Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK, May 25.—The federal government's role in the economy is the focus of the business community. But there are other performers without star billing who are contributing more to the show each year.

State government spending is expanding much more rapidly than is federal. And the rate now is more than three-fourths the size of the federal outlays for other than defense purposes.

The effects on home communities often is more stimulating than the outlays from Washington. And the constant increase in many states is pushing the economy higher. This may be especially so next year when the federal role may be less.

The states also take away even as they give. They value their own. And borrowing mounts, with their lien on future taxes.

The U. S. bureau of census shows the 50 states are now spending around 40 billion a year. The increase between 1950—with 47 states—and 1952—with 50—was 170 per cent, compared with a 122 per cent rise in federal government spending in the same period. And the average annual growth in state spending also outstripped that of the federal government. State outlays went up an average of about nine per cent a year while the nation's total dollar volume of production of goods and services was rising at an annual rate of about five per cent.

Spending is for the traditional needs of growing populations, and so for many new service demands. Education, highways and public welfare get the biggest share. The money finds its way back into the economy quickly, through payrolls or construction or purchase of materials and goods.

Consumer spending remains the biggest prop of the economy, with the variation in business spending playing an important role in the ups and downs of the business cycle. But government spending—federal, state, or local—is a nearly constant growth factor that buys the grass-roots national product, even when other forms falter.

Although taxes went up, the federal reserve bank's Richmond notes that spending rose faster than revenues. So gross debt of the states rose from 5.3 billion dollars in 1950 to 23 billion dollars in 1952. It's still rising.

The Daily Investor

By WILLIAM A. DOYLE
Q. I bought some series E, U.S. savings bonds... in 1942. When these bonds matured in 1953, I reported the interest that had built up on them on my federal income tax for that year and paid income taxes. I still have the bonds of course. The interest is much higher than it was in 1953.

Will I have to pay tax only on the interest that has built up on the bonds since 1953?

A. Yes, but you have gone off base in your method of reporting the interest on those bonds.

Owners of E bonds have their choice of two basic ways of reporting the interest on such bonds.

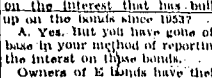

E bonds, technically, are "discount" securities. You buy them at one price and redeem them at a higher price. The difference between the price you paid and the price you receive when you redeem is the interest that has "accrued" (built up) on the bonds.

Owners can, if they choose, postpone paying taxes on that interest until they redeem their bonds. They then report the interest on the tax returns they file for the year in which they redeemed the bonds. Most E bond owners use this method. It's easy.

Or, owners of E bonds can report the interest that accrues on their bonds each year on the income tax returns they file each year. But this is a complicated method.

Most people don't know how much interest has accrued on their E bonds. Interest rates on old E bonds have been increased. Maturities have been extended.

Once you report the accrued interest on an E bond before you redeem the bond (as you did in 1953) you are supposed to continue to report the interest that accrues on your bond each year on the tax returns that you file each year, unless you "obtain permission from the commissioner of internal revenue to change to a different method."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON, May 26—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek never will be a pin-up boy in a house for assorted important reasons, but there should be some serious thought by which we could put his swollen Formosan military establishment to work for us in Vietnam.

Chiang and his bully boys are itching to get into that war as a substitute for their idyllic years in Taiwan.

Invading Red China, the Johnson administration, which is not overburdened with ideas for winning the war, says no soap.

Andrew Tully brings any such unloading of Chiang would bring all-out intervention by Peking and perhaps world conflict.

DESERVEN STUDY—Admittedly, Red China would be tried to find its deadly enemy fighting alongside the South Vietnamese. Mao Tse-tung and company are leery of any situation which might give Chiang's Nationalist regime added prestige and a more solid base of support.

Red Chinese troops on their collective nose. The danger is both clear and present that intervention would send Peking hordes streaming into the south, as they did in Korea.

Nevertheless, the idea is worthy of more than a cursory study. At a time when the United States is pleading unsuccessfully with other free-world countries to lend a hand in South Vietnam, it is refusing out of hand a bona fide offer of troops from a Chinese government which is virtually the generalissimo's private property. It is just as much of a nation as these others; at least, it is so recognized by the United Nations.

