More than 150 persons listened to the youthful executive as he lauded the area's history, as well as its reasons for pursuing a recreation program for the future. Palmieri, chairman of the attending committee, said Janss' remarks were well received and that he was confident of the area's future. He also lauded the history of the area, which began in 1872, and noted its interest in recreation. Janss was introduced by the chairman and he spoke for about 15 minutes. Local Youth Wounded in Gun Mishap

A 17-year-old Magic Valley youth was being treated in a Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Saturday night for gunshot wounds in his right arm. The incident happened approximately 7:45 p.m. Saturday as he was getting ready for a hunting trip. David Humphrey, 273 Carney St., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Humphrey, was reportedly loaded with a .22-caliber Remington-Union Pacific rifle. He was hunting early Sunday morning when he fired the first shot and the bullet struck the right side of his arm. He was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Clifton Sharp was investigating officer.

Johnson Gets Good Future Is Seen For American Farms

He said American farmers are adjusting to production. Morrison outlined 11 techniques that are used to make farm programs. They are: free prices, marketing quotas on all farm products, compulsory acreage limit on the farm, limited capital items and management and land retirement. WASHINGTON—For this, they'll come and get me at night and haul me off to—durance vile, but my last word on the general issue of these subsidies is that I am not interested in them. This is the sort of question Washington is not interested in.

From President Johnson, the boys are too busy congratulating Fidel Castro on his deathly fight. Castro, who is a host of Castro's captive countries, American "share" will be dumped on the American people.

Andrew Tate, American syndicate leader, says that the deal poses both economic and security problems are made to stand in a corner and denounced for having led us into this.

CASTRO'S GAIN, OUR LOSS — But breast beating and public sobbing do not solve these problems. A clear language for the humane approach and would not dream of trampling a flower. Let me put you to sleep. Castro has signed the Cuban version of the Bridge of Life. It is a bridge that people do not want or can't use and thereby accumulating marks as a humanitarian. As usual, we are taking the blame for the actions of others.

Significantly, the deal was consummated on Castro's terms. He has prohibited the employment of political exiles, potential draftees between the ages of 15 and 26, and technicians and professional people whose skills, talents, and experience are needed by the Cuban people. Old men, who will be an immediate if not permanent burden to the American taxpayer.

HOW MANY SPICES — It is of course, important to save any human being's life, and happily the American tradition gives no priority in this matter to lawyers or politicians. However, the deal is a deal that would have officials express a trifle more concern over this invitation to Castro to ship us several millions of dollars. However, the deal is assigned to harassment and the eventual overthrow of both Lyndon Johnson and Barry Goldwater.

American businessmen, Fidel is a discredited man. He has no money in his pocket. His record would indicate, with his admitted ties to the Cuban government, that he is a man who will be a dreadful nuisance with their underground agents and their home-made bombs. It is quite conceivable that some innocent American is on the coffee break, and he would be a high price to pay for unconditional acquiescence.

LITTLE HELP FROM LATIN AMERICA — Meanwhile, the attitude of our Latin American neighbors is of little help. They are interfering south of the border is most fascinating. None of these temperamental governments has yet acted. Under the leadership of the Cuban exiles, Venezuela and Honduras have expressed an interest in accepting some of these refugees. However, they have not put their money where their mouth is.

Eventually, say some experts, the flow of Cubans may reach a point where the American Congress has to deal with an immigration bill authorizing the careful admission of the rest of the world. But we are a careless nation, perhaps the only people whose brain is located south of the neck.

Views of Others

GOVERNMENT FAILS — Never again will we suspect that the federal government is a process of chaotic, inefficient bureaucracy. The federal government is a process of chaotic, inefficient bureaucracy. The federal government is a process of chaotic, inefficient bureaucracy.

REPUBLICAN POLICY — The Republican Party is a process of chaotic, inefficient bureaucracy. The Republican Party is a process of chaotic, inefficient bureaucracy.

FAMOUS LAST LINE — The world's traffic hazard that comes to my mind is the automobile. The automobile is a process of chaotic, inefficient bureaucracy.

GENTLEMAN IN THE FOURTH ROW — The gentleman in the fourth row is a process of chaotic, inefficient bureaucracy.

SYMPHONIC SWAT — A scientist playing the stereo on his patio is a process of chaotic, inefficient bureaucracy.

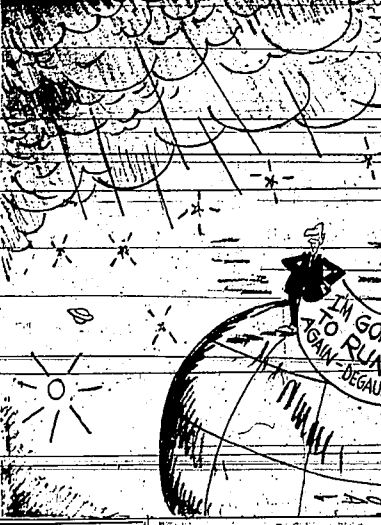

GETTING TO THE BOTTOM — The bottom is a process of chaotic, inefficient bureaucracy.

FACTS OF LIFE — An Idahoan holding a high position in the federal bureaucracy has no idea every one who wants to listen that Idaho must cooperate with the federal government. If it wants to grow, the Idahoans is John A. Carver, Undersecretary of the Interior, says that the federal government faces everyone, particularly in the West where the major share of public lands are under federal stewardship.

It's not difficult to read the message. Many residents of Idaho still resent big government and have little use for bureaucracy of any sort, most specifically the wasteful, sprawling, self-perpetuating federal bureaucracy. But Mr. Carver has said in effect that it makes little difference to Idahoans who are for or against the federal government. It is still big and getting bigger—and the federal government controls something like 75 per cent of all land in Idaho. Under the circumstances, what happens if Idaho elects to its cooperation with the federal government? The federal "handout"? The answer is only too obvious.

As Mr. Carver points out, Idaho is still rich in undeveloped natural resources, many of which involve federal controls or federal guidance in one form or another. He urges Idahoans to establish a "sound relationship" with the federal government and recognize the established fact that the United States is a big supplier for the private sector of the economy as in timber, oil and minerals; it is a big customer for the private economy, for virtually every kind of goods and services.

Mr. Carver also said Idaho is in a position to lead in the next decade, the next 10 years at a pace exceeding the national average. Presumably, he means that Idaho's growth can be accelerated if, and when Idahoans make up their minds to cooperate with the federal government. It gives everyone something to contemplate in the way of facts of life.

NOT IMPRESSED — If the government has had a problem with citizens honoring its silver coins, I don't think anyone has to worry with those newly minted ones of the new quarters the other day and I see why anyone would save it. Somehow or other it reminded me of the play money issued by children.

Besides, I don't see how anyone can get far enough ahead these days to be able to afford saving money.

Interpreting The News

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maybe the electric power blackout in the Northeast was a good thing for the nation as a whole. It may compel new thinking on distributing electricity in case more critical times come.

But it was gruesome for a nation that has a nuclear power plant. There probably wasn't a person who didn't wonder: Was it just an accident? Or was it sabotage by enemies? Or was it just a coincidence? Or was it just an accident? Or was it sabotage by enemies? Or was it just a coincidence? Or was it just an accident? Or was it sabotage by enemies? Or was it just a coincidence?

