

London Economists Feel Yankee Dollar Will Stand

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Devaluation of the British pound a week ago left the American dollar exposed to a "gold rush" attack by an invisible empire of international speculators and possibly some exploiters of national hoards.

But after a week of heavy assault on the dollar through its golden shield, economists in London are convinced Uncle Sam's hard money will prevail.

London financial writers, almost to a man, see a tall, spectral figure in the Paris Elysee Palace as the villain of the piece, but this view is not shared everywhere. The United States officially does not blame President De Gaulle.

In Washington the managing director of the International Monetary Fund, Pierre-Paul Schweltzer, rejected the idea of a De Gaulle plot against the dollar and went on to say in an interview: "I do not believe at all that the devaluation of the pound can have any effect in weakening the dollar."

Schweltzer and others note that Washington has powerful weapons to counter the persistent though occasionally frenzied attack. The assault came in a week of the biggest gold rush in the history of the world's bullion markets.

More than a quarter billion dollars in gold was estimated to have changed hands through the London market alone. The buyers: Oil-rich Arab sheiks, professional speculators and, according to some reports, banks of nations anxious to unload dollar holdings.

For the moment at least the gold stays where it is in the vaults of Fort Knox and the six Western nations joined with the United States in the International Gold Pool. Buyers seldom see the actual metal. They deal instead in certificates of title.

The run on gold began in London, by far the biggest bullion market, Friday, Nov. 17—the day before the pound went from $2.80 to $2.60—in the general uncertainty over the future of sterling.

Although last Monday was a bank holiday in Britain, the run began in the other nations and continued without interruption through the week, often becoming a stampede.

By Thursday, bullion dealers said, even the central banks of some smaller nations were buying gold in the move to get out of paper money and into solidly.

How could this reflect on the dollar?

In two ways: 1. By draining off America's supply of gold and 2. By forcing up its price of $35 an ounce. The U.S. government is pledged to defend this price. President Johnson renewed that pledge minutes after the pound devaluation was announced.

Britain, Belgium, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Switzerland and the United States formed in 1962 the International Gold Pool, which is operated by the Bank of England, to maintain the stability of the price of gold at $35 an ounce plus 20 cents an ounce for freightage. The pool supplies whatever gold is needed to satisfy the demand.

The French suspended their role in this partnership in June when heavy demands for the metal were received in a previous British economic crisis.

The United States, which puts up 50 per cent of the pool's supply of gold, took over Franco's nine per cent share.

Thus 50 per cent of the gold formed out by the pool comes from Fort Knox.

The gold pool held the price stable at $35.10 1/2 throughout the week although it went through the ceiling by minor amounts two or three times in London and hit $35.20 at one time in Zurich, Switzerland.

The fear is that the supply of metal might dry up and then the price might burst through the ceiling, in effect devaluing the dollar.

The dollar, because of the pledged price, is tied to gold. If gold was suddenly to become worth $70 an ounce, the value of the dollar would have been cut in half in terms of gold.

It is just the move that President De Gaulle and his French ministers have been advocating since his news conference of February 1965. De Gaulle argued then that the world should return to the gold standard to restore discipline to international trading.

He said it was unjust that the dollar and the pound should be considered to be as good as gold in the settlement of international debts. This permitted Britain and the United States to run big deficits in their international accounts, mainly in the case of the United States, because of a foreign policy—the Vietnam war—policy. De Gaulle hearily opposed the dollar.

The Financial Times said it was fostered "by the unflagging attempts of the French government to undermine the position of the dollar." Peter Jenkins wrote in The Guardian, "a stream of malicious leaks timed to cause the maximum disruption came out of Paris all week."

The French government has strenuously denied this and the U.S. treasury said Thursday it did not believe France was behind the run.

If all countries had to settle their debts in gold, the United States hasn't got enough.

And it would mean that the United States would have to call off the Vietnam war, halt all its aid programs around the world and bar American businessmen from investing abroad. Even those who oppose the Vietnam conflict believe it would be a sad day for the world.

Many in London, including some officials, see De Gaulle's hand behind the gold rush. The authoritative weekly Economist said the rush into gold was helped along by a ruthless and skillful French campaign

WASHINGTON — I do not buy the nervous argument of some of our more frenetic "liberals" that Americans should have been ashamed to sit down to a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner when there is so much misery in the world. It is carrying a little far when the citizens of a country which has done more for the world's underprivileged than any other are begrudged a little gourmandizing fun.

Coming from New England, where the folks really know how to celebrate Thanksgiving, it has never occurred to me to ask whether I'd earned the right to dig into a groaning plate of white meat, sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce, dressing and sliced carrots and turnips. But since the sportsman has brought it up, I see no reason why Americans should feel guilty.

It seems to me it was right and proper that Americans should celebrate Thanksgiving Day joyously. By and large, we are a fortunate nation well endowed with the goods of the earth. Someone up there has been good to us, and it is only good manners to acknowledge our blessings by making merry over the vittles thus provided for us.

For those who question whether we are deserving, there is the answer: no nation has been so attentive to the needs of others. Foreign aid is not merely a pragmatic tool of foreign policy. It is also the gesture of a good neighbor who wants to share his good fortune. We have grown up to an awareness that wherever John Doe is in trouble, we have accepted his dictum that "No man is an island," that we are "involved in mankind." Besides, we are a people blessed — or cursed, perhaps — with a compulsion to make other people happy.

can-neck missed the moment when the turkey was put into the oven and the still excited several hours later when the bird was lifted out in all its golden-brown glory. What, in such homes, can be substituted for the moist, spicy aroma of the pumpkin pie and the pudding's flame that always leaps a little too high for maternal comfort?

The Poor Little Lambs

Beatniks and hippies are two different things, psychologists tell us. The beatnik rebels; the hippis withdraws. Some of each staked a claim to the East Village of Manhattan and the Haight-Ashbury district of San Francisco. Both are leaving both places, disillusioned.

So, too, the flower children of this generation encountered thorns. They are vacating Haight-Ashbury and East Village. There is a marked and significant difference between today's fugitives from reality and the generations of restless, frantic ones who preceded them: drugs. Today's escapees frequently seek refuge in chemistry.

They had their while of dope and sex and diet and depravity utterly free from moral restraint. But the authority they fled they now know they need. These few paragraphs do not purport to represent the final requiem for this cult which evolved from an atmosphere of permissiveness.

It should not be hard to count our blessings, but for those who woke up feeling grumpy there is the reminder that they can always join Walt Whitman and be grateful for "the midday sun, the impalpable air." Or echo another poet who sang about the season: "Some of us call it Autumn, and others call it God."

RAY CROMLEY

His Name Is Dodo

WASHINGTON — At this point, the most maddening thing about the Vietnam war is the apparent conviction among Ho Chi Minh and his advisers in North Vietnam that next year's election will change everything in their favor.

They are counting on two things. One is that President Johnson will be defeated in his bid for re-election, which is open to serious challenge no matter what the polls say. The other is that a Republican President would agree to negotiate on Hanoi's terms, which is utterly unrealistic.

It is no good arguing about whether Johnson can win in 1968, except to the gambler, Colonel Edward Bradley, who was fond of reminding folks that in any given horse race "they still have to run around the track." And it is not only ridiculous but insulting to the various Republican candidates to suggest that any one of them would surrender the American position.

The Sun Shone

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sun was shining, the crowds were cheering, and President John F. Kennedy was the most popular figure in America when he was shot to death four years ago in Dallas.

Nothing even remotely like this was heard from conservatives who either prefer Reagan now for the presidency or could support him if his first choice, Richard Nixon, fails in the early 1968 voting tests. The most surprising thing about NEA's inquiry was how little real knowledge of the affair seemed to have made its way around the political circuit in many of the states checked. Some political figures were unaware that Nolteger had told reporters anything about the case. These politicians saw it as a confrontation between Reagan and columnist Drew Pearson, who broke the first detailed story on the issue.

More Courses Are Needed At Rupert

RUPERT—Results of a surveyed special education in the County made by the University of Idaho were studied by school board members and school principals at the November school board meeting.

The high school principal Leigh Ingersoll told the group that the high school survey report indicated a need for more courses to be offered to freshmen and sophomores, expanding in some of the departments, and fewer classes for department heads.

Wayne Fagg, Washington Junior high school principal, reported that the survey of Junior high schools rated the music and math departments as good. It suggested additional courses on the Junior high school level also.

Also listed as needed in the Junior high schools were more counseling. Mr. Fagg said that two counselors visit the school once a week each.

Gene Snapp reported on the elementary survey which recommended adding a psychologist for the elementary grades, more instructional material, an adequate testing program and

Cambodian Aide Denies Report On Red Refugee

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—Chief of State Prince Norodom Sihanouk has again denied reports that his country has served as a refuge to Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces. And he pledged his country would resist any American intervention.

"Cambodia has never served as a sanctuary to Viet Cong or North Vietnamese forces," Sihanouk said in the mountain resort of Kirirom Friday.

One week ago Associated Press correspondents George McArthur and Horst Fann reported they had found a carefully camouflaged Viet Cong camp about four miles inside Cambodia from the South Vietnamese border.

"How can the Americans accuse us of being accomplices of the Viet Cong?" the prince asked Friday. "If we are accomplices, how is it that we allowed these journalists to investigate at will within our territory?"

The prince, however, declared that U.S. newsmen would never make their foot in Cambodia. He said the door is now closed "in all American journalists, no matter who they are."

Sammy Davis, Wife Agree To Separate

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Negro entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. says he has agreed to a trial separation in his seven-year interracial marriage to Swedish actress Mai Britt.

"I must admit it comes as a blow to me," Davis said at Las Vegas, Nev., after a spokesman announced the couple's decision Friday in Hollywood. "Mai told me she wanted a trial separation."

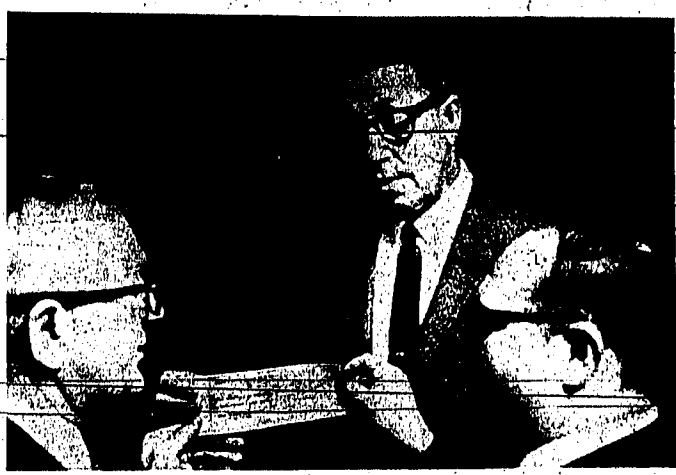

The couple, both converts to Judaism, have three children—a daughter, Tracey Hillovi, 6, and two adopted sons, Mark, 7, and Jeff, 4.

Two days before the announcement, the trial separation of singer Frank Sinatra and Mia Farrow was announced. Sinatra was best man when Davis and Miss Britt were married in Los Angeles on Nov. 13, 1960.

An usher at the wedding, actor Peter Lawford, since has been divorced from his wife, Pat.

"Certainly my not-being-home and traveling around so much has a great deal to do with Mai's decision," Davis said. "Our problems are a combination of a lot of things. But we hope to work it out somehow."

Davis is 40 and Miss Britt is 30.

Army Has Another Body Mixup

By The Associated Press

Even as a Tennessee soldier was reunited with his mother who had thought him killed in action in Vietnam, a California couple reported another Army mixup in bodies returned from Vietnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Adams of Chico, Calif., said they were told their son was killed in action and prepared for his funeral. Then they were told Thursday he had been relisted as missing in action.

A casket which the couple believed carried the body of their son, Spec. 5 John R. Adams, 21, arrived at the Oakland Army Terminal earlier this week. But the Army told Adams it was another soldier.

In Washington, the Pentagon said that young Adams, crew chief on a helicopter which was shot down by the enemy, was reported missing Nov. 9.

Subsequently, the Pentagon said, the remains of another soldier named Adams were mistakenly identified as those of John R. Adams and the Chico couple were told on Nov. 17 that their son had been killed.

An Army officer visited them to make arrangements to bring the body back to Chico and the parents planned the funeral for next week.

When the body was positively identified and proved not to be John R. Adams, his name was removed from the killed in action list and was relisted as missing in action, the Pentagon said.

The other soldier's family then was notified of his death.

"We're not even sure now it was our son who was shot down," Adams said in Chico. "It's like we've been through this twice. . . . We don't know whether to get our hopes up or not."

Pfc. John W. Guinn, 23, whose family had thought him dead and buried, was reunited Friday with his mother, Blanche Guinn, at the Tri-City Airport near his hometown of Elizabethton, Tenn.

"God bless you! God bless you! Oh, God bless you!" she said, over and over, as her son embraced her, then Mrs. Guinn fainted. Six younger brothers and sisters watched the reunion.

Mrs. Guinn's heartbreak—home for two weeks—has become that of Mrs. Samuel H. Tichenor of Louisville, Ky. It was her son, Pfc. Quinn W. Tichenor, 23, also serving in Vietnam, who was buried in Guinn's grave in the East Tennessee hills Tuesday along with a wristwatch intended for Guinn's Christmas.

Nagging doubts as to Guinn's death caused an uncle to seek a doublecheck. Then—the Army Wednesday confirmed through fingerprints that Guinn, indeed, was alive and Tichenor had been buried in his place.

Jerome Man Dies After Long Illness

JEROME—John William Sexton, age 77, died Friday night at his home after a lengthy illness.

He was born Jan. 31, 1900, in Fulton County, Ark. He married Mary Belle Meers in Payson, Okla., Oct. 1, 1911. They moved to Idaho in 1937 and settled in Jerome County where they farmed until 1956. They moved into Jerome in 1959.

John Sexton was a member of the United Pentecostal Church. In addition to his widow he is survived by four daughters, Mrs. G. F. (Opal) Wenner, American Falls; Mrs. Richard (Omadell) Houchns, Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. William (Oveda) White, of Honolulu, Hawaii, and Mrs. Fred (Ozell) Alberts, San Francisco; four sons, Randal Sexton, William Sexton and Robert Sexton, all of Jerome, and Roy Sexton of Hazelton; one brother, Francis Sexton, Rupert; four sisters, Mrs. Rosie Welborn and Mrs. Delva McMurry, both Meeker, Okla.; Mrs. Artie Grissom, Yakima, Wash., and Mrs. Myrtle Redding, Dale, Okla.; 17 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by one son in 1916.

Funeral services will be held at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday in the Home Funeral Chapel by Rev. A. W. Baker and Rev. H. L. Satterwhite. Concluding services will be at the Twin Falls Cemetery.

Friends may call at the chapel Monday afternoon and evening until the time of services Tuesday.

Rupert Pageant Set For Spring

RUPERT—The Miss Rupert Pageant will be held in the spring and will be sponsored by the Rupert Jaycees. It was announced after their regular membership meeting.

Rupert's Miss Idaho, Kristine Phillips, two Boise Lions Club members, and one Rupert Lions Club member attended the meeting and urged the club to sponsor the pageant.

In 1966 when Miss Phillips was crowned as Miss Rupert, the pageant was sponsored by the Jaycees. In previous years the Rupert Lion's Club had sponsored the event.

This year no pageant was held. Plans are being made by the Jaycees to sponsor it annually. Ted Gibbs was chosen chairman for next year's affair.

Cassia County Red Cross Fund Drive Starts Monday

BURLEY—Red Cross Fund Drive opens Monday throughout Cassia County and will run through Dec. 4, Gene Rhinbold, drive chairman announced.

County Red-Cross Chairman George Forscher noted that Cassia County is in danger of losing the Red Cross service unless the fund drive meets the quota. Services which the county residents could lose are blood program, services to military families, swimming lessons and first aid training.

The fund drive was started last spring and was called to a stop due to the Boy Scout Drive.

Chairmen for Oakley area are Mrs. Willard Crane, assisted by Mrs. W. B. Whitley, Mrs. Ray Anderson and Mrs. John Clark. In Albion Jay Nelson is being assisted by Albion Chamber of Commerce and Grange members. At Declo the Klwank Club members are being assisted by Joe Preston, James Leonard, Edna Kilde, Carl Osterhout, Joe Gillette and Harold Holbrook.

Burley business district is under the chairmanship of Dale Dammerell, assisting are Jay Haskell, Nick Crofts, Lloyd Duncan, Marvin Lewis and Glen Johnson.

Malta area will be contacted by Mr. Rhinbold and Mrs. Adelle Toews. Contacting professional people are members of the Burley Soroptimist Club with Vivien Odney, president.

It was suggested that institutions, businesses, be contacted as one unit for 100 per cent support of the Red Cross.

The total Cassia County Red Cross goal is $4,000 and during the spring a total of $1,000 was raised. This leaves a total of $3,000 to be raised in the one-week period.

Quotas for various areas of the county fund drive are $1,500, Burley business and residential;

Your Spine and Your Health

By Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr

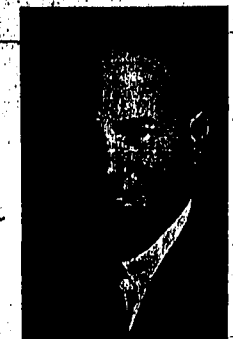

DISC INJURIES Statistics show that most cases of so-called "herniated," "ruptured," or "slipped" discs respond favorably and reasonably soon under competent chiropractic corrective care.

Each spinal disc consists of an outer envelope or capsule-of-gistle-like cartilage, shaped to conform-to-the-irregular surfaces of the vertebrae. It separates, and on inner core of soft, semifluid pulpy fiber.

When the disc is expanded, the capsule periton is subject to simultaneous pressure from above, below and within. The disc is thus weakened and vulnerable to injury. Such injury may arise from a blow, fall, or even a too sudden, voluntary movement. The result can be a rupture of the capsule and/or protrusion of its pulpy content. This is the condition known as the "herniated disc," which is not able anymore to perform its function as a cushion or shock absorber. As a result there is nerve irritation with ensuing pain upon the slightest movement and a greater rigidity of the spine.

There are only two possible correctives—surgery or chiropractic. The natural tendency of a protruding portion is to recede when conditions permit. The doctor of chiropractic is skilled in helping to bring about these favorable conditions by pressure, traction, gentle manipulation and other distinctive procedures.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to enlighten and illustrate the practice of scientific chiropractic, written by Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr, whose office is located at 717 Main Ave. W., Twin Falls, Tel. 732-0332.)

Rupert City Council Has Hearing Set

RUPERT—The Rupert City Council has set Dec. 5 as the date for the public hearing to consider any objections to the assessment roll for Local Improvement District 10. This is for the improvement of streets and alleys in the business district.

The assessment roll may be seen at the city office. Those with protests may file them at the city office before Dec. 5 and the city council will study them at their regular meeting that night.

Mayor Wendell Johnson announced a meeting of the county highway board and city officials which will be held Dec. 4. Construction of bridges on roads leading in to Rupert will be discussed.

Hanzel Chevrolet submitted the low bid of $2,028 for a pickup truck for the street department. Police Chief Ed Culver reported on a narcotics school which he attended in Boise. City Engineer Ron Kiebo told council members that the sewage plant handles 2,400,000 gallons on weekdays and that the amount drops on weekends to 1,420,000 gallons each day.

The council also approved a beer license for the Stag Pool Hall, installation of a street light on South F Street and the purchase of a cab for the back hoe.

Interest Is Aroused With Ho's Illness

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Reports that President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam may be ill have aroused unusually keen — but skeptical — interest among Washington officials because of their belief that for Hanoi the war is entering a crucial stage. If reports given President Johnson this week on the present shape of the war are clear indicators of the future, the Communist leadership in Vietnam probably will have to decide within a few months whether to accept defeat in the South or to expand the conflict and perhaps ask much greater help from Communist China and Russia.

Accounts given the President by his ambassador and the U.S. military commander, Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, portrayed the enemy for some months as suffering losses at a rate beyond his capacity to replace them.

As a result of revised intelligence estimates and reports of recent battle casualties the strength of Communist forces in the South was given as a little more than 240,000 men whereas previously it was put at around 285,000.

