Johnson Arrives In Manila for Viet Nam Parley

MANILA (AP) — President Johnson arrived Sunday for the Manila conference on Viet Nam after renewing a U.S.-offer to halt bombing North Viet Nam and produce a troop withdrawal schedule if the Communists say what they will do to peace. "I came to listen and to learn and to do what I can to help chart the work ahead," he said of the seven-nation summit conference here Monday and Tuesday.

Excitement Heightens In Manila

MANILA (AP) — Public excitement heightened in this hot and humid capital Sunday on the eve of the Manila summit conference on Viet Nam which President Johnson, flying in from a whirlwind tour of Australia, will attend.

Johnson meets Monday with the heads-of-state of other nations fighting the Communists in Viet Nam in deliberations affecting the future of peace in Southeast Asia and perhaps the peace of the world. Johnson had no public appearances on his scheduled day after the welcoming ceremonies for his mid-afternoon arrival.

Officials eased the perils of Manila's traffic-clogged streets for conference participants. Traffic, including the thousands of multi-colored "jeepneys" which are ubiquitous on World War II vintage vehicles, as being routed away from main roads by the visiting dignitaries.

Advance teams of diplomats of the seven nations labored at preliminary spadework for the official opening of the conference in an atmosphere of agreement—or fundamentals. But there were points of misgivings on the part of some states in the approach to peace in Viet Nam.

It was shaping up as a conference of high power and low expectations.

Ships Collide In Harbor Killing 28

MANILA (AP) — The crowded inter-liner steamer Pioneer Leyte collided with an American freighter in Manila Bay Sunday night and sank with the known loss of 28 dead.

Rescue craft speeding from the shore only six miles away found 100 bodies and the second ship, the 7,598-ton American vessel Golden State, limped into Manila harbor with a jagged, 40-foot gash in her side just above the water line.

The Golden State had several bodies aboard and began unloading them in Manila's harbor, hardly a mile from the hotel where President Johnson will be staying when he arrives.

The ill-fated Pioneer Leyte was the sister ship of the 12,000-ton sister ship which was in a typhoon four months ago with the loss of 132 lives out of 262 passengers on board.

The Pioneer Leyte, a 778-ton ship, sailed from Manila before midnight Saturday on the same run as the sister ship which was in a typhoon four months ago with the loss of 132 lives out of 262 passengers on board.

The collision took place about 10 miles outside Manila's harbor and six miles off the U.S. Naval Station at Sangley Point. The ship was calm but there was a light tropical overcast.

Snow Blankets Hills, Roads Slick for Big Game Hunters

Hills and mountains of Southern Idaho were blanketed with snow Saturday during the first storm of the season.

The Rock Creek Ranger Station reports nearly three and one-half inches of snow fell Saturday. The personnel at the station said the snow was falling during the morning and evening, a slight fall in the afternoon.

PRINCE PHILIP, IN WHITE JACKET, husband of the British monarch, talks with rescue workers amid the rubble of Panteglas Junior School at Aberfan, Wales, Saturday afternoon during his tour of the devastated area. Rescue officials said 130 bodies—nearly all children—have been dug out of the debris. (AP wirephoto by cable from Aberfan.)

Death Toll May Hit 220 in Ada County Avalanche Tragedy

ABERFAN, Wales (AP) — Heavy rain fell on this grieving Welsh village Saturday, bringing fear that a death-dealing mountain of coal slag might move again and imperil nearly 2,000 exhausted rescue workers toiling in the ruins of a buried school.

Police said the death toll in this greatest tragedy of modern Wales may rise to 220—most of the victims the young children of miners. As the dredded rains began pouring down on the vast heap of coal, mine workers refused still menacing the village, workers reported 130 bodies—nearly all children from 7 to 11—had been recovered from the wreck of Panteglas Junior School.

It was a horrendous rain that weakened the 800-foot-high mound of slag Friday and sent it sliding down on Aberfan, sweeping the tiny school and 17 adjoining cottages.

Rescue workers, many of them miners searching the rubble for their own children, were near the breaking point after 24 hours on hopeless effort. The British government offered to call in the army to help the exhausted miners after several had collapsed from exhaustion.

Officials had almost given up hope of finding any more survivors in the school and crushed cottages.

"There might be a pocket of air somewhere," said Dr. David See AVALANCHE, Pg. 2, Col. 5

Ground Battle Lull Persists In Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A lull in major ground fighting persisted in the Viet Nam war Saturday, but intelligence reports reaching allied commanders indicated stepped up action by the Viet Cong in coming to coincide with the U.S. summit conference ending Monday.

Allied commanders were preparing for an expected surge of Communist terror and military activity over the next few days.

Extra security measures under way also continued speculation that President Johnson would visit the war front, most likely next Thursday, with a peace report reaching allied commanders.

At Da Nang, 300 miles north of Saigon, the ground fighting again broke out into small patch actions, the war over North Viet Nam picked up steam as Communist forces reached the U.S. military to mount 120 missions Friday, 40 more than the previous day, but the forces cost another American plane, the 40th anniversary of the war over the North.

89th Congress Adjourns After Deadlock Breaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 89th Congress—termed history's greatest by President Johnson — adjourned Saturday after the Senate had overcome a frustrating, last-minute deadlock over a tax bill. The final gavel fell after hours of angry debate in the Senate — and of speech making and recesses in the House, which had completed its business Friday. The Senate adjourned for the year at 5:08 p.m.

Petition for Vote on City Regime Clouded

A City Commission announcement regarding the recently submitted petition asking for a special election to determine Twin Falls' form of city government has prompted an angry reply and a promise of rebuttal from the petition's sponsor, Nolan Victor, Twin Falls' estate dealer.

The commission found only 281 of the petition's 1,182 signatures to be those of duly registered city voters. A total of 794 signatures, or 25 percent of the registered voters, are necessary in order for the election to be called.

The commission found that Victor himself was not a registered city voter.

"I'll admit I've not taken as much interest in city government as I should have," Victor said when questioned about his lack of registration, "but I have never known a wasn't a city voter," he added.

He said that he wasn't entirely sure about the date he had last marked a ballot in a city election.

A special registration for city voters is held prior to each city election. Registration for state and national elections does not qualify the voter for city elections.

The petition, submitted to the commission Monday evening, "demands" an election so Twin Falls' voters may vote on whether or not they want to retain the city manager form of government or return to the mayor form.

Unfortunately, the city officials have invalidated the wishes of 1,182 citizens of the city of Twin Falls. This will not bring the city back to a city.

He added that he is willing to "pay the price to stop reckless government."

Commission Chairman Eggon Kroll said Friday the matter has been turned over to the city attorney, who is studying the statutes for an interpretation of the city charter.

The official Soviet news agency, called Luna 12 a "new step forward" but did not explain why.

A brief official announcement said that the "automated station," the term used here for unmanned spacecraft, would conduct "further explorations of the moon and near-lunar space."

The mention of near lunar space and the description of Luna 12 as an artificial moon, however, indicated the satellite intended to orbit the moon rather than land on the lunar surface.

Luna 12 was the fourth Lunik the Soviet Union launched this year. In August, Luna 10 became the first satellite to swing into a close orbit of the moon.

Luna 11 completed 17 orbits of the moon before burning out Oct. 1.

"We also plan to try to meet with the store owners, and they would not unless a responsible authority presents evidence of criminal offense in the country."

Kidwell said Friday he did not have such evidence but said leads had been furnished his office and he felt immediate action was necessary.

In Boise he was asking county commissioners for an emergency allocation of about $10,000 to hire "a professional in the field of corporate finance."

"Should the investigators and accountants at a cost of $10,000 from any public office or official in obtaining information or access to corporate files," Kidwell said, "I would have no alternative but to immediately appeal for a grand jury."

He said he was asking county commissioners for an emergency allocation of about $10,000 to hire "a professional in the field of corporate finance."

New Valve

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another major aortic heart valve has been developed by three surgeons at the Georgetown University medical center, the university announced Saturday night.

The new device is known as a "unit trileaflet valve," which appears to be three leaves. It can be sewn into the human heart to replace a diseased or disabled valve, that part of the heart which regulates the outflow of blood.

That opened the way for passage of the year's last big bill, a $5-billion appropriations measure, the tax package, it went to the White House.

The money bill brought the total appropriated by the 89th Congress to $224 billion, a record of $224 billion, or that total, $119 billion was voted last year, and $105 billion in two years.

Not even the Congress which met during the first two years of World War II surpassed that total. It appropriated about $205 billion in 1941 and 1942.

The 89th Congress has been hailed time and again by President Johnson as a great one, not only on the campaign platform but also in calling it the greatest ever.

Soviets Send Spacecraft Toward Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched an unmanned spacecraft, Luna 12, toward the moon Saturday, apparently on a mission to study the moon's surface.

The launch followed "unconfirmed" reports here that the Russians would send a satellite to the moon and then for the first time in history, bring it back.

The official Soviet news agency, called Luna 12 a "new step forward" but did not explain why.

A brief official announcement said that the "automated station," the term used here for unmanned spacecraft, would conduct "further explorations of the moon and near-lunar space."

RENO, Nev. (AP) — An earthquake which reached a magnitude of 5 on the Richter scale was felt Saturday in northeast Nevada, the University of Nevada said. There was no damage reported. The epicenter was near Carlin.

Gubernatorial Candidate Selection Confuses Voters

BOISE (AP) — Take your pick: slender conservatism, or the various varieties of progressive state government that will cost money, or gambling.

Those are the choices in a four-man race for Idaho governor that has a good many voters confused on Sunday.

Explanation Asked on Gem Building

RUPERT — Oscar Arstein, Democratic candidate for Representative from Legislative District 21B, said today that since there is every indication of fraud involved in the Rupert-Burley Employment Office "manipulation, he is calling on his opponent, Dale Garner, to tell the people why he did not ask for legislative investigation.

Arstein said, "Since Garner is a member of the State Legislature, the Rupert Chamber of Commerce and the Smylie administration, he has had the facts available to him."

"The people of Minidoka County have been fooled and the taxpayer cheated," Arstein continued.

"I feel there may be collusion in this matter, or why haven't the following questions been answered: (1) Why wasn't the site of the employment office purchased through a real estate office owned by Cassia County State Sen. Don Loveland?

(2) Why was the $40,000 an acre paid for the site when far less money was available for the building contract advertised in the Minidoka County News, as the law specified it must be? Why wasn't the land appraised as the law says it must be?

(4) Why was the site chosen in North Burley without the approval of both counties? (5) Why was the office moved to Burley when the Rupert office had 24,915 placements compared to 5,322 placements in Cassia County—a figure of nearly 5 to 1? (6) Why didn't Dale Garner represent the best interests of the people of Minidoka County?

Arstein said he feels the voters of Minidoka County are entitled to answers to these questions.

Area Loans Are Noted by Firm

A total of $370,300 in real estate loans in Twin Falls were disbursed during the first nine months of 1966 by the Western Home Office of Prudential Insurance Co., according to L. James Koutnik, local investment manager of the company's mortgage loan department. Koutnik said the entire

Two-Story Addition to T. F. Library Is Planned

The Twin Falls Public Library will double its floor-space size with a new two-story addition to be built just behind the present library building with completion date sometime early next fall, Robert Bruce, librarian, reported Saturday.

Weather permitting, construction is estimated to begin soon after Jan. 1.

Half of the cost of the new addition is granted to the Twin Falls Public Library under the Federal Library Services Act. This is matched by accumulated funds supplied by the City Library Fund. Locally, the library is supported by a five-mill municipal tax levy. The new addition will use some of the accumulated reserve funds from this levy.

The present library has three main divisions, adult, juveniles and young people and extension departments. The lower section of the addition will be used for extension work, leaving the present lower floor to the children's and young people's department. The upper floor of the new addition will be used for the adult department.

The lower addition will include work rooms for the bookmobile, work areas for preparing books for deposit stations throughout Magic Valley and work areas for the loan collections going out to 14 libraries in eight Magic Valley counties. The addition will have a built-in dock for the Bookmobile.

The new upper floor, primarily for adult services will include a record library and booths to listen to records, a pamphlet collection, a business library and an adult lounge area.

Bruce, in discussing the need for more space, commented that up to the present, Twin Falls has not used its library much. Only a small number of Twin Falls residents make use of the facility. This year, circulation has increased more than 1,000 a month over records last year.

She is Carla Allen of Memphis, the only Negro among the 12 candidates for queen of Saturday's homecoming activities.

WASHINGTON

SON IN THE PACIFIC — Of the No. 1 in this troupe there can be no doubt. The President of the United States on tour, whether in Hawaii or New Zealand, will spend 24 hours a day with Mrs. Johnson with her unflagging warmth, her graciousness and her reputation she has won for conservation and the advancement of beauty in the world. The President's compromise to the ceaseless movement of her husband, The miracle is the calm she seems to preserve in the eye of the storm. Her husband, the President, he surely could never have drawn off so much. He would be oversimplification to say that what the President proposes as he moves from country to country is a Marshall Plan for Asia. He knows what many Asians draw from the words of hope and cheer that he spreads with his unflagging and it would seem, unquenchable and unstraining energy. The speech that he delivered at the East West Center in Honolulu last week, the stamp of Rostov. The President talked about the International Education Act, which he said he would sign in the course of his life journey. As a summary of the record of the last two centuries that hardly recognizable history is goodwill, the friendly rhetoric that Johnson has tempered with the softest of home and abroad, may produce the desired effect. It may raise hopes and aspirations that in some cases may be more than can be filled. But it may also produce false expectations that in the light of the rapidly escalating crisis of the Viet Nam war cannot possibly be met. That is one of the perils of this remarkable journey.

