No Blast For Idaho

Project Schooner, explosion of a nuclear device as part of the Atomic Energy Commission's cratering experimental program, will be held in Nevada instead of Southwestern Idaho, as originally planned.

This information was revealed in an AEC release in remarks made by John S. Kelly, director of the division of peaceful nuclear explosives, during a hearing before the subcommittee on the Panama Canal and the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Said Mr. Kelly: "Our nuclear cratering experimental program will continue in fiscal year 1969, including planned execution of Project Schooner, a point charge of about 100 kilotons in hard, dry rock."

"We had previously planned to conduct Schooner at a location in southwestern Idaho on the Nevada Test Site. We now plan to do the experiment on the NTS because of the significant reduction in costs that can be achieved by using the permanent support facilities of the site."

The proposed Idaho site for the blast was in the Brumet Desert, south of Mountain Home. A test blast, named Pre-Schooner, was conducted there with conventional explosives in 1965 to determine the suitability of the site.

Two Men Die In Salt Lake City Night Of Terror

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A night of terror for one family erupted into blazing gunfire at a neighbor's home early today, leaving two men dead by gun.

Taken to Latter-day Saint Hospital for treatment of a head wound was Mrs. Edith Courtney, 75.

Sheriff's officers found Anderson and the Edwards brothers sprawled in the living room and kitchen of the Edwards residence where the gun battle occurred.

Gale Anderson, 55, a former inmate of the Utah State Prison and of the Utah State Hospital; Wayne Edwards, 47, Salt Lake

City, sheriff's office, said the night of terror started about 11 o'clock Monday night at the home Mrs. Ann C. McDonald lived in the fashionable Holiday-Cottonwood suburban area on Cottonwood Lane.

He said Anderson, driving an automobile with license plates from Saskatchewan, Canada, stopped at the McDonald residence and held the family of five at gunpoint.

Present were Mrs. McDonald, her two daughters, and her mother, Mrs. Courtney.

About 6:30 a.m. Andrus said

Anderson slugged Mrs. Courtney with a pistol and went to the nearby Edwards residence.

Wayne Edwards opened the door in Anderson's knock and was shot. Leon Edwards and Anderson then shot it out, with about nine shots fired before Anderson fell dead, face down on the Edwards kitchen floor.

Andrus said Anderson and the Edwards family were acquainted, as they all previously lived in Caribon County.

The Edwards brothers and the McDonald family were associated in operation of the Cottonwood Book Store, in the nearby Cottonwood Mall shopping center.

Records at the Utah State Prison showed Anderson was sentenced from Salt Lake County to a term of one year to life for second degree kidnaping. He was received at the prison July 8, 1965, and released Sept. 29, 1966. Prior to his prison term he was at the Utah State Hospital for two years, 1963-1965, following his release from prison in he was returned to the hospital from Salt Lake County in April 1, 1966 to Sept. 29, 1966.

Massive Snowstorm Clogs Southern Plains Roads

By The Associated Press

A massive late-winter snowstorm swept the southern plains Tuesday, howled across the Mississippi Valley and bore down on the Northeast.

Oklahoma was all but immobilized by its worst storm of the winter, a wind-driven hazy maker packing gusts of 40 to 50 miles an hour. Up to 12 inches of snow was blown into a 4-and-5-foot drifts, stalling hundreds of motorists across the state.

Hotels and motels were jammed with travelers unable to continue during the night, closed by highways or by night, snarling highway traffic and closing numerous schools in the panhandle-plains area.

The 24-hour siege of wind and snow left four persons dead in Oklahoma traffic accidents.

Several eastern Oklahoma towns and many rural communities were without electrical power for varying periods. Also affected were some 3,500 homes in Tulsa. Telephone service was out in many areas of the state.

Scores of schools, including the University of Tulsa, suspended classes for the day.

There were near-blizzard conditions in adjacent sections of the state.

Wind gusts of 35 miles an hour cut visibility to zero.

School Board OK's Raises For Teachers

Monthly raises of from $15 to $30 were approved for the instructional staff of School District 157 Monday night by action of the board.

