40 Men Missing As Ship Sinks In North Pacific

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A Japanese merchant ship was reported today to have rescued at least two of the 42 crewmen who leaped into the icy waters of the North Pacific when their ship, the Pan-Oceanic Faith, sank suddenly Monday.

The fate of the 40 other men was not known. There were fears they could not survive long in the cold, storm-tossed waters.

The Coast Guard said reports from the merchant ship Igaharu Maru at the search scene 870 miles southwest of Kodiak, Alaska, told of the dramatic rescue of Gordon L. Campbell, Oakland, Calif. and Lewis E.

Gray Jr., Houston, Texas.

In New York, the ship's owners said they were told that John F. Ogles of Alexandria, Va., captain of the sunken vessel, also was rescued, but the Coast Guard could not confirm this.

The Igaharu Maru also radioed that "some bodies" had been picked up.

The Pan-Oceanic Faith sank suddenly shortly before dark Monday after sending out a distress call for "immediate assistance." It reported it was taking water in the forward hold, was listing to starboard, and was encountering engine trouble.

The Coast Guard said it had no information as to what had caused the 459-foot ship to take on water. But the distress call told of battling 15-to-18-foot high seas and winds of 35-45 knots.

Navy, Coast Guard and other North Pacific seafarers estimated a person rarely survives more than an hour in the cold water without proper clothing. They said the cold saps the body temperature away within minutes.

The Coast Guard said the sinking was so sudden the crewmen did not have time to launch the ship's two lifeboats or two life rafts.

A Navy search plane from Adak, Alaska, and a C140 Military Air Command jet Starlifter dropped seven small rubber life rafts to the crewmen bobbing around in life jackets, the Coast Guard said.

The pilot of the Navy plane radioed that he saw several men climb into the tiny craft.

Both planes remained in the area to direct rescue operations of at least a half dozen ships headed for the scene, including the Coast Guard cutters Dexter and Storis.

Another Coast Guard C130 rescue plane from Hawaii was en route with survival gear.

The Pan-Oceanic Faith first radioed a distress call at 2:55 P.M., saying 20-foot waves were sweeping over her decks and filling No. 1 and No. 2 holds with water.

The message also said the ship's engines were failing, and she was in danger of sinking. The 23-year-old vessel, owned by the Pan-Oceanic Tanker Corp. of New York City, was en route from San Francisco to Yokohama, Japan, with 10,200 tons of fertilizer.

Coast Guard district headquarters said radio reports from the scene were infrequent, and radio contact was difficult because of the storm.

Navy Planes Attack Compound

By GEORGE MCARTHUR SAIGON (AP) — American Navy planes today attacked and left burning a sprawling military compound near Haiphong where Russian missiles and helicopters are uncrated and assembled.

It was likely that Soviet technicians work in the base, which previously was on the Pentagon's restricted target list.

U.S. headquarters said all-weather intruder jets hit the base before dawn Monday and returned for a second predawn strike Tuesday. Pilots reported that flames and secondary explosions lighted the night sky.

Heavy new strikes on North Vietnam and the loss of an American jet to a Communist MIG21 in a dogfight was paralleled by sharp ground fighting and the movement of more American troops north to meet the threat of renewed North Vietnamese attacks below the demilitarized zone.

U.S. Command also announced that a U.S. Air Force C130 transport with a crew of five and 18 passengers has been missing between Da Nang and Hue since Sunday. All 18 passengers are believed to be American servicemen, the headquarters said.

The U.S. Command said a 4,000-man Army brigade has been shifted into the 1st Corps area, raising American manpower in South Vietnam's five northernmost provinces to about 100,000, and releasing another Marine regiment for duty closer to the DMZ.

As late as last spring, only about 40,000 Americans were stationed in the 1st Corps area. The missile and helicopter assembly site attacked Monday and today is in an area containing about 70 military barracks and other buildings. It is about three miles from Haiphong, between the city and the MIG airfield of Cat Bi, which also was bombed for the second time today.

Pilots from the carrier Constellation said the flames from the burning military base could be seen 20 miles away. The helicopter assembly area was first hit one day after American pilots discovered six Russian choppers on the ground west of Hanoi and destroyed them. The choppers included two MIG models which are the biggest such aircraft in the world, capable of carrying 120 troops or transporting the 40-foot SAM missiles which Russia supplies for the North Vietnamese anti-aircraft defenses.

11-Man Race Expected For City Election Nov. 7

Indications at noon Tuesday were for a heavy Nov. 7 election in Twin Falls, with a prospect of 11 candidates for the four vacancies on the city council.

One additional candidate nominating petition was filed Tuesday morning and the Twin Falls Jaycees announced plans to file another before the 5 p.m. deadline.

Howard Burkhardt, retired accountant and former city councilman, filed his own petition Tuesday morning. Mr. Burkhardt took out four petitions last week, but only one was circulated. He served two four-year terms on the city council, being elected in 1951 and reelected in 1955 to serve through 1960.

Gary Watt, chairman of the government affairs committee of the Twin Falls Jaycees, said his organization has been circulating three petitions, but only one will be filed, as other prospective candidates have been found to reside outside of the city limits. Before the Tuesday deadline, he said, they will file a petition for Delbert C. McGuire.

Mr. McGuire is manager of the Frame Trout Farm and resides in Rock Creek Canyon at the trout farm site below the Shoshone Street bridge.

Mr. Watt said the Jaycees will actively sponsor Mr. McGuire as a candidate and also will launch a vigorous campaign to encourage registration of qualified voters to be followed by a get-out-the-vote campaign.

If no other petitions are filed, this will leave 11 candidates in the running. Earlier Lloyd Cox, owner of the Yellow Cab Co., filed his petition as an independent candidate. Four petitions including incumbent councilmen Frank Feldman, George Bennett and Eugene Stacy and local businessman Frank Cook were filed last week. The petition of Mr. Stacy has not yet been come official as he is out of town and had not signed it at noon Tuesday but had announced he would do so before the deadline.

Four other petitions were filed Monday by Joseph Stumph Jr., for himself, Nolan Victor, Lawrence Tolman and C. G. (Jack) Pope.

The latter four also will run as a ticket dedicated to economy in the city operation and an election to determine if city manager form of government will continue in Twin Falls.

City Clerk Constance Leiser said all petitions filed by noon Tuesday have been checked against the registration books and have sufficient registered voters among their signers to qualify them as a valid candidate.

Many of the signatures, she added, were not from registered voters, indicating there are many residents who are not registered but are of the opinion their registration is in good standing.

Progress Seen In Strike Talks

By BEN DE FOREST PITTSBURGH (AP) — A high official said today behind-the-scenes maneuvering has brought progress in the violence-plagued steel haulers' rebellion.

Entering a negotiating session, William J. Hart, Pennsylvania secretary of labor and industry, declared: "When we left here last night we had nothing, absolutely nothing, to be optimistic about. Today, we'll have some good news."

He did not elaborate.

Hart and governors' representatives of six other states met for the second day in a row trying to find a solution to independent steel haulers' revolt against the Teamsters Union.

The strikers want the union to negotiate a separate contract for independent steel haulers, granting higher pay and provisions that would pay for the time truckers wait at mill loading docks.

Shots were fired into two trucking firm buildings near Middletown, Ohio. Police said no one was injured in the shooting, which apparently came from passing cars.

Labor mediators sitting on the seven-state panel were to present recommendations to Teamsters officials and the striking truckers at today's session. The panel sat for 12 hours Monday, hearing both sides.

The strike by steel haulers who own their rigs has forced production and has been peppered with violence. Nonsteel hauling truckers stayed off the roads, in sympathy with the strikers or in fear of violence. Pennsylvania state police reported 400 incidents, 28 arrests and dozens of injuries since the strike became violent about a month ago. Sniping and rock throwing left scores of trucks damaged on Pennsylvania and Ohio highways. A trucker was killed near Flint, Mich., when a rock was thrown through his windshield.

The 10,000 to 20,000 strikers are seeking a 6 per cent increase in hauling fees, which vary depending on distance and other factors. They also are seeking penalty payment for waiting to be loaded at mills on a separate contract.

Rep. Hansen Speaks To Hospital Meet

SUN VALLEY (AP) — Speaking to the Idaho Hospital Association convention, Rep. George Hansen said today high taxes, inflation and competition by the federal government in the money market have led to tight money and high interest rates.

"This situation, brought about by excessive federal spending and an unbalanced budget, is definitely detrimental to the business climate of Idaho," Hansen said.

A Jerome man, Leon C. Felder, took over as president of the association Tuesday, succeeding James E. Rosenbaum of Twin Falls.

Other officers elected were E. Lynn Reed of Blackfoot, secretary-treasurer, and Sister Peter James of Boise, president-elect.

Hansen decried the proposal voiced Monday by Transportation Secretary Alan S. Boyd to cut, by up to 50 per cent, spending on the Interstate highway program.

"Since highway aid comes from a separate self-financing fund, cutting its spending would have no effect on the expected $29 billion deficit," Hansen said.

"In addition, rather than cutting capital development funds, the administration should seek to cut spending in areas such as the extravagant poverty and farm aid programs."

In the second day of testimony, the prosecution broadened its case with witnesses ranging from the Neshoba County sheriff's department clerk to the operator of the county jail.

Evidence Is Built In Slaying Trial

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — The government began building a pyramid of evidence today in the trial of 18 men charged with conspiracy in the 1964 slaying of three young civil rights workers in the backwoods near Philadelphia, Miss.

Justice Department attorneys may later produce in U.S. District Court key information from paid informers. This testimony is regarded as the heart of the case against the 18 white defendants, including a Ku Klux Klan chieftain and three law enforcement officers.

All are charged with conspiracy to violate the three slain workers' civil rights.

In the second day of testimony, the prosecution broadened its case with witnesses ranging from the Neshoba County sheriff's department clerk to the operator of the county jail.

Substitution Of Bill Asked By Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate Judiciary subcommittee voted 5 to 1 today to substitute a bill sponsored by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., for a House-passed civil rights measure.

Ervin's substitute and the House bill both would provide stiff federal criminal penalties for interfering by force or threats of force with the exercise of specifically enumerated rights.

Ervin's bill, however, would apply to anyone whose rights are infringed by violence or intimidation, while the House bill is limited to victims who could prove injury because of their race, color, religious political affiliation or national origin.

The full Judiciary Committee meanwhile failed again to get a quorum for consideration of civil rights and other legislation before it, but Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said he will call another meeting for Wednesday.

The committee is facing a showdown on three controversial civil rights bills asked by President Johnson. Also on its agenda are the House-passed antiriot bill and an administration-backed measure to curb mail-order sales of firearms.

NOT INTERESTED SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said today through a spokesman today he is not interested in being the Republican vice presidential nominee in 1968.

Plane Crash Victim Was From Burley

BURLEY — Kenneth Tilson, Connell, Wash., whose body was found in the wreckage of a small plane on the Cascade Mountains about 40 miles east of Seattle Sunday, was a former Burley resident.

