JEROME—A lopsided vote of 1,151 yes and 136 no approved the entrance of Jerome County into the College of Southern Idaho Junior College District Friday night. "I was surprised to see the Jerome vote," said J. H. Shields, Buhl, member of the college board of trustees, "I thought it might be quite close, as it was at Twin Falls. I'm pleased to see that the people of the North Side take so much interest in the matter." His fellow board member, W. D. Wiseman, Hansen, said that he was also pleased with the vote and added, "I think that the Jerome result should encourage the passage of the measure at Gooding."

Interest in Gooding Vote Runs High

GOODING — Interest was reported running high as Gooding County residents prepare to vote on Tuesday whether their county will join the College of Southern Idaho Junior College district.

Dr. James L. Taylor, president of the College of Southern Idaho, spoke to officers of the Gooding Parent Teachers Association at a Friday morning meeting explaining that if Gooding County joins the district, along with Jerome County, it will be the largest junior college district in Idaho and possibly the West.

Leland G. Burruss, Robert Erkins and Dee Keller, members of the Gooding County Junior College Committee, also attended the meeting. Vernon Ravenscroft, state representative from Gooding County, explained the legislative process involved in forming a junior college district.

Polls will open at noon Tuesday and close at 8 p.m. Voters can cast their ballots at Gooding, Wendell, Hagerman and Bliss high schools.

Voters must be qualified electors of 21 years or more, residents of the state for six months, residents of the county for 30 days and a resident of the school district in which they vote. They must be parents or guardians of children under 21 or taxpayers on real or personal property. A majority vote is required.

Area Retired Persons Plan Organization

Approximately 30 elderly citizens met Saturday afternoon at Sunnyview Courts to discuss and hear plans for organization of a Magic Valley chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons.

During the meeting David Jeffreys, a representative of the national association, Washington, D. C., explained various phases and benefits of the organization and narrated the history of the National association.

Officers for the Magic Valley chapter were elected two weeks ago. They are H. J. Gernhardt Sr. president; S. P. Ehler, first vice president; E. L. Brackett, second vice president; H. H. Burkhardt, treasurer; Agnes Hollinger, recording secretary, and D. D. Biggers, corresponding secretary.

The chapter will be the fourth in Idaho to be associated with national organization, and the 425th in the nation. The national association also has several chapters in foreign countries.

After Jeffreys spoke, a question period was held, giving members a chance to learn more about the organization.

The American Association of Retired Persons was started by an association called National Retired Teachers in 1958 and since that time membership has grown to about 860,000 persons throughout the United States.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Customs officers reported seizure of heroin and opium they valued at $223,000 in a raid on the Dutch freighter Straat Lombok in Sydney harbor Saturday.

Enrollment Prospect "up and Down" As T.F. Schools Prepare for Opening

Enrollment prospect in Twin Falls schools is an "up and down situation," Ernest H. Ragland, superintendent of School District 411, pointed out Saturday—some of the schools show an increase of students enrolled and several are lagging behind the previous school term.

Morningside elementary school reports a heavy volume of enrollment compared to the 1964-1965 school year, but Twin Falls High School reports a smaller number of students enrolled—1,485 compared to 1,522 last year.

A third board member, Eldon Evans, Twin Falls, praised the work of the Jerome citizens who had worked for the measure's passage, saying, "The people over there must have done a fine job in educating the voters of Jerome as to the need for a junior college."

The 88.6 per cent margin also brought smiles among members of the Jerome County junior college committee, which had favored passage of the measure, and officials of the college.

Tom Mahan, chairman of the Jerome County Junior College Committee, said, "This is what we have been working for. I think this proves sincere interest on the part of Jerome County people on the subject of higher education."

Mahan was heartened, he added, by the fact that "People realize the role of a junior college in filling the gap between high school and our four-year institutions, allowing a greater amount of adjustment for the student."

Dr. James L. Taylor, college president, joined in the jubilation, saying, "Speaking for all of us, we're terrifically happy that we have the opportunity to broaden our base. This is another step in the orderly development of the junior college for the Magic Valley area. The citizens of Jerome County are to be commended for their tremendous effort in getting out a positive vote."

The breakdown of the vote showed that the Jerome High School polling place had 907 yes and 90 no, Valley High School 144 yes and 46 no. Voting was heaviest in the hours between 4:30 and 8 p.m., with a number of people being turned away from the polls at closing time.

As soon as the vote has been canvassed, Jerome County will join the junior college district.

Mrs. America Title Goes To Mrs. Utah

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. Utah, brown-haired, blue-eyed Alice Buehner, 34, was named Mrs. America Saturday night at the climax of the 1965 Mrs. America Contest and Pageant.

Mrs. Buehner, of Salt Lake City, mother of six children and wife of Don L. Buehner, 36, was chosen by a panel of judges on the basis of competitive events and stage presence.

She will receive $20,000 worth of prizes and trips, including an all-expense-paid three-week tour of Europe for herself and her husband.

First runner-up was Mrs. Colorado, 45-year-old Margaret Freeman, of Aurora. Her husband is retired Air Force Colonel Osco Freeman, 49. They have three children.

Second runner-up was Mrs. Georgia, Pat Turner, 34, of Swainsboro. Her husband, Felix, 34, is a Methodist minister. They have four children.

Classes, for the most part, will begin Tuesday morning, with students visiting their classes and meeting their new instructors.

Activity at the high school will begin with an assembly at 9 a.m. Tuesday to introduce the school faculty. After the assembly, students will spend most of the morning filling out class schedules.

Short classes will begin at 12:15 p.m. at the high school with students becoming accustomed to finding their prospective classrooms and meeting

Sen. Len Jordan Cuts Ribbon, Opens College Vocational Unit

Idaho's Sen. Len B. Jordan cut a green ribbon Saturday afternoon and officially opened the vocational department building of the College of Southern Idaho, located on Kimberly Road. About 75 persons, including students, businessmen, teachers and school officials, attended the Saturday afternoon open house at the vocational building. Vocational teachers were present to explain the purpose of each course and training methods. Classes at the vocational division will officially start Wednesday. Orientation for students is scheduled Monday.

Members of the college board also spoke. Robert Blastock Jr., chairman of trustees, introduced Curtis Eaton, president of the state board of regents, who spoke.

Sen. Jordan commented on the great need of the nation for trained men and women and noted that in his 20 years of public life in Idaho, a first class junior college system in the state has been one of his most ardent desires and goals.

"Government spending, pump priming, does not equip a single man with the skills required to take one of the many new jobs created by our advanced technology," he noted.

He added, "The junior college is the main timber in the education bridge that will bring people and jobs together."

A near capacity student enrollment is expected for vocational and academic junior college classes here.

Vocational students will enroll at the vocational school building, and academic students will enroll at the administration building, behind the old hospital building on Addison Avenue West.

Record

Classified advertising in today's issue of the Times-News set an all-time high for a single issue, states Wiley Dodds, advertising manager.

Dodds said this is the first time in history of the Times-News that there has been this much classified advertising in one issue.

Dodds added, a total of 1,089,336 lines of classified advertising has appeared in Times-News issues since the first of the year.

Wednesday will begin the first day of regular classes for the high school pupils, and hot lunches will be served beginning Wednesday. No hot lunches will be served Tuesday, but students will have more than an hour-in which to eat.

George R. Staudaher, principal of the high school, noted that a new counselor has been added to the high school faculty. With the hiring of the new counselor, the high school more than meets the 400 to one ratio. See SCHOOLS, pg. 2, Col. 8

Gemini Surmounts Pack of Troubles, Recovery Shifted

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (UPI)—The all-conquering Gemini 5 astronauts, caught in a squeeze between tropical storm Betsy and a bit of ordinary bad weather, shot Saturday for an eight-day Atlantic landing just one orbit short of their original target. Gordon Cooper and right-hand-man Charles Conrad were headed for splashdown at 8:55 a.m. EDT (6:55 a.m. CST) in an untroubled area

50 Viet Cong Die in Heavy Fighting

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Vietnamese ground forces have killed at least 50 Viet Cong in heavy fighting in the Mekong Delta, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

The spokesman described the Vietnamese drive as a "multi-battalion" operation. He said the fighting took place Friday and early today, about 100 miles southwest of Saigon.

Government casualties were described as moderate. Viet Cong casualties were said to include 50 killed, confirmed by body count.

There were reports the Viet Cong toll might go higher if assessments of casualties inflicted by air strikes are confirmed.

Heavy air strikes supported the government troops. The search and destroy operation began at 8 a.m. Friday, the spokesman said, in the seven canals region about 20 miles west of Can Tho.

The Vietnamese forces, ferried by helicopter, were said to have made heavy contact immediately with an unknown number of Viet Cong.

2 Mediators Ordered for Steel Talks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — President Johnson, taking a personal hand in deadlocked steel talks for the second time this week, ordered two special mediators to Pittsburgh Saturday to try to head off a nationwide steel strike set for Tuesday midnight.

Sen. Wayne Morse, an Oregon Democrat who has served as mediator in several big labor disputes, and Leroy Collins, undersecretary of commerce, arrived in Pittsburgh only a few hours after the President picked them as trouble shooters.

"We are here to offer our services and see if we can be of any help. You never know in mediation, you can only try," Morse said before hurrying into meeting with negotiators for the basic steel industry and United Steelworkers Union.

827 miles due east of Cape Kennedy, their take-off point on the flight which—while hampered by troubles almost all the way—rewrote the world's spaceflight record book.

Nasty weather conditions running ahead of Betsy, which boiled in the West Atlantic hurricane breeding grounds as the week drew to a close, barred a touchdown in the prime landing area 150 miles from Grand Turk Island in the Bahamas.

And to the north, a cold front carried rain clouds into a threatening position, forcing officials to move the secondary splashdown site about a hundred miles east.

In the area finally chosen conditions were almost ideal—winds of about 15 miles an hour, waves two to three feet high and only scattered clouds.

Storm Forces Gemini 5 to Early End

MAINT, Fla. (AP) — Tropical storm Betsy brushed the Leeward Islands with gales Saturday night, picked up speed and forced an early end to the flight of Gemini 5.

Residents of the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and the northern Leeward Island were warned to take precautions against gusty winds and moderate flooding.

Although still a weak storm, her forward speed of 21 miles an hour will push her over the Virgin Islands at daybreak and close to the Grand Turk area where splashdown of Gemini 5 had originally been planned, the Weather Bureau said.

As Betsy whipped northwestward along the eastern edge of the Caribbean Sea, her strongest winds of 45 m.p.h. swept the Leeward Islands.

Dale warnings were flying at Dominica, Guadalupe and the rest of the northern Leeward Islands and were ordered raised at Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands at midnight.

The Weather Bureau predicted Betsy would be centered about 200 miles east of Grand Turk Island at 5 p.m. Sunday.

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter and three other divers plunged into the Pacific Saturday to start a 45-day underwater experiment. Carpenter said could be "more damaging than space flight."

Before beginning the 205-foot dive to Sealab 2 on the ocean floor 1,000 yards off this Southern California resort Carpenter told newsmen, "The excessive pressure at which we will live is a little more rigorous than space flight."

Asked what he meant by rigorous, Carpenter said: "More damaging."

Carpenter will try to stay 30 days in the 12-by-58-foot steel cylinder as part of a Navy experiment to see how long men can function at extreme depths.

A Navy spokesman said 30 days would be a record at such depth. Four men spent 11 days at a depth of 192 feet last year in Sealab 1 off Bermuda. Seven Frenchmen who spent 30 days living under water in the summer of 1963 were at a depth of 30 feet, the spokesman said.

The nine others of Carpenter's team will be relieved at the end of 15 days. In all, three teams will man the underwater base in rotation over the next 45 days.

Carpenter planned talk by radiotelephone with fellow astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr. in the orbiting Gemini 5 spacecraft was delayed to 9:54 p.m.

Typhoon Olive Moves Northwest

HONOLULU (AP)—A typhoon with 100-knot winds near its center has developed in the Pacific 500 miles northeast of Guam and, the Weather Bureau reported, was expected to move in a generally northwest direction.

The Weather Bureau said the typhoon had been named Olive. It was expected to intensify slowly as it moved in the direction of Iwo Jima.

Jerome County Fair Has Successful Run

JEROME — Crowds estimated at 5,000 to 6,000 persons had entered the Jerome County Fair for its final day by 6 p.m. Saturday and more were arriving, despite cool winds and blowing dust. Bill Priest, fair manager and Jerome county agent, reported Saturday that the fair attendance had been aided by the absence of rain and that "this fair must be considered a success. It is one of our better fairs."

Saturday events included an open class horse show which started at 8 a.m. in the arena and ended at 1 p.m., and a cutting horse contest which ran from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., as well as the announcing of winners in the vauling.

Queen Picked
JEROME — Vicki Webb, 16, Hazelton, was chosen queen of the 1965 Jerome County Fair and Rodeo Saturday night.

First runnerup was Sandy McClain, 18, Eden, and Vivian Will, 17, Hazelton, was second.

Various divisions of exhibits and contests.

Prize exhibits, which proved to be one of the fair's biggest drawing cards, were estimated by Priest to be double last year's in number.

Competition was mixed, being heavy in some sections and light in others, with almost every article in the official book represented in some exhibit.

More than 325 4-H exhibits were shown, representing a slight decline from last year's turnout. Ceramics exhibits were up 50 per cent from last and art exhibits increased more than 25 per cent.

Pari-mutuel racing will continue through Sunday, starting at 7 p.m. and featuring a 10-race card.

Winners announced Saturday included: Jay Hartwell, Jerome, high individual in livestock judging; Hazelton 4-H team, sponsored by Jim Messersmith and made up of Rozella McCauley, Donna Meeks and Ronald Murphy, top team; Canyonside Club team, Dick Roemer, Mike Munsee and Judy Stewart, under the sponsorship of Blaine Hall, second.

The Haslam Quarter horse trophy went to Raelene Chugg, the Lickley Hereford trophy for best fat Hereford, Jerry Callen. Bonita Shewmaker captured the Thornton Angus award and the Idaho Cattlemen's Association award went to Sidney Brooks. The Kraft Cheese show halter for the best dairy fitting and showing went to Denise Busch. Bobby Hopper took first for both champion beef fitter and feeder and best hog fitter and feeder.

11 Killed in Southern Bus, Truck Wreck

VINTON, La. (AP)—A Greyhound bus and a trailer truck carrying heavy oilfield lumber collided near here late Friday night, killing 11 persons and injuring 28 others.

"It was just awful," said W. M. Pierce of Houston, Tex., a truck driver who happened on the tragic scene minutes later.

The front end of the bus was sheared off. Heavy timbers rammed through the cab of the truck, then passed through the bus.

The driver of the trailer truck was killed instantly.

The bus driver was in critical condition in a Beaumont, Tex., hospital.

The bus was en route from Houston, Tex., to New Orleans on heavily traveled U.S. Highway 90—the old Spanish Trail. The accident occurred at 11:30 p.m. near this small southwest Louisiana town.

Most of the passengers were from Texas and Louisiana.

Willard Coleman of Lake Charles, La., was returning home from Houston aboard the bus.

"I was sitting about the middle of the bus and it seemed like all of a sudden the bus was trying to stop," he said from a wheelchair in a Sulphur hospital.

"Somebody hollered, 'Watch out,'" he said. "From that point, I don't remember too much of anything. I don't remember how I got out of that bus."

Coleman, with an injured leg and shoulder, was reported in fair condition.

The truck driver was identified as Henry C. Gregory, 35, a Negro, from Houston. His truck was owned by All Woods, Limited, of Houston.

The driver of the bus, Jeff Blankenship of Houston, was taken to a Beaumont hospital where he underwent surgery for a skull fracture.

The Bad Samaritan

Not long ago a man won a small suit for damages in New York City. But the case has interest far beyond the immediate matter.

The man collected a modest sum for minor injuries to his person and damage to his clothes. This had resulted when he had gone to the rescue of a woman who, police confirmed, was being beaten by her husband.

For a while it was touch and go. When the rescuer filed suit, the other man filed countersuit, charging the rescuer with trespass and assault. Eventually the court ruled for the rescuer.

The sad part of the whole affair is, however, that a careful study indicates that New York state law is not at all encouraging to such rescue efforts. A canvass of experienced lawyers on this point produced a consensus that the best thing for a citizen to do is "not get involved" in such incidents.

It would be interesting to know in how many other states of the union the law is so little protective of persons who might go to the aid of individuals being victimized one way or another.

