

Agency Files to Abolish Poll Tax In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Justice Department, acting swiftly under President Johnson's orders, filed a federal court suit Saturday to wipe out Mississippi's poll tax. Under the law, state voters must pay $2 a year to cast ballots in state elections. Federal elections were made exempt from poll tax in a recent constitutional amendment. "We are confident the poll-tax requirements will be struck down as unconstitutional," said Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, in Washington. Poll taxes have long been criticized as having been imposed to discourage voting by Negroes—and poor whites.

MacArthur II Gives Hope On Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asst. Secretary of State Douglas MacArthur II says that once the Communists understand they cannot win by force in Viet Nam there is hope they eventually "will come to the peace table."

The problem now, MacArthur told Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., on a program taped for use in Colorado, is that the Reds show "no willingness whatsoever to seek a peaceful solution" because they believe "they are going to win by force."

"If we give up and abandon and let Viet Nam be taken over by the aggressors, the rest of Southeast Asia will go," MacArthur declared. "The great subcontinent of India, which has over 600 million of the world's free population, will be mortally threatened on its flanks."

President Keeps Phone Wires Busy

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — The nation's best telephone customer, trying to talk in the seclusion of Camp David, nevertheless gave a bit more business Saturday to the Bell System.

While the weekend was supposedly given over to relaxation, President Johnson hit the phone repeatedly to keep in touch with the nation's business. He had a long talk with Arthur J. Goldberg, the new U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, on pending business before the world organization.

Rainstorms Hit Central Part of U.S.

By the Associated Press
Severe thunderstorms which hit wide areas in the central part of the nation during the night diminished today, with generally dry weather in most areas.

Heavy rain, hail and gusty winds lashed areas in Oklahoma, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Nebraska, Ohio and Missouri. The rain belt extended from the Plains to Pennsylvania, with light rain in scattered sections of the southeast.

Seven persons, including four young girls and three women, were killed Friday night in a two-car head-on collision during heavy rainstorm near Purcell, Okla. Winds up to 80 m.p.h. swept Oklahoma City in a thunderstorm. A tornado which hit 10 miles east of Lawton picked up a car containing a mother and her two small children and tossed it to the ground across a highway. They were not seriously hurt.

Thunderstorms crossed central and eastern Missouri, with hail and strong winds in many cities. Winds of 72 m.p.h. whipped across southwestern suburbs of Chicago in heavy rainstorm.

Cool air spread into sections of the Plains but warm weather prevailed most of the eastern part of the nation. Pleasant weather prevailed along the Pacific Coast but it was warm in most interior sections.

HAZELTON — A 32-year-old Hazelton man will appear Monday before Jerome County Justice of the Peace, Mrs. Wes E. Edson, on charges of assault with a deadly weapon stemming from a Friday night stabbing incident.

Charges were filed against Aurelio Maldonado, 32, after he allegedly stabbed Felix Uribe, 30, Hazelton, during an argument in the Sportsman's Club.

Uribe was listed in good condition Saturday at St. Benedict's Hospital, Jerome. Bond of $1,000 has been set for Maldonado but it was not posted and he is held in Jerome County Jail.

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County Fair ended Saturday night with a Riding Club Jamboree with eight riding clubs participating. Attendance at the two-day fair was reported very good by fair officials. Highlighting Saturday's activities was the award assembly Saturday afternoon where 4-H and FFA members received trophies and other awards for outstanding work. Outstanding achievement winner for boys was Glenn Nelson who received a wrist watch from First Security Foundation. Kathy Ross was chosen as outstanding achievement winner for girls and was awarded a transistor radio from Shoshone Florist.

Filer Woman Is Crowned Mrs. Idaho

POCATELLO (UPI) — Mrs. Roger (Margaret) Vincent, 35, Filer, was crowned "Mrs. Idaho" Saturday night to represent the Gem State in the "Mrs. America" contest later this month.

Mrs. Vincent, the mother of six children, is a pianist and wife of a dairy farmer. She attended the University of Idaho and has lived in the state for 28 years.

First runnerup was Mrs. Wayne (Dolores) Crow, 34, Nampan, mother of four. Second runnerup went to Mrs. Calvin J. McBride, 34, Idaho Falls, also mother of four.

Ten Idaho women were judged outstanding to compete in the statewide contest. Saturday they met at the Bannock Hotel and cooked, sewed, ironed, gave parties, arranged flowers and talked about family life.

The judges were Mrs. R. C. Littlejohn, home economics teacher at Highland High School; Perry A. Nelson, president of the Idaho Chamber of Commerce; and J. Grant Bickmore, Pocatello banker and president of the Rotary Club.

The "Mrs. America" contest is scheduled for Aug. 20-28 at San Diego.

Quirks of Fate Recalled by Airmen On 20th Anniversary of Atomic Bomb

NEW YORK (AP) — A pilot and a bombardier told the strange tale Saturday of how first good weather, then bad, spared the Japanese city of Kokura and put Nagasaki—a city chosen by tears—beneath their atomic bomb 20 years ago.

Brig. Gen. Charles W. Sweeney, 45, of Milton, Mass., and Lt. Col. Kermit Beahan of Houston, Tex., recalled the quirks of fate at the reunion here of the 393rd Bomb Squadron. This was an elite squadron of 15 B29 Superfortresses specially chosen and secretly trained to drop the A-bomb.

Vietnamese, U.S. Warplanes Rebuff Viet Cong Attack

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Viet Cong opened up with mortar barrages on government positions north and south of Saigon Saturday. U.S. and Vietnamese warplanes in retaliatory strikes killed about 200 guerrillas, by count of forward air controllers. In new air raids on North Viet Nam, a Navy A1 Skyraider was hit by ground fire and plunged to earth. A U.S. spokesman said the pilot was presumed killed.

Elsewhere on the ground, a Vietnamese unit reported it had uncovered a major Viet Cong medical facility, an ammunition factory and a supply depot in the jungles—35 miles southwest of Saigon.

The mortar attacks south of Saigon hit government outposts in the Mekong delta 100 to 125 miles from the capital. Vietnamese casualties were reported light in some attacks but there were no reports on others.

North of the capital, the Viet Cong hammered a Special Forces camp at Duc Co, five miles from the Cambodian border, with mortar fire. A press dispatch said scores of wounded were removed by helicopter.

The camp is surrounded by the Viet Cong and Vietnamese paratroopers were sent to its relief. They were unable to break out of the encirclement, however. The camp, about 215 miles north of Saigon, is about 40 miles southwest of the government stronghold at Pleiku.

The Navy Skyraider was lost during a raid on the Dong Hol barracks area 40 miles north of the border. A military spokesman said the plane was taking part in the See VIET NAM, Pg. 2, Col. 1

No Beatles Report Given On Besieged Outpost Camp

VIENNA (UPI) — The Beatles will not be welcomed in Vienna, it was disclosed Saturday. Planned concerts Oct. 24-26 for the pop singers were cancelled for lack of interest and poor ticket sales.

The local sponsor of the concerts, the Jeunesse Musicale, had hoped to earn enough money from the concerts to sponsor classical programs.

Search Made For T.F. Boy Near Boise

BOISE (AP) — Officials from two counties were searching for a Twin Falls boy missing late Friday to late Saturday afternoon. Casualties to the paratroopers were high. Their plight was made worse because of difficulties moving them to hospitals.

Among the casualties were Montagnard strike forces that normally protect the camp, and regional forces from the province capital of Pleiku, 40 miles northeast.

An emergency helicopter airlift of wounded was made late Saturday. Scores were carried or hobbled to the helicopters.

Duc Co, a heavily-bunkered camp built by American Special Forces in 1962, has 12 Americans living here now. They have been here throughout the siege.

Youth Wounded In Gun Accident

HAZELTON — A 16-year-old Hazelton youth was listed in good condition Saturday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where he was taken after accidentally being shot with a .22 caliber rifle.

Rick Crumrine, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crumrine, Hazelton, was taken to the hospital after the single-shot rifle discharged while his younger brother, Terry, was taking it from a shelf to clean.

The older boy was shot in the right arm. A hospital attendant said the youth had a compound fracture.

No Charges Filed in Death of T.F. Boy

No charges will be filed in the death of Kenneth Greene, 21-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Greene, 741 Washington St. N., who died about 8:25 p.m. Friday in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital of injuries received when he was run over in a private driveway about 5:30 p.m. Friday, according to Sheriff James H. Benham. A pickup truck driven by his father backed over him in a driveway at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hall, one-fourth mile north of Twin Falls on Washington Street North.

The Greene family was visiting at the Hall residence when Greene, unaware that this son was playing in the driveway, began backing his pickup truck and struck the boy. He was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by his parents.

Congress May Finish Work By Sept. 15

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said Saturday he believes Congress can complete its work and adjourn by Sept. 15 at the latest.

Humphrey technically is only a bystander to the legislative process as presiding officer of the Senate. But he keeps in close touch with the progress of major legislation as President Johnson's eyes and ears on Capitol Hill.

The Humphrey prediction that Congress will be around for another five weeks or more indicated that Johnson expects the legislators to act on nearly all the programs he has recommended before they go home.

The toughest assignment that lies ahead of administration leaders will be to get a controversial farm program through the two houses. This may be more time-consuming than efforts to iron out Senate-House differences over the foreign aid program which remain unresolved after 12 conference committee sessions.

As the drive for adjournment turns the corner, four Johnson proposals are in trouble. They include revision of the immigration laws, a highway beautification program, standardization of unemployment compensation benefits and repeal of the provision of the Taft-Hartley Act that allows states to ban union shop contracts.

But even if some of these fall by the wayside and have to be put over until 1966, Johnson will have written a record of congressional accomplishment unequalled by any modern president.

Hailey Boy's Condition Is 'Very Serious'

HAILEY — A 17-year-old Hailey youth was reported in "very serious" condition Saturday night at Sun Valley Hospital with injuries he received Thursday when a landing airplane struck the tractor-mower he was driving.

Kenneth Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Peterson, has undergone surgery which required 16 pints of blood some of which was donated by Hailey residents who are members of the recently organized "Walking Blood Bank."

Young Peterson was mowing weeds bordering on the grass along the Hailey Airport runway when the tractor he was riding was struck by a landing airplane piloted and owned by Mervin Wangenheim, Hillsborough, Calif.

The youth was dragged under the mower for about 300 feet. Although Wangenheim's airplane was termed a total loss, he nor his 10-year-old son were injured in the accident.

U.S. Rejects Appeal to Halt Bombs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has rejected Kwame Nkrumah's appeal for a halt in the bombing of North Viet Nam, but promised vigorous support for any peace prospect that might arise from the Ghana president's proposed trip to Hanoi.

Presidential Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers reported that Saturday in reply to a special message from the African leader, who is considering a peace-seeking trip to the North Vietnamese capital.

Moyers said: "If President Nkrumah visits Hanoi and arrives at an arrangement which would open the way to peace, he, President Johnson, would of course be prepared to add his full weight to initiatives arising out of the visit."

Moyers announced also that Johnson will brief all members of Congress on the Viet Nam situation next week.

The President and his top advisers will meet with one-half of the senators Monday morning, the other half Monday evening. House members will come to the executive mansion later in the week.

This is the third such round of congressional briefings in recent months.

Nkrumah has been critical of U. S. actions in Viet Nam but has been contemplating a go-between role in the so-far unsuccessful effort to get peace negotiations started.

Friday, his foreign minister, Alex Quaison-Sackey, brought a Nkrumah message to Johnson following the Ghanaian president's receipt of a letter from North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

Korea Okays Sending Men to Viet Nam

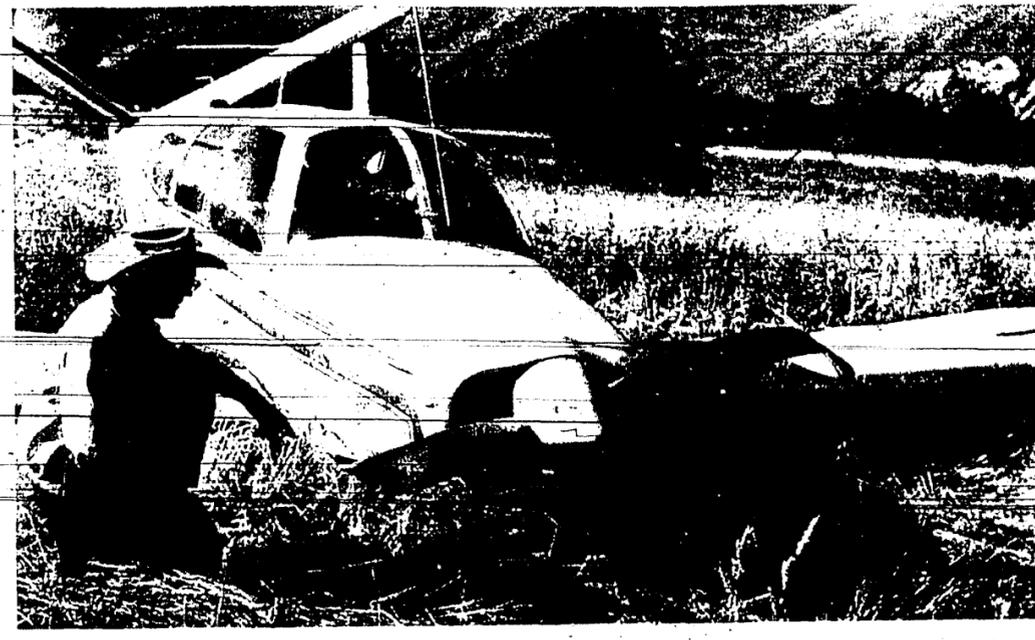

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A plan to send a combat division of about 15,000 men to South Viet Nam was approved today by the defense committee of the South Korean National Assembly for final action next week. Park Chung-hee, of the majority party, criticized the plan, saying South Korea would "gain and lose more by taking part in a war in which there will be no victory."

Women Start Operation to Keep Peace

BOGALUSA, La. (AP)—Bogalusa women have launched a "waterdog" operation to help prevent lawlessness. More than 200 women have joined together to patrol the area in their own cars. The Bogalusa police force is under federal court orders to provide 24-hour-a-day protection for everyone who is not a civil rights worker without adequate police protection. Dorothy McNeese, one of the leaders of the operation, said the police are spread so thin they can't stop incidents which could normally be prevented. Mrs. McNeese, who lives at 1417 N. Main, said "several times I've asked them what they could do about the present situation, and they've said they developed the idea of the volunteer women sleuths to plan to make any arrests, and Mrs. McNeese. "The ladies have been instructed to get the name number and description of any person involved in any incident and report it to the police immediately," she said. "We have elected captains and they will deploy their volunteers to shopping centers, laundromats and supermarkets. They'll patrol mostly in the afternoon but Mrs. McNeese says they also plan some night operations, particularly on Thursdays when stores stay open late. She said the women won't be armed but they are being taught in self-defense. She didn't explain further. The Civic and Voters League, headed by the civil rights movement here, planned another march today on City Hall. Some 200 paraded through a rain Friday.

Water Meet Leaves No Doubt About Threat of Southwest

BOISE (AP)—There could be no doubt after two Western water meetings during the past week that the thirsty southwest is after part of the northwest's abundant water supply. But it was equally clear that southwest officials know the northwest will not be willing to give up the water until they have some assurances they will be drained. The two points dominated the Western Governors' Water Conference at Lake Tahoe Tuesday and the second annual Western Interstate Water Conference at Medford, Ore., Thursday and Friday. Idaho's Robert E. Smylie, governor of one of the four states the Southwest would like to tap, took the two meetings as a threat. "This emphasizes the fact that we have to put our guard up," he said, "and put our water to use as fast as we can." Water-sharing proposals from the Southwest in the past have frightened northerners. A Los Angeles proposal in 1953 for diversion of Idaho water was partly responsible for creation of Idaho's new Water Resources Agency to prevent such diversion. This week the Southwest officials emphasized from the outset that Northwest needs must be considered in any water-sharing plan. Nevada Gov. Grant Sawyer said at the Lake Tahoe meeting that he said water-poor states in the past had made operation proposals "without proper consideration to the political and public relation factors involved throughout the West. Justifiably," he said, "those living in areas of abundant water supplies look with a just upon any plan of any outsider to take the waters away from their areas." Taking up Sawyer's idea, another Nevada official suggested at Corvallis that vast Western water developments be planned so the Northwest would benefit as much as the Southwest. But so far, said Ivan Heald, administrator of Nevada's Colorado River Commission, the Southwest has not proved the Northwest has a water surplus to share. The Southwest's water needs are clear. Southern California alone has more people than Idaho, Washington and Oregon combined—and limited water resources. But most of the Northwest speakers suggested their future needs, not obvious at present, may be as great. Smylie holds that Idaho's new water resources agency should consider all legitimate water needs, now and in the future, before the state can talk about exporting any of it. Oregon Gov. Mark O. Hatfield has agreed Oregon's Columbia River may yield a surplus—but reserves commitment until a five-year study on future needs is completed. One of Idaho's representatives at both water conferences last week was George L. Crookham, chairman of the board of Caldwell, chairman of the new water resources board. He said the meetings point up the urgency of water programming to meet the population boom throughout the West. But he said the problem is not all one of transporting water from place to another. He said that California, for example, rather than import water to raise more produce might instead import more produce from Northwestern states that already have the water. The same kind of thinking also brings industry and future population distribution, even redistribution, into the water programming, he said. Nevada's Sawyer and several other speakers at the two meetings warned that the West's water problems likely will be solved at the federal level if Westerners cannot solve them. And Lloyd E. Dornay, commissioner of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, gave an indication of what the federal view could be. "No river basin of origin," he said, "can reasonably expect to suppose diversion of water for which it cannot conceivably have any use."

Obstacles Overcome by Monkey Love

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Love can overcome great obstacles, even in a zoo. At the Memphis Zoo, monkey island is a placid place at night with most of the population snoozing in the grass. A hard day of play and grubbing peanuts. But one female thicket monkey can be seen nightly plumping for a rendezvous with her boyfriend, a big barbary ape across the water. Each evening the little monkey plunges into the pool, circling her island, and to the other side and back. There follows a moonlight revel with her steady date at his cape. Stout wire separates the two, but it doesn't seem to chill the romance. At dawn the love chatter ceases. The female runs to the railing—gives a last minute backward glance—and plunges into the moat.

Indonesians Stone U.S. Consulate

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—About 7,000 youthful Indonesians stoned the U. S. Consulate Saturday at Surabaya, and invaded its grounds, an American Embassy spokesman here reported. This is the second attack on an American consulate by an Indonesian mob in nine days. On June 30 Indonesian youth demonstrators stoned the American consulate at Medan, Sumatra, breaking almost all its windows. The U. S. spokesman said the American consul at Surabaya, Allan McLean, reported the demonstrators broke into the consulate yard and several of them mounted the roof of the one-story building. Some of them fell from the roof and suffered scratches and bruises but no one was seriously hurt. The spokesman said the demonstrators tried to break into the consulate premises but were kept out by Indonesian security forces. So they tore off the Consulate seal and plastered the walls with anti-American signs.

Long Overdue

"I want you to be absolutely certain that there is no waste or misapplication of America's manpower in the Department of Defense." That was the word the other day from President Lyndon B. Johnson to Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara. The occasion was the decision to increase U. S. troop numbers in Viet Nam. Any taxpayer is entitled to ask if there has been waste and/or misapplication of manpower. More to the point, any taxpayer is entitled to ask how widespread the waste has been because it's a foregone conclusion the waste and misapplication have existed.

It's a pity President Johnson couldn't have directed his order at all governmental agencies, not just the Department of Defense. Some agencies of government have so many employees they almost literally stumble over each other. Moreover, there is duplication of effort and extensive waste of manpower that would bankrupt a private firm. It's been going on for years and getting worse, if that's possible.

In the past, some federal officials have gone through the motions of trying to eliminate waste, but no one has really accomplished anything. It's an inherent trait of bureaucracy. Shameful waste and duplication of effort undoubtedly cost taxpayers millions — perhaps even billions — of dollars every year.

At the same time President Johnson was admonishing Defense Secretary McNamara against waste and misapplication of manpower, the Defense Department was telling Congress that Army Reserves should be merged with the National Guard "as soon as possible". It can serve as an illustration of why it's sometimes difficult to resolve economy and politics. Even though it's been proved pretty conclusively that neither the Reserve nor the Guard provides the sort of tough, prepared force needed today, it's well nigh impossible to eliminate either group because of political pressure. Even the proposed merger will be opposed vigorously from several quarters, including both the Reserve and Guard.

Economy in all branches of government is long overdue, but in many cases taxpayers have to share part of the blame for continuing wasteful programs and policies. Pressures from bureaucrats and taxpayers who want certain programs continued virtually assure continuing waste and spiraling taxes. How do you beat the combination?

LONG TRAIL

Members of the Teamsters Union may be no better off when the long case of James R. (King Jimmy I) Hoffa comes to an end. But hopefully, organized labor in general may find some benefits in the conviction of Hoffa for his attempted jury-tampering. It might be the beginning of the end for an era that has seen Big Labor bosses who have set themselves up as being more powerful than Big Business and even bigger than the U. S. government. The rank and file member of a labor union might become more than a dues-paying pawn.

So far as the Teamsters Union is concerned, there may not be much change. King Jimmy intends to take his appeal to the Supreme Court and if he loses that round, he stands to serve as much as eight years in prison and is liable for a fine of up to $10,000. The fine is peanuts to King Jimmy, but a prison term means the end of his reign, just as it meant the end of the trail for his predecessor, who was convicted of misusing union funds.

