Writer Investigates Contrasts Between Today And Depression Years

By BONNIE JONES

The writer in February, Twin Falls County Commissioners adopted a $3 million budget after much deliberating and discussing with taxpayers and organizations as to just what the county could afford and what the taxpayers wanted to pay for.

To show commissioners what has happened in the past in Twin Falls County and what difficulties result from over-spending, County Clerk Harold Lancaster went into county files and brought out the minutes of a special county commission meeting of Feb. 17, 1932.

Although it brought a few smiles from present commissioners, the board agreed the situation was a dark one back in 1932 during depression days. At that time, commissioners J. J. Barnes, chairman, E. Finch, and George R. Hart, meeting with their clerk, Harry Parsons, were faced with the fact that about 25 per cent of the county's taxes were delinquent. Taxpayers not having the money with which to make payments.

In addition, the county had borrowed money from banks and was faced with meeting notes and having to cut down on regular county operations and expenses to meet payments.

Some of the comments taken down in the special meeting's minutes indicated the bankers did not have much faith in the commissioners' ability to work out the problem to the satisfaction of banking interests.

Showing how things have changed in 36 years in the local county and elsewhere was a discussion on salaries.

In discussing how much of a salary increase could be provided, commissioners were reminded that they could cut employees salaries without having to replace all of the employees. This town was not a great problem, it seemed, since there were far more unemployed persons in the county than jobs.

As usual when it's time to economize, the commissioners in 1932 took a look at the county's hospital operation.

The total hospital budget 36 years ago was $106,488 for the hospital and nursing home with a full staff of 24 persons. This year the budget is approximated at $2 million for the local hospital.

In conferring with Miss Maxwell, hospital administrator in 1932, county commissioners reviewed salaries for hospital personnel. The administrator was receiving $125 per month, term inferred they would probably purchase their job and if they did, others could be found with no too much difficulty. Commissioners cut the administrator's salary, $10 per month although they were in the habit of working from 7 a. m. until 11 p. m. and was on call 24 hours a day, doing all jobs others could not do or were not available to handle.

Other proposed cuts included all street lights around the hospital and installing reflectors to mark driveways, and eliminating several telephone lines. To use and income were down another department that was cut to the bone was the Weedall

After reviewing the 1932 problem, current commissioners concluded the situation today may not be so bad after all.

Woman Wins Traffic Case In Court

A woman driver took her case against a traffic light to Fifth Judicial District Court in Twin Falls and won.

Judge James M. Cunningham in a memorandum opinion, ruled that Eunice I. Jones is entitled to a change of failing to stop for a red traffic light. She was cited by state Pa-roltman William Van Dyke for traveling through the intersection at North five-points on Blue takes Boulevard North.

White Judge Cunningham did not rule the officer was incorrect in enforcing the law to stop for a red traffic light. In view of the fact that the yellow caution light remained on for only two and one-half seconds, the woman was not guilty of the alleged offense.

"If this light were operating within the limits prescribed by the Idaho Board of Highway Directors, it would have remained yellow not less than three seconds nor more than five seconds," Judge Cunningham stated.

He added the woman apparently entered the intersection when the light was yellow and continued to do so to do. Because of the short span of the caution light, she was not liable for failing to stop for a red traffic light.

As a result the judge ruled the woman driver innocent of the alleged charge of failing to stop on a red traffic signal.

Need To Strengthen Vietnam Army Stressed

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
SAIGON (AP) — A high American military source says it is more urgently necessary to begin preparing the South Vietnamese army to fight its own war.

This idea has been put forward in the past, with little visible results, but this time it is proposed against the backdrop here by the Communist Tet offensive last year — offensive.

The United States, the informant said in an interview, will never be able to walk out of this country unless and until the ARVN — Army of the Republic of Vietnam — is strong enough to defend it.

Let's get them into a battle and let them see that it's their battle and that they'll have strong support from us," he said.

For much of the time since the U.S. buildup started in the crisis of 1965, Americans have been doing the bulk of the fighting. Battalions of Vietnamese troops have been assigned the job of nation-building. The ARVN record in this has been spotty.

As for fighting, the South Vietnamese troops "HAVE had two victories against the enemy, a shortage of capable leadership and a dearth of equipment."

"We should give them more and better equipment, including some helicopters of their own," the informant said. "When the helicopters come, we grab them all."

The idea of giving the ARVN more-impersonal battle to replace the morale and pride in their own army. Source says that at the same time, such a move would tend to ease complaints among both Americans and South Vietnamese about U.S. domination of the war effort, the source said.

In any case, the process would be slow.

However, the Communist offensive is looked upon as a sort of shock treatment. Americans say they detect a hardening process in the ranks of ARVN.

Two corps commanders have been fired.

Even before Tet, the government had been resorting to extraordinary measures to replace them and among the measures were amnesties for deserters, extension of the draft to include ages from 18 to 31 and recall of some veterans.

Many are tired and often physically fit. This country fighting men — the best — are has been at war to a greater or lesser degree, for more than a month volunteers who get pre-

IT PAYS TO KEEP UP on the changes in Social Security benefits. The Twin Falls office is trying to get the new out-to those who have benefits coming under new laws, but it's a big job. Here, Mrs. Marie St. Denis, who will get a check each month because of a change in the law. Young Tommy, 4, looks on. Social Security official, from left, are Pat O'Marra, Twin Falls office manager; James Cook, claims representative, and Grant Williams, assistant regional representative from Denver. Anyone who has a question about social security benefits should contact the Twin Falls office.

Contracts To Be Discussed At Spud Meet

BURLEY — Bargaining agreements will be discussed with officials and members of the Potato Growers of Idaho Inc. concerning the 1959 crops at a series being held throughout the eight counties.

Conducting the meeting will be Gerald J. Covarr, Burley, chairman of District Five which includes Cassia and Twin Falls counties. The district has 14 potato growers.

Other speakers will be Allen Larson, Moreland, president of the National Potato Council.

Both Covarr and Topfili have been active in getting the farmers together so that united action can be taken in contract negotiations with the various processing plants.

The Potato Growers group has conducted negotiations with processors for years and is recognized by most of the companies in this area. Clarence Carr, Burley, is state chairman of the group.

"The results of price farmers are getting for their 1957 crops is just one reason the meeting has been called," stated Carr.

"The declarations by many potato growers that they do not intend to plant any potatoes for the coming season is another reason for the meeting," Carr stated.

Details of the proposed agreement will be discussed at a meeting, reports of action taken or planned in other parts of the state also will be given.

Last week a similar meeting was held at the Murrah Grove Hall with most of those attending joining with the Potato Growers on the bargaining plan.

Millions Receiving Bigger Checks On Social Security

By JACK MILLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 20 million Americans, young and old, are receiving larger Social Security checks starting today.

And the government is adding nearly half a million more persons to the Social Security rolls under the legislation enacted by Congress last year.

The benefit increase, at least 10 per cent for everyone and higher in some cases, is the first since a 1 per cent hike in July 1958.

The dollar total of the increase is the largest ever for the system: $2.5 billion over what would have been paid this year. The average couple's check goes from about $185 to $185.

Maximum benefits for a couple increase from $310 to $320, the maximum for a single person goes from $142 to $150.

Smallest monthly payment to a worker who retired at age 65 reaches $55, from $44.

To finance the increase, the government will take a bigger bite from workers' earnings. But only one-fourth will have their taxes raised, the rest because the percentage withholding stays the same this year — a maximum of 4.4 per cent — or no past earnings up to earnings up to $7,800 instead of $6,000.

College students' expanded coverage and benefits effective with today's checks.

People 72 or older who had little or no past earnings will have Social Security will get $10 instead of $5.

Reuther Asks Private Caucus On AFL-CIO Boss

By NEIL GILBRIDE
WASHINGTON (AP)—Auto unions have several union presidents in the caucus in New York's Roosevelt Hotel March 11. Reuther is the chief leader charges against AFL-CIO President George Meany on whether to pull the caucus to lay down what Reuther's biographer says is a "major schism" in the union.

For more than a year, Reuther has been describing the leadership as "underdeveloped," "complacent," "vegetating" and "not talking with you about the differences between the Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO," Reuther said in telephone interviews. He said the union presidents were "able to get their act together" and that his absence on Reuther's invitation to the caucus was "a major schism" in the union.

Some speculated Reuther was calling a caucus of former members of the CIO which Reuther headed before the merger with Meany's AFL.

Reuther was trying to set up a CIO caucus, I can't think why I wasn't invited," said President Joseph A. Beineke of the Communications Workers of America which was in the old CIO.

"I don't think there is a CIO any more," Beineke added. "I thought the CIO was merged with the AFL in 1955."

But the invitation of Cogen, whose teachers' federation was an AFL-union before the merger, unions with some 6 million members. The Industrial Union Department in the past year virtually liquidated long-standing reserves of more than $2 million.

The money has gone for organizing drives and strike assistance to other unions while the Auto Workers cut off their substantial financial contributions to the department.

In effect, the Auto Workers union has been spending its own money out of the Industrial Union Department treasury to help other unions.

Gold Drain May Be Helped By Tariff Cuts

—By CARL HARTMAN
BRUSSELS (AP) — Plans for tariff cuts designed to help Britain out of its economic plight, threaten to add to the drain of gold and dollars from the United States.

The monthly manufacturing survey indicates change in international finance because of world dependence on the dollar.

The new plan is being aimed at Britain's ability to sell their goods more easily on the continent, and continental firms would have an easier time in Britain.

To stop the dollar drain, President Johnson is applying measures which hurt European business, curb on tourists, on U.S. investment and on imports of goods from abroad.

The plan to help Britain is sponsored by West Germany. It is seen as a kind of consolation prize for Britain after President Charles de Gaulle's second veto of its efforts to join the European Common Market.

WEST Germany is expected to draw up a formal proposal this week. It goes first to the other Common Market countries: France, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

"Warm And Cozy" Describes Beauty Of Fireplaces

CLEANING IN FRONT of one of three fireplaces in her home is Mrs. Donald G. Siegel. This fireplace is located in the game room and hanging above it is the head of a Cape Buffalo trophy the Siegels brought home from an African hunt 10 years ago. Mrs. Siegel said she was up in a tree when the buffalo was shot.

ENJOYING THE WARMTH of their living room fireplace are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Hogg and their son, Chris, and daughter, Tamara. Carl Pothier, Ketchum contractor, built this fireplace, putting each piece of lava together with a grayish-blue mortar, establishing a very unique pattern of molten.

Fireplaces Glow In Snow Country

By DOROTHY POEY
Times-News Correspondent

HAILEY—What is a fireplace? Webster defines it as "the place in a chimney that opens into an apartment and contains a grate."

Webster had no imagination. He must never have relaxed in the warmth of an open hearth, nor let the magic of the flames carry him into the land of pleasant memories or dreams of the future. He must never have experienced the feeling of good fellowship created by the fire's glow.

Or, when he was too young to have as yet collected memories, and lived only for the day, he must never have roasted a wren or marshmallow on the end of a willow, or popped corn over the heat of the dying coals.

There are many types of fireplaces, but in the homes of the snow countries of the west some of the most notable architecture are found. In tune with their surroundings they are rugged, handsome structures.

Native rock, which until the past few years has been despised as a nuisance to be put up with, has taken on an air of distinction. Lava, from that great flow known as the Craters of the Moon, gathered in quantities in the vicinity of the ice Caves, which covered granite from the mountains, and sand stone from the lower elevations, all have found favor with home-builders, especially for fireplaces.

Another product of the area finding more use is the wood which keeps the fires of the open hearths burning. Quantities of pine, fir, cottonwood, and aspen are harvested each year and corded in neat rows close by.

Let us pause for a moment and bask in the warmth of a few of the newly built fireplaces in this area. Dr. and Mrs. B. L. Krellkamp, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hemingway, Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Siegel and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Hogg.

Two years ago was the time for Dr. Krellkamp, his wife and their eight children to add a new page to their "book of memories." A page which will tell of their life in what has been called their "western-aki home," built at the mouth of the Triumph Mine Gulch some five miles north of Hailey. Silhouettes of the old Triumph mine mill buildings, representing those of all mining camps of the West, influenced the style of architecture for this home, providing a sense of historical continuity between the old and the new. In their geometrical forms the roof slopes, and the vertical masses of the cabin relate to the slopes and scale of the mountains beyond.

The massive fireplace is as livable and as unusual as the home itself. Of native rock, it dominates the living room, the den and the dining area.

Mrs. Krellkamp laughed when she told of the horror of Joe Chuggan, a local mason, fireplace builder par excellence, when she showed him the plans.

There is no rockwork above the shoulder-high plate. Rather two three-foot in diameter chimneys extend to the ceiling and compliment the black mortar used in the rock. A six-foot wide "wood box" for the big logs used in the grate is an extension of the fireplace proper, and completes the partial divider between the living room and the den. Flames from the half-moon open hearth give light and warmth to both rooms.

Yielding attention are the 12-foot high windows forming the east wall of the living room, which give a close-up view of nature's pastel paintings of the swift running waters of Big Wood River at its confluence with its East Fork. The scene is fringed with quaking aspen and alders at the water's edge. This scene is especially beautiful in the winter, when the quaking aspen stand naked of their leaves, the snow eddies the stream and a full moon shines upon the water," Mrs. Krellkamp said.

