The convention will open Friday at 8 p.m. and continue through Sunday noon, in the Bishop Rhea auditorium, Episcopal Church of the Ascension.

He is a native of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada and is a graduate of the University of British Columbia and the Anglican Theological School, Vancouver. # Chamber At Heyburn To Erect Signs

HEYBURN — The Heyburn Chamber of Commerce is making arrangements to erect a business promotion sign near the Heyburn-Burley bridge and Larry Murphy was named chairman of the committee.

Murphy, who was also named cleanup chairman, was instructed to meet with the village officials concerning both matters. The chamber voted to support the annual cleanup campaign sponsored by the village.

Forest Blake, president, directed a discussion on new bills currently before the legislature. Discussed were bills concerning private carrier permits, free port, inventory tax and the establishing of the four airport districts.

The annual meeting of the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce will be held in March and all chamber members are invited to attend. Blake read a letter from the central chamber thanking the Heyburn chamber for its resolution on the water resource project.

Mr. Blake read a letter from the Minico student body thanking the chamber for its support with the student exchange program and solicited further assistance in getting an exchange student to come to this county. Louise Shaddock sent an announcement of the World Scout Jamboree to be held in Idaho this year.

Mr. Blake reported that the village is planning a road lighting project to install mercury vapor lights on eight-foot arms along Highway 24 from the J. R. Simpson operations to the Al Fresco Road.

Poles will be set every 140 feet along the highway with lights installed on both sides of the highway. Don Hill, village electrician, noted that the project will begin this year although it may not be completed until next year.

Robert Burnham reported on the Burley Chamber of Commerce banquet and Lowell Eager reported on the Rupert Chamber of Commerce banquet. Marlon Judd, pond development committee, noted that the government has appropriated $1,000 towards the local pond development project.

It was agreed that anytime a Heyburn business establishment holds a grand opening after a remodeling project or purchase the chamber will present flowers.

It was decided that the chamber will hold its meetings on the third Thursday instead of the third Wednesday as it previously has done.

Committees appointed by Blake include industrial, legislative and highways, Leo Handy, Mrs. Lazzelle Greenhigh and Larry Murphy; public relations, Wayne Watson, Mrs. Ivan Eliason, Stan Peters and Mrs. Everett Savage; recreational, beautiful and antique, Edna Weiborn, Ken Noltensmier and Max Baird.

Engineers Set Theme For Week

"Engineers for the Human Environment" has been selected as the theme for the 1967 National Engineer's Week, Feb. 19-25, Robert Worstell, local chairman, announced this week.

Mr. Worstell, a member of the Magic Valley Chapter of the Idaho Society of Professional Engineers who are sponsors of the week, said the theme was based on the need to call widespread attention to problems of our human environment, such as air and water pollution, human sanitation, transportation and solid waste disposal practices.

The theme places engineering and modern technology face to face with these environment realities, and dictates that the challenge to solve these problems that threaten our health and human environment must and will be met.

COMPLAINT FILED

BOISE (AP) — A complaint was filed in U.S. District Court Thursday by Eluterio and Charlotte Villarreal, Texas, against Robert E. Haard, Marsing, asking $25,000 for the traffic death of a daughter.

The complaint alleged that Rebecca Villarreal, 18 months, was struck and killed last May 27 by a white driven by Howard at the Marsing Labor Camp, Marsing.

Ruling Given On Unpaid Dividends

BOISE — An important change in tax regulations involving Idaho State Savings and Loan dividends was noted Friday by Calvin E. Wright, Idaho Director of Internal Revenue.

He said that dividends credited but not actually paid to Idaho Savings and Loan Association depositors last June 30, just prior to the firm's closure are not taxable on the 1966 income tax returns. Even though form 1099 dividends statements were noted Friday by Calvin E. Wright, Idaho Director of Internal Revenue.

Some depositors actually withdrew their dividends which makes them taxable in a come. Others, on the basis of dividend statements may have already paid taxes on unpaid dividends and would be entitled to file refund claims, Mr. Wright added.

Mr. Helser and Mr. Wright again confirmed their previous determination—that the depositors themselves are not allowable in whole or in part as loss deductions on 1966 income tax returns, but may become allowable in subsequent years if and when a determinable amount of loss can be ascertained.

RESERVOIR THAW'S

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Ice went out of the American Falls Reservoir Feb. 8, more than a month earlier than last year, and unless the reservoir again freezes unrestricted storage will continue and the reservoir can be filled by April 1, Henry C. Eagle, Snake River District 95 watermaster, reported Thursday.

Forecasts by the soil conservation service of the runoff for the period of April through September this year showed Snake River Station, 960,000 acre feet or 111 per cent of the 1948-52 average; Snake River above Pallasades, 2,810,000 acre feet or 103 per cent of the average; Gays River near Alpine, 350,000 or 102 per cent of average, and Salt River near Elgin, 340,000 or 102 per cent of average.

Snow depths as of last weekend measure 57 inches at Island Park, 39 inches at Grassy Lake and 41 inches at Moran, Wyo.

Salary Scale Suggested To Jerome School Trustees

JEROME — Warren Van Camp, chairman of the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Committee of the Jerome Education Association, presented a suggested salary scale to the board of trustees at its meeting Monday night.

He noted that the scale was basically the same as that of the past two years, with three additional levels of increase which would affect only a small number of teachers in the district.

Mr. Van Camp pointed out to the board that, while salary advances, including increment, have risen only 4.1 per cent in the past two years, the Consumer Price Index shows a cost-of-living increase of 7.1 per cent.

Accompanying the report was a graph-comparison of base salaries of the Jerome district with those of neighboring school districts, which indicated the local scale is somewhat lower than those of the other districts in the valley.

Carl McKenzie of the Junior High Science Department, presented reports of progress and problems in the current status of science education in the local schools.