The amount of the raise, according to Superintendent Ernest Pungert, depends on the degree of professional training.

Those with five years' training, $25.83; those with bachelor's degrees, $21.67; and those with two to three years' training, $15.00.

Trustees also approved a professional negotiation agreement with the Twin Falls Education Association, Mrs. Mabel

Rusk Offers No Hope That Hanoi Wants Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today he can offer no present hope that Hanoi will accept a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam war.

He also talked, despite heavy protests, with the North Vietnamese, in a presidential message to Congress.

There have been reports President Johnson is considering sending up to 250,000 additional men. A total of 525,000 is now authorized.

Rusk told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee: "There is room for indignation over the repeated rejection by Hanoi of the smallest, step toward a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam war."

government at Hanoi had rejected, among other approaches, proposals for a mutual cessation of hostilities without formal negotiations.

"We have deliberately held off on the bombing of North Vietnam at times in attempts to bring about a cease-fire of the military effort, Rusk said. He noted no results were forthcoming.

"The idea, he said, was to gradually expand the areas of de-escalation. He called it "peace by infiltration."

"In an apparent policy feeling the committee, Rusk proposed private meetings to determine "those elements on which we are in agreement, in order to narrow the range of disagreement."

Marine Termed Dead Is Saved By Physicians

By JOHN T. WHEELER

KIIE SANH-Vietnam (AP) — Five plays "strange tricks" on the body of a young Marine who was killed in a battle and refused to die.

He was counted clinically dead, yet he lives today.

He was clinically dead, field doctors said, but when he was hit while helping wounded Leathernecks he was just 200 yards from the Sanh's main station. There, doctors fought to save his life with open heart surgery in a battle-torn, underground bunker.

Pvt. Spicer, 19, of Miami, Fla., was shot by a Viet Cong sniper, once was an outcast at this base manned by tough Marines in South Vietnam's northwest corner. Because of his fortitude in the face of war, Spicer was assigned to the team of medical corpsmen. In that job he became a hero.

Repeatedly he shielded fallen men with his own body when enemy fire came in.

"What 'n' me realized that he was thoroughly unselfish and wouldn't hesitate to put himself in danger," said Lt. Joseph Feldman, a medical officer from Forest Hills, N.Y.

Spicer got hit in a situation he didn't have to be in. Men were having trouble loading wounded onto a medical evacuation helicopter because of enemy shells.

Spicer saw it but an officer called to him from a bunker; he went back in.

Nevertheless, the young private turned and ran to the helicopter.

He arrived just as a shell burst among the wounded men and the litter bearers. Spicer was hit in the heart, face and legs.

In the medical bunker, Lt. John Magilligan of Brooklyn, N.Y., his fatigues, flak jacket and helmet already stained with the blood of other casualties, began work on Spicer.

"He died real fast," said Magilligan. "His heart stopped. So did his breathing."

Nevertheless he cut open Spicer's chest.

As much time as Joseph W. Rutledge, Tenn., forced a plastic tube down the throat and began pumping oxygen into Spicer's lungs.

Magilligan had helped in a similar operation at a rear area hospital in November. He suspected the young man's heart had penetrated Spicer's heart, which then pumped blood into its surrounding membrane.

Magilligan opened the membrane, called the pericardium, and let it drain, dropping pressure on the heart.

Drilling Will Show American Falls Dam Condition

By ALLEN M. BAILEY — Drilling will cost of around $15 million. But Norman Moore, the assistant regional director for the American Falls Dam, said additional tests would be made this year to make sure that the dam can be repaired, at a much lower cost.

The chief engineer for the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation has said the structure on the Upper Snake River, west of Pocatello, which backs up water in a vital 20-mile-long reservoir to irrigate the arid southeastern Idaho area. They are engineers with extensive knowledge of the problems involved in the construction of the dam.

The dam's upper eight feet were not designed to sustain the pressure of "black ice" which forms on the reservoir during the winter.

The concrete in the dam has deteriorated because of a chemical reaction not known about when the dam was built 40 years ago.

