Troops Sent To Chicago As Rioting Sears Areas

By ARTHUR EVERETT
Five thousand federal troops were ordered into the Chicago and Los Angeles areas Saturday night, as Negro rioting again spread, scattered deaths and destruction.

The three-day death toll since Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassination stood at 15, half of the victims in Chicago.

Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew declared a state of crisis in Baltimore, where at least two stores were reported aflame.

The proclamation is a necessary prelude to any callout of the state's National Guard.

Washington also was wracked by fire and pillage for the third day and armed paratroopers and Marines moved into the capital.

In Washington during the day all entrances to the White House were sealed, and the situation there is so tense that a battle dress with helmet fixed to his rifle—lincoln symbol of a nation in anguished turmoil.

Feder troops were in and around Washington was escalated to 12,500, more than have been in the city since the demilitarized zone in Vietnam.

Violence all but cleared the capital's streets...
In Nashville were surrounded by National Guardsmen as a precaution against disorders there. Gun law and masks were at hand if needed.

"A midafternoon fire bombing by Mayor Joseph M. Barr to close Pittsburgh taverns and liquor stores, Detroit, although outwardly calm, was buttoned up in a tight curfew by Gov. George Romney.

Many visitors left Washington and hotel reservations were cancelled by dozens of others.

The death toll in the capital was reduced to four, as authorities removed the name of a Negro whose throat was cut in an incident apparently unrelated to the rioting.

Police said a confirmed case of sniping occurred a block from the Justice Department, midway between the White House and the Capitol.

The buildup of armed strength in Washington began at noon when battle-seasoned Army paratroopers, National Guardsmen and Marines were sent to the city in more than 60 per cent Negro. By dusk, 9,500 troops had been deployed.

man war zone, Gen. William C. Westmoreland conferred at the White House on progress of the war there and weekly told President Johnson. "I understand you had a little trouble here yourself."

Shiphing and burning continued sporadically by Communist forces nine persons died Friday. There were 4,200 Illinois National Guardsmen on duty, and a call-out of more was under consideration. Nine new fires broke out on a West Side area. Guardsmen moved in Friday night, as firemen were being taunted by Negroes crying: "A white man killed Martin Luther King."

However, from Seattle on the Pacific to New York on the Atlantic, daybreak brought a measure of respite from the riots of a summer night. A white man killed Martin Luther King.

The assassination of King, 35-year-old Nobel Peace Prize winner and apostle of Negro unity, stirred the emotions of bitterness and savagery. Police in Minneapolis said a Negro killed a white neighbor, himself telling his wife: "my king is dead. I'm going out and get me a honey."

Three of Washington's Negro neighborhoods looked from the fire-bombed target areas in World War II. Smoke from fresh fires-planned away from the White House and the Washington monument.

The citizens of American government in the capital were protected by elements of the famed 82nd Airborne Division—veterans of Vietnam and last summer's bloody Detroit racial rioting. The paratroopers were flown in from North Carolina during the night.

In Detroit, Michigan National Guardsmen kept a vigilant lookout along streets where last summer's riot was spawned. A white man remained in Detroit after scattered incidents of rock throwing and window breaking by young Negroes. Two Negroes were shot and killed near rioting scenes.

Newark, N.J., officials told in Detroit in the calm, systematic violence of last summer, required relatively calm and Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio reported that himself "pleasantly surprised."

U.S. Proposes Talks At Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House disclosed Saturday night that in a direct diplomatic contact with Hanoi, the United States has proposed that U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys talk at Geneva.

No formal response has yet been received from the Ho Chi Minh regime though "we hope to receive an official reply" in the next few days, press secretary George Christian said.

The White House spokesman said President Johnson had dis-conference table. He said he "wishes to clarify the present status of our efforts to set up talks with the North Vietnamese." He said the U.S. had informed Hanoi that U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys would be available immediately for the negotiations.

Christian's statement was apparently issued in anticipation of a report by U.S. newsman Johnson on the way to the

The state rested its case against the three Friday in Wallace District Court. Judge James G. Towles advised the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

The innocent were D. Spencer Grigg of Pocatello, Udon Dwin A. Knipe of Boise and Florence Hayes of Preston, Idaho.

Indiana Explosion Rips 2 Blocks, Claiming 16

By MARTIN BIERER
RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — An explosion and fire ripped through nearly two blocks of Main Street here Saturday, killing at least 16 persons and injuring more than 100 others.

Capt. Robert Konke, state police chief of operations, said the explosion, which also injured a police officer, destroyed and damaged five damaged—may yield "10 to 50 more" depending on how many were in the buildings.

Buildings were brought in to shove about the debris piled up along the two-block stretch of Main Street, which is also U.S. 40.

An emergency morgue was set up at the National Guard armory.

National Guard troops camped off the area.

Inside the cordon, two buildings were left with nothing standing higher than a man's head. Fifteen damaged the other buildings, leaving only the walls standing. The buildings were two and three stories tall, except for two women sitting in camp case.

State Police said gunpowder apparently exploded in the basement of the Marting Arms Co., one of the women. The other one of the women. The other one of the women. The other one of the women. The other one of the women.

COURT MARTIAL SET
MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand M. Marcos Saturday ordered a court-martial to try 21 officers and enlisted men involved in the Corregidor secret camp case.

President's Plans To Address Congress On Monday Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced Saturday that President Johnson's plans to address a joint session of Congress Monday night have been postponed, with no new date set.

Press Secretary George Christian said the delay was dictated by Tuesday funeral of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Atlanta. He said that when the 9 p.m. EST Monday appearance had been arranged, officials had thought the King funeral would be held Monday.

The press secretary said Johnson postponed his congressional address after consultation with leaders on Capitol Hill.

helicopter just after 8 a.m. EST the American commander in Vietnam was met by Johnson on the White House lawn—a tranquil sunny spot, seemingly far removed from the second day of rioting and arson touched off by the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in Memphis on Thursday.

Another conference, at a luncheon in which Westmoreland briefed top officials and White House staff men, was a presidential ambassador at large, W. Averell Harriman, as Johnson's personal representative, Harriman would conduct any talks looking toward a cease-fire or settlement in Southeast Asia.

Seattle Hit By Rash Of Vandalism

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle was hit by a rash of vandalism and a string of 21 fire alarms in a four-hour period late Friday night.

Disruptions were minor compared with events in other major cities.

One Negro youth, 17, was taken into custody late Friday when police found six youths in a car with a broken window. The youths were released.

A nurse, Berkeley Cameron, 25, suffered a broken cheekbone when a group of 15 to 20 youths hurled rocks at her automobile in one of several such incidents.

In another incident, a woman's car suffered about $100 in damages when it was pelted with stones.

Fire officials said the fires, caused by gasoline bombs, were mostly minor. However, one cleaning establishment reported about $100 in damage and another cleaning establishment said as suffering about $1,200 damage.

Birth Defects Clinic Held Here

March of Dimes funds were at work at home this week, with a clinic for children held Friday in Twin Falls.

Edd Bossard, chairman of the Twin Falls chapter of the March of Dimes committee said the clinic is part of the March of Dimes program, now directed largely to the care of children suffering birth defects and for research into their defects.

The clinic is sponsored by the March of Dimes with the cooperation of the South Central Idaho Health Department, local Medical Society and the Birth Defects Center at the Primary Children's Hospital, Salt Lake City.

There is no charge to the children for the clinical services. Most are followed up by the children who have already been treated in the Salt Lake City center. Others are referred to the clinic for special treatment and examination by their own local physicians, Mr. Bossard said.

Dr. Garth Myers, director of the Birth Defects Center at the Primary Children's Hospital and Dr. Howard Reichman, neurosurgeon from the clinic, conducted the clinic. The clinic is the South Central Idaho Health Department center in the Twin Falls City building.

Approximately 25 youngsters, some coming from as far away as 100 miles, were present.

Dr. Myers said it is the hope of sponsoring and participating organizations to make the clinic a regular event once or twice each year.

On Thursday staff nurses from the Twin Falls Center for the Blind, Dr. P. J. C. Si

Khe Sanh Marines Get First Respite

By LEWIS M. SIMONS
KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — U.S. air cavalrymen and South Vietnamese paratroopers moved into this combat zone Saturday and gave its 6,000 Marine and South Vietnamese defenders their first respite here since the enemy began its siege Jan. 21.

Newly arrived troops fanned out into the jungled hills around Khe Sanh in search of withdrawing North Vietnamese forces. The enemy withdrew from the base, which had been pounded by mortar, rockets and artillery shells.

Some Marines stripped and gave themselves their first complete shower in months by using a gleaming sun. Others did their laundry. Work details began cleaning up the messes ruled by streams blasted down by enemy shelling.

As many as 20,000 North Vietnamese are believed to have withdrawn from the border into territory controlled by the Communist Pathet Lao in Laos, officials said.

The enemy withdrew from Khe Sanh with an apparent slackening of ground fighting elsewhere in Vietnam.

North Vietnamese missions flown Friday with attacks centered 100 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Because of the nation's mourning for the death of Martin Luther King, the annual Awards of Merit Picture Academy scheduled for Monday night were postponed Saturday for the first time in its history.

Academy President Gregory Peck announced after a meeting of the board of governors that the Oscar event will be held Wednesday night at 7 p.m.

Peck added that the annual Governors' Ball which usually follows the awards will not be held this year.

RUPERT—There wasn't anything personal in it—it was just a darn car kept getting out of hand.

By the time she was finished, John McBride, owner of the Tasty Free Drive-In at Rupert, wiped his customer's car, taken her business elsewhere.

Before the drive-in was opened last business Friday, McBride, Franco, Purdue, 25, Durbin, Colo., drove off Highway 24 and up to the drive-in. Actually, the idiot drove up to it, she drove right on in, taking two plate glass windows—$150 each—along with her.

Understandably a bit shaken, she's checking on her driver's license.

The furniture stores benefited. New pieces had to be bought to fit the smaller rooms.

The classified advertising readers benefited. They were able to pick up several pieces of furniture at reasonable prices.

The neighbors of 12 years benefited. The Spectator family would be living in that area any more.

So the benefits ranged from one end of the line to another. But the non-benefit was having to wade through all the junk during the moving process.

Which gets us back to the beginning of the article. Everybody should move every three months. In that length of time the accumulation of stuff couldn't be so great.

MR. SPECTATOR

Moving Is Such Sorrow

No doubt about it, everyone should have to move from one house to another at least every three months...

Take the case of Mr. Spector, who just went through the accumulation of 12 years of stuff...

Now Mr. Spector has nothing against apartments as such. He started his married life in one over 27 years ago...

You haven't really lived until you have waded through the accumulation of 12 years of stuff...

Moving is such sorrow. The Spectator has lived in it so long, it is a question if there will ever be a recovery.

The trash haul man benefited. Two great truckloads went to the city dump. This in addition to the regular hauls made the past two or three weeks by the regular trash pickup equipment.

The furniture moving man benefited. They stowed a lot of stuff in the warehouse, hauled some to the house of a relative for storage and hauled another load...

The weekly auction people benefited. They received three big loads of things they thought to put up for sale to the highest bidder.

The real estate man benefited. He got a commission for selling the big house.

The furniture stores benefited. New pieces had to be bought to fit the smaller rooms.

The classified advertising readers benefited. They were able to pick up several pieces of furniture at reasonable prices.

The neighbors of 12 years benefited. The Spectator family would be living in that area any more.

So the benefits ranged from one end of the line to another. But the non-benefit was having to wade through all the junk during the moving process.

Which gets us back to the beginning of the article. Everybody should move every three months. In that length of time the accumulation of stuff couldn't be so great.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "gag rule" which the House of Representatives often invokes...

But the Senate, which has no such rule, has just spent a week demonstrating that there may be a lot to be said for the procedure.

The device, known formally as a closed rule, amounts to this: The House Rules Committee...

The Senate received from the House a simple bill to postpone reductions in the excise taxes on automobiles and telephone services...

It is part of the lesser part of President Johnson's program to raise some additional extra revenue to reduce the big budget deficits now impending.

Meanwhile, time ran on outside the Senate, true to its tradition of unlimited debate...

It should come as no surprise that two weeks after publication...

It should come as no surprise. But it does. This sort of recurring event always comes as a surprise.

For some reason we have never understood at all, there simply no topic more appealing to people than the scientific study of their sexual behavior.

Last year it was coyness riles as studied by Konrad Lorenz...

But even if it is, as science claims, it is hard to see how they are getting anywhere with it.

But that is not the case. Quite the contrary. You can read in the newspapers, on the radio, in the movies, in the TV, in the newspapers, in the TV, in the newspapers...

Gun Sale Curbs Written Into Crime Bill

By JOHN CHADWICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal curbs on sales of handguns have been written into a sweeping anti-crime bill approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The measure controls all short of what President Johnson asked, but in some other respects the legislation goes far beyond what he recommended to combat spiraling crime rates.

One section of the bill that survived in committee on an 8-8 tie vote is designed to make what proponents call the hand-cuffs placed on police by Supreme Court decisions.

Among other things, it provides that the only test of the admissibility of confessions in federal criminal trials shall be whether they were given voluntarily.

Confessions could not be ruled out as evidence simply because of a delay in arraignment or because a suspect did not have a lawyer while being questioned by police.

The Supreme Court would be barred from reviewing cases in which the highest court in a state ruled that a confession was voluntary.

This and other controversial provisions were grafted onto the Safe Streets measure requested by Johnson to authorize federal grants to improve the training, equipment and crime-fighting techniques of state and local police forces.

The over-all shape of the legislation emerged Saturday with the tallying of votes cast by senators who were absent from a Judiciary Committee meeting Thursday.

The final count gave 87 approval to a prohibition against interstate mail-order sales of handguns and a ban on over-the-counter sales to non-residents of a state.

But the committee rejected, 9-7, the bill also includes a ban on interstate mail-order sales of rifles and shotguns.

The bill also includes a contrary to Johnson's recommendation, authority for law enforcement officers acting under court orders to engage in wiretapping and other electronic eavesdropping to combat murder, robbery, kidnaping, extortion and bribery.

The safe-streets part of the bill, establishing a Federal grant program for state and local police forces, was approved by the House last year.

However, the House revamped the President's proposal by providing that most of the money would be given to the states in lump-sum grants rather than let the U.S. attorney general supervise distribution of the funds.

The measure authorizes appropriations of $100 million for the grant program in the first year and $300 million in the second year. There have been estimates that the cost may eventually climb to as much as $1 billion a year.

Mrs. Johnson Opens Texas HemisFair

By PAUL REGER
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Johnson, San Antonio's tribune to the people who created the Americas, opened Saturday with an appeal by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson for understanding and brotherhood.

Officials said 25,051 persons swarmed onto the galaxy-colored 32-acre exhibit within three hours after it opened.

Supt. Engklingsky discussed the implications of the study with committee members, pointing out that to be effective the committee must study the present school program as it relates to maintenance, transportation and education, as well as to study the school district budget to determine how salary schedule revision may be possible.

It was further pointed out that the study was requested by the Buhl school trustees.

Members of the committee in addition to Mr. Watt are Bob Erb, Don Watson, Minnie Nite, Dean Mickelwait, Jim Hart, Harry Estlinger, Lucie Conrad, Warren Saunders, John Miracle, Charles Humphries, H. E. Hammerquist, Art A. K. J. n. d., Gail Wright, Leonard Leih, Mrs. Bob Erkins, Geneva Popplewell, Derek Cantrell, Saul Moore, Ron Noonan, George Atkins, Dick Howard and Mrs. Gene Grill.

In San Antonio and throughout the American Southland, ancient barriers between black and white have been falling, the First Lady said. They are falling despite cruelly tragic setbacks—sometimes, she said, sometimes slowly—but I believe surely.

Mourning Begins For Dr. King

AN UNIDENTIFIED YOUNG Negro girl sheds a tear for slain civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., at a campus memorial service at Ohio University Friday. (AP Wirephoto)

By JULES LOH — Public mourning began Saturday for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. as public officials, diplomats and others around the world announced plans to attend the funeral of the slain civil rights leader.

Dr. King's body will lie in repose until Monday in Sister Chapel at Spelman College near the campus of Morehouse College where he first shaped his doctrine of peaceful dissent.

The body was moved Saturday afternoon from the Atlanta funeral home where it was brought after he was killed by sniper bullets Thursday in Memphis.

Several hundred persons, mostly African Negroes, gathered at the chapel in advance of the arrival of King's body from the funeral home.

The funeral is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Ebenezer Baptist Church where Dr. King's father is pastor and has been since his son was born 33 years ago.

There was speculation that President Johnson would stand at the funeral but this could not be confirmed Saturday.

The President canceled a trip to Europe and scheduled an address to Congress Monday night. He announced his new plans after civil disorders erupted in a number of cities, including Washington, following the murder of Dr. King.

Dr. King's body will lie in repose by the public until 4 p.m. Monday in a small building of spring brick, white columns and is on the campus adjoining that of Morehouse College where Dr. King earned his bachelor's degree.

The funeral service will be held at the Ebenezer Baptist Church. Dr. King will be entombed in the mausoleum of South View Cemetery where his grandparents also are buried.

Since the days of slavery centuries in the Deep South have traditionally been racially segregated and by common practice generally remain so today.

A spokesman for South View, however, said two of three white persons also are buried there, all of them in recent months.

Dr. King was an ardent racial discriminator that Dr. King devoted his career and in that cause he

Dr. King was a friend of princes, diplomats and prelates the world over and a number of national figures have announced plans to attend his funeral.

First Quarter Business In Idaho Good
Business activity in Idaho during the first quarter of 1968 was reported generally good, with indications that economic reports Kenneth J. Newman, director and general manager, First Security Bank, Twin Falls, said. Newman said total personal income in the first three months was approximately $450 million, or about 10 percent higher than for the same three months last year. In addition, he said, total employment and agricultural income were about the same as last year.

The outlook for agricultural income for the current year is reported fair to good and cash and liquid resources should reach about $357-million for the year, the same as reported in 1967.

Cattle, lamb and broiler prices have increased and lamb and sheep prices are expected to continue to rise considerably in the coming year while cattle should hold steady.

Potato stocks are up, resulting in lower prices and indications that both potatoes and wheat planting will be down this spring.

Bunche Hopes Slaying Will Shock Americans To Change

By WILLIAM N. OTTIS
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Ralph J. Bunche hopes the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. will shock Americans into heading off a nuclear war by eliminating "black ghettos."

Bunche was interviewed in his skyscraper office as he prepared to go to Atlanta for King's funeral, where he will represent Secretary-General U Thant, who says the Negro people are Negro people—and that means participation of the dual situation.

Open housing is important, he said, but "eliminating the ghetto as the ghetto" means more than that. "There has to be a two-way movement in and out of the ghetto. There has to be a basic end to these areas as areas of involuntary congregation on a racial basis."

He suggested the way for urgent action would come when people saw "what the dangers are and therefore what their self-interest is." "People who are motivated by self-interest," he said, "will do anything to get out of a bad situation."

"I feel there's only one way to counteract this: the only way I can think of," he went on, "is to get the society all those who believe in the ideals of the society, to face up to the very tough fact that ghettos will just not go with regard to this question."

"The crucial question today," Bunche said, "is whether the citizens and the power structure must be willing to really to tackle the problem by 'white straight at the worst, the most vicious manifestation of American racism in the country today, and that is the black ghetto.'"

"The ghetto now is where the majority of black citizens live," he noted. "The black citizen is confined there because he is really not wanted on the outside."

"Therefore, it's easy for him, almost unavoidable for him, to develop a psychology that not only is he something different or something apart but that those who create the situation are his enemies, and there you have the basis for, ultimately, not just racial separation in the country but, in effect, racial war."