Both men voiced appreciation of the advances made in equipment and facilities provided for science studies. McKenzie said recently installed laboratory facilities at the junior high school are not being utilized to their best advantage. This might be remedied by rescheduling of classes, but the situation would be greatly improved by addition of another science classroom, he said.

He reported that attendance at Saturday morning laboratory classes being conducted on a voluntary basis, while variable, is satisfactory. He also noted that students selected for independent study projects on a voluntary basis are making some progress in adjusting.

This is an entirely new approach to learning for most of the students involved and there has been some difficulty for

HONORED GUESTS OF THE Twin-Falls Chapter of the National Secretaries Association were Robert Bruce, Twin Falls librarian, and Mrs. Jantoo Stener, president of the Utah-Idaho division of the National Secretaries Association. By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: There is a woman in our town who works for a loan company, and she blubs all the confidential information she picks up through her job. She tells everything she knows, and she knows plenty. I understand that her boss has been informed of this fact, but he won't fire her, because he has a personal interest in her. If you know what I mean. (The boss is married and so is this woman.)
DEAR HEARD: A business that keeps a "lireproof" blab-mouth will not last long. Those who come within earshot of her will see to that.
DEAR ABBY: Recently we moved into a very nice home, and our problem is the interference we get when we try to use our television set. Now we find out that a neighbor is a ham radio operator, and that's the reason for the interference. My son spoke to his son about it, and the kid gave him some kind of silly answer about maybe something was wrong with OUR set.
DEAR ABBY: You mean to tell me that just because some nut fools around with ham radio for a hobby, we have to hold our tongues? In this country where there are so many ridiculous laws, are there none to control these useless nuts? Please advise.
RECEPTION RUINED
DEAR RUINED: Ham operators are usually very cooperative and perhaps your neighbor would be, too, if you approached him properly. I am advised by a veteran ham operator that if a neighbor complains about interference, he (the ham) will gladly provide him with a coil which filters out the interference.
DEAR ABBY: We have two Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. J. L. Driskell, co-hostesses.
 The next hamfest is March 6 at the home of Mrs. Earl McCaslin.

The World Day of Prayer observance is truly world-wide in character. Basically the same service, prepared for 1967 by Queen Salote of the Kingdom of Tonga, just a short time before her death in December, 1965, is used by groups in approximately 145 countries and territories of the world. Because her islands are crossed by the international date line, they are the first place in the world to conduct this service.
 Mrs. Warren Howell, Christian World Missions chairman, assisted by Mrs. Lillian Kestner, was in charge of arrangements for the service. Mrs. Francis Hildebrand led the hymn singing and Mrs. Howell played the organ accompaniment. Prelude and offertory music were played by the Christian Ministry from the First Christian Church, composed of Gloria Sayre, Becky Reid, Mary Ellen Ponton and Bill Hoffman.
 The world theme for the day was "His Kingdom Shall Be No End." The participants in the prepared service were Elsie Lindgren, Mrs. Hugh Phillips, Mrs. Forrest Fibbard, Mrs. E. M. Sutton, Mrs. T. M. Robertson, Mrs. Bernard Barker, Mrs. Melvin Ealinger, Mrs. Paul Mosley Jr., Mrs. Bernard Martin, Mrs. Ott Hall, Mrs. Ted Anderson, Mrs. Inez Squires and Mrs. Clyde Koozil.
 Chet Bartlett, executive secretary of the Twin Falls YMCA, made the speaker and his remarks were based on the world theme.

Rupp Denies Asking Board To Stop Grant

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Coach Adolph Rupp, after dropping Bob Tallent from the Kentucky basketball squad, said Wednesday he has asked that the Junior guard's grant-in-aid be revoked. Later, however, Rupp denied the statement.

"When the time comes to make another statement, then I'll make it," he said. The Committee on Student Financial Aid meets Friday. Rupp earlier said there were several reasons, under National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, why a scholarship could be canceled.

Rupp dropped Tallent from the squad Tuesday, explaining that it was a disciplinary problem that had to be taken care of and I took care of it. Asked what Tallent had said to bring on the punishment, the coach replied: "That's not important. Nobody talks back to me."

Tallent's mother, meantime, hinted that legal action may be forthcoming. "If there's anything legal I can do against them (the university), I want to do it," she said by telephone from her home at Langley, Ky.

"I have a brother-in-law, who is a corporation lawyer in Florida and I'm going to contact him." Mrs. Jones Tallent also charged Rupp's use of the word "disciplinary" like Bob isn't the right kind of boy. Anybody here in Langley — doctors, coaches, principals — will tell you that Bob's one of the finest boys they've ever known."

She predicted that "no other boys from the mountains will ever go there to play ball. They (the Kentucky coaches) have made Bob the scapegoat of a bad season and bad coaching." Tallent, with 240 points in 19 games, was the third leading scorer on a Kentucky team, now about to wind up a disappointing season in the Southeastern Conference.

Tallent said he learned he was off the team when he reported for practice Tuesday and was informed that Rupp had issued orders not to give him practice equipment.

BEST PLAY IS MAKE YOUR BID
The best play with a particular card combination may depend on how many tricks you need.

South has a wealth of material for a three no-trump contract. At least, he is looking at 23 high card points. He also is looking on dummy's jack and lead back a spade. Later, clubs and diamonds won't break and assuming that East and West defend correctly, South is going to make eight tricks and no more. An alert South should be aware of this possibility and give up any play for four club tricks in order to give himself the best play for three club tricks.

