Schirra, Stafford Review Plans for Space Flight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford took a breather from their intensive schedule to watch a televised football game today, then reviewed plans for their attempt Monday to catch and join with an Agena satellite—a technical which must be perfected before man ventures into space. Command pilot Schirra emphasized the importance of the flight when he said in a recent interview: "I think we're stalling on the moon trip if we can't rendezvous and dock."

Both Gemini 6 pilots spent the morning in their quarters running through the flight plan and spacecraft check lists.

In the afternoon they watched part of the Notre-Dame-Southern California football contest on television. Later they studied the flight director Chris Craft to discuss the intricate rendezvous mission.

Final review sessions are scheduled for Sunday.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the astronauts had conducted practice sessions in a spacecraft simulator Saturday, but decided they needed the time to review the flight plan.

All aspects of the mission progressed smoothly toward Monday's space rendezvous which calls for the launching of two rockets on a precise timetable.

The weatherman said there will be clouds over Cape Kennedy on launch day but they could cause no problem.

An Atlas is to boost the Agena into orbit at 10 a.m. A Titan 2 is to follow at 11:41 to hoist Schirra and Stafford on the start of their dramatic space hunt.

Six hours later, high above the ocean, Schirra is to gently nudge the nose of Gemini 6 into a collar in the nose of the 26-foot-long Agena.

If successful, it will be man's first linkup with an orbiting vehicle and will propel the United States past a significant milestone on the road to the moon.

Schirra and Stafford plan four dockings and undockings, two each, with the target satellite. They will return to earth after one or two days, depending on when the hookups are completed.

Schirra, who will steer Gemini 6 through its orbit-shifting maneuvers, calls the mission the most difficult yet tried in the U.S. man-in-space program when he said:

"The reason the whole program is so important is that the whole lunar program is predicated on lunar orbit rendezvous. If we find that the techniques we are working on are unfeasible, this could have a major impact on the whole moon effort."

The government's agency summarized that "The just-ended session was marked by a sharp decline of Congress' influence on the administration's foreign policy."

Viet Cong Hit Plei Me With Shells

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The Viet Cong maintained their siege of Plei Me with mortar shells Saturday night and pounded on a Vietnamese task force 10 miles away that presumably was marching to the relief of the Special Forces garrison.

A U.S. spokesman said the task force was hit on a secondary road northeast of Plei Me in the central highlands 20 miles northeast of Saigon, and the Viet Cong knocked out several of its armored vehicles.

Both sides were on the move elsewhere.

Communist forces assaulted a government unit in Phu Yen Province, between Plei Me and the South China Sea, where several battalions of government troops have been on guard for 10 days to protect the province's rich rice harvest. Air strikes helped break up the Red attack and government casualties were described as light.

Bad Weather Halts Cuban Exile Boats

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Bad weather halted sailing of Cuban exile boats for Florida Saturday. And the Coast Guard assessed stiff penalties on several owners and operators of vessels used to bring out refugees.

More than 150 boats were reported moored at the docks in Camarillo and Varadero, two embarkation points in Cuba, awaiting improved weather conditions. Some on the 90-mile run across the Florida Straits were reported six to eight feet during squalls.

The Coast Guard cracked down on safety violations in boats used to bring in the refugees. It announced that three Americans faced fines of $6,000 each for "gross violation of safe navigation rules."

A number of other boat owners have been assessed lesser fines for safety violations.

TYING UP LOOSE ENDS Final Rule for Better Spelling Is Explained

By The Reading Laboratory, Inc.
Written for NEA Special Services

When y is preceded by vowels keep the y. Before suffixes; otherwise change to i.

This is our final spelling rule. We shall explain it now and cover a few loose ends before we close. In our next article, we shall review all the spelling rules and exceptions we have discussed to date.

When does the final y of a word remain y and when does it become i before a suffix? Our rhyme gives the general rule: When the final y of a word is preceded by a vowel (pay), keep that y when you add the suffix (payable). Otherwise—that is, when the final y is preceded by a consonant—change the y to i and add the suffix.

In defy, the final y is preceded by f, a consonant. So we change it to i and have defiance. Joy becomes joyful, and the y is kept because the final y is preceded by the vowel o. Rectify becomes rectifier; the final y becomes i before the suffix because f, a consonant, precedes the y.

So far, so good. Rectify becomes rectifier in accordance with the rule. But how can you explain rectifying, defying, relying and the like? Why don't they follow the rule? Simply because they would violate the rule we established in an earlier column: "Avoid the 'i' in profusion." We cannot, as we agreed before, have rectifying, defying, relying. "Avoid the 'i' in profusion."

Apart from such very common words as gay (gaily), day (daily), say, (said) and lay (laid), the only other exception you have to keep in mind are words that have ness and ship for a suffix. These words, no matter what, always retain the y before the ness and the ship. Examples would be spy (spyness) sly (slyness) and lady (ladyship).

To sum up this final rule. When the final y of a word is itself preceded by a vowel (day, boy), keep the final y before a suffix (daylight, boyhood). When the final y of a word is preceded by a consonant (modify, defy), change the y to i before adding the suffix (modifier, defiance). When ness and ship are the suffixes, always keep the y.

The few loose ends we spoke about don't amount to very much, but you should keep them in mind. One of them deals with ending words in or or our. Is it favor or favour, glamor or glamour, Saviour or Saviour? If you are in England or any of its dominions, use our and keep your friends. In the United States, however, use or. Saviour seems still to be a holdout in some places in the United States, but even here the usage is becoming more and more Saviour.

Strictly speaking, if you spell judgement and acknowledgement, you are perfectly correct. Judgement and acknowledgement are in accordance with our rule:

When suffixes begin with vowels,
Silent e grabs crying towels.
When suffixes start other ways
Silent e makes sure it stays.

As indicated, following the rule will not get you into trouble, but judgment and acknowledgement and the like are now preferred, at least in the United States.

Our final loose end has to do with the same rule about silent e. According to the rule, we should write truly and argument. And it should be awful and duly. These are very common words and the chances are that you spell them correctly without even thinking. They are properly spelled, as you know, truly, argument, awful and duly.

That about clears up all the rules and the exceptions for those areas of spelling which give people the most difficulty. Our next article will be a complete, general review. Make a resolve to

Miss Keeler Weds British Engineer

READING, England (UPI) — Christine Keeler, central figure in Britain's 1963 sex-and-security scandal, was married here Friday, it was announced Saturday night.

The 23-year-old former play-girl married British engineer James Levermore, 24, by special license in a Registry Office of this county town 30 miles west of London. About 18 friends and relatives attended the wedding.

Miss Keeler, whose affair with former War Minister John Profumo eventually forced his resignation and almost toppled then-Prime Minister Harold MacMillan's Conservative government in 1963, almost succeeded in keeping the wedding secret.

Local Register officials confirmed it, she refused to give the full name of her husband.

But early editions of the London "News of the World" Sunday newspaper quoted her as saying: "All I want to do now is to lead a normal married life like any other young girl. Everything that brought me into the news before is all behind me and finished with and I just want to start afresh completely as an ordinary housewife."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON — To a large circle of coldly competent Central Intelligence Agency spooks, Indonesia will never be quite the same regardless of the fate of its loutish, latter-day prophet, Sukarno.

Anything can happen in that implausible conglomerate of islands with 175 million inhabitants, but the CIA cannot favor one solid achievement. Communism, at least of the Red Chinese variety, has suffered a resounding defeat in a country Peking had counted as a solid, amenable captive ally.

REDS' HANDS FORCED — It is now agreed by all the experts here that the coup failed because the timing was off and because the Reds — with or without Sukarno's connivance — were forced by uncertain circumstance to stage a brutal purge of six Indonesian generals.

RUSK GAVE SUPPORT — There was a hot argument in Washington over this cloak-and-dagger strategy. Some officials in the State Department opposed any policy which might expose the U.S. as a mediator in Indonesia's internal affairs.

Dangerous Viet Nam Dolls Probed

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Army demolition experts conducted a roundup today after reports the beautiful attired gifts from overseas might be rigged with explosives.

The dolls — mailed to families and relatives of American servicemen in Viet Nam — began appearing in Ft. Benning, Ga., last week. Some of the dolls are reports that some of the dolls might conceal explosive charges planted by the Viet Communists to injure U.S. soldiers.

W. M. Grimm, commander of the 80th Ordnance Detachment, said his men collected more than a backlog of about 75 dolls to pick up others. So far, they have found no explosives.

Reports of dolls exploding and burning servicemen reached army wives with husbands in the 1st Cavalry Division here.

However, Third Army headquarters at Ft. McPherson in Georgia said in a statement that there have been no reports of dolls from exploding dolls to American soldiers in Viet Nam.

The statement said, though, that any persons who had received Vietnamese dolls should contact the provost marshal at the nearest military installation.

Comet Stages Performance Over Pacific

HONOLULU (AP) — Elusive Soviet Ikeya-Seki redeemed itself with scientists by staging a dazzling performance over the Pacific early Saturday.

Scientists aboard a research plane were so elated with the sighting that they radioed a report to the plane. They said the comet gave no indication of breaking up.

Later, Bob M. Cameron of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center, reported the comet's "tail" about 10 degrees in length.

Cameron added "some structures can be seen in the tail and there are intensity changes within the tail itself."

Saturday's pre-dawn flight was to have been the last, but because of the success of the mission, the 37-member team of scientists and technicians scheduled another one Sunday.

"We also saw a very bright lead on the comet," Cameron reported.

He said the comet rose 10 degrees above the horizon before sunrise and, at sunrise, the tail extended almost straight up.

Cameron said the observations indicated again that Ikeya-Seki was very strong emissions of sodium D.

He said other data would not be analyzed until later.

The comet was spotted about 60 miles south of Honolulu.

The scientists, flying at about 20,000 feet, observed the comet for 40 minutes past sunrise and reported "all experiments successful."

Church Urges Thought on Aircraft Port

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, says he has urged federal customs officials to give favorable consideration to a proposed aircraft port of entry at Porthill, Idaho, on the United States-Canadian border.

The plan, originally proposed by Idaho Aeronautics Director Chet Moulton, calls for construction of a landing strip, taxiway and aircraft parking facilities adjacent to American and Canadian customs buildings.

Church said the air port of entry would enable aircraft operators to use the same customs facilities that serve ground travelers.

Planned Civil Rights March Is Stalled

LINCOLN, Ga. (AP) — A planned civil rights march stalled Saturday in this small town, scene of racial violence, after a state police captain had pleaded for a postponement, and few local negroes showed up.

A few minutes later a car loaded with young Negroes overturned five miles away, injuring five persons. One of the occupants said the driver had panicked when two white youths began to chase the vehicle in their car.

There was no indication what effect, if any, the automobile incident would have on the racial situation here and in nearby Washington, Ga.

