8 Known Dead In Bridge Collapse

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va. (AP) — The known dead from a major bridge disaster near this Ohio River community rose to eight Saturday and frantic rescue officials said the toll was almost certain to go higher.

and Civil Defense officials from Ohio and West Virginia said reports by relatives indicated at least 35 persons were unaccounted for. These were persons who were believed to have been on the bridge and have not been heard from since it plummeted into the Ohio River late Friday.

The 1,750-foot span linking Point Pleasant and Kanawha, Ohio, gave way under the combined weight of bumper-to-bumper traffic about 5 p.m. Friday. Police said some of the vehicles were heavy tractor-trailer trucks.

More than 100 skin divers from the two states arrived on the scene early Friday to probe the 40-degree water for vehicles and bodies.

Burglary Suspect Uses Wrong Exit

A burglary suspect was arrested Friday night when he attempted to make a getaway out of McVey's Inc., and fell into the waiting arms of a Twin Falls city policeman.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said Donald Keith Snelson, 35, Kimberly, was booked on first degree burglary charges at 11:15 p.m.

He said officers observed Snelson inside McVey's while making a check of the building at 161 Third Ave. W. He said the suspect attempted to hide, apparently realizing he was being observed.

He then attempted to leave by the same way he had entered, through a bathroom window on the west side of the building, and dropped down right in front of Lt. Roy Lindell who was posted at the window.

The latest group project among the prisoners in the Twin Falls County Jail cell block was interrupted Saturday night when Sheriff Paul Corder and his deputies made a surprise inspection.

4 Wounded In Saigon Shooting

SAIGON (AP) — Four persons were wounded Saturday in a shooting, blamed on Viet Cong terrorists that erupted on the stage at a concert in downtown Saigon.

Three of the four wounded were students, police said. The fourth, identified tentatively as a Vietnamese newspaperman, was treated at a hospital and released.

The shooting occurred at the Faculty of Letters, a school near Independence Palace. Several hundred young people dashed frantically for cover.

A student singer named Ngo Vung Toan, but in the stomach, was taken from the concert hall unconscious and trailing blood. Witnesses gave this account: A student singer had just finished a number and the audionce was waiting for the next performer when a woman walked onto the stage and seized the microphone.

She said the day marked a memorial for the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong, and that there were Viet Cong agents all around the building.

Toan rushed toward her and tried to take the microphone from her. At that point an unidentified man, who had accompanied the woman to the stage, pulled a gun and fired at the student. He fell to the stage and the gunman and the woman escaped in the confusion.

Ray Lincoln Proposes Plan To Idaho Legislature's Local Government Unit

BOISE (AP) — Local officials would be more responsible to taxpayers if state-imposed maximum mill levies were removed, the Idaho Legislature's Local Government Committee was told Saturday.

Rep. Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls, called the idea "an unpopular proposal," but found at least three other members of the committee shared his opinion.

Maximum mill levies in the vast number of local government units in Idaho are currently set by statute.

This condition, Lincoln said, enables local officials "to pass the buck upwards" to the legislature when faced with dissent from taxpayers.

Sen. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho Falls, agreed and said that many local officials, including school boards, county commissioners and city councils, tend to set all levies at the maximum "instead of trying to present a realistic budget."

The committee also heard a proposal from Sen. Thomas F. McAteer, D-Pocatello, that county assessors be appointed by county commissioners rather than elected.

Members of the committee, formed by the 1967 Legislature to suggest improvements in local governments and means of improving communications between state and local governments, discussed what they termed a lack of uniformity in reporting procedures from unit to unit.

Each unit, whether it be a county, city, school district, cemetery district, highway district, or mosquito eradication district, has different financial forms, said Rep. William Murphy, D-Wallace, the committee chairman.

The committee discussed a proposal to require a standard financial report to be filed by taxing units with the state auditor. No action was taken.

McAteer said he believed the interests of equalization of property assessments and equitable valuation of property could best be served by making assessors appointive and requiring certain levels of experience and education.

Rep. Harold Snow, R-Moscow, warned McAteer, however, that "we can get into trouble by getting too efficient in government; we may get too far away from the people."

Lincoln commented that appointive assessors are not likely to be any more free of political influences than an elected assessor.

"They tend to follow the politics of the men who appoint them," Lincoln said.

Rep. H. Ferd Koch, R-Boise, chairman of an Interim Tax Study Committee, said stronger rules by the State Tax Commission would be the answer to uniformity in assessments.

Koch and Murphy joined Lincoln and Hansen in support of the proposal to eliminate maximum mill levy limits. Such a measure was proposed in the 1967 Legislature, but died in the House.

Saturday's was the first meeting of the full committee.

WASHINGTON — It is good to note that Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., is asking Congress to do something about a special breed of crooks which preys on a long-neglected segment of the national community — the citizen who is not poor but who is desperately trying to maintain a home of his own.

WASHINGTON — It's time someone said a kind word about slumlords. They've been taking a terrible beating lately, particularly in this city, where the prevailing feeling seems to be that anyone who rents low-cost housing and tries to make money at it is a profiteering rat.

Canadian Taxes

Canadian government's decision to recommend income tax increases as part of a program to check inflationary pressures was long in the making. Government spending rose 10.3 per cent this year and 13.7 per cent in 1966.

istry reported it would borrow $350 million. The intention was to prepare the money market and in this the ministry was apparently successful because bond prices rose (and yields dropped) after the announcement, thus assuring the government lower cost of borrowing.

The Consumers

For reasons that are not always clear, lobbyists, unions and various other groups like to fight assorted battles in Congress in the name of the consumer. Their appeals frequently hit responsive chords on such subjects as inflation, taxes and the high cost of living.

headlines pushing consumer causes report equally poor returns in the mailbag. Perhaps one of the factors contributing to the lack of response by the consumer to appeals in his behalf is that most of the voices clamoring for consumer protection, including the CFA, are looking in the direction of federal legislation.

Luther King--The Pious Fraud

Martin Luther King has taken another giant stride toward proving himself a pious fraud. He first tried to capitalize on his fame as a fighter for racial justice in building a new force to oppose the war in Vietnam.

He says there will be continuing riots in the major cities unless his demands — not specified — are met. He says that failure to meet his unspecified, open-ended demands "may well mean that the curtain of doom will fall on American civilization."

they are well hidden behind the rhetoric of disruption. So far as I can see, his only proposals are for the random spending of more and more money for more and more programs which, more and more every time they are tried, have proved to be useless and ineffective.

Dear Mr. Spectator: See where Lloyd Webb is getting set to run for Congress after being "drafted" by a hand-picked group of local men. That word "drafted" is sure used out of place in this instance. Then, too, he's going to run if George Hansen decides to run for the Senate.

RESORT DEDICATED
KELLOGG, Idaho (AP)—A new $500,000 ski resort—the Jackass Ski Bowl—will be dedicated here Saturday by Gov. Don Samuelson and other dignitaries. But skiing won't start until next week. The three-story, $100,000 lodge and the mile-long double chair lift aren't completed, but are scheduled to be in operation by the following weekend. The resort, near this northern Idaho community on a mountain above Wardner, is near the spot where the original rich Bunker Hill mine was discovered in 1885.

CHURCH SLAMMED
BOISE (AP)—Idaho Republican Chairman John O. McMurray Saturday described Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, as a "sideshow medicine man" who will "talk economy to the conservatives and welfare to the liberals." McMurray accused Church of making only token efforts to obtain reduced military foreign aid while the house of representatives "was quietly reducing military spending by $145 million more than the Church amendment."

Church will try "to offer a cure-all for every ailment facing the country" before the 1968 election, McMurray said, "but as his record shows, Mr. Church is uncomfortable anywhere but with the far-left liberal."

DAMAGES AWARDED
BOISE (AP)—A federal jury has awarded a Boise man and his parents nearly $20,000 in a suit against Union Pacific Railroad.

The suit was in connection with a 1964 car-train accident in which three persons were killed. Daniel T. Hormaechea, of Boise, was awarded $10,000 and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Teles Hormaechea, $9,397. Hormaechea was the only survivor of four persons in a car which collided with a westbound freight.

SUIT FILED
LEWISTON, Idaho (AP)—Pros. Atty. Roy E. Mosman has filed a $75,000 damage suit against the Pacific Northwest Bell Telephone Co., alleging his personal business telephone number was not listed in the telephone book.

Mosman said his private law practice has suffered in the amount of $75,000 because the number is not available to potential and regular clients. Mosman said in his suit his personal business number had been listed for seven years, but was omitted from the current directory. He said the company refused to revise the book to include the number.

CHANGEOVER SET
ST. MARIES, Idaho (AP)—Electrical service to some 2,000 customers in this area of northern Idaho will be turned off for 1 1/2 hours Monday to permit changeover to a new Washington Water Power Co. substation. A company spokesman said Friday the outage is scheduled to last from 3:45-5:00 p.m., affecting customers here and in Calder and areas around Marble Creek, Benewah, and Cherry Creek. The St. Maries Plywood Mill will be included in the outage, the spokesman said.

Your Spine and Your Health
 By Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr

Are you satisfied with your posture? Maybe your shoulders are a little too rounded, one shoulder high, the other low. It may be that one leg is shorter than the other, the other, resulting from a tilted pelvis, too much curve in the lower spine, etc.

The spine is the backbone of posture and the position of the spine is controlled by muscles. Proper muscle tension is necessary to have good posture. This interference is caused by partial displacement of a segment of the spine. When this condition is corrected, the body resumes its natural position.

Children as well as grown ups should be examined regularly for postural defects, the same as they are checked for defects of eye disorders. Normal health is a normal condition, permitted only by a normal spine.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of scientific chiropractic, written by Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr, whose office is located at 717 Main Ave. W., Twin Falls, ID. 733-0522.)

ESCAPE THWARTED
BOISE (AP)—An escape attempt by three inmates of the Ada County jail was thwarted Saturday afternoon by Sheriff Paul Bright and two deputies. The three, all being held on federal fugitive warrants, broke out of a cell by jumping a jailer and handcuffing him, Bright said.

But as they started out the main entrance of the Ada County courthouse, Bright said, he and deputies Larry Broadbent and Warden Knox ended the flight with weapons drawn. The three were identified as Charles Mofford, 27; Gary Lyle Martin, 26 and Andrew Payne Kampe, 26. The jailer was Lyle Brace.

DIRECTOR CHOSEN
KELLOGG, Idaho (AP)—Al Nugent, senior exploration geologist for the Bunker Hill Co. here, has been appointed to the board of directors of Silver Chieftain Co. He succeeds the late Don A. DECISION DELAYED

Alternate regulations for residency requirements were discussed and Educational Planning and Research Director William Seifert was asked to meet with university presidents to prepare another report on the matter.

Unit To Decide On Dismissal Hearing

By ALLEN M. BAILEY
BOISE (AP)—The State Personnel Commission is expected to decide early next week if it will grant a new hearing on the dismissal of Dr. C. H. Kennedy, formerly Idaho's chief state meat inspector.

State Agriculture Commissioner Stanley Trenhaile asked Friday for a re-hearing one week after the commission ordered Kennedy's reinstatement and payment of his back wages. Trenhaile dismissed Kennedy last spring.

In his petition, Trenhaile said the newly-created personnel commission had ignored evidence he presented at the five-day hearing in its order to reinstate the veterinarian to his former position or a comparable one. He also claimed the commission exceeded its legal authority.

"It appears that the commission has either entirely and completely disregarded all evidence produced on behalf of the respondent (Trenhaile), or has failed to read the record, or has disbelieved each and every witness produced" at the hearing by Trenhaile, the petition contended. Trenhaile charged in the petition that Kennedy, as chief inspector, had "capriciously and arbitrarily stopped the use of artificial coloring"—an action not permitted under Idaho law.

The Personnel Commission, however, found that Kennedy's dismissal "does not relate to his misconduct, negligence or inefficiency in office." The inspection chief was fired, the commission ruled, "because of pressures placed upon Trenhaile by a segment of the meat packing industry."

35 Hungarians Found Guilty Of Embezzlement

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Thirty-five Hungarians were found guilty today of fraud, embezzlement, profiteering and illegal price increases. The stiffest punishment, eight years, was given to Ferenc Szekely, manager of a firm. His 34 codefendants received terms ranging from six months to five years. They were further sentenced to repay 1.39 million forints ($60,000 in damages) and another 400,000 forints (almost $20,000) in fines.

The verdict said the accused, who were employed in the marketing firm of a farmers' cooperative, sold articles in short supply to private craftsmen at stepped-up prices and pocketed the difference.

Dayan's Political Chances Brighten

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—Israeli war hero Moshe Dayan's chances of becoming prime minister brightened considerably last week when his maverick Rafi party voted to rejoin the ruling Mapai party. Rafi and Mapai, along with the left wing Achdut Havodah, are scheduled to meet in January to form a unified Labor party controlling 59 seats in the 120-man Knesset, or parliament. Dayan's supporters are basing their strategy on the premise that their man will pick up enough backing in the unified party to wrest the leadership away from Prime Minister Levi Eshkol or his designated successor.

Eshkol's own future is in doubt. But the feeling is that the 72-year-old prime minister will not run again. Indeed, there has been talk that Eshkol might throw his support to another war hero, Labor Minister Yigal Allon, 49, of Achdut Havodah. But patch-eyed Dayan, as defense minister and the Israeli darling of the June war, holds a lead over outspoken Allon—at least for the moment. The fight for the prime ministry has already started. Allon leveled a blistering charge against Dayan last month, accusing him of mishandling the war with the Arabs. Dayan was reported to have been furious but refused to be drawn into a public controversy. Dayan's cause also can be expected to be backed by his old mentor, David Ben-Gurion, Israel's crusty father symbol and former prime minister. Ben-Gurion, 81, broke with Mapai, the party he helped found in 1930, and formed Rafi two years ago. The new party flourished, and because of its growing power many Rafi rank and filers wanted to go it alone rather than rejoin Mapai. General elections are not scheduled until 1969. In Israeli politics that is several light years away.

U.S. Still Firm In Europe

BERLIN (AP) — U.S. Ambassador George C. McGhee said Saturday that despite Vietnam the United States stands as firm and committed as ever in Europe and Berlin, armed with 7,000 nuclear weapons.

McGhee, who attended the White House wedding last week and talked with President Johnson, said that while high Washington officials give much attention to Vietnam they give even more to Europe.

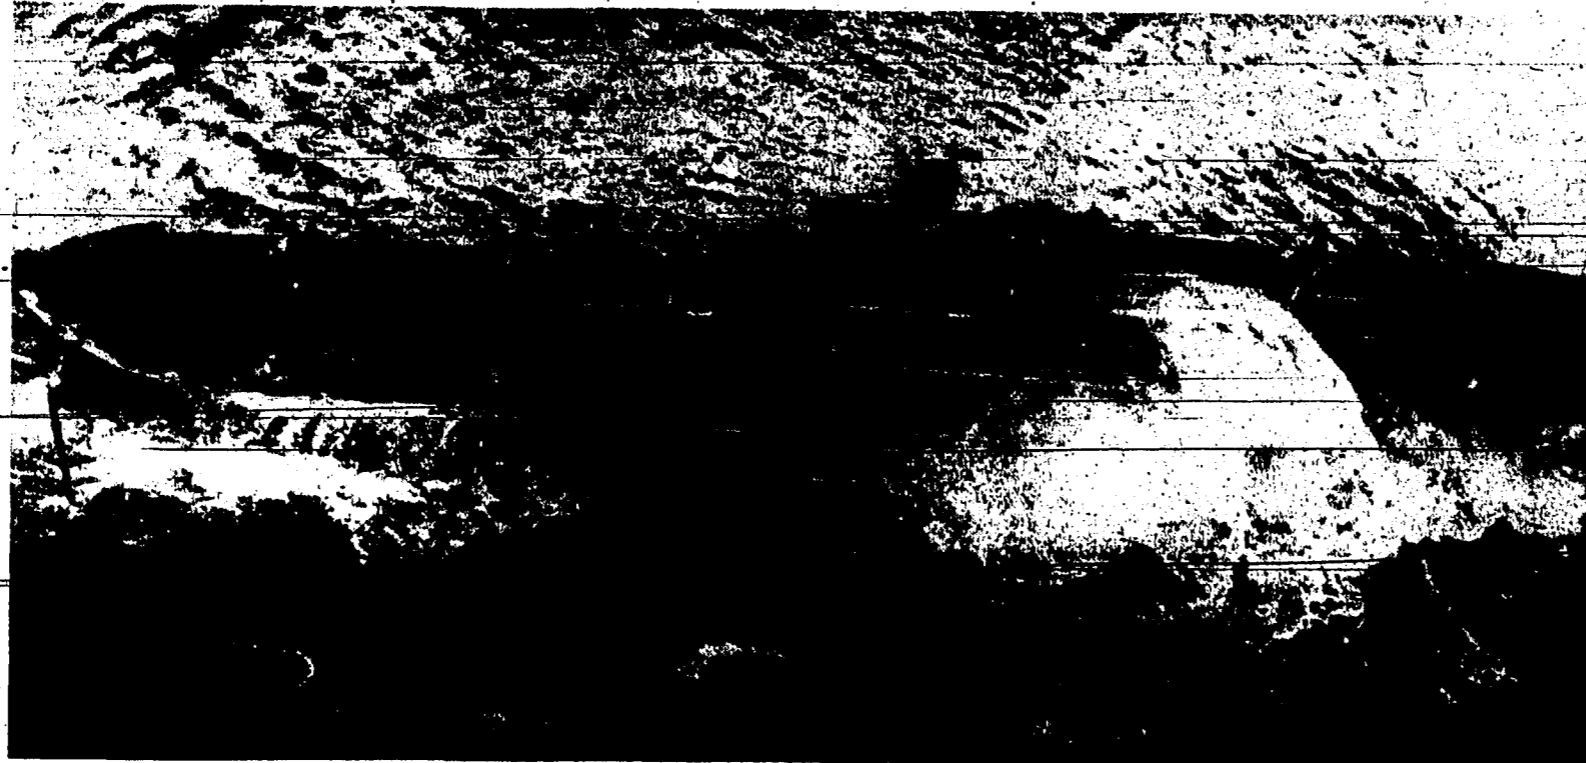

"Let there be no mistake about it: We continue to be committed in Berlin. And in the same way, we continue to be committed in Europe," McGhee said in a speech to the American Chamber of Commerce in West Berlin.

"A quarter of a million Americans stand guard every day over Europe's eastern ramparts. They are armed with 7,000 nuclear weapons," the ambassador added.

"We have no plans to alter our forces in Europe except through the limited redeployment plan previously announced and now approved by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. We can maintain our forces here—at the same time we meet our goals in Vietnam.

"The American security commitment to Europe through NATO is as firm and reliable today as when it was first made in 1949."

Auto Workers Are Hoping For Labor Peace

DETROIT (AP) — After spending the last half of 1967 at the bargaining table, the United Auto Workers and the Big Three automakers today looked forward to what they hope will be three years of labor peace in the automobile industry.

The union and General Motors Corp. completed on Friday writing their contract, the last but the biggest of the UAW's new three-year national contracts with the major car makers.

More than 100 of the 134 local plant agreements at GM were still unsettled, but many are expected to be worked out now that the national contract has been put together.

The UAW's international executive board will meet Sunday to decide on a January strike deadline for local contracts which supplement the national pact.

Bargainers for both sides emerged Friday after a 30-hour negotiating session, unusual because there was no immediate strike threat, and announced they had come to terms on a contract paralleling the record agreements won by the union at Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp.

The Big Three contracts will give some 643,000 workers close to $1 an hour more in wages and fringe benefits over the next three years on top of the old Big Three hourly level of $4.70.

The agreements will increase labor costs about 6 per cent a year. The GM contract covers 380,000 workers. Its wage provision, retroactive to Oct. 16, provides a 20 cents an hour across-the-board increase with an additional 30 cents hourly for skilled workers.

Wages will increase by 3 per cent in each of the last two years. In addition, wages will be increased 6 to 16 cents over the three years—depending on changes in the cost of living.

American Motors Corp. is the only one of the nation's four major domestic automakers with out a new contract with the UAW. The old pact expired Oct. 16 but has been extended on a day-to-day basis by both sides.

Negotiations between the UAW and AMC resumed Jan. 3. The union's latest contract wage counterproposal has been rejected by the company.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, indicated the union would go easy on the debt-ridden firm in writing a new contract, but warned that "the basic financial difficulties of AMC cannot be solved at the bargaining table."

AMC lost $75 million in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30. Reuther said the GM pact was "noninflationary in character since it represents the equity of GM workers as measured against the profitability and rapidly rising productivity of the General Motors Corp."

"As such it will necessitate no increases in the prices of GM products," Reuther said.

Louis G. Seaton, GM's vice president for personnel and its top bargainer, declined to comment when asked whether the added labor costs would cause a price increase on cars.

LBJ Signs Employment Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed into law Saturday what he termed "the most important and practical legislation" aimed at outlawing job discrimination because of age against persons 40 to 65 years of age.

The new law, Johnson said, requires that one simple question be answered fairly: "who has the best qualifications for the job?"

It is designed to help assure jobs for older workers who suffer from an increasing emphasis on hiring of young people. The program is to be administered by the Secretary of Labor, and up to $3 million a year in appropriations would be authorized.

Canada Liberals Meet To Pick Pearson Successor

OTTAWA (AP) — Top leaders of Canada's Liberal party met Sunday to set the stage for selection of a successor to Lester B. Pearson as party leader and prime minister.

In Canada, the leader of the party that wins an election automatically becomes prime minister. Pearson, 70, announced Thursday his decision to retire.

The likeliest choice on the time and place for the convention is the third week in April in Ottawa.

The Conservative convention in September was regarded as a resounding success in attracting public attention. The Conservatives at that time named Robert L. Stanfield as their leader, succeeding John G. Diefenbaker.

These men are regarded as possible candidates: —Jean Marchand, 49, former labor leader who is minister of manpower and immigration.

—Allan MacEachen, 46, former labor minister who is now health minister and party leader in the House of Commons.

—Pierre Elliott Trudeau, 46, justice minister whom many regard as a "swinger" because of his informal style of dress.

Copper Strike Enters Sixth Month With No End In Sight

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The long strike which has knocked out some 90 percent of the nation's copper production entered its sixth month this past week with no immediate end in sight.

Senators from western mining states, concerned by the lengthy work stoppage, urged the copper companies and the striking unions to return to the bargaining table on a daily, round-the-clock basis.

Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said he saw little hope of the federal government taking any action, adding that hope for negotiations was based on a new offer made to the unions by Phelps Dodge Corp.

The Phelps Dodge offer upped the firm's original wage package proposal 16 cents an hour from 47.7 cents to 63.7 cents over three years.

An official of a joint union bargaining committee headed by the United Steelworkers said the unions would study the proposal and answer "in due time."

The strike, which began July 15, thus far has resulted in the loss of about 765,000 tons of refined copper, according to American metal market, daily metals newspaper.

The newspaper said "there is a minority view that says the back of the copper strike will be broken before Christmas. Most industry observers would be very surprised if this happened, but they don't discount it entirely."

"The most popular view is that the copper strike will drag on over the holidays and wind up sometime in January when the upward pressure of prices gets so great that fabricators are laying off help and the Defense Department sounds off about high costs.

"Meanwhile, as the strike continues and fabricators are forced to pay substantial premiums for copper raw materials acquired on outside (non producer) markets, mill product selling prices will be raised to partially offset higher costs of raw material."

Successful Heart Transplant Case Worries British Doctors, Clergymen

LONDON (AP) — Some British doctors and clergymen are worried that the successful heart transplant case of Louis Washkansky in South Africa has given doctors new God-like powers to decide who lives and who dies.

Granting the Dec. 3 surgery in South Africa was a medical triumph, the doctors and clergy fear a conflict may arise between a doctor's duty to do all he can to save a patient's life and the doctor's anxiousness to save another patient's life by transplanting a heart, liver or other vital organs from the first patient.

Washkansky, meanwhile, said Friday night in Capetown he felt "100 per cent." In a tape recorded interview he also commented, "I feel very lucky to be the first man in the world to have a new heart."

In a letter to the London Times a Birmingham surgeon wrote, "What is the next step—removal of a vital organ from a cancer patient who will probably die in six months, or from a mongol child who may not survive beyond the age of 20? I think we must watch our step. The Rev. David Bartle, an Episcopalian, expanded on the

Mrs. Walker To Head TOPS Club

HANSEN—Mrs. Gene Walker was re-elected leader at the Slim and Trim TOPS Club meeting at the home of Mrs. Thomas Steelsmith.

Mrs. Bryan Harris Jr. was elected co-leader; Mrs. Sandra Reinhardt, secretary, and Lena Bohrn, treasurer. The appointive officers will be announced at the next meeting. Mrs. Margaret McCoy will be the installing officer.

It was decided to put up a bulletin board for use of members. Bonnie Ryan and Mrs. Stanley Earl were the best losers. A 13-pound loss was noted.

A Christmas party and gift exchange was planned for Monday. Mrs. McCoy also will be program chairman.

same theme in another letter. "It would seem that an old ethical problem about the preservation of life is being presented in a startling new form, since the heart must be taken from the donor so soon after death."

This, he said, raises the question of when death occurs—when the heart stops, when efforts to revive the heart fail, or when the doctor says death occurs?

The danger, he warned, is that "a hurried approach may lead to abuse of possible donors."

Prof. A.G. Riddell, head of surgery at the infirmary, said: "Anybody who comes into hospital, irrespective of whether he is a potential donor, will be treated with the best medical skill to save his life."

"He will not be treated by those who are going to perform a transplant. One cannot have a vested interest in a patient's death."

Dirksen Challenges President's Charge

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, challenging President Johnson's charge that Republicans are wooden soldiers, says they supply the congressional troops which have sustained "the live soldiers in Vietnam."

"You talk about those wooden Republican soldiers," the Illinois senator said, "don't forget that those are the soldiers who have been standing behind the President during all this difficulty in Vietnam while his own troops were pelting and pummeling him on the Senate floor and on television."

The Senate Republican leader and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan supplied a televised rebuttal Friday night to Johnson's assertion Tuesday that the GOP is composed of "wooden soldiers" of the status quo.

"The only program that Grand Old Party offers is the remains of what they have backed into and run over in the road, the bits and pieces of what someone else has built," the President told the AFL-CIO convention in Miami Beach, Fla. Johnson's speech was broadcast by the three major networks.

Republicans demanded and got equal television time to reply. Dirksen said that in the minds of many Americans, the status quo is "the fix we're in" under Democratic leadership.

"We Republicans are against the status quo," Ford said. "We are solidly fighting the Johnson administration inflation, the Johnson administration high-interest rates.

"We believe the American people deserve a better deal," Ford said.

"Are we in a fix?" said Dirksen. "The imbalance of payments, the debt goes up while the gold goes down."

"And the prices go up," Ford said.

"And crime goes up," said Dirksen.

House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma panned the Dirksen-Ford performance as "one of the oldest reruns in American political history."

Other political developments: In Omaha, Neb., former Vice President Richard M. Nixon told a Creighton University student gathering the GOP could learn something from the Democrats when it comes to smoothing over breaches in party unity.

"Democrats can have some very bitter fights, but when they get down to the wire they usually unite for the purpose of winning," Nixon said.

In this respect, Republicans will act "more like Democrats" in next year's elections and "as a result get more Democratic votes," he said.

George C. Wallace said his campaign for some 66,000 signatures to qualify as a third-party presidential candidate in California has passed the 52,000 mark. The former Alabama governor has until Jan. 2 to reach his goal.

Harold E. Stassen, perennial seeker of the GOP presidential nomination, said in Philadelphia that placing a United Nations police force between the two Vietnams—and inviting both nations into the UN might be a means of ending the war.

—Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-

Ohio, speaking in the House, twitted Gov. George Romney of Michigan for being in England "where there's a terrific outbreak of hoo-and-mouth disease, and you know he's just got to be a carrier." Hays also had a barb for Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., whose inspection party came under enemy fire in Vietnam earlier this week.

Percy, he said, was "pointing his pistol one way while looking the other way into the camera."

Carmichael Says He's Back To Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I'm coming back to Washington to stay, baby," Black Power prophet Stokely Carmichael told admirers at predominantly Negro Howard University Friday night.

"This is our town. Our town," Carmichael, a Howard alumnus, visited the campus to hear a speech by Ron Karenga, a leader of the Black Nationalist movement. His entry touched off a two-minute ovation in the auditorium but he did not make a speech.

Carmichael's passport was revoked because he violated State Department regulations by visiting North Vietnam and Cuba during his recent world tour.

Hagerman Church To Be Remodeled

HAGERMAN — Hagerman Methodist church members have voted approval of preliminary plans for extensive remodeling of their church.

At a special congregational meeting Thursday night conducted by Rev. Wendell L. Cole, district superintendent, members approved the architectural report presented by Bill Jones, chairman, and Rolin Phillips, member of the building committee.

Plans call for a new fellowship hall, classrooms, kitchen and fireplace room. The present sanctuary will be left as it is, but the present kitchen and classroom facilities will be razed and replaced by new facilities.

Mr. Jones said part of the old structure, including the classroom section, will probably be for sale.

The plans will now be given to the architect who will draw detailed plans. Actual construction is not expected to begin until spring, Mr. Jones said.

A discussion also was held concerning the New Testament courses available via telephone line. It was reported a course given in this manner recently was completed.

A course to which local residents are invited, will begin at the Wendell Methodist church Jan. 21. It was noted that if the course could be presented at the local church more members would attend.

It is hoped that the lectures will be taped for use in the Hagerman area. Rev. E. V. (Ted) Hargreaves was given permission to take a week's leave from Dec. 24 through Dec. 31.

The concert band, composed of 10th, 11th and 12th graders, will play selections by Bach, Wagner, Latham, and "Twas the Night Before Christmas," which will be narrated.

Two mixed choruses from the school will sing a series of Christmas Carols and spirituals from different countries.

The concert is the first to be presented since the new music building at Valley High School was constructed. There is no admission charge.

CONTACT ESTABLISHED
VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican's first full-scale mission to Moscow reported today it had established "fraternal" contact with the Orthodox Church in Communist Russia.

TO THE BYSTANDER a stack of packages like this seems mountainous, but to the postal clerk a scene like this is just less than average for Christmas time. Twin Falls Postmaster Fred Sanger said Thursday mail is trickling in and he expects the annual last-minute rush to get cards and packages mailed by Christmas Day. However, if cards haven't been sent by now, chances are they won't get through in time. Mr. Sanger said most delivery of mail has been speedy, with some mail sent from Chicago being processed and delivered here in one or two days. The clerk going through the packages here is Lyle Wing.

City Council Meet Agenda Is Noted

The appointment of a city councilman to vote the city's 2,751.39 shares of stock in the Twin Falls Canal Co. at the annual meeting Jan. 9, will be made during the Twin Falls City Council meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the city hall.

Also included on the agenda is the appointment of Earnest H. Gyer to serve a five-year term on the Twin Falls Housing Authority board.

Building permits license applications and monthly departmental reports will be read for approval.

South Vietnam Land Reform Criticized By Report Writers

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief authors of a still-secret congressional report sharply criticizing the pace of land reform in South Vietnam asserted Saturday that the Viet Cong have distributed five times as much land as the Saigon government.

128,000 families since 1954, including 51,800 acres to 12,000 families in 1967.

—Of 566,000 acres of choice rice land acquired by the government in 1967 from French owners, 240,000 has been rented to small farmers but "no actual distribution of land was made until October 1966, eight years after the land was expropriated."

—"The Viet Cong, during this period, have instituted their own land-reform program—distributed reportedly some five times the amount of land distributed by the government of South Vietnam—and this program has not been effectively countered by the government."

Reps. John E. Moss, D-Calif., chairman of the House Foreign Operations and Government Information subcommittee, and Rep. Ogden R. Reid, R-N.Y., ranking GOP member, made the assertion to Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

In a letter dated last Thursday they called on the State Department to "take such action as is necessary to make crystal clear to the government of South Vietnam the imperative nature of its undertaking a true commitment of action with regard to the pressing problems of land reform."

Although Reid told reporters the letter represents merely the conclusions of Moss and himself, it was learned on good authority that it also contains the chief conclusions reached by the subcommittee.

Conclusions in the report include:

- Land distribution in South Vietnam has been at a virtual standstill since 1962.
- The present maximum retention limit of 247 acres per person "may well be excessive. A retention limit of seven to 10 acres would appear to be more equitable."
- Of 247 million acres acquired by the government of South Vietnam, only 667,000 acres have been distributed to

Profit Taking Overtakes Stock Market

By ED MORSE AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Profit taking overtook the stock market last week and it sustained its first loss in six weeks. Trading simmered down a bit.

The feeling in Wall Street as the week ended, however, was strengthened by news that General Motors had reached agreement on a labor contract with the United Auto Workers. This removed a major worry from the market.

Stock market bulls also could derive encouragement from late news of a sharp rise in industrial production for November. So far as stock trading went in the week just ended, movements for the over-all stock list were narrow.

The Dow Jones Industrial average took a loss of 6.64 at 880.61. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost .8 at 316.4. Volume for the week was 57,679,340 shares compared with 59.8 million the previous week. Of 1,632 issues traded last week, 797 declined and 713 advanced.

The market was off slightly on Monday and Tuesday, posted narrow gains Wednesday and Thursday and declined on Friday.

The list apparently had to correct itself and it did so amid the usual end-of-year cross-currents caused by tax-loss selling, switching and reinvestment.

Despite the devaluation of the British Pound and a vowed determination to defend the dollar in foreign exchange, underlying concern remained.

The undercurrent of worry remained even while some commentators were predicting better business in 1968 and a comparatively robust stock market.

Quite a few of the lower-priced more speculative issues, as well as the more recognized growth stocks, received a good play during the week even as blue chips groped along somewhat inconclusively.

A. J. Industries rose 1 1/2 to 10 1/2. Hazeltine gained 6 at 19 1/2. High Voltage Engineering 3 1/2 at 28 1/2 and Detroit Steel 3 1/2 at 21.

Out To Lunch

Sign Causes City Turmoil

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — An "Out to Lunch" sign taped to the window of a bookstore near the University of Michigan brought the store's owner a $16 fine.

A service station owner was ordered to remove two signs distinguishing the men's room from the ladies' room.

A church claims it would have to move its bulletin board from outside the front of the church back into the choir loft.

These are just a few of the many allegations made in a suit lodged in Washtenaw County Circuit court against a city sign ordinance.

The suit was brought Thursday by attorney James Crippin on behalf of some 170 businessmen and clergymen.

Nobody paid much attention to the ordinance when it was passed last year to do away with huge, gaudy signs in this university town.

But when summons for illegal signs started going out to ministers, restaurateurs and shopkeepers, the rebellion started.

Circuit Judge James Breaky Jr. set a hearing for Dec. 21, at which time the city will have to show cause why it should not be enjoined from enforcing the sign law.

The complainants claim the ordinance compels them to remove property, i.e. illegal signs without compensation, and is therefore unconstitutional.

Cougars Collect 63-57 Win With Free Throws

The Caldwell Cougars, hand-died surprisingly well by smaller, underdog Twin Falls for much of the game, took advantage of a free throw parade Saturday night to knock the Bruins from the undefeated ranks 63-57. The defeat came after the Bruins nipped Boise 63-63 in overtime Friday.

Caldwell set all kinds of records as the referees sent the Cougars to the line for 53 free throw attempts and they managed to hit only 25 of them. But that was enough as Twin

British Decision Gets Support

The British decision to open its prestigious Wimbledon tournament to professional players next year drew support from some important amateur players and a suspension from the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

In suspending the British Lawn Tennis Association from the international body, Giorgio De Stefani of Italy said in Rome Friday that the British had put themselves "outside the law."

The British body will be suspended as of Jan. 1, De Stefani said, and the country will be banned from Davis Cup competition.

"It was an antidemocratic and illegal action," he said, "because it went against international regulations."

But from vaibus places came the support of top amateur players, who hailed the decision to allow open play at Wimbledon.

Billie Jean King, of Long Beach, Calif., the top-ranked woman player in the world said in Australia where she is competing, "I favor open tennis and would be happy to play if the clubs in the United States want it."

John Newcombe, the Australian who is the top-rated men's player, said, "I'll have to weigh the pros and cons, but my feeling at the moment is that I'll play."

At West Point, N.Y., Arthur Ashe, the No. 2 American player who is serving a hitch in the Army, said, "I will play at Wimbledon if I can get leave. I'm sticking my neck out, but the two professional groups will support any move by the amateurs."

WSU Erupts In Last Half; Nips Montana
 MISSOULA (AP)—The Washington State Cougars pulled away from the University of Montana Grizzlies in the second half Saturday night and went on to an 81-61 nonconference basketball victory.

Tall and talented WSU led by only one point, 33-32, at the half, but 6-foot-9 Jim McKean came out with a field goal and free throw to open the second half and put Washington ahead.

Montana stayed close in the first half and shot 50 per cent from the field.

McKean wound up with 24 points and 10 rebounds to lead the Cougars to their fourth win in five starts.

Forward Gary Elliot had 19 for WSU.

Ron Moore scored 20 for Montana and forward Mark Agather added 8.

Montana outbounced the Cougars 45-40. Both squads shot 43 per cent from the field.

Vanderbilt Topples Duke 76-75

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Bo Wyenandt, one of three all-Vanderbilt players, scored on a 25-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining to give the third-ranked Commodores a 76-75 basketball victory over previously unbeaten Duke Saturday night.

The winning goal came after Duke's Mike Lewis put the Blue Devils ahead 75-74 on jump shot with 26 seconds left.

The Commodores took advantage of three quick Duke fouls, mistakes in the final five minutes to overcome a Blue Devil lead and go ahead 70-69 for the first time in the second half.

Wyenandt, forward Bob Warren and guard Kenny Campbell were victims of a virus this week, and it was not known until gametime if they would play. Campbell sat out the entire game.

Junior Tommy Hagan, despite four first half fouls, led both teams in scoring with 26 points before fouling out late in the game.

Lewis and Dave Golden were high for the Blue Devils with 18 points each.

The victory gave Vandy a 5-0 mark for the season. Duke is now 4-1.

New League Formed By 12 Colleges

CEDAR CITY, Utah (AP)—Presidents of 12 colleges formalized organization of the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference Saturday at College of Southern Utah.

Bad weather prevented presidents of five of the 17 member schools from attending the meeting of the small, four-year colleges.

Those attending unanimously approved a recommended conference constitution, with only minor revisions. Schools not represented will be able to vote on the constitution before a spring meeting when formal signing is scheduled.

Conference competition for members begins with the 1968-69 basketball season. The conference approved double round-robin basketball schedules for the opening conference season. Single round-robin football schedules for the 1970-75 season were also approved.

Competition will be divided into two divisions. The Mountain Division will have nine schools and the Plains Division eight members.

Kidd Looks Good In Ski Comeback

VAL D'ISERE, France (AP)—American skiing star Billy Kidd's comeback seems to be just about complete.

Competing in his first big meet since breaking his leg 18 months ago, Kidd followed up a fine performance Thursday with an even better one Friday, taking third in a special slalom event at the Criterium of the First Snow ski meet.

Added to the fifth he took in the giant slalom Thursday, Kidd was tied for second place in the combined point standings with Jean-Paul Augert of France.

Ahead of them was Austria's Karl Schranz, who won the special slalom, with a total time of 74.55 for the two legs of the 3,200-meter course.

LETTING FLY with a rebound shot, Filer's Clark Kauffman (31) scores against the Wendell Trojans Friday night in a non-conference game. Jack Lancaster (24) and Ralph King (30) pull away to prevent fouling. Filer broke away midway through the third quarter and rolled up a 55-46 victory.

Filer Comes From Behind In Last Half To Defeat Wendell

FILER — Grabbing control of the backboards in the second half, the Filer Wildcats defeated the Wendell Trojans for the second time in a week Friday night, taking a 55-46 non-conference decision.

Wendell, getting some good outside shooting from lefty Jack Lancaster in the first half, led until midway through the third quarter when Filer hit a hot streak to go into the lead. After that the Trojans tried to catch up but never got closer than three. In the final minute, Clark Kauffman, Tom Chandler and Shobe got points that provided the final margin.

The first quarter was a tight squabble with Filer holding a three-point edge for the biggest margin. But Wendell tied it at 12-12 early in the second quarter and Lancaster quickly added four points. The teams proved ice cold in shooting the rest of the way into intermission with Wendell finally managing a 22-18 lead.

Early in the third quarter Wendell got a six-point edge but that was the end. Filer pulled back into contention and caught up on a crumple by sophomore Ramsey. Some 25 seconds later Ramsey hit a free throw and Filer was ahead to stay.

Filer piled up 22 points in the third quarter while Wendell managed only 11. That gave the

Tar Heels Surprise Princeton

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Sophomore Charlie Scott sparked a second half outburst that broke open a tight defensive struggle and sent North Carolina to a 71-63 basketball victory over previously unbeaten Princeton Saturday night.

The struggle between the seventh-ranked Tar Heels and No. 10 Princeton had been a ragged one for 32 minutes, and the margin for either team had been no more than three or four points at any time.

But with the Tigers leading 47-45 with 11:48 to go, Scott picked up the lethargic Tar Heels with his fast break and in 42 seconds North Carolina outscored the Tigers 15-2 to break the game open.

Scott and Larry Miller paced the scoring off the fast break, and Dick Grubar, a clever guard, set the tempo with excellent passing.

Miller was top scorer with 23 points. Scott had 17 and Rusty Clark 16. John Hummer got 17 points for Princeton.

Utah Rallies To Overhaul Stanford

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Utah overcame a five-point-half-time deficit Saturday night and defeated Stanford 101-92 behind Merv Jackson's 33 points.

Jackson made good on all 17 of his attempts from the free throw line as Utah remained undefeated in five games.

Shooting 51 per cent in the first half, Stanford built a 55-50 lead. But Utah charged back in the second period, getting most of its vital points from the free throw line.

The Utes made 35 of 40 free throws, while Stanford had only 27 chances and connected on 18.

Lyndon MacKay scored 22 points for Utah, as he and Jackson accounted for more than half the Ute total.

Wardle's Shot In Last Seconds Gives Burley 66-64 Victory

By GARY SNELL, Times-News Sports Writer

JEROME—Jay Wardle hit a 15-foot jump shot with five seconds remaining in overtime to give the Burley Bobcats a 66-64 win over the Jerome Tigers Friday night.

The first half was a close battle but in the third quarter the Bobcats pulled out in front by 12 points with the help of LeRoy Fink and Wardle. Jerome battled back to within 46-40 by the end of the third period.

Burley was able to maintain at least a five-point lead through most of the final period and at one time had a nine-point lead. But the scrapping Tigers came back to within two points with 1:37 left in the game.

With 1:24 remaining in the game LeRoy Thompson hit a short jumper to tie the score at 57-57, and Brad Capps put the Tigers ahead 59-57 with 53 seconds left.

Lawrence Davids hit two free throws with 37 seconds left to tie the score at 59-59. Scot Tilley had a chance to put the Tigers ahead on a free throw attempt but it failed and regulation play ended in a 59-59 tie.

Gordon Ford gave the Tigers a short-lived lead with two free throws but Tom Ranklev tied it up at 61-61 a few seconds later.

With about two minutes left in the overtime Brad Capps put the Tigers in front again but Wardle tied it up at 63-63.

With 30 seconds left in the overtime, Davids hit one free throw to boost the Bobcats out in front. Capps tied it up at 64 each on a free throw with 16 seconds left.

The Bobcats then took the ball down court and gave it to Wardle who scored the winning basket.

BYU Humbled 102-69 By Houston

HOUSTON (AP)—All-American Elvin Hayes scored 34 points and three of his teammates hit in double figures as second-ranked Houston rolled to a 102-69 basketball victory over Brigham Young Saturday night.

Ken Spain followed Hayes with 25 points, Don Chaney added 22 and Theodis Lee accounted for 11 as the undefeated Cougars rang up their seventh straight victory.

Lee was the game's top rebounder with 16. Hayes and Spain each pulled down 14.

Karl Liimo was Brigham Young's top scorer, with 21, as his team lost its second game against as many victories.

Houston raced to a 9-0 lead before Brigham Young scored its first points on Lynn Parsons' field goal. Houston went from there to a 57-37 half time advantage and built up to their final 33-point margin.

Oregon State Tops San Jose

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—Oregon State came from behind to beat San Jose State 67-52 in a nonconference basketball game Saturday night.

It was the Beavers' third win in four starts this season.

San Jose took an early lead, but with six minutes to go in the first half, Oregon State scored nine straight points—seven of them by Loy Petersen—to take the lead. OSU stayed in front for the rest of the game.

