New Version Of "Chicken" Game Started

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—British youths, believed responsible for a rash of recent rail crashes and near accidents, have started playing a new version of the "chicken," a British railway official said today.

He said boys now run across the main London-to-Wales railway line directly in front of express trains racing along at 80 miles per hour. "The first one across is chicken," he said. "One gang of youngsters was running across the line with a dog only seconds before a train passed," area manager G. T. Phillips said. "If this continues someone will be killed."

An engineer and another person were killed earlier this year when a train derailed on a stretch of track known to railmen as "the death stretch" because of danger from obstacles left on it by playing children.

Wilson Says Britain Backs U.S. Policy

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson told an unprecedented conference of European Socialist leaders today that Britain solidly backs President Johnson's Viet Nam policy of firmness combined with readiness to negotiate peace settlement.

Some of Wilson's listeners—including European Socialist party and government leaders—were understood to be strongly critical of U.S. Viet Nam policy and worried about possible escalation of the hostilities, into a major war. Critics who voiced fears of a stepping up of Vietnamese hostilities urged an all-out British effort to help bring about a negotiated settlement.

TOKYO, April 24 (AP)—Special presidential envoy Henry Cabot Lodge told Prime Minister Eisaku Sato and Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shima today that U.S. policy for a peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam conflict remains unchanged. He said all of the low-lying snow is gone but there is much snow still left above the 6,000 foot level. The U.S. government had guaranteed them entry and residence permits in advance as political refugees, said the report. Cesar del Castillo is the first Cuban diplomat in Britain to defect. The paper said he declined the offer to move to London because of the mounting oppressiveness of Castro's police state.

Rampaging River Smashes Through Dikes Into Cities

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., April 24 (UPI)—The century's worst flood on the upper Mississippi smashed through dikes and chewed through highways today, spilling into city streets and farmyards along a 200-mile path from Wisconsin to Missouri. Fulton, Ill., a community of 3,800 across the river from Clinton, Ia., was cut off from the outside world. Mayor Warren Wiersema of Fulton said, "It's terrible. It couldn't be worse. We have 200 homes completely ruined." The rampaging river worked around behind dikes and ripped through Illinois 84 and Alternate U.S. 30, north and east of Fulton, turning blocks of concrete pavement like tennpins. The current was so swift boats could not be used to rescue the trapped.

Egypt's Arms Shipments to Congo Halted

CAIRO, April 24 (AP)—Egypt has halted arms shipments to the Congo rebels because of fears they might be captured by Premier Moise Tshombe's army, informed sources said yesterday. Observers said this decision could remove one major source of tension in Egyptian-American relations. The deliveries began last December following the U.S.-Belgian aidport into Stanleyville. Large quantities of weapons, equipment and ammunition were flown into the Sudan, south of here, and moved by truck across the border. However, reports reaching here in the past three weeks indicate the rebellion in the Congo is flagging. A considerable amount of material sent from here was reported captured by Tshombe's forces, who are said to control wide border areas near Uganda and the Sudan.

33 Arrested As Attempted Coup Fails

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, April 24 (AP)—An attempted coup against the Dominican Republic's ruling civilian junta apparently collapsed tonight after the rebels were ousted from the government radio station. While crowds of anti-government demonstrators swarmed through the streets shouting denunciations of the regime, the rebels occupied the radio station for 30 minutes and announced they had taken over the country. A policeman was reported stabbed in the street fighting and at least one young demonstrator was injured by gunfire. But as dusk settled on this old capital, Santo Domingo was once again calm.

Heavy Rain, Hail Strike Valley Areas

Weather was varied in Magic Valley Saturday, with sunshine and a small amount of rain, 0.4 of an inch, in Twin Falls, a heavy rain at Richfield, and a hail storm below Timmerman hill. The Richfield area experienced a heavy rainfall about 5 p.m., which was reported as "almost a cloudburst." About two inches of hail fell between 3 and 4 p.m. below Timmerman hill on U.S. highway 93. Lightning struck an Idaho Power pole directly, making kindling wood out of it. The bolt also took down the two poles on either side of the one struck. Dean Davis, Halley, conservation officer, was traveling on the highway and reported the hail was so heavy he had to stop. He was nearby when the lightning struck the pole.

Soviet Youths Jeer Easter Celebrators

MOSCOW, (Sunday) April 25 — Several hundred Moscow youths today jeered and made insulting gestures at Russian Orthodox priests celebrating Easter at the city's Central Cathedral.

"God is a fraud," go back to the dark ages," Russian teen-agers shouted at Russian priests in the march around the cathedral just after midnight in the symbolic search for Christ.

"We are atheists and proud of it," another heckler yelled. "The crowd surged against the iron fence, many shaking their fists through the bars."

The Russian Orthodox church celebrates Easter later than Western Christians because it uses the old style Julian calendar.

Police had a hard time controlling the throng and traffic had to thread its way through a mass of humanity who had come to witness what is now a rarity in the Soviet Union — Easter services at a Russian Orthodox church.

Moscow now has 40 such churches compared with approximately 600 before the Russian Revolution which proclaimed atheism as official state policy.

Although church going is discouraged, it is legal and even protected.

Liquor Funds (Continued From Page 1) be placed in the county junior college tuition fund. However, if before June 30, 1966, liquor funds should prove insufficient to cover tuition, the county commissioners from the county where the shortage occurs must limit the number of students to attend from that county. This means that only the number of students the county can finance at $450 a head can enroll.

The commissioners will have to choose which students shall be allowed to enroll on the basis of grades and financial need. The students who do not accept or reject applications from the county must limit the number of students to attend from that county. This means that only the number of students the county can finance at $450 a head can enroll.

The students who do not accept or reject applications from the county must limit the number of students to attend from that county. This means that only the number of students the county can finance at $450 a head can enroll.

The junior college has the right to require any student living outside the district to pay nonresident tuition out of his own pocket if the county of his residence is more than six months in arrears on at least 25 per cent of the total county tuition bill. The money will be refunded to the student when the county pays its bills.

Tuition for residents of the junior college district in this county must not be less than $50 nor more than $100 per annum, if the student is taking normal academic courses.

For students not taking normal academic courses, tuition will include the annual instructional, administrative, maintenance and operational costs of providing the instruction. This includes depreciation of equipment and buildings, supplies and fuel and other ordinary and necessary expenses of operation.

A student is considered a resident if he has lived within the district for at least six months continuously prior to the date of his first enrollment in the college. Students are not considered residents even though they may have lived in the district for a while while attending junior college.

It is not necessary for the student to call on the county to pay the $450; he may foot the bill out of his own pocket. College officials feel, however, there will not be many students in this category.

Out-of-state students will, of course, have to pay full tuition costs out of their own pockets. Such costs, while they have not yet been set by the College of Southern Idaho, will be based on the actual instructional costs.

Students living in an area having a junior college may not expect their residence county to pay the $450 for them to attend a junior college in another area in Idaho.

2 Children Are Killed on Carnival Ride

DETROIT, April 24 (AP) — Two children were whirled to their deaths and three hurt before a horrific pile-up in the partial collapse of a carnival's "Flying Comet" thrill-ride today.

A bell-shaped car carrying the five youngsters, aged 8 to 14, crashed at the carnival site in a shopping center of suburban Taylor township.

The car was dragged 70 feet along an asphalt pavement and four of the children were flung out "like rag dolls," witnesses said.

"It was a Godsend that no more were killed," said police Lt. Carl Lang.

Sharpnaw, 14, and her brother, Grant, 12, Taylor, were dead on arrival at Wayne County General hospital.

Injured seriously were Susan Raye, 10, and her sister, Nancy Lee Mathies, 9, and their cousin, Bonnie Mathies, 8, all Taylor.

Shortly beforehand, the five had boarded the "Flying Comet" with other children for a spinning ride in a bucket-like contraption at the end of a steel arm 10 or 12 feet above ground.

Seven children in other cars went into shock but were not otherwise injured. The car containing the Hawks and Mathies children was the only one to fall.

"Children were scattered all over," said Patrolman Robert Killebrew. "People were sick and screaming and crying for someone to help. It was an awful sight."

Death of Two Sweethearts Is Mystery

SAYREVILLE, N.J., April 24 (AP)—Details of the way two young sweethearts met their deaths in a mysterious tonight-tragedy were made for their separate funerals.

The charred bodies of John Connors, 18 and Virginia L. Bricker, 16, were found yesterday in a lonely meadowland area that had been sealed by a brush fire shortly after the girl was reported missing Thursday night.

Autopsies by Middlesex county medical examiner William W. Lentz showed they died from burning.

Their families reportedly admitted to the romance—they had gone steady for nine months—largely because of Virginia's ag-ony.

No evidence of gasoline or other incendiary material was found in the area, and Sayreville Police Chief Raymond Sweeney said he considered it "still an open case."

County Prosecutor Edward Dolan had said earlier, "We believe it was a double suicide."

The bodies were discovered lying on the ground, Connors' arm around the girl. In the boy's wallet, which was under his engagement ring, a note in the girl's handwriting, found at her home, said, "I want to be buried next to Jack."

The association is in need until this fall, with the next meeting to be held in Twin Falls.

Russia to Reduce Some Goods' Prices

MOSCOW, April 24 (AP)—The Soviet government has decided to reduce state controlled retail prices on a variety of consumer goods, the official news agency Tass reported today.

Prices on natural and artificial fibers, cameras and such foodstuffs as corn and herring, will be reduced between six and 30 per cent, Tass said.

The price cuts were decreed by the central committee of the Soviet communist party. The committee also has decided to rescind price increases placed earlier on a number of goods sold primarily in the rural districts of the Soviet Union, Tass said.

Total reductions would amount to 1.2 million dollars a year, Tass said.

Trial Set for Coup Leaders in Viet Nam

SAYON, April 24 (AP) — The government announced tonight that the leaders of South Viet Nam's last attempted coup d'etat will go on trial here Tuesday.

But a member of the committee investigating the Feb. 19 revolt said the real ringleaders had not yet been captured.

They are former Interior Minister Brig. Gen. Lam Van Phat and Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, who led the rebel forces.

The announcement of the trial did not specify the charges against the accused, nor list the men who would be tried.

But a source in the investigation committee said the defendants included only second-string members of the Feb. 19 conspiracy.

The highest-ranking defendants are two former province chiefs, Col. Nham Minh Trang, and Lieut. Col. Le Van Tru. The rest are majors and junior officers, the official said.

3 Arrested for Painting Theft

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24 (AP)—Police arrested three San Francisco men today in connection with the theft of one million dollars in paintings last month from the nearby Hillsborough home of the late banker W. W. Crocker.

Police Chief Russell Fischer of Hillsborough said two of the men just returned from Houston, Tex., where they deposited a large crate with a van and storage company. He said a storage receipt from the Houston firm was recovered.

Girl Injured

CAREY, April 24—Trudy Justensen, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Justensen, was injured Tuesday when the horse she was riding slipped in the mud and fell on her left leg and foot. Miss Justensen had been helping her father give some calves when the accident happened. She was stunned and two bones were broken in her foot.

Police Chief Russell Fischer of Hillsborough said two of the men just returned from Houston, Tex., where they deposited a large crate with a van and storage company. He said a storage receipt from the Houston firm was recovered.

Twin Falls Courthouse Has Own Greenhouse, Gardener

By MIKE McGREEER
Twin Falls county courthouse, a place of business for active people, also is a pleasant place, thanks to one man.

Joe Kaye is the man who beautifies the courthouse by taking advantage of his natural "green thumb."

Kaye went to work at the courthouse in 1952 and decided the place needed beautifying with flowers, trees and shrubs.

For about 10 years Kaye spent his own money and much of his own time purchasing and planting seeds which would be placed at the courthouse.

During the past few years, though, the county commissioners have seen fit to budget money for Kaye's natural talents. Now he just spends hours of his own time traveling around the countryside and into the hills gathering seeds and plants to be arranged at the courthouse.

About three years ago Kaye constructed a greenhouse on top of the courthouse from "scraps" he could find around the building.

Residents can view the greenhouse by glancing to the top of the front of the county courthouse.

Every year Kaye, according to his own taste, will arrange his flowers, trees and shrubs to decorate the grounds and inside of the building.

Kaye lives in a room on top floor of the courthouse, next to an apartment resided in by Sheriff and Mrs. James H. Benham.

For a place that is usually filled with serious business, Kaye makes the courthouse a pleasant place to work and visit.

Andrew Tully, an American ally, on possible recognition of Red China. Meanwhile, Indian politicians have been hammering away at the thesis that Viet Nam is all Uncle Sam's fault, and that everything because of our role if we got out of that unhappy country and left it to the tender mercies of Peking.

WASHINGTON, April 24—Bureaucrats in the state department who regard their country's attitudes as only slightly less barbaric than those of Attila the Hun are still in a tizzy over President Johnson cancelling the visits of Pakistan's President Ayub and India's Prime Minister Shastri.
Johnson's actions, say these Nice Nettes, was most naughty and an impoliteness comparable to sounding the dinner gong at 8 o'clock instead of 8:30. It appears one just does not do such things, because heads of state in all countries except the United States are sensitive creatures who must be gentled at all times; and periodically pampered, or bribed, with bags of money. Once again, the professional bowers newspapers are concerned about the American "image."

WITH FRIENDS LIKE THESE—Well, Mrs. Baldersh, I will go along with the elegantes in refusing to accept Johnson's explanation that the visits had to be postponed because of the congressional workload and the war in Viet Nam. Johnson, who apparently never sleeps, could have handled both visits without breaking stride and still found time to invent television, or something. A sounder explanation is that LBJ had enough of the carping criticism from both countries about the Viet Nam mess, plus Pakistan's double dealing tactics in international politics.
Johnson is a compromiser and negotiator, but he is not much at turning the other cheek every hour on the hour. He is properly miffed at Pakistan for romancing Red China and for the turtive maneuver by which it recently sounded out Turkey, an American ally, on possible recognition of Red China. Meanwhile, Indian politicians have been hammering away at the thesis that Viet Nam is all Uncle Sam's fault, and that everything because of our role if we got out of that unhappy country and left it to the tender mercies of Peking.

WHO NEEDS ENEMIES?—Pakistan's Foreign Minister Bhutto was one of those allegedly non-aligned types who showed up at the 10th anniversary of the Bandung conference staged by Indonesia's fat, throat-cutting Sukarno. Peking's Premier Chou En-lai was there to greet Bhutto, of course. And en route to Bandung, Bhutto stopped off at Singapore where he charged that American escalation of the Viet Nam war has hurt prospects for a peaceful settlement.
This is the kind of logic that pervades the thinking of so many of our Asian pals. That is to say, the war is "escalated" when the U.S. retaliates for escalated attacks by the communist Viet Cong. In the morality play of today's "neutrals," Uncle Sam is cast in the villain's role.
LBJ PUTS USA FIRST—Thus Bhutto was able to remark deadpan, during a recent visit to Moscow that Johnson's speech offering unconditional negotiations in Viet Nam and economic aid to Asia didn't go far enough. Presumably, Johnson also should have offered to cede Pennsylvania to Peking along with several improved hydrogen bomb designs.
India's policy makers have been characteristically mealy-mouthed in their sly attacks on the U.S. stand in Viet Nam. But while deploring our actions there, neither the government nor the press in India has taken cognizance of Peking's publicly-proclaimed goal of taking over Southeast Asia. Chou has gone out of his way to inform the world that after Viet Nam is subjugated Thailand is next on the list.
Those curious Americans who wish they lived in Paris or Cold Sore, Yugoslavia, or anywhere but the United States, lay up the driver of the neutrals because they think it gives them an international cosmopolitan outlook. Lyndon Johnson has an outlook, too. It consists of putting his own country first.