Opinions of a

Conservative

By BARRY GOLDWATER

Current high level discussion of the extent to which we may safely reduce the number of our troops stationed in Europe has, for me, two particularly interesting facets.

It entirely misses the point. It entirely vindicates another portion of the 1964 Republican presidential campaign.

Those two points together said, would give the situation a chance to calm down in hope of being able quickly to get the negotiating table.

For such a response, the commitments of some state are needed. For such a response the more men you have "shown the flag" the better the sense. To tell the Soviets it

This administration, in one more major matter, is proving dangerously incompetent and cynically—misleading when it comes to foreign policy and the defense policy needs to back up.

Let's take the points in order. When the possibility of reducing our troop commitments in Europe is discussed these days, the discussion usually revolves around economy and symbolism. It is not a question of whether or not we withdrew troops it would cut away down on the foreign exchange drain on our currency. There is no doubt that it is a question of point value followed by the perception that European troop commitments could and should be increased to take care of the manpower situation.

The symbolism point is that our troops are the only ones just "to show the flag" and they therefore, draw near pay number one. The symbolism point can launch an argument in small, and be assured that it can move directly from violence to the conference table with a minimal risk should be lessened.

Our second point is that it would seem permit a self-inflicted response is more to halt and/or punish an aggressive move, and it certainly would not offer the enemy any comfort. The enemy would respond of a less than adequate response. Most European defense officials feel the defense of Europe by conventional means is not sufficient. They want the power of nuclear weapons to securely keep the peace and deter aggression.

This point is blunt and certainly the defense are not keen on the theme, and the current debate about armies would achieve the same effect, should be debating quality, quantity.

point by a mile. The question of our military commitment is not nearly so much what we have or who we have in Europe as it is a question of what we intend to do with either in case of an emergency.

At present our commitment in Europe calls for a conventional response to any Communist aggression.

As to the vindication of 1945 Republican campaign: it cannot be purely of the out-and-out threatening nature. It could and it also could reduce to discussion of the European people that really are the people that should be given Europe the peace and administration is still essential

Anti-Sales Tax Leaflets Noted

Anti-sales tax leaflets were being distributed about Magic Valley Friday by six members of the North Idaho Anti-Sales Tax Committee.

Chairman of the group, Vern Morton, stated about 200,000 of these leaflets were to be distributed throughout Idaho.

The leaflets questioned the motives of legislators who supported the sales tax and called for the defeat of the sales tax in the Nov. 8 elections, plus the defeat of those legislators who supported the tax.

Morton gave as his personal reason for opposing the tax an incident in which his son was given a pro-sales tax article at school to bring home.

11 Killed, 54 Wounded in Street Blast

TRA ON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Trinh Thi Xe, eight months pregnant with her seventh child, was buying cabbage for her family's dinner.

Nguyen Van Hoa, 13, was buying fishhooks for his father.

It was 7 a.m. Friday, and the waterfront market place of this little town was crowded, as it is every morning.

But on this morning, a Viet Cong terrorist mine exploded on the street in front of one of the market stalls, jagged pieces of metal, glass and stone ripped into the crowd.

Eleven persons perished. The woman buying cabbage and the boy buying fishhooks were among 54 wounded. The woman suffered cuts and lacerations over her body. The boy's legs were torn off at the knee.

Saturday they and the other wounded were being treated at Phong Dinh provincial hospital in Can Tho, about eight miles up the Bassac River. Forty-one persons wounded in the Tra On market bombing reached the hospital, many of them mutilated; one died.

"She will lose her baby and she will walk out of here on artificial legs," Dr. Frank A. Camp said as he walked through the ward where the woman and the boy lay among the other patients.

"Our three operating rooms were going all-day long," said Camp, a 34-year-old Air Force major whose family lives in Worcester, Mass. "The Vietnamese and Americans all joined in to do what had to be done."

More than 100 donors, divided almost evenly between Americans and Vietnamese, responded when calls went out for blood for the wounded.

Gooding Solon Documents Figures on State Funds

Editor, Times-News: On the series of letters concerning the sales tax, I have limited the content to subject matter for which documentation is available. I will not make reference to those letters in last Sunday's Forum which dealt in personalities.

One man asked about the necessity of a Special Session. There is no such emergency. We have already accumulated surplus in the State Treasury sufficient to supplement our regular income from our several tax sources (income, cigarette, beer, insurance, etc.) and this will carry the State until the regular session meets in January, 1957.

Another letter requested documentation of the extreme difference between the taxes paid by Twin Falls County and the small amount of increase returned to the schools. Here is the exact breakdown obtained from the Idaho State Department of Education:

Mokey, "from state and county" received in 1954-55 before the sales tax in Twin Falls school district was $1,067,116.79, compared to $1,269,843.32 afterward, for a total gain of $202,726.53. Figures for other towns include: Buhl—$224,682.34 before and $280,458.52 after the sales tax for a gain of $55,776.18. Filer—$137,327.52 before and $197,264.34 after for a gain of $59,936.72.

Writer Asserts Harding Is Not Needed by Idaho

Editor, Times-News: I agree that one of the campaign issues in Idaho senatorial race this year is the full use and development of Idaho water and land resources.

Hundreds of entries in Idaho under the Desert Land Act are pending in various offices of the Department of Interior. In the past, private enterprise had developed much of our Idaho irrigated land under this law. However, during the Udall regime this policy seems to have changed.

Senator Jordan has been working to have decisions expedited and for vigorous administrative action to judge individual applicants according to their own merits so that entrymen qualifying under the law may move ahead with development of unreserved lands.

Educators Need Session Behind Barn, Man Says

Editor, Times-News: There have been several letters to the editor lately, most of them being in favor of the sales tax, for all things. "Education" is the word that is used, and that the "educators" should be taken out behind the barn and taught a few facts of life.

If you would only reprint in your paper a report of a sampling that the sales tax would be voted out by a wide margin.

Or if people would only read the reprint in the September issue of the Reader's Digest on page 9, which first appeared in News Week Magazine, and is headed "Hire Education, which is a report of a sampling that the American Council on Education took from the freshmen attending 81 different colleges.

New Testament Is Pattern To Follow, Writer States

Editor, Times-News: Since this column is for the airing of controversial subjects, I hope I may be allowed to enter this letter, which is definitely controversial. It is about religion.

I am a believer in Jesus Christ, and the truths in the Bible. Up until a very short time ago, I didn't give it much thought, and that is very tragic, because the world is full of such people. Either they don't want to discuss it at all, or else they attend a fancy, fashionable church just for the sake of "belonging" to a church.

Both are so wrong. The only right way is to go where you can hear the word of God, just as it is written in the Bible. Any "church" that is teaching anything other than the Bible

Voters Should Decide on Manager Plan, Woman Feels

Editor, Times-News: Every effort possible to deprive the residents of Twin Falls from having the opportunity of deciding for themselves whether to keep the City Manager form of government or return to the Mayor form, has been used.

Some people have been personally confronted by the members of the City Council condemning and embarrassing

Reasons for Supporting Tax Given by Reader

Editor, Times-News: They say that Idaho is the last frontier, therefore, people from congested areas are discovering great pleasures in our hunting, fishing and skiing. Because 42 of the 50 states now have sales taxes, these same people think nothing of paying that tax in Idaho, or wherever they travel.

The tourist trade that we pay out money every day to attract to Idaho spends millions of dollars per year and Idaho, before the sales tax, had never received one nickel of this business, except on gasoline.

For every child in Idaho to have the opportunity of good schooling there is the constant demand for more tax dollars. It is our responsibility to provide adequate schools on all levels for our future citizens.

The sales tax is a fair tax and everyone benefits from its income. If you live in Idaho then help build Idaho.

Prosecution Of Swindlers Is Promised

A promise to protect cowardly residents from stock swindlers and hucksters was issued Sunday by S. A. (Sy) Kolman, Democratic candidate for Twin Falls County prosecuting attorney.

Kolman said he would take all steps necessary to protect residents from stock swindlers and hucksters who prey on country residents by selling them stock in non-existent or financially unstable corporations at inflated prices.

The candidate added, "The huckling of Idaho residents by huckstering stock salesmen who travel from town to town has been going on for some time. The last few years have seen the most rampant huckstering. Many stock promoters have been having a 'field day' in the state at public expense."

An employee of the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission quoted as saying Idaho investors have lost millions of dollars in stock purchases in the last few years. He said that Idaho is one of the worst states in the nation for fraudulent stock sales," the Twin Falls attorney continued.

"When evidence of stock fraud and manipulation is brought to the attention of the State Finance Department," Kolman went on, "the response from the acting commissioner is always the same: 1. We are powerless to control this activity. 2. We need stronger laws. 3. We need bigger appropriations. 4. We need a larger staff to protect the taxpayers."

"In other words," Kolman continued, "it is the usual story where the lack of laws, money, and staff that we hear reared from seeing some action against the fraud and manipulation that the Twin Falls people their hard-earned dollars."

"I promise you that if the people of Twin Falls County elect me their prosecuting attorney, the hard work of identifying swindlers to stay out of Twin Falls County. You can be sure that any person who attempts to defraud the citizens of Twin Falls county will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law," Kolman concluded.

Idaho Teen-Ager Killed in Mishap

SUPERIOR, Mont. (AP) — A Bonners Ferry, Idaho, teen-ager was killed about midnight Thursday when his snow-stalled car, being pushed by two hunting companions, rolled 200 feet down a mountain.

The accident happened on a forest road southwest of here, on which the three were traveling on a hunting expedition to the Red Ives District of the Joe National Forest.

New fallen snow had made driving conditions bad.

Astronauts to Photograph French Rocket's Vapor Trail

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Texas (AP) — The Gemini 12 pilot plan to photograph a vapor trail spewed from a French rocket next week in search of strange winds up to 400 miles per hour believed to howl at high altitudes.

The experiment, conducted at the request of France, becomes the first by a foreign government to be part of an American space flight.

Scheduled the final day of the four-day Gemini 12 voyage, now set to begin Nov. 9, success depends on double timing between Mission Control at Houston and the French launching base at Hammaguir, Algeria.

The unique setup calls for Gemini to fire the rocket as

Double Agent Escapes From British Prison

LONDON (AP) — George Blake, a master double agent, is serving a 42-year sentence for spying for the Soviet Union, escaped from Wormwood Scrubs Prison Saturday night.

Police started a nationwide search. They said they assumed Blake had at least one accomplice.

A Home Office spokesman said Blake, 44, was registered at the 5:30 p.m. roll call in the prison's D cell for long-term prisoners. He was missed from his cell about 7 p.m.

A thorough search of the prison with police dogs failed to find Blake. A police spokesman said, "Somebody must have been waiting for him outside the prison."

The Dutch-born master spy was sentenced in 1961 to the 42-year prison term handed down in modern British history.

A former diplomat, he at one time served as a British intelligence agent in the Middle East and in Berlin.

Churchill Story Will Be Published

LONDON (AP) — Legend calls Winston Churchill a back-yard boy. Not so, says a biography of Britain's wartime prime minister, to be published Monday.

A rebel, yes, and an unhappy one, charged by his parents to the point of neglect. But his childhood letters, pathetic in their demands for parental love, prove he could never be called stupid.

These letters form the backbone of the first volume of Churchill's biography, undertaken by his son, Randolph. It is a study, "warts and all," of a career that led from youthful adventure through fame as a writer to a place in history as a statesman.

Each stage of the astonishing career is described in Sir Winston's own words, extracted from his huge collection of letters and writings. Randolph supplies the linking narrative and interpretation.

It is a massive work, to cover five volumes, with appendices running into millions of words.

Shades of Piracy Shown In Sorority Rush Party

By NORMA HERZINGER

Blackbeard the pirate did not make a personal appearance at a recent corsair party, but from the atmosphere created for the social one would believe he would arrive at any moment.

"Treasure Island" was the theme for the party and Robert Louis Stevenson could not have done a better job on the overall setting. The event, hosted by Omicron Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, was held at the home of Mrs. Delbert Rupert, 1007 Del Mar Drive, and represented the unit's annual rush party.

The Jolly Roger was flying high as members arrived in pirate costumes that defied description. Even the menu carried out the theme as guests were served Pogo Pogo fruit melange, Long John Silver stew and mutiny punch.

Mrs. Rupert was general chairman of the social, assisted by committee members, Mrs. Lawrence Vecera, Mrs. Barbara Preston and Mrs. Marlon Simpson.

Pledges or prospective members are accepted into the group by invitation only and attend teas and gatherings once each week during rush, which is held in October and March.

One of the goals the unit is striving for this year is to organize a Beta Sigma Phi chapter of College of Southern Idaho students. The new chapter will include girls between the ages of 17 and 21. "Friendly Venture" is the title for the project, and it is under the direction of Mrs. Simpson.

Meetings for the unit are half cultural ventures and the other half social gatherings similar to the pirate party. Other socials hosted by the group during the past year included a Christmas party for members and their husbands or dates, a Valentine dinner and dance, summer picnics, teas and coffee hours.

Officers include Mrs. Michael Togan, president; Beverly Richardson, vice president; Gwyn Gyer, treasurer; Clara Burner, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Vecera, recording secretary.

United Church Women-Slate Observance

The United Church Women are making plans for the World Community Day observance set for 2 p.m. Nov. 4 at the Presbyterian Church.

World Community Day, traditionally observed the first Friday in November, is sponsored by United Church Women, a department of the National Council of Churches. Building life, friendship and lasting peace this is the task to which American church women dedicate themselves on World Community Day.

