Campaign Ends, Polls Open

Several weeks of heated campaigning for 11 candidates seeking office Tuesday in the Twin Falls city council election came to an end at noon Tuesday and voters began determining the results of the effort.

City Clerk Constance Lohser said the city election officials anticipate a heavy vote because more than 5,000 persons are registered and most of these have registered specifically for this election.

Polls in the five voting precincts remain open until 8 p.m. Tuesday with several of the larger precincts being divided into two groups of election officials to handle the voters alphabetically, to conserve time.

Surveyor 6 Races Toward Landing On Moon's Face

By HOWARD BENEDETT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Surveyor 6 spacecraft raced today toward an intended soft-landing in a rugged area almost smack in the middle of the moon's visible face.

It planned touchdown in the Sinus Medii (Central Bay) considered a prime astronaut landing site despite its roughness. Surveyor 6 carried a television camera and a small automatic chemistry set to analyze the lunar soil.

The 2,223-pound mechanical marvel soared into space from Cape Kennedy at 2:39 a.m. (EST) today aboard an Altair-Contour rocket. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported early phases of the flight were near-perfect as Surveyor 6 started its 65-hour, 231,418-mile journey. Its sensors locked on the sun for guidance.

Launch officials reported tracking data showed the rocket had been very accurate in sending the spider-shaped craft into space and that only a minor firing of its midcourse motor later today would be required to place it on target.

If all goes well, the Surveyor will reach the moon about 7 p.m. Thursday. The launching was the second in a busy space week for the United States. On Sunday, the third application technology satellite was fired from the Cape into a stationary orbit over Brazil where it is to conduct experiments in communications, navigation and weather study.

Morning Election Hours Pass Without Incident In Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Morning hours passed without incident today in the two states electing governors and the many cities choosing mayors after campaigns that were often emotionally packed over race and Vietnam war issues.

Washington, D.C., where a morning snow squall, but voting nevertheless was heavy. An early turnout by housewives raised prospects for a heavy vote in the Boston race for mayor between a woman lawyer, best known for opposing busing of Negro children to white schools, and the secretary of state. The weather was clear and crisp.

Between Negro Democrat Richard B. Hatcher and white Republican Joseph Radigan was accompanied by racial tensions that focused national attention on the Indiana steel city. Election-eve court decisions were necessary to clear the way for the Gary election and for the use of National Guardsmen if necessary to insure peaceful balloting.

Liquid Explodes, Burns Farm Woman

FAIRFIELD — Mrs. Morris Stokes, 48, Hill City, is in critical condition at St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise, with burns received Monday night when her ranch home was destroyed by fire.

Mrs. Stokes was burned over 75 per cent of her body and her husband received third degree burns on his hands and other burns on his head when the liquid they were applying to the counter top in their kitchen exploded.

Sheriff Paul Cox said the liquid, which forms a hard finish when it dries, is highly inflammable and should be taken off the market. The couple was remodeling the kitchen and were applying the liquid when it exploded and it seemed as if the "air" throughout the house exploded into flames.

His wife fell into the flames while she was trying to get out of the house. Mr. Stokes not her out of the house, wrapped her in blankets and drove to a telephone at the Hill City Store.

He called Sheriff Cox and the Fairfield Volunteer Fire Department, then brought his wife into Fairfield where Sheriff Cox took her to Gooding Memorial hospital.

After treatment there, the injured woman and her husband were both taken by ambulance to Boise. It was not believed Mr. Stokes' burns were extensive enough to require hospitalization.

Revision Of Speed Limits In T. F. Is Tentatively Approved By City Council

Recommendations from the Twin Falls Highway Advisory Board were tentatively approved by the City Council Monday night as it revised speed limits on main highways leading into the city.

Following presentation of a plan by the Department of Highways district engineer at the last city meeting, the highway advisory group approved this with some minor changes. Their recommendations called for limiting all present 25-mile-per-hour limits to 35-miles-per-hour with the exception of the downtown area controlled by traffic lights.

State recommended increases from 25 to 35-miles-per-hour were backed by several blocks on Blue Lakes Boulevard North, Kimberly Road and Addison Avenue West, in the proposal of the highway advisory board.

