rector of audio visual department, San Jose State College, Calif. With this monitor they are receiving programs in the control center of the Hagerman Individualized Learning Center. (Thayer photo)

Individualized Learning Center Is Studied At Hagerman Conference

HAGERMAN — Approximately 40 school superintendents from secondary schools throughout Idaho, representing schools equivalent in size to Hagerman high school, met here Friday to attend an orientation conference on the Individualized Learning Center. Such a system is now being constructed in Hagerman's high school.

Speakers for the morning session were Dr. Homer Johnson, consultant, Logan, Utah, who is director of graduate education, Utah State University, and Dr. Richard Lewis, director of audio visual department, San Jose, Calif.

Dr. Johnson talked on the need for educational change, stating the educational systems are subject to change without notice. Since the population explosion, social problems, economic problems and educational problems face the nation. He stated at least a dozen of the 30,000 government computers now in use in the United States touch the average person's life daily.

In a future of automation and computers there is no longer anything imaginable that cannot come about with education geared to plan for the future needs. Dr. Johnson said, "He states a student graduating from high school now will have obsolete knowledge in any specialized field by 1980, unless he keeps current with the specialization now available in education fields."

With the increase in population more problems come about with more difficulty in solutions, which must bring about change in education and learning trends.

Dr. Johnson said the flexibility in learning individually, which must come about to keep current with demands in the world, is emphasized in the Hagerman Individualized Learning Center. This is aimed at individual learning, with aids as an exemplary center for all schools in the state with the same size enrollment.

Dr. Lewis noted dramatic efforts to improve education in the nation are sparse, and this learning center is a significant and important event.

After a break for lunch the group reassembled and heard talks by local teaching staff members and learning center officials on the facilities that will be available for each subject taught.

Highlight of the afternoon was an amplified telephone call from Dr. Lee Wickline, Washington, D. C., U. S. office of Education, who talked on the title three government grant to Hagerman school which is financing the ILC for three years.

Superintendents in the crowd were able to ask Dr. Wickline questions on the center and title three project over a speaker which he in turn answered to the audience. A portion of a taped art class, which Hagerman students have been participating in this year, was directed by Ann Moore, local art instructor.

Superintendent George Carnie, instigator and director of the ILC project, acted as master of ceremonies at the day meeting, and announced all talks were taped and any person present could send a tape and have the talks they desired to hear, reproduced for later listening.

Attending from the state department of education were Robert E. Neal, chief consultant, Rudy H. Liverett, department of state education and Robert Gibb, department of education and state coordinator of Designing Education, 1980.

A banquet was served to the visiting superintendents, local faculty and school board members in the American Legion Hall by members of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Alfred Sandy, Hagerman School board member acted as master of ceremonies. The invocation was given by Rev. James Holt. Frank Henslee, chairman of Hagerman school trustees gave the welcome. A program was presented following the dinner.

Vocal selections were sung by Cheryl Sandy, accompanied by Mrs. Joyce Snapp. A high school girls' triple trio sang, accompanied by Bunny Brown. Supt. Carnie introduced the guests. Vernon Ravenscroft, Hagerman school board member and state legislator, gave a short talk, as did Dr. Carnie. Robert Gibb of the state department of education talked on the eight-state intermountain title 5 project that is being investigated by the education departments in the eight states and said the individualized Learning Center in Hagerman was a fine way to show other schools in Idaho how to utilize all the facets of individualized learning, and how it would benefit each education system.

The Saturday morning session consisted of an evaluation of the ILC and small group discussions with Hagerman staff members assigned to each group to serve as a resource person.

Cities Ask For Increase In Gem Funds

POCATELLO (AP) — South-east Idaho legislators "banded" a plea Friday night from the Association of Idaho Cities for a 100 per cent increase in state funds apportioned to cities.

The association asked that cities be given a 10 per cent slice of the sales tax and that all funds be discontinued from other state sources.

The proposal was made by Earl Pond, association president and Pocatello city commissioner. Legislators from six southeast Idaho districts attended.

Pond claimed state support for cities has been distributed in "patchwork" fashion, with most funds coming from state liquor revenue and the state gas tax. He said 10 per cent of the sales tax would provide about $18 million each biennium to the cities, about double what they now receive from the state.

A hot debate came on the association's stand against a proposed court reformation plan drafted by the Legislative Interim Committee.

The plan proposes that district judges would be responsible for justice at the levels now handled by municipal justice and probate courts. The district judges would appoint magistrates to handle these areas.

The cities say the courts should be reformed by upgrading them as they are structured now.

"We feel putting the municipal courts under the control of the district judges is taking the courts out of the hands of the people," said Don Brennan, a

Burley Man Holds Idaho Spud Growers

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Potato growers of Idaho, Inc., elected Clarence Parr of Burley president for the coming year at their state convention Friday.

Members heard executive secretary Doyle Epple of Blackfoot state at $20 million to the 1966 potato crop because of early frosts—representing more than 20 percent of the original $4 million budget.

Damage to seed potato crops in some areas exceeded 40 percent, some growers said.

Other officers elected were vice presidents Kurt Kandler of Ashton and Rex Williams of American Falls, and secretary-treasurer Dick Krebs of Blackfoot.

Teachers Attend Meet On Racism

By G.C. THELEN JR.
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Have American history textbooks state the cards against the Negro?

This is the question that drew about 1,200 teachers to Washington this weekend for a conference on racism in education.

A focal document in their discussions was a study of a dozen school textbooks on Negro history.

J. Sloan, it was prepared for the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, sponsors of the conference.

Sloan is a social studies teacher in Seaside, N.Y., and author of "The Negro in American History: A Chronology and Fact Book."

"The fact is that the account in American history textbooks of Negroes and their contribution to society has never been complete or well-balanced," Sloan concluded.

"To be sure," he added, "there have been marked improvement through the years, however slowly and insufficient."

"To no small degree," Sloan wrote, "the attitude and reaction of many white Americans to the Negro's struggle for equality now is the consequence of a mythical, as distinguished from an historical, understanding of the American Negro."

By omission and commission, the written history of the Negro has helped perpetuate and intensify the pattern of discrimination that is, after all, the root of the present 'revolution' as such in the central problem of our society today."

Sloan said these are facts neglected or underplayed in the textbooks.

"That a high degree of civilization existed in Africa prior to the slave trade," he noted, "is the kingdoms of Ghana, Mali and Songhai."

"That the first Negroes were here with the Spanish explorers, so that their presence in America precedes the English colonists."

"That the Negroes who first arrived in English America came as indentured servants, not as slaves."

"That Negroes made significant contributions to the wars fought by the United States, including 200,000 who fought on the Union side in the Civil War."

"That between Reconstruction and the 1954 Supreme Court decision the American Negro did not disappear," as is the usual impression in textbooks.

4 Apprehended In Store Theft

SUN VALLEY — Four juveniles from Twin Falls County were apprehended Thursday in Sun Valley and accused of shoplifting.

Mr. Fred Sturtevant of Sturtevant's store, followed the youths by car as they left the store and traveled to Pete Lane's Sport Shop. She reported T-shirts were taken from her business. Three sweaters were taken from the sport shop.

Sun Valley police, after talking with Mrs. Sturtevant, took the four into custody.

Their cases will be transferred to the Twin Falls County probate court.

REDUCTION URGED
BOISE (AP) — Tax reductions from surplus Idaho revenue being produced by the sales tax being urged today by Max Yost, executive manager of the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho.

"The fact that the present tax structure with its rates of tax is producing more revenue than necessary," Yost said, "has been unnecessarily burdened."

Yost said the current $136 million state general fund budget is a third higher than that for the previous two years. He said the surplus should not be used for more spending.

NUMBER LISTED
MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — Mentally and physically handicapped persons in Idaho will number 16,000, nearly a tenth of the population by 1970, according to a University of Idaho study.

Kenneth M. Loudermilk, director of the research project, said there now are about 72,000 handicapped persons in the state and only 2,500 of them are in state rehabilitation programs.

The Study of Vocational Training for Mentally and Physically Handicapped was prepared as a guide for educators and others in rehabilitation programs.

EVENTS LISTED
BOISE (AP) — Three January events listed in a calendar of world wide attractions published by travel magazine, including to Louise Shadduck, head of the Department of Commerce and Development.

Listed were the Ketchum Snowmobile Carnival Jan. 28-29, the McCall Winter Carnival and Ski Meet Jan. 20-21 and the Navajo Weavers Exhibit in Boise Jan. 3-29, Miss Shadduck said.

SUIT FILED
BOISE (AP) — A $132,000 injury suit was filed Friday against the Union Pacific Railroad by a conductor who alleges he was injured in a May 16 train wreck.

The suit was filed in third district court by Clyde A. Pipkin, who said he received a brain concussion and back injuries when a freight train he was riding slammed to a halt in the Nampa freight yards.

Pipkin said he was in the train's caboose at the time that the railroad did not provide a safe place for him to work and that Union Pacific failed to exercise reasonable control over the train's movement.

EXHIBIT PLANNED
POCATELLO (AP) — A traveling art exhibit will begin making a tour of the state in late May and under the sponsorship of Idaho State University, a school official said Saturday.

The exhibit will be contained in a 40-foot trailer given to the university by Garrett Freightlines, said Dr. Charles J. Kegel, ISU dean of facilities and vice chairman of the Idaho Commission on the Arts and Humanities.

Kegel said a proposal for financial support of a month-long tour of Idaho communities had been submitted to the commission.

Other exhibitions of historical and cultural interest will be planned for the traveling unit, Kegel said.

CONTROL ASKED
BOISE (AP) — A former federal agriculture official said the past five years have been the worst for American agriculture and said growers should control wheat production — not the government.

Speaking to the Idaho Wheat Growers Association was Frank LeRoux, who resigned recently as general sales manager of the foreign agriculture service for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in protest of USDA policies.

He urged Idaho wheat growers to back a proposed national wheat commission to return control over wheat production to growers.

Association members elected Ellis Oberg Jr., of Genesee, president; Ralph Bitter of Worley, vice president and Lyle Smith of Felt, secretary.

BILL DRAFTED
NEW PLYMOUTH (AP) — A bill to require that trading stamps be redeemable in Idaho for cash as well as merchandise.

The author of the bill was Rep. Walter Little, R - New Plymouth, who said Saturday he would introduce the bill in the 29th legislature.

Other provisions in his bill would call for each stamp to have its cash value printed on its face and that they be redeemable in any number, instead of in units of 100.

Other state legislators have expressed their support for some form of legislation either outlawing or controlling the trading stamp industry in Idaho.

WORK BEGUN
WALLACE (AP) — Work has begun on a shaft in the Morning Mine that could be sunk to the 9,100-foot level — some 3,400 feet below sea level — if the ore goes that deep, Hecle Mining Co. said Friday.

The shaft, the Star No. 1, then would have a vertical depth of 7,400 feet, making it the deepest of any shaft in the world, according to the company. The shaft is the Creighton No. 9 shaft in Canada's Sudbury district, at 7,150 feet.

Keep Gains, Samuelson Urges GOP

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) — Gov. elect Don Samuelson urged Idaho Republicans Saturday night to compound their gains and start the campaign now to defeat Democratic Sen. Frank Church in 1968.

Samuelson said, "The Republican officials of five northern counties, predicted the GOP will take Church's seat in the next election, but make no reference to possible Republican candidates."

"Now is the time to start making plans to permanently retain the present holder of that seat," Samuelson said. "It's a hot seat. He is sitting on a bomb. We must make him do a lot of squaring these next two years."

Samuelson did not stop at Church.

"Speaking of retirement," he said, "let's go all the way and retire L.B. Nichols."

The governor-elect said President Johnson can be beaten in 1968 if Republicans continue their "voluntary" campaign by concentrating on hard work.

"Now is not the time to pat ourselves on the back and stop working," he said. "The 1968 election results won't elect anybody in 1968."

Samuelson pledged again that he will hold down spending and said he will propose no new taxation "in any way, shape or form."

"I am definitely not looking for new spending areas in which to scatter state tax money," he said. "I did not campaign and get elected with the idea of trying to establish a planned great society in Idaho."

Wendell Man Presents Case For Idaho Head Tax Repeal

Editor, Times-News: Idaho had an election. The people elected a new governor. He wasn't elected for his oratory, or by a lot of political endorsements. He was elected by the people because he promised to get a dollar's worth of service for each tax dollar.

His election was a surprise for politicians. There also were about 105 legislators elected. Some were elected because they believed they would be an asset to the State of Idaho, I hope. Perhaps some were elected with the support of a group who wanted some special legislation and some possibly were elected because they wanted thirty-five dollars per day; even though it takes all their salary to live in Boise. They can at least live well for a few weeks.

Some, no doubt, will want party prestige and will spend a lot of their time trying to get it. Whatever their reasons for wanting to be legislators, they have achieved it, and are there. The people elected a governor and the people have an obligation to remind their legislators that they expect them to

Fairfield Sewer System Finished

FAIRFIELD—The new sewer system for the village of Fairfield was completed this week. The installation crews from Hartwell Excavation Co., Idaho Falls, moved out this week with their equipment.