"I certainly don't want to see a sort of perverted welfare developing, which I could see develop in this urban core despite the fact that it is the most painful experience with that sort of thing last summer," Bunche refused to say he expected the same thing in the coming summer, because, he said, "I don't want to be in the position of prophesying it."

"But if you ask me if I fear it, the answer is yes. I do fear it because I haven't seen in this society, since the most serious warning

Trudeau To Become Canada's 15th Prime Minister

Liberal Party Picks Wealthy Bachelor

By MAX EARLESON
OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's Liberals picked a wealthy bachelor, Pierre Elliott Trudeau Saturday to take over the leadership of their party and become the nation's 15th prime minister.

The 46-year-old French-Canadian, who likes sports cars and married women, will succeed Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, retiring at the age of 70 later this month.

Trudeau's prime minister in Pearson's Cabinet, got off to a strong start in the voting but panned a decisive majority only on the fourth ballot after other candidates combined in an effort to stop him. No other Liberal candidate had taken more than three ballots to choose a leader.

The 46-year-old French-Canadian, who likes sports cars and married women, will succeed Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, retiring at the age of 70 later this month.

The election put Trudeau, who joined the Liberal party only three years ago and was first elected to the House of Commons in 1965, in position to lead the party in a national election expected later this year.

The Liberals are expected to get stiff opposition from the Conservative party under its leader Robert Stanfield. Candidates eliminated earlier in the convention included the veteran foreign secretary, Paul Martin, Health Minister Allan Rock, Agriculture Minister Paul Hellyer and former Quebec cabinet minister Eric Kierans.

The Rev. Lloyd Henderson, mayor of Portage la Prairie, Man., was dropped after receiving no votes on the first ballot. Ernest Zundel, a commercial artist from Montreal, withdrew before the voting began.

Pearson, retiring as Liberal leader at the age of 70, carefully refrained from showing favoritism during the campaign. The choice of a new leader marks the end of the Pearson era which goes back 10 years to his entry into the government as foreign secretary. During that time "Mike" Pearson became one of Canada's best known figures abroad. He won the Nobel Peace Prize for his role in helping end the U.S. military presence during the Suez crisis in 1956.

Pearson plans to step down as prime minister later this month, just as soon as his successor can form a Cabinet and complete takeover preparations. He will sit as a back-bencher during the remainder of the present Parliament. After that, he plans to be wanted to do is to write his memoirs.

Saturday's voting came as a climax of a convention which was unprecedented in many ways. It was the largest ever held by the Liberal party, the most expensive and the noisiest. And the leadership was contested by the largest field of candidates in history.

It was unusual also in that it was made necessary by the retirement of a leader while head of the government. This had last happened in 1945 when the late W.L. Mackenzie King stepped down in favor of Louis St. Laurent.

Other officers are Mrs. Zanle Alexander, home nursing chairman; Mrs. C. F. Chaffield, blood collection chairman; and Douglas Harrison, vice chairman.

GIANT EASTER BUNNY greeted its fans recently during a one-vehicle impromptu parade through Twin Falls. The bunny, which will be on display in Twin Falls, is about 10 feet tall. Mrs. Bunny looks very demure and unaffected, as she rolls along the street, despite the many stars she received from her fans.

Red Cross Drive Held In Lincoln

SHOSHONE—The annual Red Cross fund drive for Lincoln County will be held this month, according to Oscar Kerner, county chairman.

Mrs. Orvel Rutherford, secretary, says funds are now down to $44.97 and almost all money spent locally has been for services for men in military service.

Raid Newby is the service chairman for the county, succeeding the late Ray E. Oyer. Chairmen for the various areas are Jerry McGarrh, Richfield; Kerner—North Shoshone; Flood Killing, Dietrich; Kenneth Coler, northwest Shoshone; Herb Love for the town of Shoshone.

Other officers are Mrs. Zanle Alexander, home nursing chairman; Mrs. C. F. Chaffield, blood collection chairman; and Douglas Harrison, vice chairman.

RUPERT—Only two petitions for the Mindoko County School District's trustee election filed before Thursday's deadline for the April 22 election.

Filing the petitions were incumbents Leonard Martin in Zone 2 and Dave Spreier in Zone 1. Both terms expire this year, and both offices hold three-year terms.

Utah Students Pick RFK In Mock Election

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy was selected by students as the presidential candidate during a mock Democratic convention at the University of Utah Saturday.

The New York Democrat was chosen on the third ballot over Sen. Eugene McCarthy, 1,484 to 1,104 votes. Sen. Frank Church of Idaho was chosen as the vice presidential candidate over Arkansas Sen. William Fulbright by 750 votes on the second ballot.

Delegates said Church was selected to round out the ticket because of geographic location and the civil rights issue. Vice President Hubert Humphrey was soundly defeated on the first ballot for the presidential position.

The delegates adopted a platform Friday during the first day of the convention. Interested students attended from Weber State College in Ogden and the University of Utah.

A similar mock Republican convention will be held April 25-26.

Sponsoring both conventions are the University Hinkley Institute of Politics and the Associated Students of the University of Utah.

Glenns Ferry Has Report On Project

GLENN'S FERRY—A progress report on the sewer project was presented by Mike Preston, city engineer, at the Glenns Ferry City Council meeting last week in the city hall.

He was authorized to submit plans and specifications to the Federal Housing Administration and the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration for approval to call for bids on the project.

Mrs. Ray Jones asked about the possibility of oiling Commercial Street between Snake River Avenue and the alley to the south. Floyd Wise, chairman of the streets and alleys commission, said he would investigate the cost of sealing coating this portion.

Plans totaling $2,887 were approved for payment and bids are being called for paving and curbs on the alley.

The council decided to renew the junk dealer's license for Harold Willis on his property at the corner of First Ave. and State St.

A building permit was approved for Charles Grow at $3,000 for remodeling his house and building a carport, if the plans meet the city and state specifications.

A refund of $50 to Richard Hossland as an adjustment was authorized, if the granary which he bought at auction and which was advertised as 1,000 bushel capacity proved to be less than that.

The city decided to pay Glenn Buciner, electrical engineer from Boise, $225 plus $34 for inspecting a bridge and for re-wiring at the city pump house, provided he pays his subcontractor himself.

Machinist Union Strike Spreads To 2 More States

By The Associated Press—Thousands of metal tradesmen were held Friday as a work stoppage spread to Oregon and Washington, adding to the West Coast strike of Machinists. The union members spread to Oregon and Washington, adding to the West Coast strike of Machinists. The union members spread to Oregon and Washington, adding to the West Coast strike of Machinists.

A strike by laborers in Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho, tying up about $700 million in construction projects, entered its sixth day.

Pacific Northwest Bell and the Communication Workers of America continued negotiations as an April 12 strike deadline loomed. The strike would idle more than 11,000 telephone workers in Washington and Oregon.

After a day's recess, talks resumed between the American Newspaper Guild and Seattle's two daily newspapers. Employees of the papers voted in favor of a strike-10 days ago.

No date has been set for resumption of talks affecting contract extension granted by Western states, whose contracts other members of the council.

Clarification Given About Judicial Vote

RUPERT—Fifth District Judge Sherman J. Bellwood Saturday attempted to clarify confusion regarding the filing of vacancies on the Idaho Supreme Court at the Aug. 8 non-partisan judicial election.

"Frequent requests for information from friends of mine and of Judge Merlin Young and Attorney Allan Shepard, have caused me to believe many people think the three who are opposed in the election," Bellwood said. "This is not true," he continued, "neither of them is seeking the seat of retiring Justice C. J. Taylor, as I am."

Judge Bellwood pointed out that two vacancies will occur in January, 1969, as the result of mandatory retirement of Justices E. B. Smith and C. J. Taylor at the end of their present terms.

"I am interested only in occupying the seat on the Idaho Supreme Court being vacated by Justice C. J. Taylor, and not the other two seats," he said. "I will oppose neither Judge Young nor Allan Shepard in the election," he stated.

Children Aren't Learning To Play

By BUD JORGENSEN
MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — American parents, in the opinion of a university of Idaho professor, are failing to teach their children how to play.

"Education for the worthy use of leisure time is one of the most critical issues of our times," says Dr. Leon Green, head of the physical education department at the University of Idaho.

Recreational skills should be learned between the ages of four and 14, he said.

"To say the least, we do a miserable job at this stage of development," he said. "The learning of lifetime sport skills has too-often been arrested."

The 54-year-old southern Idaho native, who was the recipient of Idaho's Outstanding Teacher Award, began his teaching career as director of physical education for Burley city schools in 1937-40.

Green organized the Idaho Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation in 1948 and has been a codirector of the Youth Activities Committee of the national organization.

He has served on various committees to develop recreation in Idaho and is a former chairman of the Recreation Committee of the National Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations.

Green says it is important that techniques for meeting the demands of living be built in prior to the period in adolescence when the child "revolts against authority-parent care."

"This is the point in development that we should develop skills in lifetime sports," he said.

Before the age of 14, Green said, success and failure are part of the game and emotionally the child can adjust. Adjustment to failure is more difficult for the adult.

As the child becomes an adult, he said, learning how to play becomes an intellectual endeavor.

"One must say to one's self, 'I am going to learn to ski, swim or play golf because it is good for me,'" Green said.

The present generation of children must face a tremendous amount of leisure time and it is imperative they be taught recreational skills, he said.

"I believe that what children do during their leisure has great bearing on their growth and development," he said.

"Recreation," Green said, "is a means for reinforcing the family and social environment where experiments in cooperation can be carried out without disastrous consequences when failure occurs."

A two-year-old child makes from 2,000 to 2,400 choices on his own each day and these choices should have some direction," Green said, "even in intellectual decisions."

"When a four-year-old runs into problems because of inability," Green said, "he is likely to make strategic judgments. He learns to handle his body and builds a reservoir of intellectual decisions."

The play impulse is nature's guarantee for an education," he said, and a person tends to repeat what he enjoys and avoid what he does not.

"He is very careful not to shatter his ego and avoids, if possible, embarrassment and failure," Green added.

The adult who does not learn recreational skills at a young age, Green said, must plan himself on the level of a six-year-old. And, he should play sports with associates of similar abilities, he said.

"He must learn the proper techniques and then practice, practice, practice. Soon he will develop a muscle feedback, to the brain, and pleasure will result," Green said.

The program scheduled for Monday, April 8, at which Lloyd J. Walker was to discuss the presidential campaign of Robert F. Kennedy, has been postponed.

Out of respect for Dr. Martin Luther King's death, political activities have been canceled until after Mr. King's funeral, according to Jack Swisher, chairman of the Magic Valley Citizens for Peace, sponsor of the program.

The meeting, first in a series planned by the MVCP, is tentatively rescheduled for 8 p.m. Monday, April 15, at the Times-News auditorium.

Idaho Society Of Engineers Meet In T. F.

The Idaho Society of Professional Engineers held its quarterly state meeting Saturday in Twin Falls.

During a general membership meeting in the Idaho Power auditorium the group approved proposed legislation for county engineers. This measure would provide that each county or highway district employ a full-time engineer to supervise engineering activities.

The society made a qualified rejection of the federal Natural Resources bill.

Applications for membership of newly licensed professional engineers and engineers-in-training were accepted.

They discussed assigning a committee to work with universities in the state to provide some guidance to educators in adjusting curriculum. Student counseling through career days at area high schools was voted a worthy activity.

State president Austin B. Millhollin, Boise, presided over the meeting.

The session concluded with a dinner Saturday night at the Holiday Inn.

Mrs. Edward O'Bannon heard the tape on the radio, NBC acquired the recording after it was released by Communist sources in Prague.

"It might have fooled some people, but it didn't fool us," Mrs. O'Bannon said Saturday. She said the voice on the tape was "unemotional," a "monotone" and "not like her sons."

Has Biggest Week Volume

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rolled up its biggest weekly volume in history and its largest gain since last July as it responded to strong hopes for peace.

President Johnson's order of a limited Vietnam withdrawal and his decision not to seek re-election triggered waves of buying which did not cease until 3:30 p.m. when the Dow Jones Industrial Average soared to 17.73 million shares.

The most dramatic event of the stock market week was the topping of a 39-year record for volume on Monday when stock sales soared to 17.73 million shares.

"Black Tuesday" was a legend that set the tone for the history, and some veteran traders never believed it would be broken when the market is supercharging it last Monday night—a brighter and happier note as the Dow Jones Industrial Average soared 24.88 points.

A still greater record was set on Wednesday when 19.23 million shares changed hands on Wall Street gained even more confidence on what North Vietnam would accept present offers to meet United States officials to talk about a bombing halt to peace negotiations.

The setting of volume records however, was forecast by an Associated Press article last week which explained that this seemed "inevitable in view of the fact that the Dow Jones shares since 1929. There were only 842.5 million shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange compared with about 11.5 billion Friday.

World's Financial Centers Gripped By Peace Fever

By JACK LEFFLER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Financial capitals this past week. The possibility that the United States and North Vietnam might reach a peace agreement and the war sent stock prices up and depressed quotations for gold and silver.

The financial reaction sprang from President Johnson's dramatic announcement that he was curtailing the bombing of North Vietnam and will not seek re-election.

On Monday, the Dow Jones Industrial Average climbed 24.88 points to 17,730.25, its highest since Oct. 29, 1929, the day of the historic market crash.

Stock markets in London and other financial centers advanced sharply in early trading and then most of its gain was trading volume rocketed to a new record of 19.23 million shares.

Brokers said any move to the upward phase was bullish, or good for the economy. The reason behind this, they said, was that peace would contribute to a solution of major U.S. fiscal problems such as the balance of payments and the federal budget deficit.

London prices declined on the day after having been closed since March 15 to ease the pressure of the dollar and the federal budget deficit.

Steel production set another record last week when it topped 1967's output in March totaled 79,770, up 18.6 per cent from 68,668 in March 1967.

Legislation Against Killing Of Dove Is Urged By Writer

Editor, Times-News: Please give me space in the Times-News to place in the columns of our native doves.

Each year over 70 per cent of all doves in North America are killed. A few by the forces of nature, but by far the large majority are massacred by bird hunters here in the United States.

According to information from the United States Department of the Interior the annual legal kill was estimated at 10 million birds.

For numerous targets millions more are killed from wires with slings, BB guns, and with small caliber, but very accurate, shotguns.

As friends of the farmers a dove acts as a pest, but the farmer is not the one who kills the dove. The farmer is the one who feeds the dove.

The dove has long been the emblem of purity, peace, love, and the Holy Spirit.

Each admires of animated art, doves are birds of living beauty, and their lives bring us much joy and peace.

There ought to be laws, state and federal, giving the mourning doves back to the true friends of the dove.

Mystery Of Sage Grouse Life Cycle, Habitat Must Be Solved To Keep Idaho Native On Game Bird List

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News Sports Editor

The fight to keep the sage grouse on the Idaho sportsmen's hunting list is continuing and after efforts that have covered something like 15 years, biologists now believe they have started to scratch the surface.

Backed into the state's eastern ranges, areas now the grouse appear a dwindling species that might entirely disappear without hunting. The biggest factor, of course, is man's steady encroachment into the grouse habitat, pushing back the very perimeter of agricultural purposes and spraying and reseeding within the heart of the habitat itself for domestic livestock grazing . . . and grazing by itself.

Because the sage grouse lives in an area of almost complete prairie, trying to find their habits, migration trends, nesting areas, etc., is difficult. With peasants farmers are able to tell you just where the birds are all the time because they are constantly seeing the birds during all seasons. The same is true of ducks and other species that share man's environment.

male that slipped over the fence. . . .

What we find in the Shoshone Basin should definitely come from the birds using the straggling grounds there. . . .

The problems basically is the female. While the rooster struts and the booming system and makes as grand a display of himself as he possibly can, the female . . .

When the hens are caught, and the biologists will surely find out why, they will mark them with fluorescent vests and a small radio transmitter will be attached to their backs. . . .

When the birds are released, the biologists will be able to follow the hen to her nest. The ground searches hopefully may turn up more nests and from then on it will be a matter of watchful waiting.

four years. I definitely feel our populations will fluctuate with the annual "precip". . . .

The amount of rain needed isn't much, it might all hinge on one timely rainstorm that will keep the range green through. . . .

Also substantiating this rain fall theory is "we know that in many areas the birds have come down closer to agricultural areas where there is water, completely abandoning areas that they preferred earlier but no longer could provide the moisture they need." . . .

"Our trends show a slight increase of all sage grouse booming ground populations in the past four years," Mooney points out. "And the weather bureau indicates that we have had more precipitation in the past

Triple-winner Denny Jacobsen and double winner Brandon Eaton paced the Wood River 4-way meet at a convincing track victory over three other schools Friday afternoon.

Jacobsen won the 220 and 440-yard dashes and the 100-yard dash while Eaton won the 100-yard dash and the low hurdles. Eaton also got a third in the pole vault.

With those two accounting for most of the damage, the Trojan racked up 89 1/2 points, followed by Glenns Ferry at 46, Kimberly at 35 and Valley 16. The four teams will meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Big Eight conference.

Wendell also won three of the four relay events, Kimberly prevailing the sweep by taking the 4x400 relay.

Team scores—Wendell 89 1/2, Glenns Ferry 46, Kimberly 35, Valley 16.

Filer Wins Its Own Invitational Meet

FILER—Getting a double victory from Billy Shook and picking up points in the relays and on depth, the Filer Wildcats won their own invitational track and field meet on a cold, windy Friday afternoon.

Shook picked up victory in both sprints and the only relay Filer lost was the 880-yarder where the Wildcats finished third but were disqualified.

The Wildcats, who picked up their first varsity winning trophy since 1955, relied on runner-up prize a year ago, won with 78 1/2 points.

Against 7 1/2 for Buhl, Jerome and 6 1/2 for Castelford were fourth with 20 1/2.

The cold weather kept the center well above normal as the flat races were run into the hills.

Filer won the top six fastest times of the day. Sophomore Guy Ramsey, running into striding problems over the seventh hurdle, just held on to qualify for the last finish of Jerome's Thompson. In the 880-yard run, Ramsey nipped come from behind bid by Allen of Buhl to win by perhaps three inches.

Caught Three

Three female sage grouse were caught Thursday and Friday night by Idaho Fish and Game biologists in Shoshone Basin and currently are being tracked through use of small radio transmitters attached to the birds' backs.

Much. This could be trimmed by strip spraying or leaving and killing sagebrush in the percentage that seems best to fit the grouse needs. But this, too, is a difficult thing. The area selected certainly will have to have a good understory of perennial grasses and forbes that can fill in when the sagebrush is taken out of the competition.

If the wrong area is selected, the best bet would be that cheat grass would move in. No sage grouse populations have ever been seen lounging around that desert weed.

Mooney emphasizes that such ideas are still in the theory stage but that the theory has a basis. "In Eastern Idaho—like seen sage grouse using strip spray areas. They stay in the sagebrush by day and feed in the treated areas in the early morning and evenings. I thought this was encouraging." He added mixing of various species in seeding ranges could be another boon for the grouse.

Of course, all these theories will be focused on the Owyhee area for that large expanse of shallow-soiled, up and down topography gives little promise to the white man's idea of extermination with the exception of grazing.

If the sage grouse is to remain on the Idaho game list, the concentration is not too distant future will be in Owyhee. It has become imperative that man understand the "need" of the unique bird—the only one sturdy enough to survive in the area before the white man and, at the same time, one of the most fragile because of its inability to adapt to new environments.

T.F. Golf Team Wins Burley Match

BURLEY—The Twin Falls golf team captured a wind-blown triangular meet with a 333, as the biologists know that the small birds are scattered in an area that is only sparsely spruced as the young get to have sufficient ground to grow. . . .