Magic Valley To Elect 88 City Candidates

By LORAYNE SMITH
Magic Valley Editor
Tuesday is the day for the "city folks" in Magic Valley as registered voters in 31 incorporated towns join other Idaho residents in placing the people to direct their municipal business for the next two years.

While it is often said that rural interests in Idaho have more than adequate influence in the state legislature, on Tuesday, at least, the city voter can not blame the outcome on his "country cousin," as only qualified residents who live inside city limits may vote.

In most of the other four towns, the incumbents are being opposed in their bids for reelection. In Paul and Ingerman the only race is for mayor. Excluding Twin Falls, there have been few if any issues raised, with candidates in all

Heavy Fighting Reported In Vietnam's Central Highlands

SAIGON (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported today in South Vietnam's jungled central highlands and along the coastal lowlands. It could signal the start of new dry season offensives by the Communists in the two areas.

Troops of South Korea's White Horse Division reported killing 113 North Vietnamese in fighting Monday and today near the division base headquarters in the lowlands 205 miles northeast of Saigon. Korean casualties were reported light.

In a series of sharp clashes in the central highlands 300 miles north of Saigon, 20 American paratroopers and 18 North Vietnamese troops were killed. The units of the U.S. 11th Airborne Brigade also reported 27 men wounded.

Monday and flew through heavy Communist defenses to give North Vietnam's heartland its heaviest pounding in a week. The American raiders attacked the sprawling Gia Thung military storage area three miles northeast of the center of Hanoi for the first time in the war, shot down two MIG17s during a strike on the Kep airfield 38 miles northeast of Hanoi, and attacked a vehicle repair plant nine miles north of Hanoi and the Hanoi transformer station for the first time since last May.

Nice To Be Here

We trust all Magic Valley registered voters marked their ballots for the candidates of their choice in the various city elections and we hope they will be able to do the same thing when the general elections roll around next year.

But State Department of Law Enforcement officials warn that unless motorists and pedestrians stop killing themselves on Idaho highways, some voters will not be here to get the job done. Records indicate right now that Idaho appears to be headed for a new all-time record for traffic fatalities in a single year.

Last Sunday the statewide records showed fatalities were running six ninths of the total for the same date in the year 1962, the state's worst traffic fatality year when 272 were killed.

On Nov. 4, 1962 a total of 233 persons had lost their lives in Idaho traffic accidents, compared to 235 on the same date this year. And there is the possibility the count so far this year may be 236, with an accident death near McCall still not determined as whether it is to be counted as a traffic death. Comparing monthly traffic totals for 1962 and this year, department records show eight fewer persons

WASHINGTON — It is a tough hawk about the Vietnamese War these days, not because the peaceniks mess up our cities with orange peels and beer cans, but because the South Vietnam government continues to take such a casual attitude toward the war. I respectfully call attention to a statement by an official of the Saigon regime in which he attempted to explain the government's rejection of general mobilization. It seems that an all-out effort is impractical because of the logistical and training problems it would create. This should rank with one of the more preposterous political statements of the 20th Century. The characters who run South Vietnam have had six years to prepare for general mobilization. If the country is not yet organized to wage total warfare, why can't help wondering when on earth it will dawn on

A new law to become effective Jan. 1 will lower the draft age from 20 to 18 years and will curtail all types of deferments, including some of those given for academic, religious and professional reasons. In addition, those who have served their time in the armed forces — three years for enlisted men and four years for officers — will be subject to recall for a year. Big deal. Nor am I impressed by Saigon's assurance that a major effort will be made to eliminate deferments purchased by rich merchants and politicians for their kinfolk. Official South Vietnam statistics show that two out of three 20-year-olds have been getting deferments, a curious state of affairs for a country in which almost every village has suffered from the violent attentions of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops. Moreover, Saigon apparently has no plans to take the profit out of the war for the speculators and businessmen. There is no talk of an excess profits tax, joy of wages and price controls. No, moves have been made against the rich men's secret bank accounts in Hong Kong and Geneva. Thou has been quoted as saying that South Vietnam's "sense of pride" would not permit the country to continue to allow young men to evade the draft. Thou it seems, also fears that if Saigon continues to receive more troops and money from the U.S. "we will lose our sovereignty and become a colony." His fear almost surely is groundless, but it is a fear that naturally besets a politician interested in his own financial future. Both American and foreign critics of the American role in the war have long maintained that the South Vietnamese are indifferent to their own defense. Unfortunately, these claims are not an air of validity by Saigon's perfidious posture, especially when compared with that of North Vietnam, which has been on a war footing for several years, with young men conscripted for the duration. In the end, of course, it will be up to the South Vietnamese themselves to answer these critics. It is, after all, their country, not ours, and the United States already has given the Saigon politicians too much time to decide whether they cherish freedom enough to fight for it. The Good Samaritans trying to put out a fire in his neighbor's house can be excused for his impatience if the neighbor dallies too long at the local pool hall.