Many of the residents have had their property connected to the new lines.

Deep snow and frozen ground will probably prevent the rest from being connected to the lines until sometime in the spring.

The new sewer system is considered a real step of progress for the town. All users of city water will be required to participate in the sewer program. No deadline has been set as yet for connection to the lines.

support the governor in his evident desire to get the dollars worth of service for the tax dollars those people pay. The governor has a four-year term of office. The legislators have a two-year term.

If you believe the head tax should be repealed, tell your legislators. The poll tax was repealed in some Southern states. It gave them the right to vote. The head tax only gives a citizen the right to earn six hundred dollars gross. Whatever relief the sales tax may give should be given to all people. All the people pay the sales tax.

Grazing Fee Formula Is Same As 1966

The existing grazing fee formula for Bureau of Land Management lands will be continued for determining the 1967 grazing fee, Ray Lincoln, member of the National Advisory Board Council to BLM, announced Saturday.

Charles F. Luce, undersecretary of the Interior in charge of BLM, in a telegram to Mr. Lincoln, stated that the analysis of sub sample grazing fee data had proved inconclusive for determining any flat rate adjustments for 1967. The fees, Mr. Lincoln said, will be near the grazing fees that were set up for 1966.

A WINDING, CURVING theme is used throughout the downtown area of Grand Junction, Colo., a city which implemented a city plan similar to the one nearly set for presentation to the people of Twin Falls. A straight line may be the shortest distance between two points, but a curving, meandering line gives an illusion of space. Trees, shrubs and ample parking are several of the features of the Grand Junction downtown area.

TWIN FALLS CITY CENTER PLAN

A PRELIMINARY DRAWING of the proposed rejuvenation of the Twin Falls downtown area shows a meandering traffic pattern for Main Avenue. If the plan is adopted, Main Avenue would be reopened to two-way traffic, a section of Second Avenue would be closed off to allow for the expansion of a major downtown department store and pedestrian walkways would be constructed between parking areas and downtown shopping points. Drastic traffic pattern changes, however, would take place on only four or six blocks of the new downtown section.

Downtown Facelifting Is Major Part Of Comprehensive Plan In Twin Falls

pedestrian malls and walk-throughs between parking areas and stores; convenience stores such as grocery stores and self-service laundromats in the downtown area, and public rest rooms, milk and coffee bars, outdoor display cases and recreation areas for the children. The plan, if adopted, would remove one-way traffic from Main Avenue and reopen the street to meandering two-way traffic.

"Meandering" would describe the new traffic pattern, Mr. Derrick said, because it would do just that — follow a slow, winding course down the street. The downtown plan, he stands, is largely based on the expansion of a large downtown department store. It would provide for the closure of a section of Second Avenue South and divert the traffic to Third Avenue on the east and Second Avenue on the west.

The two-way meandering traffic would wind down four or six blocks on Main Avenue, passing by trees and shrub-planting benches, outdoor display windows and off-street parking. Several passenger loading zones would be placed in the wider corners of the street, enabling drivers to load and unload passengers without the bother and time that parallel parking involves for most drivers.

The urban renewal plan would work into this concept of the downtown area by providing for remodeling, updating or razing of specific buildings in what is considered the most blighted section of the downtown area, Mr. Kelsch said.

The urban renewal plan differs from the comprehensive plan in that the former is narrow in scope and range, specific rather than general, Mr. Kelsch said. Should a proposed boundary change be adopted, this scope would be somewhat broadened, he added.

However, a boundary change could be undertaken with no additional cost to either the federal government or to the city of Twin Falls, he said.

A decision on the proposed boundary change will not be made until after the first of the year. The downtown area plan has not, at this point, been extensively publicized and some area residents are not completely familiar with what has been proposed. Reaction on the part of many residents has been enthusiastic, nonetheless, according to Mr. Derrick.

As far as the reaction from shopping center owners is concerned, he said, "most of them would really like to see this plan implemented — a downtown shopping center would mean discouragement of the construction of a new outskirts shopping center."

The final draft should be completed by the end of January, he said, and it will be brought to the city voters at that time. Other items of the city included in the plan include a proposal for the construction of a parkway on the Perrine Coulees with asphalt paving, grass and benches; a major street pattern on a one-mile grid basis with the construction of parks, playgrounds and possibly a long-range program and the changes will not take place overnight.

The plan, he continued, is designed to provide a guideline for future city improvements. Financing the implementation of the plan's proposals would be left largely to the city and the individuals concerned. This is an area that will be more fully explored if and when the proposals are accepted and adopted by the people of Twin Falls.

"Every effort is being made to help people with businesses in town — owners of gas stations, garages, motels and other places that rely on traffic patterns are receiving special attention," he added.

He noted that the traffic pattern would be changed on only four or six blocks in the downtown area. Mr. Derrick cautioned all those interested in the plan "to remember that it is a long-range program and the changes will not take place overnight."

Some Italian Papers Appear Despite Strike

ROME (AP) — The chaos caused by a nationwide urban transport strike cleared today and a few Italian newspapers emerged from a shutdown caused by striking journalists.

But most of the country's newspapers remained closed by a 48-hour "journalist" walkout called to back up contract demands for higher pay and a shorter work week.

The newspaper strike began at 8 a.m. Friday. In Rome today the city's biggest daily, Il Messaggero, hit the streets anyway, followed by another morning paper, Il Tempo, the pre-Communist afternoon paper Pesce and the independent Gloria D'Italia.

AN OVERHEAD VIEW of Grand Junction, Colo., shows the meandering traffic pattern that is similar to one proposed in the nearly-completed Twin Falls comprehensive city plan. The plan calls for several passenger loading spaces along the main downtown streets, and the photo shows how similar loading areas were used in the Grand Junction plan. Note the ample downtown parking sections.

Rapid Rate In Lung Cancer Offsets Progress In Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — A warning that the rapid rise in lung cancer cases and deaths may offset progress being made in control of other types of cancer was sounded Saturday night by the National Advisory Cancer Council.

The National Advisory Cancer Council strongly recommends that more active steps be taken in calling public attention to the enormous man-made epidemic of lung cancer now extant in this country as a result of cigarette smoking, the council said.

"Abstinence from smoking affords the best protection against lung cancer at present," the council asserted.

Otherwise, the first comprehensive report prepared by the council since it was established in 1937 says that although cancer is said on the increase in this country, more people are being cured than ever because of advances in medical science. The U.S. Public Health Service released the report on the status and promise of cancer research and control.

Among other things the report says:

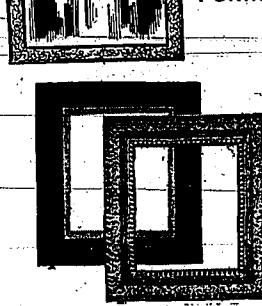

"Cancer is on the increase, yet more people are being cured of it than ever before."

"Research has greatly expanded knowledge of the malignant process, yet the inception of cancer remains a mystery."

"In such a climate of paradox, assessment of progress calls for the delineation of net gains through advances in many different fields of scientific investigation, in professional education and training, in medical practice, and in public health and public education."

"Where progress lags in any of these areas, valuable ground is given up and the goal of ultimate conquest of cancer recedes farther into the shadow of doubt."

Governor's Wife Faced With Keeping House In State Monument

By BETTY PENSION
Statesman Woman's Editor
BOISE (AP) — How would you feel about setting up house-keeping in a state monument?
Lu Smylie recalls she sat down and cried on that day 12 years ago when she first moved into Idaho's official governor's house at 1805 N. 21st St.
"I didn't know what to do with a big bare room like this," she said this week as she picked up delicate oriental china and cherished antiques which have helped make the room handsome for so long.
Gov. and Mrs. Robert Smylie are moving out Jan. 1 to their new home at 117 Locust, and Gov.-elect and Mrs. Don Samuelson of Sandpoint are moving into the new governor's house at 1805 N. 21st St.

Ruby Samuelson has a tentative date Monday to take her first look at the house.
Whatever she thinks of Idaho's 70-year-old big white barn, she can be grateful to the three ladies who have lived there before her. Mrs. C. A. Robins and Mrs. Len Jordan — and especially to Lu Smylie who lived there the longest.
Every first lady leaves something of herself in a house that belongs to the people.
Lu Smylie changed the dark blue walls and curtains to a soft French grey, and substituted a plain carpet for the domestic oriental rug that gave the room a rather cut-up look.

She covered the entry hall in rich-looking gold paper, removed four huge columns that divided the living room, covered the fireplace with a smooth grey tile (it used to be red, white and blue) and took down 11 old-fashioned light fixtures.
"They look like they came out of the post office," a guest once remarked in her hearing.
Lu is great for wooden lovers. She has used them on windows and closets, and to replace the hall's old glass doors which used to open out into the living room and take up the space of at least four guests.

Guest space in the Idaho governor's house is precious, especially when visitors come from Moscow and Idaho Falls and Soda Springs and are sandwiched into the one room at a big party.
Upstairs in the master bedroom, where lady guests always leave their coats, an old-fashioned white lavatory used to stick out like a bandaged sore thumb.
Now it sits modestly behind green lowered doors.
The large guest room across-the hall, once a sleeping porch and a tiny room big enough for one bed has been remodeled with pine paneling in a cherry finish — and lowered closet doors.

In the basement is the biggest change.
You'd never know it was the same place. Once-bare concrete walls are paneled in wood, the vinyl floor is plain beige, and the fireplace is smoothly faced with wood and tile.
Only the dining room, with its handsomely carved Italian furniture, and the yellow-tiled kitchen remain essentially the same. The living room looks bare today. Gone are the Smylies' green velvet antique sofa and chairs (the 100-year-old chair came west to Walcott with another Robert Smylie the governor's Methodist minister grandfather).

Gone are the bedroom desk and tables, the Mexican candle-labers, the heritage lithographs of presidential silhouettes.

Soviet Attitude On Viet Nam Is Hardening

By HENRY A. BRADSHAW
MOSCOW (AP). — The Soviet line on Viet Nam appears to be hardening. Some diplomatic analysts here think this means abandonment of peace hopes. Their reconstruction of events in the last few months is based on a careful study of Soviet statements plus some reading between the lines.

Soviet attempts to use any influence. Now, the analysts say, the Kremlin seems to have given up efforts to push North Viet Nam toward peace. Instead, it is concentrating on an attempt to rally the world Communist movement against Red China.

Twisting Hanoi's arm and getting Soviet policy endorsed by the majority of the world's Communist parties are inconsistent, the analysts say. China accuses the Soviet Union of wanting to sell out the Communist cause in Viet Nam in order to achieve a peaceful division of world power with the United States. Answering this accusation, as part of getting other parties to support Moscow against Peking, prohibits much Soviet effort to insist on a Vietnamese settlement. The diplomats note that their interpretation leaves room for secret Soviet efforts to try to damp down the Vietnamese war. The stress was on secrecy. They cite the still unclear case of British Foreign Secretary George Brown. He talked in October with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and then it is known that he was optimistic about Soviet influence being used in Hanoi for peace.

When Brown came to Moscow recently, he is reported to have received a blistering from Gromyko on the theme: How can we accomplish anything if you fail to respect the need for secret diplomacy? Did this mean the Russians still wanted to accomplish something on peace talks, or were they blaming Brown for making it impossible? The analysts tended toward the latter interpretation. The Brown-Gromyko talks at the United Nations came about the time in early autumn that Soviet comments on Viet Nam were noticeably toned down.

Hagerman Legion Has Yule Party

HAGERMAN — A Christmas party and supper was held by American Legion members and the Auxiliary, Thursday evening at the Legion Hall, with 20 members present. Table decorations were of greenery and red candles. A large Christmas tree has been erected in the hall and decorated with lights and ornaments. Members voted to buy a crate of oranges to donate to the patients at the rest home in Wendell. They also voted to fix Christmas boxes for bachelors in the Legion. Contributions for this may be left at Mrs. Whorton's or Mrs. Owsley's homes or at the Owsley store. They also decided to contact the State School in Gooding to see if there is a child they can adopt and sponsor during the year. Plans were made for a tea ed by Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Whorton and Mr. and Mrs. Merle Owsley and Lloyd Jensen. After the supper, the two units held separate meetings. Mrs. Owsley conducted the auxiliary meeting where plans were made for eight members to help at the Veterans' Hospital Christmas gift table Tuesday in Boise.

Sunday, Dec. 11, 1966. Twin Falls Times-News. The next meeting will be Jan. 12. COMMITTEE NAMED. GLENN'S PERRY — George Smith, president of the Glenn Ferry Chamber of Commerce, announced that he had appointed Bert and Betty Walker, Glenn Hall and Bob Pusey as a nominating committee. British Abdication Crisis Now Page In History

By GRANVILLE J. WATTS
 LONDON (AP) — It was a gloomy, winter's day, Dec. 11, 1936. Over the radio came the sad voice of King Edward VIII, now the Duke of Windsor.

"I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as king, as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love."

