Idaho's Loss

The resignation effective Dec. 1 of H. J. Swinney, director of the Idaho Historical Society, will be a distinct loss to Idaho. Mr. Swinney, who came to Idaho Sept. 1, 1956, has done a great deal to preserve and preserve items of significance in Idaho's history. Perhaps more important, he has brought to many Idahoans the realization that regional history must be preserved by residents before it slips away forever.
Mr. Swinney also has served as an organizer of amateur historians in Idaho and has become a focal point for all Idaho efforts in the field. In a word, he has been the only professional interested in organizing and directing the efforts of many amateurs. A. L. Alford, Lewiston, who is chairman of the Historical Society's board of directors, said Mr. Swinney's departure means "the loss of a dedicated professional who has done a fine job for the state and its people."
In addition to the high regard for Mr. Swinney shared by Idahoans, his contemporaries in the historical field also have a high regard for him. Mr. Swinney is serving his third term as a director of the American Association for State and Local History and is regional chairman of its awards program for the Mountain States. He also has been chairman of the Pacific Northwest Museums Conference and president of the Western Museums League.

With such obvious leadership in his chosen field, it should be clear that Idaho can't hope to retain a man of that caliber for too long. The surprising part about Mr. Swinney's departure is that it has been long in coming. Nine years is a long time for a highly-regarded professional in any field to remain in a sparsely populated state like Idaho. There are too many opportunities that carry more remuneration and prestige in more populous areas.
Idahoans can only hope that Mr. Swinney's successors show a similar degree of zeal and dedication.

CURTAIN VIOLENCE

A tendency toward violence seems to be increasing across the nation, principally among young people. Perhaps the big increase in numbers helps create the impression of more and more violence. At any rate there are too many cases such as one that occurred the other day at Wilder: A 18-year-old youth underwent surgery as a result of a beating administered by another youngster. The assailant, who concealed the customary protection of anonymity from police, was jailed over the incident and probably the case will be handled under the Youth Rehabilitation Act with no further word looking into the public print.
Any one is free to judge for himself the results achieved by such protection and quiet handling of incidents relating to juveniles. If the Youth Rehabilitation Act were accomplishing its intended purposes, it would be natural to assume Idaho would be having fewer incidents of violence. No one has come up with statistics that support any such claim.
The Wilder case has much in common with incidents that have been reported in Magic Valley and elsewhere. Sketchy news reports outlined how the injured youth and two companions were seated in a car at a drive-in restaurant when "four or five" young men drove up and ordered them out of town "in three minutes." This sort of arrogant, overbearing conduct shouldn't be condoned by anyone. Just for the record, it's a free country and absolutely no one—including police—has the right to order anyone out of any community.
It's unthinkable that overhearing bullets can mouth such threats for any of a number of reasons that aren't valid. Any law-abiding citizen is entitled to full protection of the law and certainly should not hesitate to report such incidents to the proper authorities. Furthermore, no one should hesitate to sign a complaint against any person who threatens him in a similar incident. Police who may be contacted in such cases should remember they are sworn to uphold law and order, not disseminate such threats as "kid stuff."
There are other factors that warrant attention. Some are known to have been almost invited by the provocative attitudes of youngsters who become the object of violence. Provocation is equally as reprehensible as the violence that ensues. Many incidents of violence haven't been reported either by youngsters or their parents for fear of reprisal. In a free country with supposedly adequate law enforcement facilities and personnel, no one should feel he has to live under a curtain of fear. It's high time to give the full light of publicity to this tendency to violence and eliminate it once and for all.

Views of Others

NO 'LOVE' IN TENNIS

Tennis—a sport enjoying a revolutionary change in the game's format. It would substitute for the long-honored 15-30-15-deuce-advantage, etc., a progressive point score such as prevails in table tennis and badminton.
Chief promoter of the change is James H. Van Alen, president of the Tennis Hall of Fame and Newport, N. H. The theory appears to be that it would make it easier to control and predict the length of a tennis match, an important matter in any sport in the age of television. Sponsors have no love for sets prolonged to 20-18 or so, nor do viewers who are cut off by the clock.
Speaking of "love," the Van Alen system would remove that word from the tennis lexicon. In its place would be "zero" or just "0." The reason: Spectators—presumably television spectators—do not understand such a word in scoring.
Come now, Mr. Van Alen. Let's not take all the romance out of the game. The word "love" in tennis must be as understandable and as authentic as much that goes by that name in the TV situation drama.—The Oregonian

RESEARCH AND THE BEER CAN

Mayor Willard Frazer of Billings, Mont., has a problem—and his has turned to U.S. industry for the solution. The mayor has been at the research laboratories of the Du Pont Co. to ask that they develop a beer can which will disintegrate within 24 hours after being emptied and discarded. "If you fellows knew the problem an empty beer can placed on city budgets," his honor wrote, "you would make this No. 1 must in your laboratories."
It would not surprise us to discover that this very day some brewery is getting ready to put beer into a container which, while it may not disintegrate in 24 hours, would be as easy to get rid of as the empty cereal box—and the mayor of Billings can think up new problems for industrial research. If he doesn't think of any, there are others who will.—Wilmington (Del.) Morning News.

ADJUSTING THE BALANCE

Fears are frequently expressed about the possible consequences of man's interference with nature. The danger has been pointed out on the wisdom of using chemicals to destroy pests and improve the fertility of the soil. What, it has been asked, may be the long-term effects of this meddling with the natural order of things?
One answer, given by the Archbishop of York, Dr. Coggan, in a speech read on his behalf at a farming conference in York, is that man dare not wait for the long-term effects to become known. The problem of finding enough to eat for the world's rapidly-increasing population is so urgent as to brook no delay at all. A measure of risk must be taken though it must be accompanied by a sense of responsibility and by a due regard for ethical standards in dealing with animals and nature.—Birmingham (England) Post.

TV ARMED CHAIR CRITIC

American scientists are off again with a device to enable viewers to switch off from their chairs by means of a word of command. Something to do with vibrations and photoelectric cells. But what most of us want is a device to get our remarks through to the actual performers.—Punch.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

BY ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON—Admittedly, the argument between Sens. Bill Fulbright (D. Ark.) and Tom Dodd (D. Conn.) over American intervention in the Dominican Republic would win them both credit in college debating society where it is fun to quibble over hindsight theories. But neither seems to have addressed himself to the point.
This is the President Johnson who in 1961 sent Marines last April because he could not expect any action by that gaggle of Good Time Charlies known as the Organization of American States.
There were two reasons why Johnson acted. First, American lives were endangered despite Fulbright's detached unconcern of this fact. Secondly, the rebels had been infiltrated by a thin layer of Castro mercenaries who were deemed capable of taking over the reins of the state if anarchy persisted. With a backward glance at recent history, Johnson refused to gamble on the creation of another Cuba in the hemisphere.

FACED DECISION—It is true, as Fulbright argues, that the United States violated international law by intervening and thus impaired its reputation among the citizens of a hemisphere long touchy about American interventionism. But Johnson faced a Johnsonian moral dilemma. If he failed to act, some bearded political kin of Fidel Castro might well have emerged as the "liberator" of the Dominican people.
If therefore Johnson seems misled in bicker over whether Johnson was misled by his advisors on the scene, although he probably should be held to account for some of the wilder stories transmitted from Santo Domingo. Both Fulbright and Dodd could employ their rhetoric to greater advantage by plugging for some kind of machinery by which the OAS could deal swiftly with such an emergency.

Today, the trenchant point is not that Article 15 of the OAS charter prohibits unilateral action by any member-state in such incidents. It is that Article 15, admittedly aimed at preventing American Marine diplomacy, provides no means or machinery by which the OAS can act to keep the peace.

UNWILDED, UNEXERCISED—Beginning with Harry Truman, four American presidents have pressed the OAS membership to come up with such an instant peacekeeping formula. But the OAS insisted on going its carefree, martini-and-caviar way. Even today, there is resistance to setting up machinery for joint action among those South American governments that honorably support the practice of government by military coup. If a crisis develops tomorrow in Haiti, the OAS still would not have the statutory right to act forthwith.
Thus I cannot join the Dodds and others in denigrating Fulbright's speech as having no effect on the OAS. His speech has brought the provisional Dominican government is trying to survive. The OAS brought the situation on itself; it built its own bad reputation by what Vice-President Humphrey earlier described as its "dressing gown of aloofness."
Until the OAS grows up, American intervention is similar to that of President Johnson who has embraced the late President Kennedy's pledge that "if the nations of this Hemisphere fail to meet their commitments against outside Communist penetration," the U.S. will act unilaterally. If the OAS is worried about American imperialism, it has only to take over the police job itself.

It's appropriate this weekend to wish Jewish friends a happy new year.
Sunday night, Jews all over the world will gather in synagogues to celebrate Rosh Hashanah, the festival which ushered in the Hebrew year 5726.
The Jewish new year is not a time for raucous parties but a serious occasion on which Jews remember their past and pledge themselves to the service of God and man in the future.
Rosh Hashanah is the first of "Days of Awe"—popularly known as "The High Holy Days"—which culminate with the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur. It is a time for examination of conscience, contribution, amendment of life, and renewed awareness of membership in a sacred community ordained by God to serve him.
Evangelist Billy Graham, recovering from a prostate operation, has been forced to cancel an evangelistic crusade he was scheduled to conduct in Waco, Tex., Oct. 1-3.

