Internal Bleeding Saps Strength

U.S. Heart Patient Is Failing

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
AP Science Writer
STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—Michael Kasparak, who received a transplanted heart Saturday night, began to bleed from the stomach and bowels today, and doctors said his condition was critical.

The surgeons would not speculate on the cause of bleeding. Kasparak's platelet count—one of the blood's clotting factors—was extremely low, 4,000 compared with a normal of 250,000.

Blood pressure, pulse and body temperature were in a reasonable range. Dr. Donald C. Harrison, a cardiologist, told a news conference at Stanford Medical Center Sunday afternoon. Harrison said the heart of a 43-year-old woman, Virginia Mae White, was transplanted into Kasparak's chest about 12 hours after the 4½-hour operation. The patient weighs 144 pounds. Mrs. White's weight was 120.

"This kind of followup is essential to the well being of the recipient," Dr. Shumway said. "We've reached first base perhaps, but the work is only beginning."

WASHINGTON (AP)—A direct clash between attacking U.S. planes and Soviet vessels. Senior U.S. military men and many pilots believe Halphong's port should be knocked out because it is a major base for war supplies which the Communists in South Vietnam and butress North Vietnamese military strength.

Bowles Arrives In Cambodia To Seek Help From Prince

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—U.S. presidential envoy Chester Bowles arrived today to seek Prince Norodom Sihanouk's help in keeping North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces from using Cambodia as a sanctuary. But the Cambodian chief of state in effect told a news conference the American ambassador's mission was doomed.

Sihanouk (old) newsmen Sunday said Bowles would attempt to persuade the prince to permit U.S. forces to permit pursuit by U.S. forces of Communist troops who attack them in Vietnam and then retreat into Cambodia.

LBJ, Israel Prime Minister Tour Ranch And Talk Of Peace

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson and Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol toured the placid LBJ Ranch and talked of peace in the Middle East and the world Sunday.

But the prince told the news conference Sunday he would not allow U.S. forces to pursue the Viet Cong into Cambodia and would condemn both sides if they clashed on his soil.

American sources in New Delhi said Bowles would attempt to persuade the prince to permit U.S. forces to permit pursuit by U.S. forces of Communist troops who attack them in Vietnam and then retreat into Cambodia.

Study Set On Area Poverty

A. W. MORGAN to direct study efforts

Programs in operation under the South Central Community Action Agency, a local anti-poverty unit, will be explored during meetings of the League of Women Voters of Twin Falls this week.

A. W. Morgan, agency director, and Mrs. Loretta P. Putzier, coordinator for the Neighborhood Youth Corps program, will be guest speakers.

The morning unit will meet in the home of Mrs. M. C. Parker, 1340 Fremont Drive, at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. The evening group meets at 8 p.m. Thursday in the home of Mrs. Verion Smith, 616 Blue Lakes Blvd.

The South Central Community Action Agency, composed of Twin Falls, Cassia and Jerome counties, was initiated in March, 1967. A three-county survey is complete and shows the extent of poverty in the area.

Last November the Neighborhood Youth Corps program for out-of-school youths was started and progress will be discussed.

Nationally, the League of Women Voters has a stand in support of policies and programs to provide for all persons an opportunity for education and employment, Mrs. Robert Nelson, local president, explained. This position was taken after two years of study.

The emphasis for the "development of human resources" study this year is an examination of local programs in the poverty category.

Anyone interested may attend.

Freight Train Derailment Kills One Man

SPRINGFIELD—Ohio (AP)—A freight train derailment in subzero weather sent an empty boxcar hurtling into a house early today, killing an off-duty railroad man and injuring his wife and three children.

Their house in the community of Snyderville, six miles west of here, was destroyed in a fire that followed the crash in 12-below-zero weather.

Jason Williams, 47, was killed. His wife, Frances, 40, was reported in poor condition at Springfield hospital.

Their children, Brenda Hicks, 17; Karen Hicks, 10, and Kenneth Williams, 9, were treated at the hospital and released.

Neighbors credited Brenda with rescuing the other two children. An unidentified neighbor reportedly took Williams and his wife from the burning house.

PITTSBURG, Kan. (AP)—Here's the latest addition to those "God is Dead" signs adorning around the country: A student at Kansas State University, where there is an extreme shortage of parking spaces, put up this sign at the entrance to the main parking lot: "God is not dead; He just can't find a parking place."

Nader Asks Probe Of Car Price Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Auto industry critic Ralph Nader has called for a congressional investigation into car manufacturers' price hikes and two senators charged the boycotts are aimed at delaying new safety requirements.

The price rise was made necessary, the auto industry has said, by required installation of shoulder-harness safety belts in cars made after Jan. 1.

Nader asked Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on antitrust and monopoly, to open hearings, declaring the industry ignored warnings from President Johnson and members of Congress to keep prices from rising substantially.

Sens. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., and Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said New Year's price hikes of $23 to $32 a car "may be more than 10 times the actual cost" of installing the shoulder-harness safety belts.

They added in a statement that the price hike "erases any doubt that the American automobile industry has been conducting a propaganda campaign to make safety the scapegoat for 'inevitable' and 'unavoidable' price increases."

They asked the National Traffic Safety Agency to speed up efforts to pinpoint auto safety costs in order to rebut the industry's "fraudulent" propaganda campaign.

Spokesmen for the four major manufacturers declined immediate comment on the charges.

A TWIN FALLS youth, Gary Monroe, 17, Route 3, offers his mother, Mrs. Evelyn Gary, a sample of his prize-winning recipe for orange muffins. Gary has been named one of the 100 finalists in Pillsbury's 19th Annual Bake-Off. He will receive an expense-paid trip in Dallas, Tex., Feb. 18-20, to compete for a $25,000 Grand Prize. Locally he was presented with a $100 check at his home by a representative of the Pillsbury Company. He will also be presented with a General Electric range. Gary is one of 100 prize-winning home cooks who will compete in the Bake-Off in Dallas. Gary's sister, Carolyn Monroe Patterson, who now lives in California, also competed nationally in the 1967 Bake-Off at New York. She was 13 years old at that time. Gary's father is Alvin Monroe.

hiked by about $120 last September. Nader said General Motors proposed an additional $61 boost effective Jan. 1. He said this proposal was made last Dec. 27 to Gardner Acley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

Nader said the second increase was reduced to $23 for most GM cars and that other manufacturers followed "their price leaders." He said President Johnson intervened to get the original figure lowered and "this explains in part the administration's silence when GM announced its price rise."

