Off-Track Betting Bill Is Defeated

ALBANY, N.Y., May 12 (AP)—The New York State senate yesterday overwhelmingly crushed a bill to legalize off-track betting, a revenue-producing measure the New York City said would help alleviate "financial crisis" in the city and state.

A solid Republican minority teamed up with upstate rebels

Democrats to bury the measure, 36 to 20.

New York City Mayor Robert F. Wagner had favored the bill, which he estimated would enrich city and state treasuries by more than 200 million dollars a year in wagering taxes, split right down the middle.

Sen. Thomas J. Mackell, D., Queens, sponsor of the measure, made what he called a "soft sell" appeal to both sides of the aisle because "We are facing critical financial crisis, both in the city and state."

The proposal would have set up a New York City racing authority consisting of seven men to conduct off-track betting, with branch parlors and a set of regulations to govern the system.

Debate raged for more than three hours, but the argument that the bill involved a question of morality was firmly backed by opponents.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON, May 12—Some years ago, I spent two hours and the price of three samovars of Most et Chandon brut chatting with Marlene Dietrich on the subject of men. One of her comments is pertinent to the current truth-in-packaging controversy ranging on Capitol Hill, or an always suspicious of male male who runs on about my intelligence," quote Marlene. "He is just setting me up to take advantage of what he thinks is my stupidity."
Industry has been using the same gimmick in hearings before the senate commerce committee on a bill proposed by Sen. Philip Hart, D., Mich., would halt deceptive merchandising. Its purpose has been saying the average housewife is too smart to be taken in by packages filled mostly with air and labels that misrepresent.

HOW SMART THE DAMES?—There was for example, Albert Halverstadt, vice president of advertising for the big soap outfit, Procter and Gamble. Halverstadt told the committee that suggest the housewife needs a law to protect her from the supermarket. He underestimated the housewife's intelligence and shopping ability. And Sen. Hugh Scott, R., Pa., chimed in with the remark that "The bill proceeds on the premise the housewife is dumb, which I deny."
Those guys are not going to put me on a spot like that. As a married man, I do not care to risk arsenic flavoring in my porridge by suggesting that any female—even the No. 1 dame on Molly's blacklist—is deficient in gray matter. I submit merely that even she would not see men for the neighborhood emporium equipped with calculating machines to figure out the "cents-off" dodge or a magnifying glass to read the fine print on the labels.

GIMMICKS OUTLAWED—There is nothing in Hart's bill to frighten the honest manufacturer or retailer. It would quash "cents-off" promotions because nobody ever knows the answer to the question, "Cents off what?" It would ban such labels as "giant half-carry" and "economy size." No packages would carry illustrations designed to deceive; chocolate chips would be as evident in the cookies as they were in the illustration. There would be no more six-inch cardboard trays holding four-inch candy bars, or containers of soap flakes that are mostly container.

Industry has come up with the specious argument that federal agencies should be permitted to punish fraud and deception in labeling. This is what might be called an unfair. The food and drug administration is so bogged by legal red tape it has lost every action against deceptive packaging. Hart's bill would make it unnecessary for the FDA to prosecute on a case-by-case basis so costly to the taxpayer.

NOT DUMB BUT BUSY—Nor am I impressed with industry's contention that consumers are quite content with present packaging practices. Mrs. Esther Peterson, President Johnson's special assistant for consumer affairs, has hundreds of complaints about packages that proclaim their contents serve four persons but which scarcely satisfy two, and pizza boxes which are two-thirds air.
Housewives are not dumb, but most of them are too busy to try to understand the complicated packages and labels used as camouflage by the industry. They have a right to know what they are buying, how much they are buying and if the price is higher or lower than that of a competing brand. In this, contrary to female tradition, they are not being unreasonable.

Views of Others

CORRECTING A NEGLECT
Among the poorest of all Americans, the average migrant farm laborer earns only $67 a year from farm work and $21 from other labor. He and his family live under conditions which in countless cases can be described only as deplorable.

A California survey showed that 80 per cent of transient housing is substandard, some shockingly so. In addition "many live out of their tents or in improvised shacks on ditch banks." Child labor is common. Children of migrants are said to be the most educationally deprived in the nation. Day care for the smaller children is inadequate; some are taken to the field and left the whole day with little shelter or attention.
These conditions are known to most people, at least by hearsay. The question is: What measures can and should be taken to remedy them? The senate subcommittee on migratory labor has come up with a number of specific legislative proposals to substantially improve conditions. It recommends an agricultural minimum wage, eventually to equal the industrial; a program of unemployment insurance; coverage of agricultural workers by workmen's compensation laws; more adequate social security coverage; public welfare assistance judged strictly and solely on the basis of human need; collective bargaining rights and procedures; more adequate provisions to prevent hazardous or injurious child labor; and a constitutional amendment to facilitate voting in major elections.

The subcommittee does not seek to break new ground. It would simply provide protections long available to other American workers. Accomplishment of these objectives will obviously require some modest sacrifice on the part of the nation as a whole. If increased costs to growers are ultimately passed along either to the consumer or to the taxpayer, it will be a small price to pay for much needed reforms.
An entire group of Americans, performing a vital economic service, has been largely excluded from those social advances which the rest of the nation takes for granted. A great and prosperous country can do no less than take whatever steps are necessary to eliminate conditions which subcommittee chairman Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., D., N. J., so rightly calls "a national disgrace."—Christian Science Monitor.

HAPPY HOUSING

Even if Burt Hoffman's housing project for birds in the Capitol forest near Olympia, and in other Washington parks and forests, doesn't completely control insects, he and his helpers should continue the good work.
Woods and birds go naturally together, and man will enjoy the forests more if he can watch and hear such insect-eaters as orioles, redstarts, swallows, tree creepers, tits, chickadees, nuthatches and woodpeckers. These are among the species which Mr. Hoffman hopes to lure back to the forest with his bird houses. The city dweller seldom sees any bird besides the robin.
However one feels about insecticides, their use will result in the silent spring, the late Rachel Carson feared, or that they are essential to feeding, clothing and housing of the exploding population—one must concede that without birds a forest would be a bleak place. The birds should be encouraged to do the insect control work at least in the woods where people go to commune with nature.

It is noteworthy that man has driven the birds from such places as Capitol forest by his untiring efforts to protect his green heritage against the dead trees and cleaned out the brush. Birds which nest in holes in trees and in brush have few places left in which to hatch and rear their young. The bird houses—four to the acre and of varying sizes and entrances—will compensate, it is hoped, for man's unbalancing of nature.
The balance of nature is a tricky thing. Plant life feeds on plants, beetles on lice, birds on beetles, hawks and snakes on birds, and so on. One kind of life keeps another from becoming too numerous. Man must disturb this natural order, unless he is to live like a savage. But he should be alert to the possibility of conditions which threaten the wildlife thrives. Mr. Hoffman's bird-house venture should be extended to all treed terrain. POT SHOTS
Dear Pats Shots:
Sometime back, one of your readers predicted that the last killing frost this spring would occur on May 18. Well, I'm watching and I intend to let everyone know when the reader misses.
The way I figure it, the prediction is no good right now because I feel we've had our last killing frost this spring.
Wouldn't it be tragic if we're both wrong?

IT'S GETTING CLOSE
Dear Pats Shots:
I'm confused! Can you help me? Recently I visited your fair city. In my nicest manner I asked for information in two places of business. Both reacted the same; as though they were about to be sued. I wasn't even unhappy with them!
Reminded me of the evening last week when my family did a favor and the next day were asked in all good faith what we charged for the service which although needed was not requested. We were told just nobody did that any more unless they charged. We did, have before and I hope will again.
Reminds me too, I've been wanting to thank the T-N for printing all those good recipes. I've considered sending in our favorites when I realized that's where some of them came from! "Grindle From Windle"

MATTER OF PERSPECTIVE
Dear Sir:
In discussing some out-of-state visitors, one member of our family allowed as how from the viewpoint of her 12 years the father was "quite old." But Grandma kept referring to the father of the visiting family as "that young fellow."
I guess it's all a matter of perspective or relativity or something. You and your readers can make up your own minds. Anyway, the "quite old" man who was referred to as "that young fellow" is all of 36 years old!

IT'S OFFICIAL
Dear Gent:
I was walking along the sidewalk in the 100 block of Main avenue west the other day when the time school was being dismissed and came face to face with two girls walking in their stocking feet! They were carrying their shoes along with school books and were completely oblivious to the stars.
After taking a second look, it dawned on me that spring has arrived officially, regardless of what the calendar shows.

GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

By LYLE WILSON
United Press International
Now is the time for all good men to drink an anniversary toast to J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI.
Monday was the 41st anniversary of Hoover's appointment as FBI director.
That lucky date was made by the late Harlan Fiske Stone, attorney general in the Coolidge cabinet, later promoted to the supreme court.
The justice department and its investigative arm had been in Lyle C. Wilson's hands before Stone and Hoover began in 1924 to figure in the headlines. William J. Burns was head G-man during the Harding administration. Harry M. Daugherty was Harding's attorney general.
Daugherty was the chief of the so-called Ohio gang which accompanied Harding to power. Likewise, Daugherty was a principal figure in the scandals which degraded the Harding administration. President Calvin Coolidge forced Daugherty out of the cabinet in 1924 and named Stone to succeed him.
One of Stone's first acts was to make 29-year-old J. Edgar Hoover director of the newly created FBI. Stone and Hoover began accomplishing the almost impossible. Their task was to restore public confidence in the department of justice. Daugherty had left the department under charges of corruption.
These charges developed out of an investigation said by the Encyclopedia of American History to have "revealed that the attorney general, acting in concert with members of the Ohio gang, had received payments from victors of the prohibition laws and also disclosed that Daugherty had failed to prosecute graft in the veterans' bureau." Daugherty was acquitted in 1927 of a conspiracy charge.
The young J. Edgar Hoover established high standards for the FBI. He compelled his men and his organization to conform precisely to those standards just as he himself conformed. Soon Hoover became a legend in his own time. It became standard operating procedure for congress and presidents to call on Hoover and his men when the nation was troubled by a law enforcement problem of such nature that citizens were uneasy in their beds at night.
That is the way it was after Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnaped and murdered. Congress enacted the Lindbergh kidnap law and stipulated that Hoover's FBI should enforce it. Not a moment too soon, either. Prohibition soon ended in 1933 and the booze hoodlums turned to a new business—kidnaping.
Others began knocking over national banks. They also were in FBI jurisdiction. One by one the Dillingers and Machinegun Kellys were disposed of.
Meantime, the communists were crawling out of the woodwork in the United States. Hoover's FBI drew the assignment to ride herd on the commies. Then began the ceaseless effort of the commies, their friends and their dupes to get Hoover. Why? Because Hoover's FBI is the most effective existing bar against the activities of all communists here and abroad, which is to bury the American way of life.
The get-Hoover operators recently have been off on a new plan. They tried to tell the American people that Hoover was dragging his heels in the civil rights troubles and, more specifically, that the FBI was soft on the Ku Klux Klan.
A great many citizens cheer Hoover for the enemies he has made. To J. Edgar Hoover: Skool!

By IAL BOYLE
HOA PHAT, South Viet Nam, May 12 (AP)—It was the proudest day of his life for 11-year-old Nguyen Duc Tan. In a simple and moving ceremony not far from the Da Nang battlefield the U. S. marines honored the slender boy for being the top student in his class at the village Buddhist school here.
The scene was the ENYONED schoolyard in front of a colorful Buddhist temple. Black-robed monks set out tiny cups of tea. On a screechy public address system, a prominent local man made the customary graduation speech.
The high point of the ceremony came after Nguyen Duc Tan had read his valedictory address in an earnest, high-pitched voice. He stood rigidly at attention in his blue shirt and shorts as Lieut. Col. Jim Williams, Coronado, Calif., read the boy a letter of commendation on his scholarship from the commanding U. S. marine general.
Williams then gave him a pen and pencil set and told him, "keep up the good work, son."
Nguyen Duc Tan seemed almost suffocated with pride as he showed off his prize to his schoolmates. We left after Williams and Lieut. Donald W. Harris, Phoenix, Ariz., had helped distribute 20 packets of books and pencils to other honor students.
As civil affairs officer, Harris, a lawyer in civilian life, is responsible for pacification missions designed to win friends and influence people. He is enthusiastic about his work and has asked that his tour out here be extended so that he can continue it.
"We just want to show them that we are interested in them and that the American serviceman isn't a bad guy," he said. "We feel that if the children like us, so will the parents."
"I like kids. I spent seven summers as a camp counselor in New York state, and the kids here are no different basically than those in our country."
Harris is proud of a free medical clinic which he set up with the help of two navy corpsmen. "In three days we treated 150 children and adults," he said.
"I believe the best medicine is soap and hot water. Most of the diseases we treat are dirt-caused. So the first thing we do with these kids is to give them a good scrubbing."
"It's really gratifying to see the sore-on-these-kids-heat-up-and-feel-that-we-are-really-doing-something-to-help-them. But some parents are bringing in kids who don't have anything wrong with them. They just want us to give them a good bath."
Marines in the Da Nang area also are chipping in to send three children with cleft palates to a hospital near Saigon for operations. The operation will cost only $5 each, but that is more than the parents have been able to afford.
Pacification has its own reward but it also has its perils. On the same day that young Nguyen Duc Tan got his gift pen and pencil set, a goodwill mission of marines in a nearby village was fired on by Viet Cong guerrillas. One marine was killed.
"It upsets me," Harris said, "to realize that the people in that village knew the enemy was there—and didn't warn us."

TAYLOR'S VIEWS ON WORLD NEWS

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR
If President Johnson's "Domingo action" can re-establish our shattered Monroe doctrine, we will redress one of the most dangerous collapses in American foreign policy.
The subsequent action by the Organization of American States is a follow-up made possible only by the President's fast move. The reds would have had possession of the Grand Pope: Henry J. Taylor. "Shut, shut the door, good John." The President was good John.
By waiting, is the President expected to betray our national interest in favor of "world opinion"—which is never defined? Mr. Johnson's defenders present the true case when they quote the late President Kennedy's April 20, 1961, speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors only three days after the Bay of Pigs.
"Should it ever appear that the inter-American doctrine of non-interference merely conceals or excuses a policy of inaction, if the nations of this hemisphere should fall to meet their commitments against outside communist penetration, this government will not hesitate in meeting its primary obligations, which are the security of our nation steadily advanced. We intend to profit from this (Cuba) lesson."
Nevertheless, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy—whose memory has convenient lapses—murmured velle misgivings in a senate speech about President Johnson's "unilateral action." Mr. Johnson didn't fly into the wild blue yonder.
He was merely filling the gap between the late President's words and the deeds. The nation heard the policy four years ago. But that was the end of that. Right through the Dallas horror, editors everywhere citizens everywhere, asked, "What happened, Mr. President, to that speech?"
Castro's Latin-American infiltration program is not only a fact; it's a screaming, famous fact and the backgrounds of the Panamanian and Venezuelan slaughters are only flaming examples.
Castro calls his Sino-Soviet subversive arm the general de Acosta's years this column identifies Carlos Rafael Roldan, now in the news, as its complete training in guerrilla warfare, sabotage, political action, demonstration techniques and revolutionary arts such as Castro himself was taught by the communist party in Mexico and applied in Cuba.

Our central intelligence agency, in open testimony before a House subcommittee, pinpointed Panama, Venezuela, Guatemala, Colombia and Santo Domingo as Castro's best success at subversion and Brazil, Chile and British Guiana as his major setbacks.
We've already paid far too much for blindness, or worse. And not only official blindness. For example, a New York Times editorial (May 6) is utterly incomprehensible.
It castigates President Johnson's "unilateral action" on the basis of reports that a handful of communists were involved in the rebellion and on flimsy evidence that they threatened to gain control of it.
These weren't reports. It was a plan. The Castroites didn't threaten control—they had, of course, taken it over.
Everybody has a right to his own opinion about anything, but nobody has a right to be wrong in his facts—and certainly not the New York Times. May I respectfully ask if the Times hasn't done enough damage already in promoting this kind of anti-factual nonsense originally about Castro?
The Times and some other voices insist that we rely on collective security. But we do not have collective security in Latin America. We have collective insecurity.
We are wise to be attached firmly to the principle. Often it is indispensable in NATO. But there is no NATO in Latin America and depending on collective security wherever that involves numerous and shaky countries means we flounder into exactly what happened in Cuba.
Mistakes that spring from this fact can be irredeemable. President Johnson moved to redress the last colossal mistake as best he could. Any delay would have been too late.
It's another matter subsequently to incorporate an Organization of American States peacekeeping force. In this situation possession isn't nine points of the law. It's the whole thing.

to have eyebrows tattooed. I'm tired of using an eyebrow pencil.
A—There is always a risk of infection and of a severe allergic reaction after tattooing.
Q—My teenage daughter has a large, noticeable black head inside her ear. Is there any way to get rid of it?
A—There is no satisfactory way to get rid of a large black head in a location where the skin is tight. Since the victim is a girl, why not cover her ear with her hair?
Q—When I have a difficult stool it is followed by bleeding. Is this in any way related to cancer?
A—The most likely cause of your trouble is piles, but a fissure or crack in the skin of the rectum may be the cause. Cancer of the rectum is certainly a possibility. Your doctor can easily determine the cause.
Q—My doctor is giving me Ritalin. What is it for? Is it harmful?
A—Methylphenidate (Ritalin) is an antidepressant. It is one of the safest drugs for this purpose, but it should not be taken by anyone who has high blood pressure or epilepsy.

Eden Pastor Is Speaker At Services

EDEN-HAZELTON, May 12—The Rev. Robert Richards, pastor of the Eden and Hazelton Presbyterian churches, spoke on "The Shaking of Our Lives" at the baccalaureate services at Valley high school Sunday evening.

His text was taken from Mark 10:17-22, which concerns the parable of the rich young man who asked Christ how to inherit eternal life. He was told he must give up his riches, take up the cross and follow Jesus. The young man went away sorrowing, because he had many possessions.

The Rev. Richards based his talk on the fact that the young man had many worldly goods which compared with the worldly "things" which people have today and how the values of these things in order to make life meaningful and complete.

Many of our youth mature at the age of 12 and are bored and worldly weary at the ripe old age of 20, he stated. What starts out as everything with energy, personality and education too often becomes nothing, he said.

"God alone is the ground for our being, the catalyst that makes everything hold together. What we want is not decency or a good time, but the personal decency that makes a good time in the full sense. So let us seek first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness and all the things will be ours as well," he concluded.

Invocation was given by Bob Wood, senior class president. Benediction was by Larry Webb, senior class vice president. The Coda sang.