This day is set aside each year for study of methods of promoting world peace, and as an expression of their concern for sharing the material blessings of America's good life with the needy of the world. On Nov. 4, the Council of United Church Women in Twin Falls will meet at 2 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church, joining women in thousands of communities across the nation to highlight a concentrated effort to help poverty-stricken people in India, New Guinea and other countries of the Far East.

MAKING PLANS for the World Community Day observance, which is sponsored by the United Church Women, are Mrs. John E. Hayes, left, and Mrs. Ronald Booth. Mrs. Booth is the main speaker during the observance, which is set for 2 p.m. Nov. 4 at the Presbyterian Church. (Times-News photo.)

In an advanced appeal, Mrs. James Sharkey, president of the Twin Falls Council, said "Through our observance of this day, let us recognize our responsibility as laity to use all our resources of mind and money to work for the fundamental rights of our fellowman in life and dignity." Mrs. Sharkey urged that the day be used as a Christian response to the "movements and hopes of all groups campaigning to free the world from hunger. As Americans we have a tradition not of indifference to the rest of the world but of real concern," she stated.

Offerings taken in special worship observances in the United States will be used by UCUW to support a family planning project in India and a woman's training center in New Guinea. Through the Christian Medical Association of India and with the full cooperation of the Indian government, efforts will be made to establish new birth control services in Christian hospitals. United Church Women's goal is to enlist 50 of the 200 Christian hospitals in India to serve its members of the project.

United Church Women's funds will pay the salary of the director in charge of the project. In New Guinea, UCUW will be the first non-government organization to work through the United Nations in a pilot project for training women in nutrition, hygiene, child care, sewing, language study, and citizenship education.

Mrs. Fred Buschmeyer, national chairman of the Christian World Relations for UCUW, stated that this project will be operated through the United Nations section of the Status of Women and the Australian Trusteeship Administration. UCUW will build the center, the Australian government will staff and equip it, and funds will be provided by UCUW.

In preparation for World Community Day, 2,300 local councils of church women across the country are collecting, for their members hygiene kits for use in Asia and the South Pacific. In response to overwhelming requests for assistance, Yarn, goods, yarn, blankets, and towels are being collected here in Twin Falls.

Mrs. Ronald Booth, a former resident of Northern India, will address the church women. Mrs. Booth is now a resident of Twin Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Booth and family spent several years in India while he represented the Charles Pfizer firm there.

The program will begin with a Service of Prayer and Dedication and women from the various churches represented in the council will take part. Rev. and Mrs. Harold Nye will provide the special music and Rev. Robert Harvey will give the benediction. Women of the Presbyterian Church are in charge of arrangements at the church and preside at the refreshment table. A babysitter will be provided during the meeting.

The board of managers meets at the home of Mrs. James Sharkey, president of the Twin Falls Council, pinpointed the arrangements for the World Community Day. Mrs. Orie Hall conducted worship service, following a coffee hour. Mrs. Janice Barton, general chairman for the observance, reported on the plans that have been completed and urged the members of the board to publicize them in their churches.

Mrs. John Hayes, state chairman of Christian World Relations, reminded the group that Monday is United Nations Day and that Dec. 10 is Human Rights Day. She reported that CARE packages can be purchased in the name of friends, as Christmas gifts for "those who have everything."

Several boxes of UNICEF cards were examined by the group and all of them were sold. Mrs. Barton gave the following details regarding the personal hygiene kits which will be prepared by the various church groups and brought to the Nov. 4 meeting. Each kit will contain one cake of soap in a plastic soap dish; one toothbrush in a holder; one tube of toothpaste; one comb; one fingernail file or clipper; one face cloth; one small hand towel, and one plastic drinking cup.

Everett Mattress Co., Twin Falls, has given enough material to make the bags to hold the articles. It is hoped that there will be many kits prepared to send to Church World Service Center at Modesto, Calif.

LESSON PRESENTED RICHFIELD — "Teaching the Gospel in the Home" was the Religion Society lesson presented by Mrs. Clive Capps, social relations chairman. Mrs. Elva Blumer and Mrs. Merton Dilly were stake officers present from Shoshone. Mrs. C. A. Johnson and Mrs. Jennie Thomas gave prayers.

Advances on Light Volume

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced again last week on light volume. The gain wasn't nearly as strong as in the previous week, but it was good news to Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks posted a gain of 15.59 for the week and closed at 787.39. The Associated Press 60-stock average gained 5.0 at 234.1. Of 1,517 issues traded, 761 advanced and 563 declined.

Volume fell to 150,461 shares from 22,773,723 the previous week.

Most of the market's strength was concentrated in the first two sessions of the week.

Early in the week, buying sentiment prevailed.

Late in the week, analysts expressed optimism about the outlook, citing as bullish developments a 3.6 per cent rise in September new home starts, a rise in durable goods, sharp gains in third quarter earnings reports of some big corporations and a record stock interest.

By the New York Stock Exchange.

As the week opened the market floundered in the blue Monday tradition and made a strong gain in moderate trading.

The averages were able to finish in the plus column but advances outnumbered declines on Friday.

Bond prices rose the past week, bringing a long-term bond market that had been ended and trends reversed.

Long term government bonds rose more than a full point. Treasury bills also rose. And corporate bonds prices advanced.

Watchers of Economy Find It Hard to Predict Future

NEW YORK (AP)—Businessmen and economists are finding it increasingly difficult to tell which way the wind is blowing.

Personal income is rising at a record rate. Industrial production is durable.

Orders for durable goods are up for the first time in three months, but steel output is down as likely to be lower.

Chain store sales are up 10.3 per cent from 1965, but housing starts are down 26 per cent.

Eastman Kodak Co. earnings last week, record, but Du Pont is down.

The Dow Jones stock market average shoots up 12.98 points one day and down 6.32 the next.

Business has been cutting close to capacity that even a slight wind shift can cause inflationary pressures.

The past week the Johnson administration has been spending—extra—might be approaching a peak.

Shutdown in the next six weeks would cause the pressure for a tax increase to combat inflation.

Some already are some signs of a slowdown.

One key economic indicator is industrial production—the physical output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities. It tends to go up or down with general business.

It slipped slightly last month for the first time in a year.

Steel production has dropped, and now is expected to run less than a year ago ending the four-year climb that began in 1962. That is despite defense orders.

The prolonged slump in housing construction has dropped the number of new homes.

And prime—showing—greatest decline—hogs 50 lower; cows steady; hogs 50 lower; feeders cattle 50 lower; feeders cattle 50 lower; feeders cattle 50 lower.

Red Dean of Canterbury

CANTERBURY, England (AP)—Dr. Hewlett Johnson, 92, whose outspoken praise of communism won him the nickname "Red Dean" of Canterbury, died at his home of the Church of England's storied figures of this century, died in a hospital Saturday.

He failed to fulfill a prediction made at 66 that he would live to 100.

And after a highly controversial career that provoked global headlines and many angry editorials, Dr. Johnson's death scarcely made any front-page here. It got pretty much lost in the increasing tragedy of the Schles school disaster for which this nation mourns.

Even the Soviet news agency Tass gave only a one-paragraph obituary to the late Dr. Johnson.

The Vice president, in an obviously partisan mood, likened Dr. Johnson to "junior league detectives."

Humphrey acknowledged there are long-shot odds against any likelihood the GOP would make such a stunning comeback Nov. 5 as to tip control of the House from the Democrats.

But he voiced concern, based on public opinion polls, that voter apathy, nourished by general prosperity and a failure to get out the vote would swing the balance to Republicans in a number of key senatorial, congressional and gubernatorial contests.

After an appearance in Kansas City, Kan., Humphrey planned to go to Minneapolis Saturday evening for Democratic rallies.

Goldwater Talks Against Johnson

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Former Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona says Americans have a "feeling of distrust" for President Johnson.

"You may have had a dislike for Truman, but at least you know where he stood," Goldwater said Friday night.

"You know where he stood and you know where Kennedy stood. But this one—we don't know what he is up to."

Rockwell Is Ordered Out Of Center

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—American Nazi party leader George Lincoln Rockwell was ordered out of Civic Center and jailed with about 20 followers Saturday when trouble developed at a Nazi demonstration.

Rockwell, who had declared he was coming to San Francisco to "solve the Negro problem," showed up at Civic Center shortly after noon and was met by jeers, thrown eggs and loud whistles from a crowd of some 3,000 and 4,000.

Heavily reinforced police concentrated on the area immediately and told Rockwell to leave.

The threatened clash between the small band of Nazis and massed students—and others—quickly ended.

Only one arrest was reported and nobody was injured in the brief scuffling. One spectator collapsed of an apparent heart attack and was taken to a hospital.

Anti-Nazi demonstrators carried signs declaring: "Defeat fascism," "Go home Nazis," and "Kick racism out of San Francisco."

Rockwell tried to speak but was booed down. He screamed "I am going to stay up here until you dry links let me speak."

At that point, police intervened and told him to leave.

ISU DEFEATS MONTANA; WSU NIPS IDAHO

Fied Goal In Last 10 Seconds Earns 17-14 Win

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP)—Idaho State University came from behind and beat Montana 17-14 Saturday on a 35-yard field goal by sophomore Lowell Van Orman. Jerome, with 10 seconds left in the football game. That came as little surprise since that was their first victory in the Big Sky Conference. ISU is now 1-2, Bengal quarterback Bill Ingram hit 10 of 23 pass attempts, including one to end Bill Odum.

FROM ALL ANGLES

By LARRY HOVEY

Pocatello will, in all probability, leave the Southern Idaho Conference this year. This comes as little surprise since that was their first victory in the Big Sky Conference. ISU is now 1-2, Bengal quarterback Bill Ingram hit 10 of 23 pass attempts, including one to end Bill Odum.

Should the Pocatello schools drop out, look for Mountain to become a member and possibly Bishop Kelly, the Catholic high school in Boise. Look for Highland and Pocatello to join the Eastern Idaho Conference. Representatives of the two Pocatello schools told a Monday meeting of SIC administrators "it didn't look good" regarding continued membership.

Robbing salt on the wounds were three football defeats in one week. Borah belted Highland, a team the town could almost live with, 41-14. And Twin Falls added a 43-35 loss. In the interim, Twin Falls knocked Pocatello's undefeated sophomore state and had an easy time doing it.

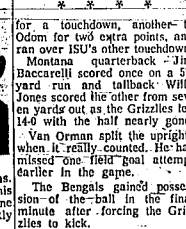

Unlike Idaho Falls, which heged economic reasons for its withdrawal, Pocatello's decision states its competition. However, since the SIC schools are bringing great prestige by refusing to schedule them in other sports plus music, debate and drama. They also say that the school tax is retained they might stay in.

However, the athletic setbacks do figure into the picture prominently. The town of Pocatello is worried, too. After the Borah loss, we were in Pocatello to see the ISU-Idaho game. The high school game was the talk of the town and the Pocatello fans made the comment "this is the best team Pocatello ever produced and Borah beat it 41-14. We better get out of here. If we can't win it this year we never can."

Such an attitude toward competition never existed in Pocatello. In 1952 through the 1959 season, inclusive, Twin Falls won the SIC football championship and lost 32. From the 1960 season through last year the Bruins have far behind in series. The Bruins trail Nampa 18 wins to 10, Boise 22 to 7, Caldwell 13-11, Pocatello 18-12 and Borah 6-8. They hold a 3-1 edge over Highland and had Idaho Falls down 17-8 when the Tigers withdrew. During that time, Pocatello ran up a 26-game win streak, won three SIC titles, and was consistently in the upper division. When Borah came into the picture with Coach Ed Truett's "Build the Program" project, Pocatello was the only team that didn't try to follow suit. This lack is very apparent over the last few years. Its success has been a disaster at Boise.

There is no more comparison between SIC football of 1959 and this year than there is between the old German V-2 rockets and today's rocketry. You have to pay the price to play the big boys from the casual or once. By leaving the SIC, the Pocatello schools will lose about $14,000 per year as their part of the transportation equipment program. The league carries out its chances of ever putting 5,200 in a stadium to watch an out-of-town game pay like it did. Pocatello's future seems uncertain. And so long as a school is not in the same conference with the Boise city schools, it can't earn the prestige.

If the realignment goes through, it appears that Madison will leave the SIC. Burley would have to get out of the Cross State for scheduling reasons. The Boise area Snake River Valley A league might be shaken up a little and the state will get another redoubt like it witnessed three years ago. For right now Pocatello and Highland are under orders to get out of the league for the next year. The answer will be forthcoming in November.

for a touchdown, another to Odum for two extra points, and ran over ISU's star running back, Jim Baccarelli scored once on a 57-yard run and tailback Willy Jones scored the other from seven yards out as the Grizzlies led 14-0 with the half nearly gone.

Van Orman split the uprights when it really counted. He has a 14-0 deficit and scored its first TD with 25 seconds left before on Ingram's six-yard rollout pass attempt for the conversion.

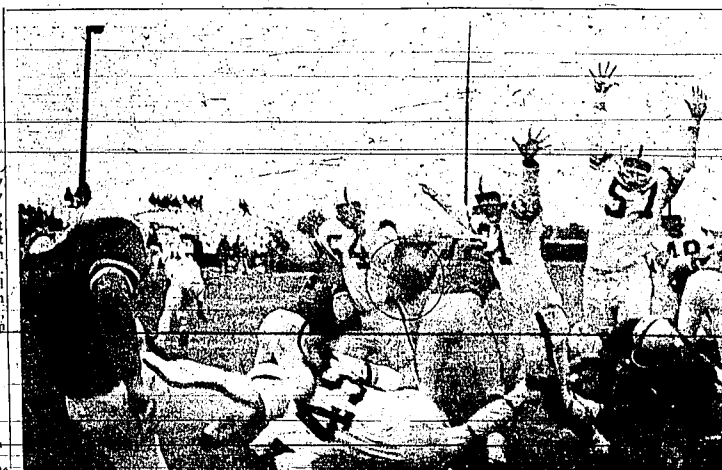

In the fourth period, ISU advanced to the Montana 20 where Ingram found Odum all alone in the end zone.