Bunker and Westmoreland presented a picture of victory in the making although the most Westmoreland would say about

HO CHI MINH
... president of North Vietnam is ill, a Norwegian newspaper reported Sunday. The report has caused speculation about a successor and future prosecution of the Vietnam war. (AP wirephoto)

... timing was that he might begin to turn more responsibilities over to the South Vietnamese and to begin reducing U.S. troops a little within two years.

Administration officials agree this is the rosier official account of the conflict in several years.

Top policy makers thus have come to the conclusion that Ho Chi Minh and his advisers face extremely difficult choices in the near future — the prospect that gives special emphasis to the condition of Ho's health.

GIs Honor Fallen Comrades In Dak To Fight

By EDWIN Q. WHITE
Associated Press Writer
DAK TO, Vietnam (AP) — GIs arranged five groups of empty boots on top of the highest hill at U.S. Fire Support Base 12 today.

Artillery barrages sounded from nearby gun positions. The wind whipped up red dust and coated the empty boots.

To boots represented the 90 men from a battalion of U.S. paratroopers who died in the battle of Dak To. Most of them were killed on Hill 875.

With the remaining men of five companies standing at attention, an officer read the names of the dead at a memorial service.

There were names like Smith, D'Agostino and Sanchez—men from the headquarters company, Alpha, Bravo, Charlie and Delta.

As the ceremony began, the guns fell silent.

Generals and other officers stood in silent rows.

The wind rustled the paper bearing the names and gently blowing red paper Christmas bells that had been hung in the door of a sandbagged bunker.

As the reading of the list ended, Maj. James Stevenson of Panama City, Fla., commander of the 2nd Battalion of the 173rd Airborne Brigade, stepped forward and looked at the boots and at the troops standing behind them.

"These men will live in our hearts forever," he said. "We will never forget their bravery and their devotion to duty."

He spoke of the battalion chaplain, Maj. Charles Walters of Jersey City, N.J., who died with his men on the slopes of Hill 875.

He also spoke of PFC. Carlos Lazada of the Bronx, N.Y., who wounded in a leg, picked up his machine gun to cover the movement of other paratroopers and died from enemy fire.

Lt. Gen. William Rosson, U.S. commander in the 2nd Corps Area, stepped forward and said: "There are five companies drawn up here this afternoon, yet there is a sixth, silent and invisible."

What do we say to these officers and men? We say thank you for this incomparable example of Americans. We say you have performed in the best tradition of the airborne. And finally we say well done, we salute you."

A squad of seven men raised their rifles and fired three volleys.

Nine Silver Stars were presented to men of the battalion for their valor in the battle.

Then a chaplain said: "May we hold high the torch passed to us by these men of courage and honor."

The memorial was over and the troops gathered on the hill for Catholic and Protestant religious services.

The empty boots were collected and taken away.

The artillery barrages began again.

Buhl Woman Dies After Long Illness

BUHL — Mrs. Ophelia Cox Watson, age 84, died Friday evening at a local nursing home following an extended illness.

She was born Feb. 3, 1883, at Ephraim, Colo., and was married to Horatio Cox on Dec. 5, 1900, in the LDS Temple in Mantle, Utah.

The couple came to Idaho in September, 1914, and settled in the Deep Creek area near Buhl where they farmed until he retired in 1944. They then resided at 230 11th Ave. N. in Buhl until 1951 when Mr. Cox died.

She later was married to I. E. Watson and resided in Twin Falls. She was a member of the LDS Church. Besides her husband, she is survived by five sons—Nils V. Cox and Clyde E. Cox, both Buhl; W. Reeves E. Cox, Jerome; J. Everett Cox, Wendell; and Dean B. Cox, Westminster, Calif., and three daughters, Mrs. J. W. (Millie) Rutherford, Brewster, Wash.; Mrs. E. B. (Martha) Talbot, Oxnard, Calif.; and Mrs. Robert (Mary) Ballou, Tempe, Ariz.

She is also survived by 34 grandchildren, 48 great grandchildren, one brother, three sisters and ten stepchildren. She was preceded in death by three sons and one grandson.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:00 p.m. Monday at the Buhl LDS Church, by Bishop Clyde E. Cox. Friends may call at the Albertson-Dickard Funeral Home Sunday from 1:00 p.m. until 8:00 p.m., and Monday until noon. Concluding rites will be at the Buhl Cemetery.

Fine Art Of Self Defense Practiced By Local Women

BY NORMA HERZINGER

Students in the local YWCA-sponsored judo classes are obviously not Boy Scouts, but they are getting prepared — prepared for encounters that fortunately rarely happen in our community.

Once each week a group of young women, coached by Guy Matsuoka and Wesley Dobbs, meet at the "Y" building to roll out the mats and learn the fine art of self defense. These gals, with a little more forethought than most of us, when finished with these classes will be able to basically defend themselves from that "it could never happen to me" situation.

In a community where the crime rate is relatively low, we often times do not think such protective measures are necessary, but the situation could arise at any time or any place. Anyone who faithfully watches television or reads the newspapers realizes it's the day-to-day activities that often snowball and in real life happen when it's least expected.

Women can be accosted while standing beside an automobile wondering what to do about a flat tire, walking home alone, by prowlers lurking around the house, in darkened movie theaters or by unexpected back seat passengers. One of the most common incidents for the single girl is that blind date that turns out to be a Simon Legree-type.

There are fellows, unfortunately, who will not take a firm "no" for an answer, and women often need protection against dangerous, or, more often, over-amorous companions.

Judo is definitely an art, and takes practice and more practice to be good at it. It is believed that the sport was brought to America by President Theodore Roosevelt who was so impressed when he first witnessed it that he imported a Japanese instructor from whom he took lessons.

Judo techniques enable a weak and small man or woman to overcome a strong person because they are based on scientific principles of leverage and balance. Strange as it may seem, one of the first things you are taught in a judo class is the proper way to fall.

Classes at the YWCA will be concluding shortly, but future classes will be conducted for women if enough interest is shown. Further information concerning the classes can be obtained by calling the YWCA office.

Delegates Give Parley Reports For Rebekahs

SHOSHONE — Mrs. Omer Shook and Mrs. A. G. Blawell, delegates to the Rebekah Assembly at Coeur d'Alene, reported at the recent meeting of Opal Rebekah Lodge.

Mrs. Dora Fries, noble grand, made appointments of the evening. Report was made that Mrs. Hazel Powell is in St. Benedict's Hospital. There were three hospital calls made last month, 33 home calls made and 25 cards sent.

Mrs. Bonnie Ray Webb reported food was taken to Gooding and from there went to the IOOF Home, Caldwell.

Ten members attended Friendship Night at Jerome Springs Lodge, and two attended the victory dinner party held at Gooding Lodge.

Mrs. Webb also reported there were five tables of cards played at the last card party. The group voted to hold a benefit event Dec. 4 named to the committee for the benefit were Mrs. Leonard Daugherty, Mrs. George Horn and Mrs. Clayton Pough.

Mrs. Floyd Silva Jr., past district deputy president, and Mrs. Delbert Gehrig, past district deputy, were escorted to the center of the floor and presented past district president jewels.

The next meeting is Tuesday, with a public card party to be held at 8 p.m. after lodge meeting.

Hostesses are Mrs. E. J. Shaw, Mrs. Helen, Mrs. Gehrig and Mrs. Pough. Officers will be nominated for the coming year during the business meeting that night.

Mrs. Daugherty served refreshments.

"Fun For Funds" Festival Set

GLENNIS FERRY—A "Fun for funds" fall festival will be offered by Victory Chapter No. 60, Order of Eastern Star, members Saturday at the Masonic Temple.

Lunch will be served at 11 a.m., according to Mrs. Marsh Hoast, publicity chairman.

Bazaar items will include many items desirable for Christmas giving, and there will be grab-bags and homemade candies.

Bringing the plans to culmination are Mrs. Lee-Frall, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Trip and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Larsen, appointed by Mrs. Dorothy Nichols, worthy matron.

Proceeds from the festival will be used to purchase new officers' chairs for the hall.

Donation Made By Buhl WOTM

BUHL—A donation was made to the Christmas Seal Foundation when members of Buhl Women of the Moose met for their regular meeting at the Moose Hall.

The smorgasbord to be served for Rangen, Inc., was discussed and approved.

Mrs. Tom Novacek, senior regent, complimented the committee sponsoring the hobo party for organizing such a successful family fun night. She also stated that more family projects should be promoted by the group.

It was announced that committee reports on publicity, library and membership would be due at the next meeting.

Mrs. Steve Foukal won a special prize. Drill practice was held before the meeting.

THREE WOMEN with outstanding records in the TOP's Pamper Club, Paul, were honored by members recently at a gathering at the Idaho Bank and Trust Conference Room, Paul. Mrs. Lois Pelton, left, lost 62½ pounds, under a doctor's care, for a three-month period; Mrs. Verlee Hall, center, lost 37½ pounds in a nine-month period, and Mrs. LaVern Farworn missed only one meeting during a nine-month period.

TOPS Members Honored For Weight Loss

PAUL — Mrs. Lois Pelton, Mrs. Verlee Hall and Mrs. LaVern Farworn were honored by members of the TOP's Pamper Club at the Paul Idaho Bank and Trust Conference Room.

Mrs. Pelton was honored as best weight loser for the past three months, with a loss of 62½ pounds.

Mrs. Hall was honored as best loser for the past nine months, losing 37½ pounds.

Mrs. Farworn was honored for having the best attendance the past nine months, with missing only one meeting.

Each were presented gifts. Also receiving gifts for weight loss were Mrs. Joy Young, Mrs. Geneva Durrant and Mrs. Hall.

Mrs. Lois Payne was crowned queen for best loser of the week. Members are planning contests with a Twin Falls group and Malta group.

Officers will be elected next week.

Annual Harvest Dinner Stated

HAGERMAN — Final plans were made for the annual harvest dinner set for Dec. 8 when the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Hagerman Methodist Church met recently.

The turkey dinner will be served from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at the church.

Mrs. Robert Tupper presented the lesson, "The Meaning of Thankful."

It was announced, items of clothing were needed to send to the Methodist Kindergarten in Rio Grande City, Tex. All types of children's clothing are needed with special need for play clothing, doll clothes and men's shirts which can be used as pajama tops and aprons.

These items should be brought to the church by Wednesday.

PAST MATRONS MEET

HAGERMAN—Mrs. Ed Neyman, Twin Falls, entertained the Hagerman Past Matrons at her home. Plans were made for a party honoring their husbands at the Hagerman hall early in December. The date will be announced later.

Three Members Installed In Candlelight Ceremony

The Twin Falls Jay-C-Ettes installed three new members in a candlelight ceremony directed by Mrs. JoAnn Wolfe.

Receiving membership pins were Mrs. Allen Shearer, Mrs. Carol Komloske and Mrs. Julie Wilson.

Guests: Mrs. Larne Whittle and Mrs. Sherry Errazier, were introduced by Mrs. Wolfe and Mrs. DeAnna Vollmer.

Mrs. Charlene Vollmer, interim vice president, was proclaimed president for the month. Mrs. Betty Grigg presented a program on parliamentary procedure.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Colleen Utley and Mrs. Sylvia Hoyt. Mrs. Utley gave the invocation and led the flag salute.

Mrs. Twyla-Mosemsmith and Mrs. DeAnna Vollmer received birthday cards from their secret pals. Mrs. Edna Waldram spoke on "To Me, Happiness Is..." and Peggy Morgan spoke on "What Patriotism Means to Me."

Reports were given under the direction of Mrs. Judy Steele. Mid-year convention reports were given by Mrs. Lou-Oyen and mid-year forum reports were given by those attending the convention.

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: My husband (Arnie) and I both work. Arnie drives 35 miles round trip to work every day, and I drive 20 in the opposite direction. Well, Arnie got one too many moving violations and he had his driver's license suspended for a year, so now I have to drive 65 miles to work and back every day. It keeps me on the run because we have children at home, but I am not complaining. Here is the problem:
 Arnie has come up with the idea of staying with one of the guys he works with. This co-worker (I'll call him Sammy) is divorced and swings pretty good—and there are always these cute single girls hanging around Sammy's apartment. I know my husband, and he wouldn't just sit around and twiddle his thumbs. Arnie says he doesn't want me to get worn out driving him, but if I'm not complaining why should he? Should I stick to my decision or not?
ARNIE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Stick to your decision. Tell Arnie you have had enough of his moving violations, without asking for other kinds. And if anyone is gonna get worn out it will be you.
Driving!

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem which comes up an often it isn't even funny, and almost everyone I know is guilty of it. This happens at my house, or when I'm at someone else's house.
 When my kids start acting up and doing things they know they shouldn't and I correct them, the friend (or relative) will butt in and say, "O, leave them alone. They aren't hurting anything. They're only kids. Relax and quit picking on them!" They say this right in front of the children and then what am I supposed to do?
ROPE'S-END

DEAR END: First I'll tell you what NOT to do. Don't let your children escape punishment they have coming just because relatives or friends are present. Tell those who attempt to interfere that your children NEED discipline, whether company is there or not, and their cooperation would be very much appreciated.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 10-year-old girl who works in a factory with both men and women. Much of my work consists of bending from the waist down to pick up parts. My problem is my parents won't allow me to wear slacks to work. They say slacks are indecent for a lady to wear.
 I give one-tenth of my pay check home each week, and most of my social activities center around the church, so you couldn't call me a rebellious person. I wouldn't wear slacks on the streets or anywhere excepting to work. What is your opinion of this?
ROCKFORD, O.

DEAR ROCKFORD: From your description of the kind of work you do, I think slacks would be appropriate. Be sure to get a ladylike fit, and don't try to stretch things too far.

Roast turkey and the beverage will be furnished by the Rebekah Lodge.

The evening will conclude with a social hour. Mrs. Roy Blahop and Mrs. Quary are in charge of arrangements.
 Officers for 1968 were nominated and 14 sick calls were reported.
 The program, presented by Mrs. Orlando Jacobson and Mrs. Ray Toner, concerned the first Thanksgiving.
 Mrs. Quary and Mrs. M. A. McCloud were in charge of the social hour.

Modern Art Slides Show

SHOSHONE—The Woman's Society of Christian Service met recently at the Methodist Church Fellowship Hall for a program, slides of modern art. Mrs. Hugh Keith and Mrs. Al. Egoradorf were program chairman.

Market Has Rise Despite Devaluation

By ED MORSE AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the devaluation of the British pound and other important events in the world of finance, the stock market last week staged its best rise since stocks made their 1967 peak on Sept. 25. It was the third straight week of resistance to the long slide — it lasted six weeks — from the September high. Last week brought the first solid advance — the biggest for any week since mid-September.

It was "the first meaningful rally since the downturn began in September," according to Newton D. Zinder of E.F. Hutton & Co. The Dow Jones Industrial average last week advanced 15.49 points to 877.00.

How much further will the recovery carry? Some analysts were quite optimistic about the chances for a solid year-end rally.

Zinder commented, however: "Upside progress seems likely to become more difficult as the list approaches what appears to be the top of its year's resistance in the 887-895 zone of the Dow Jones Industrial average."

The market week began with a jolting decline and considerable "scare selling" on weekend news that Britain had devalued the pound sterling to $2.40 from $2.80 and at the same time raised its bank rate to 8 percent from 6 1/2 percent. In Washington, the Federal Reserve Board hiked the discount rate to 4 1/2 percent from 4 percent.

On Tuesday the market had its best rally since June 6. Stocks rose even as major banks began raising their prime interest rate — the rate they charge to their biggest and best customers — to 6 percent from 5 1/2 percent.

After a day off for Thanksgiving celebration, the market advanced again on Friday. A huge rush to buy gold in international markets was unsettling President Johnson's avowed determination to defend the dollar. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week rose 4.2 to 314.9, its highest rise since the week ended Sept. 16 when it gained 5.2.

Of 1,602 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 797 rose and 805 fell. Volume for the four-day trading week was 46,723,070 shares compared with 51,120,020 for the full five-day week previous.

Bond prices fell sharply Monday after devaluation of the British pound and an increase in the U.S. discount rate but staged a comeback later in the week.

The recovery apparently was sparked by revival of hope that President Johnson's surtax proposal bill will be enacted before Congress adjourns, according to Wall Street bond houses. Price fluctuations in government bonds were particularly wide. Corporate bond prices were unchanged to a little better for the week.

Devaluation Of Pound Fails To Evoke Panic In America

By JACK LEFFLER AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP)—Devaluation of the British pound sent shock waves through the American business structure this past week. But there was no panic.

These developments came quickly: Stock and bond prices fell sharply in first trading after the devaluation, then staged a vigorous comeback that more than wiped out losses.

The Federal Reserve Board increased its discount rate to 4 1/2 percent from 4 percent.

Many banks boosted their prime rate—the interest they charge—the highest and most credit-worthy borrowers—to 6 percent from 5 1/2 percent.

Britain triggered turmoil in world financial markets by cutting the value of its pound to $2.40 from $2.80 since 1948.

At the same time, Britain hiked its official lending rate to 8 percent from 6 1/2 percent.

The Federal Reserve Board pumped new blood into its fragile economy. It hoped that devaluation would increase exports through lower costs to foreign buyers and decrease imports because foreign goods would be more expensive to Britons.

Higher interest rates are intended to draw more money to Britain.

The first American countermove was the Federal Reserve's increase in the discount rate. The Federal Reserve said its action was mainly precautionary and aimed at protecting the international value of the dollar by discouraging an outflow of dollars to the higher interest offered in Britain.

A result of the monetary developments was that Congress and President Johnson might get together on a reduction in government spending and the stalled proposal for a 10 percent income tax surcharge.

Rep. Mills, D-Ark., set a meeting of his House Ways and Means Committee for next Tuesday to consider a new administration proposal for cutting expenditures. The committee has backed an action on the tax bill until assured that spending will be reduced.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler told a news conference that prompt enactment of the tax increase would be the single most important action that could be taken to defend the dollar.

The Commerce Department reported that new orders for durable goods declined $700 million in October to $22.5 billion. The department said a substantial drop in new orders in the automotive industry, due to a strike, was offset by an increase in bookings for the aerospace industry.

Rupert Man, Age 79, Dies After Illness RUPERT — Willie Wesley Gibson, age 79, died Saturday morning at a local hospital of a lingering illness.

He was born July 24, 1888, in Dutch Mills Township, Ark. On Aug. 1, 1909, he married Della Haskin, at Farmington, Ark. They came to the Rupert area in 1918, and were the first since Mr. Gibson was a member of the First Pentecostal Church. He is survived by his widow Della Gibson; one son, Woodrow (Hoot) Gibson; one daughter, Mrs. Burman (Edith) Pomeroy, all of Rupert. He is also survived by two grandsons, James R. Gibson of Acapulco, two granddaughters, Mrs. R. E. (Minnie) Nibbet of Rupert, and Mrs. Mary Williams of Farmington, Ark. Surviving also are two grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

THE GRAY GRANITE tombstone which was taken from the grave of Lee Harvey Oswald in Fort Worth, Tex., Wednesday, was recovered Friday in a Bartlesville city park. Police did not disclose names of the persons who took the stone or the third party who turned it in to officers after receiving a promise of no prosecution. Examining the marker are Capt. Joe L. Glenn, left, and Lt. Charles Spencer, Bartlesville detectives. (AP wirephoto)

Woman Points To Magazine Item On Underground Press

Editor, Times-News: Although the Times-News is to be commended for not allowing the "Family Weekly" and its "objectionable" advertisement to be published this last week, it is rather frightening to think of the damage that could already be done with the one issue that was distributed. With an approximate circulation of 21,000 which the Times-News has many people of any age, who had $3.00 could send for the "objectionable" magazine.

In the December, 1967, issue of the American Opinion magazine, Gary Allen tells us about magazines and newspapers of this type, such as follows: "America's new underground press—an assortment of nearly forty Marxist newspapers carefully aimed at young people . . . most of them imbedded within the last two years, have now become an influential force among the nation's teenagers, with a paid circulation in excess of half a million, massive newsstand sales, and a national readership which may reach into the millions."

