B52 Carrying Bomb Cargo Crashes Near Greenland

WASHINGTON (AP) — A B-52 bomber crashed in Greenland Sunday, apparently dumping several hydrogen bombs into the icy waters of a bay. The Defense Department said the plane was carrying nuclear weapons, but added they were unarmed "so that there is no danger of a nuclear explosion at the crash site."

Seven crewmen were aboard the B-52 bomber, and five are known to have survived. The body had been found and search and rescue operations are underway for the seventh. A spokesman at the plane's base at Plattsburgh, N.Y., identified the dead man as Capt. Leonard Svhenko, 36, of West Springfield, Mass., the plane's co-pilot. The missing crewman was identified as Capt. Curtis Criss, 43, of North Wayne, Me. The spokesman said it was not yet known whether the two men had parachuted from the craft.

The survivors were identified as Capt. John Hugg, 36, of Phoenix, Ariz., commander of the plane; Maj. Richard Hopkins, 35, of Dodge City, Kansas, radar navigator; Capt. Richard Marx, 29, of Los Angeles, Calif., electronic warfare officer; Staff Sgt. Calvin Snapp, 20, of Morrisville, Tenn., the plane's gunner; and Maj. Alfred J. D'Amario, 38, of Baltimore, Md., the third pilot on the plane. The Pentagon said the plane crashed about 3:40 p.m. EST Sunday on the ice of North Star Bay some seven miles southwest of the runway at the Thule defense area, Greenland.

The Pentagon said the plane was attempting an emergency landing but there was no indication as to the difficulty. The five known survivors parachuted from the plane. The craft was assigned to the 380th Bomb Wing at Plattsburgh Air Force Base, N.Y. A civilian property was damaged—the Pentagon said. An Air Force investigating team from Strategic Air Command headquarters at Omaha, Neb., was sent to Thule to probe the cause of the accident. The Pentagon said it had no further information on the accident at mid-morning.

Reds Force South Vietnamese Defenders To Abandon Village

By GEORGE ESPER SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese defenders abandoned the town of Khe Sanh under pressure of North Vietnamese army regulars to-day and several thousand civilians fled for their lives. About two dozen U.S. Marines and 40 South Vietnamese militiamen pulled out of the town in South Vietnam's threatened northwest corner after repeated weekend attacks by a force estimated to number 600 North Vietnamese.

Marine commanders said the decision for the withdrawal was made because of the danger that the North Vietnamese could overrun the town at any time. The commanders added that 3,000 Marines based at the Khe Sanh combat camp two miles outside the town were spread out to provide reinforcements. After the weekend attacks in the Khe Sanh area, the enemy let up today but continued to lob mortar rounds into U.S. and South Vietnamese positions. Waves of B52 bombers pounded suspected enemy positions in the Khe Sanh Valley area. Khe Sanh is seven miles east of the Laotian border and 18 miles south of the demilitarized zone dividing the two Vietnam.

U.S. officials said the North Vietnamese were striking from staging bases in Communist-held territory in Laos in hopes of scoring a spectacular military victory for propaganda purposes. A joint intelligence report by Robert D. Ohman reported from Khe Sanh residents of the town were streaming into the valley with their pots, pans and bundles of belongings. They were forced to dig into trenches on several occasions when enemy mortar rounds fell. The refugees were being airlifted to Da Nang on the coast.

The huge eight-engine Strategic Air Command B-52 bombers struck four times in 24 hours around the big U.S. Marine combat base at Khe Sanh that guards the northwest approaches from the demilitarized zone and Laos into South Vietnam.

North Koreans Invade Seoul In Assassination Attempt

By K.C. HWANG SEOUL (AP) — About 30 North Koreans invaded Seoul Sunday night in a bold attempt to break into the presidential palace and assassinate high government officials. Six Reds and six South Koreans were killed by noon today.

Police searched for more than 20 North Koreans still at large. It was the first major clash in the capital since the 1953 Korean armistice. The fighting began when the Communists in civilian garb, fatally machine-gunned Police Chief Chol Kyo-sik when he challenged them less than a mile from the mansion of President Chung Il-sung.

Police quickly deployed in the general area, killed five Communists and captured one. Another Communist who was captured was killed when a grenade he was carrying went off during interrogation at police headquarters.

Three South Korean Army divisions and the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division guarding the western sector of the Korean front were alerted to help hunt the Communists in mountainous areas north of Seoul. A dusk to dawn curfew was proclaimed in three counties and the city of Ulsongbu, north of Seoul, to help block escape routes. Seoul's midnight-to-4 a.m. curfew was extended two hours to start at 10 p.m. U.S. Army helicopters were mobilized to help the search.

Kasperak Dies 15 Days After Heart Transplant
STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Kidney failure, liver failure and other complications killed Mike Kasperak on the 15th day after his diseased heart was replaced. But doctors believe his experience will help future patients. Kasperak, 54, died at 1:43 a.m. Sunday. "We think that we are in the process of making observations of tremendous importance and other possible (heart) recipients to the medical community as well," Dr. Norman E. Shumway told newsmen afterward at the Stanford University Medical Center.

Kasperak's substitute heart, taken from the body of Mrs. Virginia White, 43, after she succumbed to a stroke, apparently functioned well to the time of her death. Dr. Shumway, who headed the transplant team, said that "what should be emphasized is that during this time he survived a fantastic galaxy of complications which we have seen before in other kinds of cardiac patients, but never in such profusion. "We think that because of his normal cardiac action, he was

Held Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation Alan S. Boyd announced today that $600 million in federal highway money will be held back during the 1968 fiscal year to fight inflation. The department said this was a five per cent reduction in the level of obligation to states in 1967. But the federal highway fund is growing each year, and the reduction will put the level about 13 per cent below what will be available this year.

Jockey Men's Wear Firm Conducted Survey In T.F.

Jockey Men's Wear, Kenosha, Wis., is the firm which was involved in the survey conducted Friday and Saturday in Twin Falls. Bob Cooper, president of the firm, confirmed Monday. The firm had requested that its name be kept secret until a final decision had been reached on a location for a new plant it is planning to build, but the name was revealed prematurely in a story filed by the Associated Press at Salt Lake City. Mr. Cooper, in confirming that the firm had been selected, said that "I am not sure if the word 'might' be considerably embarrassed."

The survey, conducted through the Department of Employment Office in Twin Falls, involved more than 2,300 persons filling out job applications. John Leinen, manager of the Twin Falls employment office, said, "Every community in Magic Valley was represented. In addition, individuals seeking employment also came from Nevada and Utah, as well as Boise and other cities in Idaho."

Mr. Leinen said 1,349 persons filed applications Friday and 1,024 on Saturday. During the two-day period, 775 persons were given a company aptitude test and 577 were personally interviewed by two company representatives.

McCloskey of the State Department said the incident was "without hostile intent, no planned and it occurred during the heat of battle."

Cross Examination Begins In Trial

By FRED DODDS Times-News Staff Writer
"JEROME—Cross examination of a Twin Falls detective in the first degree murder trial of Michael Dillon, 18, Monday in Fifth Judicial District Court here, revealed hair particles taken from the victim's home and soil samples from the site where the body was found failed to establish any connection with the young detective.