This time Ingram's pass for the two extra points was good and it left the game led 14-14 with 14:01 remaining.

Ingram picked a field goal attempt by Van Orman early in the second period at the Montana 28, the Grizzlies scored in two plays, 14-17.

Two minutes later, Montana recovered an ISU fumble on the Grizzlies' 41-yard line. James scampered seven yards to pay dirt. Bergen again kicked the extra point.

PUNTING OUT of trouble in his own end zone, Jerome's Dennis Stauffer screams the ball (above) over the outstretched hands of Burley's Charles Harzo (21) and Orlio Runyon (51) as Ron Russell (45) hits the ground. Burley took a 7-0 victory on a 75-yard punt return by Roy Fink later in the Saturday afternoon game. (Times-News photo)

Burley Nips Jerome on Fink's Long Run

Roy Fink's 75-yard punt return behind a great wall of Bobcats blockers proved the only difference Saturday afternoon as eighth-ranked Burley topped the Jerome Tigers 7-0. Burley had four threats during the black afternoon—the last one being stopped by the clock and stymied Jerome most of the afternoon while the winners got back. Larry Hancock tried to pass over the heads of an on-rushing group of Bobcats linemen. Ron Russell blocked the pass, and Ron Barry made a great diving scoop for an interception to set Burley up on the 22-yard line. But Jerome stopped the drive after giving up a first down.

Midway through the third quarter the decisive play came up with Dennis Stauffer punting from the Jerome defense. Fink took the ball striding three quick blocks to spring into daylight. Only Stauffer remained a threat and the Bobcats knocked him aside with two blockers as Fink raged in unthrottled fury. The play was Jerome's best effort came in the final period when the Bobcats punted to the four-yard line. A 75-yard punt started it and a nifty Stauffer run carried to mid-field. On the next play Stauffer took a Hancock pass to the 22-yard line, but it was all Burley was willing to let Jerome have.

After stopping that drive Burley rebounded in the end-around running of Campbell and carried to the 13-yard line before Vice Williams killed that threat with a pass interception. Johnson fumbled trying to come out and gave up the ball at its own 23. Burley was on the eight-yard line when the game ended.

Two Fumbles in Last Period Sink Vandals by 14-7

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP)—Washington State, taking advantage of two Idaho fumbles in the last quarter, defeated the Vandals 14-7 in a non-conference football game here Saturday. Idaho used powerful Ray McDonald for its first touchdown but it was the never-say-die Cougars who took advantage of Idaho errors to defeat the Vandals in a dramatic final period. Both Cougar touchdowns were steals—Bill Kennedy's 26-yard interception and a 14-yard fumble by WSU's 20 on passing.

compiling 250 yards total rushing to WSU's 140. The Vandals won 253 yards on 47 tries, with slaughter from Spokane, getting a net 89 yards in 18 carries. McDonald gained 54 yards net for the Cougars while Jerry Ashland broke 27 yards for the Vandals. Quarterback Shaw had 87.

Jerry Ashland broke the Cougar threat in the third when he crashed through the WSU line and grabbed the ball on a fourth down situation at the Idaho 16.

Slaw's dash came on a pass from Hank Grenda. He shook off a tackler at the 20 and again on the 49 and was ahead of the field to go in standing up. Kennedy's touchdown was produced when he grabbed a hand off from Idaho quarterback John Furuta to slaughter. He was in the middle of the exchange and slipped through the Idaho men still on their feet for the score.

Snow, Wind Hamper Hunters as South Hills Deer Units Open

Snow and cold winds Saturday turned many hunters away, but those that stuck with it brought home the meat during the first day of a three-day hunt in management units 54 and 55 in the south hills. The snow also made the roads dangerous and several hunters had to seek aid to get back on the roads. Idaho Fish and Game Department check stations reported that about half of the hunters were out of the area by 1:30 p.m. and that as much as six inches of snow fell in the higher elevations.

AND WHO WOULDN'T SMILE after downing a buck like this. Aubrey Owens of Twin Falls killed this one Saturday morning, the opening day of a three day hunt in the south hills. The buck was spotted earlier this year when Owens was on an archery hunt in the area. He returned to the same spot Saturday, along with his brother Keith, and had it within a half-hour and then dragged it the 100 yards to his truck. (Times-News photo)

ONE OF THE MANY hunters to come Saturday, the opening day of a three day hunt in the south hills. Aubrey Owens of Twin Falls displays the large buck he knocked down early Saturday morning. The small horns look out of proportion with this large mule deer, which was estimated to weigh in the neighborhood of 100 pounds. (Times-News photo)

No Good
Non resident hunters with restricted tags were reminded Saturday that the tags are not good for the hunt in units 54 and 55. Ed Scholes, district supervisor for the Idaho Fish and Game Department, said, Saturday that several non-resident hunters with this type tag were checked, but none got in trouble.

for a hunter success rating of 29 per cent—termed a little better than last year's hunt. The Sublett station, checking for units 54 and 55, a five-day hunt, listed 191 hunters with 79 deer for 43 per cent success. A break down of the four stations for units 54 and 55 showed 528 hunters through—the Rock Creek station with 155 deer and 29 per cent success; 158 hunters went through the Albion station with 45 deer for 23 per cent; 133 hunters through the Shoshone Basin station with 51 deer and 38 per cent and 474 hunters checked in at Oakley check station with 135 deer for 29 per cent success.

A Murtough deer hunter returned home Saturday afternoon with a 130 pound cougar. Dennis Jones checked it through the Rock Creek station shortly after noon.

After three years of trying, Aubrey Owens of Twin Falls finally got the big buck he was after. Each year for the past three, Owens has spotted what appeared to be the same buck at approximately the same location. Owens last spotted him during archery season in the area and returned to the same spot Saturday to end his three years of frustration.

Owens parked his truck beside the road and a half hour later he had his buck, some 100 yards from his parking spot. His brother Keith also connected in the same area, although his buck wasn't quite as large as Aubrey's long-awaited buck, which was estimated to weigh about 150-200 pounds.

The place they connected is known (now) as Secret Cove, wherever that may be. The majority of successful hunters checking through the Rock Creek Ranger Station connected along the well-known Deadline Ridge, although deer were reported throughout the area.

Two oddities occurred during Saturday's hunt, the one was a two point buck shot by Carlton Daniels, of LaGrande, Ore., and formerly of Piler. According to the Fish and Game Department, a black deer occurs about one in 200,000. Daniels downed the deer at about 200 yards with an Enfield .30-06 in the sagebrush west of Salmon Dam. The other was a white-face deer downed by Walter Kaster, Route one, Hoot, Kaster shot the two-point buck in the Brown's Basin area with a .243 Winchester. Kaster noted that the buck also had white hair marks across his throat and white on his legs. The deer was with another two-point buck and a four-point buck when Kaster connected.

Hunting along with Daniels were his two boys, Jimmy and Danny, 13 and 11, respectively. The Daniels hunt, Terry Adams, both Twin Falls.

Against this background of an aroused public, the McColligan subcommittee heard testimony that inaccurate and misleading figures were used to justify the award of the TFX (Intermittent) contract. Air Secretary Eugene Zuckert was identified as primarily responsible for preparing the five-page memorandum of justification with an erroneous and highly inflated performance rating listed for General Dynamics.

Tate's Defense Carries Utah Past Arizona 24-19

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Defense halfback Rich Tate intercepted two passes and recovered a fumble to set up two first-half touchdowns and a field goal Saturday night as Utah edged Arizona 24-19 in a Western Athletic Conference football game. Tate, a basketball player in his first season of college football, set Arizona's final pass with 30 seconds to play. Arizona quarterback Mark Reed put on a remarkable display in the second half, completing 20 of 39 passes for 242 yards that led to three touchdowns. Quarterback Jack Gehlke rushed in on Tate's fumble recovery with a 10-yard scoring pass to Ben Windom. Then Utah moved 30 yards on eight plays. Tate grabbed the Reed pass on the Arizona 27-yard line.

Jerry Pullman turned it into three points with a 37-yard field goal. Tate's next interception started off Utah on a 20-yard march with Gehlke hitting Windom in the end zone with a nine-yard pass. In between, Utah drove 60 yards in nine plays with Gehlke driving right end for six yards and a touchdown. Arizona hadn't been inside Utah's 33-yard line in the first half but scored two quick touchdowns in the third period. The first came on a 70-yard drive with Reed hitting Roger Brautigan with a 32-yard, fourth-down TD pass. On the next 60-yard drive Reed made all but two yards with seven straight completions. The last was seven yards to Brad Hubbard in the end zone.

Ramos Awarded Title in Confused, Protested Fight

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Sugar Ramos was awarded the world-lightweight championships Saturday night after a confused and protest-filled title fight with champion Carlos Ortiz. Ortiz had been awarded a technical knockout when the referee stopped the fight at 1:45.

Ramon G. Valazquez, secretary of the commission, said the fight was a "classic" and a "great display of boxing skill."

Wyoming Shatters Utah's 34-10; Washington Uses Fumble to Edge Oregon

SPORTS

Sunday, Oct. 23, 1966 19

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP)—The University of Wyoming rode to its sixth straight victory Saturday with a 35-10 victory over Utah State. It was the Aggies' fourth period and Oregon sixth defeat in row, but the 10 points fumble into the end zone.

The Aggies scored a touchdown in the second quarter—the first time a team has scored against the Cougars in the first half this season. Utah State recovered a Wyoming fumble on the Cowboy 29, then quarterback Ron Edwards hit Mike O'Shea with a 25-yard pass in the end zone.

The Utahs scored again in the third quarter when Jim Murphy kicked a 26-yard field goal. The Cougars exploded for their first touchdown early in the game when senior quarterback Rick Egloff found split end Perry Marlowe wide open on the Utah 23 and hit him down the middle for a 57-yard touchdown pass.

Spartans Rip To 41-20 Win Over Purdue

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State rode to its eighth victory in a row Saturday, driving smashes of Bob Apisa and the strong right arm of quarterback Jimmy Raye into a 41-20 rout of Purdue today in a homecoming clash before 70,014 fans.

Apisa carried for three touchdowns and smashes of six, ten and 10 yards as MSU's devastating ground attack backed up a brilliant aerial show. Jimmy Raye watched Purdue's mighty smasher, passer Bob Griese, slip into the No. 2 spot behind Notre Dame in the national rankings last week, struck hard and often in a bid to retake the top spot.

Sanders Buys Office Building

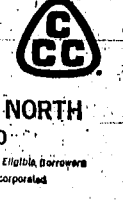

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Doug Sanders, the professional golfer who has won three major tournaments this year, bought the Trans-America Life Building in downtown Fort Worth Friday for more than $1 million.

Sanders, 33, said at a news conference he represented only himself in the venture. The 17-story building is primarily an office building.

Cold cash.

When you buy something at a store, you're doing that store a favor by giving them your business. If they don't treat you right—you walk out. Should it be any different when you go to borrow money? We don't think so. Our business is lending money. To pay off bills, make car repairs or even money to redecorate your house. And we want your business. So, when you come to Commercial Credit, we treat you with the dignity a valued customer deserves. It's the least we can do—or you just might walk out. And that's a pretty chilling thought to us.

Laos Forces In Control Of Country

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — National Lao forces appeared Saturday to be in firm control of the country after recapturing the Savannakhet, air base stronghold of rebel forces.

Brig. Gen. Thao Ma, who is said to have taken refuge in Thailand.

Laos forces issued by the office of the premier, Prince Souvanna Phouma, said government forces took the air base in southern Laos without a shot being fired.

Souavanna Phouma broke off a Paris visit Saturday and left for Laos.

The general situation in the Laotian kingdom, however, returned to normal, said the communiqué, broadcast by Vientiane radio.

"People who left their homes to escape the rebels are asked to return to their homes and resume their normal daily activities."

Thao Ma, 32, commander of the small royal Laotian air force, has been at odds with the Vientiane military high command for months. He ordered his 728 fighter-bombers to attack three army installations around Vientiane Friday morning.

The planes strafed and bombed the installations for 30 minutes. Royal army offices at the Pono Rhene camp headquarters, which was the hardest hit, said the attacks took a toll of 31 dead and 16 wounded.

Authoritative Laotian sources denied reports that Thao Ma, Col. Bounkiet Savanet and 12 pilots who helped Thao Ma carry out the raids were to be extradited from Thailand.

After the raids, Prince Boun Oum, inspector general of the kingdom, went to Savannakhet to reason with Thao Ma. Boun Oum gave this account:

Thao Ma first explained that he had ordered the raids in an attempt to "restore justice to the country of Laos."

Boun Oum replied that the air force chief's duty was to protect Laos against a foreign enemy, that the air force must be considered the backbone of Laotian defense and that it should never have been used against Laotians for political reasons.

Boun Oum then described the effect of the raid on Vientiane and Thao Ma collapsed into tears.

White Youth Is Slain in Negro Area

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Three white youths who were "looking around" in a Miami Negro district were beaten and stabbed Friday night, one of them fatally.

The survivors told sheriff's Lt. William E. Armstrong that they made friends with three Negro youths and a Negro woman while "just looking around."