And it is okay for Red China, which is not recognized by the U. S. to invade the north? The Vietnam study case should be made for permitting Formosa to do likewise.

SOMETHING FOR 5 BILLION—If for no other reason, it would seem the time has come for us to get a piece of our money's worth out of the world war II. We have poured nearly 5 billion dollars into that Far Eastern armed camp, and we are spending 250 million a year to maintain a Formosan army twice as big as necessary to defend the island but not one cent to invade the mainland.

South Vietnam is considered important enough to permit American fighting men to die there. Then it should be important enough to risk full-scale Red Chinese intervention by using Formosan troops. We might even get some use out of them to outnumber all the generals in our own military establishment, according to Sen. Wayne Morse, D. Ore.

WHY NOT GET CIA IN?—The state department's explanation that it would be dangerous to world peace to unleash Chiang in Vietnam is weak and unconvincing. Chiang has been a guerrilla hero for years, and there is no reason why his count should be extended to the world war II. With the proper course, our official approval. Such operations might be an effective substitute for the far more risky strategy of U. S. troops carrying the war into the north.

In the past, the central intelligence agency has done some good work in directing guerrilla operations by foreign forces. Such operations carry no official American endorsement, because it is one of CIA's functions to operate beyond official aid. In the case of U. S. troops, we are not only backing an alternative, we should get the CIA and Chiang together on this one.

SHORTEST ADVICE FOR THE YOUNG
Easily one million youngsters will drop out of school in 1964, with the promise of more to come as the World War II babies move up through their teens.

While the national adult unemployment rate hovers near the 4 per cent mark, teen-agers represent a frightening high of 14.4 per cent, according to a well-known economist. Conservative estimates give a figure of 750,000 unemployed in the 14-17 age group, and an actively seeking work, but cannot find it. A further 350,000 youngsters are unemployed and not even looking for work any more, according to Labor Secretary Wirtz, who refers to this unhappy band of children as "the million pack."

More disconcerting is the fact that many unemployed will remain so for the rest of their lives, at a cost to us of $1,000 each a year, Wirtz added. Many factors face students every year of the high school, from the pressure of staying in school to a teen-age marriage, and boredom with school and poor marks, among others.

The situation is called "our nation's potentially most explosive socio-economic problem," and it being met by the state, federal and local governments. Work-study programs, cooperative education programs, custom-made curriculums and others. We are still obviously in the planning, experimenting and building stage in all these areas. We need to get on with it.

Those who wish to do about it, although the government hopes it has an answer in proposal remedial education and job-training programs.

Those of us with relatively secure jobs should not feel only or better off. The unemployment problem is a potential cancer, for unemployed persons tend to be aimless, and aimlessness often gives birth to anti-social conduct, as disgruntled but capable people feel they have been discarded in the human junk pile.

The soundest advice to the young is still—stay in school. If our teen-agers look around them and see the adult six per cent meandering through the unemployment day and facing another pointless night, they will be more likely to stay in school in the classroom, where diligent study and application can promise a much better outlook upon graduation than a temporary season job, hurriedly snatched in the lure of the moment.—Woonsocket (R. N.) Call.

A NEW DEAL
The last troublesome territorial disputes in Western Europe has advanced a step nearer solution as a result of the compromise proposals on South Tyrol worked out by a parliamentary committee in Rome. This formerly Austrian region, now included in the Italian region of the Alto Adige, was ceded to Italy after World War I.