Apparently the Teamsters like that sort of thing because they've certainly had enough of it. Along the way, Big Labor bosses like Hoffa have hurt the union movement generally, even though they have managed to wangle better and better contracts for their members. The labor image has deteriorated gradually with the public. There can be little doubt that the image of Big Labor bosses running roughshod over little men was a big factor that led 19 states to adopt so-called right-to-work laws.

The fact that Congress is passing legislation that will repeal the right-to-work laws isn't going to help the labor bosses in the future. It goes without saying that a good deal of bitterness can result from the repeal. In the long run, the action may just stiffen the resolve to have legislation that will permit the little man to get out from under the thumb of the big bosses.

If and when the Supreme Court upholds the conviction of Hoffa, it will be the end of the trail for a man who has enjoyed power and has misused it. It also will mean that the U. S. government is bigger than a mere labor boss after all. But it's taking a long time to prove it.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

BY ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON—Sen. Bill Fulbright (D-Ark) and some other professional internationalists have unwittingly exposed a double standard in the practice of government by intimidation in their catering over pressure which caused the Firestone Rubber Co. to cancel a deal to build a $50 million synthetic rubber plant in Red Rumania.

According to Fulbright and Co., a right-wing outfit named the Young Americans for Freedom "dom" attacked the proposed Firestone deal so vigorously that Firestone chickened out of it.

It is the premise of Fulbright's flock that since the administration had approved the deal as in the national interest it should have helped Firestone resist these pressures. This makes sense. Without going into the merits of the deal, no administration should permit a pressure group to veto a policy matter.

PRECEDENT ESTABLISHED — But — ah there, Mr. Fulbright! — the trouble is that both Capitol Hill and the White House have established a precedent in dealing with pressure groups. If pressure is exerted by civil rights advocates, the government accepts the message meekly — even if it is delivered in the form of street violence — and bows to the pressure group's demands.

This is not to say that the Negro's cause is not just. By this time, its justice has been acknowledged by all but a few mentally unsteady segregationists. But those who oppose government by intimidation can't have it both ways. If it is reprehensible for a conservative outfit to bring pressure on the government, then it is reprehensible for CORE to threaten Presidents and Congresses with strident political "or else."

The voting rights bill unconstitutionally suspends literacy tests in some states because pressure from civil rights groups demanded it. In Mississippi, the Freedom Democratic Party has urged Negro mothers to encourage their sons to dodge the draft in protest against racial discrimination. Gov. W. W. Scranton of Pennsylvania has joined the effort to break a philanthropist's will because civil rights groups demonstrated over a provision which bars Negro children from a school founded with the man's money.

PROTEST STILL CONSTITUTIONAL — As a citizen who rejects the alternative of nuclear world war, I am all for exploring the feasibility of East-West trade. Since we are forced to live with these Communist rascals, I should like it to be as economically profitable as possible. But I do not reject the right of what the inoffensive Mr. Fulbright describes as "a minor vigilante group" to protest such dealings. Until the country is taken over by the authoritarian wing of the liberal movement, such protests are both proper and constitutional, involving the citizen's right to freedom of speech. I do not sneer at some Americans because they look with disfavor on selling a rubber plant to a country whose political philosophy is heavily in the hands of the secret policeman's midnight knock at the door.

Nevertheless, the Fulbrights have made a good point, to wit, that the State Department was weakened in not giving its full support to Firestone in a deal okayed by this government. Now I am waiting for their reaction the next time a civil rights mob beats up a cop.

Views of Others

UNCERTAIN FOR YEARS

Ask most people who write The Star-Spanner and they'll tell you Francis Scott Key. Ask them who wrote the Declaration of Independence and many will say Thomas Jefferson. But ask them who wrote the Pledge of Allegiance, and most won't know. It's really not surprising. Until 1939, not even historians were sure who the author was.

The pledge first appeared in the Sept. 8, 1892, edition of The Youth's Companion as part of the official program for school children throughout the nation to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America. The pledge was first recited at the dedication of the World's Columbian Exposition grounds at Chicago in October, 1892.

Two members of the staff of The Youth's Companion were Francis Bellamy and James Upham. For 47 years the family of each man claimed authorship for him and held evidence to substantiate their claims. Finally, in 1939, a committee was appointed to weigh the conflicting evidence. Unanimously it decided in favor of Francis Bellamy.

Unfortunately, Francis Bellamy, an ordained Baptist minister, had died eight years previous. Congress officially designated his work as the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag on Dec. 28, 1945.

The Pledge of Allegiance, as originally written, differs slightly from its present form. In 1923, the phrase "of the United States of America" was added following "the flag" on Flag Day, 1954. President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed into law House Resolution 243, which inserted the meaningful words, "under God," after "one Nation" — The Republican Call (Seattle).

NOT FIRST TIME

Congressional action requiring a health warning be printed on cigarette packages is one of a long series of measures taken to discourage the use of the "so-called weed" since its discovery along with the New World, when the American Indian traded it for all the bad habits he was to learn from the white man.

It appears that natives of the American continent smoked away without criticism. But Europeans quickly found all manners of objections to smoking. Critics in England barred indulgence in tobacco as both harmful to health and bad manners. King James I sternly ordered publication of a pamphlet entitled "A Counterblast to Tobacco." The odor of burning tobacco leaves had offended him. Cultivation of the leaves by early colonists in Virginia was officially discouraged as a threat to the production of needed foodstuffs.

Nonetheless, in the nearly 400 years since the first shipment of tobacco went from Jamestown to London, its use and popularity have grown steadily. It has not declined despite the widely-publicized association between cigarette smoking and lung cancer.

It will be surprising if the warning drafted by Congress achieves what official action in the name of morality as well as health has never been able to achieve — a drop in cigarette consumption. Most people able to read surely appreciate the risk in cigarette smoking. — The Oregonian.

Interpreting The News

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan has been on President Johnson's back more than any top Republican in Congress. Johnson doesn't take persistent criticism lightly.

And Ford apparently was Johnson's target the other day when the President cut loose on a Republican he didn't name but accused of leaking information to a White House conference with congressional leaders about Viet Nam.

For most of this year the 52-year-old Ford, Republican House leader since January, said little about Johnson, and most of it was mild. He began getting critical in June and stepped it up in July.

His swipes at the President were far more caustic than anything Johnson has said about Republicans this year. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Republican's Senate leader, has been one of Johnson's greatest helpers.

Ford really got rough last month when the House passed the administration's poison red civil rights bill on voting after turning down proposals by Ford and another Republican, Rep. William M. McCulloch of Ohio.

Johnson, congratulating the Democratic-run House, said the Ford-McCulloch measure would have "seriously damaged and diluted the guarantee of the right to vote for all Americans."

The next day, July 12, Ford and McCulloch fired back in a joint statement that Johnson doesn't like anyone to differ with him, is a "dangerous advocate of one-party government," is a "Lyndon-come-lately" on civil rights, had "traveled a crooked path" in that field, and until 1957 had voted "against civil rights 100 per cent."

Johnson held a news conference the next day. Asked about the Republican comments on his civil rights position, he said he was "particularly sensitive to the problems of the Negro." He said he wanted to do his best in that field "in the limited time that I am allowed. I did not have that responsibility in the years past, and I did not feel it to the extent that I do today. I am going to try to provide all of the leadership that I can, notwithstanding the fact that someone may point to a mistake or 100 mistakes that I made in my past."

Later in July, Ford urged the President to tell the nation "straight from the shoulder" what this country faces in Viet Nam. He said Johnson revealed "grim news in installments." And he accused the administration of using a "cynical type of log-rolling" to win House repeal of the federal law which lets states ban union shops. Then last Sunday Johnson exploded. This was the background:

On July 27 Johnson called congressional leaders of both parties to the White House to discuss the decisions he would soon announce on Viet Nam. Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, Senate Democratic leader, made some statements at this nation he was sending 50,000 more troops to Viet Nam, and was increasing the draft but was not going to call up the National Guard and the reserves.

Ford held what he called an informal background meeting with newsmen. He said this was after the White House meeting with congressional leaders. He didn't say what day but, reportedly, it was July 29.

Then there were reports on what was supposed to have happened at that White House conference, such as this: That Mansfield had talked Johnson out of calling up the National Guard and reserves.

When he met with newsmen at his ranch last Sunday, Johnson said a prominent Republican "broke my confidence" and "distorted" what happened. He said Mansfield never mentioned reserves and branded reports that he did "untrue and perhaps malicious." Then he threw this barb:

"Once in a while an inexperienced man or a new one, or a bitter partisan, has to play a little politics. I think they keep it to a minimum, generally speaking, but one or two of them will do it—and boys will be boys.

Ford quickly said he didn't know whom Johnson was talking about and confirmed the President's statement that Mansfield had said nothing about reserves. Tuesday Ford again denied he had anything to do with the alleged leak.

"I broke no confidence," he said, and then needed Johnson all over again by saying he had a suspicion the President "is very, very sensitive" because some prominent Democrats have been critical of his Viet Nam policies.

in such movements as the struggle for racial justice at home or the effort to raise living standards in undeveloped countries.

Another reason why some fine young men avoid the ministry is that they are unwilling to put up with the petty demands of unreasonable laymen who think that they have a right to dictate every detail of a clergyman's private life, from the kind of car he drives to the cut of his wife's dresses.

There are doubtless other factors. But those already listed should provide food for thought in congregations that are or may be looking for pastors. Because there are things that laymen can do to remove these stumbling blocks.

First, they can increase their giving enough to make it possible for a church to offer a pastor a respectable professional salary.

Second, they can recognize and defend the clergyman's right to shake up the status quo where it seems to him to be evil, to speak out against social injustices without taking a poll of the congregation's prejudices, and to be as concerned about the poor people of the city as the balancing of the parish budget.

MARQUIS CHILDS WRITES ON WASHINGTON

SANTIAGO, Chile — The U. S. State Department line, observed with a letter-of-the-law faithfulness, is that the crisis in the Dominican Republic has made no real difference in the standing of the United States in Latin America. Machine-gun slugs fired into a few embassies, bomb threats, yes; but, the visitor is told, no big demonstrations.

This is of course, literally true. Yet it seems to one observer to be a form of self-deception.

It is not hard to detect a deep disquiet and not only in government circles but, according to those with contacts at lower levels, among the people themselves. The landing of the Marines was taken as a return to the use of naked power by an America bent on exercising control where control in the national interest is judged essential.

One of the first casualties was the Inter-American Foreign Ministers Conference, originally scheduled for May and then postponed to Aug. 4. Now it has been postponed again, presumably to a date to be set prior to the end of the year. The conference has been an important prestige symbol for Brazil, since it was to be held in Rio de Janeiro on the 400th anniversary of that city's founding. Moreover, it would have been a plus for the hard-pressed government of President Humberto Castelo Branco.

Five countries voted against postponing the conference, Chile being one of the minority in opposition to the 14 nations, including the United States, that voted for delay.

The Chileans had a number meeting which haven't been published yet.

On July 28 at a huge news conference, Johnson told the of things they wanted to say at the earliest opportunity about the weakness of the Inter-American system and the meaning of the Dominican crisis in this con-informal background meeting with newsmen. He said this was after the White House meeting with congressional leaders. He didn't say what day but, reportedly, it was July 29.

Then there were reports on what was supposed to have happened at that White House conference, such as this: That Mansfield had talked Johnson out of calling up the National Guard and reserves.

Finally, they can treat him as a human being whose work week is long enough without being dragged to every committee-meeting, bake sale and social event; and whose family life is complicated enough without the strain of expecting his wife and children to be holier, cleaner and better-behaved than any other household in the congregation.

nection. Postponement was interpreted as a confession in view of the vastness of the problems confronting the Hemisphere, with the Dominican mess still unresolved, it was better not to meet at all rather than to have a session that would likely descend to acrimony and vituperation.

Washington's goal was the creation of an Inter-American permanent peace force ready to intervene to repel outside aggression. But aside from a half-dozen states in the client or semi-client relationship with the United States, this concept has little support. In the next three months it will take intensive diplomatic effort and searching thought about all the terms under which such a force could come into being and how it might function. If the conference is to be held in November or early December.

Now the cloud of American involvement in a full-scale war in Viet Nam darkens the horizon. The World War of 20 years ago began against a wholly different background. The Roosevelt policy of Franklin Roosevelt, pursued with zeal by his Secretary of State Cordell Hull, had created an atmosphere of good will and cooperation. Most Latinos wanted to believe that this was the future order for the Hemisphere.

But another and perhaps more important difference set that time apart. The latent tensions and even the center parties were opposed to Nazism and Fascism. When the German attacked the Soviet Union in June of 1941 and Pearl Harbor followed six months later, Washington and Moscow were allies. However false this alliance was shown to be in the light of later events, it brought a new unity.

The present crisis confronting the United States comes after 20 years of hostile communist and leftist propaganda that has been intensified in recent months. In a constant drumming through a wide variety of channels, radio or pictorial, the United States is pictured as an imperialist power bent on subjugating a small nation in Southeast Asia. It is in this context, distorted and false as it is, that the Dominican intervention must be put.

Another factor in the atmosphere of 1941, as contrasted to the present day was President Roosevelt's refusal in 1938 to intervene with force when Mexico nationalized the oil properties of American companies with compensation provided by the Mexican government. It made a deep impression throughout the continent that despite powerful political pressures, FDR declined to act.

Today the Hickenlooper Amendment, automatically suspending aid to any country that nationalizes, hangs over the heads of government leaders faced with mounting demands from all sides. Foreign ownership of utilities and basic commodities such as oil is bound to become a hotter issue throughout the continent.

These, in the view of one observer, are today's realities. They will be ignored at the risk of serious miscalculation in assessing the future of the relationship between Washington and the rest of the Hemisphere. America's power is overwhelming. That is a most important reason for the comparison quiescence with which the Dominican intervention was accepted. But this power does not necessarily mean loyalty. It willing allegiance, when the chips are down.

North and South were two experts playing in a catch-as-catch-can rubber bridge game. They were experts, but they were also old-fashioned experts who did not believe in the Gerber four club convention.

However, when expert South opened one no-trump, expert North decided that he had a perfect hand to bid four clubs to ask for aces.

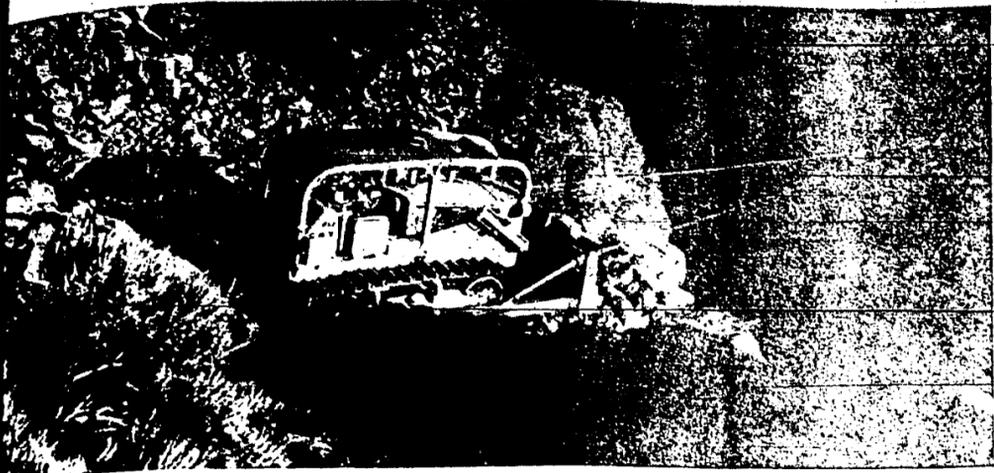

He felt sure that his partner would read his bid as Gerber whereupon expert North would be able to sign off at four spades or bid six or seven as the occasion warranted.

Sure enough, South read the four club bid and responded four spades to show three aces.

What do you do? A-Bid two spades provided you are sure that partner will play you for a very big hand. If you fear that contrary bid one spade only.

TODAY'S QUESTION You do bid two spades. What do you do? Answer Next Issue

Rationing in India to Be Extended

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Wheat and rice rationing now in effect in Calcutta will be extended to India's seven other major cities, the government has announced. Each adult will be restricted to 12 ounces of wheat or rice daily. The national average consumption per person is 14.4 ounces. Faced by a chronic food shortage, the government imposed rationing Friday on cities with more than one million people each: New Delhi, Hyderabad, Ahmedabad, Madras, Bombay, Bangalore and Kanpur. About 17 million people will be affected. The rationing may be extended later to the large industrial areas. Plans call for further extension within the next 15 months to all cities over 100,000 population.

Girls Are Better Private Eyes

LONDON (AP) — An American private detective claims girls are better investigators than men. "Women are naturally curious, so they don't need much training," Gordon Ross of Washington, D.C., told the 16th conference of the World Secret Intelligence Association. More than 100 private eyes from all over the world are attending the conference whose main purpose is to make international contacts among the investigators.

Chancellor Of Germany Starts Drive

BONN (UPI) — Ludwig Erhard opens his first national election campaign Sunday since succeeding Konrad Adenauer as West German chancellor.

He will go to Dortmund for a rally expected to launch the closest, toughest and most expensive parliamentary election in West German history, Erhard is running scared.

Six weeks before the Sept. 19 vote to choose 495 members of the Bundestag (lower house), the two major public opinion polls give his Christian Democratic Union only a slight edge over West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats.

The Socialists have yet to win a national election. But for the first time since the Adenauer-Erhard team fooled the prophets and won West Germany's first election in 1949, most pundits give Brandt's party a chance of winning a plurality.

Congo Leader Denies Franc Devalue Plan

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Premier Moïse Tshombe has denied his government planned to again devalue the Congolese franc to save the nation's weak monetary situation.

At a news conference on the country's strained economy Friday night, Tshombe blamed the situation on the increased cost of putting down the rebellion in the Eastern Congo in the past six months.

Referring to reports of impending devaluation, Tshombe added: "If it would be necessary for the well-being of the Congolese people we would devalue. But it would not help us at the moment."

The Congolese franc has been devalued twice since independence. In 1961 it went from 50 francs to one U. S. dollar to 65 francs. In 1963 it lost even more in a split exchange rate of 150 francs to the dollar for exports and 180 francs to the dollar for imports.

4 Generals Lose Posts In Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Four once-powerful generals, including former strongman Nguyen Khanh, lost their jobs today. Khanh was ordered home from abroad for questioning about financial corruption.

The dismissals were announced at a news conference by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, who said Khanh and Ken Do Cao Tri would be asked about the alleged misuse of funds confiscated after the 1965 revolution that overthrew President Ngo Dinh Diem.

At Nha Trang, 200 miles north-east of here, U. S. military demolition teams were searching two square blocks of rubble for a dozen 250-pound bombs which apparently did not explode when a B57 Canberra jet crashed Friday, killing at least 12 civilians and injuring 75, including eight Americans.

At least 4 of the 16 bombs carried by the twin-jet light bomber exploded when it crashed.

Rescue teams were waiting to look for the bodies of many more feared dead in the accident. The plane's two pilots escaped by parachute before the crash.

There were only a few reports of action in the early hours today. Communist guerrillas launched a mortar attack before dawn on the Di Loc district headquarters, 14 miles southwest of Da Nang air base, but there was no report of government casualties.

U. S. planes struck bridges, barges and an airfield under construction in Communist-held North Viet Nam Friday. The airfield runway was cratered and construction equipment and an anti-aircraft site were destroyed.

BIDS ASKED

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission said Saturday it will call about Aug. 17 for bids on excavation work for the power burst facility reactor building at its National Reactor Testing Station in eastern Idaho.

Estimated cost is $100,000.

The work will involve excavating overburden and lava rock for a building about 80 by 85 feet. Dept. of excavation will vary from 22 to 40 feet.

The AEC said bidding will be restricted to firms classified as small business concerns.

REMODELING SET

BOISE (AP) — Preservation for ceremonial use of the governor's office in the Idaho Capitol was listed Friday as one of the objectives of a statehouse remodeling project.

Gov. Robert E. Smylie unveiled plans for the renovation, authorized by the 1965 legislature, and said they include provision of a new working office for the state's chief executive.

Bids on the remodeling work were called earlier this week and will be opened Aug. 19. Smylie said the cost is estimated at $37,200.

STUDY SET

MOSCOW (AP) — A $1-million boost for the cattle industry is expected to result from a contract between the University of Idaho and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, university president Ernest W. Hartung said today.

The $150,000 contract, approved by the board of regents last week, was to support a study to determine if a natural genetic resistance to certain calf scours exists in some lines of cattle.

CAMP DEDICATED

COTTONWOOD (AP) — Approximately 300 persons gathered here Friday for the dedication of the first federal Job Corps training camp in Idaho, an event called "a milestone" in Idaho history.

The Cottonwood center, located on the site of a former Air Force radar station, is the first Job Corps post to become operational in Idaho and Region One of the U. S. Forest Service.

There are now four Job Corps sites in Idaho, two of them in Idaho County.

WINS STAY

BOISE (AP) — Charles Smith, who has fought extradition to Missouri to face a murder charge, has won a further stay in Idaho.

The Idaho Supreme Court has ruled that Smith may not be returned to Missouri until the United States Supreme Court can rule on the case.

The Idaho court denied, however, Smith's request that he be released on bond during the court action.

Smith is accused of killing his pregnant wife, whose body was found in a barrel floating in an Adair County, Missouri lake.

Smith was arrested in Boise two years ago when the car in which he had hitchhiked a ride was stopped for a minor traffic violation.

GROUND BROKEN

POCATELLO (AP) — Several hundred persons watched Saturday when three sticks of dynamite sent an earth gyrer 20 feet into the air, breaking ground on a $1,750,999 shopping center.

Mayor Earl Pond, Mrs. Idaho, Mrs. Adaline Lieberg, and Ken Douglass, president of D and M Development Co., pushed the plunger to explode the dynamite.

