Dirksen Asks Bill Mediation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen urged Saturday that efforts to reach a compromise on a civil rights bill be continued even if a second attempt to cut off the debate fails.

"With so many attempts to find common ground," he said, he will suggest to Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., that the measure not be put aside in favor of other legislation.

The Senate will vote for a second time Monday on whether to shut off the civil rights debate that began after Congress reconvened in mid-January.

A first vote last Tuesday on putting the debate-closing clause into effect failed by a margin of seven votes short of the necessary two-thirds majority.

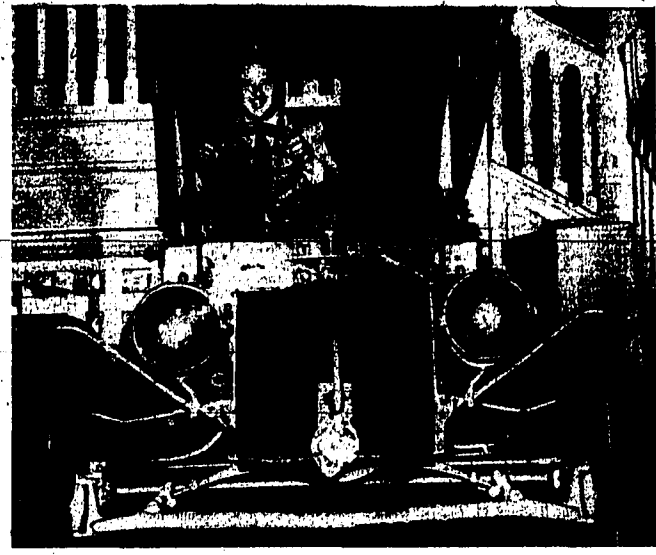

Mansfield has said that barring unforeseen circumstances he will move to lay the civil rights bill aside if the Senate again refuses to halt the debate.

Dirksen said in an interview the expected closure to be rejected again Monday, saying he knows of no senator who has changed his position.

But the Illinois senator said he wants to get a satisfactory bill and thinks this may be possible if the legislation is kept before the Senate.

The twin issues involved are a measure to protect Negroes and civil rights workers against race violence and a proposed amendment to bar discrimination in the sale or rental of housing.

The chief sponsors of the open-housing amendment already have said they will propose modifications.

Businessmen Sign Up To Find Jobs For 500,000 Unemployed

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELIUS, AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — With "national unity and domestic peace" as a slogan, thousands of businessmen signed up to help find jobs for 500,000 unemployed in big-city ghettos.

The signing ceremony took place in Austin Saturday afternoon in a room crowded with businessmen and their families.

The chief sponsors of the open-housing amendment already have said they will propose modifications.

The signing ceremony was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Kennedy, wife of the New York senator.

Her brother, George Skakel was one of five persons killed when a light plane crashed in September, 1966, in Idaho's Salmon River Canyon.

Skakel was hosting a hunting trip into the Idaho interior.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Boise on behalf of the widow of Miss Werner and her four children, now living in St. Louis, Mo.

Werner, midwest bureau chief for the Central Intelligence Agency; Dean Markham, an assistant vice president for Great Lakes Carbon Corp.; Earl Kamm; and the pilot, Donald Adams, were killed in the crash. There were no survivors.

The suit was filed against the three firms and the hunting party was flying in a company airplane.

It was filed by Robert E. Smylie, former Idaho governor and now a partner in the Boise law firm of Langrune, Clark and Sullivan.

The complaint alleges negligence on the part of the firms and contends the aircraft came in too high and too fast for a landing at an air field on Shepp Ranch in the Salmon River Canyon.

6 Men Sued In Savings, Loan Case

BOISE (AP) — Six men, named as former officers of defunct Idaho Savings and Loan Association, are being sued in district court here for $4 million in a complaint alleging the defendants "brought their fiduciary obligations."

The suit was filed Friday.

The six are being tried on a charge of falsification of corporate records. They were indicted by an Ada County grand jury, but the felony case has been moved to a North Idaho court.

Defendants are D. Spencer Grov of Provo, Utah; Rex Anderson, Jr., Salt Lake City; Duwan A. Knigge, Boise; Horace E. Hayes, Preston, Idaho; Harold E. Hogan, Eagle, Idaho; and Ernest A. Garrett, McCammon, Idaho.

Diversion Of Snake River Water Is Subject Of Talk

CORONADO, Calif. — The director of Public Works in California, in a speech before the American Society of Civil Engineers, outlined a plan to divert water from the Snake River near Twin Falls to arid California.

The speech was made Friday by Samuel B. Nelson. He endorsed a plan to divert surplus Snake River water to the Colorado River as a "partial" solution of California's water problems.

The plan calls for Snake River water to be diverted a few miles northwest of Twin Falls where the elevation is about 3,900 feet. The water would be lifted, by seven pumping stations to be built, to the 6,200 foot level in Nevada.

The diverted water would move by gravity flow through the Barclay Reservoir in the South-eastern part of Nevada. From the reservoir the water would pass through six power recovery plants en route to Lake Mendocino in California.

He also alleged it would provide a market for the sale of 180 million worth of Pacific Northwest power annually. It would assure greater and improved supply of water to the Lower Colorado River Basin in states and Mexico.

The official pointed out the suggestion was only a drawing board plan to benefit arid states and California.

Military Call-Up Decision Awaits Wheeler's Return

By FRED S. HOFFMAN, AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision on whether to call up thousands of reserve ground troops is hanging fire until Gen. Earle G. Wheeler returns from Vietnam, Pentagon officials said Saturday.

Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is due back some time in the coming week with his estimate as to whether U.S. forces should be increased over the presently planned 525,000.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam, has not yet submitted any force increase request to Washington, sources said, but Wheeler is expected to bring back Westmoreland's recommendations. Most authorities will want more troops.

If there is a substantial further drawdown on the regular forces stationed in the United States—and these forces already are considered by many senior military men to be too thin—then a reserve muster is indicated.

Any National Guard and Reserve ground troops called to the colors would fill out the central forces held within the United States for contingencies around the world. It is unlikely that such troops would be committed to the Vietnam war.

The sharp increase in draft calls to a near Vietnam war record level of 41,000 men in March and 48,000 men in April points up the serious manpower bind in which the services and the Johnson administration find themselves.

There is a strong feeling among some military professionals that the Johnson administration may be facing another "moment of truth" such as confronted it in the summer of 1965.

At that time, the South Vietnamese Army had nearly been destroyed by the Viet Cong, and the United States was faced with a choice of allowing a Communist victory or committing U.S. ground troops on a major scale.

American forces in Vietnam rose from 75,000 men in late July 1965 to the present level of about 500,000.

Concurrently, the over-all strength of the U.S. forces was boosted from nearly 2.7 million men to the current 3.4 million.

The administration came very close in mid-1965 to ordering a mobilization of National Guard and Reserve troops. The armed force at that time requested up to 200,000 reservists for active duty.

But the administration was reluctant to order a mobilization because of the psychological effect, the political impact and the likelihood that such an extensive call-up might have required other mobilization steps such as economic controls.

Pentagon experts surveyed the situation and decided there was time to phase the buildup over a long period, and thus to cushion the impact on the U.S. economy and society.

So the Johnson administration switched signals and chose the course of sharply increased draft calls.

At that time, despite a small, over-all military force, the United States had 10 divisions of Army regulars and 14 divisions in the United States.

But now, because of the constant drain of the Vietnam war, there are fewer than five regular Army and Marine divisions in the United States.

Hanoi River Port Hit By American Bombers

SAIGON (AP) — American bombers attacked for the first time in the war Saturday the Hanoi river port facility 150 miles southeast of the center of the city, the U.S. Command reported Sunday.

Hanoi, North Vietnam's capital, lies on the Red River about 60 miles inland from the South China Sea. Its river port is accessible to barges and small vessels.

U.S. Air Force Phantom jets hit the Ho Dong Army barracks seven miles southwest of Hanoi for the first time since May, the Command said.

Other Phantoms hit again at the Kep airfield 28 miles northwest of the capital. Monsoon over-casts prevented damage assessments.

Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs reported silencing two radar sites 16 miles southwest of Hanoi.

The strike on Hanoi's port facility, heretofore the list of targets out of bounds to U.S. pilots, was believed to have required specific approval from the Pentagon, possibly even President Johnson, since it is so close to the center of Hanoi.

The attack represented the second step of the aerial campaign against new targets in North Vietnam in the last four days despite monsoon over-casts.

Officer Explains Long Hue Battle

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — Why is it taking so long for allied forces to drive the Communists out of the Citadel at Hue?

One reason, a senior U.S. officer said Saturday, is that American forces and firepower were not committed to the fight as rapidly as they should have been.

"We initially hoped the South Vietnamese forces could handle it," the officer said. "We didn't pull in the big stuff. Mass use of firepower was not brought in right at the beginning."

The battle for Hue's Citadel, the most sustained of the war, moved through its 25-day struggle with South Vietnamese marines making a breakthrough by pushing into the walled palace grounds, the main Communist stronghold in the 1 1/2-square-mile fortress.

The battle for the Citadel began Jan. 31 when Communist forces seized virtually the entire fortress. U.S. Marine infantrymen were not committed until almost two weeks later, obviously because of political implications.

Within the walls of the Citadel are much of Vietnam's architectural and cultural treasures from the 19th century when it served as the home of Vietnamese emperors. Because of this, allied artillery, air strikes and naval gunfire was restricted.

"The blocks are off," the U.S. officer said, referring to naval gunfire and artillery poured in during the last week. Air strikes were used when the spotty weather permitted.

"We're going to take it. It's a military objective and what it takes to take it, we'll use," he added.

While more firepower is hitting some sections of the Citadel, American and Vietnamese artillery has not been used on the walled palace grounds, an area about a quarter of a square mile inside the Citadel, because it contains the ancient throne and other historic relics.

Even the most massive firepower can not clean out all the pockets of resistance. This must be done by ground troops. The Communists are in several scattered pockets, some of them in the populated areas where house-to-house fighting is required.

Damage Suit Filed In Plane Crash

BOISE (AP) — A $1,375,000 damage suit has been filed against firms headed by the late brother of Mrs. Robert Kennedy, wife of the New York senator.

Big Payroll

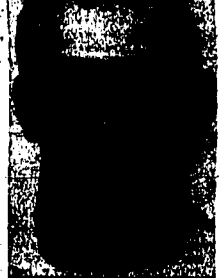

Twin Falls School Supt. Dr. Ernest Ragland is firmly convinced that "main street" and local business in general feel the impact each time pay day comes around for school district employees.

Dr. Ragland said the monthly payroll—$155,319.20, probably one of the highest of any business in Twin Falls.

In 1967 the total payroll was just under $2 million. However, teachers, custodians, cooks and others who are on the school's books did not see that much.

Part of their salaries, some $233,283.43, was withheld for federal income tax, and another $41,986.48 for state income tax.

The $156,000-plus monthly payroll will continue through June when the 1968-69 salary schedule will take effect.

Soviet Assistance To North Vietnam May Climb If Pace Of War Steps Up

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnam is apparently receiving more aid today and its assistance may climb further if the pace of the war steps up.

According to preliminary Pentagon estimates, aid to Hanoi from her Communist allies probably increased to about $1 billion in 1967-up considerably from some $730 million the year before.

Moscow's shipments, valued at about $700 million, accounted for the biggest share in North Vietnam's supply line in 1967 and for much of the total increase over the previous year.

Red China sent in an estimated $250 million worth, roughly $15 million more than in 1966. Communist East Europe's aid today and its assistance may climb further if the pace of the war steps up.

Humphrey Deplores War Protests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, target of renewed antiwar protests Saturday, deplored campus peace demonstrations that escalate into "censorship by intimidation."

"If abuse, violence, obscenity, harassment and storm trooper tactics have no place in our peaceful American society—and we say they don't—they are dangerous to an extreme when they obscure and disrupt the purposes of a university," Humphrey said.

The vice president called upon college students to help protect free speech, not curtail it. A university that requires a police guard for its speakers must ask itself serious questions, Humphrey said.

Outbreak Of Teacher Strikes Marks Surge Of Education Militancy

By GARVEN HUGHNS, AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fresh outbreak of teacher strikes, including the nation's first statewide school walkout, marks a new surge of teacher militancy which union leaders claim could sweep over 300 communities in 1968.

Braulio Alonso, president of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), says more than 1 million teachers, predicted that teacher strikes this year will triple the 1967 total of 100.

Charles Cogan, president of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), says more than 1 million teachers, predicted that teacher strikes this year will triple the 1967 total of 100.

wark, Pittsburgh and San Francisco.

The new outbreak of teacher strikes began early this month in one of the country's richest and most powerful states, North Carolina.

Demanding higher pay and greater voice in school policy, 70 per cent of the 5,700 teachers in Montgomery County, Md., adjacent to Washington, D.C., walked out.

Two days later the teachers claimed victory: A contract providing a base pay of $6,340 a year, an increase of $460.

Then on Feb. 16, Florida's teachers called the first statewide walkout of educators in the nation's history.

More than half of Florida's 1.3 million students have been affected by the work stoppage in which 34,000 of the state's 60,000 teachers—tendered resignations.

Basis of the Florida strike was the teachers' contention that the state is not giving sufficient financial support to education.

The Florida legislature passed a $24.5-million school spending bill and approved a $35 million tax increase to pay for school spending and permit reduction of some property taxes in compromise effort to meet teacher demands.

But the teachers claimed that only $116 million would go for schools, and said this was insufficient for items other than salaries.

With the Florida walkout still

In effect, 108 public schools in Albuquerque were forced to close as teachers struck on the issue of school financing. The strike threatened to spread across all of New Mexico.

NEA has been careful in some instances not to call teacher walkouts strikes. Teachers have simply "resigned" pending settlement of claims. The wording has offered a way to get around court-injunctions against strikes by public workers.

The new teacher militancy clearly reflects the demands of a new breed of teacher for a share of American affluence.

A nationwide survey by The Associated Press showed the average American teacher today is more militant, younger and better trained than his predecessors. He wants better pay and better working conditions.

NEA President Alonso pointed out that the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates a family of four needs $3,200 a year to live moderately. Teacher salaries, he said, average only $7,200.

Today's teacher, Alonso added, also is frustrated.

"A man is trained to teach, including years spent achieving a master's degree, usually, then he arrives in a classroom that is overcrowded and without proper equipment."

"He sees what other groups have done, and he's not going to he any different. He's just joining the mainstream of American society."

The forgotten man in the teacher-ferment often is the school principal. His powers, in some cases, are being bargained away by school boards which agree to teacher demands for a greater voice in running the schools.

Concern for the principal's plight was the subject of lengthy discussion at a meeting in Atlantic City, N.J., of the 2,000-member National Association of Secondary School Principals.

The conference, resolved to support increased militancy on the part of principals, who were urged to understand that to day's schools and teachers are changing and that they have to change with them.

In the background of teacher unrest is a struggle between the aggressive AFL-CIO American Federation of Teachers and the more traditionally less militant NEA.

AFT is out to increase its membership and has won over teacher associations in Washington, D.C., Baltimore and New York City.

NEA was clearly fighting for its life in the Montgomery County strike when it adopted a tough line in the face of a determined recruiting drive by AFT.

This confrontation, too, will continue and intensify in 1968.

WASHINGTON — As such things go, that was an honest reason offered by the State Department for resuming arms shipments to Jordan — that otherwise Jordan would get the arms from the Soviet Union. This is not to say, however, that it is an attractive reason, or that anyone will benefit from the sales but the armaments makers.

allowed itself to be so maneuvered into a corner that if the devil set up a government we'd sell planes and tanks to him rather than take the chance of having him wind up on Russia's side. Since our global meddling began right after World War II, we have managed to fix things so that we're now at the mercy of any two-bit country with muscle enough to rattle a saber.

die East. This is hogwash of the purest ray serene. Purchase of American arms didn't make Jordan more responsible or pro-American during the Arab-Israeli war last June, and on the very day the resumption of shipments was announced Jordan and Israeli forces battled for several hours with tanks and artillery.

bargaining point with other nations. If this means Israel, forget it. Jordan has nothing more that Israel wants after its land seizures of last June. If it means Jordan must be protected from its Arab allies — notably the Iraqis — we are meddling in Jordanian Arab quarrels and stand to gain nothing but trouble.

have said that Washington hesitated a long time before resuming arms shipments to Jordan. It seems we had hoped Moscow would agree to some sort of Middle East arms limitation agreement to avoid escalating the weapons race. But, of course, we couldn't let the Russians think we were pulling out without a quid pro quo, says State.

Put in language the administration would never use, we're going to sell arms to Jordan again because we're in a trap made in Moscow. The U.S. has Internationally, we are fast becoming a rather silly nation. We haven't taken a sound initiative in the Cold War for years; we're only what evildoers force us to do. We try to buy friends and when our hand is bitten in the process we try to buy them again.

The situation, which would be comical if it were not so sordid, is a ramblider of how cursed we are by our obsession with managing the rest of the world. It is an obsession that might be tolerated if it brought results, but from Syria to Soviet Russia and back, some brain in Foggy Bottom should figure out a way for Uncle Sam to step down in favor of the Russians. It would serve them right.

Point Of No Return?

The Legal Aspects

Twin Falls firemen at the present time are considering taking their request for a pay increase to the people. But there are very sticky legal questions involved in doing this, and it may take a Supreme Court decision before the matter is resolved.

The firemen are asking $94 a month per man more than they are now getting. In asking for this pay increase, the firemen protested last week approval of the 1968 city budget.

The city council, in allowing that if firemen's wages were raised other wages in the city would have to be raised, had no alternative but to approve the budget in its present form.

This action left out any Fire Department wage increase, but the budget does include a $15 a month across the board increase for all city employees.

When the council passed the budget last week firemen announced they would seek a referendum.

A referendum is a legal move which calls for a vote from the people for a decision.

Section 50-501 of the Idaho code provides for referendum elections. But the city attorney's interpretation of this law is that a referendum election cannot be called on a matter which includes a tax levy or an appropriation.

The Idaho Supreme Court has ruled that it is not the intent of the Legislature that ordinances making tax levies or appropriations should be submitted to a referendum vote.

It would seem firemen cannot seek petitions calling for a referendum on a wage increase.

But the First Amendment to the United States Constitution provides that all citizens have the right for a redress of grievances.

Firemen are citizens and it would appear, by the constitution, that they have a right to be heard.

They have been heard by the city council, of that there is no doubt. But can they take the matter farther? Can they take it to court?

It would seem firemen have the right to do so.

To get a referendum vote firemen will have to solicit signatures of registered Twin Falls voters. Firemen would have to get 25 per cent of the number that voted in the last general election.

A total of 4,669 votes was cast in the election last November. Therefore, firemen would have to get 1,168 signatures.

When this is done, the firemen would submit the signatures to the city council. The council is then obligated to draw up an ordinance on the question contained in the petition asking for a referendum vote.

The council would also have to set a date for a special election.