If there are many such states, then we face a terrible irony. For some years now, complaint has been widespread that crimes and shenanigans of all kinds occur in public places while other citizens stand about or walk away and do nothing.

If common humanity be the measuring rod, this indifference is properly decried. But if a man who goes to the aid of another is himself given no legal protection, but may instead find he is open to legal and other attack in compensation, he can be entirely forgiven for not wanting to get involved.

Police forces in most places today are insufficient in number to cope with all the trouble that erupts on American streets. The innocent victims of crime and other depredation should welcome the help of any conscientious citizen nearby who chooses to offer it.

Obviously, without encouraging public free-for-alls, the law should back up the citizen who moves in good conscience to save someone from assault or robbery or worse.

Until this is the case universally throughout the nation, perhaps we had better stop complaining of the indifference of bystanders who refuse to mix in when trouble breaks under their very noses.

JUDGING THE JUDGES

We are told often of how overburdened our state and federal courts are in this busy age. But too seldom is it stressed that we need not just more judges but better ones.

Recently a law professor who insists on anonymity asserted that the quality of the judges in our state courts is especially poor on balance.

He singled out two of the largest industrial states as being markedly afflicted with judicial incompetence right up to the highest state court levels.

A major point in the argument is that this alleged weakness translates itself into the federal court system, which normally recruits very heavily from the ranks of state judges.

This situation is also offered as strong reason why more career judges are not chosen for the Supreme Court and the federal appeals bench. The pickings are said to be too slim.

In consequence, it is argued, the selectors of high court judges must look much of the time to other fields, where they hope to find men of higher basic competence and a broad grasp of the big issues that come before our most important courts.

Many students of our judicial structure argue that this far-ranging method of selection is a wise thing, anyway. The scarcity of good career judges at the state level is considered simply an underscoring of this notion.

Why there are not more good judges is the question.

In view of the anonymous law professor, one reason is an evident assumption in many places that almost any lawyer of reasonable experience makes a good judge. But it is contended that this is in fact a superficial measure of suitability.

What counts, it is said, are the marks of judicial temperament and attitude, of understanding of the broad social and economic matters which occupy more and more of the court's time in this complex era.

This argument would demand of lawyers themselves that they exhibit more sensitivity to these desirable characteristics for a judge, and less to mere length of experience in the law.

This whole topic is one of importance and one sure to stir controversial debate. But even if the professor's criticisms have only half the weight he would give them, they are serious.

The debate ought to be had, and action for improvement ought to follow.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON—Whatever the situation in Greece today, there will be no stable status quo until those maddeningly delightful Greeks solve their royal problem.

Sooner or later, the royal family probably will have to go. This is not necessarily the fault of young King Constantine or even of his meddling mother, Queen Frederica. It is the Greek matter; royalty regularly are deposed and then summoned back, depending on the flow of the peoples' adrenalin.

Andrew Tully—This time the Greeks may decide that royalty is as obsolete as the White Only signs on Southern comfort stations. In this era of the Common Man, both Constantine and his mother are a trifle too imperious for proletarian comfort. Neither seems attracted by the idea of a constitutional monarchy, like England's. The 24-year-old Constantine showed this when he opposed former Premier George Papandreou's attempt to purge a clutch of right-wing army officers and forced the premier's resignation.

ROYALTY OF GERMAN BLOOD—Unfortunately, too, Greek royalty is as phony as a three-dollar bill. It is a German invention, with infusions of Scandinavian blood. Frederica, for example, was a somewhat destitute Hanoverian princess when she was discovered by the late King Paul, whose ancestors hailed from Bavaria. This is not unusual among Europe's royal houses, but the Greeks lately have shown their resentment over their royalty's lack of Greekness. Demonstrators lash out at Frederica as "that German woman."

Frederica, however, won considerable support during the civil war of the late '40s for helping the peasants fight the Communists, and she is highly regarded within the American diplomatic establishment. She is lively, attractive, intelligent—and ruthless—and although she supposedly has fallen into the background, she undoubtedly still rules rather than reigns.

However, the imperious Frederica sometimes displays a lack of good common sense. When she peddled off her daughter, Sophia, as the bride of the very eligible Don Juan Carlos of Spain, she shot the works on an opulent wedding, including a $3 million dowry voted by the Greek parliament. This caused considerable discontent among the citizenry, and enabled the Communists—no real threat as of now—to edge into the royalty-must-go act.

MIXED-UP KID—Constantine at 25 is something of a mixed-up kid who seems unable to recognize the political facts of life. As a king, he has permitted himself to be swayed by the fact that Papandreou has been forced to rely to a limited extent upon some Communist backing. Like too many American diplomats, Constantine refuses to acknowledge that in practically every country but the United States, politicians have to do business with the Reds.

The Truman Doctrine saved Greece from Communism after World War II, but it couldn't offer guarantees for the future. With three Communist countries on its northern border, Greece is still a target for Red infiltration, and the royal family's recalcitrance gives the country's domestic Communists ammunition they never had under Papandreou's pragmatic working agreement with them.

For the United States, Greece is a vital cog in NATO, if only because of its strategic location. The State Department seems to feel that the royal family gives Greece stability, but this is not necessarily so. Instead, royalty may have overplayed its hand and thus made its departure inevitable.

Views of Others

TOO MUCH POLITICS
Delbert Best, a Blue Earth County farmer who joined a Minnesota Farm Bureau task force visiting congress in Washington this week, put the issue of farm legislation best when he said, "It is so doggoned political you can use all the figures and mathematics you want and it isn't what the politicians want, you don't get it."

His statement tells in a nutshell what is wrong with the whole approach to the farm problem. The Farm Bureau represents the conservative view and some other organizations, including the Farmers Union, represent the view of the liberals. Solving the farm problem in the United States—which is primarily a problem of overabundance—requires a non-political approach.

The place to start in divesting the matter of politics is in the farm organizations themselves. If the farmers presented an organized front, nobody in Washington would dare to try to bring a solution through political tactics.

This isn't a matter of ascertaining whether the producer, or processor or consumer should get the biggest break, but of finding a formula that will give agriculture a reasonable chance at prosperity. A farmer not only has to face the uncertainties of supply and demand but he also is subject to the uncertainties of weather. No other industry faces so many factors over which it has no control as does agriculture. Additionally, no other industry is more important.

We need a sound, strong, prosperous farm area but we can't get it through politics.—Mankato Free Press.

THE LADY LORDSHIP
It would be nice to know what W. S. Gilbert would have made of the appointment for the first time in Britain of a woman to be a judge of the High Court of Justice.

We doubt whether Judge Elizabeth Lane, Q.C., (whose pointment to the High Court has just been announced) would ever have sung like the Learned Judge in "Trial by Jury."

In Westminster Hall I danced a dance, Like a semi-dependent fury; For I thought I should never hit on a chance Of addressing a British jury.

For one thing, she is entirely worthy of the precedent. "Kun" is conferred upon her. And as a commissioner, acting in the place of a High Court judge, she has already heard herself addressed as "his Lordship."

The anomalies and paradoxes of British tradition and protocol are quite baffling to an outsider. Non-Britons, for example, can hardly expect British styles and titles right. The solecism that appear in American newspapers, we know must often be galling to the editor of Debut.

But Britons must be indulgent with those outsiders who get mixed up. We know they themselves will take seriously and in their stride in future as Mr. Justice Lane. It could be even more perplexing if it was with High Court judges hitherto—the Sovereign conferred upon Judge Lane the rank of Knight Bachelor. (She is in fact a married woman.)

Yet as always, the age-old traditionalism of the British can be made the vehicle of quite revolutionary innovation.—Christian Science Monitor.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The idea of going into business for ourselves always has appealed strongly to us Americans. You can tell that is true just by looking at the number of bankruptcies.

Even I have entertained such a notion of occasions, and my aptitude for entrepreneurship is about on the same level with my aptitude for alligator wrestling.

The yen came over me again when an "Own Your Own Business Show" opened at the plush new Washington Hilton Hotel. I made a tour of the exhibits and found the type of business I would like to own.

I would like to own the plush new Washington Hilton Hotel.

Pending negotiations with Conrad Hilton, however, I made a few notes on some other enterprises for which franchises are available.

One business opportunity that struck me as promising is something called "original reproductions." I am not certain what produce is involved, but original reproductions should sell at least as well as genuine imitations.

If sheer numbers are any indication, opportunity also is knocking in the car wash field. Four of the 31 exhibits at the show were devoted to that business.

Car washing apparently has superseded chicken farming as a commercial attraction. Which figures. As a virtue, most auto owners rank cleanliness next to quick startability.

A British psychiatrist reported not long ago that some of his patients had fallen in love with their automobiles. I don't know what Freud might have made of that, but it augurs well for the car wash future.

It means that when cars are no longer needed as a means of transportation, people will still keep them on hand for their emotional value.

And as the bond of affection increases, so will the frequency of washing.

Also coming up big as a business opportunity is the portable sauna bath. Two of these were featured at the "Own Your Own Business Show."

One is an indoor model that brings "the pleasures and benefits of steam baths right in the comfort of your home or office."

The other is a large outdoor model that is "roomy enough for several people" and can be installed in the back yard for as little as $450.

This gave me an idea. If I am unable to swing that hotel deal, I think I'll open a neighborhood drive-in sauna bath.

Or, better yet, a combination sauna bath and car wash. Or, even better, a sauna bath for cars.

The heresy charges lodged against Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike of San Francisco by 14 Arizona clergymen are a sign of the tensions building up in U.S. churches over attempts to modernize the Christian gospel.

Episcopal church leaders say it is highly improbable that Bishop Pike actually will stand trial on the charges. Canon 56 of the denomination's basic legal code provides a complex, four-stage procedure whereby a bishop may be brought to trial before his peers for "teaching doctrine contrary to that held by this church."

Bishop Pike's critics have yet to clear the first hurdle. To set the heresy machinery in motion, they need the signatures of at least three bishops. So far, they have none.

The Episcopal House of Bishops will hold its regular annual meeting at East Glacier Lake, Mont., Sept. 7-10. Unless the three signatures are obtained by then, the complaint against Bishop Pike will be referred to a committee for private burial.

Soundings indicate that some Episcopal bishops who heartily disapprove of Bishop Pike will refrain from signing the charges because they suspect he would like nothing better than to figure in a heresy trial.

Other bishops won't sign the charges because they don't think Bishop Pike is guilty of heresy. They may not agree with all of his theological views, but they sympathize with his basic objective.

That objective, in Bishop Pike's words, is to "restate the unchanging gospel in terms which are relevant to our day and meaningful to the people we would have hear it."

"The most formidable roadblock to understanding and acceptance of Christianity," he said recently, "has been erected by the church itself in its refusal to abandon concepts, words, images and myths developed in past centuries when men were operating under different world-views and different philosophical structures."

In his latest book, "A Time for Christian Candor," Harper and Row, Bishop Pike cites the doctrine of the Trinity as something contemporary Christianity very well could get along without.

He said the concept of three divine persons—Father, Son, and Holy Spirit united in one "Godhead"—came into Christianity not via the Bible but from the philosophical categories of the fourth and fifth cen-

Interpreting The News

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — After U.S. Marines shattered the Viet Nam — securely guaranteed and able to shape its own relationships to all others — freed from outside interference — tied to no alliance — a military base for no other country."

This was saying that, while there didn't have to be conditions for starting peace talks, there could be no peace that let the North Vietnamese Communists gobble up South Viet Nam.

On April 11 an editorial in the official Hanoi newspaper bluntly said: "We fight to the end." And on April 13 the North Vietnamese Reds produced their own program as a basis for negotiations.

Withdrawal of all U.S. forces from South Viet Nam, an end to attacks on North Viet Nam, and recognition of the territorial integrity of all Viet Nam.

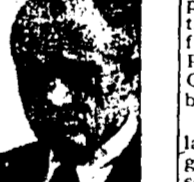

2. Pending peaceful reunification of North and South Viet Nam, all foreign troops had to be withdrawn.

3. Settling South Viet Nam's problems by the South Vietnamese people themselves in accordance with the Viet Cong's program.

(Translated, this said the South Vietnamese must accept the Viet Cong as boss. South Viet Nam's refusal to do so is what the war is all about.)

4. Peaceful reunification of all Viet Nam without "any foreign interference."

American officials promptly rejected this Communist proposal as a plan to deliver South Viet Nam to the Reds.

MARQUIS CHILDS WRITES ON WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON — "We are not France." That is the reply of one of the officials chiefly responsible for Viet Nam policy to the prophets of gloom and doom who see the United States bogged down in a hopeless land war as were the French for seven years.

The conviction of America's overwhelming capacity on land, sea and air is one reason for the undercurrent of optimism breaking the surface of the determined talk of staying 10 years in that proves necessary. The success of the Marines at Chulai is another factor along with the apparent failure of the Viet Cong to mount a major offensive in the monsoon season.

But the cautious optimism seems to have deeper roots. In the past 10 days President Johnson has told several members of Congress that he is hopeful a large part of the American force can be withdrawn before the second session of the 89th Congress in January. This reflects his intense resolve to find a way-out of Viet Nam. Peace is the President's obsession night and day.

Great store is set on the soundings Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg is taking at the United Nations. In his long and crowded career Goldberg has proved that dogged persistence goes to the goal — pays off. The President's faith in the Goldberg approach is part of the new optimism.

The parallel with France in Southeast Asia is certainly wide of the mark. This country has an incalculably greater power, a population nearly four times as large, an industrial productivity on a scale dwarfing French capacity then and now, military strength in every department many times greater. France waged the war with professional soldiers; draftees could not be sent to Viet Nam. Whole classes of the finest French officers, graduates of the Academy of St. Cyr, were sacrificed in the long, bloody struggle.

Yet when these important differences are understood, there are also similarities. French, too, went through the cycle of pessimism to optimism and back to pessimism. An upswing of optimism came only a few months before the final catastrophe of Dien Bien Phu in 1954.

This optimism was pumped into one of the phoniest post-war conferences in the preceding December. Prime Minister Winston Churchill, President Dwight Eisenhower and the current French Premier, Joseph Laniel, met in Bermuda with their respective foreign ministers. Speaking for France, Foreign Minister George Bidault painted a rosy picture of ultimate victory.

The United States was at that time pouring about $800 million a year into the French treasury to support the war in Viet Nam. Understandably, Bidault wanted to keep hopes high since American support was essential to the stability of the franc and the prosecution of the war. The conferees bought the Bidault estimate — Laniel spent most of the conference in bed with what was diagnosed later as a diplomatic illness — and returned to their respective capitals with the illusion that it was well. America's own diplomatic reporting out of Saigon was then colored largely by French wishful thinking.

The cliché about history repeating itself is not necessarily true. Nevertheless, the noise made at that time are strangely reminiscent of what can be heard today. The then president, Richard M. Nixon, his ubiquitous role as cheerleader, had visited Saigon to tell the French they could not lay down their arms "until victory is completely won" and to warn against a negotiated settlement with the Communists "that would place people who want freedom and independence in perpetual bondage." But at the same time Premier Laniel told the Council of the Republic that France was not seeking unconditional surrender and would welcome "an honorable solution."

The United States to be sure is not France. This country has the capability, as is being demonstrated each day, to hold its own bases on the coast indefinitely. That is a holding operation rather than victory. It is a long way from the pacification of the area — perhaps two-thirds of the country — held by the Viet Cong.

As for the doctrine of the incarnation, Bishop Pike affirms with the Nicene Creed that Jesus was at once truly human, having all of the limitations of a mortal man, and at the same time was "very God of very God." Jesus, he says, so emptied Himself of self-centeredness that He became a perfect vehicle for the revelation of God's love.

What offends the Bishop's critics is his statement that there is no inherent reason why there could not be another incarnation on another planet or even on this earth, "given the right historical context and given the right man responding aright."

Bishop Pike adds his conviction that there has never been anyone like Jesus in human experience, so that the incarnation stands as a unique event—so far.

The bishop speaks of the resurrection as a real, historical event in time and space. But he says that "Christians are free to hold different views as to the precise mode of the resurrection" and that he personally finds most satisfactory St. Paul's description of the risen Christ as having a "physical body."

Bishop Pike's views are similar to those expressed by Anglican Bishop John A. T. Robinson in his book, "Honest To God," which has been stirring controversy in England and America ever since it was published two years ago.

