Residential Plan Envisions City Of Neighborhoods

By O. J. SMITH
Times-News Managing Editor

Tell an average Twin Falls resident there is anything wrong with his neighborhood and you've got an argument on your hands.

Most of the people who live in this attractive Southcentral Idaho city that sprouted out of the desert, like what they have and think that anyone who wants to live in any place else ought to have his head examined.

But the sad thing about it is that things aren't going to remain this way for very long unless something is done to get the city started on a sensible plan of development.

It is difficult to live in a place with which you are completely satisfied and be able to see the things that are leading to a pack of trouble in the not too distant future. So when city leaders became aware that everything might not be rosy and decided that something was going to have to be done to shake the city out of its self-complacent lethargy, they called in a group of outsiders to study the situation and recommend a plan for the future that would avoid the pitfalls towards which Twin Falls was headed.

A professional planning firm was hired, and an exhaustive survey of the city was made. Officials, businessmen and civic leaders were consulted—their ideas were noted, and what they felt was going wrong with the city, and what they felt must be accomplished to keep the city growing and prospering.

It wasn't too hard for an outsider to put a finger on a number of things that needed changing, and this group of outsiders—experts in the fields of city planning—came up with a comprehensive, overall plan to correct the situation.

That plan is nothing radical. It is made up of ideas that have successfully been used to rejuvenate and transform cities in other parts of the country. The plan is based on the same principles that Twin Falls, and the "ideas all are" based on making the most of what Twin Falls has.

For instance, take the plan for development of the residential areas—the planning of Howard, Hayes & Maryland, in consultation with Larry Smith & Co., recognized at the start "the fine character of Twin Falls' residential areas."

The problem, as they see it, is to retain this present fine character and "to ensure proper and adequate municipal services and facilities for residential areas," while achieving a suitable balance of density in order to provide a variety of residential types which will fit the city's needs.

The basic idea was to develop the residential area into neighborhoods, each with its own school, a suitable park area and with a traffic plan that will keep the bulk of heavy travel off the residential streets.

A number of policies were suggested to accomplish the basic goal of this purpose.

Greater flexibility in design and use of residential land through development of these planned neighborhoods.

A planned program in the older residential areas to prevent decay, blight and depreciation of land values, and in order to encourage improvement and maintenance of the areas.

A continuing program of civic beautification such as tree planting and other public measures, including a program for placing utilities underground.

Expansion of residential development in an outward, compact pattern.

Protection of residential areas devoted to single-family detached homes from any downgrading influence and from any decline in appearance. These areas should not be permitted to change in character by increased density of development or piecemeal modifications which would permit incompatible residential or nonresidential uses either in new buildings or by conversion of older buildings.

In older single family residential areas there should be a continued program of improvement, higher standards of maintenance, and a rebuilding program with emphasis on quality construction and appearance. This should apply particularly to the original lot lines.

Where areas were specifically designated for multiple family dwellings in the plan, it was recommended that residential areas immediately surrounding the city center and a proposed development area surrounding the golf course would be suitable for this purpose.

In order to retain the present residential character of areas being converted from single-family to more intensive use, it was recommended that multiple family dwellings should be subject to the following conditions:

1. Streets, utilities and public facilities serving the area should be adequate to handle increases in traffic and population.

2. Development should be permitted only on a group lot basis, rather than single lot, and only when the residential facilities are accompanied by adequate outdoor living and recreation space.

3. Each proposed development should be subject to approval by the City Commission after presentation of site plan and elevations.

4. Approval of a multiple family development should be based on the character of the area, and it will enhance or improve the general character of the area, and will not detract from or diminish the single family residential quality of the district in which it is to be located.

A trail of about 1,470 acres is designated for residential development. The boundaries of these residential neighborhoods follow main roads or natural features, as far as possible, and the area within these boundaries is assumed to have certain characteristics and features which could create a sense of community.

A landscaped parkway connects the various districts together. All new developments should be served with basic services, such as paved roads, sanitary sewers connected to the city sanitary sewer system, and water.

The plan urges that development in the area north of Falls Avenue be discouraged, while residential development south of Rock Creek be encouraged, to cure what has been an off-balance development of the city away from the city center.

Engine Plant Workers Are Back On Job

STRAITFORD, Conn. (AP) — Most striking production workers at Avco's Locomotive Division plant — a key producer of helicopter engines for the Vietnam war — reported back to work Monday under an order from a federal judge.

Judge William H. Timbers issued a 10-day restraining order earlier Monday in U.S. District Court against the union.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service announced in Washington that union and company negotiators will resume at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Stratford.

The announcement said Robert Moore, deputy director of the mediation service, and Commissioner John J. Morton of the New York office will participate in the talks.

