U. N. Cease-Fire Broken As Israelis, Egyptians Battle Near Suez Canal

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Fighting broke out between Israeli and Egyptian forces on the east bank of the Suez Canal Saturday, shattering a U.N. sponsored cease-fire that ended the Middle East war June 11. Israel and Egypt accused each other of launching an attack and of violating the cease-fire.

Both countries reported an outbreak of fighting on the east bank of the canal about 10 miles south of Port Said. Israel said a battle developed and Egypt said it was a full-scale battle. The fighting was still under way 2 1/2 hours after it started at 8:30 p.m. (1:30 p.m. EDT).

There were no further reports from Tel Aviv or Cairo to indicate if hostilities were continuing or if the exchange of fire died down.

Each side sent a message to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant telling him the other had broken the cease-fire that ended the six-year war.

Israeli Ambassador Gideon Rael, in a letter to the U.N. Security Council released in New York, said the Egyptian force crossed the Suez Canal from the west bank and "penetrated the Israeli cease-fire position in Sinai."

Rael said the Egyptians carried reinforcements across the canal near Ras-el-Ayish, about 10 miles south of Port Said. Egypt said its forces had been "based" on the east bank.

A U.N. spokesman said the United Nations had no way to investigate the charges because it had no observers along the canal.

The reports from Tel Aviv and on Cairo Radio did not clarify what positions were held by the Egyptian and Israeli troops before the fighting erupted, but they agreed the fighting was on the east bank south of Port Said and Port Said.

Holiday Toll On Highways On Increase

By The Associated Press
Traffic deaths edged upward Saturday as thousands of Americans motored to vacation spots for the four-day Independence Day weekend.

Fatalities totaled 141 since the period began at 6 p.m. Friday. A spokesman for the National Safety Council said it was much too early in the extended weekend to make a meaningful projection of the rate of fatalities.

Before the 192-hour holiday began, the council estimated the death toll may reach 700 to 800 by the end of the counting period at midnight Tuesday.

The council said motorists probably would put more miles on their cars this weekend than on any other holiday this year, possibly some 13 billion miles.

The Associated Press, in a survey made for comparative purposes, counted 230 traffic deaths in a nonholiday period equal in duration to this holiday weekend. The total period was from 6 p.m. Friday, June 16 to midnight Tuesday, June 20.

Major highways were closed in duration to this holiday weekend. The total period was from 6 p.m. Friday, June 16 to midnight Tuesday, June 20.

During last year's Independence Day observance, 576 lives were lost on the nation's highways, making it the worst fourth of July weekend on record. That was a three-day holiday. The lowest total since World War II was 231 in 1946.

There were 608 highway deaths during the four-day holiday. The lowest total since World War II was 231 in 1946.

U. S. Forces Leave 75 Enemy Dead After Light Skirmishes

By EDWIN Q. WHITE
SAIGON (AP) — Three days of light but "near continuous" fighting by U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division troops along the South Vietnamese coast have left 75 enemy dead, the U.S. Command said Saturday.

There were no details, but the posts were said to have been manned by small militia units. Communist troop concentrations, bunkers and other fortifications, and enemy water traffic were targeted for 419 sorties. See FORCES Pg. 2, Col. 2.

General Contractors of the Twin Falls Area suffered another setback late Friday in their attempts to stop work on the Twin Falls County Judicial Building when a verdict was rendered by the Idaho Supreme Court denying a motion for a temporary injunction against the county.

No other major action was reported across the country, but U.S. planes kept up their pounding of targets in North Vietnam. The air cavalrymen engaged two or three Communist companies Wednesday in coastal Binh Dinh Province, about 200 miles northeast of Saigon. They hit two Viet Cong strongholds on a sandy strip of land near the South China Sea. Action tapered off at nightfall, but resumed each day through Friday as the Americans ran repeatedly into small pockets of enemy resistance.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Michael Felton was advised by the court late Friday afternoon that a decision had been reached on the motion by the contractors to stop work on the building, pending action on the contractor's appeal of a district court decision favoring the county.

Justices of the court ruled against the injunction stating there was an absence of any clear legislative prohibition in the statutes. They also stated the plaintiffs, the contractors, had not shown they would be damaged in any way if work is allowed to continue pending their appeal.

The U.S. Command said at seven men killed and 33 wounded in the three days of combat. Elsewhere, the war followed a familiar pattern of small firefights and skirmishes from the Mekong River delta to the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam.

Contractors charged the commissioners acted illegally and that a true emergency did not exist. In a trial in Eleventh Judicial District Court before Judge Gus Carr Anderson, Fifth District, Pocatello, the county officials won the case.

Contractors now have appealed the case to the Supreme Court and had asked for a temporary injunction to stop work pending a hearing and decision on the appeal.

Spokesman said 18 other ground operations were underway, but "no significant contacts were reported."

The contractors, including Reynolds Construction Co., Home Plumbing Co., Lloyd H. Miller and Ray Nelson as Nelson and Miller Construction Co., J. A. Clawson Construction Co.,

County officials had hoped to complete the building by July 1, when a second district judge was scheduled for appointment in Twin Falls. The building is designed to house two district court rooms, county legal offices, probate court clerks and the law library, and justice court.

Kosygin Ends Tour, Expected To View U. S., Russ Relations

By MICHAEL JOHNSON
MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin returned to Moscow Saturday after 15 days abroad and is expected to move quickly toward a new assessment of U.S.-Soviet relations.

His trip included two meetings with President Johnson, two stopovers in Paris for conferences with President Charles de Gaulle, and five days as the guest of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro in Havana.

The announced purpose of his trip was to lead the Soviet delegation at the emergency U.N. Assembly session on the Middle East crisis.

He obviously undertook a great deal more. Tass, the Soviet news agency, in announcing Kosygin's return said he had met Castro, De Gaulle and had spoken at the United Nations. It made no mention of his summit talks with President Johnson.

Israelis Kill 12 Arabs In Looting

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli soldiers shot and killed 12 Arab residents of the Gaza Strip who were looting United Nations food and ammunition stores, an army spokesman announced Saturday.

The 12, all men, were among 150 Arabs who broke into a former camp of the U.N. Emergency Force near Rafah, at the southern end of the Gaza Strip, the spokesman said.

It said the men were shot after one of the looters threw a hand grenade at Israeli guards.

The army said U.N. officials had asked Israel to take steps to stop looting of the camp, and the guard was subsequently increased.

Valley Begins 'Festive Fourth' Activities

Somber warnings issued Friday by the National Safety Council and the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness called to diminish the festive mood evident in Magic Valley as preparations continued for an explosive Fourth of July.

The safety council has primarily predicted that 700,000 of the thousands of Americans who have headed for the nation's highways and a long Independence Day weekend will die in traffic accidents.

And on the other side of the fence, the NSPB has warned that the unwatched fireworks displays are a "menace to the sight and safety of youngsters throughout the United States."

Sunny, pleasant weather added to the apprehension exhibited by Magic Valley motorists and by local traffic control officials as they noted that rain usually curbs traffic deaths by slowing speeds and making drivers alert, and by encouraging more people to stay at home.

5 Survivors Rescued From Jungle Wilds

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Sausages, river water and faith kept them alive, five survivors of an Amazon plane crash told rescuers Friday after two weeks in the Brazilian wilds.

The five were flown here Friday and hospitalized. A sixth had died only hours before rescuers reached the group, huddled near the wreckage of the C-47 air force transport.

The plane, with 25 men aboard, crashed June 18 while trying to reach an air force radio monitoring outpost threatened by Indian attack. Nineteen died in the crash.

The plane sliced into a swampy jungle area with trees 150 feet tall and a thick covering of foliage.

For more than a week, search planes flew over the trackless jungle without a sign of the downed craft. Then weak distress signals were picked up by radio.

The search ended when a pilot, attracted by circling vultures, spotted a kite that was part of the plane's emergency equipment. The plane was barely visible below the thick trees.

It was another three days before the men were rescued.

Paramedics, lowered from a helicopter, were soon joined by other rescuers. Using dynamite and power saws, they cleared a small helicopter landing site.

Moderate GOP Bloc May Boost Rockefeller

By JACK BELL
DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York may become the indirect beneficiary and Richard Nixon the ultimate loser if moderate Republican governors succeed in keeping a substantial number of state delegations unpledged in advance of the 1968 party convention.

In meetings in West Yellowstone, Mont., and in Jackson, Wyo., last week the dominant moderate bloc of the 25 GOP state executives met to clear their heads and get satisfied that Michigan-Gov. George Romney has what it takes, either to get the nomination or defeat President Johnson.

By unanimously adopting a resolution urging state party organizations to take a wait-and-see attitude and not tie themselves to any candidate in advance, the governors left the way open for the reluctant Rockefeller to be substituted for Romney if the Michigan governor falters.

This maneuver could work against Nixon, the GOP 1968 presidential nominee, who is credited with high popularity in the polls and with top grass-roots support among prospective convention delegates.

If Nixon can be barred from seeing up delegations in advance, his chances for the nomination may be decreased. He would have to show himself the kind of a winner in the primaries that moderates don't think he would be.

There was no public expression of Nixon support at the Monday meeting of western Governors of whom 11 of the 13 are Republicans. At the Wyoming meeting, attended by 21 Republican executives, 9 N.Y. Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann of Nebraska spoke favorable words about the former vice president.

This meeting demonstrated that, as of today, the moderates are no nearer agreement on a candidate than they were in 1964 when they tumbled away their outside chance of keeping the nomination from Barry Goldwater.

The efforts of Rockefeller and Gov. John H. Chafee, of Rhode Island, the upcoming chairman of the GOP Governors Association, to organize a substantial bloc behind Romney failed. Similarly, a move by Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew and Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon — abetted silently by Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas — failed to smoke Nelson Rockefeller out of his repeated insistence that he won't become a candidate.

This left the moderates a year before the nominating convention in the same sort of confusion that they were in when Goldwater was sweeping delegates into his camp.

Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington predicted, "Some place along the line we will pick candidate." He indicated that this might be a meeting of GOP governors in Palm Beach, Fla., early in December. But few of his colleagues seemed to think that the situation would shake down sufficiently by that time.

"Almost to a man, the moderates concede privately that conservative Gov. Ronald Reagan poses a threat to their efforts to get a progressive nominee that possibly could parallel Goldwater's successful 1964 drive."

Reagan, who says he isn't running but wants to be California's favorite son at the convention, has demonstrated a strong personal appeal to the average voter. They don't say so publicly, but most of the moderates think he will overtake Nixon in conservative appeal.

For example, Gov. John A. Love of Colorado, current chairman of the GOP governors' group, is facing a revolt against delegation from a group of Goldwater adherents now in the process of organizing for Reagan.

Reagan, who says he isn't running but wants to be California's favorite son at the convention, has demonstrated a strong personal appeal to the average voter. They don't say so publicly, but most of the moderates think he will overtake Nixon in conservative appeal.

For example, Gov. John A. Love of Colorado, current chairman of the GOP governors' group, is facing a revolt against delegation from a group of Goldwater adherents now in the process of organizing for Reagan.

The Reagan movement could get real impetus early next year if the California governor's apparently wide-spread identification — through television's late show harvest votes for him in free-for-all presidential primaries where his name is put up without his consent.

Not all of the moderates agree with national Chairman Ray Bliss that it is delegates present in the convention that win nomination and not the personality of the candidate.

Many of them remember that their progressive precursors nominated Wendell L. Willkie in 1940 when the conservatives had most of the votes.

Order Combats Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apartments and trailer courts near Ft. Meade, Md., that won't rent to Negro servicemen have been declared off-limits to all military personnel as of July 12.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara issued the order Friday, targeting for the second time a suburban Washington area in the Pentagon drive against racial discrimination in private housing for servicemen.

The order affecting apartments and trailer parks within a seven-mile radius of Ft. Meade followed by eight days McNamara's similar action for a 3 1/2-mile radius around Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

High Recorded Death Valley, Calif. (AP)

Its highest temperature in two years—122 degrees—was recorded Friday at Death Valley National Monument.

There was no public expression of Nixon support at the Monday meeting of western Governors of whom 11 of the 13 are Republicans. At the Wyoming meeting, attended by 21 Republican executives, 9 N.Y. Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann of Nebraska spoke favorable words about the former vice president.

This meeting demonstrated that, as of today, the moderates are no nearer agreement on a candidate than they were in 1964 when they tumbled away their outside chance of keeping the nomination from Barry Goldwater.