Cross Examination Begins In Trial

The prosecution alleges that Dillon killed Mrs. Simerly, put the body in her car, disposed of it in the "sandy" south of Jerome and then took the car to Twin Falls and left it at the corner of Jackson Street and Fifth Avenue.

"Will people confess to crimes they didn't commit?" the defense attorney asked. "Somebody people will," the witness answered, "and we check out the facts given in the statement to determine if the truth is being told."

Fowler Pushes For Action On Income Tax Surcharge

By EDMOND LEBRETON WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's administration told Congress today his 10 per cent income tax surcharge is urgently needed—even though federal spending has been cut to reduce the prospective deficit below this year's level. Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler urged prompt action by the House Ways and Means Committee whose leaders have indicated they are not satisfied with a budget for the year beginning next July 1 forecasting $10.4 billion more spending than during the current fiscal year.

Moreover, he said, the normal increase in tax receipts as the economy grows more than covers the higher outlays so that "even if no change were to be made in existing income and excise tax rates, the budget deficit would thus be lower in fiscal year 1969 than in fiscal year 1968." But Fowler told the tax-writing committee the deficit would not be reduced "to a point consistent with the stability and security of the United States economy" without a tax increase.

Under such programs as Social Security, public assistance and veterans' pensions. Fowler said some government activities will have budget cuts totaling almost $3 billion from the current level. "Some of the program reductions will be unpopular," he warned. "The President's fiscal program represents a tough policy, but one which is responsive to the important social needs while making the hard decisions to postpone or eliminate some desirable—but lower-priority items."

Fowler argued the increase in defense and uncontrollable expenditures. Fowler argued the increase in defense and uncontrollable expenditures.

Fowler said the committee failure to enact the tax would mean "additional monetary restraint"—that is, a tighter Federal Reserve credit policy. To allow this, he said, "would be like enacting a special tax that would fall on home buyers, home builders and suppliers, the savings institutions, state and local governments, and small business—the groups most affected by credit tightness."

Chairman William McCone of the Federal Reserve Board backed Fowler's argument on both the domestic and international aspects. The strength of the dollar, Martin said, "is now being sapped by inflation."

Now, for the first time, every taxpayer is entitled to deduct as a medical expense one-half of his cost of his medical care insurance up to a maximum deduction of $150 without regard to the 3 per cent limitation. This means that you are in-

Summary, Extended Outlook

Another pleasant winter day in progress in the valleys of Southern Idaho. Surface pressures have become higher as a large mound of high pressure covers the western states. Skies clear and the cover of high pressure with the exception of some low cloudiness or fog along the coast of Oregon and into Washington, Northern Idaho and Western Montana.

Sunny skies will be the rule in the valleys of Southern Idaho for the next few days. Storm centers will remain well to the north of us with only occasional high thin cloudiness interrupting sunshine at times through Wednesday. The only disagreeable note in the weather picture is that the strong high pressure over us will be favorable for the formation of valley fog in local areas near the Snake River during early morning hours.

Only small changes in temperatures are indicated the next couple of days. High temperatures today and Tuesday will be in the upper 20s into the 30s in eastern and northwestern valleys and in the mid 30s into the 40s in Magic and western valleys. Lows tonight will be in the zero to 10 degree range in eastern valleys to the east of Magic Valley and in the 20s in

Educators Ask Delay Of Tax Repeal

BOISE (AP) — Separate groups of educators called Saturday for a delay in the repeal of Idaho's inventory tax.

Members of the Idaho Association of School Superintendents and the Idaho Education Association urged a delay of the repeal of the tax on inventories, timber products and livestock.

The 1967 Idaho Legislature passed the repeal legislation to phase the tax out over a four-year period, replacing the lost revenue with districts with sales tax revenues.

Tax Commission Chairman Clyde Kozintz announced late last week, however, that the state's general fund does not have a surplus in this biennium and that the repeal would cost $2.1 million from the legislature, which is to go into special sessions next Monday.

But when it was learned that the general fund had no surplus, the educators asked for the delay in repealing the inventory tax — which brings in $1 million to $1.5 million annually.

Climber To Be Rescued From Peak

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — American officials attempted Monday to arrange for a helicopter rescue of Gene W. Mason, Everett, injured last week in a 400-foot fall on Africa's 19,240-foot Mt. Kilimanjaro.

The 39-year-old leader of the Everest-Seattle Mt. Kilimanjaro climbing team injured both ankles while attempting to reach the summit by a new route across Little Penck Glacier.

Wade Chrisman, Seattle, and Ralph Mackey, Everett, also fell but were not injured. They carried Mason to a camp at the 15,000-foot level, and extra medical supplies were moved in from a nearby camp.

Other members of the party telephoned word of the accident to Mrs. Mason at the family home in nearby Lake Stevens.

"It doesn't appear to be serious," Mrs. Mason said. "They'll be bringing him down the mountain as soon as the team can get back on the mountain. They're only a few miles away at the village of Moshi."

Mrs. Mason had not heard of the latest plan to try to send in a helicopter to bring Mason out.

Others of the 13-man team which went to Africa early this month had gone back to Moshi after a mission of collecting supplies for the expedition.

Mrs. Mason said she had earlier by the conventional route from the southeast.

Washington Rivers Are Receding

By The Associated Press
Western Washington rivers receded slowly Monday after a record January warm spell and drenching rainfall sent water spilling over their banks Sunday.

The heavy weekend rains ended Sunday and forecasts for clearing weather promised relief from the threat of further flooding.

All mountain passes were clear. No snow for anywhere, but the Highway Department warned of frost and ice on Snoqualmie, Blewett, Stevens, White, Satus and Cayuse passes.

The Snohomish River, which caused heavy flood damage in December, crested at 20.5 feet above flood level, at 11 a.m. Sunday, but has fallen to 27.3 feet by 4 a.m. Monday.

The Snoqualmie was down to 34.4 feet after cresting at 35.7, 2.7 feet above flood level.

The Skagit River, which caused heavy flood level, and the Nooksack was one foot above flood stage Sunday.

Damage in the affected areas was far less than a month ago because, officials said, the early melt had already.

Several families were moved from their homes in the Fall City area of King County and one family was removed from the lower river road near Snohomish. Several families on the Skagit River, including the Whitcomb family, were forced from their homes.

Burley VFW Not Registered To Sell Magazines

BURLEY — The Burley Chapter of Commerce announced Friday evening that the Veterans of Foreign Wars are not registered with the chamber of commerce for selling magazines at their claim.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 4043 have been refused a blue card for selling door-to-door in Burley for the past three years, stated Mrs. Fred (Agnes) Anderson, secretary-manager of the chamber.

"The reason the VFW's have been refused the card is that very little of the money from the sale of magazines stays in Cassia County," she added.

Egyptian Prisoners Near Freedom

ATLAT PRISON CAMP, Israel (AP) — Several hundred Egyptian prisoners, clad in thick army uniforms but shivering in icy rain, lined up in this bleak, windowless camp in central Israel Sunday night for their last roll call before freedom.

They stood quietly in rows as Israeli guards counted them onto 19 buses which drove them through the night in the Suez Canal zone, away from the hands where they were captured by Israeli forces in the June war.

Some grinned at the thought of home. Some held hands. Some were bewildered. Others were sullen.

