"But aggression cannot succeed, because successful aggression breeds new aggressions," Rusk added. He reminded the publishers of the "vastly expanded need for the printed word" and stressed the responsibility of providing underdeveloped parts of the world with books. Walker Says Smylie Has Dodged Issue

Lloyd J. Walker, Twin Falls, chairman of the Idaho State Democratic Central Committee, said Saturday that Gov. Robert E. Smylie "has totally failed to discuss the issue" of appointing Democrats to bipartisan boards.
Walker said Smylie "has to assume this defensive position because he knows as well as do the people that he is violating the spirit of the law."
"A Republican has no business making Democratic appointments," Walker declared.
He said that in attempting to "explain away his failure to appoint the Democratic Party to bipartisan boards" Gov. Smylie "has totally failed to discuss the issue."
He noted that on a federal level the Democratic president does not appoint Republicans and that it should not be done on a state level.
"The governor certainly isn't going to try to kid anybody into thinking that the Democrats recommended former Republican Congressman Hamer Budget," Walker continued, "was recommended by the Republican leadership in Congress to the Democratic president who properly made the appointment."
"To do otherwise is only a blatant attempt to blur and destroy party lines and build a personal machine," Walker charged.
"The governor," he said, "is trying to get away with this now, but in the interest of good government and a strong two-party system, the Democratic party will use all means available, including legal, to put a stop to this activity."

back on and ordered again. "Drink some water."
"Do I sound a little hoarse?" asked her orbiting husband.
"Yes, you do sound hoarse. Now drink some water," she insisted.
McDivitt's voice was a little lower than its normal tenor quality — but still a contrast with the baritone of pilot Edward H. White II. White's wife, Patricia, came on first taking over from the capsule communicator, Maj. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom. She passed on the information that the second-stage booster had re-entered the earth's atmosphere and burned.
"A big improvement over Gus. I'll tell you that," said White's cheerful voice.
The wives were waiting at Gemini control as were White's two children, Eddie, 11, and Bonnie-Lynn, 9 — awaiting the spacecraft's passage over the North American continent.
Without any introduction, the wives took over the capsule communicators' chores, relaying instructions from flight officials to their husbands above. Listeners could sense the surprise of the two astronauts.

Jordan Gives Assurance on Rivers Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Len Jordan, R-Idaho, said today he has been assured by the U.S. Department of Agriculture that enactment of the proposed wild rivers bill would not affect state administration of streambeds.
Jordan said he asked the department regarding several points raised during public hearings in Idaho on the bill. One was whether the Land Board would lose its authority regarding the leasing of the beds of the rivers covered by the bill.
"We believe," Jordan said, "that the language of the bill is clear that it would not in any way change the right of the state as to the management and use of its property."
The bill includes in the wild rivers systems the main Salmon River and its tributaries. Jordan asked if present roads along those streams would be closed and whether the bill would prevent future road construction.
"The concept of a national wild rivers system," Jordan quoted the department as replying, "is that it would contain areas accessible by various means. Some areas would be readily accessible by roads; others would be accessible by more rugged means."
Thus the wild rivers bill would not in itself mean that roads would be prohibited. The question as to whether new roads would be constructed along stretches of wild river areas would be decided on the basis of the overall plans for the particular wild river area and the surrounding lands.

Big Wood River Flow Tops Record

HAILEY — Big Wood River reached a level of 5.36 feet Saturday, a new record high, according to Woodrow Watts, watermaster.
Ralph Griffen, foreman of the Blaine County highway crew, reported that Star Bridge was still holding Saturday, although it had been feared earlier that the bridge would wash out if the river rose over its Friday level of 5.10 feet.
Crews were unable to reach the Colorado Bridge Saturday, and damage to that structure was not known.
The Gooding Sheep Bridge, one mile north of Ketchum, started to wash out early Friday morning, but county road crews secured it with cables, according to Don Reisch, Blaine County commissioner.
Friday, crews were repairing the Baseline Canal, near Gannett, which broke Thursday.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON—Happy for the long future, the more thoughtful types at the State Department are not dismissing anti-American feeling in the Philippines as merely the fruits of communist subversion.

Red influence is present, of course, as it is in every new country trying to shake off the past and find a better future. But largely the Filipino's unrest is based on his longing to re-establish his Asian identity, blurred by four centuries of Spanish rule and 50 years of American Big Brotherism.

Andrew Tully

Although he speaks both Spanish and English, the Filipino remains an Asian, a blending of Malay. Since the U.S. granted the Philippines independence after World War II, the nation has been stirred by what might be called "Asian nationalism." It still retains and wants to retain its ties with the West, if only for economic reasons, but the average Filipino finds himself drawn to his Asian brothers.

As one Filipino diplomat here put it, "You Americans have blood ties with the English. So do we with the rest of Asia. We have never been either Spaniards or Americans. We have always thought like Asians."

WANT VOICE ON MILITARY BASES—Moreover, the Filipino feels it is proper for him to resent the U.S. assumption that its military bases in the Philippines are the result of some kind of divine right. The more responsible Filipinos do not seek abrogation of the treaties providing for these bases, but only their revision to give their country more of a say in the matter. They don't see why American businessmen should have equal status with Filipino businessmen.

It is true that the more violent instances of anti-Americanism are staged by the communists through infiltration of small but loud student groups. But the movement for "separation" from America has won the support of the nation's more respectable leaders. For example, Gen. Carlos Romulo, former aide to General MacArthur, former Ambassador to Washington and a longtime friend of the U.S., has come out in support of a policy of strengthening ties with Asia.

MYTH OF WHITE SUPREMACY EXPLODED—Romulo does not quite suggest that Red China is the wave of the future, but he points out that the Asian no longer regards the white man with awe and/or fear. "Japanese victories in World War II exploded that myth," he says.

Meanwhile, there is an ironic significance in the emergence of former President Jose Laurel as a hero among the Asians bloc. Laurel was denounced as a collaborator when he operated an "independent" government during the Japanese occupation, but today the more vociferous nationalists see him as a man of vision who sought the security of accommodation with the East.

Overlying all this nationalistic stirring is fear. There are 100 million Indonesians at the Philippines' back door and 700 million Chinese at its front door. Even while continuing to seek American military protection, the Filipino can't help wondering whether he should lay the groundwork for doing business with the Asian mass—just in case.

Views of Others

WILL SUCCESS LULL CONGRESS? The paradox of the 89th Congress is this: It seems to be accomplishing so very much, and it is doing all this with the same out-of-date methods which, in previous sessions, were blamed for legislative failures. We hope, however, that this will not take the steam out of the movement to do something about the antiquated procedures of Congress.

It is difficult to argue with success, and from the administration's point of view, this is likely to be a highly successful session. It may be said, however, that a man driving a model-T on a superhighway is likely to get there anyway. Certainly Congress is still driving a model-T and if the engine has been turned up by presidential pressures, it does not guarantee that the lawmakers, under similar conditions, will always be so successful.

All of which is a rather roundabout way of getting to the fact that the assignment given to the new point committee on the organization of Congress is one of the most important assignments handed out in this session. The conditions which have necessitated this study still exist even though this particular Congress may rise above them.

For Sen. Mike Monroney pointed out, in a recent edition of Tax Review, and with some understatement:

"Unless the Congress subjects its organization and operation to piercing scrutiny and changes of some of its methods, it will not be able to fulfill its responsibilities for today's workload and resolve the perplexing problems with which it is faced."

Monroney was the author of the Senate current resolution that established the committee of six senators and six representatives. Even though this particular study is limited and will not, by definition, get into the more controversial matters of seniority, the filibuster and the role of the House rules committee, it nevertheless has a very large agenda. If nothing else, it needs to examine the procedures used in considering the national budget. Our budgets grow but, to borrow Senator Monroney's analogy, Congress is still using "machinery as obsolete as a quill pen, a slanting bookkeeper's desk and an old-fashioned high stool."

We assume that the committee will eventually bring in its recommendations, undaunted by the apparent success of this session. If Congress fails to act on them it can only blame itself for perpetuating the inefficiencies currently built into its own system.—Kansas City (Mo.) Star.

GRAND CANYON

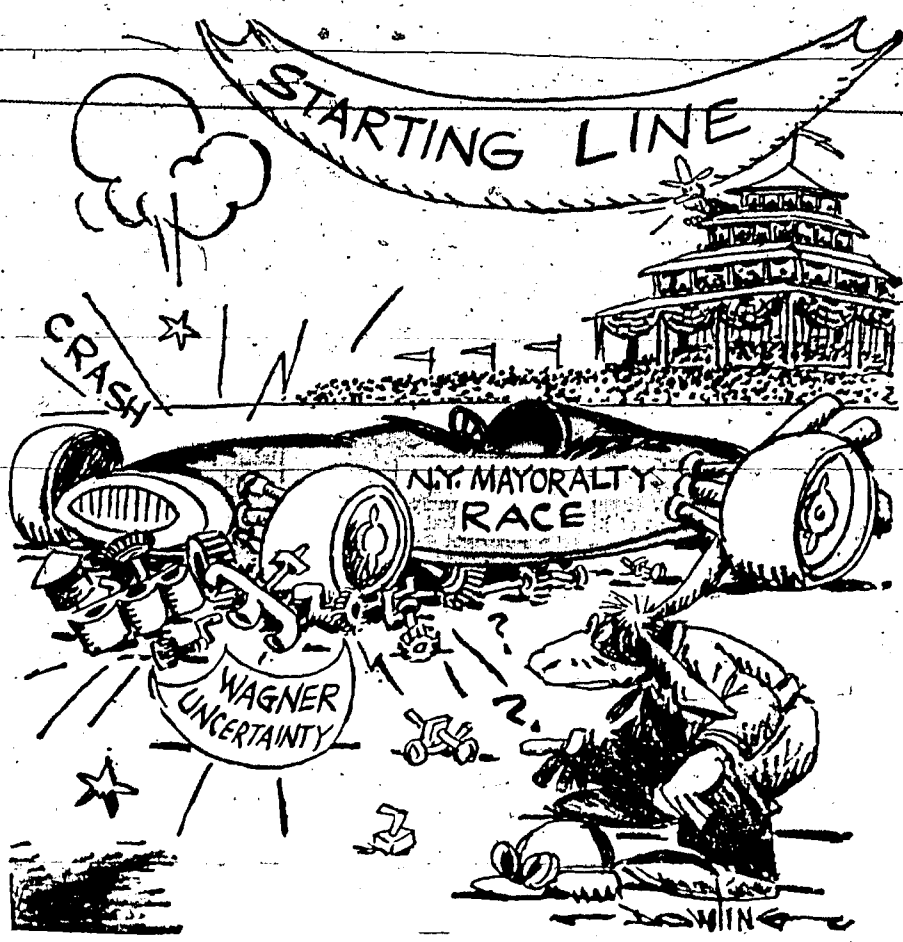

The dam builders are at it again. The Federal Bureau of Reclamation is seeking authorization from Congress to build two huge hydroelectric dams on the Colorado River in the Grand Canyon, one in Marble Gorge, one in Lower Granite Gorge.

Neither dam is necessary, according to Prof. Richard C. Bradley, a Colorado College physicist and well-informed conservationist. "Both would be wasteful and destructive," he writes in the winter issue of "The Living Wilderness."

Our national park areas are intended to be preserved unimpaired for future generations. There are other means of providing electricity to the people of the Southwest—and they would be cheaper, too, according to Bradley.

But once these beautiful natural areas are inundated they will be lost to all of us forever. As transportation becomes simpler and quicker and our population expands, our parks and national monuments and seashores become increasingly more important. Can we dispose of them so carelessly? Can we cheat our grandchildren just so a few people can have electricity—which fossil fuels or nuclear power could give them just as well?—The Boston Herald.

GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW

Poor Man's Plato

By HAL BOYLE

A COMMAND POST IN SOUTH VIET NAM (AP)—Recently half the members of Company D, 3rd Reconnaissance Battalion of the U.S. Marine 3rd Division were eligible to return to America. But to a man they volunteered for six months more of battle duty here.

"Hell, we can't go home and leave the old man to clean up this mess all by himself," said one young Marine.

The old man is Capt. Pat Collins, 32, of Grosse Ile, Mich., one of the boldest company commanders on the front, a man with whom bravery is a habit.

The 4 officers, 80 troops and 3 Navy corpsmen of his company follow him as if he were a battlefield messiah. And he returns their devotion in full measure.

"They're exceptionally aggressive," he said. "With men like these, leading them isn't the problem. It's keeping up with them."

Pat is stocky and has a deeply tanned face of homely eloquence with Irish blue eyes. In manner he is both brusque and oddly gentle.

He served as a corporal in the Korean campaign and put in 26 months at Guantanamo Bay in Cuba before coming to the Far East seven months ago.

In Cuba, he won the Navy Marine Corps Medal, the highest peacetime decoration, and since coming here he was the first Marine in the Da Nang area to win a Bronze Star for bravery.

The captain squirms in embarrassment when asked about his medals.

"In that Cuba thing there were some people caught in a minefield that had to be gotten out," he said, "and as for that

World Corners

By PHIL NEWSOM (UPI Foreign News Analyst)

At the Paris meeting of NATO defense ministers, the United States found itself criticized for actions which on their face seem to contradict the goal of world peace. Unfortunately, they reflect the world as it exists.

The criticism stemmed from the fact that the United States now also is the world's major seller of arms.

It arose not from any repugnance against the traditional "merchant of death" but rather because the efficiency of U.S. manufacture and the quality of the goods were shutting out others in a highly competitive market.

For example, British manufacturers have complained that competition from the United States gradually is killing off the British aircraft industry.

French President Charles de Gaulle was annoyed because West Germany turned to the United States for development of a military tank rather than to France.

