Student Marches Do Not Disturb U Of I President

By RUTH KOONCE MILLER

"I don't know why people get so upset over anti-Vietnam demonstrations—I'd be more upset if people were complacent about the situation there."

Dr. Hartung was not on campus when the demonstration took place. He noted that we "might as well expect that these things are going to happen. I don't think Moscow is going to become another Berkeley."

Steel Haulers Wheel Rigs To Docks As Strike Ends

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steel haulers ended one of the bloodiest strikes in recent years today and wheeled their rigs up to the loading docks so choking mills could clear out their crammed warehouses.

The proposed performing arts center will cost about $2.5 million. It is expected to eventually be the central point in a mall at the west side of the campus.

Twin Falls Has Draft, No Demonstrations

By FRED DODDS
Times-News Staff Writer
Each month in the Twin Falls area at least five letters are sent to young men. The letters are from the President of the United States, and they begin with the now famous "greetings."

The demonstrations during the weekend at the Pentagon show this. The demonstrations seem to be against the draft, and in turn against the war, and in turn against America's foreign policy.

Egypt And Israel Stage Blazing Artillery Duel

By The Associated Press
Egyptian and Israeli forces fought a blazing artillery and mortar duel today at the southern end of the Suez Canal and Egypt claimed it shot down one of Israel's Mirage jet fighters.

Elath in the most serious incident since the cease-fire in June. An Israeli army spokesman said artillery fire hit and set aflame the oil refineries at Port Suze, across the canal from Port Taufiq. He said the refineries were going up in smoke, cutting off part of Egypt's oil supply.

The spokesman asserted the Egyptians opened up with small arms and then loosed artillery fire, whereupon the Israelis on the east bank of the canal replied. One Israeli casualty was reported.

The announcement came amid a clamor in Israel for vengeance against Egypt after its sinking of the Israeli destroyer Elath with probable loss of 53 lives.

Despite Israel's anger, there were hints within Premier Levi Eshkol's Cabinet that the nation would not march into a renewal of the June 5-10 Middle East war.

U.S. Jets Bomb Enemy's Biggest Base In Vietnam

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. jets bombed North Vietnam's biggest air base, the Phuc Yen field 18 miles northwest of Hanoi, for the first time in the war today.

A U.S. spokesman said the Americans also encountered intense anti-aircraft and missile fire during the attack on Phuc Yen.

While fighting picked up in an arc around Saigon, U.S. Air Cavalrymen in the northern provinces mopped up in a fortified village near the South China Sea where they reported they killed 48 North Vietnamese regulars in seven hours of fighting Monday.

and the Hoa Lac airfield 20 miles west of Hanoi, which until recent raids was a base for MIG interceptors.

Informants in Moscow said they believed Marshal Matvei V. Zakhharov, Soviet chief of staff now in Cairo, would probably urge restraint on President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

United Auto Workers Are Voting On New Contract

DETROIT (AP) — The first United Auto Workers Union local to vote on a proposed three-year contract that would end a 48-day-old strike against Ford Motor Co. was reported today to have accepted the agreement by a 2-1 margin.

The Livonia ratification was the first result reported from the voting which involves some 160,000 UAW members at Ford plants across the nation.

The contract contains a guaranteed annual income, effective in December of 1968, and the company says it would make them "among the best paid and best protected of all U.S. industrial wage earners."

The union's leadership agrees, and the UAW's 200-member National Ford Council overwhelmingly recommended ratification Monday night, despite the "No!" shouts of an estimated 200 to 250 dissident skilled tradesmen who were beaten off when they attempted to storm the meeting.

Police and sheriff's officers have had no calls to date. The Twin Falls Army Recruiter reported he accepts about three volunteers a month, he has four signed up now and 123 men volunteered from Magic Valley in 1966. He said the figure remains about constant with "very examiner, but the airline appealed to the full board and won the case. Shepard said, "If West Coast fails to keep what we consider to be its commitments to Idaho, we may take action."

Shepard defended an earlier statement in which he said he might favor purchase of an airplane for use by state officials and employees because of the "failure" of West Coast to provide service.

A West Coast official, district sales manager Don R. Cooper, Boise, took issue with Shepard's statement.

Shepard said the airline had terminated service to Coeur d'Alene, McCall, Ontario, Ore., and Sun Valley.

Shepard said a wife may register for herself and husband or the husband may register for both.

Cooper denied that West Coast had terminated service to Ontario and Sun Valley. But Shepard said Monday he considered the use of the small twin-engine aircraft currently used by the airline between Boise and Sun Valley and Ontario to be "termination of service."

"It's not what I would call regularly scheduled stops by first class service," Shepard said.

The "mini-liners" were instituted by the airline early this year when it completed the phase-out of the DC-3 airplane from its system.

Anyone who missed the last city candidate election must register in order to vote Nov. 7. Beginning Nov. 2 the city clerk's office will remain open during regular hours, as well as from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., to accommodate working persons and others who do not have an opportunity to register during daytime hours.

Ruling On Confessions Is Problem

By FRED DODDS
Times-News Staff Writer

Miranda and Escobedo. These names have been tossed about in law enforcement and judicial circles for the past few years. What do they mean?

There are many schools of thought on this, but basically U.S. Supreme Court rulings on these two cases were aimed at guaranteeing an accused basic constitutional rights. Law officers often condemn the rulings, prisoners applaud them, the citizenry is confused.

Earlier this decade, a young man in Arizona by the name of Ernesto Miranda kidnaped and raped a woman. He was caught, identified, and found guilty in a trial. He was found guilty on the strength of a confession, which the defendant gave police.

He went to prison, but the case was not dead.

Miranda's lawyers appealed the case, and in 1966 the U.S. Supreme Court issued its ruling — let Miranda go. Why? The high court said Miranda, on arrest, was not properly informed of his constitutional rights to consult with an attorney before he confessed.