Vietnamese Offer A New To Discuss Peace With Reds

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese offered anew today to talk peace with Communist North Vietnam and proposed that both sides pull their forces back to the demilitarized zone and de-escalate the war.

A U.S. spokesman said the South Vietnamese government discussed its proposal with U.S. officials before issuing it and the U.S. government welcomed the offer.

The South Vietnamese proposed peace talks amid continuing clashes in the northern provinces below the demilitarized zone and as 150,000 Saigon government troops launched a new drive in the Mekong Delta 42 miles southwest of the capital.

U.S. and South Vietnamese forces reported 90 of the enemy killed by ground forces and helicopter gunships in clashes near the northern border and four miles from Hue, the old imperial capital.

U.S. officials said some 10 were three killed and seven wounded, a spokesman said. Government casualties were reported light.

A Vietnamese spokesman said government forces killed 15 Viet Cong guerrillas in the initial hours of the new drive in the Mekong Delta while taking no casualties.

Along the central coastal plains, the spearheads of two Saigon divisions moved a linkup in a drive from the north and from the south to open up a long stretch of the vital coastal Highway 1.

The linkup will close the 37-mile stretch between the two coastal cities and extend the central coastal stretch in allied hands to a distance of 235 miles from Qui Nhon to Da Nang.

The drive, the South Koreans' biggest operation of the war, was launched in late April by 100,000 South Korean troops from the two divisions were deployed in 11,000 South Korean troops and captured 417.

The South Vietnamese peace offer was contained in a communique from the Foreign Ministry which welcomed peace.

The communique said the South Vietnamese government was prepared to discuss peace with the North Vietnamese government.

Normally the rear setback is 25 feet. The hearing will also consider sign regulations in the residential district.

Oregon Plane Crash Takes 3 Idahoans

OXBOW, Ore. (AP) — Three Oregon Idaho motel officials died Monday when a twin-engine plane crashed in Oxbow, Ore., after a flight from Boise, Idaho, to Coeur d'Alene. There were no survivors.

Victims of the crash were identified as Joe Jaeger, 50, of Oxbow; Lyn Butterfield, 54, of Oxbow; and Mrs. Louise Downing, 42, catering manager of the Sheraton Convention Center, all in Coeur d'Alene.

The three were returning to Coeur d'Alene after attending a motor hotel convention in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Idaho Aeronautics Director Clout Moulton said an unidentified shepherd saw the plane crash shortly before noon. After the crash, Sheriff Baker was notified, a Baker pilot flew over the scene and spotted the wreckage.

Gooding Citizens Alerted On Fires

GOODING — Between 100 and 150 Gooding residents, businessmen, farmers and townspeople — are planning to patrol the town tonight in an effort to stop a rash of fires which are termed by officials "definitely the work of arsonists."

Some 400-500 have been reported, since last Thursday and citizens of the town are alarmed, even though none of the fires has been major. Sheriff Verne Royce said Tuesday that "the people are cooperating 100 per cent."

Controversial Iowa Student Leader Leaves Campus

AMES, Iowa (AP) — The student government president who shook the crew-cut world of Iowa State University with his Castro-style beard and a new left political philosophy, has left the campus he planned to drag kicking and screaming into the 20th century.

Donald R. Smith withdrew from school Monday, a day before he was scheduled to appear before the Student Senate for an impeachment hearing demanded after he admitted attending a marijuana party. The admission apparently turned a part of the 15,000-member student body against him.

Smith, 21, rattled townsmen with his unorthodox views.

Iowa State University President W. Robert Parks, who had refused to comment about

Smith before, immediately announced an intensified probe of illegal use of drugs among ISU students.

Parks said, however, he felt probably "only a handful of students."

Smith, an engineering senior from Rockwell, Iowa, said he quit because the impeachment case had grown into a "smear campaign against me and my friends."

The decision drew mixed reactions.

One of Smith's sternest critics, State Sen. William J. Reichardt, D-Des Moines, commented: "Although I have disagreed with some of his actions, I am disappointed that he 'threw in the towel. He takes a stand and gets into the arena. My concern is for the wholesome young people that would let such a person represent them."

Another legislator said he was happy to see Smith leave.

"This ticks me," said State Rep. Charles Grassley, R-New Hartford. "It shows that the people are still running the university after all."

Mary Lou Lifka, sophomore from Berwyn, Ill., said she would be elevated from student vice president to the presidency.

She was Smith's running mate on a platform to abolish most university regulations outside the classroom. She vowed to continue Smith's program.

Smith, whose future plans were unknown, said he was "bitter," but added: "I have faith that others more suited than I to lead will take advantage of the present situation to build a strong and meaningful student government."

