Bombers Hit Base At Saigon

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — U.S. B-52 bombers struck at dawn Sunday a Viet Cong base camp near Saigon while American airborne troops reported an eight-hour battle against a Communist force on South Vietnam's central coast.

In the ground fighting, a company of the helicopter-lifted U.S. 1st Cavalry Airborne Division clashed Saturday with an enemy force of unknown size near coastal Dong Son, 280 miles northeast of Saigon.

U.S. headquarters described the action as a "heavy contact" and said the company called up reinforcements to build up to battalion size, or nearly 800 men.

Headquarters said the enemy force broke contact late Saturday night after eight hours of fighting. A spokesman said American casualties were light and Communist casualties were not known.

The B-52 raid struck at a base camp and tunnel complex 33 miles east of Saigon. It was the 16th raid since Thursday in an intensified campaign by the long-range heavy bombers.

In air action over North Vietnam on Saturday, U.S. headquarters said poor weather conditions persisted and limited the number of missions by American pilots. Most of the strikes centered on the southern part of North Vietnam and pilots used radar-controlled bombing tactics.

Carrier-based Navy pilots reported damaging 10 supply lines, destroying one bridge and damaging a pier as well as cutting up highways in numerous places. Air Force pilots attacked a convoy stretching 20 miles southeast of Dong Hoi and damaged highways near the Mu Gia Pass.

U.S. headquarters made no mention of any plane losses in Saturday's raids. Communist broadcasts claimed three U.S. planes were shot down including one unmanned drone plane.

Naturally

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — The Carl Smith, 30, of Rockford, died Saturday of a heart ailment from oil gas last fall and when their son, Michael, was home on Christmas, he disconnected the oil tank from the filler pipe.

Friday, while the car was away from home, a fuel oil truck pulled up in front of the house.

Naturally: Two hundred gallons all over the cellar.

Mrs. Smith said Michael is going to remove the filler pipe the next time he's home.

Halt Ordered To Counting Indian Votes

By MYRON BELKIND
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Indian government ordered a halt Saturday to premature counting of ballots by officials in distant eastern Manipur Territory along the Burmese border, in the nation's week of general election.

Because of fear that early publication of results might affect voting in states where balloting has not yet taken place, the Election Commission sent an urgent communication to Manipur's chief election officer telling him to make sure the counting of votes was stopped at once.

Electronics Future Described At Meet

"An executive of one of the world's largest home-entertainment firms described the "electronics wonderland" of the future in Twin Falls Saturday, saying it will include such innovations as pocket-size color TV sets, TV pictures on the wall and human-voice remote control of TV sets. These revolutionary things-to-come in home entertainment were reported to the 17th annual conference of the Snake River Valley Electrical Association by Martin F. Bennett, New York, vice-president, distributor and commercial relations, Radio Corporation of America.

Conference delegates, representing electrical utilities, distributors, contractors, retailers, electronics and appliance servicemen, and manufacturers, met at the Holiday Inn for their day-long meeting.

Elected president of the electrical trade group during the meeting was James Tallant, a Boise appliance dealer. He succeeds Joe Byrne, Twin Falls. Other officers named by the delegates were Dick Shotwell, Twin Falls, vice-president; E. A. Fisher, Boise, treasurer; and James E. Bruce, Boise, secretary.

A special feature of the conference was the presentation of a life membership in SRVEA to Maynard Smith, Boise, retired manager of Graybar Electric Company and former president and director of the association.

Delegates also heard addresses by Dr. Paul L. Harmon, Salt Lake City, associate professor of management at the University of Utah; J. V. Hall, San Mateo, Calif., president, National Federation of Independent Business; H. W. Walker, retired training officer, National Appliance and Radio-TV Dealers Association; and Richard A. Cox, Benton Harbor, Michigan, manager of dealer education, Whirlpool Corporation.

Mr. Harmon paid tribute to the small-businessmen delegates, calling them the "leaders of our nation."

Pointing out that it is small businessmen who hire people, because of fear that early publication of results might affect voting in states where balloting has not yet taken place, the Election Commission sent an urgent communication to Manipur's chief election officer telling him to make sure the counting of votes was stopped at once.

Officials in Imphal, the territorial capital 1,100 miles east of New Delhi, received results of the election from the State Assembly Friday night. They showed two independents, a Socialist and a member of the ruling Congress party, victorious.

An Election Commission spokesman in Delhi voiced fear that because of poor communication facilities within the hilly and heavily forested state, even more results might be announced before the central government's message was received. He blamed violation of election rules on "a mistake resulting from a misunderstanding on the part of Manipur officials."

The elections, to choose 520 members of Parliament and fill 3,500 state assembly seats, are staggered over a week because there are not enough trained polling personnel and police to handle the total eligible electorate of 250 million in a shorter time.

However, it is a safe bet that all of the men will share one other quality — that of being slightly uncomfortable when they take their places at the head table during the annual Hall of Fame banquet, set for Feb. 20 Monday at the Holiday Inn.

Shoshone Farmer Feted For Heroism

—SHOSHONE — Corwin Silva, Shoshone farmer, was honored Friday night at the Idaho Safe Pilots Award banquet in Boise for saving a Jerome flier from fiery death on July 25, 1964. A plaque was presented Mr. Silva from the Idaho Department of Aeronautics and the Idaho Aviation Trades Association, co-sponsors of the safe pilot program. The Shoshone man is being recommended for the national Carnegie hero award.

The ceremony was held at a banquet Friday night in the Owyhee Hotel, Boise, with Gov. Donald Samuelson, who is a pilot, as a special guest. The event was one of several such banquets being held throughout the state. Twin Falls will hold a Safe-Pilot Award Banquet in the American Legion Hall Wednesday.

Mr. Silva combined quick action and correct thinking on the morning of July 25, 1964, doing just the right thing in the right order to save Leon Peterson, Jerome, whose Pawnee spray plane struck a wooden frame pole for baling and stacking hay.

The Pawnee crashed upside down and burst into flame. All Mr. Peterson has ever been able to recall about the accident, he said, is that the sun was in his eyes "and the next thing I knew I woke up in the hospital several days later."

Mr. Silva had just finished milking his cows and luckily took a moment to watch an airplane spraying a field about 200 yards away. As soon as the plane nosed over, he began running — first to his house where he called to his wife to call a doctor and ambulance, then to his farm shop where he instinctively grabbed a fire extinguisher and backswam.

When he was about halfway there, the plane exploded. The explosion, followed by more flames, might have stopped many another would-be rescuer, who could well have thought, "It's too late."

But Mr. Silva kept running. He dropped the backswam as the frame already was so badly there was no need for it and began using the fire extinguisher to keep the fierce fire from Mr. Peterson.

Quickly he whipped out a fire extinguisher and used it on the fire. Mr. Peterson was 52

The men were selected for the Hall of Fame on the basis of their contributions to various fields of livestock endeavors as well as for their community and civic activities. The type of operation or its size is not given as much emphasis in making the selections as the efforts of the individual farmers and ranchers to improve the livestock business as a whole. Gene Hartz, vice president of the Hall of Fame board of directors, said.

Showdown With Governor Likely On Appropriation

By EARLE L. JESTER
Associated Press Writer
BOISE (AP) — Major appropriation bills may reach the Idaho Legislature early next week and their consideration was regarded Saturday as likely to lead to a showdown with the governor. Sen. William C. Roden, R-Boise, majority leader, told the Senate the Joint Finance-Appropriations committee expects to have ready "hopefully by Tuesday," money bills for education, public assistance and public health. This, he said, would "give ample time for expression on the legislators and for the governor to express his views."

McCollum Named To State Education Unit

The appointment of Joseph D. McCollum, Twin Falls, to the Idaho State Board of Education was announced Saturday by Gov. Don W. Samuelson. Mr. McCollum succeeds Curtis Eaton, Twin Falls, who has served ten years on the board. Mr. Eaton declined reappointment. "We regret losing a man of Mr. Eaton's high caliber," the Governor said in a statement. "He has given outstanding service during his ten years on the board and is to be commended highly. At the same time, we feel fortunate to find such a capable replacement as Mr. McCollum."

The 48-year-old businessman and civic leader is a native of Arkansas, and has lived in Idaho since 1942. A 1939 graduate of the University of Arkansas, he also did post-graduate work at the University of Illinois. Before coming to Idaho, Mr. McCollum was employed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in California, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois.

He organized and started the first of a chain of distribution outlets known as Simplot Small Builders, now located in 11 western states. The company markets fertilizers and agricultural chemicals manufactured by the J. R. Simplot Co. Mr. McCollum is manager of five Simplot warehouses in Twin Falls, Rupert, Burley, Jerome and Hazelton.

Long active in the Vandal Booster Club, he was made an honorary alumnus of the University of Idaho in 1954. He is a former president of both the Twin Boosters and Vandal Boosters. Past president of the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club, he is active in Chamber of Commerce work, and a member of the board of directors of the Pacific Empire Life Insurance Co., Lewiston, and a member of the Baptist Church.

Said Mr. McCollum, "I am certain that anyone as interested as most of us are in education, would consider this appointment a great challenge — and that is how I feel about it. Other than that, all I can say is that I will do my best in the job."

Victories Noted For Mao's Foes

TOKYO (AP) — Foes of Mao Tse-tung were reported Saturday to have scored partial victories in battles at key points ranging from the frozen Mongolian frontier in the Himalayan border in western China.

Radio Moscow, in a Japanese language broadcast, said anti-Mao forces, after a series of bloody clashes, had seized "nearly full control" of inner Mongolia, a strategic autonomous region in Red China's north-central area.

Other reports told of gains by opponents of Mao's great cultural revolution — or purge — in Hupei, Shantung and Szechwan provinces, and trouble for the Maoists in the Port Arthur-Dairen area of Manchuria.

Rupert Police Nab Suspect In Robbery

RUPERT — An American Falls service station robbery suspect was apprehended by Rupert police and Minidoka Sheriff Theo Johnson as the man, identified by police as Samuel Tillman, about 38, was driving an automobile in Rupert.

Tillman was arrested by the Rupert officers at about 6 a.m. Saturday. The local officers had received a description of the robbery suspect from the American Falls Sheriff Rulon Neal, Sheriff Neal took him to Amort, Idaho, on a charge of armed robbery.

According to Rupert police, a 25-automatic pistol and $180 in cash were found in the suspect's car. An all-night American Falls service station attendant said that $180 was taken from the business by a man who showed him a .25 automatic pistol.

The attendant accompanied Sheriff Neal to Rupert and identified Tillman as the man who had robbed the station.

The robbery occurred at about 4 a.m. Saturday.

Bloodmobile Visit Slated For Burley

BURLEY — The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in the Burley area from 2 to 6 p.m. Monday at the Burley Elks Hall. The quota is 100 pints, Mrs. Chet Hyton, Cassia County Bloodmobile chairman, said.

Blood is needed for American servicemen in South Vietnam. Presently whole blood is supplied by the military through collections in the Far East, but vital blood fractions can only be supplied from this country.