Professional and recreational were accompanied by the Valley high school band with David Holmsted conducting.

Commencement exercises will be held at 8 p.m. today at the school auditorium with W. L. Jonsberg, Boise Junior college vice president, as main speaker.

6 Carpenter Apprentices To Be Started

Twin Falls carpenter joint apprenticeship and training committee will start approximately six new carpenter apprentices within the next six weeks.

According to Al Clawson, committee chairman, the apprentices will be working with local contractors in the area.

At a joint meeting Tuesday night at the Neilson and Miller Construction company offices, the committee determined it could keep this number continuously employed.

Applicants will be screened during the second week of June. High school graduates desiring to apply can obtain an application from G. M. Van Houten, committee secretary, at the Twin Falls labor temple. A transcript of high school grades must be provided and the applicant must pass a specific aptitude test for the carpenter trade.

Clawson noted that students interested only in summer employment need not apply.

Upon completion of four years of apprenticeship they will be issued certificates of completion of apprenticeship by the bureau of apprenticeship and training, U.S. department of labor.

Palbearers were Joe Pavkov, Lester Silman, Domingo Sologas, Marcelino Iragan, Eusebio Astorquia and Luis Baatarrecha, with Justice Eberta as alternate. Concluding rites were held at Elmwood cemetery.

LOS ANGELES, May 12—William Burke, 38, had his car forced to the curb the other night by a taxicab carrying a gunman passenger, who leaped out and ordered Burke to toss out his wallet.

"I can't," Burke replied. "I only brought a dime for a paper. I'm wearing pajamas and a bathrobe." The bandit then stole his auto.

"It's the first time I've gone out without my gun," moaned Burke — a sheriff's deputy.

The money will be raised by PTA fund-raising projects through which the sections are offered to schools at a reduced cost. Making the bleachers, which are guaranteed to be well made and of adequate specifications required by all state laws for public use, to be considerably less in cost."

Briton Says U. S. Preparing For 'Massive Monsoon Fight'

LONDON, May 12 (AP) — The United States has made extensive preparations for a "decisive monsoon battle" against the communists in Viet Nam which could come soon, British former Foreign Minister Patrick Gordon Walker said today.

Gordon Walker, recently returned from a peace-sounding mission through Southeast Asia as Britain's special envoy, also said he was sure the Soviet Union wanted a settlement in the area.

Speaking at a lunch here, Gordon Walker said:

"There is a lot of evidence, and little doubt, that the Viet Cong are now regrouping, as they tend

China "are taking very great pains not to have to confront one another in an irrevocable struggle."

"I am quite sure that Russia wants a settlement in the area," he added.

"The situation is very dangerous indeed but I hope that there are real changes in the end of an honorable settlement that will not involve the world, or the great powers, in major military activities against one another."

Gordon Walker said the first major problem was how to take the "first" step toward a peaceful settlement.

"The only way is to get a conference of some kind without a prior condition of a ceasefire," he said. "If you set about getting a ceasefire first you will never have a conference."

He told his audience that the United States, Russia and Red

Hagerman Trustees Canvass Voting Results

HAGERMAN, May 12—Results of the school board election Monday were canvassed and accepted by trustees of the school district at their meeting Monday evening.

Oscar Anderson received 36 votes to defeat Robert Tupper, incumbent who polled 21 votes. With the signing of the agriculture teacher, Darrell Hatfield, all contracts for teachers have been signed, except for third grade. Trustees voted to offer Mrs. Walter Stewart the contract with the stipulation that she meet teacher requirements. A letter of appreciation was read by acting Supt. H. E. Ferrin from the teachers for their raises in salaries.

Jack Martin, coach, and Hatfield, assistant football coach, discussed the purpose of 40 steel lockers for boys physical education and athletics. Martin stated that equipment is not cared for adequately in the present setup.

Martin proposed each athlete have a numbered locker, with each piece of his football equipment numbered, and each boy be held responsible for his own equipment. This will cut down on replacements and insure each student of his own equipment each practice and game, throughout the year. The lockers will be complete with a combination lock.

Trustees approved purchase of these lockers, but want three price quotations submitted at the next meeting. They also approved the painting of the dressing rooms.

Hatfield asked for permission to stock standard supply items for the vocational agriculture shop, so students may purchase items there, instead of having to leave class to purchase items.

This will be run on a punch card basis, with each student purchasing a card, and as items are used, the amounts will be noted on the card. If the student doesn't use the full amount during the year, he will get a refund at the end of the year.

Hatfield was asked to list the items he will stock and present it at the next meeting. Purchase of a new sewing machine and a new stove on the trade-in basis was okayed.

Mrs. Rex McAnulty and Ferrin were given permission to attend the state department of education meeting on finance in Twin Falls Thursday.

It was decided to allow the fourth grade students to be transported by school bus to Boise to the museum and park this week.

Members of the school board will serve breakfast at 6 a.m. Saturday to the seniors in the home economics rooms, on their return from their snack. Zone meetings with trustees from each area will be held the week with trustees presenting the current school accomplishments and showing proposed plans for a new grade school building and remodeling of high school building.

Graduation exercises will be held in Prince Memorial gymnasium at 8 p.m. May 18 with Louise Shaddock, Boise, as speaker.

School will not be held May 21, and students will return May 22 for report cards.

Communist Efforts to Take Over South Viet Nam Explained

South Viet Nam, the Communist Party of Viet Nam, began its efforts at the humblest hut, indoctrinating almost at once.

The communists who inspire the guerrilla revolution are the old and concentrate on the young. Just as they let it be bit by bit they now claim territory—they now claim two-thirds of the country and all it down as they go.

tain valleys, there are little schoolhouses, neat wooden buildings with thatched roofs and tidy rooms with benches and blackboards.

There are pictures of adult guerrillas in black Viet Cong uniforms watching over kindergartens, reminders to teachers that they are under watchful eyes. Often, the schools are run by young girls who hold sessions daily, morning and afternoon, for children who start their schooling at the ages of 4 or 5.

The evidence indicates a passion to spread literacy. Youngsters in Viet Cong service, as coolies or lookouts, often carry booklets to read and ponder in spare moments; subjects such as curing the ailments of a water buffalo, tips on irrigation, how to repair ricefield dikes damaged by the war. The booklets are laborously handwritten in romanized Vietnamese.

Boys and girls learn that they must work virtually from the time they can walk. Community life is drilled into them, often centered about a cooperative irrigation project. A small boy may be in charge of the water buffalo, or the chickens, or tending fishing nets.

Children are taught what to do if government forces attack or if there is a raid by planes or helicopters. They do not panic. They haul vegetables and food from huts into excavations they have helped dig as shelters.

Children are taught that the greatest goal is to become a fighting guerrilla. The Viet Cong makes every effort to be a part of the community, to be heroes to the children—their friends and big brothers. The child tending the buffalo may be a guerrilla helper next year, and the next a sacrifice on the altar of "war of liberation."

Villages not only have their own schools and propaganda centers. They have Viet Cong tax collectors and census takers, most of them girls. Census takers register records of each child's birth, education, abilities and—as the child grows older—the "bravery record."

A boy who has shown himself brave can hope to carry a gun at 15 or younger. He might remain in his village or join a platoon roaming a small district.

He may dream of joining "hero" units like the storied battalions 514 and 806, whose exploits have become legend among village youth.

Elders who cling to old ways are not abused. But children are taught to regard them as foolish. Many older people live in the past of French colonial days. They are not molested.

The Viet Cong is careful of its propaganda image. But they are not allowed to influence the young, either.

Plant young minds are imbued with fierce hatred for the "imperialist" foreigner—the American—and for the "jackies" in Saigon, the Vietnamese generals commanding government troops.

When a Saigon government communique announces a Viet Cong attack on an outpost repelled, for example, with 15 enemy dead, 10 of the 15 may be teen-age boys, the barefoot kids who crept ahead of an attack to hurl grenades at outpost bunkers.

If a boy gets killed, he will get a good funeral later on, and perhaps even a small monument over his grave with a sign saying "We Will Never Forget."

In December, 1963, after President Ngo Dinh Diem had been slain in the Saigon coup, the Viet Cong took over the town of Phu My, birthplace of Diem's successor, Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh. The first thing they did was erect a monument 15 feet high, painted with Viet Cong colors and emblazoned with tributes to "our heroes."

It remained that way until government forces retook the town. The colors and signs were changed but the monument re-

Mexico Hits U. S. Policy In Dominican

MEXICO CITY, May 12 (AP)—Mexico yesterday bitterly criticized American policy in the Dominican Republic. A foreign office spokesman likened it to the Soviet attack on Hungary in 1956.

Leopoldo Zea, a foreign relations ministry official, said the United States had "imposed its will" on its "supposed partners" in the Organization of American States (OAS) to force them to "justify" their policy.

It was one of the strongest attacks on Washington policy yet voiced by a Latin American nation in the Dominican crisis. Zea was writing for the newspaper Novedades.

The U. S. action, Zea said, "annulled" prior U.S. recognition and acceptance of Latin American nations' right to self-determination.

Three-Pound Fossil Found In Oregon

ASHLAND, Ore., May 12 (AP)—A fossil estimated to be between 80 and 100 million years old has been found in the Siskiyou mountains near here.

The three-pound fossil was identified as a Romanisceras of the Mesozoic period by Dr. David Jones of the U.S. geological survey at Menlo Park, Calif.

