Ed Morgan, Burley, deputy commander, and Lt. Col. Ed Woods, Twin Falls, deputy for training. Because of the shortage of pilots, Idaho and some other states are now without liaison officers. The shortage is because of the war in Vietnam.

False Alarm

Blast Kills

Five Men At Ammo Plant

BURLINGTON, Iowa (AP) — An explosion at the Iowa Army Ammunition Depot—the third in little more than a year—killed five men Friday. The blast in a warehouse where land mines were stored, blew apart the building's tile walls and part of the roof. George Mathes, assistant plant manager, said relatively few of the concussion mines exploded. Adjacent warehouses were not damaged, he said. Four of the victims were Gary Wayne Lawrence, 24, of Lomax, Ill.; Gary Raymond Young, 23, of Keokuk, Iowa; Robert L. Walker, 21, of Burlington, and Willis Bogan Henson, 37, of Stronghurst, Ill. The name of the fifth victim was withheld pending notification.

Air Force Liaison Officer Leaves T.F. For Duty At Maxwell Air Force Base

Parton, who resides with his family in Burley, and worked out of the CAP liaison office in Twin Falls, has been attached to the Idaho wing for a year. At present no one has been assigned to fill the liaison officer vacancy. It is possible that no one will be assigned to the position until the wing and that several states and presented him with a gift. Capt. Parton and his wife are parents of five children.

Members of the Idaho Wing of the CAP hosted a recent going away party for Capt. Parton. Capt. Parton and his wife are parents of five children.

Hagerman High School Work Slated

HAGERMAN — Remodeling and renovation are under way at Hagerman High School, including a new office for the agriculture department to be built between the biology and shop room.

The room presently used for the office will be converted to a study room for use by biology and English classes. It was decided at the school board meeting this week.

Frank Hansen is re-elected chairman of the trustees and Robert F. Adoff is retained as treasurer. Oscar Anderson, re-elected from Zone five in the Nov. election, was sworn into office.

A contract was awarded to Ira Kistler, Gooding, to patch holes and blacktop the entire gymnasium roof, the foyer and roof of the attached music room. Trustees voted to have Custom Floors, Twin Falls, install indoor-outdoor carpet in 12 rooms in the elementary and high school buildings at a cost of $5,018.

Trustees decided to send a letter of appreciation to Bob Lawson, Hagerman fire chief, for evaluating fire fighting equipment at the school and to Mrs.

Robert Adoff for her work with German language students the past year.

Mr. Strawser will be high school principal, director of the Individualized Learning Center and physics instructor. The board authorized five teachers to attend summer school.

The school will sponsor Red Cross swimming lessons again this year. Stanley Penfold will give his bus for transportation. Mrs. R. K. Bendard and Mrs. John Kelley were re-hired as hot lunch cooks for the school. Henry Arterburn and Hugh Arterburn were retained as janitors and Mrs. Rex McAnulty as board clerk.

Predators

There are many reasons why our enemies, the North Koreans, can seize a U. S. ship and get away with it. What is amazing is that our friends, the South Americans, have been doing the same things for years. In the last seven years, more than 60 American-owned fishing vessels have been seized by Chile, Ecuador and Peru. In most cases it has been in the same manner as the North Koreans took the Pueblo...

Small Business

In this age of corporate giants, when it frequently appears that industry, agriculture and service businesses have merged under a comparatively few roofs, it is reassuring to note the small business community in the United States is prospering. Conglomerates are more noticeable because of their size, but small businesses are everywhere...

Thrill Of Really Living

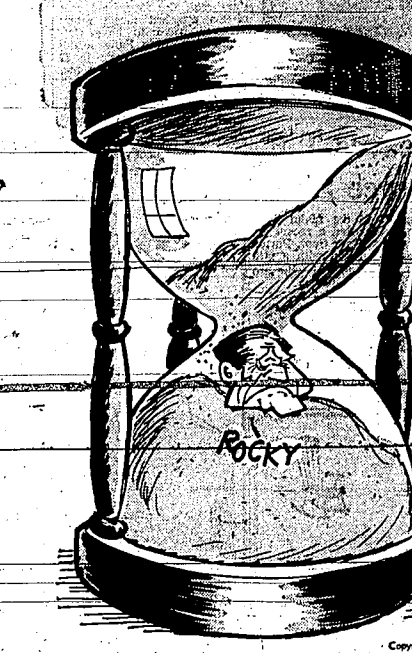

The bigger—the airplanes become—the less real fun there is in flying. You get a thrill through another in a great hurry but along the way you miss what it is all about. Who can enjoy the countryside from a plane? Who can enjoy the view when you are seated "on the aisle" and hardly within sight of the window? And then, even if you are near the window, they are becoming fewer and far between...

Robert F. Kennedy, the fourth of his family to be struck by tragedy, has moved across the American political scene for a decade in the very eye of a storm of controversy. Some elements that make him a storm center can be faulted and some cannot. He is loved and admired, hated and feared more passionately perhaps than has been true of any man in this country's public life in modern times...

Robert Kennedy himself unquestionably has been stunned this spring at the depth and breadth of the animosity he seems to stir in so many quarters. On a campaign airplane he said to me as he has to other people: "I'm the only candidate who has ever managed to unite business, labor, the organization Democrats and the intellectuals. They're all against me."

of Charges Croft (long pause). None of you, none of you, I feel, was the Earl of Camden for whom this city was named. Usually the lighthearted chatter evokes laughter and warm responses. The men work on from ty to audiences like the City Club in Portland, Ore., where business and professional leaders count themselves laughing in spite of themselves. They broke up when he said: "Somebody—just look—a poll of 500 businessmen says I get one vote for him."