Several donors will be calling on the bloodmobile to donate their blood for blood given to Todd Barth, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Barth, 2241 West 16th Street, Burley. The Barth child receives four cc's of gamma globulin shots per week. It takes one pint of blood to make two cc's of gamma globulin.

Blood is also needed for Eddie Nipper, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. (Jack) Nipper, Albion.

Cassia County residents have used 178 pints of blood since the last bloodmobile visit. Residents have used 39 units per month of gamma globulin.

Blood used by residents of the county in other areas supporting the Red Cross program may be replaced in Burley, Mrs. Hyton stated. Blood may be transferred to other hospitals under the program upon request, she stated.

Gamma globulin is used for children in the treatment of infectious hepatitis. Increasing amounts are being used in treating patients with an absence of gamma globulin from the blood.

Persons with this illness do not have the ability to manufacture their own gamma globulin and as a result, are highly susceptible to infections of various kinds. Periodic injections give these patients the protection they need against infections.

It is the direct responsibility of the recipients to recruit blood donors to repay blood which has been used, stated Mrs. Hyton. The interval between donations should be at least eight weeks and not more than five times a year.

Medicare Filers Told To Visit Office

Rudolph E. Menghini, district manager of the social security office, Twin Falls, reports that some filers in the past, some medicare payments of this type have been delayed because some simple, but important, information did not go to the medicare carrier with the request for payment.

"To make sure there will be no delay," Mr. Menghini stated, "we invite beneficiaries to bring their first claim to the social security office, before they send it to the carrier."

There are two methods of claiming payments for doctor bills under medicare, he noted. Under one, the physician bills the patient for whatever part of the $30 deductible has not been paid, plus 20 per cent of the rest of the bill. He then claims the other 80 per cent. This method can be used only by physician's agreement.

Under the second method, the patient pays the doctor and requests payment from the medicare carrier. To show the carrier that the bill has been paid, the beneficiary either includes an itemized receipted bill from the doctor, or has the doctor show the necessary information on the request for payment form.

"If an older person in the Twin Falls area wants us to review his request for payment," Mr. Menghini said, "but he is unable to come to the office, he can send the claim to us by mail with a telephone number and we will call on him if we see any problems."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON—Since my trade has exposed me to various forms of rather professional naughtiness from Southbridge, Mass., to Singapore, I must find it difficult to be surprised to be closed over that girl student at the University of Florida who posed nude for a school magazine. Growing pains are seldom strictly even when they are wild.

After all, it has to be remembered that Pamela Brewer is only 18, and therefore should be forgiven for believing that woe of the older generation are unacquainted with the unclad human body. Or, as a matter of fact, my own was fond of displaying its person to whom she knows all the bad words but never utters them.

CALLUSED TO SHOCK—But for some glandular reason, each succeeding generation arrives convinced that if it tries hard enough it can shock the old folks. The boys and girls are wasting time and energy in trying to probably waste to discover the correct spelling of C-A-T. There are exceptions, of course, but by the time a parent is old enough to have saved the dough to send a child to college he has lost the ability to be shocked.

The processes of breeding are not for either prudish or professional sensibilities. Parents of both sexes at least have enjoyed one another physically since naturally and if they aren't, they get around the front yard in the altogether it is either because they are afflicted with good taste or tend to catch head colds too easily. They are not dumb enough to assume that sexual or prudish matters are more than casually interested in the sight of one more collection of goose pimples.

KID STUFF—What some college students don't understand is that a kid picture of the variety seen outside the Louvre are kid stuff. They were kid stuff when we used to exclaim over the foldouts in Esquire and they are kid stuff when they are today. It is the penny dreadfuls put out by studios.

Just as in the olden days, there is all this yakkity-yak about the rights of youth and the lit is filed with demands that the world permit them to be at Old Charley Horse U. to display his early-blooming maturity. I do not wish to appear blasphemous, but one sign of maturity is evidenced when the human animal decides that sexual, or prudish, high-links should be practiced only in private.

As the first J. P. Morgan replied when a friend chided him for making merry with a feminine bit of bluff behind closed doors, "That, sir, is what doors are for."

FLOUTED RULES—All this having been said, the point is not Pamela Brewer's constitutional right to pose for pictures in the nude. It is whether college or university or any other institution has the right to draw up a set of rules in order to maintain a loose kind of discipline. And when Miss Brewer enrolled at the University of Florida, she agreed to abide by implicit agreement to live up to those rules.

Clark Kerr, a distinguished educator, properly was given the sack at the University of California because he showed no interest in controlling the student body. He tried to buy peace with the beatniks by appeasement, and failed. The freedom of a college student in his little community is no greater than that of the citizen on the high line canal bank because freedom implies an obligation to obey the rules.

Views Of Others
THE DRAFT LAWS CAN'T BE USED AS PUNISHMENT
It should have been obvious to Selective Service officials and draft boards that they could not use induction into the armed forces as a means of punishing a student who had not been especially clear to them that they could not take away a deferred draft status as a reprisal against a student because he exercised his right to be a conscientious objector. However, this principle was not clear to Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey and to some draft boards. So it was necessary for the United States Court of Appeals to spell out the law and the facts so with admirable clarity and unanimity.

The case grew out of a sit-in demonstration at the Ann Arbor draft board in protest against the government's policy in Vietnam. Two students were not only convicted of participating but were also reclassified I-A by their local board. The convictions were not before the Court of Appeals in this case. The court ruled only on the question of whether or not they could be used as punishment to punish political soldiers for asserting their constitutional rights.

We think the court was right in not waiting until an actual induction of the young men had taken place. It is not clear from the record whether a fundamental principle before the damage was done. Judge Harold R. Medina and his colleagues followed the finest tradition of the American judicial system.

Young demonstrators should not make the mistake of supposing that the decision gives them any immunity for violation of the law or that a protest against the war in Vietnam was not a violation of the law. The court has held only that changes in classification may be wholly unrelated to any expression of views on Vietnam or any other subject. — Washington (D.C.) Post.

SENATOR PERCY'S FALSE DAWN
The announcement of 24 fellow Republicans that they were backing Senator Percy's "bold and imaginative approach" to the housing problem smacks of a replay of the story of the emperor's new clothes, the garments which everybody pressed to admire until a little boy cried out, "Mum, the king is naked!"
By speaking of "a new dawn for our cities," Senator Percy gets the attention of America's problem-haunted urban majority, but to keep it he must break a sacred pledge. He said that it is necessary to obtain the maximum involvement of private enterprise. But there is no such leadership in saying that "how this great goal can be met is not the duty of the central questions faced by this Congress."
"A new national effort must focus on home ownership for the economically underprivileged persons," the Government says. It must at least a limited effort in this direction through low-interest loans for home construction. Further, the new Illinois Senator asserts that "the four billion people who live in this country are encouraged to actively involve themselves in self-help programs leading to better housing, decent jobs and economic security."
Although the question is whether the Republicans can implement them effectively, with the help of able private enterprise already has a role in urban renewal but it is questionable whether it is the duty of Congress to help those who need housing but cannot afford it. Fundamentally, this holds no prospect of profit, the proper objective of business. — St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Washington Viewpoint

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Neither the housing industry nor Congress seems likely to wrest any major concessions from the Johnson administration that are already contained in the President's new fair housing proposals.

As set forth in his strong civil rights message to the Congress, these proposals would delay until Jan. 1, 1969, the application of a ban on discrimination in the sale of owner-occupied dwellings and small rental housing.

Congressional reluctance to apply such a ban at all was the big sticking point in 1966.

The more conservative 80th Congress is not generally expected to be more hospitable to this sweeping antidiscrimination feature, even with the suggested delay in the effective date.

If that proves to be the case, if lawmakers may well have seen their last big tempering gesture from the White House on this score. The odds are that if they return to an all-or-nothing position.

Clearly time-out, Johnson is clearly trying to take account of recent history. His 1966 effort in fair housing and the November election of 47 more Republicans to the U. S. House. As one civil rights source puts it, he could see no point in "tossing the same proposals back into their faces."

Thus cautiously guided, the President starts out this year by proposing a short period of delay in compliance with a discrimination ban on most kinds of housing—to last from date of enactment of a new federal law until Jan. 1, 1969.

In this "grace period" there would, however, be enforcement of the ban decreed by presidential executive order in late 1962.

"Until then a law would be in force," the President says, "but it would not be applied to all large multi-dwelling units in the United States until the full year to get adjusted to this. Then, on the following Jan. 1, the ban would become total."

Aside from the obvious intent to appease Congress, the President's new stage-by-stage approach to a discrimination ban would in theory allow the housing industry ample time to get ready, and also permit the shaping of administrative and enforcement machinery. It would delay until the first period of adjustment after the Kennedy family came back to the White House, took off formal clothes and went to work. The matter immediately in hand was a bill relating to wheat shipments and the removal of restrictions hindering the sale of what was then a large surplus.

With virtually every piece of legislation sent up to the Hill since Kennedy's return, he has had to handle it in the first period of adjustment. The Kennedy family came back to the White House, took off formal clothes and went to work. The matter immediately in hand was a bill relating to wheat shipments and the removal of restrictions hindering the sale of what was then a large surplus.

NEW YORK (AP)—If you are going to go into film work, there's no better way to start than by being a star.

Such is the Chodoroff situation that Michele Lu finds herself in, and she's still a bit afraid that some midnight her studio financing will turn into a pumpkin.

"I still don't quite understand how it all happened," she said.

Miss Lee, who is tall, dark-eyed and lovely, plays the straight lady for Lester (Bobby Moore) in the Hollywood version of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." It is the same scenario for more than two years.

"I thought when they got around to making the movie that they would pick someone better known," she said frankly.

Despite her auspicious film debut, Miss Lee has not succeeded in many other ways. She began in 1960 at the age of 17 when her father, Jack Dufick, a veteran Hollywood

Is Yours A Job Or Vocation?

By FRANK BROYLES
Head Football Coach,
University of Arkansas

Everytime I hear someone complain about being unhappy at work I want to say to him, "God has a vocation for you, but you never find it unless you seek Him out."

I took the position as coach and today have that solid, deep-down feeling of satisfaction because I'm in the vocation I should be in.

Vocations that serve God, I'm convinced, are limited to the ministry or other church-related careers.

I believe bricklaying, weather forecasting, clerking in a store and, yes, playing professional football also can be "God serving."

Whether you have a job or a vocation, in my opinion, depends on whether you emphasize it on what you take from the job or what you give to it.

I'm sorry for the boy or the girl who picks a job simply for his monetary rewards. It will always be a job, never a vocation.

I'm sorry for the athlete who picks his career based on the size of the money he will receive. He is a professional athlete, not a vocationist.

Next—Roberta Lashley, Mt. Savage, Md., minister, tells how faith saved her from a possible attack on a lonely country road.

The one I expected then happened, I also was contacted by a school and offered a position as a football coach.

The salary, however, was only a third of what the professional team had offered, and there were a number of potential headaches involved with the job.

This was certainly not what I had dreamed of at all.

I was faced with a choice to make, but since I had been taught by my parents to pray about every decision, I prayed and did this.

And the answer was not really what I wanted to hear. For God revealed to me that His plan for my life was to be a coach.