"Over fifty years ago Nikolai Lenin proclaimed that 'Youth will decide'!" "The Marxist transmission belt controlling the direction of today's 'youth-quake,' the underground press, has thus sought to promote the Communist program by seeking to develop in young people the idea that it is fashionable to knock America, their parents, and the police; to praise revolution and emulate revolutionaries; to promote contempt for our soldiers dying in the field in Vietnam; and, to experiment with sexual promiscuity, drugs, and perversion."

I feel very proud to be a citizen of the state of Idaho and the references made by Mr. Kelly to the state of Idaho and to the many companies such as Idaho Power Company who have been a very large contributor to the growth and stability of this fine state do not set well with me.

I feel that Mr. Kelly is a very fortunate person. He lives in an area of Idaho that is well served with many transportation systems. He lives very close to a major highway intersection, all of which lead out of the state. Perhaps he may realize his fortune and make use of one of these roads.

Zoning Case In Court At Hailey

HAILEY — Judge Thomas H. Pelton, Moscow, of Idaho's Second Judicial District, heard testimony in the case of Ketchum Livestock Co. vs. the City of Ketchum in the Blaine County court room.

The case grew out of an Ordinance passed Dec. 6, 1965, by the Ketchum City Council to annex certain lands contiguous to the then city limits. Included were some 300 acres belonging to the Ketchum Livestock Co.

Officers of the plaintiff company contended the land, which lies to the north of the old city limits, is used exclusively for agricultural purposes and receives no special benefits from being in the city limits.

Ketchum city officials testified the symmetry of the Municipality will be marred if the land in question is not included in the city limits.

Fourth District Judge Charles Scoggins disqualified himself to hear the case. Attorneys Parry, Robertson and Daly represent the plaintiff and attorneys Murphy and Boler the city.

Texas Team Uses Record Passing To Rip Utes 28-8

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Billy Stevens, Texas-El Paso's record-breaking passer, closed his college career with a run of completions Saturday in leading the Miners to a 28-8 football victory over sluggish Utah.

Stevens fired two touchdown passes for a career total of 51, breaking the NCAA record of 49 previously held by Jerry Rhyme of Tulsa. He also surpassed the NCAA mark of 1,040 offensive plays set by Virgil Carter of

TCU Edges Rice In Final Quarter 14-10

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Texas Christian struck for a sudden fourth quarter touchdown Saturday, then withstood a desperate Rice rally to gain a 14-10 Southwest Conference football victory.

Quarterback P. D. Shabay hit on a 63-yard scoring pass to Ross Montgomery to pull Texas Christian from behind and carry the Frogs to their fourth straight conference triumph.

The aerial chills came only moments after Rice had driven 60 yards for a touchdown that pushed the Owls out front 10-7. Lester Lehman slashed in from the one for the score.

The loss was the fifth straight for Rice and left its record at 3-5.

The Frogs, now 4-5 for the year, got the winning touchdown with 6:08 left in the game, but the game was by no means over.

Quarterback Robert Halley guided Rice from the Owl 34 to the TCU 10 in a frantic bid that stalled when Pat Walker spilled Halley for a nine-yard loss back to the 10.

Brigham Young University, Connecting on 23 of 41 throws for 249 yards against Utah's porous secondary, Stevens wound up with a career total of 428 completions on 642 attempts for 6,485 yards.

Accepts Bid

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The University of Texas at El Paso returned here Saturday night from its 28-8 conquest of Utah and immediately accepted a bid to play Mississippi in the Dec. 30 Sun Bowl.

The Miners, who finished the regular season with a 62-1 record, last played in the Sun Bowl at El Paso in 1963 and beat Texas Christian.

Mississippi accepted the bid last Monday. The Rebels beat Vanderbilt Saturday and have a 53-1 record with one game to play.

marks for passing attempts and yardage going into the game.

The game was only four minutes old when Stevens found Ron Jones with a 10-yard touchdown pass. Before the first period was over, Stevens hit Bob Wallace with an 11-yard scoring pass and Jerry Waddega kicked a 37-yard field goal to make it 17-0.

Waddles added a 38-yard field goal in the second period and Stevens continued to riddle Utah with passes, accumulating 151 yards by halftime.

Utah made its only touchdown with 38 seconds remaining as Charlie Smith scored on a one-yard run.

The victory gave Texas-El Paso, the probable host team in the Sun Bowl, a 62-1 mark. The loss was Utah's fifth straight and left the Utes with a 3-7 mark.

Colts Are Undefeated But Still Battling To Win Division Title

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Unitas is going great, the season is more than two-thirds gone, and Baltimore is unbeaten. But the Colts still are fighting for their lives in the National Football League's Coastal Division.

The Colts, 8-0-2, have only a one-half game lead over Los Angeles, which kept the pressure on the Colts with a 31-7 rout of Detroit on Thanksgiving Day. That handed the defense-slightly-tough Rams' record to 8-1-2 and put the Colts in a position of needing a victory or a tie against San Francisco Sunday to stay afloat.

The Colts, who beat the 49ers 41-7 at Baltimore earlier this season, are heavily favored to do it again in San Francisco. The Colts now have a string of 10 straight victories against the 49ers.

In the other NFL games on a trimmed-down Sunday schedule, Green Bay, 7-2-1, is at Chicago, 5-5; Washington, 4-4-2, is at Cleveland, 6-4; Philadelphia, 5-5, is at New York, 5-5; Minnesota, 2-6-2, is at Pittsburgh, 2-7-1, and Atlanta, 1-8-1, is at New Orleans, 1-9.

Only two games are scheduled in the American Football League, Boston, 3-7-1, at Houston, 5-4-1, and Buffalo, 3-7, at Miami, 1-8.

Unitas, the Colts' all-around thing quarterback, shares the League's No. 1 passer rating with Washington's Sonny Jurgensen, and is leading Baltimore in its quest of becoming the first unbeaten team in the league in 24 years. Willis Richardson of the Colts is the league's leading receiver.

The game is part of a television (CBS-TV) doubleheader to most of the country.

The Packers, with sub running backs Ben Wilson and Donny Anderson still filling in ably for injured Jim Grabowski and Elijah Pitts, could clinch the Central Division title with a victory at Chicago. The Bears, 2 1/2 games back, must win to keep Roger Brown and receiver Gary

Niarkos Wins Cap; Proud Clarion Fades

NEW YORK (AP) — Niarkos, an Argentine-bred 7-year-old — who had done his best running on grass courses — switched to a dirt track Saturday and won the $38,300 Gallant Fox Handicap at the Aqueduct race track with Kentucky Derby winner Proud Clarion out of the money.

Proud Clarion, 2-5 favorite with $314,270 wagered on him, out of a total pool of $586,502, wound up in sixth place, beaten 40 lengths as jockey Eddie Belmont brought Niarkos to the end of the 1 1/2 miles with a four-length advantage over Louis Rowan's Quicken Tree.

It was another 22 lengths back to Harry Gordon's Bol 'n Jac, third in the field of 10. Winston Guest's Psycho, a French-mare making her first start this year with French rider Jean DeJorge in the saddle, was a badly beaten last.

Niarkos was brought to this country in 1965 by Alie Reuben of the East House Farm. He won $37,895 for his sixth stakes success.

There was little to the race as Belmont sent Niarkos to the front immediately after the start and never was headed.

Parsons Defeats Richmond 23-0

FAIRFIELD, Iowa (AP) — Frank Antonini ran for two touchdowns as Parsons College routed the University of Richmond 23-0 Saturday in the football season finale — for, each school.

Antonini, who scored on 26 and two-yard jaunts, led the Wildcats' attack with 108 rushing yards.

Richmond got into Parsons territory only twice, the first time with a 51-yard push to the Wildcat 10, where a field goal attempt was deflected by Mark Schaeffer.

Early in the fourth period, the college scholarship services spiders steamed 76 yards before needed.

Linfield Placed On Probation

CALDWELL, Idaho (AP) — Linfield College was censured and placed on a year's probation Saturday by faculty athletic representatives of the Northwest Conference.

Representatives met at the College of Idaho campus and censured the McMinnville, Ore. school for providing "financial aid to a student exceeding the college scholarship services need."

Indiana Shocks Purdue 19-14 With Ground Game, Takes Rose Bowl Berth

CHICAGO (AP) — Indiana's Hoosiers officially were designated as the Big Ten's Rose Bowl representative Saturday, several hours after scoring a 19-14 victory over Purdue.

Commissioner Bill Rood took a telephone poll of conference Athletic Directors and Indiana,

Cole Finds Loophole For Bowl Bid

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Coach Murren Warmath, his emotions cooled after the Hoosiers' victory, said a loophole in the Big Ten championship pact should get to go to the Rose Bowl on a technicality.

Warmath's contention, which he posed to Minnesota Athletic Director Marsh Ryman, is that Minnesota went to the 1961 and 1962 Rose Bowl games as an independent because the Rose Bowl pact between the Big Ten and the Pacific 8 Conference was not in effect those years.

Technically, Warmath argued, Minnesota is in the same position as Indiana — which beat Purdue 19-14 Saturday to tie the Gophers and Berkeley for the conference title — and has never gone to the Rose Bowl under the pact between the two conferences.

However, Warmath admitted he didn't expect his argument to carry much weight in the vote by Big Ten athletic directors on who should represent the conference in Pasadena New Year's Day.

"I think we should file a protest," Warmath said to Ryman in the Gophers' dressing room Saturday. "Both times, we went to the Rose Bowl without the pact in effect. The present rule should not be in effect for us."

"But I'm sure the athletic directors will vote for Indiana," Ryman said. "If the vote is 10 to 1 (for Indiana), I don't think we can change that. If it is a tie vote, we might argue it."

It was obvious Warmath and his team wanted the Rose Bowl bid more than a share of the Big Ten championship. "I hope I never have a worse alternative, though," Warmath said.

"It's kind of a gloomy championship ballclub," Warmath added. "But we had our swing at it. We got this far and we thought Purdue could do something for us."

Tulsa Comes From Behind, Nips Houston

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Led by Mike Stripling's second-half passing attack, Tulsa came from behind Saturday to defeat 10th-ranked Houston, 22-13.

An intercepted pass and a recovered fumble set up two fourth-quarter touchdowns as Tulsa's offense pulled the favored Cougars back.

Stripling passed 33 yards to end Harry Wood for the go-ahead touchdown. Two minutes earlier he had gone one yard to score.

Tulsa's first score came on a field goal in the first quarter. Warren McVea, Houston's head running back, scored the Cougars' first touchdown by skirting right end for three yards. Paul Gipson dashed 17 yards for the other Houston score.

Abandoning its traditional passing game in the first half, Tulsa covered 63 yards on the ground in its first drive as Doug Wyatt booted a 32-yard field goal.

Glenn Dobbs III, son of the Tulsa coach, quarterbacked The Hurricane the entire first half and attempted only one pass.

In the second half, however, Stripling took over and completed 11 of 21 passes for 184 yards.

Coe Ellison, Tulsa fullback, ran for 51 yards to push his season total to 626, the highest total since 1952 for a Tulsa player.

The Indiana defensive stars were Ron Kazmarok, credited with 15 tackles, and Dave Kornowa, who made 11. Doug Curran and Brown Marks made nine apiece.

Cole Was New Weapon For Purdue Game

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — John Pont, the old Yale coach who brought football respectability back to Indiana, pulled a fast one Saturday to upset Purdue, the nation's No. 3 ranked team.

The last one was a burly fullback named Terry Cole, a senior who played most of the season in the shadow of sophomore stars Harry Gonso, John Isonbarger and Jado Butcher.

"We had worked on Cole going up the middle all week," Pont said. "We knew Purdue would be setting up its defense for our outside game."

It worked. Cole set a school record of 155 rushing yards, scored one touchdown and set up another.

"The kids just got mad to day," Pont chuckled in the dressing room after the game. "We knew Purdue was playing for the Rose Bowl instead of playing the Gophers."

The Minnesota loss was the only one in 10 games for Indiana this season. Last year the Hoosiers won only once in 10 starts. The Hoosiers' season record is the best since their only Big Ten championship team won nine and tied one in 1915.

Purdue Coach Jack Mollenkopf called the game "one of our most disappointing losses... we have to live with it a whole year."

It was the Hoosiers' first victory over Purdue in five years. Mollenkopf said the extent of a rib injury to his star halfback, Leroy Keyes, wouldn't be known until X-rays are made.

Keyes was injured in the first half but continued to play, seeing spot action on both offense and defense until a leg injury sent him to the bench for keeps in the fourth quarter.

"Indiana was more emotional than we were," Mollenkopf said. "We were not the second or third best in the country today — but I don't want to take anything away from Indiana."

Minnesota Grinds By Wisconsin And Into Share Of League Title

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota's grinding ball control punched out two third-quarter touchdowns and the Gophers withstood a late Wisconsin passing flurry to edge the Badgers 21-14 Saturday, claiming a share of the Big Ten football championship with Indiana and Purdue.

The bitter rivalry erupted into two short-lived brawls in the first two minutes. Both benches swept on the field once and isolated fights broke out among the players. The officials and coaching staffs quelled the fighting with offsetting personal fouls assessed.

Minnesota took an early 14-0 lead, and after Noel Jenke's pass interception, moved 33 yards in eight plays to make it 21-0.

Curt Wilson scored from one yard out as Minnesota ran 28 plays to Wisconsin's three in the third period.

The Badgers halted a Minnesota drive at the Wisconsin six midway through the third quarter and quickly struck 84 yards in seven plays. John Boyajian hit six straight passes, including a 51-yard scoring toss to Stu Voigt.

Boyajian then hit Dick Schumitsch for the conversion, trimming Minnesota's lead to 21-14.

Pass interceptions by Dennis Hink and Jenke — his third of the day — blunted Badger comeback attempts in the closing minutes.

Minnesota recovered a Wisconsin fumble on the game's first play from scrimmage, converted the break into a touchdown with only 3½ minutes gone and then fended off a Badger drive.

Minnesota also punched its way to the Wisconsin 28 early in the second period, but an errant pichout by Wilson cost the Gophers 13 yards and stymied the march.

Wisconsin then took the initiative, driving 26 and 21 yards after Gopher punts to set up field goals of 38 and 30 yards, respectively, by Tom Schinke.

Second-Ranked Tennessee Slips Past Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tennessee, ranked No. 2 in the nation, rode five pass interceptions to a 17-7 football victory over Kentucky Saturday, but had to fight for its life to preserve it.

The Kentucky defense, led by sophomore Dick Palmer put the damper on the vaunted Tennessee attack.

One of the Tennessee touchdowns and a field goal in the fourth period came after an interception of passes thrown by Wildcat quarterback Dave Blair.

The Vols went only 18 yards on the first score and moved 14 before the field goal.

Tennessee's only scoring drive came in the first period when the Vols moved 66 yards in six plays, capped by a 29-yard pass from Dewey Warren to Richmond Flowers.

Kentucky dominated the second period but lost the ball on downs on the Tennessee 32 in one drive and had an interception at the Tennessee 34 on another.

Two interceptions by Tennessee kept Kentucky in the hole in the third period but the Wildcat defensive unit saved the day for Wildcats, who finished their season with a 2-8 record—tying the worst mark in 30 years of Kentucky football.

With the Kentucky quarterback losing 34 yards on rushing plays, Kentucky gained 151 on the ground and 100 by passes to Tennessee's total of 194.

Kentucky's Dicky Lyons actually outran his entire team by gaining 165 yards on 20 carries.

FROM ALL ANGLES

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Sports Editor

With the basketball season opening next week there are a couple of things that fans should be exposed to — although they will have to wait until mid-February until they finally understand the rules. With the College of Southern Idaho a playing around, the first will figure more into that picture than high school although the players certainly are capable of running about the new law.

When it was announced last summer that the basketball rules committee had made the dunk shot illegal, few understood the true interpretation of the ruling. What the regulation says is that since the defensive hand is not allowed to interfere with the ball in the cylinder above the basket, the offensive player should similarly be restrained from guiding it. That sounds all right except . . .

What it means is that if any part of the ball is in that imaginary cylinder above the basket, it is offensive interference and the ball shall be blown immediately dead and awarded out of bounds to the opposing team.

Now you have to remember that a basketball is about nine and one-half inches in diameter. Therefore, if a player is shooting a layup, getting a rebound, or making a tip-up with his hand above the rim, he'd better be sure that hand never gets closer than 10 inches to the rim. That's going to make for a lot of tough calls for officials and a lot of hard feelings over the year.

Homer Williams, executive secretary of the Idaho Interscholastic Activities Association, said Idaho will follow a general consensus that if the ball is banked in off the board it will not constitute goal tending. At the same time he, and everyone, very well knows that once the rebounder crumple most shooters will enter that inviolate area because the basket bracket is only three and one-half inches wide and the ball will about have to be in the cylinder area before it finally leaves the shooter's hand.

The best way to remember it is this. Due to the width of the basket and the ball, it is impossible for anyone to touch the ball within a 40-inch circle of the rim while it is in that cylinder.

As usual it is a poor regulation that is bad for the simple reason that it makes enforcement very difficult. Each rule change of late has put more and more pressure on the officials just when crowds are becoming more and more surly. It is small wonder that we are getting fewer men to enter the officiating game and seeing some of the good veterans retiring at earlier than usual ages.

The other rule puts teeth into the five-second-and-jump-ball situation in the outcourt area. The offensive team must get it out of that area within five seconds. This will cut into a team's setting up an offensive pattern if they are forced.

It also leads us to believe that the high school and colleges will do everything possible to emulate the pro's ability to speed up a game short of installing the 30-second clock. It is ruining the sport because of it, too.

Let's check around the rumor circuit.

We understand that a prominent applicant for the Idaho State job is Tony Knap, now associated with the Canadian pro league but formerly the head man at Utah State. We believe that the ISU job will be filled exclusively by the president, Dr. Davis, who is an ex-Colorado University coach and interested in getting the ISU grid program moving on a much faster plane.

From the Boise area we hear that Ray Lew, an assistant under Lyle Smith, now athletic di-

UCLA Is Unanimous Favorite To Repeat As National Hoop Champ

NEW YORK (AP) — UCLA, the NCAA championship post-season tourney, finished runner-up in the poll with 226 points on the basis of 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1.

Louisville, the Missouri Valley champions with Westley Unseld and Dutch Beard again in uniform, landed the No. 3 spot with 213 points. North Carolina from the Atlantic Coast Conference, was fourth with 187. Kansas from the Big Eight was fifth with 135 and independent Dayton sixth with 129.

Dayton, led by Don May who will be a senior this season, surprised by gaining the final championship game last March. Dayton lost to the vaunted Bruins 78-84.

White Undecided About Games

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Lee White, star Weber State College fullback, is expected to decide in the next few days whether to play in the Hula Bowl or the Senior Bowl.

White last week accepted an invitation to play in the Shrine East-West game Dec. 30 in San Francisco.

CSI Opens Collegiate Season With Western Wyoming Monday

College of Southern Idaho's Golden Eagles, in the unlikely position of having three injuries, start their collegiate basketball schedule Monday night by testing Western Wyoming Community College at Rock Springs.

Coach Eddie Sutton said Fred Franklo may not play due to a deep muscle spasm in his back. The injury was sustained in the Phillips 66 exhibition at Burley last week and has kept the Shoshone sophomore out of practice all week.

"Fred says he's going to play but it's a painful injury and we want to make sure he's over it before putting him in a position where he could aggravate it again. It's the type of thing that could plague him the rest of the year," Coach Sutton said.

He also listed big Ples Vann and frosh center Tom Bush as injured, although both should be ready by Monday night. Vann sat out drills Thursday and Friday due to a knee strain and Bush sprained an ankle.

The Eagles will go with the same starting lineup of Vann, Ron Glover, Mark Rich and Larry Barnett and, if Trenkle can't go, freshman Ron Adams.

Coach Sutton added something new has been added for CSI this year as KLIX Radio will carry the play-by-play action on all home and away games.

Western Wyoming presents an unknown quantity but CSI will have at least some idea of what to expect as Coach Sutton scouted them against Ricks Saturday night. The team, under the supervision of Jerry Meyerhoeffer, will join Sutton in Rock Springs Sunday afternoon and take a look at the gymnasium in a workout that evening.