They were almost the last of the Arab prisoners held in Israel. Since Jan. 12, about 4,500 Egyptians have been sent home.

The remaining 300 on Tuesday.

"Lama (live)" barked a guard. Five men ran forward, clutching little suitcases, and climbed into a blue and white tourist bus. Another shout, and another five came aboard.

"I've been well treated. I'm happy to go home. Very happy."

Few others wanted to talk. They shrugged and were silent, apparently fearing to endanger their freedom.

Mrs. Carrie Hulda Drew Rappleye, 76, Rev. Arma Apartments, died early Monday morning of a long illness at the home of her daughter.

She was born Sept. 4, 1891, at Barre, Vt. She moved with her family to Cowley, Wyo., in 1913. She was married to William Ed. Rappleye Nov. 20, 1913, at Billings, Mont., and they moved to Twin Falls in 1923. Their marriage was solemnized in June, 1914, at the Salt Lake LDS Temple. Mr. Rappleye died May 30, 1930.

She was a member of the Third Ward LDS Church, and had held many positions in the church, including working on the Stake Primary Board.

Message Is Delivered To Kosygin

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson delivered a secret message to Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in the Kremlin today.

An official announcement said only that Thompson had met Kosygin at the ambassador's residence.

Neither Soviet officials nor the U.S. Embassy would elaborate. But the ambassador's request for a meeting meant he had a message to deliver, and the fact that he delivered it to Kosygin rather than to the Soviet Premier indicated it came from President Johnson.

It was Thompson's first formal meeting with Kosygin since Feb. 18, when the ambassador conveyed President Johnson's proposal for Soviet-American talks to limit development of an antimissile system. The Soviet Union would not enter into such talks.

Thompson's meeting with Kosygin lasted 30 minutes. It came shortly before the arrival of British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, who planned to sound out Kosygin's views on Vietnam so he could relay them to Johnson when the British leader meets him in Washington Feb. 23.

Kosygin, a retired steelworker who lived at nearby East Palo Alto, was a terminal case when he entered the hospital Jan. 25 with a heart three times its normal size and failing, doctors said.

"They told him of the dangers of the new transplant operation but recommended it as his only hope. He agreed to it and he came to the fourth patient to get another person's heart."

Only the third now lives, Dr. Philip Blalberg of Cape Town, South Africa, where the first such operation was performed by Dr. Christiaan Barnard last Dec. 3.

Hay Burned At Bellevue

BELLEVUE — Despite efforts of neighbors who worked throughout the night, some 200 tons of baled hay on the L. V. Wilkerson ranch, three and one-half miles southwest of Bellevue, were destroyed by fire Friday night.

The blaze was first noticed about 7 p.m. by John L. Brown, who lives on a neighboring ranch. No one lives on the ranch owned by Mr. Wilkerson, who lives in Burley.

Another haystack containing 300 tons and located about 20 feet from the burning stack was saved because of the efforts of neighbors, assisted by Ed Quisenberry and the Bellevue volunteer firemen.

Mr. Brown said neighbors brought heavy equipment and piled snow on the second stack. They cut the burning stack in two, hoping to save half of it, but flames were sucked up through the bales and the entire stack was destroyed.

RFK Calls Anew For Bomb Halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy called anew for a halt to U.S. bombing of North Vietnam — a halt military sources contend Hanoi would use for a massive resupply operation.

Kennedy, the New York Democrat who has opposed aspects of President Johnson's Vietnam policy, said Sunday the United States should halt the bombing in an effort to spur peace talks. Pentagon sources reported meanwhile military officers are gathering evidence from U.S. reconnaissance flights that they say suggests North Vietnam plans to take advantage of even a brief pause in the bombing to resupply hard-pressed units in South Vietnam.

While Kennedy urged a halt in bombing, Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., opposed it and argued: "We don't dare to go to any conference table strictly on a fishing expedition. That is totally irresponsible."

His comment referred to Kennedy's statement that recent peace feelers by North Vietnam represent "an opening—I think we have to accept that," Kennedy specifically mentioned an as-yet-unannounced proposal by Nguyen Duy Trinh that Hanoi will talk if U.S. bombing and other acts of "aggression" are stopped.

Johnson's State of the Union pledge that bombing would stop North Vietnam agreed not to take military advantage of the pause was rejected as "insolent" Sunday by the official North Vietnamese newspaper Nhan Dan.

Another critic of Johnson's policies, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, said a "negotiated settlement" remains the only way to end the war. And Michigan Gov. George Romney, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said the United States should not be "soft-necked" about pursuing North Vietnam's latest hint of peace talks.

Kennedy and McGee appeared on a special CBS television program, "The Press and the President," on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Military men said they believe a pause is being weighed by the White House with the approach of the Vietnamese Tet or lunar new year holiday which this year begins Jan. 30.

Last year air attacks were stopped during the traditional holiday period.

The Viet Cong already have proclaimed their intention to observe a seven-day Tet cease-fire in South Vietnam. The Saigon government says it will go along with a 36-hour truce. Saigon sources said U.S. concurrence in the shortened period came directly from the White House.

Pentagon officials expect President Johnson will decide in the next few days whether to include a bombing pause over the North in the cease-fire.

Minidoka Area Boy Scout Leaders Honored At Dinner

RUPERT — Boy Scout leaders in Minidoka County were honored at the annual dinner at Lincoln School in Rupert by a capacity crowd in attendance.

Using a patriotic theme, the leaders saw a film on freedom and heard a number of patriotic songs by Burley's Singing K's. The district chairman, Ross Corless, Heyburn, was the featured speaker, whose subject was "Freedom Is Part of What a Man Is."

Corless cited statistics from a survey made among high school students asking such questions as "Is socialism desirable in government?" to which 52 per cent answered yes. "Is competition necessary to free enterprise?" 92 per cent no.

Corless said results of the survey indicate a definite need for more instruction in freedom and preservation of the republic, and urged scout leaders in the district to make this a part of their programs in the coming year.

He said 52 per cent of the 1,170 boys in the district are presently enrolled in the scouting program, that 84 boys in the Snake River Council area earned Eagle rank last year and that the council is second in the nation in the camping program.

Awards, given by Ed Boyd, district executive, included citations for Outstanding Service to Boys in 1967, issued to Harold Carroway, Carol Bagnall, Wally

Citations for roundup of new members last year went to Bill Hellewell, Glen McBride, Marvin Christenson, Harlow Cheney and John Wodskow; council awards for service to county and district scouting went to Ivan Eliason and Corless, and cited as the Outstanding Institutional representative was Jay McBride.

District officers, who assisted with arrangements for the evening, were Corless, Ken Heimer, Garth Farnes, Melbert, Otis Orton, Don Merrill, Ralph Langford, who served as master of ceremonies, Floyd George, Gordon Nelson, Eliason, Ferrell Cantwell, Nielsen and Cheney.

Student From Peru Living Briefly In Hagerman Home

HAGERMAN — Another home has been opened to receive a student from a foreign country. J. Guillermo Bustamante, 20, arrived in Hagerman Thursday evening from Peru to make his home with Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Adolf for approximately two weeks.

In English, Guillermo means Bill and that is what he is called at the Adolf home. Bill is studying economics in his home country and is here to benefit from the first hand knowledge of other cultures and the people.