Coby Dietrick of San Jose was the game's high scorer with 23 points.

Castleford Posts Win Over Indians

CASTLEFORD—The Castleford Wolves took advantage of the cold shooting of the Shoshone Indians to post a 52-37 win Saturday night.

Murtaugh Pins Loss On Kimberly

MURTAUGH — Murtaugh broke away in the third quarter Saturday night and polished off the Kimberly Bulldogs 67-53 behind the 25-point pitching of Billy Nebecker. Murtaugh held meager leads at the first two quarter ends and Kimberly forged in front midway through the third period. But the Red Devils regained control before the period ended an dominated the final period.

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone Indians got off to a slow start, but rallied in the second period to tie the score 18-18 at the end of the first half and go on to take a 46-33 win over the Oakley Hornets Friday night. Shoshone 46, OAKLEY 33

Boone, Wilson Pace ISU Past Pan-American

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Pan American's 6-11 Otto Moore, Ron Boone's 26 points and Ed Wilson's 30 rebounds led Idaho State to an 83-76 college basketball victory over Pan American Saturday night. Boone and Wilson put on a desperation rally with the second half and wound up with 40 for the night, hitting on 16 of 30 shots from the floor.

3 Officials Work One Hoop Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two is company, and three is a crowd, so the saying goes. But if there are three basketball officials, all working the same game. Officials Harry Pressman, Harold Barr and Morrie Kaplan, worked the St. Joseph's (Pa.) College-Hofstra game Friday night, the first such experiment in a major intercollegiate varsity game. They thought it was great.

Filer Sinks Free Throws To Take Win

GLENN'S FERRY — The Filer Wildcats pumped through four free throws in the final two minutes to pull out a 67-61 victory over the Glenns Ferry Pilots Saturday night. It was a close game all the way with Filer taking a 32-30 lead at halftime but the Wildcats took the lead in the closing minutes and were able to save the win.

Bears Rally To Drop Hansen 63-44

HANSEN — The Bliss Bears rallied in the second period for points to pull out in front of Hansen and went on to defeat the Huskies 63-44. The first period was a close battle as the score was tied 11-11 going into the second frame. Then the Bears pulled out in front with the shooting of Smith to take a 29-17 lead at the end of the first half, and had no trouble from then on.

Utah State Breezes Past Wichita State

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Jimmy Smith and Shaler Hallimon combined for 68 points Saturday night as Utah State routed Wichita State 102-83 in a college basketball game. Smith scored 35 points and Hallimon 33 as Utah State simply ran away from the fumbling visitors. Wichita turned the ball over numerous times and Utah State scored often on fast breaks.

Houston Beats Chargers, Takes Division Lead

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers used the passing of Pete Beathard and power running of Hoyte Granger to defeat the San Diego Chargers 24-17 Saturday and take a one-half game lead in the Eastern Division title race of the American Football League.

Beathard threw two touch-down passes and Granger collected another while becoming only the second Oiler in history to gain more than 1,000 yards rushing in a single season.

The victory was Houston's first over San Diego since 1962, and it left the Oilers with an 8-4-1 record with only one game to play, against Miami next Saturday night in Miami.

The New York Jets can pull back into a division tie Sunday by upsetting Oakland, the champions of the Western Division. An Oakland victory, however, would assure Houston of at least a tie in the Eastern Division.

A 31-yard field goal by John Wittenborn gave Houston a 3-0 first period lead but San Diego came back with a 74-yard surge for a temporary 7-3 lead on a one-yard pass from John Hadl to Brad Hubbard.

Houston then moved to a 17-7 advantage as Granger scored on a one-yard run and Woodie Campbell took an eight-yard Beathard pass. An 18-yard field goal by Dick Van Raaphorst cut the lead to 17-10 early in the final period but Beathard led the game by climaxing a 59-yard drive with a 15-yard scoring toss to Alvin Reed.

Hadl kept San Diego's chances alive by engineering a late 57-yard surge which Willie Frazier ended by taking a 16-yard scoring pass with just two minutes, 50 seconds left. It was the last time the Chargers had the ball, however, as the Oilers took over and moved from their 28 to the San Diego 24 before the final gun.

Granger netted 107 yards in 27 carries to run his season total to 1,030 yards in 216 plays. The new mark crissed a team record of 1,012 yards by Charlie Tolar in 1962.

Beathard completed 14 of 24 passes for 188 yards. Hadl completed 23 of 40 for 198. Hubbard led the Charger rushers with 65 yards in 13 carries.

basketball Coach Claude Rutherford, a popular man on the campus. The situation, of course, has nothing to do with the students, it being an administrative problem, but it will have some repercussions.

Now there also is another thing that could work against the proposition. That is the preparation which has taken the result for granted or appears capable of brushing an unfavorable verdict aside. Of course, everyone is aware that the student vote is merely in the advisory category and will not be binding. The trustees and administrators still will make the final decision.

But consider how you'd feel if you were told your opinion would carry a great weight on the matter of football continuance when you knew that (a) the administration was busily screening candidates for the position of head football coach and (b) school recruiters were busily covering the state passing out football scholarships. It might tend to pique you a little, like enough to vote no.

It all boils down to this. ISU will stay in football. ISU will have a new football stadium. But proposition No. 1 could set that program up for some embarrassing moments. Embarrassment that really would have no sane reason for existence.

Student leaders assure us that there is ample majority support for the program. If so, we are whistling by the graveyard. If not, it'll be a humble pie time.

His Dreams Soar Like His Eagles

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer

His career is in soil and water conservation, but Morlan W. Nelson, Boise, is known around the world for his work with quite another type of conservation.

Since he first captured a hawk as a small boy on his parents' ranch in North Dakota and made it a pet, he has dedicated much of his time and energy to the study and preservation of Western birds of prey.

Today he is recognized as one of the country's top experts in falconry, and his home has become a haven for wounded eagles, hawks or falcons that sympathetic hunters find but cannot care for alone.

His future plans call for establishing a major tourist attraction somewhere in Idaho, utilizing the state's vast variety of birds of prey and its rare natural habitat. This will of course be a full time program and require assistance in financing and establishing, but Mr. Nelson envisions it as something for his retirement years and something which could prove a great economical boost in tourism for Idaho.

His three sons and daughter have been reared with wild birds as many other youngsters have grown up with dogs or horses. This family interest and training resulted in participating in seven films by Walt Disney Productions on birds of prey and in three other movies and television series featuring their trained falcons or the golden eagles.

Mr. Nelson and his wife, Betty Ann, have as a result of their falcons, hunted at the invitation of Arabian sheiks in that country and have traveled throughout the world in the interest of hunting and promoting falconry.

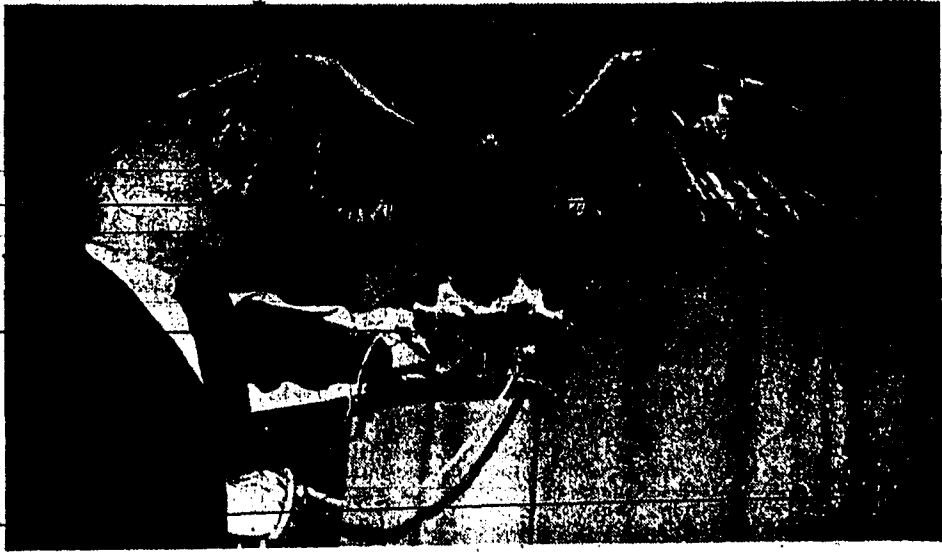

Mr. Nelson, who is state snow survey director for the Soil Conservation Service in Idaho; usually takes a film and one or more of his falcons or golden eagles with him as he tours the state and presents educational programs on conservation and on the state's birds of prey.

In such an appearance in Twin Falls this week he was accompanied by "Fagan," a native Idaho golden eagle that was brought to him several years ago by a hunter. The bird had been injured but recovered to become a favorite of the Nelson family and a star of many adventure films and television series.

It is now against the law in Idaho to capture or keep the golden eagle, Mr. Nelson pointed out, but when the law was passed, and he was instrumental in getting such protective laws in Idaho, he already owned five of the giant birds. As they live 50 to 100 years, the five are still at the Nelson home and have been joined by three more wounded eagles, three hawks and five falcons.

A person wishing to obtain birds of prey must consult with the Idaho Fish and Game Department, he pointed out, and must meet stringent regulations. Some of his birds, Mr. Nelson said, have been given him by persons who obtained them but later found out they did not have the means and ability to care for them.

For example, their food consists of raw meat, such as beef liver, heart or chicken parts and heads which are costly and not always available in amounts of at least a half-pound per day per bird.

ONE OF THE SMALLER golden eagles trained by Morlan W. Nelson, Boise, displays his wingspread. "Fagan," as the bird is known, weighs 10 pounds compared to some Mr. Nelson owns that are about double that size. Both Mr. Nelson and Fagan have been seen in a number of adventure and outdoor films produced by Walt Disney Productions and other film companies.

They must also have adequate and proper housing and equipment such as leather shackles, leashes, hoods and other items which are costly and not available at any variety store.

"They say it takes three years to train a man in falconry and about three weeks to train a falcon, and this is about right," Mr. Nelson explains.

In training the bird of prey, he simply follows his natural instincts, but learning to handle the bird is not this easy, although they rapidly become pets Mr. Nelson added.

Mr. Nelson, who has a special kind of dream for his retirement days, says some day Idaho will find a non-consumptive use for its great wealth and value in birds of prey that could well put the state on the tourist map.

Because Idaho has protective laws and because of educational programs for hunters and landowners, such as the effort of Mr. Nelson, the state has one of the largest populations in eagles and other birds of prey in the nation.

In Idaho's Snake River Canyon of Twin Falls and Jerome counties, and in the mountain areas around Albion, for instance, he said, there are 100 pairs of golden eagles known to exist, and probably a total of 500 pairs throughout the state and nearby sections of Oregon and Nevada that are not accounted for. The birds mate for life and produce about one young each two years. Thus, their protection is vital if the birds are to remain in existence.

Mr. Nelson's dream for the future includes a means by which the public, including eastern urban area residents, might come to Idaho to see such birds as the native eagles and even animals in their natural surroundings. Even climbing a mountain trail to observe the birds or animals would appeal to many vacationers, he believes. An area where the birds of prey, trained to seek out and attack mechanical prey, could be observed at various times of day also would be necessary. By combining Idaho's varied terrain, its resources in wildlife, Farms and ranges of the state and a little imagination and also could serve as an example work, the state could have a in soil, water and other resource tourist attraction second to none conservation of the West, he the Boise man believes, pointed out.

Hagerman High School Stars In Movie Production

By WILMA LARSON
Times-News Correspondent
HAGERMAN—“Lights! Camera! Action!” Those words always have meant one thing—a movie in the making, usually at studios in Hollywood.

While those words are not being shouted at Hagerman High School this week, the lights and cameras are there and there is plenty of action—and the lights and cameras represent the same here as they do in Hollywood—a movie is being made and the Hagerman High School students are the stars.

Amid the electric cords trailing in the halls, the strong lights and cameras focusing on students busy at various studies and a few more than usual adults working at various tasks, class work goes on very much as usual with seemingly little effect on the students who take it all very casually.

“Everywhere we go people want to know more about Hagerman and the Individualized Learning Center,” stated Dr.
Olivero, “this film will help answer their questions.”

“After it's completion,” Dr.
Olivero stated, “the film will probably be seen by more than a million people of the teaching association, PTAs and other service organizations.”

PARTICIPATING IN THE filming of a movie on the Individualized Learning Center at Hagerman High School this week were Tim Williamson, crew member, with camera, and Cindy Nell, high school freshman. The school was chosen by the National Education Association to be the subject of a filming project which will then be shown throughout the U.S. Dr. James Olivero, associate executive secretary of the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards project, headed the filming crew.

Hagerman High School has been chosen by the National Education Association (NEA) as one of the prime examples where individualized learning has been combined with imagination and determination of leadership to show what can be done to make learning fun in the smaller rural schools.

Hagerman is one of the 205 centers chosen by the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards (NCTEPS) project, “The Year of the Non-Conference” emphasizing the teacher and his staff showing how teachers can improve classroom instruction with the help of aides and specialists and work in a condition that encourages continued professional development.

Three members of the NEA, Washington, D. C., with the combined efforts of three members of the Motion Picture Production of Texas located at Austin and Mrs. Wendy Chapple, Storrs, Conn., and the University of Connecticut make up the filming crew at Hagerman.

The filming project is headed by Dr. James Olivero, associate executive secretary of the NCTEPS. Assisting Dr. Olivero is Bob Jones, department of rural education, NEA, and James Wallington of the remedia field of the NEA, as the filming is a joint project with the National Education Association. Mrs. Chapple is a free lance writer who prepared the script.

The film is basically a decli-sive device to demonstrate what can be done to assist students and teachers in a small school such as Hagerman. It will also be used to help answer such questions as “What can we do to help our school?” and “What else are they doing at Hagerman?”

The last question being based on an earlier film, “More Different Than Alike,” made last spring and in which Hagerman had a small part along with several other schools.

“From the percentage of dropouts in some schools, it shows something is wrong.
There are problems that need to be re-evaluated,” commented
Dr. Olivero.

Helping to find the better way to instruct and to encourage students to want to learn and then presenting these methods to educators is one of the ways the NEA is coping with the dropout problem.

This film is strictly just on the Hagerman school. It will be a 30-minute film showing how the students are using the center and its equipment rather than on the equipment itself. It will show its effect on the students after approximately a year in use and the overall project rather than just a glance at it.

The three days of “shooting” in Hagerman take a very small portion of the time required to make a film of this nature. It was pointed out that Mrs. Chapple, a vivacious, petite blonde, who looks like one of the high school students, has already spent weeks preparing the script and will spend several more weeks editing the film before it will be ready for the final stages.

Dr. Olivero stated he had been in 75 of the 205 centers and Hagerman was one of the better projects endeavoring to assist the students in more ways. He added he was very much impressed with the leadership of the program and the teachers in this school who are willing to spend the time and effort required to get the job done.

Hagerman has the distinction of being the only demonstration center in Idaho for the NEA program.

Dr. Olivero left Hagerman Thursday to attend a regional TEPS conference in Seattle, Wash., Friday and Saturday where schools from Oregon, Washington, Hagerman and Edmonton, Canada, will be represented.

Before Feb. 1, 1968, there will be eight regional conferences held attended by approximately 8,000 persons where the non-doers will have a chance to talk with the doers in the education program.

Wounded Newsmen Tells Of Life And Death In Vietnam Hospital

EDITOR'S NOTE: AP photographer Horst Faas, wounded in action Dec. 6, is recovering in a military hospital. In the following story he tells of life and death there.

By HORST FAAS
LONG BINH, Vietnam (AP)
—The television news comes on at 7:30 p.m. with a blare of martial music. The television set overlooks 14 beds in this post-operative ward at the U.S.
Army's 24th Evacuation Hospital.

It does not overlook the 10 beds of the “shrouds, the ghosts that call me at night,” as one male nurse describes them.
These are the most serious cases.

They lie in their beds, some with crushed faces and bodies.
They are swathed in heavy, bloody bandages. Tubes dangle from Plasma bottles. Some are uncovered to the waist. They look pale from exhaustion.
There is heavy breathing. Sometimes there are moans of pain.
When the moans increase, a nurse steps quietly to the bed.

In the second bed on the left side of this section there is a strapping big man, a sergeant.
He is going to die in 20 minutes.
He is so tall that his feet hang over the frame of his bed. He is crew cut and heavily sun-tanned. He wears a mustache.

The sergeant arrived in the ward on a stretcher three days ago. He mumbled incoherently.
Sometimes he screamed.

The men of the ward, who spend much of their time comparing cases, know he is in very bad condition.
The sergeant is heavily bandaged about the stomach and face. The night he was brought in, doctors worked over him for several hours, often three at a time trying to save his life.

Over the sergeant's bed there is a sign displaying the big red “1” of the 1st Infantry Division and his name, rank, serial number, unit and type of injury. It says he suffered multiple frag-

sergeant there is a soldier with an unrecognizable face. He bab-bles and moans beneath his thick bandages.

In the bed to the right is a boyish, red-haired, freckled artilleryman. He was wounded in the battle at Bu Dop Dec. 3. He is very pale. Sweat rolls from his face. The stump of his right arm lies on his chest, held in place by a rope fixed to the celling.

Despite the loss, he seems to be recovering. When the tall sergeant cries out in pain, the young artilleryman gives him a smile.

Now it is 7:30 p.m. The young artilleryman motions to Spec. 5 Vincent J. Peters, a male nurse from Manitowoc, Wis., and asks to be moved in front of the TV set.

The Vietnamese war news is coming via television. The announcer tells of more than 400 enemy killed in the Mekong Delta, new clashes along the demilitarized zone, air raids over North Vietnam. Some of the patients stare at the ceiling as they listen. The red-haired boy with the stump for an arm looks at the set, but his eyes seem to be somewhere else.

a bed and rushes across the room.
The head of the tall sergeant has fallen back. His mouth and eyes are open. Peters also rushes to the bed. They take turns massaging his broad chest.
McDeth, who is only 22, looks very young now.

Lt. Kathleen Costello, a pretty 21-year-old nurse from Danbury, Conn., suddenly loses the cheerful manner that marks her daily rounds among the wounded. She leans over the wounded for a moment tries mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.
Then she looks up, puts both hands to her head and pushes up her hair. She is near tears as a nervous giggle escapes from her mouth.

Then she reaches for the telephone, dials and gets a busy signal. The eyes of nearly all the patients are on her. She bangs down the phone, lights a cigarette, tries the phone again, still busy.

“Please,” she says, “somebody run to the emergency room, hurry.”

The two male nurses continue to massage the giant chest.
Nurse Costello prepares a hypodermic. Only three minutes have passed.

The doctor, found in his quarters, walks into the ward wearing civilian clothing. He walks fast, long brisk paces. All the eyes follow him as he moves

New Books Purchased At Hagerman

HAGERMAN—It was reported the librarian had purchased 26 new books for the children's section of the Hagerman City Library at the board meeting Wednesday.

Mrs. Nettie Moyes, librarian, stated 205 books had been loaned during November. It was noted the number of the youth and children books loaned was very low, with only 18 youth books checked out during the month and five children books.

The library has a good selection in these groups and the young people are encouraged to make use of their library.

Robin Lemmon, a senior at Hagerman High School who is interested in librarian work, assisted in the first grade students to the library this week where she showed them the facilities. She then read them a Christmas story by Seuss and donated the book to the library.

Beautification Project Begun In Glens Ferry

GLENS FERRY — Glens Ferry High School student council account has been enriched by $350 from the Coca-Cola Co. intended for a local beautification project.

America has entered in a three-part program. First, an anti-litter campaign in which the older youth work and carry the message to the younger citizens of the community. Second, a landscape plan would be made so that the school grounds could be planted in an orderly way so that any community or school group could participate.

Heyburn Studies Use Of Irrigation Wells

HEYBURN — Heyburn City councilmen are eyeing the possibility of future irrigation from wells drilled in different sections of the city.

Irrigation water currently is supplied by canals through underground tile. According to J. R. Brown, councilman over irrigation, the present source is inadequate and he would like to have one or two wells drilled in the west section of the city.

He told councilmen during the Wednesday night meeting that if the wells work then the city can do away with canal use and pump from underground.

He said the city has about two-thirds of the city ditches tiled which has reduced danger hazards for youngsters, and is helping to make a more attractive city.

Work will begin immediately on one of the wells.

The city is taking action on the wrecked car removal project and Bud Scovill reported that 21 abandoned vehicles have been removed from the city. Tom Church, city attorney, is sending letters to residents concerning unused vehicles being left on street right-of-ways.

Earl Rose, Bob Hambleton and Mr. Brown reported on a meeting they attended last week at Twin Falls for councilmen and mayors.

Copies of House Bill No. 3 were passed to councilmen by Mayor Harold Hurst.

A local Boy Scout group has requested permission to use the council room for meetings and the board said it would discuss it with the sponsoring agent.

Residents in the Bailey Addition using the low pressure system installed last year have reached an agreement with the council and will pay construction cost for the line. The charge will be made on the tax roll and will be $8 per year for construction cost and $2 per year for water.

As soon as the construction is paid, each resident will be charged only the regular $2 fee for water.

Don Hill, city electrician, reported on a recent meeting he and Jack Strauss attended with Snake River Power Association.

Reporting on the electric department activity during the month, Mr. Hill said several street lights have been installed or replaced and light project included 175 watt street mercury vapor lights in residential areas and 400-watt along J Street and on the city section of Highway 20.

Mr. Hill noted that the city electric equipment is being updated to keep up with needs of the J. R. Simplot plant. More fans will be purchased by the city to maintain a cooler temperature for transformers at the sub-station north of Simplots.

Mayor Hurst directed a discussion concerning dogs and councilmen voted to terminate an agreement with the city of Rupert concerning use of Rupert's pound facilities.

Councilmen agreed to have the city pay taxes on three properties it has purchased and to pay water taxes on Mrs. Adeline McBride's property, which is too high for water access and was mistakenly billed. The other properties involved were purchased from Jordan, Satterwhite and Hayden.

City garbage is picked up every other week on either Saturday or Monday by Bob McIntire and Gay Dean Standley. The new system being used by the men and the manner in which the work is done was praised by the council.

The men use a privately owned closed-in bed truck and councilman Rose pointed out that extra effort is being taken by the men to "clean up the city."

J. R. Brown and Rose presented a motion to transfer $50,000 to a short term savings account and the motion carried. Rose said that municipalities are encouraged to place funds in interest drawing accounts to prepare for larger future city projects.