"I understand it is a high school floor and their coach tells me they play the restraining lines. That could mean we'll be in a cracker box," Sutton said. Western Wyoming has expressed optimism for the year, claiming two Chicago freshmen as bright stars.

Bush played against both last year and reports they are fine players. Other than that, CSI has no personal report available.

"We expect to play a pretty good ball game against them," says Coach Sutton. "Our exhibition against Phillips gave us something to work on over the past week and I feel we have most of the mistakes corrected. I'm certain we can play as well or perhaps a little better Monday night and that could be enough to win."

CSI will make its home debut Friday against the University of Idaho freshmen and will entertain the same club in a rare afternoon contest the next day.

Long Pass Gives Yale Triumph

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Brian Dowling's 66-yard touchdown pass to Del Marling gave Ivy League football champion Yale a come-from-behind 24-20 victory over arch-rival Harvard Saturday in their traditional season ending game.

Harvard had fallen behind 17-0 in the first half, then rallied on three long time-consuming drives to take the lead at 20-17 with only 3:05 left in the game.

After the next kickoff, Dowling took Yale 76 yards in only three plays.

Marling's touchdown was his second of the game. The first came in the second period when Yale halfback Jim Fisher fumbled at the one-yard line and Marling recovered in the end zone.

Factor is liked inside but in the past few days it appears less a closed situation that previously thought. We also are told by Boise people that Ed Troxel, now on the Idaho staff, has expressed interest and may be scheduled for an interview.

At Idaho, Dr. Hartung's announcement last week refuting rumors that Coach Steve Musseau has been rehired strikes us as opening a new kettle of fish. Despite the athletic board's recommendation for rehiring, the president felt compelled to make the release. We think the pot will boil over there pretty soon. It has been quiet in Twin Falls following the furor of the past few weeks.

Here's one in another sport. We have it from the old "unimpeachable source" that there's every prospect for professional baseball to return to Magic Valley next spring. The way we hear it the talent will be provided by the Atlanta Braves and the league will operate with five teams — rather unwieldy from a scheduling standpoint. But since the league is still one of primary instruction, it is for certain that the managers and major league owners would appreciate a few extra days to work on individual and team weaknesses.

"It was a helluva ballgame," said Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian after Bob Olson broke up Bill Miller's pass and kept the Irish among the nation's top ten football teams.

Gurney Grabs Pole Spot At Riverside

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Dan Gurney set a blistering pace that knocked Jimmie Clark out of the pole position Saturday for the Rex Mays' 300-mile race at Riverside International Speedway. But a stalled car in his path nearly knocked Gurney out of Sunday's race. Gurney, of Corona Del Mar, Calif., captured the lead position in an Oldsmobile Eagle Ford by racing one lap of the circuit, 2.6-mile track in one minute 10.5 seconds. His average speed was 117.735 miles an hour.

SMU Downs Baylor In Final Period

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Southern Methodist scored early and late to put down a determined Baylor 16-10 in a Southwest Conference football game Saturday. Mustang quarterback Mike Livingston took to the air late in the final period to carry SMU from deep in its own territory to a touchdown and end a 10-10 tie.

Wild Teal Escapes Frying Pan

If it isn't every day you find a wild duck walking down the street, but when you do it calls for special action.

Mrs. Lyta (Nancy) Trueblood, member of the local police department, made such a discovery several days ago. Afraid the small duck would be killed by dogs, she took it home.

After her two young sons admired it overnight, it rode, in a large paper sack, to the police station the following morning. Mrs. Trueblood said she planned to turn it over to the Fish and Game Department or find some other suitable home for it.

THANKSGIVING DINNER? Not on your life said Nancy Trueblood, member of the local police department who rescued the crippled teal a foggy morning on the street near her home. After spending the day at the local police station, the duck found a new home with another officer who let him join a flock of domestic geese.

Liquor Law Amendments Told At Meet

HAILEY — A meeting of retail liquor licensees of Blaine County was held recently in the county courtrooms and was well attended.

Richard L. Cade, Director of Liquor Law Enforcement, Boise, who conducted the meeting, said such meetings have now been held in 40 of the 44 counties of the state.

Discussed were three amendments to liquor laws; the first being the necessity to show a valid driver's license or an ID card issued by the department of law enforcement to establish age for the purchase of beer or liquor.

The amendment reducing the size of a lake from two square miles to 100 acres for an adjoining business place to acquire a liquor license is not expected to affect this county, as Redfish Lake Lodge, Alturas Lake Lodge and resorts on the banks of Magic Reservoir already are licensees.

NOW THAT'S A MAN'S TONIC! Young Kelly Farnsworth, a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Plinkett, of Chalfont, visiting them for the Thanksgiving holiday, tried a dab or two of almost everything in the store. Before he could get out seventeen two-year-old girls mobbed him. What a rogue . . . and he's only two years old himself! Young Kelly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Farnsworth, of Soda Springs, Idaho. The photograph was taken through the cooperation of Penny-Wise Drug Store, and its manager, Mr. Jack Muldoon. A couple of years ago the store carried about 30 lines of men's preparations, and today that number exceeds 70 lines. Each line has many different brands, and the store could carry 40 more if it chose.

Kimberly Holocaust? Someone Try The Door

BY FRED DODDS
Times-News Staff Writer

I can remember as a youngster in Kimberly 20 years ago that going to a fire was better than watching the Saturday afternoon showing of Roy Rogers. There was drama, excitement and group participation.

Kimberly had and still has a volunteer fire department.

During the late afternoon, men would come in from the fields and sit in the cafes that line Main Street and talk of baseball and fishing. In the barbershop, the locals would gather and discuss the day's events.

It was a quiet time of day.

And then there would be three blasts on the community siren.

This meant fire, and the fastest men in town always got to ride to the scene on the village fire truck. The truck was parked in an old city garage behind what is now the police station.

Behind the screaming wall of the fire-engine's siren would be a host of cars, kids on bicycles, and dogs — all merrily pursuing the fire truck to the blaze.

Once the city assistant police chief got iritated and tried to put a stop to this parade, but his efforts were to no avail. A small town likes its fires.

No one was ever hurt.

Once there was a fire in a garage in the east edge of town, near Highway 30.

The telephone switchboard operator flicked the siren on, and before the third blast had died away the volunteers had spilled from the cafes and barbershop and were ripping open the doors to the old garage. A minute later the truck, men hanging off the edges, crept through the alley and headed east.

The parade of citizens followed.

It isn't hard at this point to keep up with a fire truck. Top speed was no more than 20 miles an hour. Kids could follow easily on their bicycles, and usually the dogs were waiting at the scene.

This time was no different.

Smoke was rolling from the windows of the garage, and the owner, an elderly woman, was a pacing-back-and-forth-in-front, wringing her hands.

"Where's the fire?" one of the

The fearless firemen went to the door of the garage and began chipping.

By now the excitement had built to a fever pitch: Men were yelling orders, bystanders were shouting encouragement.

Two men, when the truck had stopped, hooked up a hose and began pumping water on the roof of the garage. Another smashed a window, and tried bravely to crawl into the fire but was pushed back by smoke.

Another hose was brought in and streams of water from two directions were leveled at the smoking hull.

Everyone was so busy they didn't hear the elderly woman screaming what may have been obscenities. She was brought back when she tried to interfere with the chopping fireman.

By this time the garage was close to ruins. A large hole was nearly hacked through the door, and windows were smashed, and a hole had been cut in the roof to allow water to be sprayed in the interior.

The elderly woman asserted herself once more, and amidst the cries to let the firemen alone, pushed herself between the happy fireman and his ax and said "stop."

He stopped.

She then, very calmly, reached over, turned the door knob, and let the door open of its own accord.

And much to everyone's surprise, or dismay, and when the cloud of smoke lifted with the breath of wind through the open door, a clump of dirty rags in a barrel could be seen smoking. There was no fire.

The alarm, as it was learned later, was turned in by a neighbor.

The fire truck limped back to its resting place in the old garage on Main Street, and the volunteer firemen, dirty and wet, put up their red hats and brown coats and returned to the barbershop and the cafes to talk about the fire, and to wait for the next emergency.

Take Heed, Men: Smell-Gooders Are Out To Get You

By JAN A. SAINSBURY
Times-News Feature Editor

The whole modern scene in men's cosmetics could be summed up in one short vaudeville routine. The top-banana comes out from behind a flat or drop-curtain depicting scroll-work saying, "Eat At Joe's," and "Peterson's Harness and Feed Store," and walks toward the proscenium arch where he is joined by the second-banana.

Top banana: Did you hear about that new deodorant called Vanish.

Second Banana: No, tell me about the new deodorant called Vanish.

Top Banana: It doesn't really keep you from perspiring; you just rub it all over, it makes you vanish, and everybody stands around wondering where the smell is coming from.

Laughs and Applause.

Top Banana: They've also got a new men's scent on the market.

Top Banana: Well, nothing really . . . but you shoulda seen the girls.

Second Banana: Oh, really. Tell me about it.

Top Banana: It's called Nothing. And the slogan is "Wear Nothing and you'll be a hit at the party."

Laughs and Applause.

Top Banana: And did you hear the one about the couple walking on the beach with incured hair, smelling of lilacs and roses, with long hair and pointed shoes.

Second Banana: No what about the couple, etc., etc.

Top Banana: Well, nothing really . . . but you shoulda seen the girls.

Second Banana: Oh, really. Tell me about it.

Top Banana: It's called Nothing.

Well, maybe the laughs and applause weren't really from the heart, but it passed an idle afternoon at the Pantings.

What has it got to do with men's cosmetics today? Every thing.

If there is not a deodorant called "Vanish," on the market today it's only because they haven't gotten around to it yet — but they will. They've gotten around to almost everything else.

Last year on the market a product was offered, called "Grazzy Kids Stuff." And it sold quite well.

And this year? It is unbelievable.

Less than three years ago a Twin Falls store carried 30 lines of merchandise in the men's cosmetics section. And that was about all there was. This year that same store admits to over 70 lines, each including ten or twenty products designed to make men more appealing, or is it to make the company more money?

For the skeptic who hasn't looked at a men's cosmetic counter lately and still believes that all they offer is Old Spice and a tube of brushless shave cream, here's proof.

Each manufacturer, other than the very small ones, make the following products for men: after shave, cologne, skin conditioner, hair cream, hair tonic, shampoo, hair spray, hair gel, brilliantine, short hair control cream, pre-electric shave lotion, body powder, talc, and shaving cream, along with a product made by a few companies to bronze the skin, chemically, as well as a product that darkens the skin and washes off at the end of the day.

The names of the new after shave lotions and colognes are an education in themselves. Unless my boy were at least sixteen I wouldn't even let him read the labels of some of them.

There's Pub, Kent of London, Hal Karate, It's Cricket, Monsieur Lanvin-Vetiver or Figaro, Lino Wood, Bark Wood, Hawaiian Surf, Brut, Black Watch, Jade East, Signature, Royal Regiment, Russian Leather, Spanish Leather, English Leather, Chanel-A Gentleman's Cologne, Yama, Yu, Series 3, Nine

Sunday Feature SECTION

Sunday, Nov. 26, 1967 Twin Falls Times-News A-1

BILL LOGAN OF Twin Falls, and Herb Hurley of Boise, listen with trained ears as the vibrations from a piano wire are checked against a tuning fork. Both men are members of the Piano Technicians Guild which was organized for the state of Idaho in August of this year. The organizational meeting was held at the Twin Falls Holiday Inn.

Plink, Plunk, The "Tuner" Is Now Defunct

In an age when there are specialists with specialties, it is no wonder that the man who adjusts the chair and opens the windows in a session on group therapy is called the Procedural Technician. Honest.

But some titles are merely stuff on a three-tiered cake. And then there are others.

For years now piano tuners have inhaled under that very generally: piano tuners. They have organized, and fought opposition in the process, in order to form a group of men registered in the fine art of taking care of the biggest musical instrument — the piano.

The national Piano Technicians Guild, Inc., is an organization which has been in existence for a long time. Idaho, however, added itself as a member state by forming its chapter at Twin Falls in August of this year.

The Guild now has members in all 50 states.

In the city of Twin Falls there is only one member of the Guild, Bill Logan. Herb Hurley, of Boise, is president of the state organization.

The difference between a piano tuner and a "registered piano technician," as they much prefer to be called, is that the "registered piano technician" has passed excellent tests in piano tuning and servicing given by the Guild. The Guild is the only technician's organization endorsed by the National Piano Manufacturers Association. And according to that organization the possession of identification cards, annually issued to members, is the public's best protection against fraud and incompetence in the servicing of pianos.

And if you're under the impression that piano tuning is something that anybody needs doing to the average piano, especially if it is new—those who know about such things say you're wrong.

Dr. Wm. Braid White, Principal, School of Pianoforte Technology, Chicago, recommends the piano be tuned four times a year. "From the layman's standpoint, the tuner knows, however, that if he had time to tune his own piano as often as his ears tell him, he would tune it once a month at least." He goes on to say that, "From a strictly scientific point of view, it is probably true to say that no piano ever made has stood in tune, without a drop or a rise, for more than 24 hours, unless it were maintained at constant temperature and at constant barometric and hygrosopic conditions."

The Baldwin Company, and other leading manufacturers, agree with him.

To tune a piano the technician uses a universal pitch of A-440. Because of the need for a standard pitch so that all musical instruments, those made in another country and tuned there, and those made and tuned in, say, New York, will be able to "play" together in perfect pitch, A-440 was chosen. It simply means that when the piano technician begins to tune your piano he stretches the string "A" above middle "C" until it vibrates 440 times a second.

Then he tunes all of the remaining strings on the piano to proper relationship with this "A." Pianos may leave the factory tuned to this, but they are built to hold a 20-ton tension produced by the combined stretch of the piano's 23 strings when tuned to A-440, and often go out of tune quite soon.

Tuning a piano can cost as little as $15 and as much as $2,000 or more depending on whether it simply has to be "tuned" or completely reworked, and new strings added.

And most jobs cost much closer to the $15 mark than the other end of the scale.

MISS JOANNE CASTLE smiles broadly as she holds on to the arms of Herb Hurley, left, president of the Piano Technicians Guild, and Bill Logan, right, the only member of the Guild residing in Twin Falls. Mr. Logan tuned the piano which Miss Castle is using during her stay at Jackpot. Miss Castle will appear at Cactus Pete's through Sunday evening.

Flags, Monsieur-Hobbitant Jean Nite, Ratt Finque (hon. est), Currier & Ives, Villa D'Este, Seven Seas, Monsieur Balman, British Sterling (not devaluated I hope), and Studd. All of which smell like a concoction I used to make when I was six out of the rancid remains of my mother's perfume bottles.

Prices range from $2 to $8.50 and in the case of a set, as high as $50 or more.

The products are never for the "average man," but rather for the man who is a cut above average . . . or better yet a swath above the average. No more man can use the products. You must be a quasi-god, or at least a man of means — so say the advertisements.

One ad for an after shave which is tagged as a "splash-on" liquid called Hal Karate, say that the new "toilettes are so powerful that you have to be careful how you use them. In fact, a round woman they're practically lethal weapons." They then proceed to show you by graphic charts in one, two, three steps how to defend yourself against the advances of a woman under the spell of Hal Karate. Using karate, the hand combat form, as a defense weapon, of course.

Another ad for Nine Flags says the essence which are imported from nine different countries and blended in the United States, and which sell from $5 to $15 dollars "in fine stores everywhere," take the wearer to the country represented by the labels. The essence of France for example takes one to France.

The ad reads, "Take the cap off a bottle of Nine Flags Shaving Cologne, splash some on — and away you go. Say you try Germany the first day. The next morning you can skip over to Sweden, then to Hong Kong and so on . . ."

The ad ends with the statement, "No man should be without a country."

And sex plays an important part in the sales of the products. First of all they promise everything you could want . . . youth, maturity, sex appeal and dig-

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

The Eldon Rasmussen family at PAUL believes in doing things together, but feel there is a limit to everything.

Mrs. Rasmussen's roommate at Cassia Memorial hospital, EUGENE, was her 22-year-old daughter, Carol, who had the misfortune of driving the family pickup into the rear of the family truck being operated by Carol's brother, Donald, 17.

According to Mr. Rasmussen, his wife had been so busy helping him in the hospital that she put off going to the hospital for corrective treatment until recently. She was admitted on a Sunday evening and was given attention Monday morning.

The children continued helping in the harvest and Monday night, Carol drove the truck to the "hot dump" where Donald's truck was out of gas. On their return trip back home, Donald stopped at a stop sign and was just picking up speed when all of a sudden the truck received a big jolt from behind.

Carol said the brakes on the pickup failed and she ran into the back of the truck. Her face was severely cut and she was taken to the hospital by a neighbor, Mrs. Robert Adams.

Mr. Rasmussen telephoned his wife's hospital room with the message, "You better alert the hospital, Carol has been in an accident and is really cut up."

Nurses made preparation for Carol and it was coincidental that the family doctor was at the emergency entrance when they brought her in the hospital.

After 20 stitches in the inside of her mouth and eight in her chin, she was wheeled to her mother's room to occupy the other bed.

Mrs. Rasmussen was discharged Tuesday afternoon and Carol remained for several days.

"Twins seem to run in the family," was the comment C. W. (Bill) Choules, HAGERMAN, made when telling of the newest arrivals to his "dairy herd" in Inyo Dusty Fall, better known as "Boss", a registered 3 year old Holstein owned by Choules, recently gave birth to a third set of twins. This is the cow's fourth lactation. One was a single birth.

This set of twins was a bull and a heifer. All other calves "Boss" has produced have been bulls. And to top things off, "Boss" is a daughter of a twin. "Boss" not only is more than doing her part in increasing the bovine population, but has continued through the years to be a good milk producer. Through her last lactation, she produced about 10 gallons of milk a day.

Choules admitted "Boss" was a "bit down" in her milk production so far this lactation, producing only seven gallons at this time, but added, "It's increasing."

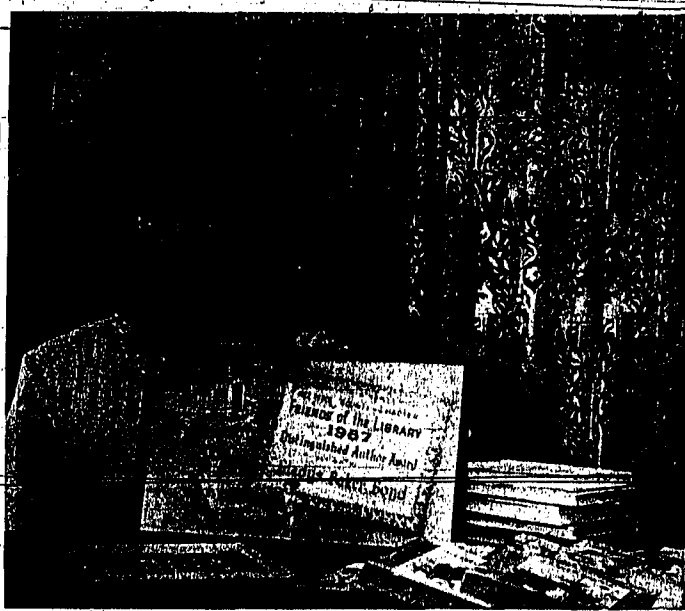

"It's something of a rarity for a cow to produce twins, but chances for the same cow to produce three sets in the time 'Boss' has, is quite unusual. 'Boss' has produced seven calves in four years.

Choules is the postmaster in Hagerman. He and his family live toward the east end of town and have a small pasture where he raises his "dairy herd" which consists solely of "Boss" and her young offspring.

"Twins seem to run in the family" in more ways than one. Mr. and Mrs. Choules are also parents of twins — a set of boys, Ted and Todd, who are now second graders.

Not only that, but Mrs. Choules has twin sisters and Choules' mother has twin sisters.

As far as his family is concerned, Choules feels he was "doubly blessed" with the arrival of his sons. Mr. and Mrs. Choules also have two daughters, Kristy is a junior at Hagerman High School and Kathleen is in the seventh grade.

GLADYS BAKER BOND, who lives part of the time at Hayden Lake, Idaho, holds a "Friends of the Library" plaque for her work. Selected as Idaho Writer of the Year, by the Idaho Writers' League, last month, Mrs. Bond has published many books now on school reading lists.