Jones said it was one of the best specimens he has seen from the area and said he has revised his opinion of the age of the Siskiyou formation because of the fossil.

The mountains now are believed to be between 80 and 100 million years old.

The Romanisceras was found by E. N. Bemis, Ashland, who is working on construction of Interstate 5.

Bemis said the fossil was uncovered about 60 feet below the surface of the earth, stuck fast to a huge rock that was split by blasting.

Through the years, many fossils have been found in the rock formations in the area.

Mrs. Johnson Barbers Way Into Theater

ABINGDON, Va., May 12 (AP)—"This is my ticket," said Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, smiling, as she presented a tiny green seedling from a magnificent granddaddy that grows at the White House.

In their tradition of 33 years, the famous Barber theater here accepted the offering of the nation's First Lady instead of a $3 ticket to their performance of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" last night.

Behind Mrs. Johnson came a troop of prominent ladies, the wives of nine cabinet members to barter their way in, too, with sacks of potatoes, sorghum, cornmeal, a jar of pickles.

Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey had some help toting a pot full of vegetables "to make a stew." Mrs. John T. Connor, wife of the commerce secretary, thought the theater might like a flashlight and Mrs. Henry Fowler, wife of the treasury, handed the ticket takers a pecan pie.

To the delight of founder-actor Robert Porterfield, the touring First Lady entered into the spirit of the theater, launched in the depression when victuals and gifts were considered as good as cash to the impoverished company of New York actors that sought to bring culture to the people here.

Porterfield told Mrs. Johnson her potted seedling would be planted across the street from the Barber theater, which is proudly advertised as located midway between New York and New Orleans on U.S. 11 in this southwest Virginia community.

Mrs. Johnson's overnight stop here was part of her two-day "landscapes and landmarks" trip through Virginia to boost tourist travel and highway beautification, two of her pet projects.

Eden Warehouse Is Burglarized

EDEN, May 12—Morgan-Lindsay bean warehouse was broken into late Monday night or early Tuesday morning and an undetermined amount of cash was taken from the office.

Claude Rogers, manager, discovered the break-in about 7 a.m. Tuesday when he opened the warehouse.

James B. (Pat) Burns, Jerome county sheriff, and Gordon Newberry, deputy, investigated the burglary and surmised that entrance was gained by crawling up through the loading chute. The office door was broken open although employees said it had not been locked.

The amount taken from the cash box was not immediately available as William J. Morgan, owner, was out of town.

The back door of the adjacent elevator was broken into but no losses are reported.

BILL IS OKAYED
WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—A senate labor and welfare subcommittee approved a bill yesterday to establish a National Foundation of the Arts and Humanities to promote activities in these fields through grants and other programs.

Korean Students Have Renewed Protests

SEOUL, South Korea, May 12 (AP)—South Korean students, after a year of silence, are back on the warpath against the government over moves to bring about diplomatic and political rapprochement with Japan.

The United States is caught in the middle of the dispute.

The student campaign seems to put a crimp in nearly successful negotiations for re-establishment of relations which have lapsed for 14 years.

The reasoning behind the campaign is sometimes obscure but the fear seems to be that Japan will dominate South Korea economically and return to the commanding position it held during 35 years of colonial occupation that ended in 1945.

Demonstrations a year ago forced President Chung Hee Park to suspend his talks with Japan. But the president, a former general, doesn't seem inclined to back down this time.

He says normal ties with Japan will give the South Korean economy a needed shot in the arm. The United States feels the same way, would like to see unity between these old enemies.

Death Penalty Bill Is Killed In California

SACRAMENTO, May 12 (AP)—A legislative committee after a two-hour hearing marked with religious overtones on both sides, last night voted to keep the death penalty in California.

The assembly criminal procedure committee first turned down a bill to abolish capital punishment outright. Then it killed a proposed state constitutional amendment to put the issue before the voters.

The defeat came despite a statement from Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown, long bitter foe of the death penalty, that "violence, licensed or unlicensed, does not pay."

The governor's special committee, read to the 10-member committee by an aide, called upon the lawmakers to "abolish this act of retribution just as we earlier ended use of the whip, death hangings and other ineffective punishments."

Assemblyman Lester A. McMillan, a Los Angeles Democrat who authored the repealer, told the committee he was optimistic that the nation's most populous state eventually would abolish the death penalty.

"If Jesus Christ was sitting on this committee, I have no doubt in my mind how he would vote on this bill," McMillan said.

who now are U.S. allies and in the forefront of anti-communism.

The student slogans have centered chiefly around abolition of the Rhee line which bars Japanese—and all other—fishermen from fishing in waters within as much as 100 miles from Korea.

The fishermen are believed less concerned than the students since the new agreement would limit the number of Japanese boats in the area and Japan would extend important financial help to modernize the South Korean fishing industry.

The deeper worry was spelled out by a 22-year-old student at Seoul National university, who said:

"Japan will try to make Korea a market for her own products as she did during her colonial rule. Billions of dollars of American aid money poured into our country before and after the Korean war but the economy is still very weak."

"I don't see how 400 or 500 million dollars of Japanese money spread over a period of 10 years could make any significant contribution, especially when the money would be spent in such a way that Japan would benefit from it."

Part of the final settlement is that Japan make a 300-million dollar grant against Korean property claims and 200 million in government-to-government loans.

The United States comes in for criticism in an indirect way. "Earlier this century the United States served as go-between and helped arrange the Portsmouth peace treaty between Japan and Russia ending the Russo-Japan war of 1904. This opened the way for Japanese annexation of Korea, in an effort to check Russia's increasing influence over Korea."

"Now the United States is trying to justify an economic invasion of Korea by Japan in an effort to make Japan the leader among Asian countries in opposing Communist China's expansionism," one student said.

Young Widow Aids Viet Nam Village In Honor of Husband Killed There

SUFFERN, N. Y., May 12 (AP)—A pretty, young army widow who aided a Vietnamese village with medicines and infant food in memory of her husband now proposes to help children there with school supplies.

From her farmhouse outside this village of 5,500, Barbara Sprull discussed her interest in the Mekong river delta village of Cai Son, 10,000 miles away.

"Jim had talked often about the school and the children," said Mrs. Sprull, 32. "He was teaching a small English class."

Her husband, Capt. James P. Sprull, Plymouth, N. C., lived in Cai Son for five months as military adviser until his Jeep touched off a communist land mine a year ago. The blast killed him, a U. S. army sergeant and three Vietnamese soldiers.

In the captain's letters, and later in his diary, Mrs. Sprull read of another Viet Cong mine explosion that had gravely injured four children. The diary noted that this emergency had wiped out the village's medical supplies.

"Jim was trying hard to do something there," Mrs. Sprull said.

She wrote to several U. S. pharmaceutical companies, asking for medicines, infant formulas and powdered milk. They responded with the gifts and paid for shipping them.

"The Vietnamese made a big ceremony of accepting them," Mrs. Sprull said, opening a scrapbook to copies of speeches by local dignitaries. The main speaker had been Lieut. Col. Nguyen Khac Tuan, chief of the Vinh Long province.

"I don't think I'm going to contact any school supply firms," she said. "I probably will just send the money and maybe they can purchase Vietnamese supplies and that way it wouldn't be another isolated American gift."

The army compiled excerpts from his Viet Nam letters in a 12-page booklet, "The Line is Drawn."

This and other mementos adorn the farmhouse apartment.

A purple heart and other medals framed behind glass. A portrait of the West Point cadet. A snapshot of the captain in Viet Nam, a sub-machine gun casually held in one hand. A fat scrapbook.

They keep alive the memory for Barbara Sprull and her two children, Mark, 8, and Elizabeth, 5.

On the wall hangs a work of Vietnamese art, lacquered wood, sent to her by the colonel on behalf of his people.

The villagers also erected a stone monument on the spot where the Jeep was blasted. It bears the names of the victims, the date and the words, "Well done. Be thou at peace."

Business Mirror

BY SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK, May 12 (AP)—Forecasters of an imminent economic slowdown may have to revise their time schedules once more. Halfway through the second quarter, business on the average is holding close to the record pace set in the first three months of the year.

Many had predicted a letdown about now after what they dub "the first quarter lull." But so far, all else here and there are being offset by continuing gains in other sectors. The general slowdown may come, but it hasn't registered in the statistics yet.

Registered demand is reported still strong. Output is off slightly from the record tonnage poured in the week ended April 24 but is nine per cent higher than a year ago.

Order backlogs in industry as a whole have been rising. And inventories in general have been growing, due in large part to businessmen's belief that future sales prospects will mean busy production lines.

At the consumer level demand remains high for most goods. Retail sales of nondurable goods edged higher in April. There was one per cent slip in durable goods volume, mostly due to fewer cars being sold than in March. But total retail sales, at 22.8 billion dollars, were seven per cent above the volume in April 1954—and hardly a convincing sign of any economic slowdown as yet.

Employment rose 90,000 in April, and unemployment dropped 188,000. The 71 million Americans with jobs were as a whole enjoying higher incomes than a year ago. And all signs point to another increase in total personal incomes this quarter from the record set earlier in the year.

The high rate of consumer spending, and the record level of installment credit, seems to assure, little, if any, letdown in general economic activity.

Much of the fear of a slowdown comes from the greater-than-expected growth of the general economy in the first three months of the year from the levels set in the final months of 1964.