Reinforced state police — about 60 of them — were on hand as civil rights workers started to gather at a Negro church in this town of 1,300 in northeast Georgia.

When 70 Negroes began to march to the Lincoln County Courthouse, state police Capt. Theron Aldridge pleaded with them to suspend marches for two days "so that we can provide better protection."

He said later that he had been told reliably that a march would result in violence. A crowd of white men and youths attacked Negro demonstrators with their fists Friday.

Reactor System Phase Planned

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission reported Saturday it will begin an immediate phase out of the Army gas cooled reactor system program at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho and at San Ramon, Calif.

The phase out is expected to be completed by June 30.

AEC officials said the decision to abandon the project was made after Congress limited development funds to $2 million for the coming year.

WORKERS SHORTCHANGED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employers shortchanged 496,333 workers $74.45 million in wages in fiscal 1965 by violating federal pay standards, the Labor Department has found.

Senator Asks Shift in Foreign Aid

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A shift in the American foreign aid program from direct help to multi-lateral cooperation and expanded United Nations efforts in developing poor countries have been suggested by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Church, in an address at a regional conference of church and lay leaders at Idaho Falls, said nation-building is the UN's greatest single role.

"The UN's main effort," he said, "is to close the widening gap between the rich and poor nations—a gap that could lead to catastrophe."

Church said world population will double by the end of the century, compounding food shortages. He said an one nation can meet the demand and global cooperation is necessary.

He said the United States should channel its foreign aid funds through such agencies as the World Bank in cooperation with other nations.

Bomber Base on Guam Unveiled

ANDERSEN AIR FORCE BASE, Guam (AP) — The Air Force finally has taken the wraps off its B52 bomber base on the northern tip of Guam.

Although the mighty B52 bombers have been methodically smashing Communist military targets in the Viet Nam war zone for months, only authorized U.S. military personnel have been allowed to look at Andersen Air Force Base.

That is, until Friday, when by order of the Department of Defense, the closed base, carved out of the Guamanian jungles for B29 operations in World War II, was opened to newsmen.

Swiss Aide To Help in Cuba Exodus

WASHINGTON (AP)—Swiss Ambassador Emil Stadelhofer flew up from Havana Saturday to work on details for an anticipated exodus of thousands of Cubans to the United States.

The envoy arrived for week-end conferences at the State Department and Washington optimism that an agreement will be reached soon.

Stadelhofer declined to predict when an accord would be reached. The Swiss Ambassador to Cuba told newsmen he had asked to come to Washington because he said the status of negotiations now makes it worthwhile to talk things over directly with U.S. authorities here.

The negotiations are "proceeding in a normal way" and he himself has seen Prime Minister Fidel Castro three times, including twice Friday, the Swiss diplomat added.

Just how many will ride the proposed refuge tires "probably still hinges on how the deal is worked out and how many Cubans decide to leave, U.S. sources said. Estimates range from 20,000 to 55,000.

Because the Swiss represent the United States in Cuba, Stadelhofer has been a middleman in negotiations set off by Castro's Sept. 28 offer to let his countrymen leave and President Johnson's Oct. 3 acceptance.

Such items as the means of transportation, identification and health checks and embarkation facilities are among the details involved in the U.S.-Cuban negotiations as well as the broader question of which refugees should get priority.

More than 1,000 refugees have jumped the gun on the negotiations by crossing the Florida Straits in small boats.

Assessing Castro's motives in allowing fellow Cubans to escape his Red rule, U.S. officials say they are inclined to accept the explanation given by the bearded Communist himself. Castro says he wants a "truly free society of Socialist men and women," and "those who do not wish to live under socialism, under our new society," can get out.

HEARING SET

LEWISTON (AP)—Idaho's two senators will present their opposing views on the proposed wild rivers bill at hearings to be conducted here next week by the Idaho water resources board.

Sen. Len B. Jordan, R-Idaho, who opposes immediate inclusion of Idaho's Salmon and Clearwater Rivers in the bill, announced Friday he will testify at the hearings Tuesday afternoon.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, author of the bill, designed to keep designated rivers in their natural, free-flowing state, announced earlier he would testify Monday afternoon.

Jordan opposed immediate inclusion of Idaho's Salmon and Clearwater Rivers in the bill while it was in senate committee on grounds the rivers should not be committed before their future is planned.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASES

BOISE (AP)—The Idaho Department of Employment reported Saturday that Idaho has recorded its eighth consecutive month-to-month gain in non-farm employment in September.

The faculty members are to tour the testing station near Arco Wednesday.

YOUTH KILLED

POCATELLO (AP)—A Pocatello youth was killed in a head-on collision with a semi-trailer truck during a high-speed police chase early Saturday morning.

Donny George Pledger, 18, died at St. Anthony Hospital shortly after the accident.

City police had begun chasing Pledger when his 1958 automobile overtook an unmarked cruiser and sped off.

The accident report said the victim's car was traveling "in excess of 60 miles per hour" at the moment of impact, but an accurate estimate was not available because the car was moving away from the police car.

Driver of the truck was Gordon Adam Sampson, 49, of Salt Lake City. He suffered a slight leg injury but said Saturday he was "okay." The truck was loaded with general freight, and Sampson gave the gross weight at 22,000 pounds.

CITY FILES SUIT

BOISE (AP)—The city of Boise has filed suit in Third District Court in an effort to recover $2,500 it alleges was embezzled from municipal court accounts.

In its suit, the city alleges a former court employee—Mrs. Eleanor Smith—"fraudulently and dishonestly retained and converted to her own use the amount of $2,500."

No criminal action has been filed against Mrs. Smith, however.

89th Congress Gets Pat on Back From President

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 89th Congress ended its first session with a pat on the back from President Johnson and a verbal kick from its Republican minority.

"The greatest in American history" was the way the President sized it up.

"A rubber-stamp Congress that has been a puppet dangling on a political wire, manipulated by the White House," was the GOP viewpoint voiced by House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan. Whatever its virtues or vices, the 89th was one of the most active and spendiest in history.

The President had cause for his commendation of the work done during the 10½-month session.

Health care for the elderly, voting rights, aid for education, new health programs and historic changes in the immigration laws were among the big ones that became law.

The willingness of the top-heavy Democratic majority to comply with and at times exceed the President's wishes brought repeated taunts of "rubber stamp" from the minority. Republicans made it clear they will hit hard at this theme during the 1966 congressional elections.

The GOP started the session with only 140 seats in the House and 32 in the Senate, compared with 26 in the House and 68 in the Senate. The previous GOP law was 89 in the House and 17 in the Senate in 1938.

For the time being at least, the once-powerful coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats virtually ceased to exist. In its last remaining stronghold, the House Rules Committee, the coalition's teeth were yanked by a new rule limiting to 21 days the time legislation desired by the administration can be held up.

The Republicans started the session by ousting their former House leader, Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana. Ford replaced Halleck.

The new Republican leader's rubber-stamp charge was answered by Democratic leaders.

"If there was any rubber-stamping at all," commented House Majority Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma, "then you could say it was the administration that was rubber-stamping the Congress."

The reference was to the fact that Congress went further than the President wanted it to in some cases, particularly on pay raises for military personnel and on health care for the elderly. Its sporadic displays of independence encountered votes of a military construction bill and a bill to help flood-ravaged northwestern states.

The President resented what he called congressional encroachment in the executive field dealing with such matters as closing down military bases. Congress yielded and passed both bills in modified form.

But it refused to give Johnson his way on two big labor bills, one raising minimum wages and the other seeking to eliminate states' authority to pass laws prohibiting union shop clauses in labor contracts. Both were sidetracked for further consideration when Congress meets again next January.

The House passed union shop bill got caught in a Senate filibuster. The minimum-wage measure cleared the House Education and Labor Committee but got stuck in the Rules Committee.

The President's first Congress since his election broke with tradition by enacting the first programs of federal aid for elementary education and health care for the elderly within the Social Security framework. Several previous presidents were unable to get them through.

Those two historic laws were only a few of Johnson's "Great Society" measures to which Congress took kindly. The total cost of all of them may not be known for years, since many facets project into the future and no one knows how or whether Congress may finance them later.

Estimates of the over-all price tag range as high as $60 billion. Whatever the cost, the fact is that Congress appropriated more money this year than in any previous nonwar year. It poured out around $119 billion of the approximately $121 billion the President requested. That burst of generosity was exceeded only by the $17 billion appropriated during the first full year of World War II.

It took more than 34,000 pages of the Congressional Record to officially list all the things Congress did, and the speeches of its members.

Here are some of its major enactments, some of them new and others extension of previous programs:

HEALTH:

A program of limited free hospital care and low-cost health insurance for the elderly through increased Social Security taxes and premiums paid in part by the government and in part by the individual.

A five-year, community health services program including grants to states for mass immunization against common ailments.

An $800-million program to provide community health centers, aid for handicapped children, medical research and construction of research facilities.

A three-year, $755-million program to build facilities to teach doctors, dentists and other medical students and to provide loans for their education.

A $650-million program spread over four years to provide regional medical centers to carry on the war against heart disease, cancer and stroke.

EDUCATION:

A program of federal aid for elementary and secondary schools, with the emphasis on poor children.

Aid for higher education through construction grants and scholarships.

Estimated first-year cost in excess of $2 billion.

ECONOMIC:

A $1.1-billion program to boost the economy of states in the Appalachia area.

Continuation and expansion of the anti-poverty program at a cost of $1.45 billion.

A $1.6-billion program of development aid to depressed areas at a cost of $3.2 billion.

VOTING:

Implementation of the civil rights law by a new law ending literacy tests and providing for federal registration of voters in areas where minorities have been discriminated against at the polls.

IMMIGRATION:

Ended the old national origins quota system that favored northern European nations.

The new plan, effective in 1968, will favor relatives of U.S. citizens and foreigners with special skills and will put a ceiling on immigration from Western Hemisphere nations. It is expected to allow a reduction of the annual quota of immigrants and citizenship rights among more nations.

TAXES:

Excise taxes were cut $4.7 billion spread over a five-year period.

The national debt ceiling was hiked from its "permanent" $285-billion limit to $328 billion.

MONEY:

Congress approved the coinage of dimes and quarters with new designs and content, and ordered reduction of the content of silver in half-dollars from 80 per cent to 40 per cent.

MILITARY:

Voted a billion dollars annually in pay raises, more than twice the amount the President requested.

U.S. EMPLOYEES:

Voted annual pay raises of $41 million for nonmilitary personnel.

MILITARY:

Blocked the Pentagon's plan to merge National Guard and Army Reserve units.

GOVERNMENT:

Created a new Cabinet department to look after housing programs and affairs of urban areas.

FOREIGN AID:

Voted $3.2 billion in new funds to carry on the program of military and economic help for non-Communist nations.