It's appropriate this weekend to wish Jewish friends a happy new year.
Sunday night, Jews all over the world will gather in synagogues to celebrate Rosh Hashanah, the festival which ushered in the Hebrew year 5726.
The Jewish new year is not a time for raucous parties but a serious occasion on which Jews remember their past and pledge themselves to the service of God and man in the future.
Rosh Hashanah is the first of "Days of Awe"—popularly known as "The High Holy Days"—which culminate with the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur. It is a time for examination of conscience, contribution, amendment of life, and renewed awareness of membership in a sacred community ordained by God to serve him.
Evangelist Billy Graham, recovering from a prostate operation, has been forced to cancel an evangelistic crusade he was scheduled to conduct in Waco, Tex., Oct. 1-3.
In the spirit of doctors' warnings that he'll need six weeks to regain his full strength, he has decided to go ahead with a Houston crusade in mid-October.

MARQUIS CHILDS WRITES ON WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—It is an evening that belongs to a vanished era. Jawaharlal Nehru, sitting on a disk in the garden of the official residence of the prime minister in New Delhi, talks about the distant frontier of Ladhak on the Indian-Tibetan border.
He talks with eloquence, poetic imagination, out of a culture that is a culture of East and West.
Marquis Childs
Ladhak is so remote. It is at an altitude of 28,000 feet, surrounded by great empty valleys and snow-covered peaks. Nehru describes his own difficult journey to that remote spot on top of the world. Surely no one would be foolish enough to go to war for those empty markings on a map.
The time was late December in 1953. The actor was President Eisenhower's visit to India and 10 other nations in search of peace and that, too, seems part of a vanished era. No one who accompanied the President will ever forget the fantastical crowds in the streets of New Delhi and the banners that hailed him as the prince of peace.
That was near the close of Nehru's India, and in an age of disaster it is perhaps a fair judgment that a complete humanist had not yet taken the Chitwan as he did on the Himalayan border in the fall of 1962. It was the end of the illusion that ne-spending and much other government activity is mostly nonsense and low grade nonsense at that.

During the old appropriation debate, Gross kept reminding the House of what appears to have been a real clincher. He said: "As I mentioned a little while ago, the handout artists gave $15 million to the government of Ecuador because of a budget deficit, when Ecuador had credit to borrow money from the International Monetary Fund."
A mere $15 million even if missed, is not much more than which to become excited in Washington. Charley's statement was not even challenged nor was any effort at all made to explain the transaction with Ecuador. You might think that the Republican leadership of the house would be examining carefully all foreign aid appropriations and be seeking to protect the taxpayers in those areas where protection is needed.
And perhaps the Republican House leadership was alert and doing its job. That must be so because the Republican leadership of the House would not have appropriated to be all right. Forty House Republicans, including the Republican leaders, voted for the appropriation. Eighty-one Republicans opposed. The Democrats split 199 for 62 against.
Charles Gross voted "No." He believes the Ecuadoreans should make good their own deficits if their credit will stand it.

Poor Man's Plato

NEW YORK (AP)—Letters people would like to get but rarely do.
"Sir, it has come to our attention that your Johnny can wiggle both ears while whistling rock'n'roll tunes. This is the kind of folk talent we wish to feature in a series of advertisements promoting our new product, 'Bupacalia.' If the little lad would be interested in financial reward that would enable him to pay his way later through college, please bring him to."
"George, I have put on so much weight during my visit to mother's that I have given up all thought of wanting you to surprise me with a fur coat for Christmas this year. It would make me look much too heavy. So, if there's anything you'd like to get yourself with the money you've saved up, go right ahead."
"Dad, remember the boy friend I brought home during your vacation from school last spring? You know, the one who ate so much and who you thought was so smart because he tried to tell you how to run your business? Well, he flunked out of school this semester, and the draft board grabbed him—so I guess I won't be seeing him for at least a couple of years."
"As the largest music publishers in the field, naturally we get hundreds of songs from amateur writers each week. Most of them are trash. But the fifty submitted by your daughter, Marilyn, called 'Let Me Hold My Ears' looked to us like a sure-fire hit."
"Sir, I am the motorcycle patrolman who gave you a ticket for speeding on the highway last week. You was so smart because you only going off and that I must be crazy. Well, sir, most motorists accuse me of that. But when I got back to my barracks, a check showed my speedometer was broken. So I guess it wasn't that was crazy—just my speedometer. Anyway, you must tear up the ticket, and hope there are no hard feelings."

Strife Over Birchers Splits GOP

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—New strife over the John Birch Society widened the split in California's Republican party today, as the party's state convention opened.

The convention had been billed as a showcase for potential candidates.

After Ronald Reagan, an unopposed conservative, but the party's gubernatorial nomination, and he would not seek the support of the ultra-conservative society.

The statement did not contain the "impeachment" of the Birchers demanded by some party moderates.

Former Mayor George Christy, of San Francisco, another unopposed candidate, also said he did not want Birch support.

Christy condemned the society as a "monolithic organization," and said some Republicans have "quibbled and equivocated on the issue."

Despite the disagreement, no decisions are likely. The party doesn't select its nominee until the primary election next June and had called the weekend meeting just to give possible candidates a chance to meet fellow Republicans.

Reagan took note of the demand for him to denounce the society with the statement that "I have never sought Birch Society support nor have I any intention of doing so should I become a candidate for public office."

He criticized the society's leader, Robert Welch, saying "I am in great disagreement with much of what he says. I do not want my name connected with a man whose views are so far from mine as to be a source of embarrassment to me."

Some Republicans, he said, were "extrajudicially" having both eyes to the Birch issue at the same time.

"I do not seek, I do not covet, I do not want my name on Birch Society support," he said.

Greene addressed a dinner of the Defense Orientation Conference Association.

BOISE (UPI)—If the sales tax had not been enacted by the Legislature the Idaho education system would have been on a collision course with disaster," Gov. Robert E. Smylie said Friday.

Now can the average person who knows nothing about guitars be protected? The advice of a professional and qualified individual who knows and plays the type of guitar you are interested in. Buy your instrument only from a local dealer whose principal business is music and who will stand behind the instrument he sells you.

The Western organization and Great Plains Wheat promote foreign marketing and utilization of American wheat.

Legislation On Wheat Hits Snags

WASHINGTON (AP)—Legislation to continue U.S. operations under the International Wheat Agreement has run into storm warnings after moving solemnly to almost the point of passage.

Democratic leaders deleted the Senate-passed bill from the House program without explanation this week just before it was reached. Earlier, so little controversy had been foreseen that only an hour was allotted to debate the measure.

No predictions of defeat have been made for the bill, which would authorize export payments and other costs of $27.5 million. But some House Republicans are in a mood to bring the Cold War, Red China and domestic unhappiness about rising food prices into the discussion whenever the measure is called up.

In contrast, the Senate passed the bill July 23 by unanimous consent, without debate.

It was then approved by the House Banking Committee with no recorded opposition.

The agreement is supposed to help stabilize world wheat prices by dividing the market among major producing nations by prearrangement with their major customers, all in the non-communist orbit.

New Leader In Norway Is Not Happy

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norway's new premier-designate is not too happy about being picked to run the government. Per Borten, 52, leader of the Center party, said on himself after being named Friday night by the four coalition parties which topped Socialist Einar Gerhardsen's Labor government in the Sept. 12-13 general election. The coalition of Conservative, Liberal, Christian People's and Center parties announced Kivi "Diva" V. would have to call Borten to form the new government when Gerhardsen's Cabinet resigns next month. "Naturally I'm mentally unprepared for this new situation," Borten told reporters. "Of course I appreciate the confidence of the other coalition partners. However, just now I don't feel exactly happy about the choice made. I feel the great pressure of responsibility for the new task."

Naming of Borten opened the way for the coalition to decide on the division of other Cabinet jobs among the four parties. The Liberal party's leader, Bent Roiseland, 63, is due to become the parliamentary leader. The most likely choice as foreign minister is Johny Lyng, 60, the Conservative floor leader who was premier for three weeks in 1963.

Large Rocket Firing Is Successful

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — The world's largest known solid-fuel rocket motor scored a spectacular success on its first test firing today, shooting a towering pillar of white-hot flame more than 1,000 feet into the sky.

The success was a major milestone in a space agency program to determine whether large solid-propellant rockets can be effectively used as boosters for giant space payloads. The rocket, 80 feet tall and 22 feet in diameter, was strapped down firmly in a 160-foot deep pit. Its 20-foot exhaust nozzle pointed skyward.

The nose-down position enabled the rocket to vent its flame upward, eliminating the need for costly ground equipment that would have been destroyed if the rocket were in a nose-up position.

At precisely 11 a.m. (EST), after a perfect two-hour countdown, a radio signal was sent to an ignition system and the huge motor with its 840 tons of rubber-like fuel flashed to life.

For 140 seconds, the tower of flame spewed upward as the motor generated thrust of more than 3,000,000 pounds and sent a great mushroom-shaped plume across the swamps of the nearby Everglades.

A huge mushroom-shaped cloud of black smoke rose from the flame and hovered for several minutes over the site.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced later that the firing was completely successful.

The rocket, a test vehicle, as yet has no name.

Action Taken in Support Cases

POCATELLO (AP)—Divorced fathers who fail to pay child support as ordered face stiffer enforcement of decrees from Fifth District Court, and jail sentences await those who refuse to pay without cause. Divorced mothers who refuse to cooperate with the court in forcing payment face loss of aid to dependent children money.