John D. Flatt

We doubt if any other man in the history of Magic Valley touched the lives of more youths than did John D. Flatt. As instructor and administrator for more than 38 years, associated in a field which deals with the lives of boys and girls at a time when such association means much in the time they have ahead of them.

John Flatt, did his job well. At the time of his death Saturday he was working with boys and girls who were sons and daughters of his students of other years. His life was a full life and the example he gave to others through the way he lived will long be remembered by those associated with him.

Flatt was another side to Mr. Flatt. He was "solid" administrator and had proved this to be a fact through the years he was principal of the Twin Falls High School and, at the time of his death, a city commissioner.

But to us he will be remembered as John D. Flatt, the man who has been hundreds throughout this broad land who feel the same way we do. At sometime in his life he had touched each of us and because of this all these lives had been enriched.

It is difficult to write a tribute about a man without sounding that the praise is being "poured on."

We can say what people thought of John Flatt in just a few words and then leave it there, because we are sure lots of people feel just like we do.

Time goes on—there will be another Flatt. His school and there will be another member of the Board of City Commissioners.

Someone, it is true, will take over the jobs which Mr. Flatt was doing so well when he died—but no one will ever replace him.

John Flatt was a man apart, a fellow who comes along only once in anyone's lifetime.

CHURCH TAXES
The controversial Bishop James Pike is at it again. Writing in the issue of Play of the month (a choice of publications that itself would have aroused a controversy a few years ago), the Episcopal prelate warns that "church wealth has become a menace and urges that we take care that every U.S. citizen could have his personal income tax significantly reduced and every homeowner could have his property tax abated."

Pike is not the first person to advocate church taxation, of course, but he is one of the first important churchmen to do so. And it is noteworthy that one of his views may be to some, including his fellow bishops, his attack on church wealth is motivated by concern "for the churches themselves, many of which are presently in danger of going the whole way of losing their souls."

Pike marshals an impressive array of statistics to back his case. Untaxed church property in the United States totals no less than $7.5 billion, which is nearly half the net worth of all real property in the five boroughs of New York City.

If taxed at current rates, this $7.5 billion would yield $4 billion in local taxes. It does not include vast sums invested in endowed monasteries or businesses operated for income.

Churches of all denominations are owners or part owners of countless businesses, says Pike, often in competition with the sleepkeeper down the street who so takes the business.

Pike does not call for a across-the-board tax on churches but only on property and income that are purely secular and money-motivated. He presents a formula for separating charitable and religious properties from those that are and should remain untaxed from those that are strictly secular and suggest a reasonable transitional period to help those churches which have become dependent upon their business investments.

Citing the numerous instances in history when church wealth grew so great that the state was forced to confiscate it, Pike fears that we are approaching such a situation in America. "If the churches do not learn this lesson," he writes, "they will have to learn it eventually in the most painful manner possible. Let the churches render unto Caesar what is Caesar's—before he comes to take it with a sword."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON — The White House is locking the door after the horse — and uncoupled millions of dollars in cash — have been stolen, but President Lyndon B. Johnson is not taking any ground whatsoever for the anti-poverty program would reduce the extent of the grand-larceny which has characterized the poverty war in many communities.

The White House has submitted to Congress a small truckload of amendments to the governing procedures of the Office of Economic Opportunity designed largely, I suppose, to deplore the Republicans of the House for their intransigent lives are unimportant if the new rules succeed in keeping some of the greener hands out of the public moneys.

President Johnson's most significant proposal is that every mayor be permitted to sit on the board that controls community action projects in his city. His plan also would limit membership of business, labor, religious and other interests. Among other things, it would place responsibility for the program on the shoulders of the mayor, who must answer for any shenanigans at the polls. It also would give a voice to citizens who, in the conduct of their businesses, are unaccustomed to participating in the more flamboyant adventures that have marked OEO's early operations.

TROUBLE IN GOTHAM — It is exciting to hope that the new procedures would apply a tighter even to the notorious and notorious New York City anti-poverty operations, although that public community action projects are the more notorious and notorious. Social workers that may be wholly responsible by a possible probably could clean it up.

However, Johnson's proposals might save a little for the poor in the city of New York. The Harlem anti-poverty agency, which for the past two years has been run like a thieves' den, has been accused of receiving cooperation of Mayor John Lindsay, the Body Beautiful, who in the past has been leery of offending even the most reactionary Negroes and has run down off to Staten Island for decapitation.

$1 MILLION IN RED — Lindsay or no in the financial repressive measures in Harlem. After 10 months of cautiously poking into the city's commissioner, Mario Procaccino, "discovered" that the $12.4 million Harjo-Act project spent hundreds of thousands of dollars without proper controls or accounting and that its first two years nearly $1 million in the red.