While living at Burley, Mr. Tilson was employed by the Idaho Hide and Tallow Co. He left here about a year ago. A brother, Howard Tilson, along with the pilot and another passenger, was killed when the plane slammed into the mountain at about 6,000 feet. The wreckage was found after a widespread five-day search.

The pilot was Charles Oberding, Otello, Wash., and the other victim was Floyd Stapley, also Connell.

Funeral services for Mr. Tilson are scheduled for 3 p.m. Thursday in the Connell Nazarene Church.

Rupert Shooting Victim Is Identified By FBI

RUPERT — The Mindoka county sheriff's office Tuesday morning received a telegram from the FBI in Washington, giving positive identification of the body which was found Sept. 19 on a Paul ranch.

The man, whose body had been disinterred by court order, was identified as John Massey Ray, 74, whose last known address was Dravner. He was born May 25, 1893.

The sheriff's office received a court order giving permission to disinter the body after it became apparent that sending a hand to FBI headquarters would be the only means of identification, sheriff's officers explained.

Mr. Ray had no known relatives and to date there are no clues as to the reason for his being shot.

His body was found Sept. 19 lying in an empty irrigation structure on a farm northwest of Paul.

Cost Of Doctors High? You Bet, But You Should See Doctors' Costs

(Editor's note: Everyone has heard complaints of the skyrocketing cost of medical care and hospitalization. Are doctors living a playboy's life and getting rich from overcharging their patients? Are hospitals becoming administration-heavy "bureaucracies" that charge so much people can't afford to get sick any more? The high cost of being sick is explored in this series of articles starting today.)

By FRED DODDS
Times-News Staff Writer

Not long ago a Twin Falls physician sat in his desk, his feet propped on a desk, and declared he planned to raise his office visit rates from $4 to $5.

"I hate to do it, but with the overhead I'm paying I've got no choice," he said. The doctor, because of American Medical Association rules of ethics, cannot be identified.

In talking with him, I found that he was justified in increasing his charges. It is the first raise he has made since 1959, and only the third since he began practicing medicine more than 30 years ago.

With this information, I began to wonder. Is the cost of medicine going up like everyone says it is? I found out everyone is right.

Despite the fact that physicians' charges to patients have not increased dramatically here in the past 30 years, medical costs are shooting very fast, too.

Nationally, economists tell us that medical costs have risen nine per cent since the first of the year. In some areas, the rise is 18 per cent since last fall, nationally. And nationally, physicians' rates have increased 25.5 per cent in the last 10 years.

Why?

"It's a simple matter of economics," the Twin Falls physician said. "Less physicians are treating more people. Equipment costs are going up and wages are high now and getting higher," he said. He added that physician overhead is tremendous. "I've got to make $150 a day before I make any money at all," he said.

Research reveals that in 1940 there were 91,000 general practitioners in America, with 170,000 physicians practicing medicine at that time.

Twenty-seven years later, or 1967, there are 180,000 physicians practicing medicine, with 41,000 of them general practitioners.

In 1940 there was one physician for every 1,000 people, today there is one physician for every 1,200 people.

In Magic Valley, there is one physician for every 450 people.

The statistics plainly show that more physicians are going into specialties. The specialties are higher paid.

An obstetrician may charge $5 to $7.50 a visit, a surgeon $7 a visit, a brain surgeon $12 a visit.

In the good old days, 30 years ago, a patient had a family doctor. The doctor charged $2 a visit, and treated everything from acne to ulcers, sore throat to sick mind.

Specialists were a rare breed and their charges then were high. But only high then. An outlay of $7 a visit was a lot of money then, but today it's not too large. Considering the quality of care one gets these days, it's not large at all. Generally specialists' charges have remained the same through the years.

To compare costs, a steak may have cost 50 cents 30 years ago. Today it is $1.50. A tractor cost the farmer $1,000, 30 years ago—and that was a good tractor. Today, the tractor sells for anything up to $4,000.

Everything has gone up. But consider the physician's charge of $2 in 1937 compared with the $4 charge now. This charge has doubled, nearly everything else has tripled, and more, in that time.

Another reason, it was learned, for the rise in medical costs is that the physician's role in America has changed. No longer does he handle everything himself.

In surgery, for example, the physician will be surrounded by qualified medical personnel to help in the operation. An anesthesiologist to keep the patient safe but "under"; a nurse to handle instruments; a physician assistant; an operating room nurse to run errands; a pathologist to study the tissue or organ taken from the patient; a lab technician to prepare and analyze tests, and sometimes an x-ray technician.

In some cases 30 years ago, the physician did it all himself.

In others he had someone around to administer the anesthetic.

Therefore, the patient not only pays the doctor, he pays for the extra help.

So medical costs are up. That, physicians in Magic Valley do not dispute.

"But medical costs have not kept pace with the cost of living," a physician asserted.

That brought this reporter to the point of asking why physician costs have always been so high. It is a national statement that the doctor has "been overpaid."

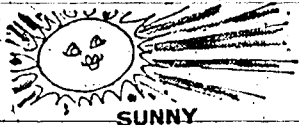

Even though physician costs have not kept pace, they are still high and have been.

There are several answers.

Three Idaho Men Killed In Crashes

By The Associated Press — Three unrelated accidents on Idaho highways Monday claimed three lives as the Idaho traffic fatality toll continued to mount.

Combined with four deaths over the weekend, the three bring the toll for the year to 208, just seven less than in 1966.

Killed in a motorcycle crash Monday evening in Boise was Kenneth J. Hickman, 24, Boise. Idaho State Police said Hickman's motorcycle struck a guard rail as it rounded a corner, throwing him to the pavement.

Two North Idaho men were killed earlier in separate accidents.

Anthony Shamion, 60, of Orofino, was killed about 15 miles northeast of Cavendish when a load of logs he was hauling crushed him in the cab of his truck.

Frank Fromelt, 78, of Pierce, died when his auto went off U.S. 12 into the Clearwater River about 23 miles east of here. State Police said it had not been determined why the auto left the road. The body was recovered.

5 Men File Objections In Court

BOISE (AP) — Five men charged with falsifying records of the defunct Idaho Savings and Loan Association have filed objections in Fourth District Court.

Judge Merlin Young gave them 10 days to file written briefs outlining the basis for the objections.

Two hours of oral arguments preceded Young's order Monday.

Ada County Prosecutor Wayne Kidwell said the objections challenged the constitutionality of the statute under which they are charged.

The five are D. Spencer Grow, Provo, Utah; and Knige, Boise; Harold E. Hogan, Eagle; Horace E. Hayes, Preston; and Ernest Garrett, McCammon.

A sixth man named in the indictments returned in July by an Ada County grand jury is Alexander H. Walker Jr., Salt Lake City. He faces an extradition hearing in Utah Nov. 3.

Miss Furness Speaks To Advertisers

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Furness, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, said today young people who reject today's advertising "feel they have been sold one bill of goods too many."

"They've been turned off by phoniness—and if we are going to win them back, it must be by honesty," she told a regional conference of the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

Miss Furness, who characterized her job as "the country's professional go-between" for consumers and producers, decried the lack of contact between these two groups.

"The casual overstatement of the ambitious seller has far more serious consequences now that the buyer and seller have so little contact," she said.

Miss Furness said young women coping with dirty dishes find themselves baffled when they are face to face with 100 different detergents.

"If a housewife is to buy the same product twice, it is clear you will have to cut through her confusion and convince her that whatever she buys will really be what it seems," Miss Furness said.

CSI Class To Train Store Checkers

A course to train store checkers will begin at the College of Southern Idaho Vocational-Technical school Monday, according to Orval L. Bradley, director of the school.

The course, which will continue through Oct. 27, will be held three times a day, at 10 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Each class period will last two hours.

The same lesson will be repeated three times a day, Mr. Bradley said, so checkers will have changes of work schedules will be able to attend.

The course is open to checkers presently employed and a limited number of people desiring to train in the field.

Bolivia Confirms Death Of Ernesto Che Guevara

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — An armed forces communique confirmed today Latin American revolutionary Ernesto Che Guevara has been killed by Bolivian army forces in the southeast jungles.

It said six other guerrillas were slain with him near Higuera Sunday. Of the seven three were Cubans, one a Bolivian and two were unidentified.

In Camari near the battle scene, Col. Luis Reque Teran, commander of the Bolivian 4th Division, told reporters it was his understanding that two shots felled the Cuban guerrilla leader.

The colonel said the body of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's former top aide had been or was being taken to nearby Vallegrande, 300 miles southeast of La Paz, the capital.

A group of army officers and reporters took off from La Paz for Vallegrande to view the body. A news conference will be held there by Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia, chief of the armed forces.

Captured guerrillas and citizens of the small town of Alto Seco said Guevara looked sick and debilitated last week and had to travel on mule back.

Guevara and a group of guerrillas held Alto Seco for a time last month.

The army's chief of staff, Col. Marcos Vasquez Sempertegui, noted that official reports from Vallegrande, near Higuera, "affirm Guevara was killed and that his body is now with the Bolivian army." But he emphasized that he could not confirm the dispatches.

The official reports said: "The rebels put up desperate resistance and suffered five casualties, among them presumably Ernesto Che Guevara." Some military sources said Guevara was mortally wounded and talked to his captors before he died.

Guevara's legend has been sprinkled with reports of his death or capture since he mysteriously disappeared from Cuba in 1965. He was said to have died in the leftist revolt in the Dominican Republic, to have been captured in Peru, hiding out in his native Argentina, scouting the Congo and a visitor in Red China. Two weeks ago the Bolivian army denied a report that its forces had killed him.

Woman Is Cited After Mishap Here

A Topeka, Kans., woman was cited for failure to yield the right of way after her 1965 Chevrolet and a vehicle driven by Gilbert L. Kellogg, 23, Twin Falls, collided Monday evening about four miles west of Twin Falls at the intersection of U.S. Highways 93 and 30.

Idaho State Police said the vehicle driven by Mrs. Bessie M. Williams, 67, had made a stop and then proceeded to make a turn onto highway 93. Mr. Kellogg, driving a 1963 International, attempted to miss the Williams car by passing it on the left, but was unable to do so.

Mrs. S. E. Siefert, 68, also of Topeka, was a passenger in the Williams vehicle.

Mrs. Williams was traveling west on Highway 30 and Mr. Kellogg was traveling east on Highway 30.

Odd Death Of Horse Being Investigated

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — A member of the University of Colorado's Unidentified Flying Objects study team is investigating the strange death of Snippy the horse.

Robert J. Low, project coordinator for the Air Force-financed study, said senior investigator, Frederick Ayer was assigned and "presumably he will stay long enough to get the job done."

Dr. Low said at the moment he does not place much stock in a reported pathologist's study showing the abdominal, brain and spinal cavities of the 3-year-old Appaloosa gelding were empty.

It has been more than a month since the horse's carcass was found in a remote area near Alamosa, all flesh stripped from its head and neck.