The stricter rules are the result of a new policy on child support payment instituted by Judges Gus Carr Anderson and Arthur P. Oliver.

In the past when a father became delinquent in his support payments, the mother often took the easier route of applying for aid to dependent children rather than forcing payment through the courts.

"The mother would go to the Department of Public Assistance and claim she had exhausted all legal means of getting the money from her former husband," Judge Anderson said, "when in fact she had not. The Department of Public Assistance had no way of knowing what steps she had taken and would give her the money."

The new policy requires a mother receiving a divorce to sign a power of attorney authorizing the clerk of the court to act as her agent in collection decree under the new ruling of child support. Instead of paying the money directly to the clerk and the clerk forwards the money to her. "This can save the state delinquent payments and signs an affidavit of nonpayment for Judge Oliver said. "If the husband is actually unable to pay the delinquent father order of course, we will relieve him to appear in court and of the responsibility until the show cause why he should not temporary emergency or unless he is held in contempt. If his failure to appear, he is arrested and people aren't going to make his payments because he wants a new car or a vacation."

2 T.F. Men Hope to Set up Scout-Karate Instruction

Plans to set up a program of karate instruction in connection with the Snake River Area Council Boy Scout program were reported Saturday by Melvin Turner and Robert Tidd.

"We hope," said Tidd, "that scouts in this locality are interested enough so a program of instruction can be established."

Attorney Is Appointed to Solon Post

BOISE (AP)—Boise attorney Jess Hawley Jr. was appointed by Gov. Robert F. Schmidt Saturday to succeed Rep. Carl Burt, R-Ada, who resigned his legislative post in a conflict of interest dispute.

Hawley is the grandson of the late James Hawley, former Idaho governor, and brother of John Hawley who campaigned against Frank Church for the U.S. Senate in 1962.

Hawley, in accepting the governor's appointment, said he will not seek election to the legislative post.

Burt, who holds a fulltime position with the Department of Law Enforcement, announced his resignation Friday on the heels of an informal opinion by Atty. Gen. Allan Shepard that a dual role as a state employee is not compatible with the 1965 Merit System Law.

Hawley served in the Idaho House from 1947 to 1949.

The speed with which Smylie acted in appointing Burt's successor was dictated by his plans to leave the state Sunday to attend a governors conference on economic growth in Denver.

U. S. Gov. William F. French will be acting governor and would be in a position to replace Burt with a Democratic appointee.

Mine Explodes

GRAFENWOEHR, Germany (AP)—An anti-personnel mine exploded during a demonstration today, killing an American soldier and injuring 19 others, the U.S. Army's 24th Infantry Division reported.

Some of the 19 hurt were in serious, though not critical, condition, the Army said.

Names of the dead soldier and those hospitalized are being withheld pending notification of kin.

You Can Brag about Idaho Progress

Idahoans are so busy making progress, they sometimes forget how much has been accomplished within the last generation. The growth record is remarkable.

While state population has increased 31% in 20 years, total personal income has risen to 2½ times its earlier level. Retail sales are higher by 3½ times. Service industry establishments have more than doubled—their employes have more than trebled in number. And so it goes.

Annual income from agriculture is up $210,000,000, from lumbering $141,000,000, from tourist business $110,000,000, from mining $34,000,000. Value added annually by manufacturing—now at the $430,000,000 level—has gained three-fourths of the total in 20 years. Much of this is derived from the food processing and phosphate industries.

It all adds up to substantial progress for the state and its citizens. And it will continue.

Idaho Power Company is staking $150,000,000 of new investment during the next five years on the future of southern Idaho and eastern Oregon—our measure of confidence, backed by dollars, in continued economic progress for the area.

Burley Women Choose Unusual Setting for Tea

SERVING COFFEE from the silver coffee service is Mrs. Donald Loveland to Mrs. Brian Stompe at an annual tea hosted by members of the Burley League of Women Voters. Mrs. Stompe is first vice president of the Burley unit. (Times-News photo)

BURLEY — Strange as it may seem—a tea was held at the Cassia County Courthouse.

Those entering the second-floor lobby, just outside the district court room, viewed a scene most unusual in a courthouse. An elaborate tea table was set up in the lobby, boldly boasting the colors of red, white and blue.

Not so strange to the surround-ings, however, were the women attending the tea, members of the Burley League of Women Voters, as the setting coincides with their interests. This is the fourth annual tea sponsored by the league and the theme of the event was highlighted with talks given by the special speakers, District Judge Lloyd Webb and Prosecuting Attorney Richard K. Smith.

The tea table, covered with a white cloth adorned with red, white and blue border stripes, was appropriately centered with a scale of justice holding an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and red roses. A silver coffee service and a crystal punch bowl completed the table appointments.

Guests were greeted and escorted by Mrs. Truman Bradley and Mrs. Clifford Mullikin. Punch was served by Mrs. Webb and coffee poured by Mrs. Donald Loveland. Guests given special honor at the tea included Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Loveland, Mrs. Webb and Mrs. J. L. Driskell.

Arrangements for this extraordinary tea were made by Mrs. Victor Kobe, chairman, assisted by Mrs. James Martin and Mrs. Brian K. Stompe. To enable homemakers with small children to attend and enjoy the tea, league members provided nursery care for the youngsters in the Methodist Church Educational Building, across the street from the Cassia County Courthouse.

Not many women's programs are held in the district court room, but this in itself added the finishing touches to this unusual tea.

Mrs. George H. Quarterman Jr., president of the Burley League of Women Voters, welcomed the women and the honored guests.

Judge Webb gave the history of the formation of the original six judicial districts in Idaho, noting there now are 13. He told the group that district judges are elected for a term of four years.

At present, there are two judges for the 11th district which includes Twin Falls, Jerome, Cassia and Minidoka Counties.

Theron Ward, senior judge, resides in Twin Falls, and Judge Webb resides in Burley.

"Any district judge may be appointed by the governor to hear a trial outside the district he serves or may be requested to hear a trial in another district by the judge serving the district," he stated.

"About one-tenth of the cases filed are settled before they reach a trial by judge or jury," he continued. "In Cassia County there are about 10 jury trials each year, including both civil and criminal cases."

Smith outlined for the women some of the duties of the prosecuting attorney. These include prosecuting criminal and civil actions; acting as an adviser in legal matters for all county officers and prosecuting to convict in criminal actions. He also explained the procedure necessary to select 12 responsible persons to serve on a jury.

The two men held a question period after their talks to enable the women to better understand courthouse policies.

Officers for the Burley League of Women Voters include Mrs. Quarterman, president; Mrs. Stompe, first vice president; Mrs. Mullikin, second vice president; Mrs. Forrest Hall, secretary, and Mrs. James Wood, treasurer.

Directors for the unit are Mrs. Preston McNeely, Mrs. Kenneth Hansen, Mrs. Kobe and Mrs. Jay Wake.

Mixing homemaking and concern for government is routine fare for League of Women Voters' members. While membership in local leagues throughout the United States is open to all women of voting age, much of the organizational and program work in the group is done by housewives who have more spare time than employed women.

Burley league members also belong to the League of Women Voters of the United States and the Idaho League of Women Voters. The state league is composed of local units in nine Idaho cities, including Twin Falls.

Along with their counterparts in other communities, Burley leaguers gather information on selected local governmental projects decided upon by the membership. They study and discuss state and national issues extending from such topics as adoption laws in Idaho to the current national item of "human resources," which deals with all aspects of the war on poverty.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY RICHARD K. SMITH was a guest speaker at an annual tea at the Cassia County Courthouse. Smith outlined for the women some of the duties of the prosecuting attorney and explained the procedure necessary to select persons to serve on a jury. The program was held in the district court room. (Times-News photo)

SERVING PUNCH FROM A CRYSTAL PUNCH BOWL is Mrs. Lloyd Webb to Mrs. James Wood at an annual tea in Burley. The table was covered with a white cloth adorned with red, white and blue border stripes. TIGERS TIE T.F., MINICO DROPS BRONCOS

T.F. and Tigers Swap Scores in Opening Period

Jerome and Twin Falls matched long scoring drives in the second quarter Friday night but wound up tied 6-6 in the first game played in Bruin Stadium. Twin Falls had only one good spurt of offense against the Jerome defensive unit—marching 90 yards in seven plays but doing all the damage in three.

Bulldogs Fall Victim to Gooding 51-0

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly Bulldogs fell victim to Gooding size and speed Friday night and the Senators took home a lopsided 51-0 victory, mainly behind the running and passing of Ron Anderson.

Anderson ran two touchdowns, one a 96-yard kick return late in the first quarter, passed for three and kicked two extra points for the Senators.

Sabala Gives Wolverines 13-7 Victory

HAILEY — John Sabala scored from nine yards out in the closing minutes of the game Friday afternoon to lift the Wood River Wolverines past the Shoshone Indians 13-7.

Wood River moved the ball well and forged in front in the second quarter when Robb Bell went in from the seven-yard line, but the point after attempt failed.

That point loomed large minutes later when Shoshone blocked a Wood River punt and took over deep in Wolverine territory. Three plays after the blocked punt, Swamer hit and Fred Trengle for six points and Trengle booted the extra point.

It stayed 7-6 until Sabala finally turned it back in Wood River's favor. Louis Hurst drilled the second point-after kick.

Alabama Shuts Out Tulane 27-0

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Quarterback Steve Swann passed for two touchdowns and engineered a third Saturday night to pace defending national champion Alabama over Tulane 27-0 in their last Southeast Conference game.