Running Out

LOU GRANT Copyright 1968 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Looking at the other candidates in both parties, these people do not think their election as president would affect the course of events too drastically. But they are pretty certain that if Bob Kennedy were in the White House their world would be different—in ways they can hardly conceive. One percent observer feels that this image of the driving activist is enough alone to alarm many Americans who may see the need for some change they do not want too much of. Says this man: "When they see him in person," says this friend, "many people decide that he isn't all that ruthless."

The Inmates Have Taken Over

WASHINGTON — To the rest of the world the United States must look like a giant insane asylum where the inmates have taken over. The guards are gone, the doors are open and everyone thinks the other person is sick. Except for the charity wards where the people are all shoved together or top of each other, the rest of the asylum couldn't look prettier. The buildings are all new and shiny, the equipment is the most modern in the world, the grounds are green and decorated with flowers. To look at from the outside, you would think it is the ideal spot on the globe. But inside, the patients are running amuck and no one knows what to do about it. Every time a doctor is called in to suggest a remedy for the chaos, the residents of the hospital shut him down. Besides, they believe anyone who is trying to come up with new cures for their sickness must be crazy.

Observers who have never watched him campaign in person always remark on the ease, quick rapport developed with a crowd. His bantering exchanges are so continuous that sometimes his appearances have the quality of a television. To a huge, noisy, racially mixed throng in an auditorium at Camden, N.J., he shouted: "How many of you ever heard"

Czech Defiance And The U.S.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (INA) — The Russians have finally "discovered" that American-imperialists are behind Czechoslovakia's unprecedented experiment in liberalism. An editorial in Krasnaya Zvezda, mouthpiece of Moscow's marshals and generals, asserts the United States is seeking "to exploit for its own dirty purposes" the "internal processes" in Czechoslovakia. It was inevitable that the Russians and their frightened puppets in Poland and East Germany should blame the Americans for the reforms currently being introduced in Prague. But the tone of the Krasnaya Zvezda editorial shocked even East European diplomats familiar with Communist doubletalk. They interpreted it as a Soviet threat to employ armed force against Czechoslovakia. "If and when the Russians and their allies decide to invade Czechoslovakia they will use the danger of American subversion as the pretext," one diplomat said. Anticipating Moscow's charge of American complicity, Yugoslav's leading newspaper Politika warned the Russians not to turn the clock back. The West, especially the United States, can no longer be blamed for the ferment in Czechoslovakia, Romania and elsewhere in East Europe, Politika's editor said. The time has come for the Communists to end their blame themselves for everything good or bad that happens in their countries. But the Russians and their puppets must find a scapegoat for their troubles in East Europe. The essentially anti-Soviet upsurge in Czechoslovakia is a bitter pill for them to swallow. What's happening in Czechoslovakia may be the biggest crisis that the Brezhnev-Kosygin regime in Moscow has had to face since it came to power in 1964. But in Russia, who seems to be opposed to the use of force against Czechoslovakia, is even reported in some diplomatic circles to be on the way out. The latest crisis in the Kremlin has actually been brewing since last June when Israel defeated the Arabs. Brezhnev and Kosygin were blamed for the failure of Soviet policy in the Middle East. But in Russia, the Kremlin's "collective leaders" were still working as a united team. With the support of the Red Army they were strong enough to beat

Council Is Satisfied On Sewer Work

GLENN'S FERRY—The engineering firm of Johnson, Underkoffler and Briggs has fulfilled all requirements of its contract with the Glens Ferry city council regarding the city sewer project, it was reported at the council meeting last week.

Councilmen were reminded by Sumner Johnson, Nampa, city engineer, that it was not in the contract for the engineering firm to obtain right of ways. Councilman Dayle Messerly said there had been a misunderstanding on his part regarding the contract.

Councilmen authorized Mr. Johnson to help Attorney Francis Hicks obtain the sewer right of way. Various right of ways obtained from Fourth Avenue through First Avenue were discussed.

Clifford Mitchell was asked to submit a claim after appealing to the council about the television antenna which was damaged three years when a firm was contracted by the city to clear out the channel of Canyon creek through the city limits.

Approved were building permit applications from K. A. Starkey, $2,000; Robert Belliston, $100; F. R. Jones, $16,500, all approved by the city zoning committee, and a water meter for F. R. Jones.

Tickets are available at the Shrine office in Magic Bowl, Twin Falls.

Newsboy Robbed

BOISE (AP) — A Boise newsboy, 11-year-old Tommy Lane, was robbed of $15. Police called it an armed robbery and said a steak knife thrown at the boy cut him slightly in the back.

They said four teenagers were being sought in connection with the holdup.

Officers said Layne had about $75 in his collection bag. They said the robbers took larger bills, leaving change, smaller bills and checks which amounted to about half the total in the bag.

News Of Record

Clerk's Office
Deeds were filed by Donald Sawyer to Wayne Thompson, Earl Thompson and Emma Thompson to Lawrence Griffith, Richard Handy to Clifford Hancock.

Marriage Licenses were issued to Willard Wert, Wendell, and Lottie Tracy, Twin Falls; Leslie Novak and Dobbie Lee Robinson, both Wendell.

Pollock Court
James Stowell, Jerome, fined $20 for failure to register; Lyle Sigel, Jerome, fined $10 for noisy muffler.

A letter was read from the Glens Ferry Chamber of Commerce stating members voted to reaffirm its stand on interchanges from the proposed Interstate 80 into Glens Ferry, that was passed by the chamber in 1967.

A letter from James Carpenter, asked the city to investigate the dust problem at the Grange Supply self-service gas pumps, stating that the area was being used as a car-turn-more than for the sale of gas. The police department was instructed to investigate the problem.

Mayor T. L. Feeny said he wanted the records to show that he wanted the chief of police to be present at the council meeting the night the monthly police report is submitted, to explain different cases if necessary. The police report was discussed.

City Supt. Wallace Rubery reported that Roy Williams had stated he had another job and would be leaving June 14, so the council accepted the verbal resignation effective that date.