The woman was American-born, twice-divorced Wallis Simpson. The crisis shook Britons and threatened to undermine the monarchy. Now, 30 years later, the British monarchy still stands, with Edward's niece, Elizabeth, reigning as queen. The abdication is merely another page in England's long and often turbulent history and is almost forgotten.

The Windsors themselves—their exile ended—dropped in and out of London—virtually unnoticed, with no official recognition. The duke, 72, has called at Buckingham Palace since he abdicated—but always alone. His duchess, 70, has never been accepted in the royal circles.

The Windsors spend most of their time at their home just outside Paris. Their wanderings—to the United States, Italy, Spain, Austria and the south of France among the social set—have sometimes evoked pity among British friends.

But to the British of his and other generations the aging duke will always remain the boyish romantic figure—the king who gave up his throne for the woman he loved.

He was a popular king for that short reign of 327 days. Ever since abdication a row has raged hot and cold—did he go willingly or was he pushed? The duke has said himself that abdication was the only course open to him.

"I think I could have found only only political support but much public support for my position had I wished to make a struggle," he told an interviewer last July. "But if I had permitted the politicians or encouraged the public to stand with me, as Winston Churchill then in the House of Commons, and I wanted, I would have been forming a king's party, a political party to serve my own private interests."

"Had I done that, I would not have been a worthy king. So I decided, alone, to pay the price."

which was clearly abdication. It was the only course which was taken at the same time right for me and right for Britain.

most the entire British establishment, including the Church of England, and Geoffrey Dawson, influential editor of the London Times.

The news of the king's intention to marry Mrs. Simpson was prominently reported in American newspapers at the time.

But as the storm gathered, no mention of their relationship appeared in British newspapers. Then the Bishop of Bradford, in a sermon that the king, then 42, should give up his proposed marriage to Mrs. Simpson—who, as a divorcee, was not acceptable to the church—tradition—or quit the throne.

Some commentators say the king was threatened and bullied into giving up the throne.

Beaverbrook, however, once summed it up this way: "Who killed cock robin? Cock robin did it. The king, then 42,

THE STORY OF THE NATIVITY

by JOHN J. STEWART

"For God So Loved The World..."

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life."

This was the great promise and hope of the ages. From the days of Adam, from the dawn of recorded time, men had looked forward to the coming of a promised Savior and Redeemer.

Longingly, anxiously they had awaited, from generation to generation, the coming of this great Messiah, who would break the bands of death, who would deliver them from sin and sickness and oppression, and lead them back to freedom and to God.

In a world of struggle and hardship and sorrow, this eternal message of hope had been the one unfulfilling comfort in life.

It was taught that this great King-to-come had been selected in a grand council in Heaven, when the Godhead was planning the world. There our Elder Brother offered to come down to earth and give His life as an atoning sacrifice.

No one knew just the hour nor the circumstances of His coming. Yet, glorious were the prophecies of His mission:

"Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Emmanuel—God with us... And his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace."

"And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon Him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge..."

"The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad... and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose..."

"Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped..."

"Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing. And in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert..."

"Come... to preach good tidings unto the meek—to bind up the brokenhearted—to proclaim liberty to the captives... to comfort all who mourn..."

His birth would mark the meridian of time, on which all the generations of man would be centered.

Men and angels alike awaited this momentous hour, when the Creator of heaven and earth would come into the world, born of woman, to fulfill His role as Redeemer.

Eagerly did all creation await this Christmas of the ages.

New Help For Hard of Hearing HEARING AID 'AIMS' AT SOUND

Minneapolis, Minn. (SPECIAL) Our ears are shaped and located to act as "sound funnels" that enable us to hear more clearly than if we were "aimless" at it—turning our heads toward the sound source.

Hearing aid engineers have adopted this fact of nature to a new hearing aid that will permit many hard hearing persons to enjoy more natural "directional" hearing.

The new "Aims" hearing aid features a forward-facing microphone which picks up sound primarily from the direction the wearer is facing.

Called "Directional", the aid was recently introduced by the Medical Acoustic Instrument Company, a manufacturer of hearing test instruments. Full information is available by writing "Directional", Dept. 000, Box 2146, Minneapolis, Minn. 55401.

An enterprising businessman who organized a tire company in Twin Falls when the city boasted a grand total of 17 automobiles, celebrated his 52nd birthday anniversary Saturday — and by doing so he created a personal "first."

Soviets Plan Two Nuclear Reactors

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union will build two new nuclear reactors in the Ukraine, each for the dual purpose of generating electricity and desalinating sea water, Tass announced today.

The announcement by the official Soviet news agency did not say when work would start on the reactors or when they would be ready.

Tass said a canal 53 miles long would be built from the Azov Sea to pump salt water to the new nuclear plants in the Donbas industrial area of the Ukraine. The idea is to supply both a new source of electric power for industry and a new source of fresh water supply.

The Russians are building a fast atomic reactor at Pori, Shevchenko, on the coast of the Caspian Sea, that can be used for both purposes, it is supposed to be ready by 1968. The cost of desalinating water at this plant is expected to be about $1 per 1,000 gallons of water.

The United States is building a $434.7-million atomic-powered facility south of Los Angeles to go into operation by 1971. This plant is supposed to be capable of desalinating 150 million gallons of water a day, enough for a

Job Training Increases

BY PEGGY LALEY

Times-News Feature Writer
There has been a slow awakening to the needs of the handicapped both for the benefit of the handicapped and the benefit of the community.

Last March a vocational rehabilitation center was opened here in Twin Falls, one of three in the state. Facilities at Robert Stuart Junior High School are now being used and a new addition to the school is being built and will be ready for use around the first of the year.

Very promising results have already been attained through the efforts of local businessmen and the specially trained staff at the school. The program is open to youths ranging in age from 15 to 21.

The understanding cooperation of Twin Falls business operators and their employees have made it possible for these young people to go to school for half of the day and to benefit by on-the-job training during the other half. An encouraging percentage have "made good" and are facing a future of self-reliance and self-respect.

Of the 19 students enrolled, nine are over the age of 15 and are working at various local jobs. Pat Young, vocational counselor and job finder, works with each one when they start on a job, so that no time will be lost by the employer during the training period. There is no pay during the training and the center reserves the right to work with the youths in order to achieve the highest degree of adjustment for them.

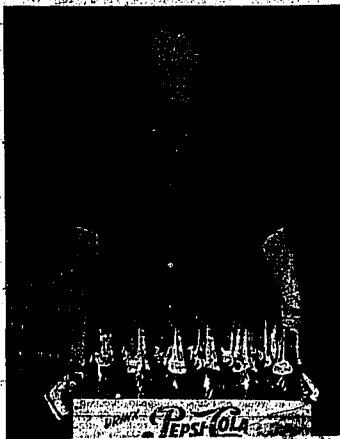

At the age of 21, many of them will be offered full-time employment with the businesses where they are now working. All classroom work for the students, who come from Twin Falls, Haines, Jerome, Wendell and Buhl, is individually correlated with each one's specific occupation.

Mr. Young and Paul Longenecker work as counselors in the program with Dick Metzler teaching shop and physical education. Mrs. Charles Ratcliffe teaches sewing classes assisted by Mrs. Truman Biel, who is also Mr. Young's secretary. Mrs. Gladys Coxen is the classroom teacher. The director of the project is Herbert J. Smith, guidance director for all Twin Falls schools.

The project is supported and supervised by the Twin Falls school district and state agencies.

Expanded facilities at the school will offer more vacancies for area students to take advantage of the opportunities provided by the special program.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE APPELHAM

TROPICAL PLANTS: Why is that orange and other citrus plants do well outside but when they are brought indoors, the leaves turn yellow, drop and often take on a sticky substance? There are two factors involved: low humidity and aphids.

Orange and other citrus plants like a uniform supply of moisture all the while. If the soil or air becomes too dry, leaves tend to curl, dry and fall off, and this goes on until the branches are practically nude.

Overwatering, or poor drainage will cause the leaves to turn brown and drop. Do not set the pots in a pan of water. Rather, apply water until the soil is moistened thoroughly, then ease off. Allow the soil to lose moisture somewhat before applying more water. Good drainage is important. Small stones in the bottom of the pot will hasten drainage.

The sticky substance you often see on foliage of citrus is honeydew secretions from aphids and scale insects. Mix up some soap and water and scrub the material off, or syringe the plant in a bath tub. Spraying with aerosol spray cans, or malathion will banish these pests.

TEMPERAMENTAL GARDENIAS: This is the time of year we get letters asking what causes the buds on gardenia plants to drop or turn brown. First, hot dry rooms will cause the buds to blast or turn brown and die.

Gardenias react violently when you bring them in from a warm greenhouse to a cool room. Leaves turn black on edges and tips, and foliage will often drop.

To maintain a humid atmosphere about the plant by setting the pot on a tray of pebbles partially covered with water. Syringe the foliage with water.

Malta Looks For Ready Cash Source

VALETTA, Malta (AP)—Malta is looking for a ready source to help it out of financial difficulties.

One of the most visible candidates, in the eyes of the Maltese, is America. The powerful ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet anchor here, and the island is a place for a sale of dollars. The sailors alone spend $6 million a year on liberty in Malta.

Ever since 2,000 B.C., when the Phoenicians moved in, Malta has been occupied by one strong power after another. For it lies at the narrow waistline of the Mediterranean between Europe and Africa, a very important place for an island to be.

After the Phoenicians came the Carthaginians, the Romans, Byzantines, Arabs and a succession of European powers, the latest being the British, in 1800. Now the British are pulling out.

Who is coming next? In a general sense it will be tourists. There are both sandy and rocky beaches, and the water is so clear that fish and old cannon balls from ancient battles can be seen 60 feet down. Handsome new hotels are going up under Hilton and Sheraton management, while a yacht harbor is already bringing in the rich and the leisurely.

But the situation calls for more than tourists. Two years ago the Maltese Islands, with 317,000 population, accepted the status of an independent country within the British Commonwealth. But becoming self-supporting is a slow process. Malta has almost no natural resources except geography.

For 100 years the British have picked up Maltese difficulties, while at the same time the naval dockyards and troop installations were the biggest single source of employment. Now British support is being cut away steadily, and will end in ten years, with the Maltese getting $15 million a year during that period to help industrialize. It is not nearly enough to meet the island's needs. Thus, the eye on America.

In the March general election the Maltese gave a majority to the Nationalist party which was pledged to stay with Britain and try to work out the financial difficulties. However, the Malta Labor party, led by a dynamic, Oxford-trained architect, Don-Minotti, came within the shadow of victory by demanding, among other things, that Malta should be free to aid where it can. If Britain, America or the North Atlantic Treaty Organization won't help, then perhaps the Soviet Union, NATO's Mediterranean headquarters is in Malta.

"Our geographical position," said the Labor party program, "if judiciously exploited, can be our making."

Five Escape
BERLIN (AP)—Under gunfire and a probing searchlight, an East German couple and their three children fled from West Berlin on Friday in a pre-dawn dash across Communist border barriers.

They climbed over a barbed wire fence, crawled past three barbed wire fences, leaving bits of clothing whipping in the wind. The last fence was a pair of men's suspenders.

warm water from time to time. Also water the plant with vinegar water (1 teaspoon to a quart. Grow in a bright window, but not in direct sun.

Best day temperature is between 70 and 80 degrees, and the night temperature should range between 62 and 65 degrees. If lower than this the plants will grow slowly and foliage is likely to become yellow-green. Temperatures at night above 65 degrees seem to be partially responsible for the buds dropping.

CHRISTMAS CANDLES: Now is a good time to be thinking about making your own candles for the holidays. Save these empty cardboard milk containers for a form, or you can use muffin pans, gelatin molds, cookie cutters, tin cans, rubber balls cut in half, or even paper cups make a good mold.

FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy of my bulletin, MAKING CANDLES FOR CENTERPIECES. It's illustrated and even tells how to treat cones with chemicals for colored flames in your fireplace.

BEGONIAS: The begonia family is one of the richest and handsomest there is for the home owner. The easiest of them all to grow is the common wax begonia (B. semperflorens). Flowers are single, semidouble or full double. The "rosebud" and the callitilly begonia are in this group.

The calla begonia is not easy to grow, and it's one we get most questions about. Water it sparingly. Do not get water on leaves or it will rot.

Our grandmothers had good luck with it because the plants do well in kitchens of homes where steam from the teakettles fills the air with moisture which the plant likes.

Try growing your plant in the kitchen. In a north window, or east window. Night temperatures should not be below 50 degrees. Some of our friends who have good luck with this begonia put newspapers against the glass to keep out the cold in winter, and shade against direct sun.

Start new plants by divisions or cuttings. We prefer cuttings from the short branches near the base of the plant, since these give more compact growth than those from the tips of the long branches. Take the greenest slips from the base, as the white slips have no chlorophyll and usually die. Root cuttings in a pot of clean, sterilized sand.

All begonias like a soil mixture of sand, peat and loam, one-third each. Good drainage is important. We'll have more about Begonia and Angel-wing begonias later.

HUMMINGBIRDS: This is a poor time to talk about hummingbirds, but we just had to say a word now because we've been accused of killing off these birds by recommending honey as food for them.