Three retired California civil engineers with extensive knowledge of the problems involved in the construction of the dam are to study data obtained by the dam drilling which is to obtain cores of the dam's concrete, ranging from 2 1/2 to 10 inches in diameter, will give engineers a picture of the dam off the top of the dam.

When the dam is built, the concrete is poured a section at a time—and the bonds between these "blocks" of concrete are another source of worry for reclamation officials.

Indians on the Fort Hall Reservation upstream from the dam say they will allow the structure to be raised only "over our dead bodies" because it would flood some of the Indians' grazing lands.

The dam was not built to take the stress the ice could place on the dam and Bureau officials say the pressure might shear off the top of the dam.

Some of the holes from which the cores are obtained will be left open to test for water pressure and the rest will be filled with concrete.

When the dam was built, Moore said, engineers did not know about an alkali reaction which has since taken place between the cement and aggregate used in the dam. Basically, concrete is made by mixing cement, aggregate (rock or sand) and water in certain proportions.

In the American Falls Dam, the cement has reacted with the aggregate with which it was mixed, causing the concrete to expand and crack—a process which weakens the dam.

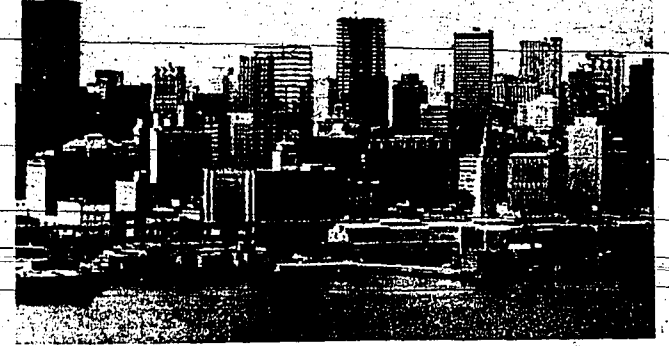

Since the dam was built, engineers have found that they could avoid the chemical reaction by using certain types of cement with certain types of aggregate.

Because of the dam's design—which did not allow for ice pressure—water has to be allowed to flow downstream to keep the water level at least

There's No Comfort In A Tax Increase

March 12-13, 1968

ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON—Since most re-doubled Americans—and these days, a lot of the blue-blooded variety—work for a weekly wage, they will find little comfort in Rep. Wilbur Mills' skunk that Congress probably will force to enact a general tax increase if spending on the Vietnam war is substantially accelerated.

A "general" tax increase means President Johnson's proposal for a 10 percent income tax surcharge, which would sock hardest the taxpayer who is suffering most from war costs and inflation.

He is the citizen who, according to the Administration's own figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has lost 60 cents a week in purchasing power since last March. His paycheck is worth no more than a year ago, despite any pay increase he might have received, because prices continue to go up. Yet Wilbur Mills' chairman of the prestigious House Ways and Means Committee, says he'd probably have to go along with the surcharge if there is a sizable increase in the cost of the war.

Hewing carefully to the political line of the Washington Establishment, Mills says nothing about the screaming need for tax reform to distribute the tax burden more equitably. He sounds as if he never heard of the oil and gas industry's 27 1/2 percent depletion allowance which enables some billion-dollar companies to pay no Federal taxes at all.

But of course Mills has heard of this piece of grand larceny. He is more of the subject because this is an election year, and both political parties need the financial largesse the industry bestows on its faithful legislators.

Mills also has deplored that there is another possible development which probably would "force" Congress to enact a substantial inflationary pressure from demand-pull inflation. "Demand-pull" inflation results from a greater increase in available money to spend than in the available goods to buy. It differs from "cost push" inflation, which is caused by increased costs of raw materials and labor.

Well, Mrs. Balabanoff, the Consumer Price Index is 14 percent above a year ago. It has gone up for four straight months and is running at the highest annual rate in 10 years. It now stands at 118.6, which means that it takes $118.60 to buy what cost $100 a year ago.