Miranda was freed, but re-arrested, re-tried, and found guilty a second time. The second time around, the prosecution did not use the confession in court.

Miranda is now in prison.

The other case involved Danny Escobedo, who was arrested in 1962 in Chicago and charged with murder.

He was questioned in the police station while his attorney remained just down the hall. The attorney was not allowed to talk with Danny Escobedo for several hours.

In trial, Escobedo was found guilty, but later was freed when the Supreme Court said "let him go." Escobedo was free until last month when arrested on a narcotics charge.

An accused has these basic rights: to consult with an attorney, to remain silent during questioning by the police, to have an attorney appointed if he cannot pay for one, and if he waives these rights, the accused must do so "intelligently and with knowledge."

In many police forces throughout the country, a man can waive his rights only when he has initiated on paper each of the rights, then signed this waiver in front of three witnesses.

Then, this is even doubted in some courts.

Twin Falls Police Chief Frank Barnett said, "It appears some courts go out of their way to rule for the defendant, just so the judge will not get his ruling overturned by the Supreme Court at some future time."

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Michael Felton said, "Of course we've had trouble with these rulings."

He cited a recent example.

Two men were accused of stealing a bag full of money from a local hotel. They confessed to the crime, and signed the confession.

The confession was not admissible in court. Why?

The court ruled the two men, never identified, did not intelligently waive their rights.

Mr. Barnett contended the men did, in front of witnesses, but the court ruling remained and the men were acquitted.

Mr. Felton was asked if the confession was his entire case.

"We had nothing else. Those men said they did it, and we got most of the money back. What more should we need?"

In Twin Falls, officers are required to identify themselves to a suspect, and before any questions are asked, the suspect is presented a card with the constitutional rights printed in bold letters.

"Do you understand these rights?" the officer will ask.

Often a suspect does, and says so. The officers then ask him questions. If a suspect does not understand, the officer must get an arrest warrant and make sure the suspect is represented by an attorney following the arrest.

Does it tie the hands of the officer? "You bet," Mr. Barnett says. Law officers throughout the state will agree.

Many times a law officer succeeds in his questioning by keeping the suspect off balance, or afraid of what is facing him.

"I've never touched a defendant with my hands while I've questioned him," Mr. Barnett said. He said this did not include cases where force was necessary to subdue the suspect.

"Officers in my command do not use threats against any suspect," he added.

But police do have their ways. A strong, steely stare, non-committal grunts, charges, charges and more charges.

"We know you were in that house, we've got proof." The suspect is easily rattled, and often confesses when he knows the jig is up.

"Professionals are harder to reach than others, and they are the ones that give us the most trouble. They often get the most breaks in court, and do society the most damage," Mr. Barnett said.

The professional knows his rights about as well as any attorney. It takes a lot to break a professional down, if ever, and then most of the police effort is lost when the court rules certain evidence is not admissible.

An example can be a man arrested on a charge of burglary. A stolen chain saw is found in his car.

Police have all kinds of circumstantial evidence against the suspect — footprints found in the dirt, lack of a good alibi by the suspect, the chain saw complete with serial number, plus a defendant's past history at this type of activity.

But do police have enough to go to court on? Doubtful. The evidence all adds up, but it is a toss of the coin if the man will be found guilty or acquitted before a 12-man jury.

The confession can add a lot, often it is not allowed to.

But a confession can work a dual purpose. If not admitted into court, or if the prosecutor can anticipate this, he will see if the defendant's lawyer will get the defendant to plead guilty to the charge, or a slightly lesser charge, such as second degree burglary or possession of stolen items.

The defense attorney may not know what kind of case the prosecutor has got. Acting in the best interests of his client, the attorney may suggest a guilty plea to a reduced charge, or often to even the same charge.

This is not the case of two attorneys pulling shady work. If it can be done this way, it is a considerable saving to the taxpayer, and the prosecutor gets what he is after, a conviction.

The case is closed, and for a time there is one less felon society has to worry about.

In this reporter's experience of watching cases throughout the state, only five men have been acquitted in jury trials out of more than 40 tried. The charges ranged from escape to murder.

In one case, four men were charged with jumping from a prison truck and running.

Three were tried together, another at a later date. The three were found guilty, the other was acquitted. The charges did not vary, the cases were prosecuted in the same manner, the defense was the same, by the defense attorney.

It is impossible to determine what a jury will do.

But it can be stated that a defendant is given every possible chance before he goes into that jury trial. Miranda and Escobedo are rulings that guarantee this.

Venus Seen As Veritable "Hell Hole"

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Venus is a veritable "hell hole," scientists said Monday in reporting results of Mariner 5's sweep past the planet last Thursday.

They said a visitor equipped for vision in the hot dense atmosphere would be able to see all around the globe—even see the back of his head as a shimmering image on the horizon—because the atmosphere is so dense it never escapes but travels around and around the globe.

The unaided human eye could not penetrate the cloudy atmosphere.

Dr. Von R. Eshleman, Stanford University physicist, told a news conference at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory that this trapping of light causes the night side of Venus to glow and that the planet's ancient name of Lucifer "is indeed correct."

Bending of light rays in the dense atmosphere would make a visitor feel that he was in a hole, Eshleman said, and the extreme heat—reported as more than 500 degrees Fahrenheit at the surface—"make Venus not only hell but a hell hole," he added.

Other scientists said their findings from data radioed from the 540-pound Mariner 5 during its sweep within 2,500 miles of the planet agreed generally with those reported after the Soviet Venus 4 parachuted an 842 pound capsule to the surface last Wednesday.

Mariner 5's electronic probing showed no oxygen and no radiation belt like that which surrounds Earth.