LONDON—In the face of a sea of trouble in Britain is not just the traditional stiff upper lip. It is rather to count whatever blessings are visible in the face of adversity. I am sure that others will turn up.

Despite the fact that the threat of a white revolution is black, the gold and dollar reserves are more than adequate. More than any one had hoped.

The pound is showing strength in the world market. London, with its crowded shops beginning to fill up for the winter, is a most monstrous traffic jams that promise to bring the whole place to a standstill, reflects the new confidence in the pound.

On high ground for the time being it has been a previous passage. In the late summer, the pound was under such a severe attack and gold reserves were slipping so fast that it almost broke. At this critical moment, however, the government of the Bank of England—led by Basil, Switzerland, to play down the price of oil, to help the state-owned coal industry.

These are at best stop-gap measures. The government must be able to reckon for a time that must sell its goods in ever more competitive markets in order to meet its obligations. Britain is in the struggle now going on to try to cut Britain's world commitments to in a more balanced way. Whether this means raising virtually all British exports and the price of the pound, the government has suggested it is up to the market.

The enormous task of fitting the pieces of the puzzle together into a single coherent economic policy falls on Minister of Defense Denis Healey. One of the ablest men in the cabinet, Healey is preparing to give the whole defense establishment such a shakeup as has never been seen in the history of the country. The economies must be minimal since the thin line still separating us from the abyss cannot be shared away abruptly.

And just now Healey and the other members of the cabinet are busy with the ubiquitous German news. The news that the German defense budget in 1966 will be a shock that soon gave way to indignation. This is white Britain's own defense budget. The man in the street is in for a rough time. The figure for Britain is seven to eight per cent. For the United States it is less than 10 per cent and with the rapidly rising cost of the Viet Nam war this may soon be a thing of the past.

Behind these statistics is a chilling fact. Uncle Sam, as politician in the world, is still making take up more and more of the world's resources. That has been the order of the day since the Communists Truman emanated the doctrine of Greece and Turkey and picked up the support of the United States. In private talks there are heard many criticisms of the way the United States is acting as policeman and notably in Viet Nam. In Malaysia the British have 55,000 troops standing with the United States. In Indonesia the United States has 15,000 troops. In the tactics of patrol and infiltration, the United States is doing a single unit of the United States. This is the only tactic that can succeed in the long pull in winning a guerrilla war.

These criticisms are however carefully muted for any possibility that the policeman might stir up a revolution. As the old rivalry comes to the fore again, the concept of a "strategic alliance" must be made from the American viewpoint an unhappy prospect.

NOT IMPRESSED — If the government has had a problem with citizens honoring its silver coins, I don't think anyone has to worry with those newly minted ones of the new quarters the other day and I see why anyone would save it. Somehow or other it reminded me of the play money issued by children.

Besides, I don't see how anyone can get far enough ahead these days to be able to afford saving money.

Magie City Resort Closes, But Remodeling Continues

HAILEY — Mr. and Mrs. Gus Stortman have closed their Magie City resort on the east side of Magic Reservoir for the season. He is remodeling their rental cabins and they mean there until snow falls. During the fishing season there are some 75 private cabins and trailer homes occupied. The Stortmans say the past season was their best since closing over the resort-12 years ago. "We had four or three times as many California tourists stay here than any previous year," Mr. Stortman said. "Fishing has been exceptional this year," he continued. "People are getting spoiled. They get so spoiled that they don't want to fish here. They want to go to the lake and see the grise if they don't get a fish every time they go fishing." Mr. Stortman said the fish in the reservoir by the dam is the best in the area.

Although many raised their hands to indicate they owned flags, few of them had used them on this day. He reviewed the flag and urged all to show the flag, giving them some rules to follow in displaying it. The high school band played Star Spangled Banner, "The Hymn of the Republic," and "The Phosphor Regiment." Report Pends On Causes Of Blackout

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson may get a report next week on the probable cause of a massive power failure last Tuesday that affected eight northeastern states and parts of Canada.

Investigation by government and industry power experts recessed Friday until Monday, but Chairman Joseph Sweeney of the Federal Power Commission said he and a small staff will continue to work through the weekend.

Sweeney, who heads the inquiry ordered by the President, said earlier this week he hoped to have something for the President by the weekend.

He said Friday, "I don't have a target area. We will be faster than a snail to get the facts together shape to know after Monday or Tuesday."

Sweeney would speculate on the exact cause of the power failure, or on where it occurred.

He said a detailed study of all available recordings of Idaho's and early next week "may give us the story of exactly what did happen."

Son Named To Replace Sen. Byrd

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Harry Flood Byrd Jr., 50, newspaper publisher and state senator, has been named to the U.S. Senate seat occupied for 22 years by his father.

The younger Byrd was appointed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes Sr. little more than 24 hours after the surprise announcement by the governor of the retirement of Harry F. Byrd Sr., 78.

But whether the son might take over his father's role as leader of the state's dominant Democratic organization was never mentioned.

Harrison said he hoped the elder Byrd, who resigned after 20 years in the Senate because of an arthritic condition, would regain his health and add as a senator to deal him out as a leader.

The appointment of the younger Byrd was hailed by some statesmen, but there were discordant notes.

It seems certain he will be opposition-in-law for the convention or primary held for the seat next year, and it is expected that he will be in charge of the Virginia state Democratic Club at Norfolk, president of the Young Democratic Club at Virginia.

The younger Byrd, who missed only serving as governor of Virginia in a career that otherwise is virtually a carbon copy of his father's, is the appointment "with dedicated allegiance to Virginia" and a promise to "serve the best interests of our great nation."

Okay Asked By Catholics On Proposals

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Leaders of the Roman Catholic Church were asked today to approve the Vatican Council's decision on birth control.

The declaration and the proposals were included in a revised document which was approved by the council's media world problems-schemata.

The document, which deals with birth control, was delivered today to the more than 2,000 bishops meeting in a rare closed-door session in St. Basilica, Vatican, Sunday.

The atheism section does not mention the Vatican Council's decision but the reference is unmistakable.

On birth control, the text again emphasizes "responsible procreation" for Roman Catholic couples and adds that in family planning "the husband is to assume responsibility by the church."

Council specialists said this was not a final vote on the birth control questions troubling many Catholics. Pope Paul VI is expected to speak on the issue himself at some future time.

In other action the council panel of bishops met in priors throughout the world.

'Homemakers Show Yule Gift Ideas, Decorations

BY SYLVIA HITE

JEROME — Ideas for Christmas gifts and decorations come in real handy this time of year, with the holiday season just around the corner.

With this thought in mind, County Home Demonstration Council members staged Christmas festivals and gift idea exchanges during November in the various localities to share their ideas and creations with other homemakers throughout Magic Valley.

More than 250 women attended the Jerome County Home Demonstration Clubs' annual Christmas gift idea exchange and smorgasbord at the Jerome National Guard Armory to view the many elaborate displays and sample delicacies from the smorgasbord.

A complete array of gifts and decorations, all hand-made but looking store-bought, were unveiled as the guests viewed the finished items created by Magic Valley homemakers. The creative abilities of women are incomparable and each year their imaginations are set to work and new ideas become realities.