Childhood Books Inspired By Family, Declares Idaho's Writer Of Year

Idaho's Writer of the Year, as named by the Idaho Writers' League, Gladys Baker Bond, of Clarkston, Wash., and Hayden Lake, Idaho, has dedicated her twentieth book to her son, Nicholas Bond.

Mr. Bond is a teacher of piano, music history and theory, and lives at 1004 Filor Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

"Many of my books," Mrs. Bond says, "are about Nicholas, no matter what name I choose to write on the page."

"Adventures With Hal," a Whitman book that came out last year, should have been called "Adventures With Nick," since it is a collection of amusing and exciting childhood escapades experienced by my son and his four cousins, Nicholas' son, Brook is beginning to explore those same beaches and mountain trails at our summer home on Hayden Lake in north-Idaho." Mrs. Bond says of her daughter-in-law, who shares in the teaching, "I haven't started writing about Kelly—but! That one word is a promise to catch still another family personality in a not of words to share with young readers."

In March, 1967, Gladys Baker Bond received the Friends of the Library Distinguished Author Award. In October of 1964 her novel, "Head On Her Shoulders," was selected by the National Library for the Blind, Patron: Her Majesty the Queen, Victoria, to be published in Braille for the children of the British Empire.

The honor came from the Marquis of Normandy, M.B.E. Several of Mrs. Bond's books are on school-reading lists.

The Writer of the Year Award, 1966, went to Vardis Fisher of Hagerman. The engraved plaque is held for one year.

That twentieth book, being published by Abolard-Schuman Limited, is entitled "On The Stranger's Mountain," with a setting in the Salmon River ranch country. Two books were sold to "reprint houses"—"Blue Chimney" moved from Holiday House to Young Readers' Press, and "Head On Her Shoulders" went to Washington Square Press. In October three books came off the press: "Animal Babies Wild and Free," Whitman Publishing Company; "The Mystery At Far Reach," Abolard-Schuman Ltd.; co-author Florence Baker-Bartman; and "Meg and The Disappearing Diamonds," a teen-age book from the Whitman Pub. Co. under the pen name, Holly Beth Walker. Mrs. Bond has still another pen name, Jo Mendol, on the covers of the Whitman Tucker books in the paperback market.

Along with the award, sales and publications, Gladys Baker Bond received the announcement that her name is listed in "Who's Who of American Women."

TIMES-NEWS Book Review

BEYOND THE OBSERVATORY

By Hayden Shapley

For those of us who are terrified of and vaguely resentful by modern science, who mistrust all its fantastic hypotheses, who are horrified by its frequent disregard of humanity and humane considerations, and who do not understand the mathematical basis for physics and astronomy in their present state, this book is a wholesome irritant.

Dr. Shapley is a philosopher as well as one of the foremost astronomers. He thinks about "the universe" and about man's insignificance in the universe. Furthermore, Dr. Shapley is a very good writer. He writes of "a magnificent universe of incredibly glorious space, time, and energy" and urges mankind to go along with it. He uses familiar and personal examples to give the reader some comprehension of the universe. Above all, he is continually interesting even to the non-scientists, of whom I am one.

The book gets off to a flying start with the author's discussion of the ten achievements of the twentieth century that have most profoundly affected the lives and thoughts of mankind.

Three of the ten achievements are basically biological, and Shapley justifies their inclusion on the ground that life and the living of it is a desperately complicated business.

"The full analysis of the interior of a butterfly larva is vastly more difficult than the analysis of the interior of the remote star Polaris."

Furthermore, life appears to be an inevitable occurrence when physics, chemistry, and climatology are right.

The book's chapter headings are sure to catch your interest. Even the most determined anticentist will take a look into "Breathing the future and the past or life with an argon atom" to find that Shapley quite literally means what he says. "Thirty deductions from a glimmer of starlight" and "On the prolonging of civilization" will also tempt you to read.

In fact, though I may have been irritated by the bland omniscience that seems typical of most scientist writers, I must admit that I read every word of the book, re-read some parts of it, and enjoyed it.

The author who writes so nonchalantly of incredible distances, thousands of galaxies, millions of universes, becomes almost endearingly human when he says "These are times of crisis. Most times are."

Printing Firm Establishes New Location

Standard Printing Co., which has been established since 1893 in Twin Falls, has moved to new quarters, thus enlarging its space and operation.

According to Jim L. Higgins, co-owner, the firm has moved into another building, just down the street from its former location. The firm is now located next to Shotwell's Inc. The firm occupies about 5,000 square feet in one building and about 3,000 square feet for storage in another.

Because of the move and added space, several new machines have been added to the operation of Standard Printing Co. A new address machine, so the firm can print, address and mail some of the printed matter to various customers, has been added.

Another new piece of equipment is a stamping machine, for stamping pencils, pens, napkins, etc.

Since opening 14 years ago, the firm has increased its volume of sales by 400 per cent. According to Mr. Higgins there is about $150,000 worth of equipment now in the business.

Another new piece of equipment is a composing selector machine.

The firm offers complete printing service for any need.

U.S. Says Red Missiles Have Not Improved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Answering a Soviet claim, the Defense Department said Friday night that Russian-built surface-to-air missiles (SAMs) have not improved their two per cent kill-rate against American warplanes bombing North Vietnam.

It provided figures to show a total of 4,600 SAMs have been fired against American raiding war planes and that so far 102 planes have been knocked down. This works out to a kill-rate of two per cent.

A Soviet correspondent, Yevgeny V. Kobleov, wrote in the Russian magazine Life Abroad that new North Vietnamese units, which he said went into action in August, have shot down an average of one U.S. warplane for every two missiles fired. This would be a kill rate of 50 per cent.

CAPT. PAUL D. PARTON

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT . . .

Air Medal And 300 Missions Later, It's Man's Right To Be Undecided

Capt. Paul D. Parton is relatively new to Twin Falls. He and his wife and five boys came to this city in May of this year. For Mrs. Parton and the five boys it was a change from the climate and conditions of California, to those of Idaho. But for Captain Parton it was a much greater change. For him it was a change from flying 300 missions over the jungles of South Vietnam in a two-place, 100-mile-per-hour airplane, to working as liaison officer for the Air Force with the Civil Air Patrol. But it was what Captain Parton wanted. He requested duty in one of the Western states with the Civil Air Patrol. Growing up in Southern Oregon the Idaho country was familiar to him. Capt. Parton spent a year in Vietnam, and during that stay he functioned as a Forward Air Controller (FAC) flying light reconnaissance planes designated O-1. During his service in Vietnam he was awarded the Air Medal with 13 clusters. The Air Medal is awarded for both meritorious service and missions flown. Capt. Parton received one for meritorious service and the other for the 500 hours flown in that country—totaling 300 missions. Asked if he had ever found himself in trouble, Capt. Parton rather modestly said, "Not really. Well, I do remember a

Sammy Davis Jr., Wife Separated

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Negro entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. and blonde, Swedish-born actress Mia Farrow, whose interracial wedding seven years ago caused a sensation, have separated.

A spokesman for Davis said in Hollywood Friday: "The decision between the Davises is a mutual one resulting from many long absences from each other over the last few years which have caused a strain on their marriage. There is no talk of divorce at this time." Davis, 40, and Miss Britt, 33, were married Nov. 13, 1960, in a Jewish ceremony at Davis' Los Angeles home. Both are converts to Judaism. They have three children, a daughter, Tracy Hill, 6, and two adopted sons—Mark, 7, and Jeff, 3. Davis is performing at a Las Vegas, Nev., hotel. Miss Britt is at the family home here.

Announcement of the split came only two days after Davis' long-time friend Frank Sinatra announced a trial separation from his young wife, Mia Farrow. When Davis and Miss Britt were married under a bower of white chrysanthemums Sinatra was the best man. Peter Lawford was an usher, attending with his wife, Pat. The Lawfords have since been divorced. Miss Britt, a tall statuesque actress from Stockholm, rose to fame in the film remake of "The Blue Angel."

From the day they announced their intention to wed the couple faced the taunts of racial bigotry. "I'm liable to prejudice every time I walk out of the front door," Davis said after the engagement was announced. "But I'm not shaking in my shoes about my career. Because if it's so flimsy that it could be ruined by marriage then it's not worth having."

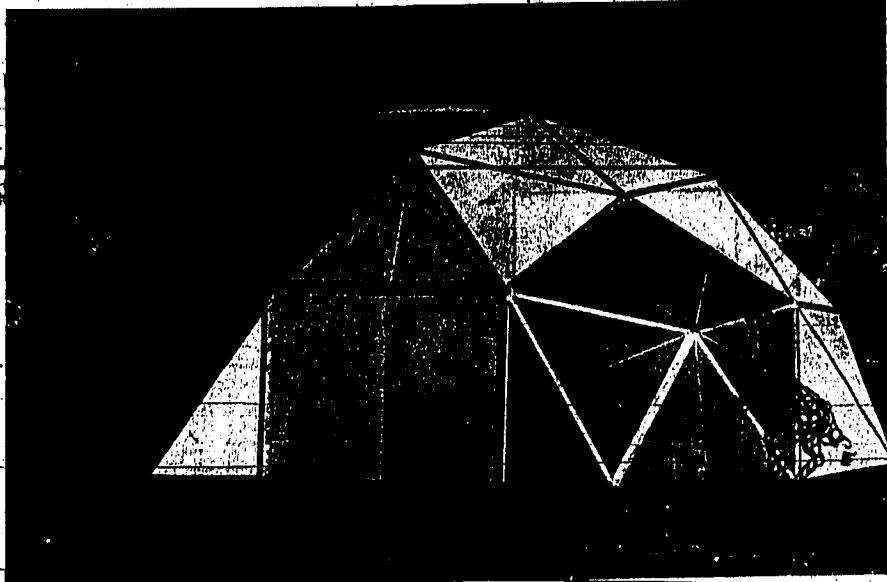

Two years after the wedding Davis admitted that the fight against public opinion had been tough. He said he and his wife had lost many friends. "But I feel—and Mia does too—that we are better off for it," he said. "It takes something like this for you to find out your real friends." And in 1965 Miss Britt said in an interview "Sammy is a marvelous husband. Much more than I expected. I would have settled for less."

The meritorious medal was awarded for Capt. Parton's part in directing strikes against an outpost being attacked at night in mountainous terrain. Capt. Parton and his wife Audrey have five children. All boys: David is the oldest at 11, Robert is 10, Ross 8, John is 6, and Darin is 2.

Capt. Parton's family is still getting settled in many ways and their outside interests at the present time are overshadowed by their involvement in everyday matters. Capt. Parton's primary interest outside of his job, which he admits takes up most of his time, is classic cars. He owns a 1951 MG-TD which he has had since 1964. He likes old Rolls-Royces and Dusenburys . . . but as he puts it, "Who doesn't?"

Capt. Parton has been in the Air Force since he was 17, and he is 35 now. He is planning on retiring, "at least at the present," in April of 1970. He will have been in the service 20 years on that date.

But in the best tradition of a man in his young 30's—Capt. Parton won't commit himself. "I'm undecided . . . that's all."

UNDOUBTEDLY, THIS IS Magic Valley's only Geodesic Dome. In fact there aren't very many of the structures in the country today, relative to other types of construction. But they are becoming more and more popular. Their chief attribute lies in the fact that they have no internal supports to hinder placement of materials, or equipment. The structure is self-supporting, working on a principle that the triangular forms each distribute stress to the ones adjacent to it.

Geodesic Dome By Any Other Name Would Be Much Easier To Spell

Here a dome, there a dome, everywhere. Well, it's not quite that bad. The domes of this world are not yet taking over, but if the popularity and utility of this particular type of triangular animal keeps growing, we may all end up in a world of domed cities keeping warmth in and smog out.

Straight out of science fiction? So were astronauts and rockets to the moon. If anyone has anything to say regarding what can be accomplished in the realm of domes it's a man named Buckminster Fuller. He has students, professional and otherwise, in cities throughout the world. And he even has a proponent of his concept of construction in the town of Kimberly, Idaho.

Mr. Stanley Vandenberg, a tall, softspoken man who works with iron as others work with clay, has built a Geodesic Dome at Kimberly. The problems of building such a structure, large enough to house his sculpture studio and a garage, without center supports of any kind, were overcome by Mr. Vandenberg when he decided last June to build a geodesic dome. He finished it, 75 triangular sections later, in October. The world of building geodesic domes is nearly the sole property of Buckminster Fuller. He has a patent on the basic structure. And if you're interested in his work you can find out more by reading a book by Robert W.

Marka, called, "The Dymaxion World of Buckminster Fuller." (Reinhold Publishing Corporation, N. Y.) Warning! If you do intend to read it, expect to confront head-on such words and phrases as: cybernetic circles, positive feedback, mirror-multiplication, second powering, tetrahedroning, inwardly-outwardly-to-and-froing, dymaxion, and Energetic-Synergistic Geometry, which is what Buckminster Fuller says it is all about.

Remember in speech courses in college or high school when the professor told you to pick a subject, but to limit it, pick something that can be handled in five or ten minutes. Don't pick World War II, but instead talk about one battle, or better yet one man in one battle. Well . . . Buckminster Fuller would have flunked that speech course.

"I did not set out to design a house that hung from a pole," he has said, "or to manufacture a new type of automobile, invent a new system of map projection, develop geodesic domes or Energetic Geometry. I started with the Universe . . . No limiting of ideas for him. And as a result of his work, such structures as the U. S. Pavilion at the Expo 67 World's Fair is in existence today. The Radomes, or domes housing radar at the DEW line, for the Defense Early Warning system are geodesic domes of fiberglass able to withstand 200 miles per hour winds. Sports palaces are being erected—and houses are being built, all because of a concept of design that seems simple, but which is far from being simple.

One dome, the Union Tank Car Company's geodesic is nearly 400 feet in diameter and is 110 feet high. It is located in Louisiana and at the time built in 1958, it was the largest clear-span enclosure ever built anywhere. What's this about a geodesic dome at Kimberly?

Well, it may not be 400 feet in diameter, but it is built in exactly the same way. The dome, which is actually located a mile south and a mile and a half east of the Kimberly stoplight, was built by Stanley Vandenberg. He uses it for a studio and a garage. It is large and colorful and spacious, without any center supports. In it Mr. Vandenberg works sculpturing in iron and metal. He has various pieces displayed in Twin Falls, one in front of the Chamber of Commerce, another at Architect Harold Gerber's office, and another in front of Kramer-Walker and Plankey, lawyers. Mr. Vandenberg became interested in the structure after reading a "Time" magazine article on Fuller a few years back. Since then he has been studying and learning. His first geodesic dome will not be his last. It is the only way to build, or at least . . . it's one very good way.

Army Program

Army recruiter Sgt. Clarence Fulton said Friday young men and women in the Magic Valley area may enlist in December and spend the holiday at home. Men may enlist between Dec. 6 and 29 and remain at home through the New Year holiday before reporting for active duty. Young women may join between Dec. 20 and 29 and be offered leave through Jan. 2, he said.

BREAKTHROUGH CLAIMED

HAIFA, Israel (AP)—Israeli scientists claimed Friday a major breakthrough in water desalination that will provide a cheap method of solving water shortages in arid regions. Officials at Haifa Technion said a team led by U.S.-trained Prof. Abraham Cogan had discovered a new method of desalination through heat transference after five years of experiments.

Turnout Set

JEROME — Water will be turned out of the North Side Canal System at Milner Dec. 1, reports Douglas Finkenbuehler, manager of the firm.

He said the turnout is necessary so that improvements can be made to structures and canals which cannot be done while there is water in the system. The reservoirs on the Snake River have larger carryover than normal, and this is why directors decided to run water in the system a month longer than usual this year.

BOISE DUCK HUNTERS fill out. They are shown here as they leave the blind with their black-Labrador-rotlover and two limits of ducks. The hunters are (left) Bob Orchard and Jay Manning. Idahoans are lucky to live in a state where a man can simply go out and hunt without renting a blind or joining a duck club.

Diving Ducks And Puddle Jumpers... To The Hunter, The Sky Is Falling

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Games Department
Hunters who happen to be in duck blinds when flights of "northern" pour in just can't help thinking the world is full of waterfowl. They will think the sky is falling for sure if (as some times happens) a duck is shot and falls in such a way that its dead weight — plummeted both by gravity and the speed of its own flight — hits one of them at the end of a long curving fall. It hurts. Such a blow, if it strikes a man when he is off-balance, can knock him from his feet.

Such a thing is rare, it is true. But who has not seen ducks swing into the wind and make hard landings because they did not know the water was frozen? Long unpinning slides on the ice eventually stop their forward speed. They look just as ludicrous on take-off flapping with wings flapping down the ice before being airborne. On the wing, or in the water, they are strong-graceful and efficient. It is just hard surfaces such as land or ice that make them seem clumsy.

These are the diving ducks, whose short legs are near the rear, and whose tail is held close to the water.

Just the opposite are the puddle or dabbling ducks, whose legs are close to the middle of the body. Ducks in this group swim with tails well out of the water and leap straight into the air on take-off. They seem to shove the water with their wings to help on vertical take-offs. An old movie film shows one of them climbing straight up, without spiraling, alongside a pine tree. Two species of diving ducks which are better able to leap from water without first running on its surface to gain speed are buffleheads and redheads. Their ratio of wing to body seems to give almost as much lift as puddle ducks have. Buffleheads and redheads are just two species of diving ducks among 30 found in America. Four more of them familiar to most Idaho waterfowlers are canvasbacks, ruddy ducks, scaup and American goldeneye. Diving ducks get the name from the fact that they can go down into the water as much as 30 feet in search of food.

In addition to diving ducks, North America has 10 species of puddle-duck which feed in shallow water, "upending" with just the tail feathers above water as they search for bottom growing plants. Nine species of puddle ducks are shot by Idaho hunters. These are the mallard, pintail, gadwall, baldpate (widely known as blue-winged teal), blue-winged teal, cinnamon teal, shoveler and wood duck. All of these diving and dabbling ducks commonly nest in Idaho except the goldeneye and bufflehead.

In the way of duck-like waterfowl which are legal targets for hunters, Idaho also has three migrators. These are the hooded American and red-breasted. There have been occasional reports of goldeneye and bufflehead ducklings seen in the state, but not fully verified.

The hooded merganser and red-breasted merganser just migrate through, but the lowly coot, which associates with ducks but belongs to the rail family, nests here in abundance.

Both the canvasback and red-head have been protected by some kind of bag restriction from 1950 through 1965, varying from no hunting to limits of "2 and 2". This year the hunter restriction is on only one species of diving duck, the canvasback with bag and possession limit of "2 and 2". Last year full bags could be taken of both "cans" and redheads. During some of the lean years, ruddy ducks were also on the No Hunting list.

Such restrictions presumed that hunters knew the in-flight differences between the protected "cans" and redheads (and sometimes ruddy ducks) on the one hand, and mallards, pintails, teal and nearly two dozen other assorted species of diving and dabbling ducks on the other.

Waterfowlers are fortunate in the number and variety of ducks that are produced on Idaho nesting grounds, or at least pass through on their twice-a-year migrations. The state's most common duck, the mallard, is the best eating of all — despite the many claims for the canvasback as the gourmet's first choice. Still more important is that on a good duck day, any halfway decent hunter can shoot a limit of greenheads. For one who wants variety, it is no trick to shoot six ducks of six different species. Such a limit could have a mallard, pintail, green-wing teal, baldpate, redhead and canvasback. Goldeneye and bufflehead — if available, among others.

Days when such a choice is possible are the kind that make shooters think the sky is falling down. They are days to remember. The other kind comes soon enough, days when even the best of waterfowlers get skunked and try to tell family and friends that, after all, they go out in the worst weather and bundle motionless, heads down in duck blinds just for the outing, the wholesome experience.

Just the same, Idaho duck hunters know that they live in one of the few remaining states where the average man can simply go out and hunt. He does not need to join a duck club which would be priced out of his reach. He does not need to rent a duck blind from a commercial duck club. Freedom in hunting is a tradition in Idaho.

In short, at this time of year, Idaho has the ducks. Now what is needed is a little weather that start the flights of "northern" through the state.