PLAYERS CAN'T GUESS SCORE
Cookie Hootstein and Larry Weiss of Boston make up one of the best pairs in New England.

Top on the board was 12 and Larry modestly suggested that his score would be about average or maybe one point above. West felt otherwise and estimated a score of just above absolute bottom. In fact West complained that it was always his luck to pick up the best hands against players who would get the maximum out of their cards.

West suggested that several pairs would bid six and go down and that others would stop at four spades but misguess the location of the queen of diamonds and fail to make an over-trick.

We agreed with West even before the scores came out with North-South getting 11 match points out of 12 and poor West and East scoring only one match point.

80 Miles of Pipe Laid In 80 Days

HAILEY—Intermountain Gas Co. officials believe they have set a record in pipeline history in the laying of an eight-inch steel line from Wendell to Sun Valley.

L. W. Hawk, Boise, right-of-way agent, said Saturday: "We have laid 80 miles of pipe in 80 days."

Robert Williams, division manager, said that barring unforeseen difficulties the line will be ready to deliver gas by Sept. 15 at the latest.

It was necessary to blast some 40 miles of rock in laying the line through the lava beds north of Shoshone. The line is buried 40 inches beneath the surface and runs parallel to U.S. Highway 93.

The work has been done by the Hood Construction Co.,

Boise, with 200 men working on the job.

Gas will come from the San Juan Basin, where Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Arizona meet, and from the Canadian fields north of Bellingham, Wash.

The company, with general offices in Boise, serves 50 Idaho towns from Montpelier on the east, along the Snake river valley to Weiser on the west.

Williams, commuting from Mountain Home until suitable living quarters can be obtained, will live in Ketchum. Jerry Johnson has moved from Buhl to Hailey and is salesman. Wilbur Bird has moved to Hailey from Caldwell and will head the service department.

Bird said 24-hour-a-day free service on equipment will be available for all users.

Pink Flower Yields Blue Blossoms After Treatment

FILER—Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Lierman, Filer, have a blue hydrangea blooming in their yard.

What makes this unusual is the fact that the bush is supposed to bear pink flowers. By treating the soil, the Liermans have made the plant produce blue blossoms instead.

While visiting in Portland several years ago, Mrs. Lierman was impressed with the lovely blue hydrangeas which bloomed profusely.

When she decided to try to raise some in Idaho, however, local florists and gardeners did not give her much encouragement, telling her it is impossible to raise the blue flowers here.

Not easily discouraged, Mrs. Lierman decided to try. This spring she bought a pink hydrangea from a seed company and planted it.

Since Idaho's soil lacks the acid which makes the hydrangeas produce blue flowers, she has been treating the plant twice a month with aluminum chloride. The experiment has resulted in two large blue flowers and several buds.

The treatment is not difficult, she said. Beginning in late spring after the bush had its leaves she started adding a tablespoon of the chemical to a gallon of water and sprinkling it around the plant.

Aluminum sulphide or aluminum chloride may be obtained from any druggist. Mrs. Lierman said she purchased hers from a cooperative Twin Falls druggist who spent nearly 20 minutes searching through his supplies to find the material.

It took a long time to put the powdery stuff into a small bottle. The Liermans and other customers were amused when the whole purchase came to the sum of 10 cents.

Salmon Road Damage Set At $26,000

SALMON — Damage to the Salmon River Road resulting from last June's high water has been set at $26,000.

Arthur Bevan, Salmon National Forest engineer, said the money will be needed to make the necessary repairs. Funds have been requested from the Region Four office of the Forest Service.

The record high water cut into the roadway or overflowed the roadway in sections from North Fork to Indianola, between Shoup and Pine Creek and at the Forest Service boat dock near the end of the road.

Bevan said the heaviest damage was in the area of the boat dock, where the river came onto the road. In other areas part of the roadway was lost from cutting.

The water took off the surfacing down to the rock in the area of the boat dock and below Shoup.

New surface material and rock rip-rap to rebuild the road width will be necessary, Bevan said.

The forest official noted that the section of the road which was reconstructed last year from Indianola to Shoup and the section under construction from Pine Creek to Panther Creek suffered practically no damage.

He said design of the road sections allowed for high water and flooding. Better rock was used in places most likely to cause trouble.

Bevan said the Forest Service hopes to get as much of the road repair done as possible before the heavy fall traffic of fishermen and hunters begins. The road gets its heaviest use in October and second heaviest in April.

South Carolina Schools Quiet

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina passed peacefully through its first week of large scale public school desegregation.

School officials said about 700 Negroes are attending classes with white children in schools which opened this week.

About 2,000 more Negro children are expected to enroll in desegregated schools by the end of next week.

COMMISSIONERS MEET

BONNERS FERRY (UPI) — Farrell Rock, Rexburg, was elected vice president of the Idaho Association of County Commissioners and clerks Friday.

Elected vice presidents as the officials ended a three-day convention were Ewing Little, Wallace, and Albert Messer, Preston.

Cleo Swanson, Preston, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Twin Falls was chosen as the site for next year's meeting.

The organization passed 11 resolutions, mostly involving procedural matters in county government.

Estimated cost of the project, expected to be completed in 90 days, is about $100,000.

AIRMAN ARRESTED

BOISE (UPI) — A 19-year-old air policeman from Mountain Home Air Force Base was arrested after a foot and vehicle chase Friday night when he came face-to-face with a policeman and his revolver.

Arrested was Airman 3-C Terry Gene Tarbox. Tarbox was arraigned in justice court on a charge of $500 bond.

Tarbox allegedly led officers on a chase in the east end of Boise. He was chased on foot by officers after leaving the stolen car.

YOUTH CRITICAL

POCATELLO (UPI) — An 18-year-old Pocatello youth remained in critical condition Saturday from injuries suffered in the collision of two motorcycles in a motel parking lot.

Extensive head injuries were sustained by Dena Lesekatos, son of George Lesekatos.

Police said his cycle collided with a motorcycle operated by Rochford Schafer, 17, Pocatello, as the two turned into the Holiday Inn parking lot. They were both on their way to the motel to eat dinner.

QUESTIONED IN ROBBERY

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) — Two 23-year-old Canadians were questioned Saturday about two service station holdups here and Spokane, Wash.

Officers said one of two would be charged with armed robbery in connection with a service station holdup in the Spokane Valley.

Frank Amstine and Eugene A. Ostiguy were arrested Friday north of here by the U.S. Border Patrol. They were being held on federal immigration detainers.

Bandits took about $100 from each of two service stations located on opposite sides of a Coeur d'Alene street in a simultaneous holdup early Friday morning.

PENALTY INCREASE ASKED

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — An increase in the penalty for selling beer to minors is being urged by two Idaho Falls civic groups. The Chamber of Commerce and the Mayor's Youth Committee recommended beer licenses be suspended for six months, rather than the present 15 days, if the holders are convicted of such an offense.

COUNCIL MEETS

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Landholder - Sportsman Council will continue to support the hunting by permission only program during the fall hunting seasons, Alvin Benson of Melba, chairman, said Saturday.

Benson said that with the dove and cottontail rabbit seasons opening Sept. 1, the council "reaffirmed its desire to eliminate the dangerous and unlawful practice of road hunting, throwing litter along highways and on farmlands and, in general, to stop the vicious acts of vandalism which are so often wrongfully blamed on hunters and fishermen."

SALARY INCREASED

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — City councilmen here Thursday night raised the mayor's salary to $14,400 per year and councilmen's pay from $2,400 to $3,000 effective Jan. 1. This would appear to make the mayor the highest paid one in Idaho.

The mayor's present salary is $10,000. The increase would make him the highest salaried official in the city.

JORDAN SPEAKS

NEW MEADOWS (AP) — Touring cattlemen were told Friday that because efforts to control foreign meat imports have "not been very successful" they are likely to face hard times in the future.

Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho, made the statement in speaking at a barbecue at the sprawling Circle C. Ranch in West Central Idaho. The barbecue marked the conclusion of a weeklong cattlemen's tour sponsored by the Western Livestock Journal.

More than 100 cattlemen from 18 states took part in the tour.

Jordan said that although present cattle prices are good the outlook is for reduced demand for American-grown beef after the foreign market is saturated.

ACTION GOES TO COURT

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A $300,000 damage action resulting from the death of a prominent Idaho Falls lawyer will go to trial Monday in district court.

Mrs. Donna Williams, widow of Reed Williams, brought the action against a doctor, an anesthesiologist and Sacred Heart Hospital. She alleged negligence on their part led to her husband's death about two years ago.

BOY SURVIVES WRECK

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — A 17-year-old Idaho Falls boy is alive Saturday following a spectacular one-car accident that conceivably could have killed him.

In fair condition at an Idaho Falls hospital is Michael Lowe. State Police said Lowe was alone in a northbound car moving at high speed from highway 22 onto U. S. 91 in the Island Park area Friday.

The car shot off the left side of the highway, climbed more than 400 feet to the top of a high embankment then traveled 200 feet back onto the pavement. Witnesses compared the car's movement to that of an airplane.

WIND HITS ATHOL

ATHOL, Idaho (AP) — A strong wind hit the Athol area Thursday night uprooting trees and knocking down at least two buildings.

Junior Achievement Fund Campaign Being Completed

Twin Falls businessmen are in the process of completing a fund drive from which a Junior Achievement program for high school students will be financed for the first time in Twin Falls.

The idea of the Junior Achievement program is to produce business training by actual experience for the young people at the high school.

The youths will form four companies, with 20 students in each company. A board of directors will be chosen and businessmen will sponsor it.

headquarters for the Achievement Program is a second-floor room above Standley Cafe. The headquarters was donated and the Jaycees have volunteered to clean the building and also have donated some furniture.

The students will market a product themselves and the profits will be given out in shares to stockholders of the companies. Dividends also will be paid to stockholders. The company heads, all students, will be paid a small salary.

After school gets under way, an assembly will be called and the high school students will be told of the program and given a chance to enroll.

Anyone interested in donating funds to the program should send them to Box 752, Twin Falls, or contact Vernon Doshier.

Bicyclists Urged to Heed T.F. Law

Bicycle riders were urged Saturday by Twin Falls Police Chief M. Frank Barnett to obey laws for bicyclists.

Barnett noted that city police and citizens have noticed bicycle riders are often careless in operating the bicycles.

"This is a hazard to themselves as well as people on the sidewalks," Barnett noted. "We know that as the city grows we have more bicycles and more violations are observed, but bicycle riders should also remember that we have an increase in the number of motor vehicles, thus increasing the hazard of any violations that they commit, the chief said.

"The schools have done a commendable job of bicycle safety instruction. Most of the riders are aware of the rules, but it is primarily the responsibility of the parents to be sure their children know the rules and obey them," he added.

"The main violations that have been noted are riding on the wrong side of the roadway, running stop signs, failure to stop when emerging from alleys

Solution to Racial Problems Noted by Twin Falls Writer

Editor, Times-News: The racial troubles and riots we hear about on every news-cast become more serious every day. What is really at the bottom of it all? There is an underlying current of hatred and frustration that has to erupt like the heat beneath the volcanic explosion. Now we are beginning to recognize that there are many such situations throughout our country, even the nation's capital as it according to President Johnson.

can be made aware of these conditions within our cities. Yet the cure is, very simple: a return to a stable home-life with its love and security and having employment to sustain it. Also a religious background. When people are unemployed for long periods of time they give up, lose the incentive to try, become frustrated and turn to hating society in general. The great psychologists say that love and work are necessary to stable life. ARNOLD HOLLAND (Twin Falls)

Writer Questions College Board's Caution on Offer

Editor, Times-News: What the location of our new junior college might have to do with broadening the junior college base is not apparent to me. The offer by the Civic Auditorium Association to donate approximately 100 acres of land on the canyon rim north of Twin Falls to the junior college district seems to me a commendable solution to the problem faced by both groups. As Douglas Kramer, president of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, pointed out, the location in question has many advantages which are not easy to find.

T. F. Man Wonders If GOP Forgets Public Opinion

Editor, Times-News: Following is a copy of a letter I have sent to the Republican National Committee in Washington, D. C. After reading your letter and folder, I am forced to comment. A number of Republicans in Southern Idaho had confidence in Barry Goldwater, but since his name has been associated with men like Eisenhower, Smylie, Dewey, Nixon, Lodge and Rockefeller, they have checked out by Barry. Possibly you are of the opinion the public has forgotten Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles' double dealing with the Hungarians. Were you around when Thomas Dewey refused to support the late Senator Taft and supported Eisenhower? Didn't Senator Taft support Dewey and Eisenhower? If Taft would have been elected, would we be in this mess? Would you care to comment on what Capitol Lodge has been up to in Viet Nam for the past several years?

quately as a civic auditorium and could also meet the needs of a junior college. I would think the sensible thing for the board of regents for the junior college to do would be to immediately accept the proposal made and get on with it instead of engaging in head-scratching and worry.

The Barracuda to Retain Basic Model Style For 1966, the Plymouth Barracuda retains its basic fast-back body shape, but adds new front end treatment, a new split grille, new taillights and new deep-skirt front and rear bumpers. The Barracuda will be on display in October at Magic Valley showrooms in October.

Voting Law Is Paradox For Alaska JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The new voting rights law has proven to be a paradox for Alaska. It was designed to end open discrimination against potential Negro voters in six Southern states.

Twin Falls Man Urges Board To Accept College Site Offer

Editor, Times-News: I have heard rumors recently that the Civic Auditorium Association was going to come forth with a proposal to combine its efforts with that of the College of Southern Idaho. I was relieved to note in Wednesday's issue of the Times-News that such a proposal was made to the board of regents of College of Southern Idaho. It has been some time since the fund campaign ended for Civic Auditorium and many many people have been concerned as to when something concrete might be accomplished with respect to construction of the auditorium. The difficulty was apparently in choosing the site. It now appears that the site problem insofar as the Civic Auditorium Association is concerned has been solved and a substantial and beneficial offer of land and finances has been made to the junior college board which can well use both.

Through a unique set of circumstances, however, it has also impaled Alaska, a state with liberal voting requirements. At the heart of the matter is a determination by the director of the census that less than 50 percent of the voting age residents of Alaska cast ballots in the Nov. 4, 1964, general election. The voting rights law prohibits tests or devices capable of being used to discriminate against voters in states where less than 50 percent of the residents of voting age voted last Nov. 4.

Shoshone Club Views Showings SHOSHONE — The program at Rotary Club meeting Wednesday was presented by E. I. Shaw, who showed a collection of bottles and exhibited the new color television set and television equipment. A memorial fund was established in memory of Mrs. Clara E. Martin, who died last week. The anniversary song was sung for Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Grosse and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crothers.

Alaska has no pre-election registration on the state level. A person merely signs a registration book at the polling place indicating he meets all of the requirements for a qualified voter. "What do federal registrars in Alabama or Mississippi do if a prospective voter can neither speak, read, nor write simple English words?" Egan asked. "That is the whole thing in a nutshell. In Alaska, a citizen need only be able to speak a few simple English words to fully qualify as a voter."

Retired Area Man Questions Economics of Planting Fish

Editor, Times-News: I am only a retired cattleman and so don't, of course, understand anything about making animals or wildlife grow. But the way the State of Idaho handles fish in the Magic Valley area makes me want to ask those that do understand these things, just what is going on. Is it true that Magic Valley hatcheries produce, and Magic Valley, and more particularly Twin Falls County, taxes pay for millions of young trout each year? Is it true that these same trout are used, not in the Salmon Dam or the Roseworth Dam, where a tax-paying farmer with the afternoon off can go to fish, but in the streams of north Idaho, where those that benefit are thousands of out-of-state "tourists" (I hesitate to call them fish thieves) and a few hundred Idaho residents who are parasites upon the "tourist" trade?

Enterprising Students Hurt By New Law, Woman Notes

Editor, Times-News: It was a very nice article, Mr. Editor, that you had in last Sunday's paper, about two enterprising young students, who, in the true American spirit, and using their God-given right to work, worked as paint contractors during summer vacation. This is all to their credit, and my hat's off to them. But the Idaho state legislators and our honorable governor do not think that such true Americanism should exist or be allowed. According to the law passed in the 1965 legislature, these boys, when they go to work next year to fulfill their contracts they are accepting for next summer, will be hauled into criminal court, fined up to $300 or sentenced up to six months in the county jail, or both.

