. Voltz said he heard about it on Thanksgiving day—six days later.

His guards were "very proud of the fact," Voltz said. "They had a big smile and said he had been shot by some local communist party member in the United States."

Statin said: "I was told on Monday that he was assassinated. But that's the only thing they told me about it."

The two pilots were captured May 17, 1963, when their helicopter was forced down by communist gunfire while they were inspecting border markers.

Statin said North Korean army officers turned them over to civilian guards 13 days later.

East German Youths Boo Russ Embassy

BERLIN, May 18 (UP)—Communist police backed up by two water cannon dispersed an unruly crowd of boisterous East German youths Sunday night in front of the Soviet embassy in East Berlin, about 300 yards from the communist wall.

The youths jeered and hooted for 45 minutes before being dispersed by about 150 policemen. Later some youths publicly criticized the wall. No arrests were reported.

West Berlin police who sifted reports on the incident said it appeared to be spontaneous and to have little political significance.

"They said the youths, part of 800,000 young men and women brought to East Berlin for a massive communist rally, gathered near the anti-refugee wall and became angry when police tried to put them back."

They apparently booed the Soviet embassy in order to vent their resentment of the police action.

20 Hurt in Dust-Caused Road Pileup

TWIN FALLS, May 18 (AP)—Twenty persons were injured Saturday when a dust storm caused two chain automobile collisions on U.S. 97 about 12 miles south of Klamath Falls. All but three of the injured were treated at a Klamath Falls hospital and released. The three who remained in the hospital were listed in satisfactory condition Sunday. They were Leonard Spencer, 44, of Mithras, Calif.; his daughter, Donna, 16, and Rudolph Sebern, 45, Vallejo, Calif. The wind had stirred up dust and reduced visibility to practically zero when the first chain collision began a short distance away. The accidents were about 10 miles north of the California border. Baptists Plan For Better Cooperation

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 18 (AP)—Two top Baptist leaders agreed today that the Northern and Southern Baptist conventions might be moving toward closer cooperation but not merger. The two groups meet here separately this week before joining with five other Baptist denominations Friday to celebrate the 150th anniversary of Baptist work in America. "It is somewhat of a movement toward each other," said Robert Minnesota, Gov. Irl E. Bland, president of the American Northern Baptist convention. He and Dr. K. Owen White of Houston, Tex., president of the Southern Baptist convention, agreed Saturday that the annual meetings of their groups were significant. But neither foresees any real effort toward organic unity of the conventions, which split in 1845 over slavery.

Two were treated at a hospital. Patrolman Norman Wilson suffered a shoulder separation trying to stop the fight and his partner, Eugene Yockey, was scratched and bruised about two dozen youths pelted the officers with stones. Blomster said the youths were from the Chicago suburbs of Elmwood and Harvey, Ill., about 50 miles west of here. Yockey said they went to the park along Lake Michigan early in the day after a high school prom. Blomster said fights apparently grew out of two youths' disagreement over drinking whiskey. The stones began to fly when some 70 city, county and state policemen waded in to halt the brawling.

The senator quoted a report from E. E. Daubman, assistant director of the eradication division, describing the study.

He said he was sending copies to the extension service and Idaho Cattlemen's association and others are available on request. Its recommendations include good quality feed for cows, clean, well drained and uncrowded calving locations and uncontaminated fresh water. LUSK, Wyo., May 18 (AP)—The Denver-to-Deadwood stagecoach stopped in Lusk today, well past the halfway mark on its trip promoting South Dakota's 75th anniversary. The stagecoach and its crew were the center of attention yesterday at the unveiling of a marker at the grave of Mother Featherlike Shepherd, a prominent figure at the Rawhide Butte stagecoach station 75 years ago.

The Rawhide Butte station, 10 miles south of Lusk, was an overnight stop on the current stagecoach trip. About 600 persons visited the area Sunday for the unveiling of the grave marker.

Russell Thorpe, Jr., 87, Cheyenne, unveiled the marker. He is a son of the former owner of the Rawhide Butte station. Thorpe lived there when he was a school age boy.