Bill's home is Arequipa, a city of half a million people and an elevation of 6,000 feet, with a low temperature of 69 degrees.

The city is located between the Pacific Ocean and the highlands. Much interest in archeology has uncovered much of the ancient Inca civilization in this area. Arequipa means "you may stay here" from one of the first Inca Emperors by the same name.

Arequipa is situated in a privileged spot, the foot of the beautiful snow-capped Misti. Bill is the eldest son in a family of six children. His father is an agricultural engineer and operates a dairy of 40 Holstein cows. Bill's brother, just younger than he, is studying to be a mechanical engineer in Lima.

He has four sisters, of which one is an exchange student studying in Connecticut. The other sisters are teen-agers and attending schools in Peru.

Bill is fond of surfing and says the waves sometimes get to heights of 21 feet. He feels surfing is much safer than snow skiing, but would like to try water skiing.

He also is fond of fishing but prefers to do skin-diving with a spear gun. That way, he feels, he gives the fish equal advantage when they can see him, he says jokingly.

After Bill is fishing in the world. The farms are rather small in the lower region of Peru where Arequipa is located, but in northern Peru, there are several large farms. Peru produces potatoes, alfalfa, sweet corn and grains. They also raise bananas in some sections of the country. There is also much jungle in the northern part of Peru. He told of savage head-shrinking Indians in some of the jungle.

His first night in Hagerman, Bill attended a basketball game. He is familiar with basketball but it is not as popular a sport in Arequipa as English football. He thought it wonderful that the fathers and families attended the games to see their sons play and was very pleased with the warm affection shown by the families for each other, but was surprised by the exuberant shouts by the audience and cheerleaders. This was something he did not know about. He was also very interested in the drill team precision marching which was presented during halftime.

After leaving the Adolf home, he will spend approximately the same amount of time with the Richard Eaton family in Wendell. From March 8-15, he will have a week of free time to visit or go anywhere he would like to at his own expense. On March 15, he will start for home.

Bill flew from his home to Miami, then took a bus to Washington, D.C. Jan. 7. From there he traveled to New York and left there the 14th to come by bus to Idaho. He was surprised at all the flatness of the midwest and likes this part of the country better.

J. GUILLERMO BUSTAMANTE.

Bill is not studying at a college in this country, but in his own country. This is their vacation period there.

Bill is here through the Experiment in International Living which was founded in 1932 "to create mutual respect and understanding among the peoples of the world. It emphasizes a personal approach to the problems of international cooperation."

By special arrangement with the Experiment, any bona fide citizen in any organization or group of organizations can sponsor the visit of a carefully-selected person from another nation to the U.S. These ambassadors from all over the world, come not to study, to listen to lectures, or to attend classes, but to live with families for approximately two months in their host communities, learning about life in the U.S. by actually living it.

In return, the communities are enriched by firsthand knowledge of other cultures, a concern for nations around the world made personal by their relationships with the ambassadors.

The ambassador pays for his own international transportation, health and accident insurance and administration costs. The sponsor pays for all U.S. transportation and en route expenses. The Lions Clubs in Hagerman and Wendell are co-sponsoring Bill this year.

Requests for speaking engagements must be made through Rev. E. V. Hargreaves, Wendell, who will work them out. The Lions Clubs in Hagerman and Wendell are co-sponsoring Bill this year.

UNWANTED HAIR
Q. How can you remove unwanted hair without consulting a physician?
A. The only way to permanently remove hair is to destroy the hair follicle. This is usually accomplished by use of an electric needle (electrolysis). This procedure requires considerable skill. Do-it-yourself electrolysis can result in disfigurement — so, consult your doctor.

SENSITIVITY TO LEATHER
Q. Is it possible to be sensitive to leather? My feet break out every time I wear a certain pair of shoes.
A. Some people are sensitive to the leather. This is usually due to sensitivity to rubber cements present in adhesives used for the linings in the shoes. The most common area affected by rubber dermatitis is the sole of the foot, while leather dermatitis affects the tops of the feet, only rarely the soles. On Foreign Travel

When a country spends billions annually for many projects and for many separate budgets, a recent proposal by President Lyndon Johnson to restrict foreign travel seems ridiculous, to say the least. Tourists spend close to $3 billion in other countries, but the United States government spends many times that amount in foreign countries. And the government often gets far less good out of the money it spends than the tourist does on a short holiday. President Johnson is a man that spends a lot of time snapping off lights in the White House. We wonder if his time wouldn't be better spent in working out ways to economize on a national scale. He's been working at it since 1963. The problem has not improved. More than $1 million a year is wasted by the military just for broken dishes. More than $1 million a day is wasted by the military in thrown away food. The space program wastes millions a year in duplication of efforts, so do the various branches of the military. Our domestic programs are loaded with waste. Americans are forced to waste. Each day, Americans throw away millions of pounds of paper—waste containers for everything from meat to coffee. Waste is what the President seems to be wanting to stop. He is doing a very poor job of it. Stopping the outflow of the tourist dollar is no help. It is a drop in the bucket. The only motive seems to be a strike at the affluent American who can afford a vacation overseas. The move will surely make him popular with the citizen who can't afford such a trip. But the move will do little good as far as the economic picture of America is concerned.

The Bonanza

Fly ash from waste incinerated on Washington's dumps has yielded gold and silver valued at $14 a ton. The sources are varied as photographic film and sparkles dust on greeting cards. Scientists at the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Mines, who made this recovery, estimate all the nation's burned waste would yield gold and silver worth $7 million a year. The potential value of waste has been demonstrated many times. In a report in 1966 the National Academy of Sciences predicted the construction of plants that will combine the processing of sewage, burning of refuse, generation of electricity and purification of water. Engineers have suggested New York City could meet much of its electric power needs, and at the same time eliminate much of its soot and smoke, by burning garbage for fuel. This is already being done in Europe. Chemical companies are installing equipment that will absorb waste gases while reclaiming some of the chemicals for reuse. There are recoverable wastes in water as well as in the air. From an Ohio River is being dredged, for resale to steel companies, some of the minute metal particles washed off in the finishing of steel products. On an experimental basis, scientists are recovering from water other metals and chemicals discharged in industrial processes. Recently it was announced that European engineers have produced a machine that will press refuse into building materials. The director of the U.S. Bureau of Mines says three million tons of iron and more than 200,000 tons of aluminum, lead, zinc, tin and other metals are thrown away each year. The planet's fossil fuels and minerals in their natural state must eventually be exhausted. The safe and sanitary disposal of the wastes of an expanding industrialized society has become increasingly costly and difficult. This is a combination of factors that should stimulate further efforts to perfect economical salvage processes.