The Russians said the atmosphere appears to be almost entirely carbon dioxide.

A Youth Is Dead

Another one is dead. He didn't want to die. Army Spec. 4 Clayton A. Martin, Burley, died in action against the enemy near the Cambodian border in South Vietnam. He was 23.
His is not the only area death in that war. It is another to be added to the staggering toll in that terrible conflict. By mentioning the death of Spec. 4 Martin we are not neglecting the deaths of those other brave men who have given their lives in the defense of their country's ideals.
But the death of Spec. 4 Martin makes it all the more apparent that there is a war going on. We deplore this waste of human life, this waste of our country's most valuable resource.
But we also recognize the need. Many have died before to protect America. Many will die in years to come.
Spec. 4 Martin leaves behind a young son and daughter. They will be taken care of by a grateful America and a grateful community.
But to his relatives, the loss cannot be measured, either in words or deeds. Army Spec. 4 Martin is gone. He fought the Viet Cong since last March, then he fought for his life beginning Sept. 4 when he was wounded. He lost that battle last week in a Japan Army hospital.
Now he will be returned and buried. We do not look forward to the next death.

About Politics

Prominent political figures increasingly express concern at the growing number of young people who are not committed to either political party.
These independents are people who find neither party attractive. It is frequently said, and their existence in large numbers constitutes a threat of America's two party system. They could become a negative third party without slogan, candidate or program—a party dedicated to the principle that political activity is venal or boring or futile—one critic recently said.
Both Republicans and Democrats have something to fear from this growing number of young people who are either indifferent or alienated. The two-party system is so important a part of the American tradition of government that any threat to it must be regarded with apprehension.
One has only to consider the multi-party republics of Europe with the tenuous holds of their governments on power to conclude that the American system, with its faults, is a more stable and responsible one.
But if there is growing disaffection with the two American parties, whose fault is it but the parties' themselves?
For years their platforms have been largely identical, which left voters to choose only between personalities. Even in 1964, when the Republicans offered what they called a choice, not an echo, it became more and more apparent as the campaign went along that the choice was not as clearly drawn as it had at first seemed.
How can the parties combat the trend away from commitment? They can revitalize their organizations. They can make it mean something to belong to a party by giving their members something useful to do between campaigns.
They can, above all, devise meaningful positions on the issues that consist of something more than mere laudatory hot air by the incumbents and criticism without option by the outsiders.

WASHINGTON — This is, if you will, a love letter to my readers — from Falls River, Mass.—to St. Louis—to Santa Cruz, Calif. They have reminded me of the tax-writing members of Congress that in this land of minority pressure groups there is also something called the people's bloc.
Democratic leaders in Congress have admitted that President Johnson's proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge is dead for this year. It is probably dead, period. It is now clear, at least, that unless the Administration comes up either with a program for drastic reductions in federal expenditures or incorporates reforms in its tax proposal Congress will sit on its hands.
And most of the credit goes to those wonderful readers of mine.
In several columns, I chided them on their indifference to the legislative process. I urged that it was time to turn off the television set and sit down and write letters to their Representatives and Senators protesting another tax on the plain citizen while privileged groups such as the oil and gas industry enjoyed million-dollar-making loopholes.

They responded with what can only be called an avalanche of mail. From offices all over Capitol Hill came the wry acknowledgement that constituencies were up in arms over the proposed tax increase. Rep. Dominick Daniels, D-N. J., introduced a bill to reduce the 27 1/2 per cent oil and gas depletion allowance to 15 per cent "as a direct result," he said, of letters from readers of this column. Reps

James Burke, D-Mass., Roy Taylor, D-V. C., and Ken Hechler, D-W. Va., all demanded that each-tax loopholes be closed.
Earlier, Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., introduced a comprehensive tax reform bill that would end loopholes in deductions in a dozen other areas. And the House Democratic Study Group offered its own reform package, similar to those dropped into the hopper by Reuss and Daniels.
More than 100 readers wrote me personally, some enclosing copies of letters they had dispatched to their Congressmen and all reporting that they had written such letters. Since it has been estimated that less than 5 per cent of the public take the trouble to announce a stand on a given issue, this means that more than 2,000 letters found their way to Capitol Hill, and it worked. Not because one lone columnist raised the roof, but because thousands of citizens took enough interest in the management of their government to inform their representatives in that government of their feelings. The campaign was utterly unorganized. There were no paid committee chairmen or press agents or form letters. No lobbyists with fat expense accounts prowled the Capitol-cloakrooms—twisting legislative arms. It was the country's real bosses telling off their hired hands.

More than anything else, the campaign was responsible. None of the readers from whom I've heard necessarily rejected the need for some kind of a tax increase. What they demanded was that the administration abolish some of the inequities of the tax system before heaping another burden on the average taxpayer — as long as the rich paid their share. They were crying out against an attempt to perpetuate a scandalous situation whereby some oil millionaires pay no taxes at all.
Bless you, readers all. You have lighted a candle instead of cursing the dark.

Drinking—A Family Setting

WASHINGTON — A government-sponsored study on alcoholism has just been released and some of the recommendations are bound to cause quite a flurry in the United States.
The study said that it should be national policy to adapt realistically to a predominantly "drinking society." It is believed that if you made alcoholic beverages available to children, there would be less drinking than if you repressed them.
Having lived in France for a long time, I'm not sure the suggestions will produce the hoped-for results. Children in France drink wine at a very early age, and the French have one of the largest alcoholism problems in the world. I recall that in the Calvados, where the best apple brandy is made, the teachers once protested because mothers were giving their children a shot of brandy in the morning and the kids were staggering all over the roads on their way to school.

Even if the study is correct, the big question is "How do you promote drinking in a family setting?"