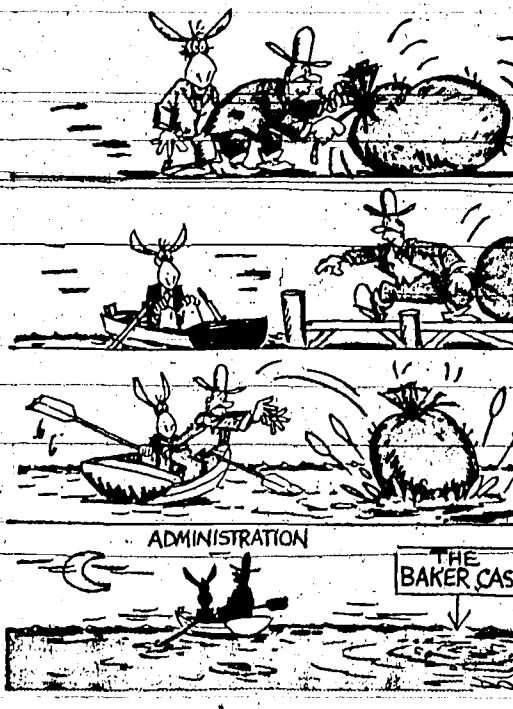

For those four decades, the German-speaking inhabitants of South Tyrol have been in implicit revolt against alleged discrimination by the Italian authorities. The Austrian government disallowed the Tyroleans to remain in their homes and change the border, but it did support the complaints of the German-speaking South Tyrolese who had taken their cause before the United Nations. Charges of violations of Italian-Austrian treaties and the German-speaking South Tyrolese full equality with the Italian and legislative and executive autonomy for both.

Now, after more than two and a half years of discussion, the parliamentary committee recommends that the full equality be granted. It also proposes a larger measure of self-government for the province of Dolomites with its German-speaking majority.

These recommendations must still be carried out, and it may not be until the end of the year that they should provide a welcome contribution toward improving the relations between the two Western democracies and help eliminate the last sore left as a legacy by the secret treaties that marked the peace after World War I.—The New York Times.

NOT SAFE YET
Dear Shooter:
Just because there have been a couple of bad days, no one should get the idea that summer's here already.

Experience has demonstrated quite clearly that summertime weather is just a flash in the pan around here until after Memorial Day, at least.

If you go believing what you see and feel, you're likely to wind up with frozen tomatoes one of these first nights.

And when you're roaming around thinking, why not pick a few sprigs of asparagus. It's wild, yes, but it's still the most expensive frozen vegetable you can buy, and I love it. It's real low on calories, too.

BY LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press International)
The pending civil rights bill will be enacted, of course, despite Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and his invasion of presidential politics in Wisconsin.

It is possible, even likely, that the bill will be enacted in those states which will tend to increase senate inclinations to dilute the bill by amendment.

The Wallace vote, however, had a more important area of impact than the U.S. Senate. The governor, aged about 30 per cent of the vote in the three states he contested. His Maryland score of 43 per cent was his top.

The Johnson administration, fully alerted by the time Wallace invaded Maryland, the Wisconsin Democratic leadership underestimated the Wallace potential and he came up with a 34 per cent showing. That attracted national attention to his maneuvers.

Indiana Democrats organized to give Wallace a fight and were able to cut his vote under 30 per cent. In both Wisconsin and Indiana there was plenty of room for disagreement whether the Wallace bid accurately reflected voter sentiment, or whether the voters' rights bill would be enacted.

The administration turned out the guard against Wallace in Maryland. If he had been confronted with merely token opposition, Wallace might have won the Maryland presidential primary contest against a colorless stand-in for President Johnson.

The basically significant fact in the Maryland return is that the voters who voted for what the 43 per cent of the voters who cast Wallace ballots generally are recognized as having deliberately voted against the civil rights bill or against the tactics and speed with which Negro leaders seek to achieve equality.

The message of the Maryland balloting, therefore, is disquieting. There is in that message no comfort for anyone, black or white. The message obviously is that there is outside the Deep South some hard-bosomed opposition to the civil rights program which

MARQUIS CHILDS WRITES ON WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, May 26—With the high-school band playing "Pomp and Circumstance" countless graduates are filling out into the world. Whether they go on for 1964 or whether a valuable number join the vast sea of uneducated, unemployed, and jobless, is what is what. It is a question of education or no education, and whether a valuable number join the vast sea of uneducated, unemployed, and jobless, is what is what.

The Johnson party program will be like balling out the Marquis Childs ocean with a pall if the millions of young people coming into the labor market have no training for jobs calling for increasing skills nor any desire to acquire it. When only a small percentage of a commencement class says it wants to go on to college or advanced technical training, the public scholarship funds are available, something is woefully wrong.