Several steps lead up from the living room to the dining area, from where one may look down at the open hearth or out through the window wall to watch the cold, crisp sparkle of stars in the blue heavens.

Some five miles north of Ketchum, on a three and one-half acre tract of meadow land, with a little sage brush, willows and some older and cottonwood trees along the river bank thrown in for spice, the Jack Hemingways built their western home last summer.

It is a large, two story structure of wood, rock and glass to accommodate comfortable living for the couple and their three daughters, Muffet, 17, Margot, 15, and Mariel, six years of age.

The picture windows to the east and glass doors opening to the west give a view Ernest Hemingway's son and his family can enjoy as he did.

The three fireplaces in the home are all used, but for different occasions, says Mrs. Hemingway, affectionately known to the family and many friends as Puck.

SITTING ON THE HEARTH of the dark lava-rock fireplace in their recreation room is Mrs. Jack Hemingway and her small daughter, Mariel. This is one of three fireplaces in their home, all used for different occasions. One is located in the family room, one in the living room and this one in the recreation room. Native rock, which until the past few years has been despised as a nuisance, has taken on an air of distinction in the construction of the fireplaces.

THE MASSIVE FIREPLACE in the Dr. B. L. Krellkamp home is as unusual as the home itself. Mrs. Krellkamp and her son, John, enjoy the warmth of the living room side of their "see-through" fireplace. On the other side of the large half-circle opening, the light and warmth from the burning logs reflect into a cozy room atmosphere. Built of lava and native rock, the fireplace dominates the living room, the den and the dining area.

Warmth Of Fireplaces Belies Winter Cold, Snow

To add hominess to the family room—where refreshments can be served from the kitchen through a snack-bar opening, there is a corner fireplace in the living room. The fireplace extends full-length between this side of the home and the living room.

The red of the tiled floor and deep rust of a small portion of wall space are brightened by green and gold appointments and a view of the mountains and river bottom land through glass doors across the heavy white drapes may be drawn.

It is on the large hooked rug in front of this hearth that Marie likes to play with her kitten, kitten or her black poodle, Hilton.

Bordering on the conventional, and used for formal occasions, is the living room fireplace of gray-blue brick. The surface tones blend with the different shades of blue and gold velvets of the room.

From the dining area, at one end of the living room and up two steps, the bright light gleam may be enjoyed.

In the recreation room, down a few steps from the living room, the fireplace of dark lava rock, the mouth of which is capable of devouring huge logs, is almost the length of the north wall. The ping pong table, the atlas, games and books all find a place of convenience in this entire family and their friends.

Jack Hemmings finds inspiration in the willing flames of a translucent flames of an open hearth, as he does from the ever-changing patterns of the skylies of the Sawtooths, which he can watch from the large picture windows of the living room.

The split-level home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Siegel and their four children at the mountain side of Warm Springs spreads over the south fringe of the north side of the canyon just before it dips down to the Big Wood River. Their view to the south takes in Sun Valley's "Bald Mountain" and extends on down the valley.

In building their three fireplaces, he's a fire and flower planter, the Siegels used much native rock, trees native to this area, shrubs and lawns have been cultivated and made a lush setting for their westward home.

The living room fireplace is most pretentious, taking up the entire north wall except a glassed-in portion which extends to the mountains beyond. The ceiling-high structure is of native granite, with its rough texture softened and highlighted by lichen in shades of chartreuse.

Complementing black mortar used in the rockwork are the Haemmerle, Sun Valley artist-decorator, completed the peeling with black mortar.

Glass doors open out from the south wall of the room to an outdoor living area. A large carpet of more modern style is built on the inside wall of the master bedroom, where the glass doors also provide a view and open out onto a stone patio.

Although the burning logs in this fireplace are beneath a large, black canopy, the raised hearth and impressive rockwork extend two sides, extending to the ceiling, are of native granite with lichen.

Overtopping the sand stone fireplace in the game room is a huge trophy head of a cape buffalo Mr. Siegel brought down on a big game hunt in South Africa. Mrs. Siegel laughed, "I shot him in three when Don was born."

Jack Toothman delivers the wood for his fireplaces out by the youngsters' playhouses, said Mrs. Siegel, "and the boys carry it in and rack it up." "With three fires we build every day we are becoming pretty expert at it," she laughed.

Coming indoors from the crisp, cold air of the outdoors, we all slid down into easy chairs before the open hearth of the Ernest A. Hogg living room. A pile of apple pie fresh from the oven, heaped with ice cream, a cup of hot coffee, and the warmth of the flames soon worked their magic. We were reminiscing.

Most interesting to all of us were the story-book experiences of his hostess.

"It's didn't rain where we were, when I was 20," she said. "Mrs. Hogg missed," she always spent that time on Warm Springs Creek."

The summer of 1965 Mrs. Hogg, her son, Gunther, and daughter, Tamara, lived in a sheep wagon on the property, making final plans for the building of their home.

"We told Carl Pothier, Ketchum building contractor, whose father was one of my father's best friends, what we wanted and left everything up to him. He never set the house until it was completed," Mrs. Hogg noted.

Mr. Pothier must have hand picked and cleaned every piece of lava which went into the fireplace, putting them in a special grayish mortar. He established a pattern of motion which is unique.

"The center of the hearth and of the hearth-settee, are hand-carved, solid cherry wood chests from Sendal in the central part of Finland. Inset in the center chest is wrought iron. It is the crest of the ancient royal family, as when they belonged to a Breiter from Motococ-sis beside the hearth, and two five-

Gentlemanly Trousers Not Listed in Women's Styles

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON NEW YORK (AP) — If pants-wearing women are a threat to the masculinity of the man, can breathe easier. The threat appears to be over. "Pantaloons" may be. Or mini-pants. Or floppy whimsy pajama tops. But not gentlemanly trousers.

Although Tuesday was the seventh consecutive day of spring-style previews for the nation's fashion press, few pants were showcased. One exception: Or they can be Edwardian dandies in fitted tunic suits, and brandishing walking sticks.

Pauline Trieger, seat, came on her mannikin on stage in a pants costume called the snob—a tunic coat over blouse and pants. Yet for the "Sudestic snob, there was an extra dress to wear with that coat.

Even Mister Pants, a sweater dress house, dressed from a full show of long and short division to throw in a few

By contrast, there are dozens of ways girls can be all-girl spring.

She can be an old-fashioned as Gibson Girl. Designer Chester Wemberg's models look that direction at times, in printed mid-length dresses sashed at the middle and puffed at the necks and/or hemlines. Often they topped all this with a heavy load of posies wrapped around huge brims.

Other designers have decided women should turn the clock even farther back to when suffrage was unheard of, to mimic middles and ballooning skirts and corset-cut skirts for the war—and the only female rebels were political.

Designing women's dressiness to the surface; showed bias-cut costumes that slithered across the figure—in simple sheaths, or swung free from the shoulders, unless leashed by elasticated or under-pneumatic belts.

Matching Necessary In Styles

NEW YORK (AP)—It takes longer and if it costs more she ought to be right in style for women to dress in this coming spring because everything has to match.

That has become evident at the American Designer Spring conference opening which centered Tuesday for the nation's fashion press.

Forget the gloves and that bit that fit only a minor scramble compared with the major matter of being coordinated from the square top of a lady's platform soled, dumpy heeled shoe to the top of her ringleted head this spring.

Consider the brow wrinkles of a woman assembling her wardrobe for a day at school or the office, or a night on the town. Designers Anne Klein, Lotte Hoffman and Don Simanelli did before they created the lines they shipped to the runways for fashion consumption.

Is she feeling parloric? Then she ought to be right in style. She ought to be right in style. She ought to be right in style. She ought to be right in style.

IF YOU HAD IT ALL TO DO
OVER WOULD YOU MARRY
THE SAME WOMAN?

Maybe she's not the world's greatest cook. But you think she has the world's biggest brain. Maybe she's not the brightest she looks like somebody's mother. But when you take her out she glitters like a gem. Maybe she's not so great in little emergencies... But in a major crisis she's the family rock. Maybe, in fact, you think she's the bravest, wisest, most understanding mother-you-kids-ever had.

And you'd marry her again in a minute.

If you want to get symbolic about it, nothing beats telling her you like a certain wedding ring. As a gift for her birthday. Or your next anniversary. Or whenever it happens to be Mothers Day again.

And since no one you know of has a larger selection of fine diamond rings, why not see your Sighting Jeweler...

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My son is in high school and is getting to be a very clever thief. We give him a monthly allowance and if he asked for another extra, we would be glad to give it to him, but he doesn't ask. He just takes it. He has stolen little things from his friends, and now I find that he's taken things from the grocery store, drugstore and other places of business.

I am finding places in my room that I know he didn't buy. I have even threatened to take him to the police station to register him, but nothing helps. Am I raising a criminal? Please help me.

BROKENHEARTED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: A child who steals is a child who steals. Needs professional help. He can be brainwashed out if he's taken in hand early. Threatening him with the police is useless. A policeman should be identified as a friend, who protects us and our property, not an enemy who would take pleasure in punishing our wrongdoing. Ask your family doctor when to see about this boy.

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it true that if two people dance well together, it means they are "meant for each other"?

I heard somewhere that if a boy and girl dance well together, they will probably have other things in common and will last.

New Member Is Welcomed

BURLY — Mrs. John Burkhardt was welcomed as a new member of the Home Culture Club when members met for their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. John Baly.

Mrs. L. E. Hawkins presented the program and told of her recent trip to New York. She displayed articles she received as a result of winning a national sewing contest.

The group decided to co-sponsor a city beautification project introduced by the Garden Friends Club.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Baly, Mrs. Amanda Bacter and Mrs. Dale Flatter. Mrs. Mathews and Mrs. Guy Patner were guests.

Coming Events Are Scheduled

BURLY — Plans for coming events were made during the Report, Canton and Auxiliary No. 19 meeting at the Burlly IOOF Hall.

Mrs. Fern Porter, Caldwell, state president, will attend the March 25 meeting at Bury. A covered dish dinner will be held at 6 p.m. and a special silver drill toward the president's project is planned.

It was announced a drill practice will be held at 2 p.m. March 12 at Burlly.

A planter of flowers was presented to Mrs. Hazel Schweitzer in memory of her sister.

Open-house dinners and thoughts were given by Bala Allen. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Esther Arboogast and Mrs. Nancy Howard.

LOVES TO DANCE

DEAR LOVES: When two people dance well together, it means only one thing. They dance well together. Believing one, it means nothing else. If you are using "dancing" as a basis for compatibility in marriage, forget it.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is getting married soon and being as how the never made it in college, we would like to give him a large sum of money for a wedding gift.

It is in the book of etiquette that checks on wedding and pre-wedding should not be put on display with the rest of the wedding gifts.

My husband doesn't get along with this. He feels like we are giving the new bride as much money as we should be giving full credit for it.

GROOM'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Check it should not be "on display" along with the other wedding gifts. The book of etiquette recommends displaying only the amount, but covering the signature, which strikes me as being pretty ridiculous. And anyone who gives a large sum of money as a wedding gift wants to make sure he gets full credit for it will, because he's the type who will tell everyone he knows.

DEAR ABBY: To the "Guests" who sit at the head table at a wedding reception, while a beautiful three-tier wedding cake sits untouched on the buffet table.

You wouldn't have had any better luck at our silver wedding reception. We also had a three-tier beautiful wedding cake on our buffet table, but we didn't offer anyone a piece. It was a "white" (unwanted) made of plaster of paris, loaned to us for the occasion, and intended for decoration only. Sorry.

Church Backs Away From Earlier View

BOISE (AP)—U.S. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Friday "I let my tongue run away with my better judgment" in commenting earlier this year on the Pueblo crisis.

Church, speaking at a Boise service club, said he now believes the Johnson administration is following the right course by negotiating for the release of the Pueblo and its 53-man crew.

"I'm not particularly proud of what I said then," Church said. "We very well could have sent an air strike in and killed a lot of North Koreans. But I don't know how many more would have been recruited."

Church was quoted on Jan. 24 by the Associated Press as saying: "The seizure of the Pueblo and her crew by North Korea is more than an act of piracy of the high seas. It is an act of war against the United States. The ship must be returned at once, with all Americans aboard. Our national honor is at stake. An American crew has been kidnapped, an American vessel has been boarded by international waters and stolen away."

Jerome Edges Wood River 54-49 To Claim A-2 District Championship

BIG RYER SMELL, the scrapping Jerome was battling with 181 pounds against the Wood River boys who were trying to claim the championship. First-round action in the A-2 tournament was held at the Wood River gymnasium on Saturday night. The Grizzlies, who played Jerome, won the first round 54-49. This was the sixth tournament for Jerome as they had to play a regular game for the title, and this was the third straight game for the Grizzlies this week.

Earlier in the season Wood River had beaten the Tigers twice, and once earlier in the tournament by a considerable margin.

It was a strong defensive battle with both teams scoring on free throws. Jerome pulled the win by rebounding the key free throws.

The Tigers were named the deciding factor, as Jerome hit 19 of 21, while Wood River hit 16 of 21. Jerome hit seven of those 10 misses did not come until the final period, when they were needed the most.

Phil Packer put Wood River on the scoreboard first, and they led 10-0 in the first quarter to give the Wolverines a 4-0 lead. Ron Blake and Larry Walters kept Jerome alive as they hit three straight free throws. Water added two more field goals to 14, the score at 27-10.