LIBRARY REOPENS FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—Florence's National Library reopened to the public today after 14 months of restoration work on a million books damaged by the disastrous floods.

Resolutions Passed By Sportsmen

BURLEY, Idaho (AP)—Resolutions opposing the High Mountain Sheep Dam, but favoring the Wild Rivers Bill and proposed phosphate mining regulations, were adopted Sunday by Idaho Wildlife Federation directors.

The proposed High Mountain Sheep Dam would be on the Snake River above its confluence with the Salmon River. Directors voted to oppose any new dams on the Snake below the Imnaha River. However, the Imnaha flows into the Snake a few miles above the Mountain Sheep dam.

Federation spokesmen had long favored the high dam, thinking its construction would prevent construction of the Nez Perce Dam and help preserve some of the Snake River's tributaries.

A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision has called for another look at construction of any new dam on the Snake, to determine if any such dam would have enough value to offset sacrifices of game, wildlife, and scenery.

Federation President Art Manley, Coeur d'Alene, said the court's decision may have removed the Nez Perce dam threat.

Proposed regulations affecting mining and processing of phosphates, an government land are reasonable, another resolution said. Mining industry spokesmen have said the Bureau of Land Management rules would restrict their activities. They would not be allowed to expand in Idaho. The Wild Rivers Bill, as originally written, was supported in another vote by directors. Plans for the Federation's March 29-31 annual meeting in Lewiston also were discussed.

Supersonic Noise

This much can be said about transportation of the future—it may be the noisiest ever devised. The old steam locomotives rattled windows and drowned out conversation as they roared through town, but the sonic boom of a supersonic transport exerts far more energy and over much longer distances. Cracked walls, broken window panes, shattered dishes and a resounding boom which has been known to knock people out of bed are the trademarks of faster-than-sound transportation. The experiences of some cities with small jets has raised numerous fears about the consequences of the mammoth supersonic transport. It will be at least three years before the United States will have an SST ready for flight testing, but the 2,000-mile-per-hour ships will be put into service by Britain, Russia and possibly others before that time. Presumably they will include major U.S. air terminals in their schedules. Next year may see the introduction of the prototype Concorde, the plane developed jointly by Britain and France, by the time the U.S. entry in the supersonic transport race is ready for service, the Concorde will have blazed most of the trails, including the nerves of the public on the ground below. There are those within the aerospace industry who pool-pool the fears expressed about this coming giant of the airways. Karl G. Harr Jr., president of the Aerospace Industries Association, terms talk about unacceptable noise "inflated" and predicts "a pleasant surprise" is in store for those worried about sound pollution, safety or air traffic congestion with the introduction of the SST. Perhaps, but there would be something abnormal about public reaction if it didn't stir concern about a 2,000-mile-per-hour airplane designed to carry more than 400 persons, in its infant stages. Someday the SST will be an accepted vehicle. After it proves itself.

The Deficit

Due in large part to the reactions of the money markets to the devaluation of the British pound, the United States closed its international payments account for the year 1967 with a whopping deficit of some $3 billion. The loss was more than double the $1.4 billion figure of 1966. Not that the 1966 record was any achievement. The U.S. can ill afford such losses, in view of the fact that foreign claims against American gold should they be presented—already exceed available stocks by more than 2 to 1. But a deficit of $3 billion for one year can only be described as a total failure on the part of the national administration to put its house in order. Those who delight in saying it cannot happen in the U.S. that the dollar will never be devalued, that a record period of internal prosperity will go on forever, that other governments have no choice but to accept the dollar as the primary international barter medium, ignore all the danger signs which suggest that spendthrift Uncle Sam may someday be taken to the woodshed for his profligate ways.

Included in last year's deficit was the liquidation of $500 million in U.S. securities by the Bank of England plus other losses directly attributable to the devaluation, but discounting these non-recurring items, the loss is far too large to be sustained much longer. As has been the case throughout the post-World War II period, the business community continues to do its share to achieve a favorable balance of payments. Exports and returns from overseas investment continue to exceed imports. Despite the fact Congress has acted for several years to reduce foreign aid, government outlays in other countries continue to exceed trade profits. Aid of various kinds still accounts for much of the dollar flow out of the United States. With the announcement of a sizable cut in the number of U.S. troops stationed in Europe, it appears Washington finally realizes the time has come for more than token action to correct the deficit. It is time also for those countries which have been depending on the U.S. crutch for more than 20 years to realize Uncle Sam now needs it more than they do.

PROCRUSTINATION OF THE COLUMBIA The evidence is persuasive that pollution in the Columbia River is killing millions. There is no other really good explanation for the loss of fish which are observed "raining" down from the banks, never to be heard from again. Competent biologists insist that pollution, in the form of heat discharged into the river from the Hanford atomic works and does inhibit salmon from moving upstream, thus preventing them from spawning. Yet strong pressures are being exerted to do nothing until the problem has been further examined. Some of that pressure is coming from the Columbia River Plateau Resources Council, which asked government agencies Friday to refrain from enforcing anti-pollution measures until more information can be gathered on the economic losses caused by pollution. Until more adequate information is in hand, the council said, anti-pollution enforcement cannot be justified. What cannot be justified is a continued refusal to face the hard fact that the Columbia is getting dirtier and hotter with all the water that is being poured into it. Let us have further studies, by all means. Not enough is known now about the effects of agricultural chemicals on the streams they drain into; about the effects on all the natural life of the river; not just the salmon but the rest of the water temperature about what changes occur in the river habitat when current is slowed by dams. But let us not use the need for more information as an excuse for refusing to act on the information we already have. That information suggests strongly that the river is rapidly becoming too dirty and too hot to support a healthy fishery, and that if we don't start to clean the river the economic and recreational losses are going to be very great indeed. FUZZY COMMUNICATIONS Several weeks ago we recorded the fact that a woman, a farmer and a young girl miner of Lesotho, Africa, had acquired a fortune through the discovery of a diamond. And that with his new wealth he has purchased, among other luxuries, two new wives. It now seems the report was grossly exaggerated. Mr. and Mrs. Ramoah, wrapped in native blankets, were brought to New York by a diamond merchant and exposed to the big city. Mr. Ramoah, taking the excitement in stride, observed that he is a Roman Catholic and has only one wife, and is well pleased with the situation as it exists. He thought New York a nice place to visit, but who would want to live there? However, he is carrying back a bit of Manhattan to Maseru, Lesotho's capital; he will invest his money in a new high-rise building just like one he saw in America. Sounds like a shrewd decision. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch

MISSION TO CONFUSE Kids who read books might be confused by the liberties television takes with their favorite characters. Portland author Walt Morey's "Gentle Ben" was an Alaskan bear but a television series transported him from the northland to the Florida Everglades. Edgar Rice Burroughs' Tarzan was an English lord raised by apes in Africa and his good friend was Jane. Television has "dropped the English lord business because of Ron Ely's (the new Tarzan's) American accent," said producer Sy Weintraub. "And Jane was a problem for the writers, so we discarded her, too. Hollywood has always written its own versions of history and fiction and television is carrying on the tradition. It would be no surprise if Tarzan and Gentle Ben teamed up for a rousing TV adventure in Mongolia." —The Oregonian

WASHINGTON — First, of course, we shall have to sit still for a floor of "sonorous nonsense about how honest are the small-town ward healers who make up our national legislature, but it would seem the Senate finally is in the mood to vote some kind of code of ethics for its members. The Senate ethics committee report is expected momentarily and should be submitted to vote sometime next month, at the latest. After an excruciating order of self-examination, during which the Senate was assumed to discover a strong voter demand that its members come clean, there is hope for an ethics code of at least comparable rigidity to that followed by "unrocked morticians." Among other things, the committee report undoubtedly will include requirements for financial disclosure of senatorial income, restrictions on gifts to members, including "testamentary" gifts, a la Tom Dadd, and some limitations on outside activities of both senators and Senate staff members. This will cause much wailing and gnashing of expensive dentures on the Senate floor, but the guess is that the morality of an election year will prevail and most of the recommendations will be voted.

Happily, a new flood of publicity has been added to the public furor over the issue by the appearance in the January Reader's Digest of an article by former President Eisenhower, cr. lye, who often shows the ability to get the guts of a question, bases his support of an ethics code on the simple, commonsense premise that "if a man has nothing to conceal, why should he object" to submitting to an annual certified accounting of his holdings? This is an approach adopted by those Senators who already disclose their holdings—Clark of Pennsylvania, Case of New Jersey and Javits of New York among others. But it is introduced as an unwarranted intrusion on a Senator's private life by such "big game" individuals as Ev Dilsen of Illinois.

Bahamas: The Tourist Boom

NASSAU, Bahamas — American affluence is spilling over into the Bahamas in a fashion tourists here seem to have no limits. A record 600,000 visitors in 1967, most of them from the United States. All through the holiday season the big cruise boats — the United States, the France, the Stella Polaris — have come in and out of the harbor. Their ton-deckloads of one-day visitors who storm up and down Bay Street, laden with cameras they click, click, clicking, catching the "quaint, foreign atmosphere" the travel ads promise. They pose in the busy lanes as they buy from the straw-woman on the water front. Half an hour away by car is another Nassau. Lyford Cay is a playground for the very rich. Greek ship owners, ex-royalty and British possessors of island taxation and labor by a miserly sture Lyford Bay's beautifully landscaped privacy — a private security force keeps out the unwanted — with the possessors of some of America's greatest fortunes and the tycoon of industry. And close at hand is still another Nassau, one that the tourists and certainly the happy people of Lyford Bay never see. Over the hill is the designation of the quarter by the name of Bay Street, where most of the Negro population lives. It is not Harlem. A kindly climate insures against the worst hardships, but most of the dwellings are one-room structures without running water. It is these vast differences that the new premier, who was installed with all the pomp of the British past a year ago, must try to reconcile. Shortly after his arrival, Lord Lynden-Pindling has learned in the ensuing 12 months just how difficult that task is. One reason his progressive liberal party won their narrow margin in the scandals accumulation around the Bay Street boys (sometimes called the Bay Street pirates) and their United Bahamian Party, a high-powered American promoter, Wallace Groves, who had served a prison sentence in the United States, was given virtual rule over the island of Grand Bahama, a short air-hop from the Florida coast. To insure the success of his big resort, industrial and trade development Groves got a license from his predecessor to start a gambling casino. That opened the door to another Las Vegas, with the sinister hand of the Mafia hovering over the gaming tables to skim off and secretly carry away a good share of the proceeds. This is all told in an impressive document of 141 printed pages, the report of the royal commission into gambling in the Bahamas carried out with the determination of the Scotland Yard authorities who directed it. The inquiry showed that the minister of tourism in the former government, Sir Stafford Sands, had taken over a five-year period $1,800,000 in fees from the Groves operation. This included a fee of nearly $600,000 in 1963 to get an exemption permitting gambling on Grand Bahama. "The enormity of the fee demanded, and the speed and manner with which payment was effected, coupled with every circumstance of his handling of this application, and the report, leave us in no doubt that he was selling his services primarily as an influential member of the executive council and not as a lawyer." Sands shortly took himself off to Spain with a large part of his gains. The report noted how in Cuba in the 1950s the Mafia with the Batista regime wallowing in corruption, gained a hold on the casinos in several of Havana's big hotels. The same sinister figures driven out of Cuba, including Meyer Lansky who had struck up an alliance with Batista, saw a new golden opportunity in the Bahamas.