Air of Sun Valley Is Becoming International Sports Center

SUN VALLEY (Special) — Even the very air above Idaho's famous Sun Valley is now becoming a sports center of international attention. Soaring records established in hundreds of miles of glider flights over the Rocky Mountains and table lands dramatize the fact that many Sun Valley patrons find the best fun on earth is in the air. Twenty-five years ago when the first sailplanes were brought into Sun Valley, Lewin Barringer, New York, broke the then existing altitude record of 20,800 feet. The exceptional conditions he found over the area on his first flight so surprised him that he was wearing only light summer sports clothes, and nearly froze in the chill heights. Anyhow, his experience let the world know that soaring conditions over the Sawtooths were excellent.

Patio Party Marks End Of Guild's Fiscal Year

BY NORMA HERZINGER
Women's Page Editor

The attractive patio at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Peck, 1410 Poplar Ave., provided the perfect setting for the Magic Valley Art Guild's first outdoor social.

The event marked the closing of the unit's fiscal year and perhaps the beginning of an annual social gathering.

The dinner tables were arranged on the patio and lawn and covered with gaily colored checked cloths. Each table was centered with a doll in a colored artist's smock, smartly displaying an artist's palette. Ivy and yellow chrysanthemums encircled the centerpiece.

A round table, covered with a green cloth, was placed at the side of the serving table, where guests were served punch from a large crystal punch bowl. Ivy, interspersed with small yellow chrysanthemums, encircled the punch bowl.

Peck, head chef for the evening, donned a chef's large, white hat and apron and looked the part of a real professional as he broiled the hamburgers to just the right turn to please each and every guest. A complete selection of foods, prepared to suit everyone's tastes, was arranged on a long buffet table.

The beautiful rock fireplace, enhanced with Trumpet vine at the top, added to the setting for the event and elicited many favorable comments from the guests. The fireplace was constructed by Mr. and Mrs. Peck and their children, Raymond and Kathryn, from rocks collected in the Oakley area. Rocks of various sizes and shapes were chosen by the family, including those resembling the states of Texas, Idaho, Tennessee and Missouri.

Flowers in full bloom were viewed by the guests as they walked along the uniquely designed concrete pathways winding through the garden at the back of the patio.

Following the dinner, Dick Conner, featured speaker, told the guests of his recent trip with the YMCA boys to Canada.

Gatherings for this talented group of artists are usually that of a business nature, either to paint or to

Boot Fad Here To Stay for Many Seasons

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Those people who predicted a fade out of the boot fad were as accurate as those who forecast the election of Thomas E. Dewey. Despite the numerous dissenting votes cast by a male population deprecating the disappearance of the ankle, the boot has won the plurality and is sure to be in for several more seasons. How could boots win against strong resistance? One answer is compromise. Today they're worn with short, short skirts—giving the confirmed leg watcher more knee to see although less ankle to ogle. Moreover, they're ever so practical. Men can hardly argue with any real conviction against these garments that save on hosiery bills, and possibly doctor bills by keeping wives' feet warm. After all, boots are marvelous mud and snag guards, and there is no comparing their serviceability to shoes in a snowstorm. Still, as any student of the female mind will attest, practicality is not a necessary element for winning feminine approval as long as there are plenty of fashion ingredients. And there are those. Designer Adele Simpson introduced her cowgirl styles for summer by swathing her models to their calves in Gay '90s boots. Boots are so cute. And varied.

Stylist Thinks Of People As Structures

By ALICIA HART
NEW YORK (NEA) — At 37 London hairstylist Vidal Sassoon talks in terms of "people as structures," and credits painter Modigliani and architect Mies van der Rohe as influences helping him reshape a woman's image.

He believes hairstylists are discovering a modern art form. As far as he is concerned the direction begins with the haircut.

Sassoon discusses a woman and her hair as lovingly and energetically as astronaut Edward White does his walk in space. In a sense there is a relationship. Sassoon says women and their hairstylists must interpret everything around them and look to the future, specifically to the '70s.

This is rather esoteric conversation for a former London shampoo boy. Yet much has come to Sassoon in his more than 20 years in beauty salons patronized by women who appear regularly in pages of Town and Country or Harper's Bazaar and the little London shop girls who wait upon them.

Although he wouldn't say so he is internationally influential.

Sassoon's impression of how he wants a woman to look explains his success. He discussed his approach to styling while seated in a starkly modern new shop.

An occasional glance at the quietly secure women parading in front of his Madison Avenue salon in Manhattan's solidly wealthy East 60s accented his points. This is his first U.S. venture and expansion is planned in Washington, D.C., Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

To aid in smoothing out those tiny lines and wrinkle dryness around the eyes, regular vitalizing night creaming is recommended by skin care consultants. Gently coax the cream into the dry lines to soften and smooth the complexion, then press the cream along the deeper expression lines seven times with the fingertips. Complete the beautifying task by filming the Olay vitalizing night cream over the face and neck to give the complexion a look of soft loveliness.

By VIVIAN BROWN
There is a society beat in dancing, different from another society orchestra leader, Charles Turecama.
"Lots of people feel society music is lumpy, a jerky type of beat with a straight two-step, but that's not so, actually it's a tempo with a tune, and they like to dance to songs that they never even think about. And the songs sort of run a pattern," he explains.
For example, the biggest tune in the show, "Gypsy" was "Everything's Coming Up Roses." Society folk latched instead to the obscure tune in the show, "All I Need is a Girl," a favorite tune of society people right now.
He is getting a lot of requests for a song, "Girl from Ipanema." They're wild about it. It originated as a bossa nova. He sees it as a society fox-trot, a moderate tempo that can be danced to comfortably, not a two step. It's a four-step, box step, a normal dance with a partner.

"Musically speaking, I can see the reasoning right along the line in their music choices. The melodies are good with a lift that goes with the type of dancing they like to do," he explains.

Turecama shared honors with Peter Duchin's orchestra at the Regis where he began four years ago. He plays on the roof, before Duchin left, he played downstairs. A younger crowd replaced the downstairs room before Duchin and his progressive jazz music got there, Turecama says.

"During the week we get an upper crust society. Saturday we have a mixed crowd, and on Friday the subway crowd takes over. But the people are all sedate and there are never gyrations, although you get a request for the watusi now and then through the evening," he says.

The twist is still popular with older people, who apparently consider it daring, because they will ask for a watusi and do the twist, he says. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor who can do all the new dances, like a blues number with a twist rhythm, he says.

"The mode of dress has a lot to do with the type of dancing the younger set enjoys. They'll walk into a discotheque with pique-in-cheek clothing — overalls or jump suit. But when they're all dressed up, they don't jump around much," he says.

A popular rock 'n roll number is "Let's all Twist," he says.
"Good music never goes out of style. Young and old society people are big Cole Porter fans. Even when a song fades for while, it is always there in the background to be revived because it's still part of the whole music picture," he says.

Turecama plays with seven men—piano, drums, bass fiddle, trombone, sax, accordion and violin which he plays. But his arrangements make the orchestra

Grandmother Is Royal Lady

LEAVENWORTH, Wash. (UPI) — Virtually every community festival has its queen, and nearly always she is young and pretty.
This central Washington community has broken the pattern.

Instead of a queen, the community has a Royal Lady for its Autumn Leaf Festival. This year's Royal Lady is Mrs. Margaret Moteler, a grandmother who admits to being over 50.
"Mature youth, whatever that is, is one of the qualifications for being selected," she said.
The festival will be held Sept. 25 to Oct. 3.

Magic Valley Art Guild Has Patio Party

learn new techniques in painting. This evening party was the first of its kind held by the group and proved to be a huge success.

The Magic Valley Art Guild is a relatively new organization, founded in 1956 by 13 area artists.

Their love of art and the beauty of the Magic Valley surroundings have proved to be ample reasons for the numerous original paintings completed by the members. Their paintings have been displayed at various art exhibits, county fairs, at the Idaho Theater for the Idaho Film Festival, Twin Falls Public Library, original sidewalk shows and the Art Mart showings for the past five years at the Twin Falls City Park.

A program of rental and sales of paintings was started by the guild last year at Herrett's. One of the unit's most enjoyed programs is the field trips for landscape paintings. Each year the artists go to Sun Valley or attend the Workshop on Wheels, sponsored by the University of Idaho, consisting of field trips to McCall, Stanley Basin and other areas.

Outstanding individuals or instructors in the guild include Mrs. Peck, who submitted the winning cover in a contest sponsored by the Idaho Artist magazine; Olaf Moller, who gave a demonstration on oil painting at a recent workshop, and Oliver Parson, who gave a program on arts and crafts for grade school teachers at the Minion workshop.

The average membership for the guild is 50 and includes artists from throughout Magic Valley. Officers are Mrs. Peck, president; Lawrence Culver, vice president; Mrs. Kenneth Miller, Jerome, secretary, and Mrs. Malcolm Jensen, treasurer.

HANSEN — Cheryl Wiseman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wiseman, Hansen, and Jerry Korn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Korn, Nampa, were united in marriage Aug. 8 at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Twin Falls.

Rev. John Tulk officiated at the double ring ceremony before a background setting of lighted candelabra and floral bouquets.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white sheath sheer linen gown. The fitted bodice, featuring a V-neckline with lace trim, joined the slim skirt at a slightly gathered waist with an organza overskirt at the sides and back.

Her shoulder-length bouffant illusion net veil was held by a white flower. Her shoulder corsage was a lavender orchid. She wore a single strand cultured pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom.

Martha Roelofs, Caldwell, was maid of honor. Ronald Graves, Caldwell, was best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Hansen.

The three-tiered white cake, trimmed with pink roses and topped with a cluster of wedding bells, centered the bride's table covered with lace. Gladioli florets surrounded the base of the cake. Candelabra, with lighted tapers flanked the cake.

Mrs. Lloyd Jones, Kimberly, and Mrs. Dorothy Scott, Buhl, aunts of the bride, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Clifford Daniel, Nampa, sister of the bridegroom, served punch, and Mrs. Hugh Fisher, Sunset, Utah, Mrs. Kenneth Colter, all aunts of the bridegroom.

The couple took a honeymoon trip to Sun Valley. They will reside in Pocatello where the bridegroom is a senior at Idaho State University.

Out-of-town guests attended from Weiser, Pocatello, Gooding, Idaho Falls and Shoshone. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Braun, Twin Falls.

Mary Ford and Karen Robinson hosted a miscellaneous shower in honor of the bride at the home of Miss Ford.

ADVISE GIVEN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Think twice before airing clothes in the sun, advises the National Institute of Drycleaning. If they are green, blue or white, they can change color. Many green and blue dyes in silk and wool are susceptible to sunlight and white garments may contain a fluorescent whitening dye which is destroyed by sunlight, causing the garments to yellow.

Crop Forecast Pushes Grain Futures High

CHICAGO (AP)—Most grain futures prices pushed higher on the Chicago Board of Trade last week, bolstered by a bullish crop forecast and a report that greater export business could be in prospect.

The bullish developments came late in the week after prices moved only fractionally in light trading in the early sessions.

But the market got a strong shot in the arm Friday on reports that President Johnson planned to lift the requirement that 50 per cent of all wheat sold to Communist countries must travel in American ships. Traders said this would open the way for large sales of surplus wheat to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries.

The price, rise-enabled most grains to post a gain for the week, with wheat and soybeans in the foreground.

The late rally followed a minor price rise on Thursday sparked by a private crop forecast contending that some corn and soybean growing areas were suffering sharp drought losses.

At the week's close, wheat was 1/2 to 2/4 cents a bushel higher, September $1.54 1/2-3/4; corn was 1/2 to 1/4 higher, September $1.22 1/2; oats were 1/2 to 1/4 higher, September 65 1/2-1/4; soybeans were 1/2 to 1/4 higher, September $1.19 1/4-1/2 and soybeans were 2 1/4 to 4 cents higher, September $2.51 1/4-1/2.

Market Prices Hold Steady, Some Higher

By United Press International
Prices of slaughter steers and heifers ruled steady to higher at Midwest markets this week, but prices of hogs and slaughter lambs moved in a lower direction.

At major terminals, slaughter steers sold steady to $1 higher, largely 25-50 cents up. Heifers were steady to 75 cents higher, except at Kansas City where under 50 cents lower. Trading in cows was very uneven, with most steady to 50 cents lower. Bulls generally were steady to 25 cents higher, although a lower trend was reported at Omaha. Vealers were steady to $1 or more higher and feeders were steady to 50 cents up.

Trading at the major terminals generally was erratic. At most points, good advances were posted early in the period, a reflection of upturns in the wholesale dressed beef trade. Later in the week several points recorded some weakness as an easier trend developed in beef markets. Demand was fairly broad for most weights and grades of both slaughter steers and heifers in contrast to the narrow outlets for steers weighing under 1,050 lbs. and heifers under 850 lbs. that prevailed the previous week. Only on Friday in Chicago did the outlet narrow.

Twelve market receipts of some 212,000 cattle, which were the largest in six months, were about 10 per cent above last week and much the same as a year ago.

In wholesale carlot trading, steer and heifer beef was steady to 1/2 cent a pound higher, with prices at Philadelphia as much as 1 to 1 1/2 cents higher for choice steer beef and as much as 1 cent higher for heifer beef.

Prime 1,200-1,450 lb. steers brought $29.50-$30.00 at Chicago and high-choice and prime 1,150-1,400 lb. weights $28.50 to $29.75.

Closing prices for barrows and gilts were 25 cents to $1 lower. Sows were uneven. Prices generally were 25-75 cents lower, except at Omaha, St. Joseph and St. Louis, where trends were steady to 75 cents higher.

Sharply lower wholesale dressed pork prices were mainly responsible for the decline in live hog prices. Pork loins generally were 1 to 1 1/2 cents a pound lower, except in Chicago where declines of 3-4 1/2 cents were posted. Boston butts were steady to 1/2 cent lower, instances as much as 3/4 cents off, and fresh hams were down 1 to 2 1/2 cents.

Hog receipts at 12 terminal markets plus direct marketing in interior Iowa and southern Minnesota totaled some 484,000 for the five day period compared with 487,000 last week and 426,000 a year ago.

Spring slaughter lambs closed the week selling steady to $1.25 lower. Shorn slaughter ewes were mostly steady and feeder lambs about steady.

Children's Attitude Toward Starting School Is Fostered by Parents

NEW YORK (NEA)—For two and a half million American youngsters the first school bell to ring this September means a rude break away from home—the first time that they will be separated from their mothers. Life will never be the same for them again.

Under the ideal situation, Dr. Freidberg says, the child's first teacher should explain the program and operation of the school.

It would also help if the teacher could visit the homes of the apprehensive children and parents. In doing so, she would familiarize herself with the child's background, family, pets, etc.

There has to be a period of adjustment for mother and child," says Dr. Freidberg. "The child must realize that his mother is not 'getting rid' of him. And at the same time, the mother must realize that Johnny may be defensive about school and is only putting on an act when he orders his mother to leave."

MAGIC VALLEY AMATEUR OPENS SATURDAY

64-Hole Medal Play Test Is Set For Munny Course

With a guaranteed merchandise prize list of $1,500, the annual Magic Valley Amateur Golf Tournament, the finale of the season, will open Saturday at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course. Host professional Clyde Thomsen said the tournament committee expected the field to reach six flights as it did last year. If it does the prize list will jump to $2,000. The tourney will be highlighted by a dance and buffet supper at the Twin Falls Elks Lodge, which is co-sponsoring the event with the Twin Falls Men's Golf Association.

FROM ALL ANGLES
By LARRY HOVEY

Physically everything is looking rosy at the University of Idaho but Athletic Director Paul Ostyn is dreading November. That may be show-down time for the Vandals and their future in the Big Sky conference. At that meet, he conference probably will vote to cut football grants in and back to 60-10 less than the university sought for last year in a similar fight. At that time Idaho wanted 75, the others 60.

In the past few weeks there has been considerable speculation about the outcome. An Idaho State official last week-end speculated that the Vandals would leave the conference and the two North Dakota schools would replace them. It is a difficult question for Ostyn to answer out loud, particularly since he has been only three months on the job and the new president is less than a month old in tenure. The board of trustees, however, favors the Vandals remaining in the Big Sky, for several reasons.

"I would not personally like to support any move that takes our program backwards," Ostyn said—but he emphasized the personally. Hartung, only four days in office at the time of the state Vandal Boosters meeting, told that group that at first blush it would seem a step backward—a direction he didn't care for. But he noted he was only superficially acquainted with the problem. He and Ostyn are slated for a long discussion Tuesday and that topic is bound to spring up.