Bullet Wound Doomed Robert Kennedy

By HOWARD F. ANGIOINE

BOSTON (AP) — Almost from the instant an assassin's bullet pierced his skull, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was doomed to death, says the Boston neurosurgeon, summoned to Kennedy's side in Los Angeles by the family.

"There has been no survival in any patient that had any injury like the one Sen. Kennedy received," Dr. James L. Poppen of the Lahey Clinic said Friday.

"I saw him at about 10 a.m., an hour or so after the operation," the doctor said. "I knew it was fatal then and I prayed he would die."

He said some who were close to Kennedy when he was shot early Wednesday say they heard him say, "Water," but "I'm surprised he was even able to say that."

The senator died more than 24 hours after being shot, Poppen said, from "overwhelming, irreversible damage to the pons and midbrain," two narrow but vital communications pathways next to each other deep in the center of the brain.

All the vital information exchanged between major parts of the brain must pass through them, including the data that specialists in brain research believe is linked with controlling consciousness, heart rate, blood pressure, and all the body's automatic processes.

By 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, about 18 hours after he was shot in a narrow passageway, at a Los Angeles hotel, Kennedy met Poppen said.

Two T.F. Men Earn Degrees At University

Charles Thomas Ratcliffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Ratcliffe, Twin Falls, received a doctor of philosophy degree in inorganic chemistry at the University of Idaho commencement exercises.

Their other son, James D. Ratcliffe, received a bachelor of science degree in pre-medical studies. He will enroll at the University of New Mexico medical school in September.

Dr. Charles Ratcliffe, a 1956 graduate of the Twin Falls High School, received both bachelor and master of science degrees from the University of Idaho. Since completing work on his degree last September, he has been engaged in research at Glasgow University in Scotland.

Mrs. Ratcliffe, the former Mary Casey-Moscow, is a 1964 graduate of the University of Idaho. The couple expects to return to the U. S. next November when Dr. Ratcliffe will be employed by Allied Chemical Co. in New Jersey.

the legal requirement for death revive, the senator's kidneys and other vital organs shut down, and finally his heart stopped beating, Poppen said.

He said a slim hope remained, however, because the waves "sometimes fade-out and come back," and shortly afterwards Kennedy's "pulse and heart rate actually improved for a time."

But the brain waves did not

Two Teen-Agers Make Way Home

RUPERT — Two teen-aged boys, presumed lost north of Minkdake Thursday night, returned home Friday morning after having made their way to Jackpot, Nevada.

Eddie Osborne, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Osborne, and Brent Morgan, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Morgan, Rupert, were reported lost Thursday night after they failed to return from a hunting trip. The Minkdake County Sheriff's office was notified and a search party was organized. No sign of the boys could be found in the area in which it was believed they had gone, however.

Early Friday morning, the boys called home from Jackpot and said their car had stalled and they had walked and hitchhiked about 25 miles into Jackpot.

Roy Rostron, Chamber of Commerce manager, said entries may be picked up at the Chamber office or will be mailed on request.

Annual Frontier Days, under the chairmanship of Jack Windsor and sponsored by the Frontier Riding Club, will begin officially July 25 and continue through July 27.

Plans already finalized for the July celebration include the Intermountain Youth Quarter Horse Show at Frontier Field beginning July 25 at 8 a.m. This will attract top young exhibitors and performers from throughout surrounding states.

On July 26 at 8 a.m., the 26th annual American Quarter Horse Association show for exhibitors of Southern Idaho and surrounding states will be held at Frontier Field, followed at 5 p.m. by the opening performance of the Frontier Days rodeo. Stock for the rodeo this year will be furnished by the Diamond A Rodeo Co., Elko.

Urban Renewal Project Brings Woman's Query

Editor, Times-News:
In regards to the Urban Renewal plan that is being put into effect in Twin Falls, I am sorry that the fact finding trip made by our city officials was not publicized beforehand, as it might have brought out some additional examples they might have investigated.
Of course they saw just what the promoters wanted them to see. If there were others, not so favorable, they were not mentioned.
I have in mind the town of Visalia, on Highway 199 north of Bakersfield, Calif. It is a lovely town. However, a large shopping mall was built in the outskirts and took the downtown business. No parking meters, enclosed, air conditioned the year around, magnificent shops. When the downtown merchants realized the effects, they landscaped the downtown area. From the drawings I have seen, I suspect the same plans were used that Twin Falls is considering. They put in play equipment for the youngsters, took out the parking meters, put in trees, flowers, benches, lawn and flowers.
It is lovely, but the trade stayed out in the shopping mall, and the downtown merchants are struggling to pay off their indebtedness. It is good to know there are two sides of every story, isn't it?
Were all the towns you looked at prospering? I love my home town and the people in it, but their business is theirs to run, not some outside planners who charge a fee and are gone.

Idaho's Supreme Court Election Said Unique

Editor, Times-News:
An unusual event will occur in Idaho this year. There will be a substantial change in its Supreme court by election which will bring two new faces to the three-member tribunal. Contested election of Supreme Court justices is rare in Idaho. Every member of the present Supreme Court first arrived by executive appointment to fill a vacancy created by death or resignation. With the mandatory retirement of Justice E. B. Smith and C. J. Taylor at the end of their terms in January, 1969, Idaho electors will name their successors, the only state of its kind to be elected in 1968 on a statewide basis.
This unusual event is serving a good purpose. It is bringing to the attention of the people a third but equal branch of our state government, the judicial department. But in my visits with voters around the state I find it is also bringing to light many misconceptions.
Except for vacancy appointments by the Governor, Supreme Court judges are elected by the people. They are elected by a statewide election, not by geographical districts. While U.S. Supreme Court justices are appointed for life, state court justices are elected for six years. Although there are six candidates for the two Supreme Court positions, there are two separate contests, one for each vacancy. A candidate must declare which position he seeks. One of two candidates will replace retiring Justice Smith and he will be selected in the August primary election. From the other four candidates (of whom I am one) will come Justice Taylor's successor. A majority vote in August would elect him; otherwise the two highest will run off in November. Supreme Court candidates are non-partisan, being separated by law from party politics.
The largest contribution of the Supreme Court is the review of district court decisions on appeal. The Supreme Court's decisions are final and become laws which affect the lives of all Idaho citizens. For that reason a most careful assessment of candidates is required to assure the fullest measure of justice under law.