Calcium Lack

A mother asks how much milk a 2-year-old child should drink every day and whether there are any vitamin tablets her daughter could take in place of milk. A growing child should get three or four full 8-ounce glasses of milk a day. She will get enough of all essential food elements, including vitamins, in a well-balanced diet that does not include any milk, with one exception—calcium. A deficiency of calcium will result in softening of the bones and poor teeth. When a child doesn't like milk as such, she should get it in the form of cheese, ice cream or other foods that are made with milk. Q—Should my 5-and 6-year-old children see a doctor when sinus trouble first appears or wait two or three weeks to see whether it will go away? A—There is some sinus involvement with every head cold. If your child has an acute sinusitis in which drainage from a sinus is blocked, he will have fever and severe pain and tenderness in the region of the sinus. For such a condition, he should be seen by a doctor without delay. For a head cold that hangs on for more than three weeks, it is also wise to see your doctor. Q—Our 14-year-old son takes Dilantin every night. Is this drug habit forming? Does it have any bad side effects? A—This drug is not habit forming. Persons with epilepsy take it all their lives. If such side effects as drowsiness occur, the dosage may have to be reduced. Stomach upsets are prevented by giving it after meals. Q—Our 1-year-old son tees in when he walks. Can this be corrected? When would be the best time to correct it? A—This condition, plegon-toe, when slight, is an advantage because it favors a high-arched foot and straight legs. If the condition is severe enough to interfere with walking, it should be corrected by inserting a 1/4- to 1/2-inch lift in the outer (lateral) side of the sole of the shoe. Q—What is the best treatment for a small child who has a high fever, vomiting and diarrhea? A—Many acute infectious diseases in children start this way. The first step is to call your pediatrician, who will determine the cause and decide what treatment is needed.

The Short Payday

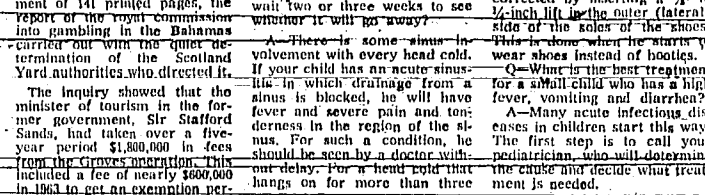

There remains much discrimination in employment against women. Generally, women do not receive equal pay for equal work. Federal law now says employers must not discriminate against anybody on account of sex, but they still do. When Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va.) wrote that provision into the Civil Rights Act of 1964, he meant it as a joke. He thought it would be laughable to expect employers to replace half of the truckers with boys or half of the Green Bay Packers with girls. He was seeking to point up the absurdity of a law which presumes that we are "all equal" when, in fact, not two of us are equal. But his colleagues were unwilling to go on record with "a vote was passed and" so the law specifying that there must be no discrimination in employment based on race, religion or sex. Now it is the responsibility of the Department of Justice to see that the law is enforced. If it cannot be, then let the Supreme Court so decree. Then, perhaps, the whole politically motivated Civil Rights Act will be declared unworkable and repealed. However, if there were no federal law prescribing equal opportunity in employment, such a policy should be dictated anyway by a doctrine of fairness. Presently, by the Labor Department's own figures, men performing the same work receive 5 per cent to 44 per cent more than women. A lady elevator operator averages $1.34 an hour against $1.93 for a man. If an order clerk is a girl she's likely to get $80 a week. A man doing the same work will average $168.50 a week. Cleaning women average $1.74 an hour. Men doing comparable work get $2.04. Incidentally, the pay differential between men and women performing the same work where "a woman doing men's work" is less a novelty. The situation is not improving. Mrs. Mary Keysorling, di-

The Ailing Medicaid Program

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Leaders in the 50 states often mean that they cannot do a better job of fulfilling state government responsibilities because the federal government snags up the few money sources. But only a handful of states make that argument a convincing one. When Medicare was established under Social Security, Congress deliberately left in the states the problem of caring for the "medically indigent"—those aged folk who could not qualify for Medicare because they lacked the work qualifications under Social Security. In pre-Medicare days, this was known as the Kerr-Mills program and it involved substantial state contributions. Today it is called "Medicaid" except in a few places like California. But after all this time only 31 of the 50 states have authorized Medicaid legislation on their books, and several of these have hardly gone beyond that. The care provided for under Medicaid where it is in fact given varies so widely in basic quality that Congress is late 1967 adopted Social Security amendments which, by Jan. 1, 1970, will begin applying certain minimum standards. They simply will demand that every state which attempts to carry out such a program must offer the "medically indigent" some hospital benefits, some nursing-home care, some X-ray and other laboratory services, and some coverage of doctor bills. State laws presently on the books are an incredible hodgepodge, and they are likely to be in considerable confusion in the next two years. Some states have dragged their feet so long that they seem to be offering Washington an open invitation to march into yet another field of activity. In the operation of the Social Security system itself, there has been other opportunity to watch the states perform. And, again, many have not distinguished themselves. Because Social Security in its beginning years inevitably affected so many elderly people who could not get reasonable full benefits at retirement (they had a limited earnings and work record until Social Security), large numbers got further help from "old age" assistance. (This is welfare-type aid with major support from state contributions.)

269 GM Autos Will Have Special Lock

DETROIT (AP) All 1969 General Motors Corp. automobiles will be equipped with ignition switches that will automatically lock the steering column and the transmission.

This will go beyond and beat by more than a year a proposed federal rule that would require all automobiles manufactured after Jan. 1, 1970, to have switches that will lock either the steering column or transmission, as well as the ignition system.

The 1969 models will begin making their appearance next September. In addition to the transmission or steering lock which the National Highway Safety Bureau proposes to make mandatory, the federal agency also would require after Jan. 1, 1970, a warning device that would alert the driver when the door is opened that he has left his key in the switch.

GM said a buzzer warning device it installed in 1968 models will be continued. GM's new locking system will make it impossible for a driver to remove the ignition key until the car is locked properly. The switch for the single-key system will be on the steering column.

