Surveyor 3's Photos Indicate It May Be On Top Of Moon Crater

By RALPH DIGHTON PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 3's first glare-blurred photos taken from the crater rim in a lunar crater after a gentle touchdown in an area about 200 miles away may explore.

While the three-legged craft kept its moon-scratching claw retracted, spacecraft controllers on Wednesday told the probe to take photos of the surface in more than 100 hours after the landing.

Wednesday's photos show a surface that is strong enough to support a man's landing. The soil is expected to indicate if the surface is more or less sandy or gravelly.

Photos taken after each of its coded at 7:04 p.m. EST Wednesday after a braking rocket slowed its 6,000-mile-per-hour descent.

The 16-foot-long vehicle settled on the surface with a 10- to 12-m.p.h. impact, land started its camera about an hour later.

between the 620-pound craft and the horizon.

Readings from strain gauges on the vehicle's landing gear indicated, however, that it came to rest gently and did not tilt. The main problem seemed to be glare from the sun, coming in at a sunrise slant from the east and reflecting from the spacecraft's surfaces into the mirror that enables the upward-pointing camera to photograph the soil beneath it.

Surveyor 3's 65-hour flight across a quarter-million miles Wednesday after a braking rocket slowed its 6,000-mile-per-hour descent.

The 16-foot-long vehicle settled on the surface with a 10- to 12-m.p.h. impact, land started its camera about an hour later.

The first pictures were made up of 200 scan lines. There are nearly 600 on home television sets.

Later, 600-line pictures were televised but glare continued to view much detail.

The 200-line pictures were transmitted with power supplied by a battery aboard the craft. The 600-line pictures came from a higher-power antenna with additional current provided by the craft's solar panels came into play. The solar panels convert sunlight into electricity.

Picture-taking was stopped at 5 a.m. EST when the earth station carried the receiving station at nearby Goldstone, Calif., out of view of the moon.

Transmission was scheduled to begin again about 6 p.m. EST.

Tan Party

San Francisco (AP) — Dorothy Shinder, protesting taxation, staged the Great San Francisco Ten-Fair Wednesday using empty boxes marked "tax."

Mrs. Shinder, a spinster who contends unmarried persons should not be taxed more than married ones, disguised herself as an Indian (like her Boston predecessors), boarded a boat, and said to about a dozen like-minded spinsters: "When I give the signal, you dump the boxes in the bay. But wait—until the camera gets you." She meant the television and news cameras, for which the whole thing was performed.

Airliner Crashes In Cyprus Leaving 128 Persons Dead

(See Photo on Page 1) — NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Rescuers collected 128 burned bodies today on the slopes of a hillside where a Boeing Bristol Britannia airliner crashed during a thunderstorm. The airliner said two of four survivors died in a hospital, bringing the total dead to 128.

In one of the worst crashes in aviation history, the four-engine jetliner crashed near Nicotia during the night as it attempted to land. There were reports the plane had been hit by lightning.

Most of the dead were German and Swiss tourists returning from a trip to the Far East. The plane's crew included four Britons, all killed.

"This is the most terrible place some of them in pieces." The survivors were in the plane's tail section, the only part which remained somewhat intact.

"We kept looking but all we could find apart from those who died in the crash were dead people," the rescuer said.

Greek and Cypriot policemen held bodies, British airmen and U.N. forces. Four members worked in a downpour under spotlight beams down by hovering U.N. helicopters.

The plane was flying from Bombay, India, to Cairo, Egypt, with 128 passengers and crew. It was last seen because of bad weather.

The owner, Globalair of Switzerland, said it heard from an air control tower in Nicotia that the plane was struck by lightning and burst into flames.

Explosions were heard and indicated the plane "hit a bump" in the ground, then bounced a few hundred yards in the air, and a hill less than 100 feet high.

"I was watching the plane and engines lay scattered in a square-mile area around the impact points of the broken fuselage.

Aviation's worst disaster was the collision of a United Airlines DC8 jet and a Trans World Airlines Superconstellation over a Staten Island, New York, Dec. 1966. It killed 141 persons, including six on the ground. There have been four other crashes in which more than 150 persons were killed.

Annual Meet Of Sawtooth Forest Opens

Thirty-three members of the Sawtooth National Forest, including Supervisor Max Rice, his principal assistants and district rangers, met Thursday at the City Hall for the first day of a two-day annual rangers meeting to discuss problems, exchange ideas and form policies for the coming year.

Ray Clark, recreation specialist from the regional office, Ogden, discussed recreation information management. Rice and the National Forest recreation management plan and recreation area planning, Thursday.

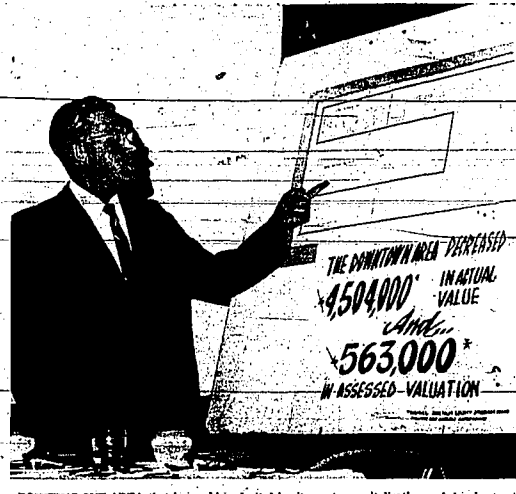

He explained RIM tabulations of visitor use on forest land. The Forest Service is developing a computer program which more clearly breaks down area by visitors, interest categories and other factors. He said the program will give information for a data bank to be used for future developing recreation.

David "Milk" Gustafson, Wildlife Management, Ogden, reviewed the annual control program and outlined the role of the Fish and Wildlife Service personnel, landowners, hunters and rodents. He emphasized that use of poisons would be more rigidly controlled.

The Thursday afternoon program included a discussion by Neil Dymond, regional safety officer, Ogden, on the National Forest Safety Program, a review and analysis of forest fires, and a presentation conducted a question period.

Bill Platts, zone fisheries biologist, discussed the fishery resource and management problems and opportunities.

Negro Pastor Deplores King's Action

CHICAGO (AP) — Civil rights marchers snarled out of the West Side slum areas and raves, brawns and grass seeds in white suburbs with Dr. Martin Luther King, says a Negro pastor today.

The Rev. Henry Mitchell, minister of the North Star Mission Baptist Church, made the comment at a church service Wednesday night which he also suggested that King "is the enemy of here."

The minister, whose church is in a West Side slum area enclosed from an apartment King uses as a Chicago headquarters, said marches led by King and his associates in white neighborhoods are "a last summer 'created' hate."

Charges Pending In Gooding Arson Case

GOODING—Charges of arson are expected to be filed Thursday afternoon against a Gooding policeman. Police Chief Chet Floyd said today, Joe Keyser, 42, was taken into custody about 2 a.m. Thursday at the Gooding County fairgrounds after a fire was reported there.

Floyd said the fire, which started in a building, destroyed identified him as the man seen at the site of the fire. Chief Floyd was conferring with Pros. Atty. Andrew James Thursday noon and investigation was continuing.

Flames broke out at the fairgrounds was one of two occurring Wednesday night. The other was at a private residence about 11:25 p.m. The two brought in 15 the number of fires in the area since last Thursday. No one was injured in none of the blazes got out of control.

To own a person, businessman and farmers have been assisting in the fire. The number of fires and the past few nights intensive patrolling of the city streets had kept the fires to a minimum.

Chief Floyd said people have cooperated 100 per cent in city arson case. See ARSON CASE, Page 2, Col. 2.

Judge Asserts New Facilities Must Be Built

Twin Falls County Commissioners were reminded Thursday in a letter from Eleventh Judicial District Judge Theron Ward that they have a legal obligation to provide housing for an additional district judge in Twin Falls by July 1.

County Chairman Heber Dooghammer, he quoted House Bill 22, which changes the present law to require the construction of the fifth judicial district stipulates that two judges shall hold court in Twin Falls.

The law plainly states the county officials must provide quarters for the new judge at whatever cost.

Copies of the letter were sent county officials including the prosecuting attorney, sheriff and county clerk.

County commissioners have a vetoed a plan for erecting a new building to house the present county courthouse and hope to have it ready by the July 1 deadline.

Judge Ward commented that certainly if the commissioners are making an effort with some construction or remodeling under way, it would be possible to work out a solution.

Million-Dollar Expansion Of Department Store Considered

Prospects for a million-dollar expansion of J. C. Penney's department store in Twin Falls were disclosed Wednesday night when the declared and a new store in the city.

John Price Associates, Salt Lake City, Penney's landlord here.

Mr. Price, speaking at a meeting of downtown property owners, tenants and community officials, said that Penney's had expressed a need to quadruple its space in the Twin Falls facility.

The present store now provides 23,000 square feet of floor space. The new store would have a minimum of 50,000 square feet of space is envisioned.

Penney's has expressed a sincere desire to be of better service in the community," Mr. Price said. "I would like to expand and stay in the downtown area."

John Price Associates purchased the property on which the Penney store is located about two years ago.

"Our interest was just as investors," Mr. Price asserted. "We felt there was a good economic base here, in a good community."

Speaking of expansion to meet Penney's desires, he added, "We are prepared to purchase the property needed for expansion at a fair value and are prepared to invest our own dollars."

He said his firm was anticipating an investment of $500,000 to possibly $1 million in this project.

Mr. Price's remarks capped a meeting during which the comprehensive plan for development see EXPANSION, Page 2, Col. 4.

Castro Says U.S. In Panic Over Activity

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro charged Wednesday night that the government in a panic over revolutionary activity in the neighborhood of the Bay of Pigs, Venezuela, has sent in 1,000 Green Berets troops.

As an impromptu news conference in Panama disguised as tourists, but he said the lesson of the Bay of Pigs invasion has been unable to destroy revolution.

Imperialist Green Beret troops, he said, are "participating in movements will answer with force."

Mr. Castro declared in a two-hour speech celebrating the sixth anniversary of the Bay of Pigs invasion.

"The only road for the people of Latin America is that revolution is the only way to free their markets from a plot to buy raw materials at cheaper prices, he charged.

U.S. Jets Bracket Haiphong In Attacks

By GEORGE MCARTHUR SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Navy jets bracketed Haiphong with bombing attacks today on two electric power plants in the city, 110 miles northeast of the port city's commercial center. These were the closest raids ever made to the heart of Haiphong, through which North Vietnam receives via the Cau Cam River seaborne supplies that help it to carry on the Vietnam war.

A U.S. spokesman implied that the city itself was not hit. He said the closer target was separated by a dredged waterway from the city proper and the other, a power plant on the south bank of the Cau Cam River, was outside the city limits.

Clearing weather over North Vietnam opened the way for the raid, similar to strikes last June and last August by Haiphong and Hanoi that stirred up international controversy.

Rep. Diggs Is Robbed In Miami Bar

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., D-Mich., lost his wallet, watch and a diamond ring in a robbery in a bar while waiting for a plane to Bimini.

Diggs' traveling companion, a police officer, said Diggs was robbed in a bar in a downtown area today while waiting for a plane to Bimini.

June 15 Is Target Date On CSI Ground Breaking

June 15 remains target date for ground breaking, as working drawings and specifications for Phase One of College of Southern Idaho campus construction continues nearly on schedule.

Ed Jones, campus planner and architect, said date for occupancy has been set for the fall of 1968.

Mr. Jones, speaking Wednesday night during a special trustee meeting, said plans soon will be ready to send to the federal government for approval, and that the project is continuing "nearly on schedule."

Government approval of the plans is a necessary portion of the time-table, because the government is to participate in the project on a monetary basis.

The nearly five-hour session Wednesday night covered all phases of plans for construction and development necessary for the first two major buildings on the campus. An academic building and the fine arts center will have the distinction of being the first for CSI.

During this past week consulting engineers and architects have been making the final coordination of their plans.

Among systems displayed in detail Wednesday night were the mechanical heating, cooling, etc.; electrical lighting systems; both interior and exterior; water, sewage and paving plans; final architectural plans, and landscaping.

Total construction cost is estimated to be $3,300,000 for all first phase work. Much of the cost will be covered by federal aid. See DATE SET, Page 2, Col. 5.

Big Soviet Space Launch Imminent

MOSCOW (AP) — Unconfirmed reports circulating here indicate that the Soviet space launching is imminent.

Usually reliable sources say Soviet officials have been warned to expect "a spectacular and significant" space venture this weekend or early next week.

There was conflicting speculation here on whether the launch would be manned, but an agreement that it was proposed to be new and important. Soviet space plans never are kept secret in advance.

It has been more than two years since the Soviets last sent a man into space, on March 18, 1965, when Alexei A. Leonov took the first walk in space.

Officials Back Refusal To End Bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The SEATO Foreign Ministers Council today supported the U.S. refusal to end the bombing of North Vietnam unless there is a scaling down of military planes from the U.S. 7th Fleet to the Vietnam war.

A communique issued by the council, concluding its 12th annual session, declared that "reciprocity is an essential element of any acceptable proposal for reduction in the bombing."