A reader tells us that honey is fatal to hummingbirds, and sugar is recommended if you want to feed these birds next summer.

Sugar is recommended at the rate of one part to four or five parts of water—not any stronger or birds will develop liver trouble. The mixture does not need to be boiled, but hot water would help the sugar to dissolve.

Coloring is not necessary, but the tip of the container could be painted red with nail polish or some other coloring agent.

I've been told that the Audubon Society and experts on hummingbirds (who import them from South America) have found that honey is fatal to hummingbirds. One authority suggests attracting fruit flies for added protein by the use of a container filled with banana or other fruit peelings. Will my bird friends write and tell me if they have anything to add—to the above about hummingbirds?

QUESTION BOX
F. R. of Oakley: "I've had a split-leaf philodendron for almost four years and it was real healthy until I followed your suggestion. I cut off those brown, snake-like aerial roots and now the plant leaves are hanging limp, and are turning yellow. You said it would improve the plant but I think it is killing the plant."

Cutting off the brown, ugly aerial roots had nothing to do with your plant's dying. Some other factor, such as overwatering, overfeeding or disease happened to affect the plant after you did the pruning.

The purpose of the aerial roots is to anchor the vine into the bark of trees in the jungles where the plants grow wild.

In your home, unless you have a tree for the vine to climb on, the aerial roots have no purpose and can be removed. I've been cutting them off philodendrons for the past 25 years and never lost a single plant.

Likewise, those long, string-like growths you see on house plants have no purpose and should be removed for the benefit of the plant. Cutting them off does not injure the plant, as many believe, but is actually helpful.

R. T. of Naples: "Recently you mentioned woods for burning in the fireplace. A friend told me that wild cherry should not be burned in the fireplace because it throws off a harmful fume. Is that true?"

All wild cherries have deadly levels of cyanide in leaves and fruit stones (pits). The wood itself has little of the deadly poison. Even if it did contain cyanide, the poison would go up and fruit trees, is there a spray that can be used to repel them?"

A cheap one can be made by dissolving seven pounds of rosin in one gallon of ethyl alcohol and then painting the material on the stems. Or you can add one quart of nicotine sulfate to a gallon of asphalt paint and apply this. Some home gardeners use one-half teaspoonful of nicotine sulfate to a quart of water and spray this on tree trunks.

For a few trees, wrap the trunks with household aluminum foil, or use hardware cloth. Place it four inches under the ground and about 20 inches above ground around the tree.

R. T. of Naples: "Recently you mentioned woods for burning in the fireplace. A friend told me that wild cherry should not be burned in the fireplace because it throws off a harmful fume. Is that true?"

All wild cherries have deadly levels of cyanide in leaves and fruit stones (pits). The wood itself has little of the deadly poison. Even if it did contain cyanide, the poison would go up and fruit trees, is there a spray that can be used to repel them?"

A cheap one can be made by dissolving seven pounds of rosin in one gallon of ethyl alcohol and then painting the material on the stems. Or you can add one quart of nicotine sulfate to a gallon of asphalt paint and apply this. Some home gardeners use one-half teaspoonful of nicotine sulfate to a quart of water and spray this on tree trunks.

For a few trees, wrap the trunks with household aluminum foil, or use hardware cloth. Place it four inches under the ground and about 20 inches above ground around the tree.

Jerry Shane Claims Two Hobbies —Twin Falls' Growth And Flying

Jerry Shane has two hobbies, Twin Falls and flying. Shane, who has made his home in Twin Falls for the past seven years, feels very strongly about the future of Twin Falls in general and downtown Twin Falls in particular. He does not believe, as many people do, that the downtown district is slowly dying through the advent of outlying shopping centers.

To prove this belief and working toward its success he is working with the Downtown Merchants Association as its chairman. He is a member of the civic committee of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the retail council sponsored by the Chamber.

Through his association with members of these groups and his day-by-day relationship with the downtown area, Mr. Shane has learned to feel very strongly about the vast potential of the Twin Falls area. He says that the downtown area will not decline because the aggressive merchants located there will not allow it.

Through various programs including increased parking facilities and special sale promotions shoppers continue to be attracted to the downtown store.

Just recently, Jerry Shane worked with a committee of merchants to bring Santa Claus to town and officially open the Christmas season.

As part owner, sales manager and buyer for Cain's, Mr. Shane had some things to say about the homes in Twin Falls and home furnishing trends.

He stated that there has been definite swing to more formality in the furnishing of local homes. People have become more conscious of colors and are shying away from the browns and beiges that were so popular a decade ago. Gold seems to be the biggest color right now with the new avocado green running a close second, but nearly every color under the sun and a few that came from the minds of men, are being used in home furnishings and accessories.

Along with many others of this community, Jerry Shane finds flying has become a big thing in his life. He is president of the Sky-Hawk Flying Club, but his interest in flying is not limited to just a hobby for his own enjoyment.

He feels that Magic Valley must become aware of this rapidly expanding mode of transportation and its importance to the economy of the area. Even in a primarily agricultural economy air freight is beginning to show its value. Mr. Shane believes that the airport which has been proposed to serve the entire valley is an important factor in its growth.

Shane has been associated with Cain's Furniture and Appliance for five years. Before that time he was employed by McChesney's Furniture store.

He was born in Ontario, Ore., and grew up in Boise and attended Boise schools.

He is a member of the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club, the Elks Lodge and the Blue Lakes Country Club.

He was in the Idaho National Guard and was graduated from the U. S. Army Recruiting and Career Counseling School, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, in 1959. Enrollment in this school is rare for a National Guardsman for, while it is open to this branch of the service, not many can meet the qualifications required.

Besides flying, Mr. Shane admits to being a gun collector, a fisherman and a "absolute nut on military history."

Whistling Swans Become Fair Game In Utah For 1,000 Permit Holders

BY JIM HUMBLER
Fish and Game Department
BOISE — Swan hunting for big whistlers is going well for 1,000 permit holders in Utah according to the Intermountain edition of Fishing and Hunting News for Dec. 3.

Best areas have been around Ogden Bay. These big birds won't decoy or flock to a call. The only way to hunt them is by just watching flight patterns.

Many people are unaware that there are two distinct species of wild swans in the Pacific Flyway states. The most widely publicized is the trumpeter which is in scarce supply and resides locally in the wild in only a few spots within the temperate zone of North America. The whistling swan is rather abundant and nests entirely within the Arctic Circle, migrating annually from the north end of the continent to the south end.

The Utah permit hunting season on whistling swans is experimental, the only one anywhere. Swans are listed as game birds by the Migratory Bird Treaty but the treaty with Great Britain closed the season on swans from 1916 through 1926. The closure then was extended until 1959, when the one experimental exception in Utah was established.

Some 2,500 hunters applied last year for the 1,000 authorized permits. The number of successful permit holders has ranged from a high of 324 to a low of 320 during the four controlled hunting seasons on whistling swans.

There is an annual loss of both whistling and trumpeter swans in several states that can be traced to uninformed or unscrupulous hunters. Because of their low numbers, it is particularly unfortunate when trumpeters are killed.

Strict protection and other strong conservation measures helped trumpeter swans, the largest North American game bird species, make a remarkable comeback from near extinction to a total continental population that now exceeds 2,000. There were fewer than 100 in the world back in the 1850's.

The 1968 aerial census of trumpeter swans over a tri-state area (northwestern Wyoming, northeastern Idaho and southwestern Montana) during mid-September, found a record number of 878 of the white birds. It was the highest number since formal censusing began 38 years ago.

The count includes 185 cygnets or young swans hatched this year, the second highest production ever recorded. This compares with last year's count of 883 adult trumpeters and 99 cygnets. There are two other populations of trumpeters in western Canada.

Utah's experimental permit hunting of whistling swans is the first change in the tight international ban against hunting swans that goes back so many years.

Utah's hunters do not bag any trumpeters because that species no longer occurs in that state. The trumpeter lives year round mostly within the triangular comeback area in the region of Yellowstone National Park, the Island Park Plateau of Idaho, and the Red Rock Lakes National Wildlife Refuge. The Red Rock Refuge was established in 1935 for the purpose of rescuing the trumpeter from extinction.

Actually there are more whistling swans using the Pacific Flyway than there are of some of the wild goose species that are hunted regularly, including the Tule geese, the Ross's geese and the international flock of the Great Basin Canada geese.

An average of 42,000 whistling swans have been recorded in the Pacific Flyway annual mid-winter inventory over the past 15 years. In addition, the Atlantic Flyway has a whistling swan population of comparable size. Idaho law protects both the trumpeter and the whistling swan. Both species resemble each other closely. The best way to tell one from the other is to listen to their call. The whistling swan has a kind of high-pitched bark or whistle, while the trumpeter has a deep resonant hornlike voice that can be heard for nearly a mile.

Whistling swans usually are smaller than trumpeters and the young whistlers have yellow spots on their bills in front of their eyes, not found on trumpeters.

Adults of both species are large—all white birds—with black bills and feet. Their necks are long, their legs short and their feet webbed.

Hunters also are apt to think that swans are snow geese, or Ross's geese even though the white geese have black wing tips, are much smaller in size, and do not have the long swan neck. Ross's geese look like small snow geese, but only a few stragglers come through the Gem State.

Some snowgeese cross the top of the world to fly from the black Siberian tundra, where they were hatched, to the warm marshes and prairies of the western Gulf of Mexico and the Sacramento Valley of California.

One of the ways points to the southeastern Idaho. Snow geese join the low vagrant Ross's geese and trumpeter and whistling swans on the protected list of migratory waterfowl in the counties of Clark, Fremont, Madison and Teton so that maximum protection is afforded the trumpeter against "mistake" shooting.

Vardis Fisher, nationally known Idaho writer, mentions the popularity of swan skins and quilts during the early days at least two of his novels.

MAKING HER HOME with the Nils Mitchell family in Springdale is Linda Littlelight, a member of the Crow tribe in Montana. She is one of several Indian girls living in Magic Valley homes as part of the LDS Church's Indian educational placement program. Mrs. Mitchell says Linda is a real joy and she is taking an active part in church events.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Two Indian girls, one from the Cheyenne and one from the Crow tribe in Montana, are making their homes with DECI and SPRINGDALE families for the school year under the LDS Church's Indian Educational Placement program. Rosalee Amerlanhorse is living with the Earl Darrington family, and she joins "foster" brothers, David, 15, and Douglas, 12, in addition to Jay and Susan who are attending college. However, she does have a sister, Priscilla, who is staying with the Orbis Dilworth family in BURLEY. Rosalee has three brothers still at home in glacial American way of life.

"It is an experience that enriches all our lives," is the consensus of their foster parents participating in the church plan. This is the first time the plan has been followed in the Burley area, although it has been in operation in other areas for several years, and there are several other children in homes in Magic Valley.

From Pusan, Korea, they took a freighter to Hong Kong and this proved to be quite an experience. Mrs. Knox said mountains have been leveled in Hong Kong area to make dikes and provide level land for building of new apartment houses.

The King Hill couple visited a flower colony operated by an Italian priest, dressed in a long flowing robe with long white beard. There were 1,700 persons in the colony, but about 200 were to be released. The priest said he was concerned about what would become of them after they were released.

AN OPEN LETTER ON FOOD PRICES

IGA FOOD STORES

RE-STATEMENT OF IGA POLICY

As it has been for 40 years, the policy of IGA stores continues to be:

- To always operate at lowest cost.
- To feature low prices every day.
- To supply quality foods on a money-back guarantee.
- To conduct a friendly store, always considering the individual's and the community's interest.

From 1926, when the first IGA store opened, until today, when some 4,200 IGA stores dot the nation, IGA has never deviated from these basic policies.

IGA was conceived on the premise that the independent retailer must operate at the lowest possible cost, then pass the savings on to his customers in the form of low prices every day. That same philosophy and spirit is just as evident today as it was 40 years ago.

Prices today, as then, are governed primarily by the factors which influence the low of supply and demand. Thus, crop shortages due to droughts and freezes result in higher prices. Moreover, we have the inflationary aspects of higher wages, excessive spending, war, skyrocketing taxes, labor strikes and work stoppages, all of which influence costs and thereby prices. Then, too, food products have been improved and now incorporate better nutrition, sanitary packaging, and built-in convenience of preparation.

All of these have conspired to bring about higher food prices, nevertheless we in IGA have endeavored to block such price increases. This has not always been easy to do. Often we have absorbed several manufacturers' price increases before we reluctantly raised retail prices. We endeavor to provide friendly, courteous service. We feature quality national brands at the lowest possible prices. We also offer you our own quality IGA brands at measurable savings, thus enabling you to feed your family for less money.

Frankly, the competition among food stores determines how much net profits a store will make. At the very best, it is only a penny or two on the dollar. Thus, without a comparable reduction in prices at the wholesale and manufacturing level, no store can reduce prices significantly and still remain in business.

Your IGA store is a member of the community. It is a builder of the community. IGA's mass buying and merchandising power, plus low wholesale and retail operating costs, result in the lowest possible prices for you.

At IGA, growth is achieved not through raising prices, but through attracting more customers and doing more business.