But even if this rate of growth isn't maintained in the second quarter, that's far from meaning that the second quarter can't be better in total volume than the first. And at the halfway point there are no convincing signs that it won't be.

Comsat Firm Reelects 12 Directors

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—Stockholders of the Comsat Corporation overwhelmingly reelected its 12-man slate of directors Tuesday after hearing management assurances that the global telephone and television system "will earn a reasonable return on our investment."

Earnings of the Communications Satellite Corporation will begin, Board Chairman Leo D. Welch told the annual stockholders' meeting, after the Earth-orbiting system of spacebirds is complete in late 1967 or 1968.

Before the meeting was well under way, two noisy stockholders were ejected, to the cheers and applause of most of the 1,700 remaining. The management obviously was primed to prevent a repetition of last year's disorderly shareholders' session—involving the same pair and others—which stretched out to nine hours.

Mrs. Wilma Soss—clad in knee-high boots, top coat, Bermuda shorts—and a towering yellow hat—was carried out bodily by Pinkerton security guards. She is a familiar heckler of corporation managements and advocate of women on company boards.

Lewis Gilbert, another perennial minority spokesman at major stockholder meetings across the country, was hustled out by two more uniformed guards after shouting a defense of Mrs. Soss.

Both were later permitted to re-enter the meeting. Comsat President Joseph V. Charyk hinted at the possibility of an even earlier round-the-world commercial operation. He based it on last week's highly successful performance of the "Early Bird" satellite in bouncing live television programs from 10 countries back and forth across the Atlantic.

There would be no fight left in them. It would be the delivery of the country to the communists on a golden platter."

Q. I am a neophyte when it comes to investments. I have never owned any stocks. I have about $3,000 which I would like to invest—$800 in each of five stocks.

Q. I have often wondered what would happen if I failed to cash a dividend check sent to me by one of the companies in which I own stock. Say the check was lost or that I tucked it away and just forgot to cash it. Would the company notify me, after a certain period of time?

A. We can't make a blanket statement on this. But chances are that most companies would attempt to get in touch with you in reasonably prompt order.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK, May 12 (AP)—The Granville market letter says increasing signs of a May setback in the market were recorded last week regardless of the new record high in the Dow-Jones Industrial average.

The letter says there are few areas left in the market for investors where risk is nominal. The prudent investor should welcome the opportunity to let the public traders take over while he pulls out and generally calls it a day, the letter says.

Standard and Poor's says that while speculative possibilities continue to present themselves, great care must be exercised in selecting new commitments.

Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone Inc., says that until the evidence is far more conclusive that the speculative pendulum has swung too far new issues should be chosen on the basis of strong fundamental and technical positions.

Philippines Send Help To Viet Nam

MANILA, May 12 (AP)—The Philippine house of representatives tonight passed a bill calling for the dispatch of 2,000 Filipino engineers and supporting combat troops to Viet Nam.

The bill, endorsed by President Diosdado Macapagal, was sent to the senate where it faces tough sailing. The opposition Nacionalista party holds the majority in the upper body.

Support for the bill was voiced today by the acting chief of staff of the Philippine armed forces, Maj. Gen. Rigoberto Atienza.

He said the dispatch of support troops to Viet Nam was an "obligation" that the Philippines should not ignore. "We must put up or get out of the team," he said.

The measure calling for an allocation of 6.2 million dollars to send the Philippine engineers and supporting troops to South Viet Nam was in answer to a request from the Saigon government.

The Philippines has already sent more than 60 Filipino to Viet Nam as members of medical, civic action and psychological warfare teams.

Pakistan Hit By Cyclone, Damage High

DACCA, East Pakistan, May 12 (AP)—A cyclone packing winds of 100 miles an hour struck a wide area of East Pakistan during the night. Authorities feared the storm had taken a heavy toll of life.

An estimated 10,000 houses in Dacca collapsed under the force of the high winds and about one million persons in a 20,000-square mile area were said to be homeless.

Communications between Dacca and six districts were disrupted, making it impossible to obtain any details on losses in outlying areas.

The heaviest damage may have occurred in coastal areas and more than 30 offshore islands in the Bay of Bengal where about three million persons live.

Ike's Oxygen Kit Located In Maryland

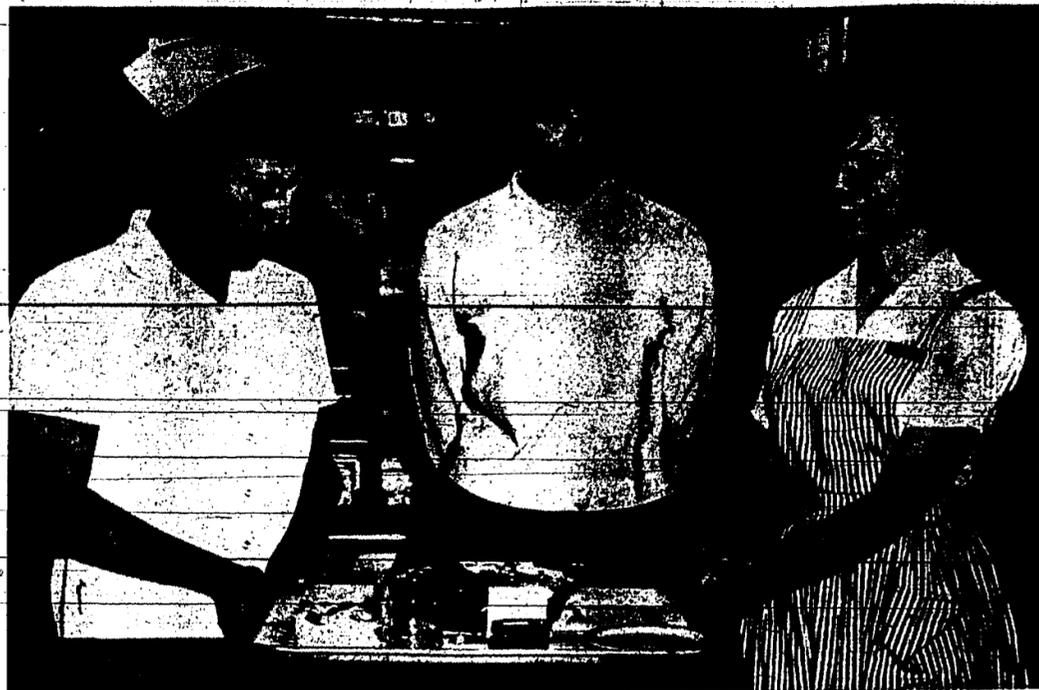

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—Police yesterday recovered former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's emergency oxygen kit, stolen Monday from the trunk of his car.
The kit, part of $400 worth of loot taken from the car, was found in Silver Spring, Md., a Washington suburb.
Still missing was a $10 box of candy, a $170 portable radio, and a .38 caliber revolver which belongs to Eisenhower's aide.
Police hope to find fingerprints on the oxygen kit, which was found along with a plastic cover from the car's spare tire.
The ex-president's chauffeur, Ruben Brechbill, 35, said the theft occurred while the Lincoln Continental limousine was parked in an apartment house basement garage. Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower had been visiting her sister, Mrs. George Gordon, who lived in the building.
The former president made the Washington visit to undergo an overnight checkup at Walter Reed army medical center.

Refugee Is Arrested in West Berlin

BERLIN, May 12 (AP)—West Berlin police yesterday arrested an East German refugee who fled to the West with a stolen pass.
Horst Strelt, a 36-year-old engineer from the East German city of Halle, was ordered arrested by a West Berlin court for trial on charges he deceived two West Berliners of their freedom.
Strelt allegedly posed as an eastern defector and confiscated the wall pass of a West Berlin man visiting his East Berlin relations. He escaped to the West with the pass on Good Friday.
The West Berliner, Dieter Marhold, 28, and a West Berlin friend were arrested by the communists on grounds that they aided the refugee. Both men are in an East Berlin prison.
The refugee offered to return to communist East Berlin if the two West Berliners are freed at the same moment he crosses through the wall.
The communists turned down the offer, saying they will consider the release of Marhold and his friend only after Strelt has returned and has been interrogated.
Detectives went to the West Berlin refugee camp and arrested Strelt early yesterday morning, justice officials reported.
Depriving a person of his freedom is a major crime in West Germany and may carry a sentence of up to 10 years at hard labor.

Special Unit Has Ideas on VA Hospitals

WASHINGTON, May 12 (AP)—A special presidential committee recommended yesterday that the Veterans administration keep open five of the 11 hospitals it planned to close, reliable sources said.
The committee also recommended keeping open two of four VA rest homes tabbed for closing, the sources said.
The group was appointed by President Johnson to look into the situation after loud protests were raised in congress over the planned closings.
The committee made trips into the various areas involved and its recommendations, subject to Johnson's concurrence, is that the VA keep open hospitals in Bath, N. Y., Castle Point, N. Y., Grand Junction, Colo., Lincoln, Neb., and Miles City, Mont.
Domestic homes which would be kept open under the recommendation are at Bath, N. Y., and White City, Ore.
The hospitals the committee agreed should be closed are the Broadview Heights division at Broadview, O.; Dwight, Ill.; McKinney, Tex.; Rutland Heights, Mass.; Ft. Bayard, N. M.; and Sunnunt, N. Y.
Homes in the category recommended for closure are at Clinton, Ia., and Thomasville, Ga.
In Concord, N. H., Sen. Norris Cotton, R., N. H., said the committee recommended that the VA not close all 17 regional offices planned for elimination but keep at least one office open in each state.
The house voted extra money to keep open 15 hospitals and rest homes by adding 23.5 million dollars to an omnibus appropriation bill.
A voice vote on an amendment by Rep. Olin E. Teague, D., Tex., nullified a house appropriations committee order refusing the money to keep the installations going after June 30.
Even if the senate goes along with the house, the funds would not have to be spent since the legislation is permissive rather than mandatory.
President Johnson said he decides to keep the facilities open.
Teague's amendment also provides funds to continue operation of the 17 regional offices.
There are 65 regional offices in the United States and Puerto Rico and one in the Philippines.
The VA said it wants to consolidate to save money. It wants to have more modern hospitals located near medical centers adjacent to medical schools.
Opponents of the closing argue this means veterans far from the centers would suffer too much inconvenience.