My vocation was to help build men and in the process develop good football players. The example I was to use: Jesus of Nazareth.

FHA Names T.F. Concern As Broker

Appointment of the Lloyd Roberson, 463 E. 230 Main Ave., Twin Falls, as managing broker for properties acquired by the Federal Housing Administration through its mortgage insurance program was announced Friday by Kenneth Tyler, Boise, director of the FHA.

Mr. Tyler said, in making the announcement, that the Roberson Agency succeeds Karl Freeman who has requested his contract be canceled because of the press of other business.

The new office calls for the management of all properties FHA acquires in Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding and Lincoln counties and in adjacent March county.

Contract does not, however, include the exclusive right to sell these properties. Mr. Tyler pointed out that persons interested in FHA home purchases may deal with any real estate broker of their choice.

Further information is available from the Roberson Agency.

School Bus Regulations Explained

TWIN FALLS — Justice of the Peace Reed P. Maughan Saturday urged motorists and school bus drivers alike to familiarize themselves with present traffic laws in Idaho governing the overtaking and passing of buses while loading and unloading.

He said only one citation has been issued recently in his court for violation, but he said there is considerable confusion on the part of the area drivers.

Originally, all vehicles were required to stop from either direction for all unloading or loading school buses. Red flashing lights were later replaced with yellow caution ones and motorists stopped only when the "stop" arm was extended on the bus.

Now, he said, buses again have flashing red lights which must be used only when preparing to stop to load or unload children or other emergency cases.

The law as now amended also states bus drivers may not stop on highways having more than three lanes except to permit youngsters to cross at designated intersections.

The law, quoted by Mr. Maughan, also stipulated that on highways with no more than three lanes, all motorists from either direction, approaching or overtaking the school bus, must stop when the red flashing lights are in operation or the stop arm is extended.

Mr. Maughan said he feels motorists, even in four lane highways where children are being unloaded, to cross at a regulated intersection, should proceed with extreme caution. He said the amendment was not taking rural areas such as Twin Falls into consideration, and appears to need some clarification.

PTA Project Plan Given At Rupert Meet

RUPERT—Preliminary plans for the annual fund-raising project of the Minidoka County PTA have been announced by Mrs. Howard Bruns, junior high school music teacher. Mrs. Bruns headed the arrangements last year, and one of the county's other music teachers will be in charge this year.

The program, "The Sound of Music," features performers from chorus and band students in the junior and senior high schools in the county. Proceeds are used for the council's scholarship program, with $200 awarded annually to a graduating senior going into the teaching profession.

Mrs. Bruns said the program is planned for presentation at Minidoka High School the second weekend in May.

In other business at last week's council meeting, Mrs. Clyde Sillin reviewed some of the accomplishments of the PTA in observance of the Founder's Day meeting. Included in her report were work for better school buildings, scholarship programs, getting parents to be more better acquainted, health projects, school lunches, establishment of child care and teen-age recreation centers and participation in White House conferences on children and youth.

Honorary life memberships were given to Leo Moore, chairman of the school board, and Mrs. Howard Bruns, junior high school music teacher, by Edward Topf, council president.

A report on the PTA's "do something" campaign against smoking by children on a junior high school level was given by Mrs. Harlow Cheney, district president. She instructed the council on their part in distribution of brochures to parents of all seventh and eighth grade students in the county.

Carol Hammond played a piano solo during the afternoon.

Florida's Governor Wed To Divorcee From Brazil

By KAY BARTLETT
PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Claude Roy Kirk Jr., Florida's latest governor, Saturday married a beautiful blonde divorcee from the bikini beaches of Brazil in a brief, quiet civil ceremony.

The vows between Kirk and statuette Erika Mattfeld were completed in less than 10 minutes in the television room of the ornate Breakers Hotel, symbol of the affluence of Palm Beach society.

While the ceremony was in progress, two detectives from the Palm Beach County sheriff's office were perched on the twin towers of the exclusive hotel. Others cruised around the building.

Asked how he felt after the marriage, Kirk quipped: "Just like when it started."

Only members of Kirk's family and a few friends watched while state Supreme Court Chief Justice Milton Caldwell, wearing a flowing black robe, read the civil ceremony.

Kirk, 41, Florida's first Republican governor in 84 years, was automatically proclaimed elected from the Episcopal Church.

Kirk and his bride, a native of Germany who gained a reputation as one of the head-turners at the Copacabana Beach in Rio De Janeiro, planned a two-day honeymoon.

The couple was given communion at a private ceremony in the high-vaulted Bethesda-by-the-Sea Church, 78 years old and a favorite spot for tourists in this exclusive ocean-front refuge from the super rich.

Three reporters were removed from the church, an intriguing specimen of Gothic architecture, by one of Kirk's aides and a highway patrolman. Kirk, the aide said, "does not want you in here. We've got a nut running loose."

The aide did not explain, but security has been strict since Kirk's office got three hand-printed post cards threatening the governor's life.

Scores of state troopers, sheriff's deputies and private detectives from the Wackenhut Corp. — which also is prosecuting Kirk's war on crime, with private financing — stood guard at the church and at The Breakers Hotel.

A Bible-carrying picket, who scrawled offensive messages in chalk on the sidewalk near the hotel, was arrested twice, the first time at 7 a.m. After he had made bond on a vagrancy charge, he returned and was arrested again. He was identified as Larry Bonham, 26 of Miami.

Powell May Keep Seat In Senate

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican leadership, which played the key role in denying Adam Clayton Powell his house seat last month, was reported Saturday to have accepted the plan to seat Powell but ensure him severely and dock some of his pay.

Republican leaders are understood to have agreed with the four Republicans on the select committee studying the Powell matter that this is the most severe yet practical punishment that can be dealt the Harlem Democrat.

Four of the five Democrats are also tending toward this view. Rep. Claude D. Pepper of Florida is keeping an open mind on possible alternatives, although he is understood to lean toward a penalty that includes removal of Powell from the House.

Telephone Lesson Given At PTA Meet

HANSEN — A demonstration of amplified telephone art lessons was presented at the regular PTA meeting Thursday night at the schoolhouse by Mrs. Jla Allen and Mrs. Barbara LaJeunesse, faculty members. They were assisted by Superintendent William Barnard, who also discussed how the amplified telephone can be used in talking with people over the nation at small cost.

In giving the lessons, art transparencies are sent to the local teachers before the lesson and used with the art teacher's voice by telephone. Transparencies are placed one over the other, showing how details can be worked in until the completed picture is finished. Color and other media were also discussed.

Teddy Dalrymple, Janice Boyer, and Ferris Freestone gave art talks on their experiences as Boys' and Girls' state representatives last summer.

Gala Music Club Ball Aids Scholarship Fund

By NORMA HERZINGER

The Blue-Lakes-Country-Club was alive with activity when guests attended a Twin Falls Music Club-sponsored Benefit Valentine Ball which featured a complete evening of festivities including dancing, delightful entertainment and a midnight supper.

The country club was decorated in a valentine theme, with enchanting decorations providing a perfect atmosphere for dinner and dancing. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nilsen, Mr. and Mrs. David Mead and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Thorson. Mrs. Nilsen was general chairman of the event; Mrs. Mead is president of the Twin Falls Music Club, and Mrs. Thorson was in charge of the guest list and ticket sales. Mrs. Thorson seems to be very apt in her job at manning the guest list and collecting money for tickets as she can be seen in this particular capacity at many such soials.

Favorable comments were heard from all guests as they danced to the music furnished by the Hank

Hout Quartet and Wanda Lee from Boise. The group played all types of music so no one was overlooked when it came to a favorite choice and all requests were played, be it old time favorites or current hits.

Mrs. Mead welcomed the many guests from throughout Magic Valley and Roger Vincent, Filer, was master of ceremonies for the program. Velma Guyer and Charles Lassen entertained the crowd with several vocal selections, with the able accompaniment of Harold Nussbaum. Five dancing students of Beverly Hackney's, Loralee Mullins, Cathy Lincoln, Peggy Kelker, Debby Rangen and Valarie Wood, presented a ballet number, all dressed in appropriate costumes.

Excerpts and songs from the forthcoming Dilettante production, "Finlan's Rainbow," were presented by two of its leading characters, Mrs. Ernie (Barbara) Wills and Richard Reed, accompanied by Mrs. Lizbeth Pierce, Castleford.

The ball was a benefit social to increase the Twin Falls Music Club's scholarship fund to more Magic Valley young people can have the opportunity to study with some of the well known teachers at the Sun Valley Music Camp and the University of Idaho Summer Music Camp.

Each year the Twin Falls Music Club, which has been affiliated with the National Federation of Music Clubs since 1950, gives numerous scholarships to talented and deserving youngsters from throughout Magic Valley. The scholarships are provided for students who seriously intend to further their cultural education and appreciation. In the future it is hoped that additional scholarships can be given to other fine music camps in Idaho.

The Valentine Ball is the first such venture hosted locally by the Twin Falls Music Club.

With the success and outstanding support given by donations and participation for the recent benefit, plans are tentatively being made to make this an annual event. Without the support of each and every person connected with the event, it could not have been such a huge success and this worthwhile project could not be fulfilled.

Those assisting with arrangements for the social were Mrs. Nelpen, Mrs. Roy Habel, Mrs. Thomas Driscoll, Mrs. Thorson, Mrs. Gordon Edgar, Mrs. Joe Hackney, Mr. Vincent, Mrs. Douvan Young, Julie Nielsen, Connie Dalziel and Mrs. Julie Kilmore.

THE TWIN FALLS MUSIC CLUB'S Valentine Ball was attended by many Magic Valley residents, including Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Kramer. The ball was a benefit social to increase the club's scholarship fund to aid the unit in giving additional scholarships. Each year the club gives numerous scholarships to talented and deserving youngsters. (Times-News photo)

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: While looking for a new dress, I found some notes she and another girl had exchanged in class. Abby, the language was unbelievable!

I don't know where she learned such filthy words! She never talked that way around the house. She is only 15. I wonder if she has that kind of language with boys? If she does, they surely can't respect her. What if a teacher got a hold of them? I can't understand it. I've tried to raise her right. We go to church and say grace and meals so it can't be a lack of moral or religious training. I thought she was a nice girl. Right now I feel so lost when disappointed I am sick inside. What should I do?

MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: Don't do anything. All children, no matter how carefully reared they are eventually are exposed to "filthy" language. To use such words makes them feel "sophisticated" and grown up and a little wicked and daring, but it's only a phase which they pass thru quickly.

Believe it or not, your daughter can still be a "nice" girl. Your "filthy" and "disrespectful" language is understandable. Mother, but somehow you survived hearing and reading such language in your youth, I'm sure, and so will she.

Meanwhile, without revealing your discovery, comment casually that boys feel justified in making indecent advances to girls who use "dirty" language.

DEAR ABBY: What does a "gentleman farmer" taste?

DEAR KNOWS: Would you believe his hat?

DEAR ABBY: My husband's brother and his wife got a brand new spinet piano, so my husband and I went over to see it. I took piano lessons myself when I was a girl, and I know how to play fairly well, so I said to my brother-in-law, "Is it O.K. if I try my new lesson on it?" He replied, "All right. Just make sure your hands are clean."