Cracked Skin

Q—The ends of my thumbs crack and bleed. Changes of weather or location make no difference. Ointments have been used without success. What would you suggest?
A—Since there are several possible causes, no single treatment will benefit all persons with this rather common condition. The skin of your thumbs may be unusually thick or abnormally thin. Exposure to oils, strong soaps or some substance to which you are allergic may be the cause. Aging, with its attendant hardening of the arteries, may also be a factor. In some persons a diet deficient in protein or vitamins is the cause.
If soothing ointments, such as Lassar's paste, do not help you, you should cover the cracked skin with an adhesive bandage but, most important, have your doctor find the cause and eliminate it.
Q—Can one have scoliosis without torticollis? What causes these conditions? Is there any cure?
A—Scoliosis is an S-shaped curvature of the spine and torticollis is wryneck. It is possible—in fact usual—to have one of these conditions without the other. Scoliosis may be caused by poliomyelitis, muscular dystrophy or poor posture in childhood. Mild degrees require no treatment. If the condition is recognized during childhood it can be corrected by the wearing of a spinal brace or body cast.
Torticollis may be caused by an injury to the neck muscles on one side at birth. The injured muscles develop tough scar tissue which contracts and pulls the head toward the affected side. The treatment is surgical removal of the scar tissue. Spasmodic wryneck developing later in life is another matter. Some persons with this condition are helped by an operation in which

Men In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If U.S. military action in Vietnam were morally wrong—as some congressmen, professors and marchers assert—this "wrongdoing" would be expected to show up in high rates of mental illness among U.S. troops on the spot.
Men with consciences worry when they do wrong. Their mental health worsens. Some have breakdowns. Many find they are not working up to par. The people with mental worries fill a good many of the beds in hospitals in peace and war.
Since most bad eggs—and even men with low IQs and low education—are culled out in the selection process for the U.S. military forces—what we have in the U.S. Army in Vietnam is a good cross-section of American young men from average homes where moral standards have been taught. Moral unfitness is one reason for rejecting draftees and volunteers.
As a result of this fitness criteria, the young American soldiers in Vietnam are men with consciences in good working condition. Clergymen in South Vietnam have talked to us in that nation about this, and mention that in the U.S. troops fighting this war there is an unusually high moral average.
Certainly, there are some rotten apples—as there are here at home. But the average of good men is high. The question then is, how are their consciences taking the war? What do the figures show about mental illness among U.S. Army troops in South Vietnam?
During World War II, 23 per cent of all cases evacuated medically were evacuated for psychiatric reasons. The percentage in Vietnam has been only a fourth of that—6 per cent.
In fact, a medical report on Vietnam states that "the incidence of neuropsychiatric illness in U.S. Army troops in Vietnam

Notice by the advertisements, and the pictures of the best dressed people on TV and in newspaper illustrations, that clothing worn by men has changed style again.
Now this is nothing new, of course, but it couldn't have happened at a nicer time.
Why? Well, those big ties are back in style again. You know, the wide ones. They are replacing the narrow type we men have been wearing for quite a spell now.
This gives me break number one. I have a closet full of those big ties. Checks, stripes and all and I'm taking them down to the cleaner and having them made to look like new.
So, see, I have ties in style with little expense.
And the sport coats? They are now down to two buttons from three buttons. Well, I have several three-button coats but also; back in the back of the closet, I have found a couple with two buttons.
So I'm back in style again and will not have to buy anything new. Now, if I could just get my womenfolk to live the same way I'd end up rich.
Rule is—never throw anything away, especially clothes.
THE GREAT LOVE
Dear Spectator,
To paraphrase, let me say, "Greater love hath no mother..." than that of Mrs. Leo Campeau.
The Campeau daughter was to be married that evening. She was worried, because her new satin wedding shoes hurt her feet.
So, unlike Cinderella, Mrs. Campeau SQUEEZED her feet into the dainty little shoes and wore them all day long to break them in for her daughter to wear that night at the wedding.
But the outcome was rather pathetic. That night the daughter decided the shoes still hurt, so she wore the shoes she had worn at the junior prom years ago.
I understand Mrs. Campeau hobbled through the wedding with feet so sore she could hardly wear her own shoes—and that she was still limping several days later.

Children Have Final Word On Play 'Invisible People'

What could make better sense than to present a children's play the way children think it ought to be?

That is what Beverly Sturgill, director of Community Children's Theatre, and her assistants thought this year as they begin planning "The Invisible People."

And, because of this, a unique new concept in set and costume design, casting and script has been employed for "The Invisible People."

Children at schools throughout Magic Valley were asked for ideas on how imaginary friends and an invisible village would look.

The two leading imaginary friends in the actual script are an older man and a teen-age boy. When sending letters to the children of the area, the ages of the two imaginary friends, Glöpp and Nubbins, were purposely left out.

When the answers from students in grades one through seven came, they had pictured the two friends as a boy and a girl. So, the script has been changed by Children's Theatre officials. Cindy, the young girl in the play, now has three friends, Professor Glögg, a grownup that Cindy has invited to help with her homework, a boy named Pip, and a girl, Nubbins, who is the same age as Cindy.

Professor Glöpp also is mayor of the Invisible Village.

Mrs. Ross Ward, costume mistress, has adapted the children's drawings in creating costumes for the music play, and Mrs. Don Lambert has used the drawings in designing the Invisible Village.

Displays featuring costume and set designs made by the children are now on display at the Twin Falls Public Library. Mrs. Sturgill said the display will be there about 10 days and then will be taken to the various elementary schools in Twin Falls.

She said the ideas that have been adapted to the play were selected, not because of their beauty, but because of their creativity.