Its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Berle Lewis, and some other residents of the San Luis Valley have blamed a flying saucer for the incident. Sheriff Ben Phillips said he believes lightning struck Snippy.

Recognition Is Given T.F. Club In Publication

Recognition for Twin Falls and the local Business and Professional Women's Club has been gained on a national basis as a result of an article published in the October issue of "National Business Woman."

The magazine is the official publication of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs Inc. In the current issue a page is devoted to the Twin Falls BPW club's safety project.

The same project earned the club a citation from the Women's National Safety Council of the National Safety Council.

Principal feature of the local safety program was the design and distribution of a fluorescent orange arm patch to be worn by elderly pedestrians to protect them against night accidents and make them visible to all motorists.

Known as the "Pin Up for Safety" program, the idea has been accepted on a wide basis by other safety-minded organizations.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. LaVern Strong, the club's safety program has also included work with the State Department of Highways and Union Pacific Railroad to make crossings and intersections safer by removing shrubs and installing signs to eliminate traffic hazards.

Mrs. Strong, in addition to her work with the local club has also served for a number of years as a member of the Idaho Safety Council and is a former chairman.

Some Criticize, Some Offer Help To Needy

The Times-News last week ran a five-part series on welfare in Twin Falls County, and since that time reaction to the articles has been varied.

A Burley man criticized the articles, saying $5,000 a year is an above average income and took issue with the statement social security is welfare.

A man, who refused to be identified, offered his help to Mrs. Jones or any like her who are on welfare. The man said he would purchase clothing for the children, food for the family and donate used furniture. He is 81 years old.

The man was told to contact a Department of Public Assistance case worker. He did.

Another woman, who also does not want to be identified, offered help to the unfortunate.

A second woman told of how her three children were taken away from her and are now in a foster home. The home is under the guidance of the Department of Public Assistance.

Investigation into the case revealed it is a family of five, a husband, wife and three children. The family moved to Twin Falls in August.

Several days after arriving, broke, the husband was arrested on a charge of failure to register as an ex-convict. He was jailed.

The mother wrote two bad checks to pay for food and to "get by." She too was arrested, and later jailed. The woman could have received a prison term for each bad check. She got 15 days.

While the parents were in jail, DPA found the children a home on order of the Twin Falls County Probate Judge. The judge ordered the parents, on release, to hunt for a suitable home.

The woman said she was told that when she and her husband found a suitable home for the children, the youngsters would be returned to their custody.

The husband, now out of jail, makes about $300 a month, but as of this writing he and his wife are still looking for a house. The children are still in the custody of DPA. The mother gets to see them from time to time.

Another woman telephoned this reporter at home and talked for an hour, telling how she could make more money on welfare than if she got a job. She is not able to hold a job more than a couple of months at a time.

Another said she "thanked God" for welfare. It has helped her live following her second divorce.

To the man in Burley who took issue with the statement social security is welfare, this reporter only has to write here what was in the letter:

"I have been paying social security since 1938. . . And the way things stand today, I'll have to live to be over 100 years old to get back everything I put into it. If I do live long enough to get any of it back, I certainly wouldn't call it welfare."

To him I must say he could be getting some benefit at the age of 62, and for as many years afterward as he lives. This man stated he makes over $7,000 a year. Since 1938, that is $203,000. About (on a rough average as percentages vary) five per cent of that amount has been paid into social security, or $10,150.

If he gets back $1,500 a year for just 10 years, or until age 72, he will be getting back more than he put into social security.

Many people on social security live to be 100, but the average is in the 80s.

Therefore, people on the average get back more than they put into the program. By strict definition, this is welfare. It costs the taxpayer money to support the program.

Buddhists Seem To Find Compromise

By BARRY KRAMER
SAIGON (AP) — South-Vietnam's militant buddhists apparently have reached a compromise with the government in their month-long argument over the government's support of a rival moderate Buddhist faction.

Thich (Venerable) Tri Quang, the longtime government foe and leader of the politically ambitious militants, ended a protest vigil in front of Independence Palace after 13 days. But in a face-saving move, the monk told a news conference: "Our struggle is not over at the present time."

The militant Buddhists were up in arms because Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu signed a decree recognizing a rival Buddhist sect as the official Buddhist church of South Vietnam.

Monks and nuns marched to the palace three times in the past two weeks to demand that Thieu rescind the new charter.

A compromise apparently was reached between Thieu and Thich Tinh Khiet, the Buddhist patriarch under the old charter. Thieu promised in a letter written last Sunday to solve the charter problem if the Buddhists would stop their demonstrations and Tri Quang and three other monks stopped their protest vigil in a park across the street from the palace.

Khiet wrote to Thieu today that he was asking Tri Quang and the other monks to return to the An Quang pagoda, headquarters of the militant Buddhists in Saigon. Khiet reminded Thieu that he had "promised to satisfactorily solve the problem of the charter in the near future."

Sun Valley Stages To Cut Service

BOISE (AP) — Reduction in service by Sun Valley Stages has been authorized, effective Oct. 17, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission reported today.

At present the line operates two round trips daily between Twin Falls and Sun Valley. The order permits operation of only one round trip daily.

Twin Falls Times-News Oct. 10-11, 1967 3

The PUC said that one trip will be adequate during the time between the end of the Sun Valley resort's summer season and the beginning of the winter season. Full service will be restored Dec. 15, the PUC said.

"Finian" Follows New Rainbow

Ivan Squires Transferred To Portland

Ivan Squires, who has been a field representative with the local Social Security office for nine years, will leave Twin Falls Thursday for a new assignment in Portland, Ore.

Mr. Squires said at present he will be a field representative at the district office in Portland. He started work with the Social Security Department 11 years ago in Billings, Mont. He is a native of Kalispell, Mont.

Jim Cook, a claims representative from Lansing, Mich., joined the local staff Monday.

Mr. Squires and his wife, Martha, have been active in several music and dramatic groups during their time in Twin Falls. Both are members of the Dilettante Group of Magic Valley, both have appeared in Music Club operas, and Mr. Squires has appeared in Community Children's Theatre. He is best known for his character roles in six Dilettante productions, including last year's "Finian's Rainbow," when he played "Finian."

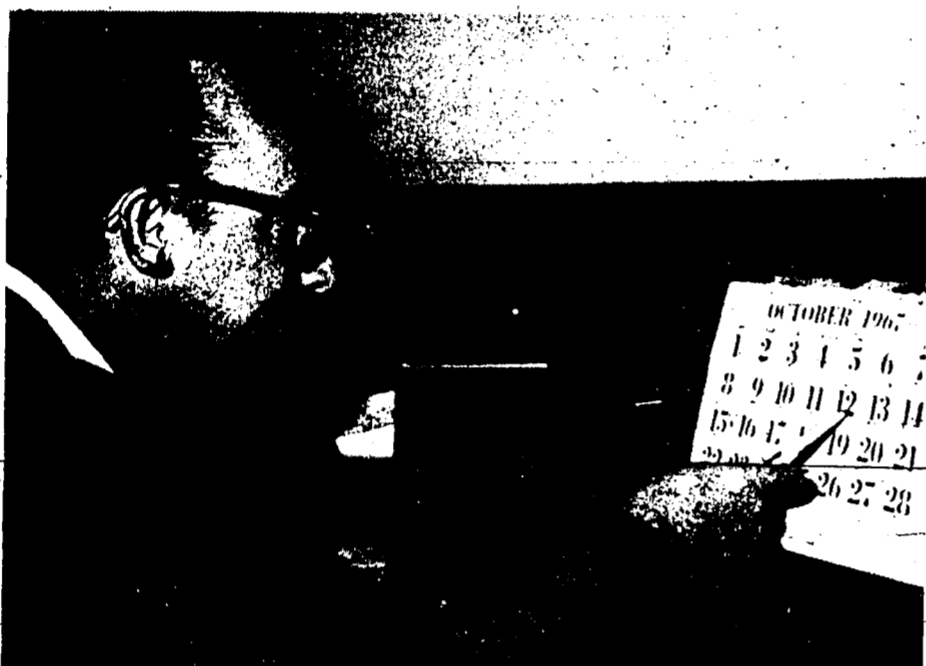

Mr. Squires attended Jamestown College, Jamestown, N.D., where he received a bachelor's degree in Spanish. He later received his masters degree in Spanish from the University of Montana. He is an official interpreter for the government, translating documents, etc.

Mr. Squires said he and his family have mixed emotions about leaving Twin Falls. "The people in this area are more friendly than some places we have lived," he noted. "The attachments formed in nine years here are hard to sever and we will be taking fine memories of the people and Magic Valley with us," he added.

Mr. Squires said he hopes to return this spring to watch the Dilettante production of "The Sound of Music."

The Squires have five children, Julie, 16; Raoul, 15; John, 12; Robin, 10, and Jana, 3. He begins working at the Portland office Monday.

LEAVING THURSDAY for Portland, Ore., where he will assume duties as a field representative of the District Social Security Office, is Ivan Squires. The Squires family has lived in Twin Falls for nine years. He has been a field representative attached to the local Social Security office here.

Late Reward

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — The army caught up with William F. Martens 49 years late—and gave him a Silver Star.

Martens, now 80, was a doughboy in World War I. He fought in the battle of the Argonne, and that's where the Army says he won his medal for gallantry.

Martens said Monday he moved around a lot after 1918 and "the Army probably couldn't find me."

Last June Martens learned during a reunion of his old outfit that the Army was looking for him. Now he has his reward at last.

No Toupee

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Seeking a divorce, Mrs. Earlene Napler told Judge John L. Niblick her husband bought a $352 toupee two weeks after they were remarried, then demanded she pay for it.

She and John Napler were married in 1960, divorced in September, 1966, and remarried last Jan. 7. Mrs. Napler said the income from her restaurant job wasn't enough to pay for the toupee, and support the couple's child.

Niblick granted the divorce.

Talk Just Doesn't Plug The Loopholes

WASHINGTON — Possibly I have missed out on all sorts of brave talk while sojourning south of the border, but I get the impression most of our more prominent national legislators are still hiding in the woodwork to avoid discussing the question of tax reform.

This is especially true of the moderates and liberals on Capitol Hill, who spend so much time and conversation posing as champions of the plain people and demanding Cadillac: with clean ash trays for civil rights rioters lest they sulk and burn down the White House. So far, not one of these more celebrated bleeders has offered a concrete proposal for whittling down such thieving gimmicks as the oil and gas industry's 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance.

Only one United States Senator of prominence has come up with a legislative package to reduce the allowance. Not surprisingly, he turns out to be Sen. John Williams, R-Del., who has always been longer on action than on talk. Williams, senior Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee, plans to attach an amendment to President Johnson's 10 per cent surcharge bill providing for a reduction of the allowance to 20 per cent over a three-year period.

On the House side, Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., and Rep. Dominick Danilewicz, D-N.J., have introduced bills to cut the allowance to 15 per cent. A few others, notably Reps. Ken Hechler, D-W. Va., Roy Taylor, D-N.C., and James Burke, D-Mass., have demanded closing tax loopholes.