They said the four Negroes suddenly attacked them and took their wallets. Armstrong identified the dead youth as Miller Sneed, 18, of Homestead, and said he succumbed to multiple knife wounds in the chest.

Larry Williams, 18, Miami, was stabbed in the abdomen and was in fair condition after surgery. Gerald Kerce, 18, Miami, was beaten but did not require hospitalization.

Bangkok Still Confident, but Not Complacent

By WILLIAM L. RYAN, BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A short time ago one heard in Bangkok the same sort of complacent, confident talk from Thai and U.S. officials as was heard in South Viet Nam five years ago. Today, while much of the confidence remains, the complacency is gone.

The threat to Thailand of a new people's war in the style of Viet Nam is recognized. There are parallels between what is going on in some parts of Thailand now and what took place in South Viet Nam in 1960-61.

There are important differences, too. If the Viet Nam conflict goes badly for the Saigon government, if it is settled on terms favorable to the Communist side, Bangkok fears its troubles will multiply swiftly.

On the other hand, if the Communists appear to have been defeated or to have been forced to settle on less than their own terms, the dangers from the incipient guerrilla war in this country may diminish.

In some respects, the guerrilla threat in Thailand is about at the level of the threat to the Saigon government five or six years ago. The Communist infiltration there was on a small scale in 1959-60, as it is these days in Thailand's impoverished northeast provinces.

In 1961 there was a sudden intensification of guerrilla efforts in South Viet Nam, as if to launch a big push to topple the Saigon government. Slowly, the number of U.S. military advisers increased, although they still numbered in the hundreds.

This insurgent intensification of effort came directly after the Communists announced formation of the National Front for the Liberation of South Viet Nam to serve as a political arm of the Red guerrilla forces.

There is a parallel in Thailand. The guerrilla forces in the northeast, still small in number, although numerous in operations, called themselves the "Thailand Independence Movement." In January-1965, a political arm was formed for them, calling itself the Thailand Patriotic Front — TPF. This came on the heels of a statement by Peking's Foreign Minister Chen Yi that "We may have a guerrilla war going in Thailand before the year is out."

Since then, guerrilla activity in the northeast has stepped up. This year the rate of assassinations of government officials and paragon to that of Ngo Dinh Diem who by 1961 had cracked down so hard on any breath of opposition that he had driven many Vietnamese into the arms of the Communists and had complicated the task of his own armed forces. There is no such suppression in Thailand.

In addition, there is an enormous American presence already in Thailand — 27,000 men. The United States has constructed a complex of powerful bases, some of them in the northeast, and turned them over to Thailand.

Perhaps most important, a political uproar is going on in Red China today. Until it is settled, China may be in poor condition to accept long risks.

The Communists in Thailand have less prospect of a broad popular front than they had in Viet Nam.

The differences would seem to lessen the threat to Thailand. But there is little tendency in official circles to take anything for granted.

Udall to Inspect Speedway Threat

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall will inspect the Bonneville Salt Flats Tuesday during a visit to Utah, Ray Pruett, Democratic state chairman, announced Saturday.

Housing Unit Named Duvall Courts Honoring Pioneer Local Attorney

Honoring Judge O. P. Duvall, who was the first chairman of the Twin Falls Housing Authority Board, the 50 modern units now being constructed for elderly people will be named Duvall Courts.

Announcement of the name selection was made by Larry Harper, authority manager. In addition to being the first board chairman, Judge Duvall, a lawyer, has served as legal council of the organization since June, 1946.

The new units are to be located on property adjoining the present Sunny-View Courts on Addison Avenue East. They will be in the immediate area of the Valley Christian Church.

Designed for the elderly, they will be of brick veneer construction and will include a variety of features such as wide doors and heavy duty hand rails around tubs and stools.

The new units will feature circulating hot water central heating systems and will include electric ranges as well as a laundry on the site. Estimated cost has been placed at $400,000.

Construction has started and completion is expected by August, 1957. After the Duvall Courts are occupied, the housing authority will have 164 units of housing in operation.

There will then be 86 units at Washington Courts, 28 units at Pioneer Square, 30 units at Sunny View and the 50 at Duvall Courts. With the exception of the southeast part of the city there was a section where more than 50 families lived in shacks and hovels. As many as six to eight families used an outside toilet and many did not have running water in their homes.

With this situation existing, the authority was able to acquire the money which resulted in construction of Pioneer Square and Washington Courts. The disposed people were given preference to rent a dwelling in the new construction.

In the early days, he also recalled, there was much criticism of the setup, some declaring that it was robbing local owners of houses for rent.

One local citizen said the setup was "unconstitutional and brought charges which resulted in the commission being served with process. Because a housing lawyer was needed, Duvall resigned the board and took over as lawyer for the authority, a post he still holds.

"The management, control and supervision of these housing projects are in the hands of our local citizens," Judge Duvall said. "They have served without pay over the past 23 years."

"When this new project is completed, they will have handled expenditures of well over $400,000."

"So, when the late Joe Koehn, mayor and humanitarian, informed me that a survey had disclosed that we had over 300 families living in substandard and unsanitary conditions, I consented to accept an appointment to the board and proceeded to the formation of the Twin Falls Housing Authority."

"It was a quasi-municipal corporation to work in cooperation with the federal housing law, which had been enacted and for which money had been authorized," he said.

Judge Duvall recalled that this survey had disclosed that in

Injured Telephone Operator Gets "Thank You" Letter From Home

"God Bless you and keep you healthy."

Herman Zenke, Lake Villa, Ill., sent this message recently to Mrs. Alec Kinsfather.

Well, Mrs. Kinsfather is not in the best of health, but she is well on the way. She has been a patient in St. Benedict's Hospital, Jerome, since an automobile accident Aug. 13 near Tuttle.

The Kinsfathers, mother, father and three daughters, had been visiting relatives in Twin Falls and were on their way back from a trip to Boise when they looked up to see the headlights of a car coming straight towards them. This is all that Mrs. Kinsfather remembers.

The next two weeks were hazy and then she found that her oldest, Mary, 18, had a broken pelvis and was sharing her hospital room. Rebecca, 16, had an injured finger and facial cuts, the father and the youngest girl, 15, were not hurt.

Zenke, who lives near the home town of the Kinsfathers, Round Lake, Ill., has a soft spot in his heart for Mrs. Kinsfather because in all probability, she saved his life. He is 71 years old and lives alone.

On June 20 of this year he went into a diabetic coma but managed to knock the receiver from the telephone and call "help."

Mrs. Kinsfather, who is supervisor with the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., heard his cry and set the wheels in motion to obtain aid. She realized that Zenke was unconscious, but regaining consciousness briefly from time to time. She talked to him, assuring him that help was on the way.

The Lake Villa Rescue Squad was notified and in about 20 minutes Mrs. Kinsfather heard over the telephone the efforts of the rescuers to break into the locked house.

Zenke, who did not know that he had diabetes wrote his little note of sincere appreciation to the operator who called the Lake Villa Rescue Squad "not know (tentive injuries in a Jerome, Idaho, hospital.

Mrs. Kinsfather's left leg was broken in three places; her right hand was broken; her chest was crushed; she had a serious cut and injuries to her right knee, and there was a long gash near her right eye.

Alec Kinsfather has returned to his job as Navy program monitor at the Electronic Supply Office in Great Lakes, Ill., along with Lyndy who was not injured.

Mary left the hospital two weeks ago and is staying with Mrs. Kinsfather's mother, Mrs. Mary Earl, 1954 East Heyburn, Twin Falls. The Illinois family had also been visiting his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Kopp.

Mrs. Kinsfather hopes that she will be recovered enough to leave the hospital in about two weeks to return to her home in Round Lake.

Women of China Labor In New Area

TOKYO (AP) — The women of Red China have been described as serious, sexless, and shapeless. Their energies are channeled into loving Mao Tse-tung and stepping up production.

Admittedly, this appraisal by recent travelers is a generalization. It could be influenced by the fact that Chinese women no longer resemble those of the past.

Dressed in baggy, ill-fitting tunics and pantsloons, their hair cut short, China's 350 million women nowadays often look like men.

No longer do they wear the body-clinging cheongsams of the past, with the slits high up the sides. Paint, powder and lipstick work no miracles for the proletarian plain or ugly.

Bright Red Antique Fire Engine Now Owned by T.F. Shrine Club

A bunch of the boys — older boys, that is — will now be able to whip it up in style.

The reason is in the form of an antique fire engine which really works and which, right now, is being given a fresh coat of red paint, to which appropriate gold lettering will be added.

The move, which resulted in the engine being brought to Twin Falls from Moscow, Idaho, was the brainchild of Archie Langdon. He bought it from the Shrine Club in that section for the staggering amount — in cash — of $100.

Getting it back to Twin Falls, he sold it to the Twin Falls Shrine Club, of which he is a member, for the same amount.

"When I saw that truck and found out that it could be purchased, I went ahead and bought it on the night shift, is being done at the Southern Idaho Pipe and Steel Corp. building.

Even while the truck was being worked on, it was being used for the parade on Nov. 11 when it goes to Salt Lake City with the annual Shrine food caravan. In Twin Falls it will be reserved for parade and ceremonial activities, local Shrine said. (Times-News photo)

TOP PISTOL SHOOTER and promoter of country music, Kenneth Hainsworth, Shelley, whose wife is the former Juanita Canarusa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Canarusa, Wendell, recently recorded several of his own songs in Twin Falls. He started singing and playing as a hobby for churches and parties about a year ago and has written some 30 songs.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

A 13-foot castor bean stalk is growing in the back yard of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Randklev, 1627 Miller Ave., BURLEY. The average castor bean grows to about five feet tall in this area. The Randklevs have been growing castor beans for over 20 years, but this is the first time it has reached such a height. The trunk of the castor bean measures 18 inches around at the bottom.

The seeds were purchased from a local seed store and planted this spring on the south side of the patio to supply shade for the patio.

From the main stalk a branch has grown which supports one leaf only with the large leaf measuring from 10 to 24 inches across. Directly above the main stalk is a smaller branch which put out several leaves. This growth of one large leaf, then several smaller ones, is the pattern of growth all the way up the main stalk. This growth pattern is also unusual for most castor beans support several leaves on a branch from the main stalk, Mrs. Randklev said.

As the four children, Jerry, Tommy, Dick and Bobby, became old enough to enjoy plants and their growth, planting the castor bean became a family project. Now with Jerry attending Idaho State University at Pocatello, Tommy in Burley High School and Dick and Bobby both in Burley Junior-High School, the project once again has become Mr. and Mrs. Randklev's.

When the Randklev children were small the parents did research on the plant because the castor bean seed is extremely poisonous if eaten. Many people confuse it with airplane engines. Today jet airplanes use large quantities as a lubricant because it keeps its viscosity over extreme ranges of temperature.

In Arizona and New Mexico the castor bean is planted just to supply shade and in the warm climates do reach heights of 10 to 12 feet.

The husband of a former WENDELL girl, the former Juanita Canarusa, who now lives in Shelley, is a top pistol shooter and a promoter of country music. Kenneth Hainsworth recently was in TWIN FALLS where he recorded some original songs, including, "It's O. K. If You Love Me," "That Is Why I Feel the Way I Do."

A Marine veteran, he was employed as a security patrolman at the National Reactor Testing Station at Arco and while there became interested in pistol shooting. He won several trophies.

About a year ago he started singing and playing as a hobby for "cliques" and parties and has written about 30 songs. He hopes to go to Nashville, Tenn., next year for a recording contract for a bigger company. An enthusiastic backer of country music, Hainsworth believes radio stations should play more of this type of music.

He also is associated with the Idaho Oldtime Fiddlers. The musician is presently employed at the machine shop at Westinghouse Electric Corp. at the reactor testing station.

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

By HAROLD N. NYE, Minister, First Methodist Church.

How do you like the Sales Tax? I can hear some of my readers saying, "Terrible. Others, 'I like it.' And still others, 'I really don't much care.'"

Our Lord once said, as He was thinking about the taxes imposed on "His people by the Roman government," "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." As He spoke those words He was articulating His own sympathy and loyalty for the state. But at the same time He was expressing His own personal loyalty to God.

Saint Paul reflected this same philosophy. He, of course, recognized a loyalty to the state. In fact he taught that it was a Christian's duty to obey magistrates and the laws of the land. These are complicated days in which we live. The operation of municipal, state and federal governments takes some doing.

Rail Service Report Given At Paul Meet

PAUL—A report was presented during the Paul Chamber of Commerce meeting Wednesday evening that railroad officials said the company would remodel and expand the loading dock at the railroad depot providing that sufficient rail shipment business could be generated from the community.

The chamber voted not to operate a booth at the Paul School PTA carnival Nov. 18 but will support it by attending. A committee was appointed to attend a meeting with Arco officials on Nov. 18 to further discuss the feasibility of extending State Highway 27 to the Fish Creek area to promote more trade from that area.

The feasibility of erecting a touring sign on the Interstate 80 near the county line about 10 miles west of Paul was discussed, but no decision made. The sign would direct traffic to Highway 25 toward Paul.

And, just as we citizens are requiring more services for our homes, so are we also requiring more services from our state. But no service is free.

Even when it is advertised as such, we know it is a hidden cost. In the commodity we purchase, there is no secret that the wonderful services provided for us by the State of Idaho have a price tag. This we expect. The problem is, how shall we provide the money for the expenses of these fine services?

Of course we use the taxation method. None of such methods is without problems. Any form of taxation is a disagreeable entity. It is easy to succumb to the temptation of wanting a lot of free services at the expense of someone else. But in a democracy such as ours, each citizen must carry his proportionate share of the tax load.