The failures and the successes of public education have come under searching scrutiny here in the second conference of the National Committee for Support of the Public Schools. Poverty tends to increase built-in poverty, many of the specialists pointed out.

As a remedy Prof. J. Kenneth Galbraith of Harvard proposed the creation of a national teaching corps recruited from the best teachers to serve in problem districts, both city and country. He suggested an initial corps of 10,000 to 12,000 to be expanded with further need. Supported by federal funds the minimum salary, Galbraith said, should be around $18,000.

Showing that can be done under the most difficult circumstances, Neil V. Sullivan, superintendent of the Prince Edward Free Schools Association in Virginia, told the conference that his voluntary effort had succeeded. With the schools in Prince Edward county closed as part of Virginia's massive resistance to the school desegregation decision, Sullivan and staff of dedicated teachers came to teach in volunteer schools supported by public contributions. Children deprived of schooling for four years presented a challenge calling for special teaching methods.

A department of labor report just released underscored the need for more teachers. The conference of 1964 in the age group of 16 to 17 is 20 per cent. These are the young people who drift into gangs, crime and violence. A special study conducted by school graduates and dropped out of school, 1961, shows that 20 per cent for dropouts was 20 years of high school with low test scores. The staggering statistic is that between 1960 and 1970 these young workers will be nearly 50 per cent of the net increase in the labor force.

Although there is a ferment of ideas and a real determination to remedy the deficiencies, the committee on the education of the young was deadlocked again. It is to be noted in the past, the issue of whether federal funds should be used to supplement private as well as public schools, has been a Southern Democratic talking point. The idea of allowing any of the education money in the poverty program to go to church schools. The education money would violate the Constitution. The committee members would not vote on the program unless all schools could share.

A compromise was agreed to whereby private schools would participate in the program above and beyond permitting what has been going on. This means, for example, that after-school remedial reading classes and adult literacy classes would be conducted in both public and private schools.

Rep. Edith Green of Oregon, one of the most conscientious and informed members, had worked to secure such a compromise. She pointed out that Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz made a grant of $30,000 to the Catholic Conference, Inc., Lansing, Mich., to train 160 migrant farm workers. The training included reading and writing and a little arithmetic in preparation for acquiring elementary skills.

In headed closed-door sessions Mrs. Green's committee has been convinced that if the education phase of the poverty program is knocked out, the unfair effect of the jobs in one area and the volume that any attempt to make up the difference later on is overwhelmed by sheer numbers. Admittedly the compromise is a concession. It may save part of a vital phase of the anti-poverty drive.

Religion in America

By LOUIS CARROLL
(United Press International)
The clergy shortage would be even worse than it is were it not for "delayed vocations."

In recent years, delayed vocations means that a man recognizes the military as a career, but has already embarked on a different kind of career.

This has happened in the past to many of the great figures of the Christian ministry. To pick just one example from the recent past, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., 35 years old, and had a professional career as well as a good deal of profitable living behind him when he was ordained a priest in 1951.

Many prominent clergymen of our own day are products of delayed vocations. James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, Roman Catholic archbishop of Los Angeles, started his studies for the priesthood at the age of 31. The Rev. James A. Pike, the Episcopal bishop of California, was a successful attorney before he entered the ministry. The Rev. Dr. Theo H. Hankins, pastor of famed Foundry Methodist church in Washington, D. C., is a former advertising man.

The importance of delayed vocations as a source of clerical manpower was underscored by a recent survey which shows that 15 per cent of the students now in Episcopal church seminaries are over 33 years of age.

One seminary took a "prior experience" poll of its freshmen class and found, among others, a television announcer, gas station owner, bank manager, state department research analyst, advertising copy writer, hotel owner, English professor, employee of the U. S. atomic energy commission, forestry expert, touring show manager, and a jazz drummer.

Many of the men who enter Protestant seminaries after a false start in other careers have acquired a skill in a profession, a trade, or a business, and a drop of ministerial students has become a major problem for many seminaries.

Only unmarried men may enter the Catholic priesthood, and is sure to complicate enforcement of the civil rights bill when it becomes a federal statute.