AGRICULTURE:

Enacted a four-year program of production controls, price supports and direct cash payments affecting producers of cotton, rice, wheat, wool, feed grains and dairy products and providing for retirement of surplus cropland, estimated first year cost $4 billion.

TRANSPORTATION:

Approved a $72-million

study of high-speed surface transportation.

HIGHWAYS:

Enacted a law designed to beautify highways by removal of unsightly billboards and junk yards at an estimated cost of $320 million for the first two years.

SUCCESSION:

Submitted to the states a proposed constitutional amendment providing for filling the office of president in the event of death, illness or other inability of the incumbent.

HOUSING:

Enacted a four-year $7-billion public housing program including a provision for rent subsidies for low-income families, but put off financing of the subsidy plan until next year.

MISCELLANEOUS:

Made it a federal crime to burn or mutilate draft cards.

Gave federal law officers jurisdiction in cases involving assassination, kidnapping or assault on the President or the vice president.

Approved a $83-million program to promote the arts and humanities.

— Voted to end tariffs on trade in new automobiles and parts between the United States and Canada.

— Required cigarette packages to carry a health-hazard warning starting Jan. 1.

— Approved programs to end water and air pollution and to help communities solve garbage-disposal and sewage-treatment problems.

members of the Congress and said their accomplishments this year "will find a shining residence in the history books." The Senate adjourned at 12:51 a.m., EDT, followed by the House one minute later. To wind up the session, the federal pay raise and sugar quota bills were passed. (AP wirephoto)

Immunization Program Is Reported Progressing Well

The immunization program currently under way in Magic Valley is progressing very well, states Dr. Luther C. Thompson, director of the South Central District Health Department.

Dr. Thompson said the response to the program at physician offices throughout Magic Valley is very good. In connection with this immunization program, Dr. Thompson said, free polio vaccine is being made available for all children under 14 years old. This vaccine is for all three types of polio.

The necessary polio vaccine is being supplied to private physicians, with the stipulation that no charge be made for the vaccine to patients. However, Dr. Thompson said, a charge may be made for administering the vaccine by the physician.

The immunization program became effective Oct. 1. Dr. Thompson said now is the time for those who took the oral polio vaccine in 1962 to get boosters.

Dr. Thompson emphasized that those boosters are for adults as well as for children who took the vaccine in 1962.

Since 1962, when physicians started using Sabin oral vaccine, the number of polio cases in the United States has dropped tremendously, says Dr. Thompson.

In 1962 there were a total of 910 polio cases and in 1964, two in nursing homes or hospitals. Influenza vaccine also may be obtained at the health department on Tuesdays and Thursdays, or at any physician's office.

Smallpox is another disease for which the health department is urging everyone to be inoculated. Dr. Thompson said there are very few people who are adequately protected from smallpox.

Dr. Thompson said everyone should have smallpox shots every five years and those who travel out of the United States a lot should have them every three years.

Inter-City Ladies Night Is Outstanding Social

By DOROTHY POVEY

KETCHUM-SUN VALLEY—Sitting at dinner tables at the Warm Springs Ranch Inn, watching the red and gold leaves of the quaking aspen and willows as they swirled gracefully by the windows, Chamber of Commerce members and their partners knew the tang of crisp autumn air was just outside the door. Inside, however, the warmth of good companionship was everywhere.

Vying with the outdoors parade of colors were the women's beautiful gowns. The sparkle of their jewelry in the soft candlelight compared to the glitter of the gurgling stream as it flowed beneath the inn's spotlights.

Mrs. Grace Munster, Mrs. Keith Evans and Mrs. Virginia O'Neil are three women the men of the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce will tell you are largely responsible for the chamber's many successful socials and projects.

These women attended to assist Robert Barnes, president, in welcoming guests at the Inter-City Ladies Night Party. Mrs. Raymond Brown, general chairman for the dinner party, was also in the receiving line.

Mrs. Munster, who has held various positions in the chamber the past seven years and is now secretary, was pleasantly surprised when Barnes advised the guests that this event had been named "Gracie Munster Night," and presented her a bouquet of pink roses. Barnes told briefly of the many services she has assisted with during the past years.

Louise Shadduck, Boise, was featured speaker. In speaking as executive director of the Idaho Department of Commerce and Development, Miss Shadduck slanted her talk to the lighter side in keeping with

In referring to those who lament the fact that this area is no longer as it used to be, she said, "There is no such thing as remaining the same, and we should all be proud of Idaho."

"Tourists used to be satisfied with viewing the beautiful scenery, with which this area has been blessed. Today, however, they want something to do. Each year we get many letters asking about the lakes and the boating accommodations in Idaho."

"Of course people all over the world know of the superior skiing conditions here," she continued.

Miss Shaddock said this section of the country will receive its share of people from the "leisure revolution in America."

One hundred years ago the average American worked 70 hours each week and rested 40. Now it is just the reverse. In 1975 the average American will work only four days each week and by 2000 only 25 hours each week," she said.

"Churches, schools and industries are re-evaluating leisure time and attempting to prepare people for it."

Glenn Brewer, president of the Stanley Chamber of Commerce, invited everyone to a meeting at the Rod and Gun Club in Stanley Nov. 6. In replying to the invitation, Miss Shaddock said, "I have always heard if you haven't spent a Saturday night in Stanley you just haven't lived."

At the conclusion of her talk, Miss Shaddock presented Barnes a white pine box made by the Potlatch Lumber Co., which she said has been used by many chambers to fill with Idaho products and present to newcomers or visitors to Idaho.

In accepting it, Brewer, with a twinkle in his eye, said "It sure looks like it would make a good box for fishing tackle."

She also gave him a cardboard box made by the Boise-Cascade Lumber Co., which she said has been successfully used to mail living pine trees to all parts of the world, some keeping as long as six weeks before being transplanted.

"Idaho has everything to make leisure time a happy time and its fishing, hunting and recreation areas are becoming more popular all the time," she concluded.

FRED HENDRICKSEN — Gooding men who are competing for election to the post ward councilman in the Nov. 2 election. Hendricksen has served for seven years on the council. He was owner of the Gooding Toggery until recently. Pitts has been manager of the Idaho Department Store in Gooding since August, 1963.

Gooding Has Two Contests In City Election Nov. 2

GOODING—There will be two contests in the Gooding city election slated for Nov. 2. Dr. Tom Hendry and Robert Taylor both are seeking the mayor's position. Leo Rice, who served in that capacity for three terms, will not seek reelection.

The other contest is for councilman from the second ward. Fred Hendricksen will seek reelection to this post, and will be opposed by Donald Pitts. Earl Greenwalt is unopposed as a candidate for councilman from the first ward. He seeks reelection also, having served two terms.

Dr. Hendry has been a Gooding resident since 1958, when he set up his office to practice as a chiropractor. He is a graduate of Boise Junior College, the California College of Chiropractic, and the Western States College in Weiser, attended high school in Nampa and practiced his profession in Caldwell before coming to Gooding.

Dr. Hendry says he "feels that the next few years will be most important to the Gooding community, for growth and development, and I will work most diligently to try and help our community grow and prosper."

He says he would like to see a citizen's organization to present the community's problems to the city council, and to assist them in maintaining good city government. In the same vein, Dr. Hendry says, he would like the citizens of Gooding to know that the council meetings are open to the public and it is set only their privilege but their duty to attend those meetings to see first hand how their city government is conducted.

"I would work equally for each individual of Gooding, not for just the profiting of one individual or select group of individuals, but merit each decision for what it will do for the community as a whole," he added.

Stuart has been associated the past 12 years with the Southern Idaho Production Credit Association, and for the last nine years as manager of the Gooding Branch office. He was raised near Buhl, attended the Buhl schools, the University of Idaho Southern Branch, Pocatello, and the University of Idaho, Moscow.

He worked as an accountant for the Federal Security Agency, Salem, Ore., from 1939 through 1941. He was chief clerk of an army ordinance installation in Spokane in 1942, and late that year entered the Army Signal Corps.

He served in the finance and property branches in the Alaskan theater. After the war he farmed in the Buhl and Rupert areas for seven years, then came to Gooding.

Stuart feels "Gooding has had a fine administration for the past few years. A good balance has been maintained between providing adequate services and cost of operation."

"I am interested in continuing this type of administration, improving the services whenever and wherever possible, consistent with requirements of the present residents and of future growth in business and population."

Pitts has been manager of the Idaho Department Store in Gooding since August, 1963. Prior to this time he was manager of the Emmett store for seven years. He came to Emmett in 1920, from Colorado. He

Memorial Bench Built at Minico Honors Teacher

RUPERT — A memorial to the late Mrs. Annon Graham Moller, former teacher at Minico high school, has been recently completed on the high school grounds, between the main building and the English building.

Mrs. Moller taught speech at Minico High School from 1955 until 1960.

Funds for the memorial, which is a granite bench erected by Jellison Monument of Twin Falls, were started by students of the high school following Mrs. Moller's death in 1960.

The bench has been erected before a setting of pyramidal evergreens planted by Mrs. Wright of Knapbury Nursery, a friend of Mrs. Moller.

Mrs. Moller taught at Heyburn High School beginning in the fall of 1933. After two years teaching there, she taught at Paris and Clifton high schools in Idaho, then returned to Heyburn in 1937 and taught there until Minico was opened in the fall of 1935, when she began teaching speech there. At Heyburn she taught speech, drama and English.

Pitts says he feels that the city administration has been very fine.

Hendricksen has served as councilman for about seven years, seven months. Until recently he was owner of the Gooding Toggery. He is currently secretary-treasurer of the Gooding Industrial Development Co., chairman of the board of Methodist Church.

Hendricksen says he has worked for the city, and was the originator of the new well. He wants to cooperate with new industry, and wishes to see Gooding grow strong and substantially. Hendricksen says he will cooperate with the new industries which are here to help them keep growing, as well as with new industry that may come in.

IDAHO RIPS MONTANA; ISU BOWS TO WEBER

McDonald Runs For 241 Yards in Pacing 35-7 Win

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Idaho's Ray McDonald dazzled the Montana Grizzlies with four touchdowns and a record 241 yards rushing as his Vandals rolled to a 35-7 football triumph Saturday and wrested leadership of the Big Sky Conference from the Grizzlies. McDonald, a 248-pound junior tailback, carried the ball 32 times and averaged 7.5 yards per carry as he stole the show from Montana's Paul Connelly, who led the league in rushing going into this Dad's Day contest.