Homemakers Council Sets Lincoln Meet

SHOSHONE — The Lincoln County Homemakers Council will meet at 1:30 p.m. at the Courthouse in Shoshone.

The homemakers will discuss the 1968 club programs. They will also discuss the Extension Homemakers Council special programs, workshops, and the extension home-economist's programs they want to promote this year.

Medical self-help program is available to the Extension Homemakers Council group. Reports Reid Newby, civil defense director.

Membership lists for 1968 are to be turned in as soon as possible. The officers of the Extension Homemakers Council are Mrs. Ethel Horn, Mrs. Helen Magoffin, Mrs. Marjorie Kelley, Mrs. Mayme Penk, Mrs. Sadie Magoffin and Mrs. Bessie Couch. Each club has two representatives to vote at the council meetings.

Law Enforcement Officers Make Study On Coordination Of 2-Way Radio Code

Training sessions for police radio dispatchers in complying with the new Public Safety Communication Operators' procedure manual were requested by law enforcement officers attending a meeting recently in Twin Falls.

The group, members of the Association of Public Safety and Communications Officers, voted to hold training sessions in connection with an effort to promote statewide adoption and use of the "ten code" in transmitting radio messages, and the new officer call number system.

No date schedule for the training sessions has been set, but Fred Abrams, retiring president of the association, said dates will be set up in the near future on days suitable in the various districts.

Supt. Clark Hand of the Idaho State Police and Robert A. Wells, Boise officer in charge of the association's new officer call number system, explained the functions in the meeting.

Mr. Wells said only a few of the counties and cities have adopted the system so far. Most of the problems, he said, result because the system is not in use throughout the state or because the system is not properly used.

Officers attending the meeting said problems arise because officers either use only the numbers without the county prefix designations or use the old automobile numbers, thus duplicating the new system. By assigning officer rather than car call numbers, a dispatcher knows where the individual calling is working or traveling, regardless of the car he may be using.

When all communities and counties adopt the system, if it is decided to do so, he said, dispatchers will be provided each dispatcher in the state.

"Little League"

KENTON, Ohio (AP) — Sister Carole Brown, a teacher at St. Anthony's School, is now a "Screaming Eagle," an honorary paratrooper of the 1st Brigade, 101st Airborne Division.

Gen. John D. Mathieson, commander of the 101st, sent Sister Carole her wings in recognition for her work in the "Little League of Green Berets," a group of youngsters she formed to pray for servicemen, write letters and send packages to soldiers in Vietnam.

Officers attending the meeting said problems arise because officers either use only the numbers without the county prefix designations or use the old automobile numbers, thus duplicating the new system. By assigning officer rather than car call numbers, a dispatcher knows where the individual calling is working or traveling, regardless of the car he may be using.

When all communities and counties adopt the system, if it is decided to do so, he said, dispatchers will be provided each dispatcher in the state.

During road block maneuvers or other major incidents that require cooperative efforts by officers of several counties and cities, Mr. Wells explained, the system should simplify work for dispatchers as it would eliminate any number duplication.

New officers elected by the APCC include Robert Pollock, Idaho Falls chief of police, president succeeding Fred Abrams, Boise; Dick Foote, sergeant, Idaho State Police, Idaho Falls, vice president, and Dave Bayless, Idaho State Police communication supervisor, Boise, secretary, and directors, Fred Abrams, Robert Marz, Utah Highway Patrol, and Superintendent Hand.

Jerome Market Opens In Modern Structure

JEROME — Paul's Market opened its new $200,000 125 by 100-foot underblock and masonry building Friday at the rear of the lot at 423 S. Lincoln Ave. in Jerome.

The new structure, which was built by Kenneth J. Ploger Construction Co., Spanish Fork, Utah, and cost $200,000, replaces the old Paul's Market building which has stood for more than a quarter of a century.

The landmark was razed Thursday to make room for a 15,000-sq-ft parking lot in front of the new building.

The demolition work was held up for approximately 40 minutes when a large diesel tractor operated by John Halverson fell into the basement. The men had been working over the basement all morning but did not realize the basement extended beyond the false wall where they were working.

The ground suddenly caved, causing the tractor to slide sideways into the bottom of the basement. No one was injured, and workmen hooked onto the fallen vehicle tractor with another diesel rig and pulled it to the surface.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Malone, who operate the supermarket, will announce plans for the grand opening later. The new store features a large frozen food section, vegetable and produce, self-service meats and dairy foods section.

Spudnut equipment is being installed to put out fresh spudnuts daily and Henny Penney fried chicken will continue to be available. Construction of the new store took about 90 days and one and one-half days were needed to tear down the old building and level the ground in front of the new building for the parking area.

Gibbons Win Light Event At Fairfield

FAIRFIELD — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gibbons won first prize of $15 in the holiday home lighting contest. The Gibbons had colored lights on their home — carport and along the fence and walkway. Music was played through an outdoor speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cox were second place winners of $10. Their home was outlined with colored lights and had Santa and his reindeer on the roof of their garage. Trees in the front yard had strings of colored lights.

Dr. and Mrs. Marion J. Kerns were third prize of $5. Their home had colored lights and red illuminated bells.

The contest was sponsored by the Camas Club and the American Legion Auxiliary. Mrs. Russell Pate was general chairman. This is the first year that Fairfield has had a contest and it is hoped that it will be an annual event. There were 11 entries this year.

Other lighted homes worthy of mention included those belonging to Mrs. George Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. John Vasten, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Dandel, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Durall, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parkes, Mr. and Mrs. Axel Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cook and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Pate.

WATERS SPEAKS
BOISE (AP) — Idaho State Democratic Chairman E. T. Waters told a group of Democratic women Saturday that appointments in each Idaho county and district could soon be made for formation of women's clubs.

Waters spoke briefly to the group of Democratic women leaders who met to develop a program for formation of the women's political organizations in each county.

MAN KILLED
LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — Idaho's 1968 traffic death toll is at three today after a 55-year-old Lewiston man was killed when struck by a car Friday night while crossing a downtown street.