What the biologists don't know is just which areas the birds are using for nesting and rearing.

In the fall, the brood is able to move on to the more typical sagebrush area and then, of course, it must be scattered throughout the winter. . . .

Mooney selected the Shoshone Basin flock for his pilot study because it is in an open area. . . .

St. Louis is heavily favored in the baseball writers poll but only a cochoice with San Francisco in the Las Vegas odds to repeat its pennant victory in the National League. The crippled Boston Red Sox, who now have lost Tony Conigliaro in addition to Jim Lonborg, are long shots in the American League.

Joe DiMaggio has returned to baseball as a coach for the Oakland A's, who moved west from Kansas City. Six new managers, a handful of rookies and several traded players add zest to the new season.
The new managers are: Alvin Dark at Cleveland, Jim Lemon at Washington, Bob Kennedy at Oakland, Larry Shepard at Pittsburgh, Luman Harris at Atlanta and Gil Hodges with the New York Mets.
Major trades during the off-season have sent Luis Aparicio back to the White Sox after the years in Baltimore and Tommy Davis to the White Sox from the Mets. Jim Manning moved from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, Zoilo Versalles and Tom Haller to Los Angeles and John Roseboro, Ron Ferranocki and Bob Miller to Minnesota.
If the revised schedule gets a green light, the opening programs are expected to attract a total of about 300,000 fans.
Carmel Pascual adds an unusual touch to the Washington opener. When he pitched the first game of the season for the old Washington club (now Minnesota) in 1960, Jim Lemon, Jim Manning helped win the game. Back in Washington after years with the Twins, Pascual is Manager Lemon's choice to oppose Dean Chance.
Center fielder Dick Under and second baseman Frank Conigliaro are the best prospects in the Washington line-up. The Twins have been experimenting at short and third and rate as their contenders. A crowd of 45,000 is expected.

FROM ALL ANGLES

By LARRY HOVEY

It was not a particularly happy week for Magic Valley's class A track athletes.

They spent the first two days of the week in a race against Idaho Falls, and easily took the measure of Twin Falls, Burley and Minico. Of course, it has no bearing on the district meet but it definitely will during regional meets. The fourth district might be lucky to get more than a couple of individuals and one or two relay teams to state this year. Because the fact remains while Borah had no trouble beating the "big three" around here, Capital had no trouble manhandling Borah by a wide margin. In addition, Nampa has its strongest club in several years.

Being the matter more clearly before you is the fact that the 17 events in track, Twin Falls holds the "best" in it. Minico one, and Burley two.

The Filer Wildcats are enjoying the use of a new track provided through volunteer labor by members of the Wildcat Booster club. The track is located behind the new elementary building on the west side of town and promises to be one of the best in the state. It is 10 lanes on the quarter-mile oval.

The track is the biggest project undertaken by the new formed club, which already has done considerable for the Filer track. The club members assure us that they aren't done by a long way yet.

Seeding of a graded football field will be accomplished later this spring along with the rest of the huge area the school district is planning to finance. The boosters doubt that the Wildcats will be playing their football games on the new site next year. They have set the 1970 season as the target date for installation of new lights. The field will be rigged with the best of its kind and other things for use both by the school and the city recreation program, says Superintendent Tom Turner.

The boosters did almost all the work themselves, although getting professional assistance for the specifications for the track. Since many of them own farm machinery, things developed quickly. They used large farm trucks to haul in several hundred yards of salmon truck hardware, gravel and sand. The best natural clay isn't available, and natural clay isn't available around here.

So far the boosters have been having so much fun they are afraid that some day they might run out of projects.

Mountain Home's Tigers have dropped out of the South Central Idaho basketball conference due to the seeding arrangement in the second region for tournaments. The Tigers have expressed interest in the hoop state and hope to pick up Meridian and Caldwell, that will give the tigers a chance to play each of the eight teams in the regional meet. The first-round pairings are based on season records against each other.

Mountain Home says, however, that it will remain in the football and track leagues.

CSI Coach Eddie Sutton has been on the nation again this week trying to ferret out a couple of suspects for next year's basketball team. He has a problem.

Just getting a boy to say "yes, coach, I'm coming to your school" is quite a feat. But Coach Sutton's problems are more serious. He has about 25 boys recommended to us by major colleges and the colleges say they will help us to get the best boy here. What we have to do is to raise each boy according to our needs and his ability. Then we have to get them to four or five. From the stories these other coaches tell, all 75 of them are all-American.

Coach Sutton's instructions, as issued by Dr. James L. Taylor, CSI president, are: "Get enough talent here to the coaching who interfere with the winning." Of course, the instructions came with a smile.

Casper Increases Lead To 2 Shots At Greensboro

By KEN ALVITA

Associated Press Sports Writer GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Billy Casper fashioned a near-flawless 72 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead with a 132 over the 36-hole mark of the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament and several hours before the final 36 holes to Monday.

Sponsoring Jaycees and PGA officials announced jointly in view of President Johnson's designation of Sunday as a day of mourning in the honor of the slain Martin Luther King, the Jaycees joined "other major sports endeavors in honoring the slain leader's request and the PGA of America has concurred."

The $137,500 tournament's second round had been washed out Friday and reset for Saturday, with a 36-hole windup scheduled Sunday to make up the lost day.

With Sunday now an "open" date, the two final rounds will be played Monday.

Casper, unperturbed over the almost of the 68 he fashioned before rain canceled Friday's play, moved smoothly through a 64-72 round that left the two-time U.S. Open champion one stroke off the GGGO 36-hole record, set last year by winner George Archer.

Bobby Nichols came up with the day's best round, 65, to move into second place at 134 going into the Monday final.

He held a one-stroke lead over Don January, who shot a scrambling 67 and Gene Littler, who carded a 70.

Alone in fifth place at 136, four shots off the lead, was South African Gary Player, whose 67 was eclipsed by a 70-foot eagle putt on the final hole.

The Twin Falls Bruins swept a "doubleheader" from "Blackfoot" on Saturday, winning the first game 4-3 in nine innings and tying the second game—8-1 in five frames.

Junior Kent Kinghorn went the distance in winning the first game and Junior Doug Gilbert's punt single drove in the deciding run.

Blackfoot jumped on Kinghorn for two runs and four hits in the second inning and then managed to get the top of the seventh to throw the game into overtime.

Twin Falls scored in the second and when Kevin Kevan singled and rode in on Holladay's hit. In the fourth Ron Blackwood, who was three-for-four, singled and a solo by Holladay plated him. Blackwood brought in the third run in the sixth, singling and scoring on Kevan's hit.

In the decisive ninth, Kevan opened with a single—his third hit of the day—and moved up on Holladay's sacrifice. An error moved him to third and he scored when Gilbert dropped the third single.

In the second game the Bruins scored four times in the second inning on hits by Rick Semba and Dan Olmstead plus some walks, errors and passed balls. The home club led it in the third when Olmstead led off with a double. Mike Durand lived on an error and Butch Hanchey, Gilbert and Will Ward followed with safeties.

Right-hander Tom Irwin lost his shutout in the fifth when Elgie Capson doubled in Richardson.

College Baseball Tourney Begins Three-Day Stand At Jaycee Park Thursday

College baseball tournament action comes to Twin Falls for the first time Thursday when the first annual Magic Valley Intercollegiate round-robin opens in Jaycee Park.

Sponsored by the Twin Falls Jaycees, the three-day tournament will be played entirely during daylight hours and several special rules have been set up to keep the event moving on time.

Competing in the tournament will be Idaho State University, of its best start ever; College of Southern Idaho, Boise; College of Idaho, Boise; College of Idaho, Boise; and College of Idaho, Boise.

Thursday afternoon with four games Friday and Saturday. Each team will meet with the overall field once and the championship will be won or lost.

Herwood of Sherwood's Sports Center, L. I. "Burr" Langdon, chairman of the event for the YMCA, said tournament tickets will be $1 for all 10 games. "We realize that the daylight games will not be as exciting as night games, but we hope to have a good turnout to enjoy as much of the tournament as they possibly would like."

By holding the overall field once and the championship game each day and get a look up on all the teams," Langdon said. He added all proceeds will be used in the YMCA's work with youngsters.

Tickets for the tournament are being sold by youngsters and adults in the YMCA program.

To keep the tournament on schedule, Langdon said, all games will be limited to seven innings—five—the tournament games so early in the year, not many pitchers will be able to go a full nine and none of the teams probably has enough depth to use more than four or five," Langdon said.

Weber Nips ISU To Win Baseball Title

By The Associated Press
Weber State College beat Idaho State University 5-4 in the championship game of the third annual Jaycees college baseball classic played at Boise Jaycee Park Thursday.

Idaho State turned around and crushed Gonzaga 17-1 to take the runner-up slot.

In the championship game, Weber's Al Bisdell and Lorenzo Morales put on a pitching duel only to have an untended run decide the contest in the sixth, Morales hit Craig Glad-

DiMaggio Adds Mentor Duties To Job

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, clinging a bunch of experience, took on the coaching job Friday to his job as vice president of the Oakland Athletics.

"I have become attached to these kids and have never been to college so eager to learn," said DiMaggio, who has spent most of his life helping the A's with their hitting.

The 32-year-old Hall of Famer previously had come to spring training as a hitting instructor with the New York Yankees, but until this year he hadn't done anything more than that since retiring as a player 17 years ago.

But when the Athletics moved from Kansas City to Oakland, DiMaggio was named as hitting coach by owner Charles O. Finley.

"Then, while here for an exhibition game against Cincinnati, Finley nominated the group of coaches and I was asked to serve as a full-time coach."

"The players and I and the other coaches have been talking about this, and I know that Joe is, too," said Manager Bob Kennedy, adding that DiMaggio works closely with him on the bench and not be on the coaching lines.

DiMaggio said he sees no conflict between his job as hitting coach and his job as a vice president.

"Bob Kennedy is my boss," he said. "Whatever he wants me to do, I'll do."

Many baseball people were surprised when DiMaggio was named to the job. They thought if he ever got back into the game, it would be as a manager.

"But DiMaggio said the Yankees never offered him a job and the Athletics countered that Joe never had indicated he was willing to return to an active status."

Dancer's Image Wins Gold Cup

BOHIE, Md. (AP)—Dancer's Image, his gray coat, didn't like his famed sire Nantux, moved along to win the 1967 Gold Cup at Bowie Race Course Saturday.

The 3-year-old Maryland-bred colt, who was only one-fifth of a second off the track record as covered the 1 1/8 miles in 1:42.45.

Ridden by Bob Ustery, Dancer's Image went going away by three lengths over Sir Bantux, heavily favored Clevelander, winner of the consecutive stakes of 2 1/2 lengths of the pace in his first start out of the sprint ranks.

Citation Is Judged Best By Computer

MIAMI (AP)—Calumet Fleet's Citation wrested the lead from Buckpasser going into the stretch turn and held off a challenge from Two to win the computerized "Race of the Century" Saturday by a neck.

Buckpasser finished third followed in order by Terminator, Kelso, Swaps, Nashua, Tom Fool, War Admiral, Native Dancer, Equiptise and Coast Fleet.

The race was at the American classic distance of 1 1/4 miles and was two minutes and 40 seconds. Each horse carried 126 pounds.

Data on each horse was fed into the University of Liverpool's computer, including class of competition, weight-carrying ability, and several records. The horses were then usually rode the horses in competition.

Steve Brooks was on Citation, O'Ware and Brullio—Bazea aboard Buckpasser.

The horses were selected by 109 American sports and racing writers. Seven racing officials established yardsticks and their relative importance in data, which was fed into the computer.

Citation won 37 of 47 starts and was unplaced only once in his career. He won the 1948 Triple Crown, the last horse to do so and was the first born in America to win more than $1 million.

Vandals To Begin Spring Football Drills Monday

NEWCOMERS to the Idaho Vandals football team will turn out for their first spring practice Monday.

The Vandals plan to have several drills Wednesday through Friday and Saturdays through May 11, with all practices scheduled for Neale Stadium in Moscow.

A final spring game will be played on May 14 at the University of Oregon.

Coach McNease and his new staff expect a turnout of over 100 candidates for the opening drills. This will be a new type of football coming to Idaho with the emphasis on the forward passing game.

The Vandals will spend the spring sessions learning the pro-type pass offense and according to McNease, never fall behind on the field.

The Vandals will play the ball from 40-60 times per game.

McNease said the team will be working at the ball game closely during the first two weeks of the drills. The first game will be for all players to go both ways so our staff may be able to get the best idea of our attack and defense," McNease said.

Mile Relay Mark Dips To 3:07.3

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Freshman Dave Morton ran the anchor lap in 4:50 Saturday to lead Texas to a new 3:07.3 mile relay and highlight the Texas Relays.

Nine records were produced Tuesday over two days of track and field carnival.

Morton had 45.1 in the sprint medley relay Friday night to put his team ahead but the Longhorns couldn't hold it and Ken Swensen, running the 800 for Kansas State, whipped out a 1:36.0 to beat out David Milina of Texas.

But Morton's brilliant feat brought him into outstanding spotlight.

It was a narrow decision over Kearny Pearce of Texas of El Paso, who had romped the three-mile in 12:21 for a record Friday.

Harvey Nairn of Southern, who tied the "high hurdles" record of 12.8 at the University of Texas, was not recognized because of a favoring wind, and ran on two winning relay teams was named outstanding athlete in the college class.

Southern won the 440, 880 and mile relays, leading a Texas in the University Division.

Texas won the two-mile and 3-mile relays and the 400 and 800 in the sprint medley. The Longhorns also were fourth in the distance medley and four-mile relay.

Preston Darby, former Texas star now in the Army, ran the second fastest mile in Texas history when he won the Jerry Thompson Open Mile 4:08.6.

The record was 4:00.5, set in 1955 by Wes Santee of Kansas.

Davis took over in the last lap, running by 20 yards over George Scott, the Australian from Albuquerque, who finished second in 4:05.4.

Washington Nips Oregon In Dual Meet

SEATTLE (AP)—Washington's Dave DuPre won two events and ran a leg on the record-setting 40-yard relay team Saturday as the Huskies downed Oregon 20-6 in a track and field meet.

DuPre won the 220 and 400 and his relay team finished the 400 in 41.1 seconds to clip three-tenths of a second off the meet record set by the Huskies in 1967. The clocking also bettered the 41.3 stadium-record the Huskies set in 1963 and equaled in 1967.

Washington Nips Oregon In Dual Meet

SEATTLE (AP)—Washington's Dave DuPre won two events and ran a leg on the record-setting 40-yard relay team Saturday as the Huskies downed Oregon 20-6 in a track and field meet.

All the competitors missed the 4-foot open height in the pole vault and the teams split the remaining 16 events but Washington swept the triple jump and took the top two spots in the high jump for its winning margin.

Huff 'n Puffin' Engine Built By Buhl 'Engineer'

By JAN ARTHUR SAINSBURY
Times-News Feature Editor

"Down by the station, early in the morning — see the little puffinbellies all in a row."

It takes a jaded individual not to enjoy the screeching shrill whistle and the hissing, puffing sound of an old-fashioned steam locomotive; or better yet, a newly-built scaled-down version of that venerable source of power.

Even today when the fading railroad peeks out from behind its freight-car-world-as-passengers, it can be assured of a full carload of paying people only when it announces an excursion through the Feather River Canyon, or some such scenic route, far as pulled by the old-fashioned steam locomotive.

Railroad men stand in round-houses with mist in their eyes when an old steam locomotive chugs its way onto the turntable. They sigh, and comment: "They just don't build them like they used to." And they may be right.

But in Magic Valley, at least one man is basking in the glory of having built something like they used to. And to top it off, it was a steam engine. And more — it could carry its builder all over his farm at the fantastic speed of two miles per hour, or as fast as he likes. Alvin Machacek, puts it, "Maybe more when it's all wound up."

Alvin Machacek is a likable fellow, intensely interested in his hobby — building mechanical things as other men golf, or hunt — with passion.

And he enjoys it so much he smiles constantly as he leans over his engine to adjust its speed and listen to the rhythm of its coughing.

Alvin Machacek has always been interested in steam engines and pumps, and other mechanical items that through the years most of us have come to accept as commonplace, hardly noticing their function or their contribution.

Not so with Alvin Machacek. On a trip last fall to Gröfön in Northern Idaho, Machacek saw an engine similar to the one he finally built, but larger. He was fascinated. And he wanted one.

He took no notes but he had examined the contraption so well that when he returned to Buhl, he started that afternoon to search for parts he could use to build a similar vehicle — only smaller. Alvin Machacek wanted his steam engine to fit onto the bed of a pickup truck.

Alvin drew a picture of the kind of steam engine vehicle he wanted, but it was just a layman's drawing and nothing more. But he worked from that drawing.

His problems would have made the average man, with an average interest in moving parts, and the things they are connected to, lose any hope of completing the task. He had to build everything. The gears, the fire box, the water jacket surrounding the fire box, the governor, the oil pump. All proved difficult; nothing was easy.

One of the biggest problems Machacek encountered was trying to keep the water jacket, where water is heated around the fire box, watertight. To make the structure he had used splicing bolts, and where the bolts were fitted water leaked out. But finally the problems were overcome.

"My younger brother Victor was as interested in it as I was," says Alvin. "It's a steam engine crazy."

And now that the machine has been built, nearly all of it by hand, Alvin Machacek is also "a steam engine crazy."

There is nothing he likes better than to fire up his engine, tug at the spark plug whistle, build up a full head of steam, and wait for people to crowd around and ask questions. And they do.

One of Alvin's neighbors attended a sale recently and announced casually to the people there that Alvin was going to fire up his creation later that afternoon. Sixty people showed up to witness the event. And all in all over 150 people have stopped by the Machacek place to see the machine and talk with its builder.

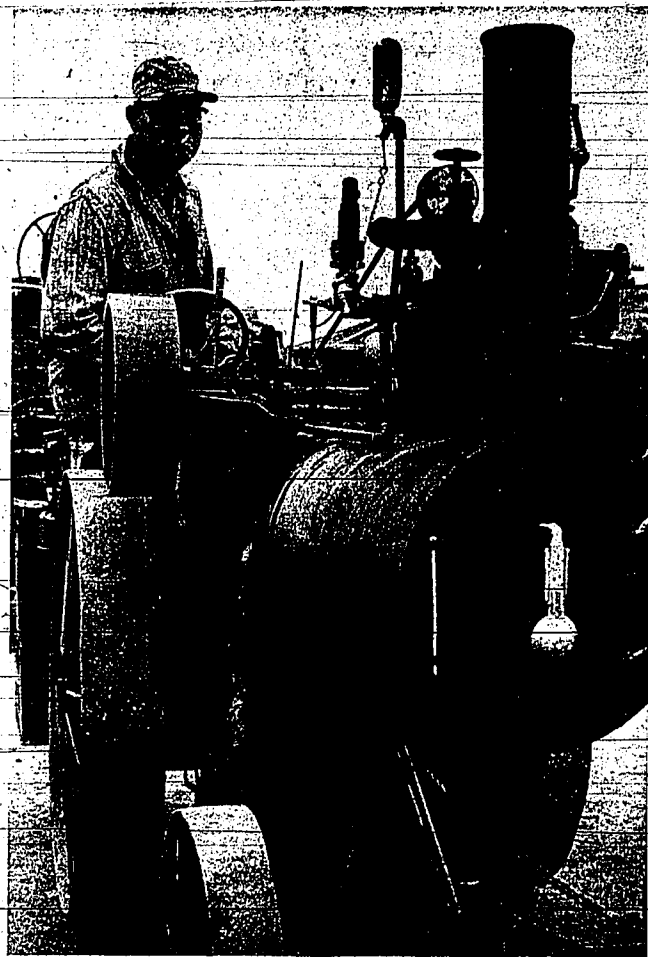

The steam engine, as mentioned before, moves at two or more miles per hour. It goes forward and backward at the same speed. It is eight feet, nine inches long, and its five-and-a-half foot high at the smoke stack. It is as wide as a sheet of iron, 43 inches. The wheels are three feet apart from center to center.