But where are the so-called giants? Where are the Kennedys — Bobby and Teddy? Where is Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark.? Has the cat got the tongue of such as Sens. Aliken of Vermont, Brooke of Massachusetts, Gene McCarthy of Minnesota, Scoop Jackson of Washington, Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, Joe Clark and Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania?

It couldn't happen, but it did. An issue finally has arisen which finds Illinois' Sen. Ev. Dirksen apparently committed to a vow of silence. Similarly, House GOP Leader Gerry Ford, who keeps trying to cut spending, seems never to have heard of a tax loophole that does Uncle Sam out of up to $10 billion in taxes every year. The various Presidential candidates — Nixon and Reagan and Romney and Percy and Rockefeller, and of course Lyndon Johnson — are held incommunicado on the subject.

To be sure, Bobby Kennedy has come out for closing "loopholes for the rich," but this specific young man is strangely un-specific about how he would do it. Toss a bill in the hopper, Bobby. It won't hurt you until election time when the fat cats hand out their contributions, and meanwhile you'll get your name in the paper again.

Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, is unhappy about Johnson's surcharge, but is quoted as remarking that "nobody likes taxes. But it's like growing older. Nobody likes that either, but the alternative is worse." Such homely philosophy doesn't quite fit the situation, sir. The alternative to Johnson's surcharge is worse only for the rich.

Senator Williams admits his allowance — reducing proposal may not have a chance, "but I'm going to keep trying, and some day I'll win." He could win this year. His amendment was defeated, 61 to 33, in 1963, but Senate sources say about 40 votes can be mustered for the change today. That means he needs only 11 votes, and he can get them if the electorate holds its representatives' feet to the fire. An election is coming up next year, and Congress is watching its mail these days with nervous foreboding.

PAUL HARVEY

Let's Try Again

The durability of wise words inspires me. Thumb through Bartlett's quotations and see how little difference the centuries make.

Omar Khayyam still makes as much sense as ever almost a thousand years later.

There's little that's outdated in anything Shakespeare said.

Or Kipling.

Or, of course, Scripture.

And you will so often hear in the informal homily of world leaders some saw from home and childhood, some gem of durable wisdom attributed to "Dad" or "Grandmother."

And when I am alone, apart from the pseudosophistication of today's cynics or "moderns," as they consider themselves...

when I am alone on my pillow with nobody but God watching, I sneak from beneath the accumulation of intellectual bedside reading the terribly true aphorisms of Homer McKee.

The timelessness and timeliness of his Housier philosophy comforts me.

Some years ago an employer in Wichita, Kan., Nat Barton, wrote a letter to a young man.

His letter contained much of that "old stuff" which first put rivets in the American dream.

Let's see how much of his letter I can reconstruct:

Young Feller, today you asked me for a job. From the look of your shoulders as you walked out, I suspect you've been turned down before, and maybe you are about to give up.

But I hired a teenager today. You saw him as you left. He had no experience. But he wanted this job enough to shuck the leather jacket, get a haircut, look in the phone book to find out what this company makes.

He did his best to impress me; you left a bad taste in my eyes; that's where he edged you out.

You see, young feller, some of us people who hire people are not "hep" to a lot of things. We know more about Bing than about Ringo. We have stone-age ideas about who owes whom a living.

I couldn't have cared less that you are behind in your car payments. That's your problem, and President Johnson's.

What I needed was someone who'd go out in the plant, keep his eyes open, and work for me like he'd work for himself.

I know you'll find work somewhere if you want it. If you don't want it, you can sponge off relatives or Government.

The Labor Department says there are three-quarters of a million teenagers who want work and can't find it.

Yet the Department of Labor has had to close its own executive cafeteria in Washington because it "can't hire kitchen help."

But that's the hard way to make an easy living.

You don't have to be a parasite, and you don't have to take just "a job," either. You can have a good, interesting worthwhile job.

But you still get that kind of job the same way you court a good, interesting worthwhile girl — the old-fashioned way.

I hope you'll try again.

Doctor's Mailbag

Q — What would cause my hands to get numb? I am taking vitamin B-12. Will that help?
A — A common cause is pernicious anemia. If this is the cause, vitamin B-12 is the best treatment for both the anemia and the resulting numbness.
Q — What would cause my thumb and first two fingers of both hands to stay numb? My doctor is giving me nicotinic acid but I don't seem to get any better.
A — An injury or disease involving your radial nerves would cause numbness of the back of your thumb, index, middle and half of your ring finger. This would be associated with some loss of muscle power. An injury to your median nerves would cause numbness of the palmar surface of these same fingers and a corresponding weakness. The only other cause would be a disease that affects the blood vessels in the area involved. If your present treatment does not help you, you should consult a neurologist.
Q — A friend has a polyp in her nose and has to breathe through her mouth. Would an operation help her? Would having a lot of plants in the house aggravate the polyp?
A — House plants would not affect the polyp in any way. The removal of nasal polyps is a relatively simple procedure but in some persons they keep recurring. In such cases it is necessary to remove the entire mucous lining of the nasal sinus that is involved.
Q — I have had several polyps removed from my lower bowel. Now they have found one in my colon. Do they ever disappear spontaneously? Is it necessary to have them removed?
A — Rectal polyps will not disappear by themselves. Most polyps of the colon and rectum are benign and, as such, need not be removed unless they are a source of bleeding. If, however, there is any indication that they are malignant they should be removed without delay.
Q — Our doctor wants to remove a Baker's cyst from the back of both of my knees. I have pain in the knees when walking up stairs or getting up from a chair. Could this be caused by the cysts? Will the operation cure this condition?
A — This is a form of bursitis of the knee. It may cause redness, swelling and pain in this region. In a few victims the condition subsides spontaneously. In others an injection of thiopeta with hydrocortisone into the bursal sac effects a cure. This works better than hydrocortisone alone. If it doesn't work, the cyst must be removed surgically.

"Don't Worry; I'll Get You Down!"

MARQUIS CHILDS

Sock It To 'Em--Black Power

MILWAUKEE — The chanting goes on in the Chancel before the Altar of St. Boniface's Church to the rhythmic clapping and shouting of the congregations. "Black power, black power, sock it to 'em, black power" and now then with great fervor, "we love Father Groppi, we love Father Groppi."

This invocation, half a kind of fun-making go-go, half deadly earnestness, leads up to the 36th night of consecutive marching protesting the failure of the city council to pass an open-housing ordinance. Organized by the young commandos, members of the youth council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, they file out and begin to march in a cold rain, singing as they go, through dark and dreary streets. While blacks are in the majority, a surprising number of youthful whites, some of them wearing black power sweat shirts, are among the chanters and the marchers.

On both sides of the embittered divide separating the Negro Ghetto of North Milwaukee from Polish-American South Milwaukee they are beginning to ask where this ends and whether it can produce any results. And that question itself suggests a grave crisis just ahead.

The protest movement in this affluent city is still nonviolent, thanks in large measure to Father James Groppi of St. Boniface's parish. It still enlists both races in a drive to break through the walls of the Ghetto. But how long this will hold one can say with any assurance.

When he was in Washington the other day to participate in the start of a nine-day prayer vigil with five of the commandos Father Groppi was roundly berated by black nationalists. Why was he the leader and not a black man? Theirs was the voice of the Black Nationalist movement that has taken over almost everywhere, rejecting any role for the white man. Father Groppi, responding in his intense, dedicated fashion, said he knew it was a last chance for nonviolence in Milwaukee and maybe it was already too late.

In early August a riot here resulted in three deaths and minor property damage. Mayor Henry Maier clamped on a rigid curfew for 24 hours, with all movement in and out of the city forbidden. This is believed to have prevented another Newark or Detroit.

In the aftermath of the riot hopes were high that with the lesson of flaring violence narrowly averted there would be movement. The stubborn stand of the city council would be broken and an open-housing ordinance adopted. The tragic fate, however, is that the stalemate continues with communication across the north-south divide as halting and timorous as before.

So why, the young commandos are beginning to say, should we fool around with this stuff? Moreover, an open-housing ordinance seems a pretty abstract goal that won't really make much difference in the lives of the 90,000 Negroes who are virtually all crowded into the decaying houses and battered tenements of the Ghetto.

The stalemate is not for lack of goodwill. Despite heavy pressure from probably a large majority of Roman Catholics in the area, Archbishop William Cousins came out with a strong statement championing the right of priests and nuns to take an active part in protest demonstrations and to fight for social justice. Catholics in their turn have demonstrated against the Archbishop.

After the minor riot last summer—they call it a "skirmish"—Father Groppi and the commandos looked for action from the community. The mood today is one of disillusion.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

Errors Erode Romney's Image

LANSING, Mich. (NEA) — The real gravity of Michigan Gov. George Romney's problems in his quest for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination becomes clear only from a visit to his Michigan base. Already well known are his difficulties with the Vietnam issue, compounded by his celebrated "brainwash" statement of early September.

What emerges here is serious doubt whether he and his campaign staff have the means of offsetting these difficulties or of preventing new ones in the critical months ahead. In fighting, a jockeying for position close to the governor's ear, afflicts the staff at Romney Associates, his headquarters organization in this capital. Word of this comes not from ax-grinding contenders but from persons who deal closely with them on a daily basis. These people outside the staff say that the controversy seems to swirl around the heads of two key aides, William Siedman, a wealthy businessman nominally in charge of administrative operations, and Richard Van Dusen, an old Romney hand officially in charge of scheduling. The alleged emergence of these two into broader authority in strategy and policy-making has the effect, it is said, of "putting down" others (not least the veteran aide, Walter DeVries) and of confusing the lines which run to the governor himself.

Though this internal struggle may be publicly minimized, the evident fact is that it is real and it is dispiriting. It could hardly come at a worse time. Whatever points Romney may have made in his three-week tour of the troubled cities, his political friends in Michigan and beyond agree that he needs an almost error-free performance from now until presidential primary time in New Hampshire and Wisconsin.

While many of the governor's important Michigan supporters assert even privately that his heralded ability to bounce back from difficulty will save him on the national scene as it has at the state and corporate level, a few of the tougher ones are not so sure.

They believe that the governor stands at the ragged edge of the precipice. Since the "brainwash" business, they find that some top Republicans around the nation are wondering whether Romney may not have a Goldwaterish flair for statements that need constantly to be explained or excused. One eastern party figure says sadly: "They're laughing at him a little."

A Michigan politician fears that mistakes may so erode Romney's image, that no amount of resilience will restore him at the national level — where it is much harder to bounce back. Moreover, it is apparent that some of these harder judges, seeking the causes of trouble, look past the brainwash bloop, the staff in-fighting and such matters to the background the governor brings to this presidential bid.

They contend that Romney's immense self-confidence, rooted in an unbroken string of successes in business and in Michigan politics, severely limits his willingness to take needed advice on national issues and political strategy.

He listens to his advisers for awhile, but then says in effect: "O.K., you've made your points. Now I've got some ideas of my own I'm going to use." He beats them down with the thesis that you cannot argue with success.