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

BY DR. ROBERT C. HARVEY

First Presbyterian Church

Today has been set aside by many denominations, and most of the world's major Bible societies, as Universal Bible Sunday.

It has become trite to say that the Bible is the world's most purchased and least read book. In spite of a resurgence of Bible study in the last few years this trite saying remains largely true.

Lot of reasons are given for not reading the Bible: "It's too stuffy," (false); "It is a difficult book to read," (true); "I don't believe all that," (true); "I don't know," (true); "It's just ancient literature that has nothing to do with today," (false).

"The Day Of The Bible"

Actually some of the reasons for which people do not read the Bible are just about as bad. Some folks think that the act of reading it is in itself a holy thing to do. This is a mistake, as is the belief that every question is directly answered from the Bible.

One may find himself in the position of the fellow who was uncertain of what to do next in his career and turned to the Bible and pointed to a verse. He read there, "Judge not," and comforted himself. Finding little comfort in this he turned some pages again and read, "Go thou and do likewise." The Bible ought to be read because it is the proclamation of a faith. It is the announcement that God has acted, is acting, and will act in the world among his people. When one becomes involved in the call of God to his people down through the centuries he begins to hear God calling him as well. The Bible language takes on new meaning. Its events become contemporary, for God is now speaking to the reader.

Christian faith is always a faith in God as made known in Jesus-Christ and not a faith in the Bible, but it is the Bible that gives that faith its content. It is thus a knowledge of what the Bible is saying that brings Christians together. It is not co-incidental that the moves towards greater co-operation among churches have come at the same time as a renewed interest in the study of the Bible.

This study cannot be left up to theologians. It is a study in which everyone of us must be involved.

Today is a good time to start. Even though the Bible is in places difficult to read, there are many, many helps available. Perhaps the most useful of these is a study group using reliable materials. If you do not know of such a group, seek the help of a nearby church in starting one.

When you stop to think about it, why should there be a universal Bible Sunday. Shouldn't every Sunday be Bible Sunday? Shouldn't every day be a day of the Bible? For the Bible is the chief witness to Jesus-Christ, the center of our faith and the Lord of our life.

Instant Diagnosis ... It Was Bound To Come

LAS VEGAS—Following up its exhibit at the 15th annual meeting of the American Medical Association in June in Chicago, Pfizer Laboratories will again provide physicians attending the 20th annual Convention here with an opportunity to participate in demonstration of the use of computerized diagnosis.

Hundreds of physicians attending the convention in Chicago took advantage of the opportunity to determine the potential of the computer as an aid to diagnosis.

At Las Vegas, as in Chicago, a bank of three electronic terminals has been installed at the Pfizer Laboratories exhibit, and connected directly to computer complexes in Los Angeles and Las Vegas. Hundreds of physicians have been programmed into the computers, together with a differential diagnosis based upon combinations of these symptoms.

The material programmed into the computer is concerned with diseases of the urinary tract.

During the meeting, physicians participating in the demonstration will be provided with cards listing more than 300 symptoms associated with over a variety of urinary tract diseases. These physicians will mark off combinations of symptoms listed on the cards. This information will be instantly and automatically respond with a diagnosis of disease, or request additional clinical data.

The process of diagnosis by computer is similar to the process which takes place in the physician's mind as he marshals the evidence for a final diagnosis. The difference is that the computer is able to process a larger body of knowledge to make available to the physician and to respond almost instantaneously.

The computerized system has been compared to a compendium of medical knowledge that the electronic tool represents to physicians, to deal with the fantastic explosion of information which is threatening to overload the abilities of the fastest reader and the most retentive mind.

No computer will ever replace or even equal the unique capabilities of the human mind. What the computer does offer is the ability to store an enormous library of information, and the capacity for total recall at a speed that far surpasses that of the human brain. Thus, though the computer is the physician may have at his disposal immediate access to information that otherwise might take much time to research.

Residents' Son Goes On Special Tour

Capt. Sidney M. Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johns, 277 Ash Street, recently completed a three-week special duty tour as Spanish interpreter for a group of Ecuadorian Army officers touring various U. S. installations.

Captain Johns, finance and accounting officer at Ft. Douglas, Utah, was chosen by the Department of the Army for this special assignment because of his knowledge of the Spanish language and his "personal traits of leadership and diplomacy."

The visiting group was the 1966 graduating class of the Ecuadorian Academy of War, the highest ranking military school in that country.

Lt. Col. Albert E. Andrews, tour director, and Capt. Johns met the group at JFK International Airport, New York City, on Aug. 26, after a long day briefing session at the Pentagon.

While in New York City, the group toured the United Nations building, the E. M. Price State building, the Statue of Liberty and rode the ferry from Manhattan Island to Staten Island.

From New York City the group went to Ft. Dix, N. J., to observe the army reception and training center.

Following a stop-over in Philadelphia, the group went to Washington, D. C., where they visited the Inter-American Defense Board, the Organization of American States, the State Department, the National War College, the Industrial College of the Armed Forces and the Inter-American Defense College at Ft. McNair.

An official visit was also made to Arlington National Cemetery, where they laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and at the graveside of John F. Kennedy.

After leaving the nation's capital the group was taken to Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., where they toured the facilities at the Command and General Staff College. They also visited the Discharge Barracks and were told how most individuals who are sent there are rehabilitated and returned to duty.

From Kansas the group went to Fort Bragg, N. C., where they visited the John F. Kennedy

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

The recent column in which we answered a question on a United States Trade Dollar has occasioned quite a bit of comment, including the following letter from Mr. A. I. E. Gouding: "I have a United States dollar which has puzzled me for some time, and when your article on the Trade Dollar was published, I thought I had finally found out what it was. But there are some differences. On my dollar the eagle is seated, facing the right side, and looking back over her shoulder. Also, she has a shield beside her which has the word 'Liberty' on it. Is this another type of the dollar you wrote about?"

Answer: Your coin is a regular issue dollar of the 1840-1875 mintage. All the silver dollars of this era have the "Seated Liberty" on the obverse (front) side, with the familiar eagle on the reverse. The coin was patterned after an original design made by Christian Gobrecht, assistant to Mint Engraver William Kneass in 1838. His first dies are one of the finest examples of the "early engraver's art."

The original dies from which pattern coins were struck had no stars around the seated figure of Liberty, and the reverse showed an eagle in full flight. Gobrecht made the error of placing his name under the Liberty Seated figure and caused a storm of criticism, and it was removed. Only 18 of these dies were struck, and they were worth over a thousand dollars apiece. A few more of these patterns were struck in 1838.

When the coin was struck for general circulation in 1840, the Flying Eagle was not used on the reverse (reason unknown) and the old familiar form was used. Our illustrations show the Trade Dollar (dated 1875) and the regular issue dollar (dated 1838).

You did not mention the date on your specimen. Suffice it to say that it is "well over a face value" and it will write me again, quoting the date and general condition, and I will alter my price for you. Most of these early dollars are valuable—depending on date of issue and condition.

The one shown in the illustration, which is a copy, was issued only in Proof Condition.

Such specimens must be authenticated by an expert, and command good prices from the collectors of genuine mint errors. The column has received several inquiries on Canadian money, and will attempt to answer some of the questions in next week's column.

(Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301).

Phi Theta Kappa Chapter Installed

By NORMA HERZINGER

The College of Southern Idaho has grown by leaps and bounds since its inception just a little over one short year ago, and again — something new has been added.

The college focused special emphasis on academic achievement when Dr. James Taylor, CSI president, formally installed a Phi Theta Kappa Chapter on campus at an installation banquet at the Holiday Inn.

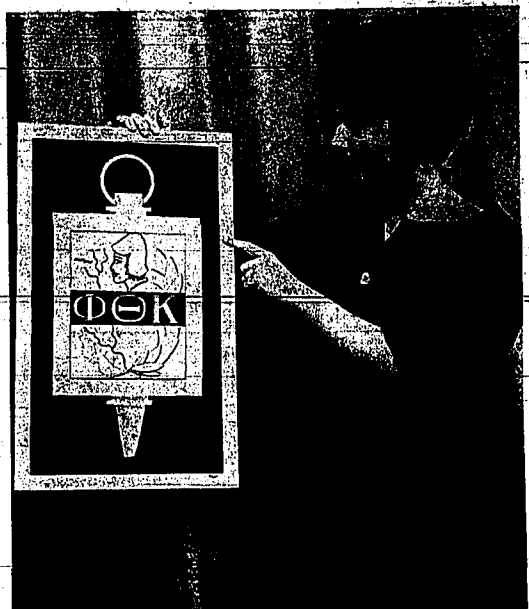

Installation of Omicron Xi Chapter will bring recognition to all full-time academic students who earn high grades. Phi Theta Kappa, a national honorary scholastic society, is the junior college equivalent to Phi Beta Kappa, the four-year scholastic honorary.

The group was welcomed to the banquet and ceremony by Jane Crawford and the invocation was given by Helen Bailly.

After the installation, the five chapter officers initiated nine members in a candlelight ceremony, bringing the group's total membership at present to 14.

The guest speaker, Dr. Earl Swanson, chairman of the Idaho State University Anthropology Department and director of the ISU Museum, was introduced by Mrs. Marshall LeBaron. Some of the qualifications listed by Mrs. LeBaron for this outstanding speaker, to list just a few, include receiving his B.A. degree from Carleton College, Northfield, Minn.; M.A. from the University of Arizona; two year Fulbright scholarship at the University of London, and NSF grant to support research

Installation Ceremony Held By Local CSI

Dr. Swanson spoke on "Education and Man in Idaho," emphasizing his talk with illustrations on a blackboard and with colored slides. He concluded his presentation by answering questions from the audience.

The purpose of Phi Theta Kappa is to recognize and encourage scholarship among college students. Working toward this goal, Phi Theta Kappa provides opportunity for the development of leadership and service, an intellectual climate for exchange of ideas and stimulation of interest in continuing academic excellence.

To qualify for membership, the student must have a grade point average of 3.2 or better for the previous semester, be of good moral character and possess recognized qualities of citizenship as judged by the faculty. The student must also carry an academic work load of at least 12 credit hours in courses leading to a recognized degree in a fully accredited four-year college or university.

Those initiated are eligible to wear the golden key of Phi Theta Kappa and certain chapter members will attend a national convention held each year.

Officers and charter members of the group are: Miss Crawford, president; Helen Bally, vice president; Dana Samples, treasurer; Joyce Jensen, secretary; and Stephanie Hasselblad, council member.

New initiates include Kent Dugan, Jean Evans, Tim Haydon, Elaine Jackson, Vivienne Kincaid, David Medley, James Monlar, Ellis Moncler and Mike Thompson.

Chapter sponsors are Mrs. Marion Tanner and Mrs. Baron. They were made honorary chapter members.

Guests at the banquet and initiation included parents, friends of the initiates and interested CSI faculty members. Joy Evans, CSI freshman, sang the Phi Theta Kappa song at the end of the initiation, accompanied by Nancy Davis.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: All the boys confide in me like I was their mother or something. I don't mind listening because in the future I know I will have to do that quite often. (I plan to be a social worker or a nurse or something of that sort.) The boys always ask my advice on how to get dates with girls they have a crush on and so forth.

Is there some witty or catchy phrase I can throw out to let them know I am available? Also, my folks are taking me on a trip—and I would like to lose 20 pounds in three weeks. I'm sure like to look cute for the trip. Hurry your answer.

OUT OF IT: One problem at a time, starting with the one that is probably responsible for the others. You can "fall down" by going on a serious diet under a doctor's supervision. But don't expect to shed 20 pounds in 21 days. It took you longer than that to pile it on.

Boys treat you like their mothers because you probably remind them of THEIRS. When you look more like a girl they want to date, they'll realize that you are "available," and you won't need a catchy phrase with which to catch them.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 18-year-old girl. When I was younger and still in school, my mother always said, "Make your bed." Sometimes I didn't have time, so I wouldn't. When my older sister married I got the room to myself and started taking more pride in it, so now I always make my bed. About two times a week I wake up to find my mother sleeping in the other twin bed.

She says she likes to have a break from my father's snoring so she comes in her room to sleep. I don't mind that except she never makes her own bed so I'm stuck with it. She complains a lot about backaches and headaches, so if I don't do it, it doesn't get done. What do you suggest? UNPAID MAID

DEAR UNPAID: I suggest you make her bed and don't look for any medals. Be grateful for the chance to remove the wrinkles from your mother's bed. From the sound of your letter, you must have put a few in her brow.

DEAR ABBY: There is a certain lady in our neighborhood who calls me on the phone every afternoon and starts a nice long conversation. Now, Abby, I don't mind talking to this woman for a little while, but I can't spend two hours a day on the telephone with her.

When I say, "Well, dear, I'd better be going as I don't want to keep you from your work," she says, "O, that's okay, I don't have very much to do." And she goes right on talking. I hate to be rude, but how can I get off the phone without hurting her feelings?

NEEDS ADVICE: DEAR NEEDS: Instead of saying, "I'd better be going as I don't want to keep you from your work," say, "I'd better be going as I must get back to my work." Then all she can say is good-bye.