The U.S. delegation group making up SEATO — the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization — also boycotted the conference because of a new warning against Communist dangers in the general area of Southeast Asia.

"Communist aggression, both overt and by subversion, infiltration and terrorism, accompanied by vicious propaganda, remains a major threat to the peace and security of the area."

Three New Recreation Areas Envisioned In Twin Falls Future Plans

If there is one attraction that stands out above all others as an inducement for a person to live in Twin Falls, it is the quantity and quality of recreational opportunities.

Whether you are a golfer, team-sportsman, outdoorsman or just enjoy strolling in the shade at a quiet park, Twin Falls has the facilities in abundance.

There was no credit problem for the planners to solve in this category, but they did not ignore the fact that normal growth of the city will require expanded facilities, as will the increasing amount of leisure time that people are beginning to find themselves with each passing year.

Non-comprehensive plan for growth and development of a community would be complete without provisions for adequate recreational facilities.

Surveying Twin Falls and the immediate surrounding area, the planners came up with three proposals for recreational facilities that can only draw the comment from most people, "Why haven't we done this a long time ago."

One proposal is to develop a city park in Rock Creek Canyon to provide for recreational riding and hiking and other similar forms of recreation.

They recognized that the natural character of the area should be preserved and that methods would have to be worked out for impounding flood waters before any permanent facilities could be constructed.

A second suggestion is to concentrate the new parks through the residential areas.

Generally known as "green belts," these parkways, in many cases, would take advantage of existing water courses, such as Internals and Perrine Coulee. The system would provide walkways between the various residential areas and the schools.

The third proposal is to develop the canyon rim along the south side of Snake River as a park for public use, making particular use of scenic outlooks.

These three new facilities would be in addition to expansion of existing neighborhood parks and the establishment of new parks of this type.

Purpose of the neighborhood parks, as outlined in the study, is to provide a general recreation facilities including playing fields and landscaped open space, suitable to serve the surrounding residential area within one-half mile walking distance.

Paved neighborhood park expansion includes:

1. A new park adjacent to a proposed school site and parkway near Madonna Street, between Addison Avenue and Park.
2. An addition to Harrison Park, allow the present park to be expanded into a more usable area and provide space for additional recreational facilities. A parkway would connect Harrison Park to Harrison Elementary School.
3. An addition to Harry Barry Park, which now occupies a small elementary school site.
4. An addition to Sunrise Park, adjacent to a proposed new school site and connected with the Rock Creek recreational area by a parkway.

As concerned, the study notes that the city is well served with school facilities at present, and in general the location of most of the schools is good.

As residential growth proceeds, more facilities will be required, including extensions of existing schools and construction of new ones. The two new ones suggested in connection with the park facilities would serve neighborhood communities in which no school of the type is presently located.

Other public facilities included in the plan include two fire stations, one existing and one relocated, and a city hall.

It is proposed that the main fire station be relocated from Second Avenue South to the City Hall block, to be fitted into an overall redesigning of the area.

No change was proposed for the fire station on Falls Avenue.

As to the City Hall, it was felt the site is adequate in size to accommodate city administration and other local government functions for many years. It was recommended, however, that a precise city hall site plan be prepared to provide a sound basis for long term development of the area.

Other public facilities included in the plan include two fire

American Troops Destroy Everything Of Use To Enemy Along Main Route

By JOHN T. WHEELER. — Vietnam (AP) — The Vietnamese woman ignored the crying baby in her arms. She stared in hatred as the American infantrymen with shotgun-blasted away at chickens and ducks. Others shot a water buffalo and the family dog.

While her husband, father and young son were led away, the torch was put to the "hut" that still contained the family belongings. The flames consumed everything including the shrine to the family ancestors.

"Man, she'd cut you to pieces for a dime," one GI said. "No, she'd put 100 piasters (1 inch just to slit your throat)," another said.

The American troops were acting under orders: destroy everything of any use to the Viet Cong along the main Communist infiltration route from the delta and Cambodia into War Zones C and D. Leave the Viet Cong nothing to eat, no shelter. Remove all civilians who could give the enemy a helping hand.

The area had been so thoroughly dominated by Communists for so long that pacification, "winning the hearts and minds of the people," was considered out of the question by higher headquarters.

The GIs didn't have much sympathy for the job, but orders were orders. The job was done in an area involving more than 100 square miles.

"God, my wife would faint if she could see what I'm doing now," an infantryman said. "Killing an infant (Viet Cong) is one thing, but killing puppies and baby ducks and stuff like that is something else, man."

The GIs left the farm site and waded back into the swamp waters of the Plain of Reeds, sweating, mosquitoes, watching the tree lines for enemy and praying for enough luck to get some sleep.

Four miles from the smoldering farm house were more culion, date-filled eyes. They belonged to the bearded, sun-burned members of another 25th cer mutated. A fifteen-year-old riddled body into a canal.

Above the scene helicopter rotor blades clawed at the sky, racing death with four badly wounded American fifteen-year-olds. The fifth victim of the blade was over: A muddy poncho was his shroud.

The two scenes near the Cambodian border, only 30 miles west of Saigon were part of a new and more brutal tone in the war.

Intelligence sources and propagandists alike report that such losses are land reform, ending official corruption and "dirty, stinking war; dirty stinking Communist" — an official for the peasants, are no longer vital in the minds of the countryside Vietnamese.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By ANDREW TULLY
WASHINGTON—Possibly there should be a law against saying a good word for the Internal Revenue Service during April's tax season. I'll run the lesser risk of being dropped by my club by suggesting maybe Congress should give IRS more money.
Listening to IRS Commissioner Sheldon Cohen during a little-remembered but important Appropriations subcommittee, even the most disgruntled citizens have undoubtedly conceded that the No. 1 tax collector had a case. In a nutshell, Cohen was promising Congress that an investment of $11 billion in his agency would bring a return of $150 million.
Cohen was arguing for reinstatement of $11 billion in general budget and the House. With that money, he said, the IRS could hire an additional 1,000 new employees to enforce the tax laws, and he added that the extra tax revenues being realized in wages amount to $15 for every $1 of their cost in salaries and expenses.

ONLY ONE PER CENT AUDITED—All agency heads inundate Congress with promises that the IRS is doing a better job. Cohen said that he seemed to make sense at a time when complex income tax returns are increasing at a tremendous rate and fewer of them are being audited because of lack of personnel.
The subcommittee only 1 per cent of these complicated returns will be audited this year, compared with 6 per cent last year.
Meanwhile, individual returns with gross incomes in excess of $10,000 have increased by 170 per cent, and corporate returns have increased by 50 per cent.
The present situation, it appears, is the price of not having a national prosperity, or, as Cohen put it, "With the good economic growth of the nation, more people are making more money and more people are making more complicated tax returns." His staff, he said, just can't keep up with the work.

ODDS FAVOR CHEATERS—The danger here lies in the encouragement it gives to those who would be tax evaders who are always on the lookout for a change of tax laws.
Cohen noted that it was becoming known in what he called "knowledgeable circles" that the IRS is making a smaller percentage of returns, and he made the obvious point that there is a "direct relationship between a vigorous enforcement program and the level of voluntary compliance."
In other words, if a taxpayer figures there's only one chance in a hundred of his return being audited, he'll be more likely to cheat than if the IRS was examining, say, 50 per cent of the returns.

COMPUTERS NOT ANSWER—Apparently, computers aren't the answer. Cohen told the subcommittee that a great many IRS operations have been automated, but that the computer is really a stupid clerk that can only do what it's told. It takes people to examine suspicious returns and make judgments.
It is not suggested here that Sheldon Cohen will ever replace Santa Claus or that rich Uncle Sam is going to get the computer to do his sense. He is not only offering a 15 to 1 return, but implicit in his argument is the rationale that the IRS collects more money the Treasury in the long run. The computer is not a magic wand that can cut taxes, a guy can dream, can't he?

Views Of Others

OUR KIDS NOT SO BAD
U.S. educators have been rapped in recent weeks in consequence of a 12-nation survey which placed the United States in the top category of the several nationalities.
American youngsters ranked low; that is, a smaller percentage of them were delinquents. The survey also indicated that more than 60 per cent of the age-group are in school at 18.

It is not at all surprising that a relatively small proportion of Americans scored high. When the factor of the U.S. effort to educate the mass of youngsters is considered, this country's score in the survey is surprising.

A number of foreign educators pointed this out Thursday in a meeting in London. "I am an American," one of the speakers said, "and you should get all the education he can stand," said Dr. Torsten Hansen, professor of education at the University of Stockholm, who praised American's leadership in the field of education.
The society should not be too heavily on scientific criminology and yet completely ignore its potentialities.
What he has in mind is a new kind of laboratory which would contain a wide spectrum of instruments and instruments and devices. It would be about 10 times the size of the FBI laboratory and use equipment of the highest performance—the largest and fastest computers available, not only a detector for neutron activation work, all of the most modern analytical tools in chemistry, physics and biology.

WILD RIVERS OR HOTDOG STANDS?
George L. Crookham Jr., chairman of the Idaho Water Resource Board, was in Washington, D.C., yesterday to counsel Congress against protecting two free flowing Idaho streams from damming. It is determined how much development they merit.
The chairman testified against the wild rivers bill in the Senate yesterday. He said the wild rivers bill and other similar measures are giving away the scenic, historic and insular Affairs Committee would prevent development of major portions of Idaho's Salmon and Clearwater rivers.
Crookham has distributed to the press, he advocates the same hazardous course he has advocated on the notes and articles on the protection of law while studies are conducted on their future use. That invites a situation which could involve the barn door after the horse has escaped.

Dear Spectator:
That was a fine editorial in the Times-News recently, entitled "What's a Life." It should be put into the hands of every young driver, in fact into the hands of every driver of a car. It has been often said "Life has very small, but that percentage can wreck a car, a home, a life or a nation. Now that we are driving down town street, a car came rushing at me around the corner, as I jumped out of the way, the young man driving the car said, "Look out, old man, or you'll get run over!"
Reckless Drivers, careening about in the city, are the real danger. They use the highways like a battle field, to wreck and slaughter, they never yield.

REALLY?
Dear Spectator:
The milk farmers dumped their milk. Now the potato growers are giving away the spuds because of the low prices.
I understand that the egg raisers are just about ready to give away their eggs.
Me? I'm waiting for the bankers to get mad about the low interest on the notes and start dumping money into the streets. I'll be there with a tub and shovel. I can sure use some of it.

Childs Views Today's Issues

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—Balling out a leaky boat with a teaspoon—that is what the effort is like thus far to stem the tide of people concerned with the earth's resources. An important change—a new mark at the beginning of a more meaningful attempt to defuse the time bomb of the population explosion—will be made by the U.S. State Dept. William H. Gaud, administrator of AID, told a Congressional Committee that as part of AID's family planning program the United States will furnish contraceptive materials to countries requesting them.
The amount spent on this marginal effort has been tiny. Of the economic program for the current fiscal year, only $1 billion less than $3,000,000 goes into family planning. Of that amount $500,000 is a heavily subsidized program to carry out family planning.

Statistics for many undeveloped and newly independent countries must be partly guessed, and they err on the optimistic side. The U.S. shows a growth rate of 3.8, which far exceeds the growth of the gross national product. This last is true national product. This last is true national product. This last is true national product.

Survey Shows Blaine Has Added Snow

HAILEY—Reuben Bradshaw, Blaine County Soil Conservation Service snow surveyor, said Wednesday his April 15 snow survey showed it is still winter in the high mountains of Blaine.

He said more than a foot of new snow has fallen since making the April 1 survey, giving Blaine County a total of 89 inches with a water content of 29.9 inches. This shows a gain of 1.2 inches of water in the 15 day period.

The lower Galena course, at Horse Creek, has 67.4 inches of snow with a water content of 21.1 inches. This is a gain of almost 2 inches of water in the two-week period.

The course atop Bald Mountain now has 81.6 inches of snow with a water content of 27.8 inches—a gain of 4.3 inches of water since April 1.

Ken McKenney of the Ketchum Ranger Station assisted with the Mt. Baldy survey and Linda Bradshaw assisted her father with the Galena courses.

Lions Chief Makes Visit To Richfield

RICHFIELD—Phillip Rice, Boise, district governor, made his official visit to the Richfield Lions Club at Ladies night and installation rites Tuesday evening at the Methodist recreation rooms.

Melvin Pope, Richfield club president, introduced Mr. Rice. He reported on the coming 50th anniversary of Lionism at Lions International this summer in Chicago. He lauded V. V. Rice for having the largest membership of any club in the world, for being the biggest and strongest supporter of Boy Scouts, the International peace essay contest, and plans to load a ship for deposed nations around the world. The ship will be loaded with self help CARE articles and products at Chicago this summer.

Winner of the essay contest will be selected at Chicago, also from among high school seniors. A $25,000 educational fund will be given the winner. "What Would Make Peace a Reality?" is the essay subject. Judge Joe Ann Shaub, Twin Falls, will be one of the judges of the contest.

The speaker used the Lions Club pin to exemplify three important things in life—memories, dreams and hope.

New members inducted into the Richfield club by Mr. Rice were Norman Albrethsen, Jerry McGroth, John Lemmon, Ronald Ralls and Charles Butts.