The efforts of Rockefeller and Gov. John H. Chafee, of Rhode Island, the upcoming chairman of the GOP Governors Association, to organize a substantial bloc behind Romney failed. Similarly, a move by Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew and Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon — abetted silently by Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas — failed to smoke Nelson Rockefeller out of his repeated insistence that he won't become a candidate.

This left the moderates a year before the nominating convention in the same sort of confusion that they were in when Goldwater was sweeping delegates into his camp.

Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington predicted, "Some place along the line we will pick

Beauticians Will Attend Seminar

Three Magic Valley beauticians, Mrs. Connie Cameron and Mrs. Margo Butterfield, both Twin Falls, and Mrs. Elva Knowles, Shoshone, will attend the advanced Cosmetology Seminar, sponsored by the Idaho Cosmetology Association, scheduled for July 9, 10, 11 and 12 at the Liberal Arts Building, Boise College, Boise.

Mrs. John Hager, Boise, seminar chairman, reports that a large attendance of licensed cosmetologists is expected from throughout Idaho and neighboring states. The seminar, the second of an annual event, enables Idaho beauticians to receive advanced study in the state, rather than traveling to other states and universities.

Special guest artist is Grace Dorn, styles director of the Official Hair Fashion Committee of the United States, a committee of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

Also appearing as lecturer and teacher will be Art McCullough, director of micro-photography for Redox Laboratories, Van Nuys, Calif. Micro-photography is the scientific study of hair by the use of slides for analysis of hair problems.

The program will consist of classes by Miss Dorn on hair styling and make-up; Mr. McCullough, lecturer; Mr. William E. Shankwetter, Boise College, telephone practices and speech; Alfred Tennyson, Boise College, psychology of human relations, and James W. Tompkins, Boise College, professional ethics.

Mrs. T. C. Daniels, Nampa, Idaho Cosmetology Association president, will preside at the executive board meeting at 8 a.m. July 9, with registration for the seminar set from 2 to 3 p.m.

The Chiropractic Physician

By Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr

Due to our motorized era there are strain muscles and ligaments in our back which are not exercised as they should and therefore weakened. Another factor is that modern nutrition with all the processed foods deprive us of many important vitamins and minerals, which would be necessary to maintain ligamentous strength.

Such weakened ligaments and muscles may easily be overstretched or strained. They may lose their elastic ability to keep the spinal segment properly aligned.

Your Chiropractic Physician will, with corrective manipulation, proper physiotherapy and nutritional guidance, help to realign distorted joints and strengthen those weakened tissues.

Criticism Bristles Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Every once in a while President Johnson reveals, after 30 years in public life, his extreme sensitivity to criticism. He doesn't do it often, at least directly and in public.

Johnson, who had just spent hours with the Soviet leader discussing the possibility of bringing peace to both Vietnam and the Middle East, was hustled into the hotel through a back door.

This expressed pride in American progress, with the numerous illustrations he gave, can be taken as part of Johnson's answer to his critics, indirectly.

Mountain Vacation

This is the year to stay at home—or, rather, in our own Western front yard—for that vacation.

But what we are driving at in a far off manner is that this is the year for the Mountain States vacation—that is, unless you want to go someplace else in this broad land of ours and participate in race riots, fight high winds and tornados, get overly damp in driving rains and miss half the fun of seeing our own West.

FTC Advises Stronger Warning

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal agency says warnings of health hazards required on cigarette packages are too roundabout, not firm enough, and don't present all enough.

The Federal Trade Commission recommended Friday that warnings on cigarette packs be changed to read: "Warning: Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer and other diseases."

Under a law passed in 1965, the packages now carry these words: "Caution: Cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health."

In urging Congress to modify the warning, the commission said there was no evidence the warning required under the 1965 law has had any significant effect in cutting public use of tobacco.

In fact, noted the commission, recent estimates indicate cigarette sales in the past year will set a record high.

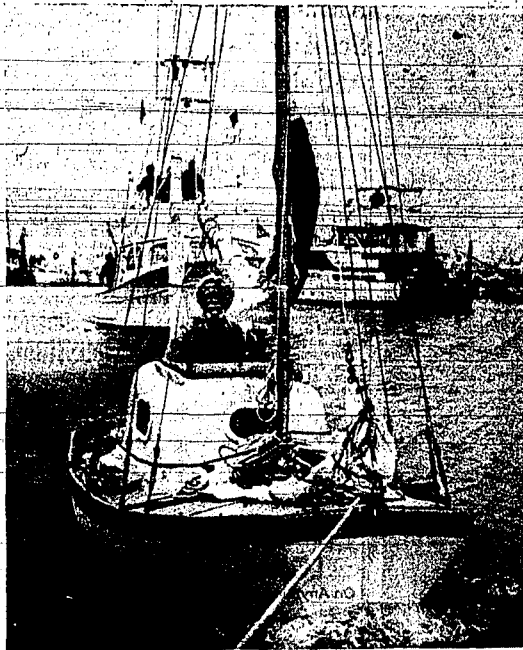

The commission also urged legislation to require that the tar and nicotine content of each brand of cigarettes be listed on packages and in all advertising. And it called disturbing an industry trend toward manufacture of longer cigarettes, which it said "expose the smoker to greater amounts of tar and nicotine, making them potentially more hazardous than the shorter length cigarettes."

Commissioner Philip Elman, in a separate statement, urged banning of the extra-long cigarettes and of all cigarette advertising on radio and television.

The commission's statement said its analysis of television programs indicated that "intentional or fortuitous, test segments to be a prime target for televised cigarette advertising."

The commission's recommendations to Congress were made within hours after the cigarette industry protested a recent Federal Communications Commission ruling that radio and television stations which carry cigarette advertising may be required to furnish free time to anti-cigarette advocates.

The June 2 ruling, said an industry petition, exceeded the FCC's authority.

CAPT. WILLIS RETURNS TO SEA In His Tiny Boat "Little One" MONTAUK, N.Y. (AP)—Capt. William Willis is alone at sea again today, bound across 3,000 miles of water in a boat only slightly longer than a surf board and about twice as wide. The bewhiskered 74-year-old mariner set sail on the Atlantic Ocean in mid-afternoon Friday as rain fell in a steady drizzle. His 11 1/2-foot boat, "Little One," carried supplies for 120 days. His destination was Plymouth, England, just as it was a year ago when he made his first try at the eastward crossing in the same boat. That voyage was interrupted in midocean when he suffered a strangulated hernia. "Every time he gets one of those urges, I'm disappointed," she said. "It's hard to say why he does it."

MONTAUK, N.Y. (AP)—Capt. William Willis is alone at sea again today, bound across 3,000 miles of water in a boat only slightly longer than a surf board and about twice as wide.

The bewhiskered 74-year-old mariner set sail on the Atlantic Ocean in mid-afternoon Friday as rain fell in a steady drizzle. His 11 1/2-foot boat, "Little One," carried supplies for 120 days. His destination was Plymouth, England, just as it was a year ago when he made his first try at the eastward crossing in the same boat. That voyage was interrupted in midocean when he suffered a strangulated hernia.

"That was from a lack of exercise," Willis explained. "This time I have along an exercise spring and I plan a fuller schedule of workouts."

The sailboat has no auxiliary power and no radio except a hand-cranked transmitter that sends an SOS.

Willis, who crossed the Pacific Ocean alone on a raft in 1954, scorned a suggestion that he might need to call for help.

"I live a frugal, normal life and that's the way it will be out there," he said.

Among those on hand to see him off was his wife Todd, as person said one family north of Arc in southeastern Idaho was removed Friday, but primarily because their well and septic tank had been ruined by flood waters.

"There won't be any real danger unless it comes up another 12 inches," he said.

Friday's warmer weather was expected to increase the river's flow again today, Mackay Reservoir is full and any additional streamflow goes to the Big Lost over the dam's spillway.

Guest speakers will include Robert S. Gibb of the Idaho State Office of Education in Boise; Dr. Catherine Allen, dean of the School of Physical Education at northeastern University in Boston; and Dr. A.W. Willis, director of the Department of Physical Education at the University of Melbourne, Australia.

Other reorganization measures taking effect today reduce the number of judicial districts from 13 to seven, increase the number of district judges from 23 to 24 and transfer capital and ground maintenance from the Land Department to the Department of Public Works.

But director James A. DeFenbach is acting director of administrative services until Gov. Don W. Sandison names a permanent director.

William A. Carter, Detroit, Mich., has been hired as director of the Division of Management Services, Detroit, Mich., and began his work today.

Thant's Action Causes Spreading Criticism

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS—N.Y. (AP)—After 3 1/2 years as U.N. secretary-general, U Thant is faced for the first time with widespread criticism of the type that plagued his predecessors Trygve Lie and Dag Hammarskjold.

Diplomats and private critics are locked in debates as to whether the tough little Burmese blundered in ordering the U.N. emergency force out of Egypt May 18.

Did he act with undue haste? Did his action help precipitate the Suez crisis? Did he do permanent injury to his own image and his future effectiveness as secretary-general?

The consensus among U.N. delegates: Probably not.

Debate in the current special session of the General Assembly has produced more defenders than critics. The impression is that Thant's action had the endorsement of an overwhelming majority of U.N. members.

The United States, Britain and Canada originally suggested that Thant may have been too quick in bowing to the demands of President Gamal Abdel Nasser to pull out the U.N. forces, but since then all have expressed confidence in the secretary-general.

Israel is the only country to speak out in the assembly in criticism of Thant.

It all adds up to this: Chances are that, if he were to come up for re-election next week, he would do almost as well as he did last December when he took a new five-year term by acclamation.

Nevertheless, Thant is seriously disturbed by the criticism. He has gone to unusual lengths to answer his critics.

For the first time since he became secretary-general he took the floor in the assembly June 20 to reply to charges made the previous day by Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban.

The gist of Thant's argument is that he had no choice but to withdraw the UNEF contingents.

Those who have studied his explanations and are familiar with the limitations of U.N. peace-keeping operations believe he couldn't have done more than stall a decision—and not for long, at that.

Hammarskjold became the central figure in one of the most dramatic moments in U.N. history when he took the floor in the assembly to defy a demand by former Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev that he withdraw the U.N. forces.

Thant's angry reply to Israel's charges again hit headlines.

The first secretary-general, Trygve Lie, broke with the Russians in 1950 when he branded as aggression the Communist attack on South Korea. He served until 1953 though his relations with the Soviet Union were never repaired.

Thant has one important thing going for him that neither Lie nor Hammarskjold had: In what Lie once called "the most important job in the world," he still has the support of all the big powers—despite some grumbling from the United States and Britain on the UNEF decision.

Associates of the 58-year-old former teacher-journalist say that if he leaves his post before the end of his second term in 1971 it will be because he is frustrated in his Vietnam peace efforts and not because of any political pressure. They believe the UNEF affair will soon blow over, but Thant may decide to quit if he decides he can't be useful in bringing the Vietnam conflict to the conference table.

BACK TO JOBS—EMMETT, Idaho (AP)—Lumber and sawmill workers were back on their jobs today after Friday's settlement of a ten-day strike at the Boise Cascade Corp. sawmill at Emmett.

Federal mediator E. B. Roach, Salt Lake City, met until early Friday morning with union and company representatives, finally bringing an agreement which was accepted by union members.

The walkout and subsequent picketing by the Emmett local of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and the Sawmill Workers Union was apparently the result of replacement of an hourly-paid millwright with a salaried supervisor.

DEPARTMENT OPENS BOISE (AP)—A "thorough analysis" of the Idaho Department of Public Assistance will be the first job of a division of the state Department of Administrative Services, which became a reality today.

The department was created by the 29th Idaho Legislature earlier this year.

A modest step toward state government reorganization, the department will consist of divisions for the budget, communications, building services and management services.

Other reorganization measures taking effect today reduce the number of judicial districts from 13 to seven, increase the number of district judges from 23 to 24 and transfer capital and ground maintenance from the Land Department to the Department of Public Works.

IMA MEET ENDS SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP)—Idaho Medical Association members concluded their annual convention Friday with election of officers.

Dr. James R. Kircher of Burley was installed as president, succeeding Dr. A. Curtis Jones of Boise.

Dr. C. D. Hoffman of Rexburg was chosen president-elect and Dr. William R. Tregoning of Boise was elected secretary.

Dr. Milford O. Rouse, Dallas, Tex., president of the American Medical Association, earlier told delegates doctors should not ignore new political, economic and social ideas.