Higher Food Prices Appear In Offing

By OVID A. MARTIN AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher-election-year food prices appear in the offing as American agriculture puts finishing touches on a 1968 production pattern designed to hold supplies below this year's record levels.

Reductions are planned not only in crops but in livestock as well. They would come at a time when world hunger is a rising problem. At best, there is little chance that production would keep pace with the population increase.

The goal of farm planning for next year is to bring increases in farm prices. These in turn would be expected to result in higher retail prices.

These plans are an outgrowth of economic setbacks in agriculture this year, including lower prices, lower farm income and higher costs. Farm prices have been running 6 per cent below last year and farm income will turn out between 5 and 10 per cent below 1966.

Farm officials declare the planned production curbs would not lessen this country's ability to provide food aid abroad. They say that's because of this year's record U.S. production— together with generally good crops abroad.

Some of the planned cutback is being recommended by the Agriculture Department under its supply stabilization programs. These include smaller crops of wheat, corn, sorghum grain and other feed grains—the raw materials for bread and for meats, milk and poultry products.

Other reductions are contemplated on a number of products not subject to federal controls. These include eggs, turkeys, milk and possibly beef cattle and hogs.

In the case of price-depressed eggs, the department will help poultry men by offering to buy some of their laying hens which would be diverted to chicken meat for welfare use.

The department also is cautioning farmers against increasing hog production lest prices of pork be depressed to unprofitable levels.

Likewise, leaders of the beef cattle industry are urging feeders to resist any inclination to increase production of fed cattle for slaughter.

The number of dairy cows is expected to continue a long decline with the production of milk falling slightly below this year's level, which was smaller than last year's.

In another move to bolster prices, the department is recommending against any increase in the production of winter vegetables. A 5 per cent decrease in winter potatoes has been recommended.

Heads of the school organizations, 4-H, and Scout leaders are carrying the program into their respective groups so that each will share in the program's activities.

A leadership committee includes Doug Shenk, Diana Keck, Joah Barnes, and Karen Koch. Adults responsible for the decisions on the projects include Supt. George A. Powell, Willard Mineau, Mrs. Virginia Anderson and Mrs. Eva Johnson.

Work now under way includes cleaning up littered areas, making and decorating litter barrels, showing films on beautification in the schools. One group plans to take pictures of unsightly areas, and these will be printed in the local paper. After the areas are cleaned up, there will again be pictures, to show the improvement.

Plantings at the Elmore County Fair Grounds, beautification of the Glens Ferry City Hall, planting trees on Arbor Day are other proposed projects.

Christmas Reading Is Held By Club

Christmas readings were presented to members of the Twin Falls Toastmistress Club Friday in the Colonial Room of the Rogerson Hotel.

Mrs. Ben Eldredge gave "God Rest Ye Merry." "How do you know it's Christmas in Vietnam?" was delivered by Mrs. Richard Tucker. Mrs. LeRoy Arrington read "The Other Wiseman" to the group and Mrs. Helen I. Smith described "The Christmas of the Future."

Mrs. Smith gave an inspirational thought and lead the Pledge of Allegiance while Mrs. Arrington welcomed all members and guests.

The topics were handled by Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Eldredge read the minutes of the previous meeting.

President Tucker announced that there would be a meeting of Council 7 of the Snake River Region at the Holiday Inn Jan. 20 at 1 p.m. Also discussed was the coming convention in Calgary, Canada.

Mrs. Ernest Tucker was a guest. The next meeting will be on Jan. 5. The theme is "To Be or Not to Be."

Program On Drugs Given To Glens Ferry Lions Club

GLENS FERRY—Cliff Barnett, Boise, executive secretary of the Idaho Board of Pharmacy, presented a program concerning the "Abusive Use of Drugs," at Tuesday night's meeting of the Glens Ferry Lions Club held in Hanson's Cafe.

Barnett, who was introduced by Alvin Joslyn, program chairman, showed a film entitled "LSD—25" and then led a question session covering some of the local problems involving the misuse of drugs.

An official visitor for the dinner meeting was Bill Hallock, Boise, district governor for the Lions, who reported on the progress of Lionism. He stated that the local district has 44 clubs encompassing 1500 members. The national clubs total 21,500.

These clubs contributed materially in completing a half a million projects with an estimated value of 200 million dollars last year, he said.

Accompanying Barnett was Lloyd Lytle, Boise, zone chairman, and Ray Driffin, past district governor. Other guests included Karl Koch, Hammett; Lynn Pack and Ed Freeman; Glens Ferry, according to Brent Taylor, publicity chairman.

The most important thing to remember about this calendar watch is that it isn't a calendar watch.

This is an Accutron® timepiece. And we don't even call it a watch at all. It has no balance wheel or mainspring. No staff. No screws. In fact, anything that can make a watch go fast or slow has been left out. Replaced by a tuning fork that keeps time so precise that Accutron comes with the first guarantee of accuracy ever given. So any resemblance between Accutron and a watch is purely superficial. Accutron guarantees accuracy to within a minute a month*. That's more than a watch can do. Accutron with calendar is still the same Accutron. Guarantee and all. Only you get the date, too. The exact time. And the date. Not bad, considering Accutron isn't a calendar watch.

Hailey Gets Help On Sewage Pond

HAILEY—A $27,000 grant has been awarded to the city of Hailey by the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration to pay for 30 per cent of the cost of a new 15-acre sewage stabilization pond.

The grant also will be used to help pay for interceptors to convey Hailey's sewage to the sewage lagoons, according to S. F. Poston, regional director, Northwest region, Portland. Estimated total cost of the sewage lagoons and interceptors is $98,000.

Cesspools and septic tanks will no longer be used in Hailey when the new sewage works are built, Mayor George R. Allen notes. He said the secondary treatment which will be assured by the new sewage facilities will remove about 85 per cent of the oxygen-demanding wastes as recommended by the Idaho State Health Department and Federal Water Pollution Control Administration.

The treated effluent will be discharged into the Big Wood River.

Bus Drivers Needed For Glenns Ferry

GLENN'S FERRY—Problems concerned with transportation and the hot lunch program were studied by Joint School District No. 192 at its meeting last week.

There is a distinct need for extra school bus drivers for the activity buses to games and other out-of-town activities, as well as substitute drivers for regular routes, Supt. George A. Powell said. He requested anyone interested to apply at his office.

The board voted to set the rate for driving other than the regular routes at a $5 minimum and $1 per hour up to $10 per trip. Drivers must be not over 65 years of age, they added.

The hot lunch program is operating on a marginal budget, due to increased cost of food and labor. It is necessary to be sure all lunches are paid.

However, in the case of proven inability to pay, the lunches will be supplied to the children involved.

Ten students have been certified for the special education class, which Mrs. Eleanor Boddall of the State Department of Education was to visit during the week.

There was considerable discussion about the pupils' playing outside the building in bad weather. It was decided that the parents should determine when they wanted their children kept inside.

Cecit Watson, elementary principal, announced that if a parent did not want a child to play outside, the parent should send a written request to the teacher.

A new school policy on building use was adopted. It establishes the cost of use as well as the manner in which it may be used and outlines the way to get such permission.

Permission to use the building must be secured from the superintendent's office. Prices were set at $7.50 for the junior high gym; classroom, $3.50; home economics room, $5; lunch room kitchen, $10, and cafeteria, $5.

When a lunch room kitchen is rented, a school cook must be employed to supervise use of the facilities.

RANDY CAPPS OF Salmon displays horns of six-point bull elk which are entangled with wire. The horns were found while young Capps, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Capps, was on an elk hunt in Gunbarrel Canyon, north of the Salmon River below Shoup. Most of the wire had to be cut away to get the antlers dislodged. Capps said the animal apparently became entangled in old telephone wire in the area of the abandoned line to Skunk Camp lookout, which no longer exists.

Gunsmith: Expert Key
To Customize

Every shooter looks forward to the time when he can own a perfect gun, a cherished piece fitted especially to his needs, a firearm he will use and admire with particular pride. Many who can afford it have no problem in making such additions to their gun collections. When they want a gun constructed to their individual specifications, they merely place an order for a custom-made firearm. For the average shooter who can't afford the price, there's an inexpensive and expert solution — the gunsmith. The nation's firearms makers turn out fine products made to high engineering standards. Thus, a shotgun made to a standard stock length of 14", for example, may not fit every individual's height, weight, arm length, personal tastes or shooting style. That's where the gunsmith comes in. A good one has had a number of years of training and experience. Some have graduated from one of the four or five gunsmith schools and then have gone to work for an established gunsmith. Others interested in the field have gone right to work for a recognized gunsmith and gained their experience in this manner. What background will your gunsmith probably have had? One gunsmith school lists 43 courses, including training in tool and die design, machine design and metallurgy, barrel fitting and chambering and stock-making. A gunsmith who has learned his trade well is eminently qualified to work on your firearm. He can lengthen or shorten the stock to give correct length of trigger pull. He can glass bed barrel and action, tune the trigger, mount and sight in a scope sight, or install an adjustable choke. So whatever your personal requirements in a sporting or target firearm, you can have them satisfied at a price you can afford by consulting a skilled gunsmith. He's a good man to know when your gun is in need of repair, too. For those who are interested, Savage Arms has available a brief review and bibliography on careers in the firearms field. Truth About Inexpensive Guns

How often have you heard a hunter opine to the effect that guns being manufactured today are "cheap," that they don't stand up as they used to, presumably because quality has been sacrificed for quantity? The basic arguments behind this contention seem to be the substitution of plastic for wood or metal, less personal attention in overall manufacture, and the replacement of machined parts by parts that are stamped out. The critics are accurate in one respect. Modern guns are cheap—but only in price. Other wise their criticism lacks basis in fact. A firearm constructed with a few stamped parts may not appear to be as elegant as a premium made gun, and it isn't, but it will shoot just about as accurately and last about as long as its higher priced counterpart. It is built for field use and not strictly as a showpiece. Gun manufacturers are constantly working to improve their products, but in so doing their engineers never lose sight of the cost factor. The average shooter has two things in mind when he purchases a gun — a good firearm and a good value. Both needs are satisfied through modern manufacturing techniques. With the cost of materials and labor continually climbing, the manufacturer strives as earnestly to keep the price of his firearm down as he does in building dependability, accuracy and quality into them. He cannot afford to sacrifice one for the other. Thus the average shooter can afford to buy a gun he can depend on, one that will do the job he wants it to do. The fact that it is constructed of a few parts that are not machined makes no difference. It will shoot as well and function as flawlessly as a hand-engraved model. On standard grade guns a good gunsmith can perform wonders. For a relatively few dollars he can tune the trigger and improve bedding to give groups that would surprise many. This is not to say that higher quality guns at higher cost are not available to those who appreciate the finer touches and are willing to pay the price. Pigeon or premier grade guns with hand-rubbed stocks, rich engraving, damascened locking lugs and water table, continue to be manufactured for the discriminating shooter. So if you don't go for the late of such luxury, don't hesitate to consider less expensive models. They are built to give the performance expected of them, and if anyone attempts to tell you they are of inferior construction, don't you believe that. The fact is, there's nothing handier than a cold patch kit in your pockets to take care of the problem so that the day won't be ruined. PATCH KIT HANDY When out in the duck fields wearing waders and a snag occurs, there's nothing handier than a cold patch kit in your pockets to take care of the problem so that the day won't be ruined. TRY TIMES-NEWS WANT ADS

PLAY GAINS EXTRA POINTS

Tobias Stone of New York and Ivan Erdos of Los Angeles won the rubber bridge championship in 1966. The untimely death of Ivan this fall caused Stone to defend with Philip Feldesman of New York. They reached the quarter finals where they ran up against the eventual winners.

Stone saw a remote chance for an overtrick and since that 30 points might decide the match, Stone went after it. He played a diamond to dummy's ace and ruffed a diamond. A low spade to the eight put him back in dummy again. He ruffed another diamond and stopped for a moment to lay down his ace of clubs. East dropped the ten and was left with king-queen - deuce of the suit.

NORTH 18		EAST (D)
♠ Q 10 8 2	♥ 7 2	♠ Void	♥ A J 10 6 5
♦ 8 3	♣ A 8 6 4	♠ K J 9 5	♥ Q 10 7 3
♣ 4 3		♠ K Q 10 2	♥ K Q 10 2
WEST		SOUTH
♠ 4 3	♥ K 9 5	♠ A K J 9 7 6 5	♥ K 9 4
♦ 7 2	♣ J 9 8 6 5	♦ 2	♥ A 7
♠ North-South vulnerable	West North East South	1 ♠ 4 ♣
Pass Pass Pass	Opening lead—♥ 7

South led another trump to dummy. East, who had discarded a heart on the first trump lead, let his deuce of clubs go. Stone led and ruffed dummy's low diamond and played to his seven of clubs. East has to win the trick with the queen and no matter what he led at this point, Stone had an overtrick at his four spade contract.

Not too important in rubber bridge and it turned out to make no difference in that match, but if East had been really alert he would have managed to hang on to that deuce of clubs so that West would have been able to gain the lead and play a heart through dummy.

CARD SENSE

The bidding has been: West North East South
You, South, hold:
♠ A Q 10 7 6 ♥ 2 ♦ A Q 10 7 6 5 ♣ 3
What do you do?
A—Bid two diamonds. There will be more bidding and you can show your spades later. Even at the four level if it becomes necessary.

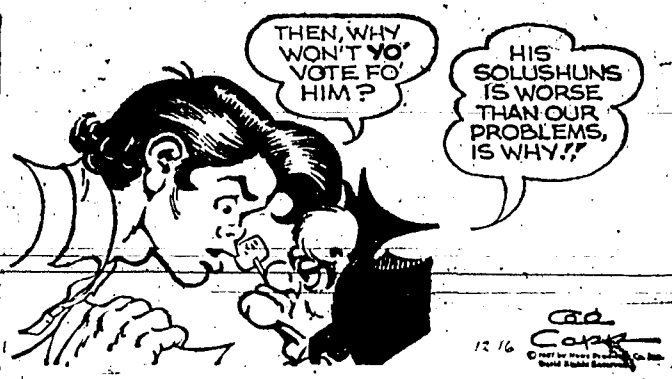

TODAY'S QUESTION
West bids two hearts. North and East pass. What do you do now?
Answer Next Issue

Stone's jump to four spades in one of the qualifying matches was typical rubber bridge technique. It would also have been effective in tournament play since it shut East and West out of a cheap save at five clubs which would only be set two tricks on perfect defense.

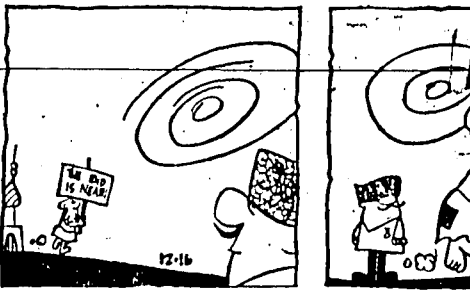

West opened the seven of hearts. Dummy played low and East's ten lost to Stone's king. At this point most rubber bridge players would have conceded a club and two hearts and taken game and rubber.

A Blush, Dimpled Smile Make It All Worthwhile

Dear Walt: I'm quite sure there are many girls who have thought about this but never spoken up. So I'm hoping you'll print my letter and help us all understand why it is that guys think it is the greatest thing ever to see a girl blush and have dimples? There's not a day passes that I'm not kidded. Believe me after hearing many comments about them it makes me wish I didn't have to smile or blush.—Dimples.

Dear Dimples: Keep smiling, lady! To a fellow, a girl's dimples and rosy glow spell life, warmth and real contact. When a gal dimples (spontaneously) or goes glowly, it tells him, "Hey, this gal is alive, and she really notices me!" Highest fuel for the male ego; is it any wonder it turns us on?—Walt.

SUCCEEDS DESPITE HANDICAP

Dear Ele and Walt: I was interested in the letter from the girl whose mother has the habit of redoing everything she has done, because I too have a mother with the same annoying habit. Ever since I learned to sew and cook mother has redone nearly every dish or dress I have made.

Not only did mother redo what I did, she compared me to my sister, who is three years younger than I. I was never as talented or as smart as she.

I grew up thinking that my sister was better than I and that I would never be as good as anyone. However, the day came when I was sent away to college and Sis stayed home for school. In college I was able to develop my talents, several of which I didn't know I had. I finally began to like sewing because everything I made wasn't done over. When friends asked me to teach them to sew, as well as sew dresses for them, I knew that my sewing couldn't be too bad.

In college I was nominated for several honors. Of course, I didn't win all of them, but it did not bother me because I didn't feel that I had to win. My sister, on the other hand, felt that she always had to be the best and when she lost — oh brother! When she can't get her way, she throws tantrums.

Having lived in the dorm has been an advantage to me. Sis stayed home and commuted to school. She has gotten everything she has wanted and has not learned to live on a small budget. She has not learned to share, nor has she learned to be considerate of others.

What I'm trying to say is that parents are not infallible and sometimes they do hurt their children, but it's up to us to not make the same mistakes they made.—Able.

Dear Able: No comment we could add would increase the wisdom and maturity of your letter. Congratulations on being a real person, instead of the bitter, twisted woman you might have let yourself become. — Ele and Walt.

POSSIBLE TIME BOMB

Dear Ele and Walt: Maybe you can help me. I have been going to a psychiatrist for six years (ever since I was 13 years old) for treatment of a nervous disease. I am no longer worried about the effects of this disease, but I'm scared to death when someone asks me what I do all afternoon on Wednesdays (the day I go to the doctor). What can I tell them to answer their questions without acting suspicious or rude? — 4-p.m. Appointment.

Dear 4 p.m.: As you certainly know by now, you can say anything to your psychiatrist without fear. So share this problem with him. He'll help you weigh the merits of complete honesty ("I have a doctor-friend who's helping me understand what makes me tick...") vs. vague generalities ("Oh, Wednesday's my family responsibility day.") — Ele and Walt.

LOVES BOY'S FATHER

Dear Ele and Walt: I have been going with a boy for three years. In the past year I have become very good friends with his parents, especially his father. In fact we have become romantically involved. We both have tried to ignore the situation, but it is impossible.

I know you are going to write and tell me we must stop seeing each other, but please don't. I plan on marrying the boy in six months, but I really love his father and he loves me. Do you think I should go through with this, and if I do what should I do after we are married about my love for his father? Answer in the paper please because I don't want my parents to find out about my love for a married man. — So In Love.

Dear Love: If the tables were turned, and the boy was considering marrying you, although he loved your mother, would you want him to deceive you? Would he have a right to father children by you when his heart was elsewhere? Would he have the right to steal his happiness at the risk of your eventual discovery and heartbreak? You know the answer. — Ele and Walt.

QUESTIONS INVITE

Dear Ele: There is a girl who lives down the road. She's having a slumber party and said she will invite me. But I don't know if she really wants me to go. She might be just inviting me because I'm a neighbor! Please don't say that I should talk to her and ask her about it. But please, please help me. — Neighbor.

Dear Neighbor: It may be that this girl is only a casual pal, and you're far from her No. 1 friend. But believe me, if a girl doesn't want you present at a party, she'll find a way to pass you by even if you live next door. If you want to attend, go with the attitude of "what can I do to help the other girls have fun?" and I guarantee your hostess will be glad that she invited you! — Ele.

How does a boy go about kissing a girl for the first time? For a few hints, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ele and Walt Dulaney in care of this paper and ask for their newsletter, "First Kisses."

Regional Airports: Solution To Air Problems Or "White Elephants"

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer
BOISE (AP)—Regional airports for Idaho, the solution of the state's air travel problems, are "colossal white elephants," says a report prepared by a group of business and aviation experts. The report, which was based on a survey of regional air facilities in Idaho, says that the state's air travel problems are "colossal white elephants."

The "regional" carrier system, the Pocatello to Boise to Lewiston flight, is a "white elephant" because it is not profitable. The "federal" carrier system, air taxis which carry passengers from the terminals to cities not served by commercial airlines, is also a "white elephant" because it is not profitable.

Regional airport authorities are now planning to build a regional airport near Twin Falls. The airport would serve the area around Twin Falls, Burley, Halley, and Pocatello. The airport would be a multi-county airport, serving the area around Twin Falls, Burley, Halley, and Pocatello.

Seelye and Moulton represent a conflict between the economics of consolidation and the economics of decentralization. Seelye believes this basis is across the Washington border, serves the Moscow, Idaho, area. Only Boise, Idaho Falls and Pocatello have runways long enough for jets. West Coast Airlines, now serving all eight airports, plans to introduce a smaller jet in 1970 which may go out of Idaho on commercial airlines are non-residents.

Jewel Cleaner Says "It's Tricky Business"

By GRANVILLE WATTS
LONDON (AP)—"It's a tricky business," said the man who cleans Britain's crown jewels. "You wouldn't want diamonds dropping out on the floor, would you?"