In Paris, therefore, U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara felt it necessary to assure NATO members the United States would buy arms from them if prices were competitive and also to assure them that the United States does not use revenue by taxation to pay its bills now proposes more tax reduction and Congress yips hurra. Simultaneously, administration and Congress resist effective economy and consistently whomp up new spending projects because they are desirable. The question whether the nation can afford these projects does not arise.

White Rabbit: And, pray, when shall we begin to repay these vast debt obligations. It already is quite late.

Mad Hatter: Don't worry, man. Like we owe it to ourselves.

To reduce taxes repeatedly while spending borrowed money probably is like the use of morphine—comfortable and good under controlled conditions but disastrously habit forming. The user becomes hooked. Since 1933 the United States has been hooked by deficit spending. The time and symptoms of withdrawal are terrible to anticipate. So terrible that politicians and people may never face up to government economy and debt retirement.

MARQUIS CHILDS WRITES ON WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—By any test that at times he must take broad bipartisan support for his major ventures in foreign policy. Members of Congress have come to the White House for literally dozens of briefings on the trouble spots. As the master builder of consensus Johnson hampered a coalition that seemed until quite recently to be solid.

On the Sunday evening when he called congressional leaders to brief them on the "communist conspiracy" that in his words had taken over the Dominican rebellion, the President greeted Rep. Gerald R. Ford with, "Well, Jerry, if you keep on supporting me like this there'll be a Republican congress elected in 1966."

Whether intended as irony or just good-natured raillery Ford took it as a tribute. He replied that the motive for his support was not political, but if triumph in 1966 was a fringe benefit then he would be happy to accept it.

Privately, some Republicans have been disturbed over the all-out enthusiasm of the Johnson policy. Wasn't this giving away the whole foreign policy issue which, in view of the President's amazing success in domestic legislation, might be the only lever for '66 and '68? That was the fear of those who saw the G.O.P. becoming a "me, too" party in a sense that Barry Goldwater could never have foretold.

But partnership in foreign policy is an appetite that feeds on itself. This is especially true of right-wing Republicans who have been ardent in their support of policy in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic. Increasing indications are, however, that they will not be satisfied with halfway measures. It is possible a foreign policy issue will develop with the charge that the Johnson administration has gone only part of the way.

Other presidents learned that the bipartisan road can get rough and uncertain in a hurry. The claim to be in on the take-offs as well as the crash landings overlooks the kind of instant crisis that occurs in a situation where, despite constant watchfulness, violence and sudden death erupt.

It ignores the duty of the President under the Constitution to formulate and carry out foreign policy. He must initiate the take-offs and no amount of confronting, conferring and consulting with congress can absolve him receive both U.S. and Soviet made weapons. India is a case in point. There are other cases where arms sales have been made but since have been abandoned because of a shift in the political scene, such as Indonesia.

There are opposite examples such as in the Middle East where the United States in the past has been reluctant to contribute to the arms race but in recent months has been discussing the sale or gift of arms to Iraq, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon and Saudi Arabia.

Within the picture are several ironies.

Such is the state of the world today, that it is easier for the United States to sell weapons than it is surplus wheat.

And the sale of weapons is used as an offset against the dangerous outflow of U.S. gold. A case in point is West Germany where the United States maintains its largest force of continental United States Military sales to West Germany worth $700 million a year but offset the costs of these forces pressure salesmanship to force its Allies to buy American weapons.

Many factors control the sale of U.S. weapons abroad.

Among its Allies, the United States seeks standardization so that weapons and ammunition may be interchangeable.

And whatever the mercenary benefits of these arms sales may be, the United States tries strenuously to prevent the sale of weapons or strategic materials to Communist nations or their allies.

There are, of course, shadow areas in which a country may two diamond tricks by the simple expedient of facing against West's ten.

However, South had hung it to his queen and now there was no normal way to get to dummy's ace of diamonds.

South drew three rounds of trumps. West discarded the five of diamonds to tell his partner that South did not hold it.

South played his ace of spades and West gave the contract right back. He hung on to his king. South's next play was to cash the ace of clubs and then led a second spade. West was with the king and let out the king of clubs.

South recovered from his bad play at trick one. He decided that West did not hold any more spades and discarded one spade loser on the king of clubs, whereupon West had to lead to dummy in either diamonds or clubs and allow South to get all of his other spade loser.

Washington News

By LYLE WILSON

(United Press International)

The Johnson administration kept the faith with its credit card economic advisers and asked Congress for another hike in the public debt limit, the 12th in 10 years.

This is to be a temporary hike of $5 billion to a record limit of $229 billion. The permanent debt limit is $285 billion. As of today the debt amounts to about $17 billion, an increase of $9 billion during the past 20 years. President Johnson estimated that the debt would be about $316.9 billion on June 30, the end of the current (1965) fiscal year. Between June 30, 1965, and June 30, 1966, LBJ calculated that the national debt would rise by about $6 billion to $322.5 billion.

But LBJ probably will top that. He is a big-time spender in the Texas tradition. Whatever Texans do they do big, such as piling up more and more public debt for future generations to pay; if it ever is paid.

The faint hearts among us—good neighbors all—shrink from the idea that the great and noble government of the United States would repudiate its public debt. And maybe the faint hearts are right about that.

But what about this: There has been in the past 20 years—since the end of World War II—prosperity unprecedented in the United States. Except for the unfortunate unemployed, Americans never had it so good. A chicken in every pot and two cars in every garage! And during all of these years of prosperity the U.S. taxpayers have not paid in full their government's bills. Government had to borrow about $59 billion to pay bills. This sum increased the public debt. The politicians were busy shovelling out government funds to provide the citizens with a free lunch of this and that luxury, subsidy, benefit, boon, doggie and whatnot. If we cannot pay government bills and begin debt retirement in boom times such as these, when can retirement begin? Tough question!

These borrow and spend policies are proven in the political wars. The political leaders who borrow to spend, spend are likely to win, win, win elections. No matter if they spend borrowed money. A fair question would be: How and when will the people decide that this fiscal flim-flam has gone far enough and demand that debt retirement begin? When will the people do that? Probably never!

The news of the day is fit for the attention of modern Gilberts and Sullivans or for tense conversations between the Mad Hatter and the White Rabbit. For example: An administration that does not raise enough revenue by taxation to pay its bills now proposes more tax reduction and Congress yips hurra. Simultaneously, administration and Congress resist effective economy and consistently whomp up new spending projects because they are desirable. The question whether the nation can afford these projects does not arise.

White Rabbit: And, pray, when shall we begin to repay these vast debt obligations. It already is quite late.

Mad Hatter: Don't worry, man. Like we owe it to ourselves.

To reduce taxes repeatedly while spending borrowed money probably is like the use of morphine—comfortable and good under controlled conditions but disastrously habit forming. The user becomes hooked. Since 1933 the United States has been hooked by deficit spending. The time and symptoms of withdrawal are terrible to anticipate. So terrible that politicians and people may never face up to government economy and debt retirement.

Some players just refuse to follow suit with an honor when they hold a low card in that suit. Once in a while this habit is going to cost a valuable trick.

Improvements Set in New Space Flights

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A "water gun," a "cap pistol" and improvements for the propulsion gun carried by Edward H. White II in his space walk are being developed for future space flights.

Harold Johnson, division chief of crew systems at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said one piece of equipment uses a series of tiny rockets. "It is sort of a cap gun," he said. "It fires 20 times a second and gives about three times the energy of White's space gun."

Another idea, he said, is to use a gun which fires shotgun shells filled with water. The astronaut would look like a Pancho Villa soldier with a bandolier of extra shells around his shoulders.

"It uses water instead of BBs," Johnson said. "You fire it and get superheated steam for thrust."

Johnson said an unlimited supply of highly compressed oxygen, the fuel used by the space gun White propelled himself with for 20 minutes Thursday, could be supplied from a tank in the adapter section through a line to the gun. White exhausted his limited gas supply after five minutes.

Thrust is provided by squirting small jets of oxygen. "The astronaut could just open the hatch and plug into the supply in the adapter," Johnson said.

Painting

BOISE (AP) — An oil painting of the Union Pacific Railroad's picturesque Boise depot and landscaped gardens surrounding it was presented Saturday to the Boise Art Gallery.

The painting, by Artist Olaf Moller, Rupert, was presented to the gallery by Joel L. Priest Jr., Salt Lake City, in memory of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joel L. Priest, Boise. The younger Priest retired recently as head of the Union Pacific's public relations office in Salt Lake City.

His father for many years was special representative for the railroad in Idaho and his mother was one of the founders of the Boise Art Gallery.

Eisenhower Returns for Class Event

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, back at West Point for his 50th class anniversary, plunged into a round of activity with old companions-in-arms Saturday on this plain high above the Hudson River.

Highlight of his first full day of reunion with the class of 1915 was a 7-2 cadet baseball victory over the Navy, which gave the U.S. Military Academy the Eastern Intercollegiate championship.

Eisenhower sat in the stands behind home plate, a few seats from Omar N. Bradley. These two went farthest of all the 164 men who graduated from West Point half a century ago — both are five-star generals of the Army, the only two alive.

Their 1915 class was known as "the class the stars fell on" because 59 of its members attained general officer rank. Eisenhower went on to two terms as Republican president of the United States, the first West Pointer to reach the White House since Gen. U.S. Grant of the class of 1843.

At the ball game, Eisenhower, a ruddy, trim-looking 74, in a dark suit, turned the brim of his gray fedora down against a hot, hazy sun. He pursed his lips in disappointment at an occasional Army misplay, and cheered and clapped with the rest of the crowd when Roger Staubach, Navy's football ace who plays outfield on the baseball team, struck out.

Tick Shots Are Said Advisable

Tick shots to prevent Rocky Mountain spotted fever are recommended by Dr. Luther C. Thompson, South Central District Health Department.

Dr. Thompson stressed that taking the shots is a preventive measure and that all ticks do not carry the disease. Ticks are most likely to carry the disease from March to June.

Immunization includes three doses, seven to 10 days apart. After the initial immunization a booster is suggested each year.

Scouts, ranchers, sheepmen and those who will be in close contact with the tick areas are advised to take the shots.

Idaho's expanding phosphate industry represents an investment of nearly $100,000,000—and its major development has taken place within the past 20 years! Its gross income amounts to some $55 million annually, and it employs about 1,300 people.

Its raw material, they say, has been in the earth of eastern Idaho for a million years, give or take a few years. The extraction and processing of phosphate rock and shale has become, within the brief span of two decades, one of Idaho's principal industries.

The phosphate fertilizer plant of the J. R. Simplot Company at Pocatello, started in 1944, has become one of the largest in the world, and continues to expand.

The first electric furnaces in the West for phosphorus production were installed by FMC Corporation, also at Pocatello, beginning operation in 1949. Three furnace units were using 50,000 kilowatts of power in 1951. Now there are four enlarged furnaces utilizing 170,000 kilowatts!