There is, therefore, a dismal prospect of some degree of civil disobedience to civil rights legislation outside the South. The U. S. government will have no alternative—that is, the President of the United States will have no alternative—other than to call out the armed forces, if necessary, to enforce a federal law against a U. S. marshal could do the job.

The point of it all is that northern as well as southern white opposition to all-out civil rights enforcement against now to be reasonably predictable. Given such opposition, anything like effective measures and there would be no alternative than the putting down of the opposition by armed force of the federal government.

Given sufficient opposition, the government's inability to enforce civil rights laws that would be most likely, there is a parallel with prohibition which was imposed as an experiment noble in purpose on a protesting widely scattered and determined minority. Prohibition was instituted in the U. S. constitution. But it was unenforceable because too many voters would not accept it as a just and honorable proposition.

The minority opposing civil rights is large but it cannot be shown as far to penetrate the potential of the anti-prohibitionists.

Who does a man decide to enter the ministry after he has passed the normal entry age and is already successfully engaged in a secular career that promises far greater material rewards?

Laymen who ask this question usually expect the answer to be in terms of a shattering personal experience, a particular moment of vivid drama in which a man suddenly becomes aware of an imperative divine command.

It does happen that way, once in a while. But men who have responded to a delayed vocation usually have great difficulty in pinpointing the particular time when they first became conscious of a call to the ministry.

One clergyman, now serving a New England parish, says his call came first as "a recurrent sense of peace and joy" which "would not let me rest." Another says he "felt a growing sense of destiny, expressed for years until it no longer could be denied."

A third says it was "a conviction which kept growing. I had to do something. I had to do that, that I would never be happy doing anything else."

There is one point on which all of the "late bloomers" of the clergy seem to agree. The surest way to a ministerial career is to be a ministerial student from an early age.

Given such opposition, anything like effective measures and there would be no alternative than the putting down of the opposition by armed force of the federal government.

Given sufficient opposition, the government's inability to enforce civil rights laws that would be most likely, there is a parallel with prohibition which was imposed as an experiment noble in purpose on a protesting widely scattered and determined minority. Prohibition was instituted in the U. S. constitution. But it was unenforceable because too many voters would not accept it as a just and honorable proposition.

The minority opposing civil rights is large but it cannot be shown as far to penetrate the potential of the anti-prohibitionists.

Refreshingly Frank

With an election year upon the American public again, voters will be analyzing candidates' qualifications for office. In addition to their background, candidates usually make some sort of statement about their reasons for seeking election. There are high-sounding statements in which the candidate generally declares that he's capable of doing a hang-up job for the public and "if elected, I promise to serve to the best of my ability."

Mostly it's nice-sounding hogwash. Apparently it's the sort of thing the voter likes to hear. But it took Richard A. O'Kane, Monterey, Calif., to bring a little refreshing honesty into politics. He's a candidate for the Monterey county board of supervisors, which must be about like the county commission in Idaho. He came right to the point in describing his reasons for seeking election:

"A supervisor's job pays $6,000 a year for practically no work. I can't hardly pass up a chance to get a little piece of that action."

Mr. O'Kane deserves some sort of medal. But if an observer had to estimate Mr. O'Kane's chances for election, it would be necessary to note that the American public isn't quite ready for such frankness from a candidate. Voters want to be fooled. They want their candidates to make pompous statements that mean nothing. And the more pompous and meaningless the statement, the better the candidate's chances for election.

It's a pity more candidates like Mr. O'Kane can't be elected to public office. It's high time duly-elected officials became a little less impressed with their own stature and come down to earth.

WILLING DUPES

Land speculation is one of the earmarks of today's economy, but some of the activity is little more than open robbery. It's all brought to light again by testimony before a senate subcommittee investigating frauds against older people. Promoters sold retirement homesites to oldsters on a waterless desert in Colorado. The president of the Denver Better Business bureau described the promoters as "cheating, lying and swindling" subdividers.

It's not the first time such swindles have been perpetrated in the United States, nor will it be the last. Several decades ago, promoters sold so much Florida swampland that it became something of a national joke and still is. Similar swindles have been worked in California and the Southwest, particularly since World War II.