HOW TO BEAT THE NUMBERS RACKET In an emergency, trying to look up the telephone number to summon an ambulance, the police or the fire department can waste precious time. What could make more sense than the recommendation of a presidential commission that a universal number be adopted, one number that would be the same every place and would serve for summoning any form of emergency help? The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. has responded to the suggestion with plans to convert gradually nationwide to a universal crisis number, and a blessedly short one at that—911. Which reminds us of the need to hasten the conversion to a universal number for individuals in their dealings with government and private enterprises. The Social Security number is now being used on Idaho driver's licenses. It is also used on federal and state income tax forms. It would be helpful if it could be used in most other phases of our lives that require remembering a number. Some, thinking perhaps of the numbers tattooed on concentration camp victims of the Nazis, have a tendency to blanch at the thought of universal numbers for individuals. But if there was ever any reason to fear the practice could produce a police state president, it is a lot less now anyway. Virtually every adult and most juveniles are already recorded on a few inches of federal computer tape somewhere in Maryland. Now that our identities have all been converted to bland digits, there is only one course, and that is to make the digits obedient to our needs rather than the other way around. There is no longer any way to avoid being regarded as a number. The only way to beat the numbers racket is to reduce the number of numbers that exist in the 20th century requires us to memorize. THE REVOLUTIONARY TINY TRANSISTOR TURNS 20 Just 20 years ago man first entered the miniaturized world of the transistor and revolutionized the art of communications. Since that first experiment by Drs. William Shockley, Walter Brattain and John Bardeen, the radio receiver has shrunk from a bulky machine subject to overheating and malfunctions to a tiny instrument easily concealed in the hand requiring very little energy to operate. Along with printed circuitry and more recently the silicon wafer circuit, the transistor has helped make possible the space-age, hearing aids worn discreetly in the ear, heart monitoring devices, to say nothing of the ubiquitous radio set which bears its name. The recent arrival of the transistor points up the problems of educators as they attempt to train students to meet the needs of the future. Twenty years is less than half the work span of the average person. How could educators 20 years ago possibly have known the ramifications of that tiny device? What will be discovered tomorrow that will send technology racing off on new paths of adventure? Education has become a panacea word in our lexicon. In all fairness, we must ask, education for what? It takes a decade at best for new educational processes to work their way from the "drawing board" through schools of education and into the classroom. With the nation's sophisticated factories clamoring for trained technical and scientific employees, there are over three million Americans out of work. A giant computer can contain as many as 100,000 transistors. A growing fraction of the total business of the United States is processed through computers. How can we be expected to keep pace when the essential element of the computer didn't even exist when a man in his 40s began his work career?—Salem (Ore) Statesman.

WASHINGTON — How's that again, White House? Is Lyndon Johnson's proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge to be known as Charlie de Gaulle's tax? Is it true the American taxpayer is to be clobbered again because the French and our other ever-loving allies so desire? Up to now I thought Uncle Sam had reached the nadir in his policy of pandering to foreign interests at the expense of Main Street. Apparently, however, the administration has decided it is only fair to the rest of the world to let Paris, London, Rome and other assorted capitals dictate our domestic tax policies. That, at least, is the message brought back by a covey of American agents who have been prowling the back alleys of European and Asian finance to wangle approval of President Johnson's program to cut the balance of payments deficit through controls on overseas investments and tourism. According to Under Secretary of State Nicholas de B. Katzenbach, who headed the U.S. mission to Europe, our foreign policy work-unless Congress enacts a domestic tax increase. The same word was conveyed by agents dispatched to Japan, Australia and New Zealand. At the same time, most of these foreign capitals have hedged on their endorsement of the tourist restrictions with the demand that they be exempted from such controls. French Finance Minister Michel Debré has called the controls "a blow at traditional Franco-American friendship," whatever the hell that means at this point. Rome naturally wants Italy-Americans exempted. London, Brussels and Bonn are also whittling at the thought of losing all those fat American tourist dollars. The French are even more sympathetic even for countries which have cheerfully drained the U.S. almost dry of all dollars since World War II, and whose recent cooperation in protecting the integrity of the dollar has been most grudging. It is particularly preposterous coming from a Charlie de Gaulle who started and led the raid on American gold. For that reason, there is a modicum of caution in Katzenbach's suggestions that the U. S. may institute tax rebates to U. S. exporters and complementary sales taxes on imports as means of slowing the dollar drain. Both measures are employed by our foreign friends and Washington has had no luck in trying to persuade them to drop or modify such practices. Since World War II, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) has permitted government quotas, indirect taxes such as sales and value added levies to exporters, but not direct taxes such as income taxes. This favors European countries, which depend on indirect taxes for most of their revenues, but not on the U. S., which relies on income taxes. Put into operation here, the European system would permit the U. S. manufacturer to sell at more competitive prices overseas, while the penalty to our foreign friends would tend to discourage imports. Predictably, Katzenbach's suggestion has brought new howls of protest from abroad, not least from a particular, as a warning to the European Common Market, that Washington may have to play dirty pool in self defense. Meanwhile, however, the administration seems to be using the demand for a foreign government for a U. S. tax increase as a club with which to bludgeon the House Ways and Means Committee, which twice rejected the income tax surcharge last year. In any other capital, such foreign interference in internal affairs would be considered the kiss of death for a government proposal, but Washington seems to thrive on submission to the importuning of its overseas pensioners. Americans do not mind, much, being taxed, but I suspect they will man the barricades on the day the administration explains their taxes must be raised because jokers like Charlie de Gaulle say so. Keep your scythes and pitchforks handy and ready to use. In the meantime, all this begins to look like the year when our selfless politicians will try to butter up the capitals of the world by stealing us blind.

"A Transplant Might Be Worth A Try Here, Too!"

MARQUIS CHILDS

Sargent Shriver Eyes Senate

WASHINGTON — The class in political science considering how to find an entry into the elective system can examine a classic case. It poses this disturbing question: Does success in Washington in an appointive job cut any ice when it comes to running for office back home? Sargent Shriver, first as head of the Peace Corps, then in double harness taking on the poverty program, proved his ability under the most difficult circumstances. Against a sea of trouble in Congress and with the big-city machines he fought a successful running battle to save the Office of Economic Opportunity and its various initiatives from slaughter. Now he would like to run for elective office in Illinois which was his base before he came to Washington. Naturally he isn't saying this out loud, since the rules of the game call for a proper silence. At the same time on the Democratic slate in Illinois is a gaping hole that must be filled before the campaign begins. Up for re-election at the age of 72, Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen is in his own inimitable style spreading the impression that as a kind of national monument he is a vital part of the scenery and, therefore, unshakable. But the storms of yesterday have worked their way with the monument until today it has a slightly antique look. The minority leader's colleagues in the Senate have just ruled that as the Ev of the Ev and Gerry (Rep. Gerald Ford, House Minority Leader) show he must yield part of his television time to other senators.