Those children receiving play designer awards will receive tickets to the Invisible People, which will be presented Nov. 10, 11, 17 and 18 at O'Leary Junior High School auditorium. Friday performances will be at 4:30 p.m., and Saturday performance at 10 a.m., 2 p.m., and 7:30 p.m.

Creative award ribbons and honorable mention ratings were also presented to many children among the 834 that submitted ideas.

"LOOK, MOM," says young Tamara Steel to her mother, Mrs. Lavinia Steel, as they look over the display of children's costume designs set up at the Twin Falls Public Library. Mrs. Steel fashioned the display from drawings submitted by many Magic Valley elementary school students. The drawings and other ideas presented by the children have been used in designing and producing "The Invisible People," which will be presented in November by the Community Children's Theatre group.

"Party With Shirley" Is Colorful

MILLBRAE, Calif. (AP) — It could have been an old-fashioned Fourth of July patriotic party—that party they had for Shirley Temple Black Monday night—except it cost a hundred bucks a head to get in.

There was red, white and blue everywhere, hanging from chandeliers, stuck on the walls and draped across the head table. The flowers on the tables were a mixture of the three colors.

Even the Navy was consulted about location of the American flag on the podium. The Navy confirmed the flag's position on the right was right.

A bunch of Mrs. Black's friends—she was referred to constantly as Shirley—threw "A Party With Shirley" at a Millbrae hotel near San Francisco International Airport in the heart of San Mateo County. That's the district Shirley seeks to represent in her race against nine others for Congress.

Behind her on the wall was her campaign slogan for the Nov. 14 special election in which voters will decide the successor to the late Congressman J. Arthur Younger: "Let us work to create, to build, to inspire."

The friends included such as singer Bing Crosby; S. Clark Beise, retired president of Bank of America; Charles Kendrick, chairman of the Schlage Lock Co., and Henry A. McKicking, chairman of Ampex, and Mrs. Bruce Bosley, wife of the San Francisco 49ers' center.

One of Shirley's former opponents, who withdrew in her favor last week, showed up with his wife. Former Rep. Robert Barry (R-N.Y.) was introduced to the 450 dinner guests—400 of them paid—as the man who "put party above person." Everyone applauded.

Crosby introduced Shirley and she made a 25-minute speech saying she wanted to go to Congress to represent the "good citizen. The forgotten man."

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Do you delay visiting the dentist?

If you do, you may be suffering from an anxiety complex.

A professor of oral surgery reported today that people who avoid dentists have an "anxiety that greatly exaggerates the actual pain experienced."

Dr. R. Quentin Royer, a professor at the University of Southern California at Los Angeles, presented his report to the annual meeting of the American Society of Oral Surgeons.

Shah's Crown Is Big Job For Jewelers

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The crown that the Shah of Iran will place on Empress Farah's head at his coronation Thursday was the biggest job ever undertaken by the famous Parisian jewelers Van Cleef and Arpels, Pierre Arpels said today.

"It is the first crown we have ever made," the jeweler said in an interview.

The Shah's crown was made in Tehran for his father in 1921 by a Russian refugee.

Shahbanou (Empress) Farah, the 29-year-old brunette beauty who was an obscure architecture student in Paris until she became the Shah's third wife eight years ago, will be the first woman ever to be crowned in a coronation ceremony in the 2,500-year history of the Persian monarchy.

The four-pound gold and platinum frame of her crown holds a 150 carat emerald, 499 diamonds, 36 rubies, 37 more emeralds and 105 pearls.

Crazy Rats

PROVO, Utah (AP)—Dr. Clark Gubler is driving rats crazy—in a research project aimed at studying the relation of vitamin B-1 deficiency to mental illness.

The Brigham Young University biochemist subjects rats to constant loud noises, makes them swim to the point of exhaustion, and puts them through an electronic maze he can alter electrically to cause acute frustration.

His study concerns brain metabolism—the utilization of vitamin B-1 thiamin in relation to psychological disorders.

He said research with mentally ill persons, particularly schizophrenics, shows enough correlation with thiamine deficiency to warrant further study.

Vietnamese Will Get Farm Goods

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department announced today it has agreed to provide South Vietnam an additional $4.6 million worth of farm products under the Food for Peace Program.

Commodities to be provided will include 2.4 million bushels of corn and about 4.1 million pounds of non-fat dry milk.

Vietnam will pay for the food with its local currency. Twenty per cent of such local currency will be set aside for U.S. use in that country and 80 per cent will be used as a grant for common defense.

President Discusses Anti-War Demonstrations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hordes of workmen moved a small mountain of trash from the Pentagon grounds and some congressmen suggested those who made the mess should get special attention from their draft boards.

These actions came Monday in the wake of the massive weekend antiwar protest at the Pentagon, which resulted in sporadic violence and 682 arrests.

President Johnson, without specifically referring to the mass demonstration, appeared to have it in mind when he said in a speech that the North Vietnamese "cling stubbornly to the belief that their aggression will be rewarded by our frustration, our impatience, our unwillingness to stay the course."

"It will not be so," the President assured the 18th Triennial Conference of the International Federation of Commercial, Clerical and Technical Workers.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey echoed this theme in a later talk to the National Defense Executive Reserve, saying the enemy's hopes rest in part on "our division, our weariness, our uncertainty."

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., of the House Armed Services Committee told his colleagues that draft cards turned in by the Pentagon protesters were being sent back to local boards for possible reappraisal.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, suggested meanwhile "a bill calling for automatic induction for persons who burn their draft cards," while Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, D-Ill., said Selective Service officials should look carefully at the draft status of the arrested demonstrators.

Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., said he believed antiwar demonstrators give aid and comfort to the enemy, but suggested if the other side is in the right, "What's wrong with aiding and comforting them?"