Alvin Machacek started work on the machine last November, and only recently finished it.

The boiler is made out of 1 1/2-inch pipe, three-sixteenths of an inch thick. It holds enough water to run under its own power for nearly three hours, and will pull itself when the pressure gauge reaches 40 pounds. The "pop-off" valve is set for 30 pounds as a precautionary measure.

Alvin Machacek hopes to drive his steam engine in the Fourth of July parade in Twin Falls, so that others can see his work. And others should.

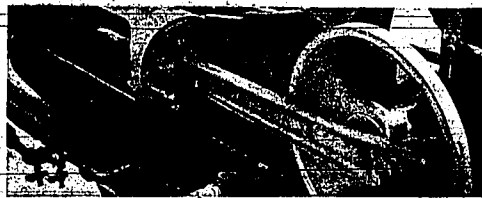

In all he has put 543 actual hours into the building of his engine. And for him, it was worth every lovely minute of it.

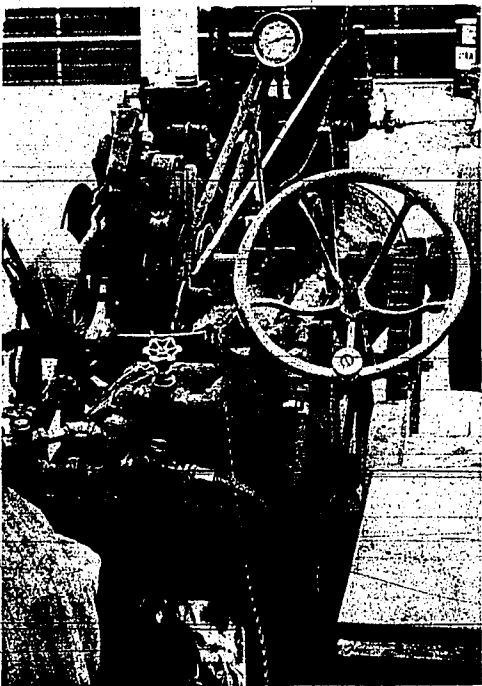

A VERY HAPPY MAN, Alvin Machacek of Buhl smiles as he looks over his pride and joy. The old-fashioned steam engine, capable of speeds of two miles per hour and sometimes more, was built as a labor-of-extreme-love on the Machacek farm near Buhl. All of the parts with the exception of two or three were built from scratch by Mr. Machacek.

a way with words

The following Comedy of Errors appeared recently in the Editor and Publisher, a professional magazine for newspapermen. The true story is sometimes all too true. As the story goes a southern newspaper some years ago printed the following series of ads in their classified section. The first ad appeared in the Monday edition.

—For sale: R. D. Jones has one sewing machine for sale, Phone 558 after 7 p.m. and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him cheap.

—Notice on Tuesday: We regret having erred in R. D. Jones' ad yesterday. It should have read: One sewing machine-for-sale. Cheap Phone 558 and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him after 7 p.m.

—On Wednesday: R. D. Jones has informed us that he has received several annoying telephone calls because of the error we made in his classified ad yesterday. His ad stands as corrected as follows: For Sale: R. D. Jones has one sewing machine for sale. Cheap Phone 558 after 7 p.m.—and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him.

—Finally on Thursday: Notice: I, R. D. Jones, have no sewing machine for sale. I smashed it. Don't call 558 as the telephone has been taken out. I have not been carrying on with Mrs. Kelly. Until yesterday she was my housekeeper, but she quit.

In the Seattle Times the following item once appeared: "About $4,000 alone would be spent on rest rooms. A fire once would help warm the 225-seat establishment."

News fillers are often seen in all newspapers but are often not read. And it is really too bad for the unbelievable knowledge they provide is astounding . . . for example, these are actual (honest) filler items provided newspapers by "AP Newsfeatures."

—Cactus bootleggers export plants to Europe and Japan, where demand for ornamentals is high.

—Perhaps two billion prairie dogs scamped over the Great Plains a century ago.

—Dromedaries were imported a century ago to Australia. The one-hump camels now rove in wild herds.

—Cape Kennedy and nearby Cocoa, Fla., are rich in bird life.

—Black and gold kokoa frogs live in the rain-drenched swamps of Columbia.

—Birds do not always fly straight as an arrow to summer territories from their wintering grounds. The migrants take detours to avoid mountains, deserts and bodies of water.

Have you heard there is a move on to start sending Diet-Care Packages overseas for overweight underprivileged people?

The next time someone calls you at one or two in the morning and says, "Gee . . . I hope I didn't wake you," just say, "That's all right; I had to get up to answer the phone anyway."

Or better yet . . . the next time you call someone and ask them something, end your remarks with, "Well, thanks for calling," and hang up. It usually confuses them no end.

Have you ever found yourself wondering late at night how many Plkowskies, or Frams, or Dobbs, or Smiths, or what ever name you happen to have, there are in the large cities of this wonderful nation. If you have, say, the name "Borman," (Just to make it interesting) and you want to find out how many other Borman's there are, in, say, New York City, all you have to do is direct dial the following number: 1-212-555-1212. The "one" is to get out of the state, the "212" is to get into New York City, and the rest is the universal information number. The New York City operator will answer, and she can recognize her by the fact that she doesn't sound like an Idahoan. Ask her for the number of (making up a first name) Quincy Borman. Any name will do in New York City.

The operator will pause for a moment, and then say, "I'm sorry sir, but I find nothing for a Quincy Borman." Telephone operators are extremely polite, to the point of being obnoxious. Then you say, "Well do you have a name that sounds like Quincy?" She will look it over and most likely say no. At that point you say, "Well, how many Borman's are there?" And the telephone operator will probably say, "Well, sir, there are at least 35 and I simply cannot locate a Quincy." At this point you say, "Try Martin, Martin Borman."

Now, the operator will not get mad, because telephone operators have been trained not to do anything normal. They do not get mad, nor do they get upset. And they are always helpful.

Some nights I have called as many as fifty towns before I have located another person with my last name.

Of course the difficulty comes when you ask if there is a Quincy Borman and the operator gives you his number. Then you have got to say quickly, "I also need one more number — it's Quincy's brother Farquard." That'll get them every time.

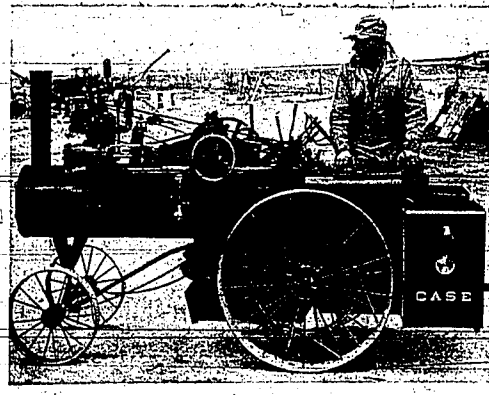

Two can live as cheaply as one — but nowadays it takes both of them to earn enough to do it.

"Tell me what you eat, and I'll tell you what you are," said a lunch counter philosopher. When upon a meek little man, sitting a few stools away, called to the waitress, "Cancel my order for shrimp salad, please."

And remember: Women define luxury as anything a husband needs.

Through these collections the reader will gain new insights into the African people's "concern for tradition as well as change, for expression of their history as found in their art and music, their eagerness for education, their political ambitions, their pride in their customs and race."

WHAT MAY WELL BE the prettiest two dozen eggs in town get admiring glances from 8-year-old Carolyn Wilcox, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Gerald A. Wilcox, 218 Walnut St., Twin Falls. The eggs were donated and fashioned into an Easter egg tree by Mrs. Elgin W. Wilson, Twin Falls, and were donated to the District Court Clerk's office in the Twin Falls County Judicial Building.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

For those who might want a "recipe" for an Easter egg tree, Mrs. Elgin W. Wilson, Twin Falls, has most of the answers. She has been making the bright and decorative trees for several years and has donated many to rest homes and to friends. This year one of her Easter tree creations is drawing considerable attention at the office of the district court clerk in the new Twin Falls County Judicial Building. The tree was given to Mrs. A. Robinson, clerk, and sister of Mrs. Wilson.

Ingredients for the average-size tree begin with about two dozen eggs. Mrs. Wilson says, "You don't cook the eggs. They're boiled in each end of the egg and the yolk and white are left whole. The eggs are still wet," Mrs. Wilson says, they can easily be cut out in one side, or both sides can be cut away. By cutting the egg in half crosswise, and using a handie miniature Easter baskets can be made.

For color, Mrs. Wilson uses anything from food coloring to interior wall paint. Lots of glitters, all types of rick-rack, and all their combinations can be used. Once the eggs are well coated in paint and glue, they become more durable.

This year Mrs. Wilson even shipped a dozen decorated shells to a friend in New York City. "I'm decorating the shells in the cut shells," Mrs. Wilson says anything small will do. She uses small dried weeds and flowers, tiny birds or animals and even makes tiny rabbits by using small marshmallows. For variety, some of the eggs should be left whole and decorated on the outside and end of the string which it runs through the egg and used to attach it to a tree.

One word of warning, Mrs. Wilson adds, "Don't start an Easter egg tree unless you have lots of time."

About three days went into preparing and decorating the eggs for the tree at the court house.

Service in the Army Air Force beckoned in 1942, and he served as a tail gunner in the Pacific theater until his discharge in 1945 as a staff sergeant. He was decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross with six Oak-Less Clusters.

In 1949 he received his Bachelor's degree from Brigham Young University in Provo and went on for his Master's degree, after which he returned to Glenns Ferry and became the former Lawana (Bonnie) Cora Lee, whom he married in 1947, and their son, Ernie, who now is a member of a mission for their church in Bogota, Colombia. Added to their family are five children: Annie, 16; Rebbly, 14; Daylawn, 12; Pammy, 4; and Lyrriss, 3.

Mr. Messerley is a member of the organized softball league among the youngsters' which, while he has time to manage it, gives a healthy outlet for young boys' excess energy. After Dayle got too busy with his regular job, he stepped into this leadership, As Bonnie said, "Our three oldest were practically raised out of the house—just—just—just with the team."

Dayle is a captain in the Army Reserve and is in the now deactivated 471st Medium Tank Co. in Boise where he was headquarters for four years.

Starting at the Mountain Home Air Force Base as a flight clerk in 1952, Dayle is now one of the few civilian Traffic Management Officers in the United States. He has received many outstanding performance awards from the government and from transportation officials.

For seven years he has been a member of the Glenns Ferry Golf and Country Club. He is also a member of the Glenns Ferry Rotary Club. He is a member of the Glenns Ferry Chamber of Commerce and is serving his second term as a director of the Mountain Home Credit Union.

Mr. Messerley is a former president and an honorary life member of the Glenns Ferry Area JPA. He has served much time to make contributions for school improvement, including a new building program just a few years ago.

Burley Lions Give Gift To High School

BURLEY — The Burley high school science department is contemplating the pleasant task of how best to spend a possible $1000 on new equipment.

Half of the amount—$500—has been given to the department by the Burley Lions club and other Burley club directors. This confirmed the possibility of matching funds from the government and from transportation officials.

Lions club directors decided to make the initial gift—according to Jerry Anderson, president of the club. He said the club members of the high school project to build a new science building.

Mr. Anderson said in investigating the possible items which would be useful to the school he found that a stroboscope, which can stop motion by taking a picture with the use of a camera, costs $35.

A continuous gas laser costs about $700 and a life-size human torso with removable organs for dissection, costs about $350, he added. The choice of how the funds are spent will be up to school officials and teachers in the science department, Mr. Pickrell said.

STEVEN SORENSEN POINTS to the fish hooks used to build an oriole's nest.

THIS SIGN APPEARED in Steven's third grade classroom as a reminder to students about nature and its ways.

Oh, Oh, Oriole--Bird Goes Fishing In Treetops

It seemed an implausible story when the postcard first arrived at the newspaper office of the Times-News. It was addressed to the Feature Editor and read in part: "This is to tell you that a student growing up in an interesting exhibit of an oriole's nest in which the birds have woven fishing line and hooks into the structure of the nest itself, using the hooks to hold the nest onto the branch."

A few hours after receiving the postcard from Mrs. Beverly Hughes, we drove to Shoshone, and visited her third grade class. And she wasn't kidding.

Young Steven Sorensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sorensen, formerly of Shoshone and now living in Twin Falls, had found an oriole's nest which had apparently blown out of a tree near Magle Reservoir. It was there that Steven had found it.

He brought the nest, along with a similar one which had also blown down, back to his school room, and to his teacher, Mrs. Hughes.

It was apparent from the construction of the nest that the oriole in question, the one building the nest, was not only clever, but actually ingenious. She, assuming a lady oriole did the nest building, had found some abandoned fishing line complete with hooks and sinkers littered. She wove her nest and used the line, tough line to bind the nest together.

The fishing line runs throughout the nest. And where the two hooks are actually imbedded into the nest they form two loops which obviously held the nest to the tree branch. A paper tube was slipped through the two loops and the nest hung perfectly balanced.

"And just think, the fisherman probably couldn't do a thing with that line."

Show Increase

BOISE (AP) — Cattle feeding in Idaho is showing a greater rate of increase than in neighboring states, a University of Idaho Extension Service economist said Friday.

Quentin Banks, marketing information economist, predicted the expansion will continue.

Banks said cattle production now is the largest source of farm income in Idaho and is "one of the fastest growing farm enterprises" in the state.

The number of cattle slaughtered in Idaho during January was up 14 per cent from the total a year earlier, he said.

Portland Visit Is Canceled By McCarthy

PORTLAND (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy canceled Friday his scheduled for Monday and Tuesday visit to the Portland area; his headquarters said Friday.

McCarthy's chief aide, Jerome Eller, said in Los Angeles, where the Democratic candidate for president is campaigning, that McCarthy planned to fly to Washington, D.C. to attend a joint session of Congress.

President Johnson called Congress to a joint session following the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Thursday in Memphis.

Elder said McCarthy would attempt to juggle his schedule to visit Portland soon, but gave no definite date for a later visit.

McCarthy had planned to arrive in Portland Monday, to speak at Mt. Angel College near Salem Monday afternoon, and to Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society, in Portland Monday night.

Plane Search Is Hampered

REDMOND, Ore. (AP) — Four weather hampered a search in the Oregon Cascades Friday for a plane with three men aboard, missing since Thursday afternoon.

Occupants of the plane, were identified as Andy Deichel, the pilot, and Don Dow, both of Hillsboro, and Don Hicks, Boise-Idaho.

The plane left Boise at 2 p.m. Thursday for Eugene where it was scheduled to arrive at 6 p.m. The Redmond airport received the pilot's last message at 4:52 p.m., asking for Eugene's weather.

Fifteen performances at the Ramona in Buhl and fifteen more "on the road" in Idaho towns as far apart as Lewiston and Lava Hot Springs dictate that the three plays be designed and mounted for travel—light in weight, easy to pack and carry and to reassemble.

Aldrich Bowler, the repertory theatre's Producer-Director, reports that this year, as never before, a competent technical crew is of prime importance to the theatre's continued success.

Jan Van Leeuwen, Dutch artist visiting in Idaho this year, has been chosen as the recipient of the Technical Scholarship Award. Twenty-four year old Van Leeuwen, who received his M.A. from the Akademie St. Joost in Breda, Holland, had exhibited his ceramic sculpture at the College of Idaho, Idaho State University, the Boise Art Gallery and the University of Idaho. His undergraduate work was done at Middleton in Amersfort, where he received year-round concentrated training in all art media as preparation for a career as an art teacher.

During his three years' study, he worked in all phases of theatre with special attention to design, directing and film making.

Van Leeuwen is designing both the innovative stage settings and the costumes for RIP VAN WINKLE, A TEXAS STEER, and BOTH YOUR HOUSES, the Festival Theatre's vintage American plays.

To assist Van Leeuwen, two local girls, both drama majors interested in technical aspects of theatre, have been accepted for scholarship grants. Pat Chupa is a 1967 graduate of Twin Falls High School and is in her first year at Antioch College, presently on a "vacation quarter" with her family. During the first "work quarter" at Antioch, Miss Chupa worked as a technical assistant in the Workshop Theatre at Yellow Spings, Ohio.

Mary Giddings, who will also receive a scholarship award, is a 1966 graduate of Buhl High School and a drama major at the University of Idaho. She assisted on the production of TWELFTH NIGHT and THE SKIN OF OUR TEETH on the Moscow campus this past year.

Bowler, talking with Mary Giddings and Pat Chupa about designs and construction problems facing the crew this summer, said "I think both of your girls are going to have to learn how to weld."

Neither one of them blinked an eye.

Former members of the acting company returning to the Antique Festival Theatre on scholarship grants are Lynn Miller, Buhl, her third year at the University of Washington; Serena Sorensen and her husband Phil Deitz, San Francisco, and Dennis Dugan, Wheaton, Ill., who is in his second year at the Goodman Theatre School in Chicago.

We'll give you three guesses why Ford's Model C is the best selling car in Scotland.

The Scots have a healthy respect for money. And so does Ford's Model C Cortina. This car gets up to thirty miles to a gallon of gas. The 2-door deluxe model (above) costs only $1873* or $40.95* a month. All because it's built with the tradition of Ford's Model A firmly in mind.

Plus the kind of workmanship that makes it the best selling car in England as well as Scotland. And you know how fussy the English are about their cars.

But the Model C has ideas that appeal in any country. They're better ideas. For example: the engine is more powerful than many imports, the seating room is larger. Automatic transmission and GT styling are available. Front disc brakes are standard. And so are the Ford Motor Company Lifeguard Design Cortina Safety features.

Those are the features that help make Ford's Model C so right for any country where the people are careful with a buck. (Sales more than doubled in the U.S. last year.) One other thing helps here. Parts and servicing are available at hundreds of Ford dealers across the U.S. And you know they're not going to leave the country on you.

Up, Up And Away In Beautiful Oil Drums

By FRED DODDS
Times-News Staff Writer

My early years in Kimberly were spent in a world of adventure and imagination. I have written several articles about the adventures of my youth. One of the most interesting has been the story of the oil drums we used to fly in.

The fuel problem took a swift turn one Saturday afternoon as Richard, Harry, John and I were playing near the railroad burning following the weekly afternoon movie.

"I saw a railroad flare burning on the tracks and went to investigate. The flare was hot, smoked and hissed, and seemed to be leaking. I went over to see what it was. It was a flare. That's it," Richard cried.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in the railroad tracks picking up pieces of old used flares. Once in a while we found an unexploded one, but not often. By the end of the day we had enough to fill the basket on Harry's bicycle.

"That wasn't enough, however, to consider putting inside the bottom section of the space ship," we were back where we started.

It was still great fun to imagine a space voyage with our silver ship in my back yard but the thought of an actual journey stirred in us. One would not be the real thing, but it came on an evening not long after we had finished our movie. I was visiting the farm home of a friend of mine. He was interested in the space program and had a model of a space ship in his back yard. It was secured in this position by large boards that could be knocked away with a gentle tug on a long rope.

The bottom portion of the space ship was to contain the fuel. The middle portion was filled with rocks and funny things and was designed to act as insulation against the heat generated by the fuel. The top portion was a dome-shaped parachute for an easy descent after the space ship made its maiden voyage into space.