CONFIDENTIAL TO VERNON: Don't ask her any embarrassing questions, but if her kiss spoke "volumes" you can be sure I won't.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal, unpolished reply, inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069.

Fiction's 007 Makes Life of James Bond Bewildering

By ADAM SPIEGEL
BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Capt. James Bond does not seem to be preparing for bed. He has spent the day shooting down his custom-made P38 Walther pistol and now, as fatigue clouds his mind and weighs his eyelids, he slipped deep between the sheets at his Morris-Pollock bed.

Brrrrrrrrrr. Beside his nightgown a jangling, insistent telephone aches him from sleep.

"Hello, Capt. James Bond here," he said loudly.

"Why, hello sweetie-pie," came back the honeyed female voice. "I'd just love to meet you somewhere—interesting, real, real soon. How 'bout it?"

Bond was puzzled. He was more than puzzled; he was intrigued.

"Do you mind telling me who is speaking?"

"This is Pussy Galore. My measure is 42-26-35. My address is 4122 Goethe Drive. I'd like to see you some time."

Bond looked at the earphone. Behind the velvety female voice he could hear giggles. Then there were more giggles, then outright laughter. Bond understood immediately.

"You're very nice to call, but let's drop the joke so I can go to sleep."

It was not the first prank on Capt. James H. Bond, an intelligence officer at Ft. Holabird in Baltimore, and chances were it wouldn't be the last.

In fact, James H. Bond, the Army man it was just another in a fantastic series of episodes that began when James H. Bond—the irresistible but fictional British security agent—burst upon the American scene three years ago.

Since then, Capt. Bond, who lives with his wife, Loretta, and our children in suburban Essex, has been averaging two telephone calls a week from persons identifying themselves as Dr. No, Goldfinger, Kiss, Suzuki or Miss Galore.

Hardly a week goes by without some "prankster" having stumbled across his name in the telephone book, threatening him with instant violent death or a nameless torture.

His life at Ft. Holabird is made hilarious and sometimes tiresome by colleagues who pun or joke on his name. One secretary, evidently impressed by Bond's credentials, sighs, "Oooh, ooooh, seven," whenever he passes.

In grocery stores or at banks, his signature or name is sure to bring wide-eyed stares and an inevitable, "You've got to be kidding."

"I've reached the point where I now sign James Harold Bond just to avoid a scene," says the crew-cut Army man.

At parties women oggle him, to his wife's consternation and his well-bewildered amusement. Both have an avid interest in Fleming's million-dollar creation, at least superficially. In fact, Bond does sit in guns. In addition to his P38 Walther pistol, Capt. Bond boasts a .22 caliber bolt-action rifle and a 16-gauge, double-barreled shotgun.

The difference, of course, is that the captain hunts squirrels, doves and rabbits, whereas the British security agent is licensed to hunt people.

Both have jobs that are secret—even their closest associates are kept ignorant of the details. In Capt. Bond's case, this means his wife. With 007, it is his parade of lovers.

Both the jobs and are involved in military intelligence. The Essex resident teaches combat intelligence and imagery interpretation (such as aerial photography); his British counterpart usually is assigned to steal such information.

Both have a propensity for being where the action is, and both suffer for it. Capt. Bond was in a hotel in North Vietnam when the Viet Cong snatched 200 pounds of explosives from him.

The resulting explosion killed two men and threw Capt. Bond out of his fourth-floor chair, causing deep cuts on his neck and arms. For his pains he received a Purple Heart. Just about here, however, the similarity stops.

How does Capt. James H. Bond regard James Bond of Her Majesty's service?

"He intrigues me as a man, with the exception that he drinks too much and lacks discipline." When the captain talks about self-discipline, he conjures up images of rows of neighborhood soldiers with their chins tucked somewhere behind their Adam's apple.

"In my family," he explains, "we don't drink, we don't dance, we don't stay out late. We demand strict discipline from our four children and we get it." His wife nods a silent, "Yes, sir."

James Bond admires 007's devotion to his superiors, but he views many of Bond's exploits as gross exaggerations of a non-too-glamorous business.

"I have read all the Bond books and generally I find them interesting," he says. "But I have to take them with a grain of salt because being, in intelligence, I know that a great deal of what he does is impossible, also know that intelligence work is not romantic."

One thing he likes about Bond is his name. Strangers can establish instant rapport with the captain by playing the name's theme song.

One quick look breaks the ice and the rest comes easily. This is particularly useful in teaching situations where younger students may be nervous, the captain says.

On the other side of the coin, however, are those midnight telephone calls.

Not too long ago his wife took a call at 1 a.m. asking if Mr. Bond would drop everything and join the female caller for a night at Joe's Place.

Intent upon catching the would-be playmate, Mrs. Bond identified herself as the caller. She said the Bond were out but asked if she could take a name and telephone number.

"Holy Christmas!" said the voice on the other end. "If he's married and old enough to have children, I'm not interested."

She abruptly hung up.

Gently Mrs. Bond laid down the receiver and, without waking her husband, fell into a pleasant sleep.

BEHAVIOR: South-Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong attacked police squad conducting census operation. Eight policemen killed, one wounded, three captured.

Cong assassinated 150 civilians. Twenty civilians abducted. Viet Cong threw three grenades into home of regional forces soldier. One woman and Two children wounded. Viet Cong halted bus. Four males kidnapped.

These are routine entries in the weekly record of Viet Cong activity, part of the war of terrorism that goes on every day and every night in Viet Nam.

Often the terrorism is overshadowed by the more dramatic clashes involving more than 360,000 U.S. troops here.

The increasing ability of U.S. forces to search out or strike back at large, organized enemy forces has had little effect on the war the terrorists conduct across the country against villages, hamlets, checkpoints and outposts.

Neither U.S. nor Vietnamese officials are able to supply accurate comprehensive figures for terrorist incidents on a nationwide basis. One report shows that in the first six months of this year 253 village officials were killed and 187 kidnapped. Another shows that since 1964, 2,700 village officials have been killed or abducted.

Village and hamlet chiefs and other officials working at the smallest government level are a favorite target. Many of them have died gruesome deaths as enemies to the people living in the countryside.

Many persons here now believe that the giant American military buildup may have the effect of forcing the Viet Cong to rely more on guerrilla and terror tactics. In professional jargon, there is talk of reverting from phase three back to phase two. This means more Communist emphasis on terror, assassination, ambushes, small hit-and-run attacks rather than on engagements of large units along more conventional lines.

An intelligence document captured from the Viet Cong's headquarters "that covers the Saigon area calls for more infiltration of Viet Cong agents into the outskirts of the capital, attacks on traffic on roads and waterways and for stepped-up action against outposts and lines of communication."

Last week Vietnamese military officials reported seeing a large store of dynamite and heading off a plan to blow up shipping in a new port area, the following night a Vietnamese military truck was ambushed on a main highway in the same area.

Trains have been mined or attacked twice recently between Saigon and Bien Hoa, a big base 15 miles north. Snipers have been active along the Bien Hoa highway.

In Saigon itself, security has increased, at least in the case of military police, guards and patrols. Still the Viet Cong were able to steal the heart of the city during National Day celebrations Nov. 1.

This more than often is the case, too, in the little villages and hamlets where nightfall often means the Viet Cong terrorists can move and strike with near impunity.

and-run attacks rather than on engagements of large units along more conventional lines.

An intelligence document captured from the Viet Cong's headquarters "that covers the Saigon area calls for more infiltration of Viet Cong agents into the outskirts of the capital, attacks on traffic on roads and waterways and for stepped-up action against outposts and lines of communication."

Last week Vietnamese military officials reported seeing a large store of dynamite and heading off a plan to blow up shipping in a new port area, the following night a Vietnamese military truck was ambushed on a main highway in the same area.

Trains have been mined or attacked twice recently between Saigon and Bien Hoa, a big base 15 miles north. Snipers have been active along the Bien Hoa highway.

In Saigon itself, security has increased, at least in the case of military police, guards and patrols. Still the Viet Cong were able to steal the heart of the city during National Day celebrations Nov. 1.

This more than often is the case, too, in the little villages and hamlets where nightfall often means the Viet Cong terrorists can move and strike with near impunity.

Snakes, Scorpions Coexist With People In Tiny Village

By MAHMOUD ABDULLAH
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Snakes and scorpions have managed to coexist with the people of a tiny village for more than 100 years — with rare casualties on the people side.

The village of Abu Rawash is in the midst of the scorching western Egyptian desert. In their mud huts, amidst scattered jagged rocks, women and children share the same roof with scorpions and reptiles.

"Play with this," said a mother, throwing a snake into her screaming child's lap. When a stunned visitor shouted at her she replied, "This is to immunize my son from further bad bites."

Politics In Boston Are Surprising

By ARTHUR EDSON
BOSTON (AP)—The Democratic candidate for senator looked surprised that anyone should ask him to run.

"I do not think race will play any part in this election," said Endicott (Chub) Peabody firmly.

Race may not be decisive in Massachusetts this fall, but it's a question that cannot be avoided. Will Peabody's Republican opponent, Edward W. Brooke, become the first Negro to go to the U.S. Senate since a carpet-bag government in Mississippi picked two Negro senators in 1861?

Backhandedly, Brooke figures in another question of national interest: Can the Kennedy brothers, who help themselves to almost any office they want, help non-Kennedys win? Here the Kennedys are for Peabody, the Democrat, and against Brooke the Republican.

Brooke seems to have almost everything against him. He is running in a state with relatively few Negroes, a Negro who has broken one of the nation's strongest taboos: He married a white girl.

He is a Protestant in a state that is more than 50 per cent Roman Catholic. He is a Republican in a state where Democrats lead in registration by 2-1.

In which many cities—but not Boston—have had bloody racial rebellions, and although Brooke never shoots in the streets, he knows voters may take their dissatisfactions out on him.

"We're going to win," he says about backlash, selfish or upshot—or any other kind of thing he has to tell his followers. "We're going to win."

He has in Chub Peabody a former governor who is a formidable and tireless opponent.

Yet Brooke has an advantage, and it's a big one: He may be the lastest vote-getter in the GOP has anywhere. In 1964 when President Johnson swept Barry Goldwater aside in Massachusetts by 1.2 million votes, Brooke not only survived, he won big. He was re-elected attorney general by a stunning 800,000-vote margin.

Furthermore, the Republicans sort of own this Senate seat. Leverett Saltonstall, retiring at 74, has held it for 22 years.

So far there's little evidence that the Kennedys can transfer their glamor to anyone else. This year could be different.

In the bootstrapped political jungles of Massachusetts, Democrats usually maul each other so viciously that the wounds never heal. Now they're on a unity kick, partly because of financial difficulties. They whooped off their money in the 1960 primaries.

Oh, it's a gloriously happy family now, they keep saying. Congratulatory embraces. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., scurry in to lead the group therapy.

It's comical to see Kennedy nuzzling House Speaker John W. McCormack and his nephew Edward J. McCormack, who hopes to unseat Republican Gov. John A. Volpe on Nov. 3.

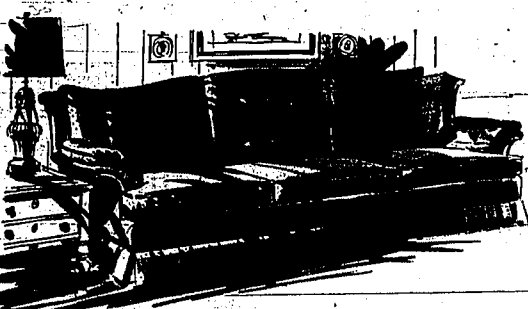

The Kennedys and the McCormacks have long fought each other, with the acid-bolting over in 1962 when Eddie McCormack tangled with Teddy Kennedy over who should be senator. Teddy, said Eddie bitterly, would be a joke if his name weren't Kennedy.

Yet, here is Eddie, his face moderately straight, saying in a "We have a great senator" in Edward M. Kennedy.

Fiction's 007 Makes Life of James Bond Bewildering

By ADAM SPIEGEL

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Capt. James Bond does not seem to be a very good spy. He has spent a day shooting down a plane with his custom-made P38 Walther pistol and now, as fatigue clouds his mind and weighs his eyelids, he slipped deep between the sheets at his Morris-Pollack bed.

By morning, however, the nightable is jangling, insistent telephone stirred him from sleep.

"Hello, Capt. James Bond here," he said thickly.

"Why, hello, sweetie-ple," came back the honeyed female voice. "You're just too much to me somewhere — interesting, real, real soon. How about it?"

Bond was puzzled. He was more than puzzled; he was intrigued.

"Do you mind telling me who is speaking?"

"This is Pussy Galore. My measurements are 42-26-38. My address is 4122 Goethe Drive."

"I'd like to see you sometime," Bond grinned at the earphone.

Behind the velvet female voice he could hear giggles. Then there were more giggles, then — outright laughter.

Bond understood immediately.

"You're very young to meet me," he said, "but let's drop the joke so I can get some sleep."