Peter Schmidt was honored in a farewell ceremony and presented a gift. The desk pen was inscribed with his name and title of former president. Mr. Pope officiated in the presentation.

Special guests were Boyd Lytle, former district governor, and Lloyd Lytle, both Boise, and members wives.

Speck's Paintings Receive Much Comment

CHICAGO (AP) — The paintings of Richard Speck, creator of death-row workmen, convicted bank robber, received their first public display amid a burst of comment from art critics and psychiatrists.

At the same time another psychiatrist, who interviewed Speck two dozen times before he went on trial for the murder of eight nurses, was fired from his position at Cook County Jail.

The psychiatrist, Dr. Marvin C. Ziporyn, said he had acted "within the ethics of my profession" in commenting on published excerpts of his reports on Speck.

He also announced he was preparing a book based on the interviews.

"Nobody is going to be interviewing prisoners in such a manner as to make a profit from it," said Sheriff Joseph J. Woods of Cook County who fired Ziporyn.

The paintings, published Wednesday in Chicago newspapers, range from idyllic pastoral scenes to a sketch of a rearing white horse poised to stamp on a colled rutsnake. They were completed before and during the trial in which Speck, 25, was convicted of the murders with the recommendation of death in the electric chair.

Speck began to paint at Ziporyn's suggestion shortly after his arrest last summer.

The paintings, which Speck gives away, are of dubious value to art critics. Psychiatrists, however, found them fascinating. Eventually they may, because of their novelty, provide a sizeable income for Speck.

Dr. Mischa Zaks, assistant professor of psychology at Northwestern University, said

"Here he is painting beautiful peaceful pictures. It shows some sort of dissociation from the on-going situation (the murder trial). To be able to detach yourself from a life-situation where you are fighting for your life, and where life and death are being judged, is indicative of a real split of emotions from reality. Maybe that is a clue."

"AMERICANS AND THEIR GUNS," a National Rifle Association publication, was presented to Congressman George Hansen, right, by Grant Sanborn, Twin Falls, left, while he was in Washington attending NRA's 36th Annual Convention. Mr. Sanborn and other NRA representatives discussed pending restrictive gun legislation with Congressman Hansen who supports legislation which emphasizes penalties for misuse of weapons, contending "that people, not guns, commit crimes."

Winners in the annual Hite the Handicapped poster contest were announced Tuesday during the regular noon luncheon meeting of the Twin Falls Hite the Handicapped Committee at Koto's Cafe.

Winners are Calvin Pyno, first, 25, Robert Stuart Junior High School; Maggie Florence, second, 315, senior high school; Mae B. Browning, third, 310, senior high school; and Marlin Alford, fourth, 35, Robert Stuart.

Awards and checks were presented by Bill McHugh of the Idaho Employment Agency. Mr. McHugh announced there were 133 handicapped persons placed in jobs during 1966 and 7 during the month of March this year, through the combined efforts of the employment agency and the committee.

Ernest Jellison, president, presided over the luncheon.

'Big Brother' Directive Is Quashed

By FRED S. HOFFMAN.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department has killed a Navy "big brother" directive, it was learned today.

The directive advised civilian employees to seek "wise and mature counsel" before linking up with persons or organizations of a political or civic nature.

A Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee became interested in the directive weeks ago, and raised questions about it.

The document was issued under the Navy's security program and was headed "Suggested counsel to employees."

It said: "A number of our citizens unwittingly expose themselves to unfavorable or suspicious appraisal which they can and should avoid.

"This may take the form of an indiscreet remark; an unwise selection of friends or associates; membership in an organization whose true objectives are concealed behind a popular and innocuous title; attendance at and participation in the meetings and functions of such organizations even though not an official member; or any of numerous other clever means designed to attract support under false colors or serving to impress an individual with his own importance."

Coming Back 'Bull Pen' Is Bulldozed

NEW YORK (AP) — Society orchestra leader Meyer Davis says old-style dancing—that's where you hold your partner—may be on the way back.

The 71-year-old Davis, who has catered to the musical whims of dancers for 45 years, says old-style dancing is beginning to tire of having a contest with a partner.

The younger set, he said Wednesday, is "beginning to see there's pleasure in holding a member of the opposite sex."

Prison Casino "Bull Pen" Is Bulldozed

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The "Bull Pen," one of the most unusual casinos anywhere, has been bulldozed.

Warden Carl Hoeker had the gambling hall—a room off the maximum security yard at the state prison—demolished last week. He said it was a bad influence on inmates.

"It was just like raising a window shade in a dark room," Hoeker said. "I wouldn't want to look some of these boys in the face and call them slaves."

Games in the Bull Pen, run by the inmates, ranged from poker to blackjack to craps.

Boy, 13, Finds Pot Of Gold Along River

MUSKOGON, Mich. (AP) — A Muskegon boy found a pot of gold by the banks of the Muskegon River — an 11-year-old Danny Shunta, 13, was putting around by the river on March 27, 1966, looking for interesting rocks when he found a glass jar stuffed with $2,999 worth of greenbacks.

Danny took the money home to his father, Rudolph, who turned the hoard over to Muskegon police.

Now police have returned the money to Danny.

Under Michigan law, if no one claims lost articles within a year, the finder gets to keep them, provided a reasonable effort has been made to locate the owner.

Danny, an eighth grader said he plans to use the money to finance a college education.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Although its rate of growth this year is not expected to match that of 1966, American Telephone & Telegraph will continue to grow faster than the economy, says H. J. Romnes, chairman of the AT&T board.

Now police have returned the money to Danny.

Young Man Walks From Classroom To Conduct National Symphony Orchestra

By JOSEPH BENHAM
LA PAZ, Bolivia, (AP)—How many students walk out of the classroom and onto the podium as conductor of a national symphony orchestra—via the Peace Corps? The list starts and ends with Gerald Brown.

Brown, 24, was a semester away from his master's degree at the Juillard School of Music in New York when he heard that the national symphony of Bolivia lacked a conductor.

"It seemed a very rare situation," Brown says with understatement. So he began what has been essentially a selling job.

Convincing the Peace Corps to accept him and send him here; convincing the symphony directors to name him; convincing the musicians to do things his way; convincing the public.

The Peace Corps, Brown recalls, had to overcome reluctance to put a volunteer in a job subject to "public consideration." In press and public criticism, Brown persuaded them.

The symphony governors were convinced through an audition last August, a month after Brown arrived. He was named conductor in September.

Selling himself to the musicians, Brown said, "was just a matter of doing a good job." How well he succeeded may be deduced from the musicians' acceptance of an increase in rehearsal time, from an average of two or three hours per week to as much as eight hours of sectional and full orchestral practice. Also, the orchestra grew from 63 to 75 members in the final three months of its season.

The public, which had treated the orchestra with indifference during much of its 25 years, also responded. Their first concert was sold out—days in advance and scalpers were getting as much as three times face value for tickets.

The press generally has been favorable, and Brown is anxious to see how the critics react to this season's innovations in the repertoire, including the works of such composers as Aaron Copeland, Virgil Thomson and Samuel Barber.

Brown hopes to have two thirds of new music for the orchestra: scores by new composers, and new, printed copies of scores dating from previous years.

"When I came here, I found that the library consisted about 80 per cent of hand-copied scores," Brown recalls. "They would buy only one copy—that was all they could afford—and then make copies by hand for the individual musicians." Chamber groups from the symphony have played for embassies functions in return for cost: $300 and a double bassoon ($1,500).

Brown would like to see the individual musicians buy their own instruments, but says that with a pay-scale equivalent to $50-150 per month, this is not necessarily practical.

A sandy-haired French horn player, Brown is quiet about what he has accomplished to date. He prefers to talk about the future. He is working on a series of cultural exchange projects with Argentina and Brazil, under which Bolivian brass and chamber groups and soloists would go to those nations and perform the music. Dutch, French and German embassies.

Along with new music, the orchestra needs new instruments, both as replacements for existing instruments of poor quality and as additions. Brown particularly wants to add an English horn (approximately Brazilian and Argentine artists would appear in this country. He plans to start youth concerts and to take the symphony on tour within Bolivia.

In addition to his conducting duties, Brown, whose salary as a Peace Corps volunteer is $100 per month, teaches conducting. His classes include eight students he has accomplished to date. He describes as promising.

Brown says he has considered extending his two-year Peace Corps tour to stay with the orchestra, and there has been discussion of the orchestra hiring him on a private basis.

after he leaves the Peace Corps. He has a year to decide.

Brown attended Arizona State University at Tempe, and spent two seasons each as a French horn player with the Phoenix Symphony and the Aspen (Colo.) Festival Orchestra. He is from Douglas, Ariz.

Write-In NURESSBORN

(AP)—With five pretty coeds to choose from, students at Middle Tennessee State University elected a pig as May Queen on a write-in vote.

Paula Mae Pigg, one month old, 15 pounds, and measuring 20-23, got 718 votes, to tie for the nearest human challenger in Wednesday's election.

There was talk of a runoff, or a new election on the grounds that Paula Mae is not a student, but the other contestants withdrew from the race after learning they had been beaten by a pig.

Posse-Ettes Elect Aides

Miss Benson announced that drill will be held this Saturday at the fairgrounds, starting at 2 p.m. Members are asked to bring their horses, as the group will ride, weather permitting.

It was noted by Miss Benson that any girl from the age of 10 years up who can handle a horse is invited to join the group. Annual dues are nominal.

World Dignitaries Will Attend Funeral

By CARL HARTMAN
BONN, Germany (AP) — West German officials beside the Rhine between the temporary capital of the Western world meet with President Johnson and other government leaders assembled for the funeral of Konrad Adenauer, Charles de Gaulle, Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson and other top men of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will also attend the state services Tuesday in Cologne's Roman Catholic cathedral for the 81-year-old ex-chancellor who rebuilt West Germany from the depths of wartime defeat.

It will be the largest gathering of Western government heads since the funeral of President John F. Kennedy in November, 1963.

The White House announced that Johnson would fly to Germany for the funeral, making no mention of the President attending his trip to other European areas. The general feeling in Washington was that this was unlikely.

It will be Johnson's first visit to Europe since he became President, but there was speculation in Bonn that the gathering of Western leaders would give the U.S. President the opportunity for talks with West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and De Gaulle on major issues between their governments and Washington.
But the belief in Washington was that state funeral was not a suitable occasion for such discussions and that Johnson's coming with the foreign leaders would be of a more casual nature, such as those he had in Washington with the statesmen who attended Kennedy's funeral.

Legislative Reapportionment Showdown To Face Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate in "a matter of weeks" will face a showdown on the controversial subject of legislative reapportionment, predicts Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen.

Dirksen told newsmen Wednesday he expects two more states to submit some petitions calling for a constitutional convention to consider whether states should be allowed to apportion one legislative house on a basis other than population.

That would bring to 34—the necessary two-thirds required by the Constitution—the number of states petitioning for the convention in the aftermath of the Supreme Court's "one man-one vote" edict. It required all legislative bodies to follow strict population guidelines for districting.

In a two-hour floor debate, Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., said Congress should not consider calling a convention until at least five more states petition. He warned that such a convention could involve other moves to change the Constitution.

Dismissed Priest-Professor States Theologians Must Have Some Freedom

By TOM SEPPY
WASHINGTON (AP) — A young priest-professor whose dismissal from his Catholic University teaching post has sparked faculty and student protests—says—Catholic theologians must be free to pursue religious truths on Catholicism in a more open manner than the Rev. Charles E. Curran, "the Catholic theology in America and Catholic university education are in question."

After the faculty boycott was announced, student leaders urged the 6,000-member student body to stay away from classes. The students planned another demonstration today.

Hundreds of students were absent from classes Wednesday to attend rallies for Father Curran and to establish a vigil in front of the administration building.

Father Curran, who came to Washington in 1965 after four years at St. Bernard's Seminary, Rochester, N.Y., was notified Monday of the Board of trustees decision to terminate his contract.

The faculty's resolution said the board's decision is "a repudiation of the professional judgment and integrity of the faculty of the School of Theology, as well as the professional judgment of the Academic Senate."

The faculty recommended last Nov. 10 that Father Curran be promoted to the rank of associate professor. The Academic Senate approved the promotion March 21.

The Board of Trustees, which includes cardinals and archbishops from around the country, normally passes only on full professorships.

He held a news conference in the village cemetery in the Rhine River hills—no far from his home where he died in his sleep Wednesday.

In the wooded plot are the graves of his parents, an uncle, his two wives and a son who died when he was five days old. Adenauer's grave is marked by a blue and yellow panes and red, white and yellow primroses.

Adenauer had planted roses, his favorite flower, but they did not flourish under the trees.

Adenauer's body was buried Saturday morning when West German Border Guardsmen bring Adenauer's body from Bonn to the big Cabinet meeting room at the Palais Schaumburg in Bonn.

The body will lie in state Saturday and Sunday. On Monday it will be taken another 20 miles along the river to Cologne where he was born and was mayor for 16 years, until the Nazis ousted him from office. There it will lie in the Cologne cathedral.

On Tuesday morning, West German President Heinrich Lübke will preside over an official ceremony at the funeral building in Bonn. A pontifical Requiem Mass will be celebrated in the cathedral that afternoon by a high Roman Catholic prelate.