A small example of his resistance: His generally hailed April 7 Vietnam speech at Hartford, Conn., was poorly delivered. Staff people wanted him to view a full film of his performance. Though they scheduled three different showings, he found reasons to duck the viewing each time.

In consequence of all this, some of George Romney's fondest backers are questioning today whether he can judge men and use them well, can stay out of new trouble on issues, can put a real delegate-rustling operation together, and can attract the needed heavy funds that could be frightened off by failures on these other fronts. Their doubts are crucial for the governor.

Lots Of Smoke

The lowly tobacco plant is getting it from all sides. At the First World Conference on Smoking and Health in New York a few weeks ago, 487 delegates from 34 countries heard U.S. Surgeon General Luther Terry say, "The period of uncertainty is over... We know for certain that lung cancer, which is climbing at almost epidemic proportions throughout the world, is directly associated with cigarette smoking."

Sir George E. Godber of the British Ministry of Health reported that "we can be certain" that cigarettes are killing 50,000 people a year in England and Wales, an annual loss amounting to 150,000 years of working time.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was there and denounced the tobacco industry, and later introduced three bills in Congress—two to regulate cigarette advertising and one to place a sliding tax on cigarettes, depending on their nicotine content.

Elsewhere, others agitate for an outright law against cigarettes, which, according to the Department of Agriculture, will be lighted up to the tune of 551 billion this year, or an average of 215 packs for every American 18 or older.

Not only lung cancer, but heart disease and almost any other ill is blamed on the weed these days. Like the snake oil remedy of yesterday, which reputedly cured everything, tobacco now causes everything.

Rodale's Health Bulletin even reports a Soviet doctor's claim that his research shows that smoking harms the sex centers and may cause impotency. (Tell that to the nervously smoking father pacing the maternity ward corridor for the fourth or fifth time.)

Just to confuse things, another physician, Dr. Broda O. Barnes of Colorado State University, suggests that many people who now live long enough to get lung cancer would have succumbed at an earlier age to tuberculosis in the last century. Other doctors remain unconvinced of the "certainty" of the tobacco-cancer relationship.

Nevertheless, no one argues that smoking is good for anyone — although it may be a little difficult to credit the statement of Dr. Donald T. Frederickson of the New York City Health Department that "cigarette smoking now stands as probably the leading public health hazard of our day" in view of the fact that in our day half the hundreds of thousands of yearly automobile accidents are said to be caused by drinking.

But what to do about the weed? It is one thing to clamp down on advertising that glamorizes smoking, to try to scare adults out of the habit and educate youngsters against getting into it, or even to attempt to tax it out of existence.

But it is quite another thing to get so excited about the evils—real or suspected—of smoking that we would let the ever-present Big Brothers among us embark on another unfortunate experiment with prohibition.

After the antismoking forces have had their say, after they have brought out their charts and tables of statistics, the decision to smoke or not to smoke is a personal one. It should remain so, for the harm smoking does is confined to the individual, which is certainly not the case with the abuse of alcohol (nor, for that matter, with marijuana or mind-altering drugs).

Millions drank before, during, after, in spite of and because of liquor prohibition. The story wouldn't be any different with smoking.

Members of Congress haven't the foggiest notion whether the country is getting its money's worth for the funds it appropriates. So says Sen. William Proxmire, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, who calls for a reduction in federal expenditures instead of a tax increase.

To provide a yardstick, Sen. Proxmire advocates the creation of a commission to determine the effectiveness of federal programs in relation to their cost. The commission presumably would be responsible directly to Congress.

Whether a new commission really is needed to provide Congress the information it needs to manage the nation's affairs or not, the point made by the senator is a good one. In the handling of budgets of $150 million, no member of Congress becomes directly involved in more than a tiny fraction of the overall outlay. Even then, his involvement is limited largely to before-the-fact approval.

Twelve subcommittees divide the basic work on the budget in the Senate and the House has a similar distribution of work. Each body as a whole relies heavily on the recommendations of its committees.

It is part of Parkinson's law that old government programs have a tendency to survive long after their usefulness ends, and even to expand. Each program attracts a clientele in government and industry which lobbies strongly for its continuation. The public has no such lobby and little opportunity to rebut the vested interests.

In the current battle over additional taxes, those lawmakers who favor reducing expenditures find it difficult to agree on what areas of spending should be reduced or eliminated. The trouble, as Sen. Proxmire sees it, is that there is no way of establishing priorities or evaluating the effectiveness of current programs or judging the net worth of proposed new ones.

In the past, the General Accounting Office has provided valuable assistance in uncovering obvious cases of waste and corruption. Perhaps this agency, which is responsible to Congress, could be expanded to provide valuable assistance in uncovering obvious cases of waste and corruption. Perhaps this agency, which is responsible to Congress, could be expanded to provide closer tabs on the expenditure of funds and provide Congress assistance in other ways.

MR. SPECTATOR

Good Night On The Town

Shows may come and shows may go but Oklahoma! just seems to go on forever—and still attracts the crowds. Last weekend, after reading about it and hearing about it for, to these many moons, Mr. Spectator decided to take the little wife and take a jaunt to Salt Lake City for the Valley Music Hall production of that show. Actually, the trip was made after much encouragement from Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hepper who offered a ride down and back in their private plane. And plane travel is the only way to travel. An hour after leaving Twin Falls airport we were in Salt Lake City. The next day, an hour after leaving the field there, we were back in Twin Falls. And the weather! Wonderful autumn in Idaho. The South Hills were never more beautiful, the air never more smooth, the thrill of living never more great. But wait! We were talking about the Valley Music Hall down in Utah. It was the first theater-in-the-round Mr. Spectator had ever attended and it was swell. Batteries of "mikes" placed at strategic points on the stage picked up all the sound so everybody heard.

Now, we know. It Really isn't far at all. Would like to find a home for six 6-month-old Cocker Spaniel puppies. Telephone 733-2053 and ask for Mrs. Richard Brady, Route One, Twin Falls. We have a mother cat and five little kittens, two months old, to give away. The kittens eat real well and will make someone very nice pets. We live two miles north and one-half of a mile east of the Cedar beet dump at Buhl. Or you can telephone 643-5833, Debba Romans.

Property Tax Increase Seen For 1968

Tax notices will be mailed in late November and property owners will notice an increase between 3 and 19 per cent, Twin Falls County Assessor Clifford Thompson said Tuesday.

He said the assessed valuation of property remains the same as last year but the increase in taxes is due to the combined totals of all tax levies as certified by the various taxing districts in the county. In other words, various taxing units in the county are asking more money to operate during 1968. Mr. Thompson said the tax increase for property-owners in Twin Falls will be about three per cent. It will be about 8.3 per cent outside the city limits, and more in other areas, depending on the amounts wanted by individual school and highway districts.

"The appraised value of property, almost without exception, remains the same this year as in 1966," Mr. Thompson said. He said taxpayers are "welcome to view at any time the appraisal records of their property."

He said "if constant increases in taxes don't meet with the individual's approval, it is important that the individual attend budget hearings." He said this is so that the taxpayer will have a "better idea of how the tax dollar is spent."

Mr. Thompson said "the assessor's office is not the proper place to complain about tax increases brought about by higher tax levies."

He was asked for an example of tax increases to be expected.

A home in the city limits of Twin Falls worth $18,000 is assessed at 14 per cent of its worth. That figure is $2,520, and the tax paid on that in 1966 was $308.73.

The property was again assessed this spring at 14 per cent, and the tax will be $318.28, or an increase over 1966 of $9.55.

Land Purchased On Warm Springs

HAILEY — Blaine County Commissioners sold a tract of land in the Warm Springs area at public auction Monday. Ben Jewell, Ketchum real estate dealer, purchased the approximately 80 acres for $1,500.

The land, which is located some two miles up the canyon and is on the mountainside to the right of the Warm Springs road when traveling upstream, was set aside as a sheep drive way many years ago, and later abandoned for this purpose.

Mr. Jewell said he purchased the land for speculation.

A Column for Sports Fans

Whether you're a pro or college football fan, there's plenty of exciting fare on television these days, which prompts us to offer a refresher course on some of those signals the linesmen and officials make.

You all know what both arms straight over the head mean... a two-chdown. Another common over-the-head signal has one hand striking the other wrist on the edge; that means a personal foul.

Grabbing the wrist at chest level means holding, or illegal use of the hands (the grabbing action suggests this). In the same way a pushing gesture with both hands from the shoulder means interference on a pass catch or fair catch of a punt.

Probably the most common penalty of all is the off side. For that the official just stands with his hands on hips. If you've just been standing there waiting for the right car to come along the waiting's over! Complaint Of Murder Filed In Nevada

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — An open complaint of murder was filed Monday against Howard Chinn, 36, of Carlin, accused of decapitating his father with a meat cleaver, the district attorney said.

Dist. Atty. Mark C. Scott Jr. said Chinn, who was shot in the head by an off-duty policeman after the slaying, will be released from Elko County Hospital Tuesday.

He said he will be kept in the Elko County Jail awaiting court proceedings, Scott said.

Chinn is accused of killing his father, Glenn, 57, in the kitchen of his overland cafe in Carlin during a fight. The son had just been released from the veteran's hospital in Salt Lake City. Sheriff Jess Harris said Chinn was shot by policeman. Also present as Chinn approached him and ignored warning shots.

LBJ Sets New Appeal On Space Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson made a new appeal to the Soviet Union today to abandon "competitive space-manship" and join with the United States in a cooperative effort to explore the heavens.

Johnson renewed his offer of collaboration "after signing a proclamation declaring formally in effect the international treaty barring nuclear weapons, and military bases from outer space."

The President said: "The first decade of the space age has witnessed a kind of contest. We have been engaging in competitive space-manship. We have accomplished much, but we have also wasted much energy and resources in duplicated or overlapping effort."

"The next decade, should increasingly become a partnership—not only between the Soviet Union and America, but among all nations under the sun and stars," he added.

The treaty, now ratified by the United States and 12 other nations, including the Soviet Union and Great Britain, is considered a milestone in efforts to insure the peaceful uses of nuclear power in the world.

It prohibits any nation from claiming sovereignty in space or using celestial bodies such as the moon and planets for military bases. It also calls for the reporting of space exploration and research for the benefit of all mankind.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My neighbor, who has three daughters, 15, 13 and 10, has me terribly upset.

They seem to be a nice family, but the mother went to work recently and the girls are home alone most of the time. There are all kinds of boys flocking at this house, inside and out, running, hollering and wrestling with the girls.

The oldest is the quiet type. She stays in the house most of the time with her boy friend. I hope I am wrong, but it sure doesn't look very nice, and the neighbors are talking. Everyone seems to know but the parents. They must not even have any suspicions because they're not the type to put up with such goings-on.

Should I call them? Or should I mind my own business?
WORRIED NEIGHBOR

DEAR WORRIED: You and the other neighbors could be wrong in your suspicions of the "going on," but do unto others. If they were your daughters, wouldn't you want to be told in time to head off trouble?