Jerome's comeback was mainly in the period, and Blake and Gordon Ford put Jerome ahead 35-27.

River closed the gap to 41-35 by the end of the game.

Jim Hertz hit three quarter points to give the Wolverines a 41-35 lead, and the lead was narrowed back and forth until the final minutes when Tom Hertz put Wood River ahead by two and Tom added two free throws after the buzzer sounded to give the Wolverines a 49-54 halftime lead.

The Tigers jumped off to a quick lead in the second half and tied the score at 33-33 with about four and a half minutes left to play. Blake hit a free throw but Blake hit a free again in the closing seconds to give Jerome a 41-40 edge.

The fighting referee never gave up the lead in the final frame, but Wood River came

Hayes Passes 1,000 Mark

HOUSTON (AP) — Player of the Year Elvin Hayes passed the 1,000-point mark for the season by pouring in 41 and leading unbeaten No. 1 Houston to its 20th straight win, 70-79, over Virginia Tech Saturday.

The Cougars, 27-0 this season, fell behind 10-7 to trail the smaller Gobblers, but with Hayes scoring his team's first seven points they soon gained the lead. Once the Cougars dominated the game, Hayes not only dominated the scoring but controlled both boards, hauling down 21 rebounds in the first half alone.

Oregon Downs Washington 85-83

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The Ducks, winning their second straight Pacific basketball game after 10 losses, pushed to a 10-point first half lead, but finally held off a late-lucky rally led by Dave Carr.

With Carr, who had 20 points in the final six minutes, finished the game with 28 points, most of which came from the 20-10 10-foot line.

Carr's 20-foot jumper put the Huskies out from 73-72 with 4:05 remaining.

But the Ducks turned five Washington fouls into victory.

Montana Takes Two Wins From Bengals

MISSOULA (AP) — The revitalized Montana Grizzlies Saturday night, hitting 11 crucial free throws in the final two minutes to edge the Bengals, 81-81.

The Grizzlies, who played catch-up ball throughout much of the second half, got an outstanding clutch performance from the Agather twins, Max and Mark, and John Check.

The three opponents shared the Grizzlies' last 13 points, providing the punch for victory.

Max Agather hit four free throws in the last 30 seconds to give the Grizzlies the lead at 81-81. The Bengals' high-scoring Ron Boone, who finished the game with 34 points, made a layup to bring the Bengals within two points.

Kimberly Rallies Past Glens Ferry To Claim A-3 District Cage Crown

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Sports Editor

Weber Grabs Big Sky Loop-Cage Crown

BOZEMAN (AP)—Weber State College captured the Big Sky Conference cage Saturday night with a convincing 85-67 victory over Montana State University.

The victory earned Weber a spot in the NCAA playoffs. They will meet New Mexico State in the first round March 9 in Salt Lake City.

The Wildcats had to battle the first 20 minutes and led 28-23 at halftime but came back with a tough half-court press to outpace the Wildcats 52-22 in the second half.

The Weber defense forced 14 Montana State turnovers in the second stanza.

Wildcat center Dan Sparks tallied 32 points to lead Weber's victory score. Sparks also had command of the backcourt and finished the night with 19 rebounds. Montana State's Jack Gillespie collected a total of 20 rebounds but failed to score in the second half.

Arizona State Drops Utah 83-82

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP)—Arizona State University wiped out a point deficit in the last 4 1/2 minutes to pin an 83-82 Western Athletic Conference setback on Utah Saturday night.

Utah's jumper with 1:45 left and a ball of treacherous throws by Bob Edwards proved the margin of victory.

Merv Jackson of Utah led scorers with 25 points and connected on a jumper at the buzzer that was ruled no good.

Utah had 20 points and Gene Schreier had 19 for the Sun Belt team that had 24 points for Utah.

The loss dumped Utah into a second place tie with Wyoming while the victory moved the Devils into a three way tie into fourth place with Brigham Young and Arizona.

UCLA Clinches Tourney Berth

LOS ANGELES (AP)—UCLA won its 31st consecutive Pacific-8 basketball game over the last three seasons and the second-ranked Bruins clinched the conference title and an NCAA berth Saturday night in a rousing California 115-71.

four A-3 basketball championship Saturday night. The Bulldogs, repeating as district champions, trailed from 1-8 to opening up until two minutes remained in the game—although there was one tie.

The Wildcats opened one of those all-the-way-around finishes for the Bulldogs, who did the same thing last year. They dropped the championship semi-final game to Glens Ferry. Their third straight shot and they brought out Decio and put two straight defeats on Glens Ferry. But both will go to the state meet in Burley next week. Kimberly points against Elgin and the Pioneers trailed from 1-35 with 5:33 left in the game when everything fell into place. Larry Ritz hit a three-point play and Lynn McMasters added a free throw. Then Erikson hit two straight shots and tied the game. Ritz hit a long set to tie it at 45-45. Ritz's field goal gave Kimberly the edge with two straight shots and tied the game. Kimberly helped out after that by swiping the ball twice.

Glens Ferry took a 42 lead at the outset and took advantage of several poor Kimberly passes to convert turnovers into points. Larry Sims and Ed Raked the backboards for a lot of points against the taller Bulldogs and generally Glens Ferry controlled everything.

The Pioneers several times built a six in eighth-point leads but the Bulldogs constantly furried just enough in stay in contention. A rebound shot by Larry Sims gave Glens Ferry a 40-38 lead. Ritz in the second quarter at 1:59 shot from mid-range and tied the game. Ritz pulled Kimberly back to within two.

Then in the final 35 seconds of the half, Hill and Wilson scored the Pioneers' lead to 48-42. Wilson's coming-out-a-long shot from mid-range tied the game. Early in the third quarter McMasters and Walker hoisted Kimberly into a 31-21 draw but a rebound shot by Larry Sims established the Glens Ferry margin and two late field goals by Hill made it appear at the end of the period.

The teams traded buckets early in the first two minutes of the final period before Sims and Hill came up with two points to pull Glens Ferry at 40-38.

The next time down the floor Ritz put his three-point play and the Kimberly blitz was on.

After gaining the lead 50-48 on Ritz' 15th and 16th points.

Princeton Drops Columbia 68-57

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—John Hunmer, a 6-foot-7 sophomore, scored 27 points and continued Columbia's Jim McMillan as Princeton defeated sixth-ranked Columbia 68-57 Saturday night.

The two teams will meet in a second-ranked Bruins clinched the conference title and an NCAA berth Saturday night in a rousing California 115-71.

Miss Fleming Coasts Into Third Crown

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—Peggy Fleming, the United States' skating queen, and a third-straight world champion to her Olympic figure skating gold medal Saturday. She announced a marriage in the making.

"Peggy is a 39-year-old married woman," Fleming said after completing her performance. "But I can't tell you anything more about it."

She also admitted she had offers to join professional ice shows. But she also said she had a chance for a four-year scholarship and didn't say which she would choose.

Miss Fleming's triumph came as she also said she had built up such a lead in the earlier compulsory figure skating that someone would have had to steal her skates to keep her from winning.

Following the compulsory figures, each of the nine judges rated her first giving her a perfect score of 8.0. The 19-year-old ice ballerina also had an imposing build in total production. Her 1944 partner, runner-up Gabriele Segner of East Germany.

Fleming had done the same thing on the way to her gold medal at Grenoble, piling up an insurmountable lead in the compulsory figures and then dominating the rest of the competition. In the free skating.

In Saturday's performance, she maintained her 8.0 original score, finishing well above Miss Seifert, who had a 7.5 and a 7.0. Fleming amassed 2,267.7 points for an 83.3-point triumph.

Never in a women's world championship has anyone finished so far ahead.

The place went to Hana Miskova of Czechoslovakia, who also was third at the Olympics as Miss Seifert was second.

Seattle Nips Utah State By 69-67 Count

NEW YORK (AP)—Hard-hitting Joe Frazer will be shooting for a record first and a title, and Madison-Square Garden figures to set a district record with its spectacular championship.

Although seven Olympic boxing champions have gone on to win professional titles, no Olympic heavyweight champion has ever won the crown in that division.

Frazier, the winner of the heavyweight division's gold medal at Tokyo in 1964, can accomplish the feat—or a part of it—by beating Buster Mathis, the giant from Grand Rapids, Mich., for New York and Massachusetts recognition as world champion.

In the first half of the twin bill, and overshadowed by the young, heavy, middleweight champion Emile Griffith of New York, he will risk his crown against Billy's Nino Benvenuti.

Griffith, loser and then winner in title fights with the handsome Italian, is rated a 7-5 favorite for the 15-round, scheduled for 10 p.m., EST.

Frazier, 24, of Philadelphia is a 2-1 favorite over the 6-foot-3, 215-pounder in a 15-round battle of unbeatens. Frazier, 5-foot-11 1/2 and 200 pounds, has a 19 record, including 17 knockouts.

The 21-year-old Mathis, although not rated in Frazier's class as a puncher, has a 23-0 record, including 17 knockouts. He has stopped his last 10 opponents.

The winner is expected even today to fight it out with the survivor of the Jerry Quarry-Jimmy Ellis April 27 bout for the "World Boxing Association" championship.

Bliss Overhauls Hagerman 69-65 To Take First District Title In School's History

GOODING—The Bliss Bears, straight night it was a big success. Hagerman started out well, charging through the 1-0-1's shooting into a 1-0-1 first quarter.

Bliss edged Hagerman 69-65 to win the fifth district A-1 championship.

Bliss set the stage for its first title by doubling Hagerman's lead that had beaten the 6-13 Friday night. And for the third time.

Kentucky Edges Vanderbilt 85-80

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky topped the final game of the 1967-68 Kentucky-Indiana 68-80 victory over Vanderbilt Saturday in a lack lustre South-eastern Conference basketball game.

The NCAA-bound Wildcats blew the 10-point lead they held early in the first half as Vanderbilt took an 80-77 lead with 2:55 Friday night. And for the third time.

But Jim Robbins kept the Bears from getting away.

The hot-shooting senior who cannot 35 points for the night pumped through 13 points during the second period to pull the Bears to within three points and kept a hot hand in the third period when he worked in another 12 midway through the period.

The Bears to win three points and by the end of it the Bears were riding a 54-46 edge.

Robbins tried to come back in the fourth quarter but couldn't make it when fouls sent two of the starters to the sidelines. Bliss was guided by the fine floor play of Smith.

In the opening round of the state tournament, at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Bliss will meet Clark County of Dubois.

Twin Falls Looks Toward State Meet After Nipping Minico 72-70 In Overtime

Thanks to some clutch shooting by Junior Mark Miller and Bret Staples, the Twin Falls Bruins have the regional A championship trophy in hand and are looking toward state competition next week. It all became possible when the Bruins, wearing a bucket from Staples with 10 seconds left in overtime, nipped Minico's Spartans 72-70 Friday night.

The victory returned Twin Falls to the championship spot for the fourth time in five years. The Bruins won the Minico's reign after one title. Twin Falls will go against the runner-up team from the fourth round (Pocatello) on Thursday at 7:30 a.m. Thursday in Idaho's Capital High School gymnasium.

Sports FROM ALL ANGLES

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News Sports Editor

Twin Falls will probably have the next few days a week at the outside.

Dr. Ernest Ragland, superintendent of the district reports the board of trustees interviewed two applicants and will meet with them next week.

Dr. Ragland said he will be pleased with the history finalists but declined to mention any names. He said the two interviewed had the most "very favorable" impressions while the three to meet with the board this week might be very strong candidates on a par.

"Now that we have the athletic director hired I think everyone is anxious to wrap things up," Ragland said.

The decision could come as early as Wednesday but probably will be made late this week or early next.

Nothing succeeds like a basketball controversy and the fans believe their team can win it. Evidence? The A-1 regional coach said Friday night it will be regarded as the best attended in the history of Magic Valley high school basketball.

Of course, things worked out very well for the tournament. Although Minico and Burley together twice—and the mere mention of that means crowd-boosting—Twin Falls drew another $1650 at Rupert Friday night. That amounts to $633 and takes the Bruins to the best basketball region in the state. It held that reputation for years until the Bruins came up with the four-nation rivalry that are at the very least equal to Minico-Burley.

Speaking of the A-1 tournament, we believe that this crop of Minico Spartans is easily the finest free throw shooting high school team coming out of the state. For the past season, the Spartans hit 66 per cent from the foul line and had three direct shots over 15 per cent. But, that heart, isn't nothing.

In seven tournament games covering the past two weeks, Minico shot a scorching 78 per cent from the foul line. The Spartans won four of their five games and only suffered their opponent once from the field.

During the two years of tournament, Minico scored 13 field goals and allowed 17. But it scored 197 free throws while opponents got 44.

What a tremendous tribute to the Spartans' individual free-throw shooting. It's not that they practice but only the dedicated players make themselves good free throw shooters.

Lately will be a long time before these basketball warriors witness an individual effort. Like the one Bobby Seams put on against Twin Falls Friday night. Defeated by leading, shooting the whole work. Seams displayed all his wizardry and was working negatively. He left a defender in Bret Staples. When the point got really tough, Seams only got better. At 4:5 he became the "little man" role in basketball very big.