A West-German naval craft will then take the body back up the Rhine to the cemetery.

West-Germany is in mourning today with flags at half-staff. All political parties canceled the balance of their campaigns for state elections Sunday in Schleswig-Holstein and Rhineland-Palatinate.

"There isn't a better intermediate size car sold in the United States than the 1967 Rebel" says Tom McCahill, automobile expert for Mechanix Illustrated.

Tom McCahill recognizes the automobile industry for Mechanix Illustrated. Recently, he took out an SST hardtop equipped with a 343 cu. in. Typhoon V-8 for an exhaustive series of road tests. How did our Excitement Machine perform? "In roadability and performance, it would top most of the newer specialty cars. There's absolutely no plowing and little body roll. The Rebel's car, when going over ruts or across dirt roads, is excellent."

What about comfort? "It's extremely comfortable and relaxing to drive. In straight-line driving the SST is as comfortable as the 2-0 speed."

How about Rebel's new four-link rear suspension? "Of all the new sporty-type cars, as they come from the showroom, Rebel has by far the best and safest suspension of this whole kit and caboodle."

And the looks? "As sharp in appearance as a thousand-dollar bill. And from a cost angle, Rebel's not overpriced."

This is your kind of excitement, created by American Motors. A company that has excelled in a line of six-passenger Excitement Machines that give you more excitement for the money.

Proponents Of Seating Powell See Battle

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON—Proponents of seating Adam Clayton Powell admit they'll face an uphill fight in the controversial House Democratic caucus to claim the seat to which he was overwhelmingly re-elected last week.

Although any new showdown in the 3-month-old liberal will not come before the caucus on the earliest, 11th Illinois Democrats made public Wednesday as the scenes drive to seat Powell.

But their appeal to fellow caucus members in the caucus matter in accord with the spirit and the letter of the Constitution was coupled with an admission that few votes have switched since the House voted March 1 to exclude the flamboyant New York politician.

"It appears that a majority of the House is prepared to exclude Powell again," they said.

Headcounts made by a number of House leaders, in order to detect the changes in caucus members, have revealed that most members would vote now as they voted then. This would mean Powell again would be excluded, and another new election would have to be held for the New York 10th District seat, New York election officials said, meanwhile, that it might be a week or longer before certification of Powell's election could be on its way to the House.

What happens then has not yet been decided. Powell's attorneys are reported split on whether to accept his appearance here until the courts rule finally on his suit to overturn the New York election, and others want Powell to return here to fight for his admission.

Powell remains on his Bahamian fishing retreat of Bimini, keeping largely to himself and "weighing possible courses."

Auto Workers Demand Benefits

By A. F. MAHAN
DETROIT (AP)—At least one United-Auto Workers faction is demanding a wage and fringe benefit gain of 20 per cent over the next three years as part of its union's 1967 contract goals.

The 30 per cent "package" was proposed in leaflets handed 3,000 union delegates meeting today. The leaflets outlined a four-point program and bore the names of 10 local union presidents and at least one member each from eight other locals.

There is little doubt that delegates would shunt aside the four-point program in favor of a broader more flexible approach proposed by UAW President Walter P. Reuther who says "any new contract must carry a guaranteed annual income."

The four-point program proposes optimal retirement at full pension after 30 years service, reclassification of non-management paid prior auto insurance; a 35 or 37 1/2-hour work week, with substantive money is left from 30 per cent going into wage increases.

Robert Weissman, president of the 100,000-member local at Twinsburg, Ohio, calculated the four-point program which he says should provide a wage increase of at least 3 per cent a year, after the other three demands are met.

"The UAW's year-old independent parts and supplier contract re-organizing workers in supplier plants, appealed to negotiators to pay special attention to job security."

Newsletter Is Costly For Senator Clark

WASHINGTON (AP)—Asking his constituents if they should run again has unexpectedly cost Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., $1,876.60.

A congressman or senator's newsletters to the folks back home qualify for the free-mailing privilege, but they may not touch on political matters.

Clark recently sent out more than 97,000 newsletters asking his constituents for their views on numerous legislative matters. But he also included this query: "Should I should run again for the Senate in 1968?"

The Philadelphia Inquirer ran a story about the question of misuse of the free-mailing privilege.

Clark gamely asked the Post Office Department if it felt his newsletter had a political taint. The Post Office Department handled the problem to the Justice Department, which replied that it appeared to be.

Clark's attorney wrote a personal check for pay five cents postage for each newsletter.

HAZELTON — Paul Sullivan and Joe Akins, directors of the Home Administration office in Cassia County, were special guests of the Hazelton Lions Club at a meeting Tuesday evening in the Presbyterian church save.

Members voted to support this by efforts to establish water quality standards for interstate waters in Idaho the implementation of the plan for acquiring these qualities on our water and the surveillance of the plan and enforcement of their plan as proposed.

A resolution was passed that the federal agriculture committee sponsor a program to divert interstate waters in Idaho to relieve the potato market.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I know you're not a fashion editor, but maybe you can help me. There is continual friction between me and my husband over the length of my skirts. I will be 50 this year and have two grown children and four grandchildren.

He did, but now the doctor tells me that they did not pay it. Don't you think they should pay this bill instead of me? What should I do?
DEAR MAD: Pay the doctor. Then retain a lawyer—to tell your neighbor that you expect repayment and (possibly) punitive damages.

My husband, who is a business executive, says I am too modest and old-fashioned, that I should "get with it" and wear my skirts shorter like the fashionable women.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BEWEZELERED DAD" IN BOURBON: Let him find the next job himself. Every time you carry a strong, healthy person who can walk, you contribute to his weakness.

Should I have a little more dignity about her? I think teenagers look cute with short-skirts, but after 40 a woman should have a little more dignity about her.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR "SMITTY": Tell your husband you'll shorten your skirts if he'll let his hair grow down to his shoulders, wear skin-tight trousers, and a turtle-neck sweater to his office. Then you can "get with it" together.

The first lesson was held recently in the army building in Hailey. The theme was "Color and Creativity." Mrs. Ruby will hold the other May 11.

Afternoon classes, beginning at 1:30 p.m., will also be held in the army building on May 9, 16 and 23.

At 8 p.m. on each of those days Mrs. Ruby will hold the same class at the Episcopal Church Recreation Hall in Ketchum.

Classes at the fair ground building in Carey will start at 2 p.m. May 10, with other dates to be announced later.

Because of the supplies required, a pre-registration fee is necessary. Mrs. Ruby usually takes 20 homemakers to a class for each clinic, but did accommodate six extra members at the April 10 meeting. She said there are still a few vacancies for the other scheduled meetings and anyone wanting to sign up should call the county agent's office in Hailey or Mrs. Harold Ruby, Ketchum.

History Of Cassia Division Traces Habitat Decline

By MARTEL MORACHE Idaho Fish and Game Department

During the late 1800's and the early 1900's there was a tremendous upsurge in the number of domestic livestock utilizing the open range lands and forested areas of Cassia and Twin Falls counties...

The plan called for reducing the herd by some 20 per cent in 1957 (down to about 10,000 deer). Permits hauled and the herd continued to expand, reaching a peak of upwards of 20,000 deer by 1950...

Due to various pressures, permit hunting was re-established in 1952 and ran through 1954. However, in each of these years the desired harvest was not obtained...

Decreased precipitation in most years from 1952 to the present, this lack of precipitation has affected annual growth of grasses...

Aspects have a continuing effect on browse as they curtail animal production on browse plants, particularly bitterbrush.

New Zealander Ends Japanese Hold On Boston Marathon, Breaks Record

BOSTON (AP) — Dave McKenzie, a pint-sized Iron Man from New Zealand, ended Japanese domination of the Boston A.A. Marathon in a decisive fashion Wednesday, charging through the cold rain for a record clocking of 2 hours 45 minutes and 45 seconds in the 71st annual Patriots' Day classic.

The 24-year-old McKenzie crushed the four-man Japanese contingent on the hills about five miles from the finish and started an easy victory.

The marathon is a 26-mile, 385-yard run from Hopkinton to Boston.

McKenzie, a 5-foot-4, 120-pound newspaper printer, boasted his fourth marathon victory since Jan. 28 in overpowering the field and shattering the

Spread Of Bass In Idaho Drainages Is Traced

BOISE — Reports that two smallmouth bass nearly a foot long have been caught in the upper Salmon River near Salmon City recall the spread of bass before the turn of the century from the Boise River, where they were introduced from the East, by pioneers, downstream to the Snake and Columbia rivers and suitable tributary streams, the Idaho Fish and Game Department said today.

Don Corley, regional fisheries biologist at Salmon, noted recently in a memo to the Boise headquarters office that the spread of a smallmouth bass being caught "this high in the Salmon River drainage" was reported last August by Edwin Ahlstrom. He used a silver spoon and fished about eight miles below Salmon City.

Corley added that a second foothold smallmouth bass was captured in an irrigation screen trap about three weeks later about four miles above Salmon City. He said unusually low water in the Salmon River last Harmon Killebrew opened the inning with a single and advanced to second on Bob Allison's sacrifice. Ted Uhlander ran for Killebrew. Zolo-Yersalles was purposely passed and Earl Battey also walked, filling the bases. Carew then singled to center.

The Orioles had tied the score in the seventh on Brooks Robinson's single, a balk by pitcher Don Chisholm, an infield out and Dave Johnson's single.

Harmon Killebrew's first home run of the season for Minnesota in the fourth inning accounted for the first two runs of the game.

By C. M. GILMOUR JR.
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Police quashed a demonstration for an open-housing ordinance by hauling every one of about 100 marchers to jail Wednesday night.

The arrests apparently resulted from the city's action — on its temporary ban against night marches by demonstrators.

Earlier Wednesday, a federal judge rejected a motion on behalf of the demonstrators to remove the case from state to U.S. District Court.

Police twice fired tear-gas pellets into a crowd of more than 700 hecklers, at times forcing them two blocks away from demonstrators.

A police captain said the hecklers appeared angrier than during other of the almost nightly demonstrations. Police arrested a total of 113 persons, including some hecklers for refusing to obey orders to move out.

Moments after marchers arrived in the South End, the chief William Binder helped advocates who sat down to sing freedom songs.

Some of the Negroes cried "police brutality" as officers put them into patrol wagons and took them to jail. Several demonstrators were scraped and bruised.

The Rev. A.D. Williams-King said he and others on the militia on open housing were considering a drive-in. This tactic, he said, involved having about 200 autos drive through busy intersections at a maximum speed of 10 miles an hour.

One newsman and a city detective were hit by rocks thrown by hecklers Wednesday night.

The Rev. Mr. King is free on bond after being charged with disorderly conduct in a previous march. He was not among the marchers Wednesday night as some of the leaders said they would bow out to "confuse police who are singling us out for arrest."

After the city refused last week to pass an open-housing law, officials obtained a temporary order in Jefferson County Circuit Court to ban night marches. — Attorneys for the rights leaders asked federal court to take jurisdiction, but U.S. District Judge Henry Brooks, sitting at Paducah, said he had no authority to order the transfer.

Convict With Cancer Asks For Freedom

NEW YORK (AP) — A convict with terminal cancer has appealed to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to commute his one-year prison term and permit him to spend his remaining time with his wife and four children.

"I'm guilty," William F. Kane, 30, the prisoner, said. "I'm serving time in the prison ward of Long Island's Greenvale Hospital for a $30 stickup."

"But I can't understand why I must serve a life sentence for my crime," he added. "It's only a year's sentence, but that may be more than I have left."

Spencer Stepi, one of the prisoner's attorneys, said a letter to Rockefeller requesting executive clemency for Kane was mailed Wednesday.

A spokesman for Rockefeller said the governor does not comment on such requests until he has decided on them.

Kane said he hoped the governor would permit him "the dignity of dying at home with my family."

Gallup Claims Republicans Want Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Republican county chairmen want Richard M. Nixon as their presidential candidate, according to pollster George Gallup, but Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is warning them that the GOP's only chance of winning in 1968 is "to stay behind George Romney."

Gallup said nearly two-thirds of 2,137 county chairmen polled listed the former vice president as their preference, "the one which men they thought would be nominated," regardless of their own feelings.

Nixon and 510 chose Michigan Gov. Romney.

Rockefeller, who has repeatedly disavowed any interest in the nomination, made his statement in a letter released Wednesday. It came in reply to one by Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon urging GOP governors to withhold a presidential endorsement until they could act as a group. The letter was seen here as an anti-Romney move, but McCall rejected this interpretation.

Rockefeller said Romney is "consistently running around 10 points ahead of Lyndon Johnson in the polls throughout the country. He is the first and only Republican since Gen. Eisenhower to be in that happy position."

Gallup said a recent sounding of GOP rank and file showed Nixon ahead of Romney by 39 per cent to 30 per cent, independent of Gallup said, showed Romney in front with 33 per cent and Nixon 25 per cent.

"The public opinion survey also reported that the county chairmen found President Johnson a tougher opponent than Sen. Sam Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. Johnson was listed as hardest to beat by 1,185 chairmen and Kennedy by 715.