This best play starts with the lead of a club to dummy's king and a club back to the ace. This time the queen drops and dummy's jack of clubs is established. If the queen of clubs fails to drop, South still can play for three tricks in the suit. He simply leads a third club toward dummy. If West holds the queen of clubs, dummy's jack will be good. If East holds the queen of clubs and West follows suit, dummy will have a third club trick. The only losing case is if East started with four clubs to the queen and in that case no line of direct attack would work.

at cards that are likely to take only nine tricks.
Of course, if everything goes well South will make a lot more tricks. He will win the first spade, cash his ace of clubs and lead a club to dummy for a finesse of the jack.
If the finesse works, he will cash dummy's king of clubs. Then, if clubs break, he will have four club tricks. He will also have time to go after the diamond suit and, if diamonds break 3-3, he will make three diamond tricks.
Unfortunately, this line of play is not going to work. East is going to place his queen of clubs

Too Handsome A Face? Give The Guy A Break

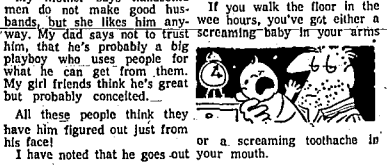

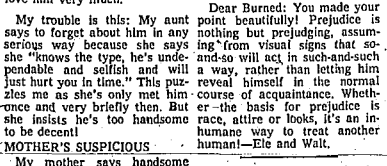

Dear Ele and Walt: Some of his way to be overly friendly and outgoing to these people, because they're my friends and family. But at parties he is quiet, and most everywhere very unassuming. The truth is he's shy. But people are forever asking me how he does more than "cute" but since then he has quit and started dating a boy who's the best-looking boy I've ever seen. He has thick long lashes and beautiful blue sparkling eyes, some boy has to talk first, or that's wavy and a little messed up, which gives him the sexiest look. He's tall with broad shoulders and has a firm chin with dimples when he talks.

You should see the looks he gets when we're out. Naturally I'm happy to be with him, but long enough. I hope you'll print just because he's a knock-out. He's very kind, very tender and very down to earth with male with no airs or illusions. He is so considerate of me and others that I am beginning to love him very much.

My trouble is this: My aunt says to forget about him in any nothing but prejudging, assumption-ary because she says she "knows the type, he's undependable and selfish and will just hurt you in time." This puzzles me as she's only met him once and very briefly then. But she insists he's too handsome to be decent!

MOTHER'S SUSPICIOUS
My mother says handsome men do not make good husbands, but she likes him anyway. My dad says not to trust him, that he's probably a big playboy who uses people for what they can get from him. My girl friends think he's great but probably conceded.

All these people think they have him figured out just from his face! I have noted that he goes out with a screaming baby in his arms or a screaming toothache in his mouth.

Why I Can't Forget Nantambu

By FRED HARGESHEIMER
State Engineer of White Bear, Minn.
Whenever I see a cross on an altar or a church spire, I remember another cross. It stood in a lonely jungle clearing on the South Sea island of New Britain...

Every day the man who had made the cross would kneel before the altar and pray. I had to go to the altar to pray with him. I had to go to the altar to pray with him. I had to go to the altar to pray with him...

Next - Frank Rogers, famed football coach of the University of Arkansas Razorbacks, tells how prayer helped him choose his career.

Mark Taylor; Acequia, Is Contest Winner At Minico

PAUL—The importance of defending the rights we have because of our constitution, was stressed in the winning oration of Mark Taylor, 16-year-old student at Minico, during the annual American Legion oratorical contest Monday night.

"The defending of our constitution rests on the churches, the schools and the organizations that promote patriotic activities. After the present generation that is now leading the country, the responsibility will rest on the teenagers of today," he said.

Taylor was one of three contestants from Minico who presented outstanding talks on the constitution and what it stands for. Also participating were Nancy Stallings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Stallings, Rupert; and Pam Abo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Abo, Paul. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Taylor, Acequia.

Theme of the event was "Our Constitution, Worth Having, Worth Defending," and the extemporaneous talks were on amendment 10, Powers Not Delegated. Taylor stressed that states need to be included more in the administration of federal programs.

The three contestants were finalists in the recent oratorical contest held at Minico of which 75 students participated, under the direction of Mrs. Val Toolson, school speech instructor.

Remarks were given by Elmer Fetzer, oratorical chairman; Donovan Webster, post commander; and Otha McGill, Americanism chairman.

Rev. Fred Penner gave the opening prayer and the pledge to the flag was led by Cmdr. Webster. Clerks were Mrs. Marvin Looisle and Mrs. McGill. Boyd Earl, Larry Duff and Rev. Penner were judges.

Taylor will compete in the district contest held Feb. 27 at Eden. Taylor is junior class president and a second year debater.

Many of his backers have said Romney, 59, must make some statements on major national issues and get around the country soon if he hopes to capture support for the nomination.

The party will visit 10 cities, including a brief flight change stop in Chicago. The schedule called for Romney to leave to-

Population Growth Pushes Need For Research-In Rangeland Improvement

By PEGGY LALEY
Times-News Farm Writer

At a time when the growing world population is causing extreme concern, researchers are concentrating on sources of food production.

Work at the USDA Research Center in Kimberly is directed to the problem and covers many areas, but one investigation being done by Dr. H. F. Mayland involves the improvement of rangelands.

Re seeding of rangeland is an important part of the agricultural picture. This research is being done to determine the relationship of soil factors to the degree of reseeding success.

Many thousands of acres of sagebrush land in the Snake River Plains area are receiving increased demands by livestock men and the need for these lands are of prime importance.

Research Continues On Trace Mineral Requirements

By W. M. BEESON
Department of Animal Sciences, Purdue University
LAFAYETTE, Ind. — The increased need and emphasis on the trace mineral requirements of livestock has been a result of intensive research and improved techniques in studying the quantitative requirements.

For cattle, sheep and swine eight micro-mineral elements have been shown to be essential—namely, cobalt, copper, iodine, iron, manganase, molybdenum, selenium and zinc.