"The ideas we have held throughout our professional lives are no longer necessarily valid because the world in which we live and practice is no longer the same," he said.

Pumping Stations, Water Pipe Installed

Two pumping stations and across the river by gravity, to system. There will be three each of the pumping stations use next summer. The 5-million gallon storage reservoir is under construction and includes electric pumps of 7,500 gpm capacity; two of 6,000 gpm capacity and the sixth of 4,000 gpm capacity. This will give the city a water supply system which will be able to meet the needs of the city through the summer months.

Kloepfer Construction Co., Logan, Utah, is currently engaged in a unique installation of 36-inch concrete covered steel pipe across Snake River by use of the old Perrine Bridge.

Purchased by the city from Burton Perrine, the bridge had been out of service for a number of years but has now been painted and a temporary flooring installed to support equipment carrying the 30-foot lengths of pipe, each weighing six tons.

One of the principal factors which helped the Kloepfer firm win the contract for the pumping stations and water line installations, City Engineer Ron Scheuffele said, was Mr. Kloepfer's solution to getting the giant size pipe sections on the north side of the river. If the road on the north side of the canyon were used it would be necessary to unload the pipe at the sharp curve.

Mr. Kloepfer bid on a basis of trucking the pipe to the south bank of the river by the south side road and then transporting the lengths across the river by the bridge.

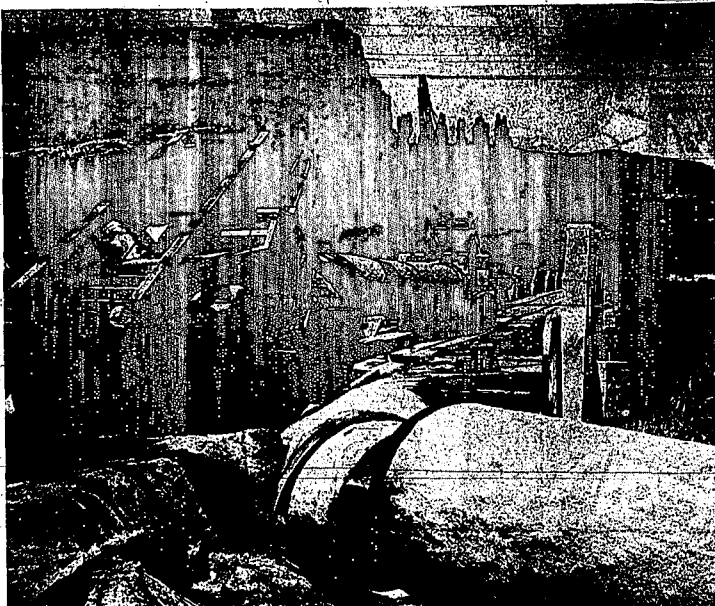

For the final step, he uses two army half-track machines with boom assemblies reaching to opposite ends of the 30-foot pipe lengths. One machine backs across the bridge while the other goes forward. To keep the heavy pipe, cradled between the two machines from swinging into the equipment and damaging the pipe end or machine, old heavy equipment tires are slipped over the ends of the pipe or swung at the back of the machines.

A total of 12,131 feet or about two and one-quarter miles of pipe of the 36-inch size is being installed in the canyon. The source of the new water supply in springs on the north side of the river to the south rim of the canyon and on to the second booster pump station.

When completed in March, 1968, the water system will have the most modern operation available.

A telemetering system will keep the entire supply line and canyon pump station under observation at all times. A control panel in the booster station located near the storage reservoir on Falls Avenue and Harrison St. will show, by lights, each section of the line and supply system. Should something go wrong, the panel will show where the trouble is located and why the trouble occurred.

This, Mr. Scheuffele said, will eliminate the need for pumping station located on the south side of Snake River in the canyon will operate with three giant electric pumps of 6,750 gallons per minute capacity and one pump of 3,300 gpm capacity. They will pump the water supply which comes

TWO ARMY HALF-TRACKS with boom assemblies cradle a giant 30-foot, six-ton length of water pipe over the old Perrine bridge in the Snake River canyon. A temporary floor which will be removed when the line is installed on the north side of the river and across the bridge supports the heavy machines. The vehicles move both ways on the bridge.

WORKERS GUIDE a 30-foot section of pipe into place as the 36-inch line makes its way from the old Perrine bridge over Snake River toward the northern rim of the canyon. Kloepfer Construction Co., Logan, Utah, is installing the plant line. Assistant Project Engineer Jim Talobrea, foreground, watches as the pipe is fitted into place.

Kimberly Youth Cited After Mishap

An 18-year-old Kimberly youth was treated for injuries and a traffic light knocked out of service Saturday at Five Points East intersection in an early morning traffic accident.

Injured was Roger L. Olsen, Kimberly, who was traveling east on Second Avenue South. He lost control of the 1966 sedan he was driving at the intersection. The vehicle came to rest in the intersection, facing east.

City police said the accident was reported at 7:30 a.m. and no other vehicles were involved. The automobile Mr. Olsen was driving was owned by Jo Ann Olsen and carried a Utah license.

Mr. Olsen was treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for cuts and bruises and released. He was cited by city police for failure to be reasonably alert and prudent.

Buhl Jaycees Help Improve City Dog Pound Facilities

Thanks to the Buhl Jaycees Buhl city officials, Mr. Schell said, "that a contract has been signed with a local veterinarian hospital and the dogs will be kept there while impounded."

He said the city officials have also agreed the trench type enclosure formerly used to house the dogs will be leveled to make sure it can no longer be used as a dog pound.

Jayne Mansfield's Death Followed Tragic Pattern Of Other Film Figures Of Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The sleek new car raced through Gulf Coast towns en route to New Orleans. It was morning and few cars were on two-lane Highway 90.

Out of the mist loomed the rear of a slow-moving trailer-truck. It was over in an instant. The top of the car was sheered back, killing the three persons in the front seat. One was the sophisticated Jayne Mansfield, 34, still chasing evanescent fame as a symbol of sexuality.

For a dozen eventful years she had been engaged in that pursuit with varying success. In the beginning, her improbable figure—officially measured at 46-21-35½—created a sensation, and the walls of her rocco mansion in Beverly Hills were decorated with 150 magazine covers on which she appeared. Hollywood quite naturally sought to capitalize on her. She was signed by 20th Century-Fox, which had prospered with a succession of blonde beauties: Lee Faye, Betty Grable, Marilyn Monroe.

Miss Mansfield first essayed a movie siren in "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?" which she had played with dazzling results on Broadway. Next she was cast with Dan Dailey in "The Wayward Bus" and with Cary Grant in "Kiss Them for Me." None achieved hit status.

The measurement of Jayne's acting skill was taken, and her film career declined. In recent years she appeared in guest roles or in the nude, or both.

Jayne's death on the Louisiana highway followed the tragic story of other film figures who strived to fit the role of sex symbol.

Jean Harlow was the sensational "Platinum Blonde" of the early talkies after her torrid appearance in "Hell's Angels." Her personal life often made the headlines, particularly when her husband, film executive, Paul Bern, committed suicide a month after their marriage.

Harlow's career suffered the inevitable slipshod symbols in films—and she turned redhead and attempted comedy. Death from uremic poisoning came in 1937 when she was 28.

Thelma Todd was another blonde star of the 1930s. She did some roles as a femme fatale, then switched to comedy as leading lady for Laurel and Hardy and costar in two-reelers with Patsy Kelly. Like Harlow, she had a series of romantic alliances.

One day in 1935 Miss Todd was discovered behind the wheel of her car, parked in the garage of her ocean-side house. She was dead of carbon monoxide poisoning. The actress, 27, gave no indication she contemplated suicide, and investigators pondered whether she had been murdered. The case was never solved.

Lupe Velez was a tempestuous star of silents and talkies and a lively figure in Hollywood society. Among her long-time romances were Gary Cooper and Johnny Weissmuller, the screen Tarzan whom she married.

The marriage didn't last, nor did her fame. She was reduced to playing the Mexican spiffire in B movies and doing lesser-known figures. She committed suicide in 1944 at the age of 34, naming a bit player as father of her unborn child.

Carole Landis had known a flashy career as a blonde leading lady and had married four times by the time she was 22. Actor Rex Harrison discovered her body in her apartment one day in 1948. She had died from an overdose of sleeping pills and left no indication why she took her life.

Maria McDonald was dubbed "The Body" by the art press agent during the war years, when the production of pinup photos became almost an industry.

She won a contract at MGM, but she proved more adept as a subject for cheesecake than as an actress. As her career declined, she continued making news with her stormy marriages and the 1957 kidnapping, which strained the credibility of police and press. She died in 1963, apparently from drugs.

Marilyn Monroe offered the classic case of fame for a sex symbol: the squalid childhood, early marriage and divorce, the struggle for a break in films, the slide into financial need, ingratiating herself to producers, the big break, the white-hot glare of the spotlight, marriage and divorce from famous figures, inability to cope with personal and career problems, decline of box-office appeal, being fired from a comeback film, suicide at 34.

Something was lacking perhaps that faint air of innocence that Marilyn had in her little-girl voice, that indication that she was putting you on.

Jayne's children became an adjunct to her publicity. One night in 1959, she and husband were killed by the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

ators at a festival in Blackpool, England. A complaint was filed by the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Last November, Jayne was posing for publicity pictures with son Zoltan Hargitay, 6, and a lion at a jungle compound. The animal attacked the boy, who nearly died from the injuries and subsequent meningitis. There were three survivors of the auto crash at 2:30 a.m. last Thursday in Louisiana. They were Jayne's three children: Hargitay-Miklos, 8; Zoltan, 6; and Maria, 2—who happened to be riding in the back seat of the speeding automobile.

First Negro Astronaut Says Selection "Nothing Dramatic"

By DAN BERGER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first Negro astronaut called his selection for the Manned Orbiting Laboratory "nothing dramatic." Maj. Robert H. Lawrence Jr. told newsmen it was "just a natural progression" and that he was fortunate to be chosen for the "nonaggressive, military operation."

Lawrence was one of four more aerospace research pilots named Friday by the Air Force in the Department of Defense MOL program. They complete a list of 16 pilots, two of whom are scheduled to be aboard a Titan 3 C booster sometime in 1970, headed for an orbiting laboratory.

The other three are Lt. Col. Robert H. H. Peterson, 34, Denver, Colo.; Maj. Donald H. Peterson, 33, Winona, Miss.; and Maj. James A. Abrahamson, 34, Portland, Ore.

Lawrence, from Chicago, is the youngest of the four at 31 and is the only one with a Ph.D. — in physical chemistry from Ohio State University.

Abrahamson has bachelors and masters degrees in engineering and public administration. Peterson has a masters degree in nuclear engineering.

All four of the new research pilots are married. Lawrence, asked at a news conference whether he had met any opposition to his appointment because he is a Negro, said he wasn't aware of any.

When Peterson was asked whether he would have any feelings about going up in a two-man capsule with a Negro, the Mississippiian replied, smiling: "No sir, we roomed together last night, and didn't have any problems."

Lawrence added, with a laugh, "You proposed we would be the two who would go together. Well, I'd be quite pleased with that."

Abrahamson said, "I have wanted to get into space all my life. I directed all my college studies at going up. I have thought about going to one or two of the planets — I guess all of us have. And when the MOL program started, I will volunteer for any space program in which I could make the best contribution."

"I was serving in Vietnam when I was chosen as one of the 500 qualified. I had applied many, many times," he added.

"This program (the aerospace research pilot school at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.) is a lot more fun than school. We fly in everything they've got. Once we played weightless football while making zero arcs in a KC135 jet."

Lawrence said the research pilot training was just as hard as chemistry school.

"The academic life of an aerospace research pilot is no touch," he added.

Pilot for the MOL program call for two men in a Gemini B attached to a Titan 3C booster to lift off from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., in 1970. They will make contact with the orbiting lab and enter through a heat shield for a 30-day stay, before being released without the use of space suits.

Firefighters Remain Alert Despite Lack Of Fires

By ALEEN M. BAILEY
Associated Press Writer
BOISE (AP) — Idaho has escaped major forest and range fires so far this summer, but a U. S. Bureau of Land Management official says firefighting agencies are ready.

"Training of firefighters has continued in spite of the lack of fires, as federal and state agencies ready themselves to control any forest and range land blazes."