It is right when he sees little chance of any major budget-cutting.

Mills has properly demanded that if the administration spends more on Vietnam, it should make further cutbacks in other budget items. But an election year has its effect on Congress. The House voted with the entire House in for reelection, there is little likelihood of any cost-cutting number of legislators agreeing to reduce pork barrel projects that benefit their districts. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Fowler's observation is right when he sees little chance of any major budget-cutting.

If a rational society that would leave tax reform as the only alternative to another whopping deficit. Unfortunately, the society which is the Congress is not rational in a self-serving way. To our knowledge, the only rational way to kick the shins of big campaign contributors with November looming.

It is easily the most preposterous of

It's Just Around The Next Corner

Cataracts

Q—I have incipient cataracts. How long does it take for a cataract to form? Can it be dissolved without an operation?

A—You have beginning cataracts in both eyes. Cataracts develop at an uneven rate that varies from months to years in different persons. The amount of opacity in the lens cannot be dissolved, an enzyme is sometimes used to dissolve the attachment of the lens to its surrounding capsule. This makes it possible to remove the cataract without waiting for it to "ripen" as was done in former times.

Q—What causes a cataract? If one can see all right even though a cataract is present, should the cataract be removed or is it better to wait? Is there any slight appearance of "waxing and waning" in the development of a cataract? Can a cataract be treated with ultra-sound?

A—A cataract is a clouding of the aging process. They are found in an ever-increasing percentage of persons in each age group. The "waxing and waning" is higher in persons, such as glass blowers and stokers, who are exposed to heat or intense light than in the general population. Living in a hot, dry climate is also a causative factor. In some persons, taking large doses of drugs of the cortisone group and others has caused cataracts.

If your vision is good in either eye it is best to postpone cataract removal. This is because, if you have a special type lens, such as a contact lens, it is best to postpone cataract removal. This is because, if you have a special type lens, such as a contact lens, it is best to postpone cataract removal. This is because, if you have a special type lens, such as a contact lens, it is best to postpone cataract removal.

A—Authorities differ with regard to the best way to remove a cataract. A new technique that uses an ultrasonic needle has been developed. The vibrations break up the lens and it can then be sucked out through the same opening. This method uses special sound waves. Although this is believed by some to be the best method of treatment, it is too new to have been widely adopted.

The Handicapped

There is one kind of discrimination in America that no one has ever given much thought to. It is the discrimination against the physically handicapped. It affects some 22 million people—irrespective of their race—limiting them in their choice of places to shop, work, eat, enjoy entertainment and attend church or school.

These forgotten Americans are the permanently or temporarily handicapped. Numbers live right here in Magic Valley and these people, as well as all of us, are concerned as to what is happening over the nation. Simple things most of us never give a second thought to, such as the width of doorways, placement of telephones, construction of steps, elevators, rest rooms, parking areas and other facilities designed for the average person, present problems for the handicapped person simply cannot cope with, says the USA Standards Institute.

The situation is changing, however. The National Society for Crippled Children and Adults (the Easter Seal people), in cooperation with the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, are pressing a continuing nationwide campaign to encourage use of USA Standards A117-1161 aimed at making buildings and facilities accessible to, and usable by, the physically handicapped.

As a result of the effort, a number of new office buildings around the country have incorporated the standard. So have restaurants on the New Jersey Turnpike and Garden State Parkway. Three leading motel chains plan to provide several accessible guest rooms in all new hotels.

All new federal government buildings are designed to be used by the handicapped and legislation is pending to require the same for buildings financed in part by federal funds.

Experience has shown that buildings without barriers to the handicapped cost no more than conventional structures and that changes in existing buildings require no great outlay of money. Some of the specifications—ramps, for instance—may even save construction money, as well as reducing maintenance costs, insurance fees and personal injury suits. In commercial establishments, increased patronage can more than pay for the cost of improvements. Moreover, standards which make a building more suitable for the handicapped benefit everyone because they make things safer and easier for the average person. A study of one institution found that more than 80 percent of the able-bodied people entering it by-passed stairs to use a ramp originally built for the handicapped.