Lewiston police said the victim was Alton E. Millett. The driver of the car was Don M. Nielson, 28, Lewiston, police said.

Loop-hole
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Air Force Maj. Ken Anderson found a loop-hole in the secrecy that surrounded his new assignment.

The major, being transferred from Beale Air Force Base, was told his destination would be disclosed. He noted that his orders included the postal zip code for his new base, checked the zip code directory at the post office, and found he was headed for Da Nang, South Vietnam.

Atomic Power Opposed In Copper Mines

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers of America says it opposes possible use of nuclear power in copper mining.

Kenett, Copper Corp. gives evidence of willingness to share its present affiliation with those who helped produce it.

This position was stated in a letter from Joseph P. Molony, USWA vice president, to Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

His letter referred to possible use of nuclear power in a cooperative project involving Kenett and the AEC.

Molony also expressed union concern over health and safety of miners working such an operation as the proposed "Project Sloop" to be conducted near Saford, Ariz.

Kenett announced last October its proposal to utilize underground nuclear detonation to recover copper.

In his letter, Molony said copper industry workers have what he termed a "fair share" of industry profits and "other long-delayed and denied advances" enjoyed by other workers in other industries.

He said there should be no government action to add to Kenett's affluence until the company "gives evidence of a willingness to share its present affluence with those who helped produce it."

In Salt Lake City, a spokesman for Kenett's Western Mining Division said "we see no connection between the proposed test and current labor negotiations."

Purchase Of Buhl Station Announced

—BUHL — Spradling's Texaco Service Station on South Broadway has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fields from Loy Spradling. As of Jan. 4, the station is known as Fields' Texaco.

News of the purchase was made earlier pending completion of planned remodeling, including a new, new car, and other changes. It is thought that the remodeling may be completed in early spring, to be followed by a grand opening and open house.

Fields stated that they will be open the same hours and give the same customer service as in the past. He also advised that their station is one of four official Idaho-vehicle inspection stations in Buhl for convenience of area motorists in complying with the recently passed state law.

Fields and the other station attendants are on 24-hour call, providing ambulance service for the West End. The oxygen-equipped vehicle is owned by the Magic Valley Ambulance League, Twin Falls, and will be parked at Fields' Texaco Service.

Each of the men, including Fields, Bob Fields, Jon Scheff, and Marlon Ruiter, has had Red Cross emergency aid training and anyone wishing ambulance service should call the station at 543-5174, or the residence of one of these men.

Heart Transplant Surgeons Lauded By Dr. Wangenstein Who Trained Them

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Dr. Owen Wangenstein, who trained them, says Dr. Norman E. Shumway and Dr. Christian Barnard, the heart transplant surgeons, had "tremendous ability and a lot of originality."

Dr. Wangenstein, 70, who heads the department of surgery at the University of Minnesota for 37 1/2 years, said, however, that his role in their development was that of a "sideline cheerleader."

He said he worked to create an atmosphere where the students could develop freely.

"A lot of people came here because we were interested in research," said Wangenstein, now professor emeritus. "We weren't stereotyped. We had, really, no restrictive rules, so they could go far afield in their work."

Shumway headed the surgical team at Stanford University which Saturday transplanted the heart of a 43-year-old housewife into the chest of Mike Kasperak, 51, and is credited with developing the technique now used in heart transplants.

Barnard headed the team in Cape Town, South Africa, that made the world's first and third human heart transplants.

Shumway did his internship at Minnesota in 1949-50, and then undertook his advanced surgical training and earned a Ph.D. degree. He left Minnesota in 1958 to go to the Stanford University medical school, where he now heads the division of cardiovascular surgery.

Barnard received heart surgery training at Minnesota from 1958 until 1963.

"Very good boys," is the way the two are remembered by Wangenstein.

The retired professor recalled Sunday that Shumway was a "very knowledgeable" fellow, "broadly trained and very astute." He said Shumway "worked with great intensity." Wangenstein said Shumway did much work with animals to perfect the technique he used Saturday.

Percy Says Nixon Is Favorite Prospect Of GOP Professionals

By The Associated Press
Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., says Richard M. Nixon is probably the favored presidential prospect of Republican professionals but New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller would attract more of the independent and Democratic votes needed for a White House drive.

Percy said Sunday Republican officials have known and worked with Nixon and Rockefeller for or worse, he has been a solid Republican.

But, Percy added, the GOP presidential nominee won't be able to win the White House with Republican votes.

"I think it is the general consensus now, even among many professional Republicans," that Mr. Rockefeller, if he could hold together the Republican party, would probably have the best chance to attract independents and Democrats.

Percy said the greatest appeal to them today but that is not what might happen in August at the convention.

"As for himself," Percy said again he doesn't plan to be a candidate other than as a favorite son from Illinois.

"Percy appeared on NBC's 'Meet the Press.'

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., like Percy, an opponent of President Johnson's Vietnam war policy, said some antiwar senators aren't endorsing his announced presidential candidacy because they expect him to lose.

"I don't think that's the kind of exit really stands up very well," he said.

McCarthy plans to enter several Democratic primaries against President Johnson but there have been indications he is unhappy because Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., hasn't expressed support for him.

McCarthy said he doesn't expect antiwar senators up for reelection this year to get involved in choosing between him and Johnson.

But he added that Kennedy's support, which he also supported the position to take and who are not running, there is a little bit more of a burden upon them to take a stand."

Kennedy is not up for reelection this year. He has opposed Johnson's war policy but also said he will support the President for another term.

McCarthy was on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

The Gallup Poll reported that if McCarthy ran as an independent-petee candidate in a four-way presidential race, he would get about 12 per cent of the vote. The poll matched McCarthy against Johnson, Nixon and former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who may run as states rights third-party candidate.

In the poll, Johnson got 30 per cent of the vote, Nixon 30 per cent, McCarthy 12 per cent and Wallace 11 per cent.