"Normally, fires would be upon us by now," said W. W. Scoop March, chief of BLM's resource management division. March predicted the dangerous season would begin this weekend, in timber and dry grasslands of Idaho.

Firefighters and their administrators are about finished with their training, he said, and unannounced readiness inspections will be conducted "shortly."

Training and equipment preparation was later this year because a wet spring and so-far cool summer had kept the fire danger relatively low for June.

Some BLM workers from Idaho, however, are currently gaining experience fighting 140 fires in Alaska which have burned over 89,000 acres already.

Fire bosses, supply chiefs and others involved in organizing and controlling fires are given early training, mostly as team units.

These "attack management teams" must be compatible, March said, because there is no specific chain of command.

Aircraft and communications equipment must also be ready on a moment's notice. One problem fighting fires in Idaho, he said, was a lack of civilian-owned helicopters.

A five-day school for lookouts and other temporary employees was held last week in Idaho City, eliminated the danger of many forest fires at higher elevations.

District, while smokejumpers made practice jumps in the McColl area.

"Men who actually are on the lines fighting fires, digging, chopping and sawing, are thoroughly screened for physical fitness before they are sent out."

Most of them are college students, football players and teachers, March said.

Although the BLM does virtually all forest fire fighting in Idaho, its work in Idaho on grass fires requires a higher degree of readiness.

Grass fires spread much faster than forest fires, as shown by last year's fire in the Magic Valley area, which burned over 17,000 acres in less than one day.

Reid Jackson, fire control officer at Boise National Forest, said this year's wet, cool spring and heavy snow had nearly eliminated the danger of many forest fires at higher elevations.

Although the fire season began later this year, the great amount of moisture has provided much more fuel for the blazes when they do start, said Ken Edgerman of the fire center.

When a few hot days dry out the growth, he said, particularly on the desert ranges in southern Idaho, fire danger becomes extremely high.

Fewer than 20 small fires have been reported this year, mostly from lightning storms, but none got out of control or burned large areas, Jackson said.

Last year, the Boise Inter-agency Fire Center had been involved in eight fires by this time, ranging in size from 50 to 1,000 acres.

THE FAMILY that traveled the greatest distance to attend the Hunt project 20th Anniversary reunion are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hilliard, small son, Kenneth, and older son, Rick, Greenville, Ill. Registering the family is Mrs. Don McBride, Hunt Woman's Club secretary. They moved into the area in July, 1947, and moved to Illinois in 1956.

SOME OF THE ORIGINAL neighbors greet each other at the recent reunion held at the Eden Park. Mr. and Mrs. Dean Weatherwax, left, still residing at Hunt, had a hand shake and a hug for Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Powell. Ogden, Mrs. Weatherwax received an award during the reunion as the first of the original group to receive a college degree.

RELAXING AFTER the potluck dinner are, from left, Clarence Miller and Carlyle Butler, both Hunt; Al Lickley, Jerome, and Harold Hilliard, Greenville, Ill. A highlight of the day was the reminiscing and socializing with friends.

June 14, 1947, Is Remembered By Area Modern-Day Pioneers

By LARUE CHENEY
Times-News Correspondent

HUNT—June 14, 1947, is a date that won't be forgotten by a group of 43 modern-day pioneers who moved into the sagebrush desert on the Hunt project as it was opened for homesteading.

And recently the settlers celebrated their 20th Anniversary with a reunion at the Eden Park.

The event was arranged by the Hunt Women's Club, Mrs. Leon Baldwin, president; Mrs. Keith Johnson, vice president, and Mrs. Don McBride, secretary. More than 175 homesteaders and their families assembled to enjoy a potluck lunch and renew acquaintances, as well as receive awards for various accomplishments.

The original 43 veterans who settled on the project came from all parts of the United States, and many have since dispersed to distant areas. Most of them met again at the recent affair.

Homesteads ranged from 69 to 170 acres, not all irrigable. Each family also received two buildings from the Hunt relocation camp and several hundred dollars worth of miscellaneous supplies from the same source. One or two families received sawing machines and ancient trucks, both of which proved valuable in setting up their new homes.

Families lived in rent-free apartments until the barracks could be moved to their farm sites. Chief trials for the women were the temporary clothes lines that would constantly collapse, dropping their full load of clothes into the six inches of dust found under every line. They also became acquainted with pack-rats in their early days on the project. The men were concerned with well drilling, barracks moving, implement buying and brush clearing.

Cooking was another problem, as the modern electric ranges were useless on the project until the Idaho Power Co. could move lines in. The company's shortage of labor made it necessary for the men to throw in post-hole digging with their other labors. The few big black coal and wood ranges were indeed popular and would often be loaded with wide varieties of baking goodies. Wives recall with a chuckle the beautiful pie baked by Dorothy Pauls and, as she was taking it home, in her exuberant gestures she threw it upside down into the dust.

Socials were handled through the American Legion Post No. 131 and Auxiliary, which were organized at Hunt. As social life expanded to the larger surrounding cities the post was disbanded and the auxiliary formed into the Women's Club, which continues to function.

Churches included a Community Sunday School, and an LDS branch. The Community Sunday School was launched with a visit from Rev. Kermit Echelbarger, Kuna, and later had the regular assistance of Rev. Otto Stadler, Pocatello, who was a missionary of the Sunday School Union. The Community Church was later dissolved as the families traveled to surrounding churches, but the LDS Church continues to flourish in the community, and members have constructed a new church building on the project.

Without electricity the families know the "fun" of lighting their homes with gas lanterns and candles, and they hauled water from the camp headquarters, and went in to the camp to wash clothes and bathe.

School youngsters caught the bus at the line of mail boxes, and many walked four or five miles to meet the bus.

Fred Stewart was master of ceremonies for the issuing of awards at the recent affair, and Mrs. Carl Blandford, Ketchum, issued the prizes, which she furnished.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hilliard, Greenville, Ill., received the prize for traveling the greatest distance to the reunion. Also in attendance were Lufry Butler, the first child born at Hunt, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Butler.

Other awards included Mrs. Uffa Cook, grandmother of five, who had the most grandchildren from among the original homesteaders; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Parsons and Mr. and Mrs. Tom O'Connor, who shared the prize for the largest families, each with eight children, and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Pimm, changing the least.

Clarence Miller received a prize for having the grayest hair; Reed Lewis, most bald; Jim Moore, weighing the most; Bill Niedrick, bachelor; Pete Bird, having the most lines; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stewart, having the youngest child; Bob Miles, first homesteader to hold a farm sale; Mr. and Mrs. Geno Kenner as the parents of the first child (Brenda) to be married; Kark Black, the most civic minded; Jim Ritchie, non-homesteader living longest on the project; Mrs. Dean Weatherwax, the first original homesteader to earn a college degree, and Mr. and Mrs. Weatherwax were also the oldest couple among the original homesteaders; and Mr. and Mrs. Dolbert Waters, the youngest original couple.

A COYOTE PUP even put in an appearance at the reunion. Shown with the coyote are Annaboe Parson; Bill Lewis, holding the leash; Leo Weatherwax, kneeling, and Harvey Miller, standing.

THE FIRST CHILD born on the project was Larry Butler, shown here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Butler. Forty-three modern-day pioneers moved into the sagebrush desert on the Hunt project June 14, 1947, and gathered recently at the Eden Park to celebrate their 20th Anniversary. More than 175 homesteaders and their families assembled for the social.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I am 28 years old and have never had a boyfriend. Or I've had lots of dates, but they never developed into anything. My mother started a sterling silver set for her when she was 14, and it's complete now. She also has two hope chests filled with towels and linens. When I graduated from high school she made me a beautiful white wedding gown.
 Whenever a boy comes over she shows him my hope chest and talks to him about religion and how I am going to raise my children. Then I never see him again.
 My friends tell me I am pretty and have a nice personality, and I have had the same job (bookkeeper in a wholesale business) for 4 or 5 years, so what's wrong with me?
GETTING DESPERATE.
DEAR GETTING: Your mother. It's hard to believe she is unaware that she's frightening all the men away. But she is in a hurry to get her hope chest conversation with them to the weather. And if she can't, or won't, I see little hope for you. I see little hope for your hope chest until you leave your mother's bed and board.
DEAR ABBY: My husband came in this morning at 6:15, while the sun was peeking over the hill.
 He said, "I fell asleep in the car after running out of gas."
 I found lipstick on the cigaret butts in his car—his wedding ring in the pocket of his suit coat—beside a membership card—to an after hours club downtown.
 My mother says: "Give him the benefit of the doubt." What do you say, Abby?
TORONTO WIFE.
DEAR WIFE: I agree with your mother. When there's any doubt, give him the benefit of it.
DEAR ABBY: Maybe I'm dumb, but I can't figure this out. I'm an ordinary working stiff—27 and not married. I never met this woman at work and she seemed nice so I asked her for a date. She's about 30 and has three small kids whom she supports as she's divorced.
 When I called for her the kids were all dressed up. I thought maybe we were dropping them off somewhere for the evening, but it turned out the kids were going with us!
 I never in my life took kids on a date, but I had no choice, so we went to a family restaurant, and I bought everybody dinner. Then we went back to this woman's apartment and she put the kids to bed.
 She told me the next time we go out, if I didn't want to take the kids along, I would have to pay the sitter. Is she out of line to put the arm on me to pay the sitter? Or is the man supposed to?

JERRY
DEAR JERRY: Knowing nothing of the woman's financial situation I can't say whether she's out of line, or out of funds. (She is NOT out of nerve, however). The lady is really paying for her own sister on the first few dates. And if she is really hard up, she asks a friend to stay with her children for an evening.
DEAR ABBY: Please print this for any girl who has ever been tempted to accept a date with a married man. Four years ago I started seeing a married man. He had the oddest but one of the most effective lines in the world. "My wife is cold to me."
 At first it was a lunch date, then cocktails and dinner, but he didn't care that I had to walk down dark streets to get to his car. He was always in a hurry to get home.
 Pretty soon I came to my senses and realized I wasn't getting anywhere and that he was only using me. I would like to see this published for other women before they become—
A FOOL LIKE ME.
 Everybody has a problem. What's yours? Write to Abby, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Cal. 90039.

Hailey Club Members View Cancer Films

HAILEY — Members of the Hailey Homemakers Club viewed two films on cancer and heard Dr. A. Scott Earle of the Sun Valley Hospital staff speak on the subject at their regular meeting at the National Guard Armory.
 The first film, "Sense in the Sun," told the story of a fisherman who developed a cancer on his face from constant exposure to the sun's rays—in speaking of this type of cancer, Dr. Earle assured the group that proper precaution when exposing the body skin to the sun's rays will prevent cancer. Also, if noted in time, skin cancer is almost always curable by proper treatment.
 In speaking of lung cancer, Dr. Earle said, "Everyone should read statistics now available on the relationship of smoking to lung cancer and the increasing death rate from this disease."
 After learning the true facts," he said, "it is up to the individual to decide to smoke or not to smoke. It is as simple as that."
 He answered many questions asked by the group concerning other types of cancer.
 Final plans were made for members' entries in the Blaine County Fair.
 A comedy hat, made by Mrs. H. C. Thompson, was displayed. Mrs. Jay Pierson, Edmonds, Wash., was a guest.
 Mrs. Amanda Reese, president, named Mrs. Frank Pierson to obtain materials for making ribbon flowers for the next meeting.

Market Takes New Loss As Threats Rise

By ED MORSE
As threats rise, the stock market took another loss as it backed away under the pressure of market threats.

The half yearly total was greater than any full year in market history except 1956, 1959 and 1964.

The question was injected into the picture by Chairman William McChesney Martin of the Federal Reserve Board who urged prompt action by Congress to raise taxes.

Yield rates of some bond issues rose to the highest figure in more than 45 years.

There was no trading panic, however, and the retreat was reluctant.

Dow Jones Industrial average dropped 17.11 to 866.26.

Anticipation of disappointing second quarter earnings upset a market of issues.

American Telephone, the most widely held stock, declined 1 1/2 to 47 1/2.

For the half year, the net gain of the Dow Jones Industrial average was 74.57 points.

Interest rates on government securities continued to inch up as corporation capital demands headed for a record year.

Fluctuations hit the bond market for an estimated $7.6 billion in the first half of 1967.

DETROIT (AP)—A dozen Detroit girls, in a "topless, no" protest, picketed the "Sound a Go-Go" Club Friday to protest the mayor's plan to allow topless dancing.