The Crimson Tide combined a strong running game with accurate passing to overwhelm the Green Wave, which turns independent next season.

The Greenies got into Alabama territory only four times, just once inside the 25.

Kicking specialist David Ray had two field goals, one for 37 yards and another for 25.

Broncos' Attack Tips Pats 27-10

BOSTON (AP)—The Denver Broncos unleashed a bruising second-half ground attack powered by big Cookie Gilchrist and snapped a two-game losing streak in the American Football League by beating Boston's winless Patriots 27-10 Friday night before a crowd of 28,782.

LUNGING IN for the fumble touchdown, Jerome's Pat Williams rolls past two Twin Falls Bruins for a second quarter score. Trying to make the stop are Gary Rasmussen (10) and Terry McNew (23). The game ended in a 6-6 draw. (Times-News photo)

Fullback Trio, Defense Blank Blackfoot 19-0

BLACKFOOT—Minico's hit-happy defensive unit cowed Blackfoot early in the evening and the Spartans mounted three long scoring drives behind a beefy trio to take a 19-0 victory. Blackfoot crumpled the middle. Just where Minico bolted Jerome two weeks ago, so the Spartans went outside. But they stayed with fullbacks Tom Poindexter (5.9 per carry—average), Arlo Dackler (5.2) and Mike Knobloch (6.9) going outside tackle on their belly carries.

Minico made its first march in the opening quarter, sending Poindexter across from 10 yards out. In the second period Poindexter broke a 30-yard run to the Blackfoot 20-yard line and Minico sent him into the line three more times. He scored on the third attempt from eight yards away.

After pushing back Blackfoot's only threat in the third period, Minico went 89 yards in the final period. Poindexter again capped it from three yards out.

Blackfoot's threat came after the Broncos recovered a Minico fumble on the 40-yard line.

Little Joe McCollum got Idaho started with a 23-yard kickoff before the game and came back on the first scrimmage to catch an 18-yard pass.

After an exchange of punts, San Jose's Ken Perry hit John Foruria with a short pass and the former junior college All-American slipped away from three Idahoans to go 70 yards.

In the second quarter Idaho got a break when San Jose, in punt formation, lost 20 yards on a bad hike from center.

Early in the last period, Idaho's defense held on a fourth and six inches at the San Jose 40. McDonald ripped off 19 yards in two plays but a clipping penalty stymied the drive.

He passed five times, completing four and picking up 60 yards. But at the 15-yard line Idaho again held.

Thought would be legal targets, they report they were surprised at the small number of this year's fumbles. They were fascinated by the mobility of the animals.

"Can you imagine anything going full bore down a slope this steep?" Nicholson asked with his arm just this side of perpendicular. "Roy, these things can do it... 25 feet in a bound and never even come close to slipping."

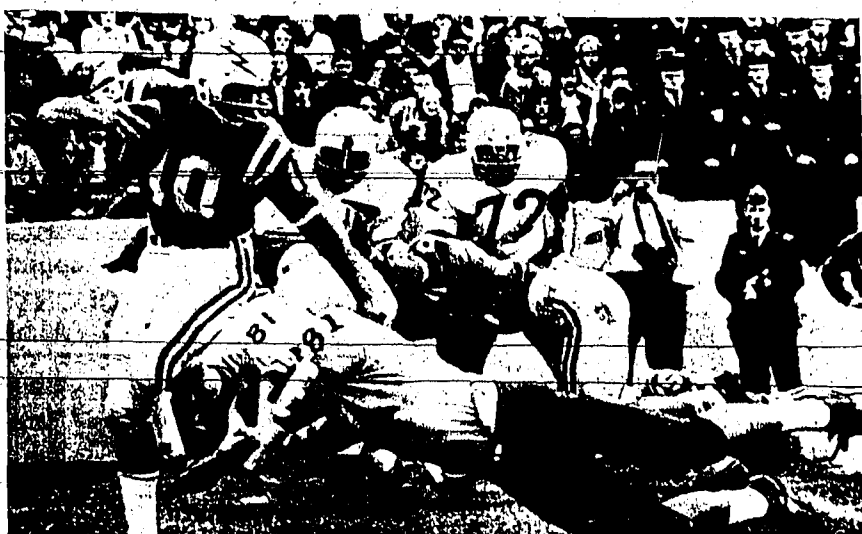

Despite near continual rain, snakes, accidents, etc., the group learned a few things. They plan on a return trip next year.

"But next time I hope we have mules," Nicholson says. "You can't drive one of these things off a trail. We lost nine horses up here," he said, tapping his head. "That country will kill you—but it's a lot of fun."

There was a lot different than goat. Counts seem pretty. At least you're up in the air and if you keep an eye on things you can tell where they are.

Nebraska Hits Early to Tip Falcons 27-17

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP)—Frank Solich's 80-yard touchdown run on the first scrimmage play set off a 21-point first quarter salvo by the Cornhuskers. Air Force rallied to within four points before losing Saturday to the Cornhuskers 27-17.

Solich, 158-pound senior speedster, ripped off 41- and 21-yard touchdowns later to insure Nebraska's second victory in two starts. Air Force suffered its second straight loss.

Fighting back from the 21-0 deficit, Air Force blanketed Nebraska in the second quarter and turned a fumble into a touchdown to close the gap to 21-7 at halftime.

Marching to Nebraska's 13 with the kickoff opening the second half, Air Force collected Dan Radtke's field goal and then executed a nifty inside

Bliss—Dave Cox romped for four touchdowns to pace the Bliss Bears past Nampa Christian 33-6 Friday, ending a three-game losing streak.

Bliss spotted Nampa an early touchdown before turning Cox loose. David King put the visitors ahead in the first quarter on a 70-yard punt return but Cox nullified that on a 21-yard run before the quarter ended.

A 30-yard sprint got Bliss' third touchdown and Cox wound up his afternoon with a 70-yard scamper early in the fourth quarter. Steve Maxwell got Bliss' last touchdown, going 15 yards after taking a short pass from Jim Robbins.

Webber State Rips Eastern Montana
BILLINGS, Mont. (AP)—Quarterback Tim Jones' accurate passes and blockbuster running by 240-pound fullback Lee White provided the momentum as Webber State swept Eastern Montana's Yellowjackets to defeat, 42-7, in non-conference college football Saturday.

Webber State of the Big Sky Conference tallied one in each of the first three periods and spurred for three more touchdowns in the fourth.

Borah's Sophs Dump Twin Falls
BOISE—Borah's sophomores smashed down the Twin Falls sophs 29-7 Saturday afternoon by scoring a touchdown in every quarter and adding a safety in the final period.

A fumble at midfield gave Borah the ball in the first quarter and the young Lions ground in for a score. On the ensuing kickoff, Bret Staples scampered 75 yards and a pass from Von Wells to Mike Florence got the point after.

Twin Falls protected that 7-6 edge until late in the second quarter when Borah scored again. But the young Bruins couldn't move against or stop Borah in the final two periods.

Bengals Score 3 Times in First Period, Win 48-7

POCATELLO (AP)—Idaho State University powered its way to a 48-7 victory over the College of Idaho Saturday in the 41st contest between the two rivals. The Idaho State Bengals scored three touchdowns in the first quarter. They scored again in the second quarter when end Gil Varjas intercepted a College of Idaho pass and ran it back to the Coyote 25-yard line. The Bengals' second team moved it to a 44-yard scoring on an end sweep from six yards out.

Borah JVs Roll Over T.F. 20-7

The Borah juniors missed the defense in the third period Saturday afternoon to white-wash the Twin Falls junior team 20-7, relying mainly on a strong second-half ground attack.

The first squad went in front in the first quarter shortly after the two teams traded pass interceptions.

Twin Falls got its only tally midway into the second quarter following a 30-yard end run by Jim Motern. Another by Dave Turner put the score. The conversion kick was good.

With 0:38 remaining in the third, Borah went ahead 13-7 and then stopped Twin Falls at the Borah 15. Borah added an insurance touchdown late in the fourth quarter taking over the ball on the Twin-Falls 50.

The last score came on a 31-yard pass to the three yard line, and a sweep-keeper by News.

The third quarter Idaho State scores were on two long drives with fullback Otha Robert doing most of the work, and an 86-yard series ending in an end sweep by Dick Mariotto from 11 yards out.

WSU Shocks Minnesota in 14-13 Upset
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Washington State, handed repeated scoring opportunities by fumbling Minnesota, punched across a touchdown with two minutes left to upset the Gophers 14-13 in an intercollegiate football game before 46,971 Saturday.

Quarterback Tom Roth dived a foot over the left side on fourth down, and Willie Guskins, who had never kicked extra points in a college game before, added his second conversion to provide the winning margin.

The Gophers' fifth lost fumble set up the touchdown at the Minnesota 15. With a five-yard motion penalty figure in, it took the Cougars eight plays to score, with their 12-yard pass to Doug Flansburg the key gain.

Washington State rallied from a 13-0 deficit driving 72 yards in 14 plays late in the third period. Fullback Larry Eilmes rammed three yards over left tackle for the way for the final score.

Tight Trojan Defense Stops Valley 26-0

WENDELL, — The Wendell Trojans used two pass interceptions and a tight defense Friday night for a 26-0 victory over the Valley Vikings.

In the first five minutes of the first quarter, Ray intercepted a Valley pass and ran it back 60 yards to the Valley five before he was stopped. The Trojans put it over on the next play but the tally was called back on a penalty. Valley took over the ball there but was held by the rugged Wendell defense and had to punt. The Trojans moved the ball 23 yards in six plays by Larry Murray Mull going off tackle for the first time. Randy Neff fengger bodied the conversion.