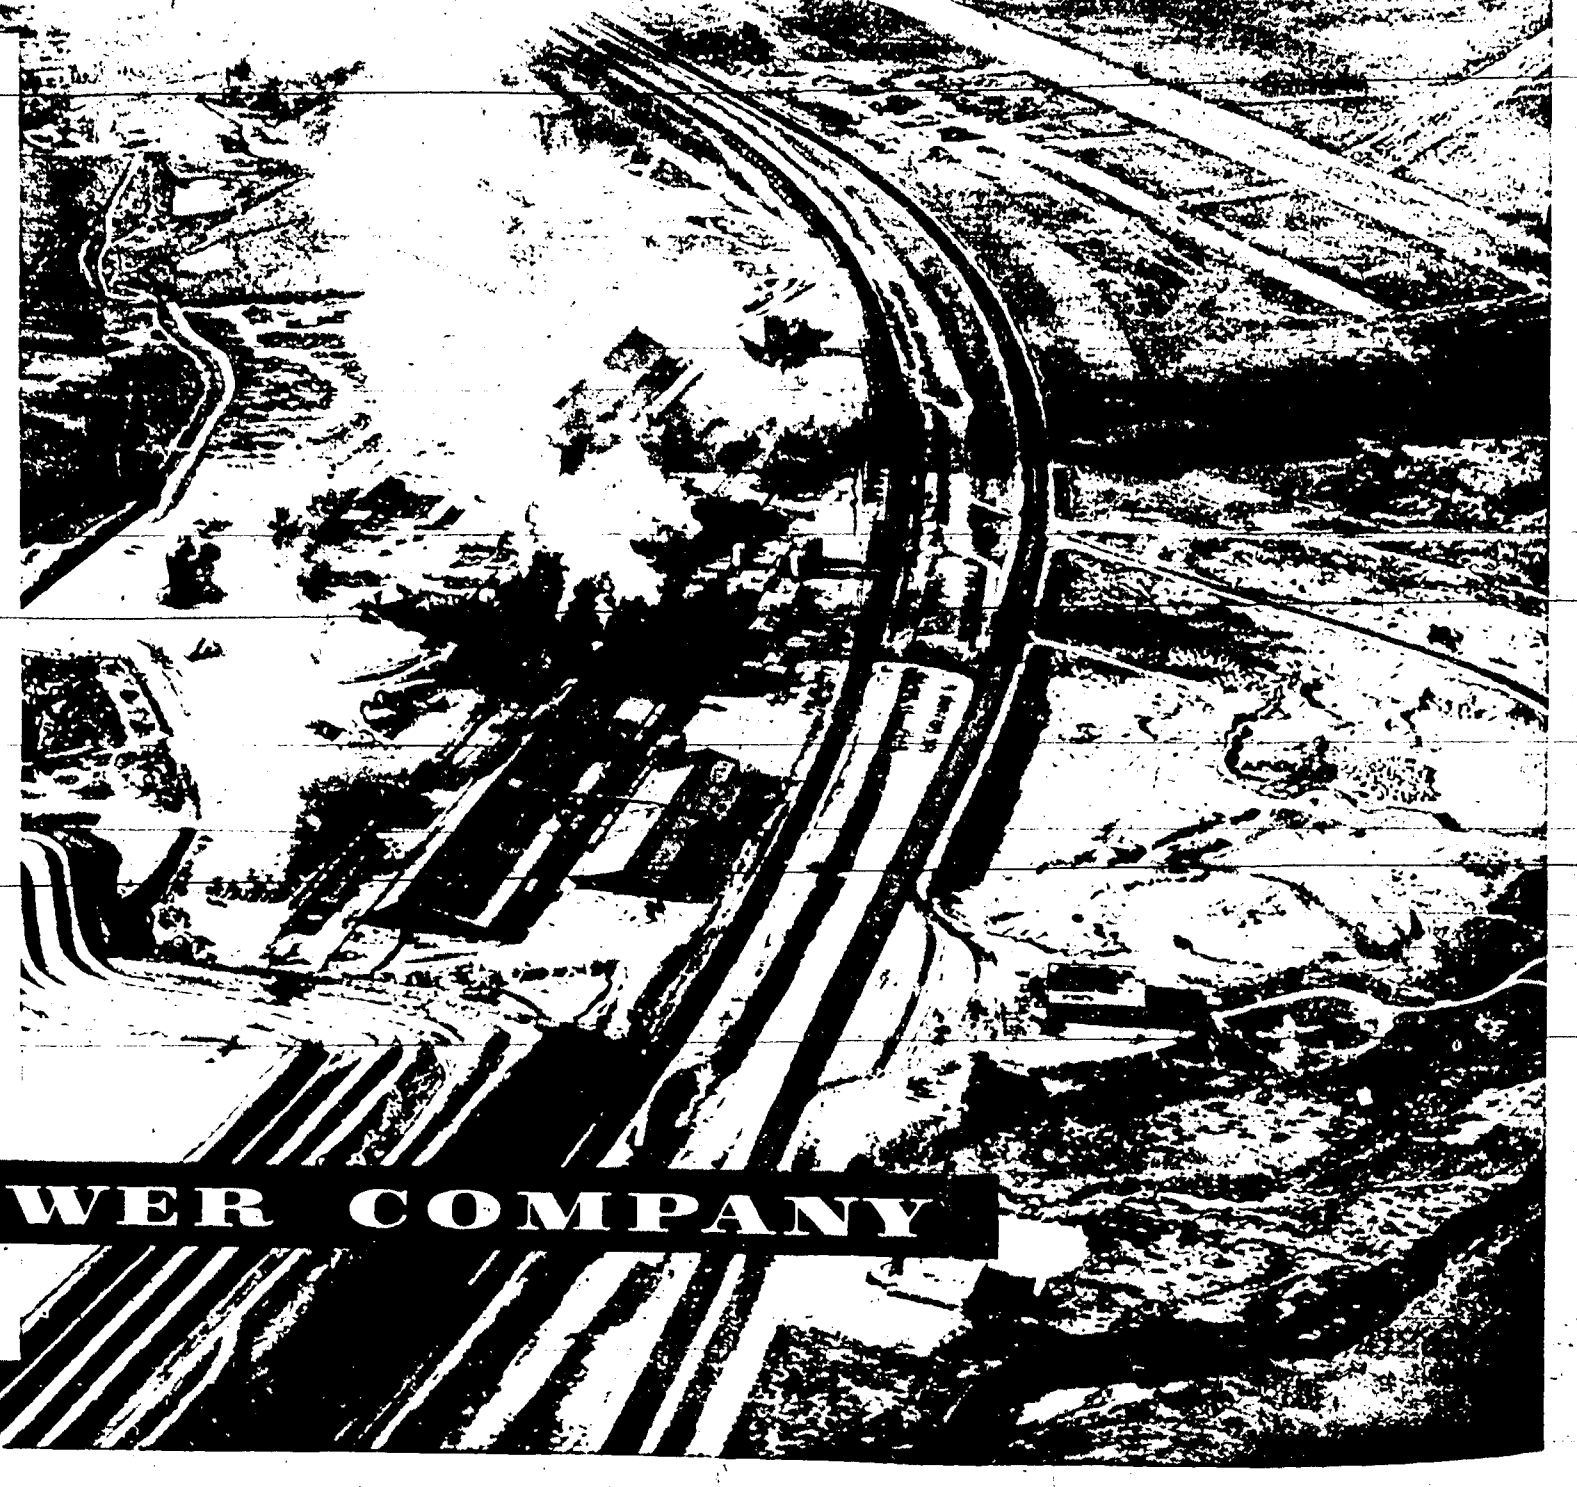

Monsanto Chemical Company commenced electric furnace processing of phosphate ores at Soda Springs in 1952. Its plant uses 90,000 kilowatts of electric power, and an additional furnace of 70,000 kilowatt capacity is being added.

The Idaho phosphate industry's electric furnace operations now produce 200 million pounds of phosphorus annually, which is one-third the nation's output. The record has been achieved in 16 years, and it's only the beginning!

The whole accomplishment took pioneering enterprise, large sums of investment capital, and abundant supplies of low-cost electric power. All three are at work in Idaho.

Fishermen's Breakfast Is Center of Attraction

By DOROTHY POVEY

KETCHUM—The hitching posts were empty, but the "Old Corral," next to the Wooden Spur, was the center of attraction in Ketchum with the Fishermen's Breakfast following opening day of the fishing season.

Instead of horses and riders, that would be very fitting in this picturesque western community, there were fishermen, Tom Sawyers and Huckleberry Finns. This was Ketchum's first fish breakfast, and the response was terrific.

At 7 a.m. the usually crisp, cool air of the high Sawtooths was still and warm and occasionally the sun hid for a minute behind a fleecy cloud. Early-bird fishermen were off to the stream at daybreak and returned for breakfast after they caught their limit.

A 10-foot-long charcoal grill and camp tables were set up and manned by Bob Harrison, Sun Valley chef, and Dave Karelsen. Carol Blandford and Clyde Bell assisted the women in bringing hot biscuits from the ovens to the tables.

Nancy Bedingfield, Mrs. Virginia O'Neil, Mrs. Grace Munster and Mrs. Ercel Dewson had several girls assist them in serving during the morning.

Some of the first visitors to partake of the fried trout, hash brown potatoes, baking powder biscuits with buttered honey and piping hot coffee, prepared as only a camp cook knows how, were those who attended early morning Mass at Our Lady of the Snows Catholic Church a block away. At noon Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber-of-Commerce members and their helpers were still serving.

Although residents and visitors in the mountain village are from all parts of the globe, the informal and friendly atmosphere is always present. There was not a large crowd at the breakfast at any one time, people came and went in a leisurely manner. Each seemed loathe to leave his place in the sun.

There were, of course, many "whopper" fish tales told, each trying to out-do the other, and, of course, always the one that got away.

Perhaps some of the more realistic stories told were how trout could possibly see a worm in the muddy waters of the Big Wood River opening week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Carlson, Twin Falls, had proof, however, that it could be done. They caught seven the first evening and their limit Sunday.

What trout the local fishermen didn't catch for the breakfast were furnished by the Snake River Trout Co.

Lema Breaks Four-Way Deadlock, Cops 1-Shot Lead in Buick Golf Meet

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (UPI)—Tony Lema iced up the champagne for the successful defense of his $100,000 Buick Open title Saturday by blasting out of a four-way deadlock to take a one stroke lead with a six-under-par total of 210 for 54 holes. The never-grim, usually smiling 31-year-old defending champ from San Leandro, Calif., forged a three-under-par 34-35-69 that left him a stroke in front of Jack Nicklaus, Julius (Moose) Boros, and Johnny Pott, all at 211. Lema, aiming to be the first golfer ever to win this tournament twice, shot seven birdies to offset his four bogies during a bizarre third round which included a hole-in-one by a relative unknown and the unusual spectacle of Arnold Palmer's taking four putts from only five feet out.

CINCINNATI (AP)—Jim Havenport's sacrifice fly in the seventh inning gave San Francisco and Juan Marichal a 1-0 victory over Cincinnati and Jim Maloney Saturday night. 11-0 Record Adds Worry To Pitching

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—The winningest pitcher in professional baseball doesn't pretend to be one of those superhuman athletes who doesn't feel the pressure of big-time sports. For 21-year-old Tom Kelley, it gets a little worse every time out. "I'm starting to feel there are dozens of pitchers in the major and minor leagues who would gladly trade places with the young righthander. However, he is the possessor of an 11-0 record and a 1.58 earned average for Portland of the Pacific Coast League.

Stock Market Takes Bad Battering During Week

By JACK IEFLEER
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Some cold water was thrown on the economic outlook during the week.

As a result, the stock market took one of its worst batterings of the year.

The drop followed a statement by William McChesney Martin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, whose views often do not agree with those of the Johnson administration, which feels that, with government guidelines, the business expansion can be kept going indefinitely.

Martin, speaking at Columbia University, said he found "disturbing similarities" between current business conditions and the boom of the 1920s which preceded the Depression.

He warned against speculative and inflationary dangers, saying that the 1929-1933 Depression was caused by "maladjustments born of the boom of the '20s."

"We must continuously be on the alert to prevent a recurrence of maladjustments—even at the risk of being falsely accused of failing to realize the benefits of unbounded expansion," Martin said.

He listed the similarities of the 1960s and the 1920s as virtually uninterrupted progress for seven years, a large increase in private debt, a continuous growth in the supply of money and bank credit and the turnover of demand deposits and a rise in international indebtedness.

On the other hand, Martin conceded there were important differences between the two periods, such as personal income keeping up with corporate profits, a stability in wholesale prices and a smaller increase in stock market credit.

The First National City Bank of New York expressed the opinion that the economy is in for a more normal rate of growth after the "breathless pace" of recent months.

The bank observed in its monthly business analysis that, "We are emerging from a period of abnormal pressures in better shape than seemed likely a few months ago." It mentioned the avoidance of a steel strike, at least temporarily, and the maintenance of automobile sales at a high rate.

President Johnson came out with some good news about the unemployment situation. He announced that the jobless rate dropped in May to 4.6 per cent of the labor force, lowest since late 1957.

Unemployment fell by 220,000 between April and May to 3.3 million while employment rose by 1,333,000 to 72.4 million.

The House of Representatives passed by a vote of 401-6 a bill that would eliminate $4.8 billion of excise taxes annually in the next four years. The Senate was prepared to go to work on the legislation immediately.

New orders received by factories hit a record in May, the Commerce Department reported. The total amounted to $41,164,000,000 from $40,712,000,000 in April.

However, factory shipments declined to $40,074,000,000 from $40,285,000,000.

The automobile industry turned out its seven millionth passenger car of the 1965 model run with production for the holiday-shortened week totaling an estimated 170,600 units, compared with 199,993 the previous week and 174,061 a year earlier.

Output for May reached a monthly high for the sixth straight month. The total of 837,168 cars was 15 per cent above the previous May record of 725,314 set a year earlier.

General Motors Corp. elected a new president, James M. Roche, 58, who had been an executive vice president. He succeeded John F. Gordon, who retired.

Stock Prices Rise, Then Drop Quickly

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wall Street traders and investors, already upset by the market's recent performance, ran for cover last week.

Prices made some upward movement during early Tuesday but quickly turned downward after traders heard that Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney Martin saw "disturbing similarities" between the present economy and conditions in the 1920's.

The Dow-Jones Industrial average plunged 9.51 by the close that day—the heaviest loss since Feb. 11 when the indicator tumbled 11.04. Losses during the session outnumbered gains by more than 2-to-1.

Prices continued downward slowly on Wednesday and it seemed as if only a small loss would be registered in the session. However, a heavy sell-off began around 2 p.m. The decline forced the DJIA down around 11 points and losses outnumbered gains by 10-1 at the bottom of the slump. However, bargain hunters jumped around 2:30 p.m. and cut the decline to 4:47.

A brisk rally featured early trading on Thursday but prices slumped late in the session, adding 4.84 to the week's deficit.

Selling pressure petered out by mid-day Friday and some mild buying gave the average a gain of 1.65, its only advance of the week.

In addition to chairman Martin's comparison with the 1920's, brokers said Wall Street was concerned about the possibility of further tightening of credit and the seemingly growing disharmony in the Johnson administration's assessment of the state of the economy. The Martin statement seemed to closely parallel statements from other administration sources last week.

Market technicians, however, seemed little concerned about these fundamental and psychological factors. They continued to say the market was merely going through a corrective phase which should carry the DJIA back to around the 880 level.

The blue chip indicator came closer to that goal this week as it tumbled 17-17 to 900.87, bringing its loss over the past three weeks to 38.75. Ralls skidded 4.57 to 200.47 just a shade above its 1965 low of 200.42. Utilities dropped 2.05 to 158.12. Standard and Poor's 500 stock index lost 1.31 to 87.11.

Volume for the four days totaled 12,867,815 shares compared with 24,868,420 shares in the five sessions the week before and 21,588,400 shares in the five sessions the week before and 21,588 shares in the same week last year.

Losers outnumbered gainers by nearly 4-to-1 as 1,094 issues retreated while only 292 advanced. Of the 1,526 issues traded, 278 hit new 1965 lows while only 62 touched new highs.

Chrysler took honors for activity, slipping 7/8 to 48 1/8 on 369,000 shares. American Telephone was second in the activity list with a loss of 3/4 at 69 3/4 on 340,300 shares.

A take-over bid from Beneficial Finance put Spiegel in third place with a gain of 3/4 at 39 1/2 on 254,400 shares. Beneficial lost 3/4.