By HAL MCCLURE
JERUSALEM (AP)—This city's defunct Arab, rallying slowly from the twin shocks of the 1967 Arab-Israeli war and the return to their holy sites in the Old City, including the venerable Wailing Wall.

Top-Seeded Players Are Upset In Wimbledon Meet; Pasarell Is Eliminated

By JOHN FARROW
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Rosemary Casals of San Francisco and Nicola Pietrangeli of Yugoslavia recorded startling upsets over Maria Bueno and Roy Emerson Saturday while the lone remaining American in the men's singles, Charlie Pasarell, fell to Tomas Koch of Brazil in the Wimbledon Tennis Championships.

Casals defeated Miss Bueno, a three-time champion at Wimbledon, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3 and moved into the women's quarter-finals after a highly-repared Pilie smashed Emerson's dream of pulling off tennis grand slam.

Pilie shocked Emerson 6-4, 5-7, 6-1, 6-4, cutting short the Australian's hopes of emulating Don Budge and Rod Laver by winning all four major singles tournaments.

Brunet, Bell Find June Is Happy Month

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
 The thing about George Brunet and Bill Bell is that the baseball season started about two months too soon for each of them.

Pasarell, who pulled off a stunning upset on the first day of the tournament by knocking off defending champion Manuel Santana of Spain, went down to Koch in five sets 6-4, 4-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 in the last match of the fourth round.

Three other American women gained the quarter-finals with the following results: Rosemary Casals, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3; Nancy Gunter, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3; and Mary Ann Eisel, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3.

Both Brunet and Bell sadly wanted goodbye to June with victories Friday night and proved that two months do not a season make.

Remaining results of this week's Knothole League and girl's softball play are as follows:
 Coca-Cola Sprites stomped on Rogerson 8-0. Winning pitcher was Gary Miller; Mark Morrow was the losing pitcher. Tom Blair knocked a double for Coca-Cola.

John Cooper and Ray Ruffels. In the last game Pasarell saved one match point and then twice got to within a point of breaking back still another time.

White Sox Place Two Men On Pitching Staff For American Loop All-Stars

By DAVE O'HARA
 BOSTON (AP) — Gary Peters and Joe Horlen, the left-right punch of the high-flying Chicago White Sox, headed an eight-man pitching staff named Saturday to the American League All-Star team.

UP IN THE AIR, Jerome first baseman Mike McIntyre watches the ball over his outstretched glove as Twin Falls' Joe Patterson gains first base on an error during action Friday night. Patterson hit a grounder to third base, creating the throwing miscue. Jerome went on to claim a 3-0 victory on the shutout pitching of Ron Blake.

Blake Hurls Jerome Past T.F. By 3-0

Ron Blake held Twin Falls' "B" team to three hits and his Jerome Legion teammates, getting key hits from Hessler and Doug Morgan, rolled to a 3-0 victory Friday night.

Blake protected that slender margin through four innings and in the fifth Jerome provided the unnecessary cushion. With two out Mike McIntyre started it with a walk. Stricker doubled and LaComb walked to load the bases just before Morgan delivered a two-run ground-rule double.

Twin Falls never really threatened to break Blake's shutout.

BALTIMORE (AP) — John O'Donoghue hurled seven innings of one-hit relief Saturday as Cleveland defeated Baltimore 6-1.

The Orioles defeated the Indians 8-1 in the completion of a game suspended after five innings in both the sixth and seventh innings to defeat the Indians in the second game.

Dave McNally, making his first appearance in two weeks after evidencing elbow trouble, was the winner with his five scoreless innings Friday. Eddie Wait pitched the four innings Saturday and recorded his fourth save.

Orlando Pena was the loser.

Burley Takes 14-1 Victory Over Pirates

BURLEY—Undeified Burley kept moving American Legion opposition down Friday night, smothering Hagerman 14-1 in a victory highlighted by three-run homer by Venzofel.

Burley, with pitcher Doug Cranney dominating all the way, exploded for seven runs in the second inning. Dave Dal Seglio started it off with a double, followed by three walks. Dellington lived on an error to knock the bases loaded and it wound up with Eichelberger cracking the double and Cranney adding his own cause with a single. Venzofel added his homer an inning later to move Burley out of sight.

After scoring a single run in first, Hagerman got his final two runs in the sixth. Mendelsohn walked and Smith singled but Joe Leach and Clark lived on errors that pushed the tallies higher.

LE MANS, France (AP) — Graham Hill of Britain hurled his Formula-1 Lotus—Ford around the short Bugatti track at a scoring 101.6 miles an hour Saturday and captured the post position for Sunday's Grand Prix of France.

Boxer's Funeral Will Be Held

SEQUALS, Italy (AP) — A crowd is expected to attend the funeral of former world heavyweight boxing champion Primo Carnera in this North Italian town Sunday.

The retired fighter died Thursday of cirrhosis of the liver and diabetes. He had returned a month ago from the United States, where he had settled after World War II, hoping the native air would heal him.

All-Star domination in the 39th classic July 11 at Anaheim went to Dean Chance of Minnesota. Jim Lonborg of Boston, Jim McElroy of California, Jim Hunter of Kansas City, Al Downing of New York and Steve Hargan of Cleveland.

Downing was the only left-hander as Bauer apparently stocked the staff with strong right-handers to face National right-handed sluggers Roberto Clemente, Joe Torre, Richie Allen, Willie Mays & Co.

In games through Thursday, the American League staff had a combined record of 70 victories and 31 defeats, with an earned run average of 2.44.

Chance, a 30-year-old veteran who was named to the 1964 All-Star squad but did not pitch, has a 103-32 record, while Hargan, making his first All-Star appearance a month before reaching 30, boasts a 9-1 mark with a 1.36 ERA.

Chance, 26, hurled three scoreless innings as the starting pitcher in 1964, the year he won the Cy Young Award. He has a 104 record in the Twin Falls, Minn., only 21, has an 8-5 record in earning All-Star honors for the second straight year.

Right-hander Steve Hargan, injured-ridged staff which did such a fine job against the Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series last fall, was named to the Twins and the Washington Senators also failed to earn a pitching berth.

Mantle Added To American Loop Lineup

BOSTON (AP)—Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' aging but still dangerous slugger, heads a list of nine additional players named to the American League All-Star team.

Mantle, who has appeared in 14 All-Star games and has been named to three other All-Star squads, was joined by first baseman Don Mincher, and shortstop Jim Fregosi of California. Second baseman Dick Allen of the Detroit Tigers, third baseman Max Alvis of Cleveland, catcher Paul Casanova of Washington and Andy Etcheberry of the Texas Rangers and the Washington Senators also failed to earn a pitching berth.

Killebrew Helps Twins Post Shutout

ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Harmon Killebrew's two-run single capped a four-run rally in the eighth inning that singled left-hander Jim Kaat and the Minnesota Twins to a 4-0 victory over Washington Saturday.

Killebrew gave in the final two runs in the eighth after a bases-loaded walk and Cesar Tovar's run-scoring single — only the third Minnesota hit and given the Twins a 2-0 edge. Kaat, 6-8, allowed six hits before going out for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Cornell Wins Thames Cup At Henley

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) — Cornell University won the Thames Cup for eighteenth year as Henley Royal Regatta, crushing England's Nottingham and Union Rowing Club.

The English crew was leading at the start, but Cornell came back strongly and turned up the heat by three-quarters of the mile in 7:03.

Cornell's lightweight crew defeated England's heavier and gained the final round.

The United States eight won by a shrinking length, 1:07.7 minutes, in the 2,000-meter race and 250 yards on the Thames River.

Tabor Academy of Marion, Mass., came from behind in a 2,000-meter race to beat the School of Connecticut, in an all-American semifinal race of the Princess Elizabeth Cup for the final round.

Tabor, trailing Kent until the mile mark, surged forward and overtook the old rivals to win by 3/4 lengths in 7:12.

The Tabor win was especially sweet to them because they had twice been beaten by Kent in United States this season.

Errors Help Mets Past Cards 6-4

NEW YORK (AP) — St. Louis shortstop Dal Maxvill booted successive ground balls in the seventh inning, giving the New York Mets two runs and sparking them to a 6-4 victory over the Cardinals Saturday.

The Mets trailed 4-0 until the seventh when Ken Harrelson and pinch hitter Ken Jones drilled singles off left-hander Al Jackson. Then Maxvill bobbed and Maxvill's error allowed Willie Totten Davis' grounder to clear the bases, and Ron Willis replaced Jackson.

Pinch hitter Ken Boyer then grounded to Maxvill, who booted the ball, allowing Harrelson and Jones to score the tying and go-ahead runs.

The Mets added another run in the eighth when Ed Charles, singled, stole second and came home as Harrelson singled for his second RBI.

Hells Canyon Deepest Gorge

By O. J. SMITH
Times-News Managing Editor

There's a cream-colored bear, with a brown face and brown feet, that is getting a bit upset over an invasion into his territory by an army of strange-looking, noisy creatures.

He poles around on the Oregon side of Hells Canyon, growling and grumbling a bit each time his normal routine is disturbed by these invaders who are intent upon plugging up his fishing stream far below.

He can't comprehend that these strangers in his wilderness are just a temporary interruption in his routine, and that in a little bit more than a year they'll be gone and things will start getting back to normal in his world.

Our friend the bear, who has become something of a conversational piece for Idaho Power Co. crews working around the site of the new Hells Canyon Dam, has a number of human counterparts who are grumbling and growling about what's going on in Hells Canyon.

They don't understand what's going on down there in the bottom of America's deepest gorge any more than he does, and they've got a lot less reason to complain. When it's all done, they're going to have some benefits they never thought of.

A look at the construction going on in Hells Canyon and at some of the benefits that will result was gained in a one-day inspection tour this week.

A bird's-eye view of the work going on at Hells Canyon was obtained—as the two-engine plane that provided transportation to the site slipped down between the canyon walls and glided in to the landing strip at Oxbow.

TENLEY TAYLOR
Talented Caldwell girl packs for trip to Tacoma and weeks of rehearsal with the famed Jeffrey Ballet Company prior to an Idaho tour.

The Ballet--And Two Young Girls

BOISE — People in Idaho who have caught themselves wishing they could see a real New York production before New Yorkers do are going to get that chance and two Idaho girls—one from Caldwell and the other from Twin Falls—are being groomed for possible participation.

The City Center Jeffrey Ballet, following a summer residency at Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, will be coming into Idaho for three performances in August.

And in this connection, while searching for those with exceptional talent in the field of ballet, Miss Tenley Taylor, Caldwell, and Miss Peggy Kelker, Twin Falls, face the possibility of being right in the middle of it all.

These two girls—Tenley is 14 and Peggy is 16—were selected from among 200 who were auditioned at Tacoma for special instruction with the ballet group prior to the Idaho tour. Miss Taylor, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Taylor, will join in training with the group this month. Miss Kelker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. (Gus) Kelker, was selected as first stand-by in case Miss Taylor was forced to change her plans.

Both young girls are seasoned ballet veterans. The Caldwell girl started pre-ballet study at three years and the Twin Falls girl at four years. Between them they have had 23 years of training.

Both girls have been students at the Sun Valley Music Camp for at least two summers where they studied with Gordon Paxman of the University of Utah. Miss Taylor has also studied with Polly Parmaleo and Lloyd Carlton in the Boise Valley and Miss Kelker is a student of Beverly Hackney, Twin Falls.

It is the plan of sponsors—including the Boise-Cascade Corp., and the Idaho Division of the American Association of University Women—to back arrangements of the Jeffrey Ballet at Lewiston on Aug. 21, Boise on Aug. 23 and Pocatello on Aug. 26.

Since no one in this region could afford to support a project of this magnitude and quality on its own, the Pacific Northwest Ballet Association was formed by interested citizens of Oregon, Washington and Idaho to make possible the residency and tour of the Northwest—Idaho council—of the PNWBA. In handling all arrangements for the Gem State portion of the tour and $20,000 is to be raised. Revenues from ticket sales will be applied against the expenses of the company.

"If this pioneering effort is successful then the Jeffrey group will make the Northwest its permanent summer home," according to Mrs. Dale Cornell, Boise, public relations chairman.

This ballet company is considered one of the top three in the world. The dancers are young, beautifully trained and greatly talented, officials point out. After the road tour the official opening night will take place in New York City.