On the matter of the North Dakota entries, Ostyn this week returned from a four-day meeting at Billings. "The Dakota teams were there, but for information only. They didn't ask to come in nor did we invite them. I think it would be safe to say it might be in the back of their minds."

There is an ironic reason for the Dakota schools wanting out of the Northcentral league. "Rumor has it," says Ostyn, "that the Northcentral put a lid on the number of grid scholarships, too. I don't know what the figure is but it is less than the Big Sky—and less than the Dakota schools want."

In the past Idaho has been suggested as a member of the Utah-Arizona lineup of the Western Athletic contest. It has been paper talk.

"We've never applied or even really talked to those people about joining the WAC. It seems certain the WAC will take in two new members this year and its our guess these will be San Jose and West Texas," he added.

"I can't say much more about the situation in the Big Sky. Everything here is going just exactly like it has been the past year. We still are members of the Big Sky. I don't know how it will come out but I do know that November meeting is going to be a dogfight," he said.

The three-day, 54-hole medal play affair will open Saturday with the field allowed to choose its own forenoon and tee-off times. Thomsen said post entries will be accepted through 1 p.m. The field will be flighted according to handicap and assigned pairings and tee-off times for the final two days.

The only sidelight event will be a 10-man elimination derby, beginning about 3:30 p.m. Sunday. It will draw its field from the 10 low scores and ties based on Saturday's results.

Defending champion is Mike Sweet, Tremonton, Utah, who has not committed himself to playing this year although Thomsen says "we kinda expect him." However, many of the top amateurs throughout Southern Idaho plus some from Utah and Nevada will be on hand.

Local standouts going for the title will be Chuck Cutler, who placed in the championship flight playoff last year, and Carl Hoss, both Twin Falls. Twin Falls also will provide Jim Purves, the 1964 city champion, and this year's club champion, Bob Falash. John Pyne and Tom Church head a Burley contingent while Elko will send Don Knap.

The payoff in each flight will run first, set of irons; second, set of woods; third, golf bag; fourth, shoes, and fifth, $15 gift certificate.

A change in the course layout will have the field playing a somewhat tougher course, particularly on No. 1 (the old 15th) and No. 14 (old five) which have extended tee boxes. Some traps also have been added.

Thomsen noted the course will be closed to regular play during the meet.

Switching to less precarious and controversial ground, Ostyn said everything points to a good year in football.

"The boys are starting to come in now, a couple today. They're in great shape now and the spirit is high. The coaching staff is very enthused and showing great esprit de corps. On paper it looks like Idaho might have one of its finest freshman teams, too, although we have to wait until we get them in the registrar's office in September. But if all the boys who said they were coming show up, this could be a great freshman team."

And a word to the wise. The Idaho football game at Boise this year features Oregon State plus the spice of Dee Andros returning to the state Boise ticket outlets have nothing to sell between the 35-yard lines and sales have been brisk.

Morgan Hardware, Burley, and Rogerson Coffee Shop, Twin Falls, have a limited number on sale now. Better get them or you'll have to stay in Twin Falls Oct. 16. An added incentive for Twin Falls fans. The Bruins play Borah in Boise that night.

FADING TO PASS is Bill Wade of the Chicago Bears Saturday in the first quarter of an exhibition game between the Bears and the Los Angeles Rams. Pursuing Wade are Rams Joe Seibell (71) and Lamar Lundy (85). (AP wirephoto)

Big Inning Lifts Dodgers Past Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National League-leading Los Angeles Dodgers clubbed five hits and stole five bases in a seven-run first-inning outburst and went on to an 8-4 victory over Philadelphia Saturday night.

Before the Dodgers nailed it, however, Manager Walt Alton called on 21-game winner Sandy Koufax in the ninth inning to get the final three outs. It was Koufax' first relief appearance of the season.

Maury Wills, the first of 11 batters in the 40-minute inning, opened the game with a single. Jim Gilliam walked and then both advanced on a double steal. — Wills' 51st of the season and first in seven games.

Commercial Interests Bemoan Poor Salmon Run

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP) — Canadian union and fisheries officials say the West Coast faces its second worst season on record.

"This is going to be a disastrous season—a lot of our boys are going to lose their shirts," an official of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (UFAW) says.

Blake Campbell, chief of the federal Fisheries Department economics branch, says the poor catch is general from southeast Alaska to Oregon.

"We have no explanation for it," he said in an interview Friday.

Department figures show the value of salmon taken up to the end of July is down almost $3 million from last year. Preliminary estimates for August indicate this month will be worse.

The number of pink salmon landed up to the end of July was down 75 per cent from last year. Sockeye landings were down 30 per cent. The two species are the most important in the industry.

Big runs expected this year did not materialize. At the same time the International Salmon Commission was forced to close key fishing areas to permit pinks to spawn and thus preserve the 1967 run.

Jack Nichols, business agent for the union, called the situation disastrous.

He said the worst year on record was 1960 when the pink catch totaled 630,000 cases. Last year the catch was low but still amounted to 1,250,000 cases. It would be doubtful whether this year's would reach 750,000 cases.

"The sockeye and pinks are the bread and butter fish," he said.

Grossmiller's Three-Run Homer Lifts Magic Valley Past Treasure Valley 5-2

CALDWELL (AP)—The Magic Valley Cowboys' Ron Grossmiller hit a three-run homer in the first inning Saturday night to spark a 5-2 Pioneer League win over the Treasure Valley Cubs. Magic Valley came back in the next-inning to score two more runs. Treasure Valley's Duane Rossman hit his seventh homer of the season in the second inning but the bases were empty.

Patrick and Vincent Keep League Leads

Pitcher Billy Patrick maintained his earned-run average lead and centerfielder Jim Vincent took over in runs-batted-in and stolen bases according to official Pioneer League statistics released today.

Patrick, who added seven shutout innings against Treasure Valley Thursday night, holds a 2.57 mark. Others are ahead of him but have not pitched the 54 minimum innings to qualify.

Vincent, voted the club's most valuable player, has 28 stolen bases, not including three against Treasure Valley, and jumped his RBI total to 41. He was tied with Gary Cortopassi, Treasure Valley, at 36 last week but the Cub outfielder failed to drive a run across the plate during the week and stayed right there.

Jack Hedrick is the only other Cowboy with a lead—giving up 12 homeruns, the most in the league.

I.F. Erases 7-Run Deficit, Tops Dodgers

IDAHO FALLS (AP)—Idaho Falls came from a seven-run deficit Saturday night to overtake Pocatello in bottom of the eighth inning to win 10-9.

Don Anderson tripled home Thomas Silverio with the winning run after Silverio lived on a sacrifice attempt and an error on third baseman Rhett Thompson.

It was the fourth hit of the night for Anderson and the fourth time he had scored Silverio with a hit.

Idaho Falls tallied four times in the seventh inning to get back into the game with Tom Soderstrom's two-run double and Anderson's run-scoring single.

The night was filled with errors—four for Pocatello and five on Idaho Falls. There also were numerous pitching changes on the cold windy night.

L.A. Extends Detroit Loss Skin to Four

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Albie Pearson broke a tie with a seventh-inning single, his third hit of the game, as the Los Angeles Angels handed the Detroit Tigers their fourth straight loss Saturday night, 4-3.

Paul Schaal, who scored three runs, walked to begin the Angels' winning rally with the score tied, 3-3. He took second on a pinch swing by Al Spangler and scored as Pearson ripped a two-out single off loser Orlando Pena.

The victory went to Jim Coates, who came to the relief of starter Marcelino Lopez in the seventh inning and threw only one pitch. Catcher Merritt Egan caught it and threw a third to pick off Jake Wood.

The Tigers had a runner thrown out at the plate and one thrown out at second.

Errant Race Car Kills 4, Injures 13

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP)—Four persons were killed and 13 injured Saturday when a stock racing car, thrown out of control by a tire blowout, slammed into a crowd of spectators at the Missouri State Fair.

A crowd estimated at about 10,000 was in the grandstand at the race track when the car, on a time trial for a 100-mile stock car race, left the track and burst through a fence.

Just a few seconds before the accident, a Missouri Highway Patrol trooper issued warnings over a loudspeaker for the spectators along that section of the fence to leave. He said they were in a restricted area, which was closed to spectators.

The spectators lined up against the chain-link fence enclosing the track had crawled under a fence to get into the area.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Jacqueline Bogard, St. Louis County, Mo.; Glenn S. Taylor, Maysville, Mo.; William E. McCartney, 21, Amity, Mo.; and Rickie Brandt, 4, Wichita, Kan.

Bill Crain, Liberty, Mo., driver of the 1964 Dodge stock car, was among the injured.

Many of the spectators hospitalized were children.

The scene was one of near bedlam as spectators converged on the area seeking relatives.

Treasure Valley's Duane Rossman hit his seventh homer of the season in the second inning but the bases were empty.

The Cubs picked up another run in the third on Ron Webb's single and that ended scoring for both teams.

The Cowboys' Larry Tolliver and relief pitcher Dave Maduski stopped the Cubs after the third. The Cubs' Dick James gave up all five runs to take the loss.

LITTLE ECLIPSE COPS APPALOOSA CROWN

La Ree Bar Sprints to Quarterhorse Derby Win; Record Crowd Sees Races

JEROME—Little Eclipse won the Idaho Juvenile Stake Appaloosa Futurity and La Ree Bar took the Intermountain Quarterhorse Derby Saturday night before a record-breaking crowd at the Jerome Race track. The two features, plus the Southern Idaho Horse Racing Association Thoroughbred Futurity for 2-year-olds, won by Caminar, were responsible for the crowded stands and heavy betting at the pari-mutuel windows.

Those two were the best choices of the crowd. Had Twist Appy, Wayne Smith owned and owned by Smith and Jernberg, took third. But a blanket could have covered the field.

Richfield to Rely On Underclassmen

RICHFIELD—If Richfield improves on last year's 3-3 record it will be due to a good-sized line and rapid development of sophomores and freshmen. # SPORTS

HAPPY FISHERMEN Don Allen, Jerome, left, and Dick Heath, Colorado Springs, Colo., beam over the 19-pound trout they pulled out of Billingsley Creek Saturday afternoon. Allen used a four-pound test line on a spinning outfit and mops spinner to lure the hooker into striking three times. He set the hook on the third pass and hung on for a 20-minute fight filled with a lot of suspense but it finally ended with Heath scooping it up with a net. The trout is a veteran in the annual war with anglers. Two fish were missing, most of its teeth gone, nose battered and the tail fin worn. Still it is the second largest caught in the area in the past few years. (Times-News photo)

Despite his protests of size, his fellow conference coaches have picked the Senators to battle the Filer Wildcats for the title again this year.

Gieberger Beats Wind and Rain to Top Golf Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Skinny Al Geiberger stood strong against wind, rain and cold Saturday to take a five-stroke lead after the third round of the $100,000 American Golf Classic with an amazing 35-34-69 and a two-under-par total of 208. The 6-foot-2 1/2, 163-pound Geiberger started the third round in a tie with Bobby Nichols. ## Citizens Unite Behind Local Fund Campaign

By O. A. (Gus) KELKER
Times-News Feature Editor

Without community spirit there would be no community and without citizens who are willing to do just a little more than is expected of them there would be no spirit.

This is the situation in Twin Falls at the present time as the advanced drive for United Fund, Inc. is underway and the general drive is just around the corner.

Actually, it is a cross section of the community residents who will make the drive the success it is expected to be. They come from all walks of life but they have one purpose in mind. That is to give financial aid to organizations which benefit the town.

But many who participate in such a drive go above the financial level. They give of their own time—away from their own business—to aid someone else.

Joe Cilek, publicity chairman for the current drive, hit the nail on the head.

"When the owner of the business donates a part of his time in community work he must have a staff of loyal employees behind him. They must take up the slack and keep the business going when the boss is out aiding the community projects. Without loyal employees the owner would find that working on a community project would be impossible."

At the same time there are business and professional men who actually find it impossible to go out on a drive. They, however, contribute financially. In other words there are those who give coming and going.

John Peterson, president of United Fund, Inc., said drive goal this year is $73,900 for a split among participating organizations. The bulk of this amount will come from two sources. From individual businesses and from employees of these businesses.

Many plans have been adopted by various businesses in Twin Falls in order to assure that the program will be a success. One such business with a plan is the Times-News.

Employees of the newspaper authorize a certain amount of money to be deducted from their paycheck each month and this amount goes into a special fund from which contributions come. With a setup of this kind it is possible to have a 100 per cent contribution to a drive without the necessity of solicitors visiting each employee.

Newspaper officials point out that such an arrangement—although requiring more book-keeping in the "front" office—saves time which the drive workers are taking away from their own business in order to make the various calls. One call does the trick.

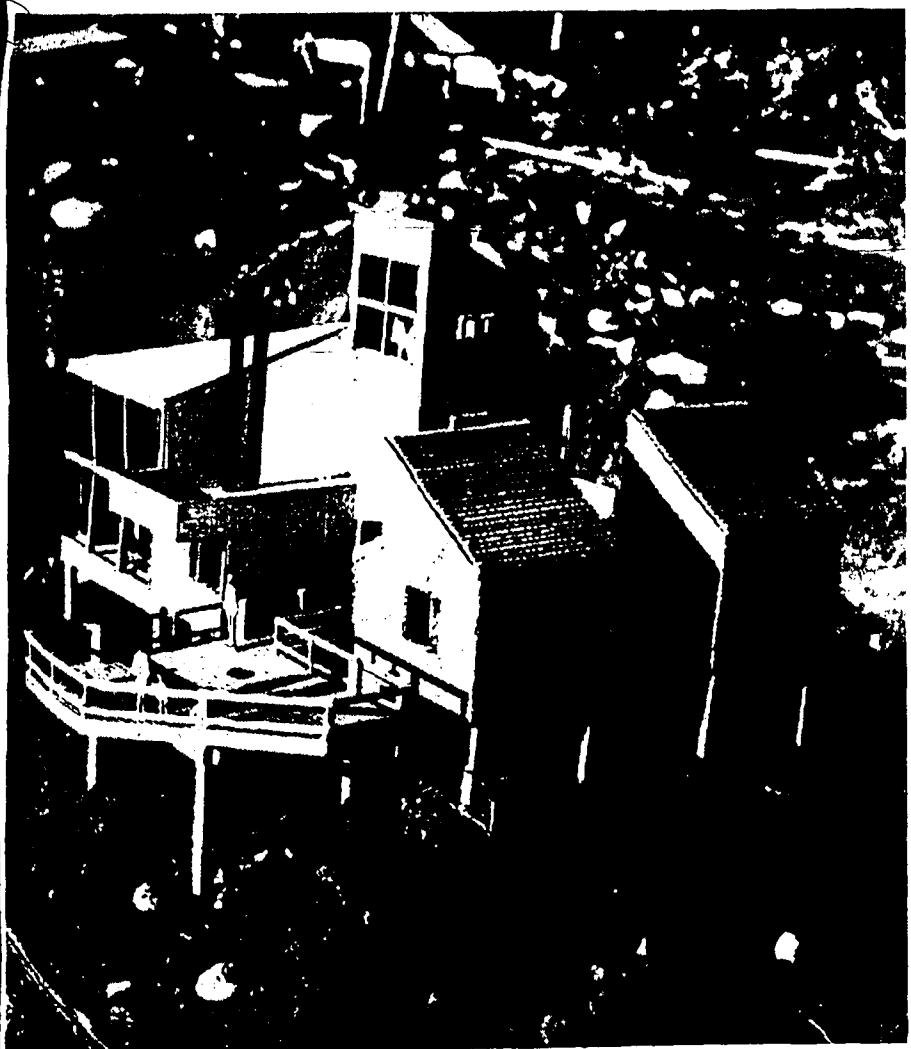

Before the start of World War II one of the young community workers was Loyal Perry, an official in the Fidelity National

TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, SUNDAY, AUGUST 29, 1965

MODEL OF CABIN now being built for Dr. Bernard L. Kreilkamp, Twin Falls, by Patrick Cudmore, Washington, D.C., has proven useful in laying out the cabin. Cudmore, an architecture student at Harvard, intended the cabin to combine the historical roots of the Ketchum area—the old mines—with the most recent architectural advances. The result is a cabin that is reminiscent of a mine's headframe, while taking advantage of "stilts." (Times-News photo)

Student Designs, Builds Unusual Cabin on Stilts

KETCHUM — A cabin now being built one mile south of Ketchum—where raising a new cabin is certainly commonplace—will be without comparison. It stands on stilts and looks like a mine.