American Motors advanced 1/8 to 12 1/2 on 225,200 shares in fourth place and General Motors dropped 1 to 10 1/4 on 213,700 shares in fifth spot. Ford was also active, dropping 2.

Stretch Drive Overhauls Tom Rolfe at Wire

NEW YORK (AP) — Hail to All, using his patented stretch run in the final one-eighth of a mile, won the 97th running of the $147,900 Belmont Stakes Saturday at Aqueduct in a three-horse blanket finish: Under the lash of lanky Johnson Sellers' whip, Mrs. Ben Cohen's son of Hail to Reason, traveled the 1 1/2 miles in 2:28 2/5 and hit the finish line a neck in front of Preakness winner Tom Rolfe from Raymond Guest's Powhatan Stables.

Sports

FROM ALL ANGLES

By LARRY HOVEY

There are two ardent, active sportsmen from Twin Falls who missed the opening day of the general season for the first time in many years. And the story behind it may be the best of the year, although it all occurred before the general season began.

It has been a standard practice for Gorman (Slim) Miracle and Burton Perrine to go into the headwaters of the Owyhee River, about 40 miles above the dam, for crappie fishing. Each year they've brought a couple of hundred pounds of dressed meat out with them. Their 1965 expedition began May 19 and success was very good.

"The crappie were running about a pound apiece this year," Miracle reports. "Generally we break up each day into three parts. We catch about 50 crappie in the morning, dress them and put them in plastic bags, already ready for the frying pan. Then we try bass fishing for a while and in the afternoon pick up another mess of crappie."

And so for four days that's about the way it ran for the two men until about 2:30 a.m. May 23 it started to rain. It didn't let up and the men figured they were in a cloudburst for sure. By 9 a.m. they were packed and on their way out — they thought — from the isolated camp about 18 miles from the closest anything.

"We got about six miles behind us when we came across a spot where the road was washed out," Miracle continued. "While we were trying to figure a way to back track and find another route, the road was washed behind us and we were stuck."

Thus began a mud and water-filled hike of 12 to 18 miles. "You couldn't walk in the road, it was too slippery and muddy. We had to make our way through the brush," Miracle recalls. "I don't know exactly how far we walked but I know it was the longest I've ever walked wearing a pair of hip boots without wetting a line."

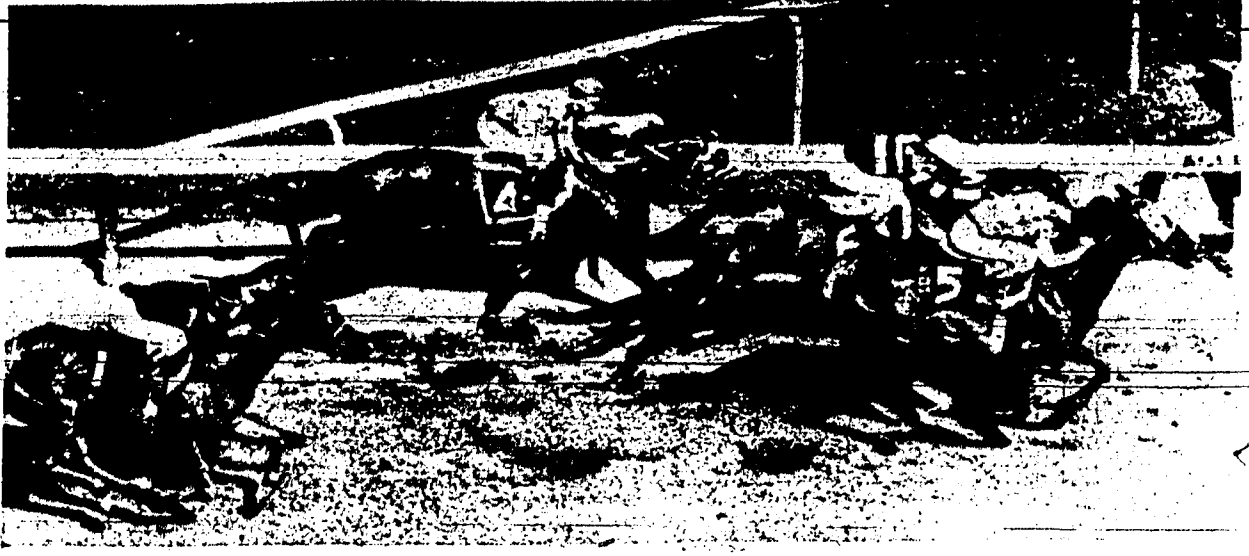

"Finally we got to a ranch and had to hire the rancher to drive us another 30 miles to a telephone. From there we called some friends in Boise who came down and got us and finally brought us back to Twin Falls. It took us two days to get here," he smiled.

As a sidelight, and what made the week a nearly complete flop, the men turned right around and retraced their steps to Boise that night to watch the Clay-Liston fight on theater television. The result didn't help their disposition any, either.

Then Thursday and Friday Miracle headed up the salvage operation. "We had a winch, truck, pick-up and four guys with picks and shovels," he said. "And even then we just got the job done."

So the men had their boat and motor, car, camping and fishing equipment with 16 hours to spare before the general trout opening. They declined.

"The real heartbreak of it all was we had about 225 pounds of

Howard's Hit In 10th Lets Yankees Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Elston Howard, just off the disabled list, whipped a pinch hit single in the 10th inning that gave the New York Yankees a 4-3 victory Saturday over the Chicago White Sox and their previously unbeaten reliever, Eddie Fisher.

Howard came to bat with no one out after the Yanks had loaded the bases on a walk to Phil Linz, a double by Bobby Richardson and an intentional walk to Roger Maris.

The star catcher, who underwent surgery for removal of bone chips from his right elbow May 4 and returned to the active list only Friday, then hit his single through the drawn-in White Sox infield.

The White Sox scored twice in the opening inning on singles by Don Buford, Floyd Robinson and Bill Skowron, plus an error in left by Mickey Mantle on Skowron's hit.

After the Yanks went ahead 2-2, Chicago pulled even in the seventh when Buford walked, stole second and ruced in on another single by Robinson.

Hockey Loop Eyes Growth, TV Coverage

MONTEAL (AP) — League expansion, American television exposure, a reserve draft, selection of a new referee-in-chief and new rules for awarding the Vezina Trophy will be taken up by the National Hockey League during its annual meeting opening here Monday.

The sessions, ending Thursday, also will include the annual draft, with prospects of plenty of lively trading promised.

NHL President Clarence Campbell said he doubted that any public announcement would be made about plans for league expansion, but added he will "report to the owners in a confidential submission" and they will formulate some course of action.

"It may well be that the league, under the circumstances, could jeopardize its plans by a premature announcement," Campbell said.

He said 12 applications have been received for new franchises but the new setup would "certainly not come about this year, and more than likely not the next one either."

Jones Powers Braves Past Dodgers 9-1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mack Jones, determined to nail down a permanent job in his fifth trial with Milwaukee, cracked his first grand slam homer Saturday in powering the Braves to a 9-1 victory over the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

Jones' bases-loaded blast came in the first inning off southpaw Johnny Podres and was all Milwaukee right-hander Tony Cloninger needed in hurling the runner-up Braves to within three games of the injured Dodger.

Podres, who had won his first three 1965 decisions in rebounding from arm surgery last year, retired the first two batters but surrendered singles to Hank Aaron and Joe Torre.

With the count 2-and-2 on Gene Oliver he unloaded a wild pitch and then gave an intentional pass to load the bases and bring up Jones.

The muscular outfielder, a bust in previous tests with Milwaukee, promptly hit Podres' first pitch over the right field wall for his eighth homer.

AAU Reaffirms Meet Policy

NEW YORK (AP) — Only athletes qualifying in the Amateur Athletic Union's Outdoor Track and Field Championships will be eligible for International competition, AAU President Clifford Buck reaffirmed Saturday.

This, apparently, rules Texas A&M's Randy Matson, world record holder in the shot put, out of the coming duel with Russia because of the National Collegiate Athletic Association bans on undergrads' competition in AAU meets.

The AAU national championships are scheduled in San Diego June 26-27. The first two American finishers in each event become eligible for the team that will compete in Russia, Poland and West Germany later this summer.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brooks Robinson rapped four hits, including a homer, and drove in four runs Saturday as Baltimore whipped the Los Angeles Angels 7-0 behind Wally Bunker's five-hit pitching.

Robinson, who also collected two singles and a double, capped the Orioles' 13-hit attack with a two-run homer in the ninth inning.

Bob Johnson slugged a bases-empty homer for the Orioles and Sam Bowens had a single and double.

dressed fish that we had to leave behind," Miracle continued.

But it wasn't a total loss. Perrine lost eight pounds during the long hike to civilization. He doesn't recommend it as a reducing aid, though.

With the thing safely behind them now, Miracle can view it objectively.

"I think I'm getting pretty well weaned," he continued. "Two years ago I broke a leg up in there and we had to wait two days while it rained before we could get out. Besides the trip overland is just getting too rough for an old man."

Skaters Veto Scoring Change

VIENNA (AP) — Figure skaters' controversial judging will remain controversial as a result of disagreement at a congress of the International Skating Union Friday.

The figure skating congress of the 22-nation body over proposals to reevaluate skating in championships awarding it the same number of points as compulsory skating.

Under current rules, compulsory skating is valued higher, 60 points to 40 — by the fact that the latter is the eye-catcher in international competitions.

Half of the ISU delegates wanted a new ratio of 50-50; the other half favored the 60-40 ratio.

Fifteen leagues, encompassing 122 professional clubs from the majors through Class A in the minors, will participate in the unprecedented draft.

The New York Mets, 1964 cellar-dwellers in the National League, will have second pick. Thereafter, the rest of the major league clubs will make their selection according to the inverse order of finish.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, JUNE 6—Born today, you have the kind of determination that can be both a boon and a burden. Used wisely, it will enable you to accomplish reasonable goals in the best way and in the shortest possible time; used unwisely, it can cause you to set out upon impossible quests, believing that you will succeed where all others have failed. Make sure, therefore, that you use your determination to save you time, not to waste it in fruitless ventures.

You have a great fondness for children, and one that is reciprocated in full. You also have a tremendous understanding of the mental processes of a child, and for this reason you would make an ideal teacher or guidance counselor. You need only take care that you do not let your affection for any given child stand in the way of your being fair to them all.

Not one to take failure lightly, you are somewhat prone to taking it too seriously. Failure is, of course, a serious matter, but you must take care that you do not allow its occasional occurrence to so color the ensuing days that you are unable to get back to your feet quickly enough to take advantage of the next opportunity. Learn to bounce back!

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Aviation Pioneer, Modern Pilot to Appear in Burley

BURLEY—An aviation pioneer and one of today's pilots will share the limelight at the Bomarc luncheon June 26 on Aerospace Day of Idaho at Burley.

William T. Piper, chairman of the Piper Aircraft Corp., and often called the "Henry Ford of Aviation," will be one featured speaker. The other is Capt. Joe H. Engle, Edwards Air Force base, the pilot who has often flown the experimental X-15 airplane on test flights at the California Test Flight center.

Piper, who did not enter the aviation industry until after he was 50 years old, has been responsible for building more private aircraft than any other person, with more than 62,000 planes built to date.

Widely known for their stability and ease of handling, Piper airplanes have been used by the various service organizations, as well as for business and pleasure, since the first Piper Cub was built 35 years ago.

Born in Bradford, Pa., Piper was graduated from Harvard cum laude in 1903, served with the National Guard in the Spanish-American War and first became engaged in the oil business in Pennsylvania after the war. Except for active duty with the Army Engineers in 1917-18, he had been in the oil business until 1929.

In 1929 C. Gilbert Taylor started producing a two-passenger, 100-horsepower airplane at Bradford with a $50,000 investment from the Chamber of Commerce. Piper was selected to represent the investors.

A reorganization of the original company in 1931 resulted in the present Piper Aircraft Corp. In 1937 a fire razed the Bradford plant. Within three months Mr. Piper built a new factory at Lock Haven.

During World War II Piper delivered 5,673 Piper Cubs to the armed forces between Pearl Harbor and V-J Day. After the war the market for planes was hot, but by 1949

(the market for private and business planes had a role in industry.

In 18 years Piper and his three sons have built Piper Aircraft to its present position. Facilities are located at Lock Haven, Pa., and Vero Beach, Fla.

Piper earned his first flying license at the age of 50, in 1931. In 1954, he qualified for a multi-engine license when he was 73 years old.

In contrast, Capt. Engle first flew the X-15 on Oct. 17, 1963, when he was 20 years younger than Piper was when he first flew a small private plane.

A native of Chapman, Kan., Capt. Engle was graduated from Kansas State University with a degree in aeronautical engineering. After being with Cessna a short time he entered active Air Force duty with the 309th Tactical Fighter Squadron and was chosen for the Experimental Flight Test Pilot Course.

Ten days after graduation Capt. Engle was assigned to his present post where he has flown the X-15 on seven test flights and has completed tests of the YAT-376, a modified jet trainer.

Capt. Engle recently was picked for the joint Air Force-NASA-Navy space-probing research program. Last February he was named by Look Magazine as one of America's 10 outstanding young men of 1965.

Youngsters Find Sale of Worms Complicated by Ingress of Big Business

BY O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Times-News Feature Editor

...speaking, worms entered big business. Before it is all over it might be a spectacle which would look like a gas station in comparison.

...years and years youngsters somewhere between the age of 6 and 18 or so have been picking up a "fast buck" by offering worms to fishermen.

...the offering, of course, was a price, but it was relatively stabilized and the youngsters depended on the steady trade developed by offering those size night crawlers.

...came the so called advertisements. Instead of spending time in the city park or other choice worm locations for picking up the big worms, some got the idea of a worm choice fish bait was thus "cultivated" in a backyard pit.

with the result plenty always were on hand and the night-prowling portion of the business was eliminated.