Brown also said, during a speech in Albuquerque, N.M., that if Republican Sen. Mark O. Hatfield were the GOP nominee for president he'd get Brown's backing. Hatfield, former Oregon governor, is a strong critic of current Vietnam policies.

Most of the 2,800 troops called in to defend the Pentagon departed Monday. But a contingent was left behind to help clean up the grounds of an estimated 16 tons of debris.

San Francisco Voters To Air Opinion On Vietnam

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The court ruled that Healey, who had said foreign policy was no concern of municipal voters, exceeded his authority in his new refusal to accept the issue for the ballot. In its final form, the question is labeled "Proposition P" and reads: "Shall it be the policy of the city and county of San Francisco that there be an immediate cease-fire and withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam so that the Vietnamese people can solve their own problems?—yes or no." If the initiative passes, it becomes the official stand of the city of San Francisco that the bombing of North Vietnam stop and U.S. troops come home. Benjamin Dreyfus, an attorney who represented proponents of a Vietnam vote, said the board of supervisors could urge Washington to act to carry out the policy. But no one has said he believes San Francisco voters could, by referendum, have the slightest effect on U.S. foreign policy. A municipal election "won't change foreign policy," Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said on a recent visit here. Dearborn, with a population of about 115,000, voted about 60-40 against the question, would you favor immediate withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam. The vote was held in the fall 1966 election.

Mayor's Race In Declo Draws Interest To Nov. 7

DECLO — Much interest has developed in the race for the mayor's post in the Declo election Nov. 7. Incumbent George Schrenk is challenged by Earl J. Darrington. Mr. Schrenk, who is maintenance supervisor at Simplot's in Heyburn, has lived in the Declo area all of his life and attended Declo schools. He served in the U.S. Navy in World War II and was recently elected as a trustee of the Declo High School Alumni Association. He is married to the former Nyla Kidd and the couple has two children. He has served nine years on the Declo Village Board, six of which were served as chairman of the board. "During the past eight years, much has been accomplished, such as the water system, main street repaved and the fire station built, through the first effort of all those serving on the board and of the members of the community," stated Schrenk. Mr. Darrington, who is the owner and manager of Mini-Cassia Dairy, has served two four-year terms as councilman. For 10 years he has been the judge for Declo Village. He is married to the former Loucille Richins and the couple has five children. Mr. Darrington is a member of the Kiwanis Club and during his term as president the new Kiwanis Park was begun. He has spent many hours on this project. If he is elected, Darrington expressed his desire to see the electric bills of the village put on a sound financial basis and additional street improvements completed. Four candidates are seeking

'Monkey Trial' Echo May Ring In Court

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — Echoes of Tennessee's famed "Monkey Trial" may ring this term in the Supreme Court if a parent of two teenagers and a red-haired former biology teacher have their way. They set the stage for a replay of the 1925 spectacle when they brought to the high court Monday a challenge to Arkansas' antievolution law. Mrs. Susan Epperson, 26, claimed she could not teach biology properly in Little Rock's Central High School without explaining the Darwinian concept of evolution. She is now a researcher at Columbia, Mo. The parent, H. H. Blanchard, who is assistant executive secretary of the Arkansas Education Association, claimed the 1928 Arkansas law prevents his school-aged children from being exposed to all scientific theory. Together they said the U.S. Constitution prohibits making freedom of inquiry subordinate to "the religious belief of the majority."

Playwright Taken From Courtroom

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Negro playwright LeRoi Jones was dragged handcuffed and screaming today from the courtroom where he is on trial on charges stemming from last July's racial rioting in Newark. Jones screamed he would not be judged by white men on the charges of illegal possession of pistols. The outburst came at the start of the second day of the trial moved here from Newark, where the charges were filed, July 14, when Negro violence exploded in that New Jersey city. Jones, an advocate of Negro separatism, was grabbed by court officers as he started to walk away from the defendants' table. He had asked for permission to make a statement. The judge told him any statement had to be made through his lawyer. The trial was switched to Morristown after Jones' lawyer complained that the playwright could not get a fair trial in Newark because of publicity surrounding the arrest.

Four Negro Ministers Are Jailed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Four Negro ministers were jailed today, beginning five-day sentences stemming from contempt convictions after a demonstration in 1963. Four others including Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., are expected to begin their terms in City Jail a week later. Officers boarded an airplane and arrested the Revs. Fred Shuttlesworth, Cincinnati, Ohio, and J. W. Hayes and T. L. Fisher, both of Birmingham, on their arrival at the city airport. Another Birmingham minister, the Rev. John T. Porter, was arrested as he walked to the airport to meet the other three. The arresting officers directed the ministers around a well-combed party and news conference that had been arranged and escorted them directly to jail. The Rev. Mr. Porter said, "There can be no apology for marching without a permit to dramatize the deplorable conditions which existed four years ago." King said he and three others arrested at the time will begin their jail terms next Monday. Joining him will be his brother, the Rev. A. D. Williams, King, Louisville, Ky.; the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, New York, and the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, Atlanta. The U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal of the case several weeks ago and Birmingham Circuit Judge William Barber upheld the original conviction.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, having loved my husband very much after living many happy years with him. Now, after a reasonable time, I am keeping company with a fine man who has been a widower for a like period. He also loved his wife very much and had a happy life with her. I love this man, and would like to spend my remaining years with him. The trouble is, that although I'm sure he loves me, too, he feels that by marrying again he would be disloyal to the memory of his first wife. Because of this we are losing precious time that we could be spending together.

What is your viewpoint on maintaining that a person can "fall in love" more than once in a lifetime and that after losing one's beloved mate, in time, the heart "heals" and there is no disloyalty in finding happiness with another?

BOISE—The Idaho Historical Auxiliary announces the publishing of "Historical Treasures From Idaho Kitchens," Nov. 13, 1967. This cookbook, with many treasured recipes, anecdotes, etiquette and household hints from a bygone era has been submitted by pioneer families and historical societies within the state of Idaho.