Views of Others

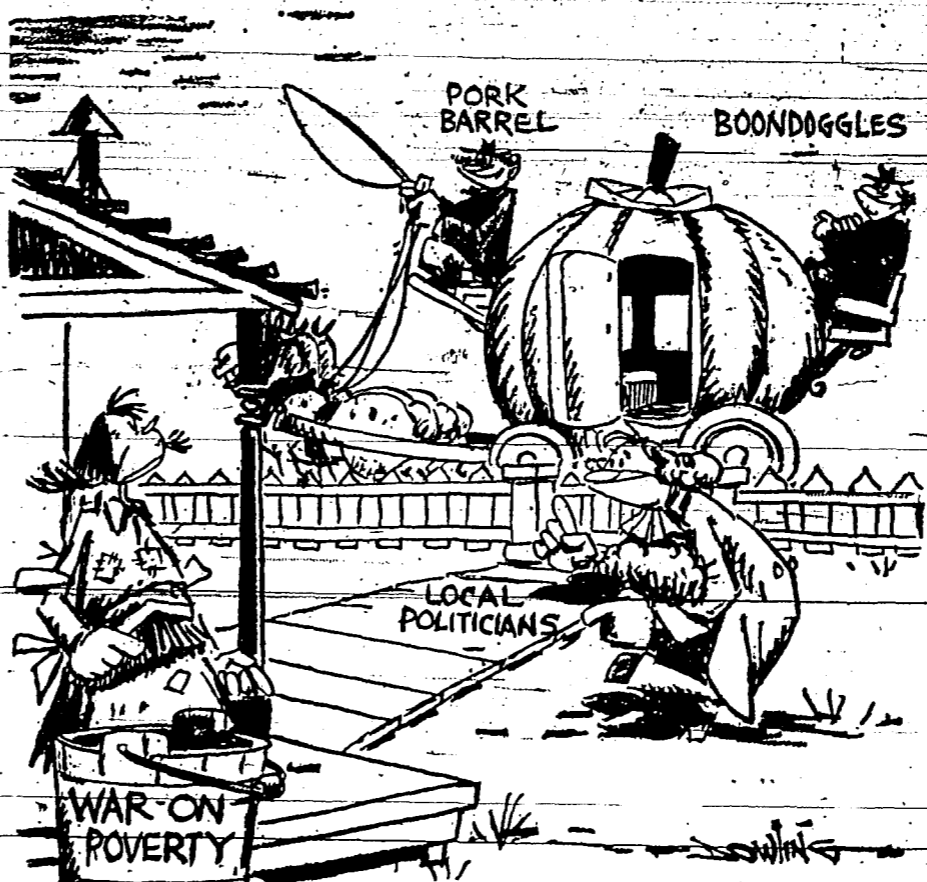

COLLEGE COST
Almost half the American high school students in the top 20 per cent in scholastic aptitude fail to enter college, a study has shown. Most halt their educations because they cannot afford to go further. The cost of a college education has risen 80% rapidly. In fact, that it is a burden for well-fixed families. For public institutions, the average cost is $1,500 a year; for private institutions, $2,700.
All this is why the college scholarship loans and work projects included in the poverty program seem to us to be among its most valuable parts. Last year the initial legislation under the program provided funds to help 150,000 needy students to go to college by paying them for part-time work on campuses or in their communities. A new administration proposal, again part of the poverty program, would broaden this plan and also make loans to needy college students available on a wider scale.
None of it, of course, logically be called a dole, although of course it will be called that and it will be called "socialism" as well. Work must be performed for the work payments; the loans must be repaid. What could be more reasonable than that? What can do more to encourage individual initiative and self-sustenance than enabling more people to earn higher educations?
One objective of these programs is to produce more teachers for what is fast becoming a critical shortage. Our annual "production" of Ph.D.'s is less than half the number needed in college teaching alone and only half of these Ph.D. graduates are going into teaching. By enabling more students to go to college and then to graduate school, we will be helping to fill that shortage.
Not all the poverty program looks so obviously sound as these parts. But the more the generalities about this program are left behind and the more specifics such as these are considered, the more reasonable the program appears.—Atlanta Journal and Constitution.

DOWN THE HATCH
The olive in a martini may contain a microphone instead of pimento and the toothpick may be the antenna, a senate committee was told the other day during a frightening demonstration of scores of snooping devices available to government officials and citizens.
Which brings up the old question of whether a person should swallow the olive immediately after stirring the martini with it or let it soak until the drink is finished.
Obviously to be safe a person should gulp the olive as quickly as possible. After several additional drinks and a heavy lunch, any sounds a swallowed microphone might pick up would merely indicate the need for one of those anti-acids you see on TV while enjoying (?) your dinner.—The Oregonian.

GREAT MEN AND LITTLE ISSUES
A book recently published by the University of Oklahoma on the long and bitter feud between the one-time war-farmer Bet Harte and Mark Twain, in their later years.
The author, Margaret Duckett, never arrives at any satisfactory conclusion on how the marathon battle began but offers as one possible answer that Twain became angry when Harte criticized the arrangement of the furniture in his home.
Men may differ and debate and even engage in lawsuits over major issues and then adjourn in the next bar for a drink. But generally the small things, the insignificant things are what smolder in men's minds and hearts when they're dying days.—Sacramento Bee.

GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

BY HAL BOTLE
NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—Jumping to conclusions:
It may be true that women with small bosoms generally have a higher IQ, as Dr. Edwin O. Strassman of Houston, Tex., reported in a medical journal.
Large breasts with large bosoms must be better spellers. Why else would so many business executives prefer to hire them?
Most shoplifters are lazy, selfish women. The articles they purloin are for themselves or items they can convert into cash. They rarely steal things for their children or to give to their boyfriends.
Our myth-burgers cling to the tradition that baseball is still the national pastime. Actually the game today probably bores more people than it pleases. The only thing about professional baseball that remains intact is the flavor of the mustard they put on the hot dogs.
No matter how wide business prosperity spreads, eight out of 10 businessmen over 40 still keep a bottle of aspirin in their desks. Money makes headaches.

MARQUIS CHILDS WRITES ON WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)— Besides the 11 southern states, the Ku Klux Klan has tentacles reaching into many others. The public statements of the grand dragon and the public meetings of the klaverns are only a small visible tip of an organization that by general agreement threatens law and order, freedom of expression and the safety of individuals whom it tries to intimidate.
This is the far-reaching organization—the house-un-American Activities committee is setting out to investigate. Debating a proposed additional $50,000, the committee already has an annual appropriation of $70,000—the opposition insisted that the proper forum was the judiciary committee. By a vote of 312 to 43 the un-American committee got the $50,000.
Carefully skirted in the brief debate, apparently in deference to congressional protocol, was a fact that in private most representatives, both pro and con, will readily concede. Quite apart from the financial wrongness of this kind of legislative inquiry, the un-American activities committee is not competent to carry out a thorough and effective investigation into a body as pervasive as the Klan.

Of a staff of 48 the committee presently has 18 investigators. Not one has had previous FBI experience. Like the rest of the staff they are mostly appointees of the late chairman, Francis E. Walter, who for many years made the committee according to those long familiar with its make-up, has been the dumping ground for misfits whose principal equipment is a fanatical fear of anything to the left of the National Association of Manufacturers.
So far as can be learned there is no intention of hiring additional investigators who might have a slightly wider range of concern. Yet the committee's present chairman, Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D., La., several weeks ago put an outer limit of two months on the deadline for the start of hearings. He stressed the importance of voluntary information that the committee was receiving in large volume.
This promises a performance in the tradition of the committee's past. It means sensationalism thrown out for one-day headlines and never actively followed up. Undoubtedly, explanations can be found to tell all just as ex-communists were the principal headline hunters of an earlier era.

But it is questionable if this can touch the roots of the violence and threatened violence inherent in armed and hooded gangs of night riders. The record of violence is already written large in Alabama and Mississippi. Whether there is a direct link with the Klan only an investigation by skilled and experienced investigators with a broad writ of authority could determine.
On the choice of the un-American committee to do the job, the opposition had some strong observations. It pointed out that the committee has rarely in its history advanced legislation genuinely effective in checking subversion. The spectacular hearings in the gaudy past meant trial by interrogation, speaker after speaker charged. The committee assumed the right to in effect publicly trial. Refusal to answer questions, except by recourse to the fifth amendment, meant in most instances prosecution for contempt.
A good share of the credit goes to the committee for the internal security act of 1950 or at any rate, to the subversive control feature of that law. But no alleged subversive group has ever been registered. The communist party refused to register on the ground this would be self-incriminating and the circuit court in Washington upheld this plea.
In short, the risk in an investigation of the Klan is like the dangers so clearly shown in the committee's extended dig into the extreme left. Individual rights, the right of free speech, the right to a fair trial, are trampled on. In a writer of sensationalism the real, objective is lost sight of and the investigation falls to show the true situation in any depth whatsoever.
A special danger in the Klan inquiry lies in the charge that the committee is prejudiced against civil rights legislation and civil rights organizations. After a brief skirmish with the Klan the committee will turn its attention to alleged infiltration of civil rights groups by communism. This is said to be the Klan witnesses will take in their own defense—they were working to keep communists out of the South.
A good case can be made for the truth inquiry by the house judiciary committee. This could lead to a thorough overhaul of the civil rights act of 1957, making it a federal crime to deprive individuals of their civil rights. But there is slight hope that such a constructive end can come out of upcoming investigations.

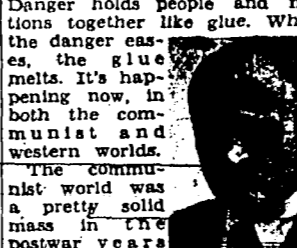

Capital Report

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—Widespread efforts to open Vietnamese peace talks have now substantially collapsed and the conflict in Southeast Asia appears likely to continue at least for several more months.
During that time, Red China and the Soviet Union are likely to become increasingly involved.
Washington officials who have come to John Hightower's conclusions say the basic fact about peace prospects in Viet Nam is that neither side is yet convinced it can't win.
Until one side or the other comes closer to disaster, according to this view, the war will go on and will gradually get bigger in the sense of involving more outside participants.
Another blow to peace hopes came the other day with an announcement from Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, that it had turned down an appeal by 17 nonaligned countries for unconditional negotiations on Viet Nam.
The Hanoi rejection also turned aside mediation by the United Nations, saying that would be "also inappropriate because such approaches are basically at variance with the 1954 Geneva agreements on Viet Nam."
Hanoi's response to the 17-nation bid for unconditional talks was made following a week of secret talks between Soviet and North Vietnamese representatives in Moscow. The talks were followed by issuance of a communiqué which put the Russians in a position of supporting North Viet Nam's four-point peace program and also of backing the Communist National Liberation Front in the south as the proper "legal representative" for South Viet Nam.
The red peace program for Viet Nam calls for withdrawal of all U.S. forces as an essential condition for a settlement.
The effect of the Soviet-North Vietnamese communiqué is to involve the Soviets more deeply in support of the communist side in the Southeast Asian conflict. At the same time the Soviet leaders are moving cautiously. Talk of sending Soviet volunteers into North Viet Nam was hinged on conditions—that the United States should intensify attacks on the North, that Hanoi should appeal for volunteers and that volunteers should be found necessary.
Only a few days earlier U.S. officials had disclosed reports that a site for anti-aircraft rockets was being prepared near Hanoi. Authorities say that the site undoubtedly will be equipped with Soviet-supplied surface-to-air missiles.
Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Hanoi's rejection of the nonaligned appeal "at the first glance repeats what they have been saying for weeks."
"What is missing in the Vietnamese four points is a declaration that they are prepared to stop sending arms and men over the border and that is the key to the matter. If that point is taken care of then other things could happen speedily."
Peace hopes had soared to new heights of optimism when President Johnson announced in a speech at Baltimore that the United States would accept un-

Interpreting the News

BY JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)— Danger holds people and nations together like glue. When the danger eases, the glue melts. It's happening now, in both the east and west worlds.
The communist world was a pretty solid mass in the postwar years when East-West hostility was at its most intense. Red China was glued to the Soviet Union then.
As the Soviet Union began to feel more secure under Premier Khrushchev, having its own nuclear weapons, the communist leadership there relaxed.
Gradually the Russians and their Chinese allies began to split apart. And the satellites began asserting some independence in Eastern Europe.
Now the Soviet Union has abandoned much of its former belligerence and the Russian-Chinese split is wide.
The Chinese remain the belligerent ones, perhaps not so much from ideology as from insecurity and the tension of trying to build their society.
Even the neutralist nations in the more harrowing days of the 1950's were closer than they are now.

In those days, when West Europeans knew a Russian attack could destroy them, unless America backed them, the Western Alliance had more unity than now.
Now, in an Europe bursting with prosperity and no longer worried about Russian devastation, France is weakening the alliance with its self-assertions.
Here at home there is even splintering among the Republicans who were divided in the last election over Sen. Barry Goldwater.
It is questionable the Republicans would have nominated him then if the world had been tense at the time and war a grave possibility.
His tough international talk didn't frighten his party into cohesiveness when there was no crisis.
But it might have, and cost him the nomination. If the split is not healed, that award had to be weighed for its consequences.
If the Democrats are an exception to all this, and they are more solidly united than in years, most of the credit can go to President Johnson.
This master politician, knowing his success in the presidency depends on party support in congress, is working overtime to keep Democrats together.
He is not letting the Democrats relax.
What is happening now around the world had its counterpart in the years after World war I.

Idaho Engineers Hold Meet in Twin Falls

Considerable discussion was held relative to recent legislation affecting engineering education in Idaho universities during a one-day meeting of the Idaho Society of Professional Engineers, Inc., Saturday in the Twin Falls city hall.

The ISPE supported an extension and continued emphasis on engineering education at the University of Idaho as well as a two-year pre-engineering course at Idaho State university.

Officials at the meeting pointed out that the state legislature passed legislation in accord with these recommendations, as well as establishing a four-year degree-granting course in nuclear engineering at ISU.

The engineering society voted to provide all possible support to the newly established nuclear engineering curriculum.

A committee has been assigned to investigate the possibility of the ISPE awarding an engineering scholarship in connection with the now existing national engineering scholarships awarded annually through the national society.

DIETRICH, April 24 — The Dietrich high school seniors were honored by the juniors with a banquet Thursday evening at the school cafeteria.

Becky Weiss was master of ceremonies. Invocation was given by the Rev. Paul Winkler. Members of the senior class gave the class history and will.

The prophecy was given by the junior class. Musical numbers included an accordion solo by Ronnie Lauer and a vocal solo by Mark Osler, accompanied by Mrs. Enid Winkler. The benediction was given by Sam Astle.

One official speaking of reports of impending additions to the 32,000-man U.S. military force in South Viet Nam, said he would not be surprised to see this total rise by perhaps another 12,000 men before the end of the year.