Late in the second quarter Wendell moved the ball 58 yards in 12 plays and Danny Peterson went one-yard over center and Neffenger kicked the extra point to make it 14-0 at half time.

Wendell's next two tallies came in the fourth quarter, the first following an intercepted pass from Bob Brunzell to Jim King made it 20-0.

On the ensuing kickoff, the Trojans held Valley forcing the Vikings to punt. The Trojans took it on the Valley 30 and seven plays moved it to the eight. Ray Mull took it the rest of the way for the final score.

Garrett and USC Blast Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Mike Garrett raced for two touchdowns, one on a 61-yard burst, and passed for another Saturday as Southern California pounded out a 20-6 football victory over Wisconsin.

Garrett, the Mr. Big of the Trojans offense, teamed with Red Sherman, who scored on a 41-yard run, and quarterback Troy Winslow as Southern California pounded out a 20-6 football victory over Wisconsin.

The Badgers, held to two first downs in the first half, came alive after intermission to score their first touchdown of the season as Chuck Burt connected on a six-yard pass to Bill Fritz to cap a 55-yard third period drive.

But Garrett, on the first play from scrimmage after the kickoff, found a hole to the middle of his own 39 and cut to his left to outstrip the Wisconsin secondary.

Wisconsin paved the way for the first Trojan score as Jerry Blackhart fumbled a Gary Fite punt on the Badgers 18 in the first period and Dave Moton pounced on the ball.

The Tigers scored four times in the opening quarter, Bruneau running one of the kickoffs back for a touchdown to prevent the shutout.

Other Richfield scoring had Bill Johnson with two touchdowns. Dave Maestas and Mike Swainston with one each and Dale Sanders getting another on a 45-yard pass interception.

BYU Smashes Kansas Staters

PROVO, Utah (AP)—Former football quarterback Brigham Young University basked in the glow of a second victory today after its 21-3 victory over Kansas State University in an intercollegiate game Friday night.

Quarterback Virgil Carter found end Phil Odle in the right spot three times and connected on three touchdown passes.

Odle kept K-State guessing by calling his first touchdown pass on a fourth and one situation on the K-State four-yard line. The second was a 20-yarder first and 10 with Odle sprinting toward the corner of the end zone. And down and four to go on the K-State four.

Trials of 2 Men Delayed In Alabama

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The intervention of Alabama's attorney general and the American Civil Liberties Union may delay the trials of two men accused of separate civil rights killings.

Thomas L. Coleman, 55, a special part-time deputy sheriff, and Collier Leroy Wilkins Jr., 21, a Ku Klux Klan member, are scheduled for trial during the coming week in this small southern community recently beset by racial strife.

First AMU Gen. Richmond Flowers requested postponement of Coleman's trial for the slaying of an Episcopal seminary student and civil rights volunteer, Jonathan Daniels. Coleman, a highway engineer, was indicted by a manslaughter charge. Flowers said it should have been a murder indictment.

Then, the ACLU asked a federal judge to enjoin the state court from trying Coleman, or Wilkins pending disposition of a federal court suit which charges discrimination against Negroes in the selection of juries at Hayneville.

The suit, filed by the Justice Department but not yet set for hearing, asked the court to order more Negroes put on the jury rolls in Lowndes County, Negroes outnumber white residents 4-1 in the county.

Wilkins, a Fairfield, Ala., mechanic, is one of three Klan members charged with killing a white Detroit housewife, Viola Liuzzo. He was tried last May, but the jury was unable to agree on a verdict.

After the ACLU stepped in, Flowers announced that he will ask State Court Judge T. Werth Thayer at a hearing Monday to delay both trials.

If Thayer denies the request, Flowers said the ACLU motion will be heard by a three-judge federal court in Montgomery at 1:30 p.m. Monday.

New Synod Won't Clash With Rome

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A leading Roman Catholic cardinal said today the worldwide Synod of Bishops created by Pope Paul VI will not clash with the Roman Curia.

Paolo Cardinal Marella, an Italian member of the Curia and president of the Vatican Ecumenical Council Commission on Bishops' Dates, explained the synod at a news conference.

The pontiff set up the synod 10 days ago as a consultative council to advise him on running the Church. Its members will represent the different national bishops' conferences.

Such a synod has been viewed by some churchmen as a way of establishing closer contact between the Pope and bishops scattered around the world, with less decision-making authority in the hands of the Curia.

In the renewal movement sparked by the Vatican Council, bishops from outside Rome have generally shown themselves more progressive than those based on the Roman Curia, the central Church administration.

Cardinal Marella was asked at his news conference if the synod would be "over, or under" the Curia. Neither, he replied.

"The synod and the Curia are two different things. The Roman Curia is the Pope's secretariat. The synod is called by the Pope to discuss with him certain questions regarding the Catholic world at particular moments."

No Smile Required for Thousands of "Pictures" Taken at Local Hospital

By O. A. (Gus) KELKER
Times-News Feature Editor

There are a lot of pictures taken out at the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital but the subject, never, needs to smile.

The pictures are not really pictures in the true sense. They are "negative" pictures which are seldom printed in black or white or in color. But they actually reveal more about a person than a regular picture ever did or will.

These "negative" pictures are better known as X-rays and there are probably 9,000 of them made in the hospital X-ray department in the period of a year.

These X-rays result in the saving of scores of lives, in revealing unusual situations not normally visible in the human body, and in the treatment of various types of disease including cancer.

Medical men say that the X-ray is the best thing ever invented for diagnostic work and it is proved at the local hospital where, for instance, over a 12 month period some 7,000 treatments are given for cancer and other benign conditions.

Because of the importance of this department to the operation of a modern hospital for benefit of the patients treated there, usable floor space of the X-ray section has been doubled as the result of a just completed expansion program.

The department is the largest in Magic Valley and an estimated $50,000 has just been spent for new equipment which is now installed and in operation. This expenditure, to bring the department up on an equal footing with the best of them, is in addition to the $49,000 worth of equipment installed in 1960 in present day medicine the X-ray department, together with the laboratory, is the "right arm" of the modern doctor. At the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital these two departments now occupy close to one-quarter of all hospital space available. This 24 per cent officials point out, is near a national average that is being maintained in medical centers.

Like the air force that "never sleeps" in time of national crisis, the X-ray department of the hospital here is staffed on a 24-hour basis. The department is always open, always ready to function in any emergency.

There are eight staff members, headed by Dr. C. R. McWilliams, radiologist. Assisting the doctor are four registered technologists, one dark-room technician, a medical stenographer and a receptionist who doubles as a bookkeeper.

Dr. McWilliams has been in charge of the X-ray department ever since the new hospital opened and in the old hospital for a year and a half before that.

He came here from New York State where he was a resident in radiology and a resident in pathology and medicine at the Lewis Hill Hospital. He is a member of the American College of Radiology and the American Board of Radiology. He is also president elect of the Idaho State Radiological Society.

New equipment added, to that previously available for use here marks an improvement step for the entire hospital. This new equipment, has made it possible for the department to double its (Continued on Page 25)

SPECIAL APRON and special gloves protect Dr. C. R. McWilliams, radiologist in charge of the X-ray department at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, as he operates the new Image Intensifier recently installed in the department. This instrument cuts by one-third the amount of radiation to which a patient is exposed and yet the image which the doctor can see is much brighter and clearer. The equipment is used for both in or out patients. (Times-News photo)

INTENSIVE STUDY is made of each X-ray taken at the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. During such study Dr. C. R. McWilliams, radiologist, sketches his findings which are recorded on a tape machine. This report is then transferred so that a copy is attached to the chart of the patient and another copy goes to the attending doctor as part of office records on that particular patient. Thousands of X-rays are studied each year at the hospital here. (Times-News photo)

New 2,000-Foot Poma Lift Due For Completion at Magic Mountain

STRINGING CABLE FOR NEW POMA LIFT are Claude Jones, on tower, and Phillip Perry, in Twin Falls. The new lift will have a capacity of 450 skiers per hour, greatly increasing the number of skiers who will be able to take advantage of Pike Mountain's broad, moderate slopes. The lift will service a new 3,500-foot run that descends to the right of the present lift. (Times-News photo)

MAGIC MOUNTAIN—Skiing has never been for the faint at heart. It is a long-standing tradition that beginning skiers are forced to add insult to injury as the painful and embarrassing process of learning to ski is compounded by the universally wracking lift facilities designed for beginners.

Foremost has been the widespread use of rope tows. But now, at Magic Mountain Ski Resort, something new has been added—no longer do beginners need to wring their gloves after clinging desperately to soggy ropes.

An attractive alternative to the existing tows on Pike Mountain will be offered in the form of a new 2,000 foot Poma lift. The new lift will double the length of the previous runs at Pike and increase the total lift capacity by 450 skiers per hour.

Skiing terrain on Pike Mountain has been doubled with the addition of the new lift, according to Claude Jones, resort operator.

The emphasis in construction this year has been on developing better facilities for the beginning and intermediate skier and will be especially helpful in serving the ski school, which attracted more than 200 new skiers to Magic Mountain slopes last year.

The new Poma lift, which is made in France, will serve runs also served by the rope tows, but will nearly double their length. The new lift also serves a completely new run which has been cut out of the pines and quaking aspens to the right of the old rope tows.