"I was 14 at the time. The parachute, made from lengths of strong rope and attached to the bottom of the rocket, was hooked to the volunteer astronaut. When the hero—was he?—was selected at zero hour, the flip of a coin—reached the point where he started to fall and he had to climb out of the rocket. In the volunteer populated district and figured with the right tug on the right rope at the time of blast-off to earth right in Mrs. Chandler's garden about 150 yards away from the launching pad.

For a nose cone, we rigged a contraption made of wire and cardboard. In the end, the end of the space capsule and could be removed easily.

After a smooth coast of aluminum—built on the space ship, all was nearly in readiness. We lacked only the fuel to make the trip.

"This, as it turned out, proved to be our biggest problem. None of us knew what kind of fuel to use.

Richard, the brain in the outfit, thought of dry ice. He thought the hero would dry ice in an airtight container as fuel for a space voyage.

"Richard told us then. 'The kid allowed the pressure to build up too much and the thing exploded. We watched the hero and dry ice all sounded very good, but dry ice just didn't seem right. We wanted something that would really work, something that would roar and smoke and lift.

The experiment was over. Richard climbed into the tree, and with the three of us on the ground, he pulled all types of ropes to steady the spaceship, he removed the moss cone and grabbed the mangle. The mangle was getting the ropes secured around his chest. He climbed in, pulled the parachute over him, and the mangle secured the moss cone again.

Our astronaut was in place. For an "ignition" system we split half a dozen shotgun shells and poured the gun powder into a tin Banjo box. We tapped some of the gun powder near the small opening at the bottom of the spaceship where some of the yellow compound had been spilled for this purpose.

The ship rested on two by fours and was slightly off the ground, causing it to sway from side to side.

Richard screamed now and then. He was a good 15 feet off the ground in a sitting position in semi-darkness in the capsule sitting on a tin Banjo box. It was a strange scene.

THIS BEAVER COLONY is located on Mink Creek southwest of Pocatello. As a rule, one family of beavers forms the kind of group known as a colony. Such a unit will have the parent male and female, plus their offspring of the previous year and the current season as well. Yearling animals are allowed to stay in the colony with the young-of-the-year until they are about two years old. They share the same lodge, pond, maintenance work and food supplies.

Pelt Trapping Slump Hits All Furbearers

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department

One of the ironies of life is that the world's only mammal (save man) can change its water-bashed habits to suit its own needs, has come to such hard times. It is a beaver of course, and now ranks a notch above the beaver in the fur trade. But come what may, the role of "Castor Canadensis" in the exploration and settlement of the Old West is more than a twofold tale. Mountain men trapped beaver and swapped pelts for guns, food, horses, tobacco and even Indian maidens.

But not anymore. Loss of favor came in modern times as fur, furbearing animals, not least beaver in the last 100 years, or less, the adults drive them out of the fur trade. The cause is as hard to find as the reason why women change their minds. It may have been too many "mink" whiffers in fashion, yet strong enough to switch the taste of distaff buyers in many lands from fur to synthetics.

The same skid hit most pelt prices more or less equally. Last year's muskrat catch of 51,000, for example, was down 13 percent from the 1955-56 season, and the pelt price dropped from $1.25 to 81 cents.

Some trappers said it was tough to sell pelts for less, even though furs were being offered in large quantities. That muskrat prices topped 81 cents is twice in the past 14 years.

Three furbearing animal species yielded 85 percent of the pelts harvested last year by trappers. Of these, muskrat produced 75 percent of the pelts, beaver 5 percent, and mink 3 percent. Total pelt revenue totaled $177,145, a 10 percent drop from 1955-56 trapping season. Beaver, fox, muskrat, mink, marten and bobcat were the next best.

Canyon county of Southwest Idaho yields the largest number of muskrats to trappers year after year. Last year the number of muskrats totaled 12,700 pelts. Other big muskrat producing counties are Jefferson, Ada, Blaine, and Custer. Lemhi, Gooding, Twin Falls, Bear Lake, Caribou and Jefferson.

Wesley Shaw, Boise game biologist, says that the 1957-58 trapping season was the best trapping year for muskrat since record keeping began in 1945. Some 247,000 muskrats were harvested statewide last year.

All boys who spend much time along quiet water courses, drain ditches or marshy areas, are likely to see muskrats. They are gnu-like beaver, they find protection from enemies by building underwater entrances or tunnels to their nest chambers.

These are numerous in suitable marshes or ponds, giving them the appearance as if the mounds rising from the murky depths, with small feeding pipes protruding from the top, especially when the pond contains fast-flowing currents.

They are born in the middle of August. Litters generally have six or seven kits that are blind and almost hairless. Two litters during the summer months is Walls are thick and freeze above the water line during winter. One lodge shelter several beavers, depending on the size of the family group or colony. Idaho has many places where the habitat could support more beaver and muskrat than there are today. If maximum yields were the only management goal, beaver and muskrat numbers would be high. But high populations of these furbearers clash with other land uses. They are assets, particularly to fish and game management, on remote mountain streams. Elsewhere they block irrigation ditches, flood fields and roads, plug culverts, and cut fruit trees.

Beaver protection in back country watersheds is a prime goal in the program of the Idaho Fish and Game Department. This includes protection of the muskrat and beaver from poachers, and the young of their own kind. Their tendency to move on and start new colonies every two years inevitably means that younger members moving downstream will collide with civilization.

Proper beaver management then is not absolute protection. It is taking a crop from overpopulations. This annual thinning, as with all wildlife resources, keeps the population vigorous within the limits of the food supply and produces a living, part-time job at best. Trapping these days is far down the list of ways to earn a living, a part-time job at best. For example, there were 1,700 muskrat trappers in 1955-56 season. The highest number that time was 2,200 (50 percent) in 1946-47. One of the reasons why the caretaker program, designed by the Idaho State Legislature in 1947, to meet beaver management requirements, failed to meet the beaver's needs was because many of the trappers (trappers could not make ends meet and resigned).

Younger members could not be reduced to stay on the job much more than one season. Time has not improved the situation. Last year just 713 trapping licenses were sold throughout Idaho. Four of them were to nonresident trappers.

Home For Unweds At Boise Plans Drive

(SPECIAL TO THE TIMES-NEWS) — The Salvation Army's Booth Memorial Home in Boise is planning a drive to raise $70,000 during the next 12 months for 121 unmarried mothers. George Driver, Twin Falls Corps Officer.

Cost for this complete service totaled $2,435.75. Because of present limitations of the facilities, the Home is able to help only one girl at a time. Captain Driver stated.

"Total girls include 349 during the next year. Twin Falls County, provided at a cost of $3,704.25.

The Booth Memorial Home, a matron and nurse, provides a full complement of service to unmarried parents and their babies. Harry, a 14-year-old, and John and I were on the outside up and turned on the water. We all found buckets of Mason Jar and water. We were all soaked. We all feared some kind of terrible catastrophe that would wipe out the village of Kimberly. We also feared the city constable, and we above all feared the wrath of the constable.

"Get it out! Get it out!" Richard screamed over and over. He stumbled now and then over the parachute.

"Finally the fuel burned out. The water poured into the ruptured shell of the bottom part of our spaceship. The entire block smelled like sulphur and a great deal of smoke rose into the sky.

The apple tree which was the main part of our launch pad was scorched and most of the leaves were gone. There was a large burned spot in the grass where the spaceship had rested. Some scattered our house and garage nearby, but luckily no one was hurt. The spaceship had rested there. There were no fire engines approaching, and the city police were not called.

"Fortunately we dragged the spaceship for what remained into the garage, stacked boards over the spaceship and cleared up what we could near the house and garage, and ran. The constable was running when we did not notice the damaged apple tree. They did; and I was told — quite pointedly — that the constable had retired. But they must have wondered later about the bulk of the spaceship. I think they were afraid to ask.

Laminated Beams Made By Quality Wood Firm, Filer

By MARJORIE UERMAN
Times-News Correspondent
FILER—Quality Wood Products, a comparatively new company in Filer, is producing a wide variety of types of millwork, furniture, custom built signs, and also contracts for the building of homes and summer cabins. The newest and largest share of this company is devoted to the building of laminated beams which are greatly in demand not only in Idaho but also in the Ketchikan area and as far away as northern Utah, according to Paul Shetter, owner.

Most of these "Glulams," a shop term for the laminated beams, are being used in commercial buildings, churches and homes in these areas, however, in some parts of the country they are now being used in the construction of railroad bridges and power line poles.

Although lighter in weight than steel, the Glulams can carry a heavier load, and as in the case of steel, they are not subject to rust. The cost of installation is cut because only five poles per mile are needed, while six of steel are needed. The weight of nine poles to the mile are needed.

Quality Wood Products is housed in the building which was the former Filer Hardware. Mr. Shetter had been in the contracting business for some 10 years and when he learned the building was for sale he inspected it and decided it would be an excellent place to set up headquarters. The building contains a top floor which he bought in the November

Beavers Going Modern At Ranch West of Heyburn

HEYBURN—Beavers are going strictly modern at the Sanford-Vandever Beaver Ranch, located west of Heyburn.

The beaver has all the conveniences of modern living, complete with one-bedroom homes, patio and a bath with plumbing. Of course the plumbing is of the running water only and does not include preferred fixtures.

Who cares who you are fortunate enough to have a luxurious and beautiful fur around you all the time, you can have some things you can adjust to being without.

Nevertheless the beaver is enjoying his cake and eating it too. That is until the untimely peeling-season comes around, but until this time the beaver enjoys the luxury of fur and just finds it in his common nature to "share" it.

The Sanford-Vandever men find it rather a pleasure to work with and handle the beaver and have discovered a few things to be as tame and lovable as a pet dog or cat.

Generally speaking, the animals are very docile now, very easy to handle," said Ray Sanford. In fact it is a real pleasure, because they are such beautiful creatures that you love to handle them.

This beaver ranch is operated as a partnership by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sanford, Paul, and their children, and also by Mr. and Mrs. Dale Vandever, Heyburn.

This ranch was the first to begin operations in this area. Construction of the pens was started during the spring of 1953 and the first beaver arrived the following November. The Sanfords became interested in the beaver business in 1952 after a friend, August Marsch, mentioned it to them during a dinner the two families were having.

Marsch never pursued the subject further, but the Sanfords took a great interest and spear the next several weeks investigating the possibility of getting the business started in this area.

According to Mr. Sanford, there were no beaver ranches at this time in southern Idaho and the beaver association was very interested in getting one started here. Now there are five ranches in this area, including Montgomery, Chandler, McCombs, Hensen and Sanford-Vandever.

Plastic Packaging Growth To Continue

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—The continuing wide use of diversified plastic packaging, improving its ability to serve the convenience-demanded-increasingly in the home, will bring substantial growth in this market in 1958, a leader in the plastic packaging industry has predicted.

New materials and technologies are creating a climate for historic changes in packaging, particularly in the home, according to Judson Bemis, president of Bemis Company, Inc.

He cites such examples as the packaging of individually frozen vegetables, packages that carry a special interior climate around a food product to maintain its freshness, and new aseptic plastic packaging for health-protecting drug products.

"We look for the use of plastics in packaging to grow to approximately $1.6 billion in the United States through 1960, and to three billion worldwide at a value of about $1.8 billion," Bemis said. He estimated that 2.4 million pounds of plastic packaging will be used, representing about 20 per cent of the total plastics market.

New applications will play an important role in the growth of flexible plastics, the executive said. Bemis Company recently found a niche for the full market—specifically department stores—with colorfully printed high-fashion drawdown plastic bags. Several of the nation's major department stores are using plastic bags to supplement or replace paper shopping bags. The company also is working with a major mail-order firm in the use of plastic bags for parcel post shipments.

Palm Sunday: A Dramatic Festival

By HAROLD N. NYE
Pastor, 1st Methodist Church
Twin Falls, Idaho

Palm Sunday is one of Christendom's dramatic festivals. It was on this day many years ago that Jesus was heralded and applauded as a king. The religious community had tried to acclaim him as such before. But he had steadily refused. For, as he once said to the disciple, Peter, "My Kingdom is not of this world." Our Lord well knew that what those people wanted was a leader who would unite them nationally—a leader who would wield military might and bring to nought the designs of their enemies. But Jesus had come to this earth to establish a kingdom of love. Being a nationalistic leader was not of his line. And he knew the kind of a kingdom he wanted could never be brought about with physical force. So, for months he had avoided the popular desire of the crowd to acclaim him as their Messiah. He could not conscientiously give in to their whims.

But on that Palm Sunday many years ago he did in essence to the crowd, "All right, I'll be the Messiah, but I will be the kind I know I should be—not the kind you have been dreaming of. The pilgrims did not quite hear all he had said. They heard enough to set them to a frenzied rejoicing for he had 'triumphantly accepted their desire' to make him their king. They said, "Blessed be the king who comes in the name of the Lord."

Most of us would have been pleased by an apparent acceptance of so many people. Our Lord, though, could see beyond the immediate for as he drew near to the Holy City, he wept. He wept because he knew that the people who would acclaim him as the Messiah, but I will be the kind I know I should be—were the people's acclamations. The events that followed produced his fore-knowledge. By the following Friday, many of the same people of Sunday's joyous shouting crowd were crying "Away With Him—Crucify Him." He was hung on a cross, the way of disposing of common criminals, and by sundown he was dead.

Much of that first Palm Sunday and Good Friday are reenacted by its modern disciples. We make our loud professions of our words of loyalty and devotion. Again, Jesus weeps, for as he looks on us contemporary people he sees our fickleness and our distastes. He weeps not for himself, but for us poor mortals.

HAGERMAN—The State of Idaho operates 17 fisheries into the waters of the outside stations which include live hatcheries, spawn-taking stations and distribution stations. The majority of the hatcheries are located in the southern part of the state because water suitable for hatchery purposes is found in greater abundance. Many large springs are utilized as water supplies because they are the proper temperature and temperature. The largest state hatchery is located at Hagerman, where it has an abundance of good water. It produces nearly one-third of all trout reared in state hatcheries.

Gov. Jack M. Murphy, as Idaho's acting governor, issued an executive order making the demonstration cities and counties the official agency to receive grants authorized under the demonstration cities and counties act. He said there is no existing state agency which could serve as effectively.

E. F. Simmerman, executive secretary of the Association of Idaho Cities, said his organization will provide office space and equipment. Federal grants, matched locally, will provide a technical adviser and a secretary. The new program, Simmerman said, will "do exactly what the location of Idaho Cities is and has been doing for a number of years."

Area Firm Handles Steel Fabrication For Big Jobs

A Twin Falls firm handling steel fabrication for major projects in several surrounding states is the K and T Steel Co. Giant steel beams, steel bridge beams, steel for reinforcing concrete work and a variety of about 250,000 pounds of steel for the major production of K and T Steel.

Largest Manufacturer Of Draper Chains Is In Filer

FILER—Latest additions where many types and applications of soft and semi-rigid acrylics processed. Acme is the largest manufacturer in the world of draper chains. Mr. Herrett says they are manufactured extensively for use on potato and beet planters. Last year the company used approximately seven million pounds of steel in the manufacture of chains.

The draper chain is a world leader in its field and is manufactured in over a thousand different sizes. The heat-treated chain goes through a process of rubber coating and is greatly in demand. The shop has its own machine department for the making of dies and tools, also drafting and cataloging departments as well as its own welders and machinists.

Acme is responsible for the distribution of all its manufactured goods and carries a large stock and also uses railway freight and common carrier. Last year two potato planters were sent to Peru by air freight with the end result of costing more to ship the planters than the cost of the planters themselves.

Peru is but one of the foreign countries beginning to raise potatoes, and requests and orders for the planters are becoming more numerous. The potato planter is one of more than 40 items made by the Acme Manufacturing Co. The planter possesses greater capacity, is easier to pull, and the seed placement is more accurate than other planters on the market. The cup-type planter is especially valuable where rocks are a problem.

Should She Ask Her Cousin To The Prom

'Dear Ele: I am a noticeably fat girl in my senior year of high school. Nobody is going to ask me to the Senior Ball. I think that for a fact. And if I asked any of the 'fat boys' I know who go to other schools, they'd find some polite excuse for saying "no." So it stands, I stay home. Now my mother has suggested that I take my cousin. He is two years older than I, and I think he'd do it. But I don't know how the other kids would take it. Can I have your thoughts on this?—Liz'

Dear Liz: If you think you'd have fun with your cousin's arm to lean on, GO! But instead of sweating all evening long that someone will uncover your relationship, announce gaily with each introduction—"Midge, I'd be pleased to meet your cousin, my relative..." The more openly you admit your kinship, the less ploy you'll suffer.—Ele

Dear Liz: I've been doing a lot of thinking about the future, and what you're asking me is selecting my profession. At 16-17-18-19-20-21 all certain what my talents are, and what would be really satisfying work. Yet, before I've done anything, I'm moving leaves and baby-sitting. I must decide what education track to aim for, and what college to approach. This means I've got to figure out what my interests are and since neither of my parents went past high school, they can offer no real guidance. Can you? (I've already seen the counselor and it didn't help much.)—Jeff'

Dear Jeff: First of all, don't let signs be your guide to participate in work. If necessary, work as a volunteer but get a slice of real experience in the fields that interest you. If photography intrigues you, apprentice yourself to a photographer whose work you admire, and help him with location lights, darkroom work, billing and phone calls. Profit? You'll end up with a realistic idea of what the profession entails, instead of being guided by the "Blow-Up" movie line—Ele

Second, do some interviewing. Talk to the men who are successful leaders in the fields you eye. Ask them the plus and minus factors of their work. Find out how fast you can rise with talent, and how secure you'd be after you're hired.—Ele

I wish all older brothers (and sisters) would realize how important they could be to the younger kids. Instead of just starting following my brother's example, I'd fake out if I tried to tell him to his face, but if you print "Mahatma's Kid Brother," my brother will know I wrote it when he reads it. Thanks.—Mc

Dear Ele and Walt [Help] We have a teacher who smokes quite heavily. When he bends down to help us with our work, his breath is just about unbearable. What can we do to let him know we're without being rude? Please answer in the paper as he reads your column often.—Asphyxiated. P.S. He's great except for this!

Dear Asphyxiated: It would be quite difficult for you to tell teacher directly that he offends. So why not ask one of his faculty friends to alert him to the value of these emergency aerosol mouth-sprays that come in handy pocket size. Better yet, buy a sample can to have him pass on to your prof.—Ele and Walt.

THE CORRECT THING. Dear Dulaneys: Recently I've seen some very well brought up people concerning an etiquette problem that I was raised to consider "peasant manners." They tip their soup bowls to get the last of their soup in their spoons. Is this accepted today?—Questioning.

Dear Questioning: Our favorite guide to etiquette is the book "The Common-Sense Etiquette" and in it she approves tipping the soup dish away from the last of the soup in their spoons. Is this accepted today?—Questioning.

Receiving Station Is Way 'Out West' In Desert

PAUL — Loren C. Nelson, Burley, manages a "prospector" business that is considered one of the "best" businesses in this area. In fact among his most recent visitors are a bobcat and coyotes. The business is the Morgan-Lindsay, Inc., located west of Paul in the old desert area between Paul and Hazelton.

The company operates with an average of three men the year around, who work so far away from everyone they usually see the farmers they work for only about twice a year.

The business is a receiving station for farm products and serves as a buyer and seller for peas, beans and grain. It ships to many parts of the country.

Mr. Nelson and his employees are so far from any roads that to get to the station they have to take a long drive and go to the corner for a "coffee break."

As a "prospector" it is a part business when equipment needs replacing, can be somewhat of a major operation. When Paul is needed, Mr. Nelson drives to either Burley, Rupert or Twin Falls.

Paul has a pilot's license, but is not too certain how the company would feel about him flying to near-by towns to do daily business.

He does his own bookkeeping and drives to Paul each day for banking purposes. In fact he travels an average of 75 miles per day.