King Outlines Plans for New Rights Moves

SELMA, Ala., May 12 (AP)—Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., outlined yesterday plans for massive new demonstrations in Montgomery, the state capital, if the Alabama legislature fails to heed demands for improving the Negro's economic and political status.
King's rallying tour of target areas in his four-month-old Negro voter drive took him to near-by Camden where he told about 200 Negroes that petitions will be presented to the legislature next week.
Small groups of Negroes from the Black Belt, a stretch of rich dark soil, will attempt to petition lawmakers to "do something about the conditions we face as Negroes," he said.
"If they don't do that, we are going to be on the legislative agenda if it takes filling up the jails all over the state of Alabama," he said.
"When we really get determined, Gov. George C. Wallace doesn't have enough jails to hold us," he said.
While King was making his fourth stop in the two-day Black Belt tour to pump new life into his voter drive, police at Demopolis, where he spoke Monday night, arrested about 50 persons for trying to lead a march of Negro school children. Those arrested were charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors.
HAVANA, May 12 (AP)—Fifty-three Baptists, including two Americans, are scheduled to go on trial here tomorrow on charges of spying against the Castro government.

Those arrested included two Americans, the Rev. Herbert Caudill, 61, a missionary in Cuba for 35 years and head of the 9,000 member western Cuba Baptist convention, and Caudill's son-in-law, the Rev. James David Fite, 31.

In Atlanta, a mission board spokesman said the Caudills have a daughter, Mrs. Douglas Pringle, who lives in Parkview, N. M., and a son, Herbert Caudill, Jr., who is a student at New Mexico State university.
The wives of Caudill and Fite are reported to still be in Cuba.
When they were arrested radio Havana quoted Castro as charging "Caudill had gathered much military information and also information of an economic and political nature."
"At the same time, he received instructions and support from the U. S. issued propaganda against the revolution and helped conceal counter-revolutionaries and trafficked in foreign exchange," the government-controlled radio said.

Aide Says U. S. Policy 'Out of Date'

DURHAM, N.C., May 12 (AP)—Dr. Arthur Larson, a special consultant to President Johnson, said yesterday that U.S. policy in Viet Nam is "out of date, transparent, and naive."
Larson, director of the rule of law research center at the Duke university law school, and his brother, Don R. Larson, a professor of political science, made the attack in a booklet, "Viet Nam and Beyond."
"The Larsons recommended a policy of 'selective containment' of communism, rather than what they term the existing 'massive containment' approach."
Five thousand copies of the booklet have been mailed to persons and groups, including Johnson and all congressmen.
"The booklet says 'the true fact is that the U.S. has no obligation to South Viet Nam or anyone else under the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization to use its own armed forces in the defense of both SEATO and the United Nations offer ways of legally settling the Viet Nam problem,' the booklet says. Thus, it adds, the U. S. could get out 'with honor.'"

T. F. Pastor Tells Congo Experiences

The Rev. P. F. Lemon, pastor of the Twin Falls Seventh-Day Adventist church, discussed highlights of his 17 years in the Belgian Congo at a meeting of the Twin Falls Exchange club Tuesday noon in the Rogerson hotel Roundup room.
He gave a brief history of the Congo, where he was a missionary with his family. He used a map to describe the country and told of slave trade during the late 1800's followed by colonization of the country by Belgium.
The Rev. Mr. Lemon related several experiences which followed the country's independence in 1960. He said missionaries were warned of impending mutinies and he and his family planned to evacuate to Elisabethville, but en route they were told it was in flames. Instead they went to the Kamina airport, where Pastor Lemon helped evacuate about 850 other missionaries.
Two DC-2's and a Globemaster were brought to the airport from Salisbury in Southern Rhodesia and Johannesburg, in the Transvaal, in southern Africa, and used to evacuate the whites.
He said after the evacuation his family lived in Salisbury while he made brief but frequent trips into the Congo to do his missionary work.
He noted the intense hatred some Negro groups in the Congo have for the whites and told of several instances where he and the group he was traveling with narrowly escaped being killed by unfriendly natives.
The Rev. Mr. Lemon, commenting that most of the Congolese natives had lived under an autocratic government and are unaware of the full meaning or responsibility of independence, said he felt it was a mistake for Belgium to pull out of the Congo and turn the country over to those who know little about a democratic type of government.
The next meeting will be held Tuesday noon at the Rogerson hotel when Lloyd LeClair, club president, and J. Clifton Smallwood, will report on the recent intermountain regional Exchange club conference held at Salt Lake City.

Billy Graham Is Target of Bomb Attack

COPENHAGEN, May 12 (UPI)—American evangelist Billy Graham, the target of a stink bomb attack Monday night, yesterday was being protected by Danish police patrols.

Graham's press aide, Stan Mooneyham, said the demonstration Monday night was the first ever in the crusader's career. Young toughs threw the stink bombs during Graham's crusade here and later pounded on his hotel room door. They shouted "Come out, Yankee."

The stink bombs were thrown in the crowded forum hall during the second day of Graham's crusade. The evangelist was not affected but an elderly auditorium official caught some fluid in his eye and had to be treated at a hospital.

Several youngsters were removed from the hall. No arrests were made.

Mooneyham said Graham hopes to talk with the young toughs involved. He said the crusader ignored the pounding on the door and eventually the young demonstrators left.

Mooneyham said he understood the demonstrators belonged to "group 61," an extreme left wing organization which has demonstrated against Danish churches and the Spanish and American embassies.

Police officials said they will guard the remaining meetings during Graham's one-week campaign here.

The Dominican Republic:

LAND OF BULLETS VS. BALLOTS (I) by Walter Parkes and John Lane

Nearly 500 years of almost continual dictatorial oppression interrupted by countless revolutions have left the Dominican Republic a blood-stained land where bullets have settled more issues than have ballots. It occupies the eastern two-thirds of the West Indian island of Haiti, discovered by Columbus on Dec. 6, 1492. He called it Hispaniola and claimed it for Spain, which held it until 1697. At that time, the Haitian portion was ceded to France and the Spanish part became Santo Domingo.

Practically from that time on, the island was wracked by bad government and revolution. Out of this intermittent chaos the Dominican Republic emerged in 1844. However, unrest continued and Spain once more annexed Santo Domingo in 1861. But in 1865, another revolution ejected the Spaniards for the last time. The Dominican Republic was on its own. In 1869, it worked to get annexed by the United States. But Congress rejected the proposed treaty.

There followed a series of presidents until 1912, when violent revolution once more flared up. The United States stepped in and mediated an agreement between the warring factions, but again revolutionaries upset the apparent and violence swept the hapless republic. By that time there were many American citizens there and a considerable amount of U.S.-owned property in danger of seizure by the insurgents. All efforts to end the violence and restore some sort of order failed.

Aluminum Siding Scheme Termed 'Colossal Fraud'

SPokane, Wash., May 12 (UPI)—A West Coast aluminum-siding sales scheme described by a judge as a "colossal fraud by a colossal company" was revealed yesterday during the court appearance of a salesman convicted of attempted grand larceny.

Ralph F. Shaffner, 39, former sales manager for West Coast Home Products, Inc., to three years probation after pleading guilty to the attempted larceny charge. "If the executives who initiated the fraud were before the court, they would be considered," Evans said, referring to the home improvement plan which provoked complaints in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, California and Texas.

Nuclear Age Spies Are Unlike James Bond Type

NEW YORK, May 12 (NEA)—Pity the poor spy in the nuclear age.

The arrest of two more Americans, Robert Johnson and James Mintkenbaugh, charged with spying for Russia and the latest trial in London of a prominent engineer are more evidence that the ancient art of espionage is not as romantic as it used to be.

In our age of scientific mysteries and push buttons even a beautiful Matl Hari would need, in addition to her art as belly dancer, some knowledge of engineering, physics or photography to be of any use as a spy.

Thus, at least one of the Americans, James Mintkenbaugh, is reported to have received espionage training in Moscow in photography, secret writing and microdots.

Russia's spy in London, Frank Clifton Brossard, is like many of his British predecessors, a highly trained engineer. Until his arrest he was an expert on guided missiles in the British ministry of aviation.

Another military expert recently caught spying for Moscow was Sweden's Col. Big Wennerstrom who had been supplying NATO secrets to Russia for 15 years. He served as an air attaché in the United States from 1952 to 1957.

Equally expert are the Russians spying for the West. There is indeed more truth than poetry in the statement by Sen. Milton R. Young, R., N. D., that some of the most valuable operatives of the American central intelligence agency (CIA) throughout the world "are actually high-ranking communist party officials."

They are not too sold on communism and will work even for the United States "for a price," Young said.