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with "PAST 70," who feels that every announcement or invitation is a bid for a gift. And it's too bad that many are not sent because they feel as "Past 70" feels. Sometimes they are sent just to let friends know what is "going on" in the family.

If there is no gift in my heart, or if I feel that the acquaintance isn't close enough to justify a gift, I write a personal note of good wishes. That much I can do for a total stranger. And some of my nicest "thank you's" have come in response to a note I took the time to write.

If they just wanted a gift, I will have politely put them in their place. And if they wanted me to know of a wedding, graduation or a new baby, I let them know that I was glad to have been informed.
KAY J. S.

DEAR KAY: You are right, of course. But you would be amazed at the number of people who find it easier to send a gift than write a personal note.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter from the 17-year-old girl who signed herself "FAT AND LONELY." She had had only two dates in her life because she was fat. She met a popular guy at a party, but he only wanted to take advantage of her. He told her to "get wise, that any fat girl can be popular if she will just give in a little."

Abby, to think that this girl was actually considering it, makes me sick. Being "popular" is a sickness among teenagers today. That girl wouldn't become "popular" if she gave in—she would become "known." And who wants to be known for such un-Christian acts?

Somehow, I think this girl will make the right decision. She wouldn't have asked for your help unless she knew that what she was considering was wrong. I am only 16, and I know it's wrong. I know many other things in this world that are wrong, too, but it's really a wonderful place to live if you live for the right things.
THINKS TWICE

CONFIDENTIAL TO LYNNE:
DEAR ABBY: My neighbor, No matter how "fast" a guy is, he can't be faster than sound. And the "sound" should be NO!

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

No Races Are Expected In Gooding Vote

GOODING—With only a few hours left before filing deadline, no races have developed in the Gooding city election scheduled for Nov. 7.

Gooding City Clerk A. V. Carter reports only three petitions had been filed with his office at 5 p.m. Monday. These include Harley Crippen and Ray Cobble, both seeking four year terms and Donald Simis, seeking a two year term.

Mr. Cobble is a veteran councilman for Gooding, and only recently sold his Ford car Agency in Gooding. Mr. Crippen served at one time as mayor of Gooding and is employed by Inter-mountain-Gas Co.

Mr. Simis, who completed the unexpired term of Donald Pitts, who moved to Caldwell, will seek a two-year term to complete the term for which Pitts was elected. Mr. Simis is a long time resident of Gooding, and is associated with the Gooding Seed Co.

R. M. Shaver, who has served as city councilman for several years, had not yet filed a petition. Carl Greenawald is the hold-over member. Mr. Carter reports that very few citizens of Gooding have registered for the election, and pointed out that anyone that did not vote in the last city election is not registered. Also, anyone moving from one precinct to another must register at the city office in order to vote in the election. Carter reported that 632 people voted in the last election and are automatically registered, but pointed out that this is not too good a percentage of the total voters of the city of Gooding, estimated at about 1,100.

Chou En-lai Recognizes Mao Effect

HONG KONG (AP)—Premier Chou En-lai has acknowledged that Red China's "production is affected to a certain extent" by Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution and that disturbances created by groups opposed to it may be "severe and last for some time."

Speaking to a crowd of 100,000 at Wuhan—wrecked less than three months ago by violent clashes which he was reported to have mediated—Chou said that although Mao's foes are losing ground, "it is a very arduous task to thoroughly repudiate and discredit them."

The official New China News Agency, quoted him as saying Monday: "Such a world-shaking revolutionary movement of course exacts a certain price in production in certain places and in certain departments. We took this into account in advance. Production is affected to a certain extent, especially in places where disturbances occur, but this is only a transient thing. As soon as disorder is turned into order, production can quickly pick up and rise."

Chou warned party cadres against assuming "arrogant airs" and said they should adopt a welcome attitude toward "exposure, criticism and repudiation by the masses."

Chou also called for a united Communist front, excluding the Soviet Union and its allies, to "isolate and hit at U.S. imperialism hard." With Chou was visiting Albanian Premier Mehmet Shehu, whose government is Peking's only European Communist ally.

T.F. Man Is An Extra In Movie Featuring Race Cars

Fleeting glimpses of a former Twin Falls man, Walter Gish, are to be seen in the movie, "Grand Prix," currently showing at the Orpheum Theater in Twin Falls.

Mr. Gish, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vey Gish, Twin Falls, was working with a racing crew when the movie was filmed, and is in several crowd scenes as an extra.

"We wouldn't have noticed him if he hadn't written and told us he was in the movie. In fact, I don't think anyone but his folks would recognize him," his father said.

The younger Gish has been in Europe for about a year and a half and is seeing the continent via motorcycle. He graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1952.

"Grand Prix," the story of one of the world's best known auto races, is being held over for a second week of showing. Attendance during the first week has been high, according to Orpheum manager Jack Edwards.

Starring in the movie, which shows actual race scenes filmed throughout Europe, are James

Demos See Upswing For Policies

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats are betting an upswing in popular acceptance of President Johnson's Vietnam war policies will pull him through a tough battle with the Republicans for re-election in 1968.

Their spirits obviously dampened by the President's current low standing in the polls, members of the Democratic National Committee are banking that in the long pull Johnson's course in fighting a limited war in Asia will win over any alternative Republicans may offer.

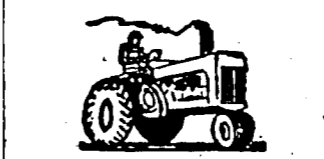

They quickly approved Monday a resolution endorsing Johnson's policies at home and abroad. There was no mention that this seemed the only road open to a party so tightly controlled by an incumbent president that his nomination is regarded as inevitable.

Recognizing the present widespread dissent to Johnson Vietnam policies, a resolution sponsored by Illinois committeeman Jacob M. Arvey said "in both foreign and domestic policy President Johnson has consistently chosen to secure the future, rather than to yield to the dictates of short-term political gain." The resolution, adopted unanimously with a brief patter of applause, said Johnson has sought "an honorable resolution of the conflict in South Vietnam, by which the people of that nation might be freed of terror and bloodshed and able to govern themselves in conditions of social freedom and justice."

Anita Olsen, Alberdi Wed In Catholic Rites

JEROME — Mags was celebrated Sept. 1, uniting in marriage Anita Olsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon E. Olsen, and Vincent Lee Alberdi, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincente Alberdi.

The evening rites were solemnized at St. Jerome's Catholic Church by Rev. Bernard McBride before a setting of beauty baskets of white gladioli and huckleberry, flanked with candleabra entwined with gladioli. Family pews were marked with white satin bows. The chapel windows were lighted by yellow tapers surrounded by garden flowers in small baskets.

Susan Thompson played the traditional wedding music and accompanied Fredwyn Hansen, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length bridal satin gown, fashioned with an empire waistline, a lace bodice with a scalloped neckline and bell sleeves. Tiny self-covered buttons adorned the back of the gown.

The chapel train of chiffon and lace was re-embroidered with seed pearls. Her silk illusion shoulder-length veil, which was borrowed from her cousin, was held by an orchid rose. She carried a teardrop cascade bouquet arranged on a white Bible. The center of the bouquet was made of yellow rosebuds encircled with Lillies of the Valley and ribbon streamers.

The bride's only jewelry was a tiny pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom.

Mrs. Gary Olsen was matron of honor for her sister-in-law. Bridesmaids were Kathleen Messinger and Carol Jewell.

Rich Miller was best man, with Gary Olsen, brother of the bride, and Joe McKlenny, a former roommate of the bridegroom, as ushers.

Marilyn Hite registered the guests at a reception held immediately after the ceremony in the parish hall. Gifts were displayed by Paulette Waltz, Rita Darling, RoseAnn Olander and Shari Somers.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over a pale yellow underskirt tied with yellow bows and centered with a five-tiered wedding cake. The cake featured a ribboned stair-kitchen and church clean-up day was planned for Wednesday. It was decided the circle would purchase the napkins and place-mats to correspond with the United Nations Day program Oct. 18. Mrs. Roger Thomas will give a book review.

It was decided to serve an oyster stew supper Dec. 7 at the Methodist Men's district meeting to be at Kimberly Methodist Church.

A Call to Prayer and Self-Denial program will be held at the church with Murtaugh women participating.

Mrs. Ralph Simmons gave the lesson study from the September "Methodist Woman."

way and was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. It was placed on a mirror and decorated with yellow roses and sequined hearts. Flanking the cake were yellow candles in crystal holders.

Cutting the cake were Mrs. Doug Pendleton, Pocatello, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mrs. David Burnham, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Fred Miller and Mrs. Maurice Klaas, Twin Falls, both aunts of the bride, and Mrs. Genevieve Olsen, grandmother of the bride.

The couple took a wedding trip to Yellowstone National Park. They will reside in Pocatello, where Mr. Alberdi is a senior at Idaho State University, majoring in business.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. Goicochea, Gooding, grandparents of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Genevieve Olsen, grandmother of the bride.

Out-of-town guests attended from Twin Falls, Shoshone, Pocatello, Gooding, Boise, Utah and Oregon.

A miscellaneous shower was given for the bride by Miss Messinger.

Lowman Road Is Subject Of Ford Article

An article in the October issue of Ford Times, written by Don Bemco Bennett and also illustrated in watercolor by the author, points up a travel shortcut through Idaho's primitive area that proves to be more a delight for the sightseer than for the motorist in a hurry.

The shortcut, scenic State Highway 21 which links U.S. 85-20 and U.S. 93, takes the traveler through a 130-mile stretch of Idaho which probably contains the state's most scenic wonders, the Sawtooth Primitive Area and the Idaho Primitive Area.

The 130-mile-long highway, three-fourths paved and the remaining being a graveled, but good section, connects Stanley with Boise. From Stanley the motorist travels along Valley Creek and many other streams tributary to the Salmon River, where the annual migration of the Chinook Salmon ends.

After passing Cape Horn, a Boy Scout summer camp, the highway crosses the boundary of the Challis and the Boise National Forests, and into the town of Lowman. Thirty-five miles further is the once roaring gold mining town of Idaho City, which was an active town of 5,000 during the 1860s, but which now contains around 250 persons.

From Idaho City, noted for its old buildings, some of them dating before 1865, Highway 21 takes the traveler the remaining 40 miles to Boise.

Call For Federal Spending Cutbacks Getting Good Test

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — The extent to which members of Congress, many of whom have called for cutbacks in federal spending, want to practice economy in politically sensitive areas is getting a good test this week.

If their reaction is anything like that of the nation's governors, outraged protest is likely to ring out on Capitol Hill.

The Johnson administration asked the 50 governors to comment on what would happen if up to half their federal highway funds were held back. Virtually all governors responding so far have strongly protested such a move would cripple their road programs.

The administration is under congressional pressure to cut federal budget spending by about $5 billion if it wants to see its 10 per cent income tax surcharge bill passed. Holding back the highway money wouldn't affect the budget since the funds are held in a separate pool of gas tax revenue which cannot be spent for any other purpose. But withholding the funds could have a dampening effect on the economy.