U.S. to Give Vietnamese New, Faster Patrol Vessels

WASHINGTON, April 24 — The United States is expected to give the South Vietnamese navy new and faster patrol-type vessels to reinforce its junk fleet in the battle to stem communist infiltration of men and arms by sea.

Sources also said today that more U.S. navy men will be attached as advisers to the 550-ship Vietnamese armed junk fleet carrying the burden of hunting down the gun and man smugglers among an estimated 72,000 small ships sailing those waters.

The exact scale of this strengthened aid awaits the outcome of a U.S. navy survey to determine how much is needed. For the time being, it was indicated, the U.S. navy will continue its present limited role of spotting suspicious junks from the air and from warships operating off South Viet Nam.

ing previous decision to add up to another 160,000 men to South Viet Nam's 550,000-man military force.

However, there were strong indications that a number of significant new moves were discussed and kept secret.

Reports circulated that the marine expeditionary brigade deployed around the Da Nang air base and Hue in South Viet Nam would shift from a relatively static perimeter defense to a more aggressive role—that is, marine units would go out hunting the communist Viet Cong beyond the present perimeter.

At the same time, other reports indicated that the marine ground combat elements in the Da Nang area would be increased to about division strength. This could mean bringing in another 6,000 or 7,000 marines from Okinawa. Consideration also may have been given to introducing army

Criminal on FBI List Is Captured

ATLANTA, Ga., April 24 (AP)—One of the FBI's 10 most wanted criminals, Leslie Douglas Ashley, was arrested yesterday at a carnival where he worked as a clown, after four carnival workers spotted a wanted poster and female clothing in his suitcase.

Ashley, 28, who has often worked as a female impersonator, was arrested while sleeping in a bus at the carnival.

The 5-foot, 9-inch fugitive had been employed at a concession as "Bobo the Clown"—dropping into a tank of water when thrown baseballs struck a target. For his clown role, he wore a colored rubber suit, white and red makeup on his face.

Ashley, named to the top 10 criminal list two weeks ago, is wanted for retrial in a murder case involving a Houston real estate man.

Driving

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, April 24 (AP)—Iceland will turn to right-hand driving in 1968. Parliament has decided to bring the left and right sides of the road to Sweden may switch over in 1967.

The reason given for Iceland's change is a yearly increase in U.S. and continental European tourists here.

DEW Line Extension Ends Friday

MIDWAY ISLAND, April 24 (AP)—Since 1958, a U.S. Navy squadron of Super Constellation has remained airborne 24 hours a day, seven days a week, patrolling the 1,500 miles between Midway Island and Alaska.

On April 30, the last of the patrol will be launched from this lonely North Pacific island, 1,100 miles northwest of Honolulu. Then, the Distinct Early Warning—DEW—line extension will be ended.

The planes will, for the most part, be mothballed, and their crew members dispersed to other jobs. Many of them already have left.

The department of defense decreed an end to the patrol because of the "declining nature of a manned boom threat." There has been no announcement as to what, if anything, will replace the patrol.

The mission of the aviators has been something less than dramatic. It has been described as the most grueling of cold war jobs.

In 1958, the decision was made to close the gap through which the U.S. West Coast was vulnerable to possible attack by manned, supersonic enemy bombers with nuclear payloads.

The DEW line stretching across the Canadian land mass from the Atlantic to the Pacific, blocking the polar route, was lengthened.

Reconnaissance ships patrolled the stormy North Pacific. Their job was the same as the aircraft. These, too, are being withdrawn.

The planes and ships all were part of the airborne warning barrier, the nerve center of which was Barber's Point naval air station near Honolulu.

It was from Midway Island, however, that the planes flew. The barrier squadrons were the largest in the navy with 28 aircraft manned and maintained by 340 officers and 1,700 enlisted men.

Each plane, with its six tons of electronic equipment carried a crew of about 20, half of these being "scope watchers." These men peered at four radar screens watching for "blips." The "blips" could mean enemy attackers.

Much of the expense from Midway Island to the Aleutians is shrouded in fog.

The weather tested pilots' and navigators' abilities, prevented boredom in the flight to nowhere and back. The planes never landed except where they started, and never had a serious accident.

Lieutenant (jg) Dave Fore, a navigator from Corpus Christi, Tex., said there wasn't much drama about "blips" on the radar scopes would be spotted, radioed to the command control on the ground for evaluation, and the flight would go on. It is someone else's job to stop an attack. An average flight lasted 17 hours.

Fore said they got "the best chow in the service" and the galley in one of the Constellation would almost make a Honolulu housewife envious.

Beds—called "racks"—were plentiful and comfortable. Mostly, men worked for four hours and slept three.

"It's okay once you get used to the sleeping arrangements," said one of the crew members, Bob Palmquist of Columbia, Mo. "And if you like to fly—which I do—there's plenty of that."

News Around Idaho

POCATELLO, April 24 (AP)—Garrett Freightlines, Inc., Pocatello, has announced an eight per cent gross revenue increase in the first quarter of 1964. President C. A. Garrett told shareholders in a quarterly report net earnings for the period were 40 cents a common share, up six cents from last year's first quarter. He said gross revenues for the first three months of 1965 were $8,587,061. Garrett also told shareholders the company might go to court to protest an internal revenue service assessment of $431,000 for 1959 and 1962 tax deficiencies.

POCATELLO, April 24 (AP)—Vincent Mendez, 25, Fort Hall, was in serious condition today at St. Anthony hospital here with a gunshot wound in his shoulder he received in a hunting accident. Mendez was participating in a hunting party in the Gifford area with two companions when the accident occurred about 10:30 a.m. They reported the gun fired accidentally as Mendez was sitting on a rock. Dr. Emmett Herron, Grace, administered emergency treatment before Mendez was rushed to the hospital in Pocatello for surgery. Sister Mary Consolata, hospital administrator, said Mendez was expected to be confined up to two months.

BOISE, April 24 (AP)—The Idaho public utilities commission reported today it has expanded the trucking authority of Boise Cascade corporation, Boise, giving it permission to haul certain heavy equipment. The expanded permit authorizes Boise Cascade to haul machinery within the Boise and Payette national forests for the forest service and contractors working under specific agreement with the firm in its logging operations. The commission reported approval of the transfer of a permit by William G. Cummings to D. A. Whitley, Inc., both of Grönro.

BOISE, April 24 (AP)—Directors completed at a meeting today arrangements for the formal opening Monday of the new Commercial State bank, the first new banking institution in Boise in 18 years. It is a water-chartered institution headed by men long active in Idaho banking circles. O. R. Baum, Pocatello, is chairman of the board, and Claude E. Miller, Caldwell, is president. Gilbert Mendonsa, Boise, is executive vice-president and cashier. A. H. Spaulding, Pocatello, a former state commissioner of finance, and T. D. Jones, Malad, are vice presidents. The bank will be Boise's fourth. Already operating are the Idaho First National bank, the First Security bank and the Bank of Idaho, each with a main office and several branches.

BOISE, April 24 (AP)—Dr. D. R. Theophilus, retiring president of the University of Idaho, was announced today as the speaker for a breakfast meeting of the Greater Boise Chamber of Commerce Wednesday. He will discuss "A Forward Look at Higher Education in Idaho." Dr. Theophilus will end his presidency at the university June 30.

BOISE, April 24 (AP)—Proclamations designating the Mondays following Memorial day and Independence day as legal holidays in Idaho have been signed by Gov. Robert Smylie. Both Memorial day, May 30, and Independence day, July 4, fall on Sunday this year.

BOISE, April 24 (AP)—A $78,584 contract for construction of a power house fishway at the Lewiston power dam will be awarded next Wednesday to the Kenaston and Huntley company of Lewiston. Public Works Commissioner Arthur Warren said the Lewiston firm submitted the lone offer on the project. He said earlier that the fish and game department had indicated it might ask that the project be re-bid but had decided against that course and asked him to award the contract to Kenaston and Huntley.

CALDWELL, April 24 (AP)—A judge has dismissed narcotics charges against a 62-year-old man on grounds his constitutional rights were violated by investigators who bored holes in the wall of his apartment to spy on him. And the county prosecutor says that any officers engaging in such illegal snooping in the future will be arrested. Investigators testified at the preliminary hearing for George Evans yesterday that they bored holes in his wall. Canyon County Probate Judge Lloyd C. McClintock said in dismissing the charges that such spying violated Evans' constitutional protection against unreasonable search and seizure.

LAPWAI, April 24 (AP)—Sealed bids on leases covering six tracts of allotted Indian lands on the Coeur d'Alene reservation will be opened May 19 at the bureau of Indian affairs office in Lapwai. Thomas H. St. Clair, superintendent, said the tracts range from 12 to 160 acres and that four consist of crop land as well as pasture. The remaining tracts consist entirely of pasture land.

BOISE, April 24 (AP)—Gov. Robert E. Smylie has lent some credence to speculation that he may seek reelection in 1966 but still declines to discuss his political future. The governor dropped a hint he may seek an unprecedented fourth term as Idaho chief executive in a letter accepting the resignation of state Rep. T. F. Terrell, D., Bannock. "I shall look forward," Smylie told Terrell, who has been appointed executive secretary of the Idaho public employees retirement system, "to a long and pleasant association with you." Asked if this meant he would seek a fourth term, Smylie said simply the phrase "speaks for itself." There has been speculation that Smylie, whose term expires in 1967, may seek the senate seat now held by Republican Sen. Len B. Jordan. Jordan has already announced he will seek reelection, however, and many observers say they do not believe Smylie would engage in a primary battle with the senator, who has a strong following in Idaho GOP circles.

BOISE, April 24 (AP)—Rep. Compton I. White, D., Ida., says he will probably seek reelection as Idaho's first district congressman in 1966 but that he is not ruling out the possibility he may seek another office. He declined comment, however, on speculation he may try for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Some observers believe White might try for the senatorial seat now held by Sen. Len Jordan, a Republican, because of the realignment of the state's two congressional districts. The redistricting law enacted by the 1965 legislature shifted strongly Republican Ada county into the first district and some observers feel this will swing the balance of power in the district away from the Democratic party.

BOISE, April 24 (AP)—Wayne York, executive secretary of the Idaho Education association, will leave for Washington, D.C., next week to attend a meeting called to discuss the new federal aid to education program. The two-day session, sponsored by the National Education association, is scheduled to begin Wednesday.

$80,000 4-H Camp Planned In Mountains Near Ketchum

JEROME, April 24 — Plans to build a 4-H camp, estimated to cost about $80,000—are being launched by leaders of the organization in the Magic Valley counties. It was announced today by W. G. (Bill) Priest, Jerome county agent.

The camp will be located across highway 93 and up the hill from the Russian John ranger station, north of Ketchum and this side of Galena summit.

Tom Williams, Boise district extension agent, explained possibilities of the camp and reviewed the present 4-H camping program at a meeting hosted by the Jerome county 4-H council Thursday night in the American Legion hall here.

Leaders from throughout the nine-county district attended. It was pointed out some 3,500 youths attend sessions of the 4-H camp each summer and now facilities are rented at Easley's or other church camps.

Vernon Ravenscroft, Tuttle, Gooding state representative, talked on the value of 4-H work in building citizenship.

Substitute For C Rations Being Tested

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif., April 24 (AP)—Ex-GI's may remember a gastronomic specialty of the armed forces called the C-ration.

Well, something to replace it is being tested. And guess what? It looks worse.

The food is pre-cooked, dehydrated and comes in a small bag about the size of a tobacco pouch. It is called, hopefully, a survival ration.

Here's the recipe:
A GI pours half to three-quarters of a canteen cup of hot water into the waterproof bag, lets the contents set for 20 minutes.

Smart Kookies 4-H Club Meets

A regular business meeting was held Saturday for the Smart Kookies 4-H club at the home of Mrs. R. L. Summerfield.

It is hoped to finance the camp through 4-H members and their families, Priest noted. The camp will include a kitchen, recreation hall and 19 sleeping cabins to start with, he added.

The Mother's team and Fathers' banquet were discussed. Demonstrations were given by Tom Williams, Vernon Brass, Chris Wyatt and Betty Summerfield.

utes to reconstitute, and presto — out comes such delicacies as chicken stew, beef hash, or beans and meatballs.

There are also powdered beverages and dehydrated desserts. The new rations are being given a trial at this southern California base and at the marine corps' Camp Lejeune in North Carolina.

By MARY THOMPSON

GOODING, April 24—To a great number of people, the words "homemade dress" used to conjure up the image of a sloppy, slovenly ill-fitting creation worn by some backwoods creature, and perhaps to some, still do.

In this respect, nowadays, "homemade" would be a misnomer, as far as looks are concerned, as the women of the Gooding area were privileged to see at a special style show at the Gooding Country club.

Seamstresses of the area displayed their talents and the products of those talents in a fashion show, showing only homemade ensembles. Not only were the garments in the newest spring shades, ranging from a soft pastel pink to the ever popular black and white creations, but they were especially designed and fitted for the persons who modeled them.

For, by choosing her own pattern and material, the home sewer can fashion a dress designed in a fabric and style she likes. She can also alter and adjust a pattern to achieve a perfect fit for her particular figure that is almost impossible with a ready-to-wear garment.

Thus, the style show displayed a great variety of styles, fabrics, colors, etc., selected and made with one particular person in mind.

The women, of course, teamed their dresses with coordinated accessories, as in any fashion show. However, here again her own individuality came into play, for what woman hasn't chosen a hat first, with the dream of finding the perfect dress to wear with it. As a home sewer, the lucky lady has only to choose her fabric and pattern, and in no time at all, has her outfit, which is hers exclusively.

A large number of women expressed their intention of modeling in the style show, after being contacted by Mrs. William Mink and Mrs. Bill Skaggs, co-chairmen of the show, sponsored by the Gooding Civic club. Mrs. Mink has served in the past as home extension agent for Gooding county, and knew of a great number of women in the area who do their own sewing.

Most of the women were very flattered at being asked to model, and many of them set to work immediately sewing a new creation for the show, and, incidentally, probably several of the new dresses made their second public appearance as part of milady's new Easter outfit.

"Buttons and Bows" was the theme for the show, and the Country club was decked out in an abundance of both, as well as yardages draped around the room. In keeping with the home sewing idea, several lengths of fabric were given as special prizes.

A dessert was served during the afternoon, and many of the women remained after the show to play cards.

Other women working on preparations for the show included Mrs. Will Thomas, Mrs. Dennis Heeb, Mrs. Ed Christopherson, Mrs. J. E. Thompson, Mrs. Chord Starry and Mrs. Beryl Bevercombe, all members of the decorating committee, and Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Robert Montgomery, Mrs. Jerry Roby, Mrs. Bevercombe, Mrs. Christopherson, Mrs. Skaggs, Mrs. James Lockett and Mrs. Arden Stutzman, food.

So, for the entertaining afternoon of the latest in "homemade" fashions, women in the Gooding area agreed, this was one of the finest shows of the season.

CHOOSING MATERIAL for new ensembles that were shown at a fashion review and for decorations for the Gooding Country club are, from left, Mrs. Jack Martin, Mrs. William Mink and Mrs. Jerry Roby. Mrs. Mink was co-chairman of the event, and assisted in choosing the models. Mrs. Mink was an ideal person to line up the models as she has served as home extension agent for Gooding county and knew women in the area who sew. (Times-News photo)

Hanging Basket Plants Shown At Club Meet

Countryside Flower club met at the home of Mrs. Eldred Taylor, with Mrs. Eiton Wilson, secretary-treasurer, giving a report. Members showed examples of plants for hanging baskets and other containers.