Thus, Moscow's secret agent Yuri Nosenko, who is now believed to be in the United States, served as an adviser on nuclear weapons to the Soviet delegation at the Geneva disarmament conference.

Col. Oleg Penkovsky, another top Russian who spied for the West, was a competent scientist who belonged to the highest circles in Red society. He had been supplying the United States with military information for two years before he was tracked down by the Soviet secret police.

There is certainly little that is romantic about the modern spy. In the old days spying was as much an adventure as a lucrative business. But the spy in the nuclear age is primarily seduced by money. He also is afflicted with weak nerves. He confesses his crime the moment he is caught red-handed.

Colonel Penkovsky confessed that he spied for the United States and Britain because he needed money. He went to his execution with head bowed.

Wennerstrom admitted working for the Russians for a similar unromantic reason and is doomed to spend the rest of his life in a Swedish prison.

Or take the case of the venerable Professor Georgiev, Red Bulgaria's diplomat who confessed that he spied for the CIA in order to earn some extra change for his girl friend in France. Imagine Ian Fleming's daring James Bond pleading in court as Professor Georgiev did:

"I beg you to give me the heaviest penalty. I am guilty of the greatest crime a communist can possibly commit."

In the romantic days spies never confessed. Like Mata Hari they faced the firing squad proudly with their lips sealed.

Only rarely does one find a spy these days who still operates in the grand tradition of Fouché, Napoleon's chief of intelligence. Fouché managed to take oaths of fidelity to seven different governments and lived to tell the tale. He even survived Robespierre's revolutionary terror.

But the modern spy of our nuclear age, alas, if he does not confess, runs for his life at the first sign of danger, like Yuri Nosenko.

Two Western Railroads Eye Mergers

CHICAGO, May 12 (UPI)—Two proposed mergers of major western railroads advanced a step nearer actually yesterday.

Stockholders of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad (Milwaukee road) met in Chicago to approve consolidation of the line with the Chicago and North Western railway.

Union Pacific railroad stockholders voted overwhelmingly in Salt Lake City in favor of a proposed merger with the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad.

The actions were the latest in a merger movement that has spread through the railroad industry in the last decade.

Rock Island stockholders already had approved the plan for merger of the Rock Island and Union Pacific lines into a 4,000-mile line extending from Chicago, St. Louis and Minneapolis to Portland, Ore., and Los Angeles.

In Salt Lake City, president Edd Bailey told stockholders that the Union Pacific's "historic middle route" — completed nearly 100 years ago to keep California and the West in the union — would be in "precarious" position unless the merger was approved.

About 96 per cent of the U.P. votes cast were in favor of the merger.

Separated Twins Ask For Bicycles

TURIN, Italy, May 12 (UPI)—Six-year-old Siamese twin girls yesterday survived their first 24 hours apart and felt well enough to ask for bicycles.

Santina and Giuseppina Foglia joined back-to-back from birth, were separated by surgeons Monday. A medical bulletin said their post-operative condition "continues to be favorable."

Surgeon Luigi Solerio, who headed a 14-man surgical team in the delicate case, was greeted by one of the twins with a request to be allowed to get up and play.

The twins said among the many gifts they have received, the bicycles were the only things missing.

Turin's Bishop Alfredo Di Tiniella visited the twins in their new separate beds at the rosary.

When doctors examined the children, they expressed amazement at their progress. They described the twins' condition as "excellent, beyond every expectation."

The critical period for the twins is three days, meaning they cannot be considered safe from possible grave post-operative complications until Thursday morning.

Vast Transmission Network To Benefit Idaho Power's Customers

TWENTY-ONE-MILLION-DOLLAR INITIAL CONSTRUCTION ANNOUNCED

Boise—Service and cost benefits for more than 1,000,000 electric consumers in a vast northern Rocky Mountain region that includes Idaho will result from a new 50-year power exchange agreement signed Saturday by chief executives of five investor-owned utility companies.

Signers of the contract, a giant forward step in interconnection and power pooling for coordination of regional power resources, were Idaho Power, Montana Power, Pacific Power & Light, Utah Power & Light and Washington Water Power companies.

The coordinating group will be known as "AMPS," for Associated Mountain Power Systems.

T. E. Roach, Idaho Power president, said the far-reaching agreement calls for joint construction by AMPS of a 565-mile, high-voltage transmission network linking Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah and eastern Washington. The interconnected network requires an initial investment of about $21,000,000.

"Idaho Power's customers will share in the many benefits resulting from this forward-looking construction of additional tax-paying facilities," Roach said.

"Our arrangements will make optimum use of the area's power resources, will provide greater flexibility of operations for all the companies and will enable us to transfer huge blocks of power with reduced operating expenses so that our customers will gain important benefits of low-cost service."

Service reliability also will be improved, the Idaho Power president said, "due to the mutual 'standby' power which AMPS' members will provide for each other in times of emergency."

"The basic reason for this combined construction venture is to pace the growth of agriculture and industry in the intermountain area," Roach said, "and to assure that ample power supplies will be available for any need, no matter what its magnitude."

Joint facilities already scheduled by AMPS are "only the starting point" for a continuing program of regional interconnections and pooling, according to Roach.

"In the future, the five companies are prepared to invest many more millions of dollars in similar facilities to extend the network," he said.

The Idaho Power president emphasized that the AMPS program is "in addition" to his company's own $150,000,000 construction undertaking in connection with 425,000-kilowatt Hells Canyon Dam, scheduled for completion in 1968.

As part of that undertaking, Idaho Power now is building a second double-circuit, 230,000-volt transmission line between Brownlee Dam and Boise.

Roach, pointing out that AMPS' members have been interconnected for more than 20 years, said the new agreement "materially strengthens" the existing tie-lines and incorporates the most modern concepts of design and operation.

The five utilities now operate more than 4,700,000 kilowatts of generating capacity and 81,000 miles of transmission and distribution lines.

Roach said two sections of AMPS' 230,000-volt transmission network already are under construction, with Washington Water Power building a section from Noxon to Hot Springs in western Montana, and Montana Power a section from Hot Springs to Anaconda, Montana.

The line will then be extended to Idaho Power's Brady substation near American Falls. It will connect there with existing facilities on the systems of the Idaho and Utah companies and with a 230,000-volt line between Treasureton, Idaho, and Utah's Naughton steam-electric generating station at Kemmerer, Wyoming.

Hundreds of jobs will be created by the construction program necessary to carry out the coordination agreement, Roach said, as well as greatly increased tax income for local, state and federal governments, and local purchases of materials and supplies.

Under terms of the 50-year AMPS contract, each company will construct and own the transmission facilities in its service area. However, each company will share in the annual costs of the joint facilities and be entitled to proportionate transmission rights in all of the interconnecting lines.

Other AMPS chief executives signing the agreement were J. E. Corette, president, Montana Power; D. R. McClung, president, Pacific Power & Light Company; E. M. Naughton, president, Utah Power & Light; and K. M. Robinson, chairman, Washington Water Power.

Swiss Scouts Boating Down Rio Grande

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., May 12 (AP)—A crew of Swiss Scouts and their leader plan to resume an 1,800-mile trip down the Rio Grande later this week after a rest stop in Albuquerque. The 15 Scouts and their leader, Henri-Maurice Berny of Montreux, Switzerland, started the ambitious tour April 23 from the small town of Grande in the mountains of southern Colorado. The Scouts used three boats to shoot down the river from Creeds to Albuquerque. Berny said he plans to write a book and produce a series of films on the trip after the group returns to Switzerland in July. The explorers hope to follow the Rio Grande along its entire course through Colorado, New Mexico and Texas to where it empties into the Gulf of Mexico. Berny said the boys decided on the trip because everyone in Switzerland has heard about the Rio Grande but hardly anyone knows anything about it. He said, "Most everyone told us that there wouldn't be any water there, yet we were surprised to find out how much water there really was." Each of the three boats has tipped over several times in rough water. "It was a surprise to us to find such wild water and so much of it," he said. The numerous dunkings in the river resulted in the loss of about $100 worth of equipment. Berny said the Scouts take to the land along parts of the trip, traveling by car instead of boat. He said because of the limited amount of time available, they travel on the highways sometimes to save time. He said the boys were impressed by the deep canyons along the Rio Grande. "We have nothing like this in Switzerland. We have higher mountains and more spectacular scenery, but the deep canyons cut into the face of the earth as you have here in America."

