Multiple Use

The forest service has used the "multiple use" principle in administering the nation's forests for many years. The principle is based on the thought that many uses are possible in forest areas and the forest service has been guided by the aim of providing the most good for the most people.

Now another federal agency, the bureau of land management, is in the process of adopting guide lines along the multiple use theory.

There are indications the principle will be applied more and more in administering the nation's resources.

Senator Jordan said less than three per cent of the water at Grand Coulee comes from watersheds in Washington.

Where any natural resources are concerned—forests, rangeland, rivers or national parks—they should be handled in a manner that will permit maximum use and enjoyment for as many purposes as possible.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON, April 17—There seems to be a crisis of a sort developing among countries getting economic and other dollar aid from the United States.

The agency for international development (AID) has issued a special report pleading with congress not to impose tougher terms on U.S. loans.

In English, this means that last year country A was able to use only 70 per cent of its U.S. handout on development projects.

Reason for this is that congress changed our debt policy last year, over AID's left-for-dead debt. Under the Marshall plan, 90 per cent of aid was in grants, that is, gifts.

Interest rate compels caution — But, as usual, our lend-and-spend boys can't see beyond their Santa-Claus whiskers.

Moreover, foreign aid also is designed to bolster the recipient nation's economy that it will be able to afford financing charges.

There's plenty of smoke in Idaho over possible discrimination on civil rights and voting, but there's a good possibility much of the smoke originates in political fires rather than racial problems.

Hundreds of pages of testimony have shown how these guns find their way into the hands of criminals, juvenile delinquents and psychopaths.

T.F. Businessmen See Pre-Sales Tax Boom

Twin Falls businessmen, in general, are expecting a sales boom in May and June as the July 1 starting date of Idaho's new sales tax draws nearer.

And a representative number of firms are expecting a slump in sales after July 1, although most of them believe it will not last more than 30 days.

"Not many firms have experienced anything in the way of a boom thus far; at least, not one which could be attributed directly to the advent of a three per cent sales tax."

The one possible exception is in the sale of automobiles.

Henry L. Wills, sales manager at Wills Motor company, said his firm "definitely seemed to have a boom the latter half of March" when sales were unusually active. He said the advent of the federal and state income tax deadline Thursday "slowed things down a bit."

Unlike most businessmen contacted, Wills does not believe there will be a business slump after July 1. "We'll just have to work a little harder," he said.

Joe A. Mitrany, Mitrany Buick and Oldsmobile, said several persons have bought cars at his place of business to beat the sales tax and noted that several others are contemplating buying before July 1.

"Business seems to be picking up momentum," Mitrany said. The car dealer said he expects a business slump of 10 days to two weeks after the tax becomes effective, not from the sales tax alone but from the fact that many persons who ordinarily buy their cars after July 1 will have already gotten them to save the tax bill.

The sales tax on a $3,000 car is approximately $90.

"We don't anticipate a tremendous business slump right after sales tax time," Mitrany stated.

Elvis V. Cain, president of Cain's Furniture and Appliance store, said his firm has had "better than average Easter sales," but noted that he cannot "put his finger" on the cause.

"I think June will be a tremendous month and July will be extremely slow," he said.

Shoe dealers indicate there's nothing unusual in a pre-Easter sales boom and most of them said they can't be sure if sales increases are due to Easter or to the sales tax.

But Jones, manager of Karl's Shoes, said sales had "picked up" during the week, but indicated this is not unusual in his line of business. He said he expects a slump after July 1.

There appears to be no evidence of boom sales in cameras, tires, sporting goods, motorcycles, groceries, jewelry and clothing.

Howard W. Gerrish of Gerrish Sporting Goods store, said the question of sales tax hasn't "cropped up" in his business. He expects a boom in sales, however, as the July 1 effective date draws near.

John H. Blasius of Blasius Cyclery thinks the sales tax will have stimulated his sales but said he can't be certain.

The motorcycle dealer said he believes "people are thinking about it."

One furniture dealer said he had heard quite a bit of comment from his customers "indicating they will be buying in May and June" to keep from paying the new tax.