The club decided to hold its July flower show at the Mountain Rock Grange hall and invite the public to attend. Mrs. V. W. Nelson is show chairman. Mrs. Keith Fullmer was authorized to join the Park-Preview seed testing panel, sponsored by the Park Seed company.

Announcement was made of district Garden club luncheon meeting at 1 p.m. Thursday at the Roserson hotel Desert room.

Mrs. S. W. Smith, local chairman, announced that No. 39 of the flower show judging school will be held May 12 and 13 at the parish hall of the Episcopal church, Jerome.

Herbert Gundell, Denver, Colo., will lecture on houseplants and flower show planning May 12 and 13.

Mrs. John Higgins, Oklahoma City, Okla., will talk on corsages and interpretive flower arrangement May 13. The school is open to any interested person. A registration fee will be charged.

Mrs. Winton Nelson and Mrs. Lyle Schnitker presented the program on container gardening. Mrs. Schnitker continued on an article from Park's Floral magazine and said May is the time to set out pansies or violas in containers to edge walks. Larger container displays can feature early flowering shrubs, roses, daylilies or chrysanthemums to decorate a terrace, a patio or mark a driveway.

Mrs. Nelson reviewed "Plants Grow Everywhere," by George Taloum, from Horticulture magazine. She gave directions for proper soil mix, general requirements for container grown plants and showed pictures of container plantings.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Marvin Taylor was a guest.

The next meeting will be May 20 at the Berger Community hall, with Mrs. Cornelius Lindling as hostess. The program will be a workshop on iris arrangements.

Sunday School Class Members Have Reunion

"It's been so much fun," began Mrs. Homer (Mary) Schnell, Filer, as she gave the welcome address at a Gleaners' Sunday school class 20-year reunion banquet at the Roserson hotel Desert room.

Mrs. Schnell has taught the same Sunday school class for the past 20 years and with her continued correspondence with her many class members, arranged a reunion banquet.

Mrs. Schnell has watched her members grow up, marry and move to various parts of the country, including Kansas, California, Washington, Arizona, Utah, Michigan and various Magic Valley communities.

"This was always one of the most unusual classes," stated one of the guests, "as we spent as much time in Mrs. Schnell's home as we did in our own. Her home was always open to us and candy making and slumber parties were looked forward to with much anticipation."

Mrs. Schnell was married to Homer Schnell March 26, 1916, in Colorado, and moved to Idaho in 1926. Mrs. Schnell is the mother of four children and has been a member of the United Missionary church for 30 years.

Wheat Drops, Corn, Oats Post Gains

CHICAGO, April 24 (AP)—Soybeans, wheat and rye suffered losses and corn and oats posted gains last week on the Chicago board of trade.

Compared to last Thursday's close, soybeans were down 4 1/2 to 1/2; wheat down 2 1/2 to 1/2; rye down 2 to 2 1/2; corn up 1/2 to 1/2; and oats down 1/2 to 1/2.

Soybean futures closed lower Monday and lagging demand appeared to be more of an influence than any heavy selling.

Wheat and rye futures closed lower Monday and lagging demand appeared to be more of an influence than any heavy selling.

Corn futures closed lower Monday and lagging demand appeared to be more of an influence than any heavy selling.

Oats futures closed lower Monday and lagging demand appeared to be more of an influence than any heavy selling.

Concern over late seeding of corn in the main belt produced an erratic market through the week.

Rye prices Thursday declined to new lows for the season. Moderate long liquidation with limited buying interest were influences.

Stock Market Rests, Then Sets Record

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—The stock market spent most of this week resting up from last week's sprint to record levels but still managed to ring up another new record.

In general, the analysts considered the early part of the week a period of rest and consolidation for the market but there were other factors behind the downward tendency.

The slowly dwindling hopes for a settlement of the steel labor talks before the May 1 strike deadline kept steel nervous.

Prices opened the week with a small plus sign but then eased on Tuesday and again Wednesday. However, Wednesday's loss was slanted substantially by a late buying wave.

Prices advanced Thursday on Thursday until another late burst of enthusiasm pushed the popular averages up sharply.

The market made fairly good progress through most of Friday's session but normal pre-week-end liquidation lopped off the best part of the advance.

Nevertheless, Dow-Jones industrial finished at a new peak of 916.41, up 4.50 on the week.

Standard and Poor's 500 stock index added 0.73 at 88.88, also a new peak.

Prohibition Era Gangster Dies at 73

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 24 (AP)—Owen Vincent Owney Madden, 73, who survived two decades of a blazing underworld career and retired here as a quiet man known for his gifts to charity, died today.

A lung disease ended the life of the prohibition era gangster, dubbed "The Clay Pigeon" by New York police because he was shot so often.

There was little vestige in Madden's life here of the days of terror he knew in the Hell's Kitchen district of New York City in the 1920's and 1930's.

He shunned publicity and declined to talk about his life. Madden began his criminal career shortly after arriving in New York from his birthplace of Leeds, England, in 1902. He was first arrested on a burglary charge, at the age of 19, but was acquitted.

Between 1910 and 1934 Madden was accused of six killings, but he served only two prison terms—one for parole violation and one for "instigating" the killing of Little Patsy Doyle.

He bossed the Gopher gang as a beer baron and once used a fleet of ships to bring liquor from England, Scotland and Cuba into New York.

Madden's car was once driven by movie star George Raft, his widow relates, and he is said to have launched Mae West on her fabulous career by sponsoring her in the Broadway production of "Pretty Lil'."

Raft visited frequently here, where Madden and his wife lived peacefully as next-door neighbors to Police Chief John Ermye.

Much of his life at Hot Springs since his retirement remains a secret. He joined the Chamber of Commerce here in the 1930's. He often gave to charitable organizations, favoring those working with children.

Madden married twice. His last marriage was to Agnes Demby, daughter of a former Hot Springs postmaster.

He occasionally played golf or strolled to a downtown bar to talk with friends, but his public appearances were few.

Seven Killed In Tunisian Train Wreck

TUNIS, Tunisia, April 24 (AP)—A crowded commuter train crashed into the rear of a standing work train on the eastern outskirts of Tunis.

Railway officials said seven persons were killed and 53 injured.

The passenger train was on a run from the resort town of Hammam Lif, 10 miles east of Tunis, into the capital when the crash occurred. It hit the rear of a work train loaded with railway employees which had stopped under a bridge for unexplained reasons.

The rear coaches of the work train were badly damaged and police said most of the casualties were among those aboard it.

The passenger train was traveling only at about 30 miles per hour at the time of the crash, railway officials said.

Police and rescue squads rushed to the scene and pulled injured from the wreckage. They were hampered by hundreds of onlookers who flocked from the nearby suburbs.

Books Are Flowing Into Appalachia

CHICAGO, April 24 (AP)—Because Jennelle Moorhead felt that time doesn't wait for a child, a tide of books is pouring into Louisville, Ky.

The books are destined for the one- and two-room schoolhouses of Appalachia, "where the wifid whistles through the cracks in the walls" and there are few libraries, Mrs. Moorhead said.

Mrs. Moorhead, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, said in an interview at PTA headquarters in Chicago that she hopes the total of books will reach a million by June 15.

The books include children's classics and reference works "that will really open the eyes of youngsters to the outside world," she said.

The national PTA has enlisted the cooperation of its 47,000 local units, the federal government, private enterprise and a group of 1,200 Kentucky college students who call themselves the Appalachian Volunteers.

Mrs. Moorhead, Eugene, Ore., said Books for Appalachia had become a reality when "I went to Washington Dec. 12 to talk to R. Sargent Shriver—chief of the office of economic opportunity—about the role the PTA might play in helping disadvantaged children."

"He talked to me about the need for books in Appalachia," said Mrs. Moorhead, 61.

"While the aid to Appalachia bill will aid the economy, time doesn't wait for a child. If they don't have books and supplies for today, then the days are gone very rapidly," she said.

In February the National PTA mailed the local PTA's book lists, bright-colored shipping labels and blueprints for the special pine-and-fiberboard shipping crates that hold 100 books and later serve as bookcases.

Local PTA's begged, borrowed and bought books. PTA fathers hammered the boxes together. The Railway Express agency, Inc., offered a special rate—$1.95 each to ship the 50-pound crates to Louisville from anywhere in the United States.

The PTA's efforts have not gone unappreciated. When the first shipments arrived, said Mrs. Moorhead, a University of Oregon health education professor, "the children were overjoyed—and the teachers were too."

Correct Moves Important in Saving Lives, Doctor Says

HALLEY, April 23— "If you must know instinctively what to do, and have the moral courage to do it."

Nursing care of the sick and injured; infant and child care; shock; and emergency childbirth will be topics studied the next two weeks.

Use of Small Parks Cited By Director

The enjoyment and appreciation of Twin Falls residents and visitors to the city of the six small triangle parks to merit their maintenance, according to Howard Johnson, superintendent, department of parks and recreation.

Johnson noted that the most popular of these areas is the park at Five Points north. It is the largest of the six.

According to Johnson there has never been much talk of taking the parks out because they "beautify" the city. Removal of the park on the corner of Addison avenue and Sixth avenue north was considered at one time, in order to make a better corner for traffic, but the city commission voted down the suggestion.

The idea of the small rest areas became a reality about 30 years ago, and since that time new parks have been added, with more shrubs, trees and picnic tables. Johnson said the city hopes to be able to supply all the triangle parks with picnic tables this year. In past years the Twin Falls Garden club has donated shrubs for the parks and assisted in landscaping the areas.

"We have no plans for removing any of them," Johnson said. "I believe the public, as a whole, would hate to see them go."

Tom Rolfe Thrusts Into Derby Picture With Win In Stepping Stone Purse

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 24 (UPI)—Tom Rolfe, stretch-running son of Italian champion Ribot, surged to a one and three-quarter length victory over heavily favored Native Charger in the Stepping Stone purse today to become a definite threat in next week's Kentucky derby. Tom Rolfe was well back in the pack and made his move on the turn.

By the time jockey Johnny Rotz could get Native Charger clear of the pack, it was too little too late.

Ron Turcotte held the Chesapeake stakes winner Tom Rolfe well in check during the early going while longshots Narushua, who finished third, Golden Bobbie, and Mark-Ye-Well fought for the lead in the seven-furlong allowance test.

Tom Rolfe paid $7.00, $2.80 and $2.40. Native Charger paid $2.40 to place and $2.20 to show and Narushua, a son of Nashua, returned $3.20.

Deputy, delegate, winner of the Louisiana derby, finished a disappointing fourth by four and one-fourth lengths.

Dapper Delegate was fifth in last week's Wood Memorial and his stock in next week's run for the roses dropped considerably after this race.

In winning the feature at Churchill Downs' opening day card, Tom Rolfe took an added prestige with the main event coming up next Saturday.

The victory by Tom Rolfe, owned by Raymond Guest, U. S. ambassador to Ireland and trained by Powhatan stable's P. Y. Whitley, Jr., will probably mean a larger field for the 91st running of the derby.

The final derby prep will be held Tuesday in the one-mile derby trial which has attracted the entry of Bold Lad and Dapper Dan and Bugler, conqueror of Lucky Debonair in the former runner purse at Keeneland two weeks ago.

The purse of $6,000 was nothing more than pocket money to Powhatan Stable which collected $73,004 on Tom Rolfe last year when as a two-year-old he won three of 10 races.

In four previous outings this year, Tom Rolfe had won three times and finished third to Flag Raiser, winner of the Wood Memorial, in his other race.

Utah Olympic Assets are Talked About

SALT LAKE CITY, April 24 (UPI)—Utah has definite natural advantages which make it worth going after the winter Olympic games.

That assessment of Utah's winter sports potential was made by Dr. Merrill H. Stiles, Spokane, president of the U.S. Ski Association. Dr. Stiles commented on the state's bid for the 1972 winter games during a week-end visit to nearby Brighton, Solitude, Alta and Park City.

It's difficult to forecast who will get the 1972 games but Utah has a lot of natural advantages that make it worth going after the event, he said.

"Getting the Olympic games is a long and involved process. It takes a lot of preliminary planning. Utah's leaders have made an excellent start but they will have to pursue the matter to its fullest," Dr. Stiles said.

The ski enthusiast from the Pacific Northwest said Utah's natural advantages included ideal snow conditions, varying types of terrain and easily accessible ski areas.

"I had no idea your ski areas were so close to the downtown area," he said. Dr. Stiles also said he was impressed with the potential ski-complex involving resorts in Big Cottonwood canyon and at Park City. He said it wouldn't surprise him if within 10 years a network of ski lifts would connect all the resorts.

Bell-Led Ducks Down Stanford

EUGENE, Ore., April 24 (UPI)—Sophomore Wade Bell won the mile and half-mile runs to lead the Oregon Ducks to an 83-62 upset victory over Stanford in a Pacific Athletic conference dual meet this afternoon.

Bell captured the mile in 4:06.3 and took the 800 in 1:50.9 as the Ducks ran their record to 7-0 against the Indians.

Oregon held a 9-8 edge in first places and swept two events—the triple and high jumps. Werner Soenenschein won the triple jump in a meet record 49-7 and Bob Shepherd captured the high jump in 6 feet, 4 inches.

Stanford's Larry Questad was the meet's only other double winner. He came in first in the 100-yard dash in a meet record equalling 9.5 and took the 220 in 21.0.

ISU, Grizzlies Have Practice

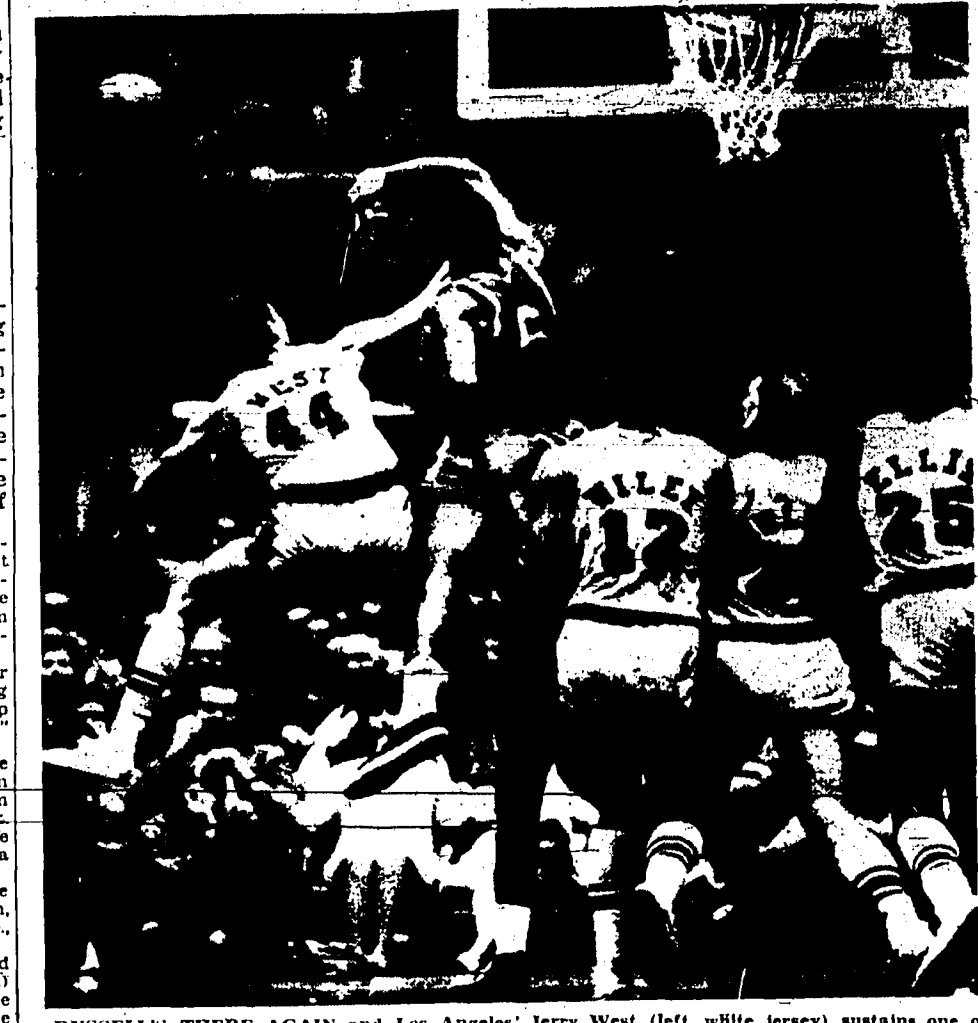

POCAHELLO, April 24 (UPI)—Idaho State University and the Montana Grizzlies settled for a practice track and field meet today after a rain made holding of the regular meet impossible.