The rotund oratory has had an effect half-comic and half-soporific. The political equation in Illinois is of singular interest. The computer boys figure that in a close election President Johnson must carry Illinois to win. They figure further that as of now he could carry the state against Richard M. Nixon, who is the overwhelming choice of the Republican pros. But to do that he has to win the long love affair he has had with Lyndon Johnson? Dirksen has been a pillar of strength for the President's Vietnam policy, squelching the Doves in his own party and coming up as the moral opposition in a pinch. The temptation obviously is to let a sacrificial lamb make the run, so that Ev can come back for another six years. The election might, however, be as close as it was in 1960 when John F. Kennedy carried Illinois by only 7,000 votes. And the Republicans have insisted ever since that those votes were purloined by Mayor Richard Daley's henchmen on Chicago's West Side. It is just here that a strong and attractive candidate for the Senate seat might swing the balance. Shriver is 52. With unflinching good humor and a warm personality he has shown his capacity to work tirelessly under prolonged strain. The punishment he took during the long weeks when the poverty program was under fire in the House would have been enough to down anyone with less resilience. Yet under the American system, which tends to isolate

Washington from state and local government, these assets may count for little. Shriver must wait for the nod from the state-makers, conspicuously Mayor Daley, before he can move. And given the compartmentalization of our political life, his disadvantage would be the image of the carpetbagger from remote Washington. Involved here is a bit of delicate interior diplomacy. Shriver is not only a Kennedy holdover but he is married to a Kennedy—his wife, Eunice, being one of the more aggressive of the tough-been-riding-the-roller-coaster-how-to-shore-up-their-economic-but-now-the-tables-are-turned-and-we-have-to-sit-and-litigate-to-them. Do Culler started it but even the smaller countries are getting into the act. The other day the U.S. ambassador to Zanzibar was called in by Zulumulu's minister of finance. After shaking hands with him the minister invited the ambassador to sit on the dirt floor of his tent near the fire. "Mr. Ambassador," the minister said as he popped a beet nut into his life, "Zanzibar is very concerned about your dollar crisis." "It's good to hear you say that," the ambassador replied as he tried to keep a lizard from running up his leg. "You see, we do have a stake in America's economy and what affects you will affect us." "Why do you say that?" the ambassador asked as he knocked a spider off his sleeve. "Well, as you know, most of our exports go to the United States, and we certainly don't want help from a country that is having trouble with its currency." "Of course, you don't," said the ambassador. "We're grateful you've been playing along with us this long." "Yes, but I must warn you since we are an underdeveloped country we can't play along with you much longer. The Zulumulu people demand that the country that helps them show more respect for their own currency." "We're doing the best we can," the American ambassador said. "I'm perfectly all right," the minister smiled. "After all, if we were in trouble you'd probably do the same for us."

Betel Nut Advice

WASHINGTON — The worst part of the economic dollar crisis is that everyone is telling the United States what to do about it. For 25 years we have been advising other countries how to shore up their economies, but now the tables are turned and we have to sit and litigate to them. Do Culler started it but even the smaller countries are getting into the act. The other day the U.S. ambassador to Zanzibar was called in by Zulumulu's minister of finance. After shaking hands with him the minister invited the ambassador to sit on the dirt floor of his tent near the fire. HAL BOYLE

"Midshipman Dog" Ousts Goat

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — His name is Dodo. His past is murky and his ancestors unknown, but to the 4,000-man brigade at the U.S. Naval Academy, the little black and brown mongrel already far outshines the Navy goat in academy tradition. It was on a stormy night during first-semester finals last year that he wandered dripping into a room in Bancroft Hall, the vast dormitory for midshipmen. Somebody gave him some misappropriated food from the mess hall, dried him off and he was immediately apparent that Dodo had found a home. He never spends two nights in the same room, fastidiously avoiding favoring and honoring commissioned officers with a disdain that brings secret delight to the hearts of his dormitory mates. Wherever the brigade goes, Dodo is there. He sleeps in Bancroft, eats in the mess hall, marches at parades, including June Week, and regularly attends classes. His exploits are heralded and numerous. He's been in classes, in chapel, in love and in trouble about as much as his human classmates and this fall he was granted all the privileges of an upper classman. It is not unusual to see pibex snap to attention when he saunters into one of their rooms. Nor is it unusual for him to trot happily along behind a trio of upper classmen when they head for Annapolis on weekend leave. So important has he become to the brigade that various midshipmen are assigned to keep a log of his activities. A typical entry from last May reads: "Midshipman Dog was seen returning from Catholic chapel this morning. A glow of humility was noted in his eyes and he was obviously in penance to atone for missing morning meal on Friday. He decided to anticipate this morning's formation and arrived 17 minutes early." Shortly before the Navy-Syracuse football game on Oct. 14, Dodo was fitted at the academy tailor shop for a Navy blanket with the gold "N" on the top and gold letters reading "Dile Army" on either side. It was formally presented to him at a pep rally preceding the game and he has faithfully worn it ever since as he watches proudly from the bleachers. His official recognition came another luxury, grudgingly accorded by academy officials who still are ranked at the esteem in which the brigade hold him. Instead of prancing along with the midshipmen as they march from the academy to the Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium, which he did previously, Dodo now arrives in style, seated proudly on the back seat of a staff officer's sedan.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Every day my husband picks up your column and says, "Well, that's the nutty Abby who writes to a newspaper." I would never admit that HE could use some help.

My husband is a good provider and generally a good husband, but he is a very poor father to our six children, who range from 3 to 12. He never pays them the slightest attention unless it's to punish them. When a male friend comes over here, the children compete for his attention and the man can't get the little ones off his lap. I am worried about how this will affect the children's lives. Will my girls be so hungry for male affection and approval that they'll be pregnant at 15? And will my sons grow up to be Momma's boys? What can I do before it's too late? Or am I being silly? WORRIED needs desperately to get this important message.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't laugh, but when can I buy a foam rubber fanny? I have heard that there are such things, but I have never seen one and where nor have I ever seen them advertised, have you?

I once asked a saleswoman who sold fannies and padded bras in a department store and she looked at me like she thought I was crazy. I would really appreciate your help, Abby. Thank you. FLAT IN BACK

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I'm behind times, but I've never heard of such a item. However, if it exists and the manufacturer will me in, I'll be glad to fill you out.

DEAR ABBY: It disgusts me to read the letters in your column that begin, "While straightening my daughter's hair, I came across one of her letters or her diary, and after reading it, I was horrified. Where have I failed?"

Perhaps these mothers should begin by looking at their own code of ethics. It is important to children, especially teenagers, to feel that they are individuals with privacy and rights of their own. Having a mother who comes snooping around reading personal mail and examining private possessions will surely force the child to become deceptive and secretive and constantly on the defensive, rather than to feel free to discuss personal values and share private experiences with her mother.

If a mother feels it is necessary for her to know everything that happens in her child's life, she should teach the child early to trust her and come to her when she has no privacy and she shares her feelings openly. This way the mother can express her feelings of her own, and perhaps point the child in the right direction without promoting the kind of mistrust and tension that develops between mother and daughter when the daughter finds she has no privacy and the mother spies on her.

The more I read about such mothers, the more I appreciate my own.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT MILLER JR. (Shig. Morlia photo)

Jeanette Higgins, Miller Wed In December Ceremony

Jeanette Higgins, daughter of Mike Cowan, Kimberly, cousins of the bridegroom, was married to Robert Miller Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller, Marysville, Calif., were united in marriage Dec. 30 in a double ring candlelight ceremony at the Reorganized LDS Church.

Elder Lisle Fullmer performed the ceremony, which was officiated by a brass candelabra, flanked by white baskets in brass stands holding red carnations and white chrysanthemums with princess pine and red satin bows. The aisles were decorated with cascades of red poinsettias and variegated holly tied with red satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white peau d'ange. Flowers of seed pearls centered with crystal teardrops were embroidered on the applied alencon lace motifs which accented the simple waistline and flared the front of the floor-length "A" skirt. The long sleeves were appliqued with lace which also bordered the chapel-length train falling from the waist in two deep inverted folds.