Many of them have something in common, namely, the land sales are made through use of brochures and letters without the purchaser ever bothering to inspect the land in person.

Despite all sorts of warnings, citizens are still prone to believe whatever they are told. It never occurs to some persons that unscrupulous individuals will do almost anything to separate them from their money.

Certainly most states have laws to deal with the person who obtains money under false pretenses. But it's one thing to deal with the swindler and quite another to recover the money he has accepted. In some cases, the money might be the best part of an elderly person's life savings.

If prospective purchasers would refuse to be stampeded into buying land and insist on an on-the-spot inspection, there would be no more land swindles.

IS IDAHO COMPETITIVE?

Idahoans are quite familiar with the old story from teachers that they can get far more pay in other states. Now the Ada county mental health center is face-to-face with the same situation with some key personnel. The center is losing a social worker and two full-time psychologists. Chairman Don McLennan says there's little chance of replacing them. He blames Idaho's pay scale.

"We need to look at the national scale to be competitive," McLennan declares. "A wage raise is not impossible. Let's determine the amount needed to be competitive and raise the scale."

Leaders in other lines of endeavor might be interested in Mr. McLennan's comments. Perhaps pay for many lines of work are out of step with the rest of the nation. With today's noted mobility of population, low pay could result in losing key personnel who aren't particularly impressed by Idaho's livability. Those who are most concerned might take a new look at circumstances.

BRIDGE SILENCE

Today's hand has appeared in the column world. The game was rubber bridge. The trump was 1951 or 1952. I sat North. South was a much older man who had been one of the world's greatest virtualized a slam. His four no-trump bid had not been conventional, but that did not matter. He had something opened on a diamond break and he had 23 points. So I jumped to six hearts and if he had passed, I would have made that contract in spite of losing the spade finesse.

However, he just went to all no-trump and next he had a good play for it, the combination of a losing spade finesse, a diamond break and careful defense was too much for him. He gave our opponents 100 points.

I was mad at him for several years, but of late I have realized that I should have let him play three no-trump. There was just no way to beat him and I should have settled for game and rubber.

Is Refugee Baby Cuban Or American?

MIAMI, May 26 (AP)—Barbara Benita Mejias, born in an open boat in which her parents fled Cuba, an American or Cuban citizen.

The decision may depend on the log of the British frigate Tartar, which plucked the refugees from the boat April 30.

Immigration officer Joseph Milton said Monday that Cmdr. H. C. Hutchins has been asked to report the longitude and latitude of the pickup.

If Barbara was born within three miles of the U.S. coast, she's American.

Barbara's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andres Mejias, are hoping she'll be an American.

POCATELLO, May 26 (AP)—Mino Bill Liday, a 47-year-old Pocatello machinist, late Monday was charged with voluntary manslaughter for shooting a woman here Sunday. Liday was charged with slaying Sandra Jo Michaels, 24. Liday asked for a preliminary hearing when he was arraigned and Justice of the Peace Don Sidles set June 10 at 10 a.m. Liday was jailed when he couldn't post a $3,000 bond. Liday told police that Saturday, he became engaged to Miss Michaels, and gave her a $625 ring. Sunday, he told Lieut. George Lonchar after his arrest, he refused to see him, and pointed a gun at him when he came to see her home. It was during a struggle over the gun that she was accidentally shot, he said. Police also said a 13-year-old Pocatello boy will appear in probate court, in connection with a second fatal shooting in Pocatello over the week-end. County Prosecutor Hugh C. Maguire said Roy Lee Montoya, who admitted to police that he fatally shot his father, Manuel Montoya, 52, will be handled as a juvenile delinquent because of his age.

T.F. Television Station Is Installing New Transmitter

KMVT television is installing a new General Electric television transmitter. The new transmitter will increase KMVT's output power from 251,000 watts to 318,000 watts. This is the maximum power allowed by the federal communications commission for any television station in the United States.

When this transmitter installation is completed, it will be the fourth part of a long-range improvement plan. The first part of the plan was the installation of the second studio in addition to the second studio in 1958. The second part was the installation of a 674-foot tower at the Jerome transmitter site two years ago. The third part of the improvement project was the complete remodeling of the office and studios last year at Twin Falls, which included the installation of new microwave equipment, switching gear, studio lights and backdrops.