WAYNE BRANDSTADT, M.D.

A Wiser Course

The case of young Carl Towner has attracted nationwide attention. Carl was suspended from North Olmsted Junior High School in that Cleveland suburb for refusing to trim his collar-length hair to an acceptable length.

Although he began keeping up his school work under a private tutor hired by his father, when he continued to refuse to return to the school and abide by its hair regulation, he was sent to the county juvenile detention home.

He was released the next day, but not before letters poured into the city's newspapers praising the boy and denouncing the principal, school board and juvenile court judge involved.

Admittedly, it takes a whole of a lot of money for a 14-year-old to stand up to the massed weight of adult authority, even if he has the moral support of his equally long-haired father. Admittedly, detention is a serious mark to put on a boy's record. But what the letter writers overlooked was the fact that Carl was sent to jail not because of his hair but because he was violating state law by not attending an accredited school.

MR. SPECTATOR Prescription For The Boss

Consistently work evenings, weekends and holidays; never let personal considerations interfere with work. Never delegate responsibility to subordinates; always arrange out of town meetings so travel can be performed at night. Never refuse invitations to business or social gatherings, and accept telephone calls during lunch and in the evening.

These are the rules for one of the most exclusive clubs in society. It is a club few want to join, but toward which many executives are unconsciously aiming. It is called the coronary club.

Business and industrial leaders were warned by a London medical society that the tensions and critical decisions which form so important a part of their professional lives demand greater care of their physical and mental health.

Getting away from it all was the most prevalent advice handed a meeting of 700 British business officials by a panel of doctors specializing in "the health of the British business executive," in the first symposium devoted to the busy businessman ever held in England.

The medical adviser to a leading industry gave this prescription to the "higher echelon medical men."

A minimum of four weeks annual vacation, with at least three of them taken consecutively, and periodic short holidays to relax from the build-up of daily anxieties. One-week vacations do little good, he said, because it takes that long for even a well-balanced person to relax from the daily routine and begin to derive some benefit from the change of pace.

This is good advice. Many lives are affected by the decisions of men at the top.

Youth: A Sense Of Being Able

WASHINGTON (AP) — This country is going through a kind of convulsion over the war, although all Americans were appalled, unhappy and gloomy critics when they began to bog down, like this one.

Some of the public disagreement over the Vietnam war can be blamed perhaps for some of this year's lazy performance in Congress where the war has consumed much of the time, thinking and talking.

For instance, the youth who felt frustrated, undisciplined, or ignored. As the idea of progress and participation in them grew, frustrated young people could feel freer to take part in them.

For many of them the shouting, cursing and defiance of college authority may have been the frantic, pitiful cry for recognition by classmates, for some identity of their own, a deep-seated protest against parental authority or authority in general.

This seems like a reasonable explanation since so many of the campus protests have been brainless. Then came the two Negro extremists, Stokely Carmichael and H. Rap Brown. They didn't have thought-out plans or programs.

Their chief weapon was the big mouth, shouting "Black Power" and calling for violence. They found a responsive audience among Negroes who felt frustrated by their dilapidated economic condition and by white indifference.

This also opened the door for Negro criminals who were just waiting for a chance or an excuse to perform. Increasingly Negro riots spread across the country.

As it turned out, these riots were mostly temper tantrums on a vast scale. The slim Negroes did not make war on white-although that may be next in line-but concentrated on destroying their own area in a city.