Completion is scheduled in March of the first phase of the shopping center, named Westwood Village.

It will house a major department store, grocery, variety, drug and jewelry stores, a branch bank and a number of smaller shops. It will be air-conditioned throughout, including a shopping mall. Parking will be provided for 3,999 cars.

HOUSING SLATED

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — Planning for a new major housing complex at the University of Idaho will be undertaken as soon as possible, Dr. Ernest W. Hartung, new president, reported today.

He said approval was given by the board of regents for development of "general plans and concepts" for the project.

Still under construction is the Wallace Residence Center which will house 1,050 students. Three units have been finished with the third scheduled for use this fall. Construction of the fourth and final unit will start early next year.

Dr. Hartung said no dates have been set for a probable start on the new complex.

LICENSES GIVEN

BOISE (AP) — Granting of Idaho licenses to eight engineers was announced today by the State Board of Engineering Examiners.

The licenses were granted under reciprocity agreements with other states. One went to an Idaho man, John Rungee of Coeur d'Alene, who previously held a license to practice engineering in Georgia and Florida.

LOW BIDDER

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Goodwin Construction Co., Blackfoot, with a bid of $264,300, is apparently low bidder on a local improvement district here.

The next closest bid among the four submitted to the city council Friday night was $293,717 by Bannock Paving Co. of Pocatello.

The district will provide for new construction or replacement in the business area, all of Alice Street, and most of Walker and Sonny streets.

RIGHTS GIVEN

BOISE (AP) — Granting of additional trucking rights to Elmer Francis Riedner of Uniontown, Wash., was announced today by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

In addition to authority to haul sand, gravel and aggregates in Idaho north of the Salmon River, he was authorized to haul hay in the same area.

REPORT MADE

BOISE (AP) — Commercial slaughter plants in Idaho produced an estimated 13,843,000 pounds of red meat during June, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reported today. That was 3 per cent above output for May but was 4 per cent less than in June last year.

CHAIRMAN NAMED

BOISE (AP) — Directors of the Idaho State Employees Association confirmed appointments Saturday of committee chairmen to direct the association's programs during the fiscal year.

The committee chairmen are Ed Scholes, Jerome, constitution and bylaws; Fran Wheelock and Sally Richmond, both Boise, employee awards; Glen Richardson, Terreton, finance; Ivot Sies, Boise, insurance; Marshall Edson, Boise, legislative; Homer Garrett, Boise, membership; Norman Floyd, American Falls, personnel and merit system; Cyril Prescott, Pocatello, retirement; Donald Baugh, Moscow, safety; Jack Frady, Lewiston, wages and salaries; and Keith Cunningham, Coeur d'Alene, special awards.

EARNINGS LISTED

BOISE (AP) — Morrison-Knudsen President J. B. Bonny says the world-wide construction firm's net earnings for the first six months of 1965 are expected to total $1,035,000.

He said that would amount to 50 cents per share of the Boise based company's stock.

Nepalese Living Goddess Must Be One Of Loneliest Little Girls In The World

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — She is a "living goddess" but she must be one of the loneliest little girls in the world.

This is the 6-year-old Kumari of Katmandu, a slender, solemn-faced little girl worshipped by thousands of Nepalese who keep her a virtual prisoner.

She leads a life of seclusion and in accordance with ancient religious law is kept in a dusty old temple off Durbar Square in Katmandu, away from her family and away from the world.

Sometimes, the Kumari can be seen peeking from a window high in the Hindu temple, watching laughing children at play in the square below.

But she is as quick as a sun ray and if too many eyes turn upward to her window, or if there is a reach for a corner, she is gone with a rustle of saris and a flash of her ceremonial dress.

The Kumari never is permitted to play or even walk in the courtyard. Her world is the dimly lit temple.

Each Kumari is selected at about age 3 and reigns until the onset of puberty, or until (heaven forbid, Nepalese say) an accident scratches her or other important religious festivals.

The Kumari is dressed in fine robes and a rich headdress, housed in a palatial room on the shoulders and paraded through the streets.

But even then, released from her temple prison, she cannot act like a little girl.

The Kumari must sit correctly, without smiling, receiving the shouted adoration of those who worship her.

The origin of this Nepalese custom is lost in the distant past. But there has been a Kumari as long as there has been someone to write the history of this Himalayan kingdom.

Inner recesses of the temple, solve into tears and wails of night.

That exception, the priests add, obviously is the new Kumari — composed, stately and unafraid, even at the age of 3.

The present Kumari has been in the temple three years — three years of no running, no laughing and even no weeping.

For if a Kumari were to weep, a great calamity of some sort would strike Nepal. Disaster, or so it is believed, would sweep down from the Himalayas.

The 20th Century has made many inroads in Nepal, a closed kingdom for hundreds of years. But Nepalese faith in the Kumari and their guarded watch over her have not been shaken.

Child's Body Is Discovered In Unmarked Grave

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — A child's body was discovered in a shallow, unmarked grave Saturday afternoon in Eastern Idaho near the Wyoming border.

Bonneville County Sheriff L. G. Hopkins ordered an autopsy. He said the search for the child, apparently a girl, began after a telephone tip Friday.

And an unidentified itinerant farm couple was arrested at Prosser, Wash., who told authorities they had buried their daughter along the roadside.

The child's body was discovered along U.S. Highway 26 near Indian Creek by a volunteer sheriff's search and rescue party.

Washington officials said the farm couple told them first the baby died of pneumonia, but later said the baby had fallen out of their car.

TYPHOON KILLS 26

MOSCOW (AP) — Typhoon Jean, killer of at least 26 persons, hit the Soviet far eastern port of Nakhodka Saturday, flooding the port city and farmlands near Vladivostok.

Editorial Gives Views on Bomb

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Hiroshima's major newspaper said today the U. S. military which used the atomic bomb to destroy the city 20 years ago "did not know all the consequences when they committed that outrage."

"But should they use it again, it will be committing an outrage in full cognizance of the facts," said the newspaper "Chugoku Shinbun."

The paper made the statement in an editorial a day after the 20th anniversary commemoration of the bombing on Aug. 6, 1945.

220 Negroes March Quietly In Louisiana

MINDEN, La. (UPI) — About 220 Negroes led by Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) Director James Farmer marched quietly to the City Hall Saturday to discuss their demands with Mayor Frank Norman.

An additional 100 Negroes waited at City Hall, where Farmer spoke briefly. Inside, four civil rights leaders were told by Norman they were powerless to act on their grievances. He told them they would have to take up their complaints with the various city agencies.

Both CORE leaders and police agreed the march, the first in this northwest Louisiana town, was a quiet affair. "Both sides handled themselves real well," one officer said.

On the other end of the state in Bogalusa, where marches have become as common as afternoon thunderstorms, Negroes planned another downtown march to City Hall.

Wednesday and again Friday, separate columns of marchers converged on City Hall from opposite directions without incident.

The march in Minden was the first civil rights demonstration there. Negroes have expressed their grievances before on occasions but without fanfare.

J. B. Hampton, the leader of the movement in Minden, said no demonstrations were planned for the future. He said new action would be decided at a meeting next week.

Unit Formed To Organize Lunar Trips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency Friday announced creation of an organization to plan lunar and planetary explorations stemming from the Apollo program to land men on the moon.

The new "Saturn-Apollo directorate" will operate within the Office of Manned Space Flight of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

No post-Apollo programs have yet been approved, although Congress has put up some money for studies. NASA officials are thinking of using Apollo spacecraft and rockets, modified as necessary, for a variety of projects after the first lunar landings.

These would include manned flights of a month to three months in earth orbit, flights of about a month in orbit around the moon, and lunar surface explorations lasting up to two weeks.

NASA is building 12 Saturn IB rockets, and 15 of the much more powerful Saturn 5 moon rockets. Several of each are expected to be available for space work after Apollo.

TREFOIL and sainfoin plantings on the Corwin Silva ranch will be inspected at 2 p.m. Tuesday by the Wood River Soil and Water Conservation District at Shoshone. He has the only field of Sainfoin in the district.

Wood River Tour Set to Inspect Grass

SHOSHONE—Wood River Soil and Water Conservation district will sponsor a tour of the Corwin Silva trefoil and sainfoin plantings at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

The trefoil-grass pasture has been grazed, livestock removed and the trefoil, now about six inches in height, is loaded with yellow blossoms. The importance of having a legume with grasses for pasture is displayed on Silva's pasture.

In the cooler months of the spring, the grasses produce abundant forage for livestock. When the weather gets hot, grasses slow down and produce smaller amounts of forage while the legumes, which grow more rapidly during the hot summer months, begin to produce their maximum amount of forage. Silva's young sainfoin plants are blooming a little, and those

Driver Education Classes at Jerome Set in Regular Hours

JEROME —For the 1965-66 school year, driver education classes will be scheduled on a semester basis during the regular school day, according to August Hein, Jerome High School principal.

The first semester class will be offered to students in class 9 through 12. Second semester classes will be primarily for eligible eighth graders.

Students must be 14 years old prior to the third week of the semester for which they are enrolled.

Classes will be organized so that one-third to one-half of the actual driving time will take place during the regular class period, with the remainder of the regular driving time scheduled after school and Saturdays.

The arrangement will eliminate need for the summer driver education program.

Students in grades 9 through 12 who plan to enroll in a driver education class during the first semester must notify the high school principal's office prior to Wednesday. Notification may be made by mail or by telephone, 324-2922.

Individual class schedules will be made up to accommodate those students who wish to enroll in driver education classes.

Eligible eighth grade pupils will have an opportunity to enroll prior to the start of the second semester.

Students enrolled in driver education classes must purchase a driving instruction permit from the sheriff's office prior to actual driving instruction.

2-Alarm Fire Investigated In Utah City

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A two-alarm fire in a downtown cafe here sent hundreds of moviegoers scurrying into the street Friday night.

Firemen today said the cause of the blaze at Keeleys Cafe, 55 South Main, was undetermined, pending further investigation.

They said there also was no estimate available on damages. The fire was believed to have started in the basement, in the vicinity of a deep-fry gas range.

Patrons of the Uptown Theater, next door to the cafe, were evacuated as a precaution. They watched as firemen brought the blaze under control within 20 minutes.

There were no injuries reported but fire, smoke and water damage to the cafe appeared to be heavy.

Amazing Operating Economy! HEARING AID USERS TEST NEW TYPE AID

(MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—SPECIAL) In a recent test, twelve hearing aid users were asked to wear a newly-developed hearing aid and report on their experience. Reports just released indicate that the small aid, worn behind the ear, will offer hard of hearing persons remarkable operating economy. All of the experienced hearing aid users who test-wore the aid commented on outstanding battery life; laboratory testing has revealed that the aid, using ordinary miniature hearing aid batteries, will operate for 30 days or more on a single 35-cent battery (based on average 16-hour per day use), extremely high battery life for an aid of this type and power. Engineers who developed the new aid attribute its operating economy to a new circuit with special low-impedance characteristics. Test wearers' reports also indicated unusual reliability, with none of the test aids suffering any operating failure during the test period of over 4200 wearing hours. Final reports also revealed that six of the twelve test wearers had replaced their previous aids and purchased the new units. The new aid is especially designed to be custom fitted to the individual's hearing problem, emphasizing sounds he does not hear while leaving others at normal level. It can also be readjusted to compensate for changes in the wearer's hearing ability. Information on the aid is available by writing, "Selectronic", Dept. 000, c/o Medical Acoustic Instrument Co., Box 3146, Minneapolis, Minn. 55403.

Student, 22, Confesses to Killing Girls

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A soft-spoken, suave host...two beautiful guests...murder in a fit of passion and fear...and a long vigil until the bodies could be spirited away and hidden in the cool darkness of early morning.

Like an incomplete jig-saw puzzle, this picture gradually built up Saturday from bits of evidence and comments dropped by officials who charged James C. Cross Jr. with murdering Shirley Ann Stark and Susan Rigby.

Cross, 22, dark, handsome son of a Fort Worth chain store executive, was held without bond in the Travis County jail here. Officers said he voluntarily made a statement late Friday about the killing of the two 21-year-old brunette beauties from Dallas.

The two girls disappeared the afternoon of July 18. They were found dead, part of their underwear stripped off and their skirts pulled up under their arms, 12 days later in a weed-covered vacant lot.

A medical examiner said at least one, probably both, had been strangled. The bodies were too decomposed for the autopsy to determine whether they had been raped.

Meanwhile, among hundreds of other persons, investigators talked with Cross, who lived alone in an expensively furnished apartment near the University of Texas, where he was a sophomore. Cross confirmed it was he whom Miss Stark had telephoned from a hamburger place just before she disappeared.

Cross, invited the girls to his place, he said, but Miss Stark told him she had to help Susan Rigby move into an apartment where she was to stay during the university's summer session. Miss Stark was then to return to Dallas.

In a later interview, he said the girls had dropped by his apartment to change clothes but had left together and he had not seen them since.

Late Friday afternoon, Police Lt. George Phifer said, Cross telephoned and asked that Phifer meet him at Texas Department of Public Safety headquarters. Justice of the Peace Frank McBee was called to warn Cross of his legal rights.

GOP Position On Viet Nam Is Dismissed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House has dismissed Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford's latest gambit in the partisan debate over U. S. policy in Viet Nam with a short-but sharp one-sentence statement.

"There is nothing I can contribute to any Republican desire to go to war," replied Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers Friday in answer to a question about Ford's suggestion that President Johnson declare war on North Viet Nam.

Moyers also referred newsmen to a statement by House Democratic Leader Carl Albert who assailed Ford for what he termed a "foolhardy" and "useless" suggestion.

Ford appeared to be backing away from the proposal, although he did not quite disavow it. He said he was surprised to read "some published interpretations" of his remarks.

"The appropriate congressional action might be a declaration of national emergency," the Michigan House member said in a statement.

"It might be a declaration of war if the President's policy is, in fact, war. Since Congress, under the Constitution, has sole authority to declare war, the President must seek congressional authorization for a policy of this type."

Labor Has Jitters Over Court Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor is suffering a severe case of the jitters over a recent Supreme Court ruling that could shake up the system of collective bargaining as it now is carried on.

At worst, labor lawyers fear, the long exemption of unions from federal antitrust laws may be ended and the growing pattern of industrywide labor contracts may wither on the vine.

At best, they foresee a rash of lawsuits over labor contracts until the courts iron out the full implications of the decision.

Former Justice Arthur J. Goldberg—who disagreed with the majority ruling—hinted it could mean the sharpest setback for organized labor since the modern era of labor relations began with the 1935 Wagner Act that guaranteed unions the right to organize and bargain.

The Supreme Court ruled a labor union is subject to triple damages under antitrust laws if it conspires with one set of employers to set a wage scale designed to drive other companies out of business.

The hitch, labor lawyers say, is that the court left unclear what is sufficient evidence of a conspiracy to send the case to a jury.

Three justices in the six-man majority said any industrywide wage scale too high for some employers to pay is enough evidence; the other three said there must be some further evidence but didn't say what.

Goldberg, steeped in a life-time of labor experience as a union lawyer and secretary of labor, said this is something judges and juries are not competent to do.

Tattoo Artist Curb Asked In Denmark

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Two plastic surgeons appealed today for legislation to curb Denmark's tattoo artists. They said many clients discover too late that body art can be a social handicap.

The doctors — Michael Pers and Torben Von Herbst — put out a report which indicates that about 5 per cent of this country's males are adorned with tattoos. Among them is King Frederik IX, although he is not mentioned in the report.

Pers and Von Herbst reported that of 17,000 young men called before military examination boards last year, more than 600 were tattooed and a check of about 2,000 youngsters in correctional institutes showed that 70-80 per cent had tattoos.

Many told the doctors the social handicap, the report said.

It cited cases of tattooed people barred from promotion and having difficulty achieving higher social levels.

The report also told of broken engagements and wrecked marriages.

Some tattooers insist they do not accept minors as clients and reject people who come to them while drunk. But Pers and Von Herbst said boys of 12 have been tattooed by professionals and that they have talked with regretful individuals who were decorated while intoxicated.

Write to Congressmen About Fish Controversy, Man Urges

Editor, Times-News:
I have almost come to the conclusion that there are very few people in Idaho who are really concerned about the decline and eventual elimination of salmon and steelhead fishing in Idaho.

There are thousands of salmon and steelhead fishermen, and thousands of businessmen who would benefit if the runs were restored to the level of good sport fishing. These same thousands will suffer as the runs continue their decline to the point of elimination of sport fishing for salmon and steelhead in Idaho.

However, I'd be surprised if one in 25 such people have taken the trouble to express their opinions to their elected representatives who are supposed to look out for our interests and who are in a position to exert considerable influence to have commercial fishing for salmon and steelhead eliminated in inland waters of the Columbia system. These elected representatives include Gov. Smylie, Congressmen Hansen and White, Senators Church and Jordan.

Too many people take the attitude that "There's nothing I can do."

Every person who cares at all could write a simple letter to each of our elected representatives saying, "I want you to use your influence wherever necessary to eliminate commercial fishing for salmon and steelhead trout in inland waters of the Columbia system."

A large number of such letters from interested citizens would get action.

Nothing gets the attention of a politician like pressure from large numbers of voters just as nothing impresses a businessman like a decline in profits.

If you are interested, write some letters and join the Association of Northwest Steelheaders who have been fighting this battle for years.

If you don't do anything, then you have no right to bellyache about what someone else is doing or is not doing.

Nothing is accomplished by doing nothing. The opposition always wins.

Auditor Will Not Enter State Race

BOISE (AP) — State Auditor Joe R. Williams said Saturday he will not enter the race for governor next year and he urged some other Democratic aspirants to make similar announcements.

Without naming names, Williams said in a statement:

"I am calling on all prospective candidates for governor to do a 'little soul-searching' of themselves. If they reach the conclusion that they are out-of-step with the thinking of people generally, I urge them to give up any plans they might have to enter next year's political race."

Williams, who is 60, is now nearing the end of his second four-year term as state auditor. He said he will run for a third term in 1968. He said he might seek the office of governor at some time in the future.

There are two announced Democratic candidates for governor, State Sen. William J. Deo of Grangeville and Former Atty. Gen. Frank L. Benson of Boise.

Sen. Cecil Andrus of Orofino has indicated he may become a candidate and there are a number of other potential aspirants.

"There already are far too many persons who have indicated they may become candidates," Williams said. "I hope my announcement may influence some of them to make similar statements."

"I know we Democrats can nominate a candidate for governor who can win the office in 1968. But I know, too, that to win, our candidate must be representative of the beliefs of a majority of the people of Idaho. Too many times have we had a nominee who reflected the views of a minority."

Two Families Wiped Out in Plane Crash

LAKEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Two families en route for a surprise reunion at Niagara Falls, N.Y., were wiped out today when a twin-engine plane plunged into a fog-shrouded cemetery.

The vacation trip ended minutes after takeoff when the plane ripped into gravestones just short of a line of homes, hurling blazing debris and victims' bodies into residences.

The two couples and their children took off despite dense fog, bound for a reunion with the mother of the two women victims at Niagara Falls.

There were no immediate members of the two families who didn't die in the crash.

The plane struck just short of a line of homes, cracking gravestones in its path and hurling flaming wreckage—and victims' bodies—into residences.

Killed were two couples and their children. The women were sisters. Officers said there were no immediate members of the two families who didn't die in the crash.

The plane crashed moments after takeoff from Long Beach airport. Officials there said visibility was limited by dense fog to three-eighths of a mile under a ceiling of 100 feet—too poor for a landing—but enough for an instrument takeoff.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Agency said the pilot, James Whitmarsh, 37, of Lakewood, acknowledged a normal takeoff at 400 feet.

Lee Urging Rejection of Urban Agency

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mayor J. Bracken Lee, his campaign against high taxes still humming along, issued a statement Friday urging voters to reject creation of an urban renewal agency Aug. 17.

"It is inevitable," he said, "that it will bring higher taxes because Salt Lake City will have to furnish one-third of the money and the only place to get it is by taxing the people."

Lee said he has hundreds of letters on file from people complaining that, for their retirement or social security income, they cannot pay the taxes they now have to pay.

He said urban renewal would be "just another contribution to the burdens of government which creates greater power over the people and less freedom."

Excavations Indicate Early Residents On Salmon River Arrived From North

SALMON — Evidence from archaeological diggings at two rock shelters along the Salmon River indicates that the people who lived there apparently came to the area from the north.

Dr. Earl Swanson said that one of the aims of the digging which has been going on this summer by an archeological crew from Idaho State University near Shoup has been to determine which inhabitants were earlier, those at Birch Creek near the head of the Lemhi Valley in Eastern Idaho or those along the Salmon River.

He said ancestors of the northern Shoshoni Indians appear to have occupied the Salmon River rock shelters earlier than the ones at Birch Creek. The evidence, he said, would seem to indicate that the earlier people of the area came here from the north rather than the southeast.

Dr. Swanson, professor of anthropology and director of the Idaho State University Museum, Pocatello, said the two rock shelters being excavated on the Salmon River were used by small groups of people at a time. He described the shelters as "pre-historic hotels" and said the "evidence of man is superimposed one layer upon the other."

Dr. Swanson said that evidence has been found of the northern Shoshoni Indian at Birch Creek as early as 8,000 years ago while the earliest man was there 10,000 to 12,000 years ago.

He said Salmon river formed the boundary of the northern Shoshoni and that the Salmon River shelters were inhabited as were those at Birch Creek by the northern Shoshoni and that it appears the ancestors of the Shoshoni were here earlier than at Birch Creek.

Being uncovered at the shelters on the Salmon River are stone and bone tools, animal bones, fibers and shells.