The tournament also should be something else. Twin Falls will have another fine guard in Mark Miller next year. His best showing in the 19 points against Minico Friday night—came during great pressure. Although he didn't see a lot of action; the left-hander set a Southern-Idaho record for free throwing shooting.

All in all, we'd guess that the Bruins that crowded the Minico Spartans to the very best basketball games it will ever see.

EL PASO WINS
EL PASO, TEX. (AP)—Texas El Paso never trailed Saturday and rushed to a 79-60 college basketball victory over Colorado State University in a battle between two future members of the Western Athletic Conference.

CSI Meets Phoenix Monday In Opening Round Of JC Regionals

College of Southern Idaho wound up the season in third from here on out.

College Eagles will go against place selectively on the 17th round of the national tournament at 7:30 p.m. Monday when they'll take on Phoenix of the regional junior college basketball tournament opens in the Boise Olympic gymnasium.

The winners will play each other Tuesday night for the championship, but more importantly, a trip to the national tournament March 15 in Hutchinson, Kans.

CSI goes in to the game on the methods of Phoenix Coach Eddie Sutton reports they have good height and a line guard. Their guard is supposed to be a fine player and is averaging about 24 points a game. Coach Sutton, a 1.2 m. tall, 200 lb. guard, is held forward spot generally is held by two players, one at 6'5 and the other at 6'1. The other forward spot generally is held by two players, one at 6'5 and the other at 6'1. Overall it appears we will be a little shorter than our opponent, but that's nothing—no big deal.

Despite the 17th-place ranking of Phoenix and a 22-4 record, CSI does not go into the tournament without a credential or two of its own. The Eagles' record is 22-4.

'The Case Of The Unwed Mother,' Not Easy To Solve

a way with words

An idea. Why not try to out-do the doers at your local newspaper? They deal with words every day of their lives, and some times due to the sheer volume of writing they do, everything can hardly be considered a gem of wisdom, humor, or even something in-between. Newspaper writers and editors get up on the wrong side of the bed too. And when that happens, the headline which could have been a real winner, turned out unqualified to even enter the race.

An example of a good creative headline used in this paper recently, written by Managing Editor O. J. Smith, would be the one used to describe a great deal of water in the drains. . . it read, "Rain On Main Falls Drain."

Being much more long-winded than the Managing Editor of this paper, this writer would have changed it to read, "Rain On Main Falls Mainly In The Drain," which is closer to the original phrase the headline idea is taken from. "The Rain In Spain Falls Mainly On The Plain," from "My Fair Lady."

Although this writer's version is longer and closer, it is not as good for one important reason: it doesn't really say as much about the story as the first version does.

And that's the key. How to tell the reader exactly what the story is about, and do it with some style?

One of the enjoyable aspects of headline writing is this search for meaning and at the same time enjoyment. Why not try your hand on this one?

Editor & Publisher, the weekly magazine for newspaper workers, composed the following situation a few weeks ago:

"Contentians wrote heads (headlines) for a story of a court's denying workmen's compensation to a salesman who injured his back when he fell while hurrying to put on his trousers in a motel so he could drive to his next sales stop. The original head in the (New York) Times was, 'Compensation Is Denied To Salesman For Injury.' Some new headlines for the situation were thought up by members of papers and sent to the Times. Two winning examples were 'He Who Puts On Pants Does So As Own Risk,' and 'Court Denies Relief To Man Hurt Redressing.'"

A Times-News headline buff came up with the following which seems as good as the ones offered by the Times: "Suit Over Salesman's Pants Pressed In Court."

It fits, it makes sense, and it essentially tells the reader what the story is about. And besides, it is interesting, something many headlines are not.

It is easy to say, "It's easy." But it really isn't, not if you intend the headline to actually "say" something.

The Times-News Feature Editor will be happy to send a new five-dollar bill to the person who sends in the best example of a good headline for the following story:

BERLIN (AP)—A 50-YARD STRETCH OF EAST GERMANY'S MID-CITY BORDER WITH WEST BERLIN FELT INTO THE SPREE RIVER ON WEDNESDAY. A SECTION OF 10-FOOT-HIGH MESH WIRE THAT WAS SET ATOP A BRICK-EMBANKMENT ALONG THE SPREE SLID INTO THE RIVER ALONG WITH THE BRICKS. FRIENDSHIP AGREEMENTS HAS BEEN ERODED BY THE WATER.

The item is real, and was printed in a newspaper this week. But the headline seemed to lack luster. This writer, after thinking for a short time, came up with the following headline by way of example: "Berlin Wall Goes On Spree."

The two-line headline must fit a newspaper column width so we will say it must fit in 14 letters wide. Simply type or write 14 letters in a line and make each line fit including spaces between words. It can be less by two or three letters, but no more. And therein lies the difficulty of headline writing—making it fit.

Send your headlines to Feature Editor Times-News, in time for a Wednesday deadline, and it will appear in next week's "Way With Words." You will also receive five dollars if your headline is picked as the best among those submitted.

And while we're talking about newspapers, San Francisco Chronicle columnist pointed out recently that he had discovered a new book in a local bookstore called "Book-binding for Beginners." The book was bound upside down.

The "Washington Daily News" reports that New York City police broke into an apartment and found a man smoking a stick of pot that had been neatly fitted with a filter tip. While booking the guy, one of the cops asked him why the filter. And the reply was, "Well, you wouldn't think I want to get lung cancer, do you?"

And "Playboy" magazine reports that, in order to simplify correspondence, a computer in the employ of "TV Guide" recently assigned a New York woman the following mailing list number: 2260600919129296042146523130114000013005. And that's for real!

In the past eight months in Idaho, at least 400 girls, most of them teenagers, have given birth to a child without the social benefit of marriage.

It is most likely that this figure is only a fourth of the actual number of illegitimate births in marriage, that involves girls, and to a much lesser degree, boys, from Idaho and the surrounding states.

For the girls many of them only 14 years old, the situation involves the humiliation of confessing to parents and close friends, the difficulty of moving to a different town or state, and the long hard wall for child birth. And then the problems start all over again, only this time two people are involved—the mother and a week old child.

For a pregnant girl her teens the problems prior to the discovery of her condition by parents or friends seem insurmountable. Her upbringing, at least in all but the most deprived classes, dictates certain social conventions, foremost of which is the act of marriage before conception. And in a more positive way, the act of marriage before child birth.

For the young girl to face the possible repercussions of telling society she has become pregnant, she must give considerable thought to the problem. The girl has only three real choices open to her, and none of them is ideal. She can try to marry the boy involved, she can have the baby without marriage, or she can seek legal abortion or a self-inflicted miscarriage.

For those girls who choose marriage as the answer, it may still fail to work. The boy, especially if he is young enough, may refuse an advice from his parents. And the girl may recourse to face court procedures and attempt to prove the boy's paternity. The exposure of the pregnancy is a humiliating experience for those girls who choose abortion, Idaho, at least, is not the answer. C. Kelly Pearce, Probate Judge of Bannock County, Idaho says that he is unaware of a single case on this subject.

"College girls may have some contacts open to them," reports Mr. Pearce, "but I am sure that the majority of them on the level we're talking about, and so for the girl who chooses the hard way out, child birth is inevitable.

It is because of these situations that places such as the Booth Memorial Home in Boise exist.

There are now 26 girls living at Booth.

Their capacity is 21.

There are 24 more under Booth care living in homes scattered throughout Boise.

The same situation exists, more or less, in Pocatello and Lewiston.

The girls living in these three cities under the care of centers such as Booth Memorial Home, and receiving aid from a federal-state program called the "Maternal and Infant Care Project," represent an area larger

IN THE PHOTOGRAPH at the left, a young girl, single and pregnant, writes home to her parents from the sanctuary of Booth Memorial Home, in Boise, Idaho. In the center the back of the older hall of Booth Memorial shows the effects of 100 years of use. The adjoining building in which most of the girls just Idaho. Surrounding areas also participate in the program.

"A girl, in trouble," as the phrase goes, and who either contacts a juvenile authority or social worker is referred to the project, or to a home such as the Booth Memorial. Booth is supported by the Salvation Army, as are similar homes throughout the United States.

If the girl is able to find her her care she may, but the vast majority do not.

Most are from lower classes in any given area. The upper classes seem to be involved in the same problem just as much, or possibly more, but the solution of marriage is more generally accepted. "Help," often financial, comes from the parents; a later divorce is often the result of the "convenience" marriage.

The girl can enter a place such as Booth only after being placed on a waiting list. Booth is presently overcrowded. Booth is a better answer than living within the community, such as in a private home under the federal project. The reason is obvious. Only in a home such as Booth can the girl live in an artificial atmosphere where there is no disapproval. Only in such a home can she attend school and have the credits applied to local high school or junior high. And for these reasons the girl usually moves out of state, or at least out of town. Her case is confidential.

Many of the girls at Booth are from Utah, Nevada, and other states near here.

In some cases the girls simply go home and travel, stopping for some rest here, in Idaho, and asking for aid.

In other cases girls in Boise choose not to remain in Boise, for obvious reasons, but transfer to Pocatello, Lewiston, or if space permits to other Salvation Army homes in Spokane, Seattle, Portland, California, Texas, and other points which may have some space available. Many girls are referred from other states to Idaho, and in turn Idaho sends many girls to other areas, which accounts for the difficulty in obtaining any credible statistics. The girls are referred by various agencies and social workers and there is no central agency.

The importance of such places as Booth, and the necessity of not only maintaining such facilities, but expanding them to comply with the pressing need for more space, can be summed up in a statement by Helen Henderson, Probation Officer for Twin Falls County:

"Booth Memorial Hospital has served as an excellent resource to me for the placement of young girls who are unwed expectant mothers. Marriage at an early age to a reluctant young man has proven an unwise solution to the problem. Referring a young girl to Booth solves several problems. It avoids a marriage decided upon for the purpose of providing a 'name' for the infant. Counseling given at Booth by a trained caseworker helps the girl determine the best solution for her individual problem. Girls are encouraged to keep their babies if they wish; they are consulted and mentally prepared should they decide to give them up for adoption.

"One of the most helpful developments has been the recent establishment of an educational program. While awaiting the arrival of the baby, a girl may continue her education and realize credits through her local school. Upon returning to the community, the young mother may continue her education and receive credit through her local school without loss of time or credit. This year Booth Hospital could not continue due to lack of support. Helen Henderson has offices in the Twin Falls County Judicial Building. Zoe Ann Shaub, former Probate Judge in Twin Falls County for seven years said about Booth: "While I was on the bench the hospital was extremely helpful in times of emergency. We knew that we could call on the people there to help some of the girls we were working with, and we knew that they would offer a home for the girls and a place where they could continue their education."

Mrs. Shaub also commented that Booth undoubtedly could not continue in its present condition and that "something must be done to get the needed funds to renovate the building. I encourage anyone who can help."

Bert Larson, a Twin Falls lawyer, and a former member of the Salvation Army Advisory Board, who is presently chairman of the Magic Valley Council of Charities has this to say: "It is one of those social evils that exist in our society it shouldn't, but in fact it does exist. This is one of the ways that it can be met with a minimum of embarrassment to the people involved."

Miss Dorothy Smylie, employed by the Maternal and Infant Care Project, in Boise, reports that "the real need is for places such as Booth where a girl can live in and continue her education."

In some cases the results are not encouraging. C. Kelly Pearce, Bannock County's Probate Judge, reports that two of the girls he referred to Booth, were committed to the Twin Falls County Jail after the birth of their child.

In another case, Judge Pearce reports that a young girl and her parents insisted on paying to make the girl involved pay.

The girl was 14, and so was the boy.

Legal action was taken and the boy was going to be forced to marry the girl if possible, but as it turned out he had to marry another girl for the same reason, and ended up simply paying a small amount to the first teenager.

In 1967 at the Salvation Army Booth Memorial Home 24 girls were cared for, and 135 babies were born within the year. Four children were held over from 1966 and 30 babies were discharged in 1967.

Of the 135 babies discharged, 100 went to adoption agencies, five died, and 24 were entrusted to the care of the mother.

In 1967, 64 girls attended school at Booth; of that number 17 were high school seniors; 11 were sophomores, seven were in the 9th grade, and two were in the 8th grade.

The girls range in age from 13 to 23 years old, with an average age of 17 years.

In 1967 there were 115 Caucasians, one Negro, four Indians, and one Spanish American.

Nearly all religions were represented among the group.

The only statistic not included is one predicting the future for the thousands of girls involved in such situations.

It is because of places such as Booth that there is hope for them.

THE PRESENT CONDITION of the newest (40 years old) room. Plans call for the addition of two cottages with 17 girls to a cottage, an all purpose building housing classrooms, a library, a beauty parlor, and a chapel.

BRIGADIER MARIE ANDERSON, of the Salvation Army, looks over plans for a new "cottage" type addition to Booth Memorial Home. She says that it is absolutely necessary for the existence of the home that the new addition be made. The Salvation Army will begin a fund drive in April to raise the necessary $75,000.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Tracing a family tree has become a popular these days. And proudly displaying pictures of children and grandchildren has become a family hobby.

At present, the first invention was a school and a community center for social events until 1936 when the district consolidated with the Hollister district and students were transferred to the Hollister school.

When the school was first organized, classes were held for approximately seven months each year. Later this was changed to the standard nine-month school year. Salaries paid the teachers were among the best in the county and ranged from $50 to $62 in the earlier years to $140 a month at the time it was discontinued.