City officials report it would cost about $2,500 to hold a special election. It cost about $2,000 last November, but four wards have to be added now, making an election more expensive.

The people, on balloting day, could either pass or reject the proposal contained in the referendum.

But it is doubted the issue will get this far.

There still remains that sticky legal question, can a referendum be called on a wage issue?

If firemen do plan to proceed and seek signatures calling for a referendum, it is anticipated the action may wind up in the courts.

If it does come to this it would take at least a year before any legal decision is reached.

This would leave the firemen without a pay increase for another year, and possibly for two.

And there is always the question of whether the people would vote in a tax increase — whether the people would approve of giving the firemen a pay boost of $94 a month per man.

From all appearances, then, the firemen's battle to get a wage increase is dead.

A court determination, following a costly legal process, could prove differently, but it is doubtful.

The Only Way Out Is Now Up

Today's disciples of Christ are getting confused about the nature of their mission. Preachers on the "picket line," clergywomen leading protest demonstrations, are insisting that they can "enforce goodness and mercy" on the world. They can't.

It is not that some churchmen are more compassionate or more learned than others. It is not that some of them are able to decree a degree of immorality in this involvement which others cannot see.

terly rejected externally imposed "laws" became capable — with God's help — of self-discipline.

Christ healed sickness — and offered to heal the social ills of the world — one man at a time. There is no short cut.

Evangelist Billy Graham, asked about Vietnam, says, "My job is to proclaim the gospel of Christ."

Perhaps this is not really so much a difference of opinion over "ethics" as over " tactics."

Dissent—The Spice Of Life

It's a healthy sign when everyone doesn't share the same opinion — when someone is in disagreement and is willing to stand up and be counted rather than sulking "in the background taking digs at people who do stand up."

Mr. Spectator ran into such a fellow the other day. Phillip J. Lowman is a fourth generation, native Idahoan who lives in Twin Falls and who, as he puts it, is somewhat backward and likes things just as they are.

"I live in Idaho because I like to hunt and fish," he said. "I live here because I can find solitude in our mountains. I live here because of our unpopulated desert and I can better understand who I am and where I am going."

Many Idahoans Believe Insufficient Funds Provided For Education

BY RUD JORGENSEN BOISE (AP) Although it is difficult to develop a comprehensive picture of the status of education in Idaho, one thing is certain—many people do not think sufficient money is being provided.

And, talk of money generally seems to focus on teacher salaries.

During the past week, teachers in Florida and in Albuquerque, N.M., have walked off the job. In both instances, the walkouts were protests over the fact the state legislature had adjourned without providing what teacher organizations considered sufficient funding for public schools.

Walter York, executive secretary of the Idaho Education Association, predicts a similar situation could develop in this state when the Idaho legislative session opens in early 1969.

York said the problems are not strictly salaries, but, "our problems are primarily with personnel," which include low salaries and insufficient specialized public school staff members, such as counselors.

On the subject of money for public schools, State Superintendent of Public Instruction D. F. Engeling said: "We've got to come up in salaries. I don't think there's any question about it. The question is how much."

The common yardstick to measure what a state is doing in education is to make comparisons with other states, the most common for teacher salaries and annual total expenditure per student.

The U.S. Office of Education released figures during the past week showing the average salary for classroom teachers across the nation is $7,320.

In Idaho, the State Department of Education says the average is $8,045.

The National Education Association (NEA) annually produces a booklet ranking the 50 states on a variety of statistical indices with information from the state departments of education.

For Western states, it lists these average teacher salaries: California $8,900; Washington $7,750; Oregon $7,550; Utah $6,640; Montana $6,375.

The U.S. Office of Education lists the national average public school expenditures for the current school year at $623 per student, up from $589 last year for a gain of about seven per cent.

For Idaho, the State Department of Education puts the figure at $517, compared with $462 last year.

The Idaho figures show a gain of nearly 12 per cent over the 1966-67 school year, but Engeling said the increase is misleading because expenditures for administration of the state department and social security costs, not included in previous years, were added.

Engeling said a study is under way to determine more accurately what costs are being included in per capita figures released by other intermountain states and how they compare to Idaho.

The NEA booklet shows only seven per cent of Idaho teachers get more than $7,500 annually. The national average is 36.7 per cent.

(What the IEA does will be determined at its delegate assembly, scheduled for March 22-23. Under consideration is a caucus caused by teachers leaving Idaho for better paying jobs elsewhere.

be unethical for them to accept teaching positions in Idaho for the next school year.

The result, York says, would be that local school boards would find it difficult to fill vacancies caused by teachers leaving Idaho for better paying jobs elsewhere.

State Trail Machine Unit Slates Meet

RUPERT — Plans for the spring convention of the Idaho State Trail Machine Association are announced by Walt Charles, Rupert, convention chairman.

Mr. Charles said the event is scheduled for March 23 at the Rupert Elks Lodge. He said all six clubs in the state's organization would be invited, involving more than 200 members.

The day will begin with a business meeting in the afternoon, followed by election of new directors and officers.

Guest speaker for the evening banquet will be announced later. Mr. Charles said, but Merlin Stocks, Burley, district ranger, will be a special guest.

The Association's primary purpose is to create a better relationship between the public and the trail machine owners.

THOMAS LYNCH is a Coast Guard cadet at New London, Conn., and is an electronics major. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Lynch of Twin Falls. A graduate of Twin Falls High School, he is active in student council, club functions and sports. When he finishes his four years of work at the Coast Guard Academy he will receive a bachelor's degree and a commission as an ensign in the Coast Guard.

CARL R. COWLES is a former Eden and Twin Falls resident. Addressograph representative serving Magic Valley, has achieved national prominence in the business machine field and is being honored by membership in the Addressograph Multigraph Corp. 1968 Hundred Club. BANQUET SET
BOISE (AP) — The annual Idaho Press Club awards banquet has been set for March 30 — a month later than scheduled — because of an increase in contest entries, contest chairman Barrett Rainey said Saturday.

Nearly 80 entries in the annual contest have been forwarded to judges, Rainey said.

BACKS PROVISIONS
POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Idaho District Court Judge Gus Carr Anderson has put teeth into provisions of the law requiring divorced fathers to pay child support.

The state law provides payments shall be made, but does not provide enforcement procedures.

Anderson cites a divorced father for contempt of court for failing to make the payments. "I seldom have to throw a man in jail twice," the judge says.

ASSISTANCE ASKED
BOISE (AP) — The U.S. Corps of Engineers and the Federal Bureau of Investigation have been asked by U.S. Sen. Frank Church, R-Idaho, to stand by to act promptly if a flood emergency develops in north Idaho.

Recent rains have raised stream and river levels in that area.

Church, who is up for re-election this year, said he plans to spend most of the coming week in Idaho and will make several public appearances.

BREAKAWAY CONSIDERED
KELLOGG, Idaho (AP) — Miners at the strikebound American Smelting & Refining Co.'s Page and Galena properties are reported considering a breakaway attempt from the United Mine Workers of America.

A report published by the Spokane Spokesman-Review Saturday said miners are considering asking the National Labor Relations Board for permission to hold a decertification election.

The miners have been on strike since July 15 when the copper strike was called by the Steelworkers union. American Smelting & Refining Co. is one of the "big four" producers involved in the strike.

DRAFT CALL SET
BOISE (AP) — Idaho's April draft call will set at 106, state selective service director, Maj. Gen. George B. Bennett, said today.

The April call in 1967 was 35 men, he said.

BABCOCK SPEAKS
IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Montana Gov. Babcock told a Republican fundraising banquet here Friday night that law and order must be upheld and citizens protected.

The enforcement of the law is the responsibility of the administration," he told a Lincoln Day function. Babcock said there must be respect for the law.

Babcock, the guest speaker, said "the American people will turn out of office the Johnson administration, which for political expediency, has made promises and then turned its back on the people after the votes were counted."

DIETRICH — Contracts were offered to several teachers at the local school, including Wayne Perron, superintendent, Robert Grubbs, Mrs. Martin Jauregui, Noel Johnson and Mrs. Esther Throck.

Check Given Shoshone For New Siren
SHOSHONE — Lincoln county Civil Defense Director, Reid Newby, presented a check for $250 to the City of Shoshone. This is half the cost of the new City siren and since the siren meets Civil Defense specifications for warning system, the Civil Defense program could provide half the cost.

The siren has a remote control system that can be set off from the McFall hotel in case of fire, as well as a system located in the water department in case of any type of nuclear disaster.

The siren was sound or short blasts of from three to five minutes is a warning that the county has been attacked, a steady sound of five minutes or longer duration is warning to all citizens to listen for essential instructions which can be given by listening to their emergency broadcasting station.

Firemen At Wendell Plan Tree Project
WENDELL — The Wendell Chamber of Commerce will work with the Wendell firemen on their planned city beautification project.

E. E. Parr, fire chief, said firemen want to plant trees along the streets. J. H. Freeman, chamber president, appointed Dale Bunn and Charles Ireton to work with the firemen to plan the project.

A letter was read at a recent meeting from the county planning commission asking for representatives of the chamber on some of the more important committees of the commission.

The president referred the letter to Clyde Peterson to appoint any members needed to assist on the committees.

Marshall Howdens, chairman of the Christmas lighting committee, reported the approximate cost of installing proper wiring facilities would be $800. After this work has been completed, the city has agreed to put up and take down the decorations each year. The rewiring project was approved by members.

Real Country Style "Pickin' N' Singin'" Draws Large Crowds

By NORMA HERZINGER

When a crowd fills an auditorium to an overflowing capacity and people must be turned away because of the lack of seating space to hear some real western-style "pickin' and singin'"—you better believe, country music is here to stay.

The annual Country Music Jamboree, which is the most outstanding show of its kind in our area, played its regular scheduled two-night performance and had to go into the third night to accommodate all persons wanting to attend. Since most entertainers appearing at the jamboree have a little bit of "hum" in them, and country music is their favorite pastime, it was no problem arranging a third show on the spur-of-the-moment.

The jamboree, which originated from impromptu jam session gatherings of just a handful of musicians at the home of Gene Bosserman, has developed into terrific entertainment for all Magic Valley residents.

That handful of musicians solicited the help of other musical groups and decided to present a show for the public, with all proceeds going to a worthwhile organization.

During the past six years approximately $5,000 has been given to various needy groups, with a total $1,342.59 realized this year going to the Twin Falls Easter Seal Center. Proceeds last year, $915, went to the center also. Merle Stoddard, director for the Twin Falls Easter Seal Center, stated that these donations were the largest single donations received by the local chapter.

Fifteen country-western musical groups, each group with its own specialty, participated in the jamboree. The styles and arrangements of the bands were varied so completely, that a favorite styling for everyone was presented.

Groups appearing included the Playboys, the Versatiles, the Misfits featuring Carletta, Melody Masters, Crooked River Ramblers, Rhythmites, King's Harvesters, Country Cousins, M.C.'s, Last Resorts, The Saints, Walden Brothers, Thunderbirds, Rhythm Rangers and the Drifters.

A bit of comedy is a must in single performances of this kind. This was provided by Everett Mein as he left the audience with their sides aching from laughter over his humorous antics that concluded the M.C.'s portion of the show.

Magic Valley residents were introduced to several new up-and-coming young musicians who stole the hearts of every teen-age girl in the audience. Ray Crumblins, who heads The Saints, had the spotlight taken completely away from him when he introduced his good looking 17-year-old son, Billy. This was Billy's first public appearance and from the hearty approval of the audience, many more should be considered.

During the Thunderbirds' portion of the show, Bud Gallner, who heads the group, introduced his son, Dusty, who did a very good job. Dusty has a lonesome singing voice, thus following in his father's footsteps.

Bud also introduced Wally Huffner's young son, Wayne, who caught the eye of the younger set as well as the teenagers and adults. His ease at the microphone promises him a good future as an entertainer.

Although the large set of professional drums was almost bigger than he, Tommy Smith, 8-year-old son of Curtis Smith of the Versatiles, made a guest appearance during the show the first night.

Al Lee of KART Radio Station was master of ceremonies for the first two shows, and Jim Winkle, guest vocalist with the King's Harvesters, emceed the third show.

Several musicians, some new to this area, made their first appearance on the jamboree program. Included among these, to name just a few, were Duane Smith of the Crooked River Ramblers, who displayed terrific talent as a singer; Dave Starr, the Jerry Lee Lewis of the Misfits; Johnny Williams, bass player for the Misfits, and one of the youngest professional musicians in this area, and Terry Mendorf, who played steel guitar for several groups, showing real professional styling.

Eben Avery and David Hughes joined Cliff Haak of the Last Resorts for their first time at the benefit. Dan Edwards made his initial appearance this year as bass singer for the King's Harvesters. This group closed all three shows with their singing of religious favorites.

Members of the Snake River Lions Club were on hand to sell tickets and help usher, with such members as Harold Humphreys and Earl Carter adding a bit of wit and humor while escorting people to their seats. Members of Twin Falls High School service organizations assisted with ushering and members of the Pler Key Club and DeCaloum Club sold refreshments. All refreshments for the concession stands were donated by local merchants.

As the years have passed, seven to be exact, Gene Bosserman, who is the No. 1 man behind the jam horse, has watched the show take a foothold in Magic Valley and become a favorite annual event for hundreds of people. Rudy Williamson has served as Bosserman's right-hand man from the beginning and is always "Johnny-on-the-spot" to lend a hand when necessary.

The popularity of country-western music in our area is growing by leaps and bounds and more and more people are realizing that when they hear the words "western music," it does not necessarily mean the

Jamboree Nets $1,342.59 For Easter Seal

The group of pictures at the top of the page are all candid shots of musicians taken by Robert Helms, a Jerome photographer during the seventh annual Country Music Jamboree held recently at the Pler High School Auditorium. Pictures at the bottom of page were taken during the appreciation dinner hosted for the participating musicians and their partners at the Twin Falls Moose Hall. From the happy expressions on the faces of Mrs. Merle Stoddard and Rudy Williamson in the center picture, it is obvious the jamboree was a success. The large pile of money is representative of the $1,342.59 cleared by the jamboree which went to the Twin Falls Easter Seal Center. Thanks to the cooperation of Harold Hove and the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co. the center picture was made possible.

An appreciation dinner, hosted by Mrs. Merle Stoddard, director of the Twin Falls Easter Seal Center, and persons affiliated with the center, was given in honor of the musicians who participated in the seventh annual Country Music Jamboree and their partners.

All proceeds from the jamboree were given to the Twin Falls Easter Seal Center. Mrs. Stoddard announced that after all expenses relating to the jamboree were paid, the total sum going to the center was $1,342.59.

The dinner was held in the Twin Falls Moose Hall, with all foods donated or the money equivalent to buy the food. Those donating food included Farmers Market, Shoshone, punch; Safeways, Flier, $5.46; Twin Falls Moose Hall, $10; Ida Gem Dairy, Inc., price of butter and ice cream; Idaho Cattleman's Association, Noy Brackett, donated all the meat which was boxed and cut by Independent Meat Co.; Leo Soran of the Depot Grill cooked and sliced the meat; parents of children attending the Twin Falls Easter Seal Center provided the pie and cake, and wives of the band members brought covered dishes.

Persons in charge of preparations for the dinner include Mrs. David Flix, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Honkelman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Baugh, Mrs. Robert Ballantyne, Mrs. Robert Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Baugh are chairmen for special activities concerning the Twin Falls Easter Seal Center.

Mrs. Robert Cox solicited food for the dinner and Mrs. Stearns and Mrs. Ballantyne were in charge of the table decorations. Gene Bosserman, Gooding, chairman of the Country Music

Jamboree, spoke to the group giving sincere, special thanks to all participating musicians for making the jamboree such a huge success.

Mrs. Stoddard talked about the Twin Falls Easter Seal Society. She states that more adults are taking advantage of the training at the center and there are several stroke patients coming regularly to the center for speech therapy.

Mrs. Stoddard stressed the importance of speech therapy immediately after a stroke. A demonstration was given to show that mongoloid children at the center can learn. Mark Honkelman demonstrated how he could name all the sounds and read words as well as read and sentences. "As many of these children learn to read sentences, they learn syntax, or sentence structure," Mrs. Stoddard stated.

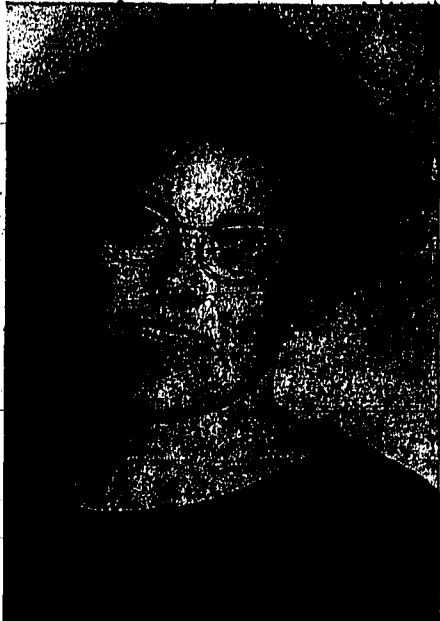

Tammie Ballantyne, a cerebral palsy student, straddled to talk and showed how she could move her tongue and now put her lips together.

A group of Spanish dancers from Mrs. Stoddard's dance class, Kenia Shew, Mickey Malberg, Connie Barnhart and Mary Olivera, presented dance numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Kenneth Shew.

Mrs. Stoddard expressed her hearty appreciation for the money donation made possible by the combined efforts of the musicians and told how the money is used at the center.

Jim Winkle, who was a guest vocalist with the King's Harvesters during the jamboree and master of ceremonies for the third night show, entertained the group with impersonations of country music personalities. Bob Nielson presented a portion of the program when he played his guitar and sang.

Woman Finds Problem In Explaining Job

TORONTO (AP) — Sharon Thompson is attractive, 22 years old and an undertaker. Sometimes she fibs about it. Some of her acquaintances aren't ready for the surprise of discovering what she does.

Miss Thompson, from Parry Sound, Ontario, worked as a clerk for two years before enrolling in the Canadian school of embalming in Toronto.

"The dean told it was all right but that I would never find a job. You have to have a place to serve your apprenticeship."

The Earle Elliott Funeral Home happened to have a vacancy and was considering hiring a woman apprentice to help out, especially with secretarial work. Miss Thompson got the job.

In addition to secretarial work, her duties range from helping families make funeral plans to flower arrangements. Her boss adds that she's "quite a good embalmer and hair dresser and we rely a great deal on her in emergencies."

Dating presents something of a problem, but Miss Thompson usually goes out with other members of the profession. "It saves a lot of explaining," she says.

There are about two dozen women undertakers in Ontario.

Royalty For Beta Sigma Phi Ball Crowned

JEROME — Following tradition of the International Sorority, the highlight of the evening was the crowning of the queens, Mrs. Jack Adams, Psi Chapter and Mrs. Paul Barkes, Xi Alpha Epsilon Chapter, at the Beta Sigma Phi Sweetheart Ball held at the Elks Lodge.