This is substantially what the Associated Press disclosed last spring. But, of course, politics is not the only reason why the Harjo-Act stands as an example of what happens when $12.4 million is handed over to so-called "representatives of the poor" to do with as they please. The project also owes commercial creditors at least $300,000, and Procaccino also found it had spent more than $700,000 on a project which was almost impossible to trace.

THEATER EQUIPMENT VANISHES — More than $25,000 was spent for "guard services," an item disallowed by Washington. Even so, nearly $20,000 worth of equipment disappeared. Harjo-Act also reportedly spent $100,000 on a project which should have gone to the federal government in withholding taxes. Then there was the $100,000 spent on a project which should have gone to the federal government in withholding taxes. Then there was the $100,000 spent on a project which should have gone to the federal government in withholding taxes.

Views Of Others
UNDESERVED SUBSIDY
The Washington State Legislature has elected to prolong a misguided and unneeded Washingtonians with a third-rate product simply because the product happens to be home-grown.

Washington wines, which are poor, cannot compete in the market place with California wines, many of which are excellent, and so the state has elected to subsidize the production of an artificial advantage for Washington wines. It has done this by requiring that all out-of-state wines be sold in Washington at a price which is equal to or higher than the price of the Washington wine, which apply a state markup, while Washington wines may be marketed directly to grocery stores without the state markup. The housewife who shops in a grocer often can buy a California wine in her grocery store, but she can't buy very many, and those that are available are not good enough to compete with up. So she has the choice of paying what amounts to a stiff excise tax for a decent wine or paying a stiff excise tax for a decent wine or paying a stiff excise tax for a decent wine.

YOUR STAKE IN THE BUDGET
How big a role do you play in keeping the massive wheels of federal government spinning? It's a good question this weekend at Income Tax Week.

Rep. Glenn Cunningham, a Nebraska Republican, has applied mathematics to President Johnson's budget. He says the budget "comes up" with bigging budgeting statistics that cross party lines.

For example, the spending rate under the 1967 budget is $21.2 billion every second of every minute of every hour.

Today And Tomorrow

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The American presidents at Punta del Este made a brave attempt at doing something about the poverty and the comparative backwardness of much of Latin America. One of the great phenomena of the recent past is that the industrialized countries, in North America, in Europe, in the Soviet Union and Japan, are becoming affluent societies. But there has been no such progress except sporadically here and there in South America.

Thus, the annual rate of growth in the industrially advanced countries has been 4 percent. But in the Latin-American countries it has been less than 2 percent. While the richer countries are growing richer, the poorer ones continue to remain very poor.

It is not surprising that this stubborn poverty has created an underlying revolutionary condition. This is especially true in Latin America and in the poorer countries. There has been some improvement. But while the Latin-American poor are not being removed from the poverty stricken, the spectacle of what is going on in the richer countries is generating all-over Latin-American development.

Poor Man's Plato
By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Retirement comes to some men as a crushing burden and a vast, bleak, empty void.

They are like a child on a rainy day; they don't know what to do with themselves. They might help if we had an advance of that farewell dinner with their colleagues, they would get a lot of help, and consider whether any reward worth carrying out.

Such a list is surprisingly vast. It might include a foreign Legion or a Rotary Club. Become the living idol of a neighborhood. Plant a garden, grown a beard, or work a toupee.

The Doctor Says
By DERMAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
"I have still, ugly hairs growing on my chin. What does that mean and what can be done about it?"

"This is a common problem. If the color of the unwanted hair matches that of the rest of your skin they would not be conspicuous, and hence not too bothersome. If the hairs are darker than your skin they can be bleached with hydrogen peroxide. Short-wave diathermy has been used to remove hairs, but the results are usually disappointing. The simplest treatment is to shave them off. This will not, as was once believed, cause the hairs to become coarser. Chemical depilatories irritate the skin and, if left on for more than a few minutes, may cause a burning rash in a circular area. It is better not to use them on your face. The only way to get rid of these hairs permanently is by electrolysis. This is a hair care procedure which uses a fine needle to stimulate the hair cells. It is a good-but-it-is-sometimes-messy procedure. It is a good-but-it-is-sometimes-messy procedure. It is a good-but-it-is-sometimes-messy procedure.

Childs Views Today's Issues

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — If a quick sampling of attitudes in the midwest and in California has any meaning most Americans today are pro-peace and anti-war. They are in the face of rising prices. The war in Vietnam is a long way off and they wish it would go away.