The ISU official said there appears to have been a village of which indicates occupation of 7,000 to 8,000 years ago, probably only twice by persons hunting bison. He said the Salmon River area shows continuous occupancy.

Dr. Swanson said one of the major concerns is the protection of the various sites in Idaho, adding that construction is not the biggest problem but rather the inexperienced people who simply dig.

"If the material is not properly removed, the information will not be available," he said.

Senator Brooks Feied at Area Women's Luncheon

By DOROTHY POVEY

KETCHUM—Whoever heard of an elephant with a lace petticoat? If you haven't, stop the first Petticoat Polly you meet and ask to see her official pin. It's a gay little elephant standing on its hind legs, circus-wise, wearing a frilly white skirt.

"And just who is a Petticoat Polly?" She is a young Republican woman interested in politics. The elephant wears the petticoat, and she is the Polly (politician).

At the Warm Springs vacation home of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Heuston, the Twin Falls Petticoat Pollys honored Mrs. Mary Brooks, state senator from Blaine County and vice chairman for the Republican National Committee, at a luncheon. Mrs. Brooks arrived by plane from Washington, D.C., to attend.

Unable to attend, but sending regrets and best wishes were Mrs. Robert E. Smylie, wife of Idaho's governor, and Mrs. Steele Barnett, Boise, Idaho National Republican Committeewoman.

Members of the Blaine County Republican Women's Club were guests.

Assisting Mrs. Heuston, hospitality chairman, were Mrs. James Sinclair, co-chairman and telephone and scrapbook chairman, and other members of the Petticoat Pollys.

Original plans were to serve 50 persons. One hundred and tea gathered in the large living room, patio and kitchen to hear Mrs. Brooks speak. Preceding her talk, punch was served in elaborate gold and silver engraved goblets by Leslie Cline and Carol Springer, Hailey.

The pledge of allegiance was given and Julie Anderson, Twin Falls, led the singing of "Here We Have Idaho."

Mrs. Keith Kelley, Twin Falls, president of Petticoat Pollys, called the gathering to order and introduced Mrs. Ted Scott, past president of the Confederation of Republican Women, who in turn introduced Mrs. Brooks.

Following the major address, those attending were served a luncheon, buffet-style. They enjoyed baked ham, furnished by Sun Valley Shopping Center, fresh combination fruit salad and fruit and nut breads. They were offered a beverage choice of coffee or punch.

The group then dispersed into small groups on the lawn, some in the sunshine, some in the shade of the numerous fir trees and willows, and some on the rock wall.

Mrs. Brooks was dressed informally in a bright Roman print two-piece suit, predominantly yellow. Mrs. Kelley wore an apricot sheer sheath dress. Mrs. Kelley wore an apricot sheer sheath dress. Mrs. Kelley wore an apricot sheer sheath dress.

Saint-Laurent Designs Show Kooky Styles

PARIS (AP) — Yves Saint-Laurent has gone on a kooky kick. His show of new fall-winter fashions didn't look like haute couture, but it was a lot of fun.

In the new Saint-Laurent look, skirts were short, just covering the top of the kneecap; shoulders were very square, and shapes went from bulky box through wide shift to high Empire.

He showed the nudest dress in Paris this season — a black crepe bandanna top, with a huge ruby brooch pinning its point center-front to a St. Tropez skirt. The tie ends of the bandanna swung up in back to a loop at the shoulder blades.

The Saint-Laurent suits had small, perfectly square jackets and skirts lightly full in front. They were worn with jacquard boots, argyle or ribbed stockings.

He showed mink in deep bands separated by leather strips. White mink striped and belted in black patent; a black mink with strips and a deep hem of white vinyl and brown mink with suede.

Later, under the same fur coats, there were the jersey dresses that buyers liked so much in other fall-winter collections earlier this week. Cut straight, they are big patchwork blocks of color divided by black bands. Hottest number in the group is likely to be the "Cruder" dress with a cross of black bands dividing up white, except for the upper left corner. Equally successful were Saint-Laurent's embroidered patchwork shift gowns in big bold, abstract patterns or tiny mosaics.

Standup Collar Introduced in Fall Fashions

PARIS (AP) — Little standup collars, just tall enough to roll over, caught every buyer's eye at the Balenciaga show Wednesday.

Like Givenchy, Balenciaga refuses admission to the press until a month after the openings.

The small Balenciaga collar came on coats and suits which skipped the bulky shoulders shown by Givenchy. Since the two designers work closely, one collection often reflects the other. But one buyer thought that the Balenciaga shoulders might even be narrower than before.

"Newsworthy, not commercial" was a buyer's description of the fake nudity of a beige chiffon "cage" gown hung over a matching leotard.

The buyers passed that one up to concentrate on Balenciaga's tunics and tunic effects.

There were sleeveless or cap-sleeved jersey tunics to wear for sports over slender pants.

Jersey was used for real tunic dresses and for fakes — these last had a low contrast border creating tunic effects.

Below-hip suit jackets created almost-tunic effects, buyers said. These were semifit in front and straight in back, with raglan sleeves. Collars were cut to look as though they had been pulled slightly back and away from the neck.

Many suits had a rounded-out away front. Skirts had apron panel folds in front, and sometimes also in back.

The tunic look followed in seven-eighths coats with the characteristic small rolled collar, double-breasted, cut with deep inverted pleats in front.

There were many three-quarter coats, too, some flared, others straight with a slight barrel effect.

One buyer predicted that the best of the collection would be a full three-quarter princess, navy with brass buttons.

Mary Perry, Werner Recite Nuptial Vows

Mary Colleen Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin E. Perry, Twin Falls, became the bride of Clarence Michael Werner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Werner, Hansen, at rites June 25 at St. Edwards Catholic Church.

Rev. Thomas Taylor performed the double ring ceremony before a background of tall baskets of pink chrysanthemums and greenery and candelabra with lighted tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length Chantilly lace gown over satin.

The fitted bodice, featuring long petti point sleeves and a rounded scalloped neckline, joined the skirt at the V waistline. The back of the lace gown opened at the waist back to a rounded hemline to reveal an underskirt of multi-tiered net ruffles.

Her fingertip net veil cascaded from a crown of seed pearls and iridescent beads.

Jewelry was a single cultured pearl drop necklace, a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a lace handkerchief belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. William Richter.

She carried a cascading bouquet of pink roses tied with pink ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Arthur Baily, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Sylvia Freestone and Claudia Stanger were bridesmaids.

Flower girls were Amy Jo Baily, Theresa Ann Perry and Debra Jean Perry, all nieces of the bride. Joe Perry, brother of the bride, was ringbearer.

Neil Larsen was best man. Ushers were Arthur Baily, brother-in-law of the bride, and Phillip Perry, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Nellie Ostrom was soloist and organist.

Mrs. Fred Howard registered guests. Gifts were arranged by Mrs. Robert Perry, sister-in-law of the bride, Mary Joan and Cheryl Dockstader. Susan Perry, sister of the bride, and Jocelyn Willis were gift carriers.

The three-tiered white cake trimmed with pink roses and green leaves and topped with a satin bell cluster centered the front.

Skirt Length For Fall Is Way, Way up

LONDON (AP) — As the curtain lowers on most of Europe's fashion shows, a hemline consensus revealed that autumn's skirts will be the shortest in history.

The dress designers of Paris, London and Italy revealed a great deal of milady's leg.

From show to show, the hemline was hiked and lowered like a lovely yo-yo, but generally it is way, way up.

Lowest of all perhaps, was the hemline of Balfain of Paris, who dropped it to just below the knee. But:

Heim raised the hemline to a daring 10 inches above the knee on one model. This dress, while delightful, was hardly a dress. It was more of a long sweater. The wearer wore tights instead of stockings.

Feathers Rate Top Billing

ROME (UPI) — Italian designers have decorated their fall-winter high fashion collections with lots of feathers.

The ostrich feathers as the top bird in the collections presented here for international buyers and press. But the plumage of the swan, the cock and possibly the humble chicken has also found its way into the collars, cuffs and caps.

The designers taking stands for and against feathers today included Gregoriana, De Barontzen, Sarli, Bianco, Tita Rossi, Ognibene - Zandman, and Emilio Schubert.

Pino Lancetti, who presented his fall-winter fashion collection in an airy courtyard on the fashionable Via Condotti, really set the feathers fluttering in his after-dark clothes.

Double Ring Wedding Vows Unite Couple

The marriage vows uniting Jean Ann Summer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Summer, and Thomas Earl Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Collins, all Twin Falls, were recited July 11 at the First Methodist Church, Twin Falls.

Rev. Harold Nye officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of bridal lace, with a fitted bodice and a neckline enhanced with sequins. The gown had the traditional long tapered lily point sleeves and a full skirt with a chapel train.

Her shoulder-length veil of illusion was held by a pearl and crystal crown fashioned by her mother. Her bouquet was of white tea roses and white carnations. Her only jewelry was her diamond ring and an heirloom ruby and pearl ring which belonged to her great-grandmother.

Maid of honor was Kathy Squires.

Best man was Robert Collins, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Calvin Collins, brother of the bridegroom, and John Wilson, Blackfoot.

Debbie Collins, sister of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. Ringbearer was Chique Telleria, cousin of the bridegroom. Candelighters were Phyllis Collins, sister of the bridegroom, and Angie Thomas, cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in the church parlors. The all white three-tiered wedding cake was topped with two light blue satin bells decorated with pearls and Lilies of the Valley. The base of the cake was encircled with fern, white gladioli and blue carnations.

The cake was cut by Mrs. Frank Redfield, Burley, aunt of the bride, and served by Mrs. Joseba Telleria, Burley, aunt of the bridegroom. Punch was served by Mrs. Oscar Dosh and coffee was poured by Mrs. Elton Wilson, Blackfoot. Altar and reception flowers were arranged by Mrs. William Grange.

Tin Cans Used By Stylist In Setting Tresses

BY ALICIA HART
The native talent to make-do with available materials shows up in some strange places. Pop art paintings don't have the corner on the use of commercial cans, the ones most of us toss out with the garbage. The swing-to-longer-and-straighter curls brought about the need for the large, large hair roller. A hairdresser in New York City discovered that his orange juice cans, for example, often could sub for the rollers and serve a dual purpose. After disgorging their contents, these cans with the new non-sharp edges do a very good job in the hairsetting department.

Lupe of Julius Caruso explains that curly hair, especially, needs the larger roller to "relax" it. He experimented with different hair textures, lengths and thicknesses and found the can rollers suitable.

It all started as a gimmick but Lupe became serious about it all and designed the Can Do hairdo which anyone can set at home. It is very good for home hairstylists because it requires little or no teasing.

To use cans for your hairdo, remove the can ends and labels and wash cans thoroughly. Roll hair in an over or under direction for the style you want. Ordinary clips or hairpins will hold the cans securely. Brush out and comb hair into place when dry.

To aid in smoothing out those tiny lines and wrinkle dryness around the eyes, regular vitalizing night creaming is recommended by skin care consultants. Gently coax the cream into the dry lines to soften and smooth the complexion, then press the cream along the deeper expression lines seven times with the fingertips. Complete the beautifying task by filming the Olay vitalizing night cream over the face and neck to give the complexion a look of soft loveliness.

A reception for the couple was held the same evening at the Kimberly Ward LDS Cultural Hall. For the wedding and reception, the bride wore a floor-length gown of silk organza with cut appliques of alencon lace edging the neckline and skirt. Her veil of illusion was held by a Dior rose. was bordered by pink carnations and fern.

New Film Stars Set Trends For Own Age Group

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEW YORK (NEA)—It's an established fact that young people like to adopt the fashions worn by film stars of their own age. And 18-year-old Donna Loren who already has had four starring roles in motion pictures is now busy setting the trend for soft, crushable hats. In fact, she celebrated her recent birthday anniversary in New York after finishing "Sergeant Deadhead" shopping for a wardrobe of soft crushables for fall.

These draped, all-occasion hats not only complement the dressed-up look that young people are adopting this season, but cover all the sins of an in-between hairdo.

"One of the things I have learned very forcefully and quickly is that a young movie star has to be more 'in' where fashion is concerned than the audience is. She has to get there a lot sooner," Donna said.

"I have to know in advance what all the girls in my age bracket will be wearing next season. This summer it was easy to anticipate that these hats would be a hot fall fashion item. They couldn't miss."

The new "softies" cover a wide area of shapes and fabrics. There is something for every taste and for every size girl.

DOWNTOWN TWIN FALLS

Senator Brooks Honored at Area Luncheon

Heuston's yellow linen casual dress was stitched in brown. Plain, flowered and conventional prints and stripes in cotton, silks and Jersey, vied for predominance; but all reflected the relaxed atmosphere of the Sun Valley area. The warm sunshine, hiding its face only occasionally behind a fleecy cloud, made wraps of any kind unnecessary.

The Heuston home, with double beams in the living room ceiling, a brick fireplace, lavish use of knotty pine and rough hewn wood, braided rugs and large window, makes it ideal for the area.

Many heavy wagon wheels against the board-and-batten exterior and entrance ways, carry out the rustic theme. The home is flanked by several fir trees. Two stand on either side of the main entrance with large iron wheels reminiscent of early logging days; in front of them, a large iron ore pot, telling of early-day mining in the area, makes interesting conversation for those visiting the Heustons.

As sidelights to the serious side of her talk, Mrs. Brooks told of some of the difficulties she has encountered as a "traveling politician."

She has been vitally involved in politics since her father, the late Frank Thomas, was state senator for Gooding County. Her late husband, Senator Wayland Brooks, was United States Senator from Illinois, and she herself became national committee woman from Illinois.

Mrs. Brooks said she did not realize just how rugged her new job of assistant chairman to the Republican National Committee was at the time she accepted the post.

"My heart will always be in Idaho," she said, "and I got home as much as possible."

Mrs. Oliver Baum, Ashton, president of the Idaho Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, spoke to the incoming presidents and presented each a pyramiding elephant pin from the National Federation.

Mrs. Brooks installed newly elected officers of the Blaine County club. They are Mrs. Jay Strode, Carey, president; Mrs. Roberta McFarther, Bellevue, vice president; Mrs. Harold Schaefer Jr., secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Max Texza, Sun Valley; Mrs. Robert Shay, Ketchum; Mrs. Wilbur Bell, Hailey; Mrs. James Etchison, Bellevue; Mrs. William Patterson, Gannett, and Mrs. Robert Coes, Carey, community chairmen.

Among guests who attended was Mrs. Anne Lausnor, Mayew, West Germany. Mrs. Lausnor is on her first visit to the United States. She was a guest of Mrs. Charlotte Link, Hansen. Mrs. Arthur Seidenberg, New York City and Mrs. Lucille Dodson, Jefferson City, Mo., also attended.

Petticoat Polly officers from Twin Falls present included Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Douglas Kramer, vice president; Mrs. Robert Stradley, secretary, and Mrs. Dale Lawrence, treasurer.

Officers of the Twin Falls Republican Women's Club attending included Mrs. George Detweller, president; Mrs. T. W. Stivers, vice president; Mrs. I. F. Sallady, secretary, and Mrs. Roy Painter, treasurer.

Joanne Petersen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Petersen, Colville, Wash., and Cecil Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Wilson, Twin Falls, were united in marriage June 19 at the First Church of the Nazarene, Twin Falls.

Traditional wedding music was played by organist, Mrs. Doyal Mason, cousin of the bride. Wedding songs were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Don Edwards, Mrs. Royal Heyer and Hubert Hendrix.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length, bouffant gown of Chamilly lace over nylon. The bodice featured long lily point sleeves, a scalloped neckline, and was appliqued with lace, sequins and seed pearls. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom.

Her shoulder-length veil of French illusion was held by a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses centered with a white orchid.

Burley Team Takes Crown For District

BURLEY — Keris' Beeline Skaggs Furniture of Burley won second trip to the State softball tournament with a 4-1 victory over the Rupert Merchants Saturday night. The defending fifth district champions combined seven singles and a fielders' choice for their four runs for the 1963 district crown. Clint Nelson was the winning pitcher. Both teams will go to Boise for the state tournament Aug. 20-22.

The Rupert Merchants were the only team to defeat the 1963 champs by a 1-0 margin Friday night. In another Friday night game Ow's Cafe of Burley edged Burley Beverage 6-2. The Grain Millers Local 282 of Paul played three games Saturday on the way to winning the sportsmanship award for the district. The Paul team won the first two games with Ray Schmitt supplying the hitting power. In the only other game of the night, played between the Grain Millers first and second games, Larry Cigar nipped Ow's Cafe 4-1. Fauxy Shark scored the winning run on an overthrow at first.

Scholarship Goal Is Slated

McCALL, Idaho (AP) — The University of Idaho's Vandal Booster Saturday set a goal of $45,000 this year in fund raising for scholarships. The University's new president, Dr. Ernest Hartung, and its new athletic director, Paul Osyn, were among speakers at the annual meeting attended by about 30 boosters. Robert Paine of Lewiston was elected president to succeed Robert Holder. Mario McDonnell of Moscow was re-elected vice president and John C. Thomas was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Cowboy Fielding Is Up, Batting Down

The Magic Valley Cowboys improved their team fielding lead by two percentage points while their team batting total dropped from 230 to 228, according to the official statistics released today by league statistician William J. Weiss. The statistics cover games through last Sunday. Gene Vincent widened his lead in stolen bases from 13 to 15 during the one-week period. He is also tied for the most runs with Joe Doerr of Treasure Valley at 26. In the pitching division Ralph Durgin now holds the earned run average lead at 2.45. The lead is based on a minimum of 32 innings pitched. Larry Tolliver, last week's ERA leader at 2.68, has slipped to 3.00 and is now the fourth Cowboy in the ERA line. Tolliver is one of three league hurlers to have completed a full game.

Kelso Boosts Earnings Toward $2 Million

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (UPI) — Mighty Kelso exploded with his old-time power in the stretch at Saratoga Saturday and won the $34,400 Whitney Handicap, was third, six lengths back, with Crewman fourth and Choker fifth and last.

The crowd went wild as Kelso made his bid. Many of the fans had seen Kelso loom menacingly at the top of the stretch but then flatten out in the Brooklyn Handicap to finish third. But this time the "old man of racing" came on like gangbusters and the din was overwhelming as he beat out Malicious in a final lunge at the wire. "It took him a little time to make up his mind, but then he really turned it on," said Valenzuela.

Circling around three horses as the small field of five entered the stretch in the 38th running of the stake, Kelso pounded down the straightaway on the outside in a relentless run that carried him to his third victory in the race and the 30th stakes victory of his career.

The five-time "Horse of the Year," still the outstanding horse in the country at the age of eight, picked up a winner's purse of $33,350 for the Bohemia Stable of Mrs. Ailaine C. Dupont to raise his lifetime earnings to $1,954,164. The gelded son of Year Best carried high weight of 130 pounds and the high hopes of almost everyone in a crowd of 23,500.

He carried his heavy burden over the 1 1/4 miles in 1:49.4-5, only four-fifths of a second slower than the track record and he paid off his backers at the rate of $4.40, $3.00 and 2.20 across the board.

It was Greentree Stable's Malicious who was the victim of Kelso's tremendous closing rush. For Malicious was in the front at the start and still was in front under his 114 pounds when jockey Ismael Valenzuela, whipping and driving with every ounce of strength, brought Kelso up along side the early leader and then inched ahead of him right at the finish line.

Hagge Lengthens Milwaukee Lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Veteran Marlene Hagge fired a third round par 7 lengthening her lead to seven strokes in the fourth annual Milwaukee Jaycee Open Saturday. Clifford Ann Creed, Alexandria, Ia., only a stroke behind Marlene after two rounds, rocketed to 78, leaving her in a distant second place tie with Marilyn Smith.

Marlene, 31, who was in a strong position to break the tournament record of 287 set by Kathy Whitworth in 1963, had a two-under-par 214 for the first 54 holes. The tournament concludes Sunday.

Rally in 10th Lets Chicago Tip Indians

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox, helped along by Max Alvis' triple-foot act, rallied for two runs in the bottom of the 10th inning Saturday and edged the Cleveland Indians 4-3. The Sox, who had to rally from a 2-0 deficit to send it into overtime, trailed 3-2 going into their half of the 10th, and had one out when Alvis had his trouble.

With pinch runner Al Weis on first, J.C. Martin popped down the third base line. But Alvis tripped over the bag, the ball dropped safely and runners were on first and second.

Don Buford and Floyd Robinson followed with consecutive singles, scoring the tying and winning runs. Cleveland ... 011 000 000 1-3 10 0 Chicago ... 000 020 000 2-1 7 0

Buckpasser Tops Race Favorite

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — Buckpasser, a stretch running son of the great Tom Fool, swept on the paces in the last one-eighth of a mile Saturday and won the $112,153 Sapling Stakes at Monmouth Park as the favored Owl Michael wound up third in the field of seven 2-year-olds.

In registering his sixth triumph in seven starts, the bay colt from Ogden Farms' stable ripped off the six furlongs in 1:10.3-5 to give trainer Bill Winfrey his second straight victory in the rich event.

Dodgers Use 4-Run First To Nip Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Four consecutive walks by Cincinnati's Sammy Ellis plus Don LeJohn's two-run single highlighted a four-run first inning that triggered the National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers to a 5-3 triumph over the Reds Saturday night.

Maury Wills started the game with an infield single but was out trying to steal second. Ellis, seeking his 15th victory, then walked Wes Parker, Jim Lefebvre, Ron Fairly and Lou Johnson for one run. LeJohn singled to center field, driving in Lefebvre and Fairly.

Ted Davidson replaced Ellis and struck out Willie Davis before John Ruschboro singled in Johnson with what turned out to be the deciding run.