Her shoulder-length veil of illusion was held by a small cap of peau d'ange petals edged with seed pearls and worn low over the forehead with a single teardrop pearl falling from the center. The bride carried a Hogarth cascade bouquet of red poinsettias and variegated holly centered with white roses. She was attended by Karen Groves, maid of honor, and Sheila Dryden and Velma Guyer, bridesmaids.

Lynn Miller and Ronnie Miller, sister and brother of the bridegroom, were flower girl and ring bearer. Bobbi Krumm and Dan Munger, cousins of the bride, were candlelighters. Nancy Brackett was the organist and Velma Guyer the soloist.

Ralph Mayan served as best man and ushers were James Higgins and Jerry Higgins, brothers of the bride.

A reception was held immediately after the wedding. Mrs. James Higgins, sister-in-law of the bride, attended the guest book. The bride's table was covered with scarlet satin with an overskirt of white sheer and a top cover of white satin awagard and lined with scarlet velvet bows. The table was centered with a three-tiered white wedding cake flanked by red tapered in silver candelabra entwined with holly to carry out the bride's holiday color scheme.

Three heart-shaped cakes formed the bottom tier of the cake which was decorated with white wedding balls edged in silver and red poinsettias. Miniature clasped hands wearing silver wedding rings in a circle of small wedding balls backed by red poinsettia topped the cake which was made by Mrs. Charles Robinson, Twin Falls.

The cake was served by Mrs. Dick Keyser, Boise, and Mrs. Dale Krumm, Buhl, cousin of the bride. Sonoma Haynes and Marvona Haynes, cousins of the bride, served—the punch and poured at the silver coffee service. The gift table was attended by Linda Miller and Mrs.

The couple was honored at a Kimberly.

Survivors Of Quake Won't Go

PALERMO, SICILY (AP)—Despite bitter cold and recurrent rains, many of the survivors from western Sicily's earthquake-ruined towns refused to leave their muddy tent camps today for shelter in places on the edge of the disaster zone.

The holdouts refused to go into buildings for fear of a new disaster, after shocks continued to rock the region from time to time.

Peasants told officials they were afraid if they left they would never see their fields and houses again. Some said they had to look after their sheep and goats that survived the quake.

Of more than 40,000 homeless, only several thousand consented to move into schools, hotels, government buildings and army barracks in Palermo, Trapani, Marsala and other communities.

THIS IS A VIEW of a tent city for refugees at the earthquake-hit town of Gibellina, Sicily, Sunday. Thousands of the quake survivors were evacuated from the tent camps Monday to escape bitter winter weather and the growing problem of sickness. Many refused to leave here. (AP wirephoto via cable from Rome)

At Castelvetrano, one of the 12 communities shattered by the quake, a column of 20 trucks went to evacuate refugees—returned with only five families.

With pneumonia, scarlet fever and other diseases sweeping the tent camps, plans were rushed to start construction of barracks to replace the tent camps.

The search for bodies of the quake victims continued, and a total of 201 had been recovered. It was believed the final toll would be at least twice that.

Meanwhile, two babies—both boys—were born to quake survivors over the weekend.

Hearing Is Asked Over Train Setup

RUPERT—Dwight Brown, chairman of Idaho Legislative and Education Board of Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, today requested a hearing on the proposed new train setup.

He said the proposed setup would be a "disaster" for the railroad men, and that the railroad men should be heard before the setup is implemented.

He spoke at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Idaho State Capitol building.

Harold Carraway stated 50 to 75 employees would lose their jobs if the new setup is implemented.

Romney Sees Only 2 Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP)—Michigan Gov. George Romney virtually rules out of the race for the Republican presidential nomination anyone but himself and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

"I think the contest is basically going to be between the two of us," Romney said Sunday.

He discounted the possibility of a late entrant into the GOP sweepstakes could sink the prize, saying: "I don't think those who hold back in the hopes that lightning will strike will figure in this. They will be too late."

per cent in a January sampling. The same poll showed Romney with 12 per cent and California Gov. Ronald Reagan with 8.

Romney's campaign to win the nation's first primary, New Hampshire, on March 12, was reported off to "an encouraging start" by Leonard W. Hall, his national campaign chairman.

On the other side of the political fence, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota announced plans to carry his Democratic presidential nomination bid into New Hampshire this weekend.

Emergency Landing Rehearsal Rule Blamed For Fatal Crash

WASHINGTON (AP)—A federal report that says a rehearsal for emergency landings with power out in both engines on one wing is blamed by a congressman for the March 1967 crash of a jet airliner that knifed into a luxury motel, killing 10 persons.

The National Transportation Safety Board said in a report issued today that the two left engines on the DC-8 jet were muzzled as it approached the New Orleans, La., airport. The board blamed the pilots for allowing the huge jet to slow down too soon to reach the runway on the remaining engines.

Stocks

CLOSING SUMMARY
NEW YORK — The stock market closed sharply lower today in the first of a series of abbreviated sessions. Trading was heavy.

Common stocks and blue-chip shares were hit by a wave of selling. Brokers said that the public was confused by the reduction in trading hours to four hours from the regular 5 1/2 and was apprehensive about recent warnings on speculation and the continued uncertainty regarding federal spending and a possible tax increase.

In late dealings the Dow Jones industrial average was down about eight points, paring its worst loss, shown about midday.

The ratio of losses to gains increased to 5 to 1. The market was weak from the start and deteriorated swiftly until the slide was stopped in early afternoon.

IDM lost about 14 points, Lithium Industries around 7, Tele-Child Camera, around 5 and Fairchild Camera, around 3.

Among the key blue chips, DuPont, General Motors, International Harvester, Goodyear, Goodrich, Texaco, Caterpillar and many others lost a point or more.

The bond in Canada's budget aroused fears that the Federal Reserve Board's discount rate might also be hiked.

Board Chairman William McChesney Martin of the Federal Reserve Board issued a warning about speculation.

Prices fell in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Daily Investor

By WILLIAM A. DOYLE

Q—You have told your readers that it can be profitable to buy a multi-family building, live in one apartment and rent the others. I would like to add my comment. I own rental property in various sections of the United States. Management, not acquisition, has always been my biggest headache.

I would advise people who own rental property to live elsewhere, if possible. The more the tenants see the landlord, the more they hate him for minor repairs they would otherwise do themselves. Tenants and who you live there you become sort of a Janitor. Tenants must understand that the property is yours; that they rent it only as long as they are good tenants; that you will decide what improvements are necessary.

Also, when the owner lives in a four-family building, the vacancy of one or two other units can jeopardize his security. It's better to get rent from all four units and live someplace else. Fewer headaches, more security, and definitely more income. What do you say now?

A. I wouldn't want to rent an apartment in any property you own. If you have a few dollars, look for a business opportunity. There will always be arguments between some landlords and some tenants. I'm not about to take sides. But I don't buy the line that the tenants are always wrong.

Whereas some of the solid blue-chip stocks on the New York Stock Exchange sell for $100 or more, an American Exchange trader has his choice of about 60 stocks selling for less than $5 and many more for less than $10.

Lending encouragement as well as impact to this churning of stock, some Wall Street informants say, are registered representatives who speculate for their own accounts and encourage customers to do likewise.

few other factors also may be involved: No matter what is said for the record, credit for speculating is pretty easy to come by these days. And the suspicion exists among critics that some speculation may be manipulated.