Adults, believe it or not, usually operated these farms and, as a result, the youngsters started to feel the pinch of competition. It was about this time that the price of the worms started to vary.

Some youngsters, not educated in the laws of supply and demand, thought they could get the business back by offering twice as many of the worms for the same price.

This did increase their business, but there were not enough "worm users" to make them a profit.

Then, too, of late they have run into another situation they do not have the armament to fight. Some stores offer free worms when fishing equipment is purchased.

Right now, competition for the youngsters is developing in another way. At least two service stations in the city sell worms on the side. When a customer stops for gas or oil he can snap up a couple dozen of the long, wiggly things at the same time.

When the worm business first started in this area, the outlets were so few that everyone engaged in selling them made money.

In Twin Falls, one youth, now a Navy jet pilot, sold enough worms to provide practically all the money he needed to get through college.

But he was, in reality, the last of the big worm men in the area. Now it is practically as hard to find a worm vendor as it is to find the fish to which you offer the worm.

A ride around Twin Falls reveals that advertising signs, telling passersby that worms are available, run the gamut from good to bad.

CLEVER SIGN lets passerby know worms are for sale at this house and that they are big and happy, if the smile on the face of the drawing means anything. It also prices the choice fish-getters at 15 cents a dozen which, on today's market, is not a competitive price. Youngsters are finding out they are bucking big business and price slashing in the worm market. This sign is along a street near Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. (Times-News photo)

Unique Steamboat to Ply Snake River Near Buhl

By RONNIE BURNS
Times-News Reporter

BUHL.—"The Idaho Queen," a small stern wheel steamboat owned by Ed Vogel, a Buhl farmer, has started commercial operations on the Snake River.

The cruises, which will be conducted on Sundays, will be held in the beautiful Thousand Springs area, where the scenic countryside with cascading waterfalls will form an appropriate background for the excursions.

The picturesque steamboat is a facsimile of the paddle wheel steamboats that once plied the Mississippi River. It is 30 feet long and eight feet wide. It has seating capacity for eight persons with standing room for at least eight more passengers.

It has a single cylinder steam engine, two smokestacks, two decks, a false pilot house, and is fitted with brass and soprano whistles. The exterior is white and the interior is decorated with attractive wood paneling.

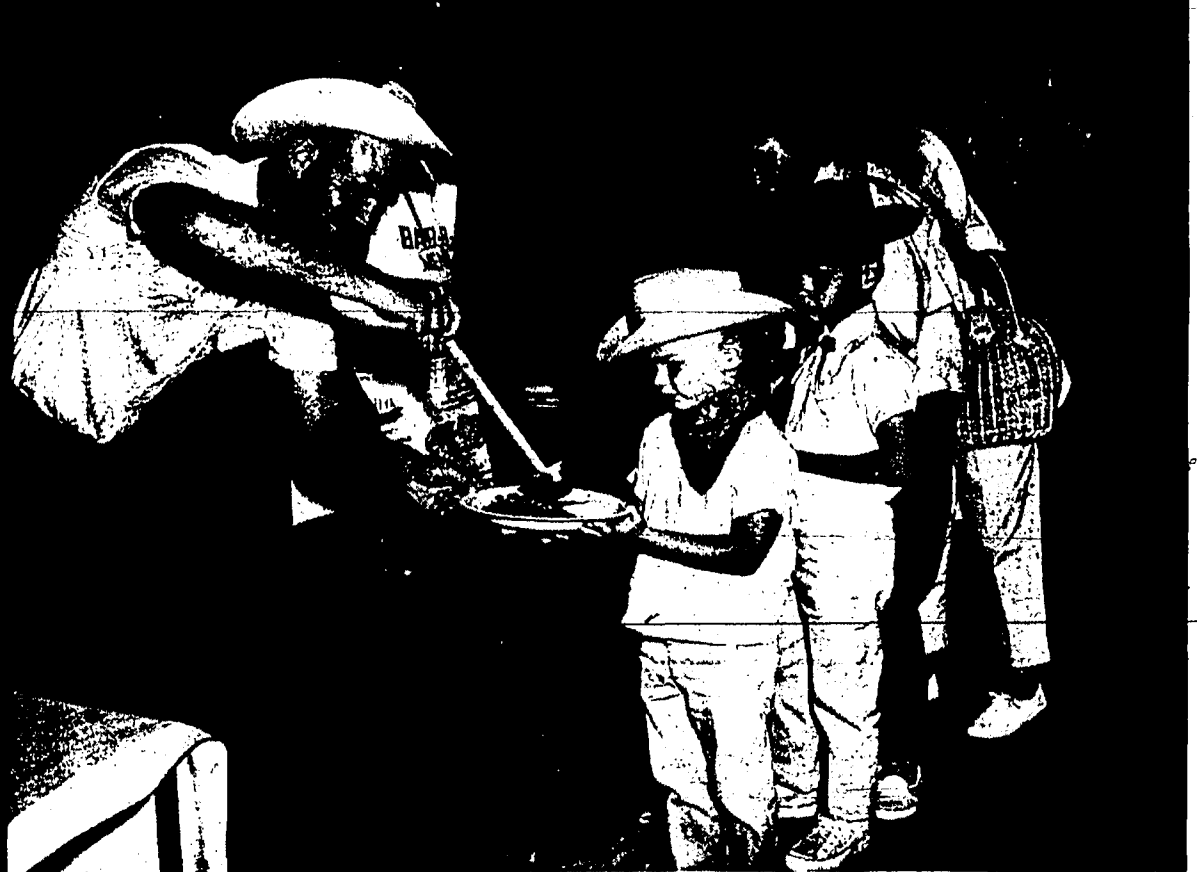

Vogel, who farms 120 acres north of Buhl, never had much interest in boats but is interested in steam. He owns and operates several steam-powered threshing machines on his ranch. His interest in boats was stimulated by his brother-in-law, so a little over a year ago he decided to build one.

Unable to get hold of any kind of plans or specifications for its construction, he finally drew his own plans, studied pictures and finally began construction. Working in the wintertime when farm duties aren't as demanding, he managed to get the boat constructed in about three months. He's had assistance from others, but for the most part did all the work himself. His first trial run was conducted last fall and proved successful.

However, during this past winter, he has improved and

RODEO ARENA at the Minidoka County Fairgrounds is considered the best track in the state, according to Chamber of Commerce officials. In 1946 the area was planted to contract beans and members of the Rupert rodeo used proceeds to build chutes, corrals, fences and bleachers. The grandstand was donated to the rodeo in 1958 and moved to the grounds east of Rupert from Memorial Field with much difficulty. The newly completed race track is patterned after the Pomona, Calif., race track. Pari-mutuel horse racing is slated at the annual July 4 celebration, July 2-5. (Art Craft photo)

Touch of Old West Will Prevail at Rupert Show

BY MARLEY DOUGLAS
Times-News Reporter

RUPERT — Enthusiastic crowds have cheered Rupert's annual rodeo for almost four decades and a touch of the Old West again will invade Minidoka County as preparations get under way for the annual celebration scheduled for July 2-5 at the Minidoka County Fairgrounds.

Plans for the 39th annual celebration include night rodeo, pari-mutuel horse racing, rodeo queen riding contest, a chuck wagon jamboree and parade.

Preparations for this year's rodeo began soon after the 1964 celebration was over and evaluated, according to Floyd Idle, chairman of the rodeo committee of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce.

"A lot of hard work, plus teamwork is required to produce a top-notch rodeo and this cooperation plus top rodeo producers, outstanding specialty acts and world champion cowboys and clowns keep spectators returning each year for the annual celebration.

"Rupert has presented some of the top specialty acts to be secured, and it isn't easy to come up with a top act each year," Idle said.

Rodeo performances held in the early 1920's in Rupert were not produced on the grand scale they are today, according to Idle, who has spent 30 years assisting with the annual celebration.

Wild horses were rounded up from the South Hills and Indians from Fort Hall, complete in colorful dress, camped in town, marched in the parade and presented ceremonial dances.

The rodeo contests were held in the old ball park, presently the site of the Elementary Memorial School and grounds. Make-shift corrals, fences and chutes were constructed and seating capacity was always inadequate for the overflow crowd.

Vern Cohee, an oldtime area cowboy, got together a rodeo in 1927, assisted by S. R. Johnson, Clark Stanley and Lawrence Redford. Seventy-five bucking broncos were rounded up for the celebration as well as bulls for bareback riding.

That year, a wild horse "Dynamite" received recognition as the "buckinest" horse of the bunch, but wasn't around to claim the prize. The horse, ridden by Paul Montgomery, a local boy, bolted when the gun was fired signaling the end of the ride.

The animal raced wildly, circling yards and homes in the vicinity and then plunged into the swift canal north of the grounds.

Paul managed to free himself from the saddle, minus one of his boots, and get to the canal bank. The horse was found drowned the following day a half-mile downstream.

Horseputting contests and horse racing highlighted early day celebrations and farmers and ranchers readied favorite teams and mounts for the event. Milking contests, climbing the greased pole, umbrella and suitcase scrambles, as well as mess wagon races, were popular events of the day.

The George E. Marshall Post of the American Legion sponsored the celebration for many years after 1918. Parades, ball games with the surrounding communities, street sports and fireworks were sponsored.

Families made preparations for days prior to the celebration and spent the entire day in town participating in the activities. After viewing the parade, lunches were shared by families in the shade of the poplar trees in the city park. The poplar trees were the first trees planted on the project after water became available.

The fire department sponsored fireworks at the ball park and street dances usually completed the celebration. Almost

OLD TIMES WERE RECALLED in Declo when Willford Morgan, left, was visited by his sister, Mrs. Maude Bemiss, Grinnell, Kan., and a brother, Frank Morgan, Spokane. It was the first time all three, the only remaining members of a family of five, had been together in 58 years, although the brothers had seen the sister separately through the years. Willford moved to Heyburn in 1917 and his brother worked at Oakley for a short time before settling in Spokane. (Times-News photo)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Many happy memories were recalled when Willford Morgan, 72; his brother, Frank Morgan, 75, and their sister, Mrs. Maude Bemiss, 80, were together for the first time in 58 years. The reunion was held at Willford Morgan's home in DECLEO. The brothers have seen the sister separately through the years, but they had never all been together since Willford left his home in Grinnell, Kan., at the age of 17 and moved to HEYBURN. Two years later Frank Morgan came to OAKLEY and worked for a short time, doing grade and construction work on the ditches from the Oakley Dam. From there he went to Fresno, Calif., for construction work and on to Walla Walla, Wash., where he met his wife and began working for the railroad. He later was transferred to Spokane, and worked 42 years for the railroad before his retirement in 1960. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morgan have one daughter and three granddaughters.

Mrs. Bemiss, however, remained in Grinnell and married Fred Bemiss. They are the parents of nine children and have 25 grandchildren and 25 great-grandchildren. Her husband is deceased.

Through the intervening years Willford Morgan worked at Minidoka Dam, was a ditch rider in Twin Falls County and on the North Side in Minidoka County. He also worked for the Burley Irrigation District and retired from the Reclamation Service Dec. 9, 1960.

He married Dessis Hill of KIMBERLY, Jan. 1, 1914. They came to Declo in 1916 and leased a farm northeast of Declo from the state. When the state sold the land the Morgans bought it and still retain it, having built a new home there after Morgan's retirement.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last year. They are the parents of nine children, eight of whom are living. They include Clinton Morgan, San Jose, Calif.; Myron (Mike) Morgan, Boise; John Morgan, Kimberly; Roy Morgan, Medford, Ore.; Cecil Morgan, TWIN FALLS.

Mrs. Ral (Cleo) Gee, Oakley; Dallas Morgan, Boise, and Mrs. Kenneth (Jean) Carvey, Long View, Wash.; 34 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The two brothers and their sister are the remaining members of a family of five of which Mrs. Bemiss was the only daughter. The children moved with their parents while very young from Iowa to Elmo, Mo., where Frank was born, and later homesteaded at Grinnell, on a farm four miles from the town. Mrs. Bemiss was 10 years old at that time; Willford, 5, and Frank, 2.

Many childhood events and memories were relived during the reunion. Mrs. Bemiss recalled how she used to dress Frank in girl's clothes and how he loved to build fences and pens for his play animals with corn cobs.

One year Willford and Frank raised a large patch of potatoes in their garden and hauled them into town loaded on their little red wagon. They sold the potatoes and bought suits with their money.

Each recalled the pleasant memory of the barrel of free lemonade on the Fourth of July and how their mother bought fireworks for the children with her egg money.

Circumstances and good timing made this reunion possible. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morgan have spent the past five months in Tucson, Ariz., and routed their return to Spokane via Tooele, Utah, to visit with a daughter.

Mrs. Bemiss, in the meantime, had spent the past two months in California visiting a son and daughter and was planning a return trip home to Grinnell. At this point Mrs. Willford Morgan stepped in and with the aid of correspondence made the arrangements for the reunion.

One of the proudest possessions of Mrs. Bobby Jones, FILER, is a 24 by 36 oil painting recently given to her by a friend, Mrs. Dolores Nanninga, Pocatello.

The picture shows Mrs. Jones, the former Karen Bumgardner, rounding a barrel on her horse "Penney." Barrel racing is one of her specialties and she has won a number of ribbons in this event in horse shows.

Mrs. Jones was not present to pose for the picture when it was painted. Instead the composite picture was painted by Mrs. Nanninga from several photographs which she had of the horse and rider and from her own memory. She drew on her imagination to fill in the background and do the coloring.

Mrs. Jones also has an oil painting of their Quarterhorse stallion "Snipper" done by Mrs. Nanninga in 1963. For painting this picture, too, the artist used several pictures of the horse and her memory for reference.