No score was kept for the practice meet at the Spud bowl, but it was highlighted by a mile run duel between Arthur Scott of the Grizzlies and Doug Brown of the ISU.

Scott won the race in a 4:17.6 time. Brown, the defending Big Sky champion, finished second with a clocking of 4:18.2.

A fine performance was turned in by Mike Roberts, Highland high school, who ran the distance in 4:37.0. It was one of the fastest times ever turned in by an Idaho prepster.

ISU Coach Likes First Scrimmage

POCAHELLO, April 24 (UPI)—The Idaho State university football squad finished the first week of spring practice today with a hard-hitting 60-minute scrimmage. Coach Babe Caccia and staff put four units in action during the session.

"We were amazed at the way many of the kids performed Saturday" because we have a lot of new players this year, and the weather was bad part of the week," Caccia said.

Southern and Matson Top Drake Relays

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 24 (UPI)—The Little Southern university of Baton Rouge, La., capturing four of the six college baton events, and big Randy Matson of Texas A & M dominated the soggy 56th Drake relays today.

"Eight records were set on Drake university's waterlogged track and field arena Saturday, including a 63-foot, 11 1/2-inch shot put by Matson and three by the Theron Lewis-paced Southern university sprinter.

Matson's shot put triumph was almost four feet shy of his world record effort of 67 feet, 11 1/2 inches April 10.

Yesterday the 6-foot, 7 inch, 260 pound Texas Aggie sophomore whirled the discus 191 feet, 2 1/2 inches for a Drake record.

Southern university won the 440, 880, mile and sprint medley college relay events, setting Drake records in all except the sprint medley.

In the university division, Baylor won the mile and sprint medley relays, but no records were set among the eight baton events contested in that class.

New Mexico's Clarence Robinson, adding the triple jump to his record broad jump victory Friday, and sprinter Clyde Duncan, setting meet records in special 100 and 220 events, were the other double winners.

Duncan, Texas Southern, raced to a 9.5 triumph in the 100-dash, beating Charley Eadcock's 1924 mark of 9.4 yesterday. Duncan ran the 220 in 20.8.

Southern university's closing college mile relay was clocked at 3:06.3.

Lewis was credited with an amazing 45.4 anchor quarter-mile, after leading off Southern's sprint medley triumph anchoring the record 880 relay triumph in 1:23.2.

Farrell Hurls Astros Past Pirates 5-0

HOUSTON, April 24 (UPI)—Dick Farrell fired his first shutout in over two years tonight in pitching the Houston Astros to a 5-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pittsburgh got only seven hits and had only one runner as far as third base. Farrell, now 2-1, pitched his last shutout on Aug. 2, 1962, against the Pirates.

The Astros managed but five hits off Pittsburgh's Verdon Vorn and Tom Butters, but it was more than enough for the victory. Farrell walked one and struck out two.

Law pitched a no-hitter for four innings, but three walks and a hit batsman in the first left him trailing 1-0. Houston's first hit off Law was a leadoff single in the fifth by Bob Lillis.

The Astros got to Law for three runs in the sixth to put the game on ice for Farrell. Jim Wynn was safe on an error and scored on Walt Bond's single to right. Bob Aspromonte hit his first homerun of the season into the left field stands with Bond on base.

Pittsburgh didn't get a runner past second until the seventh inning when Willie Stargell lined a one-out single to deep center and moved to third on Don Cleary's two-out single to right. Jim Pugharoni's fly to Donn Chen ended the inning.

Ninth-Inning Triple Gives Mets Victory

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24 (UPI)—Pinch hitter Danny Napoleon slammed a bases-loaded triple with two out in the ninth inning that brought the New York Mets their second straight come-from-behind victory over San Francisco 7-6 today.

The Mets, who overcame an 8-2 deficit to defeat the Giants 9-8 in 11 innings yesterday, trail San Francisco 6-4 going into the ninth inning.

BALTIMORE, April 24 (UPI)—Thomas slammed a three-run homer, his fourth hit of the game, into the right field bleachers in the 12th inning and powered the Boston Red Sox to a 7-5 victory over Baltimore today.

Thomas' game-winning homer off Stu Miller followed a four hit double by Frank Mahone, fourth hit, and an intentional walk to Tony Conigliaro.

Dick Radatz got the victory with six innings of one-hit pitching. The lone hit off Radatz was Jackie Brandt's homer in the bottom of the 12th.

The Orioles had tied the record on John Orsino's seventh homer. The leadoff homer finished Boston starter Earl Wilson, who was relieved by Radatz.

Cupit Fires 64 To Take Lead in Texas Golf Meet

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 24 (UPI)—Jacky Cupit, posting the lowest 54-hole total of the 1965 golf tour, grabbed a two-stroke lead through the third round of the Texas open today with a 31-33-64 and a 200 total. The 27-year-old Texan, playing out of Corona, Calif., but looking for another pro affiliation in his native state, shot four strokes off par on the front nine of the 5,715-yard Oak Hills Country club course and said a 30-foot downhill putt for his fourth birdie on the eighth hole "was the turning point."

FROM ALL ANGLES

Between differences of opinion and track, Idaho's new football coach, Steve Musseau, is having a difficult spring. In the transition of football staffs—Dee Andrews took all of his but Musseau to Oregon State with him—the difference of opinion in the coaching staffs is the greatest. The coaches naturally occur in judging of football talent and the ensuing offering of football scholarships.

This is the one area where a football coach gets into trouble quickly. Alumni in one community start backing a boy and then become disgruntled when the coach doesn't agree with their assessment. Some boys believe they have been offered more than they have and this arouses further animosity. These things provide ticklish situations each spring for an established coach or a new one the head of the staff.

Idaho's recruiting program started in December under Andrews, who, naturally, made some commitments that Musseau, who got the job several weeks later, did not agree with. "But these scholarships are awarded by the university and must be honored. We can't discourage any one of the boys. The decision will be left up to them," Musseau says.

Idaho has 17 or 18 frosh scholarships available this year and that isn't many for filling 30 to 35 uniforms. "When Dee was still here the staff sat down and assessed all the individuals we had seen. Of course, Dee had the final say. On Dec. 5 we sent out 13 letters that committed us to full scholarships. These are the only riders that have been offered. Of the 13, I felt that four weren't quite that good, but Dee didn't agree with me on the other two or three I thought were better," Musseau said.

The thing about these 13 was there wasn't any commitment date or date they had to tell us one way or another. So actually these are the only riders that have been offered. Of the 13, I felt that four weren't quite that good, but Dee didn't agree with me on the other two or three I thought were better," Musseau said.

After the first scrimmage Thursday, Musseau was pleased with the overall showing, noting what he expected the defense is

Wendell Tops Five Teams In Gooding State Meet

GOODING, April 24 — Wendell again on fourth and fifth from Mayne and Terry Stroud held on for the weekly Gooding State open track meet. The Trojans, who like most of the teams in the area held out runners for the BJC Invitational Saturday, tracked up 81½ points. Hagerman took second with 73, followed by Castleford at 82, Kimberly 22½, Big Bend and Gooding State 6.

Castleford sustained a severe setback in the 440-yard relay when ace hurdler Nolan Carter slipped a groin muscle and may not have time to heal before next week's sub-district, the first step toward the state finals. Carter had the best time in the district in both high and low hurdles.

Four double winners emerged from Friday's contest. Castleford's Gary West on the pole vault and low hurdles while Big Bend's Heibig took the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Schrenk added 25 points to Wendell's total with victories in the discus and shot put and teammate Adams won the mile and the broad jump.

Bob Thackeray and Stunberg topped the Tickers in running. Thackeray ran on the winning 440-yard relay team and Thackeray led the low hurdles. Stunberg had an individual first place in the 100-yard dash.

Twin Falls' winning surge started in the two-mile run after a running team total show. Gooding topped with 52½. The Bruins took three places in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. The 860-yard run when Terry Rubier came from 13 yards off the pace to nip Jeff Bubach by inches in a stretch duel. Klomp and Wendell added fourth and fifth place in the medley relay team then the 440-yard relay team then Bubach for the win and Twin Falls again on fourth and fifth

Lynch's Homer Lets T. F. Win Last of Three Games in Boise

BOISE, April 24—Tom Lynch's three-run homer propelled Twin Falls to a 6-3 victory over Borah this afternoon and salvaged the third and final game of a nine-day baseball season. Earlier Boise routed the Bruins 10-3, capitalizing on a day-long third inning, and Borah took the first half of the doubleheader with the Bruins 5-4 on timely hitting. Boise completed all its scoring before Twin Falls started in the morning game. The issue was over in the nine-run third inning. Senior Dan Smith had a chance to bat twice in the big inning and was very successful on both trips.

The big first baseman tripped with the bases loaded in his first time at bat and then straggled a homerun with one man aboard his second time at the plate for a five-RBI inning. John Thomas went all the way for the Braves, allowing only three hits. They picked up single runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

Borah was outlasted 12-6 in the first game but came up with a big four-run inning to wrap it up. Junior Rich Lovden scattered the Twin Falls hits well, never giving up more than one run in an inning.

In the second game, the Bruins got seven hits to Borah's six, including Lynch's three-run homer in the third. Lynch had two doubles to go with his homer for his day's work.

The Lions scored twice in the sixth after picking up single runs in the third. Lanny Wright and Gary Stivers slammed doubles to go with a single by Quinton Howard to produce two runs. Twin Falls 000 011 1-3 3 1 Boise 019 000 x-10 13 5 Astoria and Storey, Thomson and Burgess and Thomas (6). Homeruns—Boise, Smith.

Williams broke a meet record in the triple jump with a 47-foot, 4½-inch effort, to break the 45-foot, 8½-inch distance record set by West last year. Williams set a nother meet record with a 381 time in the 330 yard intermediate hurdles. The previous mark of 40½ was set by Bob Louie of Washington last year.

Williams also won in the 120 yard high hurdles with a 14½ clocking. For Idaho, Ray McDonald excelled in the shot put with a 52-foot, 11½-inch heave, four feet farther than Williams who took second. Nils Jensen set a meet record for the Vandals in the 880 yard run with a time of 1:52.8. The old record of 1:53.0 was set by Washington's Dave McCulloch in 1957.

Cowboys OK Projects for 1965 Season

A schedule of several promotions and routine banking procedures were approved Saturday morning by the Magic Valley Cowboy board of directors. Business manager Vance (Shorty) Pulsipher read a list of 11 promotions for the 33-game home slate and said one or two more might be added if current plans are finalized. The club's operation is running smoothly with renovation work continuing at Jaycee park and the office details being completed as rapidly as possible. Pulsipher said the selling of box seats would begin officially Monday. Maury Roth, chairman of the queen contest, said 17 candidates currently are working toward the title and added so far their ticket sales have been "very good." The Cowboys again will draw its team from the San Francisco Giants with the club expected to report to Twin Falls about June 10 and conduct a 10-day spring training camp. The season will begin June 20 with the first home game June 24.

Memcott Paces Bruin Golf Team Over Gooding

GOODING, April 24 — Senior Jim Memcott fired a two-over par 74, going four under on the front side, to pace the Twin Falls Bruin golf team past Gooding 338-352 today. Memcott was low by 10 strokes in the eight-man field. Backing him were freshmen Willie Peterson 82 and Gary Hulbert, 90, and junior Gomer Davis 88. Gooding's scoring ran Dick Sams 84, Jerry Gibbons 85, Jim Wilms 80 and Bill Lewis 93. Twin Falls won a match of second teams 363-438. The Bruins will host the Southern Idaho conference golf invitational next Friday and entertain Minico Saturday.

Nearly Destroyed Horse Takes Win In Boise Show

BOISE, April 24 — Jubilee, a 10-year-old quarterhorse his owner had been advised to destroy last spring, paced his way to the Borah III and Bridle club horse trophy today. Jubilee's owner, 18-year-old Roxanne Howell, was advised to destroy the animal last June when tendons were severed, three to the bone, in a shoeing accident in Nampa. A leg brace, corrective shoes, a special diet—and most of all, Roxanne's care healed Jubilee. Roxanne rode him today to first place in bareback and key-hole events, second place in western pleasure and third place in pole bending.

T. F. Uses Late Scoring to Win West-End Crown

GOODING, April 24—Twin Falls scored 29 points in the last four events yesterday to overcome Gooding and Jerome and claim the West-end track and field championship. The Bruins, running without 14 men held out of Saturday's BJC invitational, appeared doomed to third place when Jerome and Gooding marched into 10-point leads after the low hurdles. Then the young Bruins came through unexpectedly strong to grab the win.

Twin Falls ended up with 77½ points, followed by Jerome at 70½, Gooding 62, Mountain Home 25, Filer 24 and Buhl 12. Mountain Home easily ran without several varsity men as the state follows an individual to participate in only one meet within a five-day period.

Gooding racked up five first places but couldn't match the depth of Twin Falls and Jerome, each of whom had four firsts and shared another. Jerome scored heavily in the field events, doubling and tripling up in some, while Twin Falls did most of its damage in the distance events.

Giardello Hurts Elbow During Fight

CHERRY HILL, N. J., April 24 (UPI)—An injured left elbow has knocked middleweight champion Joey Giardello out of his scheduled non-title bout with Floridiano Fernandez on May 15. His physician announced Saturday.

"Joey definitely will not be able to fight by May 15," Dr. Alex Minniti said. "There is considerable doubt if he will be ready in time for the June 5 postponement date."

Giardello injured the elbow Friday night in a non-title bout with Gil Diaz, Brooklyn, N. Y. Giardello fought for charity contributing his purse to aid mentally retarded children.

"It was definitely an aggravation of an old injury," Minniti said, "whether it is an aggravation of traumatic arthritis, a bone fragment or calcification will not be known until results of X-rays taken are available, either Monday or Tuesday."