Seventy-five members ushered them forward to be seated before a huge silver and red heart. Mrs. Richard Critzer of the Xi Alpha Epsilon welcomed members and guests. Mrs. Critzer crowned Mrs. Barkes, followed by Mrs. George Beer of Psi Chapter who crowned Mrs. Adams.

Those serving on the social committee were Mrs. Phil Thomas, Mrs. Richard Jennings, Mrs. Richard Critzer, Mrs. Jim Cassell and Mrs. Gils Anderson.

The history of the Beta Sigma Phi Valentine Contest dates back 30 years. Each year a Hollywood personality judges the contest from pictures sent in from the chapters. Cary Grant was the first judge. This year's judge was George Hamilton, a well-known young actor.

Large Crowds Attend Annual Jamboree Shows

 slow, drawing "sing-through-your-nose" type. You can find all types of country music, the same as you can in modern, pop and rock-and-roll.
 Needless to say, I am a country music fan from way-back, and feel the many talented groups appearing this year at the jamboree outdid themselves. Even my two daughters who think "my" kind of music is "something else," enjoyed the shows immensely as did the many, many other teenagers in the audience.
 As long as I can remember, to sing country music has been one of my biggest secret dreams. But, when you get right down to it—and face reality—Magic Valley just isn't ready for me yet—and really, one Mrs. Miller is quite enough!

 Mrs. T. V. Strunk, Shoshone, read an article on Thomas Wilder, founder of the Odd Fellowship in America. She also read a poem, "The Last Degree," in commemoration of the 140th anniversary of the Order.
 Mrs. Bryan gave the thought of the day. Mrs. Zane Harrison, Fairfield, gave a resume of her trip to the Hawaiian Islands.
 The group sang happy birthday to Mr. Bryan.

 There were three tables in play. Mr. and Mrs. Wall and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pettygrove were guests.

NEW YORK (AP) — Geoffrey Beene has designed a wardrobe patterned after gangster styles. At the spring style shows held by the American Designer Series Monday held broad stripes were borrowed by Beene for stark coats and jacket suits cut short over black stockings and with striped fedoras to match. His Sicilian widows were properly and but fashionable in midlength dresses of black lace, snatched at the middle. The Mafia moll was a flamboyant doll in bold blue and white stripes from her chin to her shins with plenty of ostrich feathers here and there to tickle her fancy. Other roles in Beene's bag of tricks were that of the English dandy with walking stick and patent leather hat; or the music hall girl from the prohibition era, with gaudy headed bodice and little else but those ostrich feathers; or Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm with white organza blouse and calico skirt to her ankles. The costumes Beene created for spring are considerably different from the elegantly simple one which he made for Lynda Bird Robb's White House wedding last month. Designer Len Narducci had clothes for going places—a diamond patterned leather coat, for example, with luggage to her match.

Style Show Highlights Filer Kiwanis Club "Ladies Night"

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Correspondent

It was a special evening from start to finish — complete with engraved invitations, corsages and favors, delicious food, soft music, and a style show for grand finale.

It was the Filer Kiwanis Club's annual "Ladies Night" held most appropriately each year during February, the Sweetheart month. Club members welcome the opportunity to entertain their wives and the wives of donors and sponsors of the club, and spending an evening with no thought of cooking or dishes.

Locale for this year's gala event was the Holiday Inn where, in keeping with the spring fashion theme, tables held arrangements of white carnations interspersed with miniature "Ladies Night" figurines. The style show was placed between two large fountains where colored lights played over the waterfalls to create a shimmering rainbow effect.

Maurice Klaus served as master of ceremonies and Willford Horrett was banquet chairman. Presentation of prizes and awards was under the direction of Rev. Jack Weller, club secretary.

Guests of honor were Joe Schoe, Salt Lake City, governor of the Utah-Idaho District of Kiwanis, and his wife. Mr. Schoe spoke on the ideals and purposes of Kiwanis throughout the nation. Also introduced were Russell Sheridan, Fifth District Lieutenant-governor; Kenneth Rork, Filer Kiwanis Club president, and Lawrence Knigge, vice president.

High point of the entire evening was the acceptance by Mrs. E. A. Beem of a 34-year perfect attendance award for her husband who was in the hospital. Mrs. Beem was given a standing ovation to honor her husband and also to recognize her services as she has been Kiwanis Club pianist for nearly 40 years.

George Erhardt, who was presented a 23-year pin, is a Legion of Honor member, as is Mr. Beem.

Receiving one year pins were Don Albin, Robert Blastock, Carroll Holloway, Paul Kahlfleisch, Kenneth Rork, Clyde Smith, Russell Sheridan Jr. and Rev. Mr. Weller.

Two-year pins were given Ralph Condit, Bill Herrett, Dan Kaufman, Lawrence Knigge, Dalmar Lowder, Myrl Schroeder, Richard Schweitzer and Byron Wright.

Maurice Klaus received a three-year pin, and four-year pins were presented Loren Anderson, Morris Carlson, Arthur Chaburn, Merle Leonard and Russell Sheridan Sr.

Robert Moldenhauer accepted his five-year pin, Richard Sulz and Kern Thurman, six-year pins; Merle Allison, eight years; Bill Bunce, 12 years; Tom Turner, 14 years; Orville Sackett, 15 years, and Robert Graves, 16 years.

Intermission entertainment was furnished by Clyde Cox, Buhl, who presented a vocal solo and a reading including a clever parody on "Eve and the Apple" suggesting that if eating an apple was responsible for the "mini-skirt," perhaps another apple should be eaten to bring the hemlines down again.

The style show, which featured sports wear, street wear and evening attire, modeled by 11 of the Kiwanis members' wives, was narrated by Mrs. Morris Carlson. Mrs. Carlson wore a white over yellow gown-of-imported Italian lace, yellow silk pumps and yellow and crystal jewelry. She also modeled an evening dress of lemon-lime crepe which featured a gold-banded necklace.

Models were Mrs. Robert Moldenhauer, Mrs. Lawrence Knigge, Mrs. Roger Vincent, Mrs. Merle Allison, Mrs. Richard Schweitzer, Mrs. Robert Blastock, Mrs. Kenneth Rork, Mrs. Loren Anderson, Mrs. Gilbert DeKlotz Jr., Mrs. Henry Westendorf and Mrs. Bill Bunce.

Fashions were from The Mayfair Shop, which also furnished the shoes from its shoe department. Make-up was under the direction of The Merlo Norman Studio.

Shown were the latest styles in street wear, sports wear and cocktail fashions. The "after five" creations even included a black and white pant-evening dress. All the luscious spring shades of pink, lime green, yellow and orange made up an "extravaganza" of color. Fabrics ranged from new polyester materials, through knits, wools, chiffons and crepes. The models enjoyed themselves tremendously, although some confessed they were "too nervous" to eat and waited with their dinners until after the show. Rehearsal for the revue had taken place a few days previously.

Husbands of the models were torn between two emotions — wondering how they would be able to convince their wives not to buy ALL of the ensembles they had modeled.

Among those participating in the style show presented during the program at the Ladies Night banquet hosted by the Filer Kiwanis Club are, from left, Mrs. Gilbert DeKlotz Jr. and Mrs. Robert Moldenhauer, both models; Mrs. Morris Carlson, narrator, and Mrs. Robert Blastock Jr. and Mrs. Bill Bunce, both models. The event was held at the Twin Falls Holiday Inn. The style show, which featured sports wear, street wear and evening wear, featured 11 models, all wives of Filer Kiwanis Club members. Intermission entertainment was furnished by Clyde Cox, Buhl. All fashions for the show were furnished by The Mayfair Shop. Maurice Klaus served as master of ceremonies for the event, with Willford Horrett as banquet and program chairman. Presentation of pins and awards was under the direction of Rev. Jack Weller, club secretary.

New Projects Outlined For Burley League

BURLEY—New projects were outlined for coming year by Zion Lutheran Women's Missionary League during their meeting at the church, under the direction of Mrs. George Toner, president.

DOWNTOWN TWIN FALLS

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: There is an elderly gentleman who lives on the same street where my married daughter lives. She knows him only by sight, and I understand that he is very poor and that he is rather an unfriendly person. I won't go into details here, but I would like very much to buy his house after he passes away. I hear he plans to live there until he dies. I know that another party is also eyeing his house. How can I be sure I will be first in line to get it?
 Should I go there, introduce myself, and make him an offer? I really want that house and I don't want to spoil my chances.
THINKING AHEAD
DEAR THINKING: The idea of approaching an elderly, alling, "unfriendly" home-owner with an offer to buy his home is for the birds. (The vultures.) Ask your lawyer, banker, or a real estate dealer to negotiate for you.
DEAR ABBY: The lady who signed herself "FLAT IN BACK" and wanted to know where she could find a foam rubber fanny is lucky. She has all her problems behind her.
 Those forward-looking engineers in the foundation industry seem to have dedicated themselves to the proposition that "it's what's up front that counts."

Not so. A few years back, several manufacturers came out with a "false derriere. (One such item, appropriately named "FANCY THAT," is still on the market.)
 I won't say that the demand for such an item hit bottom, but almost no one makes them anymore. So it would seem that these "bras" for the fanny were a bust.
 Sincerely,
WILLIAM B. GLEESON,
 (Powers, Knollwood, Hopkins, Minn.)

DEAR ABBY: Our cat is to have kittens. My wife and I disagree on whether our boy, age 5 years and 5 months, should witness this event.
 We consider the child to be above average in intelligence and reasonably well-adjusted. He has already asked where babies come from. We would appreciate your opinion.
MR. AND MRS. M.
DEAR MR. AND MRS. M.: I see no reason why the boy should not witness this event. One picture is worth 10,000 words.
DEAR ABBY: My family and I were invited to the home of a friend we had known for many years.
 On our last visit for dinner our hostess prepared a colorful (and highly inedible) buffet of Jewish dishes, none of which we had ever eaten in our home. This included bagels, lox, smoked sturgeon, pickled herring, chopped liver, sliced tomatoes, creamed cottage cheese, jellied corn, sour cream, pickles, and lotus. Also kichel and strudel for dessert.
 When I was invited to the buffet table I blurted out, "There is nothing here I can eat."
 I have weak kidneys from a slight fever attack in my earlier years and I can't eat spicy foods.
 Was my remark rude? Or should I have tried to make a meal out of sliced tomatoes and bagels?
HUNGRY GUEST
DEAR GUEST: Your remark was rude. You should have eaten what you were able to, and said nothing.

Stock Market Steadies, Sets Advance

By ED MORSE
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market steadied last week and mounted its first advance in six weeks.

Wall Street had shown in the previous week that it was planning to get hardened to unsettling news from Southeast Asia. Last week, with many stocks down at attractively low levels, investment money began to filter back into the market and did so at an increasing rate for the first three days.

Washington's birthday on Thursday interrupted the rise. On Friday the list tried to continue its early trading but was dampened by news that the Pentagon had set the April draft call at 48,000, the highest in 18 months. Friday's was the only decline, however, and on average the week was well ahead.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 13.40 to 849.80. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 2.7 to 309.8, its first gain in six weeks.

It was the fifth week of shortened sessions, four hours in stead of 3 1/2.

Of 1,609 issues traded during the week, 809 rose and 567 fell. Volume was 34,630,650 shares compared with 37,976,260 the week before.

Developments in Vietnam and elsewhere in Southeast Asia continued to be the dominant factor but, as long as there was no dramatic new turn for the worse, Wall Street was learning to live with it.

Proposed stock splits and some record indicated fourth quarter profits was bullish corporate news. Investors were encouraged by the fact that "war of no war" — the market once again was showing that it could respond to the news about individual companies.

The five most active issues last week on the New York Stock Exchange were: Benguet off 3/4 at 12 3/4; Gulf & Western, off 3/4 at 4 3/4; "Automatic" Sprinkler, off 1/4 at 3 3/4; General Time, up 1/4 at 4 3/4; and Eastern Air Lines, up 1/4 at 3 3/4.

Prices generally were lower in most departments of the bond market.

Government intermediates — 5 to 8 years — dropped a bit more than longer term issues — those over 20 years — but losses were well short of the previous week's pain.

Treasury bill rates closed with a small advance. Prices were mixed among corporate bonds.

Ralph F. Gibson Resigns As Head Of Utility Firm

NOISE — Ralph F. Gibson, president and director of the Intermountain Gas Co., has resigned but will continue to be connected with the company on a consulting basis.

John Rogers, Noise, has been named vice president and acting chief executive officer of the firm.

Gibson joined the utility in 1959 as president and headed a group of directors who won a proxy fight for control of the firm at its annual meeting last April.

The company serves more than 65,000 customers in more than 60 Southern Idaho communities.

Bandits Strike At Air Terminal

NEW YORK (AP) — Bandits struck again at the threatened Kennedy Airport cargo terminal Friday night, this time making off with a packet of assorted gems valued at $100,000.

The packet was taken from the front seat of a panel truck left unattended for 10 minutes outside the Pan American cargo terminal while the driver was having a cup of coffee.

In the last 14 months more than $2.2 million in cargo has been stolen in 45 major robberies at the airport.

Administration Gets Part Of Tax Program Moving Along

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Johnson administration got part of its tax program moving along the legislative road this past week as well as a hint that the rest of the program isn't necessarily dead.

The House Ways and Means Committee approved measures continuing the automobile and telephone excise taxes at their present levels and speeding up corporate tax collections.

The committee also instructed that a statement be inserted in its report to the House on the tax moves which said its action did not preclude future consideration of the President's proposal for a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes.

The committee approved measures to continue the auto excise tax at its present rate of 7 per cent of the manufacturer's price through the end of the calendar year and then eliminate it by the end of 1972.

The telephone service tax will be continued at its present 10 per cent rate through 1969 and then gradually will be eliminated.

The corporate tax collection speed-up calls basically for raising from 70 to 80 per cent the amount of total tax liability corporations must pay quarterly.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler, who asked that the statement dealing with the surcharge be included in the report, later said administration measures aimed at mending the nation's balance of payments won't be effective unless Congress approves the 10 per cent surcharge.

Fowler called the proposal an anti-inflation tax. He said European nations must help this country and its dollar drain, partly by paying a greater share of defense costs and increasing their aid to underdeveloped countries.

He said a lack of cooperation could possibly lead to a worldwide depression.

The administration measures aim at reducing the U.S. balance of payments deficit by $3 billion this year from the $3.7 billion deficit of 1967.

In another move to help the balance of payments, a presidential panel said the federal government would try to lure more foreign tourists to the United States with cut-rate travel prices.

The panel said it had enlisted cooperation from the travel industry in seeking lower rates for foreign visitors in hotels and motels and in traveling around the country. It also recommended a 25 per cent discount on round-trip air tickets bought in the United States — along with a 50 per cent discount on domestic air travel by foreigners.

Meanwhile, William M. Roth, ambassador for trade negotiations, said the solution to the balance of payments problem depended on expanding world trade.

He told a conference in New York: "The U.S. has benefited enormously from its liberal trade policy and from its attitude in lending the rest of the world in the same direction. We must presently seek still greater advantages for our trade because of our balance of payments difficulties."

Potato Growers Schedule Meet At Murtaugh

MURTAUGH — Potato Growers of Idaho, Inc., District Five, will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the Murtaugh Grange Hall, according to Jerry Conrad, Burley, district chairman.

All potato growers and interested farmers are urged to attend this meeting as it is the time of year to discuss contracts with potato firms and to encourage the firms to give fair prices for the raw potatoes.

Mr. Conrad said with the rising costs of labor, repairs, machinery and fertilizers, an increase in the price is needed. It is the feeling of farmers that this increase is a must before planting.

Glenns Ferry City Council Discusses City Water Pump Problems With Aides

GLENN'S FERRY—Pete Rolfe and Burk Schindler of the Mountain States Telephone Co., and Glenn Gletner, electrical engineer, met with the Glenns Ferry City Council last week to discuss the city water pump facility for which an installation charge of $10 would be made by the telephone company, plus $4 per month additional service charge.

The council authorized the Girl Scouts to install three litter barrels in downtown locations, which were Meserole's Market corner, the City Hall, and the alley behind Smith's Mortuary. These were all sites suggested by the Girl Scouts after a survey of the little problem.

Authorization was given Dick's Garage to install a rebuilt motor in the Dodge truck, at a bid price of $325, and two tie rods and to adjust the front end of the 1957 Chevrolet dump truck.

City employees will be granted the same days off work as are designated by the state for its employees, it was decided.

Bert Walker, zoning committee chairman, reported the group recommends that the request from Fred Timm to construct a building on his property on Kansas Ave. be denied since it is in violation of the city's zoning code.

Eddie Bostic, city clerk, reported that $180,730.52 had been invested in government insured notes drawing 4 1/2 per cent in 1968, which is part of the money realized from sale of bonds toward the sewer program system, but which the council deems will not be needed for some time.

Operation of the city ambulance, recently put into service, was discussed. The council announced that the driver would be the police officer on duty at the time of call. He would be replaced by the police officer before he left town.

Sen. Church To Be Feted At Banquet

On the following day, the senator will make his regular "courthouse visit" to Twin Falls and will meet to discuss problems and matters of interest to local residents.

Mr. Smazal said Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clough will be chairman of the banquet which will be held in the local Elks building. In other business the Democrats approved the appointment of Lincoln McGinnis as legislative chairman for District 24. He succeeds Grady Spradling, Buhl, who resigned.

Idaho Election Law Repeal Is Urged By T. F. Woman

Editor, Times-News:
I want to thank Mrs. Borlice Ross and all the people who wrote to Mr. Cenarruca about a third party presidential candidate.

I see you can expect an appointment letter which in essence will probably say, sorry, no luck. Or that the matter will be explored.

But in the Idaho State Journal, Feb. 19, page two, it was printed that Idaho had such a provision for a candidate but this section was replaced by a special session of the legislature when the election laws were rewritten in 1956 following legislative reapportionment.

It further states that "a number of legislators have said they believe the repeal was inadvertent."

Errors in legislation are bad business and once found should be corrected. It has been close to two months since Mr. Wallace was refused. The repeal of a simple error should have been corrected. These well-educated lawmakers should take the time to repeat their error.

It further states you to pick-up paper and pen and get this corrected. Also those of you who wanted to but didn't find the time, please write now.

It's said "To err is human, to forgive divine." I'll be divine only when they correct their error.

They say "You can't fight City Hall." And maybe you can't but we will have tried and at least they will know we aren't a bunch of ninth grade chickenheads to be pushed any way they want.

Also, don't be inadvertent and forget to file your tax return. Or your neck will be on the chopping block no matter how much you claim it was an error.

Proposed Surcharge, Doing Away With Gold Pondered

Editor, Times-News:
Let us re-examine two sentences from the 1964 platform of the Democratic party. "We pledge to continue a frugal government... our goal is a balanced budget and a balanced economy."

Since that time the administration's non-defense spending has risen almost 50 per cent. The federal payroll went up $276,000 in 1968 alone.