Yuletide displays, made from any and all materials, were placed throughout the hall by members of the Grandview, Happy Homemakers, Harmony, Kasota Sagehens, Sugar Loaf, Town and Country, Western Ruralettes and Westfield Demonstration Clubs.

Members were present at each display to describe how the articles were made. Many of the items shown were made from materials found in most homes and others could be assembled from easy-to-obtain kits.

A tasting smorgasbord was held with food being served from a luncheon bar with 16 different dishes from which to choose. Each club was responsible for various dishes for the luncheon and guests were charged a nominal amount for each serving. The recipe was available for each dish served at the smorgasbord. Most of the proceeds will be used for the Jerome 4-H Camp Fund.

Members of the Barrymore, Canyonside, Crestview, Dixon, Domestic-Etts, Falls City, Friendship and Modern Moms Clubs presented demonstrations of gift ideas at 2 p.m., with each article being demonstrated twice so everyone could see all the various gift items being shown.

Members of the Canyonside, Barrymore, Happy Homemakers, Friendship and Harmony clubs were in charge of arrangements for the day and the Kasota Sagehens, Sugar Loaf, Happy Homemakers and Dixon members were in charge of publicity.

Forces in Viet Nam to Be Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. forces in South Viet Nam will increase to about 200,000 men by the early part of next year, sources said Saturday.

The exact numbers in the additional buildup have not yet been determined, but the sources said the added troops under a new presidential decision will total about 40,000 men. There now are some 160,000 U.S. servicemen in Viet Nam, with the bulk of them Army troops.

The sources said top U.S. officials in Washington are now letting Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander in the war zone, call the high-level decisions. "What can be used effectively? What can be supported logistically? What are the needs and the situation every three or four months and then we will make a re-estimate of his needs."

Earlier in the year, it is known for many more troops than were approved. But after the near-disaster of last May and June, the U.S. command is now to pour in large U.S. combat elements. Westmoreland's estimates have been followed closely.

President Johnson approved the latest increment in a conference with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara at his ranch Thursday. Actually, the President was reviewing tentative decisions reportedly made as far back as last summer.

More combat units, possibly including Army, Marine and Marines, are expected to be included in the additional forces.

However, logistical troops, supply, maintenance, transportation and similar backup forces are likely to comprise a major segment of the reinforcements.

Cow, Calf Killed Near Richfield

SHOSHONE—A cow and calf owned by Dewey Wilcox were killed by two separate vehicles about 6:20 p.m. Thursday two and one-half miles east of Richfield.

Deputy Sheriff Martin White, who investigated, said a 1961 one-ton Chevrolet International truck loaded with lumber was headed west, driven by Neal Stoen, 3000 1/2 miles by 1955 Chevrolet, Idaho Farm Bureau car, driven by Leiland Heinrich, "Twin Falls," was going east. The came over a hill crest and a herd of cows were along the road. It was dark at the time.

The truck hit the calf and the car hit the cow.

The car was damaged in amount of about $40 while only around $20 damage resulted to the truck. No one was injured.

The fact that Heinrich had his seat belt fastened is accredited with having saved him from serious injury.

Gooding Man Is Speaker At Richfield

RICHFIELD — Chester Floyd Gooding, police chief and Army cadet-in-charge, was the main speaker at the high school anniversary.

Speaking principally to youth Floyd gave as his subject, "People of Idaho, and the United States of America."

He told the students being a free people was worth fighting for. Anyone thinking their country not worth this should seek another country to live in. He deplored the "sinners" at universities this fall, where students made plans to fake illness, claim to be conscientious objectors, and even to be honoraries in order to escape the draft.

He praised our freedom to speak without slander, and asked the students to point out this privilege if someone speaks against our country. He commended the undivided attention of the entire assemblage.

Everett Ward, Richfield commander of the American Legion post, acted as master of ceremonies. Odel Chaffield was chaplain. Clifford Crum made arrangements for the program.

Clark Urges Attendance At Meetings

HAILLEY-Wayne Clark, chairman of the Yellowstone-Sun Valley Highway Board, said board members will meet with the state highway board at 11 a. m. Tuesday in the highway building in Boise. Clark urged to attend.

Clark said work on some eight and one-half mile east of Tola gap has been under construction this summer. The new road will leave the present one before it reaches Dixie and tie back into the several miles already graded and gravelled several years ago. It is about three and one-half miles long and will be completed to join with the old road in the vicinity of Big Bend. The new road will be built to a higher standard than the old road and will also have to be built to a higher standard.

At 9 a. m. Wednesday in the same building officials of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, the State Highway Board and U. S. Forest Service will meet for allocation of forest funds for forest roads building.

ALL ANGLES

BY LARRY HOWE

The Idaho Fish and Game Department predicted a downward trend in pheasant availability for the 1965 season. It came up worse in a report by the Idaho Game Commission. The report said that pheasant numbers were down 10 to 15 percent from last year. The cause was attributed to a combination of factors, including a late start to the season and a heavy early season hunt.

There are two things that can be remembered, biologists say. The first is that pheasant numbers are down 10 to 15 percent from last year. The second is that biologists are not sure why.

SPARTANS DROP INDIANA; NEBRASKA WINS

No. 1 Team Gets Two Late Scores To Clinch Crown

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State won the Big Ten football championship Saturday and claimed the Rose Bowl by coming from behind to overcome an unexpected stubborn Indiana 27-13. Trailing 13-10 going into the final period, the No. 1 team scored a touchdown on a 43-yard pass from Steve Judge to Gene Washington. Dick Kenney, the Hawaiian kicker, added a 27-yard field goal.

With 13 seconds left to play Charlie Thornhill intercepted an Indiana pass and returned 37 yards to the Indiana five to put State in position for the final score, a four-yard pass from Judge to Washington for his third touchdown of the day.

A crowd of 75,280 saw the thrilling played in a gusty wind of 29 degrees cold.

Indiana, unable to gain through the powerful Spartan line, took to the air with quarterback Gene Grier. Quarterback Frank Stavroff connected repeatedly with long passes to Bill Malinchak and Bill Cough, a player who had never before caught a pass in a college game.

This was the first Michigan State to win and although the conference athletic directors must vote on the representative of the Rose Bowl there was no doubt it would be Michigan State.

TCU Uses Field Goals to Rip Texas 25-10

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Bruce Alford's four field goals and an extra point were the only scores in the one-sided game as Texas Christian University defeated Texas 25-10 Saturday in the Southwest Conference.

The loss was the fourth of the year for Texas, which at one point this season was near the top in national standings.

Both TCU touchdowns and two of the field goals came off miscues by the Longhorns' offensive line. With Texas leading 10-9 near the end of the third period, back line guard Jimmie Lee and tackle Frank Frazier fumbled the ball on the Texas 37.

TCU needed only five plays to drive over with David Garrison scoring on a three-yard pass from fullback Steve Landon.

The Frogs surged in the lead and never lost it.

Texas fumbled again early in the fourth period and that one resulted in Alford's final field goal.

Longhorns' quarterback Kenyon Dyer was trying desperately to recover, saw TCU's Gaby Butler intercept a pass on the Texas 16, and two plays later fullback Kenneth Post went over standing up from the 10.