Threat of War Hovers Over Middle East

BEIRUT, May 12 (AP)—The threat of war hovers again over the Middle East. In coffee houses and government palaces the talk of a new Arab-Israeli conflict, has assumed a degree of reality and urgency it has not had since the 1956 Suez invasion. Technically, the Arabs and Israelis have been at war since 1948. The peace negotiations that were to follow the armistice signed that year have never been held. Except for the Suez battle, however, the war has been mostly confined to minor border skirmishes. Why the talk of a real war now? The dispute over division of the Jordan river waters is the immediate focus for attention. Many observers feel it is precisely the emergency of an issue, on which attention by both Arabs and Israelis can concentrate, that has made it so potentially explosive. There are reasons that no war has occurred during the past nine years. The Arabs had not wanted one because, despite their superior numbers, they lacked political unity and an effective fighting force. Equally important, President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic and other Arab leaders have been aware of the consequences of international reaction to any all-out attack on the Israelis. They knew the Israelis could count on quick support from the United States and "the West." The Israelis, on the other hand, have needed peace to build their young country. They knew, also, that without obvious provocation from their Arab neighbors, there was no hope of engaging the West in a new anti-Arab attack. The key to the situation now, most observers agree, is Israel. Time is on the side of the Arabs, it is argued. Thus the Israelis may believe the longer they wait, the worse their chances for victory. The advantages for them in the current situation are many. Nasser has some 40,000 troops tied up in Yemen. The Iraqis have a similar number poised for action against rebellious Kurdish tribesmen in northern Iraq. The regimes of Syria and Iraq, opposed to one another, are in a period of more than usual instability. At the same time there has been a serious rupture in the spirit of Arab unity since last year's two Arab summit conferences at Cairo and Alexandria. That rupture was magnified last month by Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba's suggestion that Arabs and Israelis negotiate a phased solution of the Palestine problem. It brought serious riots against Bourguiba and Israel throughout Arabia. The Israelis may also take into account American preoccupations with the Viet Nam situation, the Soviet Union's more immediate concern over Red China and the recent financial crippling of the United Nations. If, taking these factors into account, the Israeli should attack the Arabs, the Arab plan for diversion of the Jordan river headwaters could provide the excuse, in the view of diplomats here. A major aim of such an attack, it is believed, would be to cripple the Arab war machine. This means the U.A.R., primarily, but Syria and Jordan could not be overlooked. Iraq and Lebanon might also come under attack. A second major objective, some observers speculate, would be to gain control of the Jordan headwaters in Syria and Lebanon. The Israelis would then use this to bargain for a permanent peace with the Arabs and an end to the present economic blockade. All of this would necessarily have to be carried out with lightning speed, allowing no time for intervention from East or West, it is argued. The Arab threat to Israel, militarily, appears to be years away—at least five years, perhaps a decade or longer. The lone exception to this estimate is Syria.

Family Car to Follow Power, Styling Trend

DETROIT, May 12 (AP) — The auto industry hopes to keep its new sales records in 1966 by offering the American public more cars — horse-drawn in the family car — power and sharp styling. That one-two combination helped the industry break one record after another in recent years.

American, in an unprecedented boom, have money to spend and want fancy-looking cars. The stripped-down economy models they bought in the prosperous times of the late 1950s.

The 1966 models due out this fall will follow the present trend toward more horsepower under the hood and "marshmallow" styling of gently curved roofs and fenders will continue.

Generally, styling on most of the big standard-sized cars will be little changed from their 1965 counterparts. They were all-new this year and will get only what the industry calls "facelifts" for '66. This usually means a new grille, some new side trim and different taillights — changes designed to make the prospective buyer of a '66 feel he's really getting a new car.

The smaller cars called compacts and intermediates will get the major styling changes for 1966. They will have the new hoods, fenders, trunks and side panels — or new sheet metal as the engineers put it.

The one "new" car for 1966 will be an Oldsmobile, in the personal car, or Thunderbird-Riviera, class. Its unique feature will be front wheel drive. It will be the first American front wheel drive car since the Cord of the 1930s, although several foreign cars have this type of drive train, including British motors' Austin — Cooper and Renault's RAL.

With this arrangement, the driving mechanism is attached to the front wheels. This has the advantage of eliminating the drive shaft tunnel running down the middle of conventional cars which have the differential on the rear axle.

The new Olds will have a common body shell with the Buick Riviera, which will get a major styling change in the process. Both cars will have retractable headlights, like the Chevrolet Corvette sports car.

There has been no official word from GM on the car, but it was seen by newsmen coining the recent Mobil economy run. They saw it during some mountain tests in the West.

Various names have been suggested, including "Holiday" and "Tornado." The latter, apparently taken from "Tornado," is most frequently mentioned.

Like the T-Bird, introduced in the 1950s, and the Riviera, brought out in 1962 as a '63 model, the new Olds will be a luxury car in the $4,500 range with sporty features like bucket seats and a console. It too will be a two-door hardtop. Its styling is distinctive with a long hood like a Jaguar and a fast-sloping roof line, squared off a bit at the rear bumper, similar to some Ferrari models.

The other new models are not without innovations, however. Some of them:

A dual-action tailgate on the standard-size Ford station wagon, so it can open either way.

No side vent windows on the Pontiac Grand Prix and some other GM cars. They will use "flow-through" ventilation, like that on the T-Bird, with vent openings by the rear window to provide air circulation.

A new straight six cylinder engine by Pontiac with an overhead cam shaft. This type of powerplant is popular on the better European sports cars used in world competition.

The Pontiac engine, which will develop 215 horsepower compared with the present 140 hp six, is one of several only new powerplants being readied for next year's cars.

American Motors, which rode to success on a campaign against the gas — guzzling dinosaurs of the big three, has a new V8 with 300 horsepower which will be introduced as a 1966½ option. It will replace a 270 hp engine.

The luxury cars are in a "subtle inch" race for bigger engines, although here the object is not to get more speed but to provide a smoother, quieter running powerplant.

The Lincoln, which now has a 430 cubic inch engine, will raise that to 462 inches of displacement, in the process increasing horsepower from 320 to 350. Chrysler will have a 440 inch engine, up from 413, with an accompanying boost in horsepower.

Ford's 390 inch engine, first used on the T-Bird, will find a new spot under the hood of the intermediate size Comet and Fairlane. A toned-down version of the 428 inch Ford stock car racing engine will be sold in the big Mercury. A street version of Chrysler's 426 inch "hemi-head" engine also will be offered on some of that firm's cars.

Several car lines will offer an expanded model series. There will be a Fairlane convertible and a fastback hardtop. Ford people are talking up the 1966 Fairlane as the "family sports car."

Four-door hardtops will be added to the Explorer, the Olds Cutaway, the Buick Special, the Pontiac Tempest and the Chevrolet Chevelle.

The Chevrolet Caprice, a top-of-the-line luxury Impala model, will add a two-door hardtop with its four-door hardtop version.

The most noticeable styling changes will be on the GM, Ford and Chrysler intermediate-size cars and two compacts, the Falcon and Chevy II. The Falcon will be lengthened and widened and will have curved side grilles. The Chevy II will lose its boxy shape in its first year of production. It was introduced in 1964.

Dodge will have a new sports model, the Charger, a two-door fastback hardtop.

The Mustang, introduced in April, 1964, as a 1964 model, will have some grille and side ornamentation changes for 1966. The Mustang is not expected to have any direct competition from Chevrolet for at least another year.

Prices will probably remain about the same, since the big three firms are reporting no record earnings and selling cars at the fastest pace in history. GM said it sold 630 million dollars in the first quarter this year, Ford 508 million dollars and Chrysler 568 million dollars.

Closed Lids, Contacts Can Damage Eyes

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 12 (AP) — A warning that an unconscious person can suffer serious eye damage from contact lenses was sounded by the American Academy of General Practitioners.

Dr. Thomas Manchester, Atlanta, Ga., writing in "GP," the scientific publication of the Association of Family Physicians, said contact lenses worn on the eyes of unconscious persons are closed and the transparent covering of the cornea "dries rapidly."

He said people should be on the lookout for contact lenses in the eyes of unconscious persons, at the scene of an accident or in any situation where persons collapse.

However, Manchester said that the absence of tear circulation in contact lenses can become stuck tightly to the cornea that complete removal of the lenses by an team of large areas of the cornea covering.

To avoid this, he suggested that the lenses of the unconscious be removed. The lenses of the unconscious be removed. The lenses of the unconscious be removed.

Dan Cupid Is Busiest in United States

NEW YORK, May 12 (AP) — Dan Cupid's most active territory is the USA.

Americans are the most-married nation in western culture," says Dr. Simon H. Nagler, psychologist.

His position on marriage, endorsed in New York by the Society of Medical Psychoanalysts, Dr. Nagler said the "most arrant nation" tag started in 1949.

Since that time, Americans are married at a continuously increasing rate and at earlier ages.

One-sixth of the girls between the ages of 15 and 19 are married. Between the ages of 15 and 19, almost one-half of the men are married.

About 92 per cent of all adults all have been married by the age of 65," Dr. Nagler said.

What happens, however, when isn't "live happily ever after" the post-wedding days?

Surveys by marriage counselors and others reveal that marital discord heads the list of family problems. Sexual maladjustment is an extremely important problem among the marital difficulties, according to Dr. Nagler.

Numerous studies have advanced equally numerous explanations of the social and individual situations leading to divorce — such as economic difficulties, alcoholism and sexual maladjustment, the latter frequently a symptom rather than cause of marital disruption," explained.

"In many cases, it is postulated, it may simply be the fact that the sparks of love and mutual respect no longer burn and the relationship thus lost any real meaning for the couple."

Dr. Nagler suggested that perhaps in his "The Doctrine and Discipline of Divorce," written in the 17th century.

Milton maintained that no art is capable of inquiry into the secret reason for dissatisfaction between man and wife."

Smylie Leaves for Conference in Washington

BOISE, May 12 (AP) — Gov. Robert E. Smylie today left for Washington, D. C., by plane for a three-day trip.

The chief executive will attend the White House conference of the advisory commission on inter-governmental relations while in the nation's capital. He said he will return to Boise Friday night.

During Smylie's absence, Lieut. Gov. William E. Drevlow, Craigston, will serve as acting governor. Drevlow came to Boise last week to serve as acting governor for four days while Smylie was in San Francisco.

Smylie's office in 1956, since he served a total of 305 days as acting governor.