The sensitive nerve is the threat of ever higher taxes. Not only the government but the city councilmen face implacable hostility at even a hint that taxes, and in the case of the property taxes, must be raised to meet expanding needs. Bond issues to build schools and fill other needs are repeatedly voted down.

But another phenomenon that has been going on in California is that people fairly falls to draw a response. This is the alienation of the young generation. It is a segment of it. How large is this segment and how permanent is the alienation no one seems to know.

The casual visitor to Hillpland, the farthest out center of the world in the Haight-Ashbury District of San Francisco, looks in vain for a common thread of means. The young people parading up and down the street in every kind of outlandish costume really representing the total alienation from a society they constantly proclaim as corrupted. Or is it exhibitionism, these men with frothy beards, masses of tousled hair, dangling earrings from their ears, and long, flowing, colorful garments, sandals and feet being universal?

Unsmiling children trailing their parents, and in the saddest aspect of what at times looks like a human zoo. The "hippies" are not only daily two-hour "hipple hop" for tourists through Haight-Ashbury. The timid, who may fear causing a disturbance, are assured that the bus will pause but not come to a halt in the middle of Hillpland.

Both in downtown San Francisco and in Haight-Ashbury, the young people are leaflets calling for participation in the "spring mobilization" against the Vietnam war. San Francisco buzzes with rumors of a great hippie count down to be held in the city on the summer. You can hear almost any figure from 2,000 to 200,000 reported "converging on the city for the average citizen, the tax driver is any simple, bold waverer.

Interpreting The News
By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the myths of American life is the sanctity of free, collective bargaining. It has been protected and encouraged — until the going gets too rough. It gets too rough when there is danger of a strike that would shut down an industry vital to American health, welfare, or security. To President Johnson, it is not a question of whether it is to be protected and encouraged — until the going gets too rough.

It gets too rough when there is danger of a strike that would shut down an industry vital to American health, welfare, or security. To President Johnson, it is not a question of whether it is to be protected and encouraged — until the going gets too rough.

Apparently hoping these emergency strike threats won't come along, Congress has tried to pass anti-strike legislation. But it has failed. The House has passed anti-strike legislation. But it has failed. The House has passed anti-strike legislation. But it has failed.

One of them occurred this week when President Johnson asked Congress to pass legislation forbidding a railroad strike for 30 days, or until May 3.

If there is a settlement between six railroad craft unions and the country's major railroads, the pattern it has adopted for years' don't do anything until the next big strike comes.

But the population is increasing. It is, therefore, wise to avoid the use of a brush with sharp synthetic bristles. It is doubtful that vitamin E would benefit your hair. Avoidance of the aforementioned factors is important. Female hair growth is controlled by the hair growth but the dosage should be carefully controlled. Creams for external application that contain corticosteroids have been disappointing.

All-Volunteer Army Refuted By Kennedy

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says he opposes an all-volunteer army because "it would lead to an all-black army."

Kennedy expressed his view Monday night during a question and answer period after a speech to a Northwestern University student audience entitled "Europe and the next generation."

The Massachusetts Democrat is chairman of a Senate subcommittee studying recommendations made to President Johnson for changes in the present draft system. Kennedy was one of the early proponents of a lottery to select men for military service. Kennedy, who was warmly received by more than 1,000 students in a jammed campus auditorium, spoke about the draft in answer to a petition calling for an all-volunteer army and a end to the draft.

David Mason, a Northwestern student, read the petition which he said was signed by 80 students and faculty members.

The senator asked for hands of students who favored the petition. About 100 hands were raised among the coeducational audience. He asked, "how many would volunteer?" No hands went up.

"I don't know who these people are who are going to volunteer," Kennedy said, "unless these people come from the lower economic levels." Kennedy said an army of poor people would be "unacceptable to me."

He said after long study of the question he is convinced "an all-volunteer army would lead to an all-black army and this is totally unacceptable."

In his 35-minute speech Kennedy suggested guidelines for future American policy in Europe and said the key is a detente with the Soviet Union in which European countries can freely join.

Woman Dies In Miami Hotel Fire

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fire broke out in a downtown Miami hotel this morning, killing one woman and severely burning an elderly man.

Police said the top floor of the three-story Haven Hotel burst into flames about 1:50 a.m., trapping more than a dozen sleeping guests in their rooms.

Officers said when they arrived some were hanging from window sills and others screaming for help. Firemen picked up people off the walls with ladders, said a police sergeant.

Final Community Concert Is Termed Best Of Series

By MRS. MARSHALL LEDBETTER

The adage "save the best for the last" was borne out in scheduling the concert of Benno and Sylvia Rabinovs as the final performance of the current Community Concert series.