Minico Raises Funds For Exchange Student

RUPERT — Minico High School students completed a drive last week for funds to bring an American Field Service exchange student to the school for the 1967-68 school year.

Daily activities were conducted to "create interest" as well as raise funds for the project, under the direction of the newly elected officers of the American Field Service Club. Susan Kasworm is acting as president; Diana Roemer, vice president; Beverly Anderson, secretary; Ed Ignac, senior representative; John Thain, junior representative; Patty Bills, sophomore representative; and Sharon Hanks, freshman representative. Sponsors are Mrs. Elmer Rush, Mrs. Wayne Fagg and Floyd Eilers.

Many students were dressed in foreign national costumes on Tuesday, and a noon-hour contest pitting freshmen and sophomores against juniors and seniors brought in over $30 in 30 minutes. The younger group were winners of the contest, more than doubling the older group's receipts.

Thursday, Randy Stoker, wearing the Moslem prayer costume, and Chris Samson, in an Austrian costume including leather breeches, went into Rupert and told the exchange story around the square and to shoppers in the business district. They collected $20 toward the fund.

Each school club has pledged one program with proceeds to go to the AFS, and local service clubs have also been invited to participate in the program.

Costs to the local school are approximately $1,000 to sponsor a student here, Mrs. Rush said, and the cost of sending a student to another country under the program is about $1,400.

A host family for the prospective student is needed in Minidoka County, Mrs. Rush said, and applications to house an exchange student are being taken at the school.

The students usually arrive at their foster home between August 15 and Sept. 1.

Foster parents cannot be foreign-born, but must be native Americans. Both parents must be in the home, and while it is not required that there be a child in the home of corresponding age to the exchange student, it is preferable. The couple must be at least 37 years of age and have children of their own. Regulations also stipulate that if the mother works, her hours must be the same as school hours.

The foster home does not need to be elaborate, officials said.

A separate bed for the student and adequate food and shelter are the only requisites. They stressed that the most important thing about a home is that there is warmth, love, understanding and tolerance, plus a real desire to make this experience a good one.

The local AFS contribution is used to help defray the cost of transportation to this country and spending money on the trip. The host family will be responsible for the student's board and lodging, traveling expenses to school activities and speaking engagements.

The AFS exchange program was initiated at Minico High School in 1959-60, with Haldis Hellum, Norway, as the first student. She made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Hansen. She is now married and living in Norway.

Lisa Kontinen, Finland, lived with Mr. and Mrs. Alex Roemer, Rupert, and they reported she is now married and has one child.

The third student, Aslam Khan from West Pakistan, is the only student to return to the United States for his college education. He was graduated in 1965 from Gonzaga University, Spokane, Wash., attended the University of Washington, and in 1966 received his master's degree in international relations. He is living in Seattle and is married to an American girl from Omak, Wash. While here he lived with Mr. and Mrs. Rush, Rupert.

Ghislaine (Gigi) Mettfeuf, France, has lived all over the world, including North Africa, Germany and China. Her father is with the Air Force. She made her American home with Mr. and Mrs. Oils Orton in Heyburn. She is not married and is presently in the process of moving to South America with her family.

Gigi was followed in the exchange student program by Aclid Olsson from Norway, who lived with Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Fagg. He has recently been released from the Norwegian Army and is back in the university.

In 1963-64 the school was not affiliated with the AFS program, although Bill Lamour was a Rotary Exchange student that year from Australia. He made his home with several Rotary families here.

The 1964-65 AFS student was Jose Solano from Costa Rica, who lived with the Wendell Johnsons. He is presently attending college in his native country.

Last year's student, Gorda Grobbelaar, was from South Africa and made her home with the Elias Cook family in Paul. She is a university student this year.

Two Minico High School students have traveled to other

Cantrell's Last-Second Shot Nips Indians, Hot First Half Topples Rams

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Sports Editor

Mounting a big lead in the second quarter, the Twin Falls Bruins defeated Highland 57-50 Saturday night and wound up with a winning 10-9 season. Given little chance of posting a winning record this year, the Bruins pulled even at 9-9 Friday night by toppling Pocastello 53-51 on Fred Cantrell's long jumper with two seconds left. Twin Falls also posted six wins in the Southern Idaho Conference to cap what would have to be a good year. The Bruins went after Highland with a hot hand Saturday night with seniors Fred Cantrell and Bill Van Engelen providing the early impetus that showed the Rams too far behind for a second-half long rally to overcome. Junior Von Wells came up with 15 points to help Twin Falls average a last-second shot at Highland earlier this year.

Palmer Holds 4-Shot Lead In Tucson Open

By STEVE BASSETT

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Arnold Palmer overcame two straight bogeys with a 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Saturday to carry a four-stroke lead into the final round of the $60,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament. Palmer withstood some early third-round surges by several close pursuers after getting his errant putting tucked under control. He sank three birdie putts on the front nine, none longer than three feet, and then added three consecutive birdie putts beginning on the 13th-hole, the longest a 20-footer on the 15th green. Bogeys on the 16th and 17th holes dropped his lead to three strokes where he had begun the day, but the birdie on the 18th hole gave him a 33-67 for a three-round total of 16-under-par 203.

Undeclared Dietrich Rips Bliss 68-42

BLISS—Dietrich started hitting in the second quarter, but behind Ron Knowles and Randy Lee, pulled ahead and into a three-round total of 16-under-par 203. The Blue Devils, who wrapped up the title last week, ran their season record to 19-3 and conference mark to 15-0. It was the final game of the season for Dietrich, which now heads into district tournament. Bliss jumped to a 14-9 edge in the first quarter, but the Blue Devils came back with 22 points in the second while the Bears were scoring seven. That gave the Blue Devils a 10-point lead which they added to in each of the next two quarters.

The Richfield JVs won the preliminary 44-25.

3-Day 'Copter Elk Count On Soldier Mountain Shows Herd Holding Own

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Sports Editor

The Soldier Mountain elk herd is wintering well and more importantly definitely still there as members of the Idaho Fish and Game Department and a few interested sportsmen from the Fairfield area proved Tuesday through Thursday in a helicopter count.

The department counted the animals from the base of Couch summit through Lime Creek and turned up a total of 504 elk—that figure is 10 below the 1964 count but almost 100 above another taken in 1962. And because of light snow pack, heavy overcast, a lot of snowing and poor visibility, it could safely be said some animals were overlooked or missed.

A count was considered essential this year by the department both for management and to find if the fears of Fairfield area sportsmen that the herd was being drastically reduced were founded.

The department gave the sportsmen a more than even break to prove their theory. Several Fairfield hunters came into the base camp and of seven sorties flown out, only one didn't have a sportsman. That one carried this writer and 68 head were seen on the flight.

There was apprehension that the count may disprove the contentions of the department—that the herd was holding its own in the face of dwindling winter range. Early January reconnoitering flights by fixed wing craft showed the snow made counting conditions ideal.

But before the department could take advantage of them, the conditions evaporated under a 36-hour rain. Twice postponed, it was do or die when the helicopter was told to report for service Tuesday morning. The upper drainage above Paradise Creek and the Willow Creek areas were flown Tuesday under fairly good flying conditions. After that it was tough and go. In fact, heavy snows and overcast Thursday made it appear the day would be spent around the fire with

Shoshone Hits Early, Trims Wendell

SHOSHONE—Shoshone scored 25 points in the second quarter Friday night to overcome a Wendell lead and point the Indians toward a 65-52 Big Six Conference victory. Wendell whipped to a 17-12 edge in the first quarter, but cooled the rest of the way as Shoshone warmed up. The Trojans hit only 12 of 30 free throw attempts while the Indians hit 19 of 31 to help with the victory.

CSI trailed only once, 1-0, then recovered on a Deuel shot and went ahead to stay. Weber stayed close through the first 10 minutes then fell back by 10 points at 29-13. Rich Nielsen, Minico grad, hitting well from the foul line picked up two field goals in the closing minutes to cut the deficit to 12 at halftime.

Webber cut to within 37-28 with 15:58 left before the Eagles stretched out. Deuel hit a triple and tip in, Mark Rich banked in a third shot from side court and Howard Humes twice drove the middle for buckets over the next three minutes while Weber went scoreless.

Nielsen got two field goals to pull Weber out of its drought but by then CSI had a 19-point lead and a minute later Van Deuel and Glover got points that led the cake.

Sports FROM ALL ANGLES

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News Sports Editor
At the conclusion of a basketball season nothing should be easier than batting out a 10-man district all-star team. To the contrary, this year we find it difficult to find a five-man team. It is tough enough to pick out talent but when some of the most talented have history of "extracurricular activities" with them in a b b r bottles and other things it becomes almost impossible. Again let us state the Times-News sports department's stand on all-star teams. We are against them for a number of reasons that are perhaps peculiar to us. It isn't always the best scorers. Personally, we go for the thinking basketball player because in high school you can win more games with your head than with your hands and feet. Another factor in our policy is that all-star selections, considering there are 26 high schools in the area, often come down to a matter of personal opinion where the candidates are nearly comparable. For that reason the Times-News' all-star teams are only one man's opinion. They are sufficient to us, but perhaps you like something else. Our all-district basketball team has representatives from all four classifications. We lead off with Ron Knowles the Dietrich, point man who made it as a sophomore. It is very probable that Knowles holds the district career scoring record since he broke into starting lineup as a freshman and started scoring right away. A straight A student, Knowles can rebound well. Being schooled largely in zone defense, he can do a little out of water when a one-on-one situation arises, but he can be adequate. Fifth in Bill's Chuck Cullings the man you know like his arms have been broken at the elbow. But when that right elbow gets oiled up, Cullings is capable of the highest level of shooting displays we've seen. At 6-4, Cullings is largely offensive oriented. He has a proclivity for fouling that at times has reduced his effectiveness. But he's one of the winners. Minico contributes 6-2 Claude Rasmussen who saw little action as a junior but has blossomed into a fine player this year. In other year of such development and he will be a player capable of helping several colleges. From the A-3 category there's junior Ray Schrenk of Declo. Schrenk is here mostly on potential. He can score and he can have fine nights. This year he came along well but at times still has a tendency to play defense poorly and foul foolishly. At 6-2 he can rebound and almost every game he'll show you a move or something he's never had before. The fifth man is the proof of our preface. We select Twin Falls' Dennis LeMance, a 60-pounder who typifies the thinking basketball player. LeMance isn't great at any one thing but he is good at all aspects of the game. He's shooting 44 per cent from the field and 73 per cent from the foul line. He usually gets the other team's top gun and still finds time to snare more rebounds than his position would require. Coach Chalmers' LeMance also has shifted his focus forward at times and LeMance makes that transition smoothly. He LeMance's biggest asset is his lack of fewer mistakes than anyone else on the all-district team. Now let's run through the conference. Starting with the South Central Idaho Conference we select Cullings at center and put second team Ian Von Lindera and (Gooding's) Larry Adams on guard. There's no way you could find two more temperamental or volatile on any other club. Another guard, Boyd Cliney, Mountain Home, crashes the lineup with the steady, rather unimpressive Ron Wyatt gets the fifth spot because he's another thinker. In the Big Six we place two from Kimberly, starting Larry Eiler, who declined to argue with referees and team mates this year to become a fine leader and scorer. The "back" players you'll ever see. He's Kimberly's Larry Rietz who seldom works up a sweat but make a mistake anytime and you get no second chance. Another junior is Valley's Ted Black, who typifies the old expression "he's not much of a basketball player but he's a great shooter and that makes

Hailey Nips Wendell To Share Loop Title

Wood River dropped Wendell 54-45 Saturday to give the Wolverines a share of the Big Six Conference Crown with Kimberly after the Hailey crew upset the Bulldogs 69-58 Friday night. The two teams ended the conference with 9-1 marks with each beating the other.