Giardello had a $17,000 guarantee plus his expenses for the over-the-weight bout with Fernandez in Puerto Rico. Fernandez is ranked fourth among middleweights.

Jerome to Vote on $300,000 School Bond Plan

JEROME, April 24—Jerome school patrons will go to the polls Tuesday to vote on a $300,000 bond issue to finance the building of an addition to the junior high and remodeling work on other schools in the system. Polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m.

The bond issue will pay for a junior high addition at the north end of the present junior high building. This addition will provide for 12 academic classrooms, shop and storage facilities for the school lunch program and other phases of the school program.

Plans call for remodeling of the girls' dressing and shower facilities and for remodeling existing science facilities at the junior high.

The biology room and the library at the senior high are scheduled for remodeling in compliance with recommendations of the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools.

This will necessitate the moving of the principal's office to the present space occupied by the superintendent's offices as the enlargement of the library will involve using space presently occupied by the principal.

A central district office for the superintendent will be provided for in the new addition to the junior high building.

When the addition is completed at the junior high the district will abandon six classrooms in the top floor at Lincoln used by seventh graders and transfer them to the junior high building.

for in eight years, and will cost property owners five mills during that period.

The Jerome school district expects to receive about $125,000 in additional state aid this year as a result of the new sales tax. This money from the state will be used for increasing student enrollment over the next 10 years.

The board of trustees and administrative officials estimate that there will be 1,200 students in the secondary level in five years as compared to 1,077 at present. The bond issue will provide money for repairs and furniture at the various district schools.

The bond issue will be paid by used for salaries, capital outlay items, instructional materials, equipment and furniture.

More money from the state plus bond issue money will improve the total educational picture in Jerome by improving facilities and upgrading instructional aspects, according to Sonnichsen, chairman of the school board.

Sonnichsen also stated that there will be an approximate 50 per cent reduction in enrollment registration fees in the district in view of the additional money available. This announcement was made following an informal meeting of the board of trustees Wednesday night.

The senior high school is the polling place for voters living in the city and county of Jerome and within the Jerome district.

Residents who live in Gooding county and are in the Jerome system can vote at the high school if they are in zone three and at Appleton elementary school if they are in either zone four or five.

Voters living in Lincoln county who are in zone four can vote at the Joe Taylor residence. A two-thirds majority is required to pass the bond issue.

to improve the present Joslin field to meet necessary requirements or to instigate a plan with neighboring counties which would result in a new, more centrally located airport being constructed. In this picture, buildings at left are those of Reeder Flying service and private fliers. (Times-News aerial photo)

FUTURE OF COMMERCIAL aviation in this area is discussed by Edwin Woods, airport manager, and Ronald (Hap) Masoner, West Coast airlines official here, as they stand near tail section of F-27 prop-jet plane now used on routes of the airline. DENNEY R. HOGUE, Twin Falls, a director of West Coast Airlines, glances at a miniature of the new DC-9 jet. The airline has purchased three of the new planes for delivery during 1966. The circular object at top of this picture is a light fixture, not a flying saucer. When Hogue saw the picture he commented, however, that introduction of the new jets on West Coast lines is liable to have as much impact in future airport plans as if an actual flying saucer were pictured. Hogue is a Twin Falls businessman and long-time private pilot. He has flown to many parts of the world. (Times-News photo)

THIS JETLINER, three of which are being purchased by West Coast Airlines, has sparked a flurry in Magic Valley which must ultimately result in adequate field facilities for such a plane. The plane is a DC-9, a twin-jet with a top speed of near 600 miles an hour. It could be in service on the Seattle-Salt Lake City run of the company, through this area, by late 1966 or early 1967. The flight testing of this plane has been completed. It is now in production. (Times-News photo)

Need for Airport Expansion Seen As Age of Jets Nears for Valley

Perfection of a new pure jet airliner—the first in flight history to be produced with the local service airline in mind—has once more placed Magic Valley residents at a transportation crossroads.

The new plane is the DC-9, a twin-jet job that will skim through the sky at close to 600 miles an hour. Three of these new sky queens will be delivered to West Coast Airlines—which serves Magic Valley—in 1966. One each will be delivered in the months of July, August and September.

The three jets have been bought by West Coast at a cost of $3,050,000, and another $400,000 will be spent for additional instruments and other non-standard items to make the planes the safest in the air.

Where will the planes fly? First of course, the Pacific Coast route of the line—from Seattle to San Francisco—will see jet service, because it serves huge population centers.

By late 1966 or early in 1967 this jet service should be available on the Seattle-Salt Lake City route, which serves Boise and Twin Falls.

There is one catch in this contemplated service for Twin Falls and Magic Valley. No airport is large enough to accommodate the new planes.

Jet service for this area, of course, would not mean an overnight change from present equipment. The F-27 prop-jets which West Coast now features will be around for a long time. They are good short-haul airplanes.

But it will mark the beginning of the end for the old standby, the DC-3 workhorse, because piston engine planes have numbered days.

Only recently, for instance, United Airlines, largest in the nation, announced that by 1970 all planes in use on that system

Program Expanded at High School

Twin Falls residents will get an opportunity to view the workings of the industrial arts section of Twin Falls high school when that section holds open house today from 4 to 8 p.m.

Industrial arts instructors John Wood, electricity and electronics, and William Jacobsen, metals, will be on hand along with several students to explain projects for the public.

The industrial arts program has been expanded at the high school and ranks as the best in Idaho. It is the only one of its kind in Magic Valley," said George Staudacher, high school principal.

The industrial arts program is broken down into three parts—metals, woodworking and the electrical section. There is a fourth section which is not generally connected with the industrial arts program. This is the vocational agriculture program under the supervision of John Lawrence.

Most high schools have some sort of a shop program, and for a while this is what Twin Falls high school offered. This year electronics was offered. This year year's simple electricity is taught, and the second year advanced electronics is offered.

The second year electronics course will be taught starting next year when students have completed the first phase of the course. According to Wood, the first phase of the course is built around a kit with 43 basic electrical experiments.

Two or more students work at a console table which has an ammeter and voltage meter to measure flow of electricity for the experiments. In addition, there are control dials and switches plus a varied supply of electricity so the students can work out their experiments.

The metals end of the program also has two courses. The first course furnishes a basic background in metals and metal working. This includes arc welding, acetylene welding, cutting, working with bench metal and sheet metal and some ornamental iron work.

Metals instructor William Jacobsen has several projects the students must build during the course of the year.

The student, more or less sets his own pace on the projects. These projects include making a tin box, metal dust pan, a funnel, "C" clamp, parallel clamp and the more advanced students build a gear puller. This is constructed from spring steel and the student has to start from scratch with his project.

The industrial arts section of the high school was remodeled and enlarged this year, giving each department a separate classroom and working area.

Prior to this year the woodworking students and the metals students met in the same classroom.

When the industrial arts section was expanded, it gave Jacobsen an opportunity to set up a better metals program. In order to keep the cost down Jacobsen let some of his advanced students work on projects designed to help the expanded program.

For example, students constructed the welding booths located in the rear of the working area. They also constructed many of the work benches and shelving in the working area. Racks to hold material and a cart to hold the cutting torches were also constructed by the advanced students. The project served a two-fold purpose.

First, it cut the cost of expansion.

PALOMINO RIDING HORSE, Prince, owned by the Harold Kloor family, Milner, probably has had more medical attention than any other horse in Magic Valley. He is nearly back to normal after being cared for lovingly while he recuperated from extensive burns received last summer when a fire started in the corrals and spread to the shed where he was standing. Although

Prince was not tied in the shed he tried to fight the fire, as animals often do when frightened, and refused to leave until forcefully removed from the building by Victor Masters, a neighbor. The eight Kloor children worked faithfully keeping the burned areas of his skin moist and urging him to eat and drink. (Times-News photo)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Prince, palomino riding horse of the Harold Kloor children at MILNER, is almost back to his old self after being severely burned in a fire of undetermined origin in July of last year on the Odell Pancherl farm. While the Kloers, who rent the buildings on the Pancherl farm, were spending the day at MALTA where their father rented a farm, the fire started in the corrals and spread to the shed where the horse was. Although the horse was not tied in the shed at the time of the fire, and one end of the shed was open, Prince remained in the shed until Victor Masters, a nearby neighbor, forcefully removed him from the building.

As is natural for horses Prince panicked and instead of running from the fire tried to fight it. He was severely burned around the mouth, face and eyes where he kept snapping at the flames. When this method of fire fighting did not extinguish the flames, he tried to kick them out. When led from the shed his entire hindquarters were ablaze.

He was tied in a barn with concrete floor and as long as someone stayed with him he seemed quite content, but the minute he was left alone he neighed almost to scream. He seemed to feel the need for human sympathy.

In the absence of the owners of the horse, James Sargent, grandfather of the Kloor children, and Robert Kloor, an uncle, decided to call a veterinarian rather than dispose of the animal.

The horse was given antibiotics and tetanus shots at the time and when the vet was called later he administered more tetanus. On his second call back to the farm he said that the animal had been burned much more severely than he had at first anticipated.

Taking care of a burned horse in the hot summer time poses many a problem as the Kloor boys and their parents found out. It also proved to be a long summer for the boys in providing the animal with well needed and constant care.

Farrum Warr, a neighbor who had helped take care of a horse that had been burned a number of years ago, called at the house every few days to check the animal, and to give advice to the youngsters on the care of the animal.

The summer heat posed one of the most serious problems as the horse could not be allowed to stand in the sun. The tremendous odor of the burned flesh attracted flies, and in order to keep them away a spray with a very pungent, disagreeable odor was used.

Mrs. Kloor stated that she did not keep track of the amount of spray and medicine that they used on the animal, but the spray even discouraged the flies and mosquitoes around the house, while it also discouraged all the family.

Only once during the long summer did the flies blow the horse because of the careful vigilance of the children.

It is hard to readily understand the tremendous amount of time and effort that the boys spent with the horse in order that he get well.

Only for a short time during his long ordeal did Prince show any lack of patience with the Kloers and the work they had to do in order that he live.

When the extensive burns got to the stage that they itched, the horse had to be kept away from trees, buildings, etc., so that he could not rub himself to scratch the terrible itching that accompanies the healing of a burn.

Great chunks of flesh would rub off each time that he tried to scratch. He finally had to be stacked out in the shade of trees where he couldn't rub on anything.

Prince lost a great amount of weight during the summer, but the boys spent considerable time each day trying to entice the animal to eat and drink. Possibly the horse could understand the urgency of the situation as he eventually started to eat and drink.

After about three weeks when the skin began to loosen and hang from the animal the boys carefully trimmed it away. Various ointments were used on Prince, but covering a burned expanse of that proportion posed no small problem.

It was necessary to keep the burned area in a softened condition so that the flesh would have a chance to heal smoothly with as little scarring as possible in order that he not be incapacitated any more than necessary.

There was great rejoicing at the Kloers when the first patches of new hair started to appear on the animal. Then they felt that the tide was really turning in their favor.

With the advent of cooler weather the horse seemed to make much greater strides on the road to recovery. Now nearly seven months after the fire, Prince has had a saddle on him for short periods of time and seems to be striking out in his old fast gait.

Now it appears that all Prince will have left to show of the effects of the fire are some deep scars and one leg that will be considerably larger than the other one.

His affliction has had a tendency to make him a little more gentle, with a greater degree of patience.

If a human being were able to understand Prince's horse talk one could be more than certain that he would have nothing but words of praise for his benefactors. Surely no horse ever had a more devoted staff of doctors and nurses to restore him back to his true "horse self."

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, April 25 — Horn today, you, like many born under the sign of Taurus, have a natural ability for leadership. You are one to take the bull by the horns, rather than to sit back fearfully waiting to be gored to death. For this reason, people look to you for advice, for they know that you have the courage which they lack, and the ability to see the course that must be followed if success is to be salvaged from difficulties.

You have a precise and orderly mind, and do not allow irrelevant issues to cloud major ones. Although you are not devoid of sympathy toward your fellow men, you do not allow such sympathy to stand in the way of whatever action you feel must be taken in order to gain an end of importance not only to you but to your cause. Only take care, however, that the cause which you work so hard is one worthy of your talents.

At the same time that you have an orderly mind, you also have an imaginative and inventive one. Where existing concepts or methods seem not feasible to the carrying out of any given project, you are quite capable of conceiving a better method, one which will work. Not only can you take this first step toward change, however, you are also able to carry an idea through from concept to reality, thus saving both time and minds.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Monday, April 26

TAURUS (April 21-May 21) — Pay attention to this day's dramatic moments. There is much that can be of benefit to you.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — Though inspired to great works today, take things slowly and easily.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — The Cancer who is able to temper discipline with a kind word may find that he has gained loyal supporters.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — A day when your magnetic personality can do half your work for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — Make an effort to shine, while at the same time, you do not make your stealing of the limelight obvious.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — Poise is the watchword for today. The Libra who knows how to handle himself even in ticklish situations wins out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) — You may be proud of your abilities as long as you are sure of your knowledge.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) — Abide by what the public wants and expects. To try out any new ideas at this time might be to jeopardize your position.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) — To return to a comfortable, well-ordered household by nightfall, be sure you leave it in harmony in the morning!

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Do not expect others to let you off the hook easily. Pay your debt to those whom you may have wounded.

ARIES (March 21-April 20) — It is the farsighted Aries who ensures his own future success today. Think over every move carefully.

Talk Is Given On Dangers Of Plastic

EDEN, April 24 — Ben Davis reported on the danger of plastics in the home when members of the Eden Grange met Wednesday evening at the Grange hall.

Firemen are leery of entering a burning home where plastic products, such as linoleum and tile, have been used, due to the fumes of lethal gas given off when these products reach a high degree of temperature, he reported.

A discussion on a produce booth at the Jerome county fair this fall was tabled until next meeting. Mrs. Curtis Metcalf, lecturer, presented the program consisting of two quiz games.

An article on April was read by Mrs. Violet Porter, and as April is "hobby month" each member spoke on his hobby. One of the more interesting was writing about the early days of Idaho by Ben Davis.

George Lattimer presented a poem and spoke on the qualities of a good leader.

SHOSHONE, April 24 — A pre-school clinic for the grade next fall will be held 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Jean Mizer, Hatley, education counselor for Blaine school system, will speak to parents.

The students will visit the grade rooms and are invited to eat lunch at the cafeteria. Birth certificates must be brought with the students, showing they are 6-years old by Oct. 15.

Zing into spring! Chevrolet Impala

Chevrolet Impala Super Sport Coupe—one of two bucket-seated beauties for '65.

People who buy other big expensive-looking cars get one thing you won't (big expensive-looking payments)

It looks like a big car. And is—by almost any standard you want to apply.

Width? Nobody builds a car as much as one inch wider. Length? It grew three inches this year. Roominess? Every closed model's got three inches more shoulder room, front and rear, and more leg and foot room up front too. Luxury? Nice little touches like the look of mellow walnut across the Impala's instrument panel. And big touches. Like the fineness of the same Body by Fisher workmanship that makes some of America's most expensive cars look so expensive. How about the ride? Chevrolet engineers took the Jet-smooth one and smoothed it out even more. Also made it more stable by widening the wheel stance. Custom features? You can personalize your Chevrolet all you want because there are nearly 200 custom features to choose from. Price? That's where Chevrolets fall way short of the other big expensive-looking cars. But we wouldn't have it any other way. Would you?