David Garrison made good a 37-yard field goal in the first five minutes of the game for Texas, then the Longhorns scored in five plays at the top of the third quarter for their 10 points.

The victory ended Army's game streak of three and gave West Point a 4-5 record heading into its final game Nov. 27 with Navy.

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Third-ranked Nebraska rallied from the brink of defeat Saturday to nip Oklahoma State 21-17, then accepted an invitation to play in the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

The Cornhuskers scored with 35 seconds remaining to overcome a 17-14 deficit. They rallied down their ninth straight victory while clinching at least a tie for their third consecutive Big Eight conference title.

"Orange Bowl" officials, on hand to sign the Cornhuskers, made no mention of an opponent for Nebraska in the Miami classic, but speculation centered on Oklahoma State as the opponent.

Showplace Home on Wood River Is Result of Wish to Avoid City Life

By D. A. (Gus) Reiber
 Times-News Feature Editor
KETCHUM—It took just two nights and a few daylight hours to convince Dean Pierson and his wife, Maria, that Idaho was the place to live. Now they are here, residing in one of the showplace homes of this fabulous area.

Radiant heat is transmitted from the ceilings and there is a separate thermostat in every room. The house itself has more than 4,000 square feet of usable space and, if you count the wide many interior walls. All power ducts which nestle under the overhanging facing the river, then the square footage adds up to over the 5,000 mark.

Basins and gut, much rougher than the basins of the natural surroundings.

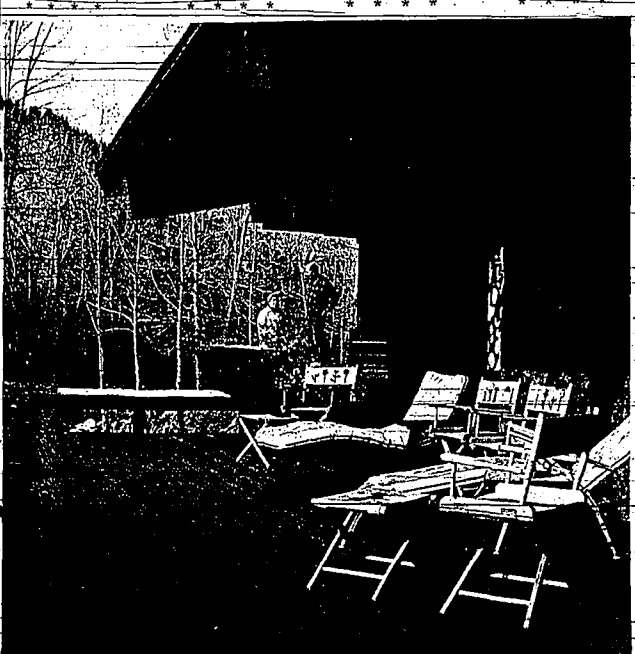

Finer was used to keep in touch with the mountain atmosphere. Great, exposed beams support the rough ones.

Because it sometimes gets below zero in the area, and a bit warm in the summer, there are eight inches of blown insulation under the floors and 12 inches in the walls and ceiling.

Construction and planning are such that guests can have complete privacy from the main portion of the home if they wish.

The siting of a strategically placed door makes this possible. When closed there are actually two complete homes with bathrooms.

in fact, fabulous really isn't the word to describe the Pierson home, because it actually is more than fabulous.

But this is getting ahead of the story. The "two nights" couple originally spent in this area was about two years ago when they were en route from Pasadena, Calif., to Yellowstone Park for summer fishing.

It was at the urging of Mrs. Pierson that they decided to reach the park via Ketchum. They stayed in the area that night and continued on the next day. On the return trip they also came by way of Ketchum, stayed one more night, then continued on their way.

Those "two nights," however, were all that was needed to set both of them to thinking. They returned to Pasadena.

The wheels started to turn. He was in the maintenance business in that area. He made the necessary adjustments and provisions and "retired" this last spring he retired. They headed toward Ketchum and Sun Valley.

Now they are "at home" in their new abode, which is located about four and one-half miles north of Ketchum on highway 83. The house is on four acres of land on the bank of the Big Wood River.

Construction started June 4 and they moved in Sept. 1. A few odds and ends are left to be completed and the landscaping must be done, but other than that they are settled.

Bradford Shaw, Boise, was architect for the home, while Ralph Sherman, Boise, was contractor. Pierson pitched in and helped rather than just sit and Mrs. Pierson, whose hobby is interior decorating, among other things, kept busy in that field.

The imposing structure is not the biggest in the valley, but then it isn't the smallest, either. It is a showplace of good taste and good living, and the transplanted California couple is going to stay right here and live.

The house is built to last and will stand the rigors of the Wood River winters. Forty tons of lava rock went into the construction and is featured in

UNSET ON BEACH-PINE is the title of the canvas which has been presented to the Burley Public Library by Mrs. Zelma Bauer, Paul, right. Valued at $250, the painting is one of 30 which the local artist exhibited at the library last month. The

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

A life-long dream of becoming a professional artist, is becoming a reality to a 38-year-old PAUL woman, Mrs. Zelma Bauer, who has harvested this desire since she was 12 years old. She is currently in the process of having a studio built behind her home east of Paul, since she was a child, Mrs. Bauer has had aspirations of developing the art of brush painting beautiful scenes on canvas. Her desire was to give herself and other enjoyment through her art efforts and not "to make my own name great."

She took a "30-year leave of absence" from her painting in 1933. During this period she was mother to three adopted children, and supporter of community welfare.

In 1963 she revived the dormant talent of producing art on canvas which is being purchased by many.

Mrs. Bauer was born Jan. 7, 1927, in Hamilton, to the late Mrs. and Mrs. J. A. Wheeler. During her youth it was natural for her to sketch with pen and ink.

She was graduated from Mooreland high school as valedictorian and began training at Brigham Young University as a social student in art.

She married her first husband, Mr. J. A. Wheeler, in 1947. They raised three adopted children, Bruce, who lives in Australia; Mrs. Roy (Ann) Irvin, Princeton, Ore. and Mark, attending trade school at Pocatello. They have five grand-children and two step-grand-children. The couple later was divorced.

Writing also seems to come naturally to Mrs. Bauer, and she has written several short stories, poems and does sewing for herself and others. Her short stories are designed for certain age levels, and she has taken professional instruction in writing.

She is active in the LDS church and has held offices in each church auxiliary. She has written several stories from her work, she is traveling to various parts of the state trying to capture the scenic beauty on her canvases.

She has worked at the Burley Nursing home the past two years and has cared for many area residents. The adage, "it's the little things that count" describes the manner used by her in her efforts to bring more comfort and joy to others.

"I believe that we are created to be of service to others," she says.

Scene is from an area located three miles west of Malta, Mrs. Bauer, the model, with instructor from San Francisco, Brigham Young University and Olaf Moller, Paul, professional artist.

Mr. Moller, who is a truck driver for the Stockman's Meat Packing plant, was leading the tallow from a company truck to a railroad tank car when something went wrong with the connections. For a few minutes it looked as if the whole situation might get pretty slippery, but the connections soon were tightened. When the tallow cooled, the driver simply shoveled up his escaping load and got it safely in the tank.