Monday night's audience at O'Leary auditorium heard a violinist and a pianist whose ensemble would be hard to surpass in Beethoven's "Sonata in C Major, Opus 51, No. 3" and Schubert's "Fantasie in C major, Opus 159."

Mr. Rabinovs' technical command of the violin falls in the stellar classification. Lightning runs, notes high on the fingerboard and technical pyrotechnics in general were all taken in stride as he played the Paganini showpiece "La Strada," Fritz Kreisler's "Viennese Caprice" and "Chinese Tambourine" are often played, and more often than not, they are done without too much artistry.

There was no lack of artistry in Mr. Rabinovs' treatment of them. It was like giving a pair of old chestnuts a fresh coat and restoring all of the real flavor to them.

Sylvia Rabinovs proved to be an excellent pianist with great strength and verve in her solo performance of Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre."

There was a very personal touch in her encoroes which were improvisations based on the first names of two children in the audience. Kathy was translated to "CABBC," on which notes she improvised a Nocturne. Glenn was translated "GAEEE" with the G sharpened, and for this she created a mazurka. It was a delight not only to the children, but to the audience as a whole.

Even after a lengthy concert,

Mr. Rabinovs was generous with his encoroes. He played a wonderfully whirling "Spinning Song," Beethoven's "Chorus of Dervishes" and Schubert's "Ave Maria."

CLOSED HEARING SET

CALDWELL (AP) — Canyon County Probate Judge Lloyd C. McClintock said Tuesday news reports that the hearing for two boys in connection with the death of a Nampa man.

The hearing is scheduled for Friday in probate court. Judge

DEAR ABBY: I am employed by a professional man who speaks a foreign language that I neither speak nor understand. Although he and his wife both speak English very well, when he calls her on the phone I am sitting there working but will very often switch to that other language. This is most irritating to me.

I told him once that I would be glad to stop out of his office when he is conversing with his wife, but he said it wasn't necessary. I am not interested in what they have to say to each other, but I think it is very rude, don't you? What should I do?

DEAR IRRITATED: Unless you are deliberately trying to tune in on his conversations with his wife (which you obviously are), what he says (and in whatever language) is none of your business. Eavesdropping is also "rude," — me?

DEAR ABBY: I have a son, my only child who is the proud owner of a very beautiful home. When my son lived alone he gave me the key to his home. He often entertained my friends there. Since he has married, I have continued to do so when my son and his wife were out of town.

His wife has now told me that she would "rather" — that I did not use her home in this way. I feel that she has no right to forbid me as it is my son's home and as his mother I am entitled to be there whenever I please.

Shouldn't my son insist that his wife say no more about it?

INDIGNANT

DEAR INDIGNANT: No, No! No! that he is married, it is his wife's home as well as his. If you wish to remain on friendly terms with your son and his wife, don't ask your son to "insist" on anything. Entertain your friends in your own home. Mother, and say no more about it.

DEAR ABBY: I am 45 and unmarried and just started to work in a factory. All the employees eat their lunches together. They don't have a lunchroom where one-pup-eating-places we all bring our own lunches and they give us a lunchroom to eat in.

I noticed a very nice looking

McClintock said only law-enforcement officers and the boys' families will be present.

The boys, 12 and 14, were taken into custody under provisions of the Idaho Youth Rehabilitation Act.

Accusations Are Made In Custody Case

TOKYO (AP)—North Korea accused Japan today of a "vicious scheme" to give the United States custody of a Korean American soldier who has taken refuge in the Cuban Embassy in Tokyo.

The North Korean Central News Agency reported in an editorial in the Pyongyang newspaper Minjoo Chosun praising Cuba for granting asylum to Kim Kenneth C. Griggs of Boise, Idaho, a Korean war orphan who was adopted by a Boise couple.

Griggs disappeared while on leave in Tokyo from Vietnam. Last week the Cuban Embassy said he had asked asylum April 3 and was living at the embassy. The Cubans asked Japan to grant him safe conduct out of the country.

The Japanese refused, saying they do not recognize the right of a diplomatic mission to grant asylum. The U.S. Embassy said Griggs was absent without leave (AWOL) and asked for custody of him. The Cuban Embassy turned down a Japanese request that Griggs be handed over to the Tokyo police.

"It is entirely justified in the light of international law and international practice for Cuba to comply with his request and protect him," Minjoo Chosun said.

The paper said the Japanese government's stand "once again shows that Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's government will slip to anything, ignoring international law and practice, to serve the U.S. master."

It said "U.S. imperialists... look away Kim Jin Suh (the soldier's Korean name) from South Korea under the name of 'adopted child' and dragged him out to the Vietnam war after driving him hard in the United States."