Certainly the huge increase in the number of stockholders is having its impact as well, for the latest figure of 24 million is four times the figure of 20 years ago.

However, it is difficult to believe that amateur or small-investor speculation has suddenly caused the enormous burst of activity.

American Exchange average daily volume for all of 1967 was 2.7 million shares. For 1967 volume averaged 4.5 million. For the first two weeks of the new year volume has jumped to 8 million shares.

Some skilled observers of the Wall Street scene believe that much of this activity is, instead, the result of professional speculation by pension and mutual funds, by trust accounts and by college endowments, among others.

BAN STANDS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court let stand today a ban on recitation of a grace-type verse in public school kindergarten.

It's interesting to note that the new Freedom Shares can't be redeemed for one full year. Coincidence? Maybe. More likely Uncle Sam has learned a lesson.

Calm Prevails Around Japanese Naval Base

By KENNETH ISHII

SASEBO, Japan (AP) — Calm prevailed around the Sasebo Naval Base today after four bloody clashes between radical students and police since the arrival Friday of the nuclear-powered U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise.

In the only demonstration of the day, some 3,000 persons affiliated with the moderate Democratic Socialist Party marched quietly through the streets of Sasebo to protest the visit of the 75,000-ton carrier.

U.S. officials said the Enterprise would leave Tuesday, Jan. 23, on a route from Hawaii to Vietnam with the nuclear-powered frigate Truxton.

Police said the four clashes injured 465 persons, including 200 police, 180 students and 25 bystanders. Police arrested 66 students.

About 250 of the student demonstrators were reported to be in the Sasebo area to the south Tuesday before the ships sailed.

About a thousand of the students came from various parts of Japan to Sasebo at the height of the demonstration last week. Students also demonstrated in Tokyo and other Japanese cities, contending that the visit of the ships link Japan to the Vietnam war. Demonstrations by older Communists and Socialists drew thousands but were peaceful.

The Enterprise and Truxton are the first nuclear-powered surface warships to visit Japan. U.S. nuclear submarines have been cutting at Japanese ports since 1954.

The U.S. Defense Department said the ships visited Japan to give their crews shore leave and to pick up supplies. The daily riots several times delayed the start of liberty hours for the sailors, but eventually they got into the city, and no attacks were made on them personally.

About 700 students armed with sticks and rocks "battled" Japanese police Sunday at the bridge about 500 yards from the U.S. base. Police used tear gas, high-pressure water jets and truncheons to turn back the mob.

Injured in the melee were 100 policemen, 30 students and 14 newsmen and bystanders.

About 70 students broke away and advanced on the base about 500 yards from the main group. Six students managed to scale a six-foot wire fence surrounding the base, but Japanese police and U.S. shore patrols nabbed two of them. The others fled.

Another 3,000 students snaked through Yokohama, 30 miles south of Tokyo, where another big U.S. naval base is located. Police arrested seven students for obstructing traffic.

About 10,000 Socialists and Communists also gathered Sunday at the entrance to the Sasebo base to protest the visit of the carrier.

Top Officials To Argue Tax Boost

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials face the task of convincing an economy-minded Congress that a proposed spending increase should not stand in the way of a tax hike.

Top officials are expected to argue today when the House Ways and Means Committee meets more on the tax boost proposal—a $10.4 billion spending increase is essentially earmarked for Vietnam and domestic programs over which the administration has no control.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Budget Director Charles L. Schultze will renew Johnson's case for a 10-per-cent income tax writing before the tax-writing committee.

Beauty Shop Is Closed At Shoshone

SHOSHONE — The Beauty Shop, a popular beauty shop here for the past nine years, closed Friday.

Mrs. Elva Knowles, who has operated the business from her home, is the co-owner of a new salon, to be known as "Salon El Margo," Twin Falls. Open house at the new shop will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Sunday at 1111 W. W.

Under direction of Mrs. Knowles and Mrs. Margo Butlerfield, the Salon El Margo will feature all types of beauty work, and is a new-type business to set up in this area something that has only been found in the larger cities.

Mrs. Knowles came to Shoshone in 1958 when her husband, the late Howard Knowles, took a teaching contract at Shoshone High School music and science department.

She received her training in Salt Lake City.

While at Shoshone, Mrs. Knowles has been active in many community projects, including membership in the Church Community Chorus, LDS Church MIA speech director and activity counselor. She has taught Sunday School, served on various fund raising drives, such as the heart, red cross and has worked on the Shoshone community concert drive in Shoshone as well as having sold tickets for the Little Theater in Buhl.

She is presently president of the Maple Valley Handicrafters and last winter served as chairman of the Parade of Affiliates at the handicrafters convention in Boise.

Mrs. Knowles was reared in Logan, Utah, but has lived in Idaho since her husband began his work career.

She has five children, Mrs. Charles (Eleanor) Peugh, Burley, and Lloyd Knowles, a student at the University of Utah, Salt Lake City.

Simplot Co. Aided By Judgment

BOISE (AP) — An Idaho firm, the J. R. Simplot Co., may save millions of dollars as the result of a legal decision handed down last week by Fourth District Judge Fred M. Taylor.

The decision in favor of Simplot was the result of a three-week trial last June of Simplot's suit against the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co.

Simplot had signed a contract with Texas Gulf in 1963 to buy 100 tons of sulphur per year at $8 per ton, a company spokesman said, but Texas Gulf wanted to raise the price to about $30 per ton afterwards.

The Texas firm then charged in a counter-claim that Simplot had used fraud in obtaining the lucrative contract.

Taylor, in his 41-page decision, said the contract was valid, that Simplot used no fraud in obtaining it and that Texas Gulf would have to sell the stipulated amount to Simplot at the lower price.

Simplot needed the sulphur for a Deo Idaho plant at which the firm manufactures sulphuric acid. Prices on the mineral were depressed at the time of the contract, Taylor's findings said, but have since more than tripled.

REFUGEES FROM the western Sicilian town of Salaparuta run after truck asking for food. The truck had been emptied earlier and the chase was in vain. The region was rocked last week by disastrous earthquakes. A total of 200 bodies has been recovered, but it was believed the final toll would be at least twice that. City Council At Rupert Plans Budget

RUPERT — Mayor Wendell Johnson presided over the Rupert City Council meeting last week for the first time since his illness.

The council heard budget requests from the different departments. Final approval of the budget will be given in March.

Councilman Harold Carraway reported on an electrical meeting which he and electrician Elmer Schenk attended in Burley. He noted purpose of the meeting was promotion of electrical sales and electric heat.

Mr. Schenk suggested that a campaign be started to get the facts before the people as to how little electricity costs. The council voted to go ahead with this project.

George MacDonald was elected council chairman for 1968-69. Larry Duff, chairman of the park committee, protested the cutting of trees which has been taking place. He stated that this has caused concern to the committee members and they feel the council should approve an ordinance concerning the control of shrubs and trees.

There will be a study of this proposed ordinance.

A $14,102 bid for a booster pump on the outfall line was received from Phil York Co. The bid was given to Hamilton and Vogler for review and recommendation.

Mayor Johnson suggested that take a guest from south city to the council inspect all city facilities by taking one day and doing day to day.