In some species on highly purified diets, fluorine, bromine, barium, strontium and vanadium have been classified as essential trace minerals. Other minerals which are suspected of biological significance are cadmium, chromium, nickel and rubidium.

It is quite obvious that as the real nature of trace element functions is revealed, many elements now regarded as non-essential will be found to play a vital part in cellular metabolism.

Nutritional studies have clearly shown the complex interrelationship existing between mineral elements and thus the requirement for any feeding regimen varies depending on precise mineral requirements and organic compounds.

A classical example is that high levels of calcium or phytic acid increase the zinc requirement for swine. Therefore, a requirement for any mineral element is not an isolated situation but must be considered in relation to the natural components in the diet.

Feeding an excess of iron will tie up the phosphorus and copper iron rickets. A high level of copper in the diet will result in zinc deficiency. Complete elimination of zinc from the diet results in a few illustrations of the delicate relations between minerals. Excessive fortification of animal diets with either micro or macro-mineral elements may prove to be more detrimental than helpful.

Since the metabolism of trace elements by the animal body is such an intricate mechanism, it becomes increasingly important to know the (1) requirement, (2) tolerance level and (3) toxic level of each trace mineral.

Although knowledge is not complete, some new developments to watch are:

Feeding excessive amounts of cobalt to ruminants depresses

Land Management, the Forest Service and the Soil Conservation Service, through private agencies.

An evaluation of this project in regard to land treatment by ripping, chiseling, drilling with farmer drills and drilling with rangeland deep furrow drills is being anticipated by the Center.

High level of copper tend to deplete the stores of zinc in the liver.

Oral feeding of ferrous fumarate to brood sows during lactation will not increase the iron content of the sows' milk sufficiently to prevent anemia in baby pigs. Any beneficial effect on the pigs is obtained from eating the fecal droppings of the sow.

Area Farmers Discuss Holding Action At NFO Meetings In Jerome, Rupert

RUPERT — Holding action was the topic and "It's the only way" was the cry during two recent meetings of the National Farmer's Organization in Jerome and Rupert.

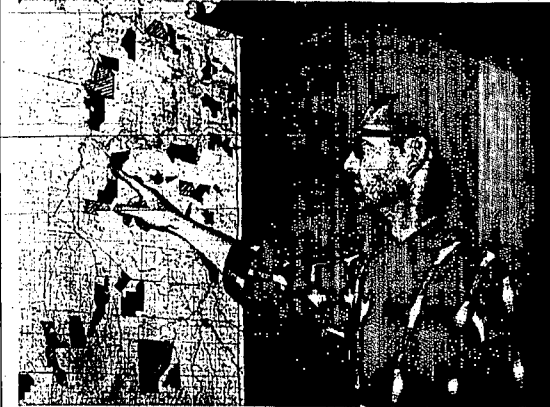

"The only way farmers can bring up the prices of the commodities they have to sell is through a holding action of some sort," Erhard Pfingsten, national vice president of the NFO, told assembled members of Minidoka County at their dinner meeting Saturday night at Minidoka High School. Earlier Saturday, a similar meeting was held in Jerome at the Parish Hall.

Mr. Pfingsten said that NFO leaders frequently hear that holding action is un-American, but he added that holding action is standard procedure for every business, industry or profession in America except farming.

He suggested, by way of illustration of this statement, that members of his audience try going to a service station and offering two-thirds of the pump price for gasoline and "just see if it is not withheld until you pay the full asking price."

The purpose of the meetings was to discuss plans for a milk holding action and to discuss a new approach the NFO is preparing to use in an attempt to raise prices on a number of commodities. County leaders were told that the NFO had done everything possible to try and prevent a milk holding action but that although processors had a better attitude, it looked as though "they will still be talking ten years from now with no higher prices for milk to the farmer unless a holding action is called," an NFO spokesman said.

SIGNUP SET
RICHFIELD — Area farmers are urged to sign up at the Shoshone ASC office before March 17 to be eligible for wheat certificate payments.

selling on contract, price incentive programs and plans for surplus disposal.

He continued by stating that "several phony suggestions" have been offered for solving the agricultural problem, one being that farmers need to expand. He cited an example of two farmers of his acquaintance, one with 100 head of beef cattle who lost $8,000 last year and the second with 1,000 head who lost $72,000.

"How big do you have to get before you make a profit?" he asked.

Farmers are told the law of supply and demand will give them a break, but this is the case only if there is equal power on both sides of the bargaining table, he intimated.

In answer to another argument that farmers must become more efficient, Mr. Pfingsten stated that farming has the greatest increase in efficiency of any industry in the nation.

Those attending the two meetings were told that the NFO is adding a new approach to its efforts to raise farm prices. This new approach will offer farmers an opportunity to use marketing information and a structure offered by the NFO so the basic size of the agricultural plant can be reduced in order that supply can be brought into balance with demand, a spokesman said. Details of the plan will be announced later, he added.

Mr. Pfingsten said, "The NFO offers the solution to the farmer's dilemma through a program for farmers setting their own price for their commodities, worth, Rupert, national director for the Idaho NFO and Don Walton, president of the Rupert organization, attended the meetings.

Jerome ASC Program Is Starting

JEROME — T. H. "Bill" Barnes, chairman of the Jerome County ASC committee, announces that the 1967 Agricultural Conservation Program got underway this week.

Applications will be accepted for assistance on projects that the farmer expects to accomplish this spring.

Farmers are encouraged to file their applications only within a 30-day period prior to starting the practice.

The purpose of this 30-day period prior to starting is to retain closer contact with practice completions and budgetary controls. Applications for assistance must be filed in the ASCS office before any work is started on the practice.

Mr. Barnes explained that the conservation program is designed to help farmers get started in needed conservation practices on the farm and to assist them financially for part of their costs in getting sound conservation practices established for the preservation of soil and water.