Grocers have seen no unusual increase in sales. William P. Ballard, assistant manager of Albertson's Food Center, said it is "kind of hard to say." He indicated there may be some case goods bought before July 1, but noted that he cannot be certain of this.

A jeweler noted that anybody who will pay what he termed the "vicious" 10 per cent luxury tax, probably won't pay too much attention to a three per cent sales tax. He said he had had only one customer mention the new tax.

Roger A. Arvey, manager of Idaho Department store, says there's no indication that people are buying clothing ahead of time to escape paying the sales tax, and doesn't expect similar buying in the future.

"I don't think it will have any effect at all in our business," he stated.

Mr. Van Eaton, 63, died Friday morning at Mountain View rest home, Kimberly, following a long illness. He formerly lived at Soper Cabins, Twin Falls.

Commodities To Be Taxed Are Reported

BOISE, April 17 (AP)—Associated Taxpayers of Idaho listed today the commodities and services which it said will be subject to the sales tax and the commodity tax it said are exempt.

The 1965 legislature enacted the sales tax package, which imposes a three per cent sales and use tax levied effective July 1 but reduces the taxes on property and income.

The sales tax is expected to produce $6 million dollars in the two-year period beginning July 1. Associated Taxpayers said 40.75 per cent of the revenue will go to replace money now collected through the income and property tax laws.

The association listed these transactions it said will be subject to the sales tax:
—Sale; means transfer of title of tangible personal property by any manner for a consideration.
—Producing; fabricating, printing, imprinting or tangible personal property for a consideration for consumers who furnish materials directly or indirectly.
—Furnishing; preparing or serving for a consideration food, meals or drinks.

—Admission charges; theaters, athletic events, etc.
—Use of tangible personal property facility for recreational purposes; bowling, golf, etc.
—Hotel, motel, tourist home or trailer; cost and service rentals for less than 30 days.
—Rental from the lease or rental of tangible personal property; not rental of real property. Exemptions from the tax, the association said, include:
—Motor fuels, upon which the gas tax is imposed.
—Any matter used to produce heat by burning; wood, coal, petroleum and gas.

YWCA Marks National Observance

The Young Women's Christian association, Twin Falls, invited girls and young women of Magic Valley to invest in themselves so they can be prepared to meet the demands of today's world. Mrs. Marvin Molyneux, executive director, said today in announcing local plans for the 1965 National YWCA week observance set for April 18 through 25.

"Learning, caring and serving are some of the aspects of individual development that the YWCA can help young women achieve," she said, "and we look forward to working with many more who want to find a place where they can work together with other girls and women in building a better world."

National YWCA week is an annual observance of the association and the group is joining with those across the country in a concentrated drive to reach girls and women of all races, creeds and economic backgrounds.

The local YWCA will have its monthly luncheon at noon Tuesday. Boyd Lowe, guidance counselor for the Twin Falls schools is guest speaker. The public is invited to attend. Reservations may be made by calling 733-4384 before 5 p.m. Monday.

The Creative "Y" Wives will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the "Y" building. The program will be on small items to make that will perk up the home for spring and summer. This group is open to any young married woman.

"We invite all women and girls and the members of their families in Magic Valley to visit us during National YWCA week, to get first hand information of the kind of program that is available to them," the executive director said. "They also will learn that, in addition to opportunities for individual growth and development, they can become members of an organization that is now at work in 74 countries of the world."

Teen-Agers in Flooded Minnesota Become Heroes

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 17 (AP)—They've redefined the word "teen-ager" along Minnesota's flooding rivers. Now, the definition comes out "hero."

Volunteer teen-agers manning sand trucks, bulldozers and boats have come from all walks of life. But often as not, the pitching of sandbags has been handled by teen-agers.

In Stillwater, on the flooding St. Croix river, a four-foot sign proclaims the city's pride. Perched on a levee, it says "Teen-Agers Dike."

"We couldn't have built that dike without them," said Mayor Dean Charlsen. "Take Wednesday night as an example. When we ran out of bags after 11, there were only a dozen kids on the dike. But when more bags arrived I'm sure there were 200 here within 15 minutes to fill them."