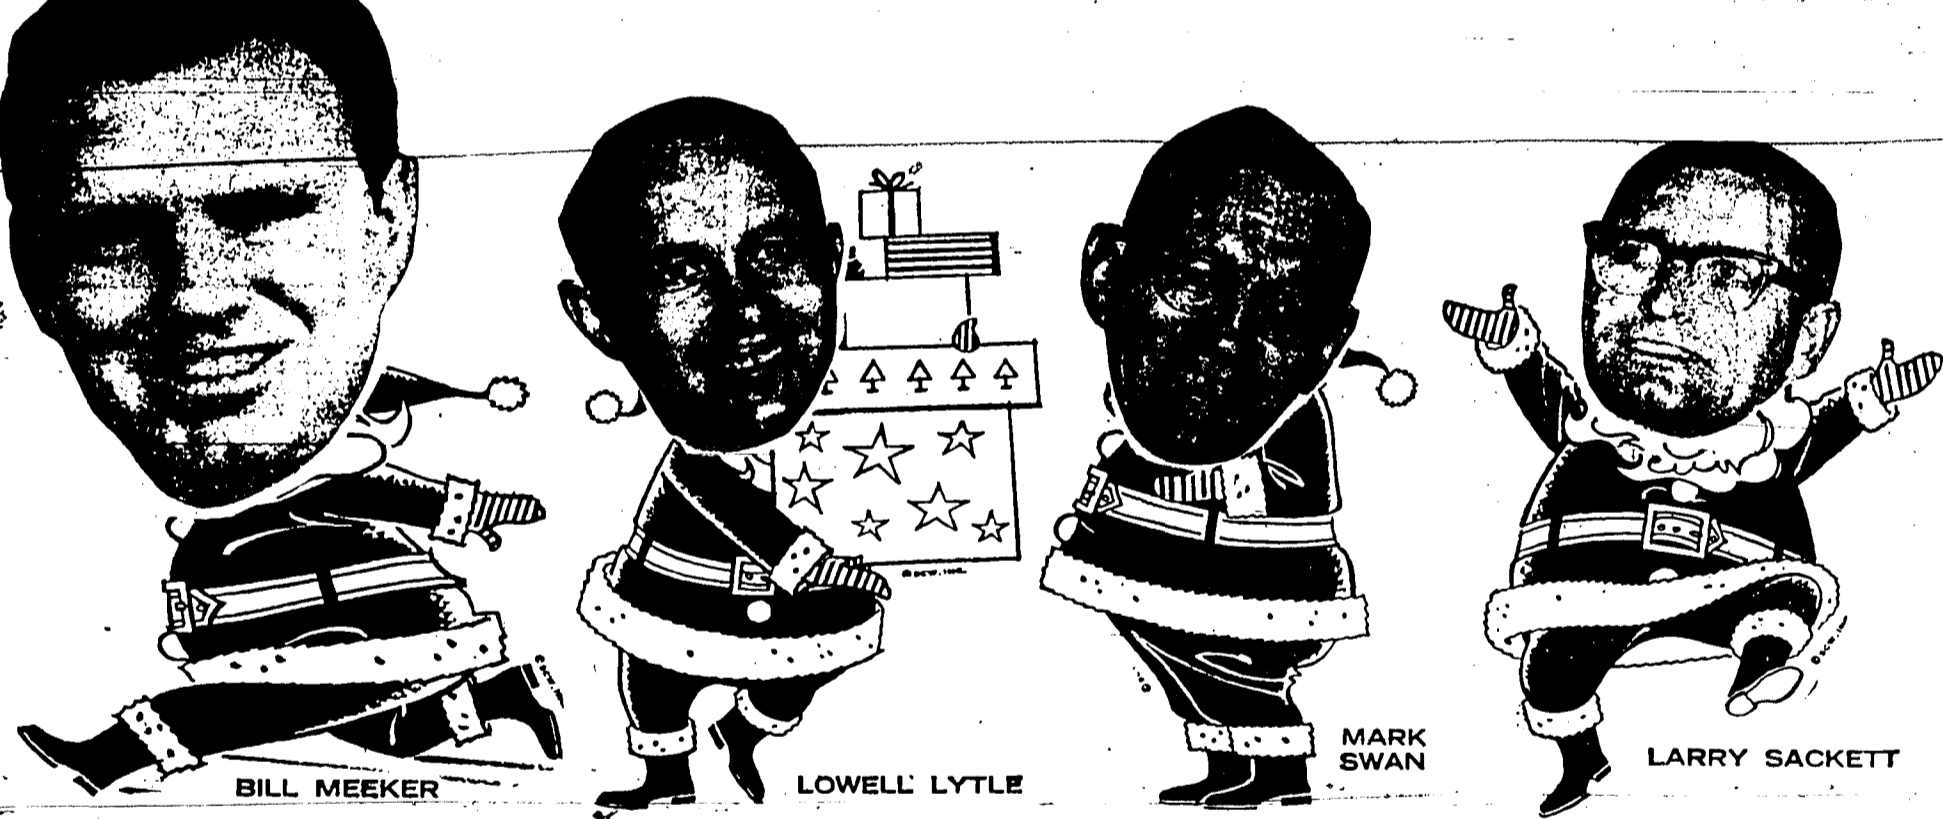

Summers, 37, turns up once a year at the heavily guarded crown jewel room in the ancient Tower of London to clean the sparklers. He has a staff of five, including two plate polishers, to help him clean up the assorted crowns, tiaras, necklaces, golden stails, rods, rings and heavy gold plate. "There's one diamond as big as a goose egg," Summers said. "It came from the famous South African Cullinan diamond, which weighs 330 carats, and is fitted in the royal sceptre."

Summers lives in a 14th century farmhouse in Kent County with his wife, Rosemarie, who comes from an Anglo-Chilean family, and their children, Allison, 5, and John, 3. "Rosemarie is crazy about jewelry, too," said Summers. "As if one diamond friend in the family wasn't enough!"

Fleischmann College of Agriculture, University of Nevada, meats laboratory. The laboratory, located at the Main Station Experimental Farm off Boynton Lane in Reno, has been under construction for nearly a year. This week it officially opened for use.

Reeder, according to Dr. Bohman, has had considerable experience in the meats industry ranging from slaughter to cutting. He was formerly a slaughter floor foreman at Nevada Meat Packing Co. and more recently was employed by Sierra Meat Co. Dr. Henderson has not yet joined the staff but will be around the first of the year. He is currently completing his PHD work at Iowa State University. Current plans call for slaughter of beef, veal and lamb at the facility. The bulk of the livestock will come from the university experimental herds. Meat derived in the operation will be used at the University of Nevada dining commons. No competition will be offered commercial meat producers. The facility was constructed at a cost of approximately $250,000 and features modern and up-to-date equipment both in the abattoir or killing floor, in the cutting and packing rooms and in the research facilities.

Waste From Silkworms To Be Utilized

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian agricultural researchers have found a way to utilize a waste material of the silkworm industry for poultry feed. The Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR) said tests have shown the new feed, produced from silkworm pupae is both "palatable and highly nutritious."

worm pupae meal per day. Further tests are being conducted at the Central Food Technological Research Institute in Mysore. It is estimated silkworm pupae meal can be produced for less than $100 a ton. In addition to bringing in additional revenue for the silk producers, the feed should improve the economic state of the poultry industry. Hopefully, consumer prices for eggs and poultry will be substantially lowered.

CALLS MADE POSSIBLE
SEOUL (AP) — U. S. Ambassador William J. Porter and about 20 other radio hams will help American servicemen in Korea make low-cost surprise Christmas calls to their families 7,000 miles away in the United States.

CANDIDATE

GLENNIS FERRY—Karen Anderson, Glennis Ferry, is one of the candidates for this year's sophomore class Holly Queen at the University of Idaho. Karen was nominated by her living group, French Hall. She is majoring in home economics, and her parents are Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Anderson.

The pupae is the cocoon stage between larvae and adult. ICAR officials estimated 100,000 tons of silkworm pupae go to waste every year in the silk producing areas of Mysore, Assam, Kashmir and other states. Disposing of this waste material has proved a major problem and usually involved digging huge pits. A silk reeler in the southern state of Mysore has already begun producing one-half ton of

Eager Young Clerks Show Determination To Make Sale

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Correspondent

An eager young sales clerk, confident of the conduct he is representing, and determined to make a sale — that is a combination hard to resist!

Imagine then, a whole roomful of well-dressed, poised and enthusiastic young salesmen, each very anxious to demonstrate the product he or she is trying to sell, and equipped with ready answers regarding guarantees, prices and durability of the merchandise.

This was the scene of the recent Sales Speaking Contest held at the YMCA-YWCA building in Twin Falls and sponsored by the John Chris Motor Co. Contestants were from the College of Southern Idaho Speech and Drama Department, headed by Mrs. Marlon Tanner and Robert Plumb, speech instructors at the college.

The contest was the second sponsored by the company to honor students who demonstrate outstanding ability in sales speaking. By selecting annual winners and recognizing them with appropriate awards, the John Chris Co. and CSI speech faculty hope to stimulate student interest and achievement in the field of sales speaking.

Contestants were given their choice of products to demonstrate. Most of them had only one day to prepare their speeches. Products were borrowed from area stores and each contestant was required to have at least two reliable sources of information on their product, such as manufacturer's manuals and consumer reports.

The enthusiasm of the participants was contagious. Since for most it was their first public speaking, some were understandably nervous and one young man reported he had "borrowed" some of his mother's tranquilizers, but most showed remarkable composure and confidence while giving their speeches. Most of them had family members and friends in the audience giving moral support.

One of the requisites of the contest was to be well dressed and one young man who didn't have a dress suit, went and bought one just for the occasion.

First place winner was Mrs. Claudia Logue, a freshman majoring in education. Mrs. Logue, who came here from Wichita, Kan., effectively demonstrated a popular detergent by waving before the audience a handful of dollar bills, supposedly the amount to be saved throughout the year by use of the product.

A FINAL POLISH on the motorcycle he will try to sell is given by Bill Assendrup who was the first speaker at the sales speech contest held in Twin Falls. Each of the 22 contestants had a product borrowed from local stores which he or she tried to demonstrate and sell in a four to five minute sales talk.

LISTENING INTENTLY TO contestants in the sales speaking contest are two of the judges, Jerry Shane and Mrs. C. R. Bixler. The contestants were divided into groups of three with three judges assigned to each group. Two finalists were chosen from each group and a different panel of judges selected the winners from the finalists.

GLAMOUR WAS COMBINED with talent in many of the contestants. Ronda Miracle, who demonstrated a hygiene dental water spray, received third place trophy. She looked particularly fetching in a lavender dress edged in white and with a lavender-velvet ribbon in her pleated curls. She is a freshman majoring in theater arts.

THIS UNUSUAL PICTURE, taken through a small window of the class room, shows Mrs. Claudia Logue, first place winner, demonstrating the detergent she considers superior to all others. Her prize-winning speech featured props of dollar bills and baby diapers.

THIS TOY POODLE, dressed in a red stocking cap and red and white knitted sweater, almost stole the show at the contest. Jay Boyer, who showed the puppy, stated it would make a perfect Christmas gift and the audience agreed. Sherri Miller, the dog's owner, brought the tiny pet in a gaily-wrapped Christmas gift box.

Young Students Are Determined To Make Sale

Looking very pretty in her pink and gray shift dress, Mrs. Logue confessed that, woman-like, she bought this particular brand of detergent at the market one day when her own brand was out of stock, because this kind had "the prettiest package." After using it though, she said she became convinced of its superiority over other brands, and as proof, she displayed two of her infant son's diapers, a noticeably whiter one washed several times with the detergent, the other washed with a competing brand.

John Cristofferson, manager of the John Chris Motor Co., presented the trophy to Mrs. Logue, and also presented the other trophies and plaques. Second place went to Chuck Schermerman, Twin Falls, a freshman majoring in business, who demonstrated the many uses of tempered glass. Rhonda Miracle, Twin Falls, a freshman majoring in theater arts, received third place on her demonstration of a hygiene jet water spray.

The contest is open to all regularly enrolled academic students carrying 12 or more hours and in good academic standing, stated Mrs. Tanner. Approximately 200 students in the seven speech and drama sections at the college took part in elimination rounds held in the classrooms after which the 22 outstanding contestants were chosen for the sales speaking contest.

One semester of speech (two credit hours) is required for graduation from the College of Southern Idaho. The sales speech is part of the speech course. Although some of the participating students are maj-

Vegetable Platter Brightens Party Menus

An excellent way to tempt appetites and brighten party menus featuring a simple roast of meat or poultry is with a colorful vegetable platter.

Depending upon the number of guests, choose two, three, four or even five different vegetables, selecting them for pleasing variety in color, shape, flavor and texture.

With the aid of convenient, ready-to-cook frozen vegetables, the vegetables can be cooked quickly and easily while the roast cools sufficiently for easy carving.

The illustrated vegetable platter combines five vegetables and yields 10 to 12 servings. Accompany with one or more of the following sauces:

PARTY VEGETABLE PLATTER

1 package (9 ounces) frozen cut green beans
1 package (10 ounces) frozen whole kernel corn
1 package (10 ounces) frozen asparagus spears
1 package (10 ounces) frozen whole baby carrots

Cook frozen vegetables in boiling salted water according to package directions. Drain and arrange in diagonal rows on a long narrow platter. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Accompany with one or more of the following sauces:
Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Welsh Rarebit Sauce: Heat two packages (10 ounces each) frozen Welsh rarebit according to package directions. Serve hot over cooked vegetables. Makes enough for six to eight servings.

Seasoned Butter Sauce: Melt two sticks (1/2 cup) butter or margarine. Add to taste one or more of the following: frozen chives, shredded Parmesan cheese, frozen lemon juice, sauteed frozen mushrooms (sliced or chopped), celery seed, curry powder, prepared mustard, Worcestershire sauce. Serve hot over cooked vegetables. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Hollandaise Sauce: Use convenient prepared Hollandaise sauce available in jars or make you own as follows:
In top of double boiler, combine two egg yolks, one tablespoon lemon juice, one-half teaspoon salt and a dash of cayenne pepper. Mix well. Place over hot (not boiling) water and beat with a wire whisk until mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat. Add one-half cup (1 stick) butter or margarine, about a sixth at a time, whipping constantly and allowing each bit to melt before adding the next.

Stir in one to two tablespoons lemon juice. If the sauce separates, add boiling water by the teaspoon, beating vigorously. When prepared in advance, cover closely with plastic wrap and set in bowl of warm water. Makes enough sauce for six to eight vegetable servings.

RED'S TRADING POST

Nuptial Mass Performed For Lorraine Dauplaise, Brown

A background of pink carnations and chrysanthemums, accented with Forever Yours red roses, formed the background for the Nov. 25 wedding of Lorraine Dauplaise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. E. Dauplaise, and Alan Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie F. Brown, all Twin Falls.

The Nuptial Mass was performed by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edmund E. Cody at St. Edward's Catholic Church. Lloyd Walker and John Krellkamp served as altar boys and Mrs. Lloyd Walker was soloist, accompanied by Joanne Cubit, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of beau de soie, fashioned with applied lace sequins and pearls highlighting the midriff and skirt. The long bouffant train, fastened to the waistline, enhanced the tiny buttoned back and the overlying panel which matched the applied pattern on the gown.

Her veil of silk illusion was held by a cluster of silk organza flowers accented with pearls. She carried a Rosary for her bouquet made of pearls and pink Delight roses.

Mrs. Lynda Jenkins, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Kip Wood, Ginger Wells and Teresa Knoble, all Twin Falls. Lorri Jenkins, niece of the bride, was flower girl and carried a white lace basket adorned with tiny red Garnet roses.

Ringbearer was Scott Bradshaw, Whittier, Calif., who carried the rings on a white lace heart-shaped pillow.

Dave Leroy, student body president of the University of Idaho, served as best man, with Mike Woodhead, Marc Gale and Jack Bryant, all SAE fraternity brothers of the bridegroom, as ushers.

A reception was held at the Holiday Inn immediately after the ceremony. Guests were greeted at the door by Karla Freeman who was in charge of the guest book.

The bride's table was covered with a white nylon embroidered cloth and centered with a four-tiered wedding cake encircled with garlands of leather leaf, pink chrysanthemums and Forever Yours roses. The cake was topped with roses and a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Guest tables were centered with floating carnations in an icor entwined with leather leaf. Presiding at the bride's table were Mrs. Phil Burkhardt, Pocatello; Mrs. Frank Williams, Boise, cousins of the bridegroom; Mrs. Jack Warberg and Mrs. Gene Cunningham, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Tom Marzocca, Kimberly.

Gifts were displayed by Ann Murphy and Kathy Obenchain, classmates of the bride.

Special out-of-state guests included Mrs. Ada Benson, Great Falls, Mont., grandmother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Daugh Bradshaw, Whittier, and Mrs. Bill Garner, Delano, Calif. Other guests attended from Moscow, Pocatello, Boise, Jerome and Kimberly.

The couple will reside in Portland, Ore., where the bridegroom is employed at Consolidated Freightways in the accounting department.

A pre-nuptial kitchen shower was given for the bride by Mrs. Lynda Jenkins and Mrs. Ross McNurlin, and a miscellaneous shower was hosted by Mrs. I. H. Wood, Mrs. Kip Wood, Karla Freeman, Ginger Wells and Teresa Knoble. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

The bride-elect is employed as a typesetter by the Burley Reminder, Inc. Mr. Esterbrook is engaged in farming north of Gooding where the couple will reside.

Miss Schaeffer, Hardy Recite Nuptial Vows

BURLEY — Angela Schaeffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schaeffer, Paul, and Bobb Hardy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lesel Hardy, Rupert, were united in marriage in rites Nov. 25 at the Paul Congregational Church.

The double ring evening ceremony was performed by Rev. Emil Hansen before an arch entwined with greenery and adorned with two white bows and white wedding bells. The arch was flanked by cathedral candles and beauty baskets of golden and white chrysanthemums, bronze-colored leaves and bronze-colored bows. The pews were marked with white bow ribbons centered with an orange carnation.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, recited vows in a floor-length gown of peau de soie, styled with a rounded neckline, long bell-shaped lace sleeves and a lace chapel train. Small seed pearls trimmed the bodice, chapel train and sleeves. Applied lace flowers accented the wedding gown. The gown was made by Mrs. Juanita Zimmerman, sister of the bride.

The bride wore pearl drop earrings and her fingertip veil of illusion net was held by lace and chiffon bows outlined in sequins and seed pearls.

Cascading miniature orange roses centered with a white orchid with gold leaves and lace streamers formed her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Zimmerman was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Sharon Bowers, DeLo, and Marlene Hampton, Twin Falls. Tamara Zibberman, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Ron Reynolds, Rupert, was best man. Ushers were Don MacKenzie, Paul, and Darwin Nelson, Boise. Timothy Schaeffer, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer. Candlelighters were Miss Bowers and Miss Hampton.

Sally Cunningham played the traditional wedding music. Mr. and Mrs. August Martusch sang a selection.

After the ceremony, the newlyweds greeted guests in the reception hall.

The bride's table, covered with a white lace cloth, was centered with a three-tiered white wedding cake accented with orange roses, white swans, orange wedding bells and dark green leaves and was topped with wedding bells and lace. The wedding cake was baked by Mrs. Johnny Harrel, Burley.

The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Pauline Schaeffer, sister-in-law of the bride. Mrs. Rachel Schaeffer served the punch and Mrs. WillaJane Mayer poured coffee. Others assisting with serving were Mrs. Ursula Mayer, Mrs. Clara Schaeffer, Mrs. Avel Mayer and Mrs. Milita Clark, all aunts of the bride.

Gifts were displayed by Diane Phillips, Judy Zimmerman, Margaret Pfeifer, Kathy Schaeffer and Delilah Mayer.

Guests were registered by Barbara Allen.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Gordon and I have been married for 6 months and I have just about had it. This is the second time around for both of us. We both have teen-aged children. His live with their mother, and mine live with us.

Gordon's ex-wife calls him almost every evening to discuss some "problem" she is having with the children. I don't call my ex-husband every night with "problems" concerning our children.

Am I wrong to object to Gordon's ex-wife bothering him so much? Now they are divorced I feel he should be finished with her. He sees his children every Sunday, and I think if his ex-wife has any problems to talk over with him, she should do it then. I would like your opinion.

DEAR HAD IT: Gordon may very well be "finished" with his ex-wife, but no proper father is "finished" with his children until they are grown and on their own. If Gordon feels that his ex-wife is "bothering" him, it is up to him to tell her so. If he doesn't complain, perhaps he wants to be made aware of his children's problems.

Yours is the battle nearly every woman fights when she marries a divorced man whose children live with their mother. If you are wise, you will be both patient and silent.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced 4 years ago, but the flame is still burning, and we see each other quite often. Lately he has been coming over here for dinner and then we watch TV together and he sometimes stays all night. My problem is the neighbors. They know his car, and they see it parked in my driveway all night, and I understand they

Grunts 'n Groans Are Gone — Biggest Man Isn't Always The Victor

By JAN A. SAINSBURY
Times-News Feature Editor

Not too many years ago two things occupied a great deal of the average American's time: Uncle Millie, and wrestling. Uncle Millie wasn't television's greatest offender; he occupied only one slot in a broad spectrum of otherwise dull television fare. Dull, that is, by today's standards of television production. And dull, with but one exception, the wrestling matches.

Wrestling on television hit its peak in most areas in the mid-1950's. It was a crude and tinsel laden effort to convince the newly won national television audiences that what was obviously a cheap brand of showmanship, was not showmanship at all, but grown men crying at the pain of having an arm ripped from its socket, only to return and fight again another night, as if nothing had happened.

It was an effort to fool the American public into thinking that a man could have his head repeatedly bashed against a solid steel post in one corner of a wrestling arena, and emerge with nothing but an insatiable urge to jump up and down just prior to kicking his opponent in the face with both feet.

It was an effort to convince the audience that the promoters were clever, and it was stupid

And for a long time it worked. And unfortunately it gave wrestling a bad name.

Wrestling finally became nothing more than what it was in the beginning; its life consisted of one night stands in smoke-filled armories in cities of. It drew large audiences in large towns, and small audiences in small towns, and today has no national television audience.

Enter legitimate wrestling? Not quite. Legitimate wrestling had been around all the time, only it was not a salable quantity. Without the long golden curls, the tag-team matches, or the never ending squabble in which the referee conveniently stepped into the path of Killer Whale, and was used as a human battering-ram, "legitimate" wrestling had nothing going for it—unless, of course, it was the concept of honesty.

To the real fans of legitimate wrestling, the display on television nearly every night was a travesty. It was a grotesque display of all that wasn't done by those who loved the sport. It was the end product of a publicist, not of a sportsman.

"Legitimate" wrestling, and "amateur" wrestling, are one and the same. There is no professional wrestling today which is not suspect to the same disparaging attitudes that prevailed in the waning days of television wrestling. It is only amateur wrestling which prevails.

Amateur wrestling in its present form is found in YMCA's, athletic clubs, and high schools and colleges throughout this country. It is a winter sport, rapidly becoming extremely important in physical education, intramural, and interscholastic competition. And it bears no resemblance to professional wrestling.

That may seem like a strong statement—no resemblance—but nevertheless, it is basically true. The grunts and groans are essentially gone. They have been replaced by tactics, by the use of pressure, and the ability to anticipate a sequence of moves. It is more scientific than one might think. And its audience is devoted to it.

To watch a high school wrestling match today is a unique and exciting experience. The crowd doesn't fill the gymnasium. It fills only a section of the bleachers on each side.

But unlike basketball games and football games which draw thousands of students, many of them there for the sole purpose of socializing, wrestling draws only those interested in wrestling itself. The crowd is smaller, but it is more devoted, more loyal, more interested.

MOTHER TOLD ME there'd be days like this . . .

more enthusiastic, more everything.

It moves when the wrestler moves, and it is quiet until the referee moves his hand and says, "Wrestle!" and the two boys move to gain position and points.

You will see few holds once favored on television—most of them are outlawed in amateur competition. Holds which can injure by twisting an arm or leg are not allowed, nor are those which can injure the face or head.