SLOW PROGRESS AGAINST CANCER
GOOD NEWS is hard to come by in the fight against cancer. A two-day symposium on cancer research held at the University of Chicago's Billings Hospital starting Saturday, will bring together 26 of the world's leading experts on this most dreaded of diseases. Their discussions on the growth of normal and of cancerous cells no doubt will prove useful, but it would be idle to expect any amount of dramatic progress in finding a "cure" for cancer. The fact is that cancer is not one but many diseases, with a bewildering variety of causes.

Despite expenditure of $2 billion on cancer research in the past 30 years, the cancer death rate continues to mount. The National Advisory Cancer Council has announced 305,000 Americans died of cancer in 1967—and that 900,000 were expected to die in 1970. Last year was 153 per 100,000 people. All of these unmelancholy figures were recorded.

THE LATEST PART of the increase in cancer death was, the council said, due to the rise in smoking, air pollution and occupation hazards. The use of uranium in the production of all may well be uranium mining. It was revealed last spring that around 100 uranium miners have died of lung cancer and that perhaps 1,000 more will die because they, too, have breathed excessive amounts of radioactive dust in poorly ventilated mines.

Progress in the fight against cancer is slow and piecemeal. The most success has been achieved in treatment of leukemia, uterine cancer, and Hodgkin's disease, a cancer of the body's infection-fighting lymph system. Cancer of the uterus was the leading cause of cancer death among women 30 years ago. Since then, the death rate from that particular form of cancer has been cut in half.

These figures are scant comfort, considering the toll. Our best protection continues to be an awareness of cancer's seven dangers and regular checkups. Idaho State Journal.

AN ACT THAT REQUIRES EXPLANATION
Sometimes it appears a greater enemy of the United States in South Vietnam than the Viet Cong is the Saigon government officials who are supposed to be our allies. A prime argument for the U.S. presence in Vietnam is that America is helping to fight the Vietnamese establish a democratic government instead of a Communist police state forced on them at gunpoint. The American goal is being frustrated. President Johnson and other administration spokesmen have pointed repeatedly to the Popular Front for the Liberation of Vietnam as a democratic government. But that government has a nasty habit of doing un-democratic things. Like yesterday for instance when the Saigon government arrested, among others, Thieu Tri Quang, head of a major Buddhist faction, and Truong Dinh Thieu, a prominent Buddhist leader. The United States is seeking "an explanation" of the arrests. It had better be a good one.—Levinson Tribune.

SILLY CHAMPIONSHIPS
One cannot but admire Mrs. boundless persistence, even when not always able to give equal admiration to the ways to which it is sometimes put. So it is with a new order record of automobile accidents. Peter Schell, a Bavarian writer, is reported to have spent 163 hours in a show-off record, breaking all previous records in this vital competition.

Herr Schell even managed to eat and sleep while under the shower—this being the record's "proof" of all of his stick-it-to-it.

We hope that someday we shall come across a compilation of silly records. Who sat longest on a fender? Who swallowed the most goldfish during that short-lived college craze? How many young men actually did crowd into that telephone booth? How long has a piano been played nonstop? Which had the most freckles? Who ate the most slices of pie at one sitting?

All these records are sometimes relaxing, especially so in these wretchedly serious times.—Christian Science Monitor.

UNSAFE FOR PRESIDENT
How dangerously close to anarchy this country has come is revealed in the plans being made in Chicago for preserving order during the Democratic National Convention next summer.

Sheil Joseph I. Woods of Cook County is the president of a group of demonstrators, service clubs, moderate Negro organizations and other responsible groups for 1,000 volunteers to help deal with threatened racial disturbances and anti-war demonstrations. The posse will be armed. President Johnson will not ride through the convention, says the group. U.S. chief executives have safely done through most of the nation's history. Instead, a helicopter will land him on the roof of the convention hall. Five helicopter pilots will be used with the one carrying the President indistinguishable from the other.