Meanwhile more and more Negroes were being added to the national confusion about the war—since most of them in 1964 had approved Johnson's waging it if he thought necessary—by criticizing the government's handling of it.

Much of this no doubt is the result of deep reflection. Some of it probably has its roots in political expedience since a lot of the voters back home are unhappy with the war.

Osteoporosis

Q — What are the symptoms of osteoporosis? Is it inherited? Is there any cure? A — In mild cases there are no symptoms. When the disease is advanced there may be spontaneous fracture of the involved bones, usually a vertebra and, as a result, some deformity. This is often the first indication of osteoporosis or demineralization of the bones.

When a vertebra collapses there may or may not be severe pain. Because the victim often has an exaggerated idea of the seriousness of this condition he may demand immobilization in a brace or cast for a prolonged period. Unnecessary this causes an atrophy of disuse in the bones and may aggravate the condition.

The disease is frequently seen in women who are in or past the menopause. It may also be caused by a calcium deficiency, or sedentary habits. The only hereditary forms — osteogenesis imperfecta and Ehlers-Danlos syndrome — are diseases of children.

In women who are past 50, female hormones, fluorides and calcium salts are used to treat this disease. These measures should be supplemented by a program of gradually increasing exercise.

Q — Are osteoarthritis and osteoporosis similar? Are they very painful? A — There are many diseases beginning with osteo which means bone. They are unrelated and often painful.

Q — What is myasthenia gravis? What causes it? What is the treatment? A — This is a deficiency disease in which the body lacks acetylcholine, the chemical needed to make the muscles contract. Weakness and easy fatigability are the chief symptoms. Although the underlying cause is not known, infectious, emotional stress, alcohol, loss of sleep and menstruation may aggravate or trigger an attack. Spontaneous remissions often occur and this makes it difficult to evaluate the results of treatment.

Neostigmine and pyridostigmine will control but will not cure the disease. Many patients have been markedly improved by removal of the thymus. In some victims who do not respond to the usual drugs or the operation, hydrocortisone gives good results.

Q — In a recent column you said that chilling the abdomen would aggravate colitis. Would this include drinking ice-cold beverages and eating ice cream? A — Yes. In persons with a very sensitive colon, eating and drinking very cold things will cause cramps and diarrhea if they are taken rapidly and in quantity.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Elation Deflated

WASHINGTON — What can possibly come out of the thickening tangle in the Middle East? This government is prepared to say. Even for the Israelis and their warmest supporters the mood of elation that went with the swift Israeli victory in the war of last June has been deflated.

Like the burned-out Egyptian tanks and half-tracks in the Sinai Desert hope for a peaceful future seems dark and immovable. The current mood of hope that for the Israelis had blossomed over a moderate Arab leader now seems certainly shattered.

King Hussein of Jordan is coming to Washington with a brief case stuffed with promises past, present, broken, and slightly cracked. The announced reason for his visit is to deliver an address at Georgetown University following discussion at the United Nations in New York. But the real objective is a meeting with President Johnson to talk turkey about Arab relations with the United States and Israel.

Hussein is coming to this country following a series of conferences with heads of state and government of Western Europe. And while it is clear under wraps the assurance he got from President Charles de Gaulle of France, according to Jordanian sources, is the king's ace in the hole.

Giving the De Gaulle assurance added weight is the word to Hussein from an American source, which he was in Paris. He was told that in Paris the States would not provide the F-104 fighter-bombers long in the discussion stage. This message came as the State Department announced that arms sales to the Middle East would be resumed. On the approved list were Israel, Morocco, Libya, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and Tunisia. The five Arab states will get mostly replacement parts while Israel is supposed to receive Sky Hawks obligated prior to the June war. The F-104s for Jordan are still in the discreet State Department pipeline in suspension.

As they began their talk in Elysee Palace, De Gaulle reminded the young king that France had put an embargo on the shipment of arms to all the belligerents in the Arab-Israeli war. But, the crafty De Gaulle said in what he indicated, this would not necessarily keep you from obtaining MiGs and My-4s. These are the most advanced fighter and bomber types flying in French arms sales around the world.