Texas Tech Overcomes SMU 26-24

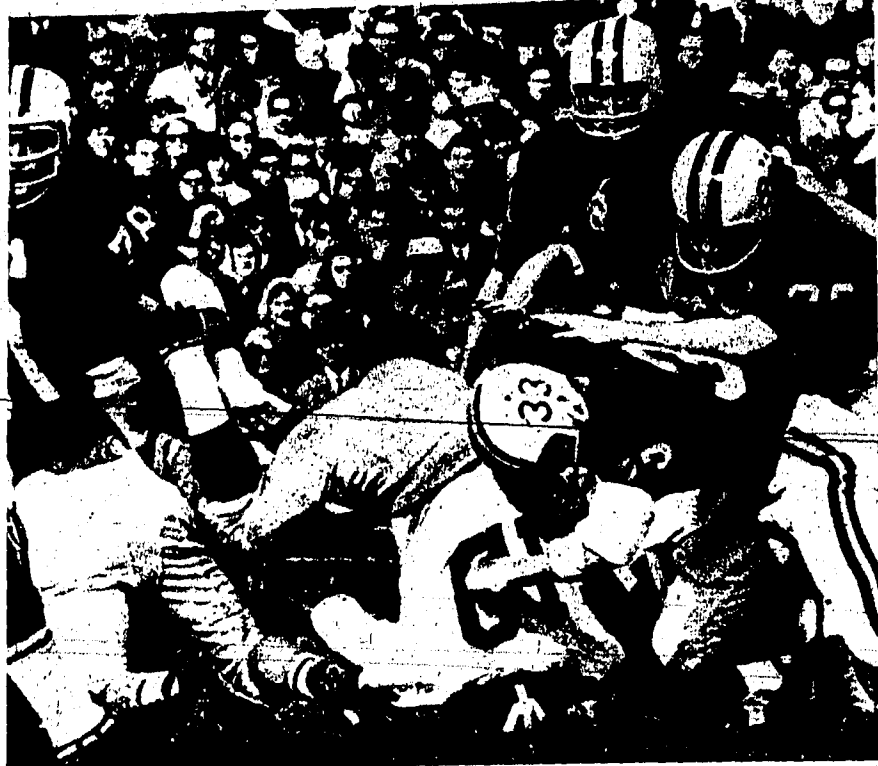

DALLAS (UPI) — Tom Wilson's pinpoint passing and clutch receiving by Donny Anderson and Jeff White teamed with Kenneth Gill's two field goals carried Texas Tech to a thrilling 26-24 Southwest Conference victory over Southern Methodist Saturday night. But Tech — which has made a habit of pulling victory chestnuts from the fire in the final minutes — reversed the order of things and packed most of its offensive thrills into a fumble and penalty filled first half in which it fashioned a 10-7 lead it almost but never quite lost. Tech now boasts a 3-1 league record and SMU 1-1. Wilson threw 18 and 3 yard touchdown passes to Anderson and White. Anderson kicked in a seven-yard scoring sortie on one of the few times he was able to break away from a clutching SMU defense and Gill kicked 36 and 34 yard field goals.

Sooners Rout K-State 27-0 In Loop Game

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Oklahoma exploded for three first half touchdowns on its initial running attack and rode to a 27-0 Big Eight rout over winless Kansas State Saturday. The victory boosted the reigning Sooners to 2-0 in the conference, a half game behind co-leaders Nebraska and Missouri. Fullback Larry Brown scored twice on short plunges, but it was Rod Crosswhite, an elusive 5-foot-10, 170-pound junior, who scampered 82 yards with a punt return to give Oklahoma its first touchdown midway through the first period. Sophomore Gene Cagle, who got his first start at quarterback last week and engineered the Sooners to a 21-7 victory over Kansas, directed scoring drives of 65 and 38 yards in the second quarter. The Wildcats penetrated Sooner territory only four times, the deepest to the Oklahoma 16 when the game ended.

Kansas Collects First Victory

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — The Kansas Jayhawks drove for a touchdown the first time they had the ball Saturday and held on for a 9-0 victory over Oklahoma State in a Big Eight conference game. Kansas took the opening kickoff and ground out the 66-yards to the goal in 14 plays, all on the ground. Halfback Richard Abernathy took a pitchout from quarterback Bill Fenton and swept four yards around left end for the score.

USING HIS HEAD, Michigan halfback Carl Ward (18) applies his unusual brakes and rolls for a two-yard gain during the Wolverines' Big Ten game against Minnesota Saturday in Minneapolis. Minnesota's Tim Wheeler (33), Bob Bruggers (behind Wheeler) and Brian Callahan (behind Bruggers) help stop the play. Minnesota won 14-13. (AP wirephoto)

Minnesota Nips Michigan, Ups Loop Mark

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) Saturday to give Minnesota a Minnesota to win the battle for a Husky quarterback John Har 14-13 victory over Michigan and the Little Brown Jug by going kinsky plunged one foot for a perfect 3-0 record in the Big Ten 14-7 with seven minutes touchdown in the last quarter. Ten defending champs' pass for a two-point conversion after a touchdown with 89 seconds left to play.

A Minnesota homecoming crowd of 68,510 saw Michigan take a 7-0 lead in the first half and the Gophers fight back to even it up at 7-7 in the third period and squeak to victory in the closing minutes. The game was decided in the fourth quarter. Minnesota got its winning touchdown drive underway when it punted. A Michigan player touched the ball and Gopher Dave Colburn pounced on the ball on the Minnesota 45. The Gophers ran and passed 54 yards in 13 plays to a touchdown with Hankinson finally running three times in a row and going over from the one-foot line. Michigan rammed back with a touchdown with one minute 22 seconds left in the game with quarterback Wally Gahler plowing over from four yards out, climaxing a 7-play 52-yard drive. The Wolverines went for nothing with Gahler trying a pass to Steve Smith in the end zone for a two-point conversion but the pass was incomplete.

Notre Dame Smothers Garrett, Smashes to 28-7 Win Over USC

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Battering Larry Conjar's four touchdowns swept Notre Dame to a crushing 28-7 football victory Saturday over unbeaten Southern California, whose heralded Mike Garrett was almost completely shackled. Conjar's feat tied a modern Irish single game scoring record. The Trojans and national rushing leader Garrett never had a chance against a devastating Irish attack in the nationally televised game. Conjar spearheaded the relentless Notre Dame ground game, piling up 118 yards on 25 tries, including his four scoring smashes of two yards or less. Garrett, who took a five-game total of 852 yards into the game for nationally fourth-ranked USC, wound up with only 43 yards in 16 carries, most coming after Notre Dame had swept to a 28-0 lead. Southern California, unbeaten since an opening 20-0 tie with Minnesota, finally scored in the fourth period against the red-tailed Irish on an eight-yard pass from Troy Winslow to John Thomas. Notre Dame, No. 7 in The Associated Press poll, simply blasted the Trojans off their feet at the outset, scoring twice in the first period and once each in the second and third quarter for a 28-0 lead before the Trojans even faintly came to life. The field was soggy from frequent showers, but it didn't slow up the Irish, who blasted four touchdowns on drives of 69, 67, 45 and 32 yards — all sustained marches. Conjar's four touchdowns equaled the modern Irish single game mark previously shared by Bob Kelly in 1944 against Pittsburgh, Neil Warden in 1951 against Indiana and Johnny Lattner in 1953 against Southern California. Garrett had a necklance of Irish tacklers around him all afternoon as he fell far below his five-game rushing average of 170.1.

Spartans Come from Behind To Nip Boilermakers 14-10

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Second-ranked Michigan State scrambled back from the brink of extinction on the running of Bob Apina and Clint Jones and beat Purdue 14-10 Saturday on two fourth-quarter touchdowns. The victory moved the Spartans along toward the Big Ten football championship and a Rose Bowl trip as they ran their conference record to 4-0. Purdue was helped by 20 yards of Purdue penalties for offside and a personal foul. Jones went from the elight, getting a fine block from Apina.

Wildcats Erase 10-Point Deficit To Cop 28-17 Win

Owens led a punishing, second half ground attack Saturday that carried Weber State College to a 28-17 comeback victory over favored Idaho State. The Weber workhorses carried the ball 50 times and accounted for 239 yards as the Wildcats scrambled the Big Sky Conference standings with their first win in history over the Bengals since becoming a four year school. White, a 230 pound sophomore from Las Vegas, Nev., carried 25 times and gained 110 yards.

White, a 230 pound sophomore from Las Vegas, Nev., carried 25 times and gained 110 yards. Kelley Leads Alabama Past Florida State. TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Slashing halfback Leslie Kelley scored two touchdowns and sophomore Bobby Johns made three crucial interceptions Saturday to lead defending national champion Alabama to a 28-17 victory over Florida State. It was Kelley's bone-crushing block Steve Bowman that set up Alabama's first touchdown into the first period. The Cullman, Ala., speedster carried over from the seven on the next play. Kelley dove over from three yards out for the final touchdown midway through the fourth period, starting quarterback Ken Stabler had fumbled off an 18-yard run on a fake field goal on a fourth down play. In between, in the second period, starting quarterback Steve Sloan scored a touchdown on a three-yard run after completing two passes totaling 33 yards to end Tommy Tolson. A homecoming crowd of 43,000 watched in delight as Alabama completely dominated a Samnole team that nationally ranked Georgia last week.

Indians Wear Down Cadets In 31-14 Win

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Favored Stanford, capitalizing on the good work of Terry De Sylva and Steve Lingo, gave up a quick touchdown to Army, then wore down the Cadets in 80-degree heat Saturday 31-14. The Stanford quarterback who was bumped out of his starting job last season by Dave Lewis, provided the go-ahead points with a 39 yard field goal in the second period after helping set up the Indians' first score with a coffin corner kick. Lewis himself ran 11 yards for one touchdown and hit Mike Connelly for another from 10 yards out to seal up the game in the third period. Quarterback Fred Barafsky scored both of Army's touchdowns, on a 24-yard scamper up the middle with the game about four minutes old and a one-yard plunge early in the third quarter.

UCLA Stuns Cal 56-3, Smells Roses

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA emerged as a contender for the Western Rose Bowl bid Saturday night as sophomore quarterback Gary Beban led the hard-charging Bruins to a lopsided 56-3 victory over California in a Pacific Eight game before 30,534 amazed fans. Beban ran for two touchdowns, completed a 78-yard pass to Dick Witcher for a score and threw a 61-yard pass that led to another touchdown. UCLA halfback Mel Farr scored two touchdowns on runs of 21 and 45 yards before the reserves took over. But second-string quarterback Norm Dow accounted for two more scores against the bewildered Bears. The defeat was the worst by a UCLA team over California in the 30-year history of their competition. PITCHERS RELEASED. PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies released veteran pitchers Lew Burdette and Ed Roebuck Friday, giving them the opportunity to make a deal with any club they can.