Hailey Girl Has Deep Anguish In Kennedy's Death

Editor, Times-News:
I am only one of two hundred million people and yet I am sick at heart and feel a deep personal anguish at the news of the shooting of Senator Kennedy. Where are we pushing our selves? Are we losing all trace of regard for human life and individuality? Indeed, the circumstances as they exist today point to just such an attitude.
Killing never was a solution to anything. Perhaps with a loss of the old values has come the idea that the old evils have suddenly become workable and practicable. What great misfortune for such a misguided idea to even seriously occur.
People are still basically the same; the same values still lead to happiness, the same evils still lead to ruin. There is no "new way." The way to peace is a return. — If indeed such a condition ever existed except in the hopes and dreams of good men everywhere — to the holy and inspired values such as kindness, courage, honesty, benevolence, patriotism, prayer.
Why is it that people must insist on listening only to themselves? Such a universal lack of understanding is appalling and devastating. Refusal to con-

Man Explores Scriptures For Salvation Plan

Editor, Times-News:
I would like to come into the public forum on the subject of religion. We don't get much of this here, and I'm thinking of thinking on the scriptures, would like to go into the subject of the Holy Ghost, and its work in God's plan of salvation. I see that the law was given to give the knowledge of sin. John the Baptist's work was to prepare a people for the coming of Jesus the Christ, the Son of God and to introduce Him to those people He prepared for His coming, Isaiah 40:3.
Jesus was brought into the world to save his people from their sins. By so doing He would prepare them for Heaven where they would be with Him and the Father. He could not save them while He was with them. He had to first teach them what to do to be saved, then sacrifice Himself on the cross to pay the price for us.
See I Cor. 6:20. That was the price of our salvation. But that wasn't all. He shed His blood to atone for our sins, Romans 5:11. That doesn't save us. After He did all of this then He went to the Father and They sent the Holy Ghost into the world to save His people from sin, the power of God that gives salvation.
This I believe to be the fulfilling of God's purpose and plan, the purpose of his creation, coming into the rest of his people while on earth to prepare them for eternity to be with Him forever and ever.
We have something to do. To get the Holy Ghost, it won't come into a "holby" place to abide. The soul of man is unclean. It is corrupt and must be cleansed, by repentance and prayers, earnest prayers.
Read Matt. 17 through 20 and 7-7.

Idaho Was Retreat For Kennedy, Family

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — afterward suggested that they take a run with him. Robert F. Kennedy was one of the "jealously guarded family moments." There were occasional political visits, but Idaho usually was a retreat for the senator and his family. He is remembered at the Sun Valley resort as a visitor while still a boy and a Christmas regular for the last three winter holidays. During his 1965 and 1966 visits, Kennedy found himself besieged by the curious. On two occasions he agreed quickly to interviews with young people.

Butterfield added that Kennedy's own skiing form had shown great improvement in the last three years as he began to exhibit interest in technique as well as speed. Kennedy also rode the middle fork of the Salmon River in Idaho's wilderness. Mrs. Jack Wilderman of Sun Valley said she had never seen such an "easy and close-knit family." "I think it was fantastic for a public figure to have maintained such a close relationship with his children and be the head of such a compatible family," she said. "Can you imagine helping his children pick out socks and shirts?"

Capture Ends Terror-Filled Police Chase

CHECOTAH, Okla. (AP)—A terror-filled police chase in which an escaped convict held the barrel of a cocked gun against the temple of a teenage girl ended Friday after the warden of the Oklahoma state prison traced places with the girl.

Warden Ray Page then talked escapee Thomas J. Rogers into releasing a policeman who had been forced to drive the car. Rogers, a convicted armed robber from Tulsa, traded the gun to Page in exchange for some time to talk with his former wife who had been called to the scene.

The chase went for more than 50 miles in eastern Oklahoma and involved three police road blocks through which the commandeered police cruiser crashed. Rogers held the barrel of the gun so tightly to the head of 18-year-old Marilyn Fain of McAlester that her temple was scratched. The policeman, Egan Kirkpatrick, was released unharmed. One Highway Patrol trooper stopped the car near Henryetta.

but radioed his dispatcher. "He's got the gun to the woman's head; his finger is on the trigger and the weapon is cocked." The trooper was called off and the cruiser sped away again. It finally was stopped when a trooper at a roadblock near Checotah shot through the rear tire. Eighteen patrol troopers and law officers from surrounding counties quickly surrounded the car but could not approach it.

Security, Politics Don't Mix — But Must During '68
By HARRY KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Did the Justice Dept. tell Robert F. Kennedy also kill the idea of a more open, freer presidency? Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was planning to introduce his concept of an "open presidency" in a speech scheduled for only a few hours after Kennedy was shot.

Under the circumstances the speech was not delivered. Humphrey flew back to Washington under the strict security of Secret Service agents.

In the past, Eugene J. McCarthy often expressed his views on a more open presidency by telling supporters that if elected he would tear down the fence around the White House.

But hours after Kennedy was shot, Secret Service protection for all the presidential candidates—not just the president and the vice president—was stepped up.

In the early hours after Kennedy's death when a newsman called the McCarthy home for a statement, Secret Service agent answered the telephone.

The Vice President has spoken of the difficulties of campaigning under security, saying: "There are always so many people around me—but our Secret Service is very, very good."

They are young men in sober suits looking grim-faced out of the crowd.

"It can be a nervous job," he said. "As one of them says, 'The idea of campaigning and security are in conflict. The candidate wants exposure. Perfect security would be to put them in a room underground. I guess.'"