Tentative Beet Contract Is Approved At Burley Meeting

BURLEY — Sugarbeet grower representatives and officials of the Amalgamated Sugar Co. reached agreement last week on a tentative 1967 beet contract, one which negotiators believe will raise beet prices from 80 cents to well over $1 a ton for this year's crop.

At a final negotiating session conducted in Burley, grower spokesmen representing eleven different associations in Idaho, Utah and Oregon and more than 5,000 individual farmers tentatively approved the contract.

The session was the third round of contract talks in as many weeks.

Lower Snake River association president Bill Beck, Burley, and H. A. Elcock, Amalgamated general agricultural agent, said the contract is only tentative because it is subject to final review by the Department of Agriculture. They commented that the anticipated increases reflect both payments under the new contract proposal and expected improvements in refined sugar prices.

"The new contract," Mr. Beck said, "the present line in the scale of payments has been straightened out and raised. On this basis, assuming an Idaho return per 100 pound bag of sugar, payments will range from 29 cents a ton higher for beets with 15 per cent sugar content to 42 cents a ton more for beets with 16.5 per cent sugar content."

According to a news release from the Amalgamated Sugar Co., higher net returns alone will increase 1967 contract payments, compared with the most recent crop settlement, by 50 to 80 cents a ton.

More than 70 men gathered at Burley to put the final touches on the contract. In addition to Mr. Beck and Mr. Elcock, they included William Carson, Welter, Nyssa-Nampa grower association president; Jack Claborn, Kimberly, Idaho Beet Growers president; Leon Pickens, Hams, Twin Falls County president; Harold Thompson, West Warren, Utah, Weber County president; Walt Shouse, Hazelton, representing the Lincoln 42 cent a ton price; Groeding County growers, and Richard Blinco, Burley, Minidoka County director.

Others include Eldon Bingham, Preston, Franklin County president; Robert Holmes, Nyssa, Ore., Nyssa-Nampa association president.

Farmers' Index Of Prices Gains

BOISE (AP) — The index of prices received by Idaho farmers gained four points in the month ended Jan. 15, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported today.

That put it at 271 per cent of the 1910-14 average, compared with 275 one year earlier.

In another report, the department said production of red meat by commercial slaughter plants in Idaho during December was estimated at 15,838,000 pounds, down 1.7 per cent from production in November.

WORKERS NOTED
BOISE — An estimated 35,000 persons worked on Idaho's farms during the survey week of Jan. 22-28, 1967, the USDA and Livestock Reporting Service reports that this is 4,000 fewer than the previous month and 1,000 fewer than the comparable period in 1966.

Lambing Operations Herald Coming Of Farm Spring Season Despite Weather

By CATHERINE TATE
Times-News Staff Writer

The miracle of life and the steam rising from the warm, wet body of a new-born lamb as he lies weakly beside his mother—and breathes—the cold, crisp air of a new environment—a special event, yet commonplace, too, during lambing season in Magic Valley.

Shed lambing is in full force in the area, with the accompanying weariness of the sheepmen as they fight a never-ending battle to ensure the safety of mother and offspring. . . . the paths of the occasional crumpled form of a lifeless lamb and the joy of watching a satisfied ewe proudly show her offspring to her neighbors.

tributing something to the economy of his country by producing a product that is needed and wanted. Like offering financial reward to the man who brings skill and ambition, and a little luck, to the business.

Sheep operations, like agriculture in general, have known the impact of science and technology and the advent of selective breeding, control of feeding and disease control. Unlike other agricultural endeavors, however, sheep operations have tended to become smaller in size and scope rather than larger to the point of near extinction for the small operator.

4,040 head of ewes and is lambing four miles west and two south of Buhl.

When asked why he preferred shed lambing, Mr. Noh replied, "I think it is a waste to range lamb, when you're thinking in terms of the lambs lost, and I feel the number of lambs saved and raised for market compensates for the cost of labor involved."

He added that being able to sell the lambs earlier was what he considered to be another advantage of winter lambing.

search is needed to bring the industry up to the scientific level currently enjoyed by other fields of agriculture," he said.

Sheep herding has retained many of the methods that were used when sheepmen were known as "sheep-shepherds" rather than "darn sheepherders," Mr. Noh noted. On the other hand, sheepmen are learning to breed for wool or meat and using control in breeding rather than just using haphazard methods with no concern for genes or other factors. Still more control, he added, is needed in this area.

both cattle and sheep were allowed to overgraze, thus destroying the range for both groups, he added.

At any rate, the large numbers of stock associations that include both sheepmen and cattlemen offer adequate testimony to the cooperation that now exists between both elements.

Mr. Noh represents the new breed of stockman — college-educated and willing to try new methods and techniques, these men have the ability to use the best and reject the bad elements of both new and old methods. Ordinarily, they are the sons of men like Mr. Rich, men who built their operations from scratch and sent their sons to college.

Farm Bureau Leader Urges Consideration Of Tax Plan

Monroe W. Hays, president of Idaho Farm Bureau, today urged legislators and the citizens of Idaho to take a closer look at Farm Bureau's "hybrid tax proposal" in the light of the considerable confusion and misunderstanding concerning SB 246 (the property tax equalization law passed by the 1965 legislature).

"I'm sure we are all in agreement that property taxes are too high. We feel we must look to other methods of financing on a county level to pay the many bills that are inherent in local government," Hays said.

"We have heard rumblings throughout the state on the inequities of the so-called '20-20-40 Equalization Law.' Many have suffered under the new law. With the unsettled atmosphere now apparent in the Legislature we feel it even more evident that a broadening and equalizing of the tax base is extremely necessary at this time," he said.

The Farm Bureau president again emphasized major portions of the proposed bill that have been presented to most legislators, the Taxation and Revenue Committee, and has received wide acceptance in many meetings of civic and other organizations throughout Idaho.