Declo Strikes Early, Trims Raft River

MALTA—Declo whipped to a 20-point lead in the first half Friday night and clung to that edge through the second half to pull out a 61-55 Magic Valley Conference victory over Raft River. The win gives the Hornets a 7-5 loop mark and fourth place behind Castleton. Alan Briggs hit 20 of his 28 points in the second half as the Trojans tried to cut the big Hornet edge. But Kay Schrenk and Karl Darrington kept Declo at least five points out in front. Declo's final margin turned out to be from the free throw line where the Hornets hit 17 to Raft River's seven. The Trojans had two field goals more than Declo.

Utah Races Past Air Force 68-56

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)— Utah's Rockets resumed running after three straight games of using ball control tactics and raced to a 68-56 decision over the Air Force Academy in a basketball game Saturday in the Ute fieldhouse. The fast break helped Utah overcome a halting start and carried it to a 35-20 halftime lead and more comfortable margins throughout the second half. Utah used a zone defense in the first half, but gave that up when the Falcons shot well enough from the outside to lead for the first 14 minutes.

UCLA Uses Long Stall Against Ducks

By TED MEIER Associated Press Sports Writer
For a coach who abhors the stall in college basketball, Johnny Wooden of the unbeaten UCLA Bruins showed them how to do it. Not until Lew Alcendor tapped in a rebound on a missed free throw by Mike Warren was there any scoring in the second half as the Bruins won their 24th straight game, including a 65-57 replay of four from last season. It was the only shot Alcendor took in the entire second half and the 7-foot-1 super-sophomore finished with 12 points, his low of the season.

HOW GOOD IS YOUR Imagination? Just one year from now this stretch of desert land will be ready for cultivation and crops. (Times-News photo)

Pioneer Days In West Have Not Become History

By PEGGY LALEY
 Times-News Feature Writer

The day of the pioneer and new frontiers has not passed into history.

Pioneers no longer come in covered wagons to homestead the vast open areas of the West, but they are still very much a part of our life in Idaho and still they push toward the open country.

Empty desert lands abound in Idaho, great stretches of sagebrush, populated only by rabbits and an occasional coyote.

Many a visitor to the state has questioned these so-called waste-lands.

For nearly a century more knowledgeable residents have also pondered, but they were aware of the principal problem involved in turning these lands to cultivation.

In the past, the difference in elevation between these lands and the water supply posed an almost insurmountable difficulty.

Large quantities of water flow between the banks of the Snake River, more than enough to insure profitable crop production. However, in order to bring this water to these unseed lands, lifts of 500 to 700 feet would be necessary and until the advent of electricity this was considered an economic impossibility.

In fact, it was only recently that lifts over 200 feet were considered feasible. Projects in the Nampa Dry Lakes area have proved that this method of securing water does pay off.

The Bruneau desert has presented a challenge to agricultural-minded men since the time that the surrounding area was first settled and put under cultivation.

In the early days of the Twin Falls tract, Hollister and Perrine, prominent early settlers, proposed a diversion of water from Niagara Springs and Blue Lakes to this site.

This diversion was to be accomplished by an elaborate system of canals and aqueducts from Salmon Falls Creek to the Bruneau River.

The fantastic irrigation potential of these desert lands have long been in the dreams of far-sighted men, however it has only been recently that these dreams have had any substance or any possibility of becoming reality.

A MULTITUDE OF DETAILS confronts G. T. Newcomb as director of Bell Rapids Mutual Irrigation Co. before the April 14 deadline set for the beginning phase of the desert land development. (Times-News photo)

THE INITIAL PUMPING station will be located at this site to make the 600-foot-plus water lift from the Snake River to the higher lands of the Bruneau plateau. (Times-News photo)

Deadline Nears For Entry Of Bruneau Area's Desert Lands

April 14 is the deadline for desert land entries on 26,000 acres of the Bruneau desert lying on the west side of the Snake River where the river makes an east to south bend between the towns of Bliss and Hagerman.

These are public lands which have long been open to filing. Any citizen of the State of Idaho or person who has declared his intention of becoming a citizen may make application for a unit of 320 acres but must show good-faith intent to reclaim the land for his own benefit.

A part payment of 25 cents per acre must be made at the time of application with an additional $1 per acre to be paid at the time of final proof.

Actual residence upon the land, as required under the homestead law, is not required, but at the time of final proof, four years following allowance of entry, the entryman must show an account of expenditures of his own money of a total of not less than $3 per acre for necessary improvements.

At this time he must have available a permanent supply of sufficient water to properly irrigate all of the irrigable acres of his unit.

His irrigation system must be adequate to permit this irrigation even though he need only to irrigate and cultivate at least one-eighth of the total unit for final proof.

Applicants for this section have joined the Bell Rapids Mutual Irrigation Company for the purpose of obtaining the water that will be necessary to meet these government requirements.

This company will construct one pumping station in the initial phase of the development to lift the river water some 600-plus feet to the project site.

Some of the land is level enough to make gravity irrigation feasible; other sections will utilize sprinkler systems.

A second pumping station upstream has also been proposed.

In its proposed Southwest Idaho Water Development Project, the Bureau of Reclamation indicated a possible project of 187,000 acres for this Bruneau division.

This plan suggested the lifting of water to the canyon rim from a diversion dam and reservoir which would have to be built near Clear Lakes, north of Duhl. The water would then be conveyed by canal and siphons to the project lands.

Re-lift stations would need to be located west of Salmon Falls Creek to provide water for lands that are above the gravity system.

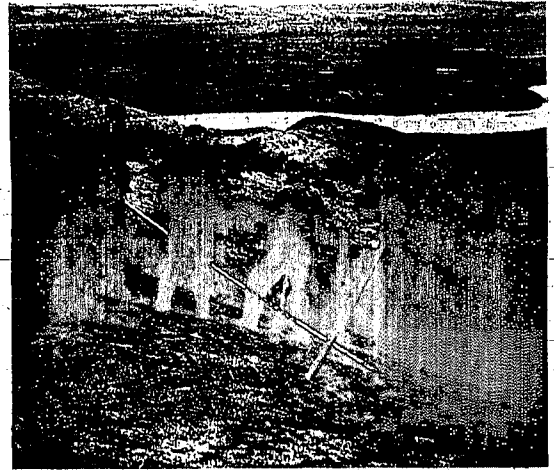

In the late 1959's, Tudor-Toothman Engineers, Boise, made a comprehensive report and development plan for the Crystal Springs Irrigation Company for the projected irrigation of 66,000 acres of the Bruneau plateau.

The projects that are now in operation further upstream, Indian Springs, Saylor Creek and Black Mesa, were based on this report.

This Crystal Springs plan called for a multi-purpose project which included irrigation and hydro-electric development. The hydro-electric portion of the project was proposed as a revenue-producing vehicle for financing.

Among other things, this plan called for a pump complex near Fossil Gulch to lift the water approximately 540 feet to a canal system on the desert.

The development by Bell Rapids Mutual Irrigation Company includes portions of lands studied for this report.

Only Water Needed To Develop Fantastic Farming Potential

Agroonomic studies of this 26,000 acre development indicate soils similar to those in Twin Falls area, adequate for sustained production with irrigation and improved farm practices.

The initial productiveness of the developments near this area have so far surpassed this somewhat cautious prediction.

The land is generally of good permeability, water capacity and productivity potential. It is largely free from troublesome amounts of salinity and alkalinity.

Good surface drainage is indicated by the sloping and rolling contour. An aerial picture shows that 40 per cent of the land has been classified as Class I which means that it is choice, smooth land with less than a three per cent slope.

It has good water capacity and fertility and is deep and permeable. It has a pH ratio of 7.8 and is non-saline with 10 inches or more of soil above any nodular or penetrable lime zone.

Forty-three per cent of this land is classed as II which is good productive soil, but slightly more rolling or lumpy with a three to seven per cent slope.

This portion of the land has a fairly good water capacity and fertility with salinity less than 0.6 per cent. This class may include some gravelly sub-soils.

The authorities who have made these studies claim that much of this desert land needs only to be cleared and provided with water to become productive.

In addition to the enormous project of providing adequate water and a system to distribute it to the farm units, the land must be cleared of sagebrush.

Although this task will be much easier today than it was fifty years ago, sagebrush is a tenacious plant and much work remains for the entryman who plans to have his first crop in the ground a year from this spring.

Some of the land has been partially cleared by the government through a process of spraying by plane to kill the plants. This is the process that will be followed for the remaining acreage.

At a meeting of the Bell Rapids Mutual Irrigation company held recently in Twin Falls, G. T. Newcomb, Ketchum, company director, admitted that "many say that new desert developments are great for second and third generations but will not give early cash return to the first developer. This observation has been pretty sound in many instances."

But he continued, "we are here today because most of us don't share this gloomy outlook."

In speaking of the world food problem that is evolving and of the prediction that the agricultural world must, in the next 34 years, duplicate all the progress made in agriculture since the beginning of time, Mr. Newcomb stated that "we are most fortunate to have an opportunity to participate in the development of this area."

He went on to say that this will "put to beneficial use several thousand acre feet of water that is presently leaving Idaho. The economic impact of this development on the communities served the area promises to be tremendous."

Over 200 persons attended this meeting which featured such speakers as Orville Hadley, acting land office manager of the Bureau of Reclamation, Boise; Dave Toothman, consulting engineer with Toothman and Associates, Boise; Guy O. Woodward, consulting engineer with Clyde Criddle and Woodyard, Salt Lake City; Robert J. O'Connor, assistant to the president of the Idaho Power Company, Boise; Novel A. Nelson, Certified Public Accountant with Nelson and Sagers, Burley; Ralph Comstock, president of the First Security Bank, Boise, and John Brandt, president of the West End Mutual Canal Company, Nampa.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Countless number of children in the ALMO community in Cassia County have been entertained with true-life Indian tales by Mrs. Alice Jane Durfee Rice, who was honored by the Relief Society there as the oldest member. The birthday cake was made and decorated by Mrs. James Lloyd, Mrs. Rice, who celebrated her 85th birthday anniversary Jan. 23, recalls her parents crossed the plains and arrived in the Salt Lake Valley in October, 1849. The pioneers had very little flour and when that was gone they lived on cornmeal and ground wheat.