Gov. George Romney campaigned by including visits to storefront headquarters of slim militiamen, with two Michigan state troopers as his personal bodyguards.

New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller carried along a New York state police major.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy had no one.

Kennedy's personal security aide was former FBI agent who was president in charge of security at a bank. Despite the crowds Kennedy discouraged

'Wolf Boy' Lived Hard India Life

LUCKNOW, India (AP) — Ramu, "the wolf boy," who died April 15, lived the life of an idiot due to brain damage at birth, doctors said Saturday.

An autopsy which lasted 50 days provided no evidence on the story that Ramu was brought up by wolves. He hit the headlines—the world over—14 days ago when he was discovered as a young boy at a railroad station.

His stunted physique, a voice resembling the howling of wolves, his liking of raw meat and obvious affinity for canine life—attributes which continued until his death—has engaged controversy all over the country on Ramu's antecedents.

The detailed neuro-pathological examination just completed indicates extensive damage in the right half of Ramu's brain at the time of his birth which doctors said led to severe mental retardation.

Ramu, who spent the last 14 years at Balrampur Hospital—longer than any patient in the late developed tuberculosis of the lungs and died after a prolonged illness.

Trial Delayed
DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A Denver man accused of murder won postponement of his trial Friday after his lawyer argued the jury would be selected from citizens "who have experienced great emotional upset" after the assassinations of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Thomas Coles, the city's deputy public defender, said the jury of Clarence R. English, 22, "may be more prone to bias a verdict" on passion, prejudice and hysteria rather than upon the evidence submitted.

First Class Mail Transfer Is Expanded
WASHINGTON (AP) — The moving of regular first class mail by air to being expanded to include not only domestic mail but letters destined for Canada and Mexico.

In most parts of the nation by now, a first-class stamped letter destined for a city some hundreds of miles away will get there by plane rather than train.

On Friday the Civil Aeronautics Board said it will begin paying airlines to provide the same service for mail headed for Mexico and Canada. The board said objections to the plan, if any, must be received within five days.

The Post Office Department attributes the growing reliance on air transport to the continuing decline in passenger train service, once the backbone of the interstate mail transportation system.

Toast For An "Alright Guy" Echoes At Fete

AMONG THE PARTYGOERS at the recent farewell social in honor of Merl Edén were, from left, Mrs. Norman Wiseman, Pat Young, Jerry Kleinkopf, Mr. Edén, Ron Watson, John Campbell and Mrs. Joe McCollum. Most guests attending the event were persons affiliated with the Twin Falls school system, which Mr. Edén has been associated with for the past nine years. He was assistant football coach for six years and head football coach and athletic director for three years.

PRESENTING A GIFT to Mr. and Mrs. Merl Edén, center, is M. L. Gates during a recent farewell party held in honor of Mr. Edén. Pat Young, right, was co-host with Mr. Gates for the event. Mr. and Mrs. Edén are moving from Twin Falls in the near future, as Mr. Edén has accepted a position with the State Farm Insurance Companies. "We offer a toast to a well known man,
A coach and a friend to a multitude;
His hand has guided and formed and trained,
And his sense of fair play pervades the game.
A thousand or more wish him well,
And offer their thanks forever,
It isn't how he plays the game,
It's how he plays it better."

A toast at a farewell party always brings about mixed emotions. It is supposed to be a gala social, yet a little sadness prevails as a close friend or associate is moving away. But the object of the party is to convey best wishes in future endeavors and let the honoree know his work and friendship have been greatly appreciated.

Such was the case recently when persons affiliated with the Twin Falls school system attended a party in honor of Merl Edén. The event was hosted by Pat Young and M. L. Gates, close friends of Mr. Edén who have worked with him in the past.

A gift was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Edén and the very best of wishes bestowed as the couple plans to leave Twin Falls in the near future. Mr. Edén has accepted a position with the State Farm Insurance Companies, after teaching for the past nine years in Twin Falls.

The party was held south of Twin Falls at Tommy Walker's with Leo Soran catering the smorgasbord dinner.

Mr. Edén was born and raised in Twin Falls and attended his high school in Frenchburg. He was employed with the State University nine years ago. He was employed with the high school as assistant football coach for the past five years. He was also assistant football coach and athletic director for the past three years.

He and his lovely wife, Marjorie, are parents of three children and reside at 386 Boyah Ave. W.

Common Denominator For "Mensa" Is Very High IQ

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of Mensa wear an insignia, a small map pin with a "low head" but it doesn't stand for egghead. They are anything but that, despite the fact that intellectually they are in the top 2 per cent of the population.

The men, women and children in this international organization of brainy beings come in all ages, sizes, shapes, professions and personalities and their only common denominator is an uncommonly high IQ.

A typical social gathering, one of more than a dozen held each month, by the New York City group, attracts not only doctors, lawyers, merchants and industry chiefs, but a welfare department caseworker, an author who speaks five languages, a 17-year-old college freshman, a promoter for a book publisher, a hotel expert, a housewife, a secretary in a monument company and an accountant, among others.

At such meetings thermodynamics is not as likely to be discussed as is Lobster Thermidor and the theory of relativity doesn't get much attention as the relative lengths of the new fashions.

"It's like any kind of gathering," says Herb Ahrend, a sales promotion and mail order consultant who is chairman of the North American Mensa Committee. "One group might be discussing philosophy, another psychology, a third politics and still another, sex. Believe me, it isn't all uplifting conversation."

They are apt to use more four-letter words than four-syllable words.

Although the M in Mensa doesn't stand for Matrimony, the organization has thrown like-minded people together with more accuracy than a computerized dating system. And many Ms and FelMs, as they call themselves, admit that they enrolled with marriage on their superior minutes.