Mrs. Jennings D. Evans, Boise, chairman of the Idaho council, announced the appointment of Mrs. Ivan (June) Skinner as chairman in charge of support in the Twin Falls area. It is expected that Mrs. Skinner will announce her aids in the near future.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER at Springdale both were graduated from college this month. Mrs. Donald Loveland, left, wife of the Cassia county state senator, received a degree from Idaho State University, Pocatello, while Ruth Ann Loveland—was graduated from Brigham Young University, Provo. Mrs. Loveland majored in education and plans to teach in Burley public schools. The Lovelands have six children, one of whom, Brock Loveland, was graduated from Burley High School this spring, making three graduates in the family.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Receiving a college degree the same time as one's daughter is the not-ordinary achievement of Mrs. Dorothy Loveland, SPRINGDALE. The wife of State Sen. Donald Loveland, she was graduated from Idaho State University, while the daughter, Ruth Ann Loveland, received her degree from Brigham Young University, Provo. Raising six children, being the wife of a state senator and taking an active part in church and community projects apparently has not kept this ambitious woman busy enough.

She majored in education and plans to teach in BURLEY public schools next year. Mrs. Loveland, following in her father's footsteps, majored in political science.

A son, Brock Loveland, also was graduated this spring, receiving his diploma from Burley high school. Three younger children in the family are Bruce, Cynthia and Chester, as well as an older son, Don Carlos, who farms the home place southeast of Burley.

Karma Jeppesen, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. K. Jeppesen, HAILEY, left immediately after school was out for Germany to spend a year with her brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. O. Lane McCotter.

Her parents took her to Salt Lake City, where she boarded an airliner for O'Hare Airport, Chicago. There she was met by one of her classmates, Mrs. Thomas (Annie McPeters) Eskridge and Mrs. Esteridge. During her two-hour layover they visited while touring the city.

The next leg of her journey was by TWA to London, with a 45 minute lay-over before leaving for Frankfurt.

"I was lucky," Miss Jeppesen said, "it was a clear day in London and I was able to see the palace and the city."

At Frankfurt she was met by Capt. and Mrs. McCotter. The three ate at the same restaurant. Capt. McCotter and his wife had eaten at a year ago to the day on their arrival in Germany.

The last 100 miles of her trip from Frankfurt to Nuremberg was made by car.

Miss Jeppesen has already acquired a taste for German breads, which she writes, "you have to learn to get your teeth into," and their big chocolate bars.

"It's fun to shop in the 'calle' little stores along the cobblestone streets; but different each time to make the clerk understand what you want," she notes.

She is looking forward to touring the different countries of Europe, and "can hardly wait to ski in the Alps."

Oregon Fish Farm Survives Crisis Concerning Feeding

By GORDON G. MacNAB Associated Press Writer DAYVILLE, Ore. (AP)—The trout were dying. Jim and Keety Driscoll were desperate. Jim picked one up, stroked its stomach and it burped. He tossed it into a tank and it swam away happily.

He grabbed another. So did Keety. Again and again they stripped trout stomachs, the trout burped and promptly felt better.

"Like burping a baby," said Keety, who had burped four of their own.

The trout farmers had survived another crisis.

This one was caused by feeding the trout too soon before transporting them in a tank truck. But crises are part of the life of a trout farmer, starting with one round-the-clock during the hatching. Even a slight contamination in the tanks then could wipe out the just-hatched fish.

The Driscolls have survived many crises in their seven years of trout farming. "Mostly," says Jim, "my improvisation. This is a business of improvisation."

The raising of trout is a business chiefly because a lot of farmers want to be able to go fishing in their farm ponds. For $20 they can buy 1,000 rainbows an inch and a half long, dump them in their own ponds, and the next year with no care at all they can be catching trout up to a foot long.

Or if they want instant fishing, they can buy trout-eight inches and longer for 70 cents a pound—only 35 cents for a eight-inch fish.

If they want to start with little ones they can pick them up in milk cans. If they want larger ones, they can get delivery by tank truck.

The Driscolls' Prairie Springs trout farm just east of Dayville in Grant County is one of many such enterprises. It is larger than most in Oregon, is smaller than a number in Idaho and Washington.

"It's water that limits you," adds Jim. "You've got to have a place with a lot of water."

The Driscolls' farm covers 500 hillsides acres above the John Day River. It is dotted with springs and artesian wells with a total flow of around 1,000 gallons a minute.

There are 350,000 trout in our tanks at one time," says Jim, "and we can expand. But we don't have enough water to get to a million or two million a half as some of the Idaho trout farms can."

Music Takes Top Place As America's Favored Pastime

Making and listening to music has become America's favorite pastime, according to a recent survey and card playing, and pushed home entertainment and musical instruments into the No. 1 spot in the recreational business.

Whether it's singing TV commercials or symphonies on phonographs, rock 'n' roll on radio or atmosphere music in skyscraper elevators, the business adds up to an average of 32 hours of music that the average John Q. Public hears every day.

Most of the music comes via the country's 250,000 radio stations, at least a million and a half as some of the Idaho trout farms can."

First Negro Astronaut Is Selected

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. (AP)—The nation's first Negro astronaut was named Friday along with a white Mississippian and two others for the Air Force's Manned Orbiting Laboratory program.

And both the Negro, Maj. Robert H. Lawrence, 34, of Chicago, and Air Force Maj. Donald H. Peterson, 33, of Winona, Miss., said they would be glad to serve together.

"The capsule has no back seat," said Peterson. Named with them were Vietnam veteran of 49 combat missions; and Air Force Col. Robert T. Herres, 34, of Denver, Colo.

The four will join 12 others in the training program.

Their selection, from 500 Air Force, Navy and Marine officers, was announced at a news conference.

Asked if he felt his appointment was a step forward for Negroes, Lawrence replied: "This is nothing dramatic. It's just a normal progression. I've been very fortunate."

MINE OFFICIAL DIES VIRGINIA CITY, Mont. (AP)—Frank J. Wilson, 44, Spokane, mine superintendent for Silver Hill Mines, Inc., was fatally injured early Friday in a head-on automobile collision near here.

Crash Stuns

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Sacramento's academic community was stunned Friday by the crash of a plane, carrying 34 members of a Sacramento State College study group, in Hong Kong harbor.

There was no immediate word of the fate of the 34 except for a telegram from the tour's conductor, Dr. Charles Hume: "Tragedy struck State College travel group."

It was known, however, that a number of the Sacramento-area persons survived. Sixteen of the 34 persons aboard this plane were killed.

Dr. Robert S. Johns, Sacramento State president, appealed briefly from his office and said study groups were diligently trying to find all the information we can."

NFIB Leader Asks Limited Use Of Free Mail By OEO

A possible solution to the continued deficit of the postal service through rescinding unlimited powers to use the mails by the War on Poverty is presented to the Congressional post office committee by C. Wilson-Harlow, president of the National Federation of Independent Business.

The letter points out the long history of the OEO in seeking to promote cooperative stores to compete with private taxpaying businesses, stemming from the disclosure in the San Francisco Examiner early last year and followed by "a comprehensive class rates to help offset the deficit, the time has come to call a halt to the mail operations of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Under the general rule (39 U. S. C. 415), a governmental agency is barred from using the mails to distribute information to people who have not requested it. However, the letter continues, it is now revealed that by a special ruling the OEO is exempt from this provision and thus can mail unlimited quantities of mail to any postal patron in the nation.

16 Graduate As Nabbers Of Shoplifters

By RON ROACH SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Students, homework for the weekend. Catch a crook!—Tough assignment?

Not for 16 students graduated Friday from a course at Cabrillo Community College.

Each of the 16 men and 6 women who spent four weeks training to be department store detectives, caught a shoplifter as part of the final exam.

They did so well they put the finger on 40 suspects in 12 store departments.

All wore masks at graduation ceremonies to conceal identities. They'll look like average shoppers on the job.

The course is the first of its kind says its founder, H.M. "Pete" Caldwell Jr., a former insurance investigator. He formulated it after months of research that included walking the floors of department stores, watching shoplifters in part of the training.

"That's the final test. Each student apprehends a shoplifter on his own." Caldwell said. Actually, the task is done under supervision of Kent McVey, the instructor, after permission is received to operate within a store. McVey is licensed to teach by the California Department of Education, which also approved the course, Caldwell said.

A special graduation award went to one student, a 40-year-old man, 5-foot-7. "He caught a 6-foot-1, 185-pound man outside the store, got the goods and brought the man back," said Caldwell. "The shoplifter could have squashed him and escaped. This student got a hero button."

Twin Falls City Band, Oldest In State, Celebrates 62 Years

THIS PICTURE was taken in 1914, the first year Dr. Orrin Fuller was a member. Members from left to right row, were Al Oland, Homer Goble, E. G. Hager, George Bulls, Ralph Pink, Ralph Atherton, Herb Lauterbach and Jack Thorpe; second row, W. R. Priebe, Mr. Carlson (first name unknown), Jerry Siglins, John Wagner, Nels Brown, Charle Raymond, Ray Bigger, Charles Thomas, Orrin Fuller and W. H. Wild, and third row, Bob Evans, Enoch Wall, Mr. Lessur (first name unknown), Guy Toby, John Brugerhill, J. T. Bainbridge, Clyde Thompson and Billy Lyle.

PICTURE, taken in 1911, shows the original city park bandstand which was replaced by the existing rock bandshell in about 1934. The park was then the center of social activity in Twin Falls.

talents must have been greater than he has given himself credit for; because on Aug. 20, 1964, he was presented a plaque by members of the band commemorating his 50 years of service to the organization.

Other long-time band members who were recognized at these ceremonies were Domer Bertsch, who joined the group in 1922; Gerald Ridgway, 1930; Reed Coulam, 1932; and Charles Allen, 1935, Jack Thorpe, who had joined the group in 1910 and was an honorary member, was honored for his more than 40 years of service.

Mr. Ratcliffe first joined the band in 1925, but claims no long-time record because of his 15 year absence.

The group is governed by officers and elects its musical director each year. The concert programs include classical, semi-classical and light selections as well as marches. Approximately 150 different compositions are played during each season.

The band has played for the Memorial Day services, patriotic events and for parades.

In 1917 the band was engaged to play at a three-day rodeo at Wells, Nev. The trip was made in Model T Fords and began at 6 a.m. in Twin Falls. The cavalcade reached Wells at 8 that night.

The road was dusty, rough and liberally sprinkled with the growths of sagebrush. All the members bought linen dusters (the Eldridge Clothing Store) that morning to keep their uniforms clean.

The group was the official band for the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo for many years, in fact playing for the fair long before there was a rodeo when the afternoon horse races were the main attraction.

During World War I it was the custom for the band to escort the men who had enlisted in the army to the train depot for their trip to Salt Lake City. Many of the volunteers were also members of the band and the band kept getting smaller until there was a bare handful left, but still they kept playing.

During World War II the draftees left on an early morning bus and on several occasions the band met at 5 a.m. to play for their departure at the bus depot.

The original round bandstand, shown in the above picture, was replaced by WPA labor during the thirties. The lava rock from which the present bandshell was constructed was hauled from the top of Snake River Canyon near Shoshone Falls.

Regular summer band concerts are almost a thing of the past, but the Twin Falls Municipal Band believes that in these days of hurry, tension and worry the summer evening concert under the trees provides a welcome hour of relaxation as the strains of a Strauss waltz or a Sousa march drift over the night air.

According to Mr. Ratcliffe, attendance at these concerts through the years has not diminished, the size of the crowd being in direct relationship to the weather.

Then, too, the music from the centrally located park carries through much of the original townsite and so that there are many listeners who enjoy the performances in their backyards.

High Lakes Expected To Open Late

A cool spring helps prevent high water and flooding, but also delays the opening of high mountain lakes to fishermen, noted Stacy Gebhardt, fishery management supervisor of the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

At the present time there have been no reports of any of the high mountain lakes being open. Gebhardt commented that the runoff has been so slow this spring that the lakes will probably not be open until two weeks later than their average. For some lakes, this will mean the middle of July.

The opening of each lake depends on elevation and exposure of both the lake and the trail to the lake. That is, lakes with lower elevations and southern exposures will be available to fishermen first.

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

First letter this week from Mr. T. L. Gooding: "I found a piece of what is apparently paper money, good for 10 cents, and lettered as follows, on the front: 'Bishop's General Store House' agrees to furnish the amount of $10 cents."

It is signed by a "Wm. B. Preston" and dated April 1st, 1888. Also on the note it says, "This is not intended to be used as Money" and it is from Salt Lake City. Can you tell me any collectors for this?