The two women met in 1960 when both were attending Idaho State University. They were in several of the same classes at the university and their mutual love for horses and riding drew them together. They soon became close friends and often rode together and attended horse shows in the area.

The artist's interest has always been in horses and rodeo scenes and she plans to specialize in action pictures. While a high-school student, she did a wall mural of a buffalo and cowboy scene in the art room of the Washington high school in Portland.

Mrs. Nanninga took art courses at the university and has received the Gold Key award of Scholastic Magazine. She has been recipient of several art scholarships and has

Methodist Minister at Paul to Tour Holy Land After 36 Years of Service

PAUL — In 1929, when Rev. Edward White was a 31-year-old Boise businessman, he recognized a religious need in the lives of people. He decided to leave his position as distributor for a major oil company and give his time to the spiritual needs of the people. He retired this month after 36 years service not only to the Methodist church of which he was a minister, but to every community where he resided. The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. White were honored last week at a farewell party at which he was presented a cash gift to enable him to tour the Holy Land, a long time desire of his which he was afraid would remain only a dream.

REV. FLOYD WHITE

Members of his Paul congregation had known of his desire some time, and when the announcement came of his retirement they solicited funds among themselves to help send him on the special tour. The minister, son of a construction worker, was the only member of his family to go into his field. He was born Nov. 30, 1898, at Harrison, Ark.

The family came to Boise when he was 6 years old. During his school he made his home with a local doctor and helped operate a cattle ranch after school hours. He later became a gas distributor. He married Ione Fee, Payson, in 1923.

It was easy for him to meet people and to understand their problems. Much of his spare time was spent helping with the church and since these activities seemed to fall into a definite pattern, he realized he wanted to donate his entire time to the church. He began studying for the ministry and his wife began training for a career in the field of education.

They not only succeeded in reaching their career goals but so they raised six sons, four of whom are now in the ministry. One became a space scientist and the other son is associated with a steel firm in Florida.

The minister's first church was at New Meadows Valley, near McCall. He has served at different churches in Oregon, Indiana and Idaho. The work he has done in the communities where he has labored has been highly commended by many persons. At his departure from the Nyssa, Ore., area, a newspaper, who was not a minister's religion, honored him with an editorial.

The following excerpts from an editorial relate a description which is familiar to his numerous friends:

"For he is without a doubt one of the most approachable ministers that we have ever met. There is nothing in his demeanor that suggests that holier than thou attitude that so many men of the gospel cultivate."

The Rev. and Mrs. White will leave this week for Oregon and during the summer take the Holy Land tour. When they return they plan to visit each church in which he has served, and report on what he saw and learned during the tour.

This fall they will settle in Washington, where he will assist his son with his church and his wife will teach school. She plans to retire in about three more years.

They plan to settle in Oregon after their retirement and the Rev. Mr. White will try the literary field. He plans to base his writings on his many experiences with people. He has served as chairman of the board of trustees for the Idaho Methodist Conference nine years, chairman of the Board of Evangelism five years, and numerous other boards and commissions.

He is a member of the Paul Lions Club, Masonic Lodge (of which he is a 32nd degree Mason), the Golden Cross of the Idaho Conference, American Legion, Minidoka County Ministerial Association and is active in the PTA.

Picnic Tables Set on Lawn At Shoshone

SHOSHONE — Two picnic tables have been set up on slabs of concrete at the Lincoln County Courthouse lawn here.

The concrete was poured by members of the Rotary Club and the tables were made and fastened to the slabs.

Faucets will be provided and trash barrels will be set up, according to Herb Love, chairman of the Rotary Club committee in charge of the project.

Dr. Arthur White reported that Rotary Club signs directing tourists to the city park will be installed by the Jaycees.

At Wednesday's meeting, discussion was held regarding the possibility of appointing a committee to conduct projects in the future.

Visitors were Don Simis, Robert Meyers, Gooding; Arlie White, Twin Falls, and E. D. Adkins, Shoshone.

Rupert Minister To Arrive Soon

RUPERT — Rev. A. M. Thomas, Meridian, recently appointed to the First Methodist Church in Rupert, will arrive here Wednesday.

Rev. Raymond A. Thompson, who has served the local church for the past five years, has been transferred to Whitney Methodist Church, Boise.

The Thompsons were honored at a farewell potluck supper at the Methodist Church Fellowship hall and presented a silver tea set from the members.

Dr. C. H. Lehrman was master of ceremonies for the evening and Claud H. Bowman was soloist.

In charge of arrangements were Mrs. Bynum Williams and Mrs. Claud Bowman and Mrs. Russell Acock was in charge of the kitchen.

Rev. A. E. Gilbert, Middleton, has been appointed to serve the Paul Methodist Church after the retirement of Rev. Floyd White.

no regrets of becoming a minister.

He credits his wife and family for the success in his profession, and holds them in high esteem.

"You could have a million dollars, but what more could you want in life than what I have—a good wife and family? This is worth more to me than a million dollars," he said.

THESE CALIFORNIA BIGHORNS, sometimes called "rimrock" sheep, are part of a band live-trapped in British Columbia nearly two years ago and transplanted to southwestern Idaho's Owyhee mountains. One young lamb and a yearling were among 10 observed recently by Fish and Game Department workers. Reproduction is a good sign that the transplant may be successful and that this start of bighorns will populate other canyons that are suitable. (Fish and Game photo)

Transplanted Bighorn Sheep Show Number Increase in Owyhee Mountains

BY JIM HUMBRID
Idaho Fish-Game Department

BOISE — One yearling and a new-born lamb in a band of ten bighorn sheep hardly is a population explosion.

Nevertheless, it is encouraging news to the Idaho Fish and Game Department, and to future hunters in the Owyhee mountains.

There may be a few more yearlings and lambs this year on Battle Creek, the offspring of 19 California bighorn sheep liberated in southwestern Idaho nearly two years ago after being live-trapped and moved from British Columbia.

Reproduction is a good sign that some of the Owyhee crags and deep canyons are good habitat for bighorns, known as the California subspecies (Ovis montanus californiana) which are available from British Columbia.

There are five species and many subspecies of bighorn sheep. One of these is the desert bighorn found in Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada and Death Valley in southern California and Mexico on desert-type lands.

The California bighorn resembles the desert species and are more adaptable to more arid habitat. Other bighorn species are Dahl, Stone and Rocky Mountain.

Unlike mountain goats, the bighorns shy high peaks and ridges in favor of grassy patches on benches and scatter through the open plains regions, albeit always near protective badlands or rocky buttes, as well as in the high country. Scabies, introduced by domestic sheep in the last half of the 19th century, may have been the principal cause for the sudden initial decline of the bighorns.

Persistent hunting and competition from domestic livestock contributed largely to their dwindling numbers and disappearance in some places during the past 100 years.

Idaho's largest present-day population of bighorns is along the main Salmon and the Middle Fork of the Salmon River, where an estimated 1,000 head winter along the first 60 miles upstream from the main Salmon.

WORMS ARE USED as lure for potential customers as service station operator quotes the more or less established price. This sign indicates worms can be purchased at two dozen for a quarter. A Times-News survey shows that in Twin Falls, at least, the worm market is unstable, with asking prices varying from one extreme to another. One firm even gives them away with fishing equipment purchases. (Times-News photo)

Worm Sales Complicated By Business

One — on the clever side — shows a smiling worm made of wood. The price is painted along the side and when there are no worms available the young merchant puts a sleeve over the worm so the price cannot be read.
Another—not too well thought out—consists merely of a large piece of cardboard nailed to a tree. The worm price, in black, has practically disappeared.
All in all there are probably just as many worms being used today as in the good old days. The only difference is that those now offered have entered the legitimate channels of trade.
Youngsters in the worm business are finding out what is meant by a "leader" in business circles. They suddenly find that worms—like cheap photographs, something for nothing, or gigantic markdown sales—are a means to get people into a business in the hopes that when they get the free—or nearly free—item they will feel they should buy something more.

Steamboat Excursions on Snake River Offered on Sundays by Buhl Farmer

worked out some of the "bugs" in the craft. He transports the boat from his farm to the Thousand Springs area, a 15 mile journey, on a rebuilt Ford truck.
The truck bed has been lengthened to allow Vogel to back into the water and the boat floats free. Getting the craft completed was one thing, but the Buhl farmer was confronted with other problems. Ever try to license a steamboat?
It took Vogel several months to obtain one. He first corresponded with the Coast Guard in Seattle, which after a month and one-half notified him that they had no jurisdiction over the Snake River in this area. They do, however, have authority over some of the river in other parts of the state.
Vogel then worked for a license through the Idaho department of law enforcement and just this week obtained his license from the Twin Falls county assessor's office. His life preserving equipment has been approved by the Coast Guard and his boat boiler has been approved by O. T. Hansen, state mines inspector.
But the youngster does not have this avenue open to him. He is in the worm business and that is all he has to offer. If "big" competition undersells him or gives the product away, there is not much he can do about it.
But his day will surely come. Someday he, too, may be a big merchant who can give worms away for free. When that day comes he will have entered that exclusive realm occupied solely by industrial tycoons—or whatever they are.

Falls, at least, the worm market is unstable, with asking prices varying from one extreme to another. One firm even gives them away with fishing equipment purchases. (Times-News photo)

War field carriage. The cannon itself is mounted on a four-wheel wagon base. He entered this historical attraction in several parades last year, drawn by four horses.
The steam engines are unique and interesting to view as are Vogel's collection of antique cars. He has a 1918 touring Model T Ford, a 1923 Ford model roadster, 1926 Model T Ford and a 1919 Model T truck.
How can Vogel afford such expensive hobbies? The answer is simple—he's a bachelor.

Touch of Old West to Invade Rupert As Annual July 4 Celebration Starts

Continued From Page 19 every youngster had a package of firecrackers and added to the excitement by frightening horses and adults alike.

The first rodeo committee included James Bell, Clark Stanley, Dean Sullivan, Forrest Jones and Charles Masoner, none of whom are living. Art Bagnon and Louis Dickson served as arena directors for the rodeo for many years.

H. H. Judd, still an active member of the rodeo committee, has served continually on celebration activities for almost 40 years.

the rodeo from 1948 until 1958 and then the Chamber of Commerce resumed sponsorship.

A huge covered grandstand was donated to the Rodeo grounds by the county school with seating capacity for 900 spectators. The task of moving the huge structure proved to be difficult but eventually it was deposited at the grounds.

That year spectators enjoyed the luxury of watching performances in a covered grandstand for the price of the grandstand tickets. Present seating capacity at the grounds is 3,500.

Improvement and enlargement of facilities at the rodeo grounds are necessitated each year to compensate for the larger crowds and improved performances.

activities which will include marching bands, riding clubs, floats and children's section. Over 15,000 spectators lined the parade route last year to witness the mile-long parade.

County residents are invited to help pick a theme for the parade and $25 will be awarded for the winning theme.

Street sports are conducted each year by the Rupert Lions club with cash prizes given. Tractor pulling contest and a Kids Rodeo sponsored by the County Wrangler will add to the festivities.

ords the rodeo never has been rained out and although injuries to cowboys are an annual occurrence, there has never been a fatality.

A rodeo was not held in 1943 because of the war effort and the celebration reverted back to the earlier type show with the American Legion again sponsoring activities.

During the annual celebration in 1957 an additional 145 homestead units were drawn, increasing the acreage of new land on the Northside Homestead Project.

Commencing June 21, western wear again will be the order of the day and residents will make preparations to enter into the excitement of another July 4 celebration.

Rodeo receipts were kept in canvas money bags and hid in various places throughout the home of one of the committee members, Idle recalls.

One year, long after receipts had been tabulated, Mrs. Idle, while housecleaning, uncovered one of the bags that had been hidden too well!

The first rodeo performance with professional riders was held in July, 1935. That year 5,000 persons paid admission to the rodeo with crowds turned away because of lack of seating facilities. James Bell served as arena director that year.

The next year the first night rodeo was staged but this practice was discontinued after two years because of the inadequate lighting system.

Ladies Day was an early addition to the rodeo performances with emphasis on inducing the fair sex to attend. However, the majority frowned on the lively sport and were satisfied to visit with friends and assist the youngsters in celebrating.

During World War II servicemen were admitted free and this included a sizeable number as a prisoner of war camp was maintained west of Rupert housing German and Italian prisoners.

The rodeo grounds are now owned by the county with the rodeo renting the area which is known as the Minidoka County Fairgrounds.

Fireworks, a traditional part of the annual celebration, were discontinued until 1951 at which time Rupert firemen again sponsored the display over Lake Walcott.

Fireworks were held at the lake for six years, providing magnificent patterns over the water, and were again discontinued because of the cost.

The rodeo grounds are in excellent shape for this year's annual performance with a new race track patterned after the Pomona track in Los Angeles County, completed last year, and is considered the best in the state, chamber officials say.

The annual Chuck Wagon Jamboree again will launch the activities on June 26, and at that time a rodeo queen will be crowned to reign over the 1960 celebration.

Two attendants will be announced to assist Linda Montgomery, Heyburn, rodeo queen for 1955.

Beauty alone will not qualify a candidate for the rodeo queen title. Judges will take into consideration the applicants' horsemanship as well as the appearance and care of their mounts. The candidates will be judged 25 per cent on a popularity vote conducted at the jamboree.

Eight candidates for the Miss Rodeo crown are taught riding skills and patterns with Mr. and Mrs. Rex Rasmussen heading the committee. Riding competition will be held June 19 at the rodeo grounds.

Rodeo queen candidates competing for the title during the early years of the contest rounded up calves and drove them into corals as part of their competition.

The rodeo will be produced this year by D. A. (Swanny) Kerby, Salt Lake City, with professional cowboys from all over the United States competing for the purse.