"The cities have found themselves in a financial bind for local financing because of the limited property tax base. Tax bases allowing for a continuing growth factor and adaptable to all local government units would share the property tax burden and more equitably distribute this responsibility to all citizens of the state," Hays said.

He emphasized a need for better financing structure for schools. Even with all the state aid which has been so enhanced with the sales tax, nearly 60 per cent of school financing still comes from county property taxes.

He urged that property for tax purposes be handled in the following manner: real property, similar to present procedure; personal property, the taxing method would be streamlined, basically eliminating immediately the so-called inventory tax as well as the costly, cumbersome assessing and collecting procedures.

Hays said that operating property, such as public utilities, railroads, pipelines, etc., would continue under the jurisdiction of the state.

Personal income, using an average of the past three years as per state income tax returns, would be the other source to broaden the base. Taxes would be levied on income or the assessed value of property whichever is the greater.

"Under the proposed 'Hybrid' plan, the tax load would be distributed fairly, without one segment of the economy having to carry part of the load for another segment. Also, the mill levy could be reduced considerably," Hays said.

Mr. Rich lists labor and grazing problems as contributing to this trend toward smaller sheep operations at a time when farming in general has tended to go from numerous small farms to fewer, but much larger, operations.

Mr. Rich is one of the area sheepmen who will be lambing on the range this spring rather than winter lambing in sheds. He prefers the range-lamb method, he said, largely because of the labor costs—saved and partly because of tradition.

"We've just always done it this way, and I can't see any reason for changing," he said. He added that he feels sheep lambing on the range reach maturity and are ready for shipping at a time to hit the best market.

Laird Noh, on the other hand, is a Twin Falls sheepman who practices shed lambing and "wouldn't have it any other way," Mr. Noh currently runs

It's rough work, this lambing is, and it calls for super-plus doses of tender loving care and hard work. But the men who own and are employed in sheep operations have reserves of each.

These sheepmen are a special breed—they walk and talk softly while around their sheep but they'll raise their voice when they can do so on occasion with the best of them. Their work lacks the glamour and romance that surrounds, for instance, the cattle industry, but it has other compensations.

Like giving a man a chance to get to know himself. Like letting a man know he is con-

Both men mentioned the impact of science on the sheep business, but Mr. Noh contended that more science and technology was needed to make sheep operations more profitable.

"Particularly in the areas of breeding, health, predator control and feeding, more re-

"Both factions have learned that economic use of range land by allowing both sheep and cattle to graze the land but preventing either stock to overgraze is of advantage to both," he said. Arguments between the factions in earlier times resulting largely from the fact that the

FFA Week Begins Saturday—U. S. Farm Strength Is Theme

It all starts Saturday for the 69 boys in the Twin Falls chapter of the Future Farmers of America — Saturday is the kick-off day of National FFA Week. The boys will be taking part in a round of meetings, potlucks and open houses, all geared to the "Agricultural Strength of America" theme of this year's event.

National FFA Week is held each year during the week of George Washington's birthday. According to Rex Lytle, publicity director for the local group, Washington may have been known as a great general and president but his first love was farming.

Final Weed School Held In Rupert

BURLEY—Final course of a six-week weed control school was held this week in the Civic Auditorium in Rupert.

Weed control in sugar beets was discussed during the fifth session in the district court room, Burley, jointly sponsored by Cassia and Minidoka counties.

About 75 farmers from the two counties attended. A short examination was given on material covered.

Ted Gessel, Opton, seed specialist with Antiquated Sugar Co. spoke to the group on factors that are beneficial to sugar beet growers, as good weed control practices, which benefit and aid in good growth.

Cultivation methods, fall bedding, land preparation for planting, first irrigation, cultivating during season and laying by crop were discussed by Gessel. Slides were shown on weed control in sugar beets by Charles Stanger, local agronomist, followed by a question period.

A special session is being planned for 2 p.m., Feb. 21 for Cassia County residents only, covering ASC weed control special work at Cassia County Courthouse.

credit management, farm and ranch supply management, meat packing and inspecting, soil conservation, agriculture journalism and banking are explained to the boys.

FFA activities and projects can also provide a social outlet for the group members, Mr. Lytle said.

To finance its various activities, the Twin Falls chapter maintains a five-acre hay field which lies adjacent to the ag building. This field is placed in the care of an interested member. The chapter also sponsors a bingo stand at the Twin Falls County Fair which is operated jointly with the Grange.

Various radio and television announcements pertaining to observance of National FFA Week and window displays explaining the objectives of the week have been prepared by members of the local chapter, according to John Lawrence, advisor for the local group.

Large Increase Expected For Grazing Requirements

SEATTLE, Wash. — About 50 per cent of the Nation's land area will be needed as range and pasture by 1980. Chief of the Forest Service, Edward P. Cliff stated at a recent annual meeting of the American Society of Range Management.

"Population pressures from 242 million people," he predicted, "will require livestock production on 850 million acres — or roughly half of our total land area, in just 13 years."

At present, somewhat more than half of the 186 million acres in the National Forest System is being used for grazing livestock, Chief Cliff stated.

Cliff assured grazers that no basic changes are planned in the 60-year old policy of issuing grazing permits to ranchers who depend on public lands for livestock grazing.

He predicted that there will be an increased demand for permits covering use of horses and mules as transportation livestock in recreational and wilderness management.

He pointed out that 20,000 farm and ranch families located in more than 600 rural communities have permits for grazing 11,670 allotments on National Forests and National Grasslands.

"Most of these ranchers are small operators who depend heavily upon the National Forests for livestock forage," said Cliff. "Many could not meet their year-round livestock needs without grazing from these public lands."