Polish Student Tops Tyus; U.S. Men Hold Lead

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Irena Kirszenstein, a 19-year-old Warsaw University student, burst past America's Wyomia Tyus at the wire in the women's 100-meter dream race Saturday but the United States men's team bounded back for a 60-45 lead over Poland at the halfway point of their two-day track and field meet.

Pirates Knot 4-3 Victory Over Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Relief ace Al McBean thwarted a bases-loaded, no-out threat in the fifth inning and blanked Philadelphia the rest of the way, as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Phillies 4-3 Saturday.

After the Pirates broke a 3-3 tie in the fourth, with Andre Rodgers scoring the go-ahead run on pitcher Vernon Law's double play grounder, the Phillies routed Law in the fifth.

McBean allowed only one hit thereafter while gaining his fourth victory against five losses. Pittsburgh 003 100 000-4 11 1 Philadelphia 102 000 000-3 9 1

Tom Rolfe Is Easy Race Victor

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheeling into the lead at the stretch turn, Tom Rolfe scored an easy four-length victory over Gummo in the $100,000 Chicagoan at Arlington Park Saturday.

It was the third stakes victory of the season for the Powhatan color bearer, who earlier won the Preakness and the $50,000 added Citation at Arlington Park.

The little son of Ribot, top weight at 123 pounds with Willie Shoemaker aboard, covered the mile and a furlong in 1:47.2-5, only one-fifth of a second off the track record.

The winner, who was third in the Kentucky Derby and second in the Belmont, returned $2.60 and $2.20 to backers in a crowd of 29,426. There was no show betting. He went off a 1-5 favorite.

Preclous Gift was third, five lengths behind Gummo and 10 lengths ahead of fourth place The Dancer.

First Official Squamish Game Set—That Is if Flutney Is Dry Enough

WABOO, Neb. (AP) — If the flutney is dry and everybody can find his flutney, the first official squamish game that anybody in these parts has heard about will be played Sunday night.

This town of 3,600 persons that gave the baseball world Hall of Fame outfielder Wahoo Sam Crawford will offer sports fans something new when the Wahoo Camps face the Sunday County Challengers for the Nebraska State Squamish Championships.

Squamish is what happens when 86 teenagers — 43 to a team — face each other on a five-sided field with a set of rules they devised.

Promoters John Meyersburg, John Ell and Garry Woolman, all 18, and Von Bardick, 17, explained the idea developed from a magazine satire.

"We adopted some of the terms but established our own playable rules," they said. The game is a hybrid of football, hockey, badminton, wrestling, lacrosse and a few other sports. Players wear any kind of protective headgear and any kind of uniform but the rules prescribe footwear must be overshoes or swim fins "to keep the exhilarating pace of the game within speed limits."

"Each player carries a flutney unless he's a wicket man in which case he carries a badminton racket," said Ell. "A flutney is a heavily padded crooked stick he uses to either hit the pritz or trip the other players below the knees. The pritz is the ball.

Lema Has Five-Under-Par 67 to Take Third-Round Lead at Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tony Lema fired a five-under-par 67 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead at 207 after the third round of the $125,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic. Champagne Tony's nine-under-par total for 54 holes on the par-72 Whitmarsh Valley Country Club led R. H. Sikes, the Arkansan who paced the field for the first two rounds, and Doug Sanders. Sikes slipped to a 73 Saturday and Sanders matched Lema's 67 to knot at 208.

URGING HIS FORTY-foot putt toward the cup for a possible eagle is Champagne Tony Lema on the 17th green in the third round of the Philadelphia Golf Classic. The ball rimmed the cup and Tony had to settle for a bird. Lema shot a five under par for a two-stroke lead after 54 holes with a 207-nine under par for 72 holes of competition. (AP wirephoto)

Nicklaus finished with a 73 and a 209 aggregate, seven under. Randy Glover of Florence, S. C., also had a 67 to tie at third with Joe Campbell, stocky Florida pro, who had a 72. They were at 210 for the 54 holes.

Seven others were tied at 212. They were Dave Hill, George Knudson, Gary Player, Tommy Aaron, Bob Goalby, Tom Shaw and Jonny Pott.

Bantam Ben Hogan, making one of his rare tournament appearances, improved with a 69 after a 75 Friday and was bunched back at 215 with six others. Sam Snead, his long-time rival, had a 72 and was at 214 with seven fellow pros.

Lema, whose round included six birdies and one bogey, joked that the day "started uneventfully" with his six-foot birdie putt on the first hole.

He continued with a birdie on the second, thanks to a 12-foot putt, added another on the fifth and made the turn in 34 after the bogie on the eighth.

He had another birdie with a 10-foot putt on the 10th and then a scrambling par on 11th. "The sloppiest hole I've played in the whole tournament," Lema continued to charge in with a bird on the 16th and 17th, after an 18-foot eagle putt rimmed the cup and came out.

Palmer Quit Because Of Putter, Says Pro

WHITEMARSH, Pa. (AP) — "You know why Palmer quit? He's not making those four-foot putts. That's all. If he was making them, he wouldn't be tired. He'd be winning tournaments." So said one touring golf professional Saturday as the withdrawal of Arnold Palmer from the $125,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic stirred a storm of pro and con comment.

The 35-year-old Palmer backed his clubs and went home to Live Oak, Pa., after shooting a five over par 77 Friday for a 36 hole total of 146. He would have been the anchorman of 70 qualifiers had he decided to stay.

He carded six bogeys and a double bogey on the back nine Friday. But the golfer recognized by many as the best of all time told the sponsors of the Philadelphia tournament he was mentally and physically tired, out of contention, and wanted to withdraw.

The sponsors said okay, since it allegedly was part of a pre-tourney agreement that Palmer be allowed to quit if he felt unable to continue after 36 holes.

The consensus on the Palmer departure was fairly even. There were those who said it was bad for the PGA tour, bad for Palmer, bad for the game of golf. And there were those who felt Palmer did nothing more than other pros have done. The only difference, they said, is he's Arnold Palmer.

Grant Hurls Twins to Win Over Red Sox

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Jim Grant became the first American League pitcher to win 14 games Saturday, hurling first-place Minnesota to a 9-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Grant, who has beaten Boston four times this season with the Twins scoring 46 runs in those games, checked the Red Sox on nine hits, including the 15th home run for Carl Yastrzemski and Felix Mantilla.

Grant has 14 wins only three. Boston 100 001 011-4 9 1 Minnesota 100 330 028-9 11 0 Wilson, Earley (5), Duliba (6), Heffer (7) and Nixon; Grant and Zimmerman, Batteny (4), W. Swims Channel

DOVER, England (AP) — Linda McGill, 19-year-old Australian swimming rebel, triumphed Saturday on her first attempt to swim the English Channel.

She clambered ashore on the rocks of St. Margaret's Bay after swimming from France in 11 hours 12 minutes — only 11 minutes outside the women's France-England record set by Greta Anderson of the United States in 1958.

Stengel Still 'Boss Man' of N.Y. Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Casey Stengel, continuing his steady recovery from a recent hip operation, left no doubt Friday that he was still the boss man of the New York Mets.

Still up in the air, however, is whether the 75-year-old baseball marvel will be back at the helm next year.

In his first news conference since his confinement nearly two weeks ago, Stengel said he expected to leave the hospital in about five days, with orders to return to his apartment for at least two or three weeks.

Asked if he would be managing again before the season was over, Stengel sat straight up in his wheel chair, gripped the sides hard with both hands and replied:

"I wouldn't tell you and I couldn't tell you. But if you want to know the truth, I'll tell you. I'm still the manager of this here club."

"The coaches consult with me every day and every move that's made is done after they consult with me — beforehand."

Stengel's words poured from his lips so fast and furious that at one point his nurse hurried to his side to make sure he didn't attempt to stand up without assistance.

"She takes care of me pretty good," he said. "She's afraid I'll fall right in her lap. And I would, too."

Quarte Selected All-Stars' Most Valuable Player by Large Margin

CHICAGO (AP) — Quarterback John Huarte, Notre Dame's 1964 Heisman Trophy winner, was named the most valuable All-Star football player Saturday by an overwhelming margin over linebacker Dick Butkus of Chicago. Huarte, who inspired a rally after entering Friday night's game in Soldier Field in the third period, cut the winning margin of the National Football League champion to 24-16. Huarte was chosen by 66 of 96 votes cast by fans covering the 32nd annual classic.

Single Butkus drew 27 votes. Don Hutson of the San Francisco 49ers was named the second-most valuable player with 18 votes. Other players named were: Alvin Harrison (17), Tom Landry (16), Earl Morrall (15), and Earl Flegal (14).

180-pound Huarte, 27-year-old, who is from Anaheim, Calif., who set a record for passing yards in a season, will be presented a trophy at halftime ceremonies of next year's All-Star game.

Charley Taylor of the Washington Redskins was named the most valuable player of the last season with the Washington Redskins with the pro's unanimous selection.

Huarte didn't get the quarterback call Friday night from All-Star Coach Otto Graham until the minutes were gone in the first period.

At that time the Browns were leading with a 24-3 lead. Huarte, lighting and punting, capped two touchdown drives with touchdown passes. He completed nine out of 13 passes for 132 yards in the first half.

Butkus of Illinois, who was in on 15 tackles, blocked Lou Groza's field goal try. Huarte waited so long to pass that the Browns' defense was able to stop him. He completed nine out of 13 passes for 132 yards in the first half.

I know I'll be second-guessing months," Graham said afterwards. "On the basis of practice and our scrimmage with Chicago Bears, Huarte was named in our preferences for quarterback."

Huarte is a great competitor and a take-charge guy. But he was No. 3 on our list. One of those players who is better in a game than in practice."

John Astorquia allowed only six hits Saturday night as the Twin Falls American Legion baseball team blanked visiting Mountain Home 8-0 in the second game of the regional playoffs. Twin Falls also won the first game of the playoffs 7-3 Wednesday at Mountain Home. Twin Falls now moves to the state playoffs at Pocatello where the first game will be played Wednesday. Reniff, Ford Save 6-5 Win For Yankees

DETROIT (AP) — Relievers Hal Reniff and Whitey Ford combined to pitch out of a two-on, none-out jam in the ninth inning, saving a 6-5 victory for the New York Yankees over Detroit Saturday night.

Reniff came on after the Tigers had scored two runs in the ninth and had Don Demeter at bat. He struck out Bill Freehan and got pinch hitter, John Sullivan, on a short fly to left field but then walked Don Wert loading the bases.

Namath Makes Pro Debut, But Jets Lose

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI)—Joe Namath, the $400,000 bonus rookie, made his full-fledged pro-football debut in spotty fashion Saturday night as the Houston Oilers beat the New York Jets 21-16 on three touchdown passes by Don Trull.

Namath completed six passes in 14 attempts for 110 yards in two quarters of play in the American Football League exhibition game.

The Alabama star quarterbacked the Jets to one touchdown but was outshone by Trull. The latter tossed touchdown passes of 30, 52 and 48 yards to pilot the Oilers to their triumph. His last scoring toss came with 2:11 to go to wipe out a Jet lead.

Just before bowing out at the end of the third quarter, Namath led the Jets on a 68-yard scoring drive in six plays. The big one was a 50-yard completion to Blake Turner that set the stage for Bill Mathis to plunge over from the one.

J. Turner put the Jets in front at the outset of the last period with a 44-yard field goal but Trull hit Weir from 48 yards out to sew up the victory.

Canada Cops American Cup From U.S.

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — Canada scored 7½ points in the final singles matches late Saturday and wrested the Americas Cup away from the United States for the first time in the 16-year-history of the international amateur golf match.

Canada finished with a total of 22 points. The United States, which had won all seven of the previous biennial competitions, finished second with 19½. Mexico trailed at 12½.

Keith Alexander was the big gun in Canada's upset. He teamed with Nick Weslock to beat both their U. S. and Mexican rivals in Saturday's three-ball sixsomes, then scored two victories in the wind-up 18-hole singles matches of the two-day tournament.

The United States, led by Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., Mark Hopkins of Texas City, Tex., and Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla., scored eight of a possible 12 points in the singles.

Temporary injunctions that would keep the Braves here until all court cases have been decided. Should the injunctions be granted, both the Braves' management and the league could be put in the bind of deciding what to do with Atlanta, should the litigation carry over into the 1966 baseball season.

Some observers feel that if the injunctions are granted, the league would ask the Braves to be sold to Milwaukee interests and effort to place an expansion team in Atlanta under the present Brave ownership.

The suits, if they are carried to completion, would mark the third test of baseball's hallowed immunity under antitrust laws and the first test of this kind.

Redskins Win 37-0 in NFL Exhibition

HERSHEY, Pa. (UPI) — Substitute quarterbacks Dick Shiner and Richard Badar shared the Washington Redskins' victory over the Philadelphia Eagles, 37-0, Saturday before 8,945 fans at Keo Hershey Stadium in the pre-season NFL opener for both teams.

After the game, the Eagles' president Jerry Wolfman, assistant coach Fred Bruney and Larry Kuharich, 19, the son of the Eagles' head coach, were roughed up in a scuffle with four fans. Although their clothing was torn, no one suffered any injuries and no one was arrested.

Shiner, a second-year quarterback who comes from Lebanon, Pa., only 10 miles from Hershey, saw his first extended action for the Redskins. He completed 19 of 15 passes for 133 yards and one touchdown. Badar, a rookie, threw only one pass but completed it for 99 yards to Jack Dean for a touchdown.

Astros Defeat Braves 4-0 on 12-Hit Attack

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Houston Astros backed up Dick Farrell's shutout pitching with a 12-hit attack, including a home run by Bob A. Sprunt, and stomped to a 4-0 victory over Milwaukee Saturday.

Farrell, who limited Milwaukee to five hits, allowed only one Brave to reach third as he posted his eighth victory of the season and his third shutout. He struck out five and did not issue a walk.

Ken Johnson, seeking his 13th victory, took his sixth defeat instead. He gave up 10 hits and three runs, one of them unearned, before being knocked out in the sixth.

The loss was the sixth straight for the last-place Mets.

Williams' two-run double capped a four-run Chicago burst in the fifth inning after successive errors by losing pitcher Gene Ciesco and first baseman Ed Kranepool opened the gates.

In the seventh, after reliever Gordon Richardson walked Jim Stewart and hit Don Landrum with a pitch, Williams drove a three-run homer over the right field wall.

Billy Hoelt pitched the final five innings and picked up his first victory of the season.

A's Six-Run Rally Drops Orioles 7-4

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jim Landis cracked a three-run homer in the seventh inning, capping a six-run rally that carried Kansas City to a 7-4 victory over Baltimore Saturday night.

The loss dropped the second-place Orioles 7½ games behind American League-leading Minnesota, giving the Twins their biggest lead of the season.

Trailing 2-1, the Athletics got started in the seventh with a lead-off walk to Dick Green. Singles by Ed Charles, Tom Reynolds, Rene Lachemann and Jose Tartabull brought in three runs. Then Landis, who drove in a run with a sacrifice fly in the first, unloaded his homer off reliever Dick Hall.

Jazy Has First Win Since Rest

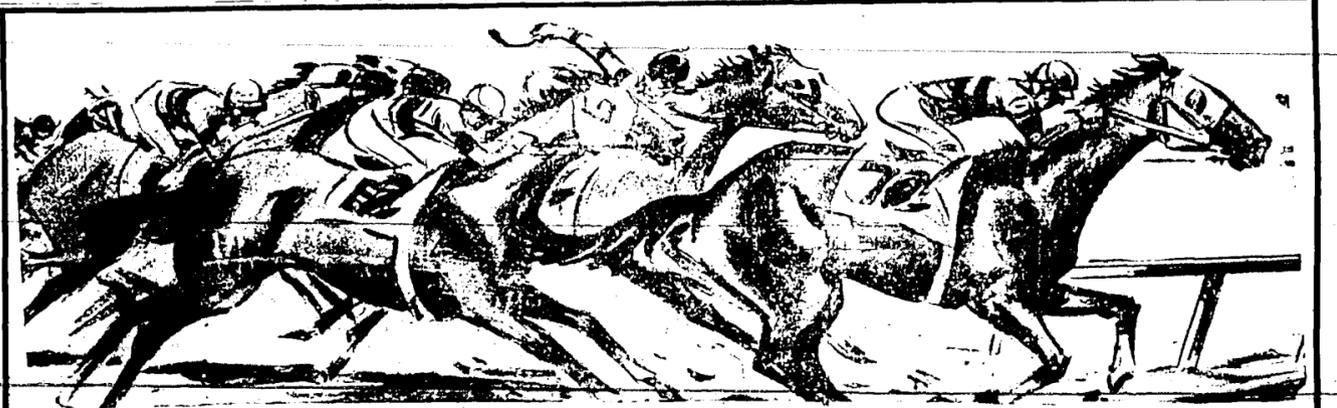

LA BAULE, France (UPI) — Michel Jazy won his first 3,000-meter race since his vacation Saturday in the slow time of 8:08.2 on a track made heavy by earlier rain.

Second was Mohammed Gamoudi of Tunisia, about five yards back and slightly ahead of Salomon of France.

Jazy, who had warned he was not out for a fast time in this warm-up race, was content to stay behind the leaders until the last lap, when he forged ahead easily to win.

The 1,500-meters clocking was 4:12.0.

The unofficial world record set Thursday in Erfurt, East Germany, by East German runner Siegfried Herrmann is 7:46.0.

Results of Milwaukee-Braves Fight Could Be Biggest Impact on Sport

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Milwaukee, a city scorned by the baseball bigwigs, took its wrath to court this week and the resulting litigation could have the biggest impact the sport has ever seen.

Separate antitrust suits, each seeking to block the move of the Braves to Atlanta, were filed in federal and state courts. Both charge the Braves' baseball with being monopolies in restraint of trade.

The federal court suit, which charges violation of the Sherman Act, Wisconsin antitrust law and Wisconsin common law, was brought by the county. The city joined in the suit as co-plaintiff.

The circuit court suit was brought by the state and lists the county as a co-plaintiff. In each case, the plaintiffs are charging a conspiracy to prevent Milwaukee from having major league professional baseball.

The suits could drag on for months and even years, especially in the federal courts where cases are backlogged greatly. It was believed, however, that this case might be moved ahead of some of the others.

Of immediate attention in the case are two opposing actions. One, brought by the Braves, seeks a declaratory order freeing the team from legal action and allowing them to move to Atlanta. The other seeks temporary injunctions that would keep the Braves here until all court cases have been decided.

Two Missiles Are Fired at White Sands

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N. M., (AP) — Two Athena missiles were fired from Utah toward White Sands during the night, but one of them overshot the target and landed 18 miles southeast of Fabens, Tex.

A military spokesman said there were no reports of damage or injury. He said the errant missile apparently landed "way out in the boondocks" and that Army recovery teams were en route to the scene.

The first missile was successful, impacting on White Sands. Both Athenas were fired from a test complex near Green River, Utah, as a part of an Air Force study of ballistic missile re-entry.

"We don't know what happened to the second re-entry vehicle," an Athena official said.

Fabens is 20 miles southeast of El Paso, Tex., and about 50 miles south of the southern edge of White Sands Missile Range.

Both of the firings were prior to 1:30 a.m.

The spokesman said eight missiles have been fired since the Athena program restarted recently. "Five were successful and the others were partially successful," he said.

The Athena program, in which the first Green River firing was conducted early last year, was shut down temporarily for what the military called evaluation.

Governor Reports Rising Demand for Metals Improving Economy of Idaho

Gov. Robert E. Smylie credits a rising demand for metals and other minerals with sparking a rise in Idaho's economy.

The governor spoke to climax a two-day meeting of the annual summer conference of the Inter-mountain Chapter of the Steel Service Institute in Twin Falls Thursday and Friday.

Speaking to a conference banquet at the Blue Lakes Country Club, the governor said Idaho's personal income of $796 million for the first six months of 1965 is about 11 per cent ahead of similar figures for 1964. The governor said, "Increases are the result of greater employment and higher payment, as well as from property and agricultural income."

"The outlook for the second half of the year is good to excellent, with demand for metals and other minerals indicated at somewhat higher levels, and improved prices for many agricultural products, especially beef," he added.

Commercial and industrial construction, Smylie noted, is up 26 per cent from last year.

Smylie added that "most sensitive economic arbiter of all—sales at the State Liquor Dispensary — indicates that the mood of economic well-being is fairly widespread. Reports from the State Liquor Dispensary show that gross sales are running a solid 11 per cent ahead of last year."

The conference was attended by about 50 members of the Steel Service Center and about 25 representatives of all major steel companies, some from as far away as Pittsburgh, Pa.

Friday's activities included a welcome to Twin Falls by Egon Kroll, chairman of the City Commission, and speeches by Ben McCollum, marketing manager for the J. R. Simplot Chemical Complex and John Faunce, vice president of Lukens Steel Co., as well as a golf tournament.

Thursday was highlighted by a tour of Shoshone Falls.

FBI Probes Two Killings In Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The FBI circulated photographs of nine teen-agers Saturday in hopes they would provide a clue to the identity of two youths found dead on the Baltimore-Washington Parkway.

The FBI and U.S. park police have been unable to come up with even an inkling of where the youths were from or how they were killed Wednesday night.

The photographs found in the wallet of one of the boys resemble those taken for a high school graduation.

Police believe the youths were struck and dragged by a large vehicle, but not at the spot where their bodies were found. They also are investigating the possibility of homicide.

There was no identification found on the bodies or in two small bags the boys were carrying. Police guessed they were hitchhiking because of a sign found at the scene which had "N.Y. City" on one side and "Fl." on the other.

Edwin R. Tully, special agent in charge of the FBI Baltimore office, said the boys possibly were from the Miami area and were returning home from a visit to the World's Fair.