The incident was not reported to law enforcement officers as no city property or streets were involved.

Marshall's Aid Plan Is In $100 Billion Class

By LEWIS GULICK WASHINGTON (AP)—One hundred billion dollars, according to George C. Marshall, would not recognize the Marshall Plan.

Over the years, the U.S. foreign aid program has had many names—and has seen—many changes. It's still big business, and it is under continuing scrutiny.

President Johnson has ordered the executive branch to review the program with the intent of asking Congress next year for a long-term commitment. If Congress agrees to give up its authority to set terms and ceilings each year, the program will be getting yet another new face.

It began in 1948 under Secretary of State Marshall as U.S. aid to Western Europe on its feet after World War II. Today it is a program of disbursements to about 104 countries.

The exact number keeps changing with shifts in the political winds.

A recovered Europe now gets little U.S. aid and hands out considerable help of its own.

The fundamental purpose of the U.S. aid always has been to strengthen allies' defenses and make a long-term allyship less vulnerable to U.S. enemies.

Within this general purpose, Washington now concentrates its development dollars on a handful of the economically most promising countries. Much of the rest of U.S. aid is spread far, for various political reasons.

Congressional approval of $12 billion in foreign aid in the coming fiscal year is another demonstration of how the face of foreign-aid legislation has been changing. This was only $222 million, or less than 1 per cent, below what President Johnson had asked last year.

Texan Knows "Linton" for Longest Time

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP)—Oto Lindig considers that he has known "Linton" B. Johnson longer and better, than any man alive.

Having first encountered the future president when the latter was a young boy, Lindig, 62, may have a point.

"I remember the young Lindigs as a family from Stone Wall, Tex., following a double-shovel plow when he was 8."

"By the time he was 11, he was hauling lumber, going on horse and wagon to the gin," says Lindig.

The oldest recalls LBJ's "boodays in the country" and the highlights to him was the boy's first public speech.

"That was in 1921—when Linton was 10—when he was 13, with a declaration of intent to the Old Klaxon Opera House in Fredrickburg.

Lindig regards himself as a sort of Johnson family historian, in fact, because his bygone friends included the first president's father, Sam, and grandfather, Sam Sr., Lady Bird Johnson is relying on Lindig's memories as a main source for a book she is writing about the LBJ Ranch.

From time to time Lindig still drops in on the Johnson home. He is an old figure with his grizzled hair whiskers, scarred face and age-dimmed eyes, usually dressed in boots, wrinkled sports shirt, nondescript trousers and white straw hat.

But as Lindig tells it, the Secret Service agents who guard the president—never—challenge him.

"One of them just says, 'This is old Lindig,'" he explains. "I just walk right on in."

During an interview, Lindig said that on Aug. 27, 1908, he and his wife, Mary, were in the town when Sam Johnson called out "Come in, Oto. I have some friends that you've helped on the farm."

The something was a newborn baby.

"It was Linton," said Lindig. "Sam said, 'That boy is going to be governor of Texas some day.'"

He looked at the baby and I made Sam mad. I told him, 'He's certainly got his mother's head.'

Lindig's mind is clear and his memory near flawless. He is quick to straighten out anybody who blunders in on the many aspects of the President's early life.

Last spring Elizabeth Carpenter, Mrs. Johnson's secretary, invited Lindig to Johnson City where, with the President's wife, she will be celebrating the 60th wedding anniversary of the couple.

Lindig is a member of the Johnson family and has a congratulatory card last year.

And on Thanksgiving Day last year the President and Mrs. Johnson sent over two Secret Service agents loaded down with gifts to the ranch. On the plates was imprinted: "From Lyndon and Lady Bird."

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

Christ—We don't have to unite on opinion, even if they did not. We may have our own opinions, but should not try to force them on others. We should be united in Christ, the same. If one believes that Jesus Christ is the only begotten Son of God and acts upon that belief—by surrendering himself to the Lordship of Christ, he is a Christian. He is a Christian who believes, he is a Christian who accepts, he is a Christian who is united. And between them there is unity. The kind of unity Jesus prayed: the kind of unity which all of us should strive for.

Social Security Office to Sign Mini-Cassia Residents

The Twin Falls Social Security Office will conduct a special campaign this week to get eligible residents of Cassia and Minidoka counties signed up for Medicare.

Four specially trained employees according to the Social Security Office will be in Burley Tuesday and in Rupert Wednesday to provide a special enrollment opportunity for residents of the Mini-Cassia area who have not yet signed up.

The "Medicare" group will be in the Rupert City Fire Hall, 630 W. St., from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday.

All residents of Cassia and Minidoka counties age 65 or over who have not already applied for Social Security or Railroad Retirement benefits are urged to take advantage of this special enrollment opportunity.

Those who sign up now can be assured that they will be ready for Medicare when it actually goes into effect next year. The Twin Falls Social Security Office is located at 100 W. Main Street.

Practically all residents of Minidoka and Cassia counties who are at least 65 years old are eligible to sign up for the special insurance benefits under Medicare, whether they have social security credit or not.

The early Church was united on Christ. That is precisely where their unity was—in Christ.

Genetics Course Stated in Filer

UNIVERSITY of Idaho officials announced today that a genetics course will be offered in Filer by Paul Kaus, assistant director of the University of Idaho Division of Adult Education. The class will meet three hours a night, one night a week for 16 weeks.

A three-credit course, Kaus said, "costs" but "students would be able to get credit for the course." Instruction of genetics will emphasize upon application to plant and animal breeding and human welfare.

"Registration will be conducted by Dr. Kolar, at the first scheduled class session," said Kaus. "The course is limited to a maximum of 17 students and a minimum of 10. Interested individuals should contact Dr. Kolar and make reservations for enrollment. He may be called at 423-5332 or 733-4648."

to entertain. There are six children in the family, four of them married and all college graduates. Of the two who are not married, one is working in Los Angeles and the other is an advanced student at Stanford University.

The masters have other problems, too. Concrete motor roads abound and the big estates are continually subdivided so one can hardly get a decent gallop without running into a barbed wire fence.

And the anti-blood sports campaigners contend that the majority of the British public is against blood sports of any kind. "Raymond Rowley, chairman of the league against cruel sports, also claims his organization has doubled in size to nearly 30,000 in the past year."

"We just needed a big house once—all of them—visit us," Mrs. Pierson smiled.

The entire home is furnished exquisitely and everything seems to blend with everything else in a way that is typical of this Big Wood River valley area that is growing by leaps and bounds. People from far away states are moving to Idaho to get away from—piersons put it— "from the rat race of the overpopulated areas."

"We are now Idaho residents and it is a pleasure to be here," they said in unison.

They also admitted one more thing that seems somewhat strange in an area made world famous because of nearby valleys.

"Mr. and Mrs. Pierson do not man of the league against cruel sports, also claims his organization has doubled in size to nearly 30,000 in the past year."

Fox Season In England Nears Start

LONDON (AP) — There's a poor outlook for the foxes in this Socialist welfare state. They will—must—lose their lives when the fox-hunting season opens in the English shires Monday perhaps more people will be riding to hounds than at any time since the war.

The British field sports clubs claim the figure will be about 20,000 on horseback—not to mention the many who follow every hunt by car, bicycle and foot.