The men planted all the spare grain and the family was eagerly awaiting the crop so they could use the grain for bread. But one day Mrs. Rice said, when she was a child, her brothers and sisters came running to her mother and said, "There is a big cloud going right toward our grain patch." It was the dreaded crickets. The family tried to frighten the crickets away but without success.

"Then we saw that Mother was standing still and praying in tongues, and as she prayed the crickets began to rise and the sky was black with them. They left and flew down to the lake and never came back," the pioneer woman states.

She was born at Beaver Dams, Box Elder County, Utah in 1872, and in 1880, when she was 8, the family moved to Almo where they joined 10 other families in the early settlement. She recalls the school term lasted only three months each year.

Her first school teacher was Sylvia Ward, ELBA. School was held in a house in a field now owned by Louis A. Eames.

One other school house was located in the Cove in a Mr. Robinson's field where church dances and other activities were held.

Mrs. Rice recalls that excellent plays were given along with Mrs. Mattilda Brackenbury as director.

Fear of Indians was ever present when she was a child and she never tires of telling of her experiences. On March 1, 1891, she was married to Nathaniel Abel Rice and their marriage was solemnized in the LDS temple in Logan.

Her husband died Sept. 5, 1904, just 21 days before her eighth child was born. The widow was left with six small children to provide for which she did by weaving carpets until the oldest grew old enough to help.

An active member in the LDS church all her life, she has entertained innumerable Primary children with her collection of Indian stories, most of them taken from real life. She has served as president of the MIA, Primary and also as a Primary class leader and Relief Society teacher.

Keeping family records of her many grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren is one of her interests. She and her daughter, Mrs. Janis Wake, make quilts, stuffed toys, rugs, oil paintings, sew and do miniature crocheting. Three of her children are still

Death Craft Is Lowered From Saturn Booster

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Apollo 1 death ship was lowered from the top of its Saturn 1 booster Friday — exactly three weeks after a fire inside the craft killed three American astronauts.

For the next several days, the cone-shaped hull — wrecked by the blaze that killed Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom and Edward H. White II and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert B. Chaffee — will be examined in detail by investigators probing to find out what caused the tragedy.

Black smudge marks were clearly visible on the heat shield of the base of Apollo 1 as a bridge crane overhead slowly lowered it from the top of its booster rocket, 218 feet above the ground, to a flatbed truck waiting below to take it to a building on nearby Merritt Island.

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

By KEITH R. MAXWELL, First United Brethren Church. The Rev. Dr. Clate Risley made an interesting statement in a workshop during the South Central Idaho Sunday School Convention that met in Twin Falls on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the past week.

Quoting another, he said, "The seven last words of a dying church are, 'We've never done it that way before.'"

Contrast that attitude, however, with that of Jesus Christ. It was said of Him, "He taught as one having authority." What He had to say was new, different, vital, and authoritative; although it wasn't always what the people wanted to hear.

Too often the church is encumbered with patterns set by the past and ideas that have become archaic. Something new, especially new ideas, are resisted, for they challenge and change that with which we have become so accustomed that without those traditions and practices many could not worship.

Fresh ideas, however, are the seeds of action. Without them progress would be restricted—even progress and advancement within the Church.

Ideas, for example, are the seeds of creativity, and the ability to, or the act of, creating demonstrates life. Before any great invention has been built, the seeds of that invention had to germinate within the mind of some person. Eventually that idea became reality.

We have read recently about how the findings of one of the world's greatest artists, Leonardo da Vinci, suggest that he may be credited with having originated the idea or plan for a number of important inventions.

Only those with imagination in the church will create living, up-to-date methods of winning people to the Christ, to the One who stood here and challenged above the religious, fanatical Pharisees of His day because He dared to present something new and different.

Furthermore, new ideas are

necessary as seeds for spontaneity in the Christian's religious experience. Many of the early Christians soon learned that if they bound themselves and others with all the rituals, forms, and traditions of the elders they would soon destroy the enthusiasm and initiative characteristic of new believers.

The Apostle Paul discouraged the adding of a lot of negatives and traditions to the lives of Christians; he thus confronted the Judaizers, the legalists, on a number of occasions.

Freedom to think differently and to discover new answers is crucial to maintaining a spirit of enthusiasm. Certainly Jesus was attractive and was recognized as an authority because He saw peoples' problems in a new light and with a different answer.

Finally, ideas are the seeds of variety. And too often variety is lacking in our services, programs and activities.

Jesus certainly did not lack variety in what He did. He had street meetings, upper room meetings, seaside camp meetings, and person to person conversations. He preached on the hillside, from a boat, and in the open field. He talked a bout farming and fishing, as well as about the Kingdom of God. He discussed sin frankly and righteousness positively.

Fresh ideas must be the seeds that lead to creativity, spontaneity, and variety within the church. It takes those who brave the "we've never done it that way before" attitude to make the Church have the same authoritative reputation that Christ had.

DETROIT (AP)—Two major auto producers announced Friday that production cutbacks plans for the next few weeks will idle some 7,500 workers. Chrysler Corp. disclosed a cutback in operations at three Detroit-area plants will result in 5,800 workers being laid off, while Ford said it will put 2,000 workers out of jobs.

General Motors said it had no production plans to release at this time. GM, world's largest automaker, cut deeply into its original production schedules in both December and January.

News Of Idaho's Spring Hunt Brings Out Facts And Legends About Bears

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department
BOISE — News that there will be a spring hunt for black bear in four game management units in the Clearwater region may start wild stories about the beast that walks like a man.

It will be strange indeed if the "facts" behind some of the tales are not rooted in legends that were spread down through the years by fear.

The spring hunt will run from Feb. 15 through May 31, principally in Latah county, the North Fork of the Clearwater River drainage, the Woyape area and the Lochsa River drainage.

These four units of the Clearwater region, and the five northern-most counties of the Panhandle region, also will have a fall-bear-hunting-season, beginning Sept. 2.

The rest of the Clearwater region and all of the state south of the Salmon River, will continue to hunt black bear any time of the year, as in the past.

There are men in the state who say that the only good bear is a dead one. This has been the case since prehistoric times, long before the pilgrims came to the New World.

Men and bears usually have been enemies. Their fights to the death have been told in drawings on cave walls down through the centuries. Fur traders, farmers and ranchers all joined in the feud, and bruin was the loser.

As this country became more settled, a good many black bears learned to get food hand-outs from people. Usually shy, independent animals, many of them soon lost their dignity and became degraded welfare parasites, camp robbers and garbage dump scavengers.

Dangerous situations developed as food was withdrawn or harder to get. Their intelligence, strength and agility made them formidable man-eaters.

There are true tales, of course, that tell of bears which are just plain vicious to the end. Unprovoked attacks are rare but sometimes happen. Some legends prove out to be physically or mentally handicapped bears, hurt bears, rants that lost mates or territory to bigger, stronger brothers — and sows separated from their cubs.

Wildlife lore warns that the most dangerous animal is a gunshot grizzly. But wounded or cornered black bears will prove found animal fear can lash out and rend a man who dares to cross their paths.

No doubt there are people who have never seen a bear, whether a park "clown" looking for a handout, or one of the few basically vicious bears that can be dangerous.

But it would be hard to find a man, woman or child who has not seen the famed bear caricatures. Their names are household by-words — Smokey, Yogi and Jasper. Routine warnings by forest rangers and conservation officers fade away in the fantasy world of television, while some bears that are camp nuisances and park panhandlers continue to be potentially dangerous.

Responses to a black bear hunting regulations and management questionnaire mailed by the Idaho Fish and Game Department to 11 other western departments, including Alaska, show that all but two of the states have bear seasons.

Five states, not counting Idaho, hold spring bear hunts because such seasons are deemed desirable for game management.

Three big points are made to back spring hunts. These are (1) outdoor recreation at a time when most hunting opportunities are closed, (2) fur pellets are best at this time of year and (3) some hunters say that the meat is of better quality than at other times of the year, because bears are mostly vegetarian in their feeding habits when the wild onions, grass and weeds are lush and tender.

Most people think that bears hibernate to take them through the lean cold months when food is hard to find. This is wrong.

Like the antelope ground squirrel, for example, bears do not go into a state of complete dormancy that is controlled more or less by a fixed date on the calendar and stay in close seclusion through the winter season.

There is more like a deep sleep, with slowed heart, blood, and either metabolic process, from which they can be roused when the need comes.

This state is very close to the condition called aestivation, which is found in most often in animals that pass dry hot summer months in a torpid condition. Skunks are much the same, meeting wintertime periods of stress with aestivation-like dormancy.

Bears do not have time to give way to summer doldrums that come in July and August. There is no time to activate. They must gorge food of all kinds and feast and store up fat for the famine that winter surely will bring.

A footnote to the history of the pioneering era of this country points out that grizzly bear ranged the great plains west of the Mississippi River until pushed back into remote mountains by settlers.

This meant stretching the time of his deep sleep or aestivation from mid-December to March, as it had been when he lived on the plains, to late October-April in his new habitat in the Rocky Mountains.

In other words, aestivation is a time of torpor or sleep to get grizzly and black bears through stress periods when food is short, to say the least.

During late January, cubs are born. Normally there are twins, but occasionally they came as triplets and sometimes as quadruplets.

With only a seven month gestation period, cubs are eight-ounce "premies" in the sense that they are sightless, toothless, hairless, helpless babies that alternately suckle and sleep during the rest of the aestival time.

Upon leaving the den, cubs have grown to five pounds of fearsome playfulness. They are cute, cuddly and dangerous if the nearby mamma sow bear gets the idea that her babies are threatened.

Cubs stay close to the old sow's side that first spring. Most of the time cubs are "freed" or brought to bay by dogs right along with mamma bear.

But none of the states of the West where spring bear hunts are held say that hunters kill many sows with small cubs. They know that these babes of the woods could not come through that first spring and summer without mamma.

However, most black bear cubs can fend for themselves by the time of fall big game hunting seasons. A recent self-sufficiency test of 23 cubs ranging in age from 9½ to 8 months, tended to show that most of them survived in the wilds of Upper Michigan Peninsula when hunters claimed the sows.

Nonetheless, many hunters which spring bear hunts to full seasons, especially in mountainous regions. When emerging from the long winter's nap, bears seek out vegetable diets. They gorge on wild onions when they can find them, and succulent grass and weeds.

Their long winter fast is behind them for another year, and the bears shun heavy cover. They seek out sunny slopes and alpine meadows where the warm sun melts snow. But their fur is still the thick long heavy coat of winter, and they don't go out in the noonday sun.

Early morning and late afternoon hours are best for spring hunting, especially by stalking.

Spring black bear hunting in the Clearwater is a move by the Idaho Fish and Game Commission to give this curious, playful, holisterous and sometimes destructive species more dignity and better status as a big game animal.

It has been degraded for years by well-meaning people who foolishly invited disaster in parks and camps by offering food, thus reducing him to a dependent, but sometimes dangerous patron of a welfare situation.

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL.

First question this week comes from Mrs. W. J. Burley, "What kind of coin is referred to as a 'piece-of-eight'?"