Mr. Nelson's station is a "wild" animal preserve. The animals are kept in a fenced-in area and are not to be harmed. Mr. Nelson says he has a lot of money in the animals.

Morgan-Lindsay selected this location for the business because it is the closest to the country and would be closer to farming and ranching areas. The company has been having to drive 20 to more miles to get to the products. It would pay for it could better serve the farmers by establishing a station there among them.

The business is located on the railroad and it can ship out either by rail or truck. It receives the products in flats and the men can unload a truck about five minutes.

There is no difference in terminals as soon as it is brought in. Grain storage facilities at the plant are limited. Grain is stored in boxes or tankers and is shipped out every day. They have a retaining dam which they can raise when they are not dumping into a car or truck.

The company has three men year around but during harvest season, it employs around 15 men. During the pea season, it hires about some 100 men to operate as "pea pickers" from a picking table.

Pea starts come in in June and they receive them bulk and then sack and keep lot identity on them.

As the peas come in they are put in paper bags and stacked for about 60 days. After this time—the seed begins to grow down from the pile, mill and process them. Sometimes they hand pick them, treat them in a ready form for planting and put them back in 50-pound paper bags and stack them again until the farmer says it is time to sell.

They finish with the peas in November. A combine is used to harvest about 15,000 bags. The peas are shipped out in about 150 trucks.

Niagara Falls Magnet For Newlyweds

By Marvin R. Pike

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (AP) — A magnificent park built on the bank of the falls has become a magnet to bride and groom.

More than three years after the first issue was printed, the first issue was printed in 1937, by Lloyd J. Hollinger, at the home of his parents, over W. R. Wright, president of the Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce, present on Oct. 15, 1937, at the home of the newlyweds, the Oakes Garden Park, an amphitheater surrounded by gardens.

The Oakes Garden Theatre opened formally Sept. 18, 1937. Since then, thousands of wedding brides and bridegrooms and their attendants have watched the film camera in the amphitheater. In the gardens, on stone bridges spanning creeks, and on rising stone stairs.

Harry Oakes, a member of the Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce, made the Oakes Garden Theatre possible by purchasing the Clifton House property, the site of the adjoining Hotel Lafayette and the main construction of the Niagara River. He presented the property to the commission.

The landscaping was designed to take advantage of the varying levels on the side of Clifton Hill. The architectural design of the amphitheater was in keeping with the theatres of ancient Greece, although with many modern departures in design.

The amphitheater itself is fan-shaped, with the stage placed on a raised platform. It has a semi-circular auditorium with connecting two open pavilions, one oriented on the axis of the Horseshoe Falls, the other on that of the American Falls.

The amphitheater is a beautiful place. It has a large lawn, a garden, a pond, and a walkway. The stage is made of stone and is a beautiful work of art. The amphitheater is a beautiful place. Reminder Has Grown To Two Editions Each Week

BURLEY — From a one-man operation, "The Reminder" has grown with Burley and Cassia counties to its present 25 employees. The paper is published twice a week, Thursday and Sunday. The first issue was printed in 1937, by Lloyd J. Hollinger, at the home of his parents, over W. R. Wright, president of the Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce, present on Oct. 15, 1937, at the home of the newlyweds, the Oakes Garden Park, an amphitheater surrounded by gardens.

Once again the business outgrowth of Hollinger's hobby is now a business in its present location, room 7009 on the Tuesday and Thursday issues. Burley, Idaho, has a population of 21,000. Importance Of Rail Route Is Stressed POCATELLO (AP) — Students and family friends for continued service on Union Pacific train between Idaho and Nevada. The Interstate Commerce Commission opened a public hearing on the railroad's petition to discontinue service through Idaho.

Mrs. Bruce Sutton, Pocatello, said the train is a lifeline for her family and a son. Her son is a student at the State School of Dental Hygiene in Pocatello. Mrs. Sutton said present train schedules permit the son to come home on Friday evenings and return to Gooding on Sunday.

Discontinuance of the train line would affect many of the 125 students attending the school, said Dr. Edward Ray, superintendent.

Many of the parents have signed a petition protesting the proposed discontinuance. The petition was entered in the hearing record.

The Bannock County Commission is opposed to discontinuing the train. It is in support of the train.

There is need for occasional travel by public officials," he said. "We hope public transportation facilities can be improved. Some people prefer to travel by planes and buses."

Only Thing Not New Is Man Behind Wheel At Garretts

BURLEY—The man behind the wheel of the only thing that is the same as when the company was founded 54 years ago. The late Clarence A. Garrett and the late O. W. Garrett founded the firm July 8, 1914, as established routes to Twin Falls Brothers Transfer, The Garrett brothers later changed the name to Garrett Transfer and Storage Co. Inc. and then to the present Garrett Freightlines, Inc. In the early 1910's the business consisted of miscellaneous hauling jobs and transferring baggage so and from the Pocatello railroad depot in the Garrett's hometown. It was not until the firm had established for two or three years that inter-city hauls were made. By 1918 trips were being made within a radius of 25 to 30 miles. Pocatello had increased to 16 cause gasoline-powered units. Two years later regular heat encountered on long desert hauls. The company, after investigating the possibility of using a diesel motor for truck power, purchased a Cummins diesel engine and after considerable alteration, mounted it on a Mack truck chassis. This installation is said to be one of the first uses of diesel engines on a motor truck. The installation was successful and the motor operated at a much lower temperature than a gasoline one and offered sustained power that could not be derived from gasoline engines of that day. Garrett continued to grow without further truck expansion until 1931 when the Chaney truckline was acquired, extending operations from Twin Falls, Burley to Ketchum and Portland, Ore. This extension created the first single-line motor carrier service from Salt Lake City to Portland. In 1934 Cotant Truck Lines was purchased extending operations from Twin Falls to San Francisco, Garrett then became the only transportation company in the West to offer single-line service from the Intermountain territory to Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. In 1945 Howard C. Marsden who had been with the firm for five years was moved to Burley as manager. In the late 1940's the company outgrew its warehouse and office space. The firm moved to its present site West 13th Street, Burley, next to the railroad. The late Mr. Marsden retired in July, 1955, and made his home in Burley. In 1945 Garrett acquired through purchase, the Moab Transportation Co., gaining flight from Salt Lake City to Denver and Farmington, N.M., and linking Pacific Coast points through the Denver gateway to all of the important cities of the East. Garrett Freightlines was granted authority in October, 1939, to extend its operation from the San Francisco-Oakland area south to San Jose to serve industrial areas. A new terminal site was purchased along one of the major freeways in Emeryville, Calif. A new terminal was completed in February 1959, replacing the old terminal at Berkeley. The Treasure State Motor Line was purchased in 1953, extending service from Butte to Great Falls, Mont., and in the summer of 1959 a modern terminal was built at Great Falls. Early in 1959 negotiations were instituted for purchase of Inland Motor Freight and their subsidiary companies and for merger of Northwest Freight Lines. This was accomplished in June, 1962. Garrett's authority was then extended into Washington, northern panhandle of Idaho, Montana and as far as North Dakota and Minnesota, including Minneapolis and St. Paul. A television show entitled "Cannonball" was another first for Garrett. This was the first time any truck line had undertaken sponsorship of a television show. The show was shown throughout Idaho, Utah, and Montana on seven television stations. The commercials were aimed at telling the story of trucking facts to the general public. Mr. C. A. Garrett was awarded the "Joe J. Jolly Trophy" for outstanding contribution to the trucking public relation largely because of the television sponsorship, during the 1959 annual meeting of the Montana Motor Transport Association. In 1962, the company made a movie film titled "Cargoes Unlimited" telling the trucking story. The film is still being shown throughout the country by schools, civic and other organizations. To 1959 Mr. Garrett, president of the company, was successful in locating and purchasing an exact replica of the first truck owned by Garrett Freightlines, a 1913 Reo Democrat Wagon, which is exhibited in parades throughout the country by bringing before the public the difference between early truck transportation and modern methods. Safety has always been one of the chief aims of Garrett Freightlines. In 1950-51 it placed first in the American Trucking Association Annual Safety Competition in over 10 million mile group. It placed second in the combined over the road and city and local drivers for that year. In October 1961, Garrett's employees were awarded the "Golden Driver" award for safety. The award was presented by Great Falls, Mont., to the Canadian border.

Culture Prevails As Local Festival Begins

BEAUTIFUL MUSIC — but loud, is the product of a saxophone played here by Joan Patterson, Music Instructor, Denis Foote, right, and the College of Southern Idaho-based jazz band presented in concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the YM-YWCA. The presentation is one of the many cultural activities planned by CSI departments this week.

FINISHING TOUCHES are applied to one of the paintings to be displayed this week at the YM-YWCA. CSI student Malzino Aldous completes her creation as instructor LaVar Steel advises. The art show is one facet of the first annual Festival of the Arts which begins today with an open house from 1 to 4 p.m. at the YM-YWCA.

LET THERE BE MUSIC, art and drama — during the first annual Festival of the Arts. The College of Southern Idaho Concert Choir, including members Evelyn Boyer, left, and Hene Campbell, will be presented at 3 p.m. April 14 at the Twin Falls High School cafeteria. Admission is free.

Week-Long Festival Of Arts Is Scheduled In Twin Falls

By RUTH KOONCE MILLER
Times-News Staff Writer

Magic Valley has long been a region crying for culture — organized cultural projects to satisfy the appetites of the many talented and cultured individuals who reside in this area.

Civic Symphony, Community Concert, Dilettante, Antique Festival-Theatre, Children's Theatre and various art shows have contributed, but only enough to whet the public's appetite for more.

Now the College of Southern Idaho is doing its bit by combining the three major arts in a week-long Festival of the Arts. The festival will include an evening of one-act plays by the CSI Cirque Theatre band and choir concerts and student art showings.

The art show, in its second year, the drama productions in their third year, and the musical offerings in their first year, have been scheduled during the same week in the first annual Festival of the Arts.

The festival begins today, with an open house from 1 to 4 p.m. at the YM-YWCA, where the art show is set up. It concludes next Sunday with a choir concert at 3 p.m. at the Twin Falls High School Cafeteria.

Other events scheduled include the Cirque Theatre's Three on the Aisle presentations at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday at the YM-YWCA, and daily art showings from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m.

Heading the festival are Mrs. Marion (Fran) Tanner, drama instructor; LaVar Steel, art instructor; and Denis Foote, music instructor. The three CSI faculty members have combined the talents of their students in the fine arts festival.

The college, the instructors and students are to be commended for this contribution to Magic Valley culture, but it can also be concluded that it is (Continued to Page B-2)

POTTERY MAKING, an art in itself, is one of the classes taught at the College of Southern Idaho. Products of this class and others, will be displayed this week during the first annual Festival of the Arts. Robert Grubbs, CSI student, is shown here completing a pottery project for the art show, which is set up at the YM-YWCA building.

Arena Style

... where the audience sits close proximity to stage action is a unique feature of the CSI Cirque Theatre group which will be presenting two nights of one-act plays this week during the first annual Festival of the Arts. The plays, set for 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the YM-YWCA, include, at left, "Aria de Capo" with Rhonda Miracle and Jim Hepworth. Other plays included in the Three on the Aisle presentation are "The Ugly Duckling," center top and at right, Lillie Brown and John Elliott portray the king and queen in the center picture, and Jan Boyer and Jim Brennan are cast as the prince and princess, at right. At center bottom is a scene from "If Men Played Cards as Women Do." Shown from left are Michael Thompson, Cliff Hinkle, Mike Winterholler and Steven Kitten. The two evenings of plays will be coupled with a week-long art show, band and choir concerts to make up the Festival of the Arts. The festival will give the Magic Valley public an opportunity to view the cultural accomplishments of CSI students. Approximately 35 Magic Valley students will be actively participating in the rehearsal and scenes of the plays, and the art show will use a modified arena called "horseshoe" staging, with the audience sitting on three sides of the acting area. Mrs. Marion (Fran) Tanner is the drama instructor.

CSI Festival Gets Under Way With Art Show

the college's responsibility. Colleges naturally become the centers of the area surrounding them, and rightly so. Education breeds awareness, awareness breeds culture, and since education is what started the whole thing, the public naturally assumes that colleges should do their bit to contribute culturally.

This is an aspect of CSI which the board of directors of the Civic Auditorium Association realized when they turned the association's funds over to the college.

Since the college will be the valley's cultural center and many public artistic endeavors will naturally gravitate there, it makes good sense that the public and the college should share in this endeavor.

The first annual Festival of Fine Arts is only a stepping stone for things to come. With the completion of the fine art center this fall, the yearly event will become more closely knit, and organized. Each of the festival's aspects, art, drama and music, can be presented in the new auditorium adding to the "funness" and continuity of the week.

Children Are Often Victims Of Accidental Poisoning

SHOSHONE — Children are the most frequent victims of accidental poisoning, reports a report by Mary Lou Ruby, county home demonstration agent here.

Youngsters are curious about things that glitter, pretty colored pills, bottles and containers of all kinds. Children want to investigate. Results are often tragic.

Ninety per cent of the approximately 500,000 instances of poisoning in the United States in a recent year revealed children under five years of age.

Howard Tankerley, safety specialist of the University of Idaho Extension Service, says it is wise to keep medicines and household cleaning products in places where children will not find them.

Locked cabinets or high shelves are recommended. And be sure, for the safety of children and adults alike, to keep such articles away from food. Death could be the result of mistaken identity.

Never call medicine candy, specialists advise. Children should not be deceived by being given medicine under the guise of a treat. When left alone they may find the bottle and eat or drink its contents. Aspirin is the most common cause of accidental poisoning. Keep it out of sight and out of reach, even if it has a safety cap. Never place kerosene, antifreeze, paints or solvents in cups, glasses or soft-drink bottles. Toddlers will drink almost anything. Destroy old products. Pour the contents down the drain and rinse container before discarding it.

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: What is a girl not ready for a rest home yet, being only 41 years old. I have two attractive, well-behaved children, a nice home, no debts, and a good steady income. No worries, except where to find a decent man who wants a decent woman.

I've been a widow for two years and have been told that I am "desirable." I started looking for a man, but every man I go out with ends the same line. ("What's one more slice off a loaf of bread that's already been cut?"—my words to that effect.) If that doesn't work, I'm told that it's emotionally unhealthy for me. I have been accused of a normal sex life to go without sex. Then they try to save my mental health by volunteering to provide me with a normal sex life. (Now it's therapy.)

There are men who want companionship, but they tell you on the first date that they don't want you to get "serious" and they don't want to get that involved. Have men always been like this, Abby? Or is this new breed?
POPULAR WIDOW

DEAR POPULAR: No, it's not a new breed. Such men have always been around, but your luck is unusually bad to have encountered them all the first year. There are plenty of decent men in the world, you need new friends.

DEAR ABBY: I am 26 years old and wear dentures. My problems in having people (strangers) come up to me and say, "My, my, you have beautiful teeth. Are they your own?"
 Abby, I consider this a very personal question for a stranger to ask, so I say, "Yes, they are." (Then I say to myself, "Well, after all I DID pay for them, so they ARE my own.") Then I feel awfully guilty because I lied.

Isn't there some way I can answer these people without telling them the truth, and still keep from lying?
EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Yes. When someone comments on your "beautiful teeth" say "Thank you," and ignore any subsequent questions regarding same. Then change the subject—be it the weather—and be as unresponsive as you can. Intensive as to repeat the question, say, "If you'll forgive me for did, answering, I'll forgive you for asking."

DEAR ABBY: I was married nearly two months ago, and had asked some of my cousins to be my bridesmaids. One cousin (I'll call her Myrtle) lives out of town, so when she accepted, I wrote telling her when she should be in town for the rehearsal. She wrote back saying she didn't have to come to any rehearsal because she had been a bridesmaid before, and she knew what to do, but she said she'd be there for the wedding. Then I wrote back telling her what kind of dress to wear and so forth.

Well, the wedding was scheduled for 1 p.m. That time came, and no Myrtle. We waited for her for five minutes, and since there was no word from her, we were advised to go on with the ceremony, which is what we did.

Just after the ceremony began, in comes Myrtle. She wasn't dressed or anything, she couldn't stop everything, she wait for her to get dressed, so we just proceeded without her. She didn't stay for the wedding, and left no message. Her whole family got mad at me.

Folk Music Program Given For 20th Century Members

Mrs. Frank Payne, folk music archivist for the National Federation of Music Clubs, assisted by Mrs. Charles Ginnerson, president of the Caldwell Music Club, presented a program on folk music at the 20th Century Club luncheon meeting at the Holiday Inn.

Mrs. Payne stated that folk music is closely related to the fantasy and the life of the unconscious, and in folk songs, the dreams and repressive desires both good and evil. "By tracing the origin and development of folk songs, it presents a people's history of the United States, and it presents tales and biographies in song," she said. "It is a sizeable in any way, reason for collecting folk music to preserve that part of our national heritage in song. The National Federation of Music Club places these collections in the Library of Congress where it is available in any way you use it."

One section of music played by Mrs. Payne was a recording of Indian songs and dances that were performed for her by the Banook-Indians at Fort Hall.

Mrs. John Birrell was program chairman and introduced Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Ginnerson. Mrs. Earl Johnson, president, welcomed members and guests and the invocation was given by Mrs. P. B. Wilson. Mrs. Lawrence Hill and Mrs. Aldrick Kancany were in charge of table decorations.

The president's project was announced by Mrs. Johnson. It is the installation of a flag pole with Twentieth Century Plaque attached, for the College of Southern Idaho. Sen. Len B. Jordan has advised that a flag which has flown over the White House is on its way to be flown atop the pole.

Fewer Girls Are Entering Religious Orders Today

By BETTY PENSON
Statesman Women's Editor
BOISE (AP)—Is the American nun's young image frightening off the young girls? A national Catholic education study indicates that fewer girls in Idaho enter the order today than in the past.

"No community has as many sisters as it needs, or as it used to," said Sister M. Felicitas of New York, education consultant for the Catholic Order of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, which operates four schools in Idaho.

"Fewer young girls are entering religious orders," she said, "and there isn't anything we can do about it."

"She believes the many changes in all facets of the nuns' lives are giving young girls 'a little attitude of insecurity,'" she said. "I think they want to wait and see what we are going to do," she said.

"In the meantime, some schools are closing because of lack of personnel," she said, and some new buildings "will never be used because of lack of personnel."

"We can put up a building today easier than we can staff it," she said. "Money is available. Teachers are not. This is our tragedy."

Sister Felicitas spent several days in Twin Falls at St. Edward's Elementary School before she left for Coeur d'Alene for a week's stay at the two elementary schools, St. Thomas and Plus X and at the Academy of the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

Her mission is to discuss with the sisters decentralization of the order's government.

"This also is happening in all the dioceses in the world," she said. "Everybody is sharing in decision making, in breaking into a very democratic form of government. We want all possible decisions to be formed at a lower level of authority rather than at a higher level."

"There will be a great deal of choice in what work each member will go into in the future and eventually this will change the structure of the schools."

A most apparent change to the public—a modernized uniform which all sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary adopted two years ago—she called "accidental and unimportant" compared with the other changes.

"It was not logical to retain the old form," she said, smoothing the jacket of her royal blue suit. "It was more costly—all that linen which required so much care—that big bonnet. It used to take seven yards of serge to make one of those old habits. You can buy a suit today much cheaper than you could make up one of those habits."

Buhl Petition Is Circulated

BUHL—Members of the Omega Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi are circulating petitions to be signed by the members of the Buhl school trustees, requesting that further consideration be given to the building of a new school building in the year-round kindergarten.

Because of necessary economies to be made in the 1968-69 school year, the trustees do not feel they can afford to continue the year-around kindergarten. For the past two years, under federal aid, there have been four classes, with each of two teachers having a morning and an afternoon class.