"Though the hunt still is dashing and brisk, the picture isn't quite the same as it was in the days of the hunt," says the secretary.

And it is being opposed vigorously by the parliament of the fox, the anti-hog sportsman.

"Not many people can now afford to buy a hunter (horse), a pink coat, white breeches, top hat and all the rest," says the second earl of Halifax, chairman of the Master of Foxhounds Association.

"The big landowners aren't around any more. The people we get now are mostly working farmers, with a sprinkling of professional men, such as doctors or lawyers."

Annual subscription to an average pack can run about $10 but Halifax says in his part of the country (the east riding of Yorkshire) some farmers get by with a gift of oats instead.

The mixers of hounds—mostly titled and demitiated men—are worried about their public image. Faced with mounting attacks from anti-blood sports groups and hunt saboteurs who spread false reports to drive the hounds away from foxes, they seek to show they are not really chivalric but lie on horseback.

They have come to London to meet the press and talk over ways of countering criticism.

Wilderness Areas Offer Quality Elk Hunting for Serious Sportsman

BY JIM HUMBRID
Idaho Fish-Gams Department
BOISE—Empty-handed hunters wanting privacy and another chance at big game, particularly elk, are overlooking good best units they take the trouble to outfit themselves and seek the remoteness of a wilderness area.

Idaho has three separate but adjoining regions that are defined by the Forest Service as wilderness areas. This means they are roadless public land where agricultural and industrial development are not allowed. A large part of central Idaho is in this class. Several other big regions are included in the wilderness system have big game conditions similar to the areas set aside by the Forest Service.

Two of the three Idaho wilderness areas combine to make a rugged, mountainous region about 150 miles long and 50 to 65 miles wide. These are the Selway-Blitzen-Wilderness Area and the home of the Selway-Blitzen river contains one and one-half million acres, extending from the Lewis and Clark trail to the main Salmon River.

The Idaho Wilderness Area, running south from the Salmon River, includes the Selway-Blitzen river but also includes the Chamberlain Basin and Cold Meadows areas that drain into the main Salmon River over a million acres are in this region.

Steep, rocky canyons are numerous in these wilderness areas. Small tributary streams often are in the bottoms. Some times gentle slopes provide the deer and goat and soil gradually accumulates. Peaks and ridges on either side are bleak. Most of the soil here is coarse, decomposing rock. Wide differences in elevation are found because of the steepness. These vary from 2,150 at the lowest point of the Salmon River on the western edge of the Selway-Blitzen to 10,700 feet on Mt. McGuire in the Big Horn Crags.

Many peaks and ridges are 10,000 to 12,000 feet making travel difficult. Eighteen forest roads approach the boundaries of these wilderness areas from all sides, giving limited access. In addition, 16 backcountry airplane landing strips and a great many pack trails are available within the areas.

Outfitters and guides are located in designated areas to provide services to hunters. Jet boats, commercially operated, make the Selway-Blitzen river of the main Salmon River the "River of No Return." These boats are found in the wilderness areas. Snow removal from Nez Perce Pass on Selway-Blitzen divide and Profile Summit to the good. The department be-hunts usually are to be had by men and women who are willing and brave to go into the wild empty back country that is dream stuff for every hunter. It is a rough life, but the effort is becoming more popular every year. Many out of state hunters take these trips. (Fish and Game Department photo)

Government's Figure Chief Discloses Results of Long Study of People

WASHINGTON (AP)—Economic life is becoming much younger than in the past, the government's chief philosopher of figures for 18 years, has been keeping tabs on the way Americans earn and spend their money.

"Really, I haven't preached statistics all day," Clague, who retired Oct. 15 as commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said in a speech before the nation's economic machinery.

Housewives handling the family budget are told that the monthly consumer price index how much more they are spending for food, clothing, medical care and many other items.

Thousands of workers will be laid off as the government tightens its belt and deepens its economic ills.

He also predicts a sluggish recovery in 1966, with the annual 1.2 per cent in recent years.

Clague calls the broad range of economic activity covered by the bureau's reports "a revolution in statistics" in the past 20 years.

He believes it has taken much of the guesswork from the workings of the economy, ironed out rough spots, assessed the change of recessions and made impossible a recurrence of disasters such as the 1929-1933 crash and the great depression, Clague said.

In the boom that preceded the 1929 crash and the great depression, Clague said, nobody knew the hours of work and all those orders were duplicate orders and were purely fictitious. There were no statistics on inventories.

Now, he said, the government's constant taking of the nation's economic pulse through statistics is a revolution in statistics. It is a revolution in statistics, he said, in that the productivity figures are taking much of the heat out of labor disputes.

Another part of the revolution in statistics, he said, is that the productivity figures are taking much of the heat out of labor disputes.

Labor and management discovered, he said, that statistics could solve problems at the bargaining table, lessening the threat of brute strength in long-strike strikes.

After 20 years of government service, Clague is still ready for more. He will serve as a special consultant to Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz on policy and theory dealing with statistics.

In addition, he will lecture at universities, travel with his wife, a physician, and do some writing.

He also predicts a sluggish recovery in 1966, with the annual 1.2 per cent in recent years.

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT

Edward L. Benoit, Native Son, Finds Idaho Best All-Around Place to Live

Edward L. Benoit, Twin Falls attorney, has traveled extensively, but he has never seen a place he would rather live than right here in Twin Falls.

"Perhaps it is because I was born in Twin Falls and have lived right in town practically my whole life," he says.

"I've never seen a better place."

"It is a grand place to raise a family and there are all the facilities which are necessary for a good life."

The local attorney also is a man who is in the profession he wanted to be in ever since he was a boy, although he was with a hitch at one time.

That time came when he served in the service after World War II and then, in March of 1946, left to attend a law school in Chicago.

—Pierce, Fenner and Smith, now known as Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

After the training he was assigned to the company office at Pullman, Idaho.

When the company opened an office in Salt Lake City in the spring of 1948, he accepted a vice post at that location.

It was about this time that he was the first to be admitted to the bar as an attorney. He admits that he had the thought in the back of his head all this time that he would be sure. Now he is sure.

He enrolled at the University of Utah in November, 1946, just a few weeks later than he should have enrolled. He made up the credits he had missed and at the end of the fall quarter of 1949 was granted his bachelor's degree. That degree was his first.

He has his second degree, of course, as he had previously been graduated from the University of Idaho with high honors and a bachelor of arts degree in 1942.

Edward was born in Twin Falls, Idaho, in 1921. This event took place in the privately owned hospital which later became a part of the city and was the first of the new post office.

As a student he attended St. Edward's grade school and was a graduate of the Twin Falls High School, class of 1938.

At the local high school he was a student body president in his senior year and had also been president of the Junior League.

He was on the debate team for three years and in his senior year traveled to Jacksonville, Ill., for the national conference.

petition after the local unit had won the state title.

He was active in dramatics, was a member of the National Honor Society and was also cheerleader for three years.

At the University of Idaho he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Eta Sigma, national honoraries. In his senior year he was business manager of the college annual "Gem of the Mountains."

He was also, at the university, a member of the Silver-Lance and Blue Key activity and honoraries and the Seaboard and Glendale military society.