Constitution Convention Drive Slows

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some steam appears to be leaking from drives in state legislatures for a constitutional convention on the Supreme Court's one-man-one-vote reapportionment decision.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, telling a news conference a month ago that 32 states had petitioned Congress for a convention, predicted there would be petitions from two more.

The Constitution says Congress shall call a convention on application from two-thirds of the states.

But since Dirksen's prediction, the only state whose legislature has taken any significant action is Alaska. Its Senate rejected April 8 a petition-resolution that had passed the House.

A resolution which passed the Iowa House earlier in the year remains locked up in a State Senate committee, its chances of getting out are dim. Democrats control the Iowa Senate and Democratic Gov. Harold E. Hughes is opposed to the resolution.

GALE HOSKOVEC, center, DICK MILLER, left, and BRYAN BERRY, right, are Boys State Delegates sponsored by the Hagerman American Legion Post. The boys are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hoskovec, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Berry.

If you want a great whisky, ask for it.

The Canadian Clubman's Code: Rule 3.

Don't expect the bartender to read your mind. If you want a really great whisky, just say "Canadian Club, please."

That way you can't help but get the lightness of Scotch and the smooth satisfaction of Bourbon. No other whisky tastes quite like Canadian Club.

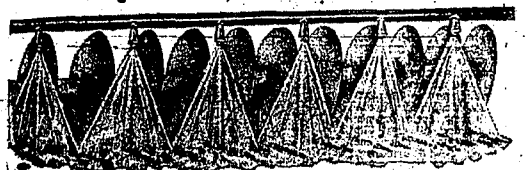

Next time you're in a bar or restaurant, practice the Canadian Clubman's Code, Rule 3: if you want a great whisky, ask for it.

LOGIC SHOWS KILLING LEAD

North didn't know exactly to bid after his partner's was spade response. He thought of jumping right to six and gam-

It was a matter of drawing inferences from the bidding. He started by reconstructing North hand as exactly what it was—seven clubs, five spades and a singleton red card. Then he started on South. South obviously held two aces and was probably short in clubs. That meant that South obviously would be long in both red suits and would not be using Blackwood without the king of one and the ace of the other. South could not hold the diamond king. Hence he would hold the diamond ace.

This was enough of an inference but there was a second one. East might have doubled five diamonds if he held that ace. Thus all inferences pointed to the heart lead.

Someone To Say 'No' Can Help You Grow

Walk to the mirror. Nod your head. Notice that framed guy doing the same. Lift your hand. Again he copies your action. If you're the talent, wiggle your ears and still he duplicates you.

Point proved: There are very few people who are better than you. Now let us introduce you to another character. Meet the "Devil's Advocate." This fellow is the mirror image of you. If you say "the sun is up," he'll insist you "prove it." Should you exclaim that "teachers are unfair?" He'll demand that you demonstrate your students should receive any better treatment than they do.

In other words he puts someone you dislike on trial. Nothing is accepted on faith because "you're such a rook guy."

Question: which companion can prove a bigger help to you? The fellow who mirrors you or the mirror-reversal fellow? The slightest statement or the guy who challenges you to prove your logic and substantiate your words?

Answer: there's a time and a place for both in your life. But you're really poor if you've a company of "yes men" and no "Devil's Advocate." The mirror-reversal fellow backs only what you give them. There is no challenge to dig beneath superficialities. If you allow yourself to be conched by these folks, you're dead the minute someone challenges you. It's that simple. You would be like Cassius Clay training with a 5-year-old sparring partner. He wouldn't be in condition for a real fighter to beat.

The "Devil's Advocate" makes you dig. His challenges help you uncover the flaws in your philosophy. The weak places in your arguments. A friend who can (and will) assume your role, grids you for combat.

A NECESSARY ROLE

At times you owe it to your friends to assume the "Devil's Advocate" stance. Situation: Tim is in the midst of World War-3 with his parents. He complains about their behavior, the new restrictions, the aliced allowance. You sympathize, but you suspect he's bribed his agreed home tasks, broke a cyrfe almost nightly, and scented watering cars and still he duplicates you. You pat him on the head and agree that parents are beasts? Or do you do him a greater favor by challenging him to prove why he should get better treatment? The virtue of the "Devil's Advocate." If you're slow, start by saying "you know how I feel about you. But suppose we pretend we're not best friends for a minute—and act like prosecuting attorney and Perry Mason. Let's see how you'd handle this."

You clearly state what you're up to, and you—reassure him at the onset of the wrath of your affection. If he starts to get hot under the collar, give him a time-out. If he starts to get hot under the collar, give him a time-out. If he starts to get hot under the collar, give him a time-out.

bling that South would hold five trumps to the ace. Then he decided to take a sure profit and merely raised to four spades.