PARTNER'S SLIP COSTLY TO TEAM

The double of an artificial bid to ask for the lead of the suit is fine when you use it as you should. Here is a hand from a recent match between England and Italy in which this bid should have produced a big swing for England.

was a really constructive bid. Unfortunately for England, West looked at his own three clubs to the left and four diamonds to the king-queen and decided to ignore his partner's request. West opened the king of diamonds and declarer had time to park his losing club on a diamond and make his vulnerable game.

The British North also opened one club. South made the normal one spade response, North trumps no-trump, South two hearts and North four hearts.

The Italian West had no club double to guide him but came up with the lead of the deuce of diamonds. The nine was played from dummy. East put up the ten and was delightfully surprised when it held. Then East shifted to the king of clubs and the British declarer did not make his game.

Thus, instead of a big gain, England wound up with a big loss.

What do you do now?

A—This is a tough one. You want to make a strong bid but there is no automatic strong bid at your disposal. Your best action is to bid three clubs which will be forcing and give your partner a chance to show more hearts. I don't know exactly what North's four club bid was all about—probably some sort of mild slam-try in case South had partner jumps to four spades, a really good hand it did give the British East a chance to double to ask for a club lead. This wasn't a silly double. It

Young America's Date-Line

By ELLI AND WALLY DULANEY

He Played The Game And Ruined Her Name

"Tell me it's OK, as long as you don't give my name or any kind of hint who I am. Promised," and the boy began his story:

"I'm 18 in my school I considered a swinger. The stories are out about all the girls I've made it with, and all the trouble I've got with my things are true now, but when the stories started back in junior school, they were 99 per cent hoax. I should know because I made them up. I put it out in my head off. And you know why? Because of the pressure of the girls in my school to be with the crowd you had to come on like a big Playboy. If you could about studies, or the future, or sports, you were out. I agree that I was immature, but how sophisticated are you going to be at 17?"

PLAYED THE PART

"So I started playing the part. Long before I wanted to be called a big line, and grabbing for them the first time I kissed a girl, was when she called my bluff and I had to follow through. I told her I better believe it. But I just pretended I was half drunk and used that as an excuse to be unresponsive. The truth was I was sure she'd find out what a lame I was and broadcast it to the rest of the school. But I faked her out."

"I've never felt really at home with myself all the way through. Maybe I'm telling you all this stuff as much to get it off my conscience as to clue in your readers to be themselves and not feel they have to act to win everyone's attention."

"What bothers me the most is that I spoiled several girls' reputations along the way to building mine."

STARTED GIRL'S DOWNFALL

"One girl in particular sticks in my mind. She was a trusting girl. I knew she had things kind of bad at home, and anyone who's been in care of a Pacific office... I care about it and about me. So I took her out. We got to talking about things, and that's all we did, talk. But when the guys asked me if I'd see her the next day... I just couldn't..."

MAJOR HOOPLE

"ANYTIME ANYONE SAYS 'GIVE TO ME THE USUALLY MEAN FREE,' BUT EITHER I GET MY DOUGH IN 30 DAYS OR I PUT THE HOLE BACK IN THE ENTIRE CITY WILL BE WATCHING YOUR ARTISTIC TOUCH."

no. So I told them we'd had a few, wild evenings. I dated her a few more times and then lost interest. But the other guy didn't. Because they had heard she was easy from me, they all wanted to try. I don't know who finally broke her, but I know for sure who's responsible for the start of her trouble. It's me. I'm a swinger without apologies. Then if you wanted to be a lover, fine, but you wouldn't be pushed into it. Get this straight, I'm not saying I have stayed inexperienced even so, but at least I would have been here so early, or had to build my reputation at the cost of others.

A PRIVATE THING

"The way I see it now at 19, love should be a private thing. What happens between you and your partner should be strictly secret to you two."

"Most importantly, the girls should wait until they say they want to. Make it's expression too much of junior school girls to understand this, but they should realize that a boy doesn't come into the world all experienced. He's got to pick up his knowledge the hard way. Instead of demanding he be a swinger at 13, they should let pressure work the way it should discover love - making when he's really inspired—and not work it with someone who really means something to him, instead of getting that idea of 'who's your favorite person?' care about? And therefore break the basic I laid down before."

"Well, that's what I think! I'd like to hear what other people think along this line. Let me know if anyone writes in, huh?"

SMASHED AMBULANCE and pickup truck resulted Wednesday morning when driver of the pickup turned in front of the ambulance while it was on a hospital run. The ambulance, driven by Clayton Edwards, 34, had both alarm and red light operating and was traveling west on Addison Avenue East at a low rate of speed. The ambulance, carrying Adair

J. Noll, 76, Kimberly, who was being taken to the hospital for medical attention, was attempting to overtake the truck, driven by Merle J. Kauffman, 29, Route 1, when Mr. Kauffman turned left onto Maurice Street and the two vehicles collided. No one was injured in the accident. Mr. Noll is listed fair at the hospital. Shakespearean Displays Are Made By Minico Students

RUPERT — Students in Walter Jensen's English class have gone the "extra mile" and prepared Shakespearean displays which are set up in the Minico High School library this week.

"These students will never forget what they have learned about Shakespeare through this project," Mr. Jensen said. He expressed his amazement at the originality and art that were displayed by the students in preparing the project, as well as the extra work they did. Many of the costumes are hand-made, and among scenes depicted are the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," a special—the great—author done in colored rock, and Shakespeare's theater, the Globe Theater, which is shown flying a white flag, denoting that a play was being presented that day.

Jury Trial Scheduled On Jail Escape

BURLEY—David J. Cypher, 26, will appear in District Court at 10 a.m. Monday for a jury trial on charges of escaping from Cassia County Jail on March 12, in a snowstorm with three other companions.

Cypher was arrested in Pennsylvania and returned to Cassia County and appeared before Probate Judge Vern Carter March 29. Monday Cypher again appeared in Probate Court before Judge Carter for a preliminary hearing on the escape from jail charge. Dean Kloepfer, Burley attorney, has been appointed by the court as Cypher's counsel.

All the plays in Shakespeare's day were shown in the daytime, because of the lack of stage lighting in the theater. Juliet's bedroom is shown, there is a dueling scene and street scenes among other works of art in the display.

Weatherman Toys With Food Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — The weatherman is toying with the family food bill again.

Rains finally have fallen in the wheat belt. Wheat prices have dropped, easing the threat of higher prices for flour and bread this summer.

Herman Becke, Cassia County prosecuting attorney, represented the county in the preliminary hearing.

Judge Carter ordered Cypher bound over to district court to stand trial. Also Monday Cypher appeared with his attorney, Mr. Kloepfer, in District Court before Judge Sherman Bellwood and entered a plea of innocent and requested a jury trial. Bond of $25,000 was not posted and Cypher is in Cassia County Jail.

Cypher was being held in Cassia County Jail while awaiting an appeal on an armed robbery charge, resulting from a shooting and robbery at the Parish Motel, Burley.

Others who escaped with Cypher were Dale J. Burge, Pocatello; Robert W. Mueller, 25, also in Pennsylvania, and Jack Trammel, 28, Twin Falls.

Rains also have fallen in California, and there the effects haven't been entirely helpful.

"They have kept the bees from pollinating fruit trees, almost the asparagus cutting, damaged the sweet cherries in San Joaquin Valley, washed away tomato seedlings and—a bit of cheer perhaps for small boys—interrupted the spinach harvest. A freeze caused heavy damage to apricots.

Burge is in Cassia County Jail and preliminary hearing in probate court has been set for 9 a.m. Friday before Judge Vern Carter.

Moyer and Trammel both are being held in Pennsylvania. Extradition papers have been filed for return of Mueller and Trammel to Cassia County to stand trial for the jail break.

The weatherman also is holding the Florida-tomato crop below normal.

As the weather improves, there should be bigger supplies and lower prices — for fresh fruits and vegetables. The outlook is good for celery, lettuce, snap beans, carrots, sweet corn, green peppers and green onions.

Bananas, apples, grapefruit and oranges are plentiful.

In the meat department, ham and beef prices have dropped again. Big supplies of other meats have helped keep beef prices down. There are much bigger supplies of pork, chicken and turkey.

Egg prices have dropped another 2 to 4 cents a dozen.

Cooperation Is Asked On Roads

HAZELTON — Cooperation of all patrons of the Hillsdale Highway District at Hazelton is asked by the directors to help stop damage which is occurring. Luis Alastria, chairman, said Wednesday.

"He said considerable damage and resulting expense to the district is being caused by several types of activity. Allowing water to run onto the highway, highways is one of the problems.

Defacing or otherwise damaging highway signs and markers and placing or constructing fences in the highway right-of-way, particularly electric fences are other problems on which cooperation is asked, Mr. Alastria said.

Pair Bound Over For Grand Theft

A California couple was bound over to Eleventh Judicial District Court Tuesday by Twin Falls Police Judge Harry Turner following preliminary hearing on charges of grand larceny.

The couple arrested as Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lee Bates and also known as Jackson Lee and Mary Jeanne Horton, is charged with taking a television set valued at $150 from the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls, on April 9. Judge Harry Turner ordered bond at $1,000 each.

time to get rollin' on sprucing up home and garden!

The sweet sounds of fix-up are heard across the land: paint-can tops popping, curtains swishing, tool-sharpeners humming. Yes, now's the time to give your home a fresh Springtime face! Friendly dealers nearby can help - see them soon. But first, take a look inside; get handy tips, preview new products to make the jobs easier - even fun!

Spring Is Signal For Start Of Home Clean-Up, Fix-Up Operations

Spring may turn a young man's fancy in certain directions the advent of the vernal season just naturally turns the homeowner's thoughts in the direction of "clean-up, light-up and fix-up" needs. This is the time to check the home, repair the damage done by winter and old man winter, and plan "fix-up" projects to improve home beauty and comfort.

"Clean-up" means to traditionally takes charge of the room-to-room cleaning job. Dad and the kids can assist in special projects such as cellar, attic and garage clean-up campaigns. Now is a good time to call in specialized help for big projects: frond rug cleaning for spring cleaning. Check draperies and slipcovers for "furnace" or replacement.

Outdoors Dad can supervise the "clean-up" of lawn and garden, including the removal and replacement of plants and trees. Here again the youngsters can help. Dad will probably want to assign some outdoor chores on a permanent basis.

Paint-Up—The "paint-up" phase demands a thorough check-up both indoors and out. Perhaps paint touch-ups will be in some areas, but more extensive repainting, perhaps on a do-it-yourself basis. For the bigger job it's wise to call in a professional.

"Paint-up" really means "bright-up and protect" so it involves more than paint. Indoors, wallpaper and paneling, flooring and floor coverings are part of the picture.

Outdoors, the home exterior may need refurbishing, and if so, the possibilities are many from a new paint job to residing with one of the wealth of new sidings available.

Light-Up—The "light-up" side of the spring home overhaul demands both family effort and, probably, professional help. Increasing use of appliances and entertainment equipment means that an electric wiring check-up is in order. In most homes, be sure to let a professional do this job.

In some cases, new lighting fixtures can be installed on a do-it-yourself basis. Such projects can be planned now, along with the addition of new lamps for good lighting and decoration.

Fix-Up—Both repairs and remodeling come under the heading of "fix-up" jobs. First, check home exterior for needed repairs in potential trouble areas. Examine foundations for cracked masonry and ground holes; inspect roof for warped, loose or missing shingles; check gutters and downspouts for clogged passages, weather-worn parts; and check chimney area for loose bricks, or stones, missing mortar.

Indoors, heating and plumbing systems may need professional check-ups. Check walls and cellings for cracks and bulges, floors for needed repairs of finishing. Inspect doors and windows for air leakage, and make them weather-tight.

Repair needs may suggest a "fix-up" remodeling project. For instance, if a furnace check-up reveals that a replacement will be necessary in the near future, now may be the time to consider installing a central heating-air conditioning system.

Protect Home Exteriors By Painting

To protect the home exterior and improve its appearance, pick up the paint brush and ditch it.

This advice comes from the trade publication, Building Supply News, which points out that house painting isn't the difficult job many homeowners may think.

New quality paints are easier than ever to apply, do a better job and give longer-lasting results. They can be brushed, rolled or sprayed on any surface in less time, with less effort, the editors say.

First step is to determine the amount and kind of paint to use. It's poor economics to use bargain paints—since a good paint gives better-looking results and lengthens the time before it's necessary to paint again.

Estimate one gallon of finish paint for about 350 square feet of surface, and one gallon of primer for about 450 feet.

Roses

Roses have of longer flowering season than most other shrubs, while the variety of colors and the different shades of color, make roses the most desirable of plants for the average home owner.

Three types of roses are most sought after by home owners. They include the hybrid teas, floribunda and grandifloras. For the most perfect flowers the hybrid teas are outstanding—although both the floribunda and grandifloras both have excellent flowers for indoor and patio home bouquets and flower decorations in general.

KEEP ROOTS COOL

With warmer weather coming, it's wise to make sure that container plants you plan to buy of for outdoor displays are in red clay pots, which keep plant roots cooler than thin-walled plastic containers. Synthetic containers often absorb heat and expose roots to killing temperatures that quickly destroy plants.