It is a cabin which successfully combines the most exciting developments of modern architecture with Ketchum's historical roots in the mines of the 19th century.

Dr. Bernard L. Kreilkamp, Twin Falls, wanted a cabin and led away from more conventional A-frames or log cabin facsimiles by his son-in-law, Patrick Cudmore, Washington, D.C., who will be working on his master's degree in architecture at Harvard next year.

Dr. Kreilkamp made arrangements for Cudmore to design and build the cabin—an enviable opportunity for a young architect.

Cudmore managed to round up a considerable task-force of helpers. Michael Lampieri, Baltimore, came West to supply paintings and design rugs, as well as bend his back in general construction.

Vello Oinas, an Estonian refugee, who is a fifth-year architecture student at the Catholic University of America, did much of the work drafting plans.

William R. J. Murphey, a medical student at the University of Chicago, came to offer bandages from his handy first aid kit. Cudmore's wife, Ann, and some of the younger Kreilkamps, complete the group which set out for the hills in July.

Fortunately for the project, William Smith, Ketchum, an experienced carpenter, was on

Wilderness Job Suits Patrolman

REDFISH LAKE — The new comers to Redfish Lake were given their first introduction to nearby climbing challenges and hazards by a person who knows the region well at first hand.

One lanky woman leaned across the table toward the scrap of paper. Another climber, a professional guide, watched peaks slowly appear on the map the camp's visitor drew from memory.

Information vital to the success and safety of the climbers was provided as one of the many services of Sawtooth Valley's wilderness patrolman, Gary Smith.

Smith, a summertime refugee from Utah State University, where he is a student, is one of four forest service employees who patrol the wilderness trails of the Sawtooth Primitive Area.

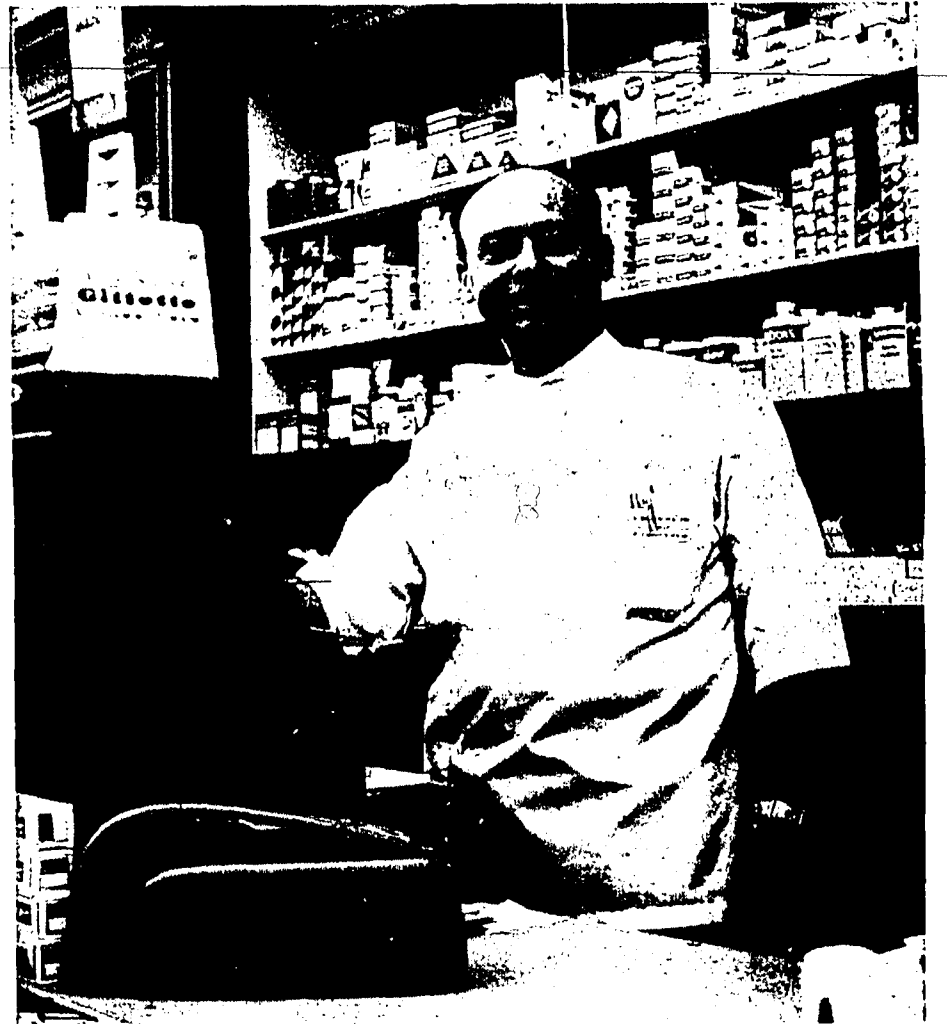

These patrolmen are termed "naturalists on horseback" by Smith. As one of them he offers information, assistance, emergency first aid and entertainment to whomever he meets on his week-long pack trips into some of the most rugged country in America.

Or he may provide maps and, while riding little-traveled trails, do light trail maintenance.

Among his most important but little known duties is initial fire control. A patrolman may be the only person within 10 miles of an otherwise unseen fire.

Smith often is the person who introduces visitors to Forest service regulations. He may remind the camper of the new ruling requiring that all garbage be packed out of the back

RALPH TULLOCH, owner of Wiley Drug Co., is a yearly contributor to the United Fund Drive. Like a great majority of local businessmen he believes that some of the money realized from living and working in a community should be turned back for benefit of that community's progress. (Times-News photo)

WILDERNESS PATROLMAN Gary Smith, Sawtooth Valley, pauses a moment to look out over Redfish Lake. Smith combines his patrol of the wilderness in the assistance of visitors with his avocation of writing poetry. He believes civilization destroys "the silences which are necessary for a person to come to know himself." He rides through the Sawtooth wilderness to help visitors know the mountain silences and to experience what he terms "heartened humility and conscious sensitivity." His job is an important contact between the government and the public. (Times-News photo)

STANDING IN FRONT of the Chain tree in the yard of her home near Rupert is Mrs. Rex Broadhead. The tree, which is about 12 feet high, is in the corner of her garden and bright yellow blooms, resembling chains, hang from the branches. She says she had seen only two other such Chain trees—one in Salt Lake City and one in Twin Falls.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

The country home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Broadhead in Minidoka County is of real interest, since Mrs. Broadhead has planted trees, plants and shrubs of unusual varieties. One of the most outstanding is a Chain tree, which is in full bloom and is about 12 feet high. It grows in a corner of her garden before a background of nicely trimmed hedge. Bright yellow blooms, resembling chains, hang from the branches of the tree. Mrs. Broadhead stated she has seen only two other Chain trees, one in salt Lake City and the other one in TWIN FALLS. She said, "I decided that if other people could grow them, I could, too," so she ordered one from a RUPERT nursery and has had it for five years.

To complement her setting for the tree, she arranged iris and ageratum among the red lava rocks that form a garden around the tree. She and her husband hauled the red rocks from near the old hunt project north of HAZELTON.

Other unusual trees in her yard include a Western Catalpa and a Staghorn Sumac. The Catalpa tree, with its broad leaves and blossoms, is 25 years old and provides shade for the east lawn of their home.

Two lovely Blue Spruce trees also enhance the lawn and form a background for other flowers and shrubs.

On the patio at the rear of the home stands a Bonanza Peach tree, planted in a red wooden tub, that is about two and one-half feet high. Last year it produced two dozen peaches with an outstanding flavor, but this year only has four peaches on it.

During the winter the small tree is put in the potato cellar and just watered occasionally, as they were skeptical as to whether or not it would withstand severe winters.

Mrs. Broadhead commented on the fact that several of their neighbors were very much interested in the tree as it was developing and forming the fruit.

Along the east side of their home she has set out Rhododendrons, which are rare in this area, but grow like evergreens and are a native of Oregon. The leaves are broad and dark green, and they have cascading clusters of pink flowers.

The Broadhead home, which is the modern rustic type, is well back from the road and is complemented by the various red rock formations that are set in gardens of petunias, geraniums, iris and floribunda roses, as well as rock garden plants.

Mrs. Broadhead is proud of her yard and never has a dull moment with all of her gardening, homemaking and civic duties.

"Have Horse, Will Ride" can easily serve as the motto for the Yashi Riding Club, as the only requirement for membership is to have a horse, be able to handle it and have access to it year-around.

The term "Yashi," an Arabian name meaning "little," is quite appropriate for the club, as it is comprised of youngsters from 8 to 18 years of age. The club boasts a continuous membership of some 35 horse enthusiasts.

During the winter season the club meets once a month, on the third Wednesday. Many organized parties are sched-

and routines. Team events are held and usually another riding club is invited to participate in Jam-boree racing events. Overnight trips to the mountains are made and the summer season also sees the youngsters participating in area parades, as well as the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo.

The club dress carries out the red and white theme and features blue jeans, white shirt with a red tie and white hat accented with a red band. The red is repeated in the tassels that adorn the blanket draping the horse.

The club received a trophy for the best dressed mounted horsemanship exhibit in the local parade two years ago.

The need for youths to do something with their horses was realized six years ago and a planning session to establish such a club was held directed by Ormond Smith. Dr. Garth Atwood also assisted with its first establishment. However, since that time James McArthur and Ernest Roland have served as the advisers and instructors.

Many problems had to be overcome and foremost was securing a riding area. Drills first were practiced at the cannery lot of the Green Giant Co., and then at Cedar Draw beet dump area. However, this proved unsatisfactory because of heavy dust created by the riders and no water was available for sprinkling.

Finally, the club was able to secure the area near the Buhl airport, courtesy of the city of Buhl. A water pump is available for sprinkling system and floodlights have been installed by the club for night drill practice sessions.

Very few accidents have occurred, none serious, during the drill practices, McArthur said. He also noted a lot of parent cooperation has kept the club doing through the years.

Officers at present are Danny Glese, president; Nedra Morrisson, vice president; Jill Matthews, secretary; Carolyn Wheeler, treasurer; Mary Giddings, historian; Eileen Stombaugh, reporter; T. V. Wheeler and William Stombaugh, board members.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Women are caught up in the war in Viet Nam — some as active combatants, others as spies or saboteurs, and others as innocent bystanders.

Both the Vietnamese army and the Viet Cong deal harshly with hostile women they catch. Some are executed, others tortured in an effort to extract information.

The Viet Cong relies the most heavily on women, although South Viet Nam recently announced plans to induct those between 20-25 into a reserve army to help defend villages. A Vietnamese regiment sweeping a mangrove swamp on the South China Sea flushed two women, one armed with a Soviet rifle.

At knifepoint, the women refused to say how they came by the rifle and documents found on them. They said they were just civilians. They were bound, blindfolded and taken away as prisoners.

Many Vietnamese women are enlisted as spies or saboteurs by the Viet Cong. Some ply the bars of Saigon, hoping to pry on U.S. soldiers.

Last month a laundress tried to smuggle explosives in her girdle into a U.S. helicopter base at Soc Trang, Vietnamese security police caught her, questioned her, then took her out into a nearby rice field and shot her.

On the other side, the Viet Cong has been known to torture women to try to get information from them.

U.S. infantrymen interrupted a Viet Cong torture session in a Montagnard village east of Pleiku.

"Mighty Mo" Was Host for Japan's Surrender in 1945

By MURLIN SPENCER
ABOARD USS MISSOURI, BREMERTON, Wash. (AP) — The solemn words are what you remember most as you return to the "Mighty Mo" 20 years after the historic surrender ceremony.

You can still remember Gen. Douglas MacArthur, standing erect, his face stern, as he said: "It is my earnest hope, and indeed the hope of all mankind, that from this solemn occasion a better world shall emerge out of the blood and carnage of the past — a world founded upon faith and understanding — a world dedicated to the dignity of man and the fulfillment of his most cherished wish — for freedom, tolerance and justice."

You can still hear that voice warning that while in the past nations had resorted to war when they could not settle their disputes at the conference table, "the utter destructiveness of war now blots out this alternative." Obviously thinking of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, he said: "We have had our last chance."

Looking down on the huge 16-inch guns of the Missouri in their sealed turrets you wonder if once again they might pound shore installations in some faraway land.

The 45,000-ton ship looks to the green hills behind Bremerton. On one side is the light cruiser Pasadena, also part of the mothball fleet. On the other side, workmen are overhauling a huge carrier.

How different it was 20 years ago in Tokyo Bay. White-clad sailors hung from every vantage point, all looking down at the small gallery deck on the starboard side. Their attention was focused on a mess table covered with a green cloth.

The guns were pointed toward Tokyo. Long before the ceremony started at 9 a. m. the generals and admirals from 11 nations gathered to watch. There were men whose names were known throughout the world — MacArthur, Gen. Chester Nimitz, Adm. William F. Halsey, Gen. Eichelberger, commander of the 8th Army; Kreuger, commander of the 6th Army; Wainwright, Percival and Stilwell and Admirals Turner, Towers and Sherman. Many of them are now dead.

The skies were overcast and it was cool, but the Americans wore their shirts open at the neck. No one carried arms, except the Russians, who wore holstered pistols, and the Chinese, who carried small ceremonial daggers.

Gen. MacArthur came aboard and walked swiftly to Adm. Halsey's quarters. At 8:55 a. m., the Japanese delegation came alongside in a whaleboat from the Missouri and climbed to the deck.

Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu had difficulty negotiating the ladder because of a wooden leg, the result of an assassination attempt before the war. With him was Gen. Yoshijiro Umezo, chief of staff of the Japanese army. Other military men and civilians accompanied them, but Shigemitsu and Umezo were to sign the surrender instrument.

As supreme commander of the Allied powers this was his greatest hour and he made the most of it. He was stern and erect, but the paper in his hand shook slightly as he spoke briefly but fervently of the world's hope for a lasting peace.

forces to the Japanese, and MacArthur's hand shook slightly as he gripped the first of six pens he used to sign his name. He gave the first to the Japanese. Both were gaunt and tired, worn out from long months in Japanese prison camps. It was all over in a few minutes, but again MacArthur expressed the hopes of all who watched: "Let us pray that peace be now restored to the world, and that God will preserve it all ways."

object of disgust or aversion. But this is considered a gross injustice by anyone who has listened to frog music on a warm spring night.

Idaho food gourmets who rate frog legs just ahead of barbecued ribs hold William H. Ridenbaugh as their patron saint. He was the Boise pioneer who brought bullfrogs overland from Missouri in about 1895. He was superintendent of the stage company and Wells Fargo agent.

He lived in South Boise, where high water flooded his pond and released the frogs unintentionally. He also introduced black bass to the Idaho country for the first time. Records show that the first Oregon plantings of bullfrogs from Idaho were in 1920.

Anglers often query the Idaho Fish and Game Department about bullfrogs. Why are they classed with game fish in the regulations? Why is there a bag limit of 12? Why must they be caught with hook and line rather than "giggin" or "grabbin'" the way they do "back home?" And especially why is the use of artificial light to attract the croakers banned?

The answers, coming from James C. Simpson, chief of fisheries, go like this:

"Idaho's huge mottled bullfrogs obviously are not game birds or animals. But they do need protection and a niche was found for them many years ago in the fishing regulations. A precedent was established for this when the Catholic Church, confronted with the same biological dilemma, decreed that the big batrachians must be classed as fish."

Jim Parsons, noted outdoor writer who lives at Sandpoint, describes a method of "fishing" for bullfrogs that meets requirements of the regulations and still remains good sporting fun as follows:

"A 30- or 36-inch piece of stout line is rigged to the end of a fly rod or long cane pole, and the hook is baited with a piece of bright red cloth.

"The first order of business is to spot the frog, who may be sitting motionless atop a floating lily pad, or as an unnatural hump in the water, with just eyes protruding. A pair of binoculars will help to locate him in growths of reeds.

"The trick is to flip the red lure within inches of the frog's mouth. His long tongue will flick out with lightning speed—and the critter has become part of the evening's main course."

Weird, Hoarse Music of Toads, Frogs Is Resonant Around Ponds in Idaho

BY JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department

BOISE—Toad was all the name 11-year-old Kim Bengoechea of Boise ever gave her late pet, with the salmon colored skin and pink eyes.