One last question: How soon can you make a good spring buy on a Chevrolet? One last answer: Just as soon as you can get down to your Chevrolet dealer's.

No Bids Received For Concession

SALMON, April 24—No bids have been received at the bureau of land management office here for installation of a concession at Mackay reservoir, BLM officials said today.

The proposed concession, consisting of a lunch stand and boat rental, was covered by a prospectus issued March 30. The BLM feels this prospectus described the minimum development to be installed which would provide these public services without detracting from the natural surroundings.

The prospectus may be re-issued when it is determined that enough public interest again exists in this type of development. Further information may be obtained from the district BLM manager, box 430, Salmon.

Dean of Idaho Jewelers Finds Burley People "Fine Folks" After 46 Years

BURLEY, April 24—The dean of Idaho jewelers, who has been engaged in his profession for just a shade under 63 years, says now that his decision to move to Burley 46 years ago was the hardest one he ever had to make. Yet now that it was made all those years ago, he further admits that he is glad he decided to move here. "I've found it to be a swell community, filled with fine folks," he said. Scholer came here from Spokane in February, 1919. It was in Spokane on Dec. 17, 1902, that he first entered the business which he was to follow the rest of his life. Spokane's loss when he made the decision to move has proved to be Burley's gain, because during the years Scholer has been extremely active in community and church work. He has twice been president of the local Chamber of Commerce and has put in 14 years as a member of the city council. He was a former member of Rotary, having been active for more than 25 years, and also has served as grand master of the IOOF for the state of Idaho. For the past 30 years in Burley he has been superintendent of the Presbyterian Sunday school and for 15 years before that held a similar position in the Congregational church in Spokane. His church service in this capacity places him among the "deans" of Sunday school superintendents. Scholer's father, Theodore, a blacksmith by trade, came to Medical Lake, Wash., on an immigrant train in 1882. He made the move west from Minnesota. At that time the lake was widely known as having healing properties, but later raising of the lake changed the properties and, as such, the lake no longer exists. His mother was living in that area when his father arrived. The mother had come west in a covered wagon. They met and were married in 1883. George, the oldest of eight children, was born in 1884. One brother, Herbert, Spokane, and a sister, Mrs. M. W. Grub, Salem, are still living. When he was 18 years old, George moved to Spokane and sought a job in a jewelry store in that community. He got it, he said, because Christmas was the big season of the jewelry industry and it was just before that time that he applied. "This Christmas rush is just forming," he laughs today. "I have sometimes been away from business because of illness or because of a vacation, but I have never missed working during the Christmas season in the 63 years I have been in the profession." Several years after entering the Spokane business, he was able to buy a partnership. Later a "buy or sell" offer he made fell through and the partner could not make up his mind. Scholer finally sold to one of the clerks in the store. It was about this time that a jewelry salesman bragged about the possibilities for a business in the Burley area. He told Scholer, over the telephone, that a store was available here but that he Scholer would have to make up his mind in a hurry. "It was the hardest decision I ever had to make," Scholer recalls today. "I was established in Spokane and had many friends there. I had never been to Burley and knew no one there. But the decision had to be fast and while talking to the salesman I said a big 'yes' and the die was cast." His first business location was in the National hotel in an area which the Western Union office now occupies. He then moved to the location now occupied by King's Variety store and then, in 1932, moved to the present location at 1241 Overland. In 1957 he sold his combination jewelry and gift business to Kirby D. Wilson. He maintains a watch repair and engraving business at the rear of the store "just to keep his hand in it," as he says. The store name was not changed when Wilson bought it and it is still known as Scholer's. Business in Burley during the years has had ups and downs, he points out. He can remember, for instance, when a big business slump resulted in four banks in the community going broke over a period of time and also in more than 1,000 people leaving the area within a few months. "I was like everyone else," he smiles. "I was broke and had no money, but somehow we managed to hang on and good times returned. Like they always seem to do." He and his wife reside at 1518 Elba avenue. They were married in Spokane before the Burley move was made. Two children were born to the union and both were graduated from Burley high school. A daughter, Mrs. J. V. (June) Otter, now resides in Boise, while a son, Dr. George P. Scholer, lives in Twin Falls. Both children attended Whitman college and Dr. Scholer continued further education at the University of Idaho and at the University of California. "I've been glad down through the years that we came to Burley," said Scholer. "I have no desire to live anywhere else, so we will stay right here. "In Burley I have been permitted to take part in community activities which have resulted in a growing community. I have been permitted to work in our church and in the Boy Scout movement. It has been a good life all around." But one thing bothers him. He has a few thoughts along this line and is quick to express them. "We all want a good, thriving community with lots of people, but this also means less elbow room and it holds true throughout Idaho. I guess it is because I have lived here so long, and could roam the hills and fish the streams when people were few and far between. Now I sometimes think that there are more people around than there are fish. "Really, I have no argument with progress and the population gain. It is just too bad that we can't have all this and still have the elbow-room of the days that are past."

MORMONS AT FAIR

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP) — The Mormon pavilion at the New York World's fair this year is expected to attract at least the three million-plus number of visitors that toured the spacious exhibit halls at the pavilion in 1964, according to Edward P. Brockbank, managing director.

Rigors of Winter Easier on Game Birds, Records Show

By JIM HUMBIRD, Idaho fish-game department. BOISE, April 24 — Now that most big game animals have the rigors of wintertime behind them, anti-hunter warriors are concerned about pheasants and the perils of springtime. Death comes to these popular game birds mostly during the fat months of easy lying from April through October. Levi Mohler, game management chief, Idaho fish and game department and one of the nation's top pheasant authorities, says that pheasant losses in the April-May period are much higher than during the bleak season. April on the pheasant ranges is a time of movement, a big reason why early spring losses usually exceed those caused by blizzards and short rations. A month-by-month review of ringneck losses by types other than shooting, is part of a still valid study by Mohler back in the early 1940's and published as a bulletin in 1959 by the Nebraska game, forestation and parks commission. In reviewing types of losses in investigations involving nearly four thousand pheasant band returns, he writes: "In the five months from November through March, the birds are in their winter habitat and there is relatively little human activity in the field, about half the losses reported were those caused by traffic. The few storm losses reported occurred chiefly in January. Mohler says losses were higher in April than through the winter because spring is a period of pheasant movement. In scattering to the breeding and nesting areas, the birds expose themselves to road traffic and to farm machinery to a far greater extent than during the winter. "May was similar to April," he continues, "with traffic more important as a mortality factor. June was the only month in which losses by agricultural operations predominated; these losses were chiefly from mowers. July was a month of mixed losses, with traffic and agricultural operations of consequence. In August the loss swung chiefly to traffic mortality, mostly of young birds. September and October were somewhat similar to April, with a great variety of mortality factors but involving primarily young birds which predominate in the wild at that time." This is a bare-bones outline of what happens, of the seasonal ups and downs of a pheasant population, whether in Nebraska or Idaho. A good pheasant year in the Gem state would find well over two million birds during early autumn. This is much less than the mid-summer ringneck population, which generally runs between two and one-half to three million birds. Because accurate pheasant census work is impossible by any known method, Idaho figures, as well as those from other states, are "guesstimates." They are based on winter inventory work, sex-ratios established over many years, crowing counts, checking station examination of birds and hunter questionnaire returns. Regardless of pheasant losses during the summer, fall and winter, Idaho always has on hand about a half million breeders at this time of year. Two-thirds of this hard core is hens. The ratio of hens to roosters year after year, checks out at about 72-28. Estimated totals are 330,000 hens and 170,000 cocks. Their broods at the outset probably contain three to four million chicks. But the losses, especially to the young-of-the-year, are staggering. Like most game birds, pheasants have a high production potential. All field personnel of the department participate in brood counts because these reflect nesting success. No effort is made to search out nests because this is too time consuming. Average weathers conditions during mating season produce fall populations that are three to four times greater than the spring brood stock. Thus, to determine the number of ringnecks available for harvest, periodic checks must be made of the birds throughout the year, beginning with the January sex ratio counts when weather permits and ending with the gathering of hunter success data and young-old ratios at the checking stations in the fall. And, of course, the number of birds harvested is controlled by regulation of bag limit and length of shooting season. A more important control is imposed by the physical limitations involving hunters' bags and actual time spent in hunting. Game birds, more than any other form of wildlife harvested by hunters, must be considered an annual crop. If fall population of adult birds and their young ones is not harvested, much of the surplus will be wasted through natural losses and accidents. It is good business to hunt hunters have the annual crop. Opening dates for game bird seasons will be established this week by the Idaho fish and game commission. Other details of the regulations such as season length and bag limits will be set in August after examining all available facts about how the pheasants are doing in 1965. The main work of surveying the success of this year's production will come in late July and August in the annual brood counts which provide the best indication of the kind of pheasant hunting that can be expected in the fall. History relates that the first successful introduction of ringneck pheasants into the United States was in the Willamette valley of western Oregon in 1881. Twenty-six birds were imported directly from Asia. Eleven years later, the first open season on pheasants was observed—and 50,000 ringnecks were harvested the first day of hunting. This phenomenal reproductive capacity of pheasants has been demonstrated many times. If and when the desert lying between Boise and Mountain Home is brought under water and cultivated, it will happen again. Water and grain crops make all the difference, creating a booming pheasant factory with no help wanted or needed from game farms. The erstwhile desert will be stocked naturally, quickly and to its carrying capacity by pheasant populations already living on the fringes. The Boise-Mountain Home desert will be transformed from unsuitable habitat to a repeat performance of what happened in the Willamette valley back in the '30's. But re-runs on a less grandiose scale are commonplace every spring. Even now pheasant cocks battle along Idaho roads, squaring off, giving each other the hurduy.

APRIL SPELLS DANGER and sudden death for Idaho's pheasant breeding stock, and the fish and game department asks motorists to drive carefully to avoid killing them on the highways. Reynolds, Rupert conservation officer, collects road kills for later examination. (Fish-Game photo)

They meet in mid-air with a flurry of beaks, spurs and plumes. They are crowing, jousting for territory and collecting harem of hens. All this is a part of the noisy early spring scene. It will be quickly followed by the all-important period of egg-laying and incubation which takes over in May and most of June.

Ladies like the "install it and forget it" qualities of flameless electric water heating, its quietness and cleanliness. Because it has no flame, it requires no ventilation. So you can install it anywhere. The exterior is always cool. Flameless water heaters serve for years. They're fast and dependable, first choice of more than 100,000 families in our area. It's another of the many services electricity performs best!

A GOOD TRICK: Some of the most stubborn foliage plants grown are among a group called bromeliads (Brom - lil - ee - id - ee), stubborn when it comes to producing flowers.

Most gardeners grow them for foliage effect. An example is the pineapple, a common bromeliad which seldom flowers indoors.

Other good ones have jaw-breaking names such as acanthus, virenia, billbergia, cryptanthus, all lumped together as trailing foliage plants, which do not flower.

If you have bromeliads growing in your window and want to force them into bloom, try a trick suggested by H. M. Cashey of the USDA.

This consists of placing a plastic bag over the plant, add an apple inside, then tie the bag at the base. Leave it alone for four days. Then remove the bag and the apple, and take care of the plant as usual.

In one to six months, depending on the species, the plant will produce beautiful colored blooms and fruit.

How does the apple force stubborn bromeliads into bloom? It gives off ethylene gas (harmless to humans) which acts as a growth regulator. They use the same principle in Hawaii to make field-grown pineapples bloom and form fruit.

By the way, ethylene gas shortens the life of cut flowers such as roses, carnations and snapdragons. That's why it's a good idea not to keep apples or potatoes or bananas near cut flowers.

LIMA BEANS: One factor which discourages gardeners from growing lima beans is bud drop. This is caused by hot dry weather or over-fertilization.

You can prevent dropping of flowers and increase your yields considerably by mulching your plants with grass clippings or plastic film. A light sandy soil or a workable clay soil are fine for a good set of lima bean pods.

Lima beans are not as hardy as snap or green beans, and shouldn't be planted too early. They like to be planted when the ground is good and warm, otherwise the seed will rot.

Plant three beans to every 15 inches of row and make sure you place the eyes downward (makes a difference in yield for all beans). A good baby lima is Thatcher, having bush vines.

Fordhook U.S. 242 is another good bush lima, good fresh-canned or frozen. If you want a good pole lima, try King of the Garden.

A GOOD PERENNIAL: Want a trouble-free perennial which blooms from July to frost? Try the lythrum.

It grows three feet tall, likes wet spots, where nothing else will grow, and the pink-purple spikes are fine for church decorations and floral arrangements.

Plant comes up year after year and needs no pampering whatsoever. There's available a bright red lythrum you can try, as well as the purple and pink types.

FREE: Send me a self-addressed envelope and ask for copy of my bulletin, "How to Grow Good Annuals."

CABBAGE TROUBLES: Last year I received many complaints from gardeners who raised their own cabbage. About the time the plant started to head out, they turned white, and dry, paper-like.

All that remained was a stub and a partly developed head. What was it? Will the same trouble come again to cabbage growers?

This probably was fusarium wilt or "yellows" and chances are it will be back again this year. It's worse where cabbage crops are grown in the home garden year after year.

CONTROL: Use resistant varieties, such as Golden Acre (YR), Greenback (YR), Wisconsin Copenhagen, Harris Resistant Danish.

Yellows of cabbage is one disease that we know which can be licked by using resistant varieties. When you see a variety listed in a catalog and it has YR after, you'll know it means Yellows Resistant.

A good early cabbage is Early Jersey Wakefield (YR). Savoy is another good one. A standard late cabbage is Danish Ballhead, but if you've had yellows in your cabbage, avoid this one.

I might add there's a great deal of interest in Chinese Cabbage ("Celery cabbage"), one of the "undiscovered" vegetables.

ROOTING ROSES: Recently, a reader asked me if roses could be rooted faster if the cuttings are stuck into a white potato. Several readers wrote to tell me that's how they start their roses.

One wrote, "I put 20 rose cuttings in white potatoes last fall. I made a hole in the potato with a paring knife, dipped end of rose cutting in hormone powder before jabbing stems into the potato.

Then I put the potato with cuttings, about four inches deep in the ground, leveled off the soil, so that the cuttings stuck out about two inches above soil. Then I placed a half-gallon jug (large mouth) over it and pulled more soil up second the jar (about three inches). Every one of the cuttings has rooted and are nice and green. I'll take the jar off in May."

FREE: Send me a self-addressed envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin HOW TO START ROSES FROM CUTTINGS.

POISON IVY: How can you kill poison ivy vines running up an apple tree?

One method consists of down-

We have good potatoes today. I would like to see how blue varieties would be under the same conditions of the varieties grown today."

I know one grower of blue potatoes and he tells me they are treated with same care as white potatoes and the quality is high, as is the yield.

FREE: Do you want to know how to grow good potatoes? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, "HOW TO GROW RED, WHITE AND BLUE POTATOES."

It tells how you can grow quality potatoes in a tiny spot in your backyard, and mentions where you can get seed of the old varieties. My guide also has tips on controlling potato diseases and insects. You need it for your Green Thumb Library. M. J. of Buhl; "I have miniature orange trees which produce lots of blooms and even oranges the size of plums. Now the blooms drop and even the leaves fall. I keep the plant watered, and can find no bugs on it."