Community Presbyterian Church At Hollister Observes 56th Anniversary

BY MILDRED NELSON
Times-News Correspondent
HOLLISTER—Early day history of the Hollister Presbyterian Community Church was revived last Sunday when the congregation observed its 56th anniversary with a program and reception.

Even in this project, Hollister still does things energetically and always somewhat differently from other communities. It was intended to celebrate the 55th anniversary, but it took until 1967 to get the program presented.

Honor Roberts served as master of ceremonies for the special program which was presented, with Rev. A. Walton Roth, executive secretary of the Utah-Idaho synod of the Presbyterian churches, as guest speaker.

W. J. Laning presented the narration of the church history and reminiscences were given by A. E. Kunkel, Beryl S. Kunkel, John Laning and Glen Kunkel.

Much of the historical information used at the service was from the minutes of the Session and Congregational narrative, kept by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kunkel, who have been active since they were received into the church in April, 1915. He was appointed an elder that year and clerk in 1918, serving in that capacity until 1965. The church is indebted to him for much of the history.

During the early settlement of the area, small preaching services were held at the villages of Rogerson, Amsterdam, Hollister and Pleasant View, now known as the Knoll community.

In the fall of 1910, Rev. John K. MacGillivray, who had come to Idaho as a Sabbath school missionary for the Twin Falls presbytery, visited Hollister, but could find no one willing to act as superintendent.

Returning in January he found an American Sunday school missionary had organized a Union Sunday School, with Mr. H. S. Hagan, recent arrival to the community, having been found for a willing church leader.

Rev. MacGillivray, with the help of Mr. Hagan, agreed to come as regularly as possible to conduct services, which he did for several months, coming every two weeks, and supplying Hollister, along with Rogerson, and a camp of several hundred men engaged on the Salmon Dam construction work.

During this time he secured Westminster Hopes and Papers, and took the school under his care and supervision.

Rev. Hugh W. Rankin held a two-week series of evangelistic services in March, 1911, with the result that sufficient members were secured to organize a Presbyterian Church.

The petition was signed by 40 people, 12 of whom asked to be received as members in full communion. Other members were Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Duvall, Mrs. Margaret A. Heck, L. Mathis Heck, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Heinicke, George M. Hoover, Mrs. A. W. Jaynes and Mrs. Edna Bartholme.

On April 16, 1911, Rev. J. H. Barton, Synodical Superintendent of Homo Missions, the church was named the First Presbyterian of Hollister and three trustees were elected—W. H. Craven, George W. Hoover, and E. B. Heinicke. Mr. Duvall was elected a Ruling Elder for two years and was ordained and installed July 16, 1911.

A Ladies' Aid was organized in 1920, and the first major project of this group was in purchasing new pews for the church and installing running water. In the early 1950's the Ladies' Aid was changed to the Hollister Women's Association, and has been active ever since. During this time, also, the name of the church was changed to the Community Presbyterian Church.

Christian Endeavor Youth groups, Camp Fire Girls, Young People's Choir, Presbyterian Youth Fellowship are projects, and the Scout Troop 64 has been sponsored by the church since March, 1952.

The Annual Meeting in the Pines, a unique traditional summer picnic of the church, has been held every summer since 1920 in the Bear Gulch Campground in the Shoshone Basin.

A partial list of ministers who have served this small church during the 56 years includes John K. MacGillivray, I. Colyn, J. E. Blair, J. E. Ennis, K. J. Walpole, R. E. Davis, H. N. Wagner, D. Walker, Max Greenlee, G. L. Clark; W. J. Young, B. J. Bingle, Don Wells, H. M. Strick, Charles Shirk, and the Rev. H. B. Thomas, who came in 1950.

So the church has continued through the years—as a blessing to many lives and a service for the community. Perhaps the spirit of the church was best summed up in a sermon given by the late Dr. T. C. Hill, the great Methodist preacher who visited Hollister in the winter of 1915.

He said in part, "Should any of you here be caught in a severe snow storm, away from home, would you refuse to ask shelter of the nearest house?"

"So it is in this community, where there is only one church, when the Sabbath Day comes, it is the duty of all Christians of all denominations to gather in the Church building to worship God."

The entire congregation joined in singing, "Sweetest as the Years Go By," and the opening prayer was given by Rev. H. B. Thomas. The men's choir sang several selections, directed by Richard Youree, band and chorus instructor of the Hansen High School. Ilona Henstock was pianist.

A special piano solo was presented by Patricia Laning.

CENTER OF COMMUNITY life for the past 56 years is the Hollister Presbyterian Community church whose congregation observed the anniversary with an appropriate program and reception last Sunday. Early days in the community were recalled by members and Rev. A. Walton Roth, executive secretary of the Utah-Idaho synod of the Presbyterian churches, was guest speaker.

nity, and not necessarily in that order.

Ads in the "New York Times Magazine" proclaim "Two wild new ways to get that old feeling... Dry Lime and Wild Moss, by Monnon."

The Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature has even revised its wording to include "Men's" Cosmetics... and not too long ago that just wasn't mentioned. No "man" would wear a "cosmetic." And now in the current issue covering the past months, the publication lists, "Cosmetics for Men; see, Perfumery for Men."

Perfume yet.

But it's the coming thing. That is if it's not already here.

A man can smell like anything he wants to... as long as it smells good to a woman. Yet just as men will hang on to a pipe tobacco even though his wife says, "Honey, why don't you change to that sweet cherry flavored blend like that cute Mr. Jones smokes; it smells so good," he will also hang onto strong soap and a year old bottle of bay rum at fifty-nine cents.

Still, if he so chooses he can smell like musk, leather, lime, or spice, and a thousand odors in between.

The problem is this—What happens when the woman likes it, but other men say, "Hey, hey, friend, watcha wearing— you smell like a..."

Hard as it is, the man has to make a choice, smell pretty for the women or plain for the men.

Go to it fellows. It's your problem now—I've already purchased mine, and I'm not saying what it was.

PRODUCTION DROPS
BOMBAY (AP) — India's recession has caused a drop in the production of films, according to movie industry officials. They said only 265 films were certified in the first nine months of 1967, compared to an average of 310 for similar periods in the last three years.

Guest soloist, Bill Clark, Three Creek, sang, accompanying himself on the guitar.

Rev. David L. Turamire, First Presbyterian Church, Buhl, gave the benediction.

Flower arrangements for the occasion were presented by the Twin Falls Bank and Trust, Glenn Kunkel, and dried arrangement were fashioned by Mrs. Lyle Schmittler.

A reception was held in the church basement with the Hollister Women's Association in charge of the refreshments.

Get Along With Neighbors? You May Be One Of Few . . .

Neighborhoods and you? If you live in New York, you are likely to answer "Yes." If you live in Billings, Mont., however, your answer is more likely to be "No."

Neighborhoods certainly is not dead, judging from results of a nationwide survey by the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. It's just "segregated."

Here are other conclusions of the survey:

1. A relatively large proportion of the people who live in densely-populated urban areas are aloof, and suspicious of neighbors. People who live in small towns and rural areas are comparatively friendly and helpful.

2. Neighborhoods may be wanting in the onrush of urbanism in America.

3. Urban families seem to be suffering from self-imposed isolation.

This last finding verifies an assertion by famed anthropologist Margaret Mead. She said that the American family "has become or is fast becoming, a small, self-contained unit in a world of strangers."

The result of isolation is misunderstanding fostered by lack of communication and culminating in occasional neighborhood fracas.

Last summer, a Temple City, Calif., man set his rotary mower neighbor's bedroom window. He was seeking revenge for a terrible insult: His neighbor asked him to stop playing billiards until 3 a.m. After the mower ran all day and into the night, the neighbor made a citizen's arrest, charging the mower owner with disturbing the peace.

In El Cajon, Calif., a woman turned her phonograph to full volume and pointed it out the bedroom window toward a bawling baby in the house next door. When she left home to shop, she "forgot" that the phonograph was still playing. When she returned she found a smashed phonograph and her own nose, that had been thrown through the window, lying on the bed.

Such incidents probably occur in all parts of the country; but, they occur less often in sparsely-populated areas of the West than elsewhere. Easterners vacationing in the West for the first time invariably are impressed by the uninhibited friendliness of Westerners.

Throughout the country, neighborliness is more apparent in rural than urban or suburban areas. Weekly newspapers continuously carry stories such as "Neighbors gathered at 8 a.m. Jones' place on Thursday past, and brought in all his corn. Sam is laid up in the hospital after he was cut bad in a corn picker." It's common for farm neighbors to build a barn or a shed for a neighbor who lost a building in a storm, or fire. People "for miles around" still gather for gala church bazaars and tea or coffee socials.

People help their neighbors in the city, too, though few would claim that cities are more friendly than the country.

They also get together for parties, backyard barbecues, neighborhood festivals, street dances and block parties.

However, greater harmony among people who live together in a neighborhood is necessary. "If Americans of similar social patterns and cultural background can't get along in their own neighborhoods," the insurance company survey observed, "have we any right to expect America to get along with other nations?"

That some Americans don't get along with their neighbors is demonstrated by the "skirmishes" that have occurred at least once in almost all neighborhoods, and regularly in some.

When a fight occurs, the most frequent cause is one of the "trouble trio": kids, dogs and spite fences.

In Cleveland, Mrs. C charged that Mrs. D "bopped" one of her children with a brick. During a court hearing, the air suddenly filled with flying bricks when both parties and their children began bombarding each other with bricks submitted in evidence. The judge was shocked.

A Detroit dog barked almost continuously for weeks, said a neighbor with bloodshot eyes and a nervous tic. Finally, the woman worked up enough courage to yell, "Shut up." Whereupon her friendly neighbor lady leaped out of her house screaming, "She doesn't have to. I taught her to bark."

Neighborhoods is nice, most people agree. However, the compulsion to be neighborly sometimes cancels out common sense. This mechanism is evident in the following poem taken from Royal Neighbors magazine:

"I do not know my neighbor's name.—If Margaret, Maud or Sally;—I only know her friendly smile.—Comes daily from the alley."

Neighborhoods isn't always a satisfying experience. A Moline, Ill., woman would agree. She caught her big toe in the tailpipe of a neighbor's Volkswagen that she was pushing last summer. The car rolled backward and rammed a retaining wall. The good neighbor was leaving and pushing against the back of the VW when her toe found its way into the tailpipe. The Fire Department saved off the tailpipe and took the woman, tailpipe on her toe, to a doctor who freed her throbbing digit and bandaged it.

Practical neighborliness characterizes the nationwide "Fish" movement that challenges family isolation. There are 200 Fish groups, named after the symbol worn by Christians to identify themselves to other Christians during Roman persecutions.

Members help neighbors in trouble. "Common sense, love and concern are the only qualifications for volunteers," says Mrs. Arthur Greer, a member of the Houston, Texas, Fish committee.

The Houston group has helped invalids move, tended babies while their mothers were driven to hospitals, and helped a woman get financial and legal help after her husband deserted her.

The Fish movement practices the best formula for combating isolation and keeping your neighbors friendly: Be friendly. The same idea is expressed in the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

6th annual tour. Bigger and better than ever! 4 Islands, bonus features. Joe and Mary Salisbury of Magic Carpet Travels will be your hosts.

5 NIGHTS IN WAIKIKI, arriving Feb. 7th at 1:15 p.m. after connecting jet coach flights from Twin Falls that morning. Rooms at Luxurious ILIKAI HOTEL overlooking the yacht harbor. While here we've arranged for you a CRUISE THROUGH PEARL HARBOR, a NIGHT IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC (Vivid Dinner, Show at Polynesian Cultural Center) and tour around S.E. end of Oahu to OCEANIC SEA-LIFE PARK! Free Time is allowed for surf, sun, picnicking, golfing, fishing, browsing, or anything you wish.

3 NIGHTS ON KAUAI, the "Garden Isle" at romantic POIPIU BEACH HOTEL. 20 minutes West of Honolulu, by Jet, this is the oldest of the Island Chain. Trip to Waimea, "Grand Canyon of the Pacific" via Nawiliwili Harbor, Kōlea Plantation and Moai's amazing Cactus Gardens to Kalalea Lookout for breathtaking view of the Na Pali Cliffs and the ocean 4,000 feet below! Waialua River Boat trip to Fern Grotto, where singing of "Ke Kani Nei Au" will thrill you with the deep sentiment of these lovely Island people. Time for leisure at secluded Poipiu Beach.

MAUI, the "VALLEY ISLE" entertains us for a day with Haleakala; Ion Valley "Yosemite of the Pacific" and along Maui's "Amalfi Drive" to beautiful Kaanapali Beach and new Sheraton Maui for lunch. Then Lahaina, Old Whaling Center. Afternoon flight on to . . .

HAWAII, ON THE BIG ISLAND OF HAWAII, for 2 nights at delightful new ORCHID ISLE HOTEL, on edge of Hilo, 2nd largest city of the Islands. You'll stroll through anthurium nurseries, and gardens that make this truly the orchid Capital of the World! Then to Hawaii National Park where recent and ancient Volcanoes erupted, and have lunch at Volcano House overlooking Kilauea Crater. Then through gigantic treefern forests and the Chain of Craters Road to the Black Sand Beach at Kalapana.

HOME ON THE 10th DAY, Feb. 16th—ALOHA, Nui Loa! You'll bring home memories to treasure always.

2. Golfers Magic Paradise:

Perfect retreat from work-day pressures. Perfect 1st or 2nd trip for golfers. Three delightful locations . . . 3 of the world's greatest courses. Friendly competition to challenge your best. Exciting night-life-at-every-step.

GOLFERS' INVITATIONAL

A perfect retreat from work-day pressures! A perfect first or second trip to the Island of Maui. Stay on these beautiful, world famous courses.

2 NIGHTS IN HILO by connections from Twin Falls, Boise, or your home city. Here you'll stay at the delightful new ORCHID ISLE HOTEL where you'll love the view, the pool, the dining room of the "Talking Tiki" and the "Monkey Bar." Golfing excursions across the island via Parker Ranch to Rockefeller's famous MAUNA KEA BEACH Hotel and Golf Club for fabulous buffet lunch (included) and afternoon of golf on famous course designed by Robert Trent Jones which Jack Nicklaus said is "more fun to play than any course I know."

4 NIGHTS AT ROYAL LAHAINA on the spectacular "Valley-Isle" of MAUI, situated between the beach and ROYAL KANAPALI Golf Course, a Jones masterpiece—site of the '64 Canada Cup match and "Wonderful World of Golf." 1 day's golf with cart and storage is included and 3 days free, but with starting times reserved.

3 NIGHTS AT WAIKIKI staying at luxurious ILIKAI Hotel overlooking Yacht Harbor and sprawling city of Honolulu. Day of "GREAT GOLF" included at MAKAHA VALLEY COUNTRY CLUB, where "the golfer's biggest hazard is the scenic splendor of Makaha Valley." Day or two free to browse Waikiki and In'i Market Place, go Deep Sea Fishing, try still another golf course, or just take it easy.

GO BY YOURSELF - IN COUPLES - OR WITH YOUR OWN GANG (A group of 8 from Aberdeen have already signed up). PLENTY OF FREE TIME FOR REST AND FUN!

WHY BOOK EARLY?

Space is limited in hotels at this busiest time of the year. Hotels will not keep booked space without names beyond mid-December. Increased demand assures filled space early. Trip will mean more with advance preparation, reading of maps and folders, and planning use of time in Hawaii.

CRITICS OF BIDS CAN LOSE BETS

If you ever got into an argument with your partner as to who went wrong in the bidding, make it a point to bet that his bidding was wrong and not that your bidding was correct.

West opened the king of hearts against the doubled three no-trump contract. South took dum-

If he had a sound opening, South wanted to know if North had never heard of a misfit and suggested that North should have quit at three clubs.

It is a pretty good rule that when a partnership goes down three tricks at a voluntary game bid that both partners contributed something to the debacle and this hand is no exception.

NORTH		EAST
♠ A Q 5 3 2	♠ K 10 8 6 4
♥ A J 6 4	♥ 10 7 3
♦ 7 5 3	♦ 10 8 2
♣ Q	♣ 10 8 2

SOUTH (D)
♠ 7	♠ 7
♥ 9 8	♥ 9 8
♦ A Q 6	♦ A Q 6
♣ K J 9 7 5 4	♣ K J 9 7 5 4

Neither vulnerable

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♠	Pass	1♠
Double	2♠	Pass	2♠
Double	3♠	Pass	3♠
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♥K

As a starter, we don't like the opening club bid. Ten point openings are not all bad, but South's strength was all in the minors, his suit was a broken one, and three of his points were represented by a queen and a jack while only four of his points were in his own suit.

As for North, we don't like his two-spade rebid. When West made his delayed take-out double, North should have redoubled. East would run out to two diamonds, North would probably try two hearts, South would go back to three clubs and North would be able to pass. Three clubs would probably be one down, but one down undoubted is a reasonable loss.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:
West North East South
1♠ 1♠ Pass 1♠
2♠ 2♠ Pass 2♠
3♠ 3♠ Pass 3♠
4♠ 4♠ Pass 4♠

Y—You, South, hold:
♠ A Q 10 7 6 5 4 3 2 ♦ K J 2 ♣ K 3 2 ♠ J 7

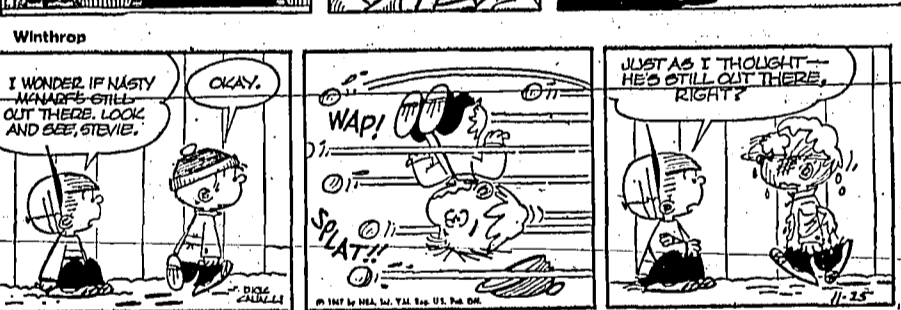

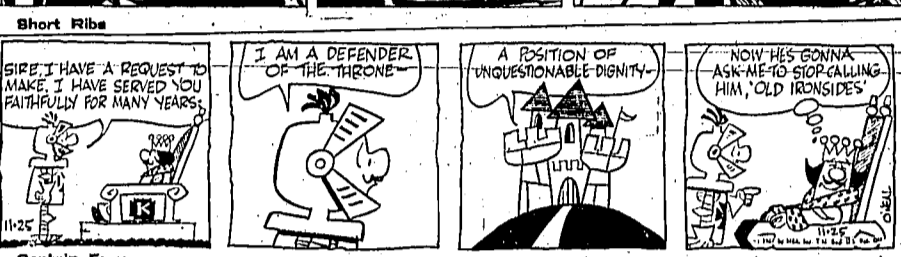

What do you do now?
A—Bid three diamonds. You have good diamond support.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North was bitter about South's opening bid. He wanted to know how anyone could play with a do partner who opened a 10 point hand and continued to bid us

Your partner continues to three no-trump. What do you do now?
A—You should have opened 1♠ and continued to bid us

ELE AND WALT DULANEY

She's Not Right But Don't Fight

Dear Ele: Would you give me a woman's opinion on this problem? When I was going steady with Sarah I gave her my class ring to wear. Later on she gave me her ring to wear. It wasn't very pretty, but it meant something as a symbol of our relationship, so I wore it on a chain around my neck. Then the chain broke without my knowing it — and no ring. I told Sarah and she said not to worry about it.

Some time later we broke up (for reasons that had nothing to do with the ring). When I asked for my ring back, Sarah said she was going to keep it because I couldn't return hers. This seems grossly unfair. If I could give back her ring, I'd do it — but I lost it in all innocence and she said "not to worry." Under the circumstances, do you think her attitude is right? — Ringless.

Dear Ringless: I think Sarah's way off base, but I doubt if my opinion will sway her stand. If you want your class ring back, I'm afraid you'll have to buy it at the price of a replacement ring. Is it really that important to you? — Ele.