Her younger brother Shane was no help. Neither of them had any idea that his proper textbook classification was Scaphiopus hammondi hammondi Baird.

Otherwise, they might have called their diminutive dependent Hammond's Spadefoot toad for short.

Kim and Shane loved Toad and now are grieving over his recent untimely death—from over-eating dried insects prepared as turtle food. They commiserate with each other and find solace in the knowledge that they actually raised a rather unusual specimen of Idaho wildlife.

It was a Hammond's Spadefoot toad that was indeed a rarity because of his complete lack of pigmentation, a true albino. Toad's remains now are preserved in formaldehyde solution in the biology laboratory at Boise College, where he will remain a prized exhibit for years.

Meanwhile, his mistress and master fondly dream that Toad floats somewhere in the universe rather than on the surface of a worldly pond, his sides swelled out and vibrating, his back curved backward from the effort, as he calls out the ancestral music of his kind.

Man has been trying to describe frog and toad music since the time of the ancient Greek Aristophanes.

These notes are characterized as bubbling, weird, plaintive, hoarse, woeeful, mournful, prolonged, mellow, tremulous, squawking, shrill, deafening, ventriloquial, peeping, metallic, resonant, twittering, loud, guttural, snoring, snorting, gurgling, clacking, explosive, grating and sweet.

The reason is that in a gathering of 10,000 of these creatures in concert, probably no two are singing in exactly the same pitch—if an octave can possibly admit so many divisions, or shades of semitones.

In general, tree frogs sing the treble, with a somewhat larger species carrying the counter tenor, and the under-part supported by bullfrogs as big as a man's foot.

Toad as a tadpole was snow white, with flashing pink eyes that became blood red from time to time. The color changes were striking during his last hours when, bloated from glutony, his strength would ebb and flow.

The youngsters isolated Toad from thousands of his brethren and captured him in a pond near the Highlands, an exclusive Boise residential section.

They were attracted to him because of his fat white body and striking pink eyes that protruded from a prominent head stuck on the end of a distinct neck. No doubt much development in the transformation from tadpole to toad already had taken place.

Biologists say that, when hatched, the larva generally has only a small tail, and sometimes none at all. The lower front side of the head at this stage has a depression which becomes mouth and pits where the eyes develop later.

How Kim and Shane Bengoechea guessed that Toad actually was a toad-to-be, rather than one of Idaho's several species of frogs, is anybody's guess. Both families of amphibians are tailless and web-footed. But toads, after their metamorphosis from tadpoles, are terrestrial or land-loving. Frogs are aquatic or water-based.

The youngsters learned much during Toad's transformation from a tadpole. The buds of the hind limbs begin to appear first. The fore limbs started development beneath the skin.

When the hind limbs had reached considerable size, the left arm came out through the skin. But sometimes the right arm appears first as the skin breaks down or weakens for its egress.

The tail crests began to decrease in size as Toad began to live on this appendage through a process of absorption. More profound but hidden was the changeover from water-breathing gills to developing lungs as the only respiratory organ.

Fanciers of golden brown frog legs as prime table fare are more interested in bullfrogs than any other frog species and, of course, the musical but lowly toads are disregarded altogether.

General usage of the language applies the word "toad" to single out a person or thing as an

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT . . . Principal at Paul School "Drifted" Into Teaching Duty 28 Years Ago

BOYD W. EARL

PAUL—Boyd W. Earl, principal of the Paul school, recalls that he "drifted" into a career in the field of education about 28 years ago and has never regretted it.

"Now I wouldn't be in anything else. I have found this to be a very satisfying way of life," he says.

He credits the advantage of having the nearby location of the former Albion State Normal College, for his decision.

"It was a fine little college and I'm sure that everyone who went there was shaped by it. It brought a lot of teachers out of this area at that time," he recalls.

Although Earl is not a resident of Paul, he has created deep roots in this community, through his association in the local school since 1946.

He entered the Paul high school teaching staff as a band instructor. He was "graduated" from school teaching into "school learning" in 1955 when he was appointed school principal over the elementary grades.

He enjoys the position of principal, but finds that he misses the close association he found with students as their teacher. Personal and other problems still are brought to his desk through student counseling. His biggest interest is in school work and with boys and girls.

Although Earl now presides at the big desk in the school office, with the duties of principal, he still maintains that the highlights of his career were found in his former classrooms as teacher and band instructor.

The band students under his direction usually were rated at, or near, the top during area competitions.

Earl was born June 21, 1915, at Brigham City, Utah. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Earl. His mother is deceased and his father, a former sugar company employe, resides at Burley.

Earl is the second of a family of five children. His family moved to Burley when Earl was 4 years old. The farm they had purchased was sold in 1922 and the family moved to Ogden, where the father returned to sugar employment.

They later moved to Smithfield, Utah, and then Hamilton City, Calif., where his father still was associated with sugar firms.

In 1926, the family moved back to Burley, but soon returned to Ogden, where Earl was graduated from Weber high school in 1933.

By this time it seemed definite where the family was going to reside, and they returned to Burley, where they purchased a farm in the Pella district.

Earl took odd jobs for the next three years before deciding to attend Albion State Normal. He majored in junior high education and minored in music.

He helped provide funds for his college education by playing in a family orchestra composed of his sister, Marcia Earl (now Mrs. Martin Hasselstrom), and Rex Earl.

Earl's ability to master instrumental music must have come through a natural source, as he never became interested in music until his high school days. He liked it, studied it, and spent the next several years participating in local dance orchestras.

During the early 1950's he joined other area musicians and played in a dance orchestra under his name.

He married the former Alismae Melton, Idaho Falls, in the spring of 1939. They reside on the farm first purchased by the elder Earl when the family returned to Burley.

Their son, Boyd Jr., 21, is a senior at the University of Idaho, and David is a freshman at the U. of I., where he is studying medicine.

Earl has taught school at Pinegreen, Hazelton, Ririe and Paul. He received his B.A. degree in 1949 from Southern Idaho College of Education and his M.A. degree in 1963 at Idaho State College. He has attended four summers of summer school.

Earl is past president of the Minidoka County Teachers Association; past president of the Idaho Department of Elementary School Principals, fourth district, and is currently president of the Paul Lians Club.

One of Earl's most memorable occasions was when he was honored by the parents of his band students at a banquet. The group presented him with a ring.

Earl's opinion of today's youth is favorable and he finds the behavior problems to be few.

"Our school is very fortunate that way and we find the parents are particularly helpful and cooperative. This has always impressed me in this community."

"The homes have a lot to do with the child's attitude at school. I'm one who still thinks that the home is the shaper of the children's character, more

Buffaloes Block Trains In Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—African buffaloes don't like trains.

Train crews freighting iron ore down through the Kruger National game reserve from a mine at Phalaborwa are worried by buffalo herds blocking the line. Rounding a bend in the game reserve in the early hours of a dark morning recently by an ore-laden train ran into a herd of about 400 buffalo. Two buffaloes were killed outright, with a third trapped under the cowcatcher. Part of the train was derailed during efforts to clear the line.

A few days earlier a train had struck and killed six of the animals.

Buffaloes and trains have never got on well together, and the Phalaborwa train crews now fear an organized ambush. They report that both times: "The herd did not move off, but stood their ground, took up a threatening attitude and belovled."

The African buffalo is known to big game hunters as probably the fiercest animal in the continent. When 400 buffalo take up a threatening attitude and belov, you don't just stand around.

So the train crews don't know whether to go slower, with less chance of antagonizing the buffalo further, or to put on speed and get out of buffalo country as fast as they can.

so than any other agency," he noted.

Earl finds he has no more problems with youngsters than he had 26 years ago.

"It seems that today's youths know where they are going, and their objectives are better defined," he concluded.

MR. AND MRS. PATRICK CUDMORE, Washington, D. C., are shown hard at work on cabin being built near Ketchum for Dr. Bernard L. Kreilkamp, Twin Falls. Here the Cudmores are nailing one of the many upright poles used to support the elevated first floor. With the floor above the ground, the cabin will have a large covered patio at ground level. ## Architecture Student Draws Plans, Builds Cabin With Help of Friends

Continued from Page 21 hand to keep imaginations tacked down to the immediate business of laying out a cabin. Smith will continue working through the winter after the colleagues have returned to their studies. Considerable effort was made to involve the whole Kreilkamp family in the project. Each member of the household who was old enough helped make the rugs lampieri had designed, and each has worked at the site whenever possible.

As an architect, Cudmore faced several fairly well-defined problems. First, the most basic needs of the Kreilkamp family must be satisfied. The cabin must contain the eight children and their parents while giving some measure of privacy. Then, there was the challenge presented by the site. Heavy snowfalls, possible flooding from the nearby Wood River and a satisfactory integration with the overall setting had to be provided. But, most important for the architect and what is often overlooked by builders, is what Cudmore calls "the spirit of the Ketchum area."

He felt the best solution for this need would be a combination of the area's historical roots with the modernity of the new society which is making inroads into the hills.

Cudmore began, then with the historical beginnings — with the mines that thrived in central Idaho in the 1880's. He designed a cabin that looks like a mine. It displays the silhouette of the familiar triangular headframes that made up the skyline 80 years ago.

Yet, with the context of its historical roots, the cabin is clearly in the mainstream of the best in 20th Century architecture. For one thing, it eliminates many of the usual weight-bearing walls. In their place, it uses upright poles to support the floors. The walls may then be partitions hung between floors, and can be placed with great flexibility.

By using upright supports Cudmore was able to lift the first floor above the ground. By elevating their "house on stilts," the Kreilkamps have what amounts to a huge, covered patio underneath the first floor. This greatly increases the usable area without increasing the expense significantly.

Further, this improves the view.

According to Cudmore, "There is a new and undiscovered vista that unfolds, as you increase the elevation."

Too, snowdrifts cannot pile up against the house walls, nor should spring floodwaters pose much of a threat to this "pier." Perhaps the most important

Student Puts Off Wedding Despite Draft

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Pat Leamy, 22, gave up his chance to beat the draft Thursday night because he thought it wouldn't be right.

Leamy and his fiancée, Sue Grebel, 20, both of Edwarsville, went through their wedding rehearsal Thursday night and thought of going ahead and completing the ceremony.

If they had, Leamy would have escaped the new regulation imposed by President Johnson that young men who marry after midnight Thursday night would be draft eligible.

"We thought about doing it, but then we decided it wasn't right," Leamy said. "We'll just go ahead with our Saturday wedding and take our chances with the draft."

The wedding has been planned since last spring. The Leamys will honeymoon in Europe, where the groom will study architecture at the French National Academy.

reason for lifting the cabin off the ground is the feeling that the outdoors is brought directly beneath and into the indoors.

By connecting the outdoors and the indoors, the cabin affirms that people need the presence of nature as much as they need shelter from it.

Even from the interior of the house the architect directs the eye along the walls straight into the outdoors. At each corner, windows let the viewer's gaze pass freely beyond the confines of the room.

This, like the open areas beneath the first floor, gives a sense of space shooting through the cabin, and a resultant openness.

Yet this is not to be a glass house. Enough privacy is retained to throw stones. An occupant is raised and separated from the ground. Separation from the level of most activity results in an awareness of seclusion and privacy.

One of the most striking things about the cabin will be its exterior. This is unusual because it accurately reflects the shape of the interior spaces.

This leads to what might at first seem to be chaotic, or at least complicated exterior shape. What is not easily seen, but what is important to the exterior's harmonious use of its varied masses, is the careful use Cudmore has made of simple proportions.

The cube is the basic unit. Cudmore began most of the living areas with what he calls a "cubic value." He then "exploded," or expanded, these cubes by, say, removing a wall or raising high a roof beam.

These variations from the cubic norm eliminate any chance of boredom with pointlessly repeated shapes, while they do not eliminate the awareness of harmony based on proportion.

GIRL HIKERS are shown the Sawtooth sights by Sawtooth Valley Wilderness Patrolman Gary Smith. Smith is one of four Forest Service employees who ride the rugged country in the heart of the Sawtooth Mountains. He provides information and assistance to newcomers to the area. He feels the mountains are a necessary refuge in a busy civilization.

FIRSTHAND INFORMATION about climbing areas in the Sawtooth Range is given by Gary Smith, wilderness patrolman for the Sawtooth Valley Ranger District. Here Smith is outlining possible climbs in the Redfish Lake area to members of the Iowa Mountaineers. He has climbed most of the peaks in the area, and is well-qualified to warn these newcomers to the area of possible hazards, as well as the locations of the most rewarding climbs. (Times-News photo) areas rather than allowing it to be given a shallow burial near an already cluttered campground.

Smith also has the difficult task of refusing access to motorized vehicles, particularly the two-wheeled trail scooters.

Because the wilderness patrolman has a continued intimate contact with the backcountry, he conducts many statistical surveys for the Forest Service. He tries to determine how many people are using what areas, how they use the areas and how long different types of people stay.

The information received from these surveys is important for the planning of future Forest Service policies for the area.

Smith feels that the present policy of the service is adequate because of "strong management." But it is hard pressed. "We must be able to stay ahead of the crush of people," he said.

Smith says the key to good wilderness area management is the recognition that different people seek different things from the area. There must be different types of things for these people to do.

The people who pack back into the wilderness area are part of a very small minority, Smith emphasizes. Their minor rights must be protected, for they are the easiest abused.

Smith feels the areas designated as primitive or wild are easily exploited and ruined if they are overused. For this reason he is opposed to flooding them with people.

He points out what he calls "buffer zones"—areas which he feels should be left undeveloped, by, for example, not building access roads around Redfish Lake so uninterested people would not be likely to go into the backcountry. Only enthusiastic outdoorsmen would venture into the high sanctuary.

For those who wish to hike back into the Sawtooths, he supports the development of an extensive trail system to accommodate and distribute the visitors.

"But some canyons should never feel a trail," he said.

There is much more on Smith's mind than the logistics of moving people through the mountains. He is deeply involved with preservation of the mountain sanctuary because he believes people need it as an outlet or escape valve from what is becoming an increasingly demanding and crushing society.

Smith is a poet. In one of his poems he defines that society. "Cry-street, city-street, Hum-drum neon glare of non-sense lights Blinding, hum-drum artificial people The world is dying for want of true people"

Smith insists that "city-street" is unnatural. He thinks man must "strip himself of his stainless-steel cocoon." He must go into the mountains—into the silences.

"People," he said, "must be given freedom. They must have the total wilderness experience. Man needs to escape... needs the silence."

"Man must know himself in his silences," he continued.

It is the mountain silences that give a person the chance to understand himself, by letting him know his own silences.

Of these silences Smith writes:

"Calm pervaded as I stood transfixed A humble prisoner loving His captors..."

The mountains "thrust a person upon himself," Smith compares this experience to becoming a child again. "A person learns how to be close to primitive things—how to work... even to breathe properly."

"The newcomer to the mountains is amazed at what his body can do. His success in this harsh environment depends on his success in adapting to and blending with it. He must learn to roll with the punch," he concluded.

"For the first time in a person's life he is wholly dictated to. And for the first time he loves his captors."

German Vote Dominated by Personality

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, in the last month of his campaign for re-election, is staking his future on the gamble that he can go on ruling West Germany without any help from Willy Brandt.

Business is booming and big foreign issues are scarce, so the test of personalities tends to dominate the campaign.

Erhard, bulky and professorial, looks more than ever like a cherub with a big black cigar. He seeks to be identified with the "German economic miracle."

Brandt, 52 to Erhard's 68, would like to be known as the candidate of youth — the new broom that would sweep out the old team and promise a neater job on everything.

Both candidates are invincibly bourgeois types. The current story about Erhard: After reading a biography of himself Erhard's first comment to the author was a plaintive question — "Why did you have to say my daughter was divorced?"

In the last campaign Brandt appealed to the working man from a white Mercedes with red upholstery. This time the picture has been toned down — the upholstery is dark blue.

Polls show the Erhard image to be much more popular, but personality contests don't tell the whole story. Germans won't vote directly for the chancellor Sept. 19. They choose members of the Bundestag and the Bundestag elects him.

Neither Erhard's Christian Democrats nor Brandt's Social Democrats are expected to win the absolute majority that would enable one party to rule without seeking allies. The margin between them will probably be small, opening the way to horse trading with minor groups to get a Bundestag majority.

Erhard banks on keeping his present alliance with Vice Chancellor Erich Mende's Free Democratic Party. The combination may remain strong enough to command a safe majority despite some expected losses. If not, Erhard may be looking for another job. He has said he does not want an alliance with Brandt, though the West Berlin mayor would be more than glad to make one.