The cost-of-living has jumped a whopping 10 per cent. The national debt costs the taxpayers $444 per second. We are told now that we should be burdened with a 10 per cent surtax and that our gold should be put up for grabs to pay the claims.

The reason for the extra tax is because you can't balance a budget if you're not spending as much from the people as you spend and the 1964 platform pledged a balanced budget.

Our gold would be given away rather than raise the price of it. We would then be the only major world power without any gold but that's all right because our leaders seem to think it's easier to surrender than think down and solve a problem.

Some people think suicide is better than trying to face facts. So why not national suicide.

I hope election, 1968, puts an end to all this frugal government and balanced economy. If it doesn't we taxpayers are not to starve to death out of sheer prosperity.

Eden Woman Praises Life In Smaller Town

Editor, Times-News:
It doesn't take courage to stand for anything, principle, conviction or whatever it be— if you stand with the masses. What takes courage is to stand with the few or more—alone, when the masses are perhaps passing unbecoming remarks and such other, as some, unknowingly (God grant) do.

Grant we never desire getting big we lose sight of the real things of life. When the size is reduced you know it creates a lot of lines in the forehead and elsewhere, and the view of the goal is overshadowed.

We have a lot of fine folk here who have lived here many years, pioneered it, in fact. Some are still here. We like to live in a little town. That's why we are here.

Where might we go that there would be no inventors? That place requires complete dedication to it's Builder and Maker to be eligible to take up residency there. The masses will not be there. Right?

There is no smallness in gentleness. We have many things needing done as other places, true. A recent Sunday feature by one man was set out to tear down any incentive that may be prevalent in any of our hearts to do our best. Don't try to tear our town up by the roots. Some of them are pretty deep here.

Progress of the Interstate highway hasn't moved any of us out and more will be wisely deciding to move in here to make their homes in the quietude from the big cities of over 50,000 population. We already have some of them—there will be more.

We now have a dandy little painless dentist and a good M.D. in our suburb in case the situation of times such as these are trained to relieve. That makes living here even more comfortable. Several prefer living here although they work in surrounding towns within a 15-25 mile radius. Why not consider being courageous and happy with the few. Oh, no, we would not want all of you that would take the quietude away.

We like to live in a little town where the trees meet across the street.

Where you wave your hand and say "hello" to everyone you meet.

We like to stand for a moment outside the grocery store. And listen to the friendly gossip of the folks who live next door.

For life is interwoven — with friends we've learned to know.

And we hear their joys and sorrows, as we daily come and go.

So we like to live in a little town—we care no more to roam.

For every house in a little town is more than a house—it's home!

Bargain Hunting On Birthday Of Washington Hit

Editor, Times-News:
I'm sure "George Wouldn't Believe It"; believe, that is, that present-day Americans can think of no more appropriate way of observing his birthday than in a frenzy of bargain hunting.

For several years I have conducted a one-woman campaign seeking to persuade some of my fellow-citizens that there are other and better ways to observe the birthday of the Father of Our Country.

Last year our Burley merchants did make the fine gesture of conducting an essay contest for school children as an added feature of the sale day, but my long-term hope is to see set aside completely a custom which has become widespread, and which I am convinced does no honor to the memory of one whom Americans have long revered, nor to the patriotic sentiments of the present generation.

Paul Harvey Column Gets Attention

Editor, Times-News:
I wish you would reprint Paul Harvey's column (Feb. 18) "Finger Down Our Throat—We are all sick over this war in Southeast Asia."

He writes "I'm tired of seeing like a spectator sport for the American televisioner."

"Have we seen so much war fiction on film that we don't comprehend the reality of this one?"

"War is hell, however unreal it may appear on television."

"I find the whole idea of a no-win war inexcusable and un-American for more than half a million American sons to be hurled into Asia's wars where nobody is sure who we are protecting."

"I propose we get out," is the end of the quote.

Look up your Feb. 18 paper and read it all.

Now what do you think?

I ask, "Can we get out?" What about all our war equipment? Shall we scuttle it like the Germans did their fleet at Scapa Flow? Then where do we set up our next line of defense? Shall we plan on holding the Philippines, Australia? What about the world trade routes?

There are four bottle necks in that route, namely the Straits of Malacca, which Singapore guards, the Panama Canal, Straits of Gibraltar and the Suez Canal. What about the control of the Pacific? How far do we retreat?

On the other hand, can money ever pay for the lives of our American youth?

We can get too far out on a limb. Napoleon lost his grand Army in the snows of Russia, Hitler did likewise, Alexander the Great fell under the pressure of foreign conquest.

Maybe if we drafted older men to fight in the front lines we'd find out what's what about McNamara for instance. It's cowardly to send 17 and 18-year-olds into that jungle.

ISU Student Speaks About Speech Of LSD Advocate

Editor, Times-News:
I am a student at Idaho State University. I do not have long hair and in fact I even like hating every other day, but am disappointed at the home-folks in your area.

The recent dummy by your area residents at the appearance of Dr. Timothy Leary on our campus, is to say the least, quite strange. In the first place, the hard-earned tax money of your people in the Magic Valley area did go to a very worthwhile cause. It gave students at this institution a look at one of society's greatest problems. The problem of drugs, how to live with the effects of drugs has been puzzling men for centuries.

But the problem of drugs is not the reason I am writing this to you. At ISU there have been significant academic advancements in recent months; one of the major advances was the adoption of an "open-door speakers policy" by the Board of Education.

This is a good policy and we needed it. As a university, ISU must use every means it has at its disposal to insure every single student who passes through its doors, the best possible tools to further his education.

This speakers policy is such a tool.

Unless the student has the opportunity to hear first hand and decide for himself what life is really like that student cannot hope to say his experience at ISU was a success. An open-door policy provides such an opportunity.

The Times-News coverage of the Leary speech was worthwhile, and Jan Arthur Sainbury, author of the article, is to be commended. The writer wrote in a clear manner and did not more than to describe what Leary said.

I am quite astonished when I read in Magic Valley newspapers of those who believe their little John or Johnny is so immature that they cannot make decisions for themselves.

I would submit that parents of students attending ISU, or other institutions of higher learning, would be very surprised to learn just how mature their sons or daughters really are.

Students can smell "rats," just like anyone else. In fact, students are probably more capable in such areas than their parents. The University's purpose is to help a student think for himself, not to shelter that student from the troubles of society.

In closing I would like to invite any parent or any citizen of the Magic Valley area to our campus any day of the week. In doing so they can see for themselves that ISU is far from becoming another San Francisco.

Defense On Talk Given By Leary Subject Of Letter

Editor, Times-News:
In the Public Forum of Feb. 18 appeared an article by an anonymous person who knows this is a free country but can't understand why Timothy Leary was allowed to speak on the ISU campus.

I feel genuine sorrow for this person who feels that the best way to cope with an unfamiliar situation is through suppression.

In the first place Mr. Leary did not tell everyone to go out and take LSD. In fact, he was against it. In the second place his lecture's main concern was describing the movement of "hippies" or, as they like to be called, free people, in the United States.

I think I'm safe in saying that most people who jumped to conclusions missed his point.

Now, as for the person who is preparing to go to college next year, I strongly recommend that you keep this boy at home under lock and key. I'm sure that within the ultra-conservative upbringing he has had that the glamor of smoking his first cigarette or taking a small sip of alcohol will be too tempting for him, and he will "ruin" his mind on thought-provoking ideas presented by a great lecturer.

An applicant whoever is responsible for the free speaker policy at ISU and I hope it will continue. Mr. Leary succeeded in stimulating the thoughts of many, to others he was good entertainment. He was there, that's the main thing.

As for you, I'm sorry you see no merit in this policy. For your son, the sooner you get to a liberal environment, the better.

Late each November we play a little game. We pick what we think should be the all-district basketball team and then compare it with our own thinking in March.

Today is the day we named our all-district picks for reasons sufficient to us. Ground rules make it impossible for any player of having disciplinary trouble during the year to make the team.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, (AP) — African foreign ministers demanded Saturday night an immediate reversal of the IOC decision to readmit South Africa to the Olympic while at the same time inviting all African states and others to boycott all future competitions in which South Africa participates.

The Olympic games are scheduled for Mexico City, Oct. 12-27.

A resolution adopted by the ministers minutes before they meeting praised the attitude of those states and national Olympic committees which had expressed their opposition to the IOC decision.

The ministers recommended that, in the event of the IOC refusing to exclude South Africa from the Mexican Games, African states and others "inspired by the same ideals of racial equality should refrain from the games."

Valley Nips Shoshone In Overtime, Declo Outlasts Castleford 75-73 In A-3 Meet

SHOSHONE — Declo ousted Castleford 75-73 and Valley climbed Shoshone 56-55 in a pair of cliff-hanging loser bracket battles in the fourth district A-3 basketball tournament Saturday night.

Wildcats Claim Share Of Big Sky Title By 108-73

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — The Weber State Wildcats exploded for a 108-73 victory over Idaho State Saturday night to clinch at least a tie for the Big Sky Conference basketball title.

In the second game, Ron Cline's fourth-quarter shooting kept Valley just ahead of the Shoshone Indians most of the time before Jack Williams, who culminated a great personal week, tied the game with a pair of charity tosses with seven seconds left. Up to then, Shoshone had managed one tie but generally trailed by two or three.

In the overtime game, Cline, who wound up with 19 points, accounted for four points while Stalmetz hit a free throw and Mayes has a field goal and two free throws. The Vikings inched into a three-point lead with three seconds left before Alexander established the final score with a Shoshone bucket.

For Idaho State, Ron Boone and Charlie Parks were the only shooters in double figures. Each had 23.

Henning Is Leader In Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — South Africa's Harold Henning fired a four-under-par 68 Saturday for a 204 total after three rounds and took a one stroke lead in the $100,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Henning, 33, was one stroke off the pace set by second round co-leaders Dale Douglass and host two Bill Ogden, and took the undisputed lead on the final hole when Douglass missed a seven-foot putt for a par to go 11 under.

Henning's round included a near disastrous double-bogey on the 165-yard par-three fourth hole, but he overcame this deficit by rolling in birdie putts of six and four feet on the next two holes.

One stroke behind Henning at 205 were Douglass and Ogden, who shot a two-under-par 69 Saturday. Frank Board, who had a 34-31-65, and Bruce Crampton who came in with a 31-35-68.

The South African has won a total of $10,000 on the winter tour so far, his best pay day

Union Pacific Railroad is important to you for many reasons

During 1966, for example, we...

- Paid wages totaling over $248,000,000 (much of this in Idaho and Utah)
- Paid taxes totaling over $71,000,000 (helps keep your taxes lower)
- Spent over $207,000,000 for new equipment and for improvements to road property and existing equipment (Of our 9,489 miles of track, 2,790 miles — over 29% — are in Idaho and Utah)

The money we spend for wages, supplies and equipment helps the economy of the area — benefits you either directly or indirectly.

The money we pay in taxes also benefits you, by lowering your tax payments.

We're proud of our accomplishments... we have great plans for the future... and we pledge our best efforts to continue to be an important factor in the growth and progress of the West.

Declo Castles 75-73

CASTLEFORD — Declo outlasted Castleford 75-73 in a close contest Saturday night in the fourth district A-3 basketball tournament.

Declo's victory came when Declo's Mallory calmly dropped two free throws with nine seconds left. Castleford had time for a last shot but it failed.

In the second game, Ron Cline's fourth-quarter shooting kept Valley just ahead of the Shoshone Indians most of the time before Jack Williams, who culminated a great personal week, tied the game with a pair of charity tosses with seven seconds left.

Hayes Hits 62, Houston Scores 158

HOUSTON (AP) — Elvin Hayes tossed in 62 points as top-ranked and undefeated Houston set a major college basketball scoring record in smashing Valparaiso, 158-81, Saturday night.

The 158 points broke the previous mark of 154 points by Furman against The Citadel in 1955. The Cougars' 74 field goals was a school record.

In addition, Hayes became the second highest scorer in college history, while at the same time establishing a one-game individual scoring mark for the Cougars. Hayes' 14th point put him past former Furman star Frank Selvy on the all-time charts.

Hayes entered the game with 2,525 and was only 13 short of Selvy's career total of 2,538. Hayes shattered Selvy's mark early in the first half and ended the night with 257 career points. Oscar Robertson set the all-time individual scoring mark, totaling 2,075 points for Cincinnati in the early 1960s.

The Cougars shot a blistering 66.1 per cent for the game and Hayes sank 21 of 27 for an amazing 77.8 percentage. He also collected 27 rebounds.

Other double-figure scorers for Houston were Theodis Leo 22, Don Chaney 20, George Reynolds 10 and Ken Spin 13.

Valparaiso's high point man was Bruce Linder with 17.

Houston is now 25-0 for the season and winner of 26 straight games over a two-year period. Valparaiso is 11-13.

Blackburn Is Winner Of Daytona Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Home town favorite Bunkie Blackburn drove a smart, steady pace to victory in the Permatex 300-mile race for sportsman model stock cars Saturday.

The 36-year-old veteran Daytona Beach racer started his 1965 Dodge in first place and ducted Tiny Lund of Cross, S.C., for the lead through the first 38 laps.

Then Blackburn dropped off the pace until Lund and two other leaders were eliminated with mechanical troubles, and he kept his speedy white car in front the final 33 laps.

He finished one-half lap in front of Ross Ellington of Wilmington, N.C., in a 1964 Ford.

Third place went to Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., in a 1963 Ford and fourth to Bill Wimble of Rome, N.Y., in a 1961 Pontiac.

A series of blown engines, spins and dropped parts kept 42,000 spectators on the edges of their seats through the little more than two hours of the race.

Seven caution flags held the speed to 140.423. It was far short of the record of 148.520 Jim Pascal set last year.

4 U.S. Girls In Top Eight In Slalom

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Four U.S. girls, led by third-placer Kiki Cutter of Bend, Ore., placed in the top eight of the women's giant slalom Saturday in a ski meet at nearby Vazingskollen.

Fernande Rochatay of Switzerland won the slalom in one minute, 25.70 seconds, and Francoise Isabelle Mir was second in 1:23.73. They came the U.S. quartet, three of whom caused a brief air of excitement during the special slalom at the Olympics.

Miss Cutter, a freshman at the University of Oregon, placed third in 1:25.03, and Judy Nagel of Emunah, Wash., was next in 1:27.25.

Wendy Allen of San Pedro, Calif., came in seventh with a 1:28.56 clocking, and Susey Chiffone of Rutland, Vt., was eighth in 1:28.60.

For just a moment after the first run of the Olympic special slalom, Miss Allen was first, Miss Nagel second, Rosie Fortna of Warren, Vt., fourth, and Miss Cutter sixth. But Wendy Rosie and Kiki were disqualified for missing gates.

Montana Is Big Sky Loop Swim Champ

OGDEN (AP) — The University of Montana won its third consecutive Big Sky Conference swimming championship Saturday, amassing 125 points in 18 events during the three-day meet.

Gonzaga took second with 109 points, while University of Idaho was close third with 107. Weber State had 54 points and Idaho State had 24.

The Montana team had a total of nine first places and set three new conference records.

John Williamson of Montana broke his own record set in time trials of the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 55.9. He had earlier scored 55.7.

Other Montana records included the 500-yard freestyle by Kurt Von Tagen of Montana and the 1-meter diving record by Horst Fenske.

Top individual scorers in the meet were Dan Kirkland and Marc Greenwell, both of Idaho. Kirkland had a total of 24 1/2 points including three firsts and a spot on Idaho's winning 400-medy relay.

Greenwell, who led the conference record in the 200-yard backstroke during time trials, had a total of 21 points for two first places and a spot on the winning 400-medy relay and 800-freestyle relay.

Rockland, Oakley Collect Wins In A-4 Tournament

BURLEY — The Rockland Bulldogs knocked the Raft River Trojans out of the sixth district A-4 tournament 81-69 Saturday night while the Oakley Hornets defeated the Murtaugh Red Devils 57-49 in the championship bracket.

Murtaugh will meet Rockland Tuesday night with the loser being eliminated and the winner facing Oakley Wednesday night in the semi-finals.

Rockland had little trouble in dropping the Raft River crew as they led all the way, but Darrington and Taylor kept the Trojans in the game.

Rockland used the fast break to pile up most of their points as they caught the Raft River defense asleep.

In the nightcap, Oakley used their free throws to topple the Red Devils.

The Hornets jumped out to an early lead, and maintained it all the way but Nebeker and Quessel kept the Red Devils in the game with free outside shooting.

Oakley converted 10 for 20 free throw attempts while the Red Devils could only manage 11 for 17, as both teams had the same number of field goals, 19. With about two minutes left in the game, the Red Devils pulled to within six, but Oakley used their free tosses to pull out the win.

American Army Deserters Set Goal Of 2,000 Defectors In Sweden

By WILL GRIMSLEY
STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A goal of 2,000 defectors in Sweden was set today by a group of American Army deserters protesting the U.S. role in the Vietnamese war.

They are entering Sweden at an average of one a day and this rate will pick up, said Richard Bailey, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla., one of the four American sailors who quit the aircraft carrier Intrepid in Japan last fall and arrived here via Moscow Dec. 29.

The four sailors are among the 13 who have been granted asylum by the Swedish government. The Swedish alien commission said it had a list of at least 30 Americans who had defected and others were being added almost daily. Requests for asylum are pending.

The deserters have scheduled a meeting Sunday to organize an association which they said would work with a similar federation of American deserters in France.

There are at least 100 to 150 Army deserters in France, Bailey said.

"You don't hear too much about them. They aren't accepted as they are here. They have to work through the underground."

Defecting servicemen are working through two groups—the moderate Stockholm conference on Vietnam, headed by the prominent Swedish pacifist Gunnar Myrdal, and the militant, left-wing National Liberation Front, (NLF).

The U.S. servicemen who have found refuge in Sweden have split into two camps but most of them, according to Bailey, are solidly behind the planned defectors' organization.

"We believe we will have 2,000 by the end of the year," Bailey said.

That means 2,000 less bodies in the U.S. Army and fewer deaths in Vietnam. It also means a stronger voice for us to send the people back home."

Reports of new defections prompted Gosta Johansson of the Swedish Allons Commission reported the arrival in the last few days of four infantrymen and a sailor, not identified.

Another soldier flew to Stockholm from the United States, conferred with Swedish authorities about possible citizenship and 24 hours later took a plane home.

Johansson told of another unidentified, coming to Sweden on a leave and then quickly going back to his unit in West Germany.

The soldier complained that it was too cold here, the alleged commission official said.

University Student Dies In Accident

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — A University of Idaho sophomore from Emmett was killed Friday on campus in a freak accident involving a parachute.

Carl A. Johnson, 21, and Gregory L. Milton, 20, of McCalla, another university student, were being pulled across a field by strong winds blowing in a parachute. Latah County Sheriff's deputies said, when Johnson was killed.