It's been the same along the Minnesota river, starting in Mankato more than a week ago where college and high school students were in the vanguard when volunteers braced against the river.

It was the same in Chaska last week-end when a long line of youngsters pitched sacks of sand, hand-to-hand, to danger points around the courthouse.

It's been Easter vacation for the past week for many students, although along the rivers schools were closed to free youths for flood duty.

A Minneapolis television commentator said the other night that all this praise wasn't necessary. He added that teen-agers are basically good and no one should consider it so remarkable that they helped.

Historical Documents to Be Displayed

NEW YORK, April 17 (AP)—Almost 80 originals of the nation's most revered historical documents will go on display at the New York World's fair, starting Wednesday.

Carefully wrapped in plain brown paper, the Bill of Rights, the Emancipation proclamation, the Gettysburg address and other priceless parchments of Americana were delivered to the fair's Federal pavilion yesterday in a heavily-guarded armored truck.

The documents, which also include the rough reading copy of John F. Kennedy's inaugural address, FDR's four freedoms speech, and George Washington's inaugural and farewell addresses, were taken past a marine honor guard to their second floor display cases.

As had been the rule since the documents were removed from the Library of Congress and the national archives three weeks ago, armed guards stood guard.

The exhibit, first conceived by the late President John F. Kennedy, will share the hall with displays of possessions of 13 presidents who responded to major crises in U.S. history.

Birds Blamed For Disease In Missouri

DEXTER, Mo., April 17 (AP)—This southeastern Missouri town of 5,519 persons and 8,000,000 starlings has a high incidence of the fungus-caused lung disease histoplasmosis, and the birds are suspected.

Dr. S. B. Beecher, district officer of the Missouri division of health, said that 1,114 of 1,198 residents tested showed positive reactions to the tuberculosis-like allment. "This does not mean that the 1,114 have histoplasmosis now,"

Dr. Beecher said, "but they have been infected at some time in their lives."

A 20-acre area in town is used as a roosting place by the starlings. The histoplasmosis fungus matures in the bird droppings and scatters its spores on the wind.

The state has given Dexter permission to get rid of the starlings any way it sees fit.

SO CLOSE AND YET SO FAR AWAY is the thoughtful expression shown by Tracy Smith, daughter of Mrs. Virginia Smith, 614 Adams street, as she eyes this Easter basket filled with gaily colored candy Easter eggs. Miss Smith represents the many, many youngsters who, too, have been eyeing Easter baskets these past few weeks. (Times-News photo)

COLORFUL TABLE SETTING for Easter puts the Easter bunny to work as a decorative theme. A brightly colored round cloth sets the background for "bunny" place mats cut from latex foam rubber. Colored napkins and multicolored eggs in bright Easter hues makes this table a delight to the eye as well as the appetite.

Easter Sunday in Magic Valley Area Is Celebrated in Many, Many Ways

By NORMA HERZINGER

Easter has many faces in Magic Valley, it being fundamentally a religious festival of rejoicing. Down through time it has taken on a social aspect, also, that makes it an anticipated holiday.

Easter, like many of our other holidays, is a family day. This is the most important of Christian Holy days, since it commemorates the resurrection of Christ.

The clear purity of lilies seems to embody Easter. The delicacy and beauty of the bell-shaped flowers carry the true meaning of the day to everyone.

Going to church gives full meaning to the day, with everyone turning out in full regalia.

This is the day to display the new hat and new finery of all kinds. This seems to be the first introduction of new spring clothes, which is quite appropriate, since Easter itself was named in ancient times after a Teutonic goddess of spring, and always is celebrated within the first few weeks of springtime.

The egg has become a symbol of Easter because it represents the beginning of life. This day is a rewarding one for the entire family and to most children, the holiday is highlighted by an Easter egg hunt.

In many parts of the world, egg-rolling is a traditional Easter game. Here in the United States, egg-rolling became an Easter event on the White House lawn in 1878. President Hayes invited the children living in the capital city to play the game on the sloping lawn of the first family's home.