Answer: These notes were issued by the General Warehouse of the Mormon Church, in denominations of 5, 10, 25 and 50 cents, and were actually warrants, issued for services rendered and redeemable at the warehouse for necessities.

One of the 10 cent varieties is printed in blue and black, and good for produce only. The 50 cent variety is printed in blue and black and good for produce and merchandise.

The 10 cents red was for meat, as was the 25 cents. The 50 cents was for produce and merchandise, and one really scarce variety was issued by the "Great Salt Lake City Corporation," 1868, for 50 cents.

These notes are becoming scarce, hence the value has increased considerably, although a large amount of them, cancelled, have turned up in recent years. Most of the notes, in crisp, uncirculated condition, will sell for around $10. The 25-cent variety brings about $20 and the scarce 50 cents in the neighborhood of $30.

The 25-cent variety varies in the wording from the other notes in that it has printed on it "General Trading Store House."

Since we have started off with a letter on paper money, we will answer some of the accumulation of letters on the subject.

From Burley, Mrs. S. V.: "The note you describe in a 20-cent note from Mexico. There are a great many of them in existence, and, in fact, probably a lot of them are counterfeit. At any rate, collector value for a brand new bill is only about 25 cents. The early paper money of Mexico has little value to a collector."

From Mrs. A. R., Twin Falls: "I have a two-dollar Canadian note, dated 1923, a man in uniform in the center. I cannot quite read the signatures on it. Answer: Regardless of which variety you have, it is worth more than face value, although the condition also must be taken into consideration.

There are nine varieties of this note—I do not know which you have. The center on the note, complete with uniform, is Edward, Prince of Wales, and later King of England before his untimely death to a mummy Wallis Simpson.

This particular note is found with a black seal, signed Hyndman-Saunders; with a black seal, signed McCavour-Saunders; blue seal, signed McCavour-Saunders; green seal, same signatures; red seal, same signatures; purple-brown seal, same signatures; black seal, signed Campbell-Sellar; blue seal, same signatures; and a black seal, signed Campbell-Clark.

Progressively, from the Hyndman-Saunders, and as listed in illustration: Carl D. Tallent, $5 fine, failure to transfer registration, and Benjamin F. Strucko, $10 fine, concealment of merchandise, 50 cents in candy bars;

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—The body of actress Jayne Mansfield was released Friday to Hollywood musician Mickey Hargitay after a brief legal fight.

Judge Bernard J. Bagert ruled that Hargitay was still the legal husband of the actress when she was killed in a highway traffic crash here Thursday.

Thus ended 34 hours of controversy over who would take Mrs. Mansfield to her final resting place—Hargitay or movie director Matt Cimber, the man the world believed to be her latest husband.

Hargitay said funeral plans were incomplete. Earlier, he said the ceremony would be private but declined to elaborate.

"Modernizing WITH ELECTRIC HEAT was easy"

Mrs. "Mac" McCarley of Blackfoot with Kris and Becky

"My husband, an aircraft carrier operator, is often away. So I was really concerned when our unsatisfactory heating system started giving trouble. It was a relief to learn we could replace it with a compact electric furnace without tearing up the house. It's clean and quiet—a wonderful investment in peace of mind."

IDAHO POWER COMPANY

KIDNAPPED LAST YEAR and raised in Boise, this yearling black bear was released into the wilds north of the state capital recently, along with a similar history, by workers of the Idaho Fish and Game Department. The costs come to more than $100 for manpower, equipment, gasoline and drugs used to subdue the bears. Thus, the Department asks that the young of wild game animals and birds be let alone, even when it appears that a helpless wall has been found. The request is backed by state law.

Conservation Officials Again Ask People Not To Kidnap Young Wildlife

By JIM HUMBRID
Idaho Fish-Game Department

A line out of the May report from Coeur d'Alene makes the point one more time why well-meaning people should not kidnap young fawns, calf elk, cub bear, mountain goat kids, cougar kittens or bighorn sheep lambs. The rage now seems to be to raise pets from Idaho's rare species of big game animals.

Walter R. Browne, Coeur d'Alene, regional conservation officer for the Fish and Game Department, writes that "a good example of the problems involved in pet deer and elk was a yearling bull elk episode at Farragut (state park) a month ago.

After three attempts to tranquilize the animal and remove him from the premises, one dead dog and three wild people in Pend Oreille Lake, the animal was butchered and donated to charity."

The three wet people were the wife of Stuart Murrell, regional conservation educator at Lewiston, and their two small sons, who had waded out neck deep in cold waters to get out the way of the "tame" bull elk. Shirley's screams for help brought several officers, along with her husband and six Explorer Scouts from Lewiston, who were helping set up the wildlife exhibit for the Boy Scout World Jamboree. August 1-8.

Part of the wild animal exhibit at the World Jamboree will have twin mountain goat kids, twin fawns and a bighorn sheep lamb that were kidnapped from their parent animals this spring in the Salmon area.

Dale Baird, regional conservation officer and his staff people have traced down the kidnapers, taking some of them to court, and have bottled-the young game animals until transfers could be made to Farragut State Park.

Foundling infants snatched from wild mothers and sometimes literally left on the Department's doorstep need expert care through the weaning stage, at least, and sometimes grow up and make unprovoked attacks on their human benefactors.

For example, Baird says the twin kids and fawns and the bighorn lamb make cute pictures—but must be bottled for a milk formula every four hours night and day. The kidnaper in this case was fined $100.

One more example of a last year's pet turning belligerent is a yearling bull elk that terrorized the town of Orofino a few weeks ago. Such elk, deer and other species must be destroyed. Raised in homes by man, they have lost their natural fear of him. Thus, they attack without warning whenever the mood comes.

Conservation officers try to capture such dangerous pets dead and haul them to their natural homes in the mountains. Biologist Roy Rogers of Coeur d'Alene had this in mind when he tried to capture the marauding elk at Farragut. But his drugs did not subdue the animal and it was butchered.

One "bottle" elk, raised at the Boise zoo from a captive stock, was surplus several years ago and the department was asked to release it in the wilds north of the Capital City. This was done.

Next morning the animal was lying on the grass at the Dargatzis schoolhouse. It chased the kids, their dogs and the dogs-ups, too.

These tales do not need to be told twice. There is at least one in each town. The point is that partly tamed wild animals are dangerous in two ways. They lose their fear of man but keep their fierce instincts. They also lose, or never develop, their ability to fend for themselves. When given their freedom, they become easy marks for the poacher's gun.

Not long ago the department released a fawn buck deer. Strange as it may seem, he did things literally left on the Department's doorstep need expert care to get through the first

Book Review

THE CORRUPTED LAND
By Fred J. Cook

This book, subtitled, "The social morality of modern America" is not to be read at most times.

The clear delineation of some of the more obvious open sins of our Great Society are arranged to stir up your anger.

Mr. Cook is a journalist and he attacks his subject with a reporter's fervor. He takes off with a good nip at big business; the "Great Electrical Conspiracy." You remember not too many years ago when several big executives from General Electric and Westinghouse were sent off to jail for participating in a price fixing scheme to jack up the profits on electrical equipment?

Or do you remember? This is a big part of Mr. Cook's message. If you remember, do you remember with disgust the department makes each spring. Wildlife, young-of-the-year, whether baby animals or fowl, are not lost, not abandoned, nor orphaned. They will do very well on their own, with help from well-meaning human friends.

This effort of wild things-to perpetuate their own kind is a study in determination. Though a strong life force is lavished on the production line, it is quite different to the welfare of individual creatures of all species. That is why the earth is not overrun by animals, birds and fish of all types.

For example, take pheasants—or quail—or ducks. People who do not know seem shocked to learn that a 50 per cent loss of nests is no catastrophe but a common thing to most game birds.

Unlike human beings, most wild animals reproduce on a seasonal basis. Idaho fawns, calves, kids and lambs among other game animal species, are born in late May and June, but cut teeth arrive in February and March. Young that are not seen by people earlier than May

RAYMOND PECK
... former Twin Falls resident finds economy of Europe and the United States similar. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Peck and is an IBM engineer.

Economy Of Europe Is In Good Shape

The economy in Europe and that in the United States is quite similar and not as different as might be expected.

That was the comment made by Raymond Peck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Peck, Twin Falls, after his return from a tour of European areas. Accompanied by his wife, he had visited the World Trade-Corporations Systems Engineering symposium in West Berlin. They also visited Amsterdam, Paris, Copenhagen, East Berlin and London.

Young Peck is a 1952 graduate of the Twin Falls High School and started as a programming engineer with IBM in Oakland, Calif., in 1960. They now reside in Sacramento.

While in Europe he made it a point to compare the economy of the two areas and it was because of this study that he commented on the similarity.

The hearing aids we can't tell you about...

(You have to HEAR them to believe them)

There is no way to adequately describe the hearing help offered by the remarkable new "Selectronic" series aids by MAICO. Why are these aids different? Because MAICO's exclusive "Tone Selector Tuning" enables you to adjust the aid to your hearing—in a way that provides maximum sound frequency you do not hear well, leaving those you already hear well at normal level and providing clear, "balanced" sound.

The acoustic response of "Selectronic" aids can be adjusted to "fit the gaps" in your hearing—to provide amplification in sound frequencies you do not hear well, leaving those you already hear well at normal level and providing clear, "balanced" sound.

The proof is in the sound—the "Maico, the most respected name in Hearing!"

Hells Canyon Has Face Lifted

(Continued From Page A-1) been practically inaccessible, and returning the empires to the. The roads will open up a vast batch plant to be refilled, in a new area for fishermen and seemingly never-ending process. hunters.

Squads of men in shiny hard hats scurry on the sites, top and inside of the big concrete structure intent on the many tasks that are required to complete the dam.

Others operating a fleet of rugged-looking vehicles, intent on moving mountains of dirt and rock that have to be rearranged to accommodate the facility.

"Still more of the army of men are putting together the massive machines that will generate the power, and in constructing the towers that will support the miles of wire that will carry the electricity out of the remote canyon to the populated areas.

"Sure," grumble the human bears, "this is great, and will make millions of dollars for Idaho Power, but what good does it do me?"

What they can't seem to understand any more than the oddly-marked cream-colored bears is that this army of humans is going to be gone from the area by the fall of 1968, and the only changes of any significance that will be left in the area should be more benefit than trouble.

Certainly dams back up water and make lakes. But in this narrow cut in the earth the lakes don't spread out and cover vast areas that are useful for other purposes. The dams in Hells Canyon just make long, deep rivers that push the water line a couple of hundred feet higher on the canyon walls.

In the years to come, a lot of people are going to be surprised at the recreational benefits that are going to come from these projects.

In the first place, the power company has built roads to provide access to an area that has been practically inaccessible, and returning the empires to the. The roads will open up a vast batch plant to be refilled, in a new area for fishermen and seemingly never-ending process. hunters.

The long waterways created behind the dams are ideal for boating and water skiing. Boat ramps and docks are being built at several spots.

Parks, complete with free electrical outlets and trailer facilities, are being prepared. Several of them already are in use and rapidly becoming popular with the camping public.

As for blocking the river, the company already has poured millions of dollars into research and projects to perpetuate the salmon runs the dams interrupt.

The plan they have settled on now seems to be working. They gather the fish in huge traps just below Hells Canyon Dam, transport them to hatcheries where they spawn. When the eggs hatch, the tiny fish are released in the river to start their journey down to the ocean and back again.

Numberwise, this plan seems to be an improvement, or nature. Fish biologists figure that about 10 per cent of a salmon's spawn hatches in the natural cycle. One per cent of this number hatched makes it down to the ocean and back again.

They figure that about 80 per cent of the spawn hatches in the hatcheries, and one per cent of this still makes it down to the ocean and back again.

The company is providing the for this operation to preserve the salmon, and the project is being carried out by the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

So, all in all, when the project in Hells Canyon is completed, and the army of workers moves on to other tasks, it doesn't figure that any major problems will be left behind to bother very many humans—or bears.

Parcel Post Poundage Is Increased

A poundage increase, the first of its kind to become effective by 1971, will be effective Saturday, Fred Sanger, Twin Falls Postmaster, announced Friday.

Mr. Sanger said the present weight limit of 20 pounds has been increased to 25 pounds. The revision affects parcels between first class post offices which are 150 miles or more apart.

By 1971 the poundage limit will be increased to 40 pounds and an 84-inch maximum size. Size limitations are now 72 inches in length and girth combined.