For the newcomer watching wrestling in a high school or college audience, it is a difficult sport to understand. One boy moves a bit and the crowd goes wild. The referee points to the boy and holds his other hand in the air with two fingers extended. "Takedown, Two Points, Blue," he yells to the scorekeeper and timers.

And a second later, "Reversal, Two Points, Red."

And if you don't know what it's all about it seems as though very little has happened, and you find yourself wondering what brought about those four points.

Occasionally points are announced by the referee and it seems as though nothing at all happened. And then you begin to see it. The moves and subtleties begin to appear. The reason for the decision becomes clear. And amateur wrestling has won a new fan.

To explain the rules and regulations of the amateur wrestling as it is practiced today would take considerable space. It is better to watch a match, participate in the feeling of the sport, and begin to broaden your appreciation of a much maligned activity.

Modern wrestling is just that: modern. It functions within a new set of rules and is dominated by a new generation of enthusiasts. It is built on youth.

Wrestlers now compete on foam mats in regulation uniforms under the jurisdiction of a referee who knows what it's all about, and who could care less about performing. His only job is to make certain points are awarded to the wrestler doing the best job, and to bring penalties against those using illegal holds or procedures.

With the death of wrestling on television, it was reborn, this time in the correct environment.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Jingle Bell! Jingle Bell! Christmas is coming and amid the season preparations, perhaps some readers have idly wondered what kind of post office, if any, there is at the North Pole.

If so, wonder no longer, for a TWIN FALLS resident, Mrs. Glenn (Mildred) Nelson, who also is Times-News correspondent for the HOLLISTER area, has found, and even pictured, the answer while on a trip to the northern most state last summer.

During a group bus tour while attending the Pacific Area Soil Conservation district meet, Mrs. Nelson said the route took them to the North Pole Post Office which was closed when they stopped. But the tourists mailed letters there anyway and noted the dog sled parked out in front.

The post office is located on what Alaskans call the Richardson Highway and addresses in that area are determined by how many miles one lives from Fairbanks.

A RICHFIELD hunter was unsuccessful on his deer and elk hunting trip, but located a lost horse and saw some big bear tracks. Clifford Conner, Richfield mail carrier, was only able to spend a few days hunting and the elk he saw were, in permit areas, through the headlights of his car at night.

One evening a hunter came by looking for his lost horse and offered a $50 reward for finding the animal. The next evening Conner and Ray Jagers, a miner with whom he was staying, found the animal and plan to split the reward money.

Donald Myers, another Richfield hunter, almost lost his deer to a big bear after hanging the deer in a tree. Coming back later for the deer he and some other hunters evidently scared off the bear which had pulled down the deer and dragged it some distance, but had not ruined the meat.

The men had been hunting on Fisher Creek near Obsidian.

AWARD GIVEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Igor Sikorsky, the man who designed and built the first multiengine airplane, has been awarded the 1967 Wright Brothers Memorial Award for outstanding service to aviation.

Visiting her son and his family at Dawson Creek, Canada, was a real accomplishment for Mrs. Florence Gage, SHOSHONE, two years ago, but at 85 and another trip just ended, Mrs. Gage's appearance shows she came back feeling better than when she left.

No doubt it was the excitement of traveling by plane to Dawson Creek area, then taking a bus to Trusk where her son, Floyd, now operates a service station. There she assisted at times during the two month stay at Trusk as a waitress and helping with dishes at the cafe. A surprise was when customers started tipping her, but this continued off and on during the entire visit.

Mrs. Gage then visited an additional two weeks at Dawson Creek at the Gage home when Mrs. Gage and two daughters returned for the girls to start school.

In commenting on the weather, Mrs. Gage said "it is about the same as we have here, only we had 16 inches of snow fall just before I left Dawson Creek to come home."

Bloodmobile To Visit Buhl On Monday

BUHL—The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Buhl Moose Hall between 2 and 6 p.m. Monday, according to Ralph Assendrup, local chapter blood chairman.

Area residents are urged to turn out in large numbers Monday in order to meet and surpass the quota of 100 pints. Only two times in the last 10 visits of the bloodmobile did the Buhl chapter fail to meet the quota.

Plans for the drawing are under the direction of Mr. Assendrup, assisted by Blaine Williams. Mrs. George Fritz is in charge of postal notices mailed to all donors residing in the community.

The Buhl Jay-C-Ettes will assist by telephoning area business houses during the time of the drawing as a reminder to blood donors. Members of Beta Sigma Phi will assist as typists and receptionists at the drawing.

Cedar Draw Grange will serve the canteen for the drawing and the Buhl VFW post will be in charge of setting up and taking down the equipment.

Mrs. George Harvey is in charge of assigning medical doctors, nurses aides, and registered nurses to assist at the drawing.

Donation Is Taken For T.F. Center

PAUL—Instead of the regular gift exchange between children of Pioneer Grange members Wednesday night, the youngsters placed the money each would have spent in an envelope to be given to retarded children.

The envelope containing individual names will be sent to the Retarded Children's Center, Twin Falls, for distribution. This is the second year the children have done this.

Treats were given to each child present and a program was presented by the children.

Readings were by Danny Klamm, Brent McCall, Jim McCall, Sharlene Patterson, Bobby Lloyd, Kelly Patterson and Mike Patterson.

Karen Klamm played a piano solo and a vocal duet was by Susan Sanford and Lori Sanford. Randy Lloyd sang a solo. Community singing was led by Mrs. Willard Hayward.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Fred Rogers and Mrs. Russell Acocik. The next meeting will be held Jan. 10.

Richfield Raises Janitor's Wages

RICHFIELD—Richfield school board members raised the janitor's wages from $4,500 to $4,800 after improvement in the work noted at the December school board meeting Tuesday night.

Approval was granted to pay the difference in cost for a new stereo with public address outlet for the high school. The PTA has given $100 on the purchase as the PTA project for the year.

Richfield schools will be dismissed at 2 p.m. Dec. 22 for vacation until Jan. 2. The community Christmas program will be at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the high school auditorium.

Film Shown For Chamber On Littering

RUPERT—The film on littering, "Let's Keep America Beautiful" was shown to the Rupert Chamber of Commerce members and guests Thursday at the weekly luncheon meeting at Hirling's Cafe.

Bill Haynes, program chairman for December, pointed out that many of the containers and packaging being used today are made of materials that do not decompose or decay and will still be lying where thrown 20 years or more from now and this makes it more important to take whatever measures we can to prevent littering.

He also told of 4-H clubs in some states that are working on a project to promote cleanliness in the streets and parks and noted that this would have to be a continuing thing.

Ways were discussed in which improvement within the city could be made. Mayor Wendell Johnson suggested that a committee from the chamber work with the city council and that possibly the city and county could work together also.

Del Hollinger reported on a meeting of the South Idaho Chamber which he attended. A resolution was passed there to back an individual air line which would give passenger and freight service and possibly mail service, through Salt Lake City. Also discussed was the possibility of having a stamp redemption center in Rupert.

Guests were Dick Armstrong, Springfield Tire Co. and Don W. Edwards, Idaho State Tax Commission.

THE BROKEN SEAL
By Ladislav Farago
Ladislav Farago writes good history.

And, at this time of year, many of us find our thoughts turning toward a particular day in history. Farago's book, "The Broken Seal," is a brilliantly illuminated view of the events leading to this day: 7 December 1941.

There are many books written about this most significant date, but few are so clear in defining the day by day progress of the situation in our military and political establishment in Washington, D.C. Moreover, none are so well documented as this one.

Mr. Farago was employed in the Office of Naval Intelligence in Washington where he was well situated to observe and understand the flow of information in those intense days of 1940-1941.

"The Broken Seal" is subtitled "Operation Magic" and the Secret Road to Pearl Harbor." It is a generally accepted fact by those acquainted with the history of World War II that the United States had broken various Japanese Operational and Diplomatic Codes. How was this done? And why didn't the crucial information of the impending attack get to the Military Commanders in Hawaii and the Philippines?

In his picture of interactions between the various governmental departments leading up to "Magic" and after, Farago gives an excellent basis for understanding what happened to the information "Magic" gave us.

The story is told in five parts. The first two provide background in the development of cryptography and cryptanalysis in the United States, both in general and then specifically in relationship to the Japanese. Part three tells about the Japanese development of the Pearl Harbor Plan, "Operation Z."

along with the origin (and success) of Operation Magic.

Part four leads us up to the final days which are described with considerable detail in part five.

The book closes with what amounts to a sixth part. This is a marvelous assembly of comprehensive reference notes from numerous sources. These are what make the book seem so exciting. Ends are tied together, curious situations and other histories are explained, and the whole situation of our nation in those dark days of December 1941 is given a sense of human reality.

"Why can't I HEAR?"

This man's hearing is fading. He is beginning to enclose himself in a lonely little world, unconsciously shutting himself off from family, friends and social life. Becoming "deaf" seems to him like the end of the world. The worst part is that it may take him a long time to find out that he can be helped.

Hearing loss is America's most common physical impairment, affecting millions of people. Happily, most of them have found that a hearing problem need not be a handicap.

We have been helping people return to the wonderful world of sound for more than 30 years. If you or a friend or relative has a hearing problem, chances are we can help. You can find out without obligation. Send the coupon for full information on the Maico Method of Better Hearing.

"Number Please" Is Phrase With A Familiar Ring

By ARVETTA SAVAGE
Times-News Correspondent

HEYBURN—Persons in the Heyburn rural area had an early Christmas present this year, but not from the plump red-dressed man with the jolly Ho Ho Ho.

The gifts was delivered by pleasant speaking men, arriving in panel trucks and greeting the housewife with a jolly, "Would you like a private line?"

Telephone installation men were the "best looking sight" the ladies had seen in some time. In fact Alexander Graham Bell, who invented the telephone in 1876, couldn't have received a more welcome response.

According to Dean Gibson, manager of the Burley Mountain States Telephone company office, 173 rural subscribers are receiving private, two-party or lines carrying lighter than previous loads because of a current project known as the Rural Improvement Program.

He said the project completed this week in the Heyburn rural area is one of the first areas in the statewide project to be completed. The company plans to complete the statewide project by the end of 1969.

This is music to the ears of many rural families, who have had to at one time share the telephone line with maybe 16 other families, which was the case here in the early 1950's.

Since this area turned to dial in 1955, the rural area had been served with eight-party lines. This was an improvement over the previous 16-18 party load, but after a while it too was inadequate.

For instance, a line north of Heyburn, carried eight parties, including businessmen. If this sounds rather funny, just try to use the phone.

This line served residences of the Minidoka County agent, a fieldman for Amalgamated Sugar Company, two inspectors for the State Highway department, two school teachers, a high-scale farmer, and as if this wasn't enough it also included a Times-News correspondent.

The telephone company has made great strides forward the past few years and improvements are being made continually. The operation is becoming more mechanical and the need for women operators is diminishing.

For many years before dial, Burley was the toll center for telephone communication to the smaller surrounding towns. Although Rupert was of the same size, all long distance calls were sent through Burley switchboards, because of different companies involved.

A small company in Albion operated by a mother and son team, served small communities in that mountain area.

The telephone switchboard operator was a central figure in the area and was referred to by the public as the "voice with a smile" or the "hello girl." The operator was indispensable and the public could not communicate properly without her.

At one time nightly location reports of patrolling police officers were received by the all night telephone operator. The operators were also connecting links between fire victims and the fire department.

An emergency light set up in the main section of town was turned on by operators as a signal for patrolmen to check in.

When switchboard operators served the area, it reportedly provided a closer association with people. Many older persons had a more "secure" feeling, knowing there was someone to help them, just by taking the receiver off the hook.

The operators were able to recognize voices of subscribers although one may come in on the switchboard from another number. They could pass persons on the street and never know them, but to hear the familiar voice over the telephone, was the sound of a "good friend."

A frequent bit of conversation went like this: "Who is John Brown?"

"You know him, he is number 734."

Or another means of identification for switchboard operators as to where someone lived was "out in the 0288 area," or where ever the particular line was located.

The area was served by 35 to 45 operators who handled emergencies almost every day. Most operators had a high percentage of the area numbers memorized and knew just by looking at the light on the switchboard, which subscriber waiting for service may possibly involve emergency procedure.

An alert all-night operator noticed a permanent signal on the switchboard coming from a downtown store. She called police to check it out and a fire was discovered, which unnoticed, could possibly have destroyed the entire block of business establishments.

One operator received permission from her supervisor to leave the board one night to take an expectant mother to the hospital. The baby was born 20 minutes later.

Countless hours were spent by operators in attempts to contact relatives because of death emergencies and each seemed to make it a personal responsibility.

Switchboard operators apparently had a difficult time confining the service to on-duty hours. A local physician was located by an off-duty operator east of Heyburn at a residence where telephone service was not available, and was informed that he was needed at the hospital immediately.

The hospital had requested the help of the telephone supervisor, who contacted the off-duty operator at Heyburn and she drove several miles to contact the doctor.

During the memorable snowstorm in February of 1949, operators did a tremendous job. Many persons were snowed in by five-foot drifts and about the only means of communication was the telephone. Nell Evans, chief operator at the time, remembers that all operators reported to work during that period and two of them had to walk about three miles to get there.

Many times persons would pick up a receiver and utter a word or two, just enough to let the operator know that help was needed.

And like normal human beings, the operator would often wipe a tear from her eye in sympathy for the desperate emotion sensed in a subscriber's voice.

"To the telephone operator, each call seemed a challenge.

On the brighter side, the operator could laugh at herself about experiences she witnessed. Apparently she lived her job day and night because she was often heard talking in her sleep repeating, "Number please — operator — hello."

Telephone service at Albion by it's operator was even more personalized than in the Burley office, because it was located in the center of the residential area.

"Who are you calling, honey," inquired the congenial older Albion operator. After learning the name, she would tell the Burley operator to wait just a minute because she could see the person in their back yard and would yell to them.

Burley telephone office which remain in the memory of former employees.

William B. Fisher, company manager, since retired, said, "We had an organization we could be proud of and our goal was to give good service and we did a bang up job of it."

He said the loyal spirit was marvelous and he was justly proud of the cooperation of employees.

Mr. Fisher and Miss Evans retired a few years ago. Each first became employed by the Mountain States company in 1928. Miss Evans recalls that there were 13 operators in 1928 and she was paid $10 a week, which was considered good wages in those days.

"Times have changed and memories are good.

The Telephone company kept up with current trends and changed this area to dial in 1955. Several persons wanted to keep the operators and remain the same but later realized that with the growing population it couldn't have been done.

If they hadn't turned to dial, there wouldn't have been enough women between the ages of 18-25 to handle the job properly.

Some operators remained with the company and transferred to either Twin Falls or Pocatello, or quit to remain in this area with their families.

Information concerning the growth of the company here since 1955 is not available, but Mr. Gibson said the company serves 1,503 more subscribers today than it did in 1959.

Telephone service has changed with improvement and the 16-18 party lines once here no longer exist. The "voice with a smile" can still be heard by dialing "0" and the operator in Twin Falls remains on hand to assist with any emergency.

When the area lost the "voice" after picking up the telephone receiver and getting only a dial buzz, the subscriber felt a strange "alone" feeling.

The opposite is true of country subscribers who were placed on private lines this week.

They want to feel alone on the line but somehow can't lose the feeling that another voice will come on the line any second with—

"IS THIS LINE BUSY?"

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

By DR. HAROLD N. NYE
Pastor, First Methodist Church

At the center of the wonder of Christmas is a baby. Is it not strange that when God wanted his people to know what he was like, that he put a baby in their midst? For centuries the people had been waiting for a Messiah. Their expectation was for a kingly, military-powered Messiah. Their minds were set on the kind of a leader they wanted, and when he finally came they did not recognize him. He came so lowly and so weakly. They looked for one of pomp and power. He came by the natural processes of human birth. They looked for some cataclysmic event that would usher in the Messiah in a magical, dramatic manner.

So, when God came he did so, so naturally and casually that most people were totally unaware that he had come. In fact, it was lowly shepherds that interpreted certain phenomenon to mean that the Messiah had come. After having received certain information about the place where the baby was, they hastened to visit him. After the visit they were convinced it was he for whom they and others had been waiting.

But it was not only the lowly folk who came to have an awareness of the Messiah's coming. The Wise Men of the East were also alerted. They had interpreted the peculiar brightness of a star (undoubtedly caused by the juxtaposition of two fairly prominent stars) as a sign that the long predicted Messiah had come. They set out to find the child, following the light of the star.

After many miles of journey, and after a serious confrontation with a jealous king, who was trying to find the location of the child that he might destroy him, the Wise Men found the Christ child. By certain signs they knew that it was He.

They presented to him their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. That simple gesture triggered a custom that has gained momentum through the years. It is nonetheless true this year.

We bring our gifts to those we love. Our gifts speak of our devotion, as they did for the Wise Men so long ago.

Christmas is the most wonderful time of the year. May its message permeate our hearts as we move on to the way of Christmas, when once more we celebrate the coming of God on earth.

Antique Bottle Group Has Meet

A dinner was held followed by separate meetings for the men and the auxiliary. The men's meeting was conducted by Robert Powers, Heyburn, district commander. Mrs. Robert Messenger, Jerome, conducted the auxiliary meeting.

Keith Scott, Rigby, state commander, was the featured speaker. Mr. Scott reminded the members of the true objectives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He told those attending, "The purpose of this corporation shall be fraternal, patriotic, historical and educational."

Clifford Mitchell, Glenns Ferry, department senior vice commander, and Bill G. Will, Boise, department quartermaster, both spoke on membership.

Poor Mule Is Thing Of The Past

Idaho Fish-Game Department. Babe, the legendary blue ox of Paul Bunyon, would take a dim view of the coming to the north woods of the first successful gyro-stabilized land vehicle. The odd-looking "three-wheels-in-line" or tandem unit can haul as much as four good pack mules over back country terrain. Thus it may take one of the last jobs in motorized America from the faithful old mule.

Inventory of the Idaho Fish and Game Department. Some are vintage weasels, tuckers and sno-cats, ready for retirement. Others are small, reliable types. Each conservation enforcement region has at least one late model machine. Officers and game management workers use them for several kinds of work.

Boise chapter has 40-50 members. Some of them made a trip to the cabin area of Warm Lake east of McCall during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Other states and Canada have placed restrictions on the owners of snowmobiles. Minnesota, for example, has new regulations which barred such machines from any area open for deer hunting between the 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. Drivers or passengers were not even allowed to carry guns on their vehicles during these hours. After 3 p.m. cases guns could be carried aboard, but the unit had to be traveling to or from a permanent overnight deer camp, not merely a deer stand. Also an $8 license for snowmobile owners, good for three years, is required. The November issue of an outdoor magazine with national circulation gives a more detailed summary of such regulations.

A publicity blurb from its designer, USDA's Forest Service Equipment Development Center at Missoula, Mont., says that a 180-pound gyro, spinning at 5,500 revolutions per minute, gives the cargo carrier its balance and unique look. The pilot model, demonstrated last summer in Montana by Regional Forester Neal M. Rahm, travels narrow, rough trails and its wheels "walk" single file down a log, climbing grades as steep as 60 per cent.

Hawley Hill, chief of conservation enforcement, says some known cases of poaching and harassment of game with snow machines are on file in Boise. Sometimes the line between outdoor photography and the harassment of game is hard to find. Use of machines to transport hunters and their game to and from the point where pickup trucks or other vehicles have to be left is not too common so far in Idaho because most big game seasons are closed before heavy snowfall comes. Winter fishermen, especially steelheaders, are beginning to use frisky little snow machines to get them to waters that are open for fishing in the early spring before back-country roads are passable.

He adds that members of the Boise club, though sportsmen, rarely take time out for fishing in year-round waters, or for hunting in season. They are much too busy having fun on their cross-country touring, ridge riding and nature communing to take the time for hunting or fishing, even when they are in good country for such sports. Wellington has owned snowmobiles for a half-dozen years now and is considered an Idaho pioneer in the field.

Perhaps the thing that helps most in Idaho is that snowmobilers are well organized and hold monthly meetings. These are fun groups but the clubs police their own members as necessary through social pres-

The same forces that keep a child's spinning top upright hold the gyro cargo carrier upright. With its special stabilization system, the unit keeps its balance even when hauling heavy loads and with a man standing on it.

Canadian backwoods workers found jobs for snowmobiles several years before they caught on in the United States. Perhaps for that reason, reports of their misuse are more frequent north of the border. Several men riding snow machines "hunt" in packs for such animals as Polar bears, timber wolves, and foxes, which are quite valuable when such tactics are used.

Idaho snowmobilers still are pioneering in North America's fastest growing winter sport, one which seems to appeal to most members of a family group no matter what the age span. Like Idaho's 25,000 boat owners, give or take a few, and an undetermined number of trail bike addicts, the safety of snowmobile enthusiasts depends on their own good judgment, individually and collectively. So far all three groups of sportsmen have avoided restrictive legislation in Idaho because most of them pay close attention to the rights of others.

All controls are at the rear. Riding on a small platform or walking behind is optional with the driver. The front wheel provides steering. All three wheels are driven by individual hydraulic motors mounted on the hubs. This unit is just one more "iron horse" in the long list of machines that are now used to help make "country miles" shorter. These include airplanes, helicopters, jet-propelled boats, 4-wheel drive units, trail bikes and snow machines, among others. Such sophisticated equipment helps in the management of fish and wildlife by putting workers where they need to be to do the job, and by getting fishermen and hunters where they can give the most help in harvesting surplus fish and game animals and birds, whatever the season or weather conditions may be.

Howard M. (Duke) Wellington, Boise, president of the Western Snowmobile Association, estimates that there are nearly 200,000 owners of these remarkable little power sleds in Canada and the United States. Manufacturers expect to sell 140,000 units during the 1968 season. This adds up to a staggering $150 million dollar industry, not counting another $20 million or so that goes into special clothing and accessories.

Wellington says the Western Snowmobile Association has 34 affiliated clubs and 1,100 members in the 11 western states. The bulk of these are located in Idaho and Montana. The snow machines of one kind or another have been in use for a long time, but not so much as now for fishing and hunting. For two decades or more, Forest Service, range management and Fish and Game personnel, along with trappers, stockmen and others have found jobs for motorized equipment that would scout on top of deep snow and carry passengers or pull sleds loaded with hay, tools and whatnot. At first these snow machines were too big, clumsy, costly and unreliable.