BEING BROUGHT DOWN in the first period by a Purdue player with his arms around his waist Michigan State quarterback Steve Judy (23). Judy tried to pass but was forced to run with the ball when his receivers were covered. He made no gain on the play, but Michigan State won 14-10. (AP wirephoto)

PHOENIX IS ONLY AREA WITH BIRD PER MAN AVERAGE

When the Idaho Fish and Game Department warned this week that pheasant populations were down last year, it didn't realize how correct it was. Only the Minidoka pumpland area showed up with a good marking it the best producer for the fourth straight year.

Law Is Given Comeback of Year Award

Idaho (AP) — "Vernon Law is the best I've ever seen," said the people who have selected him as the best player of the year in the National Football League by the Associated Press.

The 35-year-old Pittsburgher was named in an election in Idaho's rugged mountains when his selection was announced Friday.

Cornhuskers Hand 39-13 Loss to Buffs

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska's homecoming game against the University of Colorado ended in a 39-13 victory for the Buffaloes.

The big thriller for a homecoming crowd of 64,110 came in the first quarter of the game when Colorado's quarterback Fred Duda threw a 95-yard pass to end Freeman White with a touchdown.

It was the season's sixth straight victory for Nebraska as Colorado, it was the first after three victories and two ties.

Colorado defenders, who had allowed opponents only 28 points in five games, contained Nebraska's offense moderately well.

Casper Takes Sahara Golf For $20,000

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Casper Jr. completed a $20,000 sub-par sweep of the Sahara Invitational Golf tournament Saturday as he shot a final round 69 for a total score of 280 and pocketed a $20,000 top money.

The 34-year-old Californian from San Diego went into the final round with a three-stroke lead and made it hold up despite a damaging two-stroke penalty in the ninth hole.

Apparently aroused by the victory, Casper promptly closed the next three holes and without too much of a challenge.

The surprise of the day over a par-36-35-71 Paradise Valley Country Club was Billy Marschale of Jacksonville, Tex., who finished with a 63.

Former PGA champion Bobby Nichols closed with a 68 for 273 the third money was worth $500.

Cowboys Drop BYU, Tighten WAC Race

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Wyoming tightened the Western Athletic Conference football race Saturday by dropping Brigham Young University, 34-6, before a homecoming crowd of 19,671.

Wyoming, after a scoreless first quarter broke into the scoring column in the second quarter when a hard snap from center on a punt put the ball back on the BYU 13 where Jim Lavery, Cougar kicker, was smothered by four Wyoming players.

The Cowboys scored again when quarterback Tom Wilkinson, playing his last home football game, lofted a touchdown pass to wingback Garry McLean. The play covered 68 yards.

Wilkinson struck again later in the third period when he connected with a 48-yard pass to McLean putting the ball on the BYU 11. Rick Egloff, junior quarterback, came in for Wilkinson and scored from nine yards out.

The Cougars scored early in the fourth quarter after a 54-yard pass from quarterback Virgil Carter to flanker Tim Russell set the ball on the Wyoming 4. Carter connected with Bill Odle for the touchdown.

The game, billed as a passing duel between Carter and Wilkinson, turned out to be just that. Carter connected with 10 passes for 146 yards while Wilkinson threw five completions in nine attempts for 143 yards and one touchdown.

Senior wingback McLean had 111 yards on two receptions. BYU fullback John Ogden led rushers with 95 yards in 16 carries.

Idaho Frosh Top Huskies On Long Plays

SEATTLE (AP) — Idaho's freshmen footballers whipped the Washington Frosh 26-0 Friday, twice scoring on plays of more than 50 yards.

Halfback Bob Pilon of Orange Calif., scored twice for Idaho in the second period and kicked both his team's conversions. His first tally came on a 13-yard pass play, with Woody DeKard, of Santa Ana, Calif., pitching.

DeKard also scored the first Idaho touchdown on a 64-yard run in the fourth period. Starting the play as a pass-run option, DeKard saw daylight left guard and rammed all the way to the goal.

Steve Gattman, Caldwell, Idaho, replaced DeKard in the third quarter and tossed a 55-yard scoring pass to Ken Dison, Berkeley, Calif.

Rice Hands Second Loss To Texas 20-17 on Field Goal in Final Minute

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Giant killer Rice University, in a strong second half surge, swept from a two-touchdown deficit Saturday night to stun sixth-ranked University of Texas 20-17. The winning margin came on a 33-yard field goal by Richard Parker with only 43 seconds left in the game after Rice's Robert Haulley had intercepted a Texas desperation pass and ran it back to the Texas 10 with just over two minutes left on the clock.

Lions Smother Mountaineers

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Penn State, a slumbering eastern giant, came to life Saturday against West Virginia and buried the hapless Mountaineers 44-6 under a five-touchdown, three-field goal landslide.

Lion quarterback Jack White threw two touchdowns passes and ran for another score. Halfback Mike Irwin tallied three times and Tom Sherman kicked three field goals as the Lions rolled up their highest point total ever in the first series between the two teams.

West Virginia's only score came at the end of the first quarter and narrowed the Penn State lead at that point to 15-0.

Gogolak Breaks Kicking Record

PRINCETON, N. J. (UPI) — Punter-kicker specialist Gogolak set an NCAA field goal record for single season with monumental kicks of 44, 43 and 47 yards Saturday as powerful Princeton pulverized Penn, 51-0.

Fullback Ron Landeck threw three touchdown passes and ran for a fourth six-pointer against the outclassed Quakers.

Gogolak's three-pointers ran his season total to 14, with four games remaining. The Hungarian born soccer style kicker shattered the old record of 13 jointly held by Ed Dyna of Auburn in 1960 and Doug Moreau of LSU in 1964.

No. 1 Team Coasts Into 55-20 Win

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Swift, powerful Arkansas, playing for the first time ever as the nation's No. 1 team, made North Texas State its 18th straight victim, 55-20, Saturday night.

Tailback Bob Burnett scored three times on runs of 1, 11 and 2 yards and wingback Jim Lindsey bulled 10 and 15 yards for touchdowns as Arkansas continued its winning streak, longest in the land by a major college team.

Wingback Harry Jones, a 195-pound speedster, galloped 83 yards in total offense, snapped 23 yards for another Arkansas score, but later was injured and taken to a hospital for X rays. His injuries were not immediately determined.

The Razorbacks rolled up 533 yards in total offense, and Carter connected with Bill Odle for the touchdown.

Senior wingback McLean had 111 yards on two receptions. BYU fullback John Ogden led rushers with 95 yards in 16 carries.

Illini Take Quick Lead To Trim Duke

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — With fleet Cyril Pinder leading the way, Illinois jumped off to a quick lead and went on to drop Duke, 28-14, Saturday.

Illinois took the opening kickoff and marched for a touchdown. Pinder kept the 16-play drive alive, when, on a fourth and two situation, he darted through for eight.

Pinder scored two touchdowns during the afternoon one of them on an 80-yard run. Illini quarterback Fred Custer threw for two touchdowns and kicked all four extra points.

Duke, with second stringer Todd Orval calling the signals through the second half, scored in the final period on a 68-yard drive which ended with his pass to Chuck Drulis in the end zone.

WHEN IT COMES to drawing a house, most youngsters would draw it this way, with the chimney and roof on top. This is the way they would see it. Not all youngsters do this. (Times-News photo)

CHILDREN WITH dyslexia may end up putting the roof and chimney on the bottom. They also might write or print numbers and letters upside-down. This malfunction is fairly rare. (Times-News photo)

Upside-Down Girl
 Has Malfunction
 Termed Dyslexia

By O. A. (Gus) KELKER
 Times-News Feature Editor

Cindy Smith is nearly 7 years old and she has a problem. What you see right-side-up she apparently sees upside-down. At least she draws and prints many things this way, hence the problem.

A daughter of Mrs. Virginia Smith, 611 Adams St., Twin Falls, and William Smith, Filer, she looks like any other normal, and bright eyed girl of her age.

Little Cindy's malfunction is apparently a situation which only recently has been recognized. Remember not so long ago when the reason "Johnny couldn't read" was blamed on new teaching methods?

Now the experts believe there are some two million youngsters whose difficulties arise from something most people never heard of.

This neurological malfunction is called dyslexia and apparently is what troubles Cindy, although there is no pain and apparently, for her, no confusion. Experts in this field say that for some persons the disorder can cause untold emotional anguish and could blight their entire lives. Because of it some are even classified as mentally retarded, despite the fact they are actually of normal intelligence.

The fact Cindy was having trouble of some sort was first discovered by Mrs. Margaret McAtee, operator of a local kindergarten, and Mrs. Gordon (Catherine) Gray, who operates the local reading clinic.

At first it was found that Cindy, in printing, made letters backwards, although she was making the copy from letters written in the correct manner.

Then, when drawing came along, another startling fact came to the fore. When she drew a house she ended up putting it upside-down. She put the roof where the floor should have been. When this was called to her attention she apparently saw no difference between the original drawing she had copied and the result of her efforts.

Other tests showed she has no speech problems, moves about and walks in a normal manner and she is intelligent. Now she has mastered some of the intricacies of printing, but the letter "Y" still ends up the wrong way for her. It is either upside-down or backwards, depending on the way you look at it.

Does she see things upside-down? She's too young to explain whether she does or does not. This discovery will come later.

Her affliction is not as rare as one might suppose. The experts are just beginning to realize what the condition is.

Relatively few schoolteachers have been specifically trained to recognize the symptoms. Almost no parents understand the condition. The descriptive term for it is not included in most dictionaries and doctors of presumed competence have been known to misdiagnose it.

This description comes from an article written by William Hartley and Ellen Hartley in a recent issue of Pageant Magazine.

These writers define dyslexia as a disorder rather than a disease and point out that persons are unable to integrate written symbols. They see them but in some way the letters become twisted from the time she saw them and the time she thought (traveled through her) and emerged from the hand holding the crayon or pencil.

CINDY SMITH has a problem when it comes to drawing or copying written letters or numbers. She has a tendency to end up putting them upside-down. This malfunction is not uncommon among youngsters, but until recently was confused with the inability to progress in reading. Early diagnosis is important, experts say, because most of the children, like Cindy, are average or above average in intelligence. (Times-News photo)

BEAMING BOY SCOUT'S FACE registers his fingers' achievement. Blind Stan Snooks, Po-cateello, "reads" his braille "Handbook for Boys" section on camp cookery. His sensitive fingers, smudged with the black of the fireplace, enable him to read nearly as fast as more fortunate scouts who are not blind. He is one of the 28 blind and deaf scouts who spent four days last week at the Snake River Council's Camp Bradley, swimming, shooting, canoeing, and even practicing archery. (Times-News photo)

Blind, Deaf Boys Canoe, Shoot, Cook at Scout Camp

STANLEY — The blind boy and one of 28 deaf and blind boys by Scouts who recently made a four-day encampment at the Cape Horn Scout Reservation northwest of Stanley.

The blind boy raised the rifle to his shoulder, took aim and fired.