To settle the conquered territories and absorb the Arab population will be for Israel an enormously costly undertaking. The peak of victory must seem at this moment to be Dead Sea fruits.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I read a letter in your column signed "P.K." which means "Preacher's Kid," and it sure made me mad. She said she didn't want to tell people that she was a preacher's kid because she didn't want to be treated any different. As a matter of fact, she sounded like she was ashamed.

Well, I have news for her, Abby, whether she likes it or not she is "branded," so to speak. But she has the wrong idea. If she knew what a privilege it is to be a preacher's kid, she would be telling everyone about it, instead of hiding it.

Abby, I know what it's like to be a preacher's kid because I am one, and I never felt that people treated me any different because of it, and I've always had plenty of friends.

Maybe this girl's problem is not with her daddy, but with herself. I've got the best daddy in the world, and I thank God that he's a preacher. I wouldn't want him to be anything else.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very serious problem and you are the only person I can ask for help. I think I have a venereal disease, and don't know what to do about it. I noticed it about a month ago, but wasn't sure what it was. I'm still not sure, but I know that something is wrong.

I can't go to our family doctor because I am too ashamed and embarrassed. Besides, I'm afraid he will tell my parents. I don't know where to turn, Abby, but I know I have to do something about this for my own good.

Any help you can give me in your column will be very much appreciated. Thank you.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: You can go to your family doctor and be sure that he will treat you and not betray your confidence. If you doubt it, then telephone your local health department. (Look in the yellow pages under "Government Offices," city and county.) Tell them you want to see a doctor, and why. I urge you to act at once! Your health, and the health of those around you, is at stake.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please inform your readers that when a woman becomes a widow she does not suddenly become "Mrs. Jane Doe." She remains "Mrs. John Somesbody."

I lost my husband a few months ago, and so many of my well-meaning (but ignorant) friends have started to address their letters to "Mrs. Jane Doe."

It's bad enough to lose one's husband without being stripped of his name. Please print this, and sign it please.

MRS. "HIS NAME"

DEAR ABBY: This is for the "P.K." who said that as soon as kids found out she was a preacher's kid, they didn't want her for a friend.

I am not a preacher's kid, but I know a few, and I think I know their problem. They are so worried that people will think they are "godly goodies" that they go to extremes to act just the opposite, and turn out to be the wildest, pushiest kids around. (Especially the girls.)

Preacher's kids should just

Jackie Tours Royal Palace Of Cambodia

By GEORGE MCARTHUR PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy toured the ornate royal palace of Cambodia today, then standing there under a gilded parasol in the tropical sun gingerly fed bananas and sugar cane to two sacred elephants.

Escorted by Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the widow of President Kennedy paid a courtesy visit to the prince's mother Sisowath Kossamak who is a "symbol of monarchy" in this nation's complicated court etiquette.

The visit to the palace with its spiral roofs, ornate golden decorations and brightly painted state rooms was a field day for photographers who have been waiting to catch Mrs. Kennedy against the colorful Cambodian backgrounds.

Standing on the palace balcony beside her, the prince yelled down at the swarming photographers to give the elephants room, and said, "You might upset them."

The prince, whose press is daily spiced with accusations of American "criminal imperialism," again put aside such sentiments in a gesture of goodwill toward the late president's memory.

Senate Probe Turning To New Disorder

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate probes, whose investigation of urban rioting dealt first with a Texas campus uprising, turn next to a disorder near two predominantly Negro colleges in Nashville, Tenn.

The Nashville Mayor Beverly Briley was scheduled as the first witness as the Senate investigations subcommittee renewed today its hearings.

The rioting in the vicinity of Pink University and Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial University broke out in April shortly after Nashville's march by Black Power firebrand Stokely Carmichael, former chairman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC).

The Nashville riot, marked by shooting, looting and burning, was linked to SNCC activities by city Police Capt. John A. Sorace in testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee last August.

The investigations subcommittee, in four days of hearings on a gun battle last May between Houston police and students at Texas Southern University, already were told the riot was preceded by agitation by SNCC members.

Sorace testified before the Judiciary Committee at its hearings on a bill to make it a federal crime to go from one state to another with intent to incite a riot.

The House passed the bill last summer, but the Judiciary Committee has taken no action on it.