Members of the organization estimated that for a monthly tuition of $6 for the parents of each kindergarten pupil the same program may be continued as has existed the last two years. The school trustees do not plan to revert back to the spring and fall six-week sessions which is below the level of the year-around program.

Mothers Have Much To Do With Chronic Invalidism

By JOY MILLER
Some mothers are babying their asthmatic children. Lives of chronic invalidism. Dr. Irving H. Itkin, who makes that charge, says: "By not permitting him to join in the usual activities of his age group except during the episodes of illness, a mother may limit her child's ability to adapt later to normal living." Dr. Itkin is chief of asthma-military service at National Jewish Hospital at Denver, a free, non-sectarian chronic chest disease hospital that accepts only hard-to-treat cases. At this hospital child patients play football, basketball and softball, plus calisthenics for an hour a day. Asthma in children is a chronic condition which fluctuates in its severity, explains Dr. Itkin. "A mother should start early having a child live a normal life between episodes. If she doesn't encourage the child to exercise, the efficiency of the utilization of oxygen will be at a disadvantage," he says. Asthma, which afflicts about five million people in the United States, is a disease that "may attack without warning and feels like a giant hand squeezing the throat and chest, causing gasps and wheezes and fear of choking. It may occur occasionally or it may become continuous. The suffering is severe. The National Jewish Hospital undertook a study comparing the progress of patients who exercise with those who did not. Exercise, the study showed, was beneficial. Anyone can get asthma—at any age: a week-old baby or an 80-year-old man who has never been allergic his whole life. "A patient does get well by himself fairly frequently," says Dr. Itkin. "More get over it by themselves than are fully cured by doctors' treatment. You go to an old folks' home and half the time there will say they had it. Hearty Meal For Busy Cooks

The French call them Pot au Feu; the Germans, Goulash and in the USA they take the name of the knife and fork required to eat them. "Sunday evenings or mid-week, make a meal of these hearty soups of vegetables and meat, poultry, or fish.

They're a boon for the busy cook because they simmer quickly on the stove needing only an occasional stir. Short ribs for this soup simmer one and one-half hours. Sweet parsnips, cabbage, onion and carrots are added and simmered until tender. Then dumplings made with Cream of Wheat cereal, flecked with parsley and delicately flavored with nutmeg and simmered in the flavorful broth until golden.

These soups are best served piping hot to ladle from a pre-heated tureen, copper pot or heavy kettle into warm bowls large enough for maneuvering with a knife, fork, and big spoon.

Accompany with crisp crackers, crusty bread slices or slices of Italian or French style bread.

SHORT RIB SOUP WITH DUMPLINGS

- 2 quarts water
- 4 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 bay leaves
- 2 pounds short ribs
- 3 medium carrots, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
- 2 medium parsnips, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
- 3 medium onions, quartered
- 1 small cabbage, cut into sixths
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 cup water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup Quick Cream of Wheat cereal
- 1/4 cup snipped parsley
- 2 eggs, beaten
- Dash nutmeg

In large kettle place first five ingredients. Bring to boil, simmer, covered, and one-half hour. Add next four ingredients; simmer, covered, one-half hour or until meat and vegetables are tender. Cut meat into bite-size pieces; place with vegetables in large soup tureen.

In saucepan bring milk, water and salt to boil; slowly sprinkle in cereal and cook according to package directions. Remove from heat, stir in remaining ingredients and beat until smooth. Heat broth in kettle, drop cereal mixture by tablespoons into broth.

Simmer about 10 minutes, until done. Spoon dumplings over meat and vegetables; pour on broth. Makes six servings, two cups soup and three to four dumplings each.

THESE PETITE SOUPELES are easily made with mashed Louisiana yams blended with ground ham, velvety smooth evaporated milk, green pepper, onion and egg yolks. A delightful taper for the souffles is a Honey-Lime Sauce, with golden honey sweetening the tart and tangy lime.

Furniture Talk Let's Get Acquainted

A WELL-DECORATED ROOM gives the impression of being a personal creation. It is personal because it reflects you, your family, your taste, your way of life. It is also a creation, and that means it has some of unity and order imposed upon it.

The tried and true best way to gain that unity is with color—and one with some willing guide to your color scheme that gives it a sense of harmony.

Paintings have long been used to impose this color unity. In our shops, every fabric, drapery, carpeting, and accessory are a table. Multi-colored carpeting, or one of the new and striking new rugs, can be used in the same way. When you shop for them, you can shop for a complete color scheme that is pleasing to your eye.

Whether your room has this miniature color capsule as a guide or not, it should have color unity—colors carefully chosen because they are complementary, or in effective contrast.

The artist's palette would be hard put to rival the colorful fabrics available in our fine lines of upholstered furniture. You'll find a stunning display in our store, or you can select the fabric of your choice to be used on a sofa style you like. Come in—bring your color samples—and let us help you work out the home theater. You'll enjoy living in!

Local Music Club's Annual Formal Ball Benefits Scholarship Fund

By NORMA HERZINGER

Hats are off to the Twin Falls Music Club, an affiliate of the National Federation of Music Clubs, for a most successful scholarship ball, one of the most outstanding formal functions of the year.

The women looked beautiful in their long flowing gowns, (to say nothing of how striking the men were in their formal dinner jackets) and a rainbow of gorgeous colors could be seen as one glanced around the room. And what could be a more perfect locale for the ball than the Blue Lakes Country Club, which itself lends an atmospheric setting for any formal occasion.

Guests were greeted as they drove up to the club by four young men, Ralph Penton, Kent J. Trell, John McCluskey and Tim Colner, all sons of local Music Club members, who parked their cars—a courtesy much appreciated by the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nelson, general chairman of the social, welcomed guests as they entered the dining room, assisted by the hostesses—Margaret, Laura Vincent, Janis Neilson and Connie Babbel.

Mary Mead, president of the Twin Falls Music Club, along with her husband, David, were on hand to give a special welcome to guests.

As the cocktail hour blended into the dinner hour, delightful background music was played by Del Slaughter's Twin Falls High School Symphonette, several members of which are award winners in the field of music. Featured on the intermission program were several Music Club Scholarship winners from Magic Valley, including a junior high school soprano soloist, Joyce Guyer, accompanied by Mary Kinney, Bob Jackson, Ruth Wiley, a trumpet soloist, played, accompanied by Mrs. Tom Wildman.

Dancing the beautiful ballet, "Serenade for Strings," by Eschtaunsky—were Peggy Kerner, Vicki Reynolds, Leola Yultz, Tammy Roerich, C. A. H. Young and Ellen Killen, all award winners in Twin Falls Music Camp. All have studied classical ballet techniques under the direction of Beverly Hackney.

Guests danced to the delightful music of Hap Miller's Orchestra, a well-known group from Sun Valley.

This is the second annual Scholarship Ball sponsored by the Twin Falls Music Club, which is dedicated to promoting young musicians of Magic Valley by focusing much of its attention to "means" for their musical education.

RATED AS "MOST OUTSTANDING" was the recent formal Scholarship Ball hosted by the Twin Falls Music Club, an affiliate of the National Federation of Music Clubs, at the Blue Lakes Country Club. This is the second annual ball sponsored by the local club, which is dedicated to promoting young musicians of Magic Valley by focusing much of its attention to providing scholarships to further their musical education. Guests attended from throughout Magic Valley, along with several from the Boise area. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nelson were general chairman of the ball, which included a cocktail hour, dinner and dancing. Music for dancing was provided by the Hap Miller Orchestra and Del Slaughter's Twin Falls High School Symphonettes provided background music for the dinner hour. Music Club scholarship winners presented a program.

It is introducing the various program numbers throughout the evening. Mrs. Donald Yultz, Music Club Scholarship chairman, stated, "We believe that scholarships stimulate intensive study by providing an immediate objective toward which young musicians can work. This is accomplished by conducting auditions which bring to our attention many talented musicians."

Twelve years ago the Twin Falls Music Club conducted its first Junior Music Festival with 11 students participating compared to the 330 students who made application this year. The first scholarship presented by the club was 10 years ago amounting to $75. Since that time the program has grown until this year the group will be awarding well over $1,000 in scholarships, an accomplishment deserving much praise.

To further promote culture in Magic Valley the club will present to the Music Department of the College of Southern Idaho its Goldie Duvall Memorial Fund in the amount of $100.

Committee members in charge of the ball include Mrs. Gordon Edgar, Mrs. David McCluskey and Mrs. Roy Babbel, invitations and reservations; Mrs. George Colner, decorations, and Mrs. Yultz, Mrs. Henry Colner, Mrs. James Kinney, Mrs. J. Hill and Mrs. Joe Hackney, program.

HANDWRITING ANALYSIS—

How It Works, What It Reveals

ACADEMY AWARD NOMINEE

Rod Steiger— Hollywood's Loner Becomes the Fans' Delight

Ask Them Yourself

FOR MRS. HUBERT HUMPHREY

How do you and your husband like living in an apartment?—T. T. Chyenne, Wyo.

● The Vice President and I enjoy it very much, especially the convenient location. We are only a five-minute drive from the Capitol and the White House. Now that our children are grown-up and our schedules are increasingly busy, it is a good solution to our various needs.

FOR DICK WILLIAMS,

manager, Boston Red Sox
Do you think the Red Sox can repeat last year's performance this season?—D. K., Manchester, N. H.

● All I can promise for 1968 is that the Red Sox again will win more games than they will lose and that they will be strong contenders in a six-team race.

FOR BRIAN KEITH of "Family Aff"

Why is your show, which is so good for children, put on at such a late hour?—Joan Martin, Roebling, N. J.

● The time slot is entirely up to the network, and apparently it is a good choice, judging by the show's ratings. I agree, it is on late; I don't allow my own children to stay up to watch it!

FOR ARNOLD PALMER

What specific training methods have helped you play better golf?—Bart D. Schierman, Pocatello, Idaho

● A tournament golfer has just about a 12-month season every year. This means he is either competing or practicing almost all the time. It is this physical training alone that has enabled me to improve my game through the years.

FOR BUD COLLIER—

During voting by 100 in your audience of "To Tell the Truth," the percentages often add up to less than 100. Why?—Yal Malagess, Rochester, N. Y.

● Because not everyone in the selected group votes in time. The buttons have to be pressed exactly on signal. Often people are still trying to make up their minds.

FOR DR. NORMAN VINCENT

PEALE
Has religion been a success or failure in this generation?—B. Z., Concord, N. C.

● It has been neither a success nor a failure. But then religion always has been both, and I suppose it always will be. I do believe, however, that religion—a vital religion, the kind that changes people's lives—is having a new resurgence.

FOR LEON SHIMKIN,

president, Simon & Schuster
Will publishers read manuscripts sent directly to them by unknown authors, or are agents necessary?—E. B., Bluff, Miss.

● Any manuscript received by a book publisher receives attention, whether it is submitted by an individual or by his agent. Many individuals prefer to have an agent in the locale of the publisher because they believe it produces a better effect. This is in no way influences the publisher's judgment, though.

FOR GLENN DOMAN,

Director, The Institutes for the Achievement of Human Potential

At what age should slow-learning children be brought in for therapy?—Mrs. G. Hans, North Canton, Ohio

● I believe that a child who has problems of any sort relating to learning should be seen by a competent authority as quickly as the problem is detected. Some children have minor problems which resolve themselves spontaneously, while others have learning problems that only grow worse. Precious time can be lost by a "let's wait and see" attitude.

FOR JACQUELINE SUSANN

Will your next book be a sequel to "Valley of the Dolls"?—Ann Trexler, Salisbury, N. C.

● No, my next book will be called "The Love Machine," and although it will deal with a show-business background, it will deal with a new set of characters. I am being tempted by 20th Century-Fox to write a movie sequel to "Dolls" since so many people are curious as to what happened to Anne and Neeley.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Across the Generation Gap Connie Francis made it big by taking an oddie, "Who's Sorry Now?" and giving it the pop treatment. Now The Happenings, four boys from Connie's own state of New Jersey, are doing likewise. They're turning the "now" generation on to such yesterday favorites as "Mama" and "I Got Rhythm." They started "rockin'" the old favorites when they were touring the Catskill Mountain resorts. Today they can only stare blankly when their younger fans ask which of them wrote the ancient tunes.

Paper Caper There are all sorts of things you can do with a newspaper other than you've read it, from wrapping fragile crystal to lining bureau drawers. The Daily Review in Hayward, Calif., came up with a new one: wear it. When they ran a contest for the best newspaper dress, contestants turned up in comic-strip minis and headlined tint dresses. First prize went to Bonnie Burkenbine, who spent 36 hours stitching together 125 front pages of the Oct. 1, 1967, issue of Family Weekly.

A Child's Fears "Fears among perfectly normal children may be far more common than most of us realize," writes Marilyn Bonham in a new book, "The Laughter and Tears of Children." In a recent survey of 482 children in Buffalo, N.Y., exactly one-half admitted to suffering from "honest-to-goodness" fears. Foremost on their list were fears of using other people's glasses, dishes, silver, and towels. Other terrors included snakes, death and accidents, thunder and lightning, cuts and bruises, school marks, blood, bugs, and darkness.

Safety Second Although more and more cars have seat belts—about two-thirds of all U.S. autos—fewer and fewer drivers actually use them. In 1966, 56 percent of the drivers who had seat belts in their cars used them on long trips. In 1967, according to the Auto Industries Highway Safety Committee, it dropped to 51 percent.

Tijuana Secret Herb Alpert credits his wife Sharon for much of the success of his Tijuana Brass. She got him to stop worrying about every little note and to concentrate instead on the overall "feel." "A lot of good musicians are too clinical," he explains. "Like—the groups who copy us. They copy note by note and lose the human element. I think that's why we communicate. We're not perfect, but we are human."

HOME MEDICAL CARE: Answer to

In six years, the plan has saved Rochester, N.Y., patients $1 million in hospital bills,

By MARION B. FOLSOM, Chairman, National Committee on Community Health Services; former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare

One of the nation's foremost health authorities, Boyd Folsom is now a director of the Eastman Kodak Company in Rochester, N.Y. A graduate of the University of Georgia and Harvard, he was chosen by President Eisenhower for the post of Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in 1953. Active in many business and professional organizations, Mr. Folsom devotes his free time to a number of Rochester's pioneer health-service plans.

WHEN MRS. James R. Tobin, an attractive housewife in Rochester, N.Y., was afflicted with scoliosis (curvature of the spine), she expected to spend weeks in a hospital.

After surgery involving a bone transplant, she was placed in a full body cast, from her knees to the back of her head, to straighten her spine. But the appalling prospect of six months of immobility did not concern Nancy Tobin so much as how her two boys and her husband would manage at home.

"Stop worrying," said her doctor. "I'm letting you out of the hospital. Under our Home Care program, you and they will be in good hands."

At home, Mrs. Tobin was provided with a hospital bed, overhead frame, overbed table, and medical supplies. Still under her doctor's supervision, a Public Health nurse came in when necessary. Since Mr. Tobin was away at work all day, a visiting health aide was assigned to the case from morning to late afternoon. When the boys, Chris and Jamie, returned from school, they always dashed up to see Mom before picking up with the household chores.

"It's just wonderful," says Nancy Tobin. "I find it hard to believe my family is together. It has given me great peace of mind."

Thousands of other patients like Nancy Tobin, who otherwise would be confined to hospitals, are now finding this kind of home service a great boon. Since the program encompasses Rochester and surrounding Monroe County, it has been called a "675-mile hospital" as nurses, doctors, therapists, and other medical specialists travel from one "room" to another.

But this is by no means a regional project; rather, it can be considered a national experiment. Medical experts have centered their attention on Rochester, where the Home Medical Care Association plan has been refined to a great extent. They view the plan as an effective answer to the threat of skyrocketing medical and hospital costs.

As reports of the Rochester program spread, similar plans were put into effect in Syracuse, N.Y., Indianapolis, Ind., and some 70 other communities across the country.

The concept is revolutionary in that the whole community cooperates—calling on skills of psychotherapists, social workers, homemakers, and local agencies.

It is estimated that as many as 6 percent of today's hospital patients could benefit from organized home medical care at some point in their illness, and medical costs would be one-fourth of a hospital stay.

The need for effective home care has been mounting in the light of the increase in cases of chronic diseases such as cancer, stroke, and heart disease, which demand long rehabilitation periods and medical treatment. In many cases, a lengthy hospital stay is unnecessary, and financial burdens are curbed.

One 53-year-old widow, for example, was suffering from bone cancer. At home with her three children, she was provided a tilt table to help in recalcification of bones. Also provided were drugs, a hospital bed, wheel chair, and walkerette. Special blood tests were taken by a technician and delivered to a hematologist. An ambulance carried her to the hospital for checkups.

A social worker helped her with personal problems, including family finances. After eight months on Home Care, the widow can walk with a cane. "I feel independent now," she says. It's such a triumph, now common around Rochester, which have attracted the attention of medical circles to home medical care.

Originally, the plan stemmed from a two-year study of chronic illness and health services in 1969. With a local foundation grant and $6,500 seed money from the Community Chest, the cooperative, nonprofit Home Care Association was created. From the start in 1961, Rochester's Blue Cross agreed to cover home-care benefits for subscribers.

This is how the set-up works. A doctor first refers his patient from a hospital, nursing home, or the patient's own home to HCA. To decide if the case is suitable, it is evaluated by a Public Health nurse and, if necessary, by a medical social worker.

The nurse reviews the patient's hospital record and requirements for services, investigates to see if the home is fit to receive the patient, and determines whether friends and relatives can help. The social worker interviews the family to help them accept and to follow HCA medical recommendations.

On the basis of their findings, HCA decides whether the case is appropriate for Home Care. Once a patient is accepted, he is discharged from Home Care when he's well enough to look after himself or get by with aid from one agency. Thus, overdependence on Home Care is not encouraged.

Any one of the 600,000 people in the Rochester area—no matter how poor or well-off—can come into the program, provided a number of services are essential. Patients have ranged in age from three months to 94 years. While a majority of cases are orthopedic (fractures and the like), cardiovascular (heart, stroke, etc.), and cancer, they also have included people with pneumonia, arthritis, liver disease, and such.

Terminal cancer cases sometimes skip a hospital stay entirely; the patient stays at home with a living family. As the relatives of one such patient, Mrs. Joan Anderson, wrote to HCA after her death, "You made the last days of her life more livable."

When a referred patient is rejected for Home Care (about one out of five), it may be that there's no one else at home evenings and weekends or the layout of the house is not suitable. Many are turned over to an agency for a single service, such as "meals-on-wheels."

Of those accepted last year, HCA handled a total of 1,248. Among them was a three-year-old boy sick with leukemia. He meant everything to his mother who was "frantic at the thought of losing him. A divorcee, she had to work during the day as a secretary. With the boy on Home Care, aided by a homemaker and visiting nurse, she could be with him evenings and weekends. A social worker gave her the psychological support she badly needed. When the end came, his mother at least had the comfort of having done her best.

Under Home Care, about 25 services are available, varying according to the patient's infirmity. Most patients get them from five or more different agencies, all coordinated through HCA (which directly provides only social workers). If there's been a leg amputation, for instance, the patient has a physiotherapist in to teach him how to walk with a pylon. In other cases, help may come from a speech therapist or nutritional consultant. The bedridden may need intravenous fluids, oxygen therapy, electrocardiograms, or medical supplies.