The General Electric transmitter is the fourth part. The transmitter will allow KMVT to handle network color. However, since KMVT is basically affiliated with CBS and ABC, there will be only a small amount of color programs this year.

During the installation period it will be necessary for KMVT to reduce power as two large amplifiers must be removed at the

U. S. Law Can Often Burden Poor Persons

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said "there is not equal justice under law in the United States" because poor persons do not stand as good a chance of being found innocent as wealthy defendants.

"If you follow the poor person who is accused of a crime, his chance of being acquitted are much less than are the chances of a wealthy person who can afford bail and his own counsel," Kennedy said.

"The fact is there is not equal justice under law in the United States at the present time," he said.

Kennedy said each year thousands of persons who could not afford bail spend months in jail awaiting trial only to be acquitted or found innocent.

"The individual who is part of a gang or part of an organized racket... can always get bail," said Kennedy. "It is the individual whose news-stand involved before who has difficulty and he's the one who must be a matter of concern to all of us."

"I don't think we've ever really faced up to the fact that there is a problem."

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, MAY 26—Born today, you have an alert and active mind, and should be able to make a success of whatever you set out to do, so long as you steer clear of the pitfalls of vanity. Because you are witty, charming, naturally appealing to the opposite sex, people "do" you somewhat inclined to make a great deal over you. If it is possible, too, that you might even begin to believe your own publicity. Guard against this; it could be fatal both to your success and to your happiness.

You women are excellent managers and should make excellent homemakers. Yet you will probably not be satisfied with that alone, for you have a mind and disposition that searches for greener pastures, that yearns for and thrives on change. If you can manage a career and a home at the same time, you should certainly do so; if you can only manage one, you would be wise to choose the latter, for true happiness lies there.

You men are extremely energetic. No grass grows under your feet—and that's the way you like it. Yet you are a home-body by virtue of that half-of-your-nature which is drawn to the settled life. The family, children, though you may have trouble deciding when and where to settle down, it is quite certain that eventually you will become as thoroughly "domesticated" as anyone else.

Among those born on this date are: Robert Morley, English actor; John Wayne, actor, director, producer; Peggy Lee, singer, composer.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Wednesday, May 27
GENIUS (May 23-June 21)—Don't be misled into activities not meant for you. Even if under pressure from friends, stand pat!
CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Keep your activities well-balanced today. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy—but the reverse is also true!
LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Excellent prospects for gain. Keep watch over the development of new plans.
VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—Not a good day for combining business with pleasure. See to the former without delay; the latter comes all in good time.
LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Be cautious about accepting things at their face value. Gold and glitter may be mixed, so take care!
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23)—Normal advances if you remain conservative today. This is no time for taking chances!
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Opposing forces would seem to be at work in shaping your destiny. Be patient and hold decisions for another day.

Souchak Fails In U.S. Open Trials, Brewer Is Field Leader With 135

Mike Souchak, the number six money winner this year and victor in the Memphis open Sunday with four straight sub-par rounds, was the major casualty in local qualifying tests Monday for the U.S. open golf tournament. Souchak won the $7,500 first prize with a 72 hole score of 270, 10-under-par for the short Memphis Country club course, but the best he could do Monday was 73-74-147, two strokes above the cutoff mark. Gay Brewer, who was fourth in last week's tournament, led the 125 field at Memphis with more than 2,500 golfers played 36 holes, each at 54 different courses from Massachusetts to Hawaii, to qualify for the sectional tests in June. Brewer shot 67-68-135.

Twins Coast To 8-1 Win Over Angels

LOS ANGELES, May 26 (AP)—Minnesota's muscular Twins unloaded 16 hits, including a two-run homer by Tony Oliva, and four singles by Jimmie Hall, in an 8-1 victory over the Los Angeles Angels Monday night. Right-hander Camilo Pascual allowed the Angels only four hits, struck out 10 and paced the Twins to victory in eight decisions. This was his fifth complete game. Oliva scored three runs and Hall drove in three. Oliva went 3-for-4 with two RBIs. Pascual pitched a 6 2/3-inning shutout for Los Angeles. He struck out four batters in the 10th, but was relieved by Alvin Dark.