Many people still living in Magic Valley attended the school, among them being Fred Hoops, William Hoops Jr., and Jenny Hoops, now Mrs. Lynn Stewart.

There were never more than 20 students in the Springdale school at any one time with the average being 12 or 14. All eight grades were included and were taught by one teacher. Students carried their own transportation to school by ponies or bicycles. There was a small shed at the school to accommodate the ponies.

Board members served all members served for years include John Troendly Sr., J. C. Richards, Heuston Swain, Glenn Swain, Willard McMaster, Roy McMaster, John Troendly Jr., William Hoops Sr., and others.

Among the teachers were Mrs. Reller, who homesteaded a place a mile east and all the south of the present school location; a Miss Edna Malloy, daughter of an early Twin Falls contractor; and the late Mrs. W. A. Farley, who is thought to be the last teacher of the school.

As in any school, romances flourished, and one remembers fondly of inhabitants is that of Miss Malloy, the teacher, and John

First letter this week is from a woman named... I have a $500 United States... Serial Number A123451 A. The Serial numbers and passed them off as five dollar gold pieces. The notes are supposed to be printed in red, green and gold. If you please tell me what these were issued for and if they have any value?

Answer: Your bank note has been subjected to some kind of fraud. About five million of these "centies" were made; then the die was changed to "V-Centies." The coin was made in large quantities around. I have seen this gold appearance to the seal and serial numbers on quite a few. The later "centies" with "centis" (Centis) which are called Morgan dollars as collectors' items.

From D. C. Burley, Idaho, heard of the five dollar before. Can you tell me why our silver dollars are called Morgan dollars? I have a Liberty Head coin, on them, so are they named for the Morgan who was a millionaire, or what?

Answer: The term "Morgan" is derived from the financier, J. Pierpont Morgan, after 1873 a period of five years when silver dollars were coined. George A. Morgan, a mint engraver, designed the Liberty Dollar. The word "Seated Liberty" engraved on the coin and the coins are called error. You make no mention of the date on this coin but the face side (obverse) of it must be 1833. That was the first year of the Liberty (Seated Liberty) and there was no design on the coin. This pattern was carried through until the 1840's and was changed to one designed by Anthony de Francisco. The coin was struck after he and Mrs. Morgan were married, they purchased a larger farm a short distance from the school.

Question: From the Springdale school even had a basketball team, which no doubt included boys in school. The team played such as ROOPER money? J read someplace they SOV, Hoollster, and D. Berger. Some of them do not have grade schools, and even some large ones.

ORIENT EXPRESS
By Michael Barsley

On Oct. 4, 1883, this famous (and famous) first journey from Paris to Istanbul. The 1,600-mile trip took 12 hours because of the many stops along the way.

The reporter of this trip was Henri Stefan Oppel de Blowitz, Paris correspondent for the London Times. The train left Paris at the dinner hour toward Strasbourg, through Wurtemberg, past Ulm across the Danube then to Vienna to see again the marvel of electric illumination. On to Budapest and at Stegeda a group of 6000 musicians boarded the train to entertain the passengers and lay out until the train reached Temeswar, about 200 miles down the line.

Leaving Hungary the train went into Rumania, where a single way famous in that country. At Bucharest the passengers were taken to visit the city.

If the date does not show, they are worth only five cents and you might as well spend them. The 1936 and 1937 issues are very plentiful and in worn condition might bring you six cents apiece. There are some very scarce dates in the series—first instance the 1913-S, second year which carries the name of George Colman-William D'Alton, man who made the first bid for the European market, and in this he was joined by an enterprising Belgian, George Nagelschker of Liege, who in 1868 visited the United States to investigate the possibilities of a two-wheeled vehicle. Many sold to Nagelschker in 1875 and in 1876 he began experimenting with German-made steering cars. He was unable to locate a specimen. We would appreciate help from you readers without examination. Many novels and films have been written using the Orient Express as their backdrop. The first was a novel called "The Madonna of the Sleeping Cars" written in 1923 by Maurice D'Kobra, translated into 27 languages and made into a play by the Hohenzollern King and Queen.

The smaller branches at the tree's side will take care of any number of grandchildren's pictures.

Several years after the organization of the school, the new building was built on the present location. This barn-like structure boasted two large classrooms, two large rooms, a large lunch room. In fact, the rooms were so large that one of the cloak rooms was

Who Says They Don't Make Them Like They Used To?

So who says they don't make them like they used to? Sure they do... it's just that most people don't really pay attention to young people doing good work. It's the young people doing no work, or bad work that get all the attention. Listen to a conversation between two older ladies on a street corner some time ago. One of them is talking about the shame of too-short dresses, or the plight of teachers having to put up with students who show no respect, or the problem of draft-card burners. Shame. But the shame really isn't that this group gets all the attention, but that the other group of young people get so little.

A common problem stated by those who talk of the young in disparaging tones involves the future of this country. "What is this country coming to?" they say. "Who in the world will run this country when the kids act like they don't care about anything?" Well, the answer is simple. The people who will run this world in the future are the millions of young men and women who never make the headlines because the "only thing" they burn is energy, and the only marching they do takes place in basic training.

They are people like Keith Lauder. Keith Lauder is representative of a generation that might well be called the "forgotten generation." They do their work and more, and no one really knows about it.

Keith Lauder, who is single and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lauder of Wendell, is 24 years old. He graduated from high school at Wendell and spent a year doing nothing but hunting and fishing. He joined the Army then and served in the West in 1964, and in Vietnam in 1965-66, as an artillery observer. And he was discharged from the service in June of 1966.

He spent a year where that he would be working for a trucking concern, and then one day, according to Keith, "I decided I was tired of hauling hay and hauling coal, and I wanted to work for Reeder Flying Service."

Keith Lauder has worked full time at Reeder's for nine months and has put in many extra hours because he wants to be a flight instructor. And that takes time.

Working full time on heavy aircraft Keith has made his own time and has received his private pilot license and commercial license. He is now only three or four weeks away from securing his flight instructor's license.

He has saved his money and purchased a third of a heavy aircraft. "I want to fly," he says. "I want to log time in so that I can qualify to fly one of the eight B-1B tactical bombers used by Reeder's and the Forest Service in fire fighting."

Besides full time employment in the difficult practice of maintaining heavy aircraft, and the strain of constant study to increase his proficiency in operating airplanes, Keith Lauder attends CSI in the evenings and semesters. This semester he is taking Child Psychology, and U.S. History.

And there are millions more like Keith. Only one person knows about them. They do that work and more. Someday they will be the world.

So who says they don't make them like they used to?

BIG GAME ANIMALS such as these elk in a trap near Ashton are given color coded ear patches and collars, as well as the more familiar metal ear tags, so that they can be seen from a distance and their movements charted through the season of the year. Data from ear studies and current work are used by game managers to maintain the balance between herd numbers and habitat conditions. It is easier to build up a game population that has been depleted than it is to revegetate a range that has been damaged from overuse.

Limits For Fish, Wildlife Fixed By Habitat Size, Reports Department

By JIM HUMBRID

Idaho Fish Game Department officials report that the success of wildlife reintroduction programs in Idaho depends on the size of the habitat available to the animals. The department's report states that the success of reintroduction programs is determined by the size of the habitat available to the animals. The department's report states that the success of reintroduction programs is determined by the size of the habitat available to the animals.

The reintroduction of native fish or wildlife species which have clashed with civilization and lost is not a big gamble — provided that today's habitat conditions are not too much changed from the old days. Big game animals are being restored to the Seven Devils Mountains and Lake Pend Oreille.

Sportmen all too often worry about a fish or game population. The population peaks and valleys, and even about its possible extinction, with no thought for the reason why. The big point to keep in mind is that a game population can be brought back on suitable habitat through restoration or reintroduction. Planning for a herd of here, for instance, is much the same kind of cold-blooded business.

Planning in this way for any new or exotic species of fish or wildlife that never before has lived on the habitat is a chancy proposition. The Chinese pheasant, chukar partridge and, more recently, mountain sheep have been introduced if enough people are willing to meet the cost.

Sage grouse, for example, have dwindled to a few herds from huge populations that roamed the country with their passing; to remnant flocks now hanging on in relatively open areas of untouched sagebrush habitat. In recent years their movements from summer to winter range and back again have been meticulously plotted through intensive management work involving live trapping and marking the birds for distant spotting. Several attempts have been made to monitor sage grouse, with small sonic radio transmitters, and these studies will continue in Idaho this year.

Migratory waterfowl banding programs yield more data each year to help trace the life history of ducks, geese and swan. Where are the broods raised; when do they start for the south; how many make the long flight to sunny climes; and how many complete the cycle that get back to the breeding grounds in the Canadian prairie and poliole country in time to start all over again? This banding program is done in cooperation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Its final success rests with waterfowl hunters who retrieve banded ducks and geese. Unless these men and women voluntarily return bands in great enough numbers to be statistically significant, all the work, time and money devoted (Continued on Page A-4)

T-F. Resident Is Presented Bronze Star For Heroism

Capt. C. B. Sanford, who will be glad to reside in Twin Falls, was recently presented a Bronze Star for heroism in Vietnam.

The medal was forwarded to Mrs. Sanford, 1005 Kimberly Road, with an accompanying letter. According to information in the letter Capt. Sanford distinguished himself by valorous duty during the Jan. 31 Viet Cong assault on the city of Saigon. The incident was during a full-scale assault on Saigon by the Viet Cong.

Capt. Sanford, company commander of Company A, 716th Assault Battalion, accompanied an alert force to the Plantation Road Race-track where he was instrumental in organizing military police forces on the scene.

The letter stated that during establishing a good defensive position the enemy was denied the ability to advance.

Later, while supervising the defense of the Capital Hotel, Capt. Sanford executed personnel from the vicinity of a grenade and personally reassembled it, making it safe.

Capt. Sanford has been in the Army for 2 1/2 years, since he was commissioned upon graduation from Idaho State University.

Richard Bohle, Rupert Businessman, Is Selling Business To Employees

RUPERT — Richard Bohle, Rupert businessman, has planned a unique way to "phase out" his business when the time comes to retire.

Having no sons to take over the business, he has divided his business, the Rupert Iron Works, into three corporations, with his employees buying stock as they can.

The three firms are the Idaho Industrial Sales, which he plans to move to a separate building soon, Rupert Iron Works, and Tractor Co.

"As the plan is devised," the businessman commented, "eventually the workers will own the business and I'll be phased out. I feel I owe this much to them for the effort they put forth to help me build the establishment into what it is today."

Richard Bohle was born Oct. 25, 1923, in Isabel, B.D., and moved to Acquia with his parents in 1939, when he was 16. In Acquia he and his father started a small blacksmith shop. "It was the first for the area and soon became a thriving business venture. Richard helped his father in the shop until 1944, when he was drafted into the United States Army and served with the 26th Infantry Division in Luxembourg during World War II.

He fought during the famous Battle of the Bulge, where he was seriously wounded, and, consequently, received an honorable medical discharge in 1945. He was awarded a Purple Heart for his valiant service.

Richard had graduated from Acquia—High School—in 1941, and after his return from the army he and his father moved the blacksmith shop from Acquia to Rupert where it became the Rupert Iron Works.

In 1947 he married Paula Jensen, Shelley. They have four daughters, Terry, 17, who is a junior at Malco High School; Susan, 15, a freshman at Malco; Sandra, 11, a fifth grader, and Laura, 8, a third grader, at Lincoln Memorial School. Mr. Bohle's father retired from the business in 1955, and died in 1958, leaving him the firm.

As a Rupert Businessman, Mr. Bohle's activities have been mainly centered around the chamber of commerce, and he has served as president of the Industrial Development Corp., part of the Rupert chamber. He served as director of the local chamber from 1961 to 1964, and is past president of the group. Also during his chamber activities, Richard spent three years as executive director of the Eastern Idaho Chamber of Commerce, from 1965 to 1967. "He is also a member of the Rupert Elks Lodge, in 1965 Mr. Bohle was awarded the Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award for his outstanding service to the community." He has also been a director of the Red Cross swimming program. Terry teaches swimming and works as a "lifeguard" and local chamber member from 1961 to 1964, and is past president of the group. AMES (LA) TAGRONE is the subject of Mr. Hickerston's work with makeup for "The Sound of Music." First steps begin with the application of pancake makeup with a damp sponge.

EYE LINER and shadow are applied along with lipstick and rouge to increase the color. Additional color is needed due to the distance from the actor to the audience presentation.

AGE LINES are added and blended into the face, along with shadowed areas. Eye-line technique is basically an exaggerated street makeup used for so-called roles in theater.

AS YOUR MINISTER SEES IT

Holiday or Holy Day?

By PASTOR L. L. LAMANCE
I read the ruins of a giant... history is filled with the records of nations and people who left behind a way of life. With hands outstretched for help in the hours of crisis, they find none, so they turn to drugs and the accompanying evils. The so-called "New Morality" sweeping the country is nothing more than what your Bible calls "immorality" or sin.

Both secular history and Biblical history is filled with the records of nations and people who left behind a way of life. With hands outstretched for help in the hours of crisis, they find none, so they turn to drugs and the accompanying evils. The so-called "New Morality" sweeping the country is nothing more than what your Bible calls "immorality" or sin.