Congressional reaction to cutbacks is likely to emerge when Congress takes up this week three items that reach into every state and every congressional district—public works, military construction and the pay of federal workers.

In the first such test, the Senate rejected 60 to 12 Monday a proposal by Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., to cut back new starts in the public works program. Debate continues today on the $1.7 billion measure, which includes funds for the Atomic Energy Commission as well as the so-called "pork barrel" projects.

Williams said his proposed cut would have affected about $395 million in projects.

The House, meanwhile, takes up a budget-busting omnibus measure to raise postal rates and the pay of federal employees. Final action is expected Wednesday on the measure, which eventually could cost three times as much as the new revenue it will produce.

The House Armed Services Committee planned to question Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara today about a 30-day Pentagon freeze announced last week on nearly $350 million earmarked for military construction projects.

Two House Appropriations subcommittees planned to meet to see where money earlier appropriated for Treasury-Post Office and legislative affairs can now be rescinded.

King Says He Will Go To Jail Willingly

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. says he will go to jail "willingly and in clear conscience" following the U.S. Supreme Court's rejection of his appeal from a five-day sentence for a 1963 demonstration in Birmingham, Ala.

Informed of the court's refusal to reconsider its 5-4 decision of last June, King said in a statement Monday the Supreme Court "turned its back on an appeal to reason and the most fundamental freedom that all Americans cherish."

He said the case grew out of the 1963 movement which led to the 1964 civil rights act and the punishment "is a small price to pay for such an invaluable achievement. I shall willingly and in clear conscience go to jail along with my colleagues in Birmingham to make a witness for my basic beliefs."

A spokesman said King, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, would voluntarily return to Alabama to pay the penalty when the final papers are processed, probably in a month.

The court last June by a 5-4 vote affirmed the conviction of King and seven other Negro ministers.

Lonborg Keeps Boston's Hopes Alive With 3-1 Triumph Over St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Thanks to gentleman Jim Lonborg, the Boston Red Sox still are alive and breathing. Lonborg's second and magnificent pitching job and 3-1 victory Monday foiled the St. Louis Cardinals' hopes for an early knockout and sent the World Series back to Boston for at least a sixth game Wednesday afternoon.

A few days of rain and a couple more superb jobs by Lonborg and the Sox may become the fourth club ever to bounce back all the way after losing three of the first four.

Lonborg appeared on the way to a second straight shutout until Roger Maris hit a home run with two out in the last of the ninth. As it was he set a record by allowing only a total of four hits in two consecutive Series games.

It was the third brilliant effort by the handsome Stanford grad in only nine days. First, he won the pennant by beating the Mets on the last day of the season. Next, he shut out St. Louis with only one hit in Thursday's second game. Monday's three-hitter in a most desperate situation was the third.

Already ticketed to work the seventh game Thursday if the Series goes that far, Lonborg may wind up in the sixth game if bad weather should force a postponement. Tuesday is an open date for travel but both teams will work out at Fenway Park.

"I hope we don't see this guy again," said Card Manager Red Schoendienst in the clubhouse after getting one run off him in 18 innings.

Ken Harrelson, the fellow who was fired by Kansas City's Charley Finley only to sign with Boston for $75,000, drove in the first run of the game with a single in the third inning. It was an unearned run off 22-year-old Steve Carlton, the Cards' lefty starter, as Harrelson's hit followed a single by Joe Foy and an error by Mike Shannon on Mike Andrews' sacrifice bunt.

A Red Sox two-run rally in the ninth seemed to be only frosting on Lonborg's cake at the time but it meant the ball game after Maris hit his sixth Series homer in the last of the ninth.

Ron Willis, the third Card pitcher, loaded the bases in the ninth with a walk to George Scott, a double by Reggie Smith and an intentional pass to Rico Petrocelli.

After Willis threw one ball to Elston Howard, Jack Lamabe came on to face the veteran catcher. Howard singled to right, scoring Scott, and Smith also came home when Maris threw to the plate was high. Both runs were charged to Willis.

The Cards were lucky to get out of the inning on a double play involving a complicated rundown play at the plate.

Lonborg, who admitted he had the sniffles, simply was superb all through the cool sunny afternoon. He said he felt he was home free after the Red Sox got the two runs in the top of the ninth.

The Boston ace, who retired the first 19 men he faced in beating Dick Hughes in the second game at Boston, blew down 12 in a row from the fourth until the eighth until Julian Javier got life on Rico Petrocelli's error.

Lonborg said he didn't feel any pressure in this game. "As soon as I walk over that white line," he said, "I forget everything but the game."

After Tuesday's off day for travel, the Red Sox will send Gary Waslewski, 22, against Hughes, loser of the second game. Lonborg will try for the triple Thursday with only two days' rest if the Red Sox can take the Series to a seventh game.

"I thought I had good stuff today," said Lonborg in one of the understatement of the season.

Lonborg said he had worked with only two days rest twice during the regular season, winning one and losing another.

The Cards never really applied strong pressure to Lonborg. Manager Dick Williams, who said before the game, "they still have to drive 27 nails," went out to talk to his pitcher in the eighth when Cards Manager Red Schoendienst sent up Phil Gagliano as a pinch hitter with Javier on second base and two out.

Williams confirmed in the clubhouse that he had talked to his team before the game. He said he told them they should be proud of going this far if they lost.

"However, we have our best guy going if we win this," he said. "I just reminded them we would be in the same situation if we won this, as we were late in the season when we had to win the last two. I think we'll have the same meeting Wednesday. We've taped it."

Hoople Blames World Series For Poor Show

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

Harrumph! With the cosmo rapport completely shattered by the inane world series, how can one expert be held accountable for his misfortunes in the realm of the more serious and vital work of gridcasting.

Epah! Even television has the audacity to pre-empt prime football telecasting with the mundane sport of throwing and catching. This greatly disturbs the gridiron stars, year, vorably shaking their very orbits, and due to such unfavorable conditions I must admit, without any hedging, that I didn't have a particularly good week last week.

However, some of you did and this makes me very proud and happy to see that you Magic Valley predictors are leaving the master's knee and seeking new roads for your imagination.

(Ed's note: It must be our imagination but it seems to us like last week the Major strongly urged an avalanche of "Ditto Hoople" entries.)

We had a seven-way tie with four incorrect guesses and through our point system for breaking ties find that Walter H. Mueller, Filer, is the champion for the week. We'd offer congratulations but assume he'd rather have the $10.

Second place went to Robert Martin, Twin Falls, worth $5, and the third place prize of $2.50 will be mailed to Frank J. Machacek, Buhl.

On the honorable mention list are Larry McMurdie, Buhl; Ed Bowlden, Hailey; Charlotte Williams, Twin Falls; Gary Hieb, Rupert; Keith Burgess, Twin Falls, who had the audacity to predict his "third straight week of recognition," Ruth Danos, Filer, and Floyd Bowers, Castleford.

Time doesn't allow me to say more than remember the Friday deadline, for I must get back to the living room to watch the world series.

Southern Cal Stays Atop Football Poll

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California, crushing Stanford 30-0 for its fourth straight victory, tightened its grip on the No. 1 position in the Associated Press football poll Monday but the rest of the rankings underwent a lively shake-up as a result of weekend upsets.

Houston, beaten by North Carolina State 16-6, plummeted from second to 10th while Texas Tech, a 7-3 victim of Mississippi State, fell from the Top Ten list altogether.

Surprising North Carolina State, with four straight triumphs, became the newest member of the select group, gaining ninth with four votes for first place.

The Southern Cal Trojans, who meet fifth-ranked Notre Dame at South Bend Saturday in the game of the week, dominated the rankings by grabbing 36 of the 50 first place votes and being picked no lower than fourth by any of the selectors. They collected 462 points.

The rankings are made on a vote of a selected sportswriter and broadcaster panel. Points are awarded on the basis of 10 for a first place vote, nine for second and on down the line.

Only two other teams besides Southern California rated a No. 1 ballot. Purdue, upset winner over Notre Dame a week ago and 25-16 conqueror of Northwestern last Saturday, got 10, North Carolina State the remaining four.

Purdue moved from fourth to the runner-up spot behind Southern California with 385 points. Then came Georgia, 21-0 victor over South Carolina, moving from fifth to third.

UCLA, No. 4, dropping a notch after a 17-15 squeaker with Penn State, and Notre Dame, No. 5, bounding back with a 56-6 rout of Iowa.

Completing the Top Ten, in order, were Colorado, Alabama, Nebraska, North Carolina State and Houston.

Colorado jumped two places after beating Iowa State 34-0. Alabama went from ninth to seventh on 21-7 victory over Mississippi, seen by a national television audience. Nebraska, a 16-14 winner over Kansas State, was down a peg.

Most of the ranking teams have tough tests this week. Purdue is at Ohio State, Georgia plays Mississippi at Jackson, UCLA takes on California. Colorado faces Missouri, Alabama is at Vanderbilt, Nebraska is at Kansas and N.C. State goes to Maryland. Houston, idle Saturday, tries to come back Oct. 21 against Mississippi State.

The Top Ten first place votes in parentheses and points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

1. Southern Cal (36) 462
2. Purdue (10) 385
3. Georgia 354
4. UCLA 338
5. Notre Dame 256
6. Colorado 179
7. Alabama 150
8. Nebraska 120
9. North Carolina State (4) 114
10. Houston 69

Mets Have Permission To See Hodges

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The New York Mets said today they have received permission from the Washington Senators to talk with Gil Hodges about managing the Mets but as yet hadn't spoken with him or made an appointment to speak with him.

Earlier, Hodges was reported to have been weighing an offer to succeed Wes Westrum as the Mets' manager, but the Mets denied that they have talked with him.

The former first baseman, who finished playing his career with the Mets, has one year to run on his contract with the Senators.

Westrum resigned shortly before the season ended and Hodges was known to be on New York's list of candidates. Before the Mets could talk with him, though, they had to receive permission from the Senators.

Mets President Bing Devine received permission from Washington General Manager George Selkirk last Saturday night.

In Washington, the Evening Star said Hodges is expected to sign a long-term contract as manager of the Mets.

Brewer Defeats Casper In Playoff

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Gay Brewer, reigning U.S. Masters champion, defeated former U.S. Open champion Billy Casper by four shots in the Alcan Golfer of the Year Tournament playoff.

Brewer's victory was worth $55,000 with Casper getting $15,000 for second.

Brewer, from Dallas, Tex., shot a four under 33-35-68 over the Old Course of St. Andrews. Casper, of Peacock Gap, Calif., wound up with a 37-35-72.

The two Americans finished the 72 holes in five-under-par 283 to force a playoff.

THOMPSON GETS HONORS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Washington's Steve Thompson — an All-Conference and All-Coast selection as a junior last year — was named Pacific-8 "Lineman of the Week" today.