For children of all ages, eggs, bunnies and beautifully colored spring flowers say welcome to spring in a delightful way.

After church and the children's Easter egg hunt, Easter interests seem to turn to the home and further celebrations of the day. Luncheon or Easter "brunch" is the popular custom enjoyed by everyone. Many of the grownups invite friends or relatives to join them for this delightful meal.

The joy of the Easter season throughout the years, rain or shine, is a joy shared by all and is exuberant in the coming of spring and the triumph of Easter, the Christian celebration that gives significance to the season.

LITTLE SISTER, Marlynn Carson, left, watches in absolute earnest as her sister, Carme, colors Easter eggs. Coloring Easter eggs is a tradition in most American homes and is looked forward to by the younger set from year to year. In many parts of the world eggs get into the act with egg-rolling Easter games. Here in the United States, egg-rolling became an Easter-time event on the White House lawn in 1878. Carme and Marlynn Carson are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Carson, 1911 Fourth avenue east. (Times-News photo)

MRS. MYRL SCHROEDER, Filer, poses in the ensemble she has chosen for Easter. Mrs. Schroeder is wearing a two-piece, belted, dark-colored suit accented with two dark fuchsia buttons on the bodice front and on the cuffs of the three-quarter-length sleeves. Her ensemble is accented with white gloves, hat and earring. The three-strand bead necklace adds just the right accent to complete her attire. Mrs. Schroeder is the mother of four children and is a member of Peace Lutheran church, Filer. (Times-News photo)

CLEAR PURITY of lilies, along with the cross, reflect the joy of the Easter season. Classic Easter lilies, at their best this time of year, are a traditional part of the Easter season. The delicacy and beauty of the bell-shaped flowers carry the true meaning of Easter to all. (Times-News photo)

MRS. KENNETH HODDER, 557 Heyburn avenue west, is shown picking flowers from her feythis bush to make a centerpiece for her Easter luncheon table. The first burgeoning of spring flowers is very appropriate for Easter and signifies the freshness of the season. (Times-News photo)

Miss Humphries Is Bride of C. E. Matthews

The First Methodist church was the setting for the double ring uniting in marriage Marilyn Jean Humphries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Humphries, Twin Falls, and Charles Eugene Matthews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Matthews, Piler.

The March 20 nuptials were solemnized by the Rev. Henry J. Gernhardt as the couple stood before two cathedral baskets of pink and white gladioli, flanked by candelabra with white tapers.

Ferris Sweet, soloist, was accompanied by Thomas Holter, who also played the traditional wedding music. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of imported Chantilly lace and bridal peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with a snugly fitted bodice of the delicate lace, long tapered sleeves and a scalloped neckline accented with sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis centered with a white orchid and tied with pale pink piquet ribbon.

For tokens of sentiment, she wore the traditional blue garter, an Indian head penny in her shoe, and a Roman gold ring with a black onyx setting that had belonged to her great aunt, Carol Parrott, Salt Lake City. Carol, the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a street-length dress of raspberry-colored brocade satin, with a bateau neckline and fashioned with a dome skirt. Ganada Mission Work Described At April Meet

At the April meeting of the United Presbyterian Women's association, Mrs. Harold Holsinger, Wendell, gave an account of the work of the Ganada mission, Arizona.

Dr. and Mrs. Holsinger spent last August at the Ganada mission and Dr. Holsinger worked at the mission hospital. Through his volunteer services as a mission doctor, the regular doctor was able to take a month's vacation.

"Ganada," Mrs. Holsinger said, "seeks to represent Christianity in action by its three fold mission of ministry, teaching and healing. The mission is a 75-acre tract of irrigated land in the barren Arizona desert and resembles a small city. The tract is watered by a priceless well and Indians from many miles around come to get water," she stated.

Mission buildings include Sage hospital, a junior-senior high school boarding school and the church. Ganada maintains field clinics and councils 2500 Navaho families. The mission is sponsored by the church board of national missions.