WEARY OF BABYSITTING
Dear Ele: I am a 15½-year-old girl, and I am sick and tired of babysitting with my brothers and sisters. Here's just one of many examples I could give you. Tonight I asked my mother to let me go to the show. She said "yes," and then an hour later came and said, "Oh, I just remembered, your father and I are going out — you'll have to stay home with the kids."

Now when I stay home, my 10½-year-old sister and I are upstairs watching our TV, and my brothers are downstairs watching the playground. So, actually my 13-year-old brother is taking care of my 6-year-old brother and I'm watching my sister. So I asked my mother if I could take my sister to the show with me and my friends (which I hated to do, but if that was the only way I could get there, I'd do it). But my mother said "no" because my sister had a cold and she didn't want her out.

When I asked why my brother can't watch them alone (I started sitting at 12), my mother says "he's not responsible." Any advice? — Cinderella Without a Fairy Godmother.

Dear Cindy: It's embarrassing, isn't it, to cancel a date you've just made with your friends. Next time, you'd be wise to ask mom to double-check her calendar before you confirm once plans with your pals. And since you was expected of you at 13 that your brother now hears, it would be appropriate to quietly ask mom what compensations you have for being more "responsible" than he is. That question — if calmly put — may make her examine more fully the fairness of your situation. — Ele.

LOVE VIA THE MAIL
Dear Ele: Do you think there can be any such thing as falling in love by mail? For two and a half years I've been writing Johann, and now he says he loves me and wants to come to America to marry me. We have never met, even though we've been sending daily letters for the past six months. Could love happen on paper? — Air Mail Annie.

Dear Annie: I don't think an infatuation and/or genuine interest is possible, but "love" spells commitment, and that's not possible when you're both shadows to one another. If you want to arrange a meeting, do so with the "exit door" close at hand. Do not expose publicize with friends that this is a "to be engaged" encounter. Johann, in carefully composed letters, may contrast badly with Johann "live." — Ele.

RIVAL CROWDING HER
Dear Ele: I am 17 and a senior. I like a boy of the same age. We dated a lot during the summer. Then school started. Everything was fine the first week. We ate lunch together, and he always brought me home and I'd invite him in for coffee for a while. Then his girlfriend (from last year) decided she wanted him back.

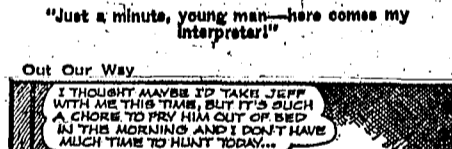

She asked him to give her a ride home because her transportation was "disrupted." I did not like the idea too much, but I didn't object and so he said OK. Well she showed up with another girl and he drove them home. The next day, she ate lunch with us and brought along a few more girls. Bob didn't mind at all (in fact you could tell he was really enjoying himself). Now every day there's Bob and about 7 girls (including me) at lunch, and he practically runs a bus after school.

We're not going steady and I'm not going to put any strings on him. I don't mind his going out with other girls, just as long as he keeps us separate. But he's begun to feel like part of a harem.

I really like Bob and don't want to lose him, but I also don't want to lose my self-respect. Can you suggest something that will let me keep both? — No Vells.

Dear No: Your rival is really crowding you. Right now she's probably doing it in the most insidious way possible. You're stuck with two losing alternatives: (a) accepting harem membership; or (b) squawking and inviting the boot as a "possessive woman." But how about my (c): you act the gracious hostess and invite some eligible fellows to join the "lunchroom room." Or, if you prefer, you pair them off, all the time telling your guy how proud you are that the girls envy his friendship! Feasible? — Ele.

A few party games to break the ice are always handy tricks for a wise hostess to have up her sleeve. Ele has a wide selection in her pamphlet, "Ele's Ice Breakers: 33 Mixer Games." HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED WANT AD
1-IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale start your advertisement with the location.

2-NEVER CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete or detailed information. This is one of the very most important aspects of any advertisement it includes the price.

3-MAKE IT EASY for the reader. Do not clutter your ad with too many telephone numbers or your name and address. You do not have regular hours. Give a brief description of your products contact you.

4-THE GREATEST READER ATTENTION can be secured for your advertisement by using the Classified Want Ad Box and costs less than any other method. It is a one-time fee for those who are advertising. Keep your name and address for the public and then you pay only for the days it is published.

5-PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know (about your offer). The answer you give will make a good classified ad.

6-CLASSIFIED readers are already interested in buying your used or new merchandise. These people have the money and are already in the market to buy. So give them every advantage you can with good ad copy.

7-WANT ADS THAT FAIL to bring satisfaction do so, not through any lack of reader interest, but because they are not carefully worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.

8-TO PLACE YOUR ADVERTISEMENT in the Twin Falls newspaper, where you reach the most potential buyers, complete name, age, address, and telephone number. Interview will be arranged in your area. All replies strictly confidential. Write to: Director, Box 8065, Boise, Idaho.

Little Hope Seen On Farm Income Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department today offered the nation's farmers little hope for a substantial increase in farm income in the coming election year.

A report prepared for delivery by Rex F. Daly, chairman of the department's Economic Outlook and Situation Board, at today's opening session of the department's annual farm outlook conference, said prospects indicate little improvement in farm returns from this year.

The report said net farm income this year will be about 10 per cent below last year. The figure was estimated at $14.8 billion compared with $16.6 billion last year.

One factor hindering income, including larger cash receipts and some increase in government payments to farmers, is expected to rise in 1968, perhaps by around a billion dollars," Daly said. "But production expenses will continue to increase and may largely offset any gains in gross income. Accordingly, income again is not expected to rise with anticipated general expansion expected for the rest of the economy.

The report said this year's drop in farm earnings came as a result of a record agricultural output, accompanied by declining prices.

The report said retail food prices are expected to rise more in 1968 than this year and perhaps a little more than the average increase of 1.5 to 3 per cent a year for the past decade.

GIVE your entire family the lasting GIFT of beautiful music

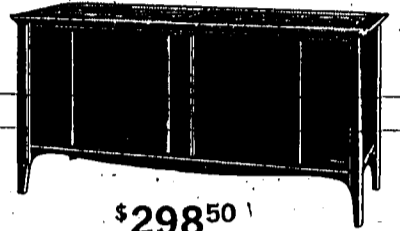

Heirloom Early American—Astro-Sonic model 3701 with 30-Watts undistorted music power output plus other fine performance features described below. Concealed swivel casters permit easy moving. Storage area for over 70 records. $398<sup>50</sup>

$349<sup>50</sup>

Advanced Magnavox acoustical system—in all models, projects sound from both the cabinet sides and front; extends thrilling stereo separation to the very width of your room. This beautiful Mediterranean Astro-Sonic model 3605 has 30-Watts undistorted music power, two 12" High-Efficiency Bass Woofers, storage for over 60 records, plus the other fine stereo features at left.

$298<sup>50</sup>

Convenient gilding top panels—in all models, give easiest access to record player and all controls without disturbing your top-of-set decorative accessories. This elegant Contemporary Astro-Sonic model 3600 has two High-Efficiency 12" Bass Woofers, 15-Watts undistorted music power plus storage area for over 70 records.

Magnificent Magnavox ASTRO-SONIC STEREO surpasses all other achievements in the re-creation of sound!

Superior in every respect, an Astro-Sonic brings you the full beauty of music—with unequalled tonal dimensions and fidelity—from your records, exciting Stereo FM, drift-free and noise-free Monaural EM, powerful AM Radio or optional Tape Recorder. This superb performance is maintained with lasting reliability because advanced Solid-State Circuitry replaces tubes, eliminates component-damaging heat. The fabulously accurate Micromatic Player with Diamond Stylus eliminates pitch distortion, banishes record and stylus wear so your records can last a lifetime. Other exclusive features such as two High-Efficiency 15" Bass Woofers plus two 1000 cycle Exponential Treble Horns (with the equivalent acoustical efficiency of 20 treble cone speakers)—provide remarkable tonal purity and realism. Choose from over 40 beautiful models—each authentic style—a fine furniture masterpiece you'll admire for years!

Compact solid-state stereo phonograph—with amazing performance actually superior to many higher-priced console makes today! Ideal wherever space is a problem. Detachable legs permit use on tables, shelves, in bookcases. French Provincial model 3002 with four speakers, 20-Watts undistorted music power; also lets your records last a lifetime! Your choice of four fine furniture styles. With Stereo FM/AM Radio—$198.50.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR GEN. LEWIS B. HENSNEY

director of Selective Service Is the U.S. Government planning to prosecute draft dodgers who flee to Canada?—Mike J.
Prudhomme, Aberdeen, Idaho

● A registrant who is a citizen of the United States is not relieved of his military obligation when he leaves the country. Failure to perform any duties required of him under the law renders him liable to prosecution. Offenders are not extraditable, however. If they return voluntarily, they will be subject to prosecution in most cases.

FOR TERESA WRIGHT

Are you planning to resume your acting career?—D. N. K., Atlanta
City, N. J.

● To some extent—yes, I will appear on a special taped TV version of "The Desperate Hours" this season. Then I will be in my husband Robert Anderson's new play, "I Never Sang for My Father."

FOR ART LINKLETTER

When did you find out you were adopted? Do you know your real parents' and, if so, do you ever see them?—Mrs.
Paul Absher, Frostproof, Fla.

● I found out I was adopted when I was 10 years old via a letter I saw by accident. Yes, I know my real parents, but neither they nor I attempt any contact.

FOR LADY BIRD JOHNSON

When did you first realize the nickname Lady
Bird? Do you like it?
—Mrs. E. L. Carris, Greenville, N. C.

● I've been told that when I was born, the nurse exclaimed, "She's just as pretty as a ladybird!" I have long since made peace with that nickname.

FOR SAM LEVENSON

You presented the following math problem in a panel: "How much is 50 X 1/2 plus 3?" Are you sure your answer of 103 was correct?—Mrs. Dolores
Brown, Bliss, Idaho

● The question was: "Divide 50 by 1/2 and add 3." There are 100 halves in 50. Add three to that total and you get 103.

FOR MAX McCEE,

Green Bay Packers
I understand you were a halfback in college.
Why did you make the switch to end when you signed professionally?—Mrs. Ira Tyson, Dallas, Texas

● It's true I was a tailback when played at Tulane, but I'm not much of a threat as a running back since I'm exceptionally high for [my] position. Consequently, I have to rely on finesse. In professional football, I have found that to succeed, a man can't defeat a physical superior opponent with finesse alone.

FOR DEAN MARTIN

Does it bother you to be constantly referred to as a "superdrinker"?—
Paul M. Mock, Larksville, Pa.

● No. In fact, when reporters ask me about my drinking, I tell them to "write about it anyway they want." Believe me, some of them have great imaginations. They deserve all the credit for my alleged drinking ability.

FOR CAROL LAWRENCE

Both being famous singers, do you and your husband, Robert Coulet, have any special problems?—Mrs. C. O. Perry, Santa Rosa, Calif.

● At the risk of sounding too flippant, I would say the only "special" problem we might have would be me singing baritone and Bob singing soprano. But that isn't true in our case. I guess we're afflicted with the "typical, everyday problems" that any married couple encounter.

FOR SEN. GEORGE MCGOVERN

How do you know the fighting in South Vietnam will end if we stop our bombing and withdraw, as you suggested on TV?—Mrs.
W. M. Arnold, Hot Springs, S. D.

● I have not advocated a sudden withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam, but I do believe we should stop the bombing of the North as part of intensified efforts to get peace talks started. There is, of course, no way of knowing that the enemy would respond, but we certainly should make every possible move toward the bargaining table before we get further involved in this war.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Kid Brother: There are pluses and minuses to being the younger brother of Dick Van Dyke. "The advantage is that he got me started on his show," says Kid Brother Jerry. "The disadvantage is in trying to get out from under that." Jerry feels that every kid brother has the problem of standing on his own. "Wherever you go, your older brother has been there first. If the older one happens to be a star, then the younger one has a chance to look good. Maybe." When people compare him with Dick, Jerry likes to bring up their father. "Dad was a natural professional entertainer, but he's unkind to me and I put together."

Whose Fault? One of the world's greatest racing car drivers, Sterling Moss, retired after a near-fatal accident in 1961, which left his left side "permanently paralyzed," according to doctors. Moss, however, overcame the paralysis. Then he wondered—why did I crash? He had no recollection of what happened. "I thought I might return to racing," he said. "If it was a malfunction of the car and not a lapse of my own. A hypnotist told me I could be made to recall the moments before the crash. But," he added, "hypnotists might also bring back my paralysis. I decided to leave well enough alone."

Troubled Hearts When medical men agree, it's usually about bad news for the fast of us. Now the American Medical Association, the American Heart Association, and the U.S. Public Health Service are unanimous on a long-suspected bit of gloom: the link between heart disease and high cholesterol levels is definite. You can lower cholesterol and live longer by cutting down on the animal fats and dairy products you eat. But there's good news, too: doctors have two new drugs (Choloxin and Atomid-S) that lower cholesterol by acting "like a detergent flowing through blood vessels."

Father of the Bride Now that Lynda Bird is safely set to marry Marine Capt. Charles Robb, her father the President would like everyone to cut out those jokes about George Hamilton. He claims he never called the actor, "Charlie," as all the stories have it, and he's telling people now that he actually thought "very highly" of Lynda's wave ex-sultor.

Birds and Beasts As the Bible says, "The lion shall lie down with the lamb..." In Dumbarton, Scotland, a golden Labrador named Hypo has been lying down with these little budgerigar birds for two years now—and hasn't ruffled a feather. Yet.

Can We Cut Our Soaring Crime Rate?

Some 370 crimes are committed each hour, says the nation's foremost law officer, and unless we act now, responsible citizens soon may fear to walk our streets

By J. EDGAR HOOVER, Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation

RECENTLY a police official of a metropolitan city said, "If I could lock up just 750 people in our town—and keep them locked up—we could lick our crime problem overnight."

He knew it wasn't that simple. For while the continuing nationwide increase in crime—up again last year by a disturbing 11 percent—is mostly the work of a hard-core criminal element, that is only a start.

For one thing, otherwise law-abiding people are influenced by that hard core to commit crime themselves or to aid and abet criminals. They do so in a number of ways: by thoughtlessly tolerating and excusing criminal behavior; by looking the other way; by "not getting involved"; by shrugging off the use of legal technicalities to pamper known criminals.

When such attitudes prevail, the hard core tends to expand. To stop that expansion by putting the hard core out of business permanently is the dream of law-enforcement officials everywhere.

Like any responsible citizen, I ask myself: Are free Americans doomed to be so fearful of criminals that they dare not venture out of their homes at night or even sleep in them with any sense of security? Must we give up and let hoodlums take over this great nation, built by decent people?

I know I am not alone when I say no—never! But how do we join forces to roll back the tide of crime before it engulfs us? Does the citizen have a part to play in restoring law and order to the nation and the neighborhood?

He does indeed. He owes it to himself and his family, first of all, to know the facts about crime. It's not just a question, as some contend, of more people, therefore more crime. Far from it. There has been a 67 percent rise in arripus crime since 1960. In that same period, our population increased only nine percent.

Last year this nation was subjected to almost 3¼ million crimes—370 an hour. Those were reported crimes, mind you. The actual count, including crimes that go unreported, is certainly much higher. But for those we know about, the figure of 370 per hour represents: one murder, three forcible rapes, 26 aggravated assaults, 18 robberies, 186 burglaries, 102 larcenies ($50 or more), and 64 car thefts.

What does it add up to? Financially, crime costs us an over-all $27 billion a year. But to my mind the highest cost of all is the one we're paying in crime-oriented youth. In 1965, for example, 71 percent of all arrests for serious crimes were in the 11-to-24 age group—although this group comprises only 24 percent of the population! The highest arrest rate for all crimes, especially serious crimes against property, was in the 15-to-17 age bracket.

Appalling? Yes, but even youngsters are bound to be influenced in the wrong direction when they see hardened criminals literally getting away with murder. These boys and girls may be unschooled in some cases, but they are not fools. Many come to the belief that in our society crime pays better all the time, while the risk to the criminal continues to recede. To get any other kind of message across to them, we are going to have to do a lot more than shake our heads sadly over the

Science vs. Crime

■ The FBI's National Crime Information Center is a vital and revolutionary scientific aid to crime detection which utilizes high-speed, random-access search techniques and electronic telecommunications systems.

The computerized information system is designed to complement the development of local and state computerized information systems. Regular telephone and telegraph lines connect the network.

At the present time, well over 300 police agencies are tied into the FBI's computer center and this number is rapidly expanding. More than 300,000 active records are presently stored in the FBI center. These records include data regarding wanted fugitives, stolen vehicles, stolen guns, and items of stolen property which are identified by serial number. Presently the FBI's Crime Center averages approximately 15,000 transactions each day.

It has been demonstrated that an officer on the street can contact his local department and receive results of an NCIC check in less than 90 seconds.

The FBI is supporting research into a scanning device to read and classify inked fingerprints for computer storage, thus further extending the instantaneous usefulness of the NCIC system. As costs of video-band transmission are reduced, the relaying of photographs, mug shots, and prints may become possible in seconds.

In the future there may be teleprinters mounted on the dashboard of patrol cars to get information to police officers when they need it: immediately.

Rochester police have experimented with a new film process. It enables them to take night photos—without a flash.

brutal statistics I have cited.

We are going to have to bear in mind, first and foremost, that the effect of crime on the community is not only the cost in life and property but more importantly the erosion of moral fiber. Its presence tends to set an intolerably low standard of behavior.

We must demand from those who represent us in the community, state, and nation the elimination of the sharp contrast between penalties provided by law and those actually imposed by some of our courts. If a criminal know for certain that committing robbery with a gun guaranteed him a stiff stretch in jail instead of a suspended sentence with probation, I'm sure we would see a rapid drop in that particular type of crime. And so on down the list of serious offenses.

We will have to take a much harder look at the arguments for abolition of the death penalty. Many police officials feel that wiping out that stark sanction has led felons to choose killing rather than capture because they know that, even if caught and given a life sentence, most likely they will serve only a fraction of it.

In this connection it will pay us in a surging crime situation—to take an even harder look at guns. As an instrument of death, the gun is six times more deadly than all other weapons combined.

The FBI's Uniform Crime Reports—which are made up of statistics supplied voluntarily by law-enforcement agencies throughout the nation—reveal that shootings cause death 13 percent of the time, but all other weapons together cause death only 2 percent of the time. Part of the reason is, of course, that the criminal with a gun can easily kill on impulse.

Of 335 policemen slain in the last seven years, 323 met death from criminal guns. As a sidelight it is worth noting that those killings of law officers included 11 criminals previously charged with murder and 179 previously charged with an assaultive-type crime.

If that doesn't hit home hard enough, remember that last year more than 50,000 Americans were killed or assaulted with guns.

For these reasons, I'm unalterably persuaded that we must act without further delay to ban the mail-order purchase of guns, to control interstate transport of them, and to require and enforce local gun registration.

Gun-control legislation, once enacted, can be swiftly translated into crime-control action by the FBI's new National Crime Information Center, a computerized facility inaugurated at the Department of Justice in Washington last January. If a repository of pertinent information regarding firearms is established, it will become possible to get investigative leads for the tracing of stolen guns and those used in crime into the hands of policemen anywhere in the country in a matter of seconds.

Accelerating use of the NCIC data banks by local police departments, implemented by an increase of anticrime computer links at the state level, is one of the most promising factors we have to rely on in the struggle to come to grips with modern crime on its own ruthless terms. In my opinion, the new computerized center, already operating effectively within one year of conception, has come into being not a moment too soon.

For with its usual misguided re-nous, crime, too, has made technological advances. Lethal weapons of unlimited range are its for the asking. Jet-age transportation makes it possible to commit crime far from home base and be back in time to establish an alibi but airtight bill. Communications for nefarious purposes are instantaneous and, for the most part, impregnable. Criminal conspiracies, once elaborate and clandestine in manner and setting, now are casually planned through the sanctity of modern communications circuits in utmost privacy.

But even with the NCIC and other scientific advances in crime detection, there remains much that a determined citizenry can do to help us cut the crime rate drastically.