Similarly, men and nations who have weathered fierce storms of life, have been brought low and met disaster through the insidious invasion of evil. Our American people and our nation is one of these. There is an old adage which says, "Any dead fish can float downstream, but it takes a live and daring one to swim against the current."

While digging in the ruins of Pompeii, workmen uncovered the skeleton of a child whose arms were outstretched. It so intrigued them that they kept digging to find the reason for the outstretched arms. Soon they discovered the skeleton of a woman—presumably the child's mother. The child was reaching for help! Today, youth are very much disillusioned with life. So

And so, perhaps unwittingly, we allow himself and others to be ruled by the King of Evil. His attitude is shown by the fact that the LORD'S DAY is in him a "holiday" or not a "HOLY DAY." He thinks nothing of going to the lake, the stream, or the hills, or the golf course. Or he stays home and puts his lawn or trims his flowers, and shrubs.

Another son of the couple, Terry Lee Haskett, 20, recently enlisted in the Army—and has reported to Ft. Lewis-Wash. for basic training. After completing basic he will report to Ft. Rucker, Ala., for airplane-helicopter mechanics school.

To him the Lord's Day is a "holiday." It is to be a "HOLY DAY."

Army Private Alexander J. Morrison, son of Clarence L. Morrison, 1711 Hansen Ave., Burley, was assigned as E-3 and operator with the 58th Artillery near Japan, Germany, recently.

Well here, I say when a first-rate is sincere, there can be no second-rate. The first-rate is sincere, there can be no second-rate. The first-rate is sincere, there can be no second-rate.

It's not unique in this No. what will happen to the seniors one year hence when they're pressured or blackmailed into doing something against his will.

Small Johnny will in a dispute with his sister. Sister slams the roof down. Herring baby-sitters rushes in and with a quick-witted forces Johnny to relinquish the property and to apologize to sister.

In a school, a political finds himself over a barrel. On the eve of the national school accreditation team's visit, impassioned student leaders stand up to call a student strike and to issue an underground newspaper with just enough gray-truth to get the school's attention. So the principal pats boys on their demands.

OK, how long will it be before the school's standing. So the principal persuades instead of forcing you opponent. The secret? Try to let your standing. So the principal persuades instead of forcing you opponent. The secret? Try to let your standing.

WHO HAS THE POWER?

Who do we identify exactly who has the power to switch the lights on and off? Who do we identify exactly who has the power to switch the lights on and off? Who do we identify exactly who has the power to switch the lights on and off?

WHAT DE THE ENDEAVOR?

And what happens to those who they allied along with their victim, forced to remain parting the scene, unable to leave for fear of a lawsuit?

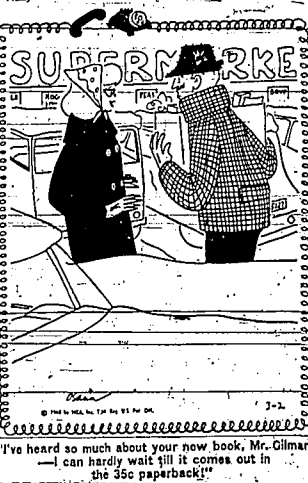

OK, that's the opinion still. It's not his own opinion still. It's not his own opinion still. It's not his own opinion still.

Reading Is A Perilous Personal Pastime

By JAN A. SAINSBURY
Times-News Feature Editor

"I read. But that's not my problem. My problem is that I like to try things I read about. That's my problem."

"Not many months ago I read in a science magazine about a new study that has shown that the ear was technically called cerumen, found in the ears of Indians is sometimes dry and not of a more sticky consistency such as the cerumen found in the ears of most people."

"The lead researcher in the study was technically called cerumen, found in the ears of Indians is sometimes dry and not of a more sticky consistency such as the cerumen found in the ears of most people."

"I'm not very good at math. When I read about the discovery of the Laser light, and I decided to do some research on the man who discovered it, Mr. Einstein, I went to the library and searched for hours but was unable to find a biographical history. And then I happened to run across an encyclopedia entry on Laser which said that 'Light' stands for 'Light Amplification through the Stimulated Emission of Radiation.' Good Heavens!

"By the way, I also found that 'Matter' as in the Matter beam or light, is the same thing except in an envelope awhile ago and mated it to my mother. 'but I don't think it will work.'"

"The real problem is that I like to try everything I read about and what's really got me worried now is that I'm about half way through a book called 'Brain Surgery - Self-Taught.'"

"It was during Rowan and Martin's 'Laugh-In' that he said his first words - 'sock it to me!'"

Soviet Family With $250 Monthly Income Illustrates "Better Life"

By JOHN WEYLAND
 MOSCOW (AP) — A family made like a winter coat of Soviet as representative of the picketed way of life earns 250 rubles—$250 a month, occupies a three-room apartment and owns a black mongrel dog.

The family, the Khartitovs of the Black Sea port city of Nikolayev, was described by the government newspaper Izvestia brought relative prosperity. Mrs. Khartitov wastes much money standing in line at the state food stores rather than go to the city market, where prices are higher.

When the purchase has to average family's need-food-purchases are for clothes and shoes. Pondirsky takes $1,946 of the average wages in Nikolayev of $2,421.

The Khartitovs, with their $1,900-a-year, are above average for their city and more so for the whole country. A central administrative bureau showed an average annual wage income for a family of this size to be $2,003.

Today he makes $167 a month as a shipyard fitter, she earns half that much as a bookkeeper, and they live comfortably with their 15-year-old daughter Ira and Mrs. Khartitov's mother.

The couple has come a long way. He was called on her for the first time, embarrassed by the Soviet army after the war. Angrily had required him with nothing, but his soldier's uniform. Her father had been killed at the front, leaving his widow with three children to raise.

In the early days of their marriage they had to do without much and watch every kopeck. Angrily used to hardships and Izvestia said, "She planned and saved, happy in every new purchase."

Slowly they acquired simple home appliances: a washing machine, refrigerator and television set followed.

While the passage of the years

Air Force Needs Women Graduates

Sgt. Art Harmon, local Air Force recruiter, reports that there is a need for young women college graduates in the Air Force Women Officers Training Corps.

He said that several fields are now being opened to women which had previously been closed to all but male recruits. Sgt. Harmon stated that the opportunities for women college graduates are now better than ever and that there is no distinction made between male and female officers in advancement.

Some of the openings which women are now qualified for are in intelligence, space systems, nuclear research, behavioral science and others.

To qualify for OTS a woman must be in sound physical condition, be able to pass the Air Force Officer Qualifications test, have high moral and personal qualifications, be between the ages of 21½ and 29½, and have a baccalaureate degree. College seniors who are approaching graduation are eligible to apply for OTS immediately. Sgt. Harmon stated, "For further information contact Sgt. Harmon, 306 Main Ave. W., Twin Falls, or call 733-1681 or 733-1147."

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia accused the United States again Friday night of permitting "incendiary rocket" attacks on the Russian Embassy in Washington and asked if the State Department planned blessings for further provocations.

Drive one of these dressed-up Chevrolets instead of a stripped-down something else.

'68 CHEVROLET prices start lower than any other full-size models. Look at it. Chevrolet's 4-door sedan is roomier than any other American car except one high-price luxury sedan, according to Automotive News. Drive it. You can tell by its smooth and silent ride that Chevrolet quality runs even deeper than that elegant Body by Fisher. The standard V8's bigger this year; the standard six is the most powerful in Chevy's line. Buy it! Got a Chevrolet instead of a stripped-down name and you can have, for instance, power steering, power brakes and a radio besides. Pay more? What for!

'68 CHEVELLE prices start lower than any other mid-size models. Obviously nothing's newer in mid-size cars than the quick-six Chevies. There's fresh styling, the long-hood, short-deck look. There are two high-torque wheelbases now: sporter coupes and convertibles, roomier interiors and wagons — on a wider, sturdier track. You get big-car power, big-car ride in a quick-six package, starting at prices so low you can add comforts like air conditioning without straining your budget. No wonder Chevrolet outsells everything in its field year after year!

'68 CHEVY II NOVA prices start lower than any other economy car so generously sized. Nova is the no-hoop small car. It's big enough for a family on vacation, yet it slips into parking spaces others pass by. With its new wide stance and computer-tuned chassis, it rides as silent and steady as a sailing ship. Buy it for performance, Nova comes with the biggest standard V8 in its field. Here's one economy car that doesn't look or act the part.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR DR. JAMES L. GODDARD

Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration
How often does the FDA make a check-of-food packages? Are many companies guilty of misbranding their products?—Mrs. R. L. Hornbuckle, Tyler, Texas

● We regularly inspect processing plants in interstate commerce for sanitation, wholesomeness of raw materials, etc. On those occasions, we check packages and labeling as well. From time to time we make studies of foods collected at retail sales points, checking for safety and labeling. Very few legal actions charging misbranding need to be instituted.

FOR ROONE ARLEDGE,

President, ABC TV Sports
How much did your network pay for the rights to the 1968 Winter Olympics?—D. N. Niagara Falls, N. Y.

● We paid $2-million and spent nearly $4 million in production and satellite transmission costs.

FOR MERCEDES BATES, Director,

Betty Crocker Kitchens
Is Betty Crocker a real person? If not, how did you acquire the name as a symbol for your product?—Mrs. Leta Crahan, Jefferson City, Mo.

● In 1921 the Washburn Crosby Co., a forerunner of General Mills, developed the idea of a woman food authority to represent the company. For her signature, they chose the surname "Crocker" in honor of a recently retired director, William G. Crocker. The name, "Betty," just sounded right.

FOR U.S. REP. BOB MATHIAS

Which was more gratifying—winning the bicentennial in the Olympics or winning a seat in Congress?—Eoa. F. Hurst, Hakersfield, Calif.

● Both were challenging and gratifying experiences, but each in a different way. I will always look back fondly at my deputation victories in the 1948 and 1952 Olympics. Each of us in Congress faces the challenge of dealing with the problems of individual constituents, the U.S., and, indeed, the whole world. It is satisfying to help solve those.

FOR PEE WEE REESE,

NBC Sportscenter
Is your real name Pee Wee? If not, what is it?—Carolyn Thomas, Myrtle Beach, S.C.

● Actually, my name is Harold. When I was in grade school, I was pretty good at marbles—shooting and, once, tripping the state finals. In those days we used to call certain marbles "pee wees," so my friends started calling me Pee Wee, and it stuck.

FOR PATTI PAGE

I recently read that your record sales have topped the 60-million mark. Of all your successes, which is your favorite? Did you ever turn down a song that became a hit?—D. R. Lancaster, Pa.

● Although "Tennessee Waltz" should be my favorite, as it sold six million records, my favorite is "Old Cape Cod." My biggest goof was "Moon River," which was written for me before it was included in "Breakfast at Tiffany's." My manager convinced me it would never sell in a "Top 40" market. I believed him. I'm still kicking myself and my manager.

FOR SEN. EVERETT DIRKSEN

Do you believe there should be a limit on spending in a political campaign?—Mrs. Kent Caldwell, Des. Ill.

● There are many types of political campaigns at all levels, and I assume that every state does place a limitation on the amount that can be spent.

FOR FESS PARKER

On the Daniel Boone show you look like a born woodsman. Are you, or is it a put-on?—Mrs. Elsie Hill, Oso, Cal.

● I'm glad I seem like a "born" woodsman. I'm a born farm boy, who was brought up on a ranch-forever.

FOR NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Why did you write "The Power of Positive Thinking"?—Mrs. Joan Bertola, Rochester, N. Y.

● I wrote "The Power of Positive Thinking" because I discovered that positive thinking could cure me of an intractable complex, which I had been plagued with since childhood.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Fashion Foll. The world's most talked-about and imitated woman, Jacqueline Kennedy, made the mini-skirt by being photographed in one. She's now doing the same for 1968 mid and mid-calf style. Here's what the fashion world thinks of its leading citizen: Sir Laurent—a very personal one. Mary Queen. She's smothering. I'd like her. She needs a haircut. Don Simonelli: "A living star." Coco Chanel: "She dresses like her daughter. It she trying to be a little girl?" Donald Brooks: "I am happy to note the first sign as much in public any more. It must mean there's something more interesting in her private life."

Mini Jackie

The Mysterious East. Latest show-business celebrity to turn to the East and its religions is Lee Crane, now back on national tv with a syndicated nighttime talk show. Explaining his new, more relaxed religion, Lee says, "I found out that we're all hooked up together. We're all brothers, so there's nothing to be nervous about." To keep his calm, Lee reads Oriental books, confers with swamis and gurus, and, he says, "I meditate and chant."

Irish Bricklayers Notre Dame's basketball team played its last game in the university's old hockeys last night, and within days workers will be demolishing the building. Coach John Doe will scratch 200 brick-clay men, and have them programmed as masons for former Irish cages. What will the old players do with monogrammed bricks? "I don't care," says Doe. "Just as long as they don't throw them at me when we lose."

Fatal Mistake Patients frequently put off having an examination for fear the doctor will find cancer, reports Dr. Henry T. Lynch of the University of Texas. Others are mistakenly convinced that, if I get cancer, it makes no difference. Everyone with cancer dies. They are wrong. So were some 95,000 people who might have been saved if they had sought care in time. They were stopped by fear and fatalism and died last year.