Perhaps the authorities are unduly alarmed by the threats by extremists to disrupt the convention. The members of his Cabinet in recent months, when unruly demonstrators have surrounded buildings in which they appeared, indicate that no chances can be taken. One shudders to consider, however, the bloodshed that may result if the demonstrators succeed in destroying the American system and a thousand gun-carrying, probably poorly trained men.

Woods of Cook County is the president of a group of demonstrators, service clubs, moderate Negro organizations and other responsible groups for 1,000 volunteers to help deal with threatened racial disturbances and anti-war demonstrations. The posse will be armed. President Johnson will not ride through the convention, says the group. U.S. chief executives have safely done through most of the nation's history. Instead, a helicopter will land him on the roof of the convention hall. Five helicopter pilots will be used with the one carrying the President indistinguishable from the other.

Perhaps the authorities are unduly alarmed by the threats by extremists to disrupt the convention. The members of his Cabinet in recent months, when unruly demonstrators have surrounded buildings in which they appeared, indicate that no chances can be taken. One shudders to consider, however, the bloodshed that may result if the demonstrators succeed in destroying the American system and a thousand gun-carrying, probably poorly trained men.

Britons Back Us On Vietnam

LONDON (NEA)—Talking to a few people in the streets of London, it is clear that they would not conduct a public opinion poll.

But it is heart-warming at the same time to be on a bus or standing on the street in London of a store and have ordinary British people on their own voluntarily bring posters by "massive" injections of Rockefeller's own money and men.

There is a stirring blind new effort here by the maverick John A. Beckst-fores and the reawakened Hugh Gregg, former governor and 1964 banker of Rockefeller. But it is still totally disapproved by the New Yorker and his top aides—and its armchair aspect, more underscores the emptiness of Nixon's claim.

Moreover, after his first election victory over a Rockefeller, he said he might get 35 percent of the GOP primary vote instead of the 8 to 10 percent showing in the polls, Nixon has dropped all talk of it.

He was trying to convert the New Hampshire voting into the beginnings of a plebiscite between himself and President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Curiously, the ghost of George Romney's candidacy is on-stage now. Nixon, perhaps more fully than he, is the Michigan governor's vice candidacy, as the former vice president seeks to pick David L. Johnston as his running mate.

In his last futile efforts to lose—the vote chain between Nixon and Johnson, Nixon really has lost locked in the bosoms of laconic New Hampshire voters who are said by some observers to be confused and irritated at the lack of a clear-cut ballot choice.

It's the way," he volunteers. "It's the sort of a job we had to do for a long time and now it's your turn."

This reporter heard that there are 200 to 250 draft dodgers in England and that a peace movement in London to help American Army deserters. Some prominent people have put their names to a group of advertisements to finance a deserters "underground railroad" to Sweden.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Unfailing Habit

WASHINGTON—His unfailing habit of mentioning the unmentionable sends Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Missouri, to the top of the list of those who have been buried deep as though by the common sense of all concerned.

This was after the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in an investigation of the Tonkin Gulf incident had developed new facts casting doubt on the report presented by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in August, 1967. The initial report led to the Tonkin Gulf resolution which the State Department has since said was equivalent to a declaration of war.

The destroyers Maddox and Turner Joy were not, as McNamara had originally testified, on a mission to patrol international waters. They were engaged in "visual and electronic surveillance" of North Vietnam.

The unhappy record of the American ship slips now includes the Pueblo, seized by North Korea while engaged in "surveillance" of the Korean coast. So far as can be judged from news reports, release of the crew and the ship is no nearer today than it was in 1967.

Penetration has steadily maintained was international waters. It was the third spy ship to be seized by North Vietnam. Although it was hardly noticed at the time, Fulbright thereby opened up one of the toughest areas in American foreign policy in this town. While there has been an American response in the middle of a war in which American ships have been off and on, officials, were overwhelmingly on the Israeli side, developments since have given the details of the circumstances but have not resolved the doubts which the Navy Court of Inquiry determined that the Liberty was not in international waters, properly marked as to her identity and nationality and that the destroyers and the Liberty had suffered an unprovoked attack by Israeli aircraft and mortar torpedoes during the encounter.