"I joined to find a wife," frankly declares Irwin Marks, rehabilitation counselor for other flowers—first, Sharon Deagle. 83. "April Showers," using iris and accessory to suggest showers, fourth to sixth grades—first, Laurie Sue Crowson; seventh to ninth grades—first, Tim Chadd. Classes 84-86. No entries. Junior horticulture: Class 87. Dwarf iris—first, Larry Chadd. 88. Intermediate iris, no entries. 89. Tall bearded iris—first and second, Rodney Hershberger, and third, Brent Crooks.

Since then it has expanded to 52 countries, with a world membership of 18,000. Of these, more than 12,000 are in the United States and Canada.

In the North American membership the ratio of males to females is nearly 3 to 1 and the age group with the largest representation, comprising nearly a fourth, is 36 to 45. Of the total, 8.5 per cent are only elementary school graduates, while at the other end of the scale, 5.8 per cent have a doctor's degree.

A cumulative score of 1300 on the college boards mathematics and verbal tests is also acceptable. The national headquarters in New York, at 50 East 42 Street, provides a preliminary, self-administered test. It is scored and the applicant is informed if he qualifies for a second, supervised test administered under the direction of a psychologist.

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BURIN

DEAR ABBY: My son called me on the phone, and I was totally unprepared for the bawling-out I got.

It seems that my 4-year-old grandson has been crying all day. He was afraid to go outside alone and play for fear the "boogie man" or "trash man" would carry him off.

My son said he asked the boy who had told him a story like that, and he said, "Granny died!"

Abby, I have not been over to their house in 2 weeks. Besides, I would never think of telling my grandson such a frightening tale. (I never told my own children anything like that, so why would I tell it to my grandson?)

When I tried to explain that I was completely innocent, my son refused to listen. All he said was, "The child couldn't have made it up, and you MUST have said it!"

I can't tell you how much this hurt me, to get the blame for something I didn't do. And then to be practically called a liar by my own son. Why would you do in my place, Abby?

M. C.

DEAR M. C.: Your son should be made to understand that young children very often confuse fantasy with reality (and even dreams) and are not always accurate in their reporting. If your son doesn't believe the story, he might grow up before he does.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is being married soon, and I have had so many phone calls from friends asking, "What does Nancy need?" This puts me on the spot because Nancy needs a lot of things, but I haven't the faintest idea of how much these people want to spend, so what can I say?

Yesterday, one of my dearest friends called and asked if Nancy "needed" sheets and pillow cases. I replied, "Yes, she does." Then I thought I had better mention that Nancy was going to have a king-sized bed, so I replied, "Yes, she does."

"KING-SIZED? Good heavens, I can't afford sheets, for a bed that size!" I felt like two cents, so I quickly added, "But she could also use some tea towels."

Abby, will you please tell women who ask for suggestions on what to buy a bride to please ask like this: "Can Nancy use an electric mixer?" "What color is her kitchen. I want to buy her a couple of dish cloths."

DEAR ON: Some brides "register" with a local store and the items they "need" are listed to avoid duplications. Clue Nancy in on this. It will not only help Nancy's friends, it will relieve you of much embarrassment.

DEAR ABBY: What does a man do when he has fallen in love with a girl who is engaged to marry someone else?

I know it sounds insane, but when I met Ruth she had already accepted an engagement ring from another man. She didn't tell me she was engaged until after I was so in love with her I couldn't help myself. She said she didn't tell me because she didn't want to "lose" me.

Abby, I love Ruth and she says she loves me, but she hasn't the heart to break the engagement. She says if I will return the ring and make the explanations for her, she will marry me. I have never met her fiance, and don't think I should involve myself in this. What do you think?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: You are not yet "in the middle" unless you put yourself there. If any one returns the ring, it should be Ruth. Furthermore, I hope you realize that you are "in love" with a girl who accepted an engagement ring from a man, was not wearing it when you met her, and didn't admit being engaged until after she encouraged you to fall in love with her. Doesn't this spell out something to you?

CONFIDENTIAL TO D. L. P. IN HOUSTON: For some valuable advice on how to live, ask someone who knows he is dying.

Patriotic Organizations Set Annual Flag Day Tea

On Flag Day in 1833, 35 years ago, a group of patriotic women met to honor the flag of the United States and at that time, led by the late Mrs. Ida Sweet formulated the United Patriotic Organization of Women.

The purpose of the group was to inspire patriotism in all citizens and to promote peace in the nation and good will in the community.

On the Flag Day, June 14, the women of the patriotic organizations and auxiliaries will again honor the flag of the United States by way of the annual Flag Day Tea set for 2 p.m. at the DAV Hall. This meeting place is gratis by the Disabled Americans. The public is invited.

Program for the tea will include "Proper Use of the American Flag and Its History," followed by a question and answer period, with Dr. L. A. Catellier as featured speaker. A special music program will also be presented.

The organizations planning and participating in the event are the women's auxiliaries of the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans of Foreign Wars, Barracks of World War I, General Lawton Spaulding American War Veterans, the Grand Army of the Republic, War Mothers and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

It is interesting to note that the BPOE, annually honors the flag as one duty of the lodge set forth in their national by-laws. Their service for many years was given in conjunction with the Twin Falls Municipal Band during the regular band concert nearest June 14.

Go-Betweens
Are Many; Even
In New Styles

NEW YORK (AP) — What would the world be without go-betweens? They make light of little sins, stretch resources and generally bring harmony out of conflict.

There are all kinds. There are go-betweens for disrupting nations; labor and management; quarrelling married couples and kids and parents.

There are also style go-betweens. Vests.

Men have long depended upon them to make light of heavy waistlines, hide ugly suspenders and in general provide a united sartorial front.

Womankind have had them too off and on, and in variation. However, they were more off than on during the past fashion years to make light of heavy styles, hide ugly suspenders and in general provide a united sartorial front.

Now suddenly they are back. There are four reasons why:

1. The waistline is back. Women who have thickened at the middle during their slack-neck days are taking refuge under vests.