Mrs. Lynn Randall and Joan Randall will present a specialty act. Pari-mutuel horse races will be conducted each afternoon from July 2 through 5.

Members of the rodeo committee include Idle, H. H. Judd, Richard Bohle, Don Ballantyne, James (Bud) Felton, John Trevino and Wayne Hollenbeck.

Rodeo secretary, Mrs. Lavonne Colbert, also manager and secretary of the Chamber of Commerce schedules committee meetings, and all the many jobs required in producing a celebration.

The Silver Sage Riders, Cassia County Sheriff's Mounted Posse, Carey Riding Club and Jerome County Mounted Sheriff's Posse will participate each night of the celebration.

Crowds cheered when the Silver Sage Riders, Peacatello, a woman's riding club, presented their famous "bathtub relay" two years ago.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

EVERGREEN TROUBLES: I'm getting a lot of questions about evergreens. Some of the winter damage is now showing up in the form of dry needles and leaves. I'll mention some types of injury and try to explain causes.

(1) Overall browning. This usually means death from winter drying. If you touch the leaves anywhere on the plant and they shed, it's dead. Remove and replace with a new one this fall. Evergreens planted last year and which have died out are conspicuously brown now — all over. Sometimes it takes this long for the effects of winter to show up.

(2) Browning on one side. This is due to prevailing winds hitting on one side with a blast of salt and spray. Sometimes it will brown one side without salt in the spray from the road. Take a pair of shears and trim out the deadened foliage, and new ones will appear.

(3) Brown twigs here and there. Can be due to broken limbs as a result of snow or ice, or animal injury. Cut out close to trunk.

(4) Brown tips. This is usually due to winterkilling of young growth which came on in late summer or early fall of last year. Shear these off, so new growth will come on.

MAGNOLIA CUTTINGS: Recently I said it was difficult to start a magnolia from cuttings. Several readers wrote to tell me it is quite possible to do it. They take cuttings four or five inches long, put them under glass jars in a shady spot in the garden. The soil is kept constantly moistened, without removing the glass jar. It takes almost a year for the cuttings to root.

Another way to start magnolias is from the seed berries or seeds found in the fall. Remove the fleshy covering by soaking the cluster in warm water. Plant seeds 1/4 inch deep in a sand-peat mixture in a coldframe and leave it outdoors for winter. Seeds will germinate in spring and seedlings can be grown in the pots.

RASPBERRIES: What can be done to prevent raspberries from producing crumbly fruit? I'll list some of the causes so you can apply your own control measures.

Dry weather, partial winter killing or fruiting cane and mosaic are main killers.

Canes weakened by winter checks water uptake and the fruit is affected.

Mosaic disease weakens the plants so they produce poor berries.

Also, the tarnished plant bug may cause some crumbling of the fruit.

It's a bit late to spray now, but next year keep the job in mind and do it just before the raspberries begin to bloom. Use Sevin or methoxychlor.

AZALEAS: A reader writes: "I received a nice Azalea plant for Easter. The flowers were completely wilted (I forgot to water it) and I sprayed the entire plant with warm water, then covered it with a plastic bag. It came back to life as pretty as ever. Without syringing or covering of plastic, I'm sure the plant would have died."

Green Thumb note: Azaleas are apt to die if allowed to go completely dry. Leaves turn brown and drop off and the plant may not recover. Have you seen a copy of my brand new bulletin, HOW TO GROW AZALEAS AND RHODODENDRONS? It's full of good tips on growing indoor and outdoor azaleas, plus rhododendrons. Just send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for yours.

And while you're at it tell me how you like our Green Thumb Service. Your tips and comments are always welcome.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: C. D. of Rupert: "I heard there is a disease-proof rose which doesn't get blackspot. Please tell me which color it is and something about the care. I'm ready to give up on roses. They take so much care."

No rose is disease-proof. Some varieties are more prone to get diseases than others. They all need a regular spraying schedule, and the secret is to fight the diseases before they come on, not wait until infection sets in.

The Floribunda types are as about a foolproof a rose as you can grow (with the possible exception of the old-fashioned types). Floribundas grow about three feet tall and flowers are borne in clusters.

They're especially nice for borders, hedges and on banks, and nearly all of them bloom continuously. One of the favorites of them all is Betty Prior, a striking two-tone pink and white, growing four feet high.

R. N. of Tuttle: "Our Wax plant is five years old and we've had only one bloom on it. Someone said it likes tea leaves and aspirin for bud formation. Do you think this is true?"

These have nothing to do with flowering of the Hoya or Wax plant. The tea leaves merely make a good soil conditioner and can be used as such. What the Hoya or Parlor Plant likes is full sun (won't bloom in shade) and good drainage.

During the summer it likes plenty of moisture. In the winter, it should be grown on the dry side. This item is naturally slow to flower. Some won't bloom until six or seven years of age.

If yours won't bloom, even in full sun, then I'd let the plant become potbound and see if this won't force it into flower. You can start new plants in summer by cutting out tips and rooting them in moist sand. Be on the lookout for red spider mites and scale. A spray of malathion regularly will check these.

V. B. of Gooding: "I'm enclosing a twig from a dogwood, a stem from a tomato and pepper plant and some rose twigs. They've been slashed by something as sharp as a knife. I know it's not children because even bushes near my kitchen door have been slashed. I would have seen them. It's puzzling. What would slash my plants? I know it's not a person."

It's rabbits and they do the job at night when you can't see them. They always make a smooth cut on a slant, as though one did it with a jackknife. So it's a jack-rabbit and not a jack knife which is slashing your plants.

We use humane box traps which catch the bunnies. Then we release them in the woods. Rabbit repellents include blood-meal, lime, mothballs, a good dog, and sometimes it's practical to put up a wire fence. They're especially fond of tulips, hyacinths and all types of vegetables.