A summary of the proceedings noted that the court was not called to rule on the culpability of the Liberty. The court decision was heard from the attacking nation. Witnesses testified that the American flag had been hoisted to identify the cause of the slow speed of the ship and the smoke rising from the first five or six air attacks. But witnesses also said Israeli planes had flown over the ship during the attack, beginning five hours before the attack.

The Israeli government immediately apologized and offered to pay compensation for the damage done. An Israeli military-judicial court conducted an inquiry. In accord with Israeli custom the findings have never been made public.

The United States in December 1967, in a letter to the Israeli government as compensation for the families of the 34 dead. This is still under negotiation between Washington and Tel Aviv. A later claim will be filed in behalf of the injured and for the property damaged.

Within the navy there is widespread feeling that the attack was not an accident. The navy's own investigation found that the Liberty was not in international waters. It was the third spy ship to be seized by North Vietnam.

Although it was hardly noticed at the time, Fulbright thereby opened up one of the toughest areas in American foreign policy in this town. While there has been an American response in the middle of a war in which American ships have been off and on, officials, were overwhelmingly on the Israeli side, developments since have given the details of the circumstances but have not

New Sewer Rates Set At Glenns Ferry

GLENN'S FERRY—New sewer rates for industrial and commercial property were set by the Glenn Ferry City Council at a special meeting last week. Bills totaling $4,153.71 were approved as part of the budget for the sewer project. This included attorney fees, banking services and sewer bond expenses. Other bills approved totaled an additional $1,664.34. Councilmen decided to advertise for bids on gas, oil and grease and Wallace Rubery, city superintendent, was instructed to draw up specifications.

It was decided to resubmit Fred Timm's revised building plan to the zoning committee. He wants to construct a 34 by 30-foot building with an additional 10-foot roof on his Kansas street residential property. Mayor T. L. Feeny was authorized to purchase three Del-De-fenders for the police department and Mr. Rubery was instructed to purchase a street sweeper for the street sweeper, at a cost of $20.

Leonard Lane and Jillie McLean of the Glenn Ferry Chamber of Commerce committee on industrial development, discussed the possibility of acquiring some of the Bureau of Land Management land at the old city dump ground area for development use. They were advised to take this up with the BLM. The council approved a building permit for Carl's Market for remodeling. New street lights were ordered installed at Battlefield A. and Pacific St., the corner of Madison Ave. and Canyon St., and the Don Anderson area on Madison, as well as the corner of Cleveland Ave. and Lemhi St.

A resolution was ordered sent to the Idaho Water Resources Board commending that body on a recent action toward making possible the Southwestern Idaho Water Project, with an aim of reclaiming the Bruneau desert.

Rusk Keeps 'Cool' In Query

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF WASHINGTON (AP)—The history would prove the United States provoked the 1967 Gulf of Tonkin incident, in which U.S. ships were supposedly attacked by North Vietnamese torpedo boats. The incidents led to congressional adoption of a resolution which the administration has often pointed to in explaining its subsequent escalation of the American military effort.

Rusk quietly disagreed with Morse and painstakingly replaced the administration version of the incident. The only sign of the evident pressure in such an encounter outside the hearing room during the session was when a reporter asked Rusk if his statements about Vietnam peace talks represented any change in U.S. policy. "Please don't ask me any more questions," the secretary shot back, as he strode away. "I've been answering questions all morning."

Even at the end, when he and Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., duelled verbally over whether the secretary would come back to finish his testimony, Rusk's voice remained calm and his demeanor placid. "I wonder if it isn't really possible to finish tonight?" Rusk said, adding that he has a busy schedule the rest of the week. "We all have busy schedules," Fulbright said. "Every-one is exhausted, particularly with the lights." Five short minutes later, Rusk was already in his limousine.

Occasionally mopping away perspiration caused by the lights, Rusk said blank-faced through a number of scathing denunciations of the Vietnam policy he has helped to forge. And his impassive expression remained as constant when several committee members rose to his defense. Even a 10-minute tongue-lashing by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., a fiery opponent of war policy, failed to noticeably ruffle Rusk's steadfast composure.