All told, there are some two dozen snow machines of various kinds and ages on the equipment

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

From E. T. Filer, Idaho, comes this letter: Please tell me in your column if an 1854 twenty-five cent piece in fairly good condition and an 1880 Indian Head Penny in good condition are worth anything more than face value.

one. The "cash" were issued in tremendous quantities by every war-lord in China who could confiscate the bronze for them. They are not "struck" coins, but rather made in a mold. A great many of them appear in Idaho and other western states, since there were a lot of Chinese here in the early days. The hole was put in the center so they could be strung on a cord — thus making it possible for a man to carry his entire "fortune" around with him. Sorry — they have no value.

Answer: The 1854 twenty-five cent piece is worth from $1.50 up to $6.00 — depending upon condition. The 1880 Indian Head Cent is not scarce except in the very finest grades. Your coin is probably worth in the neighborhood of twenty to sixty cents.

To L. R. T. Twin Falls, Idaho: Your coin is, indeed, a half-dime and it is perfectly legal money. This coin was issued for a good many years and used extensively. However, the age has nothing to do with the value, generally speaking, and your coin being dated 1843 does not necessarily mean it is rare. In fact, the mintage figure for that particular coin is well over a million. It is quoted at $1.75 in good condition — from there on up to $4.00 in Very Fine. If it were uncirculated it would have more value, but you describe it as being well-worn — which drops it down a great deal. A few of the half-dimes have a high value but most of them dated after 1829 are fairly easy to come by from dealers. In the lower grades they do not command much of a premium.

Answer: Silver Certificates in any condition are currently selling at about 35 per cent over face value. In other words — $1.35 for the dollar certificate, $6.75 for the five dollar and $13.50 for the ten. The price fluctuates with the price of silver, since dealers are buying these notes to trade for silver at the Treasury. I can give you names of a few dealers in the eastern part of the United States if you will drop me a letter with a self-addressed, stamped envelope in it. I do not personally recommend any of these dealers — but several of this column's readers have sold to them and been well satisfied. Silver Certificates in uncirculated, crisp condition are worth hanging onto. They will appreciate rapidly in value in the years to come.

Half-dimes were minted from 1792 through 1873 and only the very early ones are worth much money. It is interesting to note that the 5c piece (or nickel) was minted in 1866, yet the half-dime was not discontinued until seven years later.

From D. M. Burley, Idaho: I have quite a handful of heavy brass colored coins. They are all marked with what looks like Chinese writing, and have square holes in them. I think they are probably very old and a friend tells me he thinks they are worth quite a lot of money. How can I find out about them?

(Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301)

Answer: I would suggest you hang onto the friend who thinks they are worth a lot of money and sell them to him. As near as I can tell from your description these are Chinese "cash." They are, indeed, very old — centuries in fact — depending on the dating, but they are worthless except to a collector who might be trying for a certain sure. It is not uncommon to find 40 or more members taking active parts in club affairs. They invite outside speakers to advise them on matters pertaining to the management of fish and wildlife resources, public lands and host of other related problems.

Arithmetic

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lesson in congressional arithmetic: Noting that air mail stamps are going up 25 per cent — to 10 cents — in January, the House voted Thursday to raise members' air mail stamp allowance 40 per cent.

Tree Is Stolen

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Christmas trees frequently are stolen from U.S. Forest Service land. One was stolen Friday from the lobby of the U.S. Forest Service Building. A young couple walked into the lobby just before 8 a.m., picked up the six-foot, undecorated fir, loaded it on their car and drove away, a spokesman said. A Forest Service employe watching the whole proceeding thought the removal had been ordered.

Stevenson Named To Water Board

RUPERT — A total of 380 ballots were cast in the Mindoka Irrigation District election Tuesday. John A. Stevenson received 208 votes to defeat the incumbent, Henry Rickert, with 169, for a three-year term. Rickert is finishing his second term on the board. Stevenson will take office in January.

Only thing to do is to whack his whiskers off!

NO! Okay, we'll chop 'em out!

Careful, not too close! I'll handle this! I know what I'm doin'!

FOR DR. MAURICE POSTER,

American Optometric Association

Would you recommend them to teen-agers?—Helen Czakowski, Elmira, N. Y.

● Contact lenses are absolutely safe when properly fitted by an eye specialist and correctly used by wearer. If problems do occur, the reasons are almost always traceable to the wearer; reasons such as improper hygiene, overuse, failure to keep the lenses clean, and failure to follow the eye specialist's advice. Approximately seven million persons wear contact lenses, but it has been found that teen-agers adapt to them more readily than others. Remember, contact lenses are like eyeglasses—they require periodic checkups.

FOR DINA MERRILL

Has your wealth helped you in your acting career?—T. R., Atlantic City, N. J.

● I would be naïve if I said that it hasn't made my professional career easier. But in acting, as in anything else, you have to have what it takes. If I'm better for the part, I get it. If another actress is better, she gets it.

FOR JOHN UNITAS, Baltimore Colts

Of all the games won by the Colts in which you were the quarterback, which games stand out as the most thrilling?—J. Richard Showker, Staunton, Va.

● I would certainly have to say that our victories in the championship games against the New York Giants in 1958 (23-17 in overtime) and 1959 (31-16) rank near the top of the list.

FOR GEORGE SCHAEFER,

producer-director of "Hallmark Hall of Fame"

I read that you have worked with more top actresses than any other producer or director. Who is your favorite actress of all?—M.L., Des Moines, Iowa

● When you've worked with such performers as Lynn Fontanne, Claire Bloom, Lee Remick, Jean Simmons, Helen Hayes, and Geraldine Page, it's pretty difficult to single out one. But if frequency of usage is any indication, then I would say Julie Harris has been a particular favorite of mine. Why? Besides having enormous talent, she's an exceptionally nice person.

FOR EDITH HEAD, fashion designer

How are the 10 best-dressed women chosen? Do you think the selection is fair?—Sandra Mooney, Mineola, Tex.

● These women are chosen from a list which is sent to all the top designers in America. It gives us the names of most of the well-dressed women in the world. We are allowed, however, to write in any selection. Personally, I think the only really fair method of picking the best-dressed women would be by selecting from among those who design and make their own clothes.

FOR ROBERT WISE, movie producer,

When you were casting for the children in "The Sound of Music," were you looking for acting or singing ability? Where did you find the right children?—Bruce Edwards, Lafayette, La.

● I was looking for the ability to act but, more important, the ability to act naturally. All the children finally selected for the film came from Los Angeles except Nicholas Hammond. He came from Washington.

FOR SEN. GEORGE MURPHY,

R., Calif. Do you find Senatorial work harder than acting in movies?—M. D., Denver, Colo.

● Yes. Keeping up with the problems of my state, together with the necessary study of the crucial issues facing the U.S. and the world keeps me busy from 12 to 14 hours a day. When I was president of the Screen Actors Guild, I at least had weekends off.

FOR JOAN CRAWFORD

How many children do you have and are they all in the entertainment world?—M. E. D., Lowell, Mass.

● I have four adopted children, but only my oldest daughter is in the theater. My son is serving in the Armed Forces, and my youngest daughters (twins) are college students.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Mitzi & dancing partner

Dancing President Lyndon Johnson loves to dance with the ladies—but how do the ladies feel about it? Mitzi Gaynor, who has fox-trotted with LBJ, says, "At first it was kind of scary. I kept worrying, 'I better not step on his feet.' His hands are so enormous I found myself holding onto his thumb. He's well-coordinated, especially for such a tall man. He doesn't hum when he dances, and he's a good, strong leader." He's firm about competition, too. "Johnny Carson tried to cut in, but the President told him, 'Not now, son, not now.'"

Driving Don'ts To get your money's worth out of your tires, the Rubber Manufacturers Association offers some common-sense don'ts: don't drive at excessive speeds; don't corner too fast; don't drive over curbs, chuck holes, and other obstructions; don't make "jack rabbit" starts or "panic" stops; don't drive on rough roads. Do try to keep the speedometer in the 60 mph range where legal, and keep your tires properly inflated.

Why Children Steal "It takes three generations to make a gentleman," says Dr. Gustave Johnson, the noted Swedish psychologist. "It takes three generations, too, to make a child into a criminal." In a recent study of boys in trouble, he found a tragic family pattern that began with grandparents who were social misfits, worsened with the parents, and finally erupted into children who became criminals. So don't blame Mother; blame Grandma.

Flying Nuns There's a real-life "Flying Nun," and she's piqued by her tv counterpart. "They never even called me to ask whether it was all right to use the title," says Sister Mary Aquinas, a Franciscan Sister of Christian Charity in Green Bay, Wis. Unlike Sally Field on tv, she uses a plane. Now 70, she was known as "The Flying Nun" back in 1938, when she became the first Sister—and one of the first women—to win a pilot's license. "Besides being the only pilot," she says, "I was also the only grease-monkey in a habit." She was a football coach as well, and her story was told on "Playhouse 90" last decade. It was on another network, so maybe ABC wasn't watching.

Vaughn Meader

No Joke Vaughn Meader became a comedy hit with his "First Family" take-offs on John F. Kennedy. When the President died, so did Vaughn's career. But he's back again and using the JFK voice once more to close his night-club act: The reaction? Total silence. He uses this quote from a Kennedy speech: "... Let us step back from the shadows of war and seek out the ways of peace. And if that journey is a thousand miles, let history record that in this land and at this time, we took that first step." Says Vaughn, "It makes people uncomfortable. But I can't tell if they're uneasy about the voice—or the message."

The Christmas Gift

A trip to Vietnam with her comedian-husband was happiness and heartache—but most of all, a memory for which she will always say, “Thanks”

By Mrs. BOB HOPE
as told to Betty Lanigan

Bob found an unexpected accompanist on his last Vietnam tour—Mrs. Bob Hope. The GIs seemed to regard her as a mother-substitute for Christmas.

THERE was a feeling of unreality about the whole thing. It was Christmas Eve, and there I was in Saigon, along with my husband and my two younger children.

Perhaps I should explain. Christmas of 1966 was the year that the Bob Hopes—Bob is my husband of 33 years—decided to have a “family” Christmas, even if we had to have it halfway around the world in war-torn Vietnam. Two of our four children were able to join us, and we had one of the most wonderful Christmases ever.

True, it was filled with sadness for the homesick American troops, but we felt that our being with them helped symbolize the love and concern of their own families.

To go back a little—it was Christmas 1965 when the idea of my making another trip with Bob first received serious consideration. When he told me of the show he was taking to Vietnam, I found myself saying, “I wish I were going!”

Bob took me at my word and began making arrangements early for me to pack my bags for an Asian Christmas the following year. He reminded me of the years I had gone along when the children were smaller and said, “I know you know how tough this is, Dolores.”

He arranged for Nora, our 21-year-old daughter, and me to fly commercially to Bangkok, Thailand, via Tokyo, where we would meet the troupe. Our 20-year-old son Kelly was assigned the job of assistant stage manager. Tony and Linda, our older children, had to remain in the States due to commitments.

It was nighttime when the Starlifter jet carrying the troupe landed in Bangkok, and, after 26 hours in the air, they staggered off the plane as limp and exhausted as I’ve ever seen any of them. Bob, ever the good traveler, had grabbed some sleep during the trip, and he was perky, filled with energy, and amazingly alert for having just completed such a grueling journey.

On the morning of Dec. 20 we flew to Takhli Air Force Base in Thailand. Both Nora and I went along. I sat out in the audience to see the show, and, as he often does back in the States when I’m in the audience, Bob introduced me. I stood up, waved, and then sat down again. But the troops decided they wanted me to go up on the stage. Bob went along with the gag and insisted that I do just that. When I got up there, Bob told the audience I used to be a singer and suggested that I sing “White Christmas.”

I was floored! In the first place, I didn’t know the lyrics, and in the second place, I hadn’t sung in public in years. But Les Brown called out a key, and Bob said, “I’ll feed you the lyrics.” The next thing I knew, I was singing.

Now I have to admit I didn’t feel very secure, but good as his word, Bob walked back and forth behind me, swinging his golf club and giving me the lyrics. By the second time through, I knew the words well enough to improvise a final line, “May all your Christmases be at home.” The troops seemed to like it.

Such a young audience had a strange effect on me. I became decidedly emotional, probably because they seemed to regard me with a kind of respect, as though I were their mother or maybe a favorite aunt. They didn’t snap pictures while I sang—in fact, they were terribly silent and in a couple of cases tearful. One NBC photographer overheard a young soldier say, “Even my mom couldn’t have sung it better!” When he told me about it, I had a big lump in my throat.

On the plane flying back to Bangkok, someone asked me what my reaction was to the troops in the audience—if it bothered me that they seemed to regard me as a mother-substitute for Christmas. I was startled. Bother me? I was honored because I hold them in such high regard. I wanted to give every one of those kids a hug and a kiss.

If you saw them hooting at the cute girls as they sang and danced, I suppose you could twist it and say they were a bunch of sex-crazy kids. But then they’d turn around and listen attentively to Anita Bryant sing “The Battle Hymn of the Republic” and cheer and applaud with fervor and conviction. They’re so much more than people give them credit for. Was there ever such a past generation?

On Christmas Eve, we all boarded the plane to fly to Tan Son Nhut Air Base in Saigon. Aboard the plane we trimmed a little Christmas tree, and everyone hung one ornament or piece of tinsel on the tree. I distributed the beautiful medals which Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles had given me to present as a Christmas gift to all the people who were giving up their own holiday to entertain the home-sick, lonely boys.

Later that day I overheard Clay Daniel, the assistant director on the show, say to Bob, "You have the gift of making the guys on every base feel that this was the one place you'd been waiting to play."

And Bob answered quite seriously, "Strange enough, when I walk out there, that's exactly how I feel every single time, every single show. There isn't a place you can kiss off. Every base matters, every man."

I think that Bob's feeling on this particular matter was reflected by everyone in his troupe. Every show was a renewal. Every smiling face, every pair of applauding hands was a gift. It was two straight weeks of Christmas for us, and we were the ones receiving the presents.

Tan Son Nhut was an experience in tension. The motor cavalcade from the airport found us in staff cars with machine gun-mounted jeeps preceding and following us. It was in Saigon two years before that the Viet Cong had tried to kill Bob as a symbol of the resistance, and the military was going to make sure there was no repetition of that incident. Aboard the plane, we had been given very specific instructions about what to do in case of an explosion and what other precautions to take. Needless to say, we listened.

I haven't said much about Nora on this trip, but she continued to be a joy. While in Thailand, Bob decided to play a trick on her, and when he asked her to take a bow (he always introduced his family to the men), he told her to do a few steps of the Watusi. If he thought she wouldn't, he was greatly mistaken because Nora would rather dance than eat, and she called out to Les Brown, "Give me a beat!" and started to dance. It struck the troops so funny that Bob repeated it every show after that—always pretending he was shocked at her uninhibited dancing. Kelly settled for a quick bow and a wave when he was introduced.

At Tan Son Nhut, the heat was intense. The members of the band suffered because of the glare off their instruments and the direct rays of the sun. Nora stayed backstage and acted as runner for ice-cold towels which were kept in galvanized buckets. The musicians put the welcomed towels on the backs of their necks and not one of them passed out, however hot the music. I was sitting out in the audience with the then Premier and Mrs. Ky and Gen. William Westmoreland, but the heat was lessened by the huge straw hat I had been given by the troops in Thailand.

Following the performance, Bob went to visit the patients at the 3rd Field Hospital and Nora accompanied him. It upset her greatly, but she figured if her father could do it, so could she. I don't think Nora ever realized before just how much it gets to Bob, however often he has made those painful journeys through the wards. He would laugh and joke with the patients while he was in the ward, but outside he would grit his teeth, set his jaw, and get ready for the next group of men. I'm sure they never knew how his heart-broke for them because he never showed the sadness he felt in front of them.

On Christmas Day, the Army had selected for the show two locations which were particular hardship posts. One was Di-An and the other was Cu-Chi. Both were far forward where the men really needed cheering at Christmas. I know I never felt so welcome anywhere in my life. They gathered at the roadside to wave to us as we drove to the show area, their faces as bright as Christmas trees. The mud was ankle-deep and the security guard in strong evidence—I knew that in an outlying perimeter other boys had to keep guard to insure the safety not only of the troupe but of the thousands of men who would gather to see the show. There were 13,000 of them at Di-An, 10,000 at Cu-Chi.

Both shows were received with delight. The Armed Forces Radio carried the sound portion of the show to troops in outlying areas who couldn't get there for the performances. Later Bob spoke to the various outfits by walkie-talkie. The only time he choked up during the trip was when some youngster said over that crackling field phone, "Thanks for the memory, Mr. Hope."

At Cu-Chi, the troupe was divided into twos and threes so that each enlisted men's mess hall would have someone from home as guests. Their dinner was absolutely wonderful. It was so marvelous that it was obvious the Army cooks were extending themselves to make the day a little more bearable for these lonesome boys.

Although there was supposed to be a truce, scattered incidents occurred all day—one of them only three-quarters of a mile from the show site. The group of boys to whom Bob had been sent at lunch time were involved; they killed two Viet Cong and captured two others within 20 minutes of the time he left them. You could hear the gunfire from where the show was setting up.

Later, as other incidents occurred, the artillery up near the Iron Triangle began to fire. The low booming accentuated the apprehension I felt for the large audience, although the guns were miles away.

That afternoon at Cu-Chi, the wounded men in their blue pajamas were in the front few rows, some of them with bottles of glucose attached to their arms, others on stretchers or in wheel chairs. Not knowing that the cast would sing "Silent Night" at the conclusion of the show, the medics began removing the litter-borne wounded too quickly.

We began to sing as they moved those boys across the area in front of the stage, and I thought my heart would break. I took a leaf from Bob's book, though, and I was able to hold back the tears until I walked off.

Christmas night, back in Saigon, we made our phone calls back home, including one to Jerry Colonna, who was missing his first trip in 14 years. Dear Jerry, sick as he had been, really wanted to try to make the trip, but his doctors refused flatly.

Conditions in An Khe and Qui Nhon, where Bob and the show were scheduled to go on Dec. 26, were so rugged that the presence of two more women would have been a burden, or so I felt. As a result, Nora and I made plans to fly ahead to Clark Field in Manila, where Bob and the troupe were to arrive on Dec. 29.

And finally we ended our trip at Los Angeles International Airport.