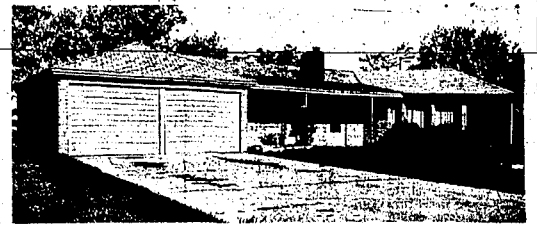

Mr. Sanger said that parcels weighing up to 40 pounds can now, however, be mailed between first class post offices less than 150 miles apart.

Let your silhouette pictures sound off for you.

You might say to yourself that all this type of shot shows is an outline of someone or something. How right you are. But, if the picture is properly posed or taken at the most effective instant of action, it can be a most powerful picture than if the facial expressions were shown.

Photographs in silhouette are good to show mood or action. Just a single back light in a darkened room and a tilt of the head can express happiness or sorrow.

The black and white can illustrate any mood you can desire. If your subject is captured in the proper moment, the young couple walking hand in hand on a deserted beach just as the sun is setting over the ocean is one of the more common silhouette type pictures. No matter how many times you see it, it catches your eye and brings back that certain memory.

You can get hard-hitting action shots from this type of picture, too.

To do this, the characters would be very clear. This is why you must adjust the lens' shutter speed at a fast enough speed to stop the action without a blur.

The faster you shoot, the more contrast you get. And, as for the silhouette composed of extreme blacks and whites, this is another point for faster shutter speeds.

One of the main requirements for taking a good photograph is the proper placement of lights. It is no different for this type of picture. But, in any other picture, you have a degree of leeway in the placement of lights. However, they must be placed in back of the subject.

Let a silhouette be the challenge for your this week. Go out, look for a setting which would enhance a silhouette, and make sure the sun is at your subjects' back. Set your shutter at a fast enough speed to stop the action... then shoot.

When your prints are returned I think you'll find that silhouettes do sound off.

Ends In Red

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government ended another fiscal year Friday with the second biggest splash of red ink in the nation's "peacetime" history.

And the deficit is expected to grow even larger in the fiscal year which begins Saturday—seven if Congress raises taxes to help pay for the Vietnam war and stem inflation.

Although the tabulation of fiscal year 1967 figures won't be completed for another three weeks, Treasury officials estimated the year-end deficit at about $11 billion, or about 1.5 percent of the gross national product of the United States.

The latest estimate for the fiscal year which begins Saturday is a deficit of about $13.8 billion, without any major escalation of troop strength in Vietnam.

Queen's Worldly Possessions May Cause Housing Problem

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II's worldly possessions are about to cause a housing problem.

What sort of possessions? Diamond necklaces, old masterpieces, daggers with jade handles, pearls by the pint.

With every year of her reign and it began in 1952, these costly objects increase, largely because of the ancient custom of regal gift-swapping.

When King Faisal of Saudi Arabia visited Britain recently he brought a diamond necklace and a palm tree fashioned in gold. The queen gave him a gold chain and a large silver bowl. It is said the queen owns more diamond necklaces than any woman in the world.

The queen owns one palace in London, Buckingham; two castles at Windsor and Balmoral; and a big country house, Sandringham, in Norfolk. Among them they have several hundred rooms, but royal gift-swapping has been going on for centuries.

Queen Elizabeth is reported to own over 500 cartoons by Leonardo da Vinci. One was valued recently at $2.8 million.

Most of the more perishable things are kept in temperature-controlled vaults beneath Buckingham Palace. In charge of the queen's possessions is Brigadier Geoffrey Hardy-Roberts, master of the queen's household.

He has distributed hundreds of the gifts around the various rooms, with taste. It is easy to make a room look like a museum if it becomes too cluttered with objects, however costly.

Queen Elizabeth has her own rooms, but many of them resemble police rooms. The queen and her husband, Prince Philip, travel abroad a great deal. Each time they return loaded with gifts.

In 1961 the Maharajah of Jaipur gave Her Majesty a dagger with jade handle studded with diamonds, rubies and sapphires. She also received from him a pair of elephants carved out of wood, three inches high.

When visiting Sierra Leone in Africa, the queen was presented with an uncut diamond the size of a pigeon's egg. Also a liveboa constrictor.

Nikita Khrushchev gave her a coat of Russian sable. She wears that, and jewels and mink coats, but many other things must be stored.

In 1965 the president of West Germany gave her a grandfather clock. Nassau presented her with a paperweight, made from gold doubloons retrieved from a sunken pirate ship.

What about those live gifts, such as the boa constrictor and pair of elephants from India? They cause no problem. They go to zoos.

Montreal's Rotary Club sent the queen 500 rose plants. They went into the gardens. Brazil presented her with 60 rare orchids. They went into the royal greenhouse.

Brazil also gave her a bracelet with a paperweight, valued at $168,000. She popped that on her wrist.

A priceless collection of crowns, ermine scarves and so on is now kept closely guarded in the Jewel House at Wakefield Tower. From July 6 they will be displayed to the public in a new hall at Wakefield Tower. It has been going on for centuries.

Birds Become Fish Poles For Japanese

For more than a thousand years—or so the sages say—the people of Gifu, near Nagoya in central Japan, have been using trained cormorants (birds) to catch the delicately flavored ayu which abound in the Nagara river.

Every night from May 11 to Oct. 15, except during the fall moon, the people here watch the cormorant fishermen play their colorful trade... watched sometimes by thousands of spectators.

You can view the proceedings from the river bank, but by far the best idea is from one of the long, narrow boats for the evening.

Seeing the fishermen perform is only part of the fun, according to the Nagoya Overseas Airways Corporation, which flies to Japan from San Francisco and Honolulu. Most of the restaurants here have stores for cooking tasty tidbits. And they carry plentiful supplies of green tea, minerals, beer and, of course, sake.

Fireworks are an important part of the proceedings, and these can be bought from vendors who pass up and down the lines of the lantern-lit pleasure boats.

The approach of the cormorants is heralded by the rattle of drums in the distance. As the people shout and cheer you can see the firework from the boat holding the leader of the long, narrow boats. And then the fireworks display reaches its crescendo.

Each fisherman carrying a traditional cap, grass skirt and apron, stands in the prow of his boat holding the leads to the cormorants perched in a line on the gunwale.

Each cormorant has a ring around its neck, loose enough to let it swallow small fish but small enough to prevent it from swallowing fish of marketable size. They dive down again and are called back by a special jerk on the line.

The seven or eight fishing boats and their quality paraded fishermen provide a spectacle of almost medieval quality—and one of the most interesting sights in all Japan.

Study Shows Less Cash In Big Business

NEW YORK—Many big U.S. companies still had enormous quantities of cash on hand at the end of fiscal 1966—but significantly less than the year before—according to Fortune magazine.

In a study of the cash reserves maintained by the 500 largest U.S. corporations, the magazine notes that tight money last year and changes in federal taxes were chiefly responsible. Many companies used their own cash instead of borrowing for expansion. Also, the advance of corporate tax payments and the suspension of the seven per cent investment credit both drew on cash reserves.

All told, the companies listed in Fortune's annual Directory of the 500 Largest U.S. Industrial Corporations (published in the magazine's June 18th issue) reduced their holdings of "cash and equivalents" by about 10 per cent, to $24.02 billion during 1966.

Meanwhile, the combined assets of the group rose sharply—from $250.4 billion to 262.1 billion. Thus cash last year represented only 9.5 per cent of assets, against 10.8 per cent in 1965.

Companies with large cash holdings in relation to assets are frequently in the market to buy other businesses. Fortune points out. The magazine lists the following as having the highest cash-to-asset ratios as of June 30: 1. General Electric, $13,958,000, 29.1 percentage of assets; 2. Parke, Davis, $97,031,000, 27.3; Curtiss-Wright, $96,252,000, 24.8; and Libby-Owens-Ford, $88,227,000, 20.3.

The companies listed with the lowest amount of cash on hand were Paccot Industries, $98,000, 4.01; Hertz, $45,000, 3.2; Marx, $1,445,000, 1.31; Link-Belt, $1,517,000, 1.05; and I-T-E Circuit Breaker, $1,600,000, 1.40.

FRIENDS, TODAY WE'RE GOING TO LEARN HOW TO MAKE FIRE WITHOUT THE USE OF MATCHES, CIGAR LIGHTERS, ELECTRICITY, BOMBS, OR CHEMICALS!

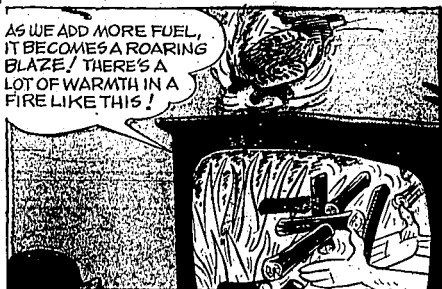

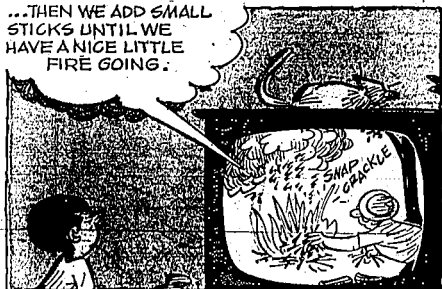

AN ORDINARY FRICTION-DRILL IS VERY HELPFUL. WE USE IT TO CREATE ENOUGH HEAT TO CAUSE A SPARK.

DEFTELY CATCHING THE SPARK ON DRY MOSS, WE BLOW ON IT GENTLY UNTIL IT BECOMES A TINY FLAME.

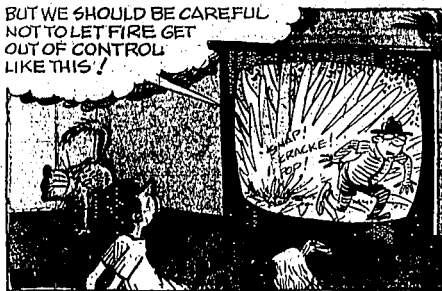

...THEN WE ADD SMALL STICKS UNTIL WE HAVE A NICE LITTLE FIRE GOING.

AS WE ADD MORE FUEL, IT BECOMES A ROARING BLAZE! THERE'S A LOT OF WARMTH IN A FIRE LIKE THIS!

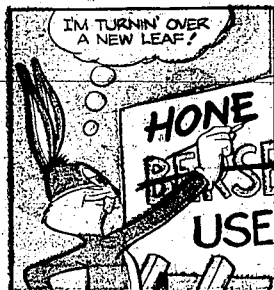

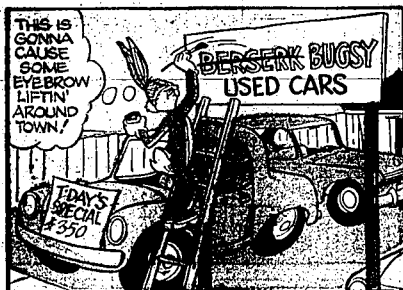

BUT WE SHOULD BE CAREFUL NOT TO LET FIRE GET OUT OF CONTROL LIKE THIS!

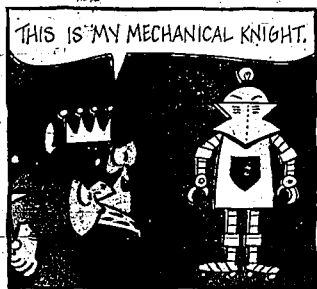

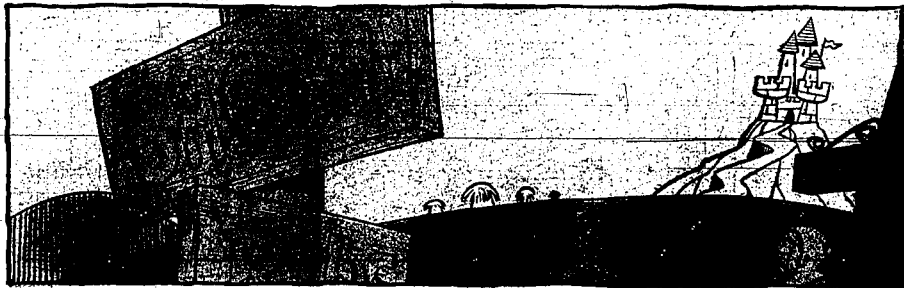

SORRY ABOUT THAT!