Upon graduation he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the army air force reserve and in July, 1942, went on active duty with the air force at Will Rogers Field in Oklahoma.

In August, 1943, he was promoted to the rank of captain and became the post adjutant. He was there until April, 1945, when he was transferred to Key Field, Meridian, Miss., also as post adjutant.

He was separated from the service in March, 1946.

At the University of Utah he was in Phi Kappa Phi, a scholastic honorary, and was a member and served as president of Phi Alpha Beta, a legal fraternity.

He also participated in the first moot trial ever staged at the Utah school.

During his study at Utah University he worked five days a week, from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m., with a tractor firm to make money to finance his education and also to support his wife, the former Norma Lou McMurray, during her pregnancy.

On Dec. 28, 1942, after graduation from the University of Idaho, he and his wife were married, four years and two days after our first date," he laughed. "We went to gather all the time we were at the university."

Two children were born to the union. Lou, 21, is a senior at the University of Idaho while Leslie, 18, is a sophomore at a highway.

"These yield signs let people make an evaluation for themselves, should they pull into the highway, or wait a while? They recognize the decision is theirs and I suspect they normally face up to the situation," Stevens said.

Talking Road Signs Next For Drivers

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of these days, highway signs may talk to drivers, instead of just advising them via the printed word.

Findings are due next year from studies at Georgia Tech on the value of traffic messages sent by radio. The Ford-Pilkco people have developed a way to deliver them.

These new signposts were discussed in a symposium by Barlow Stevens, a psychologist with the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

"No one is sure what those messages should contain, nor how to send them, or how to read them. One question is how many times to repeat the message, how far ahead of an intersection for example."

There are transmission problems. Messages are sent from a transmitter by the side of the road, and picked up by the passing driver with special receiving equipment in his car or truck. They could come in on a beam to which the car radio could be set. Conceivably, the messages could be broadcast locally from the roadside. But what if the radio was not turned on? Or the car windows were rolled up and the driver couldn't hear what was being loud-speaked?

It may come as a surprise to some that the Bureau of Public Roads has psychologists working on it. But they've been there from the behavioral sciences for almost six years, working with great interest on problems created by drivers on highways.

"For a while, we're studying the limitations and capabilities of the driver," Stevens said. "For example, there is a lot of concern over how much information a driver can absorb and act on when he comes to a big traffic interchange."

People differ in their skills, naturally, even in their ability to read. Some drivers may be sleepy, or under the influence of alcohol.

"We hope to develop a system that can be used efficiently by a variety of people with a wide variety of conditions," Stevens said.

Our approach is not restrictive. We have not attempted to suggest stricter licensing. We recognize the importance of transportation in economic and local life.

One of the most popular developments in recent years has been the "yield" sign, often in place of a stop sign, where a fast-moving road enters a main

Twin Falls High School. The family home is at 402-Allures Drive.

After graduation from Utah University, Benoit returned to Twin Falls where he became associated with his father, Harry Benoit, and the firm of Benoit and Benoit was formed. Offices are in the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co. building—His father had had a law office there since 1918.

In 1960 young Benoit became interested in work of the Idaho State Bar association and served as a member of the state examining committee. In July, 1963, he was elected one of three commissioners of the Idaho Bar and in July, 1964, was named vice president, then was elected president in July of this year.

He recently attended and participated in a program at Seattle as a featured speaker. In February, 1966, he will appear on the program of the National Conference of Bar Presidents in Chicago.

Down through the years he has been active in Republican politics. He has served as president of the Twin Falls County Young Republicans and also as county chairman and district chairman.

In Twin Falls he has served as a director of the Chamber of Commerce, is a member of the Elks, the American Legion and the Knights-of-Columbus and is a former director and present member of the board of trustees of the Blue Lakes Country Club. He is a former member of the Rotary club and is a member of St. Edward's Catholic church.

He is convinced that all people should be interested in politics and that people who live in a community should do some donated work to better that community.

Two children were born to the union. Lou, 21, is a senior at the University of Idaho while Leslie, 18, is a sophomore at a highway.

"These yield signs let people make an evaluation for themselves, should they pull into the highway, or wait a while? They recognize the decision is theirs and I suspect they normally face up to the situation," Stevens said.

BIGGEST Year Yet for Irrigation Pumping Additions in Snake River Valley

THIS IS PROGRESS

Electric pumping has added more than a million productive acres to the irrigated land of Snake River Valley during the past 20 years—and 1965 was the biggest year yet.

Pump irrigation and the initiative of enterprising farmers have been converting sage-covered desert into high-producing cropland at a rate of about 50,000 acres annually for the entire valley during recent years.

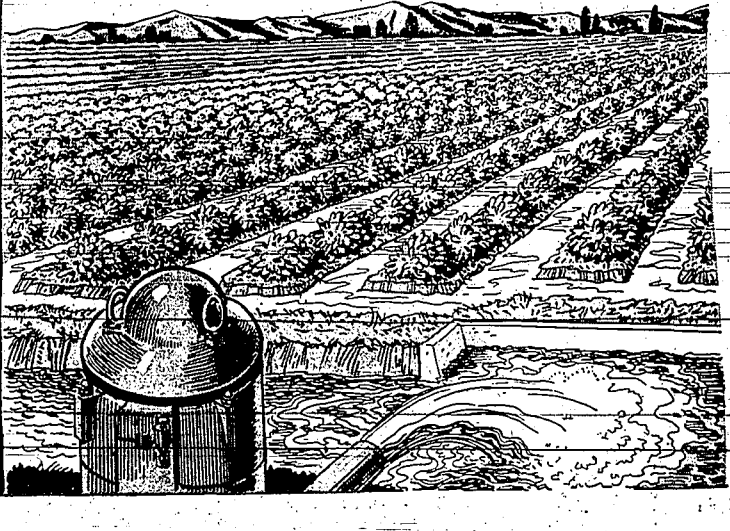

This year, within Idaho Power's service area, the added electric-pump irrigation stands at 65,000 new acres!

It's a significant stride in the progress of the valley. Land values for the affected acres have been enhanced—from the transition wrought by irrigation and reclamation—by an estimated $35,000,000 this year in increased agricultural wealth. Employment, new crop income, new processing plants and new tax revenues resulted. Some 2,000 new jobs were created—one-third on the farms and two-thirds in related industries.

Electric power for the new irrigation pumps—amounting to more than 50,000 horsepower—is enough electricity to supply a city of 45,000 population. Idaho Power invested more than $1,000,000 for additional substations, transmission and distribution lines.

The progress of the Snake River Valley is soundly conceived and remarkable in scope. Best of all, with about 3,000,000 acres of arid land still awaiting development, progress can continue for the foreseeable future.

Artifacts Found by 5 Students

SALMON—Five University of Idaho students, doing research in the Mann's Creek drainage in Washington County, turned up Indian artifacts this past summer which they believe may be eight to nine thousand years old.

The oldest known civilization in the Northwest has been carbon dated at about 10,000 years, and was located on the Columbia River, the University said in a news release.

An Idaho State University crew under direction of Dr. Earl H. Swanson, director of the ISU Museum, last summer uncovered evidence for a rock shelter along the Salmon River below Pine Creek bridge that man may have inhabited the shelter between 11,000 and 12,000 years ago.