In other political developments: An Associated Press survey indicates that potential favorite sons from 15 states have nearly half the delegates committed to them and could prevent any candidate from winning the GOP nomination on the first ballot. These 15 states will have

Auction Set Jan. 20 For LDS Church

SHOSHONE — A building fund auction will be held at the local LDS Church, beginning at 12 p.m. Jan. 20.

Explorer Scouts of the Church-sponsored troop will sponsor the event and the boys will handle the auctioning. They will be given "instructions" in the art by their Scoutmaster, Alton Myers, who will attend the scout meeting to give the instructions.

Chill will be sold during the early hours of the sale, to encourage visitors to come.

Anyone with items to donate may take them to the church, 235 S. Main, and they will have them picked up by evening either Alton Myers or Robert Larson.

Any type of item which can be used: clothing, furniture, toys, small machinery and even foods are welcome as donations.

President Of Chile Regains Party Control

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Eduardo Frei won back control of his Christian Democratic party Sunday from a group of rightists who took over leadership in July.

The party endorsed Frei's government policies but rejected one proposal to limit strikes.

The victory over opposition forces called the "rebels" came at the end of a 17-hour Christian Democratic party convention when delegates endorsed Frei's government program by a vote of 272-188.

The vote led to the resignation of Sen. Rafael Gumucio as party president, a post he won in the leftist takeover in July.

Jalisco Castillo, a former government minister and Frei's backer, was elected as Gumucio's successor.

Farmer Trampled To Death By Bull

MONKTON, Vt. (AP) — A bull being led outside for wintering knocked a 75-year-old farmer off the ground and then trampled and butted him to death in the barnyard.

A medical examiner said Frederick Weisenbach suffered a crushed chest and bruises of the face and neck in the mishap last night.

Weisenbach's son, Charles, who had been helping him finish farm chores, carried his father to the kitchen of his home where the man died.

Soviet Economic Study Team Tries To Help Cuba Economy

By FENTON WHEELER
HAVANA (AP) — The Soviet Union sent a team of economic experts to Havana last November at Fidel Castro's request to try to help strengthen Cuba's economy. Informed European Communists in Havana report.

The sources said the Russian team's visit was to review Cuban economic plans for the next three years. They added that the Cuban-Soviet trade agreement for this year, which is part of the three-year plan, has not yet been signed, but it is expected later this month.

The Russian economic mission was a result of talks between the Cuban prime minister and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin last June. It was said.

The same sources also reported that the Russians feel Castro's order last Tuesday to ration gasoline for private cars was unnecessary and that the Cubans have misused Soviet-supplied petroleum.

The Soviets reportedly feel that the savings from the gas ration will not be sufficient to offset adverse publicity.

The sources reported, however, that the Soviets expect to send Cuba 355,000 additional metric tons of oil this year, an increase of about 4 per cent.

Castro reportedly suggested that the Russian economic team come to Cuba earlier, but Kosygin replied it would be difficult before the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution on Nov. 7.

The sources said Cuba's three-year plan has been worked on by both Castro and Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos but gave no details.

Russia is believed supplying the Castro government with about $400 million worth of non-military aid annually.

According to the sources, the Russians have no argument with Castro's plan to lighten gasoline control on government vehicles; but the Soviets were said to be against gasoline rationing for private cars, which they estimate number only 30,000 out of a total of 150,000 household vehicles. These vehicles are said to account for less than 20 per cent of national petroleum consumption. "One theory is that Castro could hardly have ordered gas rationing for government vehicles without first limiting consumption for private cars, which are mostly owned by people the government classes as bourgeois.

Russia provides 90 per cent of Cuba's petroleum. The sources said Russia delivered 3.7 million metric tons in 1963, 3.4 million in 1964, 3.5 million in 1965, 3.6 million in 1966 and 3.845 million last year. They said the Soviet Union is scheduled to deliver more than 4 million metric tons this year in addition to replacing the gasoline which Castro said Cuba had to use from military reserve stocks because of last year's shortage.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: It's Christmas morning in our household and my husband and I have had quite a falling out. Before Christmas we agreed not to spend more than $15 on each other because we are on a budget. And that's all we could afford.

Well, I ended up spending $23 on him because I honestly couldn't find anything I thought he'd like for less. But he bought me a $40 purse which I needed like I need another head.

When I saw it, I was furious and took it back. He was very hurt and called me cruel and ungrateful. Do you think I was, Abby? I feel so bad about the whole thing.

CHRISTMAS RUINED
We just received a letter from George's aunt. She wrote, "George, what status does one have to be before he gets a Christmas card from you?"

DEAR ABBY: I know that I am jealous to a fault, but how would YOU like it if just as you were leaving a party an intoxicated woman grabbed your husband and gave him a long, hard kiss on the lips?

DISPLAYING PRIZES TO be awarded to participants in the Idaho Junior Miss pageant at Moscow Jan. 18 and 19 is Rosemary Dunaway, American Junior Miss for 1967.

Gooding, Twin Falls Girls To Compete For State Title

Two Magic Valley girls will be among those competing for an impressive array of prizes and the opportunity to win recognition in the Idaho Junior Miss Pageant Jan. 18 and 19 at Moscow.

Peggy Kelker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. (Clus) Kelker, will represent Twin Falls, while Barbara McCombs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan McCombs, is the Gooding Junior Miss.

Among the prizes are $1,000 in U.S. Savings Bonds and seven pieces of fine luggage for the five finalists.

The girl who will represent the state in the American Junior Miss Pageant will be one of 50 active young ladies chosen from among some 70,000 high school girls participating in local pageants in 1,200 communities across the nation.

Finalists in local and state pageants and the national finalists will share in an estimated $350,000 in college scholarships, and bonds during the 11th annual pageant program this year.

High standards and ideals are keynotes throughout. Judging is based on scholastic achievement (15 per cent), appearance (15 per cent), youth fitness (15 per cent), creative and performing arts (20 per cent), and judges' conference (35 per cent).

In individual interviews with each girl, judges look for sense of values, mental alertness, clarity of expression, knowledge and personal perception and ability in human relations.