Helps Ships

LONDON (AP)—The U.S. satellite Eos 3 in orbit 200 miles above the south pole is helping ships navigate safely through Antarctic ice.

Sir Vivian Fuchs, director of the British Antarctic Survey, said pictures relayed from the satellite helped guide the ships Perle, Dan and John Discoe. Fuchs met the 1971a Dan Monday when it docked at Southampton with 19 scientists and technicians who had worked on British bases in the Antarctic for the past 2 1/2 years. The satellite pictures were of "merit quality," Fuchs said. They were assembled by Americans and sent to the survey's London-based quarters which furnished navigational advice direct to the vessels.

Italian Fashion Designers Show Spring Styles

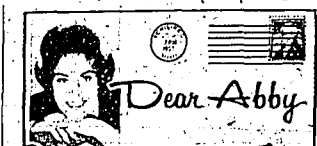

BY LEONORA BODSWORTH
ROME (AP) - While Rome shivers through one of the coldest winters in years, Italian designers are turned toward spring thoughts - to warmer weather in spring-summer fashion shows opening today.
The couture houses are presenting their creations for the coming season in a program held through Thursday in the city's fashion district.
The ateliers' staffs had been hard hit by Rome's raging flu epidemic. Designers feared their collections would not be ready on time.
But with characteristic Italian flair, the burning of the midnight oil, a last-minute effort has made the showings possible as planned.
Local designer Harry Amles has decreed that legs shall be covered but the majority of Italian designers are keeping skirts reasonably short.
The generally held view is that the country's winter wear maximums in the summer will be Helmut Lang, the young Austrian-born designer who starts his line rolling in the Rome show, is one who believes that brevity is the soul of chic. He cuts skirts in favor of breezy, knee-length, with-wind-up-own-own-own matching skirts of midlength shorts.
The designer who follows, also opts for a sleevey young look. Her slim-fitting, low-waisted dresses have flattery skirts that leave the knees on view.
The lowered waist, frequently marked by a belt and the same type of the typical of the 1930s influence that is likely to be the prevailing mood of these Italian collections.
But since fashion has never yet done a complete doubletake, the look that now emerges pays more than 50 percent attention to the bulky styles of 30 years ago.
Designers may amuse themselves by repeating the tailors' and accessory fads of that era, but these are merely the commercial glimmings of the fashion game.
Far more important than the copies of clothes worn in the Bonnie and Clyde film is the crystallization of a major fashion change.
The straitlaced, which in the recent past varied from the wide and unhampered fashions of the collar craze to the tight-fitting, military styles, now close in to achieve a more fitted, shapely look that is reminiscent of the curves of the body-tying era.
Waists will be well marked, even when the dresses will show a seam in the waistline for the first time in years.
It all adds up to a very womanly look, one that is different from this close-fitting, skirts will flutter in a provocative flare.

Linda Gratiot, Cameron Recite Nuptial Vows

The Hansen Missionary Baptist Church was the setting for the Feb. 25 wedding of Linda Gratiot, daughter of Mrs. Dewey Gray, Twin Falls, and James Russell Gratiot, and Stefanie Cameron, son of Harold Cameron, Eden, and the late Mrs. Virginia Cameron.

The bride wore a street-length gown of beige lace over blue, accented with a corsage of white carnations.
Doris Stappman, Twin Falls, was matron of honor, and John Volters, Twin Falls, served as best man.
Guests were registered by Carolyn Cameron, Hansen, sister of the bridegroom.
After the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with blue roses, silver leaves and white wedding bells.
The bride wore a two-piece large white wedding tulle.
The cake was cut and served by Mrs. John Koonz, Twin Falls, aunt of the bridegroom, assisted by Susan Gray, step-sister of the bride, Twin Falls. The bride and groom were accompanied by their parents and other family members.
The ceremony was held at 11:30 a.m. The bride and groom were accompanied by their parents and other family members. The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.