But, how shall we make the tax load equitable? How shall we render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's? On Tuesday, November 8th, we will have an opportunity to express our convictions on the matter of the "how" of taxation. Just as it is one's Christian and ethical duty to share proportionately in the tax load, so it is also every one's duty to be a good citizen by voting.

Until that Tuesday, get the facts. Do not vote for any easy way, but for the way that is equitable and just.

Harpischord Is Undergoing Upsurge in Popularity

NEW YORK (AP) — Do they laugh when you sit down at the piano? And to tell the truth, aren't you getting a little sick of "Dizzy Fingers" and "Nola" yourself?

Perhaps you ought to go for baroque. They'll laugh out of the other side of their mouths when you sit down at a harpischord or clavichord. And when you tip off a "recitativo" by Bach or an "Aria con Variazioni" by Handel, they'll chorus "odds fish!"

But today these instruments are not such odd fish. The harpischord, particularly, is turning up in jazz bands, pop records, film scores and even the jungles of Viet Nam.

It is perhaps inappropriate to say the harpischord business is booming — thinking a better word — but in the past decade the instrument has undergone a surprising upsurge in popularity. The quickening tempo and volume have created what might be called "scherozo for cash register."

The key to the rebirth of interest in baroque music lies wrapped in manifold sociological and psychological theories about the nature of the 20th Century mind. But what sets the cashbox chiming is Americans' delight in the thrills, the mechanical, the do-it-yourself.

A nation raised on homemade kites and model airplane kits is Civil Aeronautics Board Friday discovering that it hasn't conquered the last frontier with do-it-yourself hi-fi components, to day, thanks to a slight, graying inkling in New York's Greenwich Village, you can be the first on your block to build your own harpischord.

Wallace Zuckerman, 43, one-time child psychologist and lifelong cellist, awoke one day in 1955 and decided to build a harpischord from scratch.

Dating from the 14th Century, the harpischord with its plucked strings was for 400 years the ideal medium for performing the crisp, disciplined, baroque structures of melodies of equal importance, woven into complex tapestries.

But in the late 1700s it was eclipsed by a new invention, the piano, a louder, more flexible instrument whose hammered strings were better suited to expressing a new kind of music — the personal, passionate, less disciplined romantic style.

Following the "scherozo" for cash register, a few craftsmen began building modern harpischords before the turn of the century — notably Arnold Dolmetsch in England and the Neupert firm in Bavaria.

ASKS NEW ROUTE WASHINGTON (AP) — Frontier Airlines of Denver asked the Civil Aeronautics Board Friday for a new westward route with Boise, Idaho, as an intermediate stop.

FOUR BUTTERFLIES who will "fly" around during the presentation of "The World We Live In" by the Twin Falls High School drama department pose in their "way out" costumes featured extensively in the production. The four girls, from left, are Sandra Hopkins, Peggy Keller, Cathy Pond and Connie Babbel. The costumes of all cast members were designed by Bradford Hickerson, drama instructor at the school. Insects, Human Style, Dominate Cast Of Unusual Local High School Play

Following a recent trend which has been going on for at least a few years, the annual all-school play of the Twin Falls High School drama department will be a "way out" production which will reveal a curiously interesting analogy between the lives of insects and those of men. No longer do the usual three-act vehicles which were standard high school fare in years past fill the bill. Today the student actors and the audience for that matter want something entirely different—and they are getting it in full measure.

About the only thing that is not different about this year's production—stated for the O'Leary Junior High School Auditorium Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings—is the title. They call it "The World We Live In."

That could mean practically anything but in this case it tells the story of a philosophical vagrant, heavy with ideas who falls asleep in a forest and observes an interesting parallel between the lives of insects and those of men. Written in 1922, the production is a Czechoslovakian fantasy.

The costumes, designed by Bradford Hickerson, drama instructor, are stylized, adaptations of the insects they portray. The butterflies and moths, for instance, are costumed in gowns of chiffon which give the illusion of flight, with eyes which "just might" appear as wings. The beetles wear bulky burial costumes, giving them a size and shape similar to the corresponding insect, but appearing more as long coats.

The costumes for the ants are more nearly as the actual insects appear. The finished costumes are the work of girls in the advanced drama class at and the play itself combines into an unusual presentation. Written in 1922, the play is a fantasy. In this picture, from left, standing, are Gary Simpson as an ant soldier, Tom Visser as the vagrant, while Ken Eklund, seated left, is a parasite and Becky Hoffmaster a larva. (Times-News photo)

while Val Seavers is makeup chairman.

The cast, on stage numbers about 40 with Tom Visser, Ken Eklund, Gary Simpson, Teri Thornock, Gail Fisher, Alice Simpson and others taking extremely active parts.

In past years feature stories have been written on high school plays which were "different" from the usual production run. One year Buhl was featured. Another year it was Kimberly. This time it is Twin Falls with the insects all mixed up, but out so much so that you cannot recognize among them someone you know—perhaps even yourself.

"On causing the defendant to stop," he told the court Tuesday. "I confirmed my suspicion that the animal was a donkey."

The driver, Peter Cox, principal of an art school, was accused of not having proper control of his small French car from which the front passenger seat had been removed to make space for the donkey.

Cox denied the charge. He said the donkey was a family pet named Neddy and very tame. He added that Mrs. Cox, sitting on the back seat, had a firm hold on Neddy's halter.

The verdict: Not guilty.

Changes Are Noted in Kremlin Area

MOSCOW (AP)—Two years of new Soviet leadership since the ouster of Nikita S. Khrushchev have brought significant changes for the Kremlin.

At home, industry and agriculture are being put on a more realistic basis that will bring them a little closer to satisfying the needs of the Soviet people.

Around, the Soviet Union reasserted its influence in Asia and within the world Communist movement. These gains have been at the expense of China, whose competitive influence has waned.

The basic aspects of Communist rule and outlook remain unaffected.

There is no sign the new leaders have lost sight of the importance of avoiding war with the United States, despite Viet Nam. They are primarily concerned with internal progress—and that makes it essential to keep conflicts contained in distant parts of the world.

The Communist party is unchallenged as the centrally controlled elite that runs the country. Little dissent is heard publicly. Heavy industry remains more important than consumers.

But there has been a striking change in style here. Khrushchev's flamboyant one-man show has given way to bureaucratic management.

The ideology of Marxism has faded farther into the background, replaced by the necessities of businesslike administration. The new leaders worry about the lack of public inspiration, particularly among a cynical younger generation, but seem unable to do anything about it.

While less exciting, the new leadership seems to Western diplomats to be more rational. Foreign observers here are impressed by efforts to eliminate problems that Joseph Stalin built up, such as the economy 30 years ago. He deprived agriculture and consumer industries of resources in order to develop heavy industries such as steel.

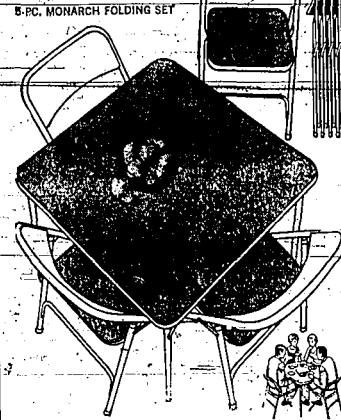

The years made the problems worse. Agriculture lagged behind needs and industrial production got increasingly out of line with demand.

Khrushchev added to the problems with erratic attempts to revise them. This and the way he rode roughshod over his colleagues were major reasons that they removed him two years ago, next Friday.

MRS. SARA LEE TURNER is in business because it is fun. The hours are long and the pace hectic, she says, but the rewards are worth it. She is typical of many women in business throughout Magic Valley. She operates Sallie's Gifts and Books in the Lywood Shopping Center. (Times-News photo)

WOMEN IN BUSINESS...

Operator of Local Gift Store Gives Reasons for Starting in Business

When she said it she was smiling, but Mrs. Sara Lee Turner was telling a story about how she got into business.

She related that she woke up one morning with two cents and decided to invest it. Even if the two cents portion of the story is probably slightly erroneous, the reason actually did go into business is not.

Mrs. Turner is owner of Sallie's Gifts and Books, located in the Lywood Shopping Center. She has been in business since February, 1962, has expanded that business three times and last August started a branch in the new Holiday Inn on Blaine Lakes Boulevard North.

Mrs. Turner was born at Portsmouth, Ohio, a daughter of pioneer parents. Her father was a passenger-engineer on the Norfolk and Western Railroad and before he retired had served for 47 years.

After grade and high school in Portsmouth, Mrs. Turner entered Ohio University at Athens, where she majored in business administration.

After college, and along the way to owning her present store, she dabbled in such things as style shows, being a sportswear buyer and writing radio programs.

This was all before she came to Twin Falls by way of Washington, Oregon and Montana.

It was in Oregon she met Richard C. Turner, the man she was to marry. He was in the insurance business and Mrs. Turner relates, "I followed him around for 21 years before I decided to open my own business."

The Turners have four children—Carol, Bruce, Ann and Paula. All reside at the family home at 611 Cindy Drive.

In Twin Falls Mrs. Turner is active in the Episcopal Church, has taken part in political organizations and was a former member of the Toastmistress Club. She has always been interested in health work and was a member of the Helena Health Council in Montana.

Actually, she admits that she was motivated to go into business because she wanted to feed and four youngsters to educate you can always use an outside income.

Now she works long hours, six days a week and does her own buying. She keeps her own books although end-of-the-year reports are handed over to accountants.

"Does she like being in business?"

"You bet I do," she said. "It is sometimes hard and the hours are long, but all in all it is rewarding. I believe that the book and gift business is especially interesting because it is so diversified," she said.

Her business has flourished. Her customers come from over the entire valley and from all parts of the United States, for that matter. Scores of order requests come through the mails. She advertises quite extensively.

Getting back to that two cents she talked about when she entered business, under direct questioning she admitted that the two cents she had when she started might be all she has when it is all over.

"But being in business is fun, anyway," she said.

13 years ago.

The star of such film classics as "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "You Can't Take It with You" and "Shane" she came back to Hollywood last year to guest star in "Carnegie," then agreed to a series.

How did it go wrong?

"I don't know," she said. "I do know that I had nothing to say in the production matters. I tried to make myself heard, but I knew early in the series that things weren't going right."

Long a recluse, Miss Arthur has had the reputation for being skittish in her personal life, and local observers feared she would not be able to withstand the rigors of a TV series. She fooled them by plunging into the work with the vigor of a starlet.

Jean Arthur Receives Axe For New Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jean Arthur, faded comedienne of the movies' golden years, quit 13 years of retirement to play a lady lawyer in a television series this year — and the show was one of the first to be axed.

So how does she feel?

"Relieved that I don't have to read any more of those awful scripts."

Miss Arthur, whose candor is as refreshing as it is uncharacteristic for this part of the world, told an interviewer she was "disappointed" of course when CBS handed her the pink slip. But she's game for another try with the right kind of show.

CBS' action came after the "Jean Arthur Show" wound up its 6th among 99 shows in the Nielsen ratings.

The series — awaited with anticipation by fans of the husky-voiced actress — marked Miss Arthur's return to a full-time career after retiring to California's Monterey Peninsula

Leaders Favor Admitting China to United Nations

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The thing has come for the United States to support the seating of both Communist China and Nationalist China in the United Nations, says a national policy panel of the U.N. Association of the United States.

In a 64-page report released Thursday night, a panel of 27 prominent business executives, scholars and bankers supports the promise of a seat on the U.N. Security Council for Communist China if Peking accepts the two-China approach in the U.N. General Assembly.

The panel for the U.S. association, a private organization, was headed by Robert V. Roosa, former undersecretary of the Treasury and now a partner in the Wall Street firm of Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co. The vice chairman was Frederick S. Reeb, chairman of the board of the New York-Washington Post.

The excesses of Communist China's Red Guards and the robbing of Mao Tse-tung's extremist policy are cited as convincing evidence of "the need to provide fresh and timely encouragement to these moderate influences that still remain in China."

The report says it is the considered judgment of the panel that the United States "should promptly begin consultations with those countries which have in the past joined the country in opposition to extending an invitation to Peking, in order to work toward the representation of mainland China in the United Nations."

Roosa said in a news conference in connection with the report that 17 of the 27 members of the panel felt it is important to tell Peking that it could count on a Security Council seat if it sits with Nationalist China in the assembly.

Others feel the assurance of Peking should not be so clearly drawn.

Kenneth T. Young, president of the Asia Society and former ambassador to Thailand, is joined by four others in favoring a two-stage modification of present U.S. policy.

Young says this would provide for dual representation in the U.N. General Assembly of both Chinas but defer the question of changing the Security Council membership.

The report emphasizes "the United States must continue to protect its Asian allies from military attack and add: 'We consider it essential that the Republic of China (Taiwan) retain its U.N. membership.'"

UNIQUE PEAKNOSE CISCO, found only in Bear Lake, are a good example of the reasons for winter fishing in Idaho — they are available only for a few weeks during January and early February. Regulations permit the taking of cisco with dip nets. This plagues the curiosity of thousands of sportsmen by offering an unusual kind of recreational interlude. Here is a typical wintry scene along the shores of Bear Lake in southeastern Idaho where the cisco are coming ashore to spawn.

Winter Fishing Provides Solution to Anglers' Lull From November to June

BOISE — The number of die-hard anglers still trying their luck after Oct. 31 in waters managed as year-round fisheries will be a far cry from the more than 250,000 of them supported by Idaho's streams and lakes during the general statewide trout season.