Answer: Your question is one which frequently recurs. The "piece-of-eight" was actually a dollar-sized coin, originally minted in Spain, but later made in Mexico.

Made of silver, it was universally used and accepted as legal tender anywhere in the world. Our own shortage of coins in the colonial days made it especially acceptable here in the United States.

The coin is actually an 8-real (Spanish denomination) coin, and was also called a "pillar" dollar — due to the fact that the reverse pictures the Gates of Colossus.

The coin was used so much in our colonies that when the Continental Congress issued paper money to finance the Revolutionary War, they guaranteed payment of the bills in either gold or "Spanish Dollars."

This coin was actually the forerunner of our own silver dollar, since when Congress finally established a mint, the silver dollar was coined because the people of the United States were already familiar with the large silver coin, and trusted it.

It is said that the coin was cut up into pieces, or bits — eight bits being the value of a dollar. Thus, two bits of the dollar became our "two-bits," or an expression meaning one quarter of the Spanish milled dollar.

Millions of these coins floated around all over the world, and were legal tender in the United States until 1857, when Congress had them melted, and accepted them for redemption.

This is the only coin with a foreign monarch's portrait on it which was ever legal tender in the United States.

There are a great many of these around today — and they are readily obtainable from dealers, or other collectors. The cost is nominal, considering the historical value and beauty of the coin.

Somewhere around $8 will buy a Very Fine specimen of this coin — and it is well worth having if only for a conversation piece.

While we are on the subject of silver dollars, it would be well to answer some oft-repeated questions about them.

Silver dollars are not hard to get — contrary to public knowledge. It is true you cannot get them from banks any more whenever you feel like it — but they are still around — held mostly by speculators and dealers.

We frequently get letters from collectors, listing many silver dollars and asking about prices. Unfortunately, most of these dollars are worn and circulated — and the value of a much-circulated dollar is no greater than it was before the present artificially created shortage became apparent.

It would seem that a coin dated back in the 1800's would be a most valuable find — but this is not true with the silver dollar. Millions of them are around

Immolated

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — An 18-year-old Indian girl out on bail after being arrested on an election violation charge burned herself to death Friday in Madras.

Also in Madras, a truck carrying 11 policemen on election duty in the southern part of the state overturned, injuring all aboard. They were being sent to bolster local forces in maintaining peace during the polling.

In northern India, at Mizampur, in Uttar Pradesh State, six persons were injured in a clash between supporters of the Hindu communal Jan Sangh party and the ruling Congress party.

even a Carson City dollar, if it is worn out, is worth little more than face value.

In the last few years it has become fashionable to collect only brand-new, shiny uncirculated money — so that these coins command a premium.

A few years back, most collectors looked for coins by dates and mintmarks and were content to find one, regardless of the condition. These people were actually collectors, while the latter variety are accumulators or speculators, looking for a fast "buck."

Actually, as far as we are concerned, uncirculated money is not actually money — since it never was used to pay a bill, or buy a candy bar, or used in any commerce of any kind. An uncirculated coin is simply a piece of shiny metal — nothing more.

Part of the fun of collecting has always been to imagine who might have handled the old coins which we collected. Maybe these latter-day joiners should be called "pretty money" accumulators, rather than "coin" collectors.

The worst feature of the present craze for uncirculated coinage is that the prices have forced out the youngsters who formerly joined our ranks.

Promotion of National Coin Week which is sponsored by the American Numismatic Association can do much to bring back the hobby. Remember the dates this year — April 22 through April 29th.

Questions on Coins and Currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83401.

— and unless they are uncirculated — or a very scarce date, they command no premium whatsoever.

The expensive silver dollars were before, and are now, the short mintage, Uncirculated, shiny, new dollars can be purchased from dealers — by the sackful if you want to buy them.

Most of these are held at about $1.00 apiece — allowing the dealer to make a profit on the money he has tied up for the last few years.

Some San Francisco mintage dollars are very scarce — and worth a considerable amount of money, and most Carson City Mint dollars are quite valuable — but then, most of the other coinage from Carson City is scarce, also.

Here again, let me repeat —

Stan Owens Begins One-Man Campaign To Teach Love Of Music To Students

Stan Owens is one contented man, and in this decade his breed is a rarity. He likes the school system of his chosen town, the climate, hasn't found a career in local government, thinks the kids are great and even likes his neighbors.

"It would take a team of mules to get me out of Twin Falls," he says. Among numerous other activities, Mr. Owens has launched a one-man campaign to teach a love of music and singing to Twin Falls area students.

He is employed as a vocal coach in the secondary schools in the Twin Falls public school system, following one year in the elementary system; directs the 22-voice choral group at O'Leary Junior High School; directs the concert choir; girls' chorus and Madrigal Singers at the Twin Falls High School; and teaches two general music courses at O'Leary.

He teaches singing, he says, because melodic use of vocal cords is one skill which nearly everyone can be taught. It is a skill that is not hung up and forgotten after the course is completed.

"The kids I teach to sing will continue to sing, maybe in the bathtub or shower or make it a barbershop quartet, but they will continue to sing," he says.

He also postulates that with music, there is no natural boundary to the less fighting. We must agree that it is difficult to entertain pugnacious thoughts with a song in one's mind.

Besides his tasks in the school system, Mr. Owens has been involved with radio broadcasting. He has served in pastorates in several area churches, including the American Baptist church at Filer, Buhl, Gooding, Shoshone and Jerome. He is presently concluding a two-month interim at the Buhl church.

Community projects haven't escaped his eye either. He has directed choir chorals in presentations of the Messiah by Handel and the Seven Last Words of Christ by Dvorak, and recently leads the local chapter of SPBEBSQA, The Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

Mr. Owens' views on popular music may be on the surface seem to conflict with his pastoral activities, because he feels the music is "an expression of the example of declining moral fiber, and he also feels that 'the kids are up to their ears in it.' I'm sure, and I'm particularly fond of the mode — and I think it will pass eventually, just as the 'Big Apple' and the 'Black Bottom' did," he says.

R. Stan Owens was born in North Platte, Neb., Aug. 12, 1927. He attended schools in California, joined the Air Force in 1946, returned to Bellowood, Calif., in 1952 and married Joan Bletterstaff and then enrolled at Atlanta's name appeared in "Who's Who in America."

In 1944 he served as exalted ruler of the Elks at Skagway and was the first exalted ruler of the Elks in Skagway, Alaska. Snook suffered serious injuries three years ago when his auto collided with some cattle on Idaho Highway 1, and he said he could be working today if it weren't for the condition of his eyes.

He said now he is sidestepping the "old respect and offered some advice: "If a bull charges, don't run, wait. A bull always shuts its eyes when it's ready to hit you. Then you can step aside."

New Delhi Sidewalks Are Bed For 12,000 Persons

By JOE MCGOWAN JR. NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The sidewalks of New Delhi are a bed for an estimated 12,000 persons.

About 20 die of exposure every winter. A late-night tour shows countless persons shivering on railway platforms, against building fronts or in doorways. Four died during a recent cold snap when temperatures hovered near freezing for several nights.

City officials say much of this was unnecessary because 42 night shelters can house at least 5,000 persons. Only half that number were found in the shelters on the coldest night this month.

When police find anyone sleeping in the streets after 11 p.m. they are under orders to "encourage" him into a shelter. They find this difficult to enforce. Pavement dwellers may get up when nudged by a policeman, walk around until he leaves, and then curl up on the sidewalk again.

Reluctance to use the shelters is based on unfounded fears, in some cases, and on valid complaints in others.

Long Beach City College, Calif., where he sang in the choir. In 1954, he began a six-year study at the California Baptist Theological Seminary, where he received a bachelor's degree in music and a masters in religious education. He has continued his studies in music at the University of Idaho and in counseling at Idaho State University.

The Owens family moved to Twin Falls in 1961 from Fullerton, Calif. He and his wife have four children. Mr. Owens intends to continue his studies toward a second graduate degree in between teaching singing, radio broadcasting at KLIX, conducting religious services, playing football and baseball with the neighborhood kids and hunting and fishing.

An elderly man in tattered clothes said he would get venereal disease or leprosy if he slept in a shelter.

Found huddled in a corner not far from a shelter, a 24-year-old rickshaw puller said: "It is a bit colder here but at least I can breathe. There is no smell, no suffocation."

He complained that blankets provided in the shelters are given to diseased persons and not cleaned before the next night. It was confirmed later that for lack of funds the shelter operators don't have the blankets cleaned often. The shelters are run by Catholic and Hindu charities and by the city itself.

Some abandoned buildings, some are tents. An 18-year-old boy who came to New Delhi from a drought-stricken area said he got a job but during his first night in a shelter his day's earnings were stolen.

One man who votes for the shelters is Ramu, a 63-year-old beggar. "The first thing I like about them is that I can come any time I please. Nobody asks why I come so late," he explains.

"Secondly, the watchman wakes us up at exactly 7. This is helpful in the winter, else I would be sleeping when I should be on my way to beg."

"Thirdly, there are a lot of people around — I don't feel lonely."

STANDING AMID THE FALLEN leaves before the modest log home at his ranch 13 miles up the Lemhi River from Salmon, John Wilson Snook recalls the purchase of the property in 1888 and other events of his 89 years of life. (Times-News photo)

Oldest Idaho Rancher Recalls Early Days In State and Alaska Territory

Special to the Times-News. SALMON—John Wilson Snook at 89 stands straight and tall. He votes Republican, but not the straight ticket. His father was a Democrat.

Mr. Snook, who raised three sons to become prominent citizens of Salmon, hasn't any patience for today's wispy-washy law enforcement. In his day anyone who killed in cold blood would have been strung up.

Back when Mr. Snook was 20 three fellows slaughtered his pet heifer out by the lake under K Mountain and his persistence in tracking them down and bringing them to trial opened the way for a long career in law enforcement.

He served as deputy U.S. marshal in Alaska, served two terms in the Idaho Legislature and was warden of the Idaho State prison and the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Mr. Snook has been a life-long Lemhi county rancher. He can't recall today anyone still living in the county who was living here when he was a youth. He's not only Salmon's oldest Elk in terms of the number of years served, but also Idaho's oldest.

He moved into Salmon from his ranch a year ago and now lives a block from where he was born Oct. 20, 1878, on Main Street. The house of his father no longer stands and the space is occupied by an auto firm.

Now at 89, Mr. Snook has failing eyesight and little to do. "I just hike up and down Main Street sidestepping that old man with the reaper," he said.

Mr. Snook claims the distinction of being the oldest rancher in Idaho still using his livestock brand which was recorded in 1884.

His sons are Fred, John and Quinton. Fred practices law and operates a ranch, John and Quinton also ranch. Mr. Snook's wife, Mrs. Fred Pattee, 82, both living in Salmon.

His father, John Wall Snook, came west at age 19 to Virginia City, Mont., and on to the Salmon area in 1886, the year of the Leesburg gold discovery and before Salmon was founded. He purchased eight acres of land in what is now the heart of the community and was in the freight business.