Recently, when a 24-year-old mother suffered multiple fractures in an auto accident and was later placed on Home Care, she received the following: a hi-lo hospital bed and sides, overbed frame and trapeze, overbed table, drugs, a physiotherapist, visiting nurse, and a homemaker to care for her baby. Three times, an ambulance brought her back to the hosbut perhaps its greatest benefit is that it provides them with peace of mind

There are many advantages to Home Care—low cost, excellent medical treatment—but mainly the care of a loving family.

pital for revision of her cast. Three months on Home Care cost her nothing, her only medical bills being her doctor's fees.

Since its inception five years ago, Rochester's Home Care program has saved patients well over $1 million in hospital bills. How? The average cost in a local hospital is $55 a day and can go up to $85 or more. On Home Care, the average now is only $11.90 a day!

Here's the breakdown of costs (not including doctors' fees) in a fairly typical case last year, that of a leg amputation, covering 55 days of Home Care:

Nursing Care (15 visits)	$78.75
Physical therapy (6 visits)	36.00
Visiting health aide (10 visits)	77.00
Ambulance (2 trips)	29.00

Laboratory (12 visits)	93.00
Oxygen	38.90
Equipment rental	47.00
Equipment delivery (5 trips)	41.50
Medical supplies	28.15
Drugs	5.50
Service charge to HCA for supervision, social casework, etc. ($3 a day)	165.00
Total	$639.90

If this patient had spent the 55 days in a general hospital, the cost would have soared to $3,125, more than four times as much as under Home Care. Participating in the spirit of the program, Rochester druggists, ambulance companies, and suppliers have voluntarily reduced their prices to people under HCA. A Blue Cross member is entitled to 200 visits each calendar year from any source (except physicians), and few patients use more. After 100 visits, the patient pays half the cost for an aide or homemaker. For the elderly, Medicare "A" covers up to the first 100 visits a year, except for drugs, transportation, and meals. After that, the patient can move to Medicare "B," which provides for 80 percent of similar services.

Cash savings in health maintenance is but one of many advantages of organized Home Care. Besides keeping families together, Home Care has its practical side effects. Consider, for instance, Mrs. Hildegard Rohrbach, a 58-year-old widow who fell and fractured a hip. From a hospital bed she couldn't continue to run the family business left by her husband. From home, however, even though she was in traction, Mrs. Rohrbach was more easily able to direct her nephew and daughter in keeping the business going smoothly.

Doctors are among the chief routers for the concept. A recent survey of physicians revealed that 95 percent of them thought the program did what was necessary for the patients. Often, they agreed, Home Care actually speeds recovery.

With visiting nurses and other paramedical associates in the picture, doctors can make fewer calls on patients. This may turn out to be one answer to the doctor shortage.

Largely responsible for making Rochester's trail-blazing program click is an unusually dedicated staff headed by Mrs. Dorothy Watts White, a former nurse supervisor and assistant hospital administrator. The medical director, Dr. Roger J. Boulay, is assistant professor of medicine at the University of Rochester School of Medicine.

Besides two staff social workers, HCA can call upon nurses from the County Public Health Service and more than 100 aides from the Visiting Nurse Service, an independent agency supported by the Community Chest. These aides handle personal care of the patient, including bed baths, cooking, and laundry.

Looking ahead, Mrs. White foresees more direct admissions of patients to HCA, to avert hospitalization entirely. This has already been done with cancer patients and certain fracture cases. Some doctors are even considering the possibility of sending obstetrical patients home on the second day after birth, under the care of a special Home Care team.

By 1970, at the rate we're going, Surgeon General William H. Stewart estimates hospital costs may rise to an astronomical $85 a day. Home Care may meet that challenge!

More important than hospital costs is the peace of mind of the helplessly ill who yearn for the comforting grace of their families.

In the words of one grateful mother reunited with her family, "God will bless you for all this." *

The British Miracle That Creates

SUPER PLANTS IN THE GARDEN — IN THE HOUSE

Yes! From the greatest gardening nation on earth — England — comes a fantastic discovery! Developed by Britain's leading gardener — winner of the famed Victoria Medal for horticulture! Already used today by OVER THREE MILLION British gardeners! And now released to you — through this advertisement only — to try in your own garden WITHOUT RISKING A PENNY!

Think of it! Here is a gardening development that almost defies belief! It is a CONCENTRATED GROWTH FORMULA, prepared in the form of tiny pellets. It costs only pennies per treatment! And even a child can drop them in the ground in a little as ten seconds.

But once these tiny pellets are placed near the roots of your starved plants, they perform a scientific miracle that has been every gardener's dream for centuries! They DO ONLY —

AUTOMATICALLY feed your plants the life-giving nutrients they need — CONCENTRATED-RIGHT-AT-THE-ROOTS — OF THESE PLANTS — POURING LIFE-GIVING ENERGY INTO THE VERY HEART OF THOSE PLANTS — DAY AFTER DAY — THROUGH EVERY VITAL STAGE OF THEIR GROWTH!

Just picture this breathtaking scene to yourself. The first result you will notice — almost immediately — is that these amazing English pellets give your plants a tremendous new burst of growth! Whether your plants are new or old — they send out dozens of hidden shoots and buds from some of your plants may actually DOUBLE in height and breadth in the very first month!

But this is just the beginning! Within one or two short weeks — without you even touching your plants these amazing pellets AUTOMATICALLY aid your plants in the second vital stage of its growth! AUTOMATICALLY — still more wonder-working! RETURNERS return — every cell of your plants' bodies — fill these cells with health and strength and sturdiness and wonderful new resistance to disease and pestal! Great, tall stems stand up with military precision! Giant buds begin to swell with vigor and vitality! Every first bud shows that you had almost given up for lost — begin to straighten out — flatten up — send out the young green growth that you had never hoped to see again!

And then — the most remarkable part of all! When these fantastically beautiful plants have reached their full glorious height and strength, simply drop another Magic Pellet next to them! These tiny English pellets automatically liberate still more wonder-working ingredients. These little concentrated stimulants pour into your roots — carried up through the stems and trunks and branches of your plants — are finally delivered to the great giant flower buds at the top of those plants.

And when those precious ingredients reach those ripe buds — THEN YOU WILL BE BLINDED BY THE EXPLOSION OF COLOR THAT GREETS YOU IN YOUR GARDEN!

Flowers So Beautiful You Can Hardly Believe Your Eyes!

Yes! When you follow this Sirexer plan, you will walk through that garden as though you were in a dream! You will see rose bushes weighed down by masses of blossoms, of a richness and perfume and color that you have never imagined before! You will walk past solid, blazing rows of chrysantheums so thick that you can't even see a leaf in between! You will see dahlias, and asters, and gladioli, and so on and so on, so countless, so breathtakingly beautiful that you hardly believe that they are the same plants that you put into the ground. And when your neighbors begin to pour into your yard — when you watch them bend and touch these flowers to see if they are real — THEN YOU WILL KNOW A FEELING OF GLADY ACCOMPLISHMENT AND PRIDE THAT YOU MAY NEVER HAVE DREAMED OF BEFORE!

A housewife from Kent, England, who raises her own vegetables. This cabbage — grown with Sirexer's Pellets — weighs sixteen pounds. You can hardly lift it! But this is the product day of her life!

NOW 200,000
PROVEN IN 100,000
AMERICAN GARDENS

"Enclosed pictures show my flower eleven feet high, with a twenty-eight inch flower head. I didn't bend my waning stock of plants, however, and am performing with an indoor 'Red Begonia.' To my surprise and satisfaction of others we saw a Red Begonia of such monstrous size. G.H.F., San Rafael, Calif.

"This squash was 7 1/2 inches across, 2 1/4 inches around, and 3 1/2 inches thick. I have never seen such a huge squash before. The results were unbelievable." — Mrs. J.H.J.F., Houston, Texas

"Your claims for the Magic English Pellets are not exaggerated one bit. As far as I'm aware, flowering shrubs and rose are concerned, I have not yet put the pellets on vegetables, but would expect the same results. I was raised in a nursery and have had considerable experience with shrubs and roses. Your product is the best fertilizer I have ever used. It is much more economical than any liquid or solid fertilizers now on the market." — C.A.N., Argente, Kansas

"Enclosed a snapshot of a cabbage I raised last year with the use of two of your Magic Pellets, and it weighs twelve pounds. My roses, snapdragons, flag, carnations, dahlias were the largest and most colorful and beautiful in the block. All the neighbors made a wish to my flower garden to see what wonders were being formed and my garden was the topic of the block. I shared my pellets with friends and their flowers that were almost dead came to life." — Mrs. W.H.D., Nashville, Texas.

"My climax grew six feet high, the blooms were bigger than the saucers. I had marigolds bigger than saucers, they grew six feet tall, evergreen came to see them." — Mrs. C.M., Cartersville, Ga.

"I never saw anything in my life do so much good. I had the most beautiful roses in town last summer, and my mom was just covered with blooms. I had to pinch them back more than usual but they were the talk of the town — I sold so many." — Mrs. C.C., St. Charles, Mo.

"Two of my roses buds died all the way to the top. I put three pellets around them and now they came back in full and are growing very strong. I shun your magic pellet-around-you-of-bellies-and-roses twice their size in just one season." — Mrs. F.T., Shreveport, La.

"I have no garden now and use your tablets only for house plants. My African violets have been a mass of blossoms for months. The silver chrysanthemum is growing like a weed, and another violet which did nothing for a long time is developing flower buds now." — A.H.H., Hartford, N.Y.

"I am five feet two inches and my gladioli towered above me and they know what garden beauty is because I am from Durham, England and before my father's death he won many trophies in flower shows, but my father's death completely stopped anything I have ever seen after using your pellets." — Mrs. J.M., Wichita, Ala.

Guaranteed For The Full Season

These Magic English Pellets — called FRED STREETER'S PLANT GROWTH TABLETS — cost only $2.98 for a package of 125 pellets, or $4.97 for the super-economy size, or 300 pellets. Since only a few pellets are required to treat the 'average plant,' this is an investment of only a few pennies a plant for the most astounding beauty you have ever seen!

And these results are completely guaranteed! Here is what we ask you to do when you receive your Magic Pellets next week!

USE THEM TO CREATE SUPER-FLOWERS! Place one tiny pellet beside each of your hydrangeas, azaleas, peonies, etc. — a couple beside your roses — any kind of flower that you want super-blooming! And if you don't see fantastic new growth within just a few short weeks — if you don't watch with amazement while handfuls of magnificent new blossoms burst forth from those old plants — then simply return the empty package for every cent of your money back!

USE THEM TO CREATE GARDEN CLUB PRIZE WINNING BLOSSOMS! Your Mums, Roses, Dahlias, Daylilies, Annuals and late blooming Perennials will take on added size and color. Your garden this Fall will be the envy of the neighborhood.

YES! USE THEM IN YOUR ENTIRE GARDEN! Use them on hard-land plants where you've almost given up! Use them on the plants that you know you'll never see, even use them in lawns, and absolutely astound your friends! And if you don't agree that this British invention is a true gardening miracle... if your garden isn't the showpiece of your neighborhood at the end of an short month — then simply return the empty package — for every cent of your money back!

This guarantee is unconditional. It protects you for the entire first month — entirely at our risk. You have absolutely nothing to lose! Act TODAY!

CARL YASTRZEMSKI— New Superstar of Yesterday's Hero?

By FRANK BARRETT, jr.

LAST SUMMER it was Carl Yastrzemski racing around the bases on his way to baseball's coveted triple crown in batting.

This winter it was Carl Yastrzemski dashing in his next speaking appearance or tv interview.

"One of his agents said, 'The first real Carl has had since the Series was in spring training.'"

It was a remark that made Boston shudder. The city's greatest hero since Ted Williams was standing on a shaky pedestal—nothing new for the 28-year-old spark plug of the Boston Red Sox's amazing 1967 pennant-winning drive.

Was Yaz reverting to the "almost-great" ballplayer of former years, the sullen kid who'd listen to nobody, who showed only flashes of, promised brilliance? Or had he indeed achieved maturity? Was he, despite the pressures of fame, heading for another spectacular season to prove he was a superstar and not yesterday's hero?

Boston couldn't help remembering that a magical change came over Carl in the winter of 1967—a different winter than that of coast-to-coast appearances.

In 1967-Carl's new image began taking shape under the tutelage of a physical culturist named Gene Berde. He worked his willing pupil hard for weeks with exercises designed to improve his stamina and muscle tone. When Yaz reported to spring training, he was in fine shape.

Other changes occurred in spring training in 1967. The new Red Sox pilot, Dick Williams, said, "I'm the boss, and we'll win more games than we lose."

"Williams gave us something we had no manager in my time, ever did," said Yaz, "respect for ourselves and for each other."

The change in Yaz applied off the field, too. He admits now that early in his career, he was a spoiled brat. Last year, though, he gave his all playing and, even when things went bad, was gracious under pressure from the fans. To this reporter, who covered the Red Sox incredible pennant drive for The Lowell Sun, Yaz was never rude or haughty, as reported. His attitude was that everybody had a job to do and to do it together.

Relaxing was rare for Yaz, Carol.

But this week begins another long season—and, if possible, the pressures will be greater. The price of fame has been a winter in which he substituted "rubber chicken" dinners for Gene Berde's healthy, if barely got a chance to vacation with his wife Carol and their three children.

The question asked mostly as training began was—can Yaz continue to lake this pace?

He has an answer: "I know what it's like to be a loser and a winner. It like being a winner a lot more. I wouldn't do anything to jeopardize it."

There's also the motivating factor that Carl, son of a Long Island potato farmer, is heading for the magic $1,000,000-a-year salary bracket.

But his business agent has the final word on when Yaz is going and why: "He likes it on top, and he knows baseball put him there. He'll shape up quick, you'll see. He's got the thing every superstar must have—be's got the pride of a front runner." ♦

"SIGN HERE," a banker in Bangor, Maine, told the woman applying for a loan.

She was well-spoken and neatly dressed, yet that's not what counted. First her references would be checked—then the signature she scrawled on the dotted line would be carefully analyzed.

Three days later, the woman was told that she had been turned down for the loan. Her references had proved satisfactory, but her handwriting had warned the bankers that she was a poor credit risk. The overelaborate, overembellished letters indicated self-deception and interpersonal duplicity. She might tell herself and the banker that she had every intention to repay the loan, but there was a good chance she would not do so.

At a string of insurance companies, prospective salesmen and executives are hired and promoted on the basis of what a graphologist says about the clues in their handwriting.

The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) uses handwriting analysis to help discern character and personality traits.

And at a major Midwestern university, handwriters are scrutinized to see who will get a scholarship.

It is the age of the computer, yet in the last few years the centuries-old art of handwriting analysis has blossomed as a pet of modern businessmen, as well as a tool for clinical psychologists and sociologists. It has filtered into so many areas that, sooner or later, one of its uses is bound to touch your life, too.

What does a graphologist look for when he analyzes your writing? He checks its size for one thing. The smaller your writing, the better your powers of concentration. He looks at the slant of your letters. A slant to the right means a gregarious, affable person; vertical writing indicates you are self-contained and prefer reason over emotion; a slant to the left reveals you're repressed, inhibited, and less interested in people than you are in abstractions.

Breaks in your loops may be a signal of physical impairment. Careless punctuation is a sign, that a person makes his own rules.

A graphologist can tell a great deal from such a simple thing as the way you cross your t's. A firm, centered t-bar indicates balance, self-confidence, and determination. A t-bar that doesn't cross the letter but flies away to the right may be a sign of a hasty temper. A looped t-bar indicates persistence. A t-bar that starts at the left but doesn't cross through is a clue that you don't finish what you start.

A t-bar that goes downhill may reveal you're a rebel, domineering, and need to have the last word in arguments, which you usually start.

A good graphologist looks at your handwriting as a whole, taking in the slants, the stops and starts, the pressures, the capitals, etc. There are close to 300 variable criteria he can check for some 3,000 possible meanings. It's the sum of these criteria that readily reveals your hidden personality.

If you're aware of it, perhaps you'll be tempted to "cheat" by filling out that job or loan application in your neatest Spencerian hand. "It won't help," says Dan Anthony, a Newark, N.J., graphologist who advises more than 50 major business organizations on whom to hire. "If you try to change your writing, you'll probably lower your score by 16 or 20 points."

In some cases, it's the way someone else could can influence your career fate. Nadya Olyanova, a New York graphologist and author of "Handwriting Tells," reveals that she often has been consulted in the making of a vice president. When a

Rod Steiger— The Star Who Has Everything— Almost

Rod starred in "In the Heat of the Night."

By PEER I. OPPENHEIMER

ROD STEIGER can almost feel his fist closing firmly around the "Oscar."

It slipped from his fingers when he was nominated for "On the Waterfront" and again for "The Pawnbroker." He should have won the coveted award for "Dr. Zhivago," but he didn't. Now his gum-chewing sheriff in "In the Heat of the Night" may well put the elusive prize in his eager grasp.

If he loses out again, it will be to the late Spencer Tracy. If the two performances are compared coldly, Rod would win, but sentiment may give it to Tracy. Or the two could cancel out each other's votes, leaving a runner-up win.

If sentiment wins out, it will be the kind of emotion Rod ruthlessly rejects. During the filming of his latest movie, "The Sergeant," Rod's mother died. He left the set, hating every minute of the return to the family home in Newark, N.J.

Rod's mother, a former show girl, had separated from her father when he was eight months old. Rod never saw his father again, but his mother did present him with two stepfathers.

The family was usually on relief, and Rod helped out by selling magazines or delivering ice up rickety tenement steps. He was close to neither family nor friends, and he turned his back on the bitter scene, leaving high school to join the Navy.

At his mother's death, he told me, "I weep for the living, not the dead."

He takes particular satisfaction in being one of today's most-wanted actors. Studio brass recognized his ability a long time ago; now the ticket-buying public does, too.

"I'm the one who they feel hasn't sold out," says Rod, "the American actor who has been given the tattered flag to carry. Right now, I'm 'in.'"

His Oscar competitor, Spencer Tracy, was beloved by all of Hollywood. But Rod has been described as "basically a very lonely man" and temperamental and hard to work with. Rod admits, "Most actors are so much in love with themselves that they haven't room left to love anyone else. I seem to be no exception."

Steiger's attitude toward his career is apparent in the way he chooses his parts. First of all, he insists on making his own decisions. Secondly, he will put his salary to almost any amount to get a challenging project off the ground. He did "The Pawnbroker" for $25,000—plus a percentage of the profits, of course—and "The Sergeant" for $75,000, although his official asking price is now $400,000 per picture.

That doesn't mean Steiger refuses to enjoy the fruits of his success. He owns a home in Malibu and an apartment in London, where he parks his Jaguar XKE. He has just moved into a spacious new Park Avenue apartment. He proudly gave me a guided tour—gold-gilded ceilings, tastefully selected antique furniture, paintings—through an exhibit of their own.

Rod takes a down-to-earth attitude toward his new wealth. "It makes it a lot easier to do what I want to do. That's why I now can afford to out my price for pictures if it really matters. But believe me, if I couldn't feed my family, I'd crawl on my knees to get a job."

Although known to movie audiences almost anywhere, Rod is seldom accosted by star-struck fans. In fact, much of the time people don't even recognize him. He and his wife, actress Claire Bloom, used to live in Brooklyn Heights. "I commuted to Manhattan by subway. In three years, I was recognized maybe three or four times, and then usually through my voice. When that happened, people were very nice and considerate, asking me about my family or something like that."

When Rod isn't working, he likes to relax. "And when I say relax," I mean collapse. I become a very dull husband. And that's hard on Claire."

Enclosed in Park Avenue luxury, Rod has the comfortable feeling of knowing he can write his own ticket now for himself and his family. Yet Newark is not far away, geographically or emotionally.

Asked what he still wants out of life, Rod Steiger replies sadly, "The ability to love more openly." Here is a man who can exhibit any emotion, including love, in front of an audience of any size—except possibly an audience of one. ♦