Ways Listed To Get Jump On Gardens

Indoor planting can speed your plants to an early start. However, a protected beginning is no guarantee the plants will reach early, healthy maturity.

The primary reason for disappointment in growth pattern, is shock from premature transplanting and exposure, say the garden experts at the Green Thumb Tool Co. of Columbus, Ohio. Many gardeners move their plants too soon from the warm, protected climate of indoors. Outdoors even when it is late enough to be safe from frost, the change may still prove too abrupt.

In either case the solution is easy — expose them gradually. If possible, the first step is to move the plants to a cooler room or window for a few days.

Then, if you have a coldframe (a hotbed without heat), set them outdoors in it, keeping the cover closed on very cold days and opening it as necessary on warm days.

Gradually increase the amount of opening as the days pass. The idea is to accustom the plants to the harsher conditions slowly. This is called "hardening off."

At the same time, reduce the amount and frequency of watering as the time for hardening off approaches and during it. This guards against over-sappy, hence extra-tender plants.

Another Approach

However, there is also another and less well-known approach to the problem. That is direct seeding. It is rarely realized, even among fairly experienced gardeners that with many plants, even tender ones, it is possible to sow the seeds outdoors extra-early.

By extra early is meant several weeks before the date of the last "killing" frost.

This is a method, if not discovered, at least used by one or more of the larger seed companies on their cool-climate test grounds. It avoids all the trouble of growing thousands of plants indoors hardening them off and transplanting them outdoors.

Even plants like tomatoes, peppers, squash, cucumbers and marigolds are planted outdoors way ahead of season. The seedlings come up slowly, grow stony and stand "frosts" they couldn't if started indoors.

Another very important factor is that no matter how carefully one handles his plants and transplants, the plants always suffer some shock and consequent set-back. With direct seeding outdoors there is no such set-back, the head start of indoor-started plants is greatly reduced. Many times the difference in reaching maturity is unnoticeable.

As expected, prepare the soil well. Dig deeply and rake in thoroughly 5 pounds of vegetable-type fertilizer per 100 square feet. Rake the surface smooth, make your seed drills with a small, triangular hoe or the corner of a larger one and sow your seed.

When transplanting dig your holes with a good, strong-shank-ed Green Thumb trowel or a spade for the larger plants. Firm them in, water and shade from sun and wind, if necessary.

FERNS AND IVY; Intermingled with foliage plants in a large wicker basket, make an attractive indoor display that easily can be moved to different locations in the home or out on the patio.

Follow Rules To Get Better Paint Results

Do you use a pen or pencil? Then you can use a paint brush. Don't grab a brush as though you were going to choke it to death. Place your hand around the bottom part of the handle, with the fingers pointing downward and resting on the metal ferrule.

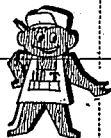

Never dip the bristles more than halfway. If there appears to be too much paint on the brush, tap the bristles lightly against the inside of the can. Wiping it against the rim — the usual way of getting rid of excess paint — ruins the bristles. Even though some paints show little or no lap marks, get into the habit of painting properly, which is to start from a dry area and move into a wet area, stroking evenly and lifting the brush slightly at the end of each stroke.

As you step-back and view your work from time to time, as all of us do, don't be dismayed because the shade doesn't seem to match. As paint dries, it assumes a slightly different tone. Therefore, the area you painted half an hour before may seem to be different than the one you are presently doing. Unless you have done something drastically wrong, everything will match when the paint has dried.

Don't stop for lunch or to hold a long telephone conversation while working on one surface. Complete that surface, then take your lunch or phone break.

Tree Roots In Pipes Are Problems

Big, healthy trees are nice to have around your home, not only because of the natural beauty they lend to the landscape but also because they help to prevent soil erosion.

However, the Plumbing Heating & Cooling Information Bureau points out, they can create a real problem when their thirsty roots get into your underground pipe.

Tree roots are extremely strong because they have a deep instinct to live and grow. They spread in all directions, seeking out life-giving moisture. If there's a leak or a break in your underground pipe, they'll find it. Then, before you know it, your pipe becomes clogged, requiring corrective measures.

The most effective way of dealing with the problem calls for the "look and services" of a plumbing contractor. He'll use a special flexible auger that can be reeled into the pipeline, cutting away all growth. This definitely is not a job for an amateur, since improper use of the auger can break the pipe and worsen your problem. Special root solvents also can be flushed through the line to clear it.

These corrective measures are only temporary, however, since the thirsty roots soon will find their way back into the pipe. The only sure way to avoid a root problem is to make certain the pipe is of top-quality water-tight material. Strong as tree roots are, they can't break into good quality pipe. When it comes to your pipeline, quality doesn't cost.

New Color Screening Lends Glamour To Home Exterior

Since the introduction of color in aluminum screening less than two years ago, color coordination of window and porch screens has excited a significant jump in the use of color aluminum screening, according to the Insect Wire Screening Bureau, New York, based on a recent poll of its 10 national manufacturers.

Because screened areas regularly encompass as much as 5 per cent of the home's exterior surface, the availability of color in aluminum screening has created new departments in exterior decoration of the home.

"The fresh sparkle and warmth of charcoal or green screening coordinated with the color scheme of the house and window trim greatly enhances the eye appeal," noted George Tsuruoka, architectural consultant to the Exterior Decorators Institute of the Aluminum Association, in explanation of the trend.

Homeowner demand for color in aluminum screening in the first half of 1966 was running roughly equal to demand for the conventional satin, according to L.W.S.B. However, professional exterior decorators generally agree that "the screening should be color harmonized to the window and porch trim."

A number of suggested color harmonies in exterior trim and color aluminum screening were sketched by Mr. Tsuruoka. The green best compliments red brick, redwood siding and dusty red aluminum siding, and it harmonizes with yellow and blue home exteriors. The charcoal, a comparatively neutral color, blends well with most pastels used on home exteriors and with white.

"The recently introduced colors in aluminum screening currently are available throughout the nation at hardware and building materials supply dealers. And this fall, a growing number offer a re-screening service.

Happy Fence Helps House Site; Styling, Size, Plantings Vital

A fence is one of man's best friends. But how to make it look attractive is a problem that besets many homeowners.

It's not always the size or the pattern of the fence that determines appearance. More often it's the way the fence is placed and worked into the overall setting. Handled properly, even the flimsy board fence can win a beauty contest.

Think of a fence as you think of a house. Both are structures that must enhance and be enhanced by their surroundings. Both must marry to the site—to look as though they have been grown rather than built. The logical way to work a fence into a garden is to make it an integral part of the planting plan.

It must at all times serve as a backdrop for plant materials, and a careful relationship of heights and masses must be established between structure and plantings.

Because the eye should never see a right-angle junction between fence and ground, base planting should be included even when screens are built around a path or terrace. If that's not possible, use fluted greenery or a low, backless garden bench to accomplish the same purpose.

Keep Natural Look

On sloping ground, the fence can be built in sections that step up and down gracefully.

Weedkiller Hits Weeds, Not Grass

Look at it this way. Suppose you were a blade of grass in a weed-infested lawn. What would it be like?

Suppose there were plenty of light and water and good soil. But you weren't getting your share of any of them?

Wouldn't it be rather as though you were living in a house filled with big, tough, ugly people who were eating your food, drinking your water—growing before your very eyes, getting bigger and stronger and uglier all the time. Until instead of getting less and less of what you needed to stay alive, you got none at all?

Not a very pretty picture, is it? But it may be happening to the grass in your lawn right this moment. Weeds can move in and take over unless you do something—about them—with a really effective weed-killer—something that kills undesirable broad-leaved plants such as dandelions, plantains and wild onion.

A hormone weedkiller that kills weeds, roots and all, yet will not harm desirable grasses is now the Weed-B-Gon. Tests show that lawns treated with Ortho Weed-B-Gon can be reseeded one day to two weeks after treatment—or as much as three weeks earlier than lawns treated with other commercial combinations.

Weed-B-Gon is best applied with an Ortho Sprayette; and for those who have string trimmers or Ortho sprayers, when flushed immediately after use as per instructions, can be used for both Weed-B-Gon lawn spraying and for applying liquid plant foods, insecticides and fungicides to flowers, shrubs and dichondra lawns.

Check Hammers

To make hammer-and-nail jobs go more smoothly, check the hammer.

Grime, oil, dirt or paint on the face of a hammer can cause nails to bend, or cause the hammer to glance off the nailheads.

the top line of each section always maintaining a true horizontal.

A stepped fence also may be used to give a flat lot the illusion of slope or to ease a tall section of privacy screen into lower, decorative fencing.

A wise homeowner will also exploit the natural texture and coloring of wood. For specialized purposes such as entrance yard fencing, a painted finish matching the house may be best. Usually, however, the soft browns, golden beiges and silvers of stained or weathered wood are the most complementary for any use.

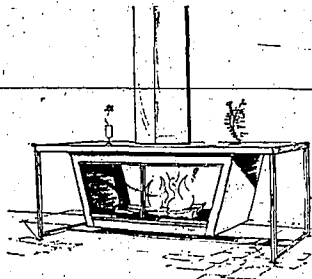

Resawn and rough sawn textures are favored because they're as natural to the outdoors as any leaf or petal.

Eight-Foot Spacing Favored
No fence can look attractive unless it's well constructed. Fence posts must be set firmly with a third of their overall length below ground. An eight-foot spacing between posts is suggested for most styles and will provide the needed rigidity.

Only woods of proven outdoor quality assure a fence that looks and wears well. Western red cedar, incense cedar, Douglas fir and white fir are four that can be used without hesitation.

Preservative treating of post and other members in direct contact with the ground is recommended for garden use of any wood.

FREE-STANDING indoor fireplaces are getting fancier and fancier. This one is an eye-catcher for a room with a modern decor.

Birch Tree Is Garden Showpiece

Whether your garden is large or small, if you are looking for an interesting tree, consider the birch.

Any one of the ten native species and their horticultural varieties can be used effectively in a landscape plan. Their delicate, flexible branches match the interest offered by any tree, but the showy bark of the birch is beyond compare.

Bark colors can range from chalk white through shades of orange to black. Most homeowners, though, prefer those with the lighter bark.

The canoe or paper birch has the lightest bark — actually chalky white — and dark green leaves. It is perhaps the most showy of our birches.

The European white birch has drooping branches and a white bark that peels easily. Still another interesting species is the yellow birch which has frayed s' I've ey bark turning orange when peeled.

Don't be dismayed if you purchase a young plant and it does not have the characteristic bark. All young birches have dark-colored bark and take on the lighter color as they mature.

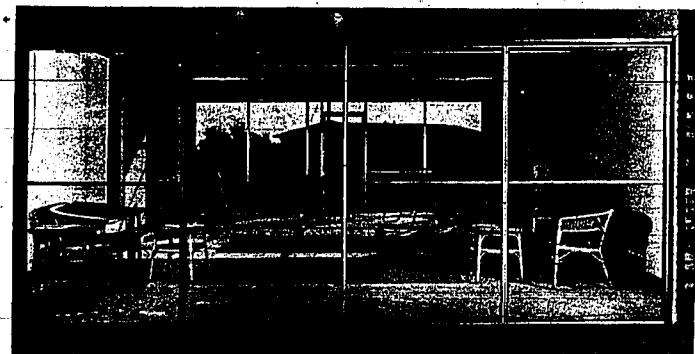

The birch is a tree that can be planted almost anywhere in the garden. It can be a background for shrubs and flowers; use with several trunks (or several planted as a group) makes excellent accent plant or specimen tree.

Consider the winter appeal of the plant when choosing a setting. You want it where you will be able to see the dancing white trunks and branches through the blink winter. Also look to be sure that the attractive bark will not blend into your background and be lost from view.

The one major insect pest of the birch is the leaf miner. The larval (worm) stage of this insect lives inside the leaf where it feeds. As it tunnels its way inside, it causes blotches and blisters to appear on the outside. Infested leaves turn brown in late spring or early summer.

However, control of this pest is made relatively simple in this day of modern gardening by spraying with a carefully-chosen insecticide during the late spring.

Trees Available For Any Climate

There are flowering trees for every climate in the United States. Some combine flowers with fruits, like the crabapples, which can supply jellies.

Others offer triple advantages, such as flowers, fruits and shade, such as apples and cherries. Peaches provide flowers and fruit.

Magnolias give large, lovely pink blossoms plus, with certain varieties, adequate shade.

PRUNE PLANTS

New plants take firm rootling better and faster when they are pruned back. Trimming the top, plus overall shaping, reduces leaf area the roots have to supply.

Beautify Home With Potted Plants

Here's how you can brighten your own "corner of America"—your home—and contribute to the overall effort to make your community and America more beautiful.

Make generous use of luxurious green foliage plants, which will bring beauty, vitality and distinction to your home or apartment and increase your enjoyment of everyday living, says P. S. Cook of Norfolk, Va., president of the Society of American Florists.

The imaginative use of potted house plants inside the home—at bay or picture windows where they also may be seen from the outside, at stairways, at empty corners of rooms—not only is a smart decorative trick but it can be the beginning of a whole new hobby.