It was not the first prank on Capt. James H. Bond, an Army intelligence officer at Ft. Holabird in Baltimore, and chances were it wouldn't be the last.

In fact, to the 33-year-old Army man it was just another in a fantastic series of episodes that began when James (007) Bond — the irresistible but fictional British security agent — burst upon the American scene three years ago.

Since then, Capt. Bond, who lives with his wife, Loretta, and four children in suburban Essex, has been averaging two telephone calls a week from persons identifying themselves as Dr. No, Goldfinger, Kissy Suzuki or Miss Galore.

Hardly a week goes by without getting some prankster's letter, usually addressed to his name in the telephone book, threatening him with instant violent death or a zany letter.

His life at Ft. Holabird is made hilarious and sometimes tiresome by colleagues who pun or joke on his name. One secretary, evidently impressed by Bond's 007 credentials, sighs, "Oooh, ooooh, seven!" whenever he passes.

In grocery stores or at banks, his signature on a check is sure to bring wide-eyed stares and an inevitable, "You've got to be kidding."

"I've reached the point where I now sign James Harold Bond just to avoid a scene," says the crew-cut Army man.

At parties women glee him, to his wife's consternation and his well-bewildered amusement. Capt. James Bond does resemble Fleming's military creation, at least superficially. Both have an avid interest in guns. In addition to his P38 Walther pistol, Capt. Bond boasts a .22 caliber bolt-action rifle and a 16-gauge, double-barreled shotgun.

The difference, of course, is that the captain hunts squirrels, doves and rabbits, whereas the British security agent is licensed to hunt people.

Both have jobs that are so secret even their closest associates are kept ignorant of the details. In Capt. Bond's case, this means his wife, Loretta, and his four children.

At their jobs both are involved in military intelligence. The Essex resident teaches combat intelligence and imagery interpretation (such as aerial photography); his British counterpart actually is assigned to steal such information.

Both have a propensity for being where the action is, and both suffer for it. In Capt. Bond's case, he is in a hotel in South Vietnam when the Viet Cong both suffer for it. In Capt. Bond's case, he is in a hotel in South Vietnam when the Viet Cong

Continual Viet Cong Terrorism Is Often Overshadowed By Big Clashes

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Viet Cong attacks

police squad conducting census operation. Eight policemen one wounded, three captured.

Viet Cong assassinated five civilians. Twenty civilians abducted. Viet Cong threw three grenades into home of regional forces soldier. One woman and two children wounded.

Viet Cong halted bus. Four men wounded, one captured.

These are routine entries in the weekly record of Viet Cong activity, part of the war of terrorism that goes on every day and every night in Viet Nam.

Often the terrorism is overshadowed by the more dramatic clashes involving more than 300,

000 U.S. troops here.

The increasing ability of U.S.

forces to search out and strike back at large, organized enemy forces has had little effect on the war the terrorists conduct across the country against villages, hamlets, checkpoints and outposts.

Neither U.S. nor Vietnamese officials are able to supply accurate, comprehensive figures for terrorist incidents on a nationwide basis. One report shows that in the first six months of this year 253 village officials were killed and 167 kidnapped. Another shows that since

1964, 2,700 village officials have been killed or abducted.

Village and hamlet chiefs are one of the most important targets. Many of them have died gruesome deaths as examples to the people living in the countryside.

Many persons here now believe that the giant American military buildup may have the effect of forcing the Viet Cong to rely more on guerrilla and other tactics. In professional jargon, there is talk of reverting from phase three back to phase

two. This means more Communist emphasis on terror, assassination, ambushes, small hit-and-run attacks, rather than on engagements of large units along more conventional lines.

An intelligence document captured from the Viet Cong's headquarters that covers the

Salmon area calls for more infiltration of Viet Cong agents into the outskirts of the capital, or attacks on traffic on roads and waterways and for stepped-up action against outposts and lines of communication.

Last week Vietnamese military officials reported seizing a large store of dynamite and

Snakes, Scorpions Coexist With People In Tiny Village

By MAHMOUD ABDULLAH
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Snakes and scorpions have managed to coexist with the people of a tiny village for more than 100 years — with very few casualties on the people's side.

The village of Abu Rawash is in the midst of the scorching western Egyptian desert. In their mud-huts, amidst scattered jagged rocks, women and children share the same roof with scorpions and reptiles.

"Play with this," said a mother, throwing a snake into her weeping child's lap. When a stunned visitor shouted at her, she replied, "This is to immunize my son from further bites."

Politics In Boston Are Surprising

By ARTHUR EDSON
BOSTON (AP) — The Democratic candidate for senator looked surprised that anyone should ask such a question. "I do not think race will play any part in this election," said Endicott (Chub) Peabody firmly.

Race may not be decisive in Massachusetts this fall, but it's a question that cannot be avoided: Will Peabody's Republican opponent, Edward W. Brooke, become the first Negro to go to the U.S. Senate, since a carpet-bag government in Mississippi placed two Negro senators in 1867?

Backhandedly, Brooke figures in another question of national interest. Can the Kennedy brothers, who help themselves to almost any office they want, help non-Kennedys win? Here the Kennedy and Peabody are the Democrat and against Brooke the Republican.

Brooke seems to have almost everything against him. He is running in a state with relatively few Negroes, a Negro who has written one of the nation's strongest taboos: He married a white girl.

He is Protestant in a state that is more than 50 per cent Roman Catholic. He is a Republican in a state where Democrats lead in registration by 3-1.

He is running after a summer in which many cities — but not Boston — have had bloody racial rebellions, and although Brooke never shouts in the streets, he knows voters may take their dissatisfactions out on him.

"I don't care what they say about 'backlash,' 'sidelash' or 'uplash' or any other kind of lash," he tells his followers. "We're going to win."

He has in Chub Peabody a former governor who is a formidable and tireless opponent.

Yet Brooke has an advantage, and it's a big one: He may be the hottest vote-collector the GOP has anywhere. In 1964 when President Johnson swept Barry Goldwater aside in Massachusetts by 1.2 million votes, Brooke not only survived, he won big. He was re-elected attorney general by a startling 800,000-vote margin.

Furthermore, the Republicans sort of own this Senate seat. Leverett Saltonstall, retiring at 74, has held it for 22 years. So far there's little evidence that the Kennedy can transfer their glamor to anyone else. This year could be different.

In the booby-trapped political jungles of Massachusetts, Democrats usually maul each other so viciously that the wounds never heal. Now they're on a unity kick, partly because of financial difficulties. They've whopped off their money in the fierce primaries.

Oh, it's a gloriously happy family now, they keep saying. Congratulatory embraces. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., scurry in to lead the group therapy.

It's comical to see Kennedy nuzzling House Speaker John W. McCormack and his nephew Edward J. McCormack, who hopes to unseat Republican Gov. John A. Volpe on Nov. 8.

The Kennedys and the McCormacks have long fought each other, with the acid boiling over in 1962 when Eddie McCormack tangled with Teddy Kennedy over who should be senator. Teddy said — bitterly — would be a joke if his name weren't Kennedy.

Yet here is Eddie, his face moderately straight, a sly grin. "We have a great senator in Edward M. Kennedy."

"Sgt. Mac, No Ordinary Man," Honored By Building Of Vietnamese Orphanage

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Staff Writer

The brick and plaster structure now rising in a jungle clearing on the outskirts of the Vietnamese village of Ben Cat bears the rather imposing title "The Arthur N. McMellon Memorial Orphanage."

Maybe it should have been called "Slanty-eyed Mac's Home for Homeless Psa Pickers" or some such nonsense name that would appeal to the 200-odd miles of war who soon will be living there. Sgt. Mac would have thought of an appropriate name. He had a way with words, especially when it came to dressing up drab Army menus. Pale de porc Gordon-Bleau Holstein was his way of letting the men know, easy-like, that they were having spam and powdered eggs for supper. Common C-rations, when touched with his soothing hyperbole, emerged as "ragout of Americana" in the case of thinned beef stew, and "prosciutto on fragoli," the detested concoction of ham and lima beans. Staff Sgt. Arthur D. McMellon, from West Hamlin, W.Va., was a mess sergeant with the 1st Infantry Division. He was killed a few feet from the site of the orphanage honoring his memory. It is on Highway 15, otherwise known as "Thunder Road."

Sgt. Mac was killed on Dec. 1, 1965. Small arms fire broke out from the jungle clearing as his Jeep negotiated the curve coming out of Ben Cat. Then a grenade exploded in the back seat. The sergeant had been in Viet Nam less than two months, yet he left his mark on the country. "This was no ordinary man," said Col. William D. Brobeck of Omaha, Neb., his brigade commander.

Mac never thought of himself as anything but a cook, although he always added the distinction, "the best damn cook in the Army." "Someday," he used to tell the helicopter pilots, MPs, mechanics and riflemen who hung around Charlie Company's mess tent, "they're gonna award me the oatmeal cluster for brilliance at the skillet."

The number of drifters who followed the home-made signs to "Slanty-eyed Mac's Greasy Spoon" were a tribute to the sergeant's extraordinary talents as a scrounger. The entire 3rd brigade of the Big Red One led rather spartan existence in tents. But Charlie Company, 701st Maintenance Battalion, had a screened-in mess tent, a restaurant, steam table, mammoth refrigerator full of beer and a bottomless coffee pot that welcomed all comers.

Other units lined up with trays under the dripping trees. Charlie company sat down to real crockery and bedsheet on in a mess tent decorated with lacquered screens, porcelain elephants, joss sticks and fresh-cut flowers.

Mac settled for the Oriental motif when some of the brass at Charlie blew a gasket over the orange parachute draped above the tent to simulate a jungle Howard Johnson's. It was strictly against regulations to buy the economy, but all sorts of shrimp and lobsters, cracked crab and escargots seemed to find their way up the dusty road from Ben Cat.

Sgt. McMellon insisted they be pils from the "friendly" folk of Ben Cat's, a town that had been a Communist stronghold since the days of the French. In truth, Mac had a way with the people in Ben Cat. When he went downtown to get his Jeep washed or to barter for dishes and silverware, the kids would flock around him.

"Anh so dach," they'd shout. "You, number one," the ultimate in Vietnamese esteem. Even the "crippled beggar" boy would drag himself down the dusty street, confident the American "trung si"—sergeant—would not begin handing out candy and chewing gum without him.

Mac's popularity in Ben Cat had reached such proportions that even old men resting in the shade and women squatting at their market stalls smiled when they saw his Jeep roll up in front of the Kansas Express Laundry. That took courage in a town where a Communist cadre long had held sway.

As a young man growing up in West Virginia's coal-mining country, Arthur McMellon was told that he bore a marked resemblance to Clark Gable. He still fancied himself as a letter-day Rhett Butler, gallant gambler and soldier of fortune.

Sgt. Mac scaled his own personal heights as a scrounger on Thanksgiving Day, 1965, when he somehow found enough turkeys to feed 87 Vietnamese children and 40 adults, all of them refugees from the bombed-out village of Bau Bang.

Sgt. Mac saw Thanksgiving, 1965, as a turning point in the war for men's minds in the Ben Cat area, and perhaps in a way he wrote to his wife, Jean, in Junction City, Kan., for Christmas tree ornaments.

On Wednesday, Dec. 1, Sgt. Mac had completed 54 days, and struck the day off his calendar. He and Ssgt. E. Terry of St. Louis, his first cook, drove off in the late afternoon to pick up some more Christmas decorations and check on another of Sgt. Mac's bizarre plans. He had a local farmer to fashion up a pig for him and named the pig "Charlene" in honor of his beloved Charlie Company.

At 5:30 p.m., they headed back to camp. Spec. 4 Robert Vogel was driving, and Terry was sitting next to him. Vogel heard a sound like dull firecrackers to his right, then a shattering explosion that collapsed the canvas to cover the Jeep's windshield.

It took the men of Charlie Company a long time to realize that Sgt. Mac was gone.

Birth Control Sessions In Turkey Are Well Attended

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Slowly, almost shyly, the neighborhood women filed into the tiny coffee house, usually the exclusive domain of the Turkish male.

Some wore modern dress, others baggy shalvar trousers and veils.

A middle-aged, smartly dressed woman began speaking occasionally, illustrating her remarks with diagrams. The speaker was a gynecologist and she was explaining modern birth control methods.

Such a meeting was impossible in Turkey less than two years ago.

"We are frankly amazed at the spontaneous enthusiasm of the women," said one Turkish medical official.

Women have trekked miles to wait for hours to hear details of family planning, as the program is called.

So far, more than 27,000 have received intra-uterine loops and thousands more have begun to practice some kind of contraception.

The United States has given Turkey's long-term, low interest loan of about $3.6 million for the purchase of 1,450 Jeeps and education equipment for the program.

Turkey's population was begun after World War II. A sharp increase in marriages coincided with a drop in the mortality rate brought about by antibiotics and eradication of malaria.

By 1965, the growth rate had hit 3 per cent, promising to double by 1988 the present population of 33 million. Government planners saw dangers for Turkey's economic expansion.

In April, 1965, Parliament lifted a ban on the use of contraceptives. Leaders of the Justice party, which inherited the program when it assumed power a year ago, feared birth control propaganda would stir up the religious peasantry from whom they draw major support.