Deputies said witnesses described the accident that killed Johnson. Among witnesses was Johnson's brother, Howard. They reported a strong gust of wind about 35 miles an hour caught the chute and jerked it into the air.

Although Milton let go, Johnson reportedly hung on as the parachute soared about 50 feet above the ground before collapsing.

Johnson landed on his feet, but died a short time later of what authorities said was apparently a broken neck.

Officials said no autopsy was planned.

The sick joke springs up as a phenomenon every so often in this culture of ours. It is based on the morbid, or the grim, if you will.

It is a style of humor that appeals to only a few at all times, and to everyone, seldom. The sad part is that the sick joke has come to mean the "distasteful joke," and that is not as it should be. The sick joke is a meaningful style of humor and in its place can be most effective. It is almost axiomatic that everyone has told a so-called sick joke from time to time only probably never recognized it as such, unless he or she noticed the reaction to it was similar to the reaction one gets from telling a pun. It is more of a groan than a laugh.

Still the sick joke is one of our favorites and as such we have selected a few of the "nicest" sick jokes we could remember or dig up, if you'll pardon the expression, for this column.

The Indian was poised on top of a high mountain in Nevada sending smoke signals. All at once, from the testing grounds, there was a huge explosion and a mushroom cloud rose high in the air. The Indian looked at the billowing cloud and said, "Now why couldn't I have said that."

Officer to Pedestrian: "Did you get the number of the woman who ran over you?"
 Pedestrian to Officer: "No, but I'd recognize that laugh anywhere."

"But, Henry, that isn't our baby."
 "Shut up. It's a better carriage."

"Mommy, why do I only walk in circles?"
 "Shut up, or I'll nail your other foot to the floor."

"Give it to me straight, Doc. How am I?"
 "Well, Mr. Kipnis, your teeth are all right, but your gums will have to come out."

The foreman of the lumber camp put a new workman on the circular saw. As he turned away, he heard the man say, "Ouch."
 "What happened?"
 "I don't know," replied the man. "I just stuck out my hand like this, and — well, I'll be damned. There goes another one!"

"Sir, I pulled your daughter out of the water and resuscitated her."
 "Then, by George, you'll marry her!"

"Daddy, there was a man here today to see you."
 "Did he have a bill?"
 "Nope. Just an ordinary nose like yours."

"Heard you were moving your piano, so I came over to help you."
 "Thanks, but we've got it up already."
 "Do it alone?"
 "Nope. Hitched the cat to it."
 "Now how could a cat pull a heavy piano like that up two flights?"
 "We used a whip."

The executioner asked the golf pro convicted of murder, if there was anything he would like before they hanged him.
 "Yeah, how about a couple of practice swings?"

"Hey, won't your wife hit the ceiling when you come home this late?"
 "I sure hope so; last time she put a bullet through my hat."

"Doctor, my husband limps because his right leg is shorter than his left. What would you do in his case?"
 "Probably limp."

"These are grandma's ashes."
 "Oh, did the poor lady pass away?"
 "No. Just too lazy to get an ash tray."

"Pilot to tower. Out of gas three hundred miles over Atlantic. What shall I do?"
 "Tower to pilot. Repeat after me. Our Father Who art in heaven..."

"Doctor, come quickly. My husband has swallowed a fountain pen."
 "I'll be right over. What are you doing in the meantime?"
 "Using a pencil."

Hear about the pregnant bedbug that had a baby in the spring?

"Don't you just wish you were a barefoot boy again?"
 "Not me. I used to work on a turkey farm."

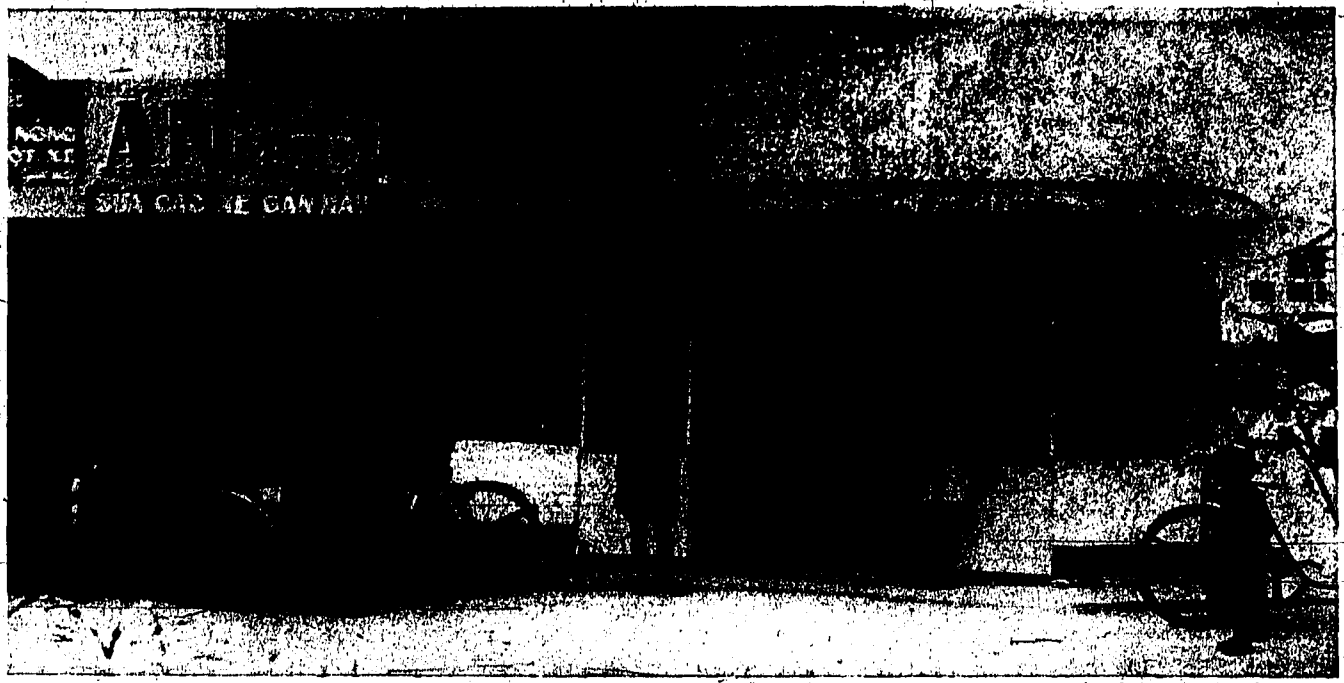

Hear about the lucky man who had a wife and a cigarette lighter and they both worked?

"Broke my kid of biting his nails."
 "Oh, really? How?"
 "Knocked his teeth out."

"I'm a little girl."
 "I'm a little boy."
 "How do you know you're a little boy?"
 "Wait till the nurse goes out and I'll show you."
 When the nurse left, the boy pulled up his dress.
 "See! Blue booties!"

And finally, there was the man who died from drinking varnish. It was an awful sight, but a beautiful finish.

And speaking of a finish — we have

A BLACKMARKET STOREFRONT in a small Vietnamese village is typical of the kinds of blackmarket outlets throughout the war-torn nation. Places like this are often raided by American officials only to have them spring up again minutes after the raid is over. (Photos by a Magic Valley soldier just returned from Vietnam.)

Overseas Packages—For Soldiers Or Blackmarket?

By JAN A. SAINSBURY
 Times-News Feature Editor
 A blackmarket always exists when a great many servicemen are located in an area in which American products are at a premium.

 It is the servicemen who are the source of supply for the blackmarket operation, a long with overt theft, from the U.S. Government, brought on by the presence of goods meant for the sole use of those servicemen. In an effort to better understand how the blackmarket operation in Vietnam works, and how American servicemen stationed in Vietnam are both used by the blackmarketeers, and at the same time make money from them, this writer recently talked extensively with five young men who have just returned from Vietnam. Three of the men were Green Berets, and the other two were Airborne.

time to time. Here is how it works:
 The soldier has, say a hundred dollars in his pocket from the payline earlier that week, and realizing that he has only a month to go he sells the "green" to the Vietnamese for 160 MPC. The soldier now has 160 "dollars" effectively, for on the post the MPC buys what a dollar buys. The soldier can still increase his money by buying cigarettes, or other items, and instead of using them sell them for still more MPC. In the long run the circle of traffic pays everyone but the U.S. Government, who loses its shirt.

blackmarket. They will take almost anything American.
 "As a Green Beret I'm supposed to work closely with the people. That's my job, to get information about Charlie—where and where he is. And the people in the villages know all about him; sometimes they tell you and sometimes they don't. But as you get to know them you feel obligated. They feed you and give you handmade things. You spend an evening with them, and then all of a sudden, after weeks, when you feel you just get to know them a little, they ask you if you couldn't get them some American beer — and you feel obligated. If you know what I mean?"

A TYPICAL STREET in a small Vietnamese village shows some of the poverty existing — and provides the wellspring for the blackmarket operations. Nearly everyone in villages such as this becomes involved in blackmarket activity at some time. It is nearly a way of life.

"The first time I ever went into a village I saw that I could buy anything," a Green Beret told me, "anything at all. The shelves, especially in the back-room places, are loaded with Government Issue C-Rations, fatigues, boots, almost everything the soldier has can be had on the blackmarket."

"Of course it only stands to reason," said another, "the soldier gives most of it away and it finds its way to the blackmarket."

And although the three Green Berets and the two Airborne troopers spoke independently of each other, the stories matched. The makeup of the blackmarket situation became clear. And the separate statements fused into one story of the present operation of the Vietnamese blackmarket.

"The first time you walk downtown they come up to you and ask if you want to buy things. When, or if, you say 'no' they ask if you have something to sell. And if you say 'no' again, they will ask you if you can get a certain thing for them. They say they will pay."

I asked one of the soldiers how the payment worked. What could the native offer the American soldier?

"Mostly money, or 'funny money' as we call it. And if you don't have any items to sell, they will buy your 'green.'"

Green, according to the soldier, was good American folding money. Funny money was simply the MPC, the designation in Vietnam for military script. Military script is what the soldiers use on base, and it is not to be used in a town or village, or be anywhere but on a military base. But it is.

To get American money, the green kind, the blackmarketeers who come by great quantities of MPC, will offer the soldier 160 MPC for every 100 "green" dollars. Most of the servicemen in Vietnam do just this from

When the soldier runs a hit short near the end of the month, he can always go into town and pick up a few usable dollars by giving "green" to the Vietnamese blackmarket for MPC. He comes out with more than he went in with, and the Vietnamese has American money, not script, with which he can purchase or bribe more blackmarket items for resale.

The soldier can buy anything he wants in the PX, or Post Exchange, as long as he buys it for his own use. But the catch is that there is no real way to keep tabs on whether or not the soldier uses the item himself, or after a while sells it on the blackmarket for needed cash.

A sign hanging in every PX warns of the abuse of the PX privilege. And some are court-martialed. This happens regularly. But for the most part the soldier keeps doing it, and he gets away with it.

"Sure, we all do it. Everyone does, including the officers. It's only natural. When you come up against an easy way to make money, even the most ethical begin to sell stuff here and there. And one soldier admitted, 'I've done it. I think everyone has.'"

I asked one of the men who the biggest offenders were and he said, "I'm not sure, but the biggest offenders are the M.P.'s (Military Police) and the supply clerks and officers. They get away with it because there is really no one to police the police, and because they work together in some cases, and because they can fake some records easily. Some of them make big money."

"For example, take the boots. The only way we can get another pair of boots is to turn in our old worn ones. But somehow the jungle boots can be found hanging in a blackmarket shop in rows, with the tags still on them. Without doubt the largest source of blackmarket goods come from supply. If you know the officer or a clerk you can slip him a couple of bucks and get a pair of boots and then sell them for much more in town. You do it when you need money."

I asked about other means of government goods being placed on the blackmarket.

"Stuff can get there from almost any place. A mother sends her son some stuff, or he takes something with him from home and finds he can't use it. He can sell it on the

"So you get the beer, and then they want cigarettes, and after that they say they could use a small refrigerator. That's right, a refrigerator. And then you know for sure because you haven't seen them smoke the cigarettes or drink the beer. They have been selling it to the blackmarket. We use them, and they use us... It's only fair, I guess."

The men, most of whom were 18- to 20-year-old "a-fo" conscripts, mentioned about a dozen shacks that trap the serviceman.

"One of the big ways the blackmarket gets things is the hit about the shacks. The soldier has a girl friend downtown and he visits her. They set up a shack, a little hut, to live and sleep in."

"The officers do this too. In fact easier than we might. They can get past an M.P. at night and take a jeep. They can stay away all night and not get caught. The enlisted men have hours to keep."

"What happens is this — the guy and the girl live in this shack and he brings her things. He sells up the shack with food, stuff to drink, a small refrigerator, a radio, and other things. And then when it gets full enough for the girl, one night she isn't there any more, and neither is anything else. She sells it all, and starts all over again with someone else."

I asked how common it was.

"In the area I was in, the 101st base camp in the Phan Rang area about 25 or 30 per cent of the guys have shacks."

And another said, "In the Saigon area, where I'm based, at least 75 per cent have shacks they visit two or three times a week. They do it until the girl leaves with the stuff."

I mentioned to one of the soldiers that we read ever so often of the raids on the blackmarket. Aren't they effective?

And he laughed.
 "I know they get headlines on the radio that it really all they're for, the raids I mean. The people aren't stupid. They have a million relatives working in every aspect of their own government, and word of a raid gets down before most of us know it. They move everything out. The raid comes through and some M.P.'s and officers dump the few cans of beer and cigarettes and small items found into a pile in the middle of the village street and they make a big deal of burning it. Then they leave. And the stuff comes out again. Shelves of it the M.P.'s never found. But the headlines read, 'Blackmarket Raid Successful. I guess it depends on how you look at it. The blackmarket boys just laugh.'"

It is a seemingly never ending line of sales and resale, profit and more profit. As the raid before the big loser is the U.S. Government. And it seems as though there is nothing we can do about it.

BEER AND SODA POP, mostly American brands, line the shelves of this blackmarket shop. American products bring excessive prices in comparison to local or other imports. The price is even more excessive when one realizes that the American products are not originally paid for, but are either stolen, or garnered from soldiers' pay "gifts." The "usual" beer brings thirty or forty cents at the most and a can of American beer sells for over one dollar on the black market.

MAGIC VALLEY PORTRAIT . . .

Heyburn Police Judge Roy Skinner Fits Fine To Crime In His Court

HEYBURN — The expression on his face and the tone in his voice are stern — but the eyes are the soft eyes of an understanding man. This description could well fit many people, but to the Heyburn area it recognizes the character of Police Judge Roy Skinner.

Judge Skinner began his tenure on the bench in about 1965 after members of the village board asked him to serve in this capacity.

"I debated about this, because it was so far out of line from anything I had ever done and I felt inadequate for the job," remembered the judge, "but they assured me I could handle it."

He had operated the only grocery store at Heyburn for several years before his retirement in 1960 and felt that he never had the time to really do much for the city, service wise. So he decided that he would give it a try.

"I haven't had too many complaints, so far, and my efforts are fairly satisfactory," he smiled.

The judge doesn't believe in going "by the book" with every case and has the theory that "playing by ear can sometimes be more advantageous to both the court and the offender."

He noted that some courts go strictly by the book and charge a set rate for a certain violation. He feels that in some cases this is good, but in others it is not. For the person to hand money to the court and consider the violation paid in full.

"It seems that you have to try to reach them and impress upon them that we do have laws and regulations and if we live by them we will live much happier and much easier. And some you can reach and some you can't — and you reach them one way or another."

"It seems a shame sometimes that money has to come into it to make them keep the laws. Sometimes money doesn't reach them," he said.

The judge has learned that to certain people money is the "easy" way out, so he emphasizes a few to physical labor. Some youngsters have worked out sentences and fines, by working for the city at the rate of $3 per day.

One boy was sentenced to scrubbing the village office for a short period. The boy didn't like it, but he did a good job and the results were very effective. The boy's parents came to the judge later and thanked him for helping their son.

But on the other hand, money to some people is a problem, and a hard item to come by when you need it. The judge doesn't approve of a fine causing a burden on folk when it is the child that should be paying for it instead.

He doesn't feel that it helps the boy at all to have parents pay the fine for the boy. "You have to get through to the youth and let them understand that they are the ones that have to obey the law," he said.

Sometimes he has to go along with boys on paying fines on installments instead of letting them work it out laboring for the city, because they can't take the boys out of school.

The judge is a longtime resident of Heyburn and he knows the people as well as anyone. His parents were among the early settlers in this area. His father, the late Ernest Skinner, had a 10-year contract in 1914 to string the electric lines and wire the first electric power to Heyburn. The judge assisted his father with this project.

His mother, Penelope, died in 1963 and he has made his home with a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Ross, prior to his going to the Burley Nursing Home.

An open house was held in his honor with his six children in charge. They include Frederick Dayley, HEYBURN; Evan Dayley and Ernest Dayley, both Springdale; Harold Dayley, Burley; and Mrs. D. M. Burgess and Mrs. Ross, both Springdale.

ROY SKINNER

to see jackrabbits running down Main Street and cattle roaming nearby.

Winters were a little heavier then and the judge can remember one winter after a snow thaw and people had to row in boats around the store and post office.

One of the biggest recreations for the youth during that time was activity around the Snake River, which lines Heyburn on the South and West.

It was nothing for the boys to dive in the river and swim back and forth across the span. The judge can remember the old ferry and toll bridge.

The toll bridge cost 60 cents per team and wagon, with a little extra charged for extra passengers. According to the judge, some persons rebelled about the charge and during the winter months would drive the wagons across the river on the ice.

An ice business at Burley would cut the ice squares from the river to operate the business. The judge said the river water was a lot cleaner then, than it is now.

The judge was graduated from Heyburn High School in 1920 and went to work for the Bureau of Reclamation at North Platte, Neb.

On June 24, 1923, he married the former Marvel Lawson, of Torrington, Wyo. The couple came to Idaho and the judge worked two years at the sugar factory.

He spent the next 18 years working on heavy construction jobs in various parts of the country. He served as head man with machines and had experience with steam, diesel and electric.

The couple spent a lot of time in the East and found themselves longing to be back in Idaho. They returned to Heyburn in 1945 and he went in partnership with Walter Holsten in Heyburn's only grocery store.

Mr. Holsten sold out and the judge joined in partnership with Fred Minisang for a short time, under the name of S and M Merc.

In 1960 he sold the business to Ralph McCombs and went into retirement. He kept himself busy in a small shop behind his house, where he enjoys mechanical hobbies.

He is active in the Heyburn Masonic Lodge and is a second degree Mason. The adage that music helps make a house a home is maintained by the Skinnners and both play a small organ.

"I try NOT to sing," smiled the judge. Court is sometimes held in the Skinner home, although the judge prefers to have it in his office, located two blocks away. The wisdom and understanding of the judge has earned the respect of the people and has added dignity to his court.