Eyes on Children. Watch your young children for these signs of possible eye defects, urges a Virginia Department of Health bulletin—blinking more than usual; rubbing eyes as though to wipe away blur; squinting at distant objects; red, swollen, or encrusted eyelids; watering eyes; inflamed or watery eyes; stumbling over small objects. Any one of these means a child should have an eye examination without delay. The earlier you spot eye troubles, the better.

Get That Weight Off Quickly!

You can lose 5, 10, 15 or more pounds the first week!
Dr. Irwin Stillman's Quick Weight Loss Diet debunks the myth that the only way to lose weight is to lose it gradually. He proves with facts not theory that rapid weight loss is the most effective reducing method.

- IN JUST ONE WEEK you can see the weight on the scale drop rapidly, and the fat melt away. Dr. Stillman's records show that...patients averaged a loss of 6 to 7 pounds in the first 3 days on the Quick Weight Loss Diet.
- IN JUST ONE WEEK you can get rid of the pounds suddenly gained from too much "good living." Sudden slimming is yours with the Quick Weight Loss Diet.
- IN JUST ONE WEEK you will be delighted and impressed by your decided drop in weight. If you have failed with other diets, the big loss of weight the first week from the Quick Weight Loss Diet will give you the confidence you need to continue.

DR. IRWIN STILLMAN developed the Quick Weight Loss Diet in the course of his 45 years of medical practice. The diet has been tested and proved by over 10,000 patients. It works!

His first rule is: GET THAT WEIGHT OFF QUICKLY!
 The diet helps you do that by burning 275 extra calories of body fat a day! And that is a secret of its success. This diet requires no will power after the first week. As soon as you see that you've lost 5, 10, or even 15 pounds in just your first week, you'll have all the encouragement you need right from your scale.

EAT AS MUCH AS YOU WANT.
 The amazing thing about the Quick Weight Loss Diet is that you get all the nutrition you need...you do not count calories...and you eat as much as you want! Actually, by sticking to permitted foods, you put a "brake" on your appetite so that—without bothering to count calories—you eat far less than usual.

But should you suddenly feel the urge for a midnight snack, go ahead. You do not have to put up with hunger pangs. Nor do you have to feel guilty if you eat "a little bit extra." With permitted foods, you may eat as much as you want! (but don't stuff yourself).

NOT JUST ONE DIET... BUT 20!
 In addition to the basic Quick Weight Loss Diet, there are 20 different quick-reducing diets that cover an array of emotional and medical problems. For example, there's an Anti-Acne Diet, Anti-Allergy Diet, 6-Meal-a-Day "Nibbler"-Diet, Bread-Cheese Wine Diet, High Fat/High Protein Diet, etc. And every one is a quick-reducing diet that slims you down in a hurry.
 If you're the type who must have variety, you can switch from one Division Diet to another...lose weight...and never eat a boring meal!

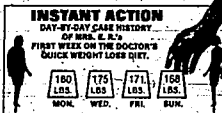

HELPS PEOPLE WHO COULDN'T REDUCE BEFORE
 Hundreds of Dr. Stillman's patients were "veteran dieters"—people who have tried to lose many times before, and failed. Here are a few case histories.

MRS. E. G. - Five years ago she weighed 194 and was only 5'1". She had tried to reduce 14 times before without success, losing a few pounds at first, then gaining them back. With the Quick Weight Loss Diet, the lost over 10 pounds the first week, so she encouraged she continued eagerly. In a year she got to her desired weight of 105, and has maintained it ever since.

MRS. Z. E. - At 5'2" she weighed 155 instead of her ideal of under 110. She vowed to reduce after overhearing people call her "butterball." In just two months she was down to an attractive 115. Letting up too quickly, she gained nine pounds in a month, went back to the diet, dropped back to 115 in two weeks. At 110, her weight went up again, she knew that to stay on the Quick Weight Loss Diet will bring it down again.
MR. D. E. - He was 157, weighed 245 pounds and said he felt like an old man. He was only 5'9". His blood pressure was a dangerous 210/135. In 12 weeks he went down to 185 and his blood pressure dropped to a safer 150/100. He says he feels like a "new man." After holding this interim weight for a while he will lose about 20 pounds more, then stabilize at his ideal weight of 165.

WHY THE DOCTOR'S QUICK WEIGHT LOSS DIET WORKS
 You, too, can lose weight fast. No matter how many times you've tried other diets and failed, this program will work. Everything you need to know is in the book, Five Doctors' Quick Weight Loss Diet. Read it and you will learn:

- How to figure your ideal weight.
- What foods will start you losing, at the amazing rate of 5, 10 or even 15 pounds a week.
- Dozens of hearty meat, fish, egg and cheese dishes which you may eat to your heart's content.
- Why this program works where gradual loss programs fail.
- Why calories count, but you don't have to count them.
- How to hold your ideal weight after reaching it.
- Gourmet foods that help you stay slim.
- Facts to help "kare" the fat off you.
- How to help children, teenagers and the elderly to lose weight fast.
- Why overweight people must DIET OR DIE YOUNGER!

READ IT ON THIS "MUST-LIB" BASIS
 Send for the book...read it...put the Quick Weight Loss Diet to work for you. If you aren't 100% satisfied with your weight loss—and satisfied that the fat is permanent—return the book and get your money back. Give it a 10-day trial.
 "Well! This coming today. You have everything to gain—better health, greater vitality, a slim, young-looking figure. And nothing to lose but fat!"

HAILED BY REVIEWERS
 For example, the medical review for King Features Syndicate, himself a physician, writes:
 "This is a no-nonsense approach to losing weight; it cannot help but work if you follow the [author's] directions...this book is probably the best medicine as well as the best friend a fat person could ever have... It also offers encouragement along with exercise. These two factors are as important as diet; the three together, written in such a pleasant style, fit this particular book apart from being just another diet plan."

World-famous authority Dr. Mary Calderone gives incisive answers to Parents' Questions About Sex

Dr. Mary Steichen Calderone

is the executive director of the Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S.—(SIECUS)—A voluntary health agency, its purpose is "to establish man's sexuality as a health entity." A former school physician, she is the daughter of the famed photographer Edward Steichen and the wife of Dr. Frank Calderone, who served with the World Health Organization. They have three daughters and two teenage grandsons. Dr. Calderone's writings on family planning and sex education have appeared in professional journals and popular magazines, and her work in these fields has won her many awards and honorary degrees.

We didn't have sex education when I was a youngster, and we got along all right. Why do children need it now?

Our children are not living in the same world that we lived in. Students of our culture say that never before has a world existed where sex is so openly admitted, not only in the behavior of adults but all over—on billboards, in advertising, tv, and movies, even in the "nice" magazines. Our children are getting it smeared in their faces from the time they can see and hear. This is the first generation to grow up with tv, and the fact is that by the time a child is 18 he has spent more time in front of the tv set than he has in school. And anyone who takes a look at tv knows the sexual themes that prevail. So this is why we must have a sex education that has a positive approach and not the negative or distorted one they get from tv.

When sex was left up to the parents, did they fall on the job?

In an earlier age, say in the first 20 years of this century when I was growing up, the world was so small that outside influences did not come into the home, except through newspapers and highly selected magazines. Parents lived their sex education before their children, and the peaceful, happy relationship of a well-matched husband and wife was good sex education. The simple facts of reproduction—which are not sex education really—could be acquired later in good time. True, there were mistakes and errors, but parents did not then need the knowledge and the equipment they must have now if they are going to do a good job of preparing their children to live sexually in today's sexual world.

When should sex education begin?

Sex education really begins at birth. Children come into the kindergarten with a lot of it already, mostly negative and distorted. Ideally, a school sex-education program in the broad sense—not just sex education about the reproductive act—should begin in kindergarten and should be integrated all the way through school at a pace that will be appropriate to the development of the children.

Will this stimulate their curiosity too early?

Believe me, you don't have to stimulate a child's curiosity—it's there, and it's there legitimately. People shouldn't be afraid of children's curiosity. It is a normal thing.

Obviously, we don't want to encourage experimentation that's going to be damaging, but we have to recognize that a child explores his body. Frankly, I'll settle for a little experimentation provided it's experimentation in knowledge rather than in very dangerous ignorance.

When the child enters his teens, will he want to go out and test his new knowledge?

He's already doing that. What parents often don't understand is that it is dangerous to leave children stimulated as they are now and then not give them the knowledge, values, and moralities that will help them to learn how to manage their perfectly normal sexual needs.

Will sex education conflict with what I believe in?

It may. The child may learn something that it would benefit the parents to learn. This is why—in those communities where the most successful programs in sex education are operating—parents often request the school to give them evening courses so that they will learn the same things their children do. This allows the parents and children to communicate.

Now as to values and moralities, let me say this: nobody advocates sex education more than the churches. And nowhere have I seen any church—Roman Catholic especially—other than enthusiastic about this new approach to understanding human sexuality and people's sexual behavior.

Won't it be embarrassing for boys and girls to discuss these things together?

No, quite to the contrary. In grades 7 to 9, it may happen that there will be a time when the boys and girls would like to have several sessions apart. But by and large, the boys and girls learn more from one another in their reactions to new knowledge and new thoughts.

Will birth control be taught?

We don't teach birth-control techniques. I must confess that I have to warn communities not to teach anything about birth control that the children haven't already learned from the mass media. We recommend that the community get together to discuss all aspects of sex education.

Don't worry; the educators will be very sensitive to the needs and desires of the community. If the community really doesn't want to have birth control discussed, it won't be. It is important, however, for girls to understand the dangers in the pill that require its prescription by a good physician, so they won't buy bottle pills, which can be really dangerous.

What should be taught in sex-education programs?

Sex education is not just explaining how babies are born or studying human anatomy, although that's part of it. Where appropriate, the children will acquire the physiology of reproduction. But they will spend far more time in discussing the art of relating to other people in responsible ways not only in sex but in parent-child relationships, marriage-relationships, friendships, dating. Also, what it is to be a man and what it is to be a woman. This is sex education. We're not going to be talking about sex techniques.

Will the visual aids embarrass my daughter?

Not a bit—not as long as the teacher is comfortable and indicates that comfort is the way to approach these things. We're not embarrassed when we look at visual aids of the digestive system. We ought to understand these things and take them as calmly and objectively as any other parts of our lives.

If there is no sex education at my school, what should I do at home?

Hopefully, parents would begin to talk with their children early about the beauties of marriage, family life, and reproduction. There's a lovely little series of slides called "How Babies Are Made," just for parents to share with their children. There are a number of good books on the subject. The whole wonderful story of families and marriage should be shared early.

Education in the Classroom

By CLAIRE SAFRAN

Do we bring up sex or wait for our child to ask questions?

In the ideal situation, the child will feel free to ask questions. Parents should have indicated that sex is not a subject that is off-limits but a worthy subject to discuss in the home. But if the parents have been tongue-tied up to now, they shouldn't leave it until the child is 10 or 12. Then it's too late, and they will not be able to establish communication.

How can we go about getting sex education in our school?

This has been a great concern of the PTAs for three years now. They have begun discussions in many communities, but they can't do it alone. They can't try to force unwilling school superintendents or principals to do something about it. It requires six-months, maybe a year of discussions within the community, among all groups—the church, professional leaders, social workers, youth-organization workers, as well as teachers.

So much depends on the teacher; what makes her qualified?

Not academic courses necessarily, but the kind of person the teacher is. There's nothing so abstruse about human sexual behavior that any teacher could not teach it. But the teacher must relate honestly to young people and be a person whom young people trust. There are many workshops being set up now for training and orientation of teachers, wherever they might be. There are summer courses in the universities, and many opportunities are opening up for the training of these teachers.

How can I judge if our sex-education courses are good?

I'm afraid that parents cannot exercise judgments as to quality in terms of content because most parents are not qualified. Even many doctors are not qualified, except to judge the accuracy of the biology and physiological content. But the emotional and behavioral content requires a different kind of judgment.

One excellent way to judge, however, is through the reaction of the young people. If they are enthusiastic, if they talk—with parents especially—without the feeling that this is something to be ashamed of, then the program is good.

What about students who said recently that their sex-education program was "silly"?

Maybe they were right. I suspect that some of the courses given under the name of "sex education" today are silly. But I have never failed to see young people become deeply involved in sex education that was specifically geared to their needs at their stage of development, provided the teaching was given honestly.

What about the more controversial areas of sex education—such as abortion?

There are differences of opinion, and we live with these differences. The American Medical Association feels that abortion is a medical problem and should be handled by doctors. Now that's a fact. But do we want to hide this from our young people? Do we want to hide from them the fact that abortion in any form, even under medical circumstances, is not accepted as moral by a large segment of the population? To me, there is no controversial subject in sex. Anything that exists is here, and therefore, we must explore it, understand it, and learn as much as we can about it.

Will venereal diseases be discussed in class?

No. Venereal diseases happen to be infectious diseases that are transmitted through sexual contact, but I don't think they are a part of sex education. It is, however, a most essential part of communicable-disease education.

In brief, we no longer have a choice as to whether or not we will teach sex education. It's being done, and we have to recognize it. Our only choice is what kind of sex education is best for our children. ♦

Sex education today is partly biology—but it also stresses human relationships.

If you're in debt and want to get out—I can show you 71 ingenious (but perfectly legal) ways to do it

I wrote this book for people who are in debt, for people who really need help. And they can get it, quicker and easier than they think.