This new run is not visible from the bottom of the hill, but should prove a delight to skiers because it has an even slope over its 3,500 foot length. Since it is shaded by trees, good snow and negligible wind should be assured.

The new Poma lift is located just to the right of the rope tows, which will continue to operate, along with the T-bar lift, serving the steeper runs on Magic Mountain.

Work on the new lift began in June and is now complete except for splicing cables, attaching towers and painting the lower terminal building.

The ski lodge also will have a new look this year, as it is undergoing extensive remodeling according to Jones.

L. E. (GUS) SHAFER, one of the country's outstanding artists specializing in western art, displays two of his latest works. He has just completed a tour of Idaho and declared that this state is a "virgin spot" for western art. While in Twin Falls he sketched the old Stricker cabin, southwest of Kimberly. (Times-News photo)

Famed Western Artist Finds Idaho Fertile Field for Early Day Lore

A watercolor set that cost 25 cents started L. E. (Gus) Shafer on a hobby which today has resulted in his being recognized as one of the nation's outstanding painters featuring western art.

That first watercolor set was given to him by his father. The family, when Shafer was a boy, lived on a farm in the general area of Merriam, Kans., and the spot where they resided was a long ways from anywhere.

It just caught on to the point where I have been fooling around with them all these years."

Shafer, with his wife, spent two days in Twin Falls while on a recent tour of the state looking for authentic western scenes. In Twin Falls they visited with Dr. and Mrs. John S. Broz.

Dr. Broz owns one of Shafer's original watercolors—one of a Silver City scene—and has commissioned him to do another which will depict an authentic "noverman man" yet the two had never met except by letter or telephone.

"I just thought we would swing through Twin Falls to meet the doctor and his wife," Shafer said. "There was another dividend which resulted in our stop here that I did not plan on. I was able to sketch the Stricker cabin near Kimberly and this old structure, deep in history, will lend itself to a painting which I have in mind."

The nationally known artist actually became a serious painter while still in grade school. He had his first one man show when he was just 16 years old. One of the paintings then was of a windmill. "My father bought that for $5 and it was the first sale I made," Shafer recalled. "When my father died it went to a brother and when he died I came into possession of it again. Now I never have a show but what that old windmill is exhibited. Every once in a while someone offers to buy it but I'll never let it go."

The site for his initial show back when he was a boy was an unusual one. It was in an undertaking parlor in his "home town" of Hoisington, Kans. But this display was only the start. Last May citizens of Hoisington and also of Great Bend gave. (Continued on Page 17)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

One of the most talented and versatile women in Magic Valley is Mrs. Claude Vallette, DECLIO. A woman of many talents, Mrs. Vallette has achieved more than local fame with her "Come to Look" Gardens. The gardens recently were mentioned in Sunset magazine and are to be found in the Texaco road map of places of interest to see in Idaho. Her collection of over 4,500 irises covers the most part of a block in Declo and although people often think of her gardens as just containing irises, her beautiful roses are just as outstanding as her irises. Any rose lover can find his favorite selection in her garden of over 500 rose bushes.

Painting, beadwork, wooden novelties and music were her favorite occupations but her favorite hobby is reading, which she developed in her early childhood. She always has been an inveterate reader. Mrs. Vallette has over 1,200 volumes in her personal library. In 1932 she purchased her first typewriter, which was used for many years just for personal correspondence.

However, when a particular plot would form in her mind she began writing. Some of her stories are book length and she has them typed and bound. These were written for her own amusement and never were sold. While in high school she learned to tat and crochet and she has many original creations. In later years she rarely copied anything exactly like the picture always adding something of her own design and creation.

For the last several years, however, she has not been able to crochet as her fingers are not as nimble as they were. She also no longer gives piano lessons. Mrs. Vallette has been growing irises since 1937 when she set out her first diploids in yellow, white plicata and pink. In 1942 she saw some of the tetraploids that caught her attention—they were much larger and taller than the old small varieties. That summer she ordered a collection of 50 and when they bloomed she ordered more. Every year since then she has set out more new ones, ranging from tiny early dwarfs to some five feet tall.

When her interest really became aroused in 1945 she began wondering how to hybridize new varieties. Since in addition to her music, fancy work and writing, she wanted something of her own creation.

Finding no one to answer her questions, she organized the first Iris Hybridizing Robin, with members from all over the United States.

She is a member of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants (colonists in Plymouth before 1633), and the Daughters of the American Revolution. She also has framed certificates from the Order of the Golden Crown (for descendants of Charlemagne) and of the Magna Charta in 1215.

Mrs. Vallette keeps her genealogy in two large binders, each almost a foot thick. There are 600 pedigree charts and clogs to 2,000 family-group sheets. Last year she had some sheets printed with a shield in the upper right hand corner.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Vallette share another hobby, cats! They have two Siamese—three whose names was a little gray alley cat, Keo, Kellee, the Himalayan, fondly known to them both as Angel Precious, and four cross breeds.

Serious Study Urged

BY REV. WARREN L. HOWELL, Rector of the Church of the Ascension, Twin Falls. It is my opinion as a pastor that the public press is not the most appropriate form in which to debate theological doctrines or differences among Churches or Faiths. If any one wishes to clarify in his mind the meaning of Christian Doctrine or seek to understand it, then he should consult any pastor privately or attend a Church of Faith of his choice and give up a serious study to religion.

own emotions which may distort his view about religion. What the individual needs is to find a larger perspective as he looks at religion. This may be helped by talking it all out with a pastor. Of course the pastor must be first concerned with the individual and his needs as a person.

In counselling in theological matters it is wisest to listen first, find out what the person's questions really are, and why they exist in his mind or conscience. Then the pastor can offer answers or practices to explain ideas or practices to make them more newly understandable and meaningful for the person. The reason why so many persons do not come to clergymen with religious questions, when presumably pastors are equipped to deal with such topics, is that people fear that a pastor will "try to convert" them, or "overwhelm them with words" for which they can offer no defense. Unfortunately too many clergymen have used this approach.

Faith always tell people who come to inquire about the Church I serve that they have no obligation to the Church but only to truth, and my role is to help them discover a more adequate picture or religious truth as the Church through history understands it, and the person will then have to arrive at his own conclusions.

After all "private judgment" in religion is necessary if the individual is to find a faith he can really affirm, although "the right of private judgment" is insufficient, or influenced by his hardly an article of faith or a theological doctrine. The main point is that a Church or pastor dealing with an inquiring mind searching for a living faith needs to learn what the problem is, what question needs answering, before overwhelming the person with "the answers" which too often are offered as though they are beyond question or criticism.

The most significant contribution of the movement in western history called the Reformation is what Paul Tillich has called the principle of "self-criticism," which is to say that all human expressions of religion (both institutions and doctrines, and people, including clergymen) stand always under the judgment of God in Christ, and must be preserved by truth as it is found in Christ.

This has been too largely forgotten in the history of Christianity and has resulted in tearing away the seamless robe of Christ and dismembering His Body, the Church. The Ecumenical Movement in all Communions of Christians in our generation is apparently sincerely trying to restore "the principle of self-criticism" to religion. In this way it can be possible to discover and understand the historical and religious reasons why present divisions and differences exist, and to find the way to reunion, so that one day all Baptized Christians may again find nourishment for their lives around One Altar, under one commonly accepted Ministry, and within the life of One-Fold, under One Shepherd.

Nothing less than this goal can fulfill the prayer of Our Lord in the 4th Gospel that all who are "in Him" may be "one." But the individual must realize, and this may require some humility of spirit, that he is not the first person in creation to be a Christian or to search for religious faith. The Christian religion is a community faith for a living within and through the life of a "fish and bread" family and household in history, and therefore just as a parent guides the growth of a child, the Church as "our Mother" needs to guide our growth in the Faith. We need to compare our judgments as Christians of the whole family of Christ, and be willing to be guided by the Church as God's Teacher.

This is likely to be a more fruitful approach to religious teaching than to require respect without questioning on the one hand or a wholly individualized view of religion on the other, where it is assumed any individual can be an authority in religion. No one really thinks a person without training in science can be an authority in science. What makes one think anything different applies to religion? One must "try the spirits" to see if they be of God.

RAPID FILM CHANGER, under the head of Dean Jacobsen, technologist, is one of many important pieces of new equipment in the X-ray department at Magle Valley Memorial Hospital. This instrument permits the taking of 12 pictures in six seconds and is used primarily for X-rays of the vascular system, the brain, the heart and lungs. Smile Not Required for Thousands of "Pictures" Taken at Local Hospital morial Hospital X-ray department, removes film from the machine. Negatives are stored for possible study in the future. (Times-News photo)

This equipment also makes the image which the radiologist sees much brighter and clearer. Also saving time in the search for body malfunction is a developing machine which turns out a finished X-ray negative in seven minutes—dry and ready for study. Time is saved by another instrument, the rapid film change, which permits, for instance, 12 pictures to be taken of the brain in just six seconds. This equipment is primarily used in examining the vascular system as well as the heart, the lungs and the brain.

Another innovation now available is equipment which permits taking X-rays of surgical patients while they are under an anesthetic and without being removed from the operating table.

"All in all we feel that the Magle Valley Memorial Hospital is a hospital of which all residents can be well proud. We are keeping abreast of medical discoveries and offer services which, in many cases, are found only in the larger more populated areas," Rosenbaum said. Facilities of the remodeled and enlarged X-ray department are located on the first floor, east wing of the hospital.