Building New Hansen Bridge Makes Demands on Workers' Ingenuity

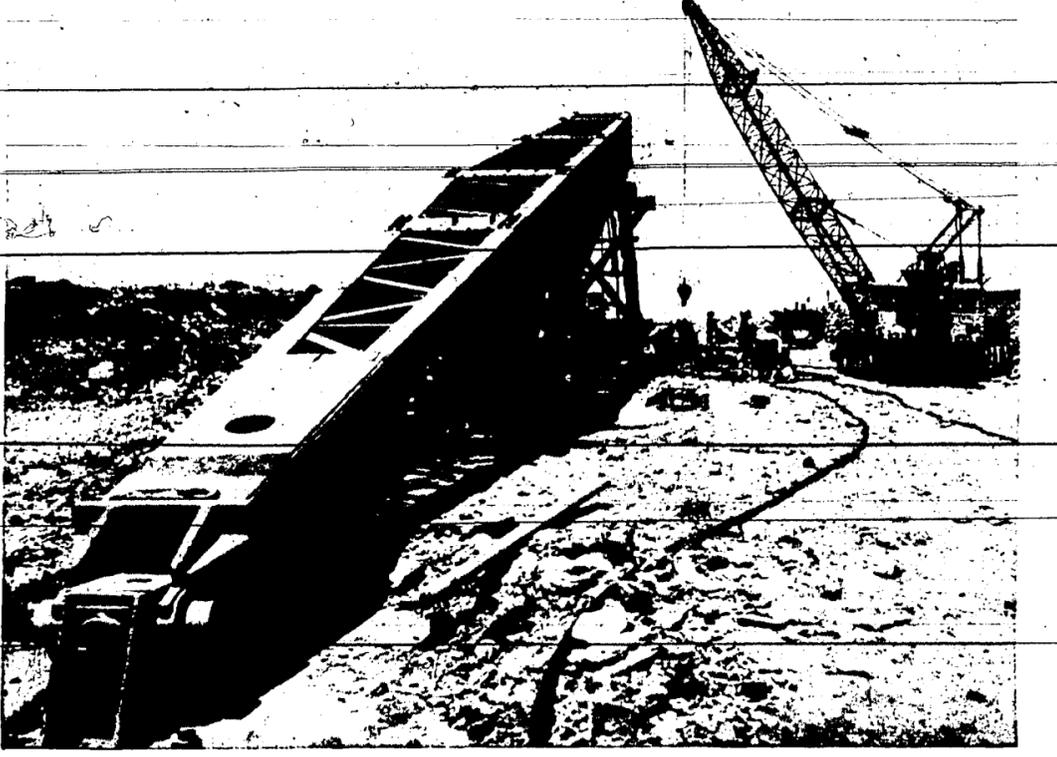

"A person pays for a good tractor and a good bridge at about the same rate—about a dollar a pound. Of course a bridge has a few extras thrown in, like extensive concrete support for the bridge itself, as well as a roadway on top. But then, a tractor has rubber tires that go along, so maybe a bridge is not such a good buy after all." Any person who thinks this either has a mighty good tractor or he hasn't driven across the old Hansen Bridge in a high wind. One animated fellow claims that while he was driving across the bridge last fall with a truckload of potatoes a gust of wind hit the bridge with enough force to make visible waves in the road bed. Perhaps he mistook the sinking sensation in his stomach for the collapse of the bridge. Just as likely, he had a "Gal-loping Gertie" on his hands. But unlike "Gertie," the old Hansen Bridge probably never will collapse. It simply will not hold enough cars. It is, after all, a single lane bridge, with compensatory approaches that are broad enough to serve as parkways. Continued on Page 28

Collector Corners Rare 1917 Car, Works Many Hours to Restore It

Many people dream of owning an operating old car. Louis Dauplaise, 1432 Lawndale Drive, is such a lucky man. When Dauplaise received the auto there was a lot of body work and painting to be done. Dauplaise had the body work done by Lariel Jenkins, a local body shop man, and the painting done by Arbie Bolyard, also of Twin Falls. Dauplaise arrived in Twin Falls in 1956 after service in the Navy. His hobby of old cars started at this time with Model A Fords. Dauplaise is president of the Gooding Regional Group of the Horseless Carriage Club of America. The national club has a membership of about 25,000 people from all over the United States.

Home Articles Are Transformed to Period Costumes at Buhl Theater

BUHL—Draperies, curtains, waistline and detailed with black lace trim on the bodice and skirt. Black lace is repeated in the flounced sleeves. Lively, frivolous gowns also are worn by Sue Galligan, Halley, who has a green taffeta highlighted with a peplum flounce and white lace trim, and Alexandra Shenk, Sewickley, Pa., a blue and rose creation. The most intriguing part of their costumes are their head-dresses designed from the 1760, Louis XIV era. The bouffant headresses range from two and one-half feet tall to three feet high. In true tradition they are adorned with ribbon bows and streamers, garlands of pearls and beads, artificial flowers, birds, and ornate Christmas decorations in every conceivable form. The process involved in making these exotic wigs is most unique and interesting. Polyurethane froth foam, something new on the market, serves as the basis for the head-dresses. Madi Brailsford served as the model for the wigs with the application made by Paul Yost, of the Northwest Urethane Co., Twin Falls, assisted by Aldrich Bowler, Buhl. OLD METHODIST parsonage in Shoshone was given a face-lifting this spring by members of the church in preparation of the arrival of the new pastor, Rev. Ralph Cairns, and his wife and two small sons. More than 18 gallons of paint were applied to the old structure, built in about 1910. Members removed some of the gingerbread, leveled ground and planted grass and poured new sidewalks. The old wooden front porch was replaced with a cement one.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

The SHOSHONE Methodist church parsonage, termed "an architectural nightmare" by some, has been transformed in recent months by the hard work and determination of members. The project, spearheaded by the Woman's Society of Christian Service, included applying 18 gallons of paint to the house. The parsonage now wears two coats of juniper green which, as neighbors will testify, is much cheerier than drab gray. One of these neighbors, not a Methodist, even helped by donating a gallon of paint. While not exactly a thing of beauty, the house, built about 1910, has been loved by some. The structure is narrow and high with gingerbread railings on useless porches both upstairs and on the ground level. To some pastors and their families it was merely a roof over their head (one that did not have to be endured too long) until they were moved on in time. But to others it was home, even though a temporary one. One pastor said his family contained four musical sons and the mother was a pianist. The old parsonage rang with joy during that time, but through the years it grew shabby "plastic surgery" could be performed on the gingerbread effect. Members answered the call to work enthusiastically and a crew of women scrubbed and painted every square inch of the inside of the house—even including cleaning out the basement and garage. There is now space in the garage for a car. New linoleum was laid in the upstairs bedrooms and one of the local merchants donated a new linoleum to cover the worn floor of the back porch. Some of the men of the church put in many hours on the grounds taking out old tree stumps and roots, leveling the ground and planting grass. New sidewalks were poured in front of the house and the old wooden front porch was replaced with a cement one.

The Shoshone parsonage has early memories for Mrs. Paul Ludlow, wife of the BUREY Methodist minister, for her father, the late Rev. C. E. Helman, was once the Shoshone pastor. Mrs. Ludlow recalls she was a baby when her family moved there and was too young to remember anything except stories she has heard about the house. Rev. Helman, who died in 1940, served seven years each in BUHL and FLIER. The new residents of the newly painted and scrubbed parsonage are Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Cairns and their two small sons. They have expressed appreciation for all the work that was done on the house and said they felt as if they were moving into a new home.

The Harold Stroud family, DIETRICH, had an interesting and exciting fishing trip recently when they had an encounter with a large rattlesnake. Stroud, upon discovering the snake, hit it with a stick and supposing the snake to be dead put it in the back of his pickup to take home so he could cut off the rattles. On the way home, however, the snake, apparently just stunned from the blow of the stick, revived and started crawling around in the truck. The two youngsters who were riding in the back jumped out. The children were not hurt and they now say that they are going to have rattlesnake meat for dinner.

that of an apparently healthy woman, a mother of five, who underwent a relatively minor operation. Two days later she was dead. The doctors said that the night before the woman confessed to her sister—who alone knew of the fortune-telling incident—that she did not expect to awake from the anesthetic. On the morning of the operation, the woman told a nurse she was certain she was going to die. But her fears were unknown to the doctors. An hour after the operation, she collapsed and lost consciousness. A post mortem revealed extensive internal bleeding for which there was no reasonable explanation. A spokesman for the British Medical Association said: "There is no medical explanation to account for this. It seems rather like the case of natives who die on the date and at the time witch doctors predict." Said a British psychiatrist—who because of the medical association's strict laws against doctors advertising asked that his name be withheld: "I do not believe that death can be accurately predicted by a fortune teller, but I am certain that an irresponsible forecast can set off reactions which can make it come true."

Woman's Death Predicted by Fortune Teller 38 Years Ago

LONDON (AP) — "You will die," predicted the fortune teller, "when you're 43."
That prediction was made 38 years ago when the fortune teller's client was 5 years old. The little girl grew up with the awesome prediction on her mind—and died one week after her 43rd birthday, said a report in Friday's issue of the British Medical Journal. The article was by three doctors—A. R. Elkington, D. D. Yun, and P. R. Steele—of the Grenfell Labrador Medical Mission, Ottawa. "We wonder if the severe emotional tensions of this patient superimposed on the physiological stress of surgery had any bearing upon her death," said the doctors. They suggested she may have been frightened to death and asked if British doctors knew of any similar cases. The doctors said the case was

Ex-Utah Official Is Charged With Embezzlement

LAYTON (UPI)—A charge of embezzlement and misuse of public funds was signed Friday against Mrs. Connie O. Stone, former Layton city recorder. Police Officer Alton P. Anderson signed the complaint, charging Mrs. Stone with embezzlement of $50 of city funds and misusing public money. The defendant was employed by the city from Feb. 11, 1960 until May 14, 1965 when she was asked to resign. Police Chief Brian Mottishaw said a cash shortage of $2,549 was discovered in July. Following her dismissal, Mrs. Stone prepared a report critical of city administration, alleging various violations of ordinances by city officials.

The Money Box

By FRANK SCHELL
Colonial coinage makes a fine collection by itself. Perhaps the most interesting thing about Colonial is that most of them were unauthorized, had no official status at all, and were in fact, medals, not coins (a great many of them bore no denomination of value) and yet, they were received quite readily as money. Bought merchandise, traveled the high seas, and have ended up in some instances worth a great deal more money than some of the coins of the time which were legal.

The coins of Maryland were actually struck in England for use in America, were issued in the denominations of a shilling, a sixpence, a fourpence and a copper penny. These coins bear the likeness of Cecil Calvert (Lord Baltimore) and are scarce.

After the Revolutionary War, and before unity was established as a fact in the United States, most of the colonies struck coins for themselves—some authorized, some illegal, but apparently all spendable. It must be remembered that few of the colonists could either read or write—so that a piece of copper or silver that had the appearance of regular money passed without question.

Colonial coinage for the most part is not particularly well struck. You will find that the planchets (the round metal disc upon which a coin is stamped) are not round, that rarely all the designs show well, and that a lot of these coins have pieces cut from them.

The paring of coins is as old as their production. Cut a small piece from each of a number of coins—melt the pieces down—and the resulting lump of metal is pure profit. This practice was discouraged effectively in England by the simple process of cutting off the right hand of the fellow who was caught at it. In July of 1778, Congress adopted the "Articles of Confederation" and one of the prerogatives reserved by Congress was that it should have the "sole right to regulate alloys and values of coins struck by their authority or that of the state."

Since by these articles of confederation each state had the right to strike its own money, most of them proceeded to do so. In New York, there was no authorized coinage, but a group of supposed "hardware" merchants banded together and struck a great many varieties of coins. This group, undoubtedly formed solely for the purpose of coinage for profit, was not engaged in a legal enterprise and no records have been found to indicate that their business was state-sanctioned. Since their articles of incorporation also make mention of Vermont and Connecticut, it is not too far-fetched to believe that some of the early coinage of these states was struck by this group.

Numbered among the coins attributed to this enterprise are the "Immunis Columbia," the "Indian Cent," the "Excelsior Cent," and some others. (All named after the Latin legend used on the actual coin.)

The "Nova Eborac" coin was presumably struck in England and circulated in New York as a private venture for gain.

Most of this coinage bears no denomination, but since it was mostly struck in copper and about the size of the English penny, it was given that value in trade. New Hampshire authorized a William Moulton to manufacture some representative coins, somewhat similar in appearance to the shilling of Massachusetts, but apparently this money never circulated and the coin is almost impossible to obtain.

In Vermont, on June 15, 1785, a gentleman named Reuben Harmon Jr., was granted permission to coin authorized money, and the Vermont coins have come down through the years in available quantities so that they are readily collectable. Also in 1785, an authorized mint was established in Connecticut by James Hillhouse, John Goodrich, Samuel Bishop and Joseph Hopkins. Evidence indicates that the actual striking of these Connecticut pieces was sub-contracted to other individuals and the actual coins were made either at Morris-

Rebels Problem to Reds, too

NEW YORK (NEA) — The Communist press has been forced to admit after years of silence that rebellious youth is as baffling a problem in the closed Red society as it is in the West. The conflict of generations—that head-on clash between old and new when youth steps over the threshold of maturity—has brought consternation to the Red leaders. The Marxist-Leninist dogma did not prepare them to meet the challenge of youth.

The Communist doctrine always insisted that the conflict between the old and young simply would not exist in the "new socialist society." All generations were to be united in the great goal of building a new Soviet man. Father and son were to work together in harmony for the benefit of all.

Like much of Red propaganda this also turned out to be a pipe dream. After almost 50 years of communism Lenin's new man and woman—who were to have developed with unique mental, moral and physical qualities—are nowhere in sight.

Red officialdom is discovering to its dismay that young Ivan, born and reared under communism, retains many traits of capitalist Johnny; that the dreams and hopes of Red-bred Tamara are, after all, not so different from those of her young sisters in "decadent" America.

As revealed in the daily press or in youth and school journals, young people behind the Iron Curtain are no longer concerned about such traditional touchstones of loyalty to Communist doctrine as the dictatorship of the proletariat or the primacy of the Communist party. They care more about making a fast buck (or ruble) today than about the promises of Marxism-Leninism. Alcoholism, prostitution, unwed mothers and what the Reds call "a cynical search for an easy life" are on the increase in Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, East Germany and other Red-dominated countries.

However, it is not the spread of juvenile delinquency or the youngsters "infected by the Beats and the Beats" that really worries the Red rulers.

They are much more concerned with the intellectual even the Communist youth who are becoming rebellious to an ever increasing extent. A vital point of dissension between the Communist youth and the older generation of Reds still centers on the question of Stalinism. It is much like the conflict going on in West Germany over the Nazi era.

Just as young Germans are questioning their parents' role under Hitler, young Communists ask older Communists how they could have looked on and condoned, or even encouraged, the brutality and mass murders of Stalin's regime.

Thus, despite several generations of Communist indoctrination, the young people behind the Iron Curtain increasingly scorn the "cherished values of heritage."

In articles, stories and printed and distributed openly or illegally, they ask embarrassing questions of their rulers. They chafe at the restrictions regimented Red society imposes.

The big question is: What will happen when the time comes for the younger generation to move into positions of power?

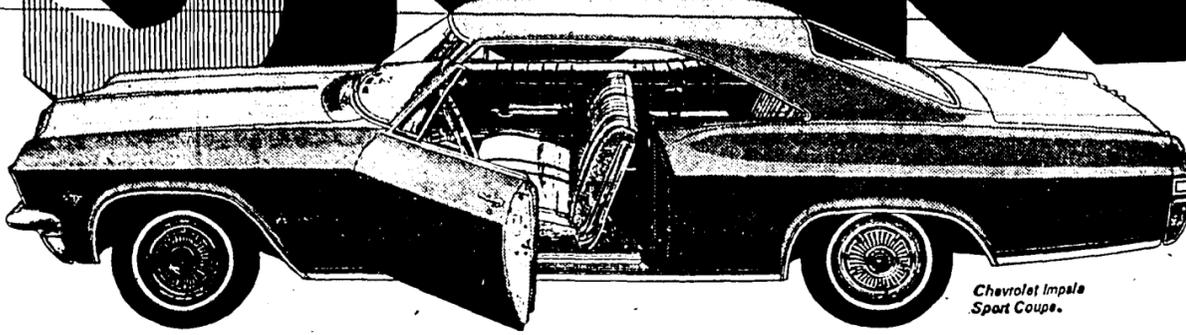

Young people behind the Iron Curtain are already playing the role of catalysts in a process of change which is causing long-cherished doctrines to be challenged. When they assume power it is likely that they will give further encouragement to the growth of at least a half-dozen brands of communism.

East or West, modern society has spawned a class of teenagers who are in rebellion against the adult world around them. Their ways and ideas are remarkably similar—whether they live under communism or capitalism.

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT . . .

Aldrich Bowler, Bliss, Has Been Interested in Theater for Years

BLISS — To call on Aldrich Bowler, Bliss, better known as Drich, one is apt to find him cleaning false eyelashes, preparing to leave for the theater, or returning from a Rotary appearance with part of the cast, and unless an appointment has been made ahead of time, one is not likely to find him at all.

ALDRICH BOWLER

He always was interested in drama and became seriously involved in 1933 after winning the high school state declamation contest and made up his mind then to follow the theater. After graduating from the University of Idaho, with his major in dramatics, he went to New York as a scholarship apprentice and was allowed to work salary-free with the Farragut Players in Rye Beach, N.H.

On a low income, they were never bored. Bowler was drafted in the largest call in America, in April, 1943. Here again with his theatrical background, he was privileged to do orientation lectures and as a buck sergeant, of the 898 Signal Corps, attached to the Air Force.

He also was put into radio airborn repair and learned camera skills and basic electrical and radio circuits, which have been valuable training for stage lighting.

He soon found himself giving performances at General MacArthur's headquarters. He and a staff sergeant were repairmen to MacArthur's airplane, and flew it to check out the radio equipment, but never with the general on board.

While in the service, through New Guinea, the Philippines, Okinawa and Japan, Bowler states that he and Dr. Mrs. Bliss, matured and began to lose the egocentric idea that the world was waiting to see their names on Broadway in lights.

They planned to forsake the New York theater idea and try to follow up on ideas of a small cooperative theater in a more rural area. At the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, they were at the home of the editor of the Call Chronicle in Allentown, Pa., having been instrumental in bringing a company together to form such a cooperative theater. However, the Pearl Harbor news scattered the group all over the world.

Before making the final break, when Bowler received his discharge from the Air Force, they returned to New York and spent six months making sure the change was what they wanted. During this time, possibilities in the theater presented themselves.

Di was offered the lead in the first road show of "Deep Are The Roots," one of the first plays, which would have separated them again, and he was offered the opportunity to direct the Phoenix Little Theater.

They both turned down their respective offers, and came to Gooding where, through the work Bowler's mother had been doing in ceramics, they became fascinated with the craft.

That fall they both entered the University of Idaho, changing their majors to art and spent a fruitful year in preparation to take up this new work with their hands. This materialized into the Snake River Pottery, located on the Snake River in Hagerman Valley, near Bliss.

They bought three acres with a spring on it and "from scratch" and with practically no funds, built a home and pottery shop of unique design.

er to fill Bowler's spot on the faculty.

While in Europe, they sought out and paid particular attention to the community festivals, art exhibits, carnivals and "tribal" gatherings. They learned of small towns that are supported by winter festivals uniquely theatrical, such as the Passion Play and other traditional productions.

Bowler feels strongly that the Thousand Springs area is ideal for this sort of community-involved festival.

"We can look to the time with the already existing facilities, such as fishing, water sports, winter sports, Balanced Rock, the Herrett's planetarium, abundant water springs, fossils and the agricultural development, that we can give a year-round program with the theater attracting other performing companies in ballet, small opera," he declares.

Because of a developed audience and already existing standards of production, other quality groups can be invited to include this area in their tours.

he feels, using as an example the town of Ashland, Ore., where the population of approximately 8,000 people benefit financially by the Shakespearian Festival each summer, which attracts thousands of tourists. With the average tourist leaving $20 per person in the town, if he spends 24 hours there, the citizens can't help but profit.

As a complimentary and added feature of the community theatre in Magic Valley, Bowler envisions an extension of cultural growth, in the form of a practical showboat in the Thousand Springs area, that will combine a theatre with an opportunity to appreciate nature's beauty.

He sees this as a museum of the Oregon Trail in a tasteful and authentic historical museum. A children's theater with both marionette and live actors, cruising in the daytime, and a night-time showing of classical melodrama, with themes related to the field of revitalizing of the early American West also are envisioned.

This would be most ideal in linking the theater with the beautiful springs. His dream is to have a sidewheeler, a replica of the Mississippi or Missouri riverboat with a seating capacity of 200 persons.

Bowler calls attention to the fact that an important thing to the whole area is that one of the most likely national monuments left in America is the famous Pleistocene fossil beds.

With the record of melting glaciers locked in the silts of the downwarp of the Snake River plain, this desert fossil bed, accessible by bridge, boat or sky-ways, could develop into a monument of national interest that would attract the traveler in search of knowledge. With the theater and the natural wonders, this begins to look like a valuable recreational area, and should be ready for the leisure boom of automation, he believes.

Bowler predicts that in 25 years, this will be one of the best preserved and thoughtfully developed recreational areas in America, where people will come from all over the world to see the clear spring water gush from basalt cliffs, and he states he plans to "work his head off" to help see this come about.

The Buhl Antique Festival name was selected to convey the feeling of the classical or old drama and to avoid frightening people with the word "classical" and all its textbook connotations.