Thomas Lists Idaho's Starting Lineup

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow — Norm Thomas, coach of the Idaho Vandal frosh team, today announced his tentative starting lineup for the opening game Saturday for the Idaho Frosh when they meet the Idaho State Frosh team in Twin Falls' Bruin Stadium at 8 p.m.

Thomas said that from practice, workouts and from the great spirit and desire shown by his young Vandals, the team should give a good account of themselves in their first game. Thomas added that there could be some minor changes in the lineup, however these 11 players have shown much to gain in starting nods at the present time.

Larry Stonebarger, 5'10" 170-pounder from Oakley, Calif., will be the starting quarterback and he will have Mike Wigcombe, 210-pound, 5'10" deep back from Boise and Jim McFarland, 5'8" 185-pounder from Meridian as his running backs. Steve Gabby, 6' and 160-pounds will be the wingback. Gabby is from Lewiston.

From Twin Falls will be Scott Swope, 6'1" 190-pounder at tight end and at the split end will be either George Clements, 6'4" 195-pounds from Rigby or Jim Wilund, 6'2" and 190-pounds Coueur d'Alene.

At the tackles will be Joe Allen, 6'4" 240-pounder from Moscow and Bob D'Amico, 6' 212-pounder from Westhaven, Conn. Guards will be Leon Starchman, 5'10" 215-pounder from Wallace and Flint Carpenter, 6'1" 190-pounder from Twin Falls. Center will be Pat Johnson, 6'2" 190-pounder from Boise.

Thomas also added that he feels mighty proud that 9 out of the starting 11 players are native Idahoans and that there are 25 Idaho boys on the frosh roster.

Thomas also said that most of these starters will be going both ways as it is the policy of the freshman program to see just what the young Vandals can do under both offensive and defensive pressure.

Thomas said that this will be a great experience to bring the young Vandals to Twin Falls to appear in the Shrine game and he knows the players will be putting out just that much more by knowing that the game will benefit the Shriner's crippled children's project.

Nixon Tops Poll Of Republican Leaders

By RELMAN MORIN
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon has topped a nationwide Associated Press poll of Republican leaders who were asked to name their favorite for the GOP presidential nomination next year.

However, the strongest potential ticket would be composed of Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California, those participating in the survey replied. A Nixon-Reagan combination ran second.

Associated Press bureaus submitted a three-part questionnaire to the state chairmen and members of the GOP National Committee in all 50 states. About half replied.

The questions and results were:

1. Whom do you favor for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination?
Nixon—48 per cent
Gov. George Romney—28
Rockefeller—14
Reagan—7
Others—7
2. Which Republican has the best chance of defeating President Johnson?
Nixon—41 per cent
Rockefeller—25
Romney—23
Reagan—11
3. What combination of candidates for president and vice president would offer the strongest ticket?
Rockefeller-Reagan—40 per cent
Nixon-Reagan—25
Nixon-Sen. Charles Percy—11
Romney-Reagan—11
Others—13

As expected, much of Nixon's support came from Republican leaders in the South and Southwest but he had votes in some Midwest and Far Western states as well.

Some of those who participated in the survey indicated that while they consider Nixon the GOP's best qualified candidate, they have misgivings as to whether he can win. He lost the presidential election in 1960 and the race for governor of California in 1962.

Said Idaho State Chairman John McMurray, "They (Idaho working Republicans) still have reservations. If he shows well in the early primaries Nixon will be hard to stop."

Similarly, Mrs. J. C. Mann, Texas national committeewoman, said she considers Nixon the "best qualified" and that she has strongly supported him before. She added, "But I want somebody to win this time. I don't believe that the people who go to conventions and choose candidates are always representative of the way the people feel who will be voting."

A significant result of the poll was Reagan's strong showing. He was mentioned many more times than any other potential candidate as the choice for the vice presidential nomination.

Replying to the question about the strongest ticket, a party leader said, "Rockefeller and Reagan—either way."

Rockefeller and Reagan have both said they are not candidates. Teaming, some of those questioned said, would give the party a balanced ticket which would appeal to both the conservatives and moderates.

Rockefeller ran ahead of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, whom he supports for the nomination—in answers to the question of which Republican would stand the best chance of beating the President. In some replies, GOP chiefs indicated they felt Romney's "brainwashing" statement may have cost him some support.

Said the chairman of a New England state, who would not be identified, "We are still with Romney—if he doesn't let it would favor Rockefeller."

Among those mentioned for the vice presidential nomination were Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, John G. Tower of Oregon, along with Govs. James A. Rhodes of Ohio and Claude Kirk Jr. of Florida.

Salt Lake City Police Stage Raid

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Police raided a westside home late Monday night, seized at least 10 pounds of marijuana and arrested seven persons, including two 17-year-old girls.

Fillis said a squad of officers moved in on the house shortly after 11 p.m. They found the marijuana in various places inside and in a car, he said.

U.S. SLAM BIDS SEEM SUPERIOR

One of the chief criticisms of American bidding as opposed to Italian bidding in the past has been that the Italians just outbid us on slams. We have seen a five diamond Blackwood response would get them too high.

Also, Keheila and Murray have played together for years and Sammy knows that Eric is not bashful about slam bidding. Eric's five-diamond call was a cue bid so Sammy showed his ace of spades whereupon Eric went to five no-trump to tell Sammy to place the slam contract. He might have placed it in hearts but decided that five clubs to the king-queen-nine were good enough.

There was no play to the hand. Sammy won the opening lead, drew trumps and conceded a trick to the ace of hearts.

We aren't inclined to give Eric and Sammy any great credit for getting to this slam. It seems to us that any good American pair and almost any poor American pair would find a way there with the North-South cards, but we picked up 13 International Match Points when the Italian North-South pair using the scientific Italian methods stopped at five clubs.

Hard Working Lass Can Still Be A Lady

Dear Ele: Can a girl be feminine while working in a drive-in and lifting heavy boxes and his private conversations, removing large tables? I keep getting called by my last name and being treated like one of the boys, so I know I'm doing something wrong. But when things get busy you either use brute force or get fired. So—Smitty.

Dear Smitty: Don't let weight-lifter's chores make you neglect feminine grooming. Avoid eye shadow and other paraphernalia that will sweat into rivulets, but keep your lipstick fresh, your hair well combed, and your scent womanly (perfume behind the ears, on the throat and at the wrists can do the trick). Don't make a big production out of balancing boxes. If a boy offers a hand, accept with a grateful smile. Keep your voice as gentle as you can and, if possible, stop in on your day off when you're in pretty "civilian" clothes. If you do these things the boys may still keep the last-name salutation, but at least it will be said with more awareness that there's a lady in the kitchen!—Ele

SEEKING INDEPENDENCE
Dear Ele and Walt: We have a problem and are asking you for help. My 14-year-old brother is the problem. He is ashamed and embarrassed of my other brother, 10, and myself, 11. Let us give you an example. We are just standing around talking and a friend or even a stranger goes by and he tells us to get lost. What can we do to make him unashamed and unembarrassed? Please help!—Drew and Earl

Dear Drew and Earl: Don't let your brother's aloofness get you down. He's just trying to be a more independent person, and it's this desire that makes him draw away from you. Accept this and when people draw near, give him, some privacy by moving off to look at a shop window. If you do overhear any of his private conversations, removing large tables? I keep getting called by my last name and being treated like one of the boys, so I know I'm doing something wrong. But when things get busy you either use brute force or get fired. So—Smitty.

WAITS TO AVOID SCORE
Dear Ele: I need some advice. For nearly eight months now, I've been dating Chris and Chris only. Never once has he ever said—or done—anything to give me an idea of how he feels, not even a goodnight kiss! Now, to get to the point: Is it permissible to come right out and ask Chris exactly where I stand?—Deanna

Dear Deanna: If Chris has asked you out repeatedly for eight months, there's no question where you stand! The guy thinks you're special enough to absorb all his date-time. What better affirmation of interest do you need??? Come December, invest in some mistletoe and hang it over the front door. Then you can use the license of the season to bridge the physical gap.—Ele

Our newsletter, "First Kisses," might help a shy sweetheart. Send 15 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Date-Line, in care of this newspaper.

GRIPE OF THE WEEK
Dear Walt: Have I got a complaint! It's about all the girls who go out on double dates and then spend the evening whispering to the other girl. This would be rude in any case, but it's especially bad when the boy is investing a good sum of money only to have his date go buzz-buzz with secret girl talk all evening! GIRLS, think how you'd feel if the boys you dated acted like they were married to each other instead of interested in your company!—I. Rate.

Temper up? Share your complaint by writing Ele and Walt in care of this newspaper.

Aircraft Carrier Safety Discussed

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Navy panel formed after a disastrous aircraft carrier fire has found many safety measures lag behind the times and tempo of operations.

Adm. James S. Russell, head of the panel, suggested a number of improvements even before his group's final report is forwarded later this month to Navy chiefs, sources report.

The improvements include installing additional firefighting and damage control equipment as well as changes in its design and location aboard the ships.

Russell also proposed that safety instructions be spelled out clearly in booklets for the crews.

The Russell panel was created in August soon after 131 Navy men died in a fire that almost gutted the carrier Forrestal standing off North Vietnam. Russell came out of retirement temporarily to handle the job.

Sources familiar with the group's preliminary findings said the Russell panel concluded that many safety measures on the carriers were based on the experience of World War II.

These days, carriers are on station longer than formerly and conduct more sustained operations.

The safety precautions have not kept up with the pace of operations—and the times, sources said the Russell group found.

The panel leader has told his superiors he was impressed with the level of experience of commanding officers and command pilots, that key officers were well-chosen, and that the deck crews were well-motivated, even though they work as much as 15 hours a day.

In response to inquiries, the Navy said: "There are some areas where improved techniques and operations can be inaugurated at the local level."

"These center primarily around a revitalization of damage control techniques, weapons handling and storage, and training of personnel."

Sources said the Russell group, which visited the carriers Constellation, Intrepid, Coral Sea, and Oriskany, felt there was a tendency toward haste by crewmen under pressure, particularly when—as happens off North Vietnam—there are frequent aircraft takeoffs and landings 12 hours a day, every day of the week.

This kind of pressure, it was said, results in attempted shortcuts, with resultant increased chances of accidents.

It was said normal dangers are magnified by the tremendous amount of ammunition being handled in connection with preparations for air strikes.

It was found that, in some cases, safety devices tend to get rusted, worn or lost.

Government Stands By New Seatbelts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government, deciding that injuries from over-the-shoulder seatbelts are rare, will stand by its requirement that the chest belts be in all new cars built after Dec. 31.

Federal Highway Administrator Lowell K. Bridwell announced Monday the agency's second thoughts about the standard have been resolved. He pronounced use of chest and lap belts together "the best single means of protection available" from injury in car accidents.

The standard will require chest belts for the driver and the right front passenger but not for rear-seat passengers.

Bridwell had announced Aug. 18 the standard was being reviewed.

One concern of federal officials was an indication that in collisions, the chest belts might cause neck injuries.