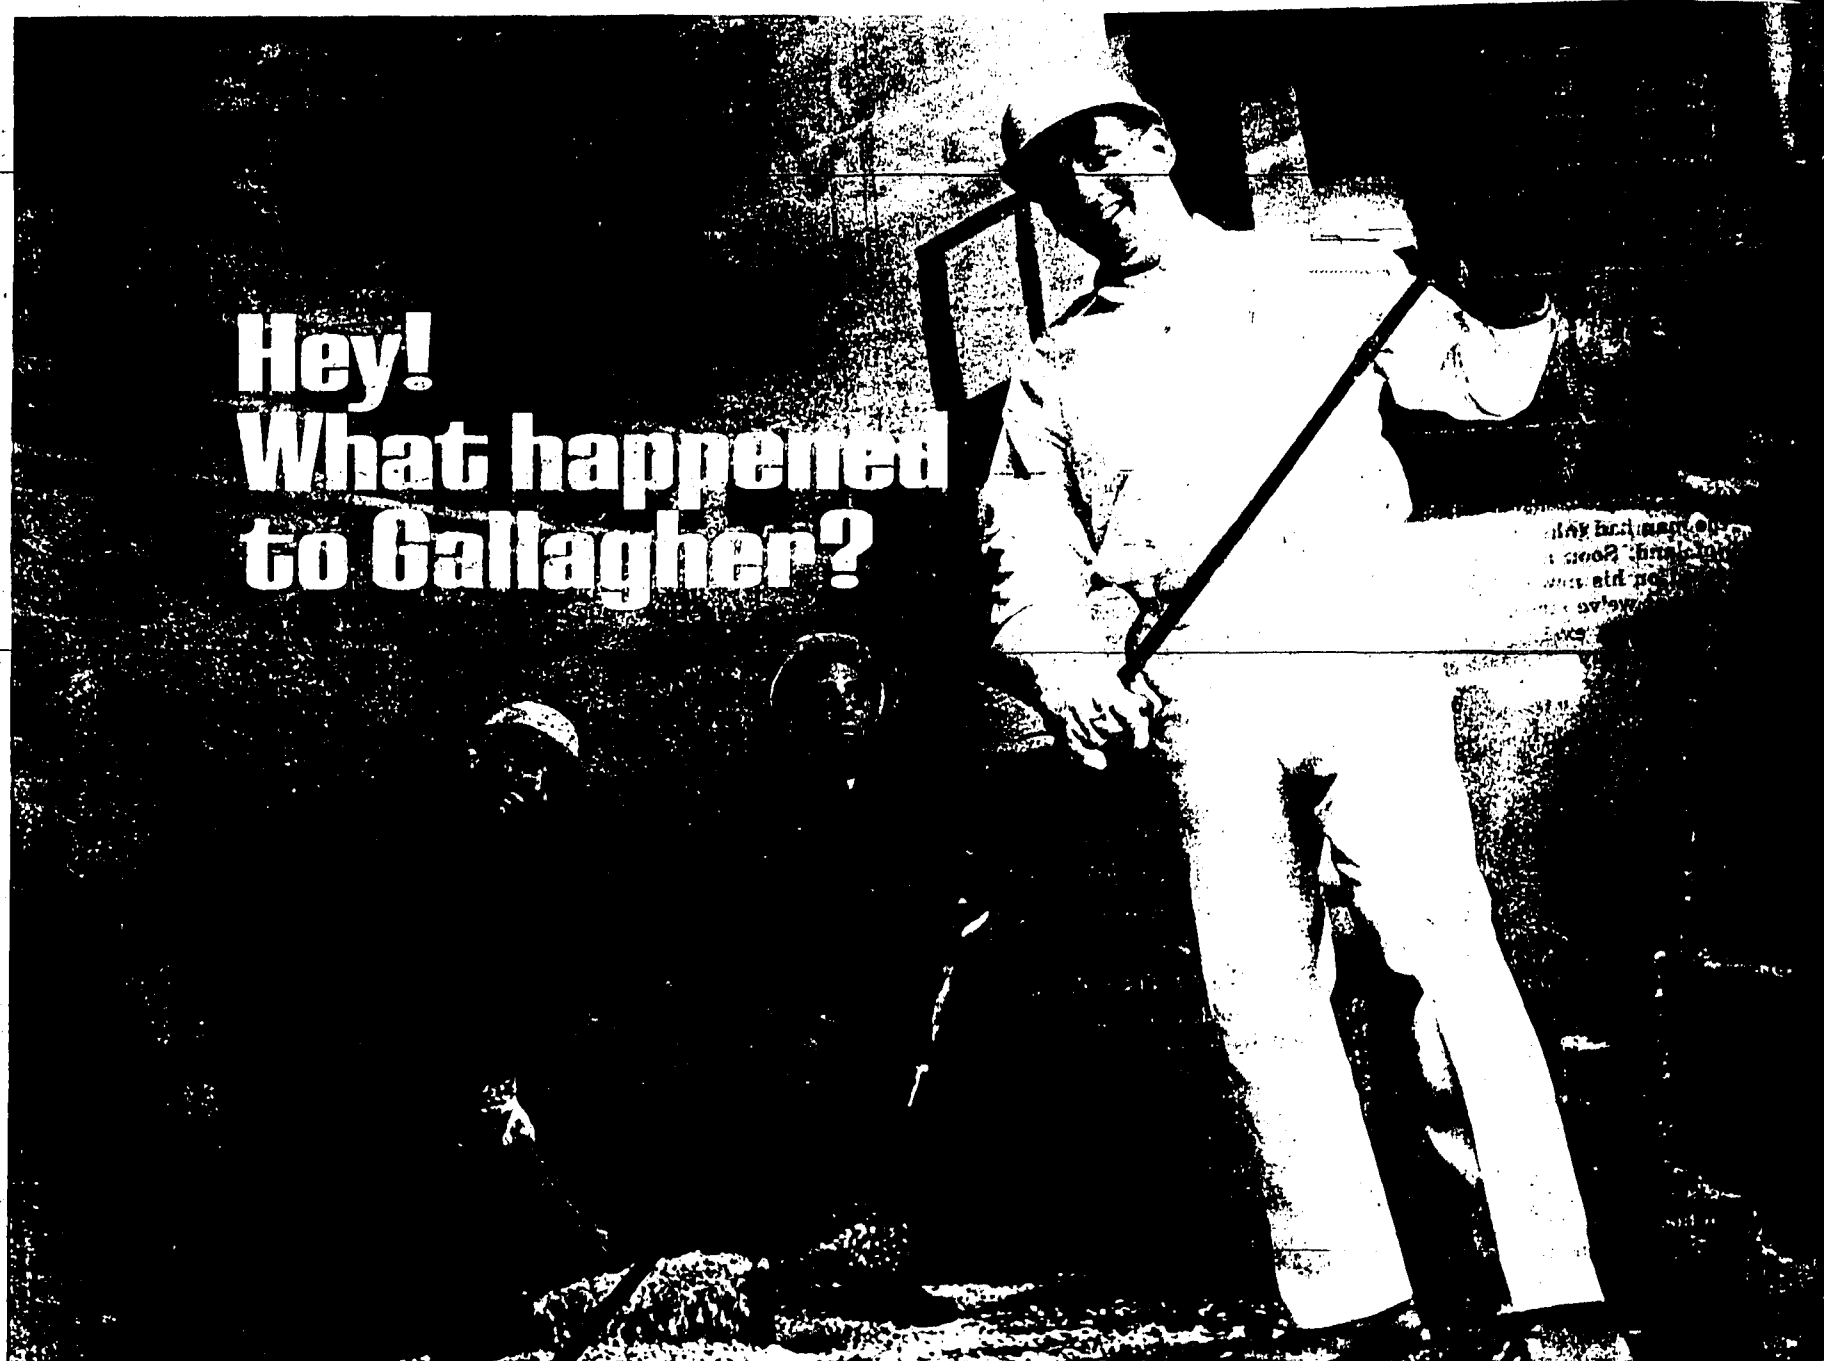

We had had our little "family Christmas." We had shared some experiences which were so deeply moving that I wanted to get up on a soapbox and shout, "Listen to me, America, do you know what you have over there? Do you know just how wonderful they are?"

As I write this, I'm not sure where Christmas, 1967, will find me. Who knows—perhaps back in Saigon with Bob.

I can say this for certain: if any of your boys saw our last show in Vietnam, please thank them for the Hope family for their wonderful gift to us. ♦

I was just thinking...
In Thy Dark
Street Shineth...

MARGARET opened the last of the Christmas cards and sat looking into the fire. Cliff was asleep in the armchair.

How little the house looked like Christmas! This year, for the first time, there was no tree, no wreath at the door, no kitchen warm with baking. A tear trickled down Margaret's cheek.

There had been no other Christmas like this one—little Cliff in Vietnam and young Margaret

Now the twilight twinkled with lights up and down the street. Margaret saw a snowflake drift past the window. In spite of us, she thought, the world is decorating itself.

Suddenly she blew her nose and hurried out to the kitchen. Cliff stirred in his chair and in a few minutes the room was oddly quiet.

But Margaret worked savagely among the pots and pans. She heated the oven and stirred up Cliff's favorite chocolate cookies. While a chicken roasted, Margaret got out the family recipe for peanut brittle.

As she worked, her thoughts were busy.

"I guess I'll just fix mashed potatoes and open a can of cranberries. Maybe it's not turkey and fruit cake, but it is Christmas, and Cliff and I are together. And we have a family—somewhere."

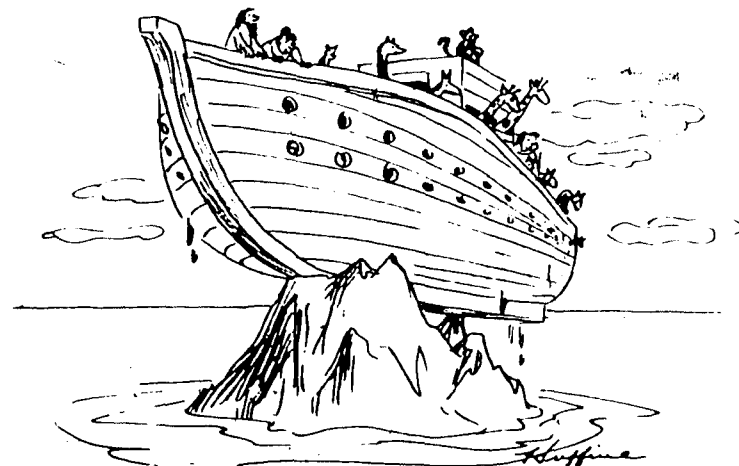

Finally, Margaret went in to set up a card table before the fire. Cliff's chair was empty. Margaret's heart plunged.

Then she saw him. He'd tracked wet snow all across the carpet and left a chunk of mud by the door. But there stood a Christmas tree, and Cliff was fastening the last ornament on the top. It was the tarnished old star little Cliff bought for them with the first money he'd ever earned.

"Oh, Cliff," Margaret said and burst into tears.

But when he turned and took her in his arms, she felt only a great joy.

A Christmas Prayer

Let us pray that strength and courage abundant be given to all who work for a world of reason and understanding & that the good that lies in every man's heart may day by day be magnified & that men will come to see more clearly not that which divides them, but that which unites them & that each hour may bring us closer to a final victory, not of nation over nation, but of man over his own evils and weaknesses & that the true spirit of this Christmas Season—its joy, its beauty, its hope, and above all its abiding faith—may live among us & that the blessings of peace be ours—the peace to build and grow, to live in harmony and sympathy with others, and to plan for the future with confidence.

A short history of gift-giving

Just What I've Always Wanted!

By RICHARD ARMOUR

AS CHRISTMAS nears, it seems appropriate to make a brief survey of gift-giving through the ages. This may help you in your own selection of gifts and make you more appreciative of whatever you receive.

During the Stone Age, the giving of gifts was fairly simple. When Stone Age man went Christmas shopping, he merely walked about, looking down at the ground until he found a stone that seemed suitable.

After washing it off until it looked new (it would never do to give a secondhand stone), he wrapped it up in some colorful leaves and tied it with an appropriate vine.

At the proper time, he presented his gift and received one in return. As the recipient of his gift opened the package, trying to be careful not to tear the wrapping ("What a pretty leaf! Where did you get it?"), he stood by confident he had chosen well. His confidence was justified when he heard the squeals of delight and the shouts of, "A stone! Just what I have always wanted."

Stone Age man then opened his own gift, all expectation. He was not disappointed. It was a stone! "Many, many thanks," he said. "I really needed it."

And so the gifts were opened, one after another, and everyone was pleased with his or her stone. "After all, it's not the gift, it's the spirit of giving that counts," someone said, and everyone was impressed by the wisdom and novelty of the statement.

During the Classical Period, gift-giving took an interesting turn. Instead of giving each other stones, Greeks and Romans exchanged pieces of marble. The note inside might read something like: "This will give you a start on your new home."

The Greeks and Romans gave other things besides marble. A favorite gift was a frieze, which would keep a long time, especially if kept in a freezer. In Sparta, people liked to give each other useful gifts for the home, such as a mattress with nails sticking up, guaranteed not to sag and good for the restless sleeper. It was also guaranteed to prevent him from tossing and turning all night.

In Rome, during the reign of the Caesars, a treasured gift was a dagger. Most daggers came with lifetime guarantees, but since a lifetime was very short in those days, a rather cheap dagger would do.

The Greeks and Romans wrapped their presents in parchment and tied them with thongs. After the gifts were unwrapped, the parchment could be used for scratch paper, and the thongs served well as shoelaces for sandals.

We come now to the Middle Ages, when a man could always use a new suit of armor, what with changing styles, rust, and all that sort of thing. But it had to be the right size since alterations were very difficult. A horse also made a nice gift, though it was hard to send through the mail, this being before the pony express.

In the Middle Ages, as today, you could be sure to please with something for the home: a new drawbridge, a boat for the moat, draperies for the dungeon, or his and her cata-pults. A woman got a kick out of "Black Magic" vanishing cream. All she had to do was rub the stuff on her cheeks, and she would vanish completely or turn into a frog.

During the Renaissance, gifts were given mostly among the upper class and were individualized. In England, for instance, Sir Walter Raleigh was given a new coat, the old one having been muddied, then lost at the cleaner's. Shakespeare gave a copy of his plays to a friend, playfully writing on the flyleaf, "From the author, Francis Bacon."

The Renaissance was a time of widening horizons, and a gift that pleased almost anyone squinting into the distance was a pair of sunglasses.

In modern times there have been improvements in gift-giving. For instance, there is the price tag. This gives one the option of removing it if the gift looks more expensive than it really is or leaving it on if no one would ever guess it cost so much. Similarly, the name of the maker of a woman's coat, hat, or dress can be easily transferred from one garment to another if it would seem to make an impression.

Then there is wrapping and mailing. Many stores today will wrap and mail gifts free. This increases the possibility that gifts will be inadvertently switched and sent to the wrong people. Aunt Martha might receive a box of poker chips with a note saying, "Good luck the next time you're out with the boys," while a burly steam fitter might get a black, silk, embroidered nightgown and the enclosed comment, "You will look sweet in this."

Books make good presents, and, because they don't come in sizes, they are easier to wrap than a lampshade. And you can read them before you give them. The only thing to be careful of is not to leave hairpins, cracker crumbs, and strips of bacon (used as bookmarks) inside. Be very careful not to send a library book, unless it is a month overdue and you are planning to leave town anyhow.

As for the presents you receive, you can always return them. You may make some interesting new friendships while you stand in line at the exchange window.

And you will learn important lessons in self-control if, when you finally get to the window, you discover that what you are returning was bought at another store.

There are those who look quite wistfully back to the Stone Age. Have you priced a stone lately in a jewelry store? ♦

How to get rich

How can you get rich some day? Make a hit record . . . a killing on the stock market . . . or invent a gadget like the hula hoop?

For most of us, these are just dreams. But have you ever stopped to think that there is a way to get rich—possibly only one sure way? Most fortunes, as you know, are made by people who own their own business.

Perhaps you've thought of starting a small business of your own . . . a franchised drive-in, or maybe a service business. Trouble is, you need $10,000 to $15,000 to get started and even then it's a gamble—with slim chance of ever making really big money.

But there is one business which could make you rich—almost overnight! And the beauty of it is, you can start on a shoestring during your spare time, even while holding your regular job.

Cash by Mail

The business is Mail Order—and it's fabulous! Come up with a 'hot' new item . . . and WHAM!

It strikes like a bolt of lightning!

Suddenly, you are deluged with cash orders from all over the country. MORE MONEY than you could ever make in a lifetime!

Like the Vermont dealer who ran an ad in Sports Afield Magazine. His ad pulled 22,000 orders—over A HALF MILLION DOLLARS IN CASH!

There is no other business where you can make a fortune so quickly!

• A beginner from Newark, N.J. ran his first small ad in House Beautiful—offering an auto clothes rack. Business Week reported that his ad brought in $5,000 in orders. By the end of his first year in Mail Order, he had grossed over $100,000!

• Another beginner—a lawyer from the Midwest, sold an idea by mail to fisherman. Specialty Salesman Magazine reveals, "he made $70,000 the first three months!"

Proof

It's a fascinating business! Running ads in newspapers and magazines mailing gift catalogs . . . getting cash orders in your daily mail—steady as clockwork.

There is no other business where you can start on a shoestring and pyramid your profits—without investing in merchandise! One husband and wife mail order team took in $40,000 selling one item. They obtained FREE ads in national magazines . . . didn't invest a cent in merchandise, and even got the supplier to ship all orders for them!

These exceptional cases are absolute proof that you can get rich in your own Mail Order business. Very rich. Even a U.S. Gov. Report stated: "A number of one-man Mail Order enterprises make up to $50,000!"

Pick up any magazine. Notice how the same mail order ads are repeated month after month? That's concrete proof! You know those ads wouldn't be repeated over and over again—unless they were bringing in big cash profits to their owners.

The Secret

The secret of getting rich in Mail Order lies in financial leverage. It's a little-known, almost secret method—using other people's capital to make money for you!

You can get thousands of dollars worth of advertising in big national magazines—without investing your own money! And you don't have to write a single ad. Tested and proven ads are prepared for you by experts. Reinvest the profits from your first successful ad—to get more, larger ads, and the profits begin to snowball! It's like building a chain of stores . . . each new store puts more money in your pocket.

You mail out beautiful catalogs which offer hundreds of dollars worth of fine, quality gifts—yet you don't invest one cent of your own money in merchandise! Your catalogs are printed with your name and address, so all orders come to you. Everything is "drop-shipped" for you, and there's up to 100% mark-up! You pocket the cash profits immediately—even before the orders are shipped to your customers!

Repeat orders alone, just from mailing catalogs, could bring you a steady income for the rest of your life!

Yes, Mail Order is the fastest-growing, most profitable business in America! And now, with more people moving to the suburbs . . . the population explosion . . . and the expanding teenage market . . . we are on the verge of the BIGGEST BOOM in Mail Order history!

MARLO THOMAS— Daddy Calls Her “Miss Independent”

MARLO Thomas remembers being frightened of the dark as a child.

“My mother would bring fresh daisies into my room and arrange them around my bed,” she recalls. “Now don’t be frightened,” she’d say. “The daisies will watch over you all night. After that I wasn’t frightened.”

It’s hard to believe that Marlo Thomas was ever afraid of anything. At 28 she is a superbly self-confident bachelor girl who stars in the tv success, “That Girl,” has her own production company, and handles the business end of acting with the same shrewdness that distinguished her father, comedian Danny Thomas, in building his tv-production complex.

“Yes,” she says in the clipped accents of a board-room chairman, “I know the business. You would, too, if you sat in on your father’s business conferences since you were six.”

But in explaining why she is what she is, Marlo talks less about her famous father than about her mother.

“I always talk about my mother, but you magazine people always write about my father. When you do write about her, you make her sound like an imbecile. Actually she is the pillar of our family.” (Marlo has a younger brother and sister.)

“She held us together through separations and loneliness. She hated to fly, but she would fly to every one of Daddy’s openings. We’d cry when she’d leave, but she’d say, ‘At a time like this Daddy needs me.’ And we’d understand.

“She held us together not just by being there but by growing with Daddy. Both had only high-school educations, but Daddy grew with travel and meeting people. Mother made certain she grew with him so we’d always have a family.

“You people always ask me if my father helped me. Why don’t you ask me if my mother helped? I’d tell you she did.”

Marlo graduated from high school at 16, but “I didn’t feel mature enough to commit myself to the theater. I had a picture in my mind of Daddy working until 6 a.m. over a joke. He didn’t have to—the joke was getting laughs as it was, but Daddy insisted everything be perfect, not just all right. I’m that way, too, but at 16 I wasn’t sure I could totally involve myself.

“Daddy always called me ‘Miss Independent.’ I am. I’m also a collector. At 16 I wanted to collect something for my wall—a college degree. When I got it, in teaching (with a 3.8 average out of 4.0), I was

Marlo bristles sensitively over a number of subjects—not being married at age 28 (she goes steady with an ABC tv executive); about stories written when she left Daddy’s house (“I was 23—it was a natural thing, but you people made it sound like an alienation”); about using Marlo inherited Danny Thomas’ shrewdness but never traded on his Hollywood power.

Daddy’s weighty influence to get ahead—and there she has a point: when living at home, a tv crew filmed an interview with her, but she insisted they show only her room. “It’s my interview,” she said.

“I turned down roles offered me because I was Danny Thomas’ daughter,” she says. “I knew from him that I would have to work hard to get anything, and anything I got I got that way. At times friends would try to push me into a role. I’d refuse intuitively—and be right.”

After listening to Marlo, you ask the obvious question, “Have you ever made a wrong decision?”

“Once,” she says, “I was talked into playing Joey Bishop’s daughter in one of my father’s tv productions. I knew I shouldn’t, but I did and quit after eight weeks. Everyone was frightened of me—would I tell Daddy what they were or weren’t doing? Yes, that was a mistake.” Then she adds: “But other people talked me into it.”

Marlo has no fears that her career will not soar beyond “That Girl.” Actually, she appears to have no fears at all about herself. Yet you wonder, then, why she named her company “Daisy,” why she poses for photos with daisies, and why she has daisies in her home.

She says, “I like daisies.”

Now...Plastic Cream Revolutionizes Denture Wearing

For the first time science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds false teeth almost like Nature herself holds natural teeth. It forms an elastic membrane that holds both “uppers and lowers” as never before.

It’s FIXODENT—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it’s protected by U.S. Patent #3,003,988.

tic you can bite harder, chew harder without pain. You may even eat and enjoy apples, steak, corn-on-the-cob again.

FIXODENT’s special pencil-point dispenser lets you put it exactly where it’s needed. Avoids oozing over and gagging.

Just one application may last ‘round-the-clock. Even resists hot coffee. Dentures that fit are essential to health. So see your dentist regularly. Get FIXODENT at all drug counters.

If you are under 35, you may just be getting a good start in life. No matter what kind of hospital insurance you have, it won't pay your household bills and other family living expenses. With rent or mortgage payments, new furniture, clothing bills, and all the other expenses young families have, a serious accident or illness might "wipe you out" financially.

If you are 35 to 65, your children may now be at the costliest stage of their schooling. Your living expenses are probably higher than ever, and your chances of going to the hospital are increasing every year. Read how an Americare "Direct Cash Plan" may keep you from having to dig into your savings if you have to spend weeks—or even months—in the hospital.

If you are 65 or over, you can look forward to having Medicare, but you will still have to pay part of your hospital bills—and you will also have other bills to pay. An American Republic "Direct Cash Plan" can provide money for everyday expenses and also for doctor bills and hospital costs—including private room and private nurse—that Medicare won't cover.

Now, whether you are 25...55...or 85...when you are sick or injured...

COLLECT $52.50 . . . $105 . . . OR $157.50 A WEEK, JUST LIKE WAGES, WHILE IN THE HOSPITAL

Whether you are under 65 and have regular hospital insurance—or over 65 and looking forward to Medicare—it will pay you to read the facts about the "1-2-3 Direct Cash Plan."

Discover how you could go to the hospital and come out with money left over.

What if you should wake up to find yourself flat on your back in a hospital bed—and be there for weeks or even months? Think of all the things that $2,000 or $5,000 or $8,000 in extra spendable cash, over and above your hospital insurance, could mean.

Cash to make mortgage payments. Cash to buy food. Cash to meet car payments—pay for child care—buy gasoline—buy school clothes—pay a tax bill.

The American Republic "1-2-3 Direct Cash Plan" can pay you badly needed cash, every week you are in the hospital because of accident or illness for up to a full year.

This special service of Americare[®] is designed to go hand-in-hand with Medicare—or any other health insurance you may now have.

Protection under the American Republic "1-2-3 Direct Cash Plan" is available in individual protection "units."

You simply decide how many of these units you need for your particular coverage requirements—and put them together like building blocks. For example:

The "1-UNIT" PLAN pays you $52.50 per week actual cash (at the rate of $7.50 a day) for every week you spend in the hospital due to accident or illness. This plan can pay you as much as $2,737.50 if you are hospitalized for a full year.

The "2-UNIT" PLAN pays you $105.00 per week (at the rate of $15.00 a day) for each week you are in the hospital—up to as much as $5,475.00 if you should be in the hospital a full year.

The "3-UNIT" PLAN pays you $157.50 per week (at the rate of $22.50 a day) for each week you are in the hospital—up to a total of $8,212.50 if you are hospitalized for a full year.

Your decision is easy. Just choose the plan that fits your needs best. And best of all, no matter which you choose, you get all these advantages:

• Cash is paid direct to you. It is yours to spend any way you please.

• It is LifeGuarded Protection. This means it is Guaranteed Renewable. It can be YOURS FOR LIFE as long as you make timely payments of the current premium. It can NEVER be cancelled by the Company because of age, health, or number of claims.

• Pays whether you are in the hospital for injury OR sickness.

• Pays in addition to any other insurance carried with American Republic or any other company. Even pays in addition to Workmen's Compensation or Medicare.

• You are covered during any hospital confinement for any accident from the date your policy is issued, and for any sickness that begins after 30 days from date of issue. Unless, of course, your hospital care is due to war, mental disorder, maternity, dental work, or when you are in a U. S. Government or Veterans Hospital.

• NO MEDICAL EXAMINATION, regardless of your age—and there is NO AGE LIMIT.

• Benefits are increased 10% if premium is paid annually in advance, or increased 5% if premium is paid semi-annually in advance.

Protection That PAYS

According to latest 5-year figures, American Republic returned a greater percent of premium dollars to policyholders in claim benefits than any of the other Top 40 insurance companies offering individual accident and health insurance.