"If you make people mad, they go out of the courtroom, feeling they have paid their dues," he said. "If you let them leave kind of good natured, they're not so apt to leave the courtroom and go out and run a stop sign again just to show you they can."

He said that most people who come before him are very nice and he finds the greater share of his work not too unpleasant. "With an expression of love on her face, the attractive Mrs. Skinner commented: "Of course I might be a little prejudiced, but I think he is fair and reasonable. And I think that his judgment would be as fair as anyone's."

"I'm sure if I were up for a citation that I would appreciate having someone that could see both sides of the story," she said. After a short pause, the judge smilingly assured his wife that he would give her "just what anyone else would get."

Woman Steals Patrol Car, Has "A Ball"

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Stopped for speeding, a woman drove off in the police patrol car—with red light blinking and siren wailing, police reported.

Finally halted after a 40-mile chase, at speeds which at times reached 120 miles an hour, she identified herself as Margaret Ann Condo, 22, of San Diego, an unemployed go-go dancer.

"That was a ball," she told officers. "Those police cars can really move."

Patrolman Charles Kilgore said his car was stolen from her on Interstate 5 Freeway after clocking her at 80 m.p.h.

He said he put her in the back seat of his police car and was moving her car from the middle of the freeway when he heard a loud bang and engine behind him. He turned to see her speed off.

Kilgore flagged down a passing motorist who took him to a phone. The California Highway Patrol, the sheriff's department, her car from the Oceanview, San Diego and Carlsbad Police Departments joined the chase.

Container Plant Gets Safety Award

BURLEY — A safety record at the Burley Container Plant of Boise Cascade Corp., has earned the firm a national safety award.

The firm established a far below average accident rate for 1967 and as a result earned one of the 42 four-year scholarships provided annually by the Boise Cascade Foundation for sons and daughters of hourly employees of the concern.

As a result of the Burley plant's 16.3 accident rate per million man hours worked, the firm will be awarded a $50,000 scholarship. A total of $50,000 in scholarships will be awarded plants of Boise Cascade in seven states through the company's unusual safety program in which plants compete against each other. The plan is designed to encourage accident prevention by awarding employees for their dedication and effort in preventing costly and tragic accidents.

TIMES-NEWS Book Review

"MEN, WOMEN AND CATS" By Dorothy Van Doren

Next time you come into the Twin Falls Library, try browsing in the 818 section. You will find such interesting books as "Men, Women and Cats."

Dorothy Van Doren writes in a wise and witty manner about life as she has observed it. She was born at the turn of the 19th century and starts her book by giving a glimpse of the world she was born into. Her nostalgic reminiscences are a bit cozy, so she says, "Relax and be happy, you're a child of the 20th century. If you're not a child, and nobody makes any trouble, you may easily see the 21st."

One of the endearing attributes of the human race is not lost as long as it plants flowers and tends them. She finds gas in a number of interesting remarks on various expressions will find an Amen on many a tongue. The trend toward artificial flowers is a blooming away from nature. She says you can hardly tell the real thing, unless you have a number of distinguishing life-with-all its irrefutable imperfections from death.

"If I were only a better woman," here she talks of the sins of omission. We are all guilty with her—coming through in the big way in crisis; but the small gestures—the note, a flower, we dilly-dally and do not do. After a while it is too late. What nice people we would be if we just got around to it. She speaks of harsh words, of anger, family, and her own life with all its irrefutable imperfections from death.

"I was only a better woman," here she talks of the sins of omission. We are all guilty with her—coming through in the big way in crisis; but the small gestures—the note, a flower, we dilly-dally and do not do. After a while it is too late. What nice people we would be if we just got around to it. She speaks of harsh words, of anger, family, and her own life with all its irrefutable imperfections from death.

None of us are free from this sin—one is bathed in a perpetual bath of loving kindness, but what the car does not hear can be heard by the heart. She meditates on the sins that kill the soul; pride, anger, envy, sloth, avarice, gluttony and lust. The three on each side of sloth have a key word—excessiveness. Sloth is the opposite—laziness of mind and spirit. To her God was a Golden Mean—an alley between two extremes. She explains that Man is neither man nor woman, but a human being, and is striving to learn something about another human being and about himself.

Great subjects that concern good and evil involving vulgar, violent people are the theme of many great novels, but the author does not worship some modern fiction that concerns itself to greatly with the ideas of the history involving only empty people. She raises the question, "Are we living in the shadow of our doom?" All generalizations have had their anxieties, but the special anxiety of this one is will our planet as we know it disappear?

Her husband is one of the most revered professors in the country today, and she loves the teaching profession. Two chapters are devoted to cats and education. She finds a few grievous faults with teaching as it is today. Her suspicion is that the schools of today could be more concerned with the nation than with the chief reason for their existence is that it is a place to learn something.

You will savor her remarks about modern living. When a change is made, it ought to be a significant change for an important reason. But an engineer could a designer, an engineer die could not be convinced to change every twelve months or so? She doesn't recommend going back to the dear old days, but wonders if we couldn't combine the best of both. She has been a lucky woman and has lived the life she likes. She gives to us in her amusing way her philosophy of life.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Although it has now been 51 years since "HAILLEY" was a topic of conversation each Feb. 25th.

It was then that 15 men lost their lives in a snowslide and 17 were injured. Many descendants and friends of these men still reside in valley.

The late George A. McLeod, in his history of Alturas and Blaine counties, said: "An appalling calamity occurred at the North Star mine on the East Fork of Wood river about 3:30 o'clock on the morning of Feb. 25, 1917. Three slides formed an avalanche, one from the east, one from the north and one from the northwest, which killed 15 men and injured 17."

The victims included Emmett P. Adams, Phillip Welch, John Fleming, Samuel LaBarce, John Vaughn, John Klato, John McKeeloy, all Hailley; Israel Peterson, Broadford; John Hearn, Fairfield; William C. Schmidt, Rock Creek; E. E. Schmitt, Rock Creek; J. O. P. Purcell, Boise; E. G. Cooley, W. R. Motley and Roy Judd, addresses unknown.

Injured were Andy Smith, East River; H. D. Richardson, Boise Basin; George Lee, Boise; John H. Little, Boise; E. E. Anderson, O. S. Legault, O. E. Bacon, O. D. S. Amand, Bert Judd, M. S. Lessault, John Peterson, Pete Colombetta, K. D. Lindsay, H. F. Mannard, A. J. Wood, E. C. Jones, Thomas Jay and R. Carter, addresses unknown.

Over 20 men escaped uninjured. Of the 85 men employed only 65 were at the mine and they are all accounted for.

The avalanche destroyed the office, store room, changing room, two-story bunk house and compressor room of the Federal Mining and Smelting Co., smashing them into kindling wood. The Bell telephone being out of commission, the Hailley light works was called over the Federal telephone line and superintendent Rising was urged to send all the physicians and able-bodied men available to the scene of the tragedy.

Mr. Rising thereupon aroused Doc R. H. Wright, by telephone and he called the private line and Plummer of Hailley and doctors Byrd and Dutton of BELLEVUE, all of whom responded immediately.

After consultation Doctor Plummer was left in Hailley to look after the relatives of the victims of the tragedy, many of whom resided in Hailley, and the other physicians left for the North Star mine, which they reached about 8 o'clock. They immediately turned the mill office into a temporary hospital.

A veterinary surgeon had begun to give first aid in the company's office at the mill and had bandaged some of the rescued when the Hailley and Bellevue physicians arrived. In the meantime the mill hands and the mill employees, who were hurt had been rescuing those whom they could reach.

By 9 o'clock about 100 men were engaged in rescue work. Some of the men were buried under 20 to 30 feet of snow. Several of the dead showed no marks of injuries and are thought to have suffocated. Others showed cuts and bruises.

The company did all it could to locate the relatives of the dead and injured. The train was held at the siding near Clinton to take the injured, accompanied by doctors, volunteer assistants and miners, to Hailley and Bellevue.

Two injured persons died a short time later, making 37 deaths from the tragedy.

Never have so many snowslides happened here as during the big snow storm of Feb. 25, 1917. It seemed as if all the snow in the mountains had tumbled into the gulches.

David P. Clark, the pioneer and former postmaster of Pleron, was caught in a snowslide on his way home from Stanley post office, and killed.

There was a gigantic snowslide at the Independence mine which carried away the ore house, destroyed a part of the gravity tram to the mill, disabled the electric power and light and telephone line and lifted the mill six inches from its foundation, he also carrying down a lot of timber, lumber and cordwood. The slide came from a snowslide and caused $6,000 damages.

The boarding house of the Eureka mine, which is situated in Eureka gulch, a fork of Bullion canyon, at Bullion, was struck by a snowslide and seriously damaged. The building was occupied by the foreman C. W. Plunney and family.

Snow at the Mascot mine, wherever it had a chance to slide, piled up to a depth of 10 to 20 feet.

Dr. Wright practiced medicine in Hailley continuously since that time until last year, when he retired.

Oldtimers in Hailley pointed out this week that conditions at the time of the disastrous avalanche in 1917 were similar to current weather — with extensive rain in the valley, followed by snow.

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

From P. S. C. Twin Falls, Idaho: Would you please tell me the value, if any, on a one-half dime, 1863, Seated Liberty, with thirteen stars?

Answer: Your half-dime is the standard issue, but the 1863 is one of the scarcer dates. I can not hazard a guess as to its value without examining the coin for condition. However, it is currently being bought by dealers with a price range of $5.00 to $13.00 in the 1900 to Very Fine range. If you want a closer price, I would have to see the coin.

From L. W. Twin Falls, Idaho: Are Jefferson nickels of the war years worth a lot over face value? How much is the 1938 nickel worth? I have heard that a set of these nickels is worth over a hundred dollars. Is this true?

Answer: 1938 was the first year of this nickel. The mintage was quite low in the 1938 and 1939 Denver and San Francisco mintage, and they command a premium. The 1939-D is the scarcest of these, and dealers will pay up to $5.00 each for Extremely Fine specimens of the coin. Of the war years (1942-43) silver nickels, only the 1943-D (Denver) was a short mintage and currently sells for around a dollar in Extremely Fine condition.

All the silver nickels are worth around 8 cents now in face value alone, but there is really no scarcity of them, although they are gradually disappearing from circulation.

The 1950-D mintage of nickels was slightly over two million pieces. This is an extremely low mintage for modern times and around 1960 to 1963 a craze for them swept the country and they were selling at one time for around $900 a roll (forty nickels in a roll) in uncirculated condition.

The price later leveled-off, but the coin is currently commanding about a $8.00 figure in un-circulated. Of course, poor condition coins are considerably less, but still worth finding. A completely un-circulated set of Jefferson nickels sells for considerably over $100.00—but a set of average circulated coins (Jefferson nickels) can be bought from $20.00 up to $35.00 (Extremely Fine) so that their selling value would be at least fifty per cent less than that amount.

From A. D. Burley, Idaho: Are the silver Jefferson quarters worth a lot of money. Is it true the government is melting them down?

Answer: It is true that they are being melted, as is all silver coinage. As to their value, any answer would be pure guess work, although right at the present time, they are worth about 38 cents for silver content alone. Undoubtedly, as they are called in and melted, they will become so scarce that they will command a premium as collector's items. Some of them were very scarce even before the present silver shortage. The 1932-D and 1932-S (Denver and San Francisco) mintages were very small. These coins are worth $20.00 and up at the present time as collector's items, and the 1937-S will bring from $2.00 to $3.50. Of the later mintages, only the 1955-D was a collector's item, but it is worth considerably more than face value. All of these coins command a nice figure in un-circulated condition.

From K. W., Jerome, Idaho: I have a coin which says "Half Dollar" on it, but there is an eagle on it which looks something like the eagle on the silver dollar. On the other side is a picture of a big tree and under it "The Charter Oak" and Connecticut, 1635-1935. Is this a regular piece of money or a medal?

Answer: You have a Connecticut Tercentenary Commemorative fifty cent piece. This coin was issued to commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of Connecticut. It is a half-dollar and perfectly good money. The tree on it is the famous "Charter Oak" in which supposedly the Connecticut charter was hidden so that James II of England could not revoke the colony's charter. After James was overthrown in 1688, the charter again came to light.

This particular commemorative coin is scarce, and currently would bring you about $20.00 if in Extremely Fine condition. (Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301).

MOOSE COW AND CALF, with yearling beyond, are feeding along shorelines of Fish Lake in the Lochsa River drainage. Scene is typical of moose habitat of central and eastern Idaho. Ranchers, resort operators, and area residents like to have a few of the lonely moose—largest member of the deer family—around as conversational pieces, tourist attractions, camera subjects, and a boon to trade generally, especially during hunting season.

Moose, Swan Species, Protected By Actions Of The Upper Snake Region

BY JIM HUMPHREY

Idaho Fish-Game Department Long memories in Fremont County last fall searched back through at least three decades to find anything like the all-out drive to help thwart moose poachers of the Upper Snake Region by fanning strong public sentiment against them. Just about everybody got into the act, from the grass roots to preachers, editors and program directors—it capped a continuing all-out promotional campaign which started several years ago and dropped the 1967 moose poaching total to eight—the lowest in recorded history.

Old timers look back to the days when the same type of saturation publicity was used to save the world's few living trumpeter swans, some three-fourths of which spend their winters on ice-free waters of the Island Park country. Only 73 of these great white birds, the largest species of migratory waterfowl, were reported by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service during the mid-winter ground-air census on this continent as late as 1935.

The last legal hunting of swans in Idaho was 1916, with complete protection from 1917 on through the years to the present time. Snow geese do not fall to scattergunners in the counties of Clark, Fremont, Madison and Teton because white waterfowl targets are banned as further protection to swans.

Phil Swanstrum, Boise, conservation enforcement supervisor, is one man who remembers the Island Park country of 30 years and more ago. He says Henrys Lake was a great place to hunt Canada geese and ducks. The A.S. Trade property, before the dam was built at Island Park, was a great nesting area for the Canadian honkers. It now lies on the bottom of the reservoir. Swanstrum tells tall tales of another gunnery on the North Fork of the Snake, especially on the area below the Railroad Ranch, from Osborne Springs to upper Moen Falls, as well as in Shotgun Valley.

Most hunters live by the motto, "If it is snow white without a trace of black at the tips of a wing span of six-feet or more—don't shoot. It is a trumpeter." Swanstrum says this great bird is the most tempting, low-flying target in the sky, with more grace than any winged Idaho species. Its strong, bugling challenge, musical, resonant—much like a hunter's horn—has enough volume to be heard two miles away. This no-doubt is the most stirring note on any migratory waterfowl flyway.

Like most outdoorsmen, Swanstrum is pleased that the beautiful, deep-throated trumpeter swan apparently has defied the old tradition of the sports world that "they never come back." Its poetic grade of motion and triumphant call were almost—but not quite—stilled for all eternity. Trumpeters survive on the Upper Snake River, where they find open water for feeding and resting during the long winter months.

Migrants from Yellowstone and Red Rocks Lakes join the small flock of swans which have nested and summered in Idaho. They no longer migrate in vast flocks over the western part of this continent as in days of yore.

Enough good habitat is found within the 60 square mile radius of range from the Upper Snake River and Montana and Wyoming lakes to Yellowstone Park to support a fair sized remnant flock. Human residents of the region take a proprietary interest in "olor Buckinator," and the chance becomes more remote all the time that this great white swan will meet the same fate that came to the passenger pigeon, the Labrador duck, the giant auk, and the Carolina parakeet, among others.

There is just one point of real comparison between the trumpeter and "Aloes Americana," that hump-backed, long-legged homewith with the hook-nose and scanty tail, more commonly called moose. It is the same strong feeling of public ownership and individual responsibility for moose and swans, which is much the same thing as regional pride. Neither friendship nor close blood relationship will keep a man from being turned in if there is evidence that he killed a swan or a moose.

One big difference between these two jealously guarded wildlife species—apart from the obvious physical uniqueness of both—is that all hands join in to help salvage moose for charity whenever the word spreads that a moose has been shot illegally—whether willfully or unintentionally because of wrong identification. By way of contrast, even a strong boy can carry a 20-pound swan without too much trouble. No such high public emotion and indignation sweeps the countryside when one of the eagles, either bald or golden, is gunned down from its airy perch.

Yet both species are rare, if not endangered, and almost federal laws give them complete year-round protection.

DR. JAMES TAYLOR, president of the College of Southern Idaho, holds with pride an oil painting he will donate to the Junior Club's First Annual Art Auction. Proceeds of the auction will go to the Heart Fund. Dr. Taylor, holding his painting, which is done in black, red and white oils, thought for a moment when asked what it was called and then said, "It's called, 'Three O'Clock In The Morning'."

DR. GEORGE BECKER, a Twin Falls dentist, stands next to his painting, which he calls "Rainy Night." The painting is a large, extremely colorful rendering done in an egg-tempera medium with an oil glaze. The painting is one of over 45 items to be auctioned at the sale, Thursday, Feb. 29. The activity is planned for the Blue Lakes Country Club.

"Wanna Buy A Duck?" Art Auction Set

As the old vaudeville comedian once said, "Wanna buy a duck?" or for that matter, would you like to buy a painting, or a sculpture, or a lamp made from a wine bottle, or a piece of driftwood for your living room? So maybe some of the "art" offered isn't really "art." Or is it? Maybe it all is. And you can rest assured that a great deal of work and thought went into the production of the 45, or more, items that will make up the First Annual Junior Club Art Auction. The auction, the first of its kind in the area, gains much attention because of the "artists" contributing, as well as their work. Most of them are business and professional men in Twin Falls, including a professional artist thrown in for good measure. The project, sponsored by the Junior Club, is for the sole purpose of providing funds for the Heart Fund and for heart research, but as everyone knows the secondary purpose of such an event is to provide a good time for everyone concerned. People attending the dinner to be held at the Blue Lakes Country Club, will begin with a 8:30 cocktail hour and exhibit. The names of the people contributing the work as well as the title of the masterpiece will be on exhibit next to the work so that friends of the "artist" can run the price up, all in the name of art—but really for the sake of heart research.

Still, it seems that the family of the contributor has an obligation to see that their "artist" doesn't run last. But he is in the spirit of good fun, and it is for a good cause. Yet, one shouldn't get the idea that the works on display are not "objets d'art" simply because they were created by someone who does not make his living at that kind of thing. Some of the objects are extremely artistic and, indeed, are true works of art.

Paintings, sculpture, and other items are done by those who are not only businessmen, and professional men, but men who have as their hobby or avocation the pursuit of art. As mentioned before Lee Logan, who is a professional artist, is also contributing to the auction. All in all, no matter why one attends the auction, whether it is to buy a piece of art, or to see what some of the town's leading citizens are capable of producing, or simply to help a good cause, it is a worthwhile endeavor.

Auctioneers will be Father John Riley, Joe Citek and Paul Newton. Tickets for the dinner are $8 and may be obtained by calling Mrs. Loren Wheeler. There are a limited number of tickets for the function due to the space available, and many have already been sold, but a few do remain. The sponsoring agency, the Junior Club, is a young women's service club.