Mr. Snook started his Lemhi Valley ranch in 1898 with the purchase of 320 acres of land. Jim Shoup, who was brother of Gov. George L. Shoup, and was U. S. marshal in Alaska, was in Lemhi county court the day John Snook testified against two of the men who butchered his heifer.

Marshal Shoup offered Snook a job as deputy marshal and when he turned 21 the next year, 1897, he went to Alaska where he stayed for seven years. It was during this time that some 100,000 miners rushed to Alaska following the Klondike gold discovery.

Mr. Snook returned to the ranch he had purchased and also to his freight business. In 1909 he was elected state representative in the Idaho Legislature.

After his term expired he was offered the job as warden of the Idaho State Prison where he served from 1909 to 1917. In 1911 he returned to the Idaho Legislature.

Mr. Snook recalls that in 1924 he received a telephone call at his ranch from the Idaho State Prison. The prisoners were rioting and the warden was ill and they wanted him to return to take charge.

Mr. Snook went to Boise. "If you've ever seen a surprised bunch of convicts . . . I walked right into the dining room where they were holding out and said: 'I listened to your music (radio) last night but I won't listen to it again tonight. I want you all to go back to work.'"

He said the crowd of prisoners was silent, then a big Negro boomed, "I told my old captain guard to take him to the brig. The Negro looked around but no one went back to work."

In January of 1928 the U. S. Attorney General called Mr. Snook to Washington, D. C. to offer him the job as warden of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary. He resigned from that post on July 1, 1929, after a year with a Department of Justice official over efforts of the department to place its agents in the prison to obtain information on bootlegging activities during prohibition.

Mr. Snook took a public relation job with an airline in Washington and was president and general manager of a health resort on Long Island in New York City. In 1931 he returned to his ranch.

During the depression times were hard in the county. He was feeding 600 head of cattle and milking 30 cows by hand — alone. "Today it takes two men and 45,000 worth of machinery to feed 600 head of cattle," he said.

Mr. Snook says he is in good health except for his eyes although he suffers from gall bladder trouble for a long time. "I cured that by giving up egg yolks. I haven't eaten an egg in 20 years and I haven't had any gall bladder trouble since. One doctor told me egg yolks were causing the trouble."

He once smoked cigars and he said this caused his heart to act up so he gave them up completely.

Mr. Snook joined the Elks Lodge in Idaho in Skagway, Alaska. While he was warden at

A mythology exists of tales of how Kathi Schratz played the part of the good angel in which Francis Joseph continually involved himself.

This affair was a tripartite one, and whether Katherine was chosen by Emperor Elisabeth as her husband's mistress, or whether the love affair began many years before, biographers differ.

However, her beneficial interference in the tangled Hapsburg affairs shows how her amiable tact helped the emperor settle his affairs with misbehaving nobleman and army officers.

FINESSE KILLS SETTING TRICK
When you miss both the queen and jack of a suit, you don't really go after all the tricks if your hand and dummy don't hold "honor" cards. In it. Of course, you will accept all the tricks if things go just right but, in general, your plan of action is to avoid losing tricks

 The defenders have played three small clubs so that the only clubs left are the queen and jack. If West holds both of them, he must make a club trick. It doesn't hurt to let him make it right away. If West holds one of them, it also won't hurt to give it to him. South can pick up the other one from East any time. Only when East holds both is the ten spot play essential. This isn't likely, but it can happen and any success against that chance.

TODAY'S QUESTION
 Again your partner opens two hearts. This time you hold:
 ♠ K 7 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ K 8 7 6
 What do you do now?
 A—Pass. If your partner can't go to the grand slam, then you can't either.

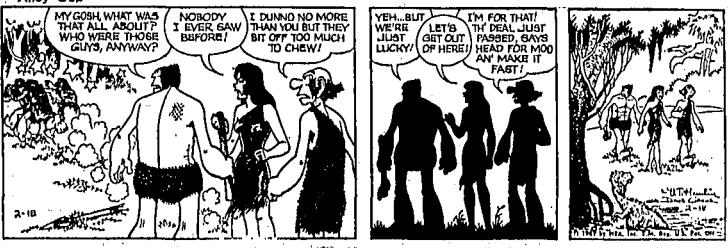

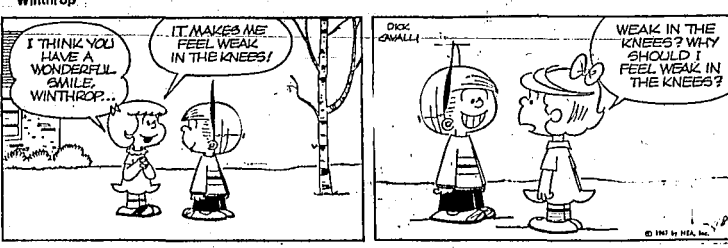

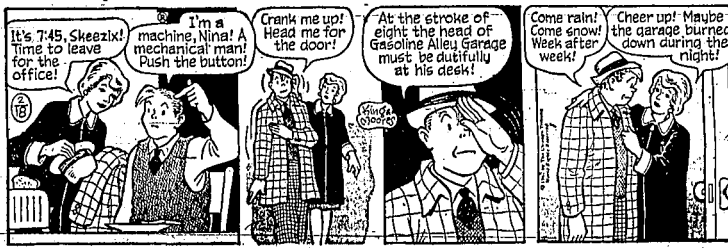

"Father and I fixed you a tray. You're making such a nice recovery we kind of hate for you to see the kitchen!"

"I KNOW HE'S SINCERE ABOUT THE SELF-BETTERMENT PROGRAM HE'S ON, BUT HE ISN'T ABOVE USING IT TO FAN US OUT AND GRAB OFF A FEW NAPS ON THE SLY—SOMETIMES HE GETS TO CLOSE HIS DOOR!"

"Your Mom says it's like flunkville! One more report said like this and I won't put my X on it!"

It Doesn't Seem Rightly That Pal Dines Nightly

Dear Walt: I have a good friend and we play on the same team at the community center. Every day after practice he drives me home, and comes in "for a minute." My mother always ends up inviting him to dinner and by the time he goes home it's 10 p.m. I know a lot, but still I'd like to see less of him. Do you understand?

Once a week, fine. Twice a week, maybe. But three or more times is just too much to stand. When he's around I can't talk to my folks like I'd like to, I'm late getting started on my homework, and I can't talk to other friends on the phone.

Dear Guy: Here are some bits of strategy you might weigh: (a) if you can wrangle the car, drive him home from the center now and then; (b) when he's chauffeur, say "hang in" at the curb—don't invite him in; (c) if he pops in minus invitation, signal mom to withhold any dinner bid (she can still provide "cookies and milk for the road if he looks famished"); and (d) if all else fails, instigate a "family council" night and explain to Paul that it's strictly a closed session that evening.

Weekend—Walt
A LOOSE TONGUE
 Dear Ele and Walt: Am I a big mouth? I am best friends with this guy, John. We told each other everything. He used to like this girl, I know, but now he hates her. One day after he was cussing her out to me he called her. Now he hates her. He swears he'll never talk to me about anything. How can I curb my tongue and gain his respect back? Call me —Big Mouth Sally.

Dear Sally: You're going to have to take your medicine. If you haven't already told him you're sorry you violated his trust, then write a note, call him on the phone—anything, but let him know you realize your goof and are determined never to do such a thing again. Then, drop the subject. Moping about your mistake will serve no purpose but to bore him and to keep an unpleasant experience fresh in his mind. It won't help convince him of your sincerity.

Be patient. Let him calm down and get it out of his system. Be friendly but don't attempt anything he's not ready for.

Dear Ele and Walt: This I think is "good-enough" for the grip of the year! I'm in the center and in Vietnam. Whether you happen to be a hawk or a dove, you still must realize that it's no picnic over here—and that every guy here is under a lot of pressure.

The target for my grip is girls who write "Dear John" letters. I know there's no rule that fits everyone, but still I feel that if a girl liked a boy enough to accept his ring or some other symbol of commitment before he left for service here, she ought to postpone telling him things have changed until he's returned to American soil. I've seen buddies open a letter with joy all over their faces—and then watched the like this girl, I know, but now he hates her. One day after he was cussing her out to me he called her. Now he hates her. He swears he'll never talk to me about anything. How can I curb my tongue and gain his respect back? Call me —Big Mouth Sally.

EASY STRUGGLES UP OTTER CREEK, IN SEARCH OF WASH, WHO HAS GOTTEN LOST IN A SNOWSTORM...

WASH!
WASH!

LOOK, SON... I'M AFRAID THIS TRAIN IS SNOWBOUND! MAYBE YOU'D BETTER BE ON YOUR WAY...

B-BUT, MY PAL, CAPTAIN EASY, IS SURE TO FIND ME BY MORNING, SIR!

HMM... THIS COMPLICATES THINGS...

WELL, NEVER LEAVE IT BE SAID THAT CONDUCTOR CANNONBALL KENNEDY THREW A PASSENGER TO THE WOLVES!

... THIS VENISON STEW IS DELICIOUS, CANNONBALL!

I KNOWS YOU'RE TIRED, SON! JES' CURL UP NEAR THE STOVE... BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO LEAVE THE TRAIN AT SUNUP!

A HALF HOUR LATER, A NERVOUS WASH SEES—

... HE'S TAKIN' FOOD INTO TH' BAGGAGE ROOM, WHERE 'ARCHDUKE JOSEF' IS SPOSED TO BE IN HIS COFFIN!

HOLY SMOKE! I HEAR VOICES 'IN THERE...

'ARCHDUKE JOE' CAN'T BE DEAD!

AT THIS MOMENT, EASY...

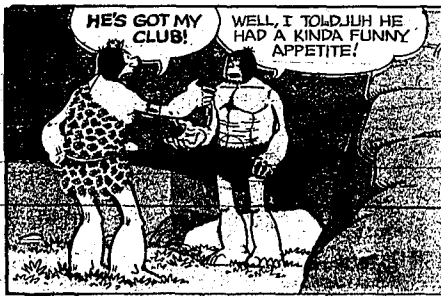

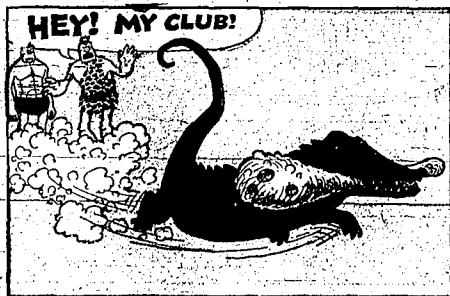

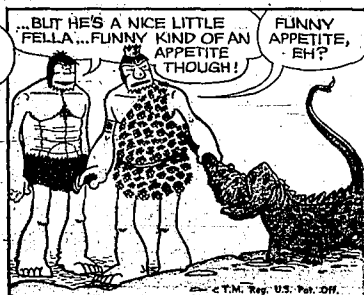

BLAZES! THERE'S SOME KIND O' SHACK, WITH LIGHTS!

HE'S ACROSS THE MIDFIELD STRIPE, SHRUGGING OFF TACKLERS...

HE'S DOWN TO THE TWENTY! THE FIFTEEN! THE TEN! THE FIVE...