The fortuitous circumstance an already existing theater, the Ramona, in town, a stage house capable of "flying" scenery; of having fine dressing rooms, storage for properties, an intimate auditorium with fine acoustics and seating approximately 500, has made it possible to bring into being these productions.

The community, largely through the drama program at the Buhl High School, where Bowler teaches, has been made aware of, and interested in dramatic productions and has given wholehearted cooperation in this creative effort.

This enthusiasm has spread rapidly throughout Magic Valley. People from Twin Falls, Hagerman, Hailey, Castleford and Filer have joined the company. They travel at their own expense to rehearse, work on costumes and scenery, as well as most importantly providing contacts that draw arcaid interest and audiences.

Existing are thousands of dramas now in the public domain due to the expiration of copyrights, and with careful reading, editing and adapting, these plays are as alive and vital as any plays in existence.

These are the grist of the Antique Theatre. The adapting, research and editing are mainly done by Mrs. Bowler during the winter season, and these are the scripts used.

From Bowler's viewpoint, an audience is 75 percent of any theatre and while teaching speech and drama in Buhl High School, he has done everything he could to make the community aware of the whole field of art and particularly the performing arts.

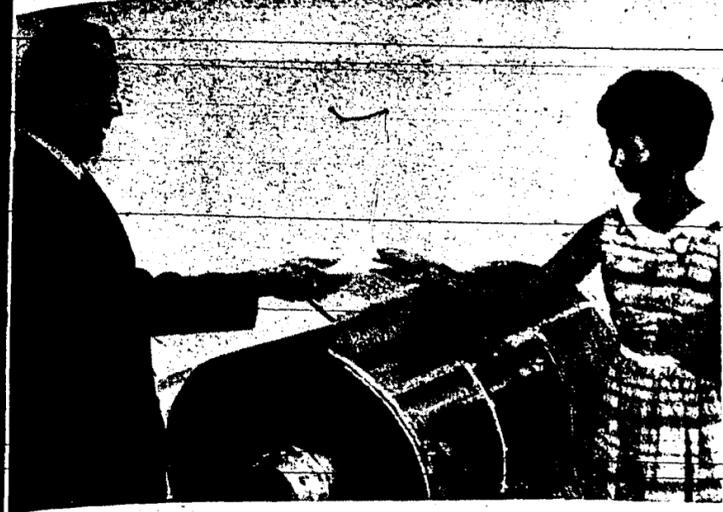

In this venture he has had the unflinching support of the parents, students, administration and school trustees. They have made an effort to get the students to college productions at Idaho State University, Boise Junior College and the College of Idaho. They present two major high school plays every year, doing varied dramas that have literary worth as well as terrific entertainment value.

A high point was reached in the effort of producing the senior class play in the fall of 1964 as a celebration of the quater-centennial of Shakespeare's birth by doing "The Taming of the Shrew." This involved changing the high school auditorium into a replica of the Fortune Theatre used in Shakespeare's time.

Many hundreds of man hours were involved in rehearsal, direction, study, production, including costumes and lighting. Rates were made for schools and many districts brought busloads of students to take advantage of this opportunity. The four performances were viewed by 2,500 persons and proved the capabilities of the high school in this field.

FIRST CONTROLLED HUNT drawing in the new headquarters building of the Idaho Fish and Game Department shows Merziam Fuller, secretary, handing winning permit card drawn from "squirrel cage" to Kay Belnap, chief of business administration. Over twice as many people applied for controlled hunt permits than last year.

Record Number of Applicants Seek Controlled Hunt Permits This Year

BY JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish and Game Department

This is the first summer on record that applicants for controlled hunt permits more than equaled the number available. The first time around without need for a second public drawing, except for a few mountain goat hunts. Interest in most types of animal species, regardless of animal species or geographical location, was overwhelming.

It is a reliable gauge to the value hunters place on trophy animals such as moose, mountain goat and pronghorn antelope. It is double what it was last year. For example, a final count of applicants eagerly sought 40 moose permits, and 6,682 people put in for 1,365 antelope permits available through public drawing. This suggests that these trophy animals are highly valued indeed, because Idaho moose and antelope cannot be hunted without permits.

On the other hand, over 11,000 people entered the drawing for elk permits. Controlled elk hunts are not that much better than general seasons where permits are not needed. None of them have big bulls, or even small calves, behind every bush.

The chief advantage of permit hunting to those who take part is that the number of animals in a restricted unit may be more than those during the general season, especially near population centers. This some advantage is overcome by men and women who get off beaten paths for more elk and quality wilderness safaris.

Amos Kay Belnap, chief of business administration, is of the opinion that a change in policy this year doubled the number of applications. He points out that no money was required for fees or game tags for applicants wanting controlled hunt permits for deer, elk and antelope. Only winners at the public drawing must remit within ten days of the date on the notification card or their permits will be voided.

"Apparently, the idea of not having to send permit and tags to have these fees returned if they were unsuccessful appealed to many people," he comments.

Controlled hunts give hunters equal opportunities to try for a highly sought-after species. They also provide additional management data, and limit the hunting pressure in easily accessible areas near population centers where thousands of hunters might converge if open for general hunting.

Growing hunting pressure and eminent populations of some trophy animals are twin reasons for some form of special controlled hunt.

Bighorn sheep have built-in protection against overshooting because of the precipitous terrain. Also only rams having horns three-quarter curl or better may be taken.

sis just before the season began. This involved a great amount of book work in comparison to the costs of managing other controlled hunts, and has been discontinued.

Only a handful of mountain goat permits now remain, and there are no takers for these in time for the second public drawing Wednesday, they will be rescinded.

Another significant change this year is the removal of the small elk herd units 40 and 41 in Owyhee County from controlled hunt status.

That county will not support a big elk herd but is capable of carrying large numbers of mule deer. Moreover, too many elk would cause serious depredation problems to ranchers. A number of these elk are shot accidentally by hunters every year and permit holders who won in public drawing complain that they never see an elk. Game management people say that the herd can be maintained at its present size while supporting general hunting.

The earliest beginnings of controlled hunts go back to a state law passed in 1919 to prevent the taking of game animals on any preserve or refuge. This was amended later to provide for the removal of excessive numbers of game animals.

One provision read in part, " . . . the state game warden may hold public drawing and issue permits to take buck deer, bull elk, bull moose, buck antelope or buck sheep on any game preserve or elsewhere . . . for a fee of $10."

This law was changed in 1935 to allow the taking of any class of animal specially designated by the Fish and Game Warden. Fee changes and other modifications also were made.

After the Commission form of government was established for the Fish and Game Department, additional amendments were made to change the name of the Department head from "warden" to "director." In 1945 another change provided that "such special hunt permits to hunt game animal are not transferable."

There were few other rules established other than fees and hunting areas until about 1946 when it was required that any person obtaining a permit to hunt bull moose must be accompanied by a conservation officer. His job was to advise which bull could be shot! This, too, has been changed.

flanges. Uncut sections of the huge beams will be up to 100 feet long.

One of the stringers must be just about as heavy as the old bridge. The heaviest single section will weigh about 75,000 pounds, and, when put together, they will form a steel bridge weighing 1.27 million pounds—and, sure enough, costing just a little less than a dollar a pound, about $1.25 million.

Those accessories thrown in are themselves considerable. More than a million pounds of steel will disappear from sight as reinforcement for the 7,000 cubic yards of concrete.

A good part of this reinforced concrete goes into the two mammoth pillars which will rise 337 feet from their footings in the canyon below. In order to support the tremendous weight of the bridge above, this concrete must be able to support a ton and a half per square inch.

The point of all this is the new roadbed. It will be 28 feet wide—a comfortable two lanes—and 762 feet long. The wooden planks of the old bridge will be replaced by a durable concrete road surface. There will be no load restrictions for the new span other than normal highway limits. And it is a good bet that a person will be able to drive faster than the present 15 miles per hour prolongation of the agony.

Clearly someone has quite a job on his hands. Peter Kiewit and Sons Co., Omaha, stopped in to do it. Kiewit now has a work force of 35 men working on a job that may take more than a year to complete.

There is some flexibility in the required completion date because the contract was let on a workday basis. That is, the company has a given number of working days to finish the job. Barring loss of time due to bad weather, attacks by landmark salvationists or the like, the contractor must finish by October, 1966, or pay significant fines for each extra day needed for the project's completion.

Kiewit is given free rein in building the bridge. The firm can do anything it pleases as long as the final product meets Idaho's specifications.

In practice, however, the three inspecting state engineers work closely with the crews, checking and okaying each phase of construction as soon as it is completed.

One thing readily apparent is that the work crews are predominantly men from local areas. Kiewit seems to have made an effort to utilize local supplies of labor whenever possible.

How is the new bridge being built? Just how does a fellow lift one of those hundred-foot beams into place in the middle of the Snake River Canyon, anyway?

One of the first steps, and what is being done at the site now, is the construction of the high-line.

The high-line is a three-inch cable which will soon be strung across the canyon to support and hoist into place the huge members of the bridge. The cable will be supported on each side of the canyon by towers now under construction.

The towers now can be seen as they rest horizontally, canting away from the canyon. When they are erected to a vertical position they will rise far above the old bridge's towers. It seems a pity that these high-line supports will be torn down after the bridge is completed, but they are, after all, only tools.

Between these towers will shuttle a platform from which up to 40-ton weights may be safely lifted into place in mid-canyon. The platform will be controlled from a huge winch and power plant now being readied on the south side of the canyon.

But what everyone wants to know is how did that D-7 Caterpillar get down in the bottom of the canyon—before the high-line was ready for use?

Sure enough, a 20-ton caterpillar, tiny in the canyon bottom, can be seen resting on a small spot it itself leveled. How did it manage to get down those 300-foot sheer walls?

According to workmen, it was a simple enough matter. A larger D-8 trawler, firmly anchored to the canyon rim, lowered the smaller tractor down the wall.

However, a nagging question comes to the novice's mind: What if the suspended 20 tons were to drag the anchor tractor over the rim. What then—two tractors on the canyon bottom? Workers shrug off such speculation. It's there, they point out conclusively.

Geologists Conclude Study Of Hagerman Fossil Beds

HAGERMAN—A team of geologists from the University of Michigan has just completed a two-month study of the fossil beds in the valley wall, west of Hagerman, under the direction of Dr. Claude W. Hibbard, professor of geology, museum of paleontology, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Dr. Hibbard has worked for 27 summers in the Southwestern part of Kansas, and Western Texas on similar studies and is interested in the age relation of the local fossil beds to those in the Kansas-Texas plains.

They found certain mammals, such as horses, mastodons, camels, peccary, some of the rabbits and some of the rodents, are related to the ones in the high plains, but in many ways the animal life is different.

The study is mainly concerned with the animals and living conditions approximately the same time in history. Findings show that the desert area was a flood plain or stream channel, at the time of the existence of the fossils they found during their studies.

The lava flow, about half way up the canyon wall west of Hagerman, was caused before the top layer was formed, and since the crew started their study this summer, a radioactive date has been set on the time of the occurrence of this lava flow.

The University of California, through the potassium argon method, has established the time of this formation at 3,500,000 years ago. Another date established on the volcanic rock or ash above the canyon wall was set at 3,200,000 years ago.

As the Kansas-Texas plains and this area were formed at approximately the same time, the crew has been mainly concerned with the climate when the animals lived here, in comparison to the plains areas.

Ground sloths, too big for trees, and mastodons are two of the common remains they have found, along with beaver fossils, which carries out the theory of the flood plain or stream channel. Many fish remains were found, at least half of which are now extinct.

Dr. Hibbard states that one of the interesting facets in the fish remains were the catfish fossils, the size of channel catfish which are not found today, unless imported, west of the Rockies.

One type of shrew was found that is not found today west of the Mississippi River and Eastern Kansas.

Lots of bird bones were found, but an extensive study of bird fossils has not been made to relate much on the findings, but bones of grebe, some ducks, swan and geese, along with shore birds were found.

Remains of the present-day bullfrog were found. These are not natural to this area. Frog remains as large as the bullfrog of the present day also were discovered.

Farragut to Be Camp for LDS Scouts

BOISE (UPI)—Farragut State Park will be the site again next year for a scout camporee.

Gov. Robert E. Smylie announced Friday about 1,000 Boy Scouts from LDS churches in six states and a Canadian province will camp at Farragut next August.

Smylie said the Boy Scout Council of the church had accepted "our invitation" to conduct the two-week encampment on the shores of Lake Pend Oreille in the state's newest and biggest park.

He said the camporee will draw LDS Boy Scouts from Utah, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia.

The camporee will have no effect, Smylie said, on plans to conduct the International Boy Scout Roundup at Farragut in August, 1967. Extensive remodeling of the park will be necessary before the 50,000 International Boy Scouts visit the park.

The International Girl Scout Roundup was held at Farragut last month.

Raging Elephant Overturns Car In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Two badly bruised and frightened South African tourists were forced to spend the night in their battered car after an enraged female elephant had charged the vehicle and overturned it.

The elephant's tusks twice pierced the bodywork during the attack which took place in Rhodesia's Wankie Game Reserve.

It was 14 hours before a search party rescued cold and hungry J. Castleden and P. Hollick, tourists from South Africa.

Castleden said he had slowed down to allow a herd of elephants to cross the road when a cow suddenly charged the car, knocking it off its wheels. The vehicle rolled over at least twice, coming to rest upside down.

The men remained in the badly damaged vehicle for fear of a further attack by the lions and leopards which infest the area.

A game ranger said it was the first time in 33 years that a car had been attacked in the Reserve.

Cactus Blossoms Only Once Yearly for Local Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hampton, Twin Falls, were the proud owners of a cluster of four lavender cactus blossoms—but only for one day early last week. Their cactus chooses to bloom only 24 hours each year.

Hampton, a retired painter, bought the cactus here in Idaho three years ago, when it was three years old. In its fifth year the cactus first ventured one of its trumpet-shaped flowers. This year it boasts four.

The Hamptons have been watching the slowly emerging buds for more than two weeks, expecting the blossom at any time. Hampton explains his interest in the cactus as "flower

First Lady and Daughter End Shopping Visit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and her daughter Lynda Bird wound up their three-day shopping visit Friday after a night on the town including a visit to a discotheque by Lynda.

The Johnsons have been shopping for fall clothes, visiting shops and art galleries, and taking in a few plays. They have looked at the fashion collections of Geoffrey Beene, Adele Simpson, and Marquise, among others, and saw more clothes Friday morning in their Hotel Carlyle suite.

A game ranger said it was the first time in 33 years that a car had been attacked in the Reserve.

desired. Polyurethane froth foam, which comes in liquid form produces heat from 160 to 187 degrees as is used. It is shot from a high-pressure gun and the material solidifies upon coming in contact with air.

After the desired shapes were attained the newspapers were removed. Nylon batting was glued onto the base which gives a soft fluffy effect.

Floral spray paint was used, as it doesn't harden as enamel when dried. The finished result, each wig with all the trimmings, weighs approximately one and one-half pounds. Four wigs are worn in the play and come in shaded hues of pink, green, white and blue. The headdresses are artistic and enhancing to behold.

The stars also wear elaborate jewelry, exotic dinner rings, necklaces, baubles, bangles, and bracelets all glittery and ostentatious, most becoming and effective on stage.

Authentic stylish costumes of the period are repeated in the men's attires. Exuberance of color is used in their fashions which feature distinctive knee breeches, pleated waistcoats, long colored stockings, lace ruffled shirts, and in some cases topped with a "jabot" or ornamental frill on the shirt bosom. Ribbon loop bows and streamers of varied colors enhance the finery.

Simplicity styles of the "Dutch", are worn in the one-act play, "The Broken Jug" by Von Kleist. Pastel embroidered cotton gowns are worn by the women and dark cotton ensembles by the male stars.

In "The Boor" by Ox Chekhov, another one act play, a Russian creation is worn by Mrs. Di Bowler in her portrayal of a bereaved widow. She wears a picturesque moss green crepe and taffeta gown fashioned similar to the Victorian style, with tight-fitting long shirred sleeves detailed with a bustle and graceful train.

COMMON HOUSEHOLD articles such as draperies, curtains and bedspreads are transformed into lavish costumes for the productions of the Antique Festival Theater, now giving weekend performances through Aug. 29 at the Ramona Theater, Buhl. Displaying their elegant costumes, the results of much donated work and time, are from left, Lynne Miller, Buhl; Mike Wetherell, scholarship student from Mountain Home, and Mrs. Madl Brallsford, Twin Falls. repeated in the fashions of "The Beggar's Opera", a John Gay satiric play. The English mode of dress of 1728, the Tom Jones era, is recreated in this gay liting musical. Old costumes had to be utilized to fit the character portrayals of "underworld - public outlaws" and the "women of the streets."

The costuming was made possible through the efforts of Mrs. Wilma Miller, costume designer, who, after much study and research, designed the gowns and did much of the sewing. Other capable seamstresses who devoted their energies to this phase of the production were Audrey von Lindern, Marge Chupa, Frances Kamrich and Donna Peters. Last-minute assistance was rendered by Rose Barker, Helen Baggs and Marcie Kern.

All of these costumes will go into the Antique Festival Theater permanent wardrobe to be used in future productions. Persons wishing to donate old materials, costumes, drapes, bedspreads or costume jewelry to the theater are urged to contact Mrs. Miller.

She noted the costumes for this summer season plays were obtained through contributions; some materials were purchased at auctions.

Acting talents and the rich costuming combine to give the theatergoer a pleasurable, entertaining evening. The plays are presented at the Ramona Theater in Buhl on weeknights with the season to conclude Aug. 29.

The play schedule includes "The Intellectual Ladies", 10, 22 and 28. "The Beggar's Opera", 15, 20 and 29. "The Broken Jug" and "The Boor", appearing as a single playbill, Aug. 8, 13, 21, and 27. Curtain time for each performance is 8:30 p.m.

MRS. RICHARD SMITH, Twin Falls, shows off the marshmallow and candy castle she made. The edifice required more than six weeks of spare time work. Her fortunate friends may be treated with such a castle, providing they "have everything." Hopefully she can manage to keep her hungry and dangerously small children away from the goodies long enough to offer it as a gift. (Times-News photo)

Twin Falls Woman Builds Candy, Marshmallow Castles for Friends

A good woman to make friends with is Mrs. Richard L. (Helen) Smith, Twin Falls — if you have a sweet tooth, that is. Mrs. Smith makes candy and marshmallow castles that probably would have pleased King Arthur, to give to her friends who have everything. Each of the 12-by-18-by-12-inch candy castles takes about six weeks of her spare time to build. The central tower and outside walls are covered by more than 1,000 white, miniature marshmallows. The turrets are topped with previously frosted and decorated ice cream cones flying gold flags. When finished, the castles are personalized with a red flag bearing the recipient's name flying above the central tower. Mrs. Smith has been making these marshmallow castles for five years, since she first got the idea at a Toastmistress banquet at Idaho Falls more than five years ago.