The devotional services was by Mrs. Julian Johnson. Tea was served by a committee from Circle No. 1, headed by Mrs. Harry Yaw, Mrs. P. B. Wilson and Mrs. Dewitt Young presided at the tea table which was centered with an arrangement of magnolia blossoms.

BIG EASTER EGG takes a bluish to paint, as Doreen Jensen, senior at the Twin Falls high school finds out the end result is what is important and the more gaily decorated the egg, even the large, imitation ones such as this—the more they bring out the ohs and ahs of the people who receive them. Miss Jensen is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell W. Jensen. (Times-News color photo)

Traditional Bonnets for Easter Wear Still Have Frills of Yesteryear

BY O. A. (GUS) KELKER,
Times-News Feature Editor

Generally speaking, at least so far as hats worn by women are concerned, the styles never really change — only the gals under them.

Skeptical? Just take a good long look at your wife or girl friend this Easter Sunday. They, in turn, can look at themselves in any well constructed mirror. This study should change the mind of any non-believer and prove conclusively that humor is like history, it repeats itself.

Not that the Easter hats worn by the fair sex are humorous. Heaven forbid! Perhaps the word to use in this case is interesting instead of humorous.

Today's hats are every bit as interesting as those of 25 or 30 years ago and pictures prove it from the sun, or the head from rain or snow. Nevertheless, the date when it all started will never be known.

Neither, will the reason be known that somewhere along the line the human-female started to deck herself out in hats and clothes much more attention-getting than those of the human male. In animal land, it usually is just the opposite, with the females taking the back seat.

Hats mean many things to many people. Frankly they are not always called hats. In India they are called turbans and in Bolivia, chullo. Mexicans call them sombrero and Irish tam-o-shanter.

In France the women wear a coil and in Russia a chaplet. Yugoslavians women appear decked in a pillbox and Norwegian girls in a bonnet.

Hat customs, too, are interesting. Women cannot enter Roman Catholic or Episcopal churches without hats or some other type of head covering.

Jewish men wear their hats at home or in the synagogue as a sign of respect. There are many Names?

Names of the girls and women who posed for early pictures used in connection with today's Easter hat feature are unknown.

The negatives are among those originally exposed by the late William A. Flower, pioneer local photographer, which are now owned by O. A. (Gus) Kelker, Times-News feature editor.

Kelker came into possession of scores of historically interesting glass negatives when he purchased the Flower photographic studio in 1946.

They were discovered bound together and held in weights, but all identifications were missing. Times-News readers knowing any of the women or girls in the illustrations are urged to convey this information, by letter, to the Times-News feature editor.

You can see what today's hats are like by just looking. You have to study old pictures to see that the change doesn't really amount to much.

The old pictures are available among those taken by the late William A. Flower, pioneer photographer of Twin Falls. The old glass plate negatives which Flower used in the early days of photography in this section are now owned by this Times-News writer-photographer.

A search through scores of them turned up at least four which could, quite frankly, be called little gems in the matter of presenting the fashions of long ago.

These negatives were used to make the prints and finally the engravings which illustrate this feature story today. They are interesting bits of the history of the city and the long ago styles of not only hats, but dresses and coats as well.

Limiting the discussion to hats, at Easter, seems enough of an area to cover in one story.

Speaking of hats there is nothing in history which pinpoints the exact time men—and women—started wearing them, or why. Perhaps it was to shield the face

SECTION

TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, SUNDAY, APRIL 18, 1965

HERE IS A HAT that should have ended the era of all hats. It is worn by a woman whose name is unknown, but who posed for William A. Flower, pioneer photographer, when his negatives were being used. Being where, it is practically impossible to believe that a hat this large could have been worn in Twin Falls when the wind was blowing. This hat might be one that would be a little out of style among today's women—but not much. (W. A. Flower photo)

TWO WOMEN, probably a mother and daughter, gaze fondly at a baby in this picture taken by the late William A. Flower, early photographer. The highly decorated hats are so much different than some worn by today's fashionable females. The dress on the standing woman is a prize example of the dress designers' art of long ago. Flower was one of the first photographers in Twin Falls and early glass negatives exposed by him are of great historic value. (W. A. Flower photo)