Ticket Sales Begin For Burley Show

BURLEY — Advance tickets for Fred Weiler and the Pennsylvanians appearance at 8 p.m. March 10 are now on sale, announced Dr. B. V. Holcomb, general chairman of the event sponsored by the Burley - Rupert Shrine Club. Tickets may be purchased at Roper's, Twin Falls; Stocks Music Center, Rupert; Abstract Office, and Roper's, all Rupert; Skagg's Furniture and Jensen Sales Office, both Overland Shopping Center, Spencer's Office Supply and Roper's, all Burley. The Burley - Rupert Shrine Club members also have tickets. Proceeds will be used by the Shrine Club for their various charity programs. Assisting Dr. Holcomb with the arrangements are Roland Willis, S. Wolf, Harlan Jensen and Dave Berry.

VONNIE WHEELER, chairman of the Junior Club auction, and Bert Larson, who will contribute a driftwood piece to the auction, peer into a cornucopia anticipating the wealth of artistic goodies which will spring forth come auction eve.

EGON KROLL, Mayor of Twin Falls, and Dr. Roy Shaub, an M.D., both display works of art they plan to contribute to the auction. Mr. Kroll, on the left, stands next to a lamp created from an empty wine bottle — which by the way was once full when the Krolls and some friends dined at an exclusive restaurant in Indio, California, while on vacation. Egon Kroll had the foresight to save the bottle and fashion the beautiful lamp from its graceful curve. Dr. Shaub's contribution is a hand-carved antique duck decoy done in red, white and black. And between the two gentlemen is a third personage, one called "The Warrior." It was made by Bob Colner, an area farmer, and has been donated to the auction by Mr. Colner.

With a landscape as a background, Father Riley sits next to one of the few non-landscapes done by Lee Logan, a professional Magic Valley artist. Mr. Logan has donated the painting of famous clown Emmette Kelly to the Junior Club for the function. Father Riley will act as auctioneer.

RON SCHEUFFELE, P.E., who is the Twin Falls City Engineer stands by the 36" supply line mounted on saddles on the Snake River bridge for the city of Twin Falls. Cement mortar lined steel pipe was used with expansion bands placed on the line. This section, located near Blue Lakes in the Snake River Canyon, will operate under 100 feet of head water and huge thrust blocks were constructed on both ends to prevent pipe movement. The thrust block on the north end contains 27 cubic yards of concrete weighing approximately 100,000 pounds. When in use the line on the bridge will contain 29,913 gallons of water weighing 249,620 pounds.

PAUL NEWTON, P.E., is seen here determining legal boundaries on a Property Survey last week. Newton is a Consulting Engineer, and works on many projects throughout a given year.

EARL HAROLDSEN, P. Area Professional Engineers Involved In Diverse Activities

Years ago one could ask a youngster what he wanted to be when he grew up, and the answer was either a "fireman," a "doctor," or an "engineer." And what the boy meant by "engineer" was obvious. He wanted to run a locomotive.

It isn't that simple anymore. The boy may still say he wants to be an engineer, but somehow it doesn't have much to do with just trains. What it does have a great deal to do with is nearly everything—everything that is built or thought of by man.

The modern engineer is a complex entity. The public really doesn't know what to say when a man says, "I'm an engineer," unless it's the obvious question, "What kind of an engineer?" and then the answer might spawn the same type of question again. "What does a civil engineer do?"

Even the engineers themselves are troubled with the problem of educating the public to understand the many facets of their profession. But in the most simple terms an engineer is a professional, licensed engineer. The key word being—licensed.

However, defining an "engineer" by saying that he is a "licensed engineer," is like trying to explain to a child that the word "effervescent" means "ebullient." It's not the right way to go about it.

If we don't really know what an engineer is, and most engineers agree that this is so, the best cure for the situation is a look into a professional engineer's world.

As in other professions a certain body of knowledge must serve as a core for those who learn the skills. It is true that an engineer can be a surveyor, but it does not follow that a surveyor is an engineer.

Men in a great many occupations call themselves engineers without any technical justification. Old-time land surveyors who learned all they know helping someone else carry surveying equipment around are for the most part not technically qualified to be termed an engineer. But if not, then who is?

The National Society of Professional Engineers describes it this way: "Engineering is the profession in which a knowledge of the mathematical and natural sciences gained by study, experience, and practice is applied with judgment to develop ways to utilize, economically, the materials and forces of nature for the benefit of mankind."

And more specifically they say, "The normal progression in a career in engineering consists of four or more years of undergraduate study in an accredited engineering curricula leading to a bachelor of science degree, followed by four or more years of responsible experience ending in the granting of a Professional Engineer's registration by due examination in one or more states. Graduate studies usually reduce the required time for engineer-in-training experience."

and others during organizational changes until it finally resulted, on Sept. 1, 1948, in the Idaho Society of Professional Engineers, as it is known today. It is affiliated with the National Society of Professional Engineers. A Ladle's Auxiliary was formed in 1958, and the Magic Valley Chapter of the I.S.P.E. was formed in 1963. Before that time it was known as the South Central Chapter.

In Magic Valley the Chapter President for 1968 is Don Morse, P.E., of the State Highway Department, Burley.

To show the scope of interest among the professional engineers the February issue of the "American Engineer" magazine, the most influential professional journal among engineers, lists the following table of contents:

"The Engineer and World Health," an article about "engineering" the hazards of the environment we live in.

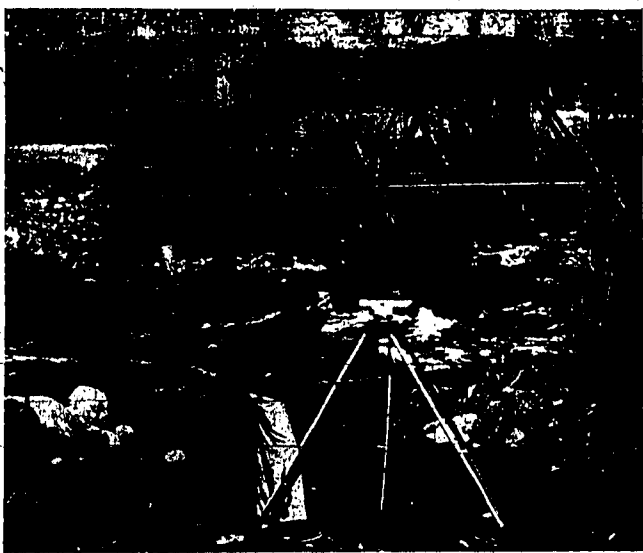

"Patents at the Crossroads," an article about efforts to make the patent system more effective.

"Rx for Defense and Aerospace Engineers," advice for the engineer in defense and aerospace related projects who wants to avoid the pitfalls of Federal cutbacks.

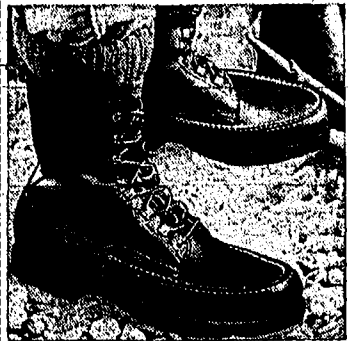

"Speak Better Through Toastmasters," an article outlining how the individual can give clear, crisp verbal presentations before an audience, using the most commonly known, agricultural engineers, mining engineers, metallurgical engineers and geological engineers play an extremely important part in Idaho as well as the rest of the world.

So when the little boy casually says he wants to be an engineer, he has his work cut out before a audience, using the

BRIDGE

By Jacoby

HERE'S THE WAY IT REALLY WAS

The Gilbert and Sullivan song, "A Policeman's Lot is Not a Happy One," might be applied to bridge columnists also.

If today's hand looks familiar to you, it should. It appeared Nov. 30 except that North had six diamonds and only three spades.

South proceeded to make the hand by cashing two clubs, ruffing a club, drawing trumps, cashing his ace and king of spades and ace-king of diamonds as he led three cards in dummy and West, who had to discard before dummy, could not hang onto the queen of spades and king-queen of diamonds.

Several hundred readers pointed out to us that the squeeze was beautiful but unnecessary. In the hand as shown on Nov. 30 North only held three spades. South could discard one of those three spades on a high club and then ruff out his six of spades and nine of clubs.

These readers were very charitable. Most of them said that they liked our column and were pleased to see that we made mistakes just as they did.

We have tried to get personal replies to all of them. If we missed anyone, we hope that it will accept this column as our apology.

The hand as shown today is the one actually played but when we finished writing it up we decided that North's three diamond response with six high card points and a five card suit was a trifle silly and gave North one more diamond and one less spade.

In the hand as shown today if West opens the king or queen of diamonds, South will have to go down.

West opened a trump and

Communism, Miniskirts Have Happy Coexistence in Cuba

BY CHARLES GREEN HAVANA (AP) - Can communism and the bare leg coexist? They seem to be doing a good job of it in Cuba. A glance down La Rampa, Havana's night club strip, on a late afternoon proves Prime Minister Fidel Castro has not tried to impose conservative fashions on the young ladies in the Western Hemisphere. There are more miniskirts per square acre here than in such centers of the outside world as Mexico City.

Miniskirts came to Havana last year and they came high up to mid thigh, from the start. Miss Elena Miller, dress designer for the National Cultural Council, said Cuban girls may be wearing the latest in hem lengths because Cuba is a socialist state. "It is not possible for a country to be the vanguard of something to be left behind in fashion," she said in an interview with the magazine Cuba. "For years we have dressed in accord with Paris, London, Rome and other world fashion centers."

Castro and other Cuban leaders were apparently concerned at first and there were talk miniskirts might be banned. "We heard the government might say we couldn't wear them," a secretary said. "But they haven't said anything and I don't think they will now. Too many girls are wearing them. I don't think the miniskirt has anything to do with the revolution," said Evahora Laudy, a student at Havana University. "You can be a revolutionary with a short skirt or a counter-revolutionary with a long skirt and vice versa."

Reyna Sarmiento, an 18-year-old student, said she had been blamed a miniskirt for trouble in her love life but gave up her boyfriend rather than be outed in fashion. "I had a boy friend named Raul who liked modern music and narrow pants, modern style. I told him I wanted to make a miniskirt and he said that was fine. But when he saw me in it there was a big fight. He said he liked to look at miniskirts but for me not to wear one again. I kept on and we're finished now. I don't like men with complexes. A miniskirt is just part of the fashion," Miss Solman said. "It should be worn with adequate underwear and fantastic shoes."

Fantastic shoes are hard to come by in Havana. The girls have to make do with shoes from East Europe which still have seams down the back. "I don't think the miniskirt has anything to do with the revolution," said Evahora Laudy, a student at Havana University. "You can be a revolutionary with a short skirt or a counter-revolutionary with a long skirt and vice versa."

Ask Them Yourself

FOR J. EDGAR HOOVER,

Director of the F.B.I.
How many F.B.I. agents have been killed in the line of duty?—Sam Albrecht, Vicksburg, Miss.

● Since 1925, 20 special agents have been killed in the line of duty. Fifteen of these men were slain in gun battles. The all-giving spirit of these men who made the supreme sacrifice for their country is immortally inscribed in the annals of the FBI and is a constant source of inspiration to the devoted men and women of the Bureau.

FOR TIMOTHY MAY, General Counsel, U.S. Post Office

Do chain letters violate Post Office regulations? How can a person help stop them?—R. D., Niagara Falls, N. Y.

● A chain-letter scheme designed to obtain money or property by false representation may violate the mail-fraud statute (Sec. 1341, Title 18, U.S.C.). Citizens can help stop illegal chain-letter schemes by sending the letters to the Postal Inspection Service, Washington, D.C. 20260. In the past year, 25 of the 26 schemes investigated by the department have been discontinued. Chain letters are nefarious things.

FOR MONTY HALL

What did you do before becoming "a host of 'Let's Make a Deal'?"—Charles Geller, East-St. Louis, Ill.

● I started in 1955 as a substitute for Warren Hull on "Strike It Rich." I then became "mayor" of tv's "Video Village," and then was coproducer of NBC's "Your First Impression." I also served as a host on radio's "Monitor" for four years.

FOR STAN MUSIAL, Vice President, St. Louis Cardinals

In what major league ball park did you hit your first home run?—Oscar Gordon, Philadelphia, Miss.

● It was hit off Rip Sewell of Pittsburgh at Forbes Field. It was quite a thrill to trot around the bases knowing that Lil (Mrs. Musial), my parents, and many friends were watching.

FOR BRUCE CATTON,

Civil War Historian
Is it true that during the Civil War the Confederacy used a steam cannon which was later captured by Union forces?—Mrs. Doris Crow Grover, Pullman, Wash.

● I don't know of any steam cannon captured by the North during the Civil War. This is not to say that it never happened, but I can find no reference to it in any of the material I have on hand.

FOR JUNE LOCKHART

Besides memorizing so many lines, what is the most difficult part of filming "Lost in Space"?—Phil Johnson Setzer, Stovall, N. C.

● The physical action required by my role. It can get quite strenuous at times. Incidentally, memorizing my lines is one of the easiest jobs.

FOR GOV. RONALD REAGAN

How did you get the nickname "Dutch"?—Mrs. John E. Neal, Bloomington, Ill.

● The day I was born, my father's comment was, "For such a little bit of a Dutchman, he makes a lot of noise, doesn't he?" To this day my old friends from the Midwest call me Dutch.

FOR LAWRENCE WELK

Has dancer Barbara Boylan retired now that she has married? Is her husband in show business?—Mrs. Iver Lohmeyer, Champaign, Ill.

● Yes, Barbara Boylan has retired from show business. Her husband was one of the Blenders, a singing group on my show.

FOR FRANK RYAN, Cleveland Browns

Where did you take your Ph.D. degree and in what subject? What do you do during the off-season?—L. P. Scott, Austin, Texas

● I received my Ph.D. in mathematics from Rice University in Houston. During the off-season, I am on the faculty of Case Tech in Cleveland.

Col. Robin Olds prepares his F-4C for combat.

THE THAI NGUYEN steel mills lie north of Hanoi, a bustling industrial complex ringed by one of the most concentrated anti-aircraft gun emplacements in history.

To hit the steel mills, American bomber pilots must fly through a wall of exploding steel. For most of 1966 and early 1967, the generals at 7th Air Force headquarters in Saigon puzzled over this wall of steel. Then they decided to try an experiment. They named the experiment "Falstaff" and called in the hottest fighter pilot in Vietnam, Col. Robin Olds, commander of the Air Force's best-known MIG killers, "The Wolfpack" (the 8th Tactical Fighter Wing).

The plan, they explained to the Colonel, was simple. Since the flak was so bad around Thai Nguyen at standard attack altitude, why not send in one flight of fighter bombers in a sneak attack "on the deck"—at 20 to 50 feet.

Colonel Olds' gray-blue eyes opened wide. He quietly remarked that the terrain of North Vietnam was a bit mountainous. The generals quietly suggested that Olds, one of the founders of the first Air Force jet acrobatic team, was probably the best pilot in Vietnam for the job.

There didn't seem much else for Olds to say after that. Several mornings later, he and two other pilots found themselves in mosquito-nosed F-4 Phantom jets, roaring off the runway of Ubon Royal Thai Air Base, where Olds and "The Wolfpack" were stationed, and heading North.

This is how Colonel Olds described the mission in an exclusive interview with FAMILY WEEKLY.

"The weather was lousy, plenty of clouds and rainstorms, and we were flying primarily on instruments. The North Vietnamese were busy. On our radarscopes, we could see they had spotted us and were sending up SAMs (surface-to-air missiles). We just prayed the SAMs wouldn't lock onto us as we felt our way over the mountains and down. At 800 feet, we broke through the overcast. There was the Red River below us.

"Now we dropped down to 50 feet doing about

America's top air ace, Col. Robin Olds, relives his toughest

"I Fought to Come

480 knots and weaved through valleys and over hills. We were taking small-arms fire. Actually, they were shooting down at us from rocks and hills. Five miles from target, we were going through solid sheets of tracer, a sky full of black smudges. I took two hits in my right wing, and the fuel and smoke poured out. My wing man took a piece of flak through the canopy. But we pressed on. I was going to put our bombs on target—even if I had to take the flight right into the blast furnaces.

"Locked on target, we made our run over the mills. Bombs off! We banked hard left, glanced back at the swirling smoke and debris over the target, and then headed home weaving through that wall of flak. I was still losing fuel. When we finally rendezvoused with the SAC fuel tanker and hooked up, I had one minute and 15 seconds of fuel left."

Colonel Olds tells the story of "Falstaff" dryly and with a certain bitterness. Like many Air Force officers, he believes that no one back home quite understands the air war over the North.

"This isn't like Korea—dogfights with MIGs mixing it with Sabre jets," says Olds. "There's no glamour. The name of the game is bombing sorties, and the North Vietnamese pay us back brutally—800 planes down at last count. Last Easter Sunday when most good Americans were going to church, I was somewhere over the North with seven MIGs on my tail and a load of bombs that wouldn't jettison. That day and every day I fought just to come back alive."

Despite Colonel Olds' disclaimers about glamour, he himself has emerged as one of the best-known heroes of the Vietnam war. He is credited with shooting down four MIGs, which makes him the top air ace of the war. (Officially, a fighter pilot needs five "kills" to be designated "ace," but Olds' lifetime score also includes 24 planes destroyed during World War II, which makes him an ace in anybody's record book.)

Olds fought in Vietnam through most of 1967, flew 148 combat sorties, and then returned to the States to be Commandant of Cadets at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The Colonel brings to his new job a kind of old-fashioned flamboyant bravado. A tall, handsome man with bull-like shoulders and thinning, grey hair, Olds, at 45, prides himself on being a hard-headed fighter pilot who speaks his mind even if it hurts his career.

"You had to see him when he took over 'The Wolfpack' at Ubon," one of his fellow officers recalls. "He made it instantly clear that they were 'his gang.' It's a tough war over there. If you're a pilot, you climb into your jet, take off, fight, make it back if you can, eat, sleep, and then fight again. Robin Olds believes in this war, and he gave a lot of men out there a reason for fighting. He was always there in the middle of the flak with them, and they trusted him."

Olds always wanted to be a fighter pilot. His father was a career officer and pioneered in the development of the B-17s. Olds, who grew up at Langley Field in Virginia, likes to tell people that his first memories "were the cough of old Liberty engines in the hangars nearby."

Olds leads his "Wolfpack" from a briefing. The toughest jobs over North Vietnam went to his gang.

battles against blazing flak and screaming MIGs

Back Alive!"

By BOB GAINES

Wife Ella Raines, former film star, and daughters Chris and Susan welcome Olds home.

Olds believes in doing things fast and well. At West Point, he was an All-America tackle and captain of the football team. He graduated in time to fly P-51 Mustangs over Germany and make major by the time he was 22. After the war, he helped start the Air Force jet-acrobatic team and raced P-30s for the Thompson Trophy.