The next meeting is Jan. 16 at the home of Mrs. W. Duell. Mrs. Ed. Lander will present the program from the study book.

Club To Meet
KING HILL-The King Hill Home Improvement Club will hold a reorganization meeting at 2 p.m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. John Davis, president of the club.

Mrs. Davis requests all members and their guests to attend to help make plans for the coming year.

Elmore County home extension agent Mountain Home will attend to help the members with their plans.

Officers will be elected.

Lincolnettes Grief Members

SIOGIONE-Three new members have joined the Lincolnettes. They are Mrs. Dean Durfee, Mrs. Julius Pennington and Mrs. Stanley Strunk.

During the holiday season, the group sponsored a Nativity scene which was on display at the courthouse lawn, facing highway 83.

Each year a new figure is added to the scene. New this year were two lambs, a shepherd and star. The star was made by the George Swanner family.

In addition to this project, the group prepared gifts for four patients at the Wood River Convalescent Center.

Fashions Of 1967 Will Be Recalled For Leggy Look

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor
NEW YORK (AP)—Fashion history will recall 1967 as the year of the leg—that glorious year in which girl-watchers could enjoy a variety of styles ranging from the long-skirted beauties to fitted catsuits.

By last winter the young miss snippers had already begun to snip at their hemlines until by spring they barely covered the situation.

Well, not barely. Underneath it all was a second big style madness designed to keep the eye-level at high level—erazy many stockings. Bright colors, wild Roman stripes or fishy variations in chicken wire or holly not patterns reached from stems to stems.

It was the year in which boots also grew to greater lengths. Some even hitched in garter belts as those suddenly old-fashioned nylons used to do.

What was left after the skirt was snipped away was the shirt. This became a fresh fad with the fashionables who are too young to remember that the shirt, ruffled or mannish, has almost always been a style classic.

The black dress was black, decorated by smashing jewelry that upped the cost of the costume 20 times or more. By spring navy blue was the thing, too, topped by frothy white working girl collars and middy bows to match.

But these were mere shadows to the socks printed fabrics which became a first glance went to the gains this year, 1967.

Oswald: "Exactly. West was in with the king and could do nothing to beat me. Actually, he led a second heart. I ruffed in dummy, discarded my last two hearts on the ace and queen of trumps. East played his ace and put me back in dummy with a diamond. I led and ruffed a fourth club; played my king of trumps and conceded a trick to the jack."

Young America's Date-Line
By ELIE AND WALT DULANEY

A Very Young Guy Is Frequently Shy

Dear Walt: If a boy holds a girl's hand, but drops it every time a car comes along, should the girl feel he's ashamed of her or does it just mean that he is shy? — Empty Hand.

Dear Empty: Take "shy" as the answer. Young boys are very nervous when showing public affection. They don't know who will tease them, or what relative will scold their behavior. If the boy has the courage to reach out to the girl in the first place, she should feel complimented. — Walt.

P.S. Hands turn sweaty after a few minutes. A young boy doesn't know how to grin and say "pooh, my paw is wet." So he may use a passing car as time to furtively dry his hand.

Dear Elie and Walt: Because you both are modern, I know you'll see my side in this fight. I've hung in with my parents. Here's what they've done wrong to me and my girl friend. We are not allowed to date, talk on the telephone, send letters, or even see each other ever again. I asked my dad how long this was for, and he said "As long as I'm paying one red penny on your behalf, you won't need that tramp!" Jen is not a tramp. The only thing was the first (and last) time they met her they walked into my bedroom and found my kissing on my bed. We were fully clothed, and anyhow weren't supposed to come home for another day. Even my murderer has a chance to be paroled. Don't you think we deserve another chance? — Dan.

Dear Dan: "Modern" you call other boys and girls will really think what they're doing because they tell everyone what happened in the past! — Disappointed.

Complaint? Share it with the Dad that's dishonest to tell your Dad that you'd never repeat the care of this newspaper.

GRIFE OF THE WEEK

Dear Elie and Walt: I am a 16-year-old girl and I used to go with this boy. He broke up with me four months ago because he said he didn't want to be tied down. I have just found out that he's telling a girl friend of mine about our secret and giving reasons for breaking up that he never told me about. I was really shocked to find out about this, because I have always known him as a boy who respected everyone's privacy. He wouldn't like it if we around telling people of our past personal affairs, or about the secrets he confided in me, or about the night he cried for ten minutes, why is he depriving me of privacy?

Dear Dan: "Modern" you call other boys and girls will really think what they're doing because they tell everyone what happened in the past! — Disappointed.

NCAA May Pull Out Of U.S. Olympic Committee To Support Other Games

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association hinted Sunday that it may pull out of the U.S. Olympic Committee after a vote by its governing body on Tuesday. The association's executive committee will meet Tuesday to discuss the move.

The NCAA has long been a member of the Olympic Committee, which is the official U.S. Olympic Committee. Bradley Rates As New Glamour Boy

By FRANK YECK

New York is hailing at the moment with six teams in four professional sports of a major-league star who is usually winds up on the wrong side of the "wonder column." Yet each draws crowds and each has its own glamour boy.

The Yankees have Mickey Vernon, the Mets own one of the great young pitchers in the history of the major leagues, the Braves have Phil Neri, and the Giants scramble with Fran Tarkenton. Ranger fans display Rod Gilbert as a banner while the Knickerbockers now have Bill Bradley.

Bradley, who signed a four-year contract for $500,000, is the newest member of the glamour club. He is expected to help lead the New York Knickerbockers out of the National Basketball Association wilderness.

Southwestern Louisiana Is Placed On Probation By NCAA

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The University of Southwestern Louisiana was placed on probation Sunday by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for having permitted financial aid to three prospective basketball players.

The university also permitted, according to the NCAA, an outside organization to pay the educational expenses of a prospective athlete for the 1966-67 season.

The NCAA council took note that once the executive administration of the university became aware of the existence of the arrangements whereby the athlete received financial aid from outside sources, it ended the arrangements.