South had a perfect hand to go into Blackwood and when North showed one ace only, South went to six spades.

North might well have passed at this point but North was rather ashamed of his cowardice in only bidding four spades earlier. North was sure that his partner would hold the ace of trumps—and one other ace—if it were in hearts, seven would

BURLEY — Students of Magic Valley Christian College, Albion, ended a week-long celebration of Western Days at the campus by the team captains of the Toastmistress Club, Burley, to Burley on a bed pushed by members of the losing team. Moyers Says Rockefeller Best GOP Bet

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill D. Moyers, who directed President Johnson as White House press secretary, thinks Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller will be the "most difficult" Republican candidate for Johnson to beat in 1968. Rockefeller would give Moyers "the toughest time," Moyers said, because the governor has the support of Negro and moderate voters Johnson won in 1964. Moyers, who left the White House last night at a meeting of the Society of Sierrans, an organization of former newsmen, said that Rockefeller would be the "most difficult" Republican candidate for Johnson to beat in 1968. Interstate Highways To Get Attention

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's highway building efforts are to be concentrated on interstate highways where the ratio of federal to state money is high. That was the decision of the Idaho Highway Board at its meeting Monday in Boise. The board was told by State Highway Engineer Ellis Statton that the State Department of Highways construction budget for the coming two years is $37.9 million, some $900,000 less than the last biennium. The board decided that planned construction projects — particularly primary and secondary roads — would have to be cut by $11 million as a result of the drop in funds. Planning had been based on a one-cent per gallon increase in the state motor fuel tax, expected to raise $3.5 million in state funds to match $14 million in federal funds. The motor fuel tax increase was voted down by the 1967 Idaho Legislature.

Laws Affecting Lawmaking Process Were Enacted By 1967 Legislature

BOISE (AP) — Laws affecting the lawmaking process were enacted by the 1967 Idaho Legislature. The goal was more efficient legislative sessions. Principal accomplishment was a law which will require the legislators who are elected in November, 1968, to assemble in the first Monday in December the first Monday in October of that year. The session will elect a speaker of the House and a president pro-tem of the Senate, and will organize committees. The parties will choose their majority and minority leaders. With that machinery established, the legislature will be in position for introduction of bills, and measures may be submitted prior to convening of the regular session, the first Monday after the New Year's Day holiday. In the first week of the regular session, bills could be in position for consideration by committees and perhaps for action on the floor. Under present procedure little legislation is enacted the first two or three weeks. While in session they collect the $10 per day salaries — for not more than 60 days — plus expense allowances of $25 per day. The 1967 session, which ran 89 days, approved a bill which would have increased the expense allowance to $23 after the 60th day. Samuelson vetoed it. Permitted by Gov. Don W. Samuelson to become law without his signature was a bill boosting compensation of the members of the 1967 legislature. They will receive $3.50 per day throughout their terms, except while they are in session. The 1967 session also revised the budget-making procedure to make spending — reflect — programs. A check on state spending will be maintained continually during the next biennium by the new Legislative Council, Budget and Fiscal Committee. The agency has authority to subpoena officials and records of departments, if it needs them to explain certain expenditures. This committee will review budget requests and have information ready for Senate Finance and House Appropriations subcommittees, which will draft the spending bills. Through its session, the 1967 Legislature was concerned with the pay of its members. A District Pinewood Derby also was submitted as a proposed constitutional amendment. The latter would eliminate the $10 per day salary for legislators. Substituted would be authority for the legislature to set pay of its members, but any change would not be effective until the session following that at which it was approved.

The events were held at school with the students participating before school, between classes and during the lunch period. The money will be turned over to the Easter Seal Center in Twin Falls.

Censure Or Condemnation May Be Sen. Thomas Dodd's Punishment

By WALTER R. MEARS
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee has tentatively decided that censure or condemnation — and possibly both — is the punishment it will recommend for Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, sources close to the panel report.
 Meeting privately in a hideaway office at the Capitol, the bipartisan committee which investigated misconduct charges against the Connecticut Democrat, has abandoned all other possible forms of rebuke, these sources said.
 Earlier this month it was reported the committee would recommend neither expulsion nor exoneration of Dodd. The final Senate makes the final decision.

The six-member Select Committee on Standards and Conduct resumes its secret deliberations today, which one source said are reaching the climactic stage.
 The committee reportedly is still debating which term — censure or condemn — is the stronger and whether the stronger should be used.
 "I have represented them effectively and honestly," Dodd could not be reached for comment on the latest report of committee deliberations. New York Times as well, thus receiving double reimbursement. Dodd has blamed this on a bookkeeper's error, which he accused of sloppy work.