Cliff said that since 1960 considerable progress has been made toward meeting demands for forage through intensive management and development of grazing lands administered by the Forest Service.

"This cooperation received from permittees has helped us," continued Cliff. "Furthermore the maintenance of fencing and other improvements by range users has enabled us to use limited Federal funds more effectively."

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, February 17—Born today, you are one who should learn early in life how to meet a crisis, for you are inclined by nature to panic in an emergency. If such a trait is not overcome before you become an adult, it can easily cause years of delay in the achievement of success. Learn to roll with the punches and, should you be knocked down by circumstances, develop the boxer's trick of "resting," through most of your life before getting up again. Reserves of energy will be the result.

Not as shrewd in business matters as you might be, you would be wise not to go into business for yourself without the aid of a knowing, reliable partner. Your ideas are usually feasible, but your ability to carry them out is such that a partner is needed. Make sure that the partner you choose accepts the fact that you are the mainstay of the operation.

You make friends easily, for you are naturally outgoing and trusting. Now do you demand that your friends be at your beck and call all the time, for you realize that people, including yourself, have more to do than satisfy friends.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—In order to have this afternoon fun with family and friends, complete usual Saturday chores in the morning.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Avoid anything to do with employment just now. This is a day of fun and relaxation. Shore up shaky personal relationships.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—An early start for if you're planning a trip. Don't neglect to include the family in your plans if at all possible.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Take care of an important family matter before taking a Sunday afternoon family which demands some attention if you're to profit.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—A good day for making final decisions regarding property purchases or sales. Take a professional's advice.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Guard against emotionalism through the day—but also take care not to be too objective by eye. Take a mid-row.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23)—Follow your hunches if you would reap a successful morning. Afternoon should take care of itself if you've been wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Tend to important business matters this morning; then you can give the rest of the day to family interests.

Strong and robust of mind, your thoughts team with original ideas. Yet you need tremendous encouragement, especially from those you love, to be persuaded to bring those ideas out into the open. Once you do, however, you should meet with such a success that you will recognize your powers and begin to capitalize on them. Learn to do this without such encouragement and you'll be on your way!

Women born today are particularly fond of the bright, gay things of life. Clothes will bring special delight—but unfortunately you may have to curb your desire for such things and, if you are not to make others unhappy, you will have to do so graciously. Grace, however, is something you have plenty of, so you need not worry.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Increase your own popularity by becoming involved happily and successfully in the plans of others.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Personal matters should come first for the lion's share of your attention just now. Let employment matters wait.

Soil Survey For Cassia Is Released

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow—Nearly half of Cassia County's 1,380,000 acres are suitable for irrigation, according to a general soil survey report just released.

Some of these acres (145,565) are in Class I, which is best. The greatest portion (305,728) is in Class II, and 130,459 acres are in Class III.

The remaining 735,343 acres are in non-irrigable Class IV, according to the report.

"This is the first in a series of county-by-county general soil survey reports. Eight more similar reports for south Idaho counties are in the mill and should be available at different times during the coming year."

"Eventually we'll have such reports for 36 counties in the state," reported Jack Chugg, project leader and University of Idaho soil scientist.

The Cassia County report presents the total acreage of irrigable soils in the county, a soil association map showing the area location of these soils, and detailed descriptions of soil characteristics within the county giving emphasis to the factors that placed them in a particular irrigable class.

The study is being conducted by the University of Idaho Agricultural Experiment Station and the Soil Conservation Service, and Dr. M. A. Fosberg, professor of soils, University of Idaho.

This study is financed by the Idaho Water Resources Board as part of their program in determining water needs in Idaho, Chugg reported.

A technical advisory committee for the overall study consists of Dr. R. Lee, director of the Idaho Water Resource Board; J. W. Kingsbury, state soil scientist, Soil Conservation Service, and Dr. M. A. Fosberg, professor of soils, University of Idaho.

Conservation Program Set By Tire Firm

AKRON, Ohio — One of the nation's most widely known agricultural-improvement activities — the Soil Conservation Awards Program — sponsored by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company will be conducted for the 21st consecutive year during 1967.

The announcement was made by A. H. Settle, director of the program for the world's largest rubber company.

Inaugurated in 1947, the program honors farmer conservationists and soil conservation district leaders for their work in community-wide development. The current awards program runs through Dec. 31, 1967.

Winning districts are judged on several factors, including organization, education, publicity, as well as planning and coordinating rural and urban activities in joint action to improve and conserve natural resources. Agricultural leaders in the various states serve as judges. Grand prizes in the SCAP program are four-day, all-expense-paid vacation — study trips to Goodyear Farms, the company's 12,000-acre desert ranch located near Phoenix, Ariz. Over the years more than 1,700 outstanding farmers and ranchers from all 50 states and Puerto Rico have been guests of Goodyear as a result of their conservation efforts.

Mr. Settle announced that 100 conservationists will be awarded trips this year. In addition, certificates of merit will be presented to the officials in the first and second place participating districts, and to outstanding co-operators, along with plaques to state-wide winners.

Woolgrowers To Fight New "Fence Bill"

BOISE — In alerting members to state legislation to watch and act upon, the Idaho Wool Growers Bulletin points to a bill proposing the lowering of the height of a legal fence to 42 inches.

The editorial states that this measure "is not good because a fence no higher than that would hardly hold large animals."

The reason behind this proposal is the desire to aid the movement of game animals. However, this writer states that deer and antelope can get over and through the ordinary existing barbed wire fences and there is no need to lower the height.

The bill is sponsored by game proponents and supported by the State Game Department. They contend that the fences must be lowered.

If this bill should pass it would mean that not only game animals but domestic animals would have access to the highways, and both are dangerous to traffic.

Final wording and drafting of the bill has not been completed, but the organization urges woolgrowers to direct their comments to members in the House immediately.