DISTINCTIVE RED GOGGLES, worn here by Dr. E. R. McWilliams, radiologist, are no longer needed at the local hospital. With the old equipment they were worn most of the day in order to keep the doctor's eyes protected from normal light that he might better observe images in the dark. Now, because the new equipment provides a bright image, it is possible to do the same work in a semi-lighted room and without the heavy red glasses being worn at all. (Times-News photo)

in many instances. "All equipment is now modern in every respect," Rosenbaum said in announcing completion of the expansion project. "We of the administrative staff are proud of the setup now functioning at this hospital."

Nurse Talks On Mental Health Need

HAILEY — Mrs. Everett Twombly, public health nurse, explained the great need for mental health facilities when she spoke at the Rotary Club meeting Thursday noon at the Star cafe.

She told of the new advancements in the public health department and work being done by the state laboratory in Boise. "An audiometer was purchased last fall by the county in cooperation with the Carey, Bellevue, Ketchum and Hailey PTAs, and is now in use," she said.

Tuberculin skin tests will be made later in the year, she noted. Mrs. Twombly, who is employed in Blaine County nine months of the year, made 781 home visits last year and participated in 5,910 group activities such as classes, talks, etc.

She said Blaine County has three children in the cleft-palate program; eight under the neurologic program and 19 under the crippled children program. The south central district, of which it is a part with Dr. Luther C. Thompson as medical director, includes Camas, Gooding, Lincoln, Jerome, Minidoka, Twin Falls and Cassia counties.

Idaho Project Designed to Find Life Habits of State's Mountain Lions

By JIM HUMPHREY
Idaho Fish and Game Division
BOISE—Handling live mountain lions can be just about the most exciting activity that a person can do. But, it is a job that ecologist Maurice Hornacker and his helpers are tackling in order to find out how the big cats live, what and how much they eat, and how they affect populations of other animals that live in the same territory.

Museum of National History, the Boone and Crockett Club, and the New York Zoological Society in this work, a portion of which will be used for his doctoral dissertation at the University of British Columbia.
The lions, usually called cougars in Idaho, are the subject of a long-term investigation in which much of the life history information will be obtained by capturing, individually marking, releasing, and subsequently recapturing the marked animals.
This project is unique because it has never before been attempted on the cougar, a very difficult animal to study. There is practically nothing known of the basic biology and population dynamics of this great cat.
The work began in the winter of 1962 when ten cougars were captured, individually marked, and released. Wilbur Wiles of the Creek was hired to assist in all phases of the project. Training of the crew, which included capturing the big cats.
Along with the tagging job goes careful observation of the cougars live, including detailed examination of any evidence of predation by cougar. This, of course, is of particular interest to big game enthusiasts since cougars feed upon big game species. The effect of this predation on populations of game animals, however, has never been assessed in a wilderness environment and is not known. One of the major aims of this study is to determine, in a scientific and objective manner, if cougar predation is or is not actually limiting populations of big game animals.
In the winter of 1962-63, the study area was occupied by good numbers of mule deer, elk and bighorn sheep, with mule deer the most numerous. No bighorn sheep tags by cougars were found during the first winter's work (which extended from

Businessmen of Nation Own 29,000 Aircraft

WICHITA, Kan.—More and more businessmen are turning to airplanes to keep pace with the booming economy.
Estimates vary, but middle-of-the-road statistics place the number of business-owned aircraft at about 28 per cent of the entire U.S. general aviation fleet, which the Federal Aviation Agency now estimates at nearly 80,000 airplanes.
These figures include both single and multi-engine aircraft, and a quite high percentage of the latter is used for business purposes.
Most of the more than 10,000 multi-engine aircraft in the general aviation fleet are used primarily for business flying. They are owned in fleets by the large corporations, or individually by small and medium sized companies.
El Paso (Tex.) Natural Gas has one of the larger twin fleets with 10 aircraft, five of them turbocharged Cessna Skyights. The company's twins plus two single-engine aircraft total a total of more than 8,500 flying hours yearly.
The planes shuttle executives, engineers, specialists and operating personnel throughout the utility company's vast network of facilities.
Another Southwestern company using a twin in its everyday business operation is E. H. Darby and Co., Inc., Houston, Tex. President E. H. Darby Jr. of this paving contracting company, flies a turbocharged Cessna Skyight between the scattered highway and airport sites to keep in personal contact with the progress and problems that face his paving crews.
These examples show light twins performing the tasks that are duplicated thousands of times across the nation.

Dec. 1 to April 30) but predation on deer and elk was recorded.
The age of animals known to have been killed by cougar was arrived at by collecting the jaw bone and comparing wear of the teeth to that of known age specimens.
Detailed analyses were performed on specimens collected from the carcasses of cougar-killed animals in order to determine the physical condition of that animal before it was killed. Definite patterns of lion predation on both deer and elk were established in this first season's work; but more information, collected in different types of winters and from different ranges, is needed before meaningful interpretations can be made.
Results of the cougar research will aid in the management of deer, elk, and sheep so that the maximum yield may be taken by hunters.
Information gained in this project will also form the basis of cougar management for the future since the cougar itself is a magnificent animal, highly prized as a part of Idaho's wild heritage.
Meanwhile, the presence of ear-tagged cougars in the Idaho Primitive Area will make 1965 big game hunting especially interesting. Hunters who turn up cougar information during the fall or winter can perform a helpful service by reporting their observations to Maurice Hornacker, Wildlife Research Unit, University of Idaho, Moscow; to his home address in McCall, Idaho, or to the Fish and Game Department in Boise.

Although each company has a few applications unique to itself, almost all use their twins to put the right personnel and equipment in the right place at the right time.
This common purpose accounts for most of the 5.8 million flying hours the National Business Aircraft Association estimates were flown by business airplanes, both twins and single-engine, during the past year.
Business flying represents the greatest portion of general aviation flying hours accumulated in the past year.
Two out of every three general aviation pilots are businessmen, and a growing number of these are traveling in general aviation aircraft. Who are these flying businessmen, where do they come from and how do they use their airplanes? Cessna surveys have revealed four major categories in the business aircraft market.
First, there is the company-owned plane that is flown by a professional pilot. This plane usually is a twin and is one of several aircraft in a company fleet. Ninety per cent of the corporations on the roster of the National Business Aviation Association own and operate such a fleet.
Most of the twins in this category are equipped for instrument flight conditions, with instrumentation similar to that of commercial airliners. These aircraft transport the big man of big business.
The second category includes company-owned planes flown by businessmen or executives. This plane transports the smaller man of big business, or, more frequently, the big man of small or medium-sized business. He is the owner, partner, independent operator, rancher, lumberman or oil man.

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT . . . West Coast Airlines Executive Shies Away From Anything Like Publicity

Like the man who hid his candle under the basket, Denney R. Hogue is one of those rare individuals who, regardless of the justification, just shies away from anything which he believes borders on publicity.

DENNEY R. HOGUE

At a recent dinner, the exploits of this particular Twin Falls resident—who is known business-wise throughout the country—are little known in the town in which he has resided for more years than he cares to admit.
What broke the ice concerning the background of this Twin Falls businessman was an article which appeared in the recent issue of Air West, the magazine publication of West Coast Airlines.
The article, written by O. A. (Gus) Kelker, Time News feature writer, defined Hogue as "a person who hid his head in the clouds but his feet on the ground. The head is in the clouds because he had been interested in aviation since his youth, and the feet are on the ground because back of it all he is a well qualified businessman.
As a director of the West Coast Airlines he is typical—if there is such a thing as typical in this instance—of an executive who serves a regional airline with the full knowledge that it may never make him much money, but that it is a job that has to be done by someone who likes to do it for the love of the thing.
Hogue was actually interested in aviation and flying back when he was too young to realize that the feat could be accomplished without personally grown wings.
He had to smile when he recalled his first connection with flight. That was back in 1923 in Payette, Idaho. Picture the situation: you add the figures and come up with the fact that it was only 22 years after the Wright brothers made their first hop.
Hogue recalled that a fellow by the name of Lionel Kay, an early barnstormer, came to the community to pick up some extra cash by giving airplane rides. The airport at that time in Payette, Hogue recalls, was just an unimproved field.
After a financial exchange was mutually agreed upon, Hogue climbed into the airplane as passenger with Kay at the controls.
The plane was pointed into the wind and the takeoff was undertaken. Young Hogue was in the air for the first time. The motor started to pick up and suddenly all was quiet. The motor had failed and the pilot headed the plane for a farm field across the Snake river into Oregon. Hogue said he had no fear because he knew nothing about husband in Holland while the younger girl, Nancy, is doing graduate work at Stanford. The Hogue couple will visit Patricia in Holland during the Christmas season this year. The trip, of course, will be made by air.