2. Skirts and shirts are back in style, too. But shirts/skirts some times do not stay put in skirts. They bulge sloppily at the intersection.

3. A skirt and shirt combination-sometimes is not enough pazzaz. The color or texture are wrong immediately together, but not so with the proper go-between, the vest.

4. Vests extend wardrobes by bridging the seasons. Most styles can be worn without shirts; as sleeveless toppers for the nice days, as added warmth for cool ones.

Thus nearly all the very best dressed have a very best vest.

The vests that make the lists vary. There are knitted wools that skim the figure, mini boleros, snug peaked ones, and long-lean-ship-hugging-ones. Some are double breasted with jaunty swinging chatelaines. Others are belted or midriff ribbed. Other vests in good standing come in nubby wool tweeds, boucles, shaker knits, as well creamy, thick, multiply cashmere.

Whatever the other ingredients of the separates outfit—sweaters, shirts, mini or mini-skirts, culottes, knickers, shorts or slacks—the wool vest is the catalyst that blends them into a harmonious picture.

They are the marvelous go-betweens of 1968.

Betty Canary's Wonderful World

When that commercial for a popular deodorant flashes on your television screen—it shows the entire family using one spray—don't you wonder why a woman doesn't object to using the same scent as a man?

I think this commercial is indicative of the "desiring" and blurring of the sexes. Dr. Charles E. Winick is talking about in his book, "The New People." Winick, an anthropologist and sociologist, says everything today definitely points toward "Desexualization of American Life" from blandly decorated homes to the clothes we wear.

Society will not turn back to earlier times with its more rigid, fancier differences where father killed the bears and mother was the one at the spinning wheel. We have gone too far and then, who wants really to make a complete turn?

Today we do not consider it unfeeling for mothers to cut the grass or build a set of book cases. We do not snicker if father diapers the baby occasionally or turns out to be a better cook than mother. This, so far, is good—it is a sharing of the family work and, after all, there aren't many wild animals any more and the spinning wheel has been converted into a lamp or planter.

It is disconcerting, of course, to see two youngsters walking arm-in-arm down the sidewalk and not be sure which is the girl and which is the boy. The frightening thing is wondering if they CARE which is the girl and which is the boy.

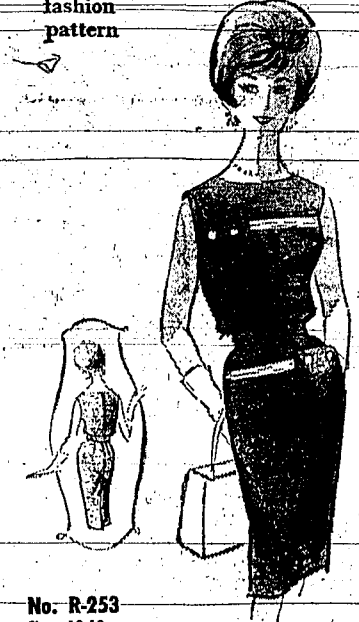

Winick sums us up with: "People can't cope any more. They've lost their identity and don't know who they are."

Obviously, we cannot stave off the neutral life forcing boys to cut their curls or by helping ruffles on the girls. We are not going to solve sex problems by depicting homosexuals or by importing stars for men to shoot and skin or by having women bake more pies.

But, as the trite old saying goes, little things mean a lot. Does, for example, our daughter need to dress the same as her brother? Instead of a "poor boy" shirt, can't she wear a simple but pretty blouse?

And, the next time the sofa needs moving, who not let the boys do it?

Computers May Invade Field Of Decorating

NEW YORK (AP)—The computer may soon invade the field of interior decorating.

Electronics machines have been used to forecast the buying habits of housewives—but decorating a home has always been done on a personal basis.

Homemakers may welcome such an idea—it may provide an answer to a frustration: "Why, why, why... why do we have yellow, orange and pink daisies on this slipcover..."

"Well, dear, it's because I'm a gregarious avant-garde type and you are a lovable warm type who gets along beautifully with people. We're so intellectual and all that sort of thing the computer says, that we must absolutely use these warm, colors... all together."

Interior designers frown on such a ready-made decorating plan because it lacks the human touch, necessary to organize the ideal home setting. But the machine hopes to pacify them too, by putting a plug in for a professional decorator, if you can't do it yourself.

The floor covering company, Flintkote, that is introducing the idea provides forms to dealers. Interested people fill out the multiple choice questionnaire. The questions cover broad areas of size and function of the room to be decorated, taking into consideration the size of a family, whether one lives in a house or an apt and so on.

Art, hobbies, entertaining, colors and even the food one likes and serves is also taken into consideration. Obviously, if you like caviar, you have a different kind of taste than one who prefers herring salad.

All the information is transferred to IBM cards and fed into the 360 computer. The result is a tailored decorating program.

There's a small service charge that includes individual decorating analysis, a booklet of decorating tips, broad color rating advice and a sample of the flooring suggested to complement the decorating plan.

If there proves to be anything wrong with such a plan, it may be this: how do you complain to a machine when things don't turn out the way you anticipated?

Official Visits College

"It is only appropriate that the federal government play a part in financing the construction of college facilities," said Dr. Merle F. Ogle, director of higher education, Region 8, Denver.

Dr. Ogle also feels that because the federal government has played a part in providing student loans, grants and work-study programs, that more students who would not be considered for college in years ago, are able to enter colleges and universities.

Dr. Ogle was in Twin Falls Thursday and Friday paying his third visit to the College of Southern Idaho.

"You are fortunate here," Dr. Ogle commented Friday, "having a man like Dr. James L. Taylor as president of your college. He has the same philosophy that President Johnson and other high ranking officials have expressed: that no student capable of benefiting from a college education should be denied that opportunity."

Dr. Ogle and Dr. Taylor reported that between 33 and 40 per cent of SCI students have been receiving one type of federal aid or another in order to be able to attend school.