Idaho Range Prospects Are Improved

BOISE — Idaho range feed use Feb. 1 was in fair condition, according to the USDA Crop and Livestock Reporting Service for Idaho. The current condition of 75 is two points above last month, but five points below the 1961-63 average.

All high elevation ranges are snow covered and have not been used during January. The lower ranges are furnishing only limited feed.

Precipitation was received in all parts of the state during January either as snow or rain. Soils are not frozen, so much of the moisture received was absorbed instead of running off. Prospects for spring grazing have improved. Temperatures have been above normal and with the open winter, supplemental feeding has been minimal and feed supplies appear generally adequate.

Conservation Meet Slated In Wenatchee

WENATCHEE, Wash. — Joseph L. Fisher, president of Resources for the Future, Inc., Washington, D.C., will be the opening speaker at the Conservation Congress March 6 and 7 in Wenatchee, according to Wilfred R. Woods, editor and publisher of the Wenatchee Daily World and general chairman of the symposium.

Mr. Fisher will discuss the Natural Resource Trends and their Implications for the Pacific Northwest.

"One of the great questions before any nation concerns the adequacy of natural resources to provide the kind of living its people want, or in some countries, merely to keep the population alive," Mr. Woods said. "Even in the United States, with large resources of land,

"The Pacific Northwest is especially fortunate in having an opportunity to hear Dr. Fisher, who is one of America's most authoritative speakers in the field of Natural Resources," Mr. Woods concluded.

"How may resource conservation and development reflect proven social values and at the same time promote such changes as society at its best would like to make? These are some of the most important questions today."

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

TOMATOES AGAIN: Our readers' experiences growing tomatoes have brought in real statistics.

One reader grew a tomato weighing 3 1/2 pounds, a five-inch diameter. However, it was a c.a.s.e.d. many to wrinkle their foreheads.

One gardener asked if the Green Thumb is in competition with the Annual Liar's Club. "If so," he writes, "I'd like to tell you about my experiences growing tomatoes."

"Last year I was about to give up growing tomatoes. I planted a dozen plants on a hillside above my farm land, and eleven of the plants were normal, but the 12th one — there was no stopping its growth.

"After staking it in the usual way (used stakes 30 feet high) I spent over $300 for framing lumber to do a better job.

"The first tomato to get ripe on this plant was so big and heavy it broke from the vine, rolled down hill, smashed into my barn totally demolishing it. The impact killed my prize bull and 16 cattle.

"Just the other day I noticed some strange mounds of snow where my barn used to stand. Shoveling the snow away from one of these mounds, I discovered a tomato seed six-feet long, 3/4 feet thick, and weighing 72 pounds. If any readers of this paper are interested in some of these seeds they're welcome to them."

GLOXINIAS: Ever start gloxinias from seed? It's a cheap way to get a lot of plants. Take a five-inch pot full of sand and peatmoss. Scatter seed on top and keep in a room temperature of 72 degrees.

Starting mixture should be kept moist and you might place a glass pane over the top to conserve moisture during germination. Remove immediately after germination starts.

Transplant seedlings into separate pots when about an inch tall. Seed sown now will give you flowering plants in late summer.

You can start tubers now and get flowers in 45 days. Plant each with intended side up, covering with one-half inch of peatmoss. Keep in a room 72 to 75 degrees for a faster start.

If you buy started plants you can have blooms in four months. Another way to start gloxinias is from leaf cuttings from mature plants. Take a healthy leaf cutting and insert it in a glass of plain tap water. Or you can insert them in a jar of moist sand and vermiculite.

A miniature greenhouse made of plastic, or an old battery jar, makes a good covering to hasten rooting. Leaves root faster if the humidity can be high.

You can start your gloxinias from plants, tubers, cuttings and seed. Either way is simple and effective, but you get flowers in shortest time from plants started by a seedsman. If you want fun, start your own.

VEGETABLE OYSTER: Also called Salsify, the vegetable oyster is one of those "forgotten" vegetables the modern generation knows nothing about. Salsify is one of the easiest of them all to grow. You'll have stunk half way into the ground and the plant inside is protected from cut worms. To water, apply it inside the can.

(2) Another suggestion sent me consists of setting the plants in the ground and placing two empty juice cans eight inches away from the plant, and sink them into the ground. Some gardeners remove the bottom and some merely punch holes in the bottom. Water and liquid plant cans are poured into the empty cans.

Since the cans are sunk into the soil, the moisture and nutrients are carried directly to the roots. Some use more than two cans but I doubt if there is any advantage to it for each plant.

A straw mulch can still be used around the plants. If other gardeners have more tips on using juice cans for plants, please send them along. Incidentally you can also use cans for growing peppers, eggplants and other plants which are apt to be troubled by cut worms.

S.D. of Paul: "I have a friend with an olive tree and it bears lots of fruit which just goes to waste. Please tell me how to start an olive tree."

Start your own tree using seeds from your friend's tree. Put two or three olive seeds in a five-inch pot of soil. Takes some time for the hard shell to split and the seed to germinate. After they start to grow, transplant the seedlings into separate pots. Olive trees like a lot of light, ample moisture and a warm room. As with all indoor plants, keep dust off the foliage using a cloth dipped in soap and water.

You can start plants even from olives purchased in stores. Use the seed of black olives since they are ripe. Remove the fleshy pulp before planting the seeds in pots.

  - Preserving total feed value by eliminating drying time as with baled hay, and
  - Eliminating the risk of rain damage.
- Reducing Harvesting Costs.
  - Saving cost of baling operation often estimated at $4.50 per ton.
  - Saving cost of road siding or stacking.
  - Saving stack shrinkage often as high as 15% of total feed.
  - Saving risk of losing total crop by stack fire.
  - Saving fire insurance costs, usually $1.00 per ton.