It was not too long after his marriage that he became associated with Empire Airlines, a pioneer line across Idaho. When this line was purchased by West Coast Hogue stayed as a director.
All of his airline experience, however, has not been limited to Empire and West Coast.
Prior to the time that West Coast acquired Empire, Hogue and three or four other investors took a flyer south of the border where they bought an airline and the equipment with which to operate it.
The airline, Transports Aereos de Jalisco S.A., was based at Guadalajara, Mexico. It served 14 small towns with two DC3's and a twin Cessna. One of the main stops was at Puerto Vallarta, now a famed resort on the west coast. It was here that they picked up a

Over-Parked
MUNCIE, Ind. (AP)—Mayor John W. Hamon parked his car in a traffic loading zone while he addressed a welcoming luncheon for the state fire chief's association convention. The fire chief's association convention was held Thursday at the hotel but the chief for illegal parking cost him $3.
"Back at the home base removed the wire partitions washed down the fuselage a water through a hole in the operation the seats were down. These particular were at the side-army wing."
"We would then load passengers and practically were always so many flies in the plane," Hogue-laughed-out of them never found out."
He added that this project ended because couldn't keep the aircraft flying.
By his own admission, other activities include a few which he "has to make money to live and eat."
"This 'outside' money enabled him to own several light planes down through the years and become a pilot in his own right. He is one of the founders of Twin Falls Gas Co., Inc., a fueling and proving company. Emmett, president of the Ranch Co., a wheat outfit based at Pendleton; owner of the Valley Farms Co., a potato growing company based at Twin Falls; president of the Twin Farms, Inc., a potato grower at Twin Falls, and owner of a seed producing company at McCall.
Besides his Phi Beta Kappa affiliation at Stanford, Hogue has connections with A. Kappa Phi and the Silver Lanes both at the University of Idaho and also Beta Theta Pi.
In view of all his business connections he was asked "What do you like best in business world?"
"That's easy," he said. "Flying, of course."

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, Sept. 26—Born today, you have great ambition coupled with unusually high idealism. Such a combination generally indicates a person destined for humanitarian activities, for such a person is not usually idealistic only in his own behavior, but also concerning the actions and way of life of others who may be less fortunate.

Although music, literature and the creative arts in general appeal to you greatly, you will probably not have much time to indulge in these things. Rather, your time will most likely be taken up with more practical matters—matters of vital importance to life itself for other people—food, shelter, clothing, medical care. Social work is your most natural calling.

You are willing to work hard and long, even at jobs that do not appear to you. Hence you do not know you may think you, something of a "prind"; those the artist a real old fashioned homecoming and for two days he was the "big shot" in the area.

"It is a wonderful thing when your friends, and even people you never met, do this sort of thing for you," he said. "It made me feel proud."

Although in the early years he dabbled in commercial and advertising art, he has supported himself since 1930 by producing water colors and illustrations.

Somewhere along the line he threw in five or six years of sculpturing but this is now difficult because of a hand injury he suffered so this venture now must be confined to clay or wax rather than stone.

But water color work is his first love and western characters are his subjects practically exclusively.

During this swing through Idaho he and his wife visited and made sketches in Silver City, Idaho City, Atlanta, Placerville, Monocville, Bonanza and Custer.

ASTRADDLE FLOATING TAIL WHEEL. Claude Jones, owner of the new 2,000 foot poma lift, adjusts huge bearing. The wheel is situated at the top of Pike Mountain. It is supported by a tower which supplies enough cable tension to keep the wheel off the ground. The installation of the floating wheel is one of the final steps in the assembly of the new lift facility. The new lift will serve runs also served by the rope tows. (Times-News photo)

LIFT TOWER is set in place by Art Bally, left, Hansen, and Phillip Perry, Twin Falls. The tower is being lowered into excavated foundation hole which will be filled with cement for support. The tower will support the cable of the new 2,000 foot poma lift to be situated on Pike Mountain at the Magic Mountain Ski Area. The lift will more than double the skiing area on the slope. The new Poma lift was made in France. (Times-News photo)

Odds Against Assembly on Key Issues

By MAX HARELSON
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The 20th session of the General Assembly undoubtedly will accomplish more than the paralyzed 19th session, but the odds are against any breakthrough on disarmament, noncooperating or other key issues.

The new session opening Tuesday will return to normal voting procedure, but international tension remains high, and the atmosphere is not favorable for resolving East-West deadlocks.

The assembly is the main deliberative body of the U.N., and usually meets three months a year.

The Viet Nam conflict is expected to have a significant impact, even though the question is not among 105 items on the agenda.

The undeclared war between India and Pakistan, while being handled by the Security Council, also is sure to affect debate.

Those who have followed disarmament discussions at U.N. headquarters and at Geneva see little reason for optimism on this long-time problem.

The most pressing problem, perhaps, is to find a formula for handling future peacekeeping operations. After weeks of private negotiations and public discussion, the big powers seem to be as far apart as ever on two major points: financing and defining the respective roles of the Security Council and the assembly in peacekeeping.

There doesn't appear to be any better prospect that the assembly will achieve positive results on issues such as the Cyprus conflict, South Africa's controversial policy of apartheid (racial segregation), Korea and Tibet.

From a long-term view, the big problem is to restore some of the prestige lost when a threat of U.S.-Soviet confrontation led up the 19th session. This threat was lifted in August, when the United States, announcing it bowed to the will of

Ski Resort To Get New Poma Lift

The warming room and kitchen space, indoor restrooms have been installed in the basement of the new addition.

Plans call for starting the skiing season around Oct. 20 with a movie entitled "The Sound of Skiing," to be shown at O'Leary Junior High School, sponsored by Magic Mountain and Olson's Sporting Goods.

Jones feels all that is now needed is some road improvement for first-class skiing facilities in the area.

Opinions Split On Work Survey

NEW YORK (AP)—Do women make as good engineers as men?

In a survey conducted among 7,000 engineering graduates, Columbia University, about half of those questioned said yes, about half said no.

Those replying in the affirmative said intelligence, know-how and sex and that ability transcends gender. However, the "no's" said women might do better as engineers if they didn't have primary responsibility for reproduction of the species.

The biggest objection to women engineers was this: although they start out as dedicated career engineers, before long they run foul of some man (usually another engineer) and from then on this gal's services are usually lost to the engineering profession.

Cup Not Deadly, But Still Costly

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Circuit Judge John U. Bird ruled that a coffee cup is not a deadly weapon. But using one for a weapon can still prove costly.

Charles Robinson, 26, formerly of St. Petersburg, was charged with aggravated assault (assault with a deadly weapon), following a fight in a restaurant in which he hit three men with a cup. The judge found Robinson guilty of a lesser charge of assault and battery.

Judge Bird upheld the defense contention that a deadly weapon is a gun, knife, or some other heavy or sharp object that obviously can cause death.

But he fined Robinson $500 on the lesser charge.

Folk-Hero Dentist Needed to Fill Gap on Fall TV Season

BY WARD CANNELL
NEW YORK (NEWS) — It is less news and decay-causing bacteria under the tentative title of "The Folk Hero Dentist" that is very discouraging to have to mention this matter, but we have just sat through the premiere week of the new television season, and find that there is still no series about a dentist. We had been almost completely certain there would be a dentist show this year.

By our calculation, just about all of the national folk hero situations were exhausted last season and the only remaining possibility for a new hero, it seemed to us, a dentist.

The only reasonable explanation was a dentist. Rightly understood, a dentist embodies all of the basic values required of a popular hero on television.

People trust a dentist. You can always tell where a dentist is, even if your eyes are closed. A dentist is more durable than a sheriff. You never hear of anybody killing a dentist.

Moreover, a dentist is a very versatile character for show business, and can be set down in almost any locale, historical or contemporary, and in any setting or programming hour.

As we picture the show, our hero could be a combination of Matt Dillon and Dry Lyons, riding a western town of both law and order under the tentative title of "The Folk Hero Dentist."

We are not wed to that idea, however. A dentist hero can just as easily appeal to the Sunday afternoon audience. If people will watch a show such as "Open House," they will certainly stay tuned to see another called "Open Pleasure."

If new work planners can approve a program called "My Mother, the Car," there must also be a market for a show called "George Washington, the Bridge."

If people will stay up all hours to listen to somebody called "Oral Roberts," well, there is no need to fill this space with further evidence in support of our argument.

The fact of the matter is the season has opened without a program about a dentist and we would like to know the reason for it.

Sooner or later a television season will have to open with a heartwarming series about a dentist—And when it comes, just remember that you saw it here first.

WELL, RAOUL IS CONSISTENT, IF NOTHING ELSE. HE PULLED OFF THEIR "RESCUE" ON HIS OWN, AND DECIDED HISSELF ON HIS OWN. I JUST HOPE HE DIDN'T COMPLETELY RUIN HIMSELF.

I... I GUESS I MADE A MESS OF EVERYTHING... INCLUDING US!

I'M STILL HERE, RAOUL, AND GO ARE YOU!

What Kind of Things do Women do? . . .

Why do they spend unaccountable hours preparing a program, cooking, sewing or giving time on innumerable projects . . . all for the good of their organization?

Find out these answers, plus many interesting facets of club activity throughout Magic Valley in the special

"It's a Woman's World" edition

COMING TO YOU IN THE TIMES-NEWS

And have you ever wondered what women do when they go to club? Husbands, no doubt, have long agreed that the principal purpose is to talk, but stories in our special Woman's World edition will indicate the wide variety of projects and interests of women in all walks of life.

Everyone knows most social clubs have worthwhile projects, such as contributing to charitable drives, donating to missions, raising money for many projects. But stories gathered by Times-News correspondents across Magic Valley will describe many of the diverse projects different women's groups have tackled.

Families who have lost their homes in fire, children needing eye examinations or an iron lung, hospital patients needing personal attention . . . these and many more have been given a boost through the dedicated and determined efforts of some women's club.

How have women raised money for their projects? In addition to the usual card selling, baked food sales and even fines, did you know one group sent news to the Times-News as an extra way to swell their treasury?

While many men, and uninitiated non-club women, may cling to their idea that the subject matter of most women's groups is lightweight, readers of the Woman's World edition will be amazed to find the breadth of interest of many church and professional women's groups.