Sorace said about 90 per cent of the SNCC membership in Nashville was made up of people from out of town.

Radar Is For Birds At University

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Radar is for the birds at the University of Colorado.

Dr. Warren L. Flock is tracking migration of birds on radar, hoping to learn more about the possible role of radar in reducing the danger of airplane-bird collisions.

Flock, an electrical engineer, said the research eventually may provide a basis for predicting bird migrations and guiding planes over or around large flocks of birds.

He said the Air Force spends about $10 million a year repairing aircraft damaged in collisions with birds. He said in 1965, 75 jet engines—costing $130,000 apiece—had to be replaced because of bird strikes.

There have been numerous serious accidents because of birds.

The wounded youth, Boyd Heyrend, 19, Pocatello, was in serious condition in a Pocatello hospital.

Officers said the shooting occurred as the Heyrend youth was riding in a car on a Pocatello street. They said Brown was in a car following the Heyrend vehicle.

A Column for Sports-Fans

By Bob Reese

Like the going rough and tough? Then you're a candidate for one of the most rugged assignments in all sports — pro football's "Suicide Squad."

All teams have them. Usually they are not regulars. They may be rookies bucking for a regular spot, or guys who hope to be ferocious blockers or tacklers.

They are the players who go down under the punts and kickoffs and try to get their man.

When the game numbers, the squad blocking for their kick returners.

What makes the job suicidal... especially late in the season, when they often run on muddy or ice-hard fields... is that anything happens at top speed. A Suicide Squad member hits hard. He expects to hurt a little, but he'll also get the satisfaction of taking his own best shot... and performing football's toughest job... When the going is tough is a good time to make sure your car is ready to do its job... and that's a job we do best. For topflight service and the right parts that mean dependable performance, bring your car to...

Military Parade Ends Soviet Celebration

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union climaxed its celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution today with its semiannual parade of military might through Red Square. But Western military experts spotted only four new weapons—all missiles—in the hour-long parade.

The Western experts said the new weapons included one huge intercontinental rocket at the end of the review before Lenin's tomb, one intermediate or medium-range missile, one ground-to-ground tactical missile and one navy missile.

Soviet commentators used the word "new" only once, saying a three-stage intercontinental rocket was powered by a "new, highly efficient type of propellant." But no details were given.

One intercontinental rocket displayed could be "used for orbital purposes," Moscow Television said, but such a rocket with claimed orbital capacity had been displayed in the May Day parade in 1966. The assertion was made then, and repeated today, that such rockets cannot be shot down.

The official accounts threw no light on whether the Soviet Union is testing an orbital bomb system, as U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Friday. It is during the two and a half years since the unveiling of the orbital rocket, there has been no mention here of its being tried out in any way.

Official accounts of the parade today repeated the boast that the mammoth Soviet rockets—the biggest is about 116 feet long—"can deliver nuclear warheads of tremendous power." It was also claimed that "no other army in the world has such warheads."

Moscow Television's commentator called attention to "an unusual special warhead" on one rocket which he said could destroy a large group of enemy planes in the air at a great distance from the Soviet Union.

The parade was presided by his usual address from the Soviet defense minister, Marshal Andrei A. Grechko. As usual, he attacked the United States for its part in the Vietnam war, but in general his tone was milder than usual. He also made one accusation of aggression against Israel, but said nothing about Communist China.

Soviet and foreign Communist leaders on Lenin's tomb were hata and coats but did not have to bundle up since the temperature on the crisp, clear day was in the 40s.

Grechko warned the Soviet people to "increase their vigilance, to be always ready to defend the Socialist Fatherland."

The Soviet army and navy, he said, are ready "at any minute" to defend the gains of the Bolshevik Revolution. He said the anti-Communist forces of the world have nothing but "hatred and rage" for the successes of the Soviet state.

He rebuked the United States in his 10-minute speech for "insolent meddling" in the affairs of other countries and declared: "The imperialists of the U.S.A. and their allies are widening the piratical war in Vietnam." He said the war is causing "deep alarm."

Greetings from President Johnson were published in Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, as part of a two-page spread of messages from Communist and non-Communist leaders.