Other participants in the marker ceremony were Leo Bates, Cheyenne, former newspaper editor, and Penny Burden, 17, Torrington, Wyoming's junior miss.

Elusive Small Fry Sneaks Into World's Fair, Hides From Authorities 11 Days

NEW YORK, May 18 (AP)—In what may be one of the gross understatements of the year, Dominick Tucci's mother describes him as "adventurous." The 17-year-old who hid out at the World's Fair for 11 days proved to his parents and security police that he not only is adventuresome but elusive and enterprising as well.

Boise Coach Is Speaker At Richfield

RICHFIELD, May 18 (AP)— Dale Chatterton, Boise Junior college football coach, was guest speaker at the Richfield high school athletic banquet held Friday evening in the school cafeteria. Fifty girls and boys basketball and football team members and the two coaches, Percy Christensen and Charles Sowers were honored.

Chatterton, a former Richfield coach, told the group that coaching was as necessary as ball used to play a game, and athletics were the greatest teacher of the Democratic way of life where everybody gets three strikes.

Christensen served as master of ceremonies and presented a lifetime pass to all Richfield games to Clark Hand, sr., 82, former school janitor and loyal supporter of Richfield teams for more than a quarter of a century.

Captain medals were presented by the coaches to Pat Tilley, Ross Plavel and Lowell Ward, football and Ross Plavel and Lowell Ward, basketball. Lana Sanders gave the invocation and Phyllis Plavel gave the benediction.

Mrs. Delmar Hardy made the place card favors, Mrs. Donald Riley, Mrs. Harold Williams, Mrs. Cecil Helderman and Mrs. Carl Robinson were in charge of table decorations and setting. Mrs. Ralph Tilley, jr., Mrs. Fernest Armstrong and Mrs. Vern Spencer were mothers in charge of the banquet with Mrs. L. T. Sanders, Mrs. Max Behr, Mrs. Sterling King and Mrs. Ralph Tilley, sr., assisting.

Domitric, who sneaked onto the fairgrounds May 6, established his elusiveness beyond a doubt by remaining there day and night until yesterday—defying

Domitric set out for the fair from his home in Port Washington, in suburban Long Island, on May 6 after his parents told him they would not let him go until next fall. He used the last of his money for train fare. How did Domitric live during the 11 days and 10 nights he spent on the fairgrounds?

For money, he spent the pre-dawn hours each day peddling the coins people had thrown into wishing-well fountains at the Bell Telephone company ex-

Cuts Jobs WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP)—President Johnson has set a $656 job cut of the federal employment ceilings he had set for the end of the current fiscal year on June 30.

The White House said yesterday hours of day retelling coupled with a reduction of 6,528 jobs announced on March 9, means that 15,101 federal positions will be lopped off Johnson's January budget estimate second day retelling.

LOS ANGELES, May 18 (AP)—The first and second counselors in the First Presidency of the LDS church and other high officials arrived at the World's Fair today to dedicate the "Mormon" Pavilion.

hibit and other pavilions. "Sometimes I got as much as five dollars," he said. "I got hamburgers and had soda. I got a melon." The 4-foot, 8-inch 10-pound youngster, who had been known to police as "The Pac-Man of the Fair," spent last night in the dark and empty pavilion, and other nights in the Coca Cola, African and Johnson's Wax pavilions.

Was he afraid? "There's nothing to be afraid of," the fair is crawling with cops. Domitric said he planned to stay the entire summer at the fair. But his mother has other plans for him.

She brought a clean set of clothing for him, then bought him home.

Now if you're saying to yourself "That's a swell looking car, but I couldn't afford it," we'd like a quiet word with you.

That car is a Pontiac Catalina, lowest priced of the big Pontiacs. Catalina has everything that makes a Pontiac a Pontiac—the superlative style, the extra-careful construction, the big-muscled Trophy V-8 performance, the road-wedded Wide-Track ride. Everything. And, the price is very, very right. It must be. After all, you don't get into third place in sales just by selling cars to rich people. Now, how about having a quiet word with your nearest Pontiac dealer. Wide-Track Pontiac. See your authorized Pontiac dealer for a wide choice of Wide-Tracks and good used cars, too.