In 1947 he met actress Ella Raines at a party in Palm Springs, Calif. It was a jet-propelled courtship—dancing at Ciro's in Los Angeles, skiing at Tahoe—and they were married a few months later. They now have two teen-age daughters, Christine and Susan.

Olds still gnashes his teeth when he recalls his stateside assignments during the Korean war—but then he got his second chance at air combat when he was appointed wing commander of "The Wolf-pack" in September, 1966.

By January, 1967, Olds was ready to tackle the one assignment every American fighter pilot craves—MIG hunting. The MIGs had been chopping up our F-105 Thunderchiefs on bombing raids in the Haiphong-Hanoi area, and 7th Air Force headquarters wanted to discourage them.

"The plan was to lure the MIGs into coming up and then hit them with seven flights of F-4 Phantoms," Olds recalls. "I had the lead flight. Their airbase at Phuc Yen was clouded over as we came in, and there was no sign of MIGs."

Suddenly, a shout on the intercom, "MIGs at your six o'clock," and silver MIGs came shooting up out of the cloud cover into the sunlight. This was the battle Olds had been waiting for since World War II. Quickly, he spotted a MIG about a mile off, locked in his attack computer system, and released two Sparrow missiles. They arced after the North Vietnamese pilot but lost radar contact. The jet dropped down into the cloud cover.

Now a MIG-21 popped up through the clouds. Olds broke after it, threw his Phantom into afterburner, and snap-rolled straight up. When the angle was right, Olds came slowly out of his roll and squeezed off a Sidewinder. There was a flash of red, a smoky explosion; and the MIG's wing broke off.

New MIGs and dapple-gray Phantoms were twisting and maneuvering desperately in the thin air. The MIG cannons sprayed the sky with red golf balls, and the Phantoms slammed their missiles back. Engines screamed as the jets dove and rolled at 20,000 feet. The Phantoms' intercom systems crackled with the excited shouts of the pilots.

Later, in the debriefing room back at Ubon, Robin Olds and his men put together what they had seen. Seven MIGs had been destroyed—one by Olds.

"The day stands out in my mind, first because it was an important battle, second because it was the day I got my first MIG," says Olds. "This is the kind of battle every fighter pilot dreams about—mixing it with the MIGs. But don't think it's easy. This is a tough war and every day scares you." ♦

Now, a world-famous physician, who treats some of America's leading celebrities, says forget about drugs and realize that

FOOD IS YOUR BEST MEDICINE

This is possibly the most controversial medical book for the general public ever written. We believe it may also be the most beneficial.

For in it, a leading physician (who cured himself of dangerous illnesses with food alone) asks you to:

- 1) stop taking dangerous drugs ...
- 2) switch today to an enjoyable NEW way of eating that makes you glow-all-over with great energy—glorious vitality and above all, ROBUST HEALTH! ... even if you've spent the last forty years feeling "rotten!"

Look At The Photo Of Young Looking Dr. Bieler Again! Then Realize That He Has Been A Hard-Working Physician For More Than 50 Years!

Dr. Bieler's message to you is quite simple: He wants you to know that, as a practicing physician for the past 57½ years, he has seen just about every illness and weakness that the human body can suffer. And he believes that the vast majority of ALL illnesses DO NOT HAVE TO EXIST AT ALL!

Let him tell you about this thrilling discovery, right now, in his own words:

"... I have reached three basic conclusions as to the cause and cure of disease. This book is about those conclusions.

"The first is that the primary cause of disease is not germs. Rather, I believe disease is caused by a toxemia which results in cellular impairment and breakdown thus paving the way for the multiplication and onslaught of germs."

"My second conclusion is that in almost all cases the use of drugs in treating patients is harmful. Drugs often cause serious side effects, and sometimes even create new diseases. The dubious benefits they afford the patient are at best temporary. Yet the number of drugs on the market increases geometrically every year as each chemical firm develops its own variation of the compounds. The physician is indeed wary when he can be completely aware of the potential danger from the side effects of all these drugs."

"My third conclusion is that disease can be cured through the proper use of correct foods. This statement may sound deceptively simple, but I have arrived at it only after intensive study of a highly complex subject: cellular and endocrine chemistry."

"My conclusions are based on experimental and observational results, gathered through years of successfully treating patients. Occasionally I have resorted to the use of drugs in emergency situations, but those times have been rare. Instead, I have sought to prescribe for my patients' illnesses, antidotes which Nature has placed at their disposal."

"This book deals with what I consider to be the best food and the best medicine."

WHAT CELEBRITIES SAY

Hedda Hopper said:
"If I'd always taken his advice, I'd never have had a sick day...."

Greta Garbo said:
"Having known Dr. Bieler for some years, I can sure... FOOD IS YOUR BEST MEDICINE...."

Mrs. Frank Lloyd said:
"I consider Dr. Bieler to be as great as any living doctor... because of the many lives I have observed him prolonging after other medical prognostics was nil...."

Now See How This Method Has Worked
On Hundreds Of Cases Histories
From Every Walk Of Life, And With Almost Every Ailment You Can Imagine!

Once again, Dr. Bieler's entire life has been devoted to the deep belief that you can often get rid of most miserable illnesses—health-robbers like arthritis, asthma, eczema, ulcers—yes, even cancer, kidney and liver ailments, premature aging, loss of BIRKENBUD's function—all with the diet given you in this book of making more than certain easy-to-obtain foods that HELP YOUR BODY FLUSH AWAY HEALTH-CORRODING TOXINS!

For example—
The case of the 55-year-old woman who was weak and ill with twinges, painful, arthritic joints; high blood pressure; insomnia and overweight. Now this woman says: "There is not a single twinge of pain any more," and she is in great good health and at her proper weight. (Read the way she did it—with FOOD as her major medicine—beginning on page 19.)

The same priceless principle, and "FOOD medicine," healed a dangerous discharging ulcer that kept a man bedridden. Don't miss this story (page 300) and the key paragraphs that follow it.

The same simple nutrition methods cured a man who was too weak to sit up, with a body temperature of only 97°, a highly irregular heart and other symptoms of advanced, deadly hypothyroidism. After 11 days of Dr. Bieler's food treatment, he felt fine. In 33 days he was strong and capable. (page 311)

And above all, on page 17, read Dr. Bieler's own story! Remember, he proved his methods on himself! When he was ridden with kidney trouble and asthma, and grossly overweight, in fact, when you get your approval copy of FOOD IS YOUR BEST MEDICINE, we think you'll want to turn to page 17 first and read his own personal story of his discovery of the "health magic" that waits in proper nutrition.

SPECIAL NOTE—

How To Use This Book To Your Greatest Advantage—

When you receive your no-risk approval copy, check the COMPLETE INDEX. Within a minute you may find some ailment or debility or misery that is bothering you.

Again, you read it from cover to cover AT OUR RISK! Why not send in the No-Risk Coupon—TODAY!

The author: Henry G. Bieler, M.D.

"I BELIEVE THAT NATURE, IF GIVEN THE RIGHT OPPORTUNITY, IS ALWAYS THE GREATEST HEALER. I often have been in disagreement with doctors who stuff the sick, unattended patient with powerful drugs, and then are forced to remedy the remedy."

"Early in my career, when my own health broke down, I investigated the dangers of drugs and the chemistry of foods. I came to the conclusion that I must give up drugs. It was not long until, after repeated, verifiable, results, I discarded nearly all drugs in treating my patients."

You can save a great deal of the money you now spend on pills and doctors' bills, and spend it on good food and fun."

After half a century of practice, Dr. Bieler attempted to retire but found the world beating a path to his door. His staff is treating movie stars and misers, professional men and Pasadena dowagers, farmers and government officials. Many and many a person blames the wise physician for health restored after it had been given up for lost... for making life full of joy and well worth living.

Dr. Bieler holds the Tilden-Watson-Bieler chair of Dietetic Medicine, sponsored by Columbia University.

How Hospitals Are Banishing Patient Blues

By JAMES H. WINCHESTER

THE PATIENT reported for surgery at the Hospital of St. Anthony de Padua in Chicago and the first thing the nurse told him was, "It's time for your class."

For the next hour, before he could begin brooding about his upcoming operation, hospital staff members briefed him and other new arrivals on what they might all anticipate before, during, and after surgery. Everyone became relaxed and informal.

Much of the patient's anxiety is cancelled by this new program, which is just one of many wonderful ways hospitals are erasing patients' fears.

The Montclair Community Hospital in New Jersey, for example, offers wheel-chair guided tours to entertain convalescents.

Philadelphia's Misericordia Hospital invites new parents to an interesting "farewell" dinner. It is a candlelight gourmet meal for two, the idea being that with the new baby, the mother and father will have little chance for a quiet meal in the next few months.

The sterile institutional look of hospitals is fading everywhere. Wall colors are brighter, and some of the new sick-room furnishings are like those at home. Today's trend is to the natural wood look, instead of metal. To go with the mellower furnishings, warm and intense colors are used.

Patients call the Community Hospital on California's Monterey Peninsula the "Carmel Hilton."

Designed by famed architect Edward Durrell Stone, it has nothing but private rooms, every one of which opens onto a patio.

Letting pediatric-ward nurses wear colored street dresses is another way in which many hospitals are now helping to make things less scary for their small patients. Anything that can help lessen fears speeds a child's recovery.

At Montreal's Children's Hospital visiting hours are virtually unlimited. Fathers often drop in on their way home from work for a few minutes' visit. Mothers pop in whenever they get away from housework. Tender loving care is stressed rather than formality.

Many hospitals now encourage children to bring favorite toys. They provide a feeling of familiarity, comfort, and continuity, and help them maintain an interest in the outside world while they're confined. The University of Michigan's hospital in Ann Arbor, for example, provides its children's floor with a miniature zoo.

Even hospital food is getting fancy. Each year at the Minneapolis Veterans' Hospital, hunters donate freshly shot game for the patients' trays. Pheasant and venison are favorites. On the West Coast, the Kaiser Foundation Hospitals use pre-packaged frozen and dehydrated foods for regular gourmet meals.

Administrators now are realizing that austerity and sterility heighten patients' anxieties. So they are changing the face of the modern hospital, making it more human—and that may be one of the best medicines of all. ♦

New parents dine elegantly in the maternity ward of one hospital.

SAUCES to Capture a Mysterious Taste of the Orient

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Poultry, fish, and pork—staple foods of the Orient—are usually abundant in the American market. One recipe for each features a provocative and harmonious sauce adapted to the American taste.

Apple-Chicken Cantonese

- 6 large chicken pieces (legs and breasts)
- Accent
- Apple Marinade (see recipe)
- 3 large Winesap apples, quartered, pared, and cored

1. Sprinkle chicken pieces generously with Accent and rub in. Place pieces skin side down in a large shallow baking pan.
2. Pour the marinade over chicken. Cover and let stand at least 2 hrs., basting two or three times.
3. Bake at 350°F. 40 min., basting occasionally with the marinade. Turn chicken over, add apple pieces, and spoon marinade over all. Basting occasionally, continue baking 40 min., or until thickest pieces of chicken are tender when pierced with a fork.
4. Transfer chicken and apples to a warm platter. About 6 servings

Apple Marinade

- 3 tablespoons sugar
 - 2 teaspoons cornstarch
 - ½ cup soy sauce
 - ½ cup lime juice
 - ½ cup catsup
 - 3 tablespoons vegetable or peanut oil
 - 1 large Winesap apple, grated
 - 3 minced scallions
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
- Blend ingredients thoroughly.

Basting with its marinade gives Chicken Cantonese an alluring glaze.

Fish in Coconut-Mushroom Sauce

- 1½ cups flaked coconut
- 1½ cups water
- 1 pkg. (2 oz.) dried Japanese mushrooms
- 1 lb. sole or other fish fillets
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- Butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 scallion, sliced
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ to ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 to 4 teaspoons lemon juice

1. Put coconut and water into a saucepan; bring to boiling. Strain, pressing coconut to extract liquid; reserve ½ cup of the coconut for garnish (see Toasted Coconut recipe). Return liquid to saucepan and set aside.
2. Soak mushrooms according to package directions until softened. Drain reserving liquid. Set 8 or 9 mushrooms aside for garnish; slice remaining mushrooms and reserve.
3. Dip fillets into cornstarch, egg, and again into cornstarch, coating all sides. Heat enough butter or margarine to cover the bottom of a large skillet. Add fillets and cook about 2 min. on each side, or until lightly browned and fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Arrange fillets on a heated platter and set aside in warm place.
4. Blend 2 tablespoons of the mushroom liquid into the 2 teaspoons cornstarch until smooth. Add with the sliced mushrooms and last five ingredients to the coconut liquid in saucepan. Bring rapidly to boiling, stirring constantly, and cook until slightly thickened.

5. Spoon sauce over fish; garnish with Toasted Coconut and whole mushrooms, heated in some of their liquid. About 4 servings

Toasted Coconut: Heat 1 tablespoon butter or margarine in a skillet; add the ½ cup drained coconut and heat until lightly browned, stirring occasionally.

Oriental Barbecued Spareribs

- 4 lbs. spareribs
- ¾ cup packed light brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon Accent
- ¼ cup soy sauce
- ¼ cup cider vinegar
- ¼ cup finely chopped crystallized ginger
- 2 cloves garlic, minced

1. Cut spareribs into serving-sized pieces and put into a large saucepot. Add enough water to cover. Cover, bring to boiling, reduce heat, and simmer 1 hour.
2. For the sauce, blend the next three ingredients, then mix in the remaining ingredients.
3. Drain spareribs and dip each piece into the sauce, coating well.
4. Transfer pieces to a broiler rack. Put under broiler with tops of ribs about 3 in. from heat source. Broil about 5 min., or until richly browned, brushing two or three times with the sauce. Turn ribs and brush generously with sauce. Broil second side until richly browned, about 3 min., brushing once or twice with sauce. Serve with fluffy cooked rice and garnish with Mandarin oranges. About 6 servings

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child. At age four and a half, she's already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library. She reads books many third graders find "hard going." Yet she won't enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with "Listen and Learn with Phonics"—a reading kit that actually makes reading fun. "Listen and Learn with Phonics" was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinatingly engages young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on the phonograph record, sees them in his book and repeats them himself. This makes an absorbing game of better reading—with amazing results!

FOR EXAMPLE:

- Slow or average readers show sudden, often spectacular improvement in reading, in spelling, in understanding.

- Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age levels.

- Young "pre-schoolers" actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective phonics method of words, pictures, and records!

phasis on religion, love, and a feeling for authority when it is required.

As mothers know, the "who is boss?" game between parents and children seems to last from the time they are a year and a half until they are four. And my husband and I firmly believe that if you don't have them trained by then, you have a tough time ahead. We were firm with all our children. In fact, Dianne got her last spanking when she was 11. Consequently we never had any of the problems in raising the girls which seem so prevalent today (smoking, drinking, drugs).

Obviously, we couldn't afford to spoil the girls when they were young. They learned to appreciate whatever little extras we could afford to give them. They never had any regular allowance, but on some occasions they were given a nickel or a dime for ice cream.

We took only one vacation together as a family, about a year before they first appeared on the Lawrence Welk show. For weeks we planned the camping trip to Idlewild, about three hours by car from Venice. But when the time came, we simply didn't have money for it. The girls insisted we could manage, and each helped with their tiny savings.

There were 10 of us who finally piled into our old sedan and took off for the mountains. We could afford only one tent, which meant the older children slept outside in sleeping bags. But it was fun.

The Lennon sisters won wealth and fame—but only after their difficult childhood.

Possibly because they were accustomed to getting along on little money, none of the girls is extravagant today. Dianne and Janet have modest homes near us, and Peggy has a bigger but also inexpensive home in the San Fernando Valley.

Naturally when they were ready to get married, we were concerned how their prospective husbands would feel about the fact that the girls were making more money than they did—or possibly could ever hope to make. But we weren't half as concerned as the fellows, particularly Dick Gass, who had proposed to Dianne.

"I never want a penny of Dianne's earnings," he assured Bill. My husband replied, "You're already starting out on the wrong foot. Dianne's earnings are yours. You are the man of the house. If you can live on what you make, fine; then put the rest into a savings account, but never consider it separate from yours."

Frankly, we were a bit worried about Dick Cathcart, Peggy's husband, because he was married before and had three children, the oldest now 15. Peggy, however, was always mature for her age and assured us she had thought about it very carefully. Besides, she had to wait a year for a church tribunal to clear the marriage. (It was because Dick's first wife had never been baptized.)

From what I've described, it might seem that our life, in spite of financial obstacles, was a bed of roses. It wasn't. Our girls learned that there are ups and downs but that one can cope with tragedies if one's belief in God is strong enough.

About 12 years ago, I was on the front lawn with the children. We were watching Mary, then 16-months-old, as she danced on the lawn, showing off her new dress. Suddenly I saw that she was dancing into the street. A car came down the street at no more than 15 miles an hour. In spite of the low speed, the driver failed to see Mary and hit her.

Mary's death affected the four oldest girls as much as it did me. But we accepted the fact that if God wanted to take Mary—or any of us—it was His privilege.

I wish I could say it was tough raising my girls, that we really worked hard and did a marvelous job. But honestly, I feel that most credit must go to family background: helping each other and being kind to one another is our way of life.

With four daughters married, we're still a family. The girls and their own families visit us almost daily. If anything is wrong with our grandchildren, my daughters will call me before they phone the doctor. Their children and my youngest are like brothers and sisters.

In fact, I feel that my husband and I are raising two families. Dianne, Peggy, Kathy, and Janet seem a generation apart from their seven brothers and sisters. But all I can say is that if the young ones grow up as well as our four oldest, my husband and I have every right to consider ourselves the happiest of parents. ♦

Now... elastic membrane will

Revolutionize Denture Wearing

The big difference between natural teeth and dentures is in performance. Natural teeth are held solidly in place by living connective tissue. Without connective tissue, even the most expensive dentures may slip and rock. Gums often get raw and sore. Constant rubbing may cause serious bone damage. Eating can be slow and painful. You speak less clearly. You dare not laugh for fear of dentures dropping. Now chemists have discovered an artificial connective membrane — FIXODENT. It connects dentures with gums and mouth surfaces. It is incredibly effective for both upper and lower. FIXODENT's elastic membrane absorbs the shock of biting and chewing

Now Possible To Shrink Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases

Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases — to stop burning itch, pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain and itching, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

The answer is Preparation H[®] — there is no other formula like it for hemorrhoids. Preparation H also soothes inflamed, irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

—helps protect gums from brushing and irritation. You eat faster—bite harder, without pain—enjoy your food more. Eat hard-to-chew foods—steaks, fruits—without "denture malnutrition," a problem of older people.

FIXODENT helps you speak easier, faster, more clearly. When dentures slip you feel them in place with tongue and cheek muscles that ache. FIXODENT helps prevent strain.

The special, pencil-point dispenser spouts FIXODENT with precision—no clogging over. Often lasts round-the-clock. It won't resist hot drinks. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get special FIXODENT at all drug counters.