Some of the late fall and winter fishermen will catch trophy-sized mackinaw and Kamloops trout from northern Idaho's Priest and Sand Orella lakes, ocean-run steelhead, the Peaknose Cisco that is unique to the waters of Bear Lake, rainbow trout and perch through holes cut in ice; two kinds of black bass and three species of whitefish, among others.

James C. Simpson, chief of the fisheries division of the Idaho Fish and Game Department, gives a three-fold purpose to the philosophy behind winter fishing seasons. These points are: (1) permitting anglers to fish when the lever hits, (2) permitting the harvesting of fish that would not otherwise be taken in summer, and (3) permitting the harvesting of fish at a time when they are available. Peaknose Cisco are a good example of this.

The number of fishermen since World War II has doubled. By the end of the century, fishing pressure may be nearly three times what it is now. This means more growth at state fish hatcheries, which now raise more than 20 million fish of all kinds in a year.

Today, jet boats travel easily up and down wild river canyons that denied passage to early explorers like Lewis and Clark. Light aircraft fly over some of the most awesome, most spectacular back country in the world and park on dozens of primitive area landing strips.

During the general fishing season, they bring heavy pressure to remote lake and river areas where rarely-fished trout are found. Fishermen outfitted in this way can reach steelhead waters just about any part of the state at any time of the year without too much concern about road and weather conditions.

Downriver counts of steelhead trout at Ice Harbor and Bonneville dams on the lower Snake and Columbia rivers are comparable to a good angling season this fall and winter. Several catches of these big sea-going trout already have been reported in the Clearwater and Salmon rivers, as well as the main stem of the Snake River above Lewiston.

The escapement of fish destined to spawn in Idaho next spring has been good enough to date to make the fishing outlook good. This fishery generally picks up toward the middle or end of October, and is at its best during the cool fall months until ice becomes too much of a problem for even the hardiest angler to contend with.

Several years ago, a national monthly magazine featuring outdoor sports articles gave southeastern Idaho a great publicity boost with a long story and color photos about the unique winter fishery built around "Peaknose," or Bonneville Cisco. Because regulations permit the taking of cisco with dip nets, a small local industry and tourist attraction has developed. It always gets much newspaper, television and other type of publicity. It plagues the curiosity of thousands of people by offering an unusual kind of winter recreational interlude.

Late October and November combine a number of factors to make the best time of year for hunting, mackinaw, Kamloops rainbow trout and Dolly Varden trophy fish.

To date, the Idaho records are 84 pounds 6 ounces for Kamloops, 37 pounds for Kamloops, and 32 pounds for Dolly Varden. This year's season for these big dip nets. This plagues the curiosity of thousands of sportsmen by offering an unusual kind of recreational interlude. Here is a typical wintry scene along the shores of Bear Lake in southeastern Idaho where the cisco are coming ashore to spawn.

People who have not learned about the sport and good eating qualities offered by perch have several year-round trout fisheries open to them in each of the regions within the state. Since these waters receive lighter fishing pressure during the summer and early fall, additional winter harvest is possible without hurting the resource.

People do not catch enough whitefish and perch during the regular season to keep up with the population increases on many streams and reservoirs. Winter fishing helps reduce their numbers.

Over-populations of perch generally are found in reservoirs and with any kind of rest-winter weather, the waters are frozen enough for the ice to support a veritable townsite of fishermen. Whitefish, on the contrary, usually are caught in open streams even though temperatures may be well below the zero mark.

Liberalized regulations for the first time this year allow more than one pole and line to be used per fisherman as long as the action is through holes that are cut or broken through the ice. The Idaho Fish and Game Commission adopted this regulation to help promote the sport of ice fishing. However, multiple gear cannot be used for any other type of fishing.

Black bass can be taken most places in Idaho in April. That's two months before the general statewide trout season. These fish, both largemouth and smallmouth bass, were introduced into waters of the West by pioneers. Today, many streams and lakes in the Gem state are well stocked with black bass, especially the largemouth. Idaho rivers in which bass are found, are the Snake, Clearwater and lower Salmon. These mostly are stocked with smallmouths.

Year-round waters are managed for fishermen who think that the time from November to June is too long between bites. There are others who hate to see the evening sun go down because it interrupts fishing until morning. For those who want to stretch the time of good fishing far, far into the night, catfish are good bets.

They are found in the Snake River from Brownlee Reservoir to the area above Swan Falls to the east. All of this water is open for year-round fishing — which means all night fishing for anybody who wants to stay with it.

Thus, Idaho fishermen so inclined not only can fish around the clock, but also around-the-clock in reservoirs and rivers. Calendar whatever the time of year, whatever the season.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

PROTECT PLANTS IN WINTER: When next spring rolls around many weekend gardeners will be disappointed to find that some of their ornamental plants have brown leaves. These include azaleas, rhododendrons, mountain laurel, holly, Floribunda roses and evergreens.

What injures these plants? Is it cold temperatures or is it due to the hot sun? Usually, it is due to cold temperatures, but dehydration which causes injury or death. During the winter months of the soil-water is frozen to some depth and when the sun or a hot wind comes along plants get old water at a rate faster than the plant can replace it from the soil.

Plants on a windy location lose more water than those in a protected area. Plants on the sunny side of a house and subject to the direct rays of the sun may change in temperature from 25 to 35 degrees in a matter of 10 to 20 degrees by 5 a.m.

Shading these plants to protect them from the direct sun may be adequate to prevent injury. Plants on the north or west side of a house will not usually be subjected to such rapid changes in temperature.

Spraying the plants with a "frost-freeze" helps trap moisture in the tissues. Or you can build yourself a screen around your favorite plants.

Test plants in November or December if sufficiently early to put them around the plants. Do not use plastic sheets as heat is trapped inside. Plants need air in winter so do not seal them off tight.

GOLD DUST PLANT: If you are looking for a handsome item that will grow in a bright or shaded window, try the "Gold Dust Plant" (Aucuba japonica variegata).

This is a tender shrub with stiff, wax-like foliage spotted with yellow. Give it plenty of water and ordinary room temperature.

Marries Usher

PARIS (AP)—Baron James Nathaniel de Rothschild, 70, defied a stormy Friday and married a theater usher 43 years his junior.

The member of one of the world's richest families took as his bride Yvette Honoré Chocquet, 27, who worked as an usher—until last month.

The only other Rothschild family member to attend the ceremony was a niece by marriage. The rest of the Rothschilds were either "too busy or traveling," a member of the wedding party confided.

The bride wore a Dior gown. After the ceremony the wedding party went to a neighboring restaurant for a reception.

Boy, Victim Of Leukemia, Gets Wish

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP)—A clown named Bozo dropped out of the sky from Boston-Friday to visit a little boy named Stephen, and almost everybody in the town knew he was Bozo.

But Stephen Mokis Jr., 6, had no idea that Bozo had come by plane and bus just to visit him. Stephen doesn't even know he has leukemia, a type of cancer.

The mercy mission from Boston brought a whole busload of professional performers, producers, directors, technicians and press agents into this woods-surrounded Newark suburb where Stephen lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Mokis, and his two little sisters, Donna and Tina.

Stephen's wish to see his favorite television personality in the flesh blossomed into a complete show for 500 pupils at St. Philip's School. Dressed in his best black suit, white shirt and black tie, Stephen sat on Bozo's lap before the show and seemed hardly aware of all the commotion.

All he knew was that for some strange reason his own nose had a squeak in it, just like Bozo's, and in no time at all he had learned to make Bozo's "Bozo-Bozo" sound.

Stephen's parents learned two years ago that he had leukemia. He has been going to Memorial Hospital in New York for treatment, sometimes five times a week, a trip which takes from one to two hours each way.

But he has only spent about four weeks at a hospital patient. "He's been able to lead a fairly normal life," his father said. "He's been able to go to school, except on the days when he has to go into the hospital."

On one such call Father Capistrano talked a young woman off a hotel room and she was about to jump. "I talked to her about an hour as softly and convincingly as I knew how. Then, thank God, she climbed back and put her hand in mine. I hope I don't ever have to do it again."

Some of the firemen jokingly call him "Friar Tuck," but they all showed their appreciation when they presented him with a plaque from the boys-in-Sherwood Forest. And that goes double for the people of the ghetto jungle whose lives Friar Tuck has made just a little merrier.

Low Water Causes Power Import Need

SEATTLE (AP)—The Bonneville Power Administration said Thursday it will have to import power from British Columbia, California and Utah this winter to meet expected needs.

David S. Black, BPA administrator, said low water flow has reduced hydroelectric generation from Columbia River dams since July.

Meanwhile, the nuclear power plant at Hanford Atomic Works has set a production record, a power official in Kennewick, Wash., said Thursday.

Owen Hurd, managing director of the Washington Public Power Supply System which built the $97 million plant, said it established a record for nuclear plants in the United States by producing 257.2 million kilowatt hours of electricity in September.

The plant was turning out 420,000 kilowatts Thursday, about half of what it will do when the Bonneville Power Administration installs new transformers later this winter. Hurd said: "BPA distributes the power."

Friar Tuck of New York Harlem Proves Popular

Editor's note—Father Capri runs his own Sherwood Forest in all places, New York City's Spanish Harlem. This 44-year-old Friar Tuck has been making a name for himself in a Puerto Rican ghetto.

By The Associated Press

Nobody wants to see Friar Tuck leave. The boys at the firehouse, the kids in the street, they've gotten used to having him around. But within a year he must go; those are his oaths, and he obeys. So he's leaving. He'll miss him.

In five years he has brought energy, fun, compassion to the place, his own little Sherwood Forest.

Friar Tuck, 41, is Father Capistrano of the Capuchin Order of Roman Catholic priests. Many of his parishioners, mostly Puerto Rican immigrants, don't understand the literary allusion. The nickname for him is Father Cap.

Spanish Harlem is the teeming east side of upper Manhattan. So men refer to it as a slum, a jungle, a ghetto.

"It hurts me to think that many people consider this to be a bad neighborhood," said Father Cap, taking a pinch in the white cincture that girds his ample waist. "This is not so. We have good people here."

"Our parish is a poor one. The people give generously within their means, but our school debt is $86,000. Somehow we manage to survive."

Father Cap and his four assistants at Our Lady Queen of Angels Church are good models of generous giving. Of their time, their love, their ideas. Just now they are conducting a parish basketball tournament. They also organize stick ball games, trips to the Statue of Liberty, to Coney Island, or to Yankee Stadium.

On hot summer days the 364-pound friar may take a wrench to the fire-hydrant outside the church for water sports for the neighborhood young.

Fire fighting, in fact, is the friar's second love. He spends so much time with the boys at the neighboring fire house—answering as many as 20 alarms a day they recently appointed him an auxiliary fireman.

On one such call Father Capistrano talked a young woman off a hotel room and she was about to jump. "I talked to her about an hour as softly and convincingly as I knew how. Then, thank God, she climbed back and put her hand in mine. I hope I don't ever have to do it again."

Some of the firemen jokingly call him "Friar Tuck," but they all showed their appreciation when they presented him with a plaque from the boys-in-Sherwood Forest. And that goes double for the people of the ghetto jungle whose lives Friar Tuck has made just a little merrier.

Iron Project in Tasmania Claims "Our Gang" Star

HOBART, Tasmania (AP)—Our Gang's "Freckles," who starred in a series of movies, is now working on an iron ore project in the wilderness of Tasmania's west coast.

Mike Daniels, 50, got his first part when he was 6. The "Our Gang" series made him world famous, but he said he quit acting because he could not make a living at it.

Daniels now is materials supervisor with the Bechtel Pacific Corp., which is constructing a $70-million iron mine in western Tasmania.

"I have a home, a daughter, a grandson and an ex-wife in Los Angeles, but I don't get home often," he said.

Red Guards Ask Ouster Of Officials

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslavians (AP)—The Red Guards of China are demanding removal of President Liu Shao-chi and Communist party secretary general Teng Hsiao-ping. Teng, the news agency said today, by Politburo.

A report from Japanese correspondents in Peking said that the militant youths had demanded that foreign Minister Chou Yei be "turned to death."

The attacks on the three appeared on wall posters in Peking, the reports said.

Liu has been downgraded in the purge now sweeping Red China but both he and Teng apparently preserved their places on the all-powerful paragon news agency said today, by Politburo.

Failure of Communists to Capture Indonesia Is Picture of Intrigue

EDITOR'S NOTE—Events that took place a year ago in Indonesia may yet prove as important to Asia as the Viet Nam war. On Oct. 1, 1965, Communist tried to take over—and failed. The army thwarted them—and in the balance—clipped the powers of President Sukarno. Here is the story of those fateful hours, part of it untold till now, as reconstructed in many interviews by the AP correspondent in Jakarta.

By T. JEFF WILLIAMS
JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — At a few minutes past midnight military trucks bearing a cargo of nervous troops clogged the streets near the presidential palace.

Across the city seven of Indonesian generals—some—awake, unaware they were marked for assassination. At the home of his beautiful Japanese wife, Sukarno paced fitfully. Ratna Sari Dewi had not yet returned home. The former Tokyo nightclub hostess, clad in a long Dior gown, sipped a drink at the posh Nirwana Room of the Hotel Indonesia and chatted gaily with her escort, the Iranian ambassador.

The date was Oct. 1, 1965, the Indonesia Communist party—PKI—was called for action. The next 12 hours would determine whether it would seize Southeast Asia's biggest natural turn it into the third-largest Communist country in the world.

The plot was simplicity itself: Just eliminate opposition within the military to the PKI. It would be unnecessary to overthrow the government; it would be only a matter of time before the Communists had power.