Bud and leaf drop is probably due to overwatering or poor drainage. Make sure holes are in bottom of pot or container for quick drainage.

FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy of my bulletin HOW TO GROW CITRUS PLANTS IN-DOORS.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: P. R. of Twin Falls: "I ordered three climbing strawberry plants from a nursery, and paid $4.95 for them. They've been in two years now and we haven't had a single berry. What's wrong?"

Let's start by saying there's no such thing as a climbing strawberry. These plants do not climb but the runners must be secured on a trellis where they are supposed to bloom and bear fruit.

Almost all plants of everbearing varieties will do this and might be called "climbing" strawberries.

I'm sorry, but you were taken in badly on your climbing strawberry venture. We've grown these plants and have seen those of our friends. Regardless of the mulch covering given them, the runners were killed back to the ground.

Most of the complaints I've received regarding this garden curiosity are similar to yours, and the question is asked: what can be done to get the plants to fruit?

The various state colleges I've contacted have a poor impression of the climbing strawberry and advise that you talk to your local nurseryman when it comes to buying strawberry plants and other nursery stock.

Meanwhile, if you've had good luck raising the "climbing" strawberry, please write and tell me. I'd like to know your experience, good or bad.

B. G. of Jerome: "The correct name for blue potatoes is the Centennial blue, taken from the Pan American centennial held in Buffalo, N. Y. in 1891, when the potato was exhibited."

This potato had a high quality, but you must not compare its quality with today's potatoes, because our modern growers are after higher yields and they do this by means of fertilizers which old timers didn't know about.

Beheader of Denmark's Statue Still Unknown

By RONALD THOMSON
 COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—The file is still open in Copenhagen's police headquarters — "Little Mermaid missing head of..."
 But even the most-persistent sleuths have just about written off this year-old mystery as beyond solution. The phantom beheader remains at large and his whereabouts a trophy could be anywhere.

The delicate bronze statue wasn't just a symbol of one of Hans Christian Andersen's beloved fairy tales, it was a symbol of Denmark itself.
 Police threw their best men into the case, including members of the homicide bureau, but despite all their efforts the vandal was not caught and the head stayed hidden.
 But the National Bronze Foundry ran up a new head from the original mold and five weeks after the decapitation the Little Mermaid was back intact on the harbor rocks, hailed by the mayor as "the darling of all the world."
 Her new features were a shade yellower than the rest of the 52-year-old figure, but since then the weather and the attention of sea gulls have restored her to looking all of a piece again.
 The mystery remains: Why was the old head sawed off and where is it now?
 "Everything about this case is still largely guesswork," said Police Commissioner Knud Hornslet. "I won't pretend that we're still running about looking for the criminal day and night, but we are carrying on the investigation. The file isn't dead yet."
 "How long we will go on depends on developments—but as of now it doesn't seem very likely that we will ever get on to the man who did it."
 Still uncollected is a reward of 10,000 Danish kroner—$1,445—made up of private offers from home and abroad for information leading to the arrest of the vandal.

Officers Are Installed at Hansen Meet

HANSEN, April 24—Mrs. Edwin (Ted) Crockett presented the installation service honoring the newly elected PTA officers at a meeting held Thursday night in the school lunchroom.
 Mrs. Sam Hulse is the new president; Kenneth Mothershead, vice president; Mrs. Virgil Wilson, second vice president; Mrs. Cecil Stanger, secretary, and Cecil Stanger, treasurer.
 Crockett suggested that new lights in the eighth grade room could be a project of the PTA. New lights have been installed in the seventh grade room, but not in the eighth grade, and members were invited to the rooms to compare the lighting.
 Donald Holmquist gave the invocation. The sixth grade will have the clock for winning the attendance of parents contest.
 Ronald Kofoid, music department instructor, introduced some of the pre-contest solo numbers of the junior high with Susan Norris playing a flute solo, accompanied by Rosemary Kevan; Rosemary Kevan, a clarinet solo, accompanied by Marilyn Walton, and Lial Kofoid, piano solo.

Mass Celebrated For Ex-Resident

HAZELTON, April 24—Requiem high mass was celebrated Monday at St. Anthony Catholic church for August F. Rosa, 76, Pocatello, retired sheep rancher, who died April 14 in the St. Anthony hospital.
 Mr. Rosa was well-known in the Hazelton area, first coming here in 1933 to winter his sheep. In 1938 he built his winter lambing quarters on the Joseph Houska farm located east and north of Greenwood.
 He continued these operations until 1965 when he retired and moved to Pocatello.
 Burial was held in the Mountain View cemetery.

Purchase of New Jets by West Coast Airlines Points up Airport Need

"Pure jet service on the Seattle to Salt Lake City route is just around the corner," said Denney Hogue, Twin Falls, a member of the West Coast Airlines board of directors.

"It is impossible right now to say that the jets will come this way on a certain date, but you can bet that when we have all three jets delivered to us it will not be too far off before there will be at least one regular flight between Seattle and Salt Lake City, with a landing at Boise and another stop at Twin Falls."

"This Twin Falls stop by jet is both possible and impossible. As Hogue said, it is possible because it would be hard to conceive that a jet flight would not be a natural step on a route hitting two state capitals.

The impossible aspect comes with the realization no Magic Valley airport—not even Twin Falls' modern Joslin field—is big enough for the twin-engine speedy jets.

This brings Magic Valley residents to the crossroads. Which way now?

As many business leaders of the valley declare, it is not something that can be covered up and forgotten. It will not disappear just because it is not talked about. The time, they declare, for talk and action has arrived—and suddenly.

The valley's transportation problem is once more back in the minds of many.

The Twin Falls city council last week instigated an investigation of the acute transportation problem with the big stimulus being the field of air transportation.

Three men—Robert Warberg, Willard Rees and Warren Barry—will investigate and try to come up with an answer.

Actually there are only three answers possible. One is to leave things as they are and watch the jets fly over.

Another is to improve the Twin Falls field by adding some 1,800 feet of runway to the present main east-west one, making the total length about 7,700 feet and thus capable of handling the jets.

This second answer should possibly include a new cross country runway, needed when crosswinds whip in off the hills adjoining the Salmon tract.

The third answer possible is probably one which may prove to be the important one.

There are many civic leaders who believe the answer to the thorny problem would be a cooperative venture resulting in the building of a completely new airport, probably in Jerome county where some, not-too-high-priced desert land could be utilized.

This plan has gained backing more readily since construction of the interstate highway got under way on the north side.

Backers of the new airport idea claim it would be possible to get the field constructed through financial cooperation between, for instance, the counties of Jerome, Twin Falls, Cassia and Minidoka.

Such an airport could be placed so that it would not be more than 20 to 30 minutes away by auto from Twin Falls, Jerome, Burley, Rupert and Buhl—the communities where the bulk of the air passengers come from in Magic Valley.

Under such a plan the Twin Falls airport would not have to be abandoned, but would be for exclusive use of business and private fliers.

Some argue that even if the main runway at Joslin field was lengthened, this would still not be the "right" answer. West Coast Airlines records show that out of 250 landings here in January and February of this year, 50 had to be canceled because of a crosswind.

West Coast has passenger safety in mind, and if the crosswind exceeds 25 miles an hour they adhere to the plane manufacturer's recommendation and continue to the next field—which could be Boise going west or Salt Lake City going south-east.

Ronald (Hap) Masoner, manager for West Coast in Twin Falls, said, however, that over a three-year period only two per cent of the flights have been canceled because of weather and that in 1964 the loss was three per cent.

"This actually is a good record," he said, "unless you are one of the people at the field who wants to get on the plane that doesn't stop or are on that plane and want to get off here. If you are in this position then it is another story."

With wind conditions at Joslin remaining the same, more jet flights would have to miss Twin Falls because crosswind landings in that case could not be made if the wind was above 15 knots.

Edwin Woods, Twin Falls airport manager, terms the situation a "day of decision."

"We have to come up with the answer to what the people will be satisfied with," he said. "Idaho, right now, is on the verge of an entirely different concept of living. We can't not just sit here and outgrow what we have."

"The danger, as I see it, is that we might be short-sighted rather than far-sighted. We have to build for the future."

This is why, he said, he welcomes the study being instigated by the special three-man committee. There are others, though, who feel that this study should be joined by officials from neighboring counties so that virtues of an improved local field or a new valley-wide port could be put side by side and a final decision made.

In any event, it is pointed out, there is no room for two major airports in the valley. Two big fields, only a few miles apart, would be unrealistic and no airline would schedule both, especially in the jet age.

The "new life" being pumped into the Sun Valley resort area also is providing a stimulus for a large airport. The big piston-engine plane which Vance Airlines operated from the West Coast here last winter could not be operated on a full load because the airport was just not big enough.

Actually even the F-27 prop jets which West Coast now utilizes through its entire system, cannot be operated at capacity in or out of the Twin Falls airport.

Records show that airport officials at the West Coast station confirm 28 seats on the 40-passenger plane for each flight. A longer runway or a crosswind facility would allow them to confirm 35 seats at all times.

Right now only airports at Seattle, Spokane, Boise and Salt Lake City, on that portion of the West Coast routes, are equipped to handle the DC-9 which they plan to use.

"Naturally, we are anxious to continue adequate service for Twin Falls and Magic Valley, but it just stands to reason that when the new jets get into service they can land only at airports equipped to receive them," Hogue told the Times-News.

He is a pioneer in aviation in Idaho, has been a pilot himself for 25 years and has flown on commercial airlines over a good part of the world.

That available air service is utilized is shown by records disclosing 12,544 people boarded West Coast planes at Twin Falls during 1964. Counting those who deplaned here, the figure would show more than 25,000 passengers used local facilities that year.

With modern advances in safe flight, the problem boils down to the airport itself. Actual "blind" landings by jets at "big town" airports are just around the corner.

United Airlines recently landed a jet carrying newspapermen in a demonstration which saw the pilot and co-pilot sit with arms folded until the plane actually touched the runway.

Only the length of the runways, their location relative to surface winds, and the airport location to better serve the commuters is important.

In Magic Valley the crossroads of transportation has been reached once more.

The first crossroads came when the wagon pioneers headed west. The second one was the arrival of the trains. The third was the placement of the big interstate highways.

Now the fourth crossroads has presented itself in the form of a brand new jet airliner. It needs an airport at which to land, and, apparently, it will be a revamped Joslin field or a new cooperative airport in the middle of the area served.

You just can't stop progress.

REQUIRED PROJECTS are examined by William Jacobsen, instructor in metals at Twin Falls high school. The industrial arts department at the high school has expanded its program...

this year and an open house is scheduled for today at the facility located behind the main building. The public is invited to visit the facility. (Times-News photo)

Red Team Is Winner for Hansen Shoot

HANSEN, April 24—High team at the Modern Woodmen rifle shoot held Wednesday night at the Woodman hall was the Red group with nine members present. The score was 420 points. The Green team received 393 points with eight members present. Joe Hill was high scorer for men with 55 points. Norville Reynolds and Robert Perkins tied for second place with scores of 54 points each, and James Bennett was third with a score of 50.

High score for women was won by Lydia Exron with 57 points. Mary Perkins was second with a score of 55 and Mingyva Smith was third with 52 points.

Prior to the contest, the past six-month's payoff dinner was given by the losing Green team to the winning Red team. Gifts were presented to Robert Perkins whose total score was high for the contest, 323 points, and to Ruth Hill, who compiled a total of 320 points.

Mrs. Cloe Weech also gave awards to the Norville Reynolds, Joe Hill and Robert Perkins families for 100 per cent family participation in the Modern Woodmen of America lodge.

It was announced that Hansen camp placed second in the ritual contest at the state meeting held recently at Aberdeen. Helen Reynolds received a trophy for her part as adviser on the ritual team.

In the rifle contest Hansen camp came in third with a score of 248 points. Pocatello was first with 257 points, and Rigby placed second with 236 points.

An individual trophy was received by Mildred Shobe who was second high for women; her score was 55.

An honorary trophy as watchman was awarded to Alton Mothershead, who became ill during the ritual team presentation, and had to be hospitalized for the rest of the state meet.

Mothershead, then went to the Veteran's hospital at Boise.

There were 16 Hansen camp members present at the state meeting.

Expanded Program to Be Featured at Industrial Arts Center Open House pension considerably and, secondly, it furnished metals students with practical training in metals. The tasks were no longer simple classroom projects—they became useful objects.

The industrial arts section was able to purchase a small tempering oven which controls heat up to 2300 degrees. This permits students to take a further step in metal work. The oven, because there is only one, is closely supervised by Jacobsen.

It is possible that without the aid of the more advanced students the program would not have the fullness it now enjoys. "They gave us a valuable assist," said Jacobsen.

The industrial arts classes are unique in that the students, a few minutes before the class bell rings, sweep up the shop and clean it. The student in charge of maintenance that day reports if all the tools are in and properly put in place.

Jacobsen points out that students coming out of the industrial arts program are by no means fully capable of jumping into the world of metals, but they are in a position to learn.

They have the background. They know about temper in metals. They can weld a bead or cut with a torch. They can grind metal. They can use dies and they can construct simple structures so necessary in metal work.

The industrial arts section is located behind the main structure on the east side of the grounds.

School Principal Staudaer said the facility is the only one of its kind in southcentral Idaho and the public is invited. "We are quite proud of our expanded department," he declared.

Old Shipyard To Be Turned Into Marina

By United Press International
Work is under way to turn a long abandoned shipyard on New York City's Staten Island into what may become the largest marina in the country, possibly in the world.

The site is a maze of weather-worn buildings and drab piers that were set up in World War II by Bethlehem Steel corporation to turn out destroyers for the navy.

And turn them out they did—one a month for 48 months, fully equipped, their crews trained to take over immediately and sail from dockside to battle zone. Work at the shipyard continued until 1957 when the establishment was shut down.

Now a group of companies and businessmen headed by Leonard Morrey, president of Morrey Machinery company and Youngstown Manufacturing company, has taken over the long-idle 42 acres of land and water area and work already has begun to transform it into a complete marina.

The first 150 slips for pleasure boats anywhere up to 150 feet in length are scheduled to be ready for use by May 15.

Les Stephens, longtime yacht broker and general manager of the new marina, estimates it will be about three years before the former shipyard's five piers, each 600 feet or more in length, will be converted for pleasure craft use. The 10 piersides, with finger slips, will be able to dock more than 1,000 boats.

Most of the 132 buildings on the 22 acres of land adjacent to the docks where more than 10,000 persons worked during the war years will be torn down. Among those that will remain are several huge structures that will be able to provide winter storage for more than 500 boats up to 150 feet in length. There will be outside storage for another 2,000 boats.

Also planned for the marina, Stephens says, is a motel with swimming pool and clubhouse, facilities for groups who might want to establish their own yacht clubs on the premises.

Other buildings will include laundries, showers, a snack bar and a port captain's quarters.

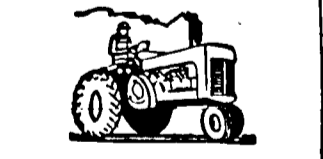

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—Overseas visitors to Britain can buy a "master ticket" for the London transport system for seven days of unlimited travel. The $8.50 ticket covers the price of all transportation by subway and bus as well as luxury coach excursions.