The auxiliary, a continuing service organization to the Idaho Historical Society, has chosen this fascinating project as a further aid to the society and to the history of Idaho. The past seven months have been spent by members of the auxiliary under the chairmanship of Mrs. Brad Shaw collecting and researching these recipes.

From the very beginning of the arrival of the white man into the area, recipes obviously borrowed from the Indians—wild carrot, fresh camas, moss and bitter root, to Basque stand-bys—Finnish, Welsh, Scottish and Oriental recipes are included in this book. . . to the very elegant tea cakes and punches served by the elegant high society along Warm Springs Avenue in Boise in the late 1890's . . . indeed the recipes are a true reflection of Idaho's history.

The Historical Auxiliary has assisted the society in many ways—offering assistance to them in the museum in the archives and pictures division, as well as in the entertaining of the legislature and various state organizations in the museum itself.

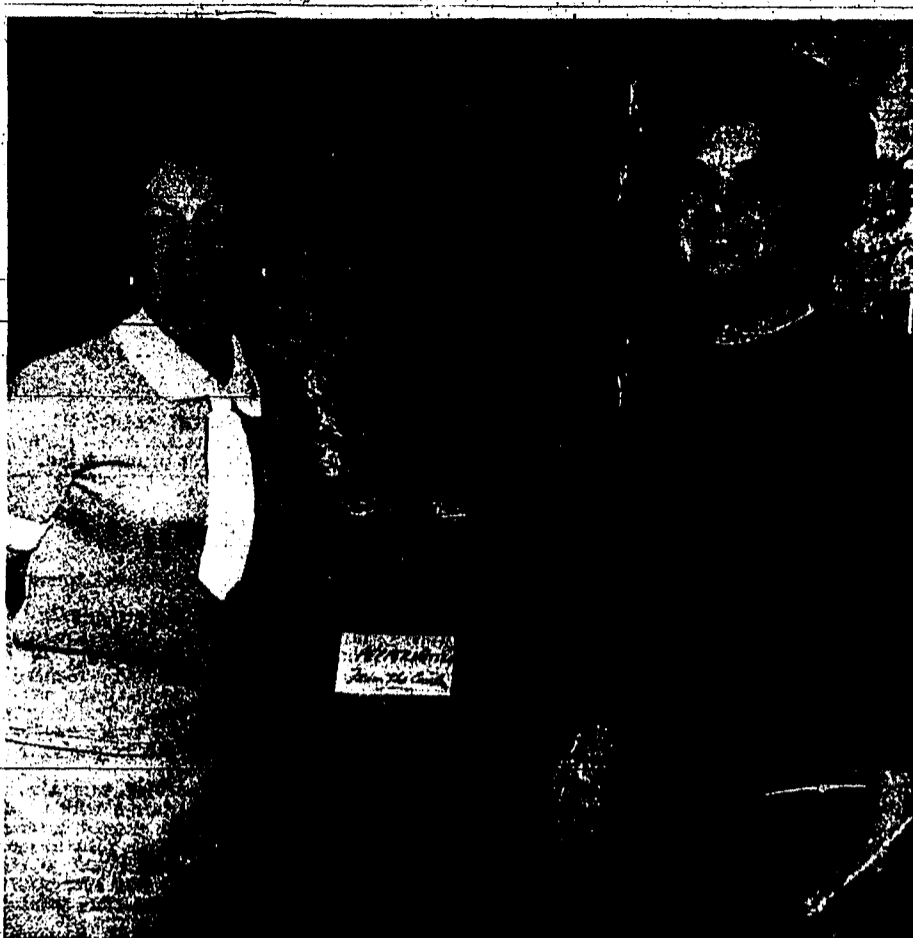

The auxiliary is responsible both financially and for the man-hours involved in three displays at the museum. Blacking's buffet, which was acquired intact and displayed authentically to the era of elegance of old Boise; the parlor display, featuring gowns of historic interest as well as authentic display of an 1890's parlor; and the auxiliary is now in the process of completing a kitchen of the same era.

Advance orders for the cookbook are taken by Mrs. Charles T. Mallory, 1503 Warm Springs Ave., Boise, 83702, or Box 2104, Boise.

'FRAGMENT' BIDS GUIDE TO SLAMS

If you want to use fragment bids, the first thing to do is to get together with your favorite partner or partners and agree on which ones to use.

You can get to even a higher level if you add things to them. North's four club call is a fragment bid.

Roger Stern of New York who made that five spade bid have never discussed it with Larry Rosler of Jersey City, but Roger and Larry are scientists and Roger felt sure that Larry would know what it meant.

Larry is not one of our fastest players, but after two or three minutes of thought he decided Roger was saying, "I have first round club control, but the heart suit may be wide open—and I have two potential heart losers."

After that, Larry bid six hearts to show the ace of that suit and for Roger went all the way to seven spades.

Of course, they might have gotten there with Blackwood. However, if Roger had used Blackwood and Larry had shown only one ace, Roger would not have known what to do.

CARD SENSE

The bidding has been: West North East South 1♦ Pass 1♠ ?