This was the background: Sukarno talked of a government based on "nasakom," an unlikely union of nationalism, religion and communism.

Top army officers resisted this and Sukarno was furious. Moreover, he seemed to have been convinced by the articulate and persuasive D.N. Ait, boss of the Communists, that the army's top leaders had formed a council of generals to overthrow him.

By May, Sukarno had approved a Communist plan to form a National Defense Institute. He put it under civilian control, a directorate topeywar of nervous Communists and this sort of military-Communist system to check on the army. He also was considering a PKI proposal to arm peasants and Communist-controlled unions to provide a lever against the army.

Early in August, Sukarno fell ill with his old kidney problem. He may have been critically ill, but there is no evidence of this other than the word of his Communist Chinese doctors.

The illness helped convince the PKI that the time to move was near. If Sukarno died, the army would know first and would be unable to crush the Communist movement.

Sukarno was sufficiently recovered by Aug. 17 to make his national day speech in which he warned the generals that "if you try to upset the nasakom offensive, you are reactionary forces."

Despite this support, the PKI remained nervous, anxious to move. It chose Oct. 1—Communist China's national day. Evidently the PKI felt impelled to move before Oct. 5, Indonesian armed forces day, when several thousand additional troops would be in Jakarta.

Expert opinion in Jakarta is that the decision to eliminate the army resistance to a nasakom Cabinet came from one man: 6-year-old President Sukarno himself, and that he gave the PKI the green light.

The PKI was to arrest the top generals, accuse them of plotting to overthrow Sukarno, and exile them. Thereafter, the army leadership would be too weak to oppose Sukarno's plans, which dovetailed nicely with the PKI's own program for taking power.

This is how the drama unfolded: Sept. 30—Officers allied with the Communists brought to Jakarta two battalions to join with troops from Sukarno's palace guard under the command of Lt. Col. Untung, which would spearhead the putsch.

That night Sukarno spoke to a mass rally. Later, he sipped tea and chatted with some diplomats, the last of whom left him at 11:25 p.m.

Oct. 1, just after midnight, Sukarno, in military uniform, was driven to his wife's house. Dewi, however, was at the Hotel Indonesia party with the Iranian ambassador.

A 1 a.m.—Sukarno's limousine reached the hotel. An officer was sent to fetch Dewi. At a whispered message, she hurried to join Sukarno. It seems clear that Sukarno knew a coup attempt was imminent and wanted Dewi removed from danger.

his guards, wounded Yani and called him away a captive.

4 a.m.—Now came the first break in the carefully planned chain of action.

An assassination team sent to the home of Defense Minister Abdul-Haris Nasution was met by his wife. Suspicious, she called to him to stay in a back room. Nasution's sleepy-eyed 6-year-old daughter wandered over the scene, was snatched up by a panicky maid. A soldier fired, fatally wounding the child. But Nasution had escaped over a back wall.

When other key generals were rounded up, all were taken to a training area near Halim Air Base.

And now came the second key blunder in the chain of action. Lt. Col. Untung, instead of remaining to supervise his forces in the capital, went to Halim air base. There he watched while the generals were partly stripped, mutilated by frenzied Communist women, slanted and dumped into a 25-foot well—where their bodies remained undiscovered for two days.

6:30 a.m.—Communists captured the radio station, telephone and telegraph offices.

7:20 a.m.—The radio, in Communist hands, announced Sukarno had been "saved" from a coup attempt of the Council of Generals.

While Jakarta wondered what was going on, a young major general named Suharto frantically, but with outward calm, moved to mobilize forces against the plotters. As commander of strategic operations, he had no troops in Jakarta directly under him. He turned to a battalion of tough, anti-Communist special forces whose shipment to Borneo had been delayed by accident. Within hours he had a countermove operating.

The plotters' battalions, left without direction by the absence of their commander, Lt. Col. Untung, collapsed when they were confronted by the special forces.

9 a.m.—Sukarno showed up at Halim air base and chatted with Communist chief Ait in a nearby bungalow. Brig. Gen. Supardjo, highest-ranking military man with the PKI forces, arrived. A witness at Supardjo's trial later on would testify that the president patted the officer on the back, as if in congratulation.

Development of New Radar System for Viet Nam Noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department announced Friday the development of a revolutionary radar system that can provide helicopters with night eyes for use in Viet Nam. The new system has been successfully flight-tested, an announcement said, and demonstrated that it can clearly differentiate between various kinds of ground objects and various kinds of terrain.

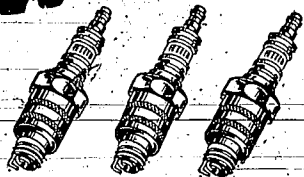

"Large or extended objects, such as airport runways or highways, are unmistakable and pilots aided by photos or charts or with previous knowledge can readily identify clusters of trees, buildings or oil at Da Nang.

The new system amounts to a technical breakthrough, one source said, because "no radar has been successfully used in helicopter operations yet in Viet Nam."

The United States has long been working on an array of night-vision devices in anticipation of beginning major night operations against the Viet Cong guerrillas.

The Viet Cong have stored many great successes at night, including attacks at Bien Hoa, Plei Me and the heavy destruction of a Marine helicopter base at Da Nang.

Bright Red Fire Truck Moved Here

parked outside waiting for the move inside and the refinishing job. Langdon got an offer of $500 "as is."
The machine, a Defender, is in good running condition, the tires are good, the belt and hose work, and the siren is out of this world.
On Nov. 11 it will be taken to Salt Lake City where it will be an important — and probably ear-splitting — part of the Shrine food caravan parade at that point.

At that time thousands of pounds of foodstuffs from this area, carried in more than 30 cars and trucks, will be delivered to the Shrine Hospital there.
That evening the members of the Salt Lake City and Ogden Shrine Clubs will entertain the visitors at a dinner-dance. Saturday morning ceremonies will be conducted at the Salt Lake Shrine Temple by the El Kalah and El Korah Temples from Idaho.
Howard Wiseman, one of the local Shrine Club leaders, asked the Times-News for a special favor, which is granted.

"We want to keep this truck a dark secret until we spring it in Salt Lake City," he said.
"So ask the readers not to say anything about this story if they happen to be in Salt Lake between now and Nov. 11."

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

If you ever are on the search for friendly people, take a few minutes out and drive to Hagerman. We have been searching for merchant's tokens from Hagerman for some time, and finally decided to drive down there and inquire around, on the off chance that perhaps we could locate some.

We first stopped to talk to William Wilson in the pool hall. Here was where the friendliness started. We spent an enjoyable half hour with Wilson, talking about tokens and the town, and came away with a set of nickies used by Wilson's dad, Roscoe, back in the days when tokens were in use.

We went across the street to talk to Arlie Gridley who runs the S and A Club. Here is a gentleman who can beguile you for hours with stories of the early days around the valley. He was a cowboy in his younger days, and remembers most of the history of the town.

Arlie gave us a token used in the old W. L. Coltharp saloon in Hagerman and also, being a generous man, donated a token from the Plebeo Pastime — incidentally the first we've seen from Plebeo.

Across the street and a few doors down is the antique shop run by Mrs. Rayo Coates — and this delightful lady is a fine conversationalist. She had come by some books of merchant's store cards (coupons) used by the old Merit Store when that establishment was in Hagerman. The book contains coupons good for amounts from 1c up to 25c.

Older readers will remember these — they are for $5.00 and gave you $5.00 in trade. These are the first store cards we have run across and most certainly pictures of them will go in the token book we are writing.

Frank Schell, writer of the weekly column, "The Money Box" in the Times-News, is the author of an article published recently in "The Coin World."

The "Coin World" is a weekly newspaper, published in Sidney, Ohio, covering events in the numismatic field.

Schell, who is secretary of the Magic Valley Coin Club in Twin Falls, began coin collecting in 1929 and is a past vice president of the Nebraska State Numismatic Association.

Since the beginning of this year, Schell has been researching and cataloguing Idaho merchant tokens. Almost 200 of these pieces have been listed and photographed to date. This research will now be used in a reference book now being prepared.

Items are dated 1915 and according to the coin collector, one of the owners was later assistant warden at the State Penitentiary.

For the benefit of those interested, we would like to report that we have now photographed and recorded some 522 merchant's tokens (nickies) from 96 Idaho towns. We still lack tokens from the Declo-Oakley area, and from northern Idaho. Our personal thanks to these nice people.

First question for the week comes from Mrs. R. L. of Shoshone, and reads: "I have heard that Canadian money is very valuable. Is this true — and what can you tell me about it? I read something every week and really enjoy it."

Answer: Thank you for the kind words. Your statement about Canadian money is very true, indeed. All Canadian money up until the last few years was in very short supply, as compared to the amount minted by the United States. There being fewer people in Canada, it was not necessary to mint so much; and mintages of over a million were not common — indeed, 500,000 mintages were the rule.

In the last few years, a great many collectors have turned to Canada as a source for collecting.

To make a general statement: Late Canadian money is not worth collecting if you are looking for appreciation on your money. A very few of the late mintages are scarce. Money dated in the 1920's is a good collecting item, and of course, the coins of George V, Edward VII and Victoria are very good material.

Generally, the silver coins are worth much more, collectorwise, than the copper coinages. Fifty-cent pieces and silver dollars are very scarce and command quite a premium in the coin circles.

I cannot be more specific in this column — it would take too much space, but if you are interested in any particular Canadian money, drop us a line and we'll try to answer any questions you might have.

(Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o the Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho.)

Phillis Diller, Gypsy Rose Lee In Same Show but Attributes Differ

NEW YORK (AP) — If the Broadway report that she rarely peeled off more than her gloves and from the outset received more laughs than about half the cast of the show, Phillis Diller, the star of the show, and Gypsy Rose Lee, who has a featured role.

Miss Diller, who makes no bones about her age — 48 — has been in show business for only 11 years, after a less spotlighted but highly successful career as a newspaper columnist, advertising copy writer and mother.

She has five children — the youngest is 16 — a carefully developed comedy character which has absolutely no relationship to her own and a special flair for bizarre costumes, egg-beater hair-dos and bitter comments on housewifery, offspring and spouses.

Miss Lee, who suggests unobtrusively that she is 32, has been in show business since childhood.

She worked in burlesque although there is an unquenchable thirst for the show business.

Millions of dollars in federal monies, said Edgar Cobetti of Millbrae, Calif., "will be completely wasted unless elementary school science teachers throughout the nation begin to use applied systems in their teaching of science to their young students."

Cobetti, a former public school superintendent in Ohio, spoke to the junior high school section of the Northwest Regional Conference of the National Science Teachers Association.

Proper Teaching Methods Told to Educators' Meet

BOISE (AP) — Proper teaching methods were described Friday as a necessity to go with modern equipment in expanding scientific knowledge of the nation's students.

"I always am completely happy and concentrated on what I'm doing," she said, "I loved writing the columns and I loved being a copywriter."

With some mild prodding, she admitted at lunch that she had really been launched on a show business career for the same reason so many women who have been complimented on their letters try their hand at novels: people told her she should, particularly her husband, Sherwood Diller, from whom she is now divorced.

Books Added To Shelves of T. F. Library

Three new books on fine arts have been added to the selection available at the Twin Falls Public Library.

Robert Bruce, librarian, said one of the books, "George Bellows, Painter of America," is a typical American story of the famous painter of prize fights and scenes of life in New York City.

John Russell's study of the work of "Seurat" reveals the story of the little known French painter and discoverer of Pointillism. Bruce said the book contains some excellent illustrations.

International in its scope, "The Modern World" is a survey of painting of the 19th and 20th century. Also included is a survey on sculpture and architecture.

SENSATIONAL LEAD NETS TOP BOARD

Let's disregard the problem of the merit or lack thereof in West's two-spade overcall. Suffice to say, practically all West players in a recent New Orleans tournament did make that bid. Those who were doubled went down three tricks for a 500-point loss and a rather poor score. The reason was that when North bid three no-trump instead of doubling, West would open the ten of spades and South would win the trick with his queen. After that play there was no way to make the contract because West would get into the lead with both red aces and set up his spades before South could cash more than one trick.

It is time someone exposed Ralph Harding for the type of political miscreant that he is.

The lies, distortions and half-truths he and his hired COPE political staff are using against Senator Jordan are reminiscent of the tactics used by them in defeating Congressman Hamer Budge. If the same pattern is to be followed as in the Budge Campaign, some scurrilous trick or misleading and demeaning letter against our Senator can be expected any day between now and election. This tactic was used by these unscrupulous professionals at that time.

To listen to a gang of this calibre attack an honorable and forthright gentleman such as Senator Jordan, who has given so much of his time and effort to the people of Idaho and has acted so ably in safeguarding their interests is nauseating to say the least. These misrepresentations are being accomplished with hoards of outside money furnished by such organizations as COPE and the left wing Council for a Liveable World.

To elect a man fostered and supported in this manner would be selling our interests to organizations outside the borders of the state of Idaho.

The issues here are not political (Republican versus Democrat).

The issues clearly are:

- 1. Integrity versus misrepresentation
- 2. Forcefulness versus ineptitude
- 3. Idaho interests versus questionable outside interests

WE IN IDAHO CANNOT AFFORD THIS DERELICT POLITICIAN AS OUR SENATOR!

IDAHO NEEDS JORDAN

to protect their paychecks against inflation.

MANAGEMENT NEEDS JORDAN

to combat the intrusion of business by big government bureaucrats.

PROFESSIONAL PEOPLE NEED JORDAN

to prevent the takeover of their interests by the Great Society.

LABOR NEEDS JORDAN

to work for her interests instead of rubber-stamping administrative policies and left-wing ideologies.