As a starter we can reduce the opportunities for crime. That would include the unselfish cooperation of the business community in helping to secure its own enterprises.

Householders and car owners, too, can help thwart crime by making sure all doors and windows are locked when they should be, and by not leaving keys in the ignition or cars unlocked.

We must provide every community with enough policemen of the highest quality, equipped with up-to-date apparatus of every kind for rapid, hard-hitting response to criminal activity. We need laws that help rather than hinder police in their efforts to protect honest citizens, laws that honor the freedom and security of the law-abiding rather than that of the criminal, laws that uphold the rights of decent people to live in peace as energetically as certain laws now uphold the "rights" of our hard-core criminal.

We need jurors who are not blind to evidence. We need judges who are out to determine guilt or innocence, rather than search for technicalities on which to exonerate.

We need all these things if we are ever going to cut our soaring crime rate; but we are not going to get them unless we have the backing of a responsible citizenry.

As an experienced New York jurist put it years ago, "It is not the criminals, actual or potential, who need a neuropathic hospital. It is the people who slobber over them in an effort to find excuses for their crime. The demand of the hour in America, above all other countries, is for jurors with conscience, judges with courage, and prisons which are neither country clubs nor health resorts." The hour he spoke of ticked, into history 41 years ago, yet the demand persists. We have waited far too long for action. We dare not wait longer.

Long ago, a well-loved school-teacher said to us one day, "I hope you learn in my classroom that the three R's stand for not only reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic, but also the three R's of Americanism—reason, respect, and responsibility."

I never forgot that. And I never forgot something else she said. "You will also find there is a fourth R that is sacred to America," she told us, "one that you will need to achieve true happiness and success in life. It is religion."

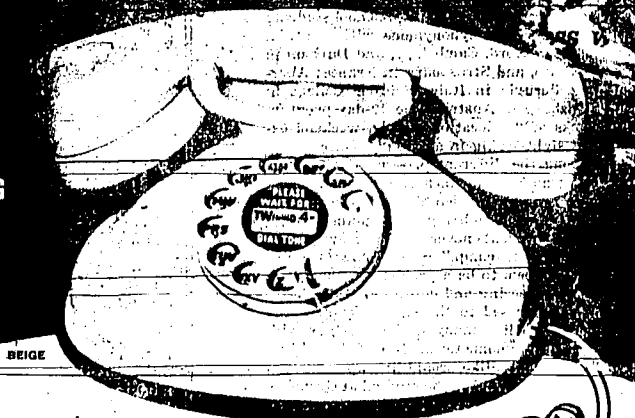

The reason I have always remembered her words is that a long life convinces me she was right, and that until we re-establish more securely in the home, school, and church our nation's primal link with the Source of all law and good citizenship, no remedy is going to avail us against crime.

For as the Bible says, "Unless the Lord build the house, those who build it labor in vain." ♦

Here's how thousands of American

By CLAIRE SAFRAN

WHILE EVERYONE else is sniffing the air for the first hint of snow, tens of thousands of American students are poring over catalogues and making plans to spend next summer in Europe—without their parents.

This even includes high-schoolers. A wide array of plans to work, study, or travel abroad has long been available to college students. Now such nonprofit organizations as the American Institute for Foreign Study (AIFS) will take youngsters at 16, provide an American schoolteacher as chaperone, and charge approximately the going rate for a summer-at-camp.

With the costs of these tours coming down, the demand has soared. By February or March, a place on a student tour to Europe may be as difficult to come by as a decent cheeseburger once you arrive there.

From April to June in 1967, more than 60,000 youngsters between the ages of 15 and 19 applied for passports to use last summer. In the same three months, a grand total of 180,810 applicants identified themselves as "students" at the passport department.

What happens to traveling teens after they've streamed

For these high-school girls who went from Durham, N.C., to Durham, England, the surprises began with breakfast.

Their Teacher

teens are taking advantage of the experience no classroom can match off the planes and boats? "The first thing they do is take a look at the foreign plumbing," says Ernest Kolowrat of AIFS. "Next they go into cultural shock."

The waves of surprise work both ways, touching both visitors and the local population.

Last summer in Perugia, Italy, a bus carrying an AIFS group lumbered to a stop at the bottom of a hill. A long-haired blonde put one foot out of the bus door, then glanced around and drew back in some panic. Some 5,000 Italian boys, well aware that the bus had to unload at the bottom of the hill, were noisily waiting for a close-up look at the "foreigners."

A teacher-chaperone from Durham, N.C., Mrs. Mary Phillips, watched her students go wide-eyed in Durham, England, when they were served baked beans and tomatoes—for breakfast.

And on London's famed Carnaby Street, Karim Smith and Ellie Spencer of Racine, Wis., gawked at England's "new" look—padded-shoulder suits fresh from the warehouses where they've been hanging since the 1930s.

Inevitably, the cultural shock wears off. The AIFS students, for instance, spend their mornings studying the language, culture, and history of whatever country they're in, with a teacher of that country. Afternoons, there are conversational classes, dips at the local beaches, or field trips to the places they've been studying. Evenings, the luckier ones get a chaperone's okay for a date with a European boy or girl they have somehow met.

For a group in Vichy, the feeling of strangeness ended after a trip to the village of St. Silvestre, decimated by two wars. The students clambered off a bus to squint in the French sunlight at a shop sign that read: "Founded 1563—now under new management."

Then they gathered in the cobbled village square. In shirtsleeves and suspenders, the ruddy-faced mayor of St. Silvestre greeted them. In halting English, he said, "You come from a great country with great cities and big houses. We are only a small town with small streets and old buildings. We are a small people, but we hope you all have a big time."

The students had come from New London, Conn.; San Mateo, Calif.; and dozens of different points in between. One young girl went to find this warm welcome partway around the world. A boy said, "Well, I guess the French aren't so very special." Then, grinning at his shocked fellow students, he added, "They're an awful lot like us."

"If they learn that lesson," says Kolowrat, "the trip to Europe has been time and money well spent." Most of the students, he points out, do learn it. As a high-school senior from Poughkeepsie, N.Y., advises other students: "The following three items must be packed with more care than your best suit of clothes. They are open eyes, open ears, and an open mind."

Many high schools and colleges in the U.S. think highly of the more formal lessons taught abroad. In some cases, they will give regular school credits for a course in foreign language or civilization. Most students acquire a speaking knowledge of a foreign language which would take years of U.S. academic study. "We learn not only as classroom study," one girl explained, "but as a matter of survival."

Although the number of student-group tours are in the hundreds, they all break down into three basic types: sight-seeing tours, summer-study sessions, and plans for the young student to live with a foreign family—or combinations of.

The AIFS plan, for example, takes high-school students to foreign campuses. It are synonymous with tradition and higher education. Oxford, Cambridge, and Durham in England; Dijon, Tours, and Strasbourg in France; Aberdeen in Scotland; Perugia in Italy; Schiller College in Germany; and Salzburg in Austria. The 40-day program includes four weeks of "on-location" study, weekend excursions, and also sight-seeing in a second country.

Priced to vary among the different programs, the basic fee for the AIFS plan is $740, including round-trip jet fare from New York. For incidentals and personal expenses, the student is urged to bring a minimum of $150.

"Many of the AIFS students never have been away from home before, not even to camp," says Kolowrat. "But homesickness doesn't seem to be a problem, probably because they are so busy seeing and doing new things."

Once they've been exposed to the sights, sounds, and tastes of another way of life, many students return with a new outlook on their own home town. Most of them, high-school and college students alike, would line up with Jean Bartleson of Bellingham, Wash., who studied at Grenoble, France, last summer and now says, "Earning to live as a European has given me an appreciation of life in the U.S. This trip has been the experience of a lifetime." ♦

A decade ago I gave the Gibbons
A pewter pitcher bedecked with ribbons.
They gave it in time to the Wannamakers,
Who promptly slipped it to the Bakers.
The Bakers, in one of their Yuletide dithers,
Wrapped it and gave it to the Smithers.
One pewter pitcher—and-let's admit
It's certainly been around a bit.
When the Smithers slipped it to me at last,
They gave me a present with a past!

The president of a college decided to take an active role in recruiting new members for the school's football team. After touring high schools around the country, he finally returned to his own campus and called in his coach.
"How did you make out?" the coach asked.
"Well," replied the president, "I saw one team that went through a 15-game schedule unbeaten, untied, and unscored on. The funny thing about it was that their line averaged only 155 pounds, their

Now...Denture Invention

For people with both "uppers" and "lowers"

The big difference between natural teeth and dentures is in performance. Natural teeth are held solidly in place by living connective tissue. Without connective tissue, even the most expensive dentures may slip and rock. Gums often get raw and sore. Constant rubbing may cause serious bone damage. Eating can be slow, painful. You speak less clearly. You have not laugh for fear of dentures dropping.

Now chemists have discovered an artificial connective membrane—FIXODENT. It connects dentures with gums and mouth surfaces. It is immediately effective for both uppers and lowers. FIXODENT's elastic membrane absorbs the shock of biting and chewing —helps protect gums from bruising and irritation. You eat faster—bite, harder, without pain—enjoy your food more. Eat hard-to-chew foods—steaks, fruits—prevent "denture malnutrition," a problem of older people. FIXODENT helps you speak clearer, faster, more clearly. When dentures slip, you hold them in place with tongue and cheek muscles that ache. FIXODENT helps prevent stains.

The special pencil-point dispenser spots FIXODENT with precision—no coating over. Often lasts "round-the-clock." It even resists hot drinks. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get special FIXODENT at all drug counters.

Now Possible To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop Itching, Relieve Pain in Most Cases.

Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases—to stop burning itch, relieve pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain and itching, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

The answer is Preparation H—there is no other formula like it for hemorrhoids. Preparation H also soothes inflamed, irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

GI "Swamp Rats" of the Mekong Delta

A MUD-CAKED platoon of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division reconnoitered near Rach Kien in the Mekong Delta last spring, knowing each flooded-rice-paddy and tangled mangrove forest they passed might harbor Viet Cong.

But their most immediate enemy was the Delta itself, hundreds of square miles of swamp, veined by two major rivers and scores of minor ones, vital supply routes both for VC guerrillas and Saigon.

For 2nd Lt. Melvin E. Smith, platoon leader, it had been a harrowing first combat mission through an area filled with alligators, snakes, leeches, and malarial mosquitoes. Now his platoon faced a swift current. Smith ordered one man to swim across the river, which he would tie to a mangrove on the opposite bank. The GI succeeded against tidal currents, and the platoon began fording, holding onto the taut rope.

Suddenly, one man's grip loosened, and he was swept downstream. Soldiers ran into shallow water to grab him but were sucked down to their hips in mud. Smith slung his boots and gear, dived into the brownish water, and swam to the man; struggling together, they made it safely to the other bank.

Before the crossing was completed, Smith twice more dived into the river to save men from being lost in the treacherous current. Later, he got his first taste of combat in a fire-fight with a VC ambush group, but with a wry grin Smith still says—"I think I'll remember that river crossing most of all."

In the strange war in Vietnam, nothing is stranger than that in the Mekong Delta, long a stronghold of the VC, whose extortion "taxing" has driven many farmers out of the Vietnamese rice bowl.

The 9th Infantry has been in the Delta about a year, chiefly trying to adapt to the problems of riverine warfare, which the U.S. Army has not fought since the Civil War.

When his howitzers fired helplessly in mud, Capt. John A. Beeler solved the problem by borrowing Navy barges and welding the big guns to the deck; when river patrol boats snagged shells on submerged jungle tangle, the Army imported air-cushion craft which, above river water, a layer of air, when they hit, and run river boats were needed; GI took to air boats, such as those used in the Florida Everglades. When there was no firm land for troops to establish permanent camps, the Navy moved in barracks ships as "motel islands," complete with movies and PXs. When patrols in the Plain of Reeds, a vast waist-deep marsh blanketed by tall knife-sharp grass, continually lost direction because of the "desert sameness" of the terrain, helicopters guided them to compass points. And when ordinary howitzers could not wash off the sticky Delta slimes, fireboat hoses blasted the gook off.

Even stranger are the personal experiences of the "swamp rats."

Sgt. Marvin Zetocha tripped on a hidden nylon cord while patrolling near Tan Tru. "I thought I was dead," he says, "because as soon as I hit it, they thought I was a VC booby trap." But no—Zetocha investigated and found a trap, which in the Delta means more than a foot long, had charged up and connecting wires.

Sp/4 Stanley Trinidad was standing muddy underbrush near Rach Kien when he pushed aside a palm frond and found himself face-to-face with a VC aiming an American rifle at him. "I jumped into a pool, holding my breath," Trinidad says, "but I had to act quick. I kept my head under water and stuck my rifle to the surface and fired. When I couldn't hold my breath any longer, I popped up to see what had happened."

Trinidad had recorded the first enemy kill from a submerged position, a usual even in the unusual Mekong Delta.

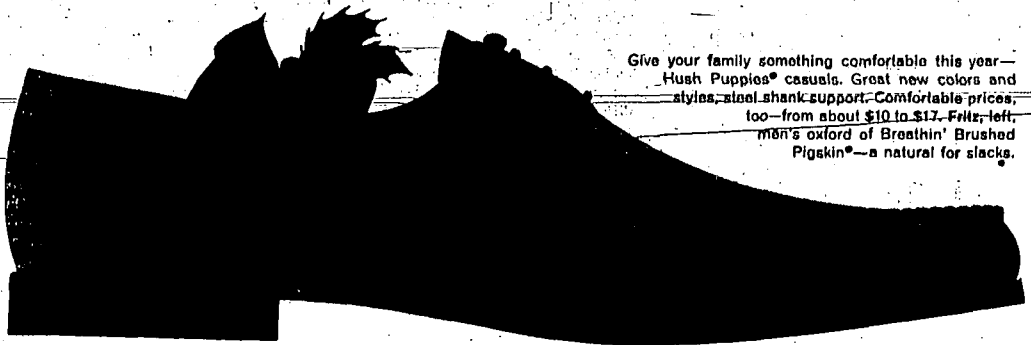

Helicopters leave U.S. and South Vietnamese troops on patches of earth in swampy Delta, long a guerrilla bastion.

Sex— handle with care

Half of all teen-age brides are pregnant at the altar. Students agitate for "sexual freedom." Old codes crumble before a tide of sex-obsessed movies, books, magazines, even tv commercials. And between parents and young people a gap opens that neither seems able to bridge. Sex is the silent battlefield of the generations.

"They don't understand," says the boy or girl. "They don't understand," echo the parents.

And both are right. Yet both look for understanding, as the young person flounders in his revolt, and his elders cling to standards that once protected the home. Sex is natural, wonderful, God-given. But it can also be destructive, unless handled with care.

This frank new booklet offers deep insights for both generations. It helps you evolve a meaningful Christian approach to sex and marriage. It may help solve some of your problems—to find understanding between generations, or between partners. It's free; send for it.

Candy for Holiday Giving

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Making quality candy is an art requiring much patience and skill. Special friends on your holiday gift list will appreciate so personalized a gift as homemade candy. Gift wrap some pieces in colorful, festive paper squares or set in bonbon cups to adorn your boxes or dishes of homemade gift candy. Also, include copies of these recipes.

Walnut Vanilla Caramels

- 1 can (14½ oz.) evaporated milk
- 2 cups sugar
- 1½ cups light corn syrup
- 1 cup butter
- 4 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 cup finely chopped walnuts

1. Put the first four ingredients into a heavy 8-qt. saucepan. Insert candy thermometer; cook and stir over high heat until thermometer registers 210°F.
2. Reduce heat and continue cooking, stirring constantly, to 248°F. Immediately remove from heat and remove thermometer. Mix in extract and nuts; stir as little as possible.
3. Pour into a buttered 9-in. square pan. (Do not scrape saucepan.) Cool until firm.
4. Turn out onto a wooden board; if candy sticks to pan, put over heat for a few seconds and invert. Using a long sharp knife, cut with a sawing motion into squares; wrap pieces.

About 2½ lbs. caramels

Chocolate Nougat

- 2 cups sugar
- ¼ cup light corn syrup
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ cup (about 2) egg whites
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon almond extract
- 2 oz. (2 sq.) unsweetened chocolate, melted
- ¼ cup candied cherries, chopped
- ¼ cup toasted blanched almonds, chopped

1. Line an 11x7-in. pan with aluminum foil and butter it; set aside.
2. Combine the sugar, syrup, and water in a 1½-qt. saucepan; stir until sugar is moistened. Wash down crystals from sides of pan with a pastry brush dipped in water. Cover and bring to boiling.
3. Uncover, wash down any crystals, and insert candy thermometer. Boil without stirring until the thermometer registers 270°F.
4. While syrup is cooking, beat egg whites with salt until stiff, not dry, peaks are formed. When syrup reaches the right degree, set aside to let bubbles subside. Wash crystals from pouring side and pour syrup over egg whites in a steady stream, beating constantly until all the syrup is added.

5. Using a wooden spoon, stir in extract, chocolate, cherries, and nuts. Beat by hand until mixture will fall in large chunks.

6. Turn into prepared pan and level mixture. Cover. Let stand overnight before cutting. Cut into pieces and wrap each. About 1½ lbs. nougat

Fudge Supreme

- 3 cups packed light brown sugar
- 1 cup milk
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- Few grains salt
- ½ oz. (½ sq.) unsweetened chocolate, grated
- ¼ cup heavy cream
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup chopped walnuts

1. Mix the first four ingredients in a heavy 8-qt. saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved.
2. Increase heat and bring to boiling. Wash down crystals from sides of pan with a pastry brush dipped in water. Insert candy thermometer. Cook and stir to 240°F., washing down crystals from sides of pan as needed and changing water each time.
3. Remove from heat and remove thermometer. Add the chocolate and beat vigorously about 3 minutes. Add cream gradually while continuing to beat, then beat in the extract and nuts until mixture has stiffened. Quickly turn into a buttered 9-in. square pan; spread evenly. Set aside to cool. Cut into squares.

About 3 lbs. fudge

Maple Pralines

- 1 cup maple-blended syrup
- 2 cups confectioners' sugar
- ½ cup undiluted evaporated milk
- Few grains salt
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1½ cups broken pecans

1. Mix the first five ingredients in a heavy saucepan. Bring to boiling; insert a candy thermometer. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until thermometer registers 234°F.
2. Remove from heat and remove thermometer. Add extract and nuts; stir until mixture begins to thicken.
3. Set over a pan of hot water. Quickly drop mixture by spoonfuls onto aluminum foil or buttered waxed paper. Cool until set, then wrap. About 1 lb. pralines

COATS OF ARMS
IN THE ARCHIVES OF THE SANSON
INSTITUTE

READ HOW THE SANSON INSTITUTE HAS PRESERVED THE RECORDS FROM OVER 20 EUROPEAN COUNTRIES

In 1860, Mr. William Hubert Reddon of Sheffield, England began a library of coats of arms. This collection of books, written in the medieval language of the "Heraldic" was brought to the United States and from this collection the archives of the Sanson Institute of Heraldry in Boston was born. Representatives of the Sanson Institute are constantly searching for still older sources and additional reference volumes in order to revive interest in the art of heraldry and its meanings. A trip to Holland, a chance find in Brittany, a visit to a small village library in northern Italy... all have contributed to the compilation of what is recognized as one of the most complete Heraldic libraries in existence. The Sanson Institute research staff has been trained to translate accurately and correctly the medieval heraldic language and to interpret authentically the meanings and descriptions of these Coats of Arms. Modern technological advances were called upon to execute the monumental task of attaining the ability to transcribe, draw, and catalogue 500,000 names and Coats of Arms, as well as their interpretations and reference sources. Many of our reference books are centuries old (some dating back as far as the 1600's). The Sanson Institute, through its knowledge of heraldic-topographical disciplines by successful formulation a coat of arms applicable to a surname exactly the same as yours or an older form of that surname from which your present name may have emerged. Utilizing their highly skilled and specialized personnel to give meaning to the knowledge which has come down from the Middle Ages, the Sanson Institute can now give you a most descriptive and colorful coat of arms which was earlier generations distinguished persons whose surname was the same as, or an exact form of, your family name... a treasure of an antique that will be a welcome addition and conversation piece in every home.