There is another possibility. If the Socialists make the big gains they predict, the Free Democrats or sections of the Christian Democrats may loosen present ties and seek an alliance with Brandt.

For campaign purposes the Christian Democrats have rallied around Erhard, whom they call their "election locomotive." At 89, Konrad Adenauer seems to be out of the running, but he is still party chairman. In contrast to Erhard, he says the coalition problem can only be settled after the election.

New Chicago Skyscraper to Have Unique Tower Design

CHICAGO (UPI) — A striking departure from the typical glass-box approach to new office buildings is the unique $80 million-plus skyscraper planned by the First National Bank of Chicago.

The 60-story building — which will rise in a sweeping curve to a height of approximately 800 feet above the heart of the Chicago Loop — is based on a concept similar to the Eiffel Tower. The structure will taper upward from a 55,000-square-foot base to a 29,000-square-foot top. It is scheduled for completion in 1969.

central business district. Other structures involved include the Inland Steel building, the Civic Center, the new Federal office complex.

The new structure will be erected on land now occupied by the 46-story Morrison Hotel, the 17-story old Hamilton Hotel and the 15-story old Hartford building. The remainder of the block is occupied by the present First National Bank building.

The Morrison until 1962 held the title as the tallest hotel in the world.

"Shooting Names" of Creeks, Peaks In Idaho's Primitive Area Colorful

BOISE (Special)—Names that flash with a vivid Western magic add a historic spell to the vast virgin wilderness of lakes, waters, peaks and unspoiled forests which is Idaho's famous Primitive Area, according to Idaho Department of Commerce and Development.

Some of the "shooting names" of creeks are Dynamite Creek, Pistol Creek, Little Pistol Creek, and creeks with an amazing sequence of similar names, Luger Creek, Colt Creek, Automatic Creek, Thirty-Eight Creek, Forty-Four Creek, Forty-Five Creek, Remington Creek, Savage Creek, Trigger Creek and, for good measure, Little Pistol Hot Springs, Pistol Rock and Artillery Dome.

Animals are not neglected in the creek-naming traditions.

To the north are creeks named Bull Creek, Doe Creek, Buck Creek, Fawn Creek, Coyote Creek, Bear Creek, Porcupine Creek, Rattlesnake Creek, Parrot Creek, Goat Creek, Mink Creek, Cougar Creek, and there is a Mule Hill. There is Trapper Creek, a Pioneer Creek and a Ducee Creek.

History doesn't state whether Bacon Creek was named for man or mealtime. But northeast of the entrance to the area, creeks were named Pepper Creek, Salt Creek, Sugar Creek and Cane Creek, and back in the area there is a Vinegar Hill.

The heads of several streams are studded with lakes, most of them hidden in the maze of peaks and timbered wilderness that stretch as far as the eye can see.

The commerce department says you can have the privilege, perhaps, of discovering and unofficially naming a lake on your own terms, but you won't do it alone because the Forest Service advises you never travel in parties of less than three and urges you to have an experienced guide.

The area abounds in big game, little game, game birds and game fish.

STATUE SHIPPED
ROME (AP) — Romina, 14, daughter of the late actor Tyrone Power and Linda Christian, hopes to be a movie star. She has been screen-tested at the Dino de Laurentis studios.

"SHOOTING NAMES" of Idaho rivers are shown on the map above. Some of the rivers with names that flash vivid Western magic are Pistol Creek, Little Pistol Creek, Luger Creek, Colt Creek, Automatic Creek, Thirty-Eight Creek, Forty-Five Creek, Remington Creek, Savage Creek, Trigger Creek and many others. These creeks are located in Idaho's famous Primitive Area.

Salt Lake City Opens Highway

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A new section of Interstate 15 in Salt Lake City was formally opened to traffic Friday.

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies at 11 a.m. were held, with Gov. Calvin L. Rampton, State Highway Director Henry C. Helland and others on hand.

The new section runs from 6th South to 33rd South, a distance of nearly four miles. It cost $20,663,850.

Salt Lake City Mayor J. Bracken Lee and County Commission Chairman Marv Jensen were also on the featured speaker list for the ceremonies at 6th South.

SUPPLIES SENT
ROME (AP) — In addition to food and other supplies being sent to help Chile feed and comfort thousands of victims of recent storms, floods and avalanches, the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization has included 50 chain saws from London to help lumber huge numbers of felled trees.

Dignified

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI)—Britain's high commissioner, Lord Head, lost one of his shoes Friday but not his dignity during the ceremonial opening of Malaysia's new national mosque.

The diplomat, like everyone else, removed his shoes at the entrance to the mosque and left them behind during the ceremony. Afterward he found that one of his shoes was missing.

With dignity and a stiff upper lip, his lordship walked from the mosque and to his waiting Rolls-Royce in his stocking feet.

Several others in the crowd of 13,000 reported losing footwear.

Reservoir Water Picture Good

HAILEY — Reid Newby, Shoshone, watermaster for the Big Wood river and Silver creek, said Thursday that the sub-water in the Silver Creek area is the highest ever recorded.

He also stated that the inflow from Big Wood River into Magic Reservoir was measured at 519 second feet, the most anyone can remember for this time of year, and more water than is being drawn out of the reservoir.

Friday there were 169,000 acre feet in Magic Reservoir

78 Relatives Attend Smith Family Reunion at Hammett

HAMMETT — Descendants of Richard B. and Sarah Moore Smith held a family reunion at Harold and Kate Smith's Oasis Ranch Motel and Watermelon Farm near Hammett this month.

Relatives attended from Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Oregon, Washington and California as well as Idaho. Ethel Smith Kinsey, 89, from Iowa, and Dorwin Smith, 87, from California, were the oldest members present. The oldest sister, Lillie Lufborough, 93, is in a rest home in Sunnyside, Wash., and was unable to be present.

The afternoon was spent listening to stories of early times in Nebraska, where the Smiths made their home. Dorwin Smith was master of ceremonies and called on members of the family, by states, to say a few words. He showed the sword his father carried in the Civil War.

A letter written by his father, R. B. Smith, 101 years ago to home relatives while stationed at Germantown, Tenn., during the Civil War was read to the group by Lynn Lufborough.

A letter written 128 years ago by the great grandfather, John B. Smith, was on display in a which has a 191,500 acre feet capacity. All the water rights are good which is unusual for this time of year. By the middle of August the rights are cut.

family history scrapbook. Harmonica solos were played by the oldest member present, Ethel Smith Kinsey, and piano accordion solos by Kathy Stapleton. The program was closed by a song given by Karen Culver and Daryl Schipperoot, using first names of those present.

Of the 74 people present, 44 were direct descendants. Eleven of the 15 first cousins living were in attendance.

The reunion was marred somewhat by a swimming accident at the sand dunes in which Steven Culver was injured and had to be taken by ambulance to a hospital in Boise. He is on his way to recovery, say doctors.

It was agreed by all to have another reunion in 1967 at the Oasis Ranch Motel near Hammett.

Among those attending and visiting from Magic Valley were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith, Hammett; Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Smith and family; Mrs. Jack Meuser; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Irish and sons, and Mrs. Albert Irish, all of Twin Falls; and Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Christy, Jerome.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 20) — Don't ignore an opportunity to meet people. The friends you need may be in a crowd of strangers!

TAURUS (April 21-May 21) — A poor day if you have neglected personal grooming. Seek to remedy the situation without delay.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — You may find that your professional interests may best be served by seeing to your personal relationships.

SUNDAY, August 29 — Born today, you are a person of very definite opinions and a positive approach to life. Not one to succumb to moods of depression — though you may experience such moods from time to time — your basic inclination is to rise, not to fall. And rise you no doubt will, for you have the determination, integrity, ability, and instinctive good judgment it takes to make your way in the world.

It is hardly likely that you were born today with "home-making," though that is a multi-purposed occupation which you could do very well. It is far more likely that you will want to combine being a housewife and mother with an outside occupation — not just a "job," but a genuine and interesting work.

Sincere in your affections, and not one to hide your true feelings, you should have a happy and lasting marriage so long as you are careful to choose a mate who respects your independence. You women will have to be especially careful to select for a husband a man who has no objections to your need for a career of your own, even if only a "small" one.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Monday, August 30

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — Let your fondness for children lead you into the way you should go today.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — An excellent day for either business or pleasure; not, however, for both at once.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Don't neglect to give your answer to an offer as soon as you've made up your mind definitely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Take some time off from employment responsibilities should your health demand it.

Tape Makes School Scene In Big Way

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tape recorders are making the school scene in a big way. They're used to record classroom lectures, glee club meetings, pep talks by coaches, football songs and cheer-leader practice sessions. Doing homework with a tape recorder at the elbow has become common. The material is taped by the student and then played back. It gives the student a chance to test himself. More and more teachers are finding that the recorders help stimulate interest in studies. Thomas W. Lentz, home entertainment specialist for RCA Victor, says that some of the newest recorders—with the tape in cartridges—are ideal for the classroom. Some students have built up neat reference libraries of tape cartridges—one for each subject studied. The student's use of tape recorders at home and in school has influenced parents as well as teachers. If mother, for example, is preparing a speech for her woman's club, she can rehearse it first with the family tape recorder. Dad can do the same thing with his speeches.

The Green Thumb

by GEORGE ABRAHAM

CASTOR BEANS: A good many of our readers are raising and enjoying the beauty of the castor bean, a fast grower, ideal for screens and tropical effect. One gardener wrote to tell me that the seeds, being attractive, make an ideal set of beads. The castor bean is highly poisonous and should not be left around the home for such purposes.

One seed contains enough poison (ricin) to kill a child. If you're raising the plant and still want to enjoy its lush greenery don't try to raise your own seed. Take a pair of clippers and castrate the castor bean plant—that is, remove the seed heads before they mature. In that way you can safely grow the plant for its quick shade and ornamental effect.

This and other factors are explained in my bulletin, POISONOUS PLANTS IN THE HOME AND GARDEN. If you haven't received your copy, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and we'll see that you get yours promptly.

A GOOD TRICK: A reader tells me that she still has a cymbidium orchid given her at Easter time. Here's how she kept it fresh: "I keep it in a plastic bag in the refrigerator. Every other day I open the bag and blow air into it, also sprinkle a couple of drops of water on moist cotton in bottom. That's all I do and it keeps beautifully."

Green Thumb note: While cymbidiums are normally long-lasting, there's a scientific explanation behind our reader's method. Breathing into the bag releases carbon dioxide which prolongs the life of the flower. Commercial apple growers use this principle in keeping apples longer and fresher in storage. This is called controlled atmosphere (CA) and enables you to have fresh apples way into the winter months, and even florists are using the principle to keep cut flowers longer and better in their own coolers.

CORN SMUT: I've been asked if corn smut (those ugly black balls) is the result of injury to corn stalks while cultivating. The answer is no. Corn smut is a fungus disease found on stalks, ears and tassels. The fungus lives in the soil and is believed to be spread by wind. Control: Remove and destroy galls. Get them before they break and release millions of black fungus spores. Do not use diseased plants in making a compost. No spray is effective against the corn smut fungus.

EVERGREEN SCALE: Now's a good time to be on the lookout for white scales on your evergreens. There are several scale insects attacking red, white, scotch, Austrian pines, as well as Junipers and other evergreens in the foundation planting of your home. Even the Mugho pine is attacked. These white scales suck sap from the foliage, causing the plants to look pale green and sickly. Foliage will turn yellow and mottled, and if allowed to go unchecked the trees are sometimes killed.

Control: Best time to lick them is in early summer, from late May to Mid-June. Use malathion, four tablespoons of the 50 per cent grade wettable power (or two teaspoons of solution) to a gallon of water. You can also apply a dormant spray, using lime sulfur, 1 part to nine gallons of water, applied in early April before new growth starts. Don't get any of the material on painted surface or brickwork, as it may discolor.

CARROT TROUBLE: Each year about this time we receive letters asking what causes carrots to be stubby and almost useless. Some of the roots are covered with millions of tiny roots, rendering the crop almost inedible. There are two problems involved: (1) Yellows, a virus spread by leaf hoppers from asters, certain weeds and other diseased carrots. This causes tops to purple and the development of millions of tiny roots on the carrot.

Control: Eliminate weeds near your garden, and keep carrots dusted with Sevin, a relatively safe pesticide. (2) The other pest is the carrot just fly, causing plants to have stubby bottoms. A small maggot, the immature stage of the fly, is the villain responsible.

Control: Consists of treating the soil with Methoxychlor before sowing seed in spring. Also, by harvesting the crop early in September you can often avoid the pest before the second-brood maggots have a chance to burrow into the carrots.

POINTSETTIA AGAIN: What can be done to a poinsettia that is also 5 feet tall? My advice is to cut it back at least half, even at this late stage of the game. If you don't it'll be a monster by the time Christmas rolls around. Keep it watered, and before frost hits in fall, be sure to move it indoors. At that time, I'll tell you how to force it into bloom for the holidays.

FREE: Meanwhile, if you'd like a copy of my bulletin, How to Grow Poinsettias for Christmas, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your free copy.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: L. S. of Hagerman; "I have two prune trees in my back-

The Money Box

By FRANK SCHELL
The present shortage of quarters and half dollars should be considered something of a national scandal. Perhaps if there were less newsworthy headlines at present, some sort of investigation might be sponsored and a remedy found. Primarily, of course, the shortage goes back to 1955, when over the objections of several western senators, Congress saw fit to close the San Francisco mint. The present shortage of coins was accurately forecast at that time.

First and primary cause of our coin shortage, is, of course, the population "explosion" and the consequent need for a great many more fractional coins. Vending machines have been increased so fast, especially in the eastern part of the country, that coinage cannot begin to keep up with the need.

It does not take much thought to understand that if there are, say, a billion vending machines (hypothetical) and each of them contains several dollars in small change at any given time, the resulting amount runs into an astronomical figure of coins withheld from circulation. Coupled with this is the apparent fact that vending machine companies do not always deposit coinage as soon as it comes from the machine.

Indeed, many of them are now advertising and selling pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and half dollars by the sack, to so-called collectors, to give them a chance to scan the money and remove scarce date coins before dumping it back into circulation. I counted fifteen such offers of coins for sale in one issue of a national paper last week.

Secondary, and most open to criticism, cause of coin shortage is our new breed of hoarders and speculators. Many, many people, who never were and are not now, interested in coins, as such, have bought thousands of bank sacks of new mintage coins and put them away in safe keeping. The thinking behind this procedure is two-fold.

First, there is the possible chance that the coins may gain in value in a short time because of the shortage; and second, if the price of silver is not held down to its present level, the melting of this coinage will present a nice profit in silver content. War time nickels which were made of silver (then less scarce than nickel) are now being bought up rapidly at about six cents apiece, and even now, several large metal companies are melting them down and extracting the resultant silver. The third cause of our present fifty cent piece shortage is the exportation of the Kennedy half-dollar. With the minting of this new coin, the demand from European countries ate up the surplus rapidly. In some foreign countries this late fifty cent piece brought as much as four and five dollars a copy at first, and even now sells for over a dollar. Hence, millions of them have been shipped overseas, and into Canada, for re-sale.

While our merchants and businessmen are frantically trying to find enough coins to conduct their daily business, dealers in the coin trade are offering them for sale, at a profit, in as large a quantity as you want to purchase. This is the phase of our coin shortage which is nothing short of a scandal and bears investigation.

You and I cannot go into a bank and buy fifty cent pieces and quarters at will, yet hundreds of dealers can sell you all you want—at a profit, of course. Since these coins must be ordered from Federal Reserve Banks, by a corresponding bank, then it follows that there must be a collusion between dealers and bank officials, or the dealers could not have an unlimited supply of coins to sell.

Most of the advertisements for sale of such coins list them at $12.75 per ten dollar roll of halves, and $12.00 per ten dollar roll of quarters—yet the Federal Reserve Bank cannot supply our local merchants. Ground-breaking ceremonies for a new, modern mint will soon take place in Philadelphia—a mere $21,000,000 dollars for this project—and yet the San Francisco Mint stands idle, except for use as a smelter. That the machinery was obsolete, is probably a fact, but it still could have produced coins.

The start of mintage of our new coins, with no silver content, may alleviate the shortage. The Mint intends to strike coinage into the billions until there are enough to satisfy the demand.

(Questions on coins or currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o the Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho.)