Buhl Keeps Lead For Inter-City Golfing Series

BURLEY, May 26 (AP)—Burley golfers used their "local knowledge" to out into the early lead held by Buhl in the second meeting of the Magic Valley inter-city golf matches. But Burley couldn't catch Buhl and the overall standings remained pretty much the same. In the first meeting Burley scored 1,090 against 950 for Buhl. 480 for Jerome and 330 for Gooding. That raised point totals for the season to Buhl, 3,140; Jerome, 1,460; Gooding, 1,110. Reports tournament secretary Duane (Hooch) Machosek. Earl Bent, Buhl, was the top man of money, picking up 98 points for the leaders.

Red Sox Top Solons 6-5 On Errors

BOSTON, May 26 (AP)—Boston turned a pair of Washington errors and Bob Tillman's wrong-field double into three unearned runs and a 6-5 victory over the Senators Monday night. The sixth inning uprising broke a 3-3 tie and extended the Red Sox winning streak to four. Right-handed swinging Tillman poked a drive down the right field line after Carl Yastrzemski singled and Roman Mejias reached base on an error by Don Zimmer. An intentional walk then loaded the bases and when Don Blasingame booted an easy double play grounder another run scored.

White Sox Tip Athletics 7-4 With Homers

KANSAS CITY, May 26 (AP)—Jim Landis smashed a pinch-hit homer in the seventh inning and Ron Hansen whopped a two-run homer as the American Sox erupted for four runs and defeated Kansas City 7-4 Monday night. Pete Ward and J. O. Martin also homered for the White Sox who zapped nine hits in sending the Athletics down to their 10th defeat in their last 11 starts.

Woman Sprinter Is Threatened

LONDON, May 26 (AP)—Dorothy Hyman, British Olympic sprint star, has received an anonymous letter threatening her with death if she competes in the Tokyo Olympics next fall. Miss Hyman, 33, is an Olympic gold medalist and is to be captain of the British women's track team at Tokyo. Her mother, Mrs. Atherton-Hyman, a 44-year-old widow, also has received an anonymous letter saying another of her daughters, 7-year-old Susan, may suffer if Dorothy runs in the Olympics.

Anglers Urged To Respect Property

BOISE, May 26 (AP)—The fish and game department Monday urged Idaho anglers to get permission to cross private property before crossing their property to fish in public waters. Director John R. Woodworth said this is the best way to maintain good landowner-sportsman relationships. "Generally landowners and sportsmen enjoy good relations in Idaho," he said, "but there always is a need to maintain and improve them. "Unless the sportsman obtains permission before crossing private property to fish in public waters—and treats the property with respect while he is on it—he will find more and more places closed to fishing the next time around."

Qvale to Have Entries in 500-Plus Jersey Derby

INDIANAPOLIS, May 26 (AP)—Kjell Qvale, a Scoundrel, runner in the $120,000 Jersey derby at Garden State park Saturday at the same time. Will Hangan and Bob Veth, are driving for him in the $200,000 Memorial day auto race here. Qvale, San Francisco foreign car distributor, said Monday he had decided to attend the 500 rather than the Jersey derby. "The horse won't know if I'm there or not, but the men will," said Qvale, 46-year-old, son of a Norwegian ship captain. "He was second in the Freehans. "He's a green young horse that seems to get better every time he runs," Qvale said. "I think his real future is at stud and I probably will race only this year and then sell him." Qvale has been active in horse racing a dozen years and has 25 brood mares in his stables at Napa, Calif. His auto activities are older and more extensive, with 300 men preparing and servicing imported cars at San Francisco in addition to seven working exclusively on racing machines. The crew headed by Joe Huffaker has built 75 road racing cars, and it created three rear engine Offenhausers for Indianapolis this year. The Qvale cars feature a liquid suspension used on Buick MG cars. Qvale has been interested in sports car racing for many years, but he got the 500 fever only three years ago when Australian Jack Brabham finished ninth in an under-powered Cooper-Coast.