"You're shooting low and to the right," a camp instructor called from behind.

The scout made what he thought was the necessary correction and fired again.

"A hit!" the instructor called. The waiting scouts joined in cheer.

It was the first time in his life that the boy had ever fired a rifle.

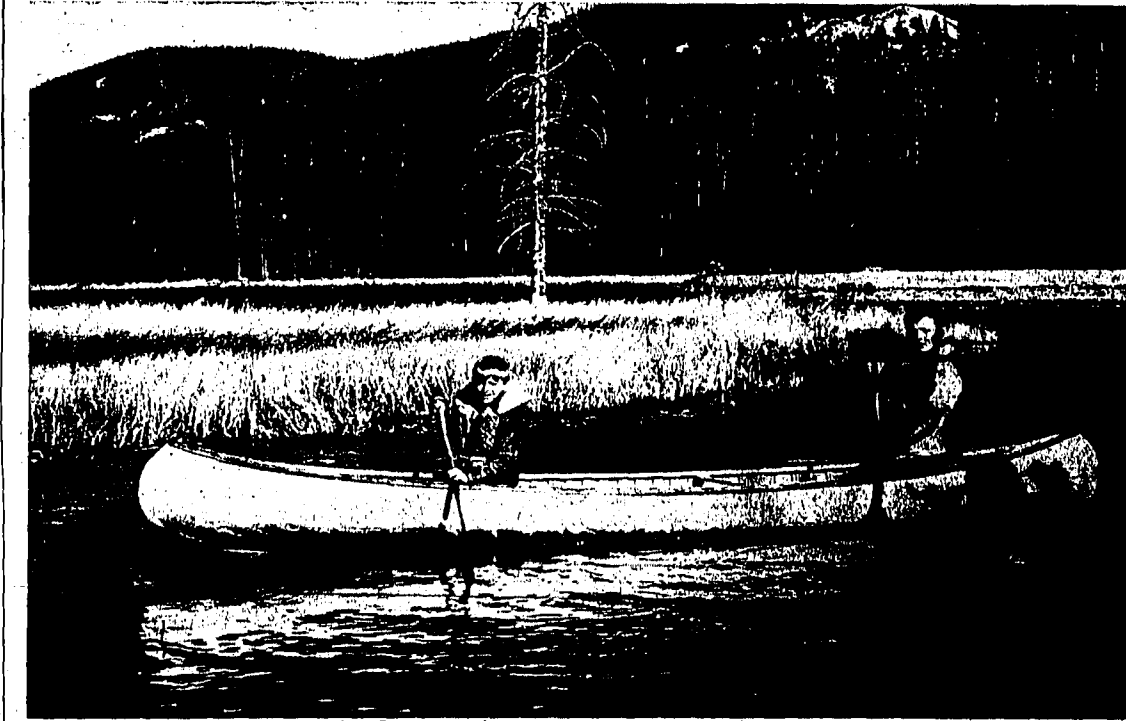

A short distance from the rifle range another scout who had only partial use of his eyes and poor hearing, took aim, and loosed an arrow. It was the first time he had ever shot a bow and arrow.

Shooting rifles and bows and arrows, canoeing, axmanship, cooking over open fires and eating the organized results—the Boy Scouts were enjoying their outing from the State School for the Deaf and Blind at Gooding.

"They did the things any other Boy Scout would like to do. Often they were doing it for the first time."

Robert Dawson, Gooding, principal of the state school's division for the deaf told the Times-News. "These boys are the same as any other boys. They have the same aspirations, successes and failures. The only difference is the loss or limited use of one sense."

DEAF SCOUTS DISCOVER canoeing is not as easy as it looks. Young Jay Van Leuven, Twin Falls, at the bow of the canoe, had never been in a canoe before. However Mike Hanko, Burley, at the stern, provides the needed direction and power, and the vessel soon headed out onto one of the lakes at Camp Bradley. The Boy Scout camp was made available for the 28 deaf and blind boys to enable them to experience the common boyhood experiences of shooting, swimming, compass reading and campfire cooking. The boys were working toward their second class scout award. (Times-News photo)

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

A HAILEY woman's car license plate reads K7 VBR, the same as her call number as an amateur radio operator. This is the second-year Mrs. Kenneth Hellyer has been able to use a different type license plate than is ordinarily seen on cars. Her husband's car has carried the number K7 KCG since 1959, when he passed his FCC examination to become a ham radio operator. The couple enjoy many hours at their home at the Spring Creek unit of their Circle "H" ranches, talking with ham operators over the entire universe.

Invisible, Long Dead Residents of Ghost Towns Haunt Deserted Areas

Even death doesn't come to these silent towns any more. Walk down the main street of a ghost town and feel that an unseen someone walks with you, that invisible children scamper and laugh on the boardwalk of the general store.

He gave up the dual job last year as he felt each school needed its own administrator without divided loyalties and, if possible, living in the school community. During the joint administration he has maintained his residence at Richfield.

A man of many talents, Supt. Briggs has proved invaluable to a small school such as Richfield. His ability to step in and teach when the need arises has filled important voids at various times during his Richfield tenure.

One of these has been his coaching the girls' basketball team, a total of seven years altogether. With his other jobs this proved too strenuous for his health three years ago, and he had a serious heart attack.

One of the other "extra" jobs he has filled has been driver's training, which he is again doing this year.

A milestone in the administrator's career will be the dedication of the elementary school, his first new school. All the students will be in adjoining buildings, expanded to provide the best environment for their education in a modern world.

The six lower grades will be back under his "wing" after being "farmed out" to attend school elsewhere since Richfield's disastrous fire.

Richfield has supreme confidence that Supt. Briggs will continue to exercise his awareness of school problems and cope with any as the need arises.

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT . . .

Richfield Superintendent Has Spent Entire Teaching Career in One Town

RICHFIELD—A teaching career almost entirely at Richfield is the unusual record of Richfield's school superintendent, F. R. Briggs. The dedication of a new elementary school will climax his efforts for improving the schools since he first taught in the old elementary school destroyed by fire last March.

The new building provides Richfield with a modern school system. The fully accredited high school and gymnasium were built in 1953. The new grade school building also houses the new cafeteria.

Supt. Briggs was born at Wendell Nov. 25, 1915, a son and grandson of pioneer-residents. His grandfather, S. A. Muir, Jr., Briggs was the first settler at Gooding, then called Tenopah.

He left with his family after a friendly Indian warned them of a coming uprising. They settled the next time at Clear Lake.

Supt. (Ray) Briggs grew up in the local area where he was an outstanding athlete at Dubl high school. He headed his own dance band, the Ragadores, during high school and afterwards, also.

After attending the University of Idaho he went to California where he was employed by Swift and Co. in the San Francisco and San Jose vicinities. While there he met and married his wife, Delta, a native of Honolulu, Hawaii.

At the outbreak of World War II Briggs enlisted in the air force and served as a bombardier from a base in England. He was commissioned a second lieutenant on Dec. 24, 1943, and a first lieutenant before leaving England. After flying 35 missions he was returned to New Mexico to serve as an air force instructor until the war ended.

Attracted to the wide open spaces and cattle raising, Mr. and Mrs. Briggs and daughter, now Mrs. Gary Hubbsmith, Jerome, moved to Richfield in 1946. He raised Angus cattle and farmed until contracting undulant fever, a disease believed contracted from doing veterinary work.

One thing led to another to start him on a teaching career.

F. R. BRIGGS

In 1948 he was named Richfield's first Veteran's Vocational Agriculture instructor and served one year.

In 1952 he took his first school teaching job as eighth grade teacher and elementary school principal. Four years later he moved from Richfield for a two year period when he was employed by the Cedar Mesa Reservoir and lived at Alseworth.

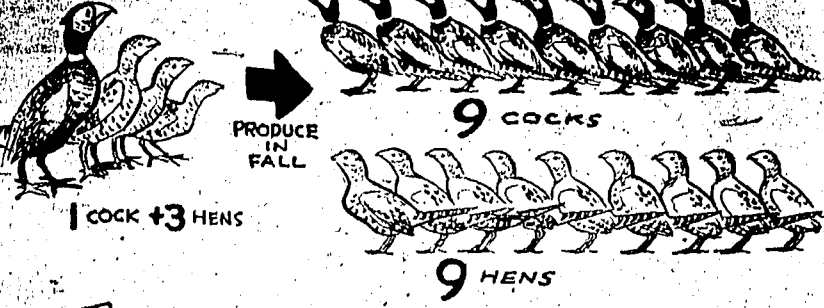

Moving back to Richfield he again became elementary school principal and served as a vocational teacher in the junior high school. Three years later he was named superintendent for the Richfield and Dietrich school systems for two years.

has continued to further his education and broaden his horizon. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in business administration from Idaho State University.

The past two summers he has attended the University of Idaho to work towards his master's degree. At present he is taking an extension course in public administration in the counseling program started at Richfield last year.

Supt. Briggs' capabilities as an administrator were revealed in a new way when he served as joint superintendent for the Richfield and Dietrich school systems for two years.

WHEN

THEN

FALL SEX RATIO IS ALMOST EVEN.

THIS PICTORIAL STORY is based on records showing that the sex ratio of Idaho's pheasant population after the hunting season each year averages about one cock for two hens. In an average year, there are more than a million cocks in the field before the hunt — and in excess of a million hens.

Studies show that the annual survival rate of hens is about 35 per cent. In other words, two out of three hens this summer will be dead by the time next year's hatch comes off. Some of this natural mortality can be salvaged through timely hen-hunting on a limited basis.

Southern Idaho Pheasant Season Two Weeks Late, but Bird Limit Higher

BOISE—High noon of Oct. 23 finally arrived yesterday for impatient southern Idaho pheasant hunters who joined their brethren of the ten northern counties in banging way at cackling ring-necked cocks in a season opener that began, as usual, a full two weeks later than in the north. They found some solace in the fact that the Southern Idaho bag limit is bigger by one bird — three in the north, four in the south. In all but eastern Idaho counties, one bird in the bag limit may be a hen pheasant, beginning the third day of the season. The "hen-in-the-bag" regulation is not effective until Nov. 1 in the counties of Blaine, Blaine, Blaine, Bonneville, Caribou, Clark, Franklin, Fremont, Jefferson, Madison, Oneida and Power. Season endings are Nov. 14 for northern Idaho, Dec. 5 for southwestern and southcentral counties, and Nov. 21 for eastern counties. This is the sixth consecutive year of limited hen hunting in Idaho, and there has been a gradual liberalization of regulations and a corresponding increase in hunter kill in hens. Since 1961 over 300,000 hen pheasants have been harvested by Idaho hunters without altering the winter sex ratio of two female to one male during the spring breeding season which was maintained under cocks only hunting. These and other data show that only surplus birds have been bagged, with the term "surplus" meaning the differences between the number of birds produced and the number necessary to provide adequate breeding stock for the following spring. Elwood Bizau, state bird supervisor, says that the purpose is to harvest part of the surplus that otherwise would be wasted. (Continued on Page 30)

THIS IS PROGRESS

for the Snake River Valley

1965 — 1,044,700 kilowatts

You can see the 20-year growth of the Snake River Valley's economy in the comparison-to-scale of Idaho Power's system generating capacity as it was in 1945—and as it is in 1965. Hydroelectric plants were built, multiplying the power supply by nearly 10 times, because area activity required it. We're building more generating capacity at Hells Canyon—425,000 kilowatts more—because it, too, will be needed on schedule. Nothing else mirrors economic growth for an area quite so completely as its increased use of electric power—because it reflects virtually every kind of development. It tells the whole progress story at a glance—a composite of greater population, better living standards, more industry, shops and stores, more irrigated farms, more area income and jobs. Snake River Valley's exciting progress story is truly remarkable, and it will continue. Idaho Power will invest $150,000,000 in new facilities during the next five years to help it happen.