There are dozens of legitimate ways (a full 71 in all) to delay your debt, and eventually get out of it, and I believe I know them all. It's a pity that more people don't.

I have been a bank credit officer for nearly thirty years. In this time, I have sat down with a quarter of a million people to help them solve their financial problems.

My new book, HOW TO HAVE MORE MONEY TO SPEND, demonstrates step by step the techniques that can take the strain out of paying your debts. With some thought and planning, you can change a recurring monthly headache into a relatively painless experience!

TIME-TESTED METHODS

Did you know, for example, that you can borrow yourself out of debt? (The process involves a number of thoroughly tested steps—the first of which is to borrow about twice as much as you need.) And here are a few other things I'd like to show you:

• How to "freeze" your indebtedness indefinitely, paying it off only when you're ready—a perfectly proper technique that works fine for the U.S. Government, and can work just as well for you.

• How to get more credit—even when it seems you have reached your limit.

• How to avoid paying hidden charges when you buy on "time." (In other words, how to reduce your debts even before you incur them.)

• How to eliminate many needless, crippling expenses from your personal spending.

• How to deal with your financial problem as a whole—instead of wasting money attacking it piecemeal.

Which method—or combination of methods—should you use? As you read HOW TO HAVE MORE MONEY TO SPEND, this question will answer itself. The book is filled with detailed case histories. At least one of them should be close enough to your own situation for all practical purposes.

Remember: none of this is theoretical or speculative. It has all been tried—it has all worked. Every course of action I recommend has helped real people find their way back to one of the happiest conditions known to man—complete solvency.

Sailor,
Singer,
Star:
The Many Lives of Tommy Steele

WHEN YOU first meet Tommy Steele, he appears charming, witty, and outgoing—much the same as the characters he played in Walt Disney's "The Happiest Millionaire" and in Paramount's "Half a Sixpence," too.

But Tommy Steele is more than just a happy star—he is a serious, emotional young man who has learned about life's rough side, too. Tommy's rise to stardom has been meteoric since his smash success a scant three years ago in the London and Broadway stage version of "Half a Sixpence."

Tommy quit school at the age of 15 and left England, signing on as a seaman aboard a New York-bound ship. "That year" at sea taught me more about life than 10 years of schooling," Tommy says. "I learned that life can be beautiful and ugly, generous and petty. It's all up to you."

After a siege of spinal meningitis, which almost took his life, Tommy went back to sea a far more mature person. During his illness, he felt the strong pull of God. "I still don't believe in formal religion, but I do believe in God, who has certain laws which we must obey."

Signing on the cruise ship Star of Bermuda, Tommy made his first contact with the then new American craze, rock 'n' roll. "One night I heard a recording of 'Dedicated,' a song in memory of Hank Williams. I had learned to play the guitar when I was younger, so I bought one for myself," Tommy says.

Back in London after a two-year tour at sea, Tommy, then

18, was signed by a recording-company agent who heard him sing in Soho. Tommy proceeded to record a satire of American rock 'n' roll, but amazingly the British kids took it seriously, and he became Britain's first rock-'n'-roll idol. It nearly drove him to despair. "I felt like the performer who can't sing, can't dance, can't act—but can't quit, because he is a star."

His new found fame brought movie offers, which he accepted. "I made six films in England, four of them rock-'n' rollers, and all of them bad," he says. "I desperately wanted to be a part of show-business, but I knew that to be a part of it would have to give up the rock-'n'-roll image. So I cancelled my recording contracts and left for Australia."

He spent four months there, four months he now refers to as his "wilderness period." Returning to England, he landed the juicy role of the humble draper's apprentice in "Half a Sixpence" and appeared in 1,500 performances of the play in London and New York.

Tommy and his wife of seven years, former actress Ann Donaghy, recently bought a home in Ocho Rios in Jamaica, where they plan to spend as much time as he can squeeze from his tight schedule. "Ann and I love the place," Tommy says. "That's where we found peace, tranquility, and friendship."

These are elements that don't seem to belong in the hectic life of Tommy Steele, but then nothing is too impossible for the young man who made the seemingly impossible transition from $6-a-week sailor to rock-'n'-roll singer to top-drawer movie star—all before he was 29.

The Funny Business of Running for President

He who laughs last may not get elected! That's why there's a gag writer behind every candidate

By CLAIRE KELLER

THIS YEAR'S elections may be the funniest ever. That's the prediction of many political experts who have peeked into the smoky back rooms of the leading Presidential candidates.

What they see in every headquarters is a shirt-sleeved gag writer huddled with the shadowy, long-familiar figure of the speech writer. Together they are honing the campaign's most potent weapon—the custom-made political joke.

"It's the age of specialization," explains Robert Orberg, author of "The Joke Teller's Handbook" and one of the most busily employed political gag writers. "In the past, one of the regular speech writers—hopefully could work a laugh or two into the candidate's speech. Today that's not good enough. Now there's a humor specialist whose job it is to create image-building jokes for the candidate and image-destroying ones for the opposition."

Here are some one-liners used by leading politicians:

Gov. Ronald Reagan gets up and says: "I wonder what the 10 Commandments would have looked like if Moses had run them through a state legislature." President Johnson quips: "We're going to ask the Viet namese to send observers to our election this year." Richard Nixon warns up an audience with: "This is going to be a hot five-man race between five noncandidates." George Wallace tells college hickies: "I want to recommend a new book—'How to Behave in Public.'" New York's Mayor John Lindsay says: "Whereas LaGuardia read funnies to the children, I read tragedies to adults."

The other kind of joke aims at destroying a rival's image. No candidate would use these nasty remarks in his own speech—but he doesn't mind if his aides make them up and circulate them. Here are a few:

"LBJ is an underachiever." "Bob Kennedy is really Bugs Bunny." "Remember Thomas Dewey? He's a Nixon on who knew when to quit."

There are compelling reasons why politicians have turned to the professional humorists for "ad libs" at airport press conferences or for campaign literature. As political commentator Walter Cronkite says, "One of the qualities of leadership in the modern world is a sense of humor. In John Kennedy's case, it was an integral part of his inspiration, his establishment of a national mood—which is a problem today."

In the age of tv politics, there is another reason. As Dr. Henry Ostberg, who heads one of the country's largest research and image-making organizations, explains: "Something humorous has a better chance of being picked up for the 11 o'clock news."

A third reason is the knowledge of how cruelly devastating humor can be. As Walter Cronkite says: "There is nothing more harmful than being laughed at rather than laughed with. The joke can be about anything. Even that Nixon line (the one in the 1960 Presidential campaign) which many felt influenced the election, 'Would you buy a used car from this man?'" was not 'dirty politics.' A candidate is fair game and has to be able to rise above the jokes they tell about him."

Some politicians, for example, can take a joke aimed at them and turn it back with equal devastation. Barry Goldwater was the butt of many 1964 jokes about his slogan: "In your heart, you know he's right." As the Vietnam war progressed, Goldwater turned the slogan joke against LBJ: "In his heart, he knows I was right." And Nixon has adapted a self-deprecating attitude in jokes to enhance his image: "They call me a dropout from the Electoral College—flunked debating, you know."

Although a candidate needs humor, it can be a double-edged sword. "It can be overdose," warns Dr. Ostberg. "Take the case of Adlai Stevenson. His wit became an end in itself. He got so much satisfaction out of people's reactions to his humor that he sometimes forgot the objective of wit, which should be to get the point across." There is another danger. "No one joke appeals to everyone," warns Dr. Ostberg, "so humor can splinter your audience."

Here is how a noted tv commentator and political analyst rates some of the potential candidates on their use of this political weapon.

Ronald Reagan: "He overdoes it. On his recent swing through the country, he told 500 many jokes like, 'The hippies wear a button saying make love, not war. They don't look as though they could do either."

Eugene McCarthy: "He is solemn. He has wit, but he hasn't used it." George Romney: "He is a cheerful man—and that's not good jokes." Lyndon Johnson: "It's hard to say about him. One day he is Bert Lahr; the day after that, he's Woodrow Wilson. But he does have a hearty sense of humor."

George Wallace: "Too serious." Robert Kennedy: "Not in the same class as his brother Jack."

Nelson Rockefeller: "Right now he's playing it coy, but he knows how to make people laugh."

The more serious candidates remember Adlai Stevenson, who was humorous and loat, and Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was humorless and won. They can tell themselves quite rightly that it is not wise to try to be a political Bob Hope. "There's an inverse relationship between humor and the job you're running for," says Dr. Ostberg. "People will accept a jovial joke-telling elderman—but not a President."

Still, the gag writers are busily at work. They know it is not the joke the candidate tells that matters so much. It is the jokes that are told about him—and his opponents—that can change an election.

No candidate may have openly asked his writer for it, but surely each is hoping unconsciously that the humorist in the back room will come up with a line as devastating as the used-car one that helped deflate Nixon's hopes in 1960.

"If you stop to think about your own views of a political candidate," says Orberg, "you may realize that it's not arrived at from newspaper stories and speeches. Instead, you may well be judging him by the jokes you've heard." *

George Romney . . . cheerful?

Nelson Rockefeller . . . coy?

Havens to Fit Your Retirement Funds

Sunny skies and inexpensive living are luring retirees to Mexico, Guatemala, and island paradises — By JULIE SMITH

A RETIRED engineer who had left Chicago to settle in Puerto Vallarta was asked why he picked Mexico to live.

"Simple," he replied. "Puerto Vallarta has the greatest climate of all the places I've been. But Mexico has even more appeal: the low cost of living. My savings and pension checks stretch like rubber here. I rent a villa for $60 a month, and we have a live-in maid for $25. Food is plentiful and cheap."

An estimated 75,000 retired citizens of the U.S. now have taken up residence in Mexico. They range from the affluent, who haunt the sands at Acapulco to the adventurous who rough it in the jungles of Yucatan. The majority, however, are Americans of modest means who shun the big cities and sleek resorts. Instead, they seek out the mountain villages and fishing towns, where living is easy, and the family food bill can be measured in pennies per day.

Typical is the American colony which has grown up around Lake Chapala, 30 miles south of Guadalajara. Here, most Americans have the official status of "immigrant retired," granted by the Mexican government to those of 55 and over who have incomes of at least $250 a month per man (and $80 for his wife and every child of 16 and over). These retirees can bring household effects and car into Mexico duty-free.

Condominium homes in Chapala, Mexico, offer U.S. retirees luxury living for as little as $4,000.

A retired schoolteacher from Hartford, Conn., built a home on the shores of Lake Chapala seven years ago at a cost of $14,000. Skilled artisans, working for $15 a week, completed the job in 11 months. The result is a show place.

While Mexico leads the way, there are other places in Central America where the retired American has found a home. Most popular are the shores of Lake Atitlan and the old capital of Antigua in Guatemala. The cost of living there is even less than in Mexico, and the income tax on invested capital is low.

Anyone who seeks to live in a totally tax-free society can try such Caribbean islands as Nassau, the Bahamas, and the Caymans. Taxes in many of the other scenic islands are small, and there are incentives galore for investments. If you choose to build a guest house in Grenada or St. Vincent, for example, the government lets you operate free of income tax for five years. Puerto Rico lures retirees in the Caribbean just as Mexico lures them south of the border. A condominium apartment in San Juan is a bargain, but the best buys in real estate are out on the island. Purchase prices for American-type housing with gleaming kitchens and a view of the sea begin as low as $8,000.

Americans who seek something still cheaper than Mexico or the Caribbean might make their way to the Canary Islands, off the northwest coast of Africa. Spacious boardinghouses in Las Palmas and Santa Cruz accommodate the guests at $5 a day with all meals. Away from the tourist hot places like La Orotava on Tenerife, Brenajias on Las Palmas, and Arrecife on Lanzarote, room and board run as little as $12 a day. Beautifully furnished houses with large airy rooms and flower-filled patios rent for $50 a month.

Anyone who really wants to cut corners can always retire to the isles of Greece. A fisherman's cottage on Hydra, for example, rents for $35 a month. Better still, you can buy a cottage of your own for less than $500.

But remember, it's wise to live in a place before you buy or rent. Sample the social life, climate, and cost of living—preferably out of season—when prices are low, and tourists are few. Check out details: Is the water pure? What about medical care? Is milk pasteurized? Do servants speak English? What is the duty on household effects? Will American appliances work on local current? How much red tape to acquire residency status? What about taxes?

Settling abroad often requires infinitely more patience and flexibility than settling in Miami Beach or Palm Springs. But people who have done it say that there's no better way to develop a new interest in life and get some real living out of your retirement funds. *

A tourist in the Haight-Ashbury section of San Francisco noticed a hippie lazing in the doorway of an aging building. "Young man," he remonstrated, "why don't you get yourself a job?"

"Why, man?" the hippie asked. "Well, you could earn some money that way."

"Why, man?" the lazing hippie asked again.

"If you worked hard and earned money, pretty soon you'd have a bank account. Now, wouldn't you like that?"

"Why?"

"For goodness sake!" the exasperated tourist shouted. "With a hefty bank account, you could retire, and then you wouldn't have to work any more."

"Crazy, man," the hippie said. "But I'm not working now."

The artist kissed his model passionately, then told her, "You're the first model I've ever kissed."

"Really?" she asked. "How many models have you painted before I came along?"

"Six," he told her. "A tree, an apple, an orange, and three—wood-filled with flowers." —Flora Rand