TWIN FALLS

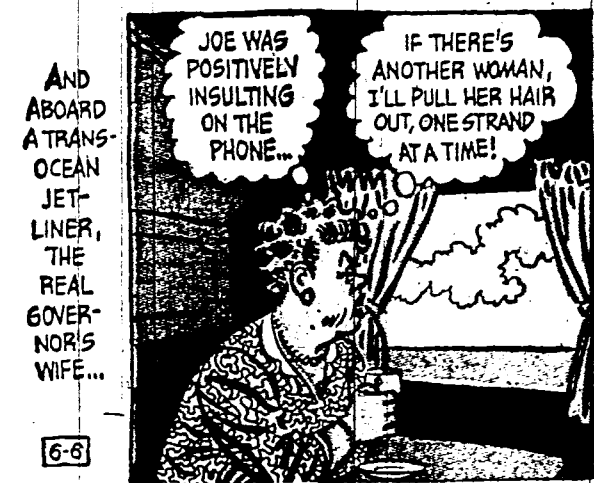

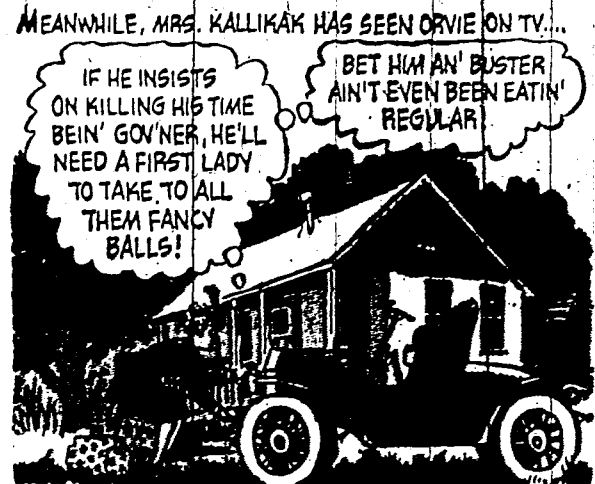

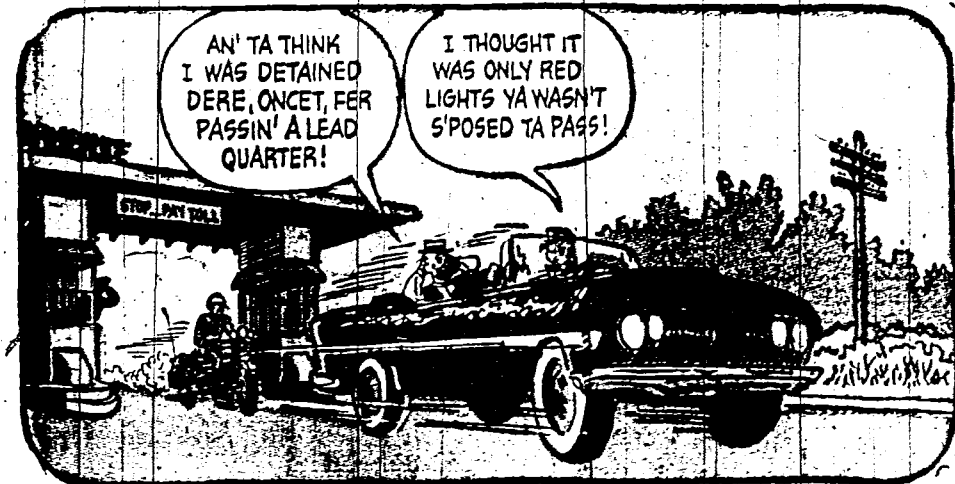

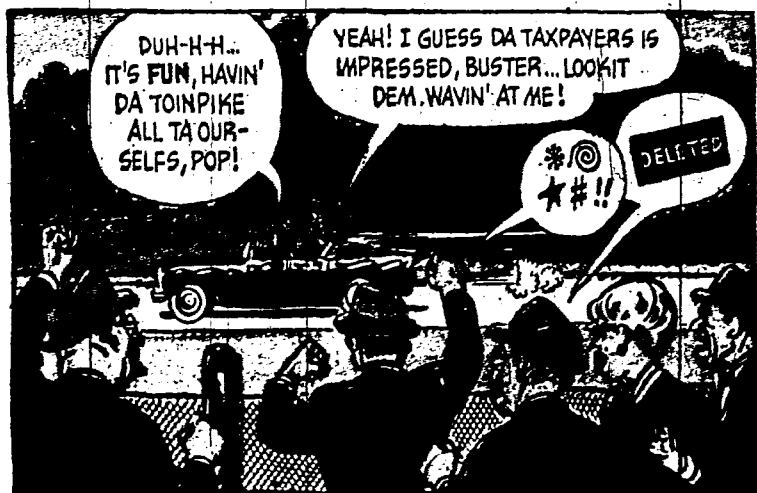

SUNDAY, JUNE 6, 1965

Captain EASY

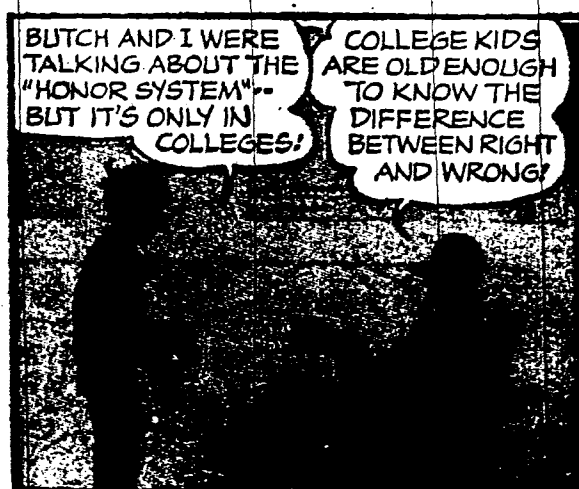

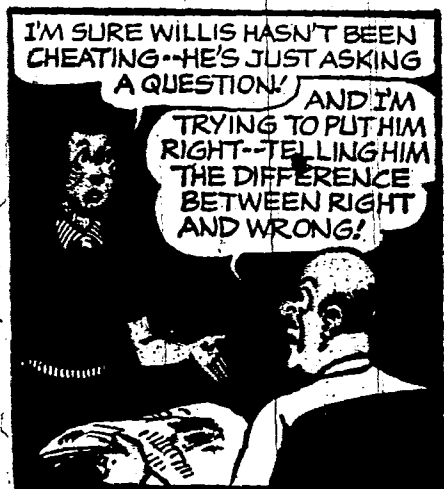

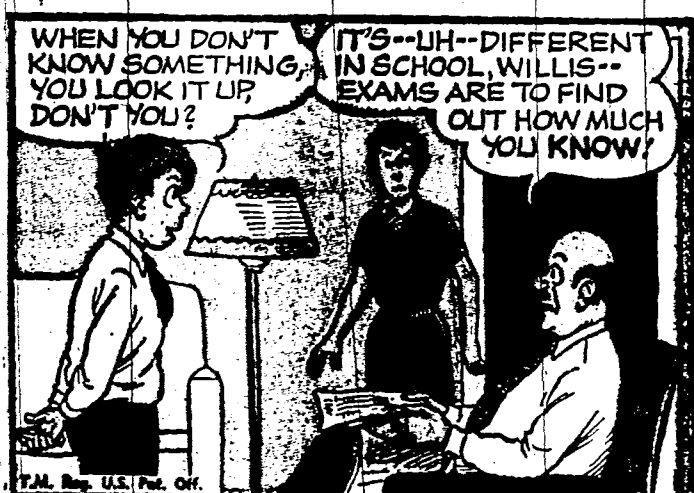

by LESLIE FRANK

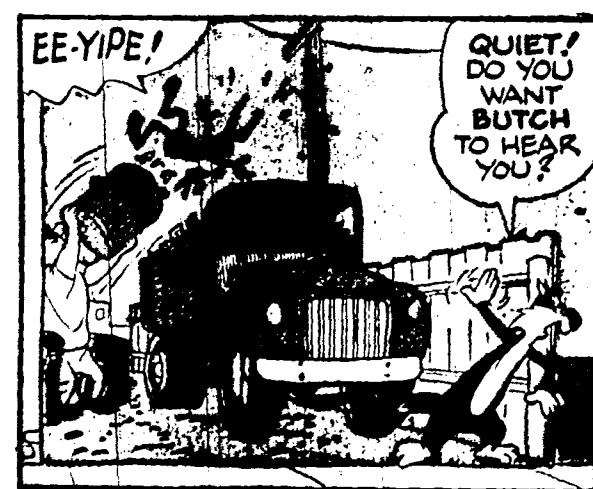

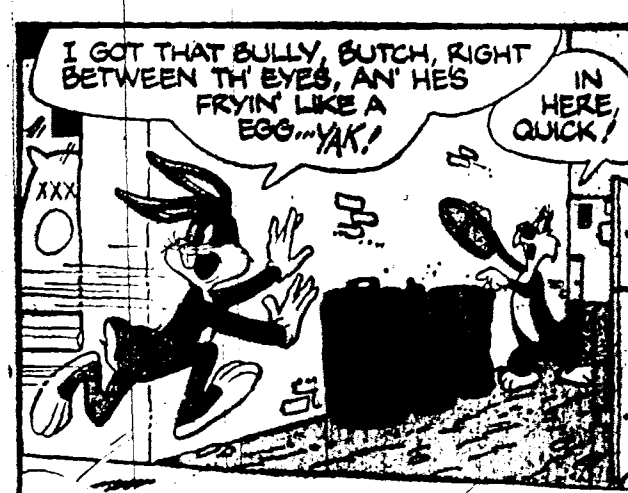

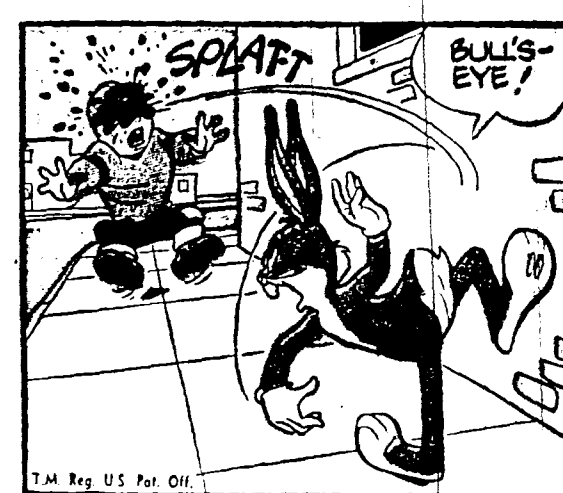

POSING AS THE GOVERNOR, ORVILLE KALLIKAK HAS CLOSED THE STATE TOLL ROAD FOR THE DAY...

OUT OF OUR WAY
WITH The Willets NEG & COCHRAN

BUGS BUNNY

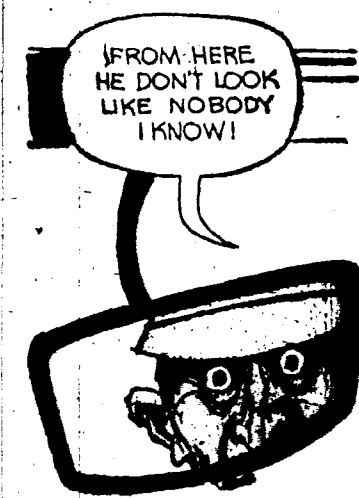

FLINT

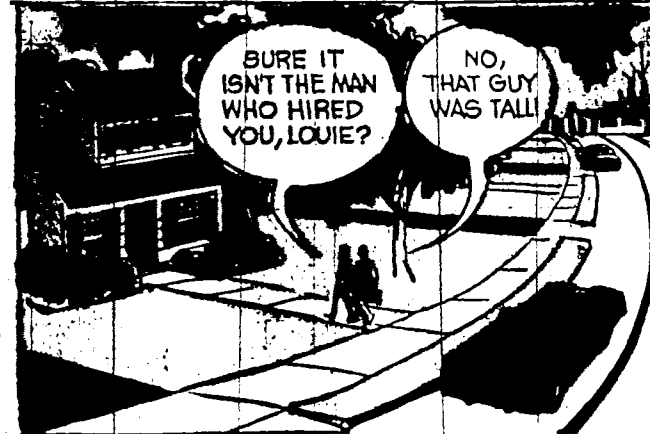

THE TAIL'S STILL ON US, VIC!

LET HIM FOLLOW, IT'S A FREE COUNTRY. BESIDES, I DON'T THINK HE CAN HURT US.

FROM HERE HE DON'T LOOK LIKE NOBODY I KNOW!

When we reached our destination, the car following us parked down the street.

SURE IT ISN'T THE MAN WHO HIRED YOU, LOUIE?

NO, THAT GUY WAS TALL!

BESIDES, IF MY CLIENT DIDN'T TRUST ME, HE SHOULDA HIRED SOMEBODY ELSE!

A blonde who would have stopped Memorial Day traffic on the Indianapolis speedway opened the door.

YES!

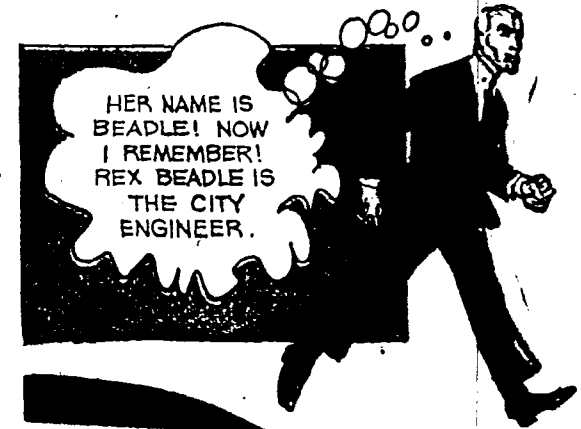

UH...AWK... UMMM... BEG PARDON, MA'AM, I WAS SUPPOSED TO DELIVER THIS TO MR. BEADLE--

MR. BEADLE ISN'T IN, BUT I'M MARTHA BEADLE, HIS WIFE!

MY FRIEND WOULD LIKE A RECEIPT, MRS. BEADLE!

While Louie the Letterbox waited for the receipt, I decided to check on our shadow.

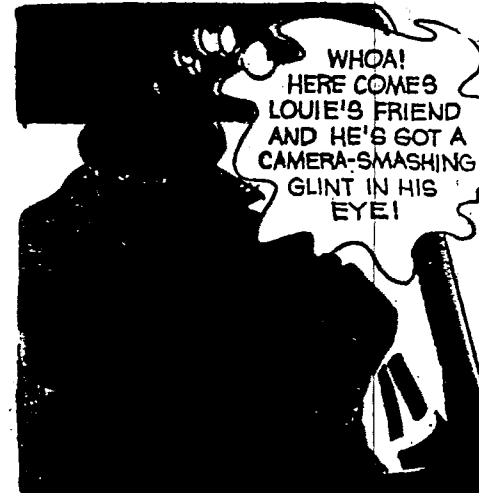

HER NAME IS BEADLE! NOW I REMEMBER! REX BEADLE IS THE CITY ENGINEER.

The man in the other car was taking pictures...

THAT WAS AS GOOD A SHOT OF A PAYOFF AS I'VE EVER SEEN!

WHOA! HERE COMES LOUIE'S FRIEND AND HE'S GOT A CAMERA-SMASHING GLINT IN HIS EYE!

BY VIT HAMLIN

BAH, I SAY, BANANAS I HATE! WORST DANG FOOD I EVER ATE!

YEH, AN' I NOTICE Y'DIDNT SEEM TO CARE MUCH FOR THAT HUNK OF MEAT YOU SPEARED BACK THERE EITHER!

*NOT AUTHORS OPINION... HE LIKES BANANAS.

WELL, HOW TH' HECK WAS I T'KNOW, MY SPEAR'D BUST LIKE A SON'SO?

IF Y'DONT LIKE BANANAS AN' MEAT'S UNHEALTHY, YOU'LL JUST HAFTA EAT FISH LIKE I SAID IN TH' BEGINNING!

FISH, Y SAY? WHAT FISH I PRAY?

THOSE I'M GONNA KETCH RIGHT HERE IN THIS LITTLE POND...

...LOOK! SEE? I GOT A BITE ALREADY!

THAT ITTY BITTY WIGGLE? YCALL THAT THING A BITE?

WELL ALL I GOTTA SAY, YOUR FISH IS PRETTY SLIGHT!

AW, WHAT TH' HECK, I'M ONLY TRYIN' TO KETCH SOME LITTLE OL' EATIN' FISH!

LITTLE IS RIGHT IF WHAT I SAW, FISH THAT SIZE SHOULD BE AGIN TH' LAW!

IT MAY BE SMALL, ALL RIGHT BUT IT SEEMS T'BE PRETTY HEAVY!

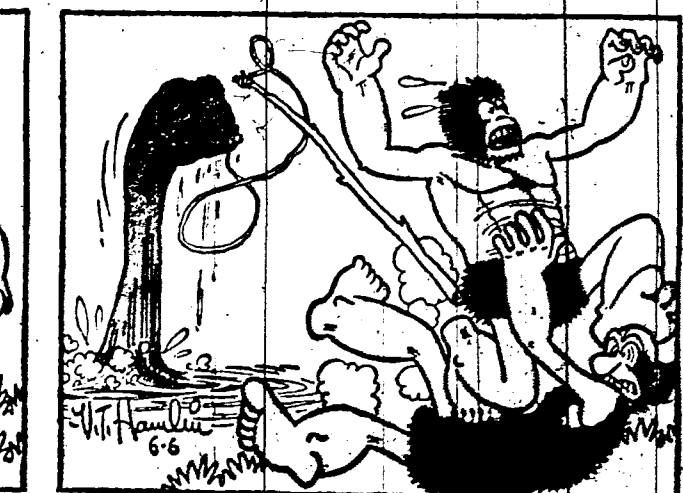

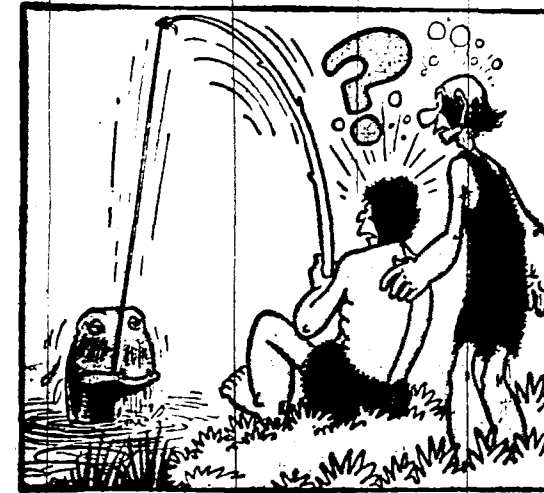

D'YA SUPPOSE I'M SNAGGED OR SUMPIN'?

WELL, YOU'LL NEVER FIND OUT I'M SURE THAT WAY! GIVE IT A YANK, REAL GOOD, I SAY!

WELL, OKAY... YEH... HERE GOES!

MORTY MEENLE

BY DICK CAVALLI

HOW STRANGE-- IT'S MORNING HERE IN HINSDALE, AND IN SOME OTHER PART OF THE WORLD IT'S NIGHT TIME.

I'VE JUST HAD MY BREAKFAST, AND SOMEWHERE ELSE...

SOME OTHER DOG HAS JUST HAD HIS SLIPPER.

THE WORLD IS AN AMAZING PLACE, WHEN YOU CONSIDER THAT IT ALL STARTED FROM NOTHING.

SOMEBODY UP THERE MADE THE SKY, AND PUT STARS IN IT.

AND HE MADE THE EARTH, AND THE TREES, AND FLOWERS, AND ALL.

AND HE INVENTED PEOPLE... MEN, AND WOMEN, AND LITTLE KIDS.

AND HE INVENTED ALL THE DIFFERENT ANIMALS-- DOGS, CATS, MONKEYS, GIRAFFES...

HELLO, STUPID! IS THAT YOUR FACE, OR DID YOU FORGET TO TAKE OFF YOUR HALLOWEEN MASK?

THEN HE HAD TO GO AND LOUSE EVERYTHING UP BY INVENTING THE PARROT.

FRECKLES and his FRIENDS

MERRILL BLOSSER

OKAY COACH, I'LL DO ANYTHING TO HELP THE TEAM!

WELL, SHADYSIDE HIGH DOES NEED A COUPLE OF GOOD PITCHERS...

AND I THINK RUNNING OUR TEAM LIKE A MAJOR LEAGUE TEAM IS SMART!

I HEARD HIM MAKE THE DEAL ON THE PHONE...

SASH!

BUT IT'S STILL HARD TO BELIEVE...

I'VE BEEN TRADED!

I THOUGHT YOU SAID CLYDE STRIME WAS RICH!

HE IS!

YEAH? WELL, HIS OLD COASTER IS NO BETTER THAN OURS!

FROM THE OUTSIDE, YES... UNTIL HIS PARENTS WANT TO SPEAK TO HIM!

LITTLE PEOPLE

There he sits! And sits!

I wonder why?

Wonder why, what?

Why you just sit there!

Woodchucks always sit by their holes!

My father did and my grandfather and his father before him-- why did they do it?

Why-why-why! Why is it somebody always wants to change things? Wonder what got him so riled up!

I'd like some beets, please!

Gotta watch this old gal-- she's real tricky!

Hm, on second thought, I think I'll exchange the beets for the corn-- same price, I see!

Hey! Come back and pay for that corn! But I exchanged the beets for it!

Who's got beets?