Open-shelved room dividers, for example, may easily be converted into indoor gardens by adding a collection of interesting house plants that can be changed at will, Cook pointed out, adding:

A bulletin planter, for instance, will supply a border of beauty at a large picture window, divide a living and dining tray or partition an area for an entrance hall.

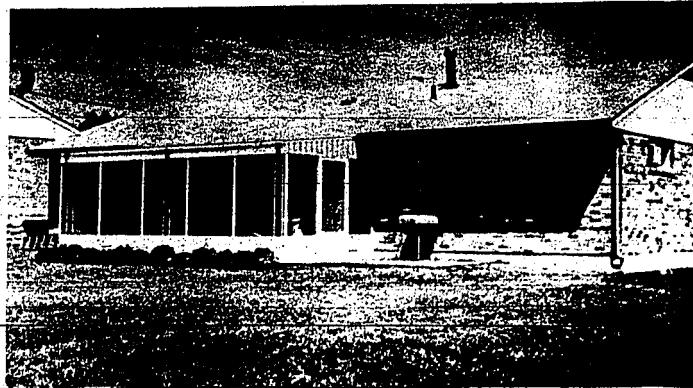

By filling such planters with plants left in their clay pots, you can use plants with different watering needs, change or replace plants as you wish and add a seasonal flowering plant for a colorful accent.

Essentially the same effect may be created without a bulletin planter by using a low table or cart that will accommodate an array of green plants.

Plants in clay pots are extremely popular because they are long-lasting, they may be moved about the house and because they will fit any type of architecture or any period of furnishings, Cook explained.

He added that they range from large exotic plants placed on the floor as dramatic room accessories, to little dish gardens planted in soil or water and used to decorate the top of a piece of furniture.

"In getting started on such an interesting hobby," Cook said, "it's best to start out with the hardier house plants that thrive with little care. Your local florist will be glad to help you select such plants and give sound advice on the methods needed to develop a green thumb.

Later, when experience is gained, you can begin selecting the more sophisticated plants. Your florist has a wide selection of all types of foliage plants, including those that are distinctive and eye-catching because of their size, shape, color or texture of leaves.

When the weather in your area is settled and warm, don't forget that your house plants will welcome a "summer vacation" outdoors—in a shaded patio or by a front door in partial shade, he pointed out. When they are brought indoors again to resume their household chores, they will be stronger and handsomer.

DURABILITY INSURANCE

When you buy container plants for outdoor landscaping, your greatest asset is the durability of red clay pots. Their sturdy structure keeps plants from slipping over on windy days, and their porosity allows you to "plunge" them, container and all, in garden soil, window or planter boxes.

Covered Walk Cuts Tracking

If rain, wind and wet foot prints came into your house each time the door opened last winter, do something to correct the situation in the good-weather months ahead. Most helpful is a covered walkway that keep both head and feet dry while traveling from the street to the door. It also offers considerable protection to entrance areas.

It's often possible to extend the garage roof or the house roof to shelter a walk, relocating the walk, if necessary, to take advantage of the protection.

A post-and-beam or truss style structure can be tied into existing roof eaves, then topped with 1 by 6 or 1 by 8-inch boards laid in a board-and-batten pattern. Tongue-and-groove siding also could be used for the roofing. In either case, the truss extension should be slanted slightly to facilitate rain runoff.

Flowering Trees Offer Paradise

The loveliness of flowering trees on the home grounds in the spring and early summer months is incomparable. How does one go about selecting flowering trees?

There are flowering trees for every climate in the United States. Some combine flowers with fruits, like the crabapples, which can supply jellies.

Others offer triple advantages, such as flowers, fruit and shade, such as apples and cherries. Paches provide flowers and fruits. Magnolias give large, lovely, pink blossoms plus, with certain varieties, adequate shade.

Some of the flowers on trees hang pendant form, like Golden Rain, others, like Dogwood are not truly flowers but bracts that provide a delightful showery petal effect.

The Jandungmo Camellia becomes in time a small tree of exceptional beauty, with exquisite blooms. Jacaranda, Abutilon, Acacia, many species of citrus fruits, are striking and there are ornamental fruits like the hollies, from which one can make his own wreaths, and Mountain Ash.

In the north, there are the trees for brilliant fall foliage like the sugar maple, certain Oaks, Ginkos, Birches, and Liquidambar. Some, like Oxycodendron, have lovely foliage colors most of the year.

There are foliages which have delightful aromas. Best thing to do is contact a successful nurseryman who has full information on trees and what they can accomplish in addition to shade.

Spring Cleaning Means More To Outdoors Than Indoors

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"Spring Cleaning" applies more to outdoors than indoors in this era of fresh-air homemaking.

Why break your back indoors, when you are going to live outdoors, weather permitting? That's the reasoning behind the big-outdoors-sweep, and besides it's good exercise.

So—if you haven't looked at your house recently, you will be prepared to rid it of its winter weariness.

The object is to get a clean, uncluttered look. One way to accomplish that is to take a leaf from indoor cleaning methods: Get rid of everything that does not belong before you install new gimmicks on the lawn-terrace or around the swimming pool.

Divide chores into so many each day or each week, but do something each time the schedule comes up. It should be painless if you don't wait until the first outdoor living day to do the cleaning. By then, you should be ready to live it up in the great outdoors.

Here are some reminders to help speed clean.

Trash pickup. Supply helpers with big fruit baskets and send them on a scavenger hunt to bring back papers, boxes, cans and other trash you may have drifted on your property or may have been dropped by garbage men emptying refuse cans.

Sticks and stumps. Tree twigs and limbs that may have blown down in winter make good kindling for outdoor and indoor fires. They should be banded and stacked with firewood for indoor use or put at the outdoor barbecue. Tiny pebbles and rocks can be sorted out for use around flower beds or in patching mortar.

Leaf raking and bush pruning. This can be fun or a chore, depending on the size of the lot, but if done early enough there may be a lot of satisfaction in the effort. Leaves and dead shoots should be carted away and disposed of as soon as possible. A strong wind can disperse trash over the same area that was cleaned. Many a home-owner has had this happen as he stopped his raking to drink water.

Paraphernalia pickup. It is amazing how many things escape the eye when the outdoors is being bedded down in winter. One is likely to find everything from an opener to door mats under bushes, porches and even in the open border under leaves, snow, sand. Winter moves in swiftly for outdoors but who spends the last fall days hoping that the cold season be skipped altogether.

When everything is trimmed and picked up, plans can be made for small repairs and the refurbishing of lawns, terraces and gardens.

Site up all those nagging little projects—repairing of fences, stairs and mortar loosened from frost-popping, and painting and repair of swimming pools.

The outdoor decorator can get busy with her plans. Will she paint furniture, repair or replace the cushions, plant flower borders? Are there purchases to be made—terrace pots, topiary trees, a slide for the swimming pool?

A terrace is much more useful if part of it, at least, is shaded from the broiling sun. It can be partially shaded by trees or fully shaded by an awning. Order the awning early—awnings usually must be custom made.

One enormous problem of living it up outdoors is the mass of equipment and furnishings that accumulate. These are things that were unknown for homemaking enjoyment in other eras, but we seem to be trying to manage with less rather than more storage space than our ancestors had.

After—the sun season, many people are forced to leave garden furniture and other accessories outdoors or in such cramped space that it is wrecked and requires a lot of repair work each season.

One year, a good wintertime project could be the building of a small storage house for all of this stuff. Call it a "yard house." There are inexpensive tool sheds that could serve this purpose. They may be considered eyesores, but could be made to look more attractive finished with paint or siding that conforms to the house.

Many people use the garage for storage space, leaving the family car outside.

A great deal of outdoor equipment and furniture is made to stack or fold up, something to keep in mind when purchasing such things if storage space is limited.

REPORTING TIP

When transferring plants to larger clay pots, in order to accommodate expanded roots, water them thoroughly the day before you make the switch. This should soften the root ball and make it easier to separate roots intact, without shock.

Checklist Given For Exteriors

Since siding does much more than beautify a home, building experts advise that the best time to consider new siding is well before exterior appearance makes it all too obvious that a "face lifting" is needed.

Nowadays, the exterior can be examined—and new siding installed, at any season of the year, but the annual spring home check-up makes an opportunity to look for danger signals that indicate a deterioration of or potential damage to surface or siding.

- Some points to check are!
1. Moisture. This can lead to termites and rotting wood. Fungus and mildew are two signs that moisture is present.
 2. Condition of Surface. Blistering, chalking or peeling signal a need for repainting or replacement. Dents, cracks, breaks or splits in the home's present siding mean that it's time to think about replacement.
 3. Openings around Windows and Doors. If siding no longer provides a snug fit in these areas, heating or cooling losses can occur.

Conditions can usually be corrected by direct application of new siding over old.

Use Plants To Control Climate Of Your Home

How would you like to "trap the sun," giving you an area that may be 10 degrees or more warmer in sunny weather, even on the coldest days? Or make your home warmer in winter and cooler in summer?

This can be accomplished at most home locations by the proper planting of trees and shrubs, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

Both beauty and comfort can be designed into your home landscaping. While you will wish to consult with a good nurseryman, here are some of the ways to control extremes of weather by use of plantings.

1. From what direction do the coldest winds come? If winter? On that side of your home a suitable windbreak can make your winter even help to lower your fuel consumption to some extent. In an experimental test, a perfectly planted windbreak, fuel cost was reduced 22.2 percent. Winter winds, m.o.e.

than the cold itself cause heavier fuel bills.

2. Usually, but not always, cooling summer breezes tend to blow at right angles to the customary cold winter winds. Thus, by curving the windbreak slightly, opening it up in the summer breeze direction one can direct these breezes onto his property or "outdoor living room."

3. Sun can be "trapped" in patio areas where the winds have been shut off by plants or the walls of the home. Everyone has experienced to some degree the warmth on the south side of his home in winter.

This warmth can be enhanced in winter considerably with every green plant; while the area will be cooler in summer it has a deciduous shade tree which cuts off the sun in summer; and, in shedding its leaves, lets in the winter sun when you need it.

A good shade tree transfers the heat in summer from the earth level to the top of the tree. Depending on the type of tree it can be 5 to 10 degrees cooler in the shade, making the difference between comfort and discomfort in hot weather. That is why practically everyone gives a sigh of relief when sitting down in the shade of a tree on hot days.

4. A swimming pool surrounded by landscaping can help to moderate temperatures in the summer. Evaporation of water absorbs large quantities of heat from the surrounding atmosphere—while—the-landscaping-modifies reflection of heat and greatly cuts down on glare. Even a comparatively few plants will help to achieve this. There are a number of other ways to use plants to increase seasonal comfort, while supplying pleasure and beauty. Ask your nurseryman about them.

SUBSTITUTE LIGHT

Although natural light is better, electric light will help indoor plants thrive, recommend the botanists of Green Thumb Foot Co.

Indoor Potted Plants Brighten Up Garden

To get a pleasure bonus from indoor flowering or foliage plants, select them with an eye to outdoor use, too. Many plants can be transferred to the outdoor garden for summer months, with benefit to both garden and plants.

Especially long-lasting house plants such as philodendron profit from an outdoor vacation. Kept in their porous clay pots to insure proper drainage and oxygen passage, sturdy foliage plants can be plunged into shady out-of-door spots. Plants that spend the summer immersed in garden soil gain additional strength for the "indoor" months.

Another choice might be multi-colored Caladium plants. In large clay pots, these plants are suitable for decorating the living room, and in warmer weather they can be used to advantage in a sheltered garden border or on a shaded patio.

Vividly-colored geraniums will thrive in sunny bay window indoors—and then can be planted right into an outdoor window box or terrace planter during the summer.

When house plants are used outdoors, these suggestions can be helpful:

1. Doublepot plants in clay pots at least two inches taller and wider than their own containers. Place an inch or so of pebbles and vermiculite at bottom of the inside pot, and line space between inner and outer pots with peat moss or sphagnum. Plants can be watered freely, with no danger of root damage caused by "wet feet."

2. Check with a florist or nurseryman on the proper locations for plants placed outdoors. Foliage plants in general do not like direct sunlight, but most flowering plants prefer more light.

3. House plants placed outdoors—even sun-loving ones—should be guarded against searing sun and wind. They'll wither and stand better if protected by walls, fences, heavy shrubs, overhanging roofs or patio ledges.

4. For portability, put large clay-potted plants on dollies, so they'll be easier to move. Many showpiece plants for porch, terrace and patio require clay pots up to 14 and 16 inches. Slipping them and their matching clay saucers onto a dolly makes transportation simpler.

5. When space is a problem, pole planters equipped with brackets for holding several clay-potted plants and matching saucers, provide an attractive setting for flowering and foliage plants and hanging vines.

Do-It-Yourself Gardening Offers Fun And Relaxation

Planting and caring for living shrubs and trees on the home property provides healthy exercise and relaxation from everyday tensions and strains of modern business.

Garden living affords the individual as well as the family pleasure and entertainment. "Surprisingly enough," the American Association of Nurserymen says, "planting and landscaping more than pays for itself in the increased resale value of the property, to say nothing of the pleasure and enjoyment it brings the homeowner."

How do you plant a garden for health and pleasure?