TOMATO TROUBLES: This is the time of year we get letters asking for reasons why the lower leaves of tomatoes turn brown, curl or drop. The most likely cause is a fungus disease known as early blight or alternaria, the same villain which kills zinnias and many other ornamentals. Early blight is a foliage killer but it may also cause fruit rot around the stem end of fruit. You can spot it this way: Look for brown spots with concentric rings in a target pattern on the lower leaves. Spots enlarge, leaves turn brown, drop off, causing fruits to be small or even unsuited. Early blight fungus overwinters in old tomato vines and on weeds such as Jimson, horse-nettle, ground cherry and nightshade. CONTROL: Spray plants with maneb (2 tablespoons per gallon of water) every 7 to 10 days. This also handles another fungus disease, anthracnose, which causes dime-sized slightly sunken spots on ripe fruits. Another reason for browning and drooping of foliage is Verticillium wilt, a fungus which attacks potatoes, peppers, eggplants, melons, strawberries, stone fruits and nearly 500 other cultivated crops. Look for yellow splotches on older leaves in center of the tomato plant. Soon chocolate-brown spots develop in the center of the yellow area. Mid-day wilting and evening recovery is quite common. CONTROL: Use resistant varieties such as Heinz 1350, Galaxy and Campbell 1327. FREE: Want to know more about tomato troubles? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my new guide, HOW TO DOCTOR YOUR TOMATOES AGAINST BUGS AND BLIGHTS. My guide is full of tips on growing disease-free chin-trickling tomatoes. You should have a copy for your green thumb files. PITTING CHERRIES: A reader writes: "Your suggestion of using a paper clip to pit cherries is excellent. It saved us a lot of work and it's fast." (Green Thumb note: The idea for using a paper clip to remove cherry pits was sent me by a reader. I hope other readers will continue to send me their suggestions so we can carry them in this department.) STUMPS: Having troubles with stumps? A reader tells me that salt-peter crystals poured into holes bored into the heart of the trunk disintegrated it within two years. After that it was punky enough to break apart and place on the compost pile. Rotted woods earth, founded in decayed logs and stumps in woods is packed with beneficial bacteria and fungi. If you scoop out some of this and place it on a stump, the inoculation will start rotting the stump. There's no magic material you can put on a stump and rot it in a jiffy. The quickest (and most expensive) way to get rid of a stump is to hire a stump puller. Most reliable tree specialists have one and they'll be glad to quote you a figure if you're in a hurry to have a stump removed. COMPOST PILES: If you place lawnclippings and weeds on the compost pile, will the seeds from the weeds germinate later when you want to use the rotted material? Some of it will. Home gardeners find seedlings of tomatoes, peppers, petunias and other plants growing in composted material. Quite often weed seeds will survive the compost period and will germinate after the material is scattered in flower or vegetable garden. Actually, this is not serious because such weeds can be quickly pulled. If you used a weedkiller on such toughies as Buckthorn (Plantain), the plants themselves may be killed but the seeds are not affected. I wouldn't worry too much about weeds being a problem from the compost. The only precaution you should take is that of plant diseases, cabbage problems, to name a few. COLUMBINE: Few perennials are more showy than the Columbine, a favorite in most gardens. They are fine as cut flowers, especially the KcKana Giants, hybrids noted for their sturdy growth, grand colors and huge flowers, some having spurs 5 inches long. Hummingbirds are attracted to the columbines. Columbines have on fault: they inhybridize and self-sow in the garden. Some seedlings produce husky types. For that reason you should plan on setting out new plants every few years. Summer care: Remove seed pods as soon as the flowers go. This maintains vigor and prevents self-sowing. Troubles: Leaf-miner. This pest makes white winding markings in the leaves. Pick off infested leaves and burn. In fall, cut plant back and burn debris. Next spring spray with malathion before the leaf miner shows up. Crown rot: is another pest of columbines. The stems and leaves wilt and die back. Remove and destroy infected plants. Plant new ones in different spot in spring. You can sow seed now and get flowering plants next year. Spring-sown seeds do not produce flowering plants until the following year. Some gardeners have good luck dividing their plants in August or September. BATS: I've been asked for information on ridding premises of bats which hide in attics, walls, and chimneys. First let me say that bats are beneficial by feeding on night-flying insects. Thus, your job is not to destroy bats but to exclude them from your buildings. You do this by filling cracks around chimneys, eaves, ends of rafters, using oakum, wood, asphalt siding or roofing, or metal. Bats do not like the smell of naphthalene or paradichlorobenzene (moth balls and flakes), so you can sprinkle some in the attic, or hang the chemical in cloth bags near ceilings. Bats are not likely to return as long as the odor of the chemical persists. QUESTION OF THE WEEK: G. L. of Minidoka: "For the past four years we have had a row of hibiscus for a length of 20 ft. They thrived well, produced large pink flowers until this year. The plants are wilting and the leaves curling. Our neighbor has been spraying his lawn-with-an-attachment-to-kill weeds (plantain, dandelions, etc.) There's a distance of 35 feet from his own area where he sprayed. It could easily be injury from the weedkiller which no doubt contains some 2,4-D weedkilling chemical. You need only a small trace of 2,4-D weedkiller to knock out susceptible plants such as melons, tomatoes, beans, roses, hibiscus, or any other broadleaf item. Unfortunately, 2,4-D is unable to differentiate between broadleaf weeds and crop plants. The active ingredient may be carried by air currents and cause injury at a distance of 1/2 mile or more from the sprayed area. Dust weedkillers may be carried for several miles. Tomato plants in all stages of growth are susceptible to injury from weedkillers, so if your plants happen to have twisted leafstalks which bend downward, followed by stunting, you can be almost positive that someone has been using a weedkiller spray or dust in the vicinity. B. R. of Aberdeen: "Please tell me if there is anything we can spray on our flower beds to keep grass and other plants from spreading. It's a back-breaking job keeping the weeds out of our flower beds." The best weedkiller for this job is a small hoe and hand-pulling. If you apply any kind of a spray you're apt to injure the flowers. Pull the weeds out while they're small and go over the beds weekly to get the small seedlings that pop up. It's a lot easier than waiting until the weeds are big and tough to pull out. K. D. of Mountain Home: "My daughter-in-law talked with a person who has a yellow African Violet. We're interested in growing one but cannot find anyone who has them. Can it be started from seed?" For years folks have been talking about a "red" or a "yellow" African violet, but no such things exist. Your daughter-in-law no doubt talked with a person who has another plant which was mistaken for an African Violet. The so-called "red" African violet (Episcia) has been crossed and crossed in an effort to get a real red African Violet, but it won't work because the plants have an unlike number of chromosomes. The outlook for a yellow African violet is not promising. There is no such thing and anyone who is attempting to hybridize a yellow violet of the garden with an African Violet is wasting his time. The outdoor violet and the indoor African Violet are not even related!

An automobile came out second best about 7:30 p. m. Friday when it collided with a horse at the intersection of Locust Street North and Eldridge Avenue. The horse, owned by William Allen, Hansen, and being kept at the Burr Dennis stable at 1740 Eldridge Ave., had escaped and was being chased west on Eldridge Avenue. The car, driven by Francis Brown, 67, 233 Canyon Ave., was going north on Locust Street South and collided with the horse at the intersection. The horse was thrown into the air, came down and rolled and kicked his way into a field about 200 feet from the scene of the accident. The horse lay in the field for about 15 minutes until a veterinarian arrived, treated him for cuts and bruising and took him back to the corral. The horse was reported doing well. The 1935 Ford had about $300 damages to the front end.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, Aug. 8—Born today, you have a highly developed spiritual side to your nature, and you will not be happy unless something of this quality has a prominent place in your daily life. It is a quality that may find expression in the simple process of being "good" or it may become your most dominant characteristic and lead you into a professionally religious life.

You have a great need for personal involvement with other people, and are prone to taking other people's problems for your own. But take care that you do not spend so much of your self seeking solutions to other people's difficulties that you have neither the energy nor the mind left for solving difficulties of your own. This would be easier to do than you might suppose.

One who deals so easily with the overall, general picture as with the small details, you would make an outstanding executive. You have the ability to hold the strings in your fingers, separately, yet together, manipulating them all to perfection.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Monday, Aug. 9

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — A promising day for the Leo who has a large part to play in business procedure. A chance for a good-sized profit.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — Employ your own talents, not those of others, to take you a step along the road of success today. Be self-reliant.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — Contracts, especially those involving real estate, are favored today. A good day for concluding a business deal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Strike while the iron's hot—but keep your aims in sight or you may strike in the wrong direction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) — You can benefit materially from good working conditions. Surround yourself with congenial companions, if nothing else.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20) — Keep alert to opportunities. It would be easy for something good to slip by you today, so be on your guard.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) — An excellent day for employment opportunities for the Aquarius who is job hunting. Put your best foot forward.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Advance your own personal interests by cooperating with others and seeing that they cooperate with you.

ARIES (March 21-April 20) — Should communications with relatives come up for consideration, remember that "it is not wisdom to be only wise."

TAURUS (April 21-May 21) — Most satisfactory results insofar as a new project is concerned can be gained today through close cooperation with a partner.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — Take nothing for granted as the new work-week begins. Don't confuse social with business commitments.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) — A progressive and alert attitude will get the job done. Make your plans a long line with which you're already familiar.

Economics
Clashes Over
Salmon Run

SALMON — Economics has clashed head-on with perpetuation of the Chinook salmon runs.

Upper Salmon River area businessmen argue that their business has been reduced as much as 60 per cent over last year as a result of the salmon sports fishery closure in Idaho. Idaho and Oregon fishery officials are sympathetic to the loss but they say the closure was a necessity to maintain the runs in future years.

Some 200 persons were on hand Wednesday night at a public hearing which ran more than four hours giving a thorough airing to the salmon and steelhead situation.

Presiding were Paul Brog, president of the Salmon Chamber of Commerce, and John Woodworth, head of the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

Officials from the Oregon Fish Commission and Washington State Department of Fisheries, Idaho Fish and Game Department and Idaho Fish and Game Commission also attended.

Demands were heard from upper Salmon River area residents for reopening of salmon fishing in Idaho while others agreed the closure was necessary in view of the small spring and summer runs.

Traffic counts made in Stanley Basin and at the Clayton Ranger Station were offered as evidence of the loss of business to the area.

Elvin Albiston, Idaho State policeman stationed at Salmon, said that 10 cars were counted during a four-hour radar check period in Stanley Basin on July 24. A year ago during a similar four-hour period, 240 autos were noted.

WEEKEND OF FUN?
LOUISVILLE (AP)—When Larry Pohlman transferred to a new job here, he spent months in motels and hotels until he found a home for his family. Later, he won first prize in a contest—"a fabulous weekend of fun" at a motel.

Captain EASY

by LESLIE TRAVEL

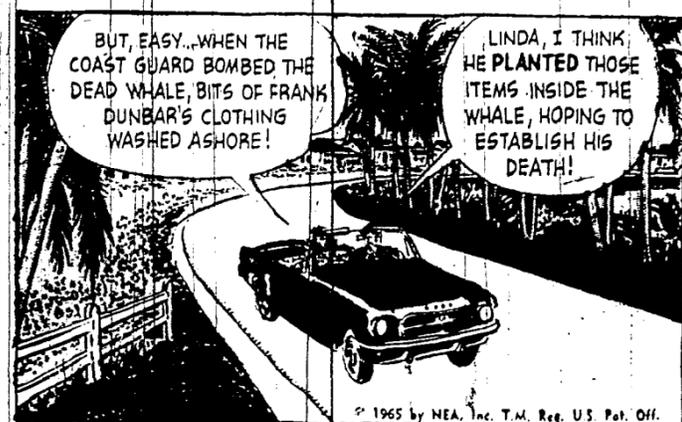

EASY, THE BEACHCOMBER SWEARS HE SAW SOMEONE HACK A HOLE IN THE SIDE OF THE WHALE LAST NIGHT... MAYBE STUFF SOMETHING INSIDE!

IF IT WAS A BODY, IT WASN'T FRANK DUNBAR'S!

LINDA, YOU'RE AN AUTHOR... YOU WANT TO BELIEVE IN THIS BIZARRE SITUATION!

BUT EASY... WHEN THE COAST GUARD BOMBED THE DEAD WHALE, BITS OF FRANK DUNBAR'S CLOTHING WASHED ASHORE!

LINDA, I THINK HE PLANTED THOSE ITEMS INSIDE THE WHALE, HOPING TO ESTABLISH HIS DEATH!

1965 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

THEN YOU THINK HE'S ALIVE?

YES...

I THINK HE DECIDED TO KEEP THE $74,000 HE STOLE FROM HIS BANK!

BUT IN HIS NOTE TO ME HE SAID HE STOLE THE MONEY TO PAY A GAMBLING DEBT!

COULD BE THE GAMBLER WHOSE BODY WAS INSIDE THAT WHALE WHEN IT WAS BLOWN TO BITS!

...I CAN'T BELIEVE THAT FRANK WOULD COMMIT M-MURDER!

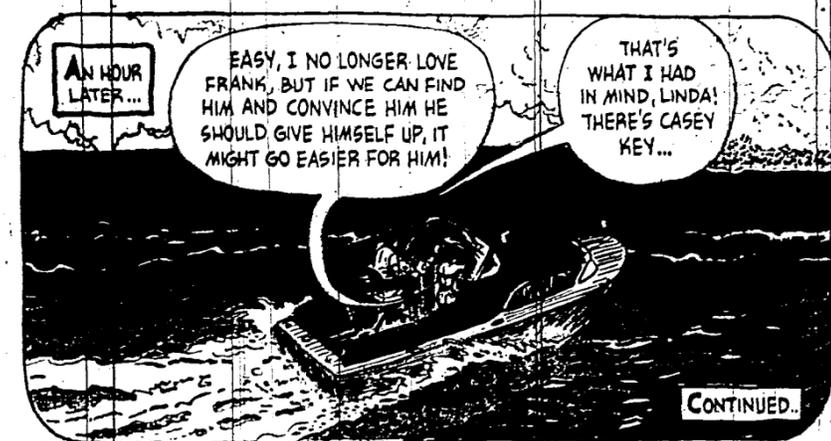

YOU WERE ONCE ENGAGED TO HIM... CAN YOU THINK OF A SPOT WHERE HE MIGHT HIDE OUT?

ONLY CASEY KEY - A LITTLE MANGROVE ISLAND WHERE WE OFTEN FISHED... IN FACT, FRANK PROPOSED TO ME THERE!

HMM... LET'S RENT A BOAT AND GO THERE!

8-8

AN HOUR LATER...

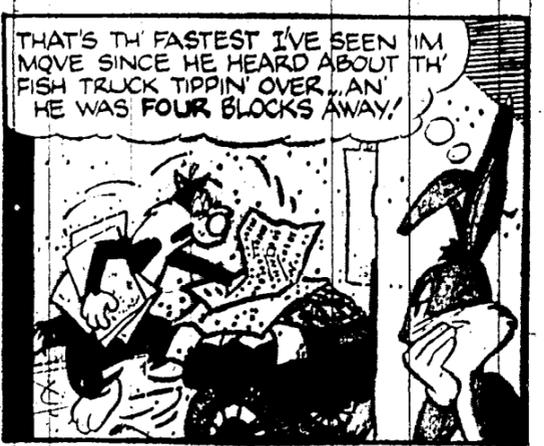

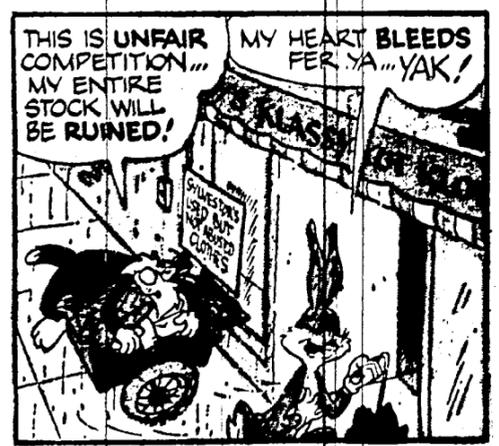

EASY, I NO LONGER LOVE FRANK, BUT IF WE CAN FIND HIM AND CONVINCE HIM HE SHOULD GIVE HIMSELF UP, IT MIGHT GO EASIER FOR HIM!

THAT'S WHAT I HAD IN MIND, LINDA! THERE'S CASEY KEY...

CONTINUED.

The case which changed my whole existence began when Cafe Owner Antonelli's wine cellar was invaded.

AMAZING! FULL OF RARE AND VALUABLE VINTAGES, AND NOT A BOTTLE STOLEN. HOW DO YOU KNOW SOMEONE ENTERED, SIR?

MANY BOTTLES WERE MOVED, SIGNORE. IT IS A MYSTERY, BUT YOU SOLVE MYSTERIES, SI?

HMM. ONLY YOU AND THE HEADWAITER HAVE KEYS?

YOU SUSPECT AN EMPLOYEE? BAH! TO THEM, NO WINE, HOWEVER RARE, IS WORTH RISKING A JOB!

I'LL STAKE OUT THE CELLAR, MR. ANTONELLI. YOUR CONNOISSEUR-BURGLAR MAY BE BACK TONIGHT TO FINISH HIS JOB!

BUONO!

THAT NIGHT...

I TOUCH NOTHING, SIGNOR FLINT, EXCEPT BOTTLES ORDERED BY MY PATRONS!

THE BRIGAND WAS MOST ACTIVE WHERE I KEEP BRANDY!

A CLUE PERHAPS.

I'LL BE WAITING IF HE COMES BACK!

IN THE WORDS OF OVID, WHAT FLEES, I EVER PURSUE...

I WONDER IF HE MEANT FLEAS...

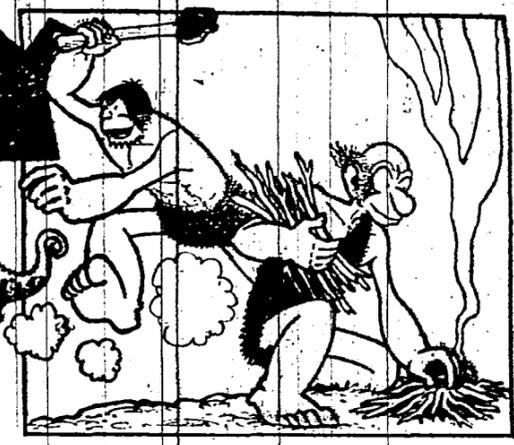

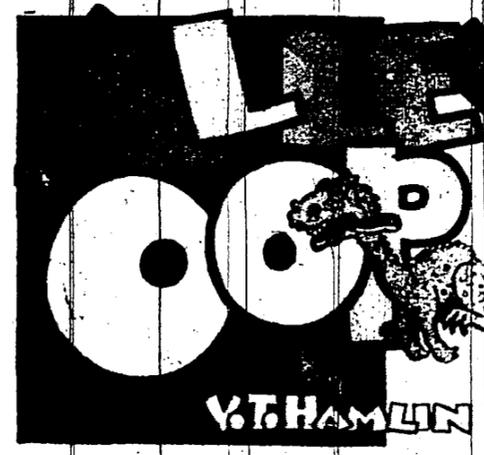

BUT GOOD OLD JOE THUNDER EVER PURSUES NAPOLEON BRANDY!

AND NOW THE BATTERY-POWERED MIRACLE LOCK-PICKER...

BUM CLUNK!

LET'S JUST SAY THAT PURSUIT IS THE MOTHER OF INTENTION... OR POSSIBLY IT'S THE OTHER WAY AROUND!

And now I waited tensely for the man I was soon to know as Oklahoma Joe Thunder...

Y'KNOW, FOOZY, WE'RE IN A RUST! ALL WE BEEN DOIN' LATELY'S CHASIN' SLUMPIN' T'EAT!

WELL, WHY NOT? SA WORTHWHILE SPORT, WHICH I FOR ONE, AM IN STRONG SUPPORT!

BUT THERE'S OTHER THINGS FOR GUYS T'DO, DON'TCHA THINK?

Y'MEAN, LIKE POLITICS AN' GOIN' T'WAR, AN' OTHER KINDS OF CAVEMAN LORE?

...OR HOW ABOUT NAPPIN', GRABBIN' SOME WINKS OR JUST PLAIN SLEEPIN' AS MY MIND THINKS?

OH, IT'S OKAY, I GUESS IF YOU'RE FEELIN' KINDA BEAT OUT AN' DRAGGY...

...BUT ME, I SORTA LEAN TO MUSIC!

MUSIC FOR YOU, OF COURSE, IS OKAY, BUT THERE IS NO INSTRUMENT THAT I CAN PLAY!

A GUY LIKE YOU DON'T NEED ANY INSTRUMENT! YOU'D BE TERRIFIC ON TH' LYRICS!

Y'MEAN TH' WORDS I'D SAY, TO TH' TUNES YOU'D PLAY?

'AT'S RIGHT! NOW LET'S GIVE IT A TRY!

LIM TIDDY LIM TIDDY UMPT TEE DEE! BIG OL' BIRD, A-SITTIN' IN A TREE...

ATTA BOY, FOOZY, KEEP IT ROLLIN'!

A LITTLE BIT LATER, AND SOME DISTANCE AWAY

OH, THERE WAS AN' OL' KING NAMED GUZ, WHO'S FUZZ! HE SAT ON A STONE MADE OUT OF A THRONE AN' LISSENED TO TH' HIS BELFRY GO BUZZ

MORTY MEEKLE

BY DICK CAVALLI

ISN'T IT KIND OF LATE FOR YOU TO BE OUT, WINTHROP?

I'M LOOKING FOR SOMETHING, OFFICER DEVLIN.

WELL, YOU'D BETTER GET ON HOME...

I COULDN'T TELL HIM I'M LOOKING FOR A STAR!

IT GURE IS DARK OUT TONIGHT.

I CAN'T SEE ANY STARS—BUT I'VE GOT TO FIND ONE.

MORTY PROMISED TO TAKE ME FISHING WITH HIM TOMORROW IF IT'S A NICE DAY...

BUT HOW CAN I WISH FOR GOOD WEATHER WHEN I CAN'T FIND MY WISHING STAR?

OH, WISHING STAR—WHERE ARE YOU?

THERE IT IS—WHAT A RELIEF!

I WISH FOR A NICE DAY TOMORROW.

I WAS BEGINNING TO LOSE FAITH IN MY WISHING STAR.

IT'S A GOOD THING I HAD MY MINIATURE FLASHLIGHT WITH ME.

WHAT'S THE MATTER, MOM?

OH, THESE REPAIR-MEN! THEY'RE ENOUGH TO DRIVE YOU CRAZY!

ARE YOU STILL TRYING TO GET THAT TELEVISION FIXED?

YES--I'VE BEEN CALLING HIM A WEEK AND HE HASN'T SHOWN UP!

SOMEBODY'S KNOCKING ON THE SIDE DOOR, MOM, MAYBE THAT'S THE MAN NOW!

WELL, IT'S ABOUT TIME! I DON'T UNDERSTAND WHY IT TAKES YOU PEOPLE SO LONG TO WAIT ON YOUR CUSTOMERS!

I JUST DO WHAT THE BOSS TELLS ME, LADY!

I THINK IT MIGHT BE A TUBE, BUT I SUPPOSE YOU KNOW BETTER--IT JUST DOESN'T WORK!

LOOK, LADY, I--

JUST GET THIS TELEVISION SET WORKING, AND DO IT FAST! OR I'LL REPORT YOU TO YOUR BOSS!

LADY, YOU--

IS YOUR MOTHER ALWAYS LIKE THIS, BOSS?

MY FATHER MAKES HER THAT WAY--HE'S A DO-IT-YOURSELF FANATIC! EVERY TIME SHE ASKS HIM TO DO SOMETHING AROUND THE HOUSE HE SAYS--

OH, DO IT YOURSELF!

DOES YOUR MOTHER KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT MECHANICAL THINGS?

NO--SOMETHING WENT WRONG WITH THE CAR AND SHE THOUGHT IT WAS THE HEMOSTAT!

WELL? HAVE YOU FOUND OUT WHAT'S WRONG WITH IT?

NOT YET--I THOUGHT I MIGHT CATCH IT ON A ONCE-OVER-LIGHTLY LOOK!

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY? I'M EXPECTING YOU TO FIX THAT SET!

LOOK, LADY, I'VE GOT PROBLEMS OF MY OWN!

HERE'S ANOTHER MAN TO FIX THE TELEVISION SET!

GREAT! NOW I CAN DO WHAT I CAME HERE TO DO--READ THE GAS METER!