Sunday, Dec. 10, Twin Falls Times than 412,000 cubic feet of concrete. That's enough to fill 10,300 100-gallon milk cans. American general contractors are installing the steel framework for the dam. The task of installing the steel framework is the first of a series of tasks that will be completed by the spring of 1967. The dam is a 100-mile stretch of concrete. It will be the longest concrete dam in the world. It will be the longest concrete dam in the world. It will be the longest concrete dam in the world.

Repair Work Is Begun By Crews

KING HILL — Don Flock, chairman of the board of directors of the King Hill Irrigation District, announced that Big Pilgrim siphon, 15 miles southeast of King Hill, has been dismantled by the maintenance crews and Galey Construction Co., Boise, is doing some excavating at the site.

Concrete pipe has been delivered and the siphon will be installed. Ted Moore, manager of the irrigation district, reported that crew are installing risers on the sides of all flumes in the district so they will be able to handle more water this coming year.

Economic Pinch May Work Where British Foes Failed

By GRANVILLE WATTS — LONDON (AP) — The economic squeeze may succeed where Britain's enemies failed and deal a knockout blow at the Gurkhas.

The tough little hillman from Nepal, probably the world's finest infantrymen, have fought as mercenaries for Britain for 150 years.

But Prime Minister Harold Wilson wants to hold the defense budget ceiling just under $6 billion and is expected to cut back Britain's 180,000 strong volunteer army to help achieve this.

The 14,500-strong brigade of Gurkhas played a major part in the four-year confrontation crisis between British-backed Malaysia and Indonesia. Now that the crisis is resolved, the Gurkhas could be trimmed to a force of 10,000, even less.

The suggestion already has resulted in letters to the London Times from retired army colonels who regard the Gurkhas as something very special.

A cutback in the Gurkha force also has caused concern in Nepal, which gets a large chunk of its foreign currency from the "export" of Gurkha soldiers.

The British army paid out $7 million in wages to the Gurkhas last year, and it is estimated about one quarter of that found its way back to families in Nepal. In addition about $700,000 was paid out in pensions. Nepal, which already has a surplus of manpower, also would be hard put to find jobs for the Gurkhas if they all returned home.

About the only people likely to gain from such a move are the Communist Chinese. Peking has repeatedly called on the Nepal government to stop the British recruiting of Gurkhas.

It was early in the 19th century that the Gurkhas overran part of northern India and first came into contact with the British.

After some bloody fighting the British forced terms on the Gurkhas and a quarter of the Gurkha force decided to enlist with the British.

That was in 1815. The Gurkhas have been serving Britain ever since.

The Gurkhas, who average about 5 feet 3, are legendary for their bravery and discipline. Twelve Gurkha soldiers won Britain's highest bravery award, the Victoria Cross, in two world wars.

Their latest V.C. hero was Lance-Cpl. Ramchandra Limbu, 28, who carried two wounded men to safety through a hail of bullets from Indonesian infiltrators in Borneo last November and then knocked out the enemy patrol.

The Gurkhas lost 20,000 casualties fighting in France during World War I.

TV-Producer Shows Talent For Forecast

By BOB THOMAS — AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This week "Felony Squad" featured a story about a vigilante group that maintained an arsenal of arms for use against "left-wing" organizations.

Another segment of the ABC television series deals with a psychotic who launches a sniping attack from atop a tower.

Does this sound as if "Felony Squad" is stealing its plots from the headlines? Executive producer Walter Grauman claims innocence. In both cases, he testifies, the shows were filmed before the news events they paralleled.

This sort of thing worries Grauman, a dark, well-dressed veteran of the television and movie wars; he directed chapters of "The Untouchables" and "Naked City" as well as the film "Lady in a Cage." He wonders how many other "Felony Squad" plots will achieve reality.

"Felony Squad" — original title: "Men Against Evil" — appears to be a success in a virtually featureless new season. At least the show has managed a respectable rating. It is one of the three newcomers to land in the top 40. Others are "Rat Patrol" and "Family Affair."

Credit for the achievement goes to Grauman.

"It's a cops-and-robbers show, but with a difference. The police have an emotional relationship to each other and to the case that they're on. I wanted the contrast between a mature detective, Howard Duff, who operates by instinct, and a younger one, Dennis Cole, who goes by the book. He has been taught to do so by his father, played by Ben-Alexander, who is an old-time cop," Grauman said.

"The show is given a style of harsh realism by using real locations, as much as possible. I think of it as an action show, even a chase, and I like to keep the police department."

50 per cent of it in movement. I hammer at the writers: Let us learn about the characters in action."

The success of "Felony Squad" may have influenced NBC's decision to bring back "Dragnet" in January. The show will have Jack Webb back as Sgt. Friday, of course, but he'll have a new sidekick, Harry Morgan, since Ben Alexander is now employed in another showbiz arm of the Los Angeles Police Department.

STARTING DECEMBER 12 TH

he felt that it was sound enough for a bank to lead money at prime rates. It was mighty sound but it was expensive. South looked at his broken spade suit and good six card club suit and decided that six spades would not make and that six no-trump might. West doubled six no - trump also and made his best opening lead of the six of hearts. This set up a lot of heart tricks for East and West but it did them no good. South started the clubs and dropped the jack. That gave him six club tricks. Then he went after diamonds and was lucky enough to drop another jack for four diamond tricks. The heart and spade ace accounting for two more tricks and South had made his no-trump slam.

We sort of sympathize with West. South had never rubid clubs and it was extremely unlucky that he would show up with a solid six card suit. On the other hand West had a sure profit at six spades. He need not have been so greedy. Morehead did not comment on South's bidding, but we will. We just don't like it. We would prefer a three-club rebid to one spade. This would have lost the 4-4 spade fit this time but would not have lost it had North held a different sort of hand. For instance if North had held Spade K Q 4 3; Heart 10 3; Diamond A 10 3 2; Club J 2, he would have sold three spades over three clubs and South could have proceeded quickly to what would have been a cinch spade slam.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, Dec. 11 — Born to-day, you are extremely stable emotionally. Not one to fly off the handle—even for sufficient reason—on the other hand, to see the world in an unrealistically optimistic vein, you have a very level head on your shoulders. At the same time, however, as much as you view things honestly, you are not able to view even the worst things hopefully. You have a strong belief in the goodness of mankind, and are willing to work long and hard to justify that belief.

Although you are destined to have many a hard time during your life, you are not one to go down for the count of 10. You have too much courage and too much energy for that. You may rest a little against the ropes, but when the bell rings for the next round you will be on your feet and ready to go. Such an attitude, actively demonstrated, cannot help but be an encouragement to many.

You have great integrity and tremendous resources of inner strength. Not one to stand out in a crowd during times of peace and quiet, you nevertheless take the spotlight when a time of crisis arises. During the emergency, you are the one that people look to for leadership—no matter how far into the background you may merge when things are going well.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Make an effort to comprehend the newest ideas and methods of your business. Future profit depends on being able to do this.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 22)—Your qualities of leadership should be shown to the best advantage possible today. Take the opportunity to move front and center.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 23-Feb. 19)—Don't be disappointed if the job does not suit your ability to-day. A few days of holding back need not keep your career from moving ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Sociability is an excellent asset today, whether it be displayed in the home, visiting, or on the job. Be charming.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—You should set a single goal for the day. To try to achieve too many things at once could cause you to achieve nothing at all.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Although your ideas may be somewhat ahead of the times, you should allow nervous tension to guide your actions or reactions. Keep reason in the driver's seat as you face your problems.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Cautious remarks are likely to boomerang. Take care, therefore, how you speak to others today, especially those in high positions.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Don't let your fondness for people influence you to let them take advantage of you. This is a time when you could be easily taken in.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—

Two Gooding Employees Are Hurt In Crash

JEROME—Vern J. Barnum, 41, and Marvel Brooks, 53, both staff members of Idaho State Tuberculosis Hospital, Gooding, escaped serious injury Thursday evening when the car in which they were riding crashed into a traffic island on Highway 79 two and one-quarter miles south of here at the junction of Interstate 80N.

Sgt. Patrolman Chet Hillman reported that the 1965 Mustang owned by Miss Brooks and driven by Barnum approached the junction at high speed, slid into the island, shearing off a highway sign mounted on a steel pole and the left front wheel of the car.

The pole and sign, still vertical, sliced through the body of the car between the left front fender and hood as far as the wall between the engine and passenger compartment.

Barnum was treated for facial lacerations and Miss Brooks for minor cuts and bruises. Barnum was cited for reckless driving and Miss Brooks for being intoxicated in an auto. Estimated damage to the car was $1,500.

Oldest Art Firm Notes Anniversary

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP) Two hundred years ago an ex-sailor pocketed a $300 profit, and founded a fine art sales firm that this year grossed $21 million.

The sailor was one James Christie, father of the world's oldest fine art auctioneering house. Monday, Christie's firm observes its second century of knocking down art treasures to the highest bidders who, in recent years, have included many Americans.

Said a spokesman for the firm: "From Boston to Berlin, from Los Angeles to the Louvre, from New York's Metropolitan to Melbourne, and the National Galleries of both Washington and London, all these and many more have major works that at one time passed under the hammer at Christie's."

For instance: A Frans Hals portrait—originally bought in 1903 at an auction in Holland for $7—was bought at the company's auction rooms last autumn for $205,800 and has now gone to the Kimbell Foundation, Fort Worth, Tex.

Rembrandt's portrait of his son Titus—once thrown in to a traveler for a one shilling—14 cents—charge for bed and breakfast—sold last year for $2,234,400 to the Norton Simon Foundation, and now is one of the main exhibits at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

And that Louis XV porcelain clock. It was discovered in a bathtub in a Devonshire attack by a Christie expert and auctioned off this year for $23,320 to a New Yorker. The price stands as a world record for a single piece of porcelain.

Twice in recent years a magnificent Elizabeth I silver-gilt ostrich egg cup and cover passed through Christie's rooms. In 1959 it realized $13,200 and in 1964 it was resold for $22,800 and now sits in the Toledo, Ohio, Museum of Art.

Not long ago an 8x17-inch picture on a panel, was bought by a country dealer in England for the equivalent of $140. It was identified by a Christie expert as by Pieter Bruegel the elder, and once the property of the Charles I. It sold for $67,620 and is now in the Frick collection in New York.

Radar Train Is Rotary Topic

JEROME—Program for the Tuesday noon-meeting of the Rotary Club was a film, presented by Cmdr. Cary Van Dell, and Capt. Harold Triet, U.S. Air Force. Both men are presently stationed with the special radar training station now temporarily set up at Wendell.

The film demonstrated for viewers the function and purpose of the equipment. Rotarian guests of the week was Francis M. Bergin, Shoshone, President, C. R. N. Shephard, reminded members to reserve Dec. 23 for the annual Rotary-party. William Last has been named general chairman for the event.

Program Set

HAGERMAN—The Christmas program will be held during the Sunday school hour Dec. 18 at the Hagerman Methodist church. It was decided at the official board meeting Wednesday evening.

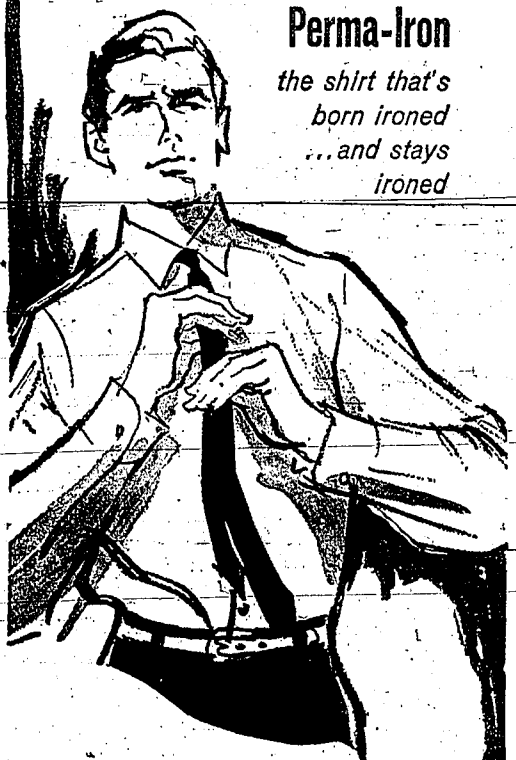

Joint Sunday school and church services will be held at 11 a.m. Christmas day. It was reported that Mrs. Joan Jones, Mrs. Vera Carson and Mrs. Robin Phillips will meet Monday at the church to package the clothing collected for overseas relief.

dozens of stories recounted at the auction house. James Christie was 25 when he started in business in 1766. Then he sold almost anything. One morning he knocked down 72 loads of hay cut from a meadow near the center of present-day London.

On another afternoon Christie auctioned off a coffin, glibly explaining: "It was prepared for a citizen who has made a most remarkable recovery from a malady usually regarded by the medical—confraternity—as fatal."

James Christie made good copy. The cartoonists of his day were constantly sketching him.