You, South, hold: ♠K2 ♠AQ10843 ♦KJ82 ♣6

A-bid one heart. This is better than a double because you are poorly prepared for spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION

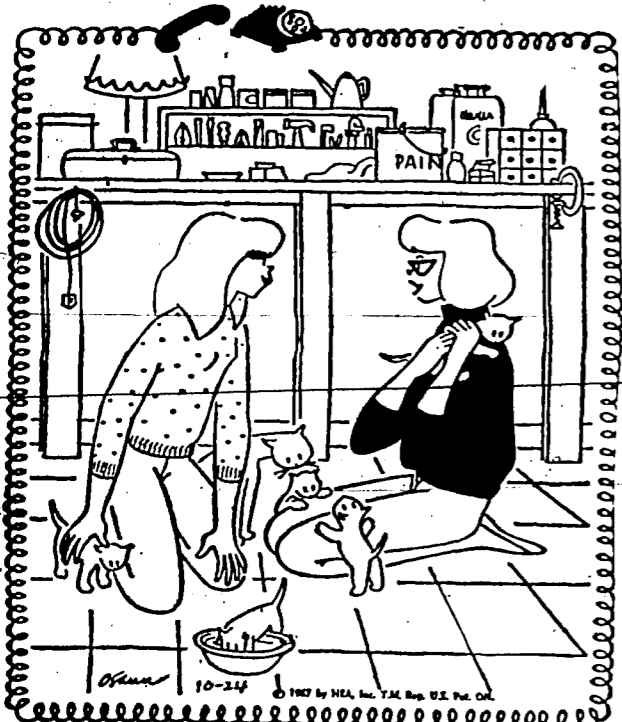

You bid one heart. West bids two clubs and North raises you to two hearts. What do you do now?

Sen. Hartke Dislikes Crusade In Asia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Vance Hartke said today Secretary of State Dean Rusk has committed the United States to a crusade in Asia. "We had better not embark upon...until a consensus has developed which is much larger than now exists in the country."

"We are the world's greatest power, no doubt of it," the Indiana Democrat and Vietnam war policy critic said.

"This administration plans to use that power to save Asia from communism, even if we must do so virtually single-handed as seems likely and without regard to the cost to our domestic society," he said.

"We stand ready to save a billion 'free Asians' from a threat most of them do not feel."

Hartke's speech was prepared for the Senate.

He said it was to answer Rusk's comments at an Oct. 12 news conference.

He said Rusk contended "Asian Communist imperialism, represented by one billion Chinese, will be able within the next few years, and with nuclear weapons, to threaten to impose communism on one billion free Asians."

"The Communists will be likely to succeed in this venture unless the United States assists the free nations of Asia by supplying American manpower and material and equating stability and progress in these nations with the national security of the United States."

Hartke asked: "First, if free Asia is threatened by Asian communism as suggested, then why is it that the most populous nations which are so threatened are not helping the United States in Vietnam with men and material? Specifically, why don't Japan, Indonesia, and India see the threat in Secretary Rusk's terms? Don't those three nations combined have more industry, more raw material, and more manpower than exists in all of mainland China?"

"Second, is it not true that the United States is paying directly, or indirectly, the full costs of the troops of Korea, Thailand, and the Philippines who are with us in Vietnam? Would they be willing to help us without subsidy?"

"Third, why is it that most of our NATO allies do not see the threat in the secretary's terms? Does the United States have a particular clairvoyance on this subject?"

"Fourth, do a majority of the members of the United Nations agree with the conclusion of the secretary that 'one of the most important historical facts in this postwar period has been that the almost unbelievable power of the United States has been harnessed to the simple notion of organizing the peace in the world? Does not the United Nations have a role in organizing the peace?"

"Fifth, how many troops does mainland China now have stationed outside her borders? Is that more or less than the number of Americans stationed in Asia? Does this disposition of troops suggest to the world community that Chinese communism is on the march?"

WORK WAS COMPLETED Monday on a project to burn excess oil from the surface of Interstate 80N, north of Heyburn. The five-mile stretch has been a driving hazard and the scene of many accidents since the interstate was completed last year. Dale Morgan, Burley, state maintenance foreman, said the department burned the excess oil about two years ago, but the oil has come back up through the mat. This is caused by heat and heavy traffic. When the department was burning the oil two months ago in the same area, some nearby residents reported the highway truck was on fire.

New Therapy

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A psychiatrist at Colorado State Hospital at Pueblo wants to try something new as therapy for mental patients—a pinball machine.

Dr. Ann Courtright has asked the state purchasing office to approve $50 rental for a pinball machine for two months.

State purchasing director Lew Middlemist sent the request Monday to institutions Director David A. Hamill, who said he thinks the idea is worth trying.

The machine will be set so that the player isn't charged. There won't be any pay-off either.

Elderly Get More Time For Medicare

Rudolph E. Menghini, District Manager of the Social Security in Twin Falls, reports that many older people are asking about the doctor bill insurance part of Medicare.

He said that since elderly people have been given another chance to sign up for this phase of the Medicare program they are wondering whether it is a good buy.

Mr. Menghini explained that persons 65 or older in 1965 could enroll for the voluntary medical insurance part of the program in any of the last three months of 1965 or the first five months of 1966. Those who reached 65 after 1965 have the three months before the month they were 65, that month and the three months thereafter to get this protection for themselves.

Those who have previously turned it down, Mr. Menghini said, now have the opportunity to reconsider their decisions. If they decide to sign up, they may do so during the last three months of 1967 and the first three months of 1968.

Medical insurance helps pay doctor bills and other medical services not covered under the hospital insurance part of Medicare. Services of doctors are covered no matter where they are received, Mr. Menghini noted. Laboratory tests and various other medical services and goods are covered.

Mr. Menghini said as far as costs are concerned the government and the individual share premiums equally. He said this amount has been $3 monthly and should continue at least through March, 1968.

He noted, however, that studies are under way to determine if a rate increase will be necessary.

UFO's Might Be Pranksters' Work

MACON, Ga. (AP) — A rash of unidentified flying objects reported last week and over the weekend in middle Georgia may have been the work of pranksters, a Georgia Bureau of Investigation agent said Monday.

Lights were placed inside blue plastic bags and sometimes in colored balloons which were sent aloft, according to Lt. H. B. Sturlin.