First, make a list of the plants that appeal to you and to your family. Consider such things as size and color. The local nursery is a good place to see the plants at their best and to make plant choices. Another good source for plant materials are nursery catalogs that list plants available through your local nurseryman. Next, ask the advice of a good nurseryman—where and when to plant the things you like best, as well as how to arrange the planting for wholesome garden living. Nurserymen will be able to help you gear the individual plantings to the amount of garden exercise and area of relaxation you desire.

For example, a garden of two dozen rose plants will take less than an hour or so of attention a week, including watering. About the same applies to camellias, azaleas, perennials and other plants. A half dozen dwarf fruit trees will fit into the same pattern.

With the help of a good nurseryman in selecting plant material, the homeowner can have almost anything he wants. Selections can be made that will provide plenty of beauty and shade, but will require little time or effort.

Gardening offers an excellent opportunity for healthy exercise and relaxation, as well as a means for wholesome family garden living . . . which does far more for the gardener and his family than it does for the plant material.

UNUSUAL FENCING

An unusual fencing idea is offered by perforated hardboard, which provides hanging storage facilities, as well as a decorative look. It could be used for instance, to create a hanging garden of potted plants.

Good Landscaping Beautifies And Improves Home Value

What do people think when they see your home, either in passing or in visiting? Often, a home is judged by neighbors and friends on the basis of its landscaped beauty, and the pleasing effect landscaping imparts to the property.

"The price and salability of a home," according to the American Association of Nurserymen, "depends to a considerable extent on the first impression of the property as a whole. Good landscaping enhances the price of a home regardless of the size of the home or property."

One of the primary points of good landscaping is the need for an overall design. A good landscape nurseryman will be able to find plantings that take full advantage of the homestead and create a beautiful picture from wherever the site happens to be—on the street side, in the rear yard, on the terrace or looking at the side borders of the property.

Design will capitalize on the excellent views and screen off unsightly vistas. It ties the "house to the ground in a way that delights the eye, and even the soul."

"It's like looking at a painted masterpiece in which living plants, sun, color, and 'house' are effectively tied together. It can be gay and at the same time restful and peaceful," says the national nurserymen's association.

Adding design to your planting will provide for such things as adequate shade at exactly the time of day you want it and exactly where you want it. Flowers and foliage, roses and perennials can be placed to bring enjoyment by looking at them, or to cut the blooms to brighten up the indoors. Good design uses the indoor-outdoor relationship so that it flows smoothly from one to the other without harsh and abrupt changes.

A good landscape nurseryman can help the homeowner design private outdoor areas by adding hedges or informal naturalistic groupings of plants. Sometimes just one large evergreen or flowering shrub or perhaps a tree will change an eyesore to a scene of beauty and privacy.

Most importantly, however, good landscaping design will give the homeowner whatever he wants. It can provide for wide open spaces for the athletic-inclined family, provide for large areas of flowers and other blooming materials for the avid gardener, and even include areas for vegetable gardens.

Landscape design caters to the family's wants and needs—from beautiful yards of low-maintenance quality to yards filled with plantings of flowers, fruits and vegetables for the avid gardener looking for recreation and exercise.

ROSES NEED WATER

Roses need much water in time of drought, not a mere surface sprinkling which brings roots to the surface to suffer sun-scorch.

ADDITION OF WINDOW shutters enhances the appearance of this house, providing a decorative and colorful accent of what otherwise would be an ordinary exterior.

Apple Trees Take Long To Grow

If you wonder why so few new varieties of apples appear on the market consider:

There is a minimum waiting period of 10 years before a population of seedlings has fruited and can be evaluated. To have an adequate breeding program, nearly 8,000 seedlings must be planted annually, 700 trees to an acre.

From the seedlings, fewer than 10 plants per 1,000 usually are worth propagation for further observation. Of these few, only two or three in a hundred may be introduced for commercial testing. This means there may be one to three good prospects from 10,000 seedlings.

The New York State Agricultural Experiment Station has produced 67,000 seedlings since 1945. Three varieties, Wayne, Spigold and Monoc, promise to be of real value, researchers say.

Dr. John Elmer, head pomologist, said the present world apple industry was based on varieties that originated in the 18th and 19th Centuries as chance wild seedlings. The exports urged development of new varieties because technological advances with existing varieties eventually would reach a saturation point.

Colorful Fiberglass Is Keyed To Outdoor Fun

Colorful and durable, reinforced fiberglass panels can transform the backyard of any home, as well as helping provide privacy and coolness without shade.

Homeowners who plan to spend part or all of their vacations at home this summer might well invest in these colorful additions to the backyard scenery—and bring a vacation feeling right into the home.

A major manufacturer of fiberglass-reinforced panels is marketing a line of panels in all shapes and sizes, including an all-new panel, designated Royal Filon.

Corrugated or flat panels in a variety of colors can be used to create a fence which gives the yard a brand new look. Instruction kits for do-it-yourselfers are available for those who fancy themselves as handy men.

These panels can be sawed, nailed and drilled with ordinary household tools, a company official noted.

Ventilated-patio-roofs-also-are proving increasingly popular, and again, they're simply installed.

Other backyard uses for these versatile panels include: porches, carports, cabanas, pavilions and swimming pool filter covers.

A variation is a "CarVillon," a cross between a carport and a pavilion. This novel addition can be set up in ten different designs, ranging from an Oriental-style "Teahouse" to a Scandinavian "Viking."

Chief virtues of the reinforced-fiberglass panel are said to be its transparency, durability and low cost. Another good reason for considering it as a backyard addition is its ease-of-maintenance. Usually, this consists of a periodic hosing down to eliminate surface dirt and dust.

A final word from the manufacturers of Filon: If you're not a do-it-yourselfer, don't fret! The man from the building materials store will arrange for a professional to do the installing, and it'll still be at relatively low cost.

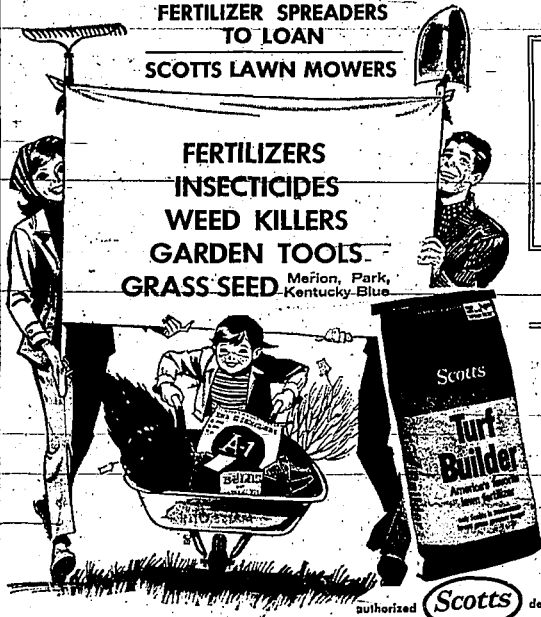

BRING SPRINGTIME INDOORS with a dish garden. This growing green landscape was brightened with a pair of fresh yellow orchids by experts for an oriental effect. A simple change of flowers and colors will bring a similarly new mood. The miniature garden requires little care and means a versatile new twist in decorating your home with fresh flowers and greenery all year-round.

Dish Gardens Can Make Home Bloom

Gardens are growing indoors this spring. Miniature landscapes in the form of easy-care dish-garden arrangements can make your home bloom now and all the year-round with a fresh garden look.

Dish garden designs can challenge your creative imaginations, and Florist's Transworld Delivery experts have some tips to help you make the most of your indoor spring garden.

For an well chosen props can turn a dish garden into a real conversation piece. An expert flower arranger can create a dish garden around almost any prop, a figurine, a bird's nest, sea shells, even a sewing basket, a rope rack or humidor, functional or otherwise.

Part of the fun of having one or more dish gardens at home is switching the fresh flowers to change moods-for every new festive occasion. A well designed dish garden, of course, should dress up a room with rich-looking greenery even without flowers.

Any FTD florist can supply the basic evergreen setting, and he'll let you know what ferns and greens will mix well with the various fresh flowers that will bloom over the course of the year.

Your florist can also supply you with the tiny water filled tubes he uses to keep flowers fresh when they're "planted" in dish gardens. Use them with fresh flowers of your choice.

Cut the stems of the flowers at a slanting angle and remove all foliage below the water line. Dish gardens are easy to care for and hardy, but it is well of keep one in a light area but away from direct sunlight, heat and drafts.

Picking containers for dish gardens is another part of the creative challenge they offer. Besides, unusual containers add to the decorative interest. Search your home and imagination for new ideas.

You would also be surprised at what you'll find at auctions and in antique shops. It's a simple matter to ask your florist to design a personalized garden arrangement in your own container.

REELS, REELS AND REELS. These are just a few of the many types of hose reels available to homeowners. The reels shown here are, left to right, the hand-truck reel, mounted on a cart that doubles as a useful carrier; the roto-reel that rotates as it unwinds, allowing hose to always follow user; the heavy-duty estate reel for large yards and gardens; and the hose valet, a budget-priced reel, ideal for small lawns or small lots.

Rollers Used For Fast And Easy Painting

The role of rollers as a painting tool is rapidly broadening, as more and more homeowners turn to the "do-it-yourself" principle for both exterior and interior paint jobs.

Quick and easy to use, rollers have always appealed to the do-it-yourselfer. Now, refinements in roller design—built further to provide flexibility, speed difficult paint jobs and achieve professional-looking results.

Usually... the do-it-yourselfer will find that more than one roller is necessary if the finished job is to look really finished.

For painting broad expanses, it's "meritly we roll along" with a large roller, deep-napped or rough-textured surfaces, short-napped or standard-napped for smoother surfaces.

The "nap" refers to the wicking capacity of the roller cover—how much paint it can hold, ready to roll on.

For angled edges, hard-to-paint surfaces, hard-to-reach areas and contoured surfaces, both specially-shaped rollers and ingenuity in using them are helpful.

A specially-shaped roller for painting baseboards, eadings, angular corns that fits up against both wall corners at once.

In painting house exteriors, an edging roller is useful. Undersides of house shutters should be "augured" with this roller, before painting the broad exposed areas of the shakes with a heavy-duty, deep nap roller.

A welcome innovation is the wrap-around roller with flexible axle. It conforms to contoured surfaces, thus speeding painting of stair rails and newel posts.

It's handy, too, for painting downspouts, lolly columns, pipes and other vertical features. Hard-to-reach surfaces such as ceilings, roof overhangs, and high walls can be painted with rollers on ladders or scaffolding. An extension pole, fastened to the roller frame, is the answer.

A number of other special rollers for special purposes are available.

excellent for arrangements at this time of year. To prolong their life, the Society of American Florists says to remove the white, fibrous section from the stem to allow more water to reach the bloom.

Quality Lawn Blends Garden Planting With Surroundings

Only when a lawn of fine-textured grasses blends plantings with surroundings, does a home become truly beautiful. Fortunately, an esthetic landscape is neither expensive nor difficult to gain, what with excellent seed and convenient lawn products.

Lawn fescues are attractive but rugged even on underfertilized, dry soils and in shady spots. Top blends usually combine fescues with bluegrasses to provide an all-purpose turf that is best mowed fairly tall. Kentucky bluegrasses form an especially sturdy sod that is rich green when fertilized, and wear-resistant.

Bentgrasses are luxurious, need monthly feeding, regular mowing and watering. Both colonial forms such as Highland and creepers such as Penncross are available from seed. In the South, bermudagrasses require about as much care as bentas, grow only in the sun. Zoysia varieties must be planted from live starts and/or rather slow to become a solid stand.

Of the coarser southern species bahia, carpet and centipede are easily tended, can be started from seed; St. Augustine is vegetatively planted.

Backing these star performers are many beautification aids. Paramount is lawn fertilizer, in many lightweight formulations which cover 5,000 square feet from a single sack that even a child can lift. High-nitrogen analyses such as 30-8 and 24-9-5—the percentages of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium respectively—are commonplace.

These powerful plant foods are frequently bolstered with secondary elements and micro-nutrients such as sulfur, calcium, magnesium and iron. They apply effortlessly with a good lawn spreader; just set for the rate recommended on the bag and pour into the hopper.

Weed control is made equally easy. Most fertilizer lines include a weed-and-feed product that sets back the weed competition as it stimulates the grass. Dandelions, plantains, chickweeds and so on succumb readily to 2,4-D, silvex and dicamba (do not use on St. Augustine).

A half dozen effective chemicals prevent crabgrass, sometimes also combined with fertilizer. Modern lawn mowers adjust cutting height easily, have the capacity to mow quickly. Riding mowers are the rage, luxurious models exhibiting several speeds forward (and reverse) and a control "stick" that lets you slip for thick grass without shifting.

Even watering is becoming automated. An inexpensive plastic system can be laid underground which operates automatically from a time clock. Watering should be frequent for bentgrasses, but Kentucky bluegrasses and fine fescues can await signs of stringency.

There are other aids, too: Insecticides harmless to pets and people, fungicides to check disease summer and winter, edging chemicals, soil fumigants, thatch removers; and so on. But if you do nothing more than select top quality grass, fertilize and mow it conscientiously, a presentable lawn will be yours to enhance flowers, shrubs and shade trees as nothing else can.