The crew found a small number of stone tools, as well as some bone implements, flakes, charcoal and animal bone and was located just above a layer of volcanic ash which appeared to come from an eruption of Glacier Peak in the Cascade range in Washington.

This eruption took place sometime around 12,700 years ago, Dr. Swanson said.

NEW YORK (AP)—Lauren Bacall is giving Broadway another chance.

The husky-toned dame, switched to the stage in rebellion against films five years ago. Now instruction is reversed; movies are in the theater is on probation.

"I was ambivalent about Hollywood," she says. "It's a pretentious but there was a tendency then to write you off quickly or stick you in a slot."

"Peter Pan" Showing Set For January

NEW YORK (AP)—Mary Martin's "Peter Pan" will be broadcast for the fifth time on NBC on Jan. 21, the network announced today. The two-hour production is one of an elite group of television classics of quality so fine and with such universal appeal that they can be used again and again.

The network television series' fantastic output—some 71 hours a week in prime evening time alone—is surprising, given the reputation of the medium as a few programs have achieved impressive stature.

NBC's "Anah and the Night Visitors," the opera written by Gian Carlo Menotti for television, has been presented at Christmas time for the past 16 years, which certainly qualifies it as the medium's top classic.

Then, too, there is CBS' "Wizard of Oz" which will be repeated for the eighth consecutive year on Jan. 9. That 30-year-old motion picture starring Judy Garland when she was a child still can only qualify as an adopted television classic since it first had a long and glorious career in theaters.

"Peter Pan" based on Miss Martin's hit Broadway musical was a live broadcast in 1955 and repeated again live a year later. A second production, on tape, was undertaken in 1960 and re-run two years later.

Miss Bacall discusses with her husband the title of the husband in her life; Robards and the late Humphrey Bogart. What about the recent upsurge of interest in Bogart films and the flood of books about him?

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

First question this week concerns Fractional Currency, and comes from L. R. Jerome, Idaho.

The letter reads, in part, "I have two pieces of what looks like paper money, but they are much smaller than a dollar bill and are marked Five Cent and Three Cents and they have United States of America on them. Some of my friends call them 'split' money, but they have been in my family a long time, so I have kept them. Can you tell me anything about them?"

Answer: The notes you have are most certainly not "split money," but genuine legal tender of the United States. During the early years of the Civil War, the country faced a shortage of small change just as we have in the past two years. In order to alleviate this shortage, Congress authorized the issuance of "Postage Stamp Currency," so-called because it bore the image of stamps then in use.

This first issue was in denominations of 5, 10, 25 and 50 cent notes. Later issues of Fractional Currency did not carry the postage-stamp picture, but the denominations, a 3 cent bill.

It might interest you to know that although many people do not even realize the treasury has issued these small sized notes, nearly 30 million dollars worth of it was issued. A great amount of it is still around, never having been redeemed by its owners, although it is still legal tender which is redeemable for postage stamps.

Since records kept at the time were not very accurate, only an estimate is available as to the amount outstanding, but government figures show about two million still to be redeemed.

This is a lot of money when you consider that the largest of the notes only represents 50 cents.

All of the Fractional Currency is worth more than face value, depending upon condition, and a great many of the notes are very scarce and command quite a premium. Since I do not know which notes or issues you have, I cannot give you a value, but if you will write me a card and describe the notes, I will let you know what you have.

Mrs. A. L. of Twin Falls, Idaho writes: I have a coin which looks like a quarter and says "United States of N.," but it is unlike any other coin I have ever seen and I would like to know something about it. On the front is a picture of a woman with a crown on her head.

Answer: The coin you describe is the words "Columbian Quarter Dollar," issued in conjunction with the Columbian Exposition of 1893, which was held in Chicago, Ill., during that year. A half dollar was issued to commemorate the exposition and the obverse (face) of the coin bore the likeness of Christopher Columbus.

Since the Ladies on the Board of Managers of the exposition demanded equal rights, a quarter dollar was struck, also, and this is the coin you have. The words you cannot make out read as follows: "Board of Ladies Managers' Issued by the United States Treasury, the likeness of a female ruler.

Only 24,214 of these coins were struck, although the coin being very scarce, it can be bought quite readily, even in the worst condition.

To W. R. L. Hagerman, Idaho writes: "The coin you describe is the regular issue, '1893' Liberty Head, of 1893 to 1912. The coin being very scarce, you describe it, and the value is worth quite a bit more than its face value."

Sorry—better luck next time. (Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho.)

THE HOME-LAWN: If you've put some grass seeds in the lawn, don't worry now, not next spring. Work the soil loose, add a little peat moss, then sprinkle some grass seed. Don't worry about the seed does not germinate this year. It will be dormant all winter, ready to sprout the following spring.

WATER WEEDS: Sprout a good time to clean up the weeds in the garden. Teste them for weeds act as reservoirs of infection for verticillium wilt fungus, the disease which causes tomatoes, egg plants, flowers and many other plants to suddenly wilt and die. Pull up all broad-leaved weeds, especially red root pigweed, lamb's qu...

GLAD BULBS: Before you store your gladiolus bulbs, cut the tops with a knife, leaving to the bulb. Don't leave a stub on. Do leave the papery skin bulbs on as they protect bulbs from drying out. Place bulbs in a shallow tray and dust with DDT to kill thrips.

SCREEN BOTTOM TRAYS: Are better than boxes. Best temperature is 35 to 50 degrees. Should you save bulbs from plants which did not bloom? If they are good and solid I think you can save them. Usually, thrips or botrytis disease have been responsible for plants not flowering. Captain checks botrytis and DDT banishes thrips, so I'd save your huskiest bulbs, even if the plant did not bloom for you.

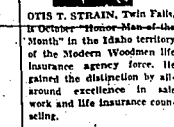

CLEMATIS: Did you know that this handsome vine makes a fine border in a garden. It is up-and-down-a-certain-in-a-bright window. Be careful not to break the stem as you bend it.

KEEP IT UNIFORMLY WATERED and in a bright window. After the plants have finished the seedling, you can continue to grow it or until warm weather comes. Then you can plant it outdoors in a permanent spot. FREE: Want to know more about clematis? Send me a self-addressed envelope and ask for a copy of my guide. It's full of good tips on growing this Queen of all the vines. Be sure to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Postal cards cannot be honored.

PRAYER PLANTS: The Marantaceae "Prayer Plant" is one of our finer foliage plants. It gets its name from the fact that the leaves turn upward on the stems at night, like praying hands. This is a longtime favorite of mine because of its decorative colorings on the surface. The prayer plant likes a humusy well-drained soil, and a warm temperature, especially at night. If the night temperature is below 60 degrees the leaves will turn yellow and drop. If brown spots develop on the tips of foliage, then the entire plant starts to dry up, put the plant in hot, dry room, or dry soil.

Also keep the plant out of strong sun. Their thin leaves

It's best to water the plants well and let them more or less dry out between waterings. If you water them too much the plants will die within a few days. Avoid pots which are glazed and be careful of plastic containers. can grow lilies well, but since they do not allow for air exchange, it's a mistake to use them in these containers. The florist's staff pot does a good job for lilies as there is less danger of overwatering. A liquid feeding once every three or four weeks is sufficient.