LOOKING DOWN SEVERAL thousand feet to Horse creek at the bottom of the canyon are Ray Evans, right, assistant ranger at the Ketchum Forest Service office, and John McMonigle, foreman for the Horse Creek Watershed project being carried on at an altitude of 9,000 feet on the bare face of the mountain. When the rest of the conservation project of seeding grass and willows is completed the crew will tackle the toughest part—contouring a mountain with a 75 to 80 per cent fall. (Times-News photo)

Forest Service Plants Grass, Trees In Horse Creek Canyon Watershed

HAILEY — Many motorists traveling Highway 93 over Galena summit have observed a large D-8 caterpillar tractor working high on the bare face of the 9,000 foot mountain to the west of Horse Creek canyon. The have wondered how it got there and why.

Ray Evans, assistant ranger at the Ketchum station, said the project was begun last summer, at which time many trenches were contoured and planted to grass across the top face of the mountainside, at a cost of some $10,000. More than 1,000 willows were planted in the highest trenches where a spring was found.

"Wherever there is ample moisture we plant willows to hold the soil," Evans said. "The men go down to the river and dig them up and stick them in the mud. Those planted last year are all thriving."

The Horse Creek Watershed Project lies into the Ketchum-Stanley Driveaway project. At this time the Forest Service is restoring that broad ribbon of land running between the two towns, through the Sawtooth mountains, which was established as a sheep driveway back in the 1890's.

Since that time many million sheep have trampled over it in the spring of the year to reach their summer range high in the Big Wood and Salmon river watersheds, and in the fall to return to the desert.

low and sweet clover, crusted wheat and some timothy. Traveling north from Galena lodge the motorist crosses Horse creek twice within a mile as it meanders alongside the road. The creek is not a large one, but it has been one of the major contributors of silt and debris into the Big Wood river.

Evans said even the small amount of work completed on the watershed last year lessened erosion to a degree.

After each rain this summer the work road up the canyon has had to be cleared before it could be traveled by trucks. In places the creek was completely obliterated. The ground has been eroded to bedrock in many places and there are gulches five and six feet deep.

"Melting snows are not as bad as high-intensity summer storms to wash the ground away," Evans said.

Entrance to the work road has been kept closed because of large boulders rolling down the mountainsides as they are dislodged by blasting or the D-8.

Walter (Red) Somerset, Jerome, never had operated a "cat" on steep mountainsides when he went to work on this project for Halverson Construction Co., Jerome, contractors. He has become expert.

"At first" Evans said, it was casting approximately 34 cents a linear foot for the "cat" work, which is not high in comparison with other areas. Now it is running 24 cents a foot and we believe it will be down to 15 cents a foot soon."

In laying out contours for trenches John McMonigle, project foreman of the Forest Service's Horse Creek Watershed project, tried to avoid destroying mature, seed producing trees. Distances between trenches vary depending on the steepness of the slopes.

He picks out the steepest slopes along the trenches and makes measurements from them. On less steep slopes trenches are farther apart. Sometimes it is necessary to place short trenches—between ridges.

First time over the ground Somerset digs into the mountain side as deep as possible, not disturbing any more ground than necessary. When working in ground with many boulders it is necessary to level before making the necessary "V" to complete the 12 foot wide trench.

The completed trench has a shelf on the uphill side which catches any silt coming down the mountainside. On the downhill side is a bench high enough to allow the "V" to hold every cubic foot of water. About 16 600 foot a dyke is thrown up in the trench, the top of which is four inches lower than the upper lip of the bench.

If one segment of the trench fills, overflow can run into those on either side and not cut through and destroy the bench," Evans said.

McMonigle said a high-intensity rain hit the area in August, with 1.8 inches falling in two hours, but about 20 inches of water in the trenches.

"They could have held twice that much," he commented.

Somerset is completing about one-fourth mile of trenching a day, depending on whether he is working in a rocky or clayey area. As soon as he completes his work Dennis Jones sows the grass mixture in the trenches and between them. He uses a cyclone seeder which throws seed 10 feet to either side.

"We have to sow the seed when the wind is right," McMonigle said.

"Wherever there is even a small amount of protection the seed takes hold," McMonigle said, "but when the ground is slick cement it just blows away."

He keeps a rake handy and loosens the earth on hard spots when that permits. "It pays off," he said.

Beneath the trees in areas off the sheep trail grasses, wild geranium, larkspur and wild barley grow in profusion. There is also creosote, wheat, timothy and other domestic grasses in spots. When asked about this Evans replied, "Wherever the ground has been molested we plant grass."

As the contours are completed the work road is plowed under and made a part of the trenches. When the project is completed there will be no road up Horse Creek gulch.

The only sound above the D-8, the din of a car as they speed along the highway 2,000 feet below, and the men's voices was the perpetual "cawing" of birds. When asked what they were McMonigle said "They are Clark's crows," he said, "but most people here know them as camp robbers."

"We lose many thousand seed-corn to these birds each season," he continued, pointing to the top of a nearby tree on which was the skeleton of a pine cone.

The most difficult work on the Horse Creek Watershed project is being saved until last, and probably will not come this year. It will be to cut trenches to contour the mountainside reaching down to the creek itself, with a grade of from 75 to 80 per cent.

Upside-Down Girl Faces Problems

cy, not a specific speech problem.

Most children with the disorder are of normal or better than normal intelligence. In the United States experts estimate that about seven per cent of the children are affected. In Denmark, where every child is tested for dyslexia at the age of 6, the estimate is around 10 per cent.

Early diagnosis, individual attention and daily instruction are the major factors in remedial work with dyslexic individuals. Treatment before frustrations have been built up is important.

What can the parent do to help all this? The parent can do just as Mrs. Smith has done—keep an attempt to get to the source of the trouble as early as possible.

Clues to the condition are persistence of written symbol confusion in an otherwise normal child. Diagnosis is a job for an expert.

Talk to the child's teacher, if the youngster is in school. Find out just how serious the condition is. Determine what the school can do to help. If the school cannot help then seek clinical diagnosis and skilled remedial instruction from other available community sources.

The experts say that if your child cannot read, or is having trouble reading but appears normal in other respects, the sooner you get to the bottom of the difficulty the better.

It is a condition that is not to be confused with shame. Rather it is a condition that calls for immediate action.

As the experts now say—all slow-reading habits or the fact that "Johnny can't read" many times is not the fault of the new methods in instruction.

Oakley Has 6 Candidates For 3 Posts

OAKLEY—Six candidates are seeking three posts on the Oakley village board in the Nov. 2 municipal election here.

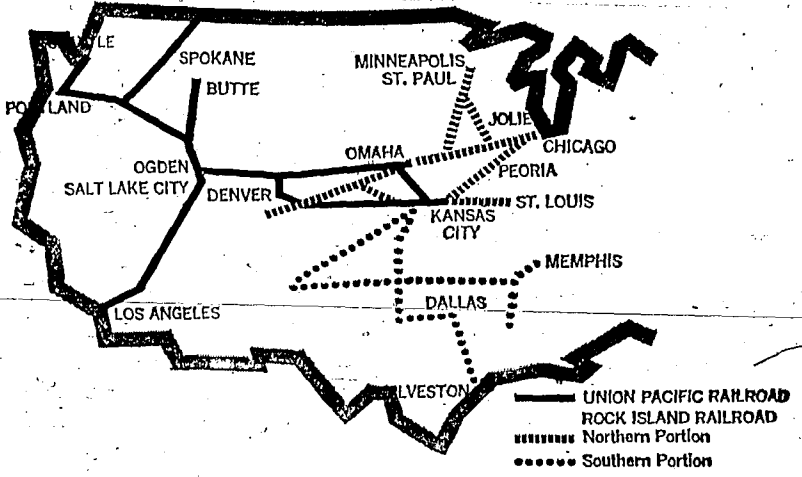

Three are incumbents who are opposed by several newcomers to local politics. The incumbents are Donald J. Clark, 39, who has served on the board for eight years; Glen Ellison, 48, who has been on the board 11 years, and Lawrence W. Elliott, a board member for the past eight years.

Clark is secretary of the Oakley Vigilantes, bishop of the LDS First Ward and a volunteer fireman. Ellison served one and one-half terms as mayor. He also belongs to the Vigilantes and serves on the Cassia county ASCS committee.

Elliott has been Chamber of Commerce president and chief of the volunteer fire department. He currently is secretary of the fire district.

They are opposed by Arthur Bergener, 33, Nathan Tanner, longtime Oakley businessman, and W. B. Whitley, former mayor here and stockman and businessman.

Bergener was president of the Vigilantes for two years and served on the board of directors of the riding group for five years. He belongs to the Oakley Chamber of Commerce and Burley Elks.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, Oct. 24 — Born to day, you probably feel that you have a mission in life — which is a good thing, so long as you discover what that mission is relatively early. Otherwise, you may waste a great many years moving about from this enterprise to that looking for just the right "niche." You have a great desire to render service to your fellow-man; translate this desire into activity, and you will be a happier person.

Given to analyzing others, especially upon first meeting with them, you may find yourself more often wrong than right. Learn to give others a chance, to let a little water pass under the dam before passing judgment. You may be losing out on many fine friendships by not doing so; conversely, you may give persons the benefit of your friendship who are not worthy of it.

In choosing a mate, take care to select someone of strong principles — determination — and pluck. Someone who could at least achieve a set goal without going off on a tangent left or right, someone who knows how to guide you without at the same time seeming to boss you — that would be the best sort of mate for you.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Southern Idaho Pheasant Season Two Weeks Late, but Bird Limit Higher

(Continued From Page 27) and to increase the late season hunting pressure on males. When cocks only are hunted, about half of the hunting pressure is on the first weekend, and late-season hunting success on the wary roosters is extremely low. Since the "hens-in-the-bag" regulation went into effect, hunting success on the final weekend of the season has just about doubled, due to hen availability.

Back in 1960, the beginning of limited hen hunting in Idaho, one hen a day could be included in the bag on just the last two days of the season—and in only about half the counties open for pheasant hunting. This year, all pheasant ranges have the permissive regulation, beginning the third day, except the 11 eastern and southern counties where hen hunting starts the tenth day. The reported harvest of hens during the first experimental season in 1960 was 25,000 hens, according to the hunter questionnaire. Last year, the reported kill was 153,000 hens.

The cock kill during those years averaged about one-half million birds except during the high production years of 1963 and 1964, when it went over 600,000 cocks both years. Bizen adds that a continuing analysis is made to follow the effects of hen hunting on the pheasant population. It continues with check station operations throughout the season on pheasants to measure the influence of the regulation on hunting pressure. A noteworthy finding is that no overall change of sex ratios between the number of hens for each cock has been found during the past five years.

Figures also show that the number of hens shot by hunters is directly related to the gradual liberalization of this part of the regulations around the state. This is to be expected—but how much? Hunter questionnaire data shows a year-by-year increase in the number of hens reported, and the cock-hen ratio in the bag as follows: 1960—1 hen, 20 cocks; 1961—1 hen, 12 cocks; 1962—1 hen, 8 cocks; 1963—1 hen, 5 cocks; and 1964—1 hen, 4 cocks.

The 1964 kill of hens was calculated at 11 per cent of the number available to hunters that season. The illegal kill of hens by accident or faulty identification of sex in states where limited hen hunting is prohibited is estimated at about 15 per cent of the total number of female birds in the field. Of course, some hens are still shot illegally in Idaho and never retrieved by hunters. But the total now is believed to be low.

A natural shift in sex ratio goes on in a pheasant population each year. Just prior to the fall hunting season, the sexes are about even, usually about ten cocks for every dozen hens, says Bizen. This happens because most of the birds in the field in the fall were hatched in the spring. Nature produces a natural sex ratio of about one male per female, whether pheasants, deer, fish, or people.

The average pheasant sex ratio after the hunting season is about one cock for each two hens, Bizen says. This is based on many thousands of recorded winter sex ratio observations taken over the past 15 years or so. It shows that hunters usually harvest about half the available cocks. When five or six hundred thousand cocks are bagged by hunters during a fall season, it means that there were more than a million roosters in the field before the hunt, and that there also were more than a million hens. All figures show that a large portion of the next crop will not be around the next spring. What happens to the displaced wife?

Long-term hen studies show that the annual survival rate from one year to the next is about 35 per cent. In other words, two out of three hens in the field this summer will be dead by the time next year's hatch comes off. Extensive information proves this point beyond any doubt. This survival rate occurs under conditions such as Idaho, where limited hen hunting is allowed, and where there is no "hens-in-the-bag" at all. This shows that limited hen hunting merely substitutes for some of the natural losses.

Particular evidence that the hen harvest in recent years has had no adverse effect on pheasant production in the fall of 1963 and 1964, the fourth and fifth years of limited hen hunting, had record production and harvest, with 715,000 pheasants of both sexes reported bagged in 1963 and 757,000 in 1964.

Bizen adds that both pheasant sexes are short-lived, beset by many natural enemies and habitat limitations. These forces constantly are at work cutting down the number of birds in the field. Fortunately for sportsmen, the pheasant is a lousy species, capable of sustaining high losses while still producing enough young birds to keep the population thriving. Every summer pheasants raise a number of young birds—half of them cocks and half of them hens. Nature produces a large surplus of birds over and above what is needed for breeding purposes. This surplus must die before the following spring.

In the case of cocks, hunters have been taking part of the surplus. But in states where limited hen hunting is prohibited, the excess of hens is taken entirely by natural mortality and illegal hunter kills. Idaho's liberalization of this regulation is designed to always keep the breeding season sex ratio weighted toward hens.

With limited hen hunting, this can be done with a sizeable gain in hunter recreation. In Eastern Idaho, an average year is also predicted with a very good outlook in Bingham and Power counties while northern Jefferson County appears to be down considerably from last year's high. The 12-year mean for pheasant hunters on opening weekend is 1.8 birds per hunter. This is the long-term average for all hunters coming through the stations, including experienced pheasant hunters and tyros.

For the past two years, the pheasants per hunter figure on opening weekend has been 30 per cent higher than average at 1.3 birds per hunter. This year hunting success over the state is expected to be near the average mark on a state-wide basis.

T. F. Man Is Speaker at Bureau Meet

SHOSHONE—Gene Hull, Twin Falls, was guest speaker at the Lincoln County Farm Bureau annual banquet at the Manhattan Cafe Tuesday night. Master of ceremonies Sam Astle, Dietrich, introduced Hull and other guests. Grand Stevens, Richfield, retiring president of Lincoln County Farm Bureau, gave the welcome address and Glenn L. Sorenson, Dietrich, gave the invocation. Earl Vinsant received recognition for obtaining nine new members in 1965 and 20 new members thus far in the 1965 membership year, which began in March.

There are now 94 farm family members, the most ever obtained in the county. Ervin Braun, Route 1, Shoshone, was introduced as county membership chairman.

Farm county presidents were presented pins. They were Harold Gooch, Ward Mills, M. E. McKendrick, Kenneth Johnson, Glenn L. Sorenson, Grant Stevens, John Stutznegger, Louis Race, Earl Vinsant and the late R. E. Powell. Ivan Schroeder and Roger Clark, Bull, played several accordion numbers. LeRoy Magoffin was recognized as the Lincoln county grassman of the year winner. He was sponsored by Richfield community Farm Bureau and Jerry Johnston was chairman of the project.

Officers elected for the 1966 year were Astle, president; Stevens, vice president; Mrs. Oscar Thiemann, north Shoshone, women's chairman; Mrs. Ervin Braun, north Shoshone, secretary-treasurer. Lewis Lapper, Pocatello, state legislative and resource director, urged members to attend the state convention at the Danlock hotel, Pocatello, Nov. 14-17.

Big Business Uses Art to Gain Image

By SALLY RYAN
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The modern Medicis of the art world are the princes and princesses of industry who are collecting masterpieces and supporting unknown or unrecognized artists. Their collections are to be seen not in the public museums but upon the walls of reception rooms and offices, on the facades and the plazas and entryways of buildings.

The day of the enormously wealthy, somewhat eccentric, usually highly individualist collector has vanished for the most part. Now the white collar executive is the world's biggest and most active art patron. He amasses the work of Picasso, Matisse or Rodin; is willing to play safe with the accepted masters and gamble with the moderns and innovators. He does it for a variety of reasons: to bolster his image, sell more products, polish up stockholders, impress customers and the community — and because art is important personally.

Johnson's Wax paid $50,000 for 10 paintings by contemporary American artists, and then thousands more to send them on tour to 14 foreign countries and 22 American cities. "Since art, by its nature, needs some form of subsidy, and since the days of the Medicis are gone, the public must look to government or industry," says Arthur L. Harris, 55, president of Mead Packaging of Atlanta, Ga.

For Harris, the patron to help struggling artists is industry. A trustee of the Atlanta Art Association, he started out looking for something besides the usual pecans for Mead's corporate Christmas gifts.

He commissioned a Georgia artist to do a painting and then sent out 6,000 reproductions. Letters poured in, seeking more prints. Now the parent Mead Corp. in Dayton, Ohio, is sponsoring an exhibition of 60 paintings by contemporary American artists which will tour the nation for two years.

"It helps us recruit executive talent by becoming better known and more highly regarded. Our program helps support our stockholder relations and community relations activities, too."

"More importantly, it helps us sell our products." Harris is typical of the new breed of executive — a graduate of Yale (1921) and Harvard Law School (1934) who collects first editions and Napoleonic.

Then there is Georges Kaplan, Fifth Avenue furrier. A friend gave him a painting 10 years ago.

"It was like eating peanuts," Kaplan said. "I started trading for coats for paintings, and now I have one of the largest Larry Rivers collection. Our whole showroom is covered with art, from junk and abstract to op."

"It gives a whole different atmosphere to the firm and relieves the heaviness of fashion." One noted collection is that of Chase Manhattan Bank in New York. The bank refers to it not as a collection but "a means of completing a modern building," and employs three persons full time to handle it.

Eventually, some of the works may be donated to museums. At Chase, a new officer is interviewed to see what his interests and hobbies are, and then his office is tailored to fit.

The art works are carried on the books as decorations and furnishings, and thus a depreciable asset: a major tax advantage.

Sugar Beet Industry Is Club Topic

DECLE — The beet industry was discussed by Ernest Blauer, field representative for the Amalgamated Sugar Co., at the Declo Kiwanis Club dinner meeting Monday at Min's Cafe.

Blauer stated that during the operating season, the factory is in continuous operation and is designed to process 7,500 tons of beets daily with a minimum daily production of nearly 1,000,000 pounds of sugar.

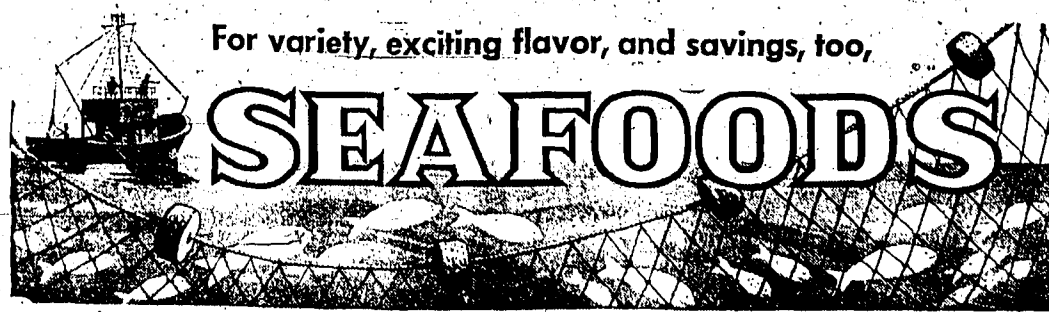

Nearly 200 persons are employed regularly by the company and this number is increased to about 600 during the four or five months of the fall run.

Earl Darrington, president, was in charge of the business meeting, and Clifford Sutton led the singing. Invocation was offered by Richard Moncur and the pledge was led by Robert Fuqua.

PTA to Meet

WENDELL — George Holmes, Wendell high school principal and guidance counselor, will be featured speaker for the Tuesday evening meeting of the Hub City PTA at the grade school All-Purpose room.

Present additions of personnel and equipment to the high school and junior high hopes and plans for the future will be the program subject. Holmes will conduct a question period after his talk. Room mothers of the first grades will be hosts for the evening.