The two education officials talked about the program in which Dr. Ogle is here to inspect. The federal government is assisting monetarily in part of the campus construction.

"A college is such a great asset to a community — I'm sure the people of Magic Valley want to have first class colleges — and more, I think they will come to appreciate what the college is doing here," Dr. Ogle stated.

Dr. Ogle said that a large majority of the nation's colleges — both public and private — are receiving some type of federal aid for their students, but is never enough money to help everyone.

He said at CSI, for example, to receive the aid student will be about $300, which helps, but is not adequate to completely finance his education.

Red Chinese Capitalize On Murder

TOKYO (AP) — This is how Communist China reported the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in an English-language broadcast by Chinese news agency monitored today in Tokyo.

"In the midst of the fierce scramble within the U.S. monopoly capitalist class for the presidential throne, Sen. Robert Kennedy, brother of former U.S. President John F. Kennedy, was shot on June 5 in Los Angeles as he was campaigning for the Democratic party presidential nomination. He died on June 6, according to reports from Washington.

Rep. Hansen Comments On FHA Loans

POCATELLO — Rep. George Pocatteilo in Pocatello Saturday said that the Farmers' Home Administration has received a transfer of $30 million from the Commodity Credit Corp. and is now expediting its state offices to process loan applications as speedily as possible.

Informed of this situation by J. Virgil Highfill, assistant administrator for operating loans of the F.H.A., Rep. Hansen said, "I'm pleased that this matter was expedited in the manner in which it was, upon being approved by congress, and the president, because of the dire need of many farmers — who qualified for loans but could not get them because of the lack of money in the F.H.A.'s emergency loan fund."

He was very grateful to the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee for his speedy action on the resolution — introduced by myself and several other congressmen — which resulted in its approval by the committee, even before a similar measure was introduced in the Senate.

After the authorizing resolution had cleared both the House and the Senate, Sen. Len B. Jordan to expedite procedure that was delaying its being sent to the president for his signature.

Plans For ISU Courses Dropped
BOISE (AP) — Preliminary plans to offer some Idaho State University extension courses in three Southern Idaho towns have been dropped. It was learned that the courses had not been formally scheduled and had not been held in the past, some upper division and graduate courses were under consideration for this summer in Idaho Falls, Twin Falls and the Burley-Rupert areas.

Donald Keith, Idaho director for higher education, said winter extension courses had been offered in several Idaho towns by ISU, but that prospects for attendance and staff for the summer offerings had not been good.

LBJ Harried

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House visitor says President Johnson looks like he has "spent some sleepless nights" and appears "somewhat harried."

The reference, of course, was to Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's shooting early Wednesday, the waiting for news from Los Angeles and finally early Thursday, the death announcement.

Gonzalez said the President, who was awakened both nights, had "circles under his eyes."

Duryea Was Gentle Man, Club Leader
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With a sneer, Dan Duryea shot other actors on the screen and slapped women around. But at home he led a Cub Scout pack and opened his home to his sons' friends.

Duryea, who died Friday of cancer at 61, said he didn't want his sons to remember him as "the guy who took the pot shots at Gary Cooper."

In almost all, he was a Western character or villain. In 1940, on the Broadway stage he gained fame as the sniveling coward Leo Hubbard in William Hellman's play, "Little Foxes." Then he moved to Hollywood to repeat the role on screen.

Female audiences loved it when he belted beauties black and blue. Duryea turned more to varied character roles in recent years. He was a fired adventurer in the movie, "Flight of the Phoenix," and a wandering confidence man, Eddie Jacks, in the television series, "Boyton Place."

Advertising Hit
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission has complained of too much hard-sell in advertisements by the securities industry.

In a talk Friday to a lawyers' conference on broker-dealer regulation problems, Manuel F. Cohen cautioned that the SEC is ready to act against objectionable ads but is hoping self-restraint will do the job.

A Monster In Ireland? Heavens An' Begorra!

DUBLIN (AP) — Nettle, like a swan — only much bigger. Each New Englander may have a cousin back in Ireland. Several Irishmen have reported sighting "Tettonsals" too.

The Irish say their monster lives in the depths of Glendary Lake near Achill Sound over in County Mayo. That's in the wild west of Ireland. The lake is about four acres in extent, wooded on two sides and reputedly very deep. There have been stories for years about a fish, a sure form of prehistoric life.

But recent events have been scaring some of the local folk back in Ireland. The fish, it is said, has been coming ashore, they say.

There was Gay Dever, 16-year-old student, quietly putting his bike up the rise which overlooks the lake. "And there was Ireland's Nessie, humping along the woods, climbing a tuck bank into the woods.

"It was moving in a jumpy way like a kangaroo," Gay breathlessly said in the Dublin Evening Herald. "It had a long head like a sheep and a long neck and tail. The hind legs were bigger than the front ones."

Gay called the monster about 12 feet long, dark in color and "much bigger than a horse."

"I got a little bit frightened, jumped on my bike and rode away as fast as I could."

John Cooney said he'd been passing the lake for more than 30 years and never sighted a thing until just the other day.

"My friend Michael McNulty gave me a lift, he's right, and as we came round a bend, we saw it just in the middle of the road."

"It was between 8 and 12 feet long, I thought, with a long neck."

The fall was very thick. It was moving at an angle to us and we couldn't see exactly how long it was. And it was weaving and curving. We could see it clearly. "It was a dark brown color and was shiny and scaly. The eyes were glittering. I don't know whether it actually looked like a fish or not. It was in an instant into the thick undergrowth. We didn't stop to make any further inquiries."

Over in Scotland the Loch Ness phenomenon investigation unit which keeps tabs on the original Nessie when she appears — usually in the tourist season, skeptics say — found the Irish reports no laughing matter.

They have always said there might be all kinds of monster in several Irish lakes, the deep lakes of Canada and Sweden, just waiting for discovery.

Such lakes, they say, were once sea floors until the land level rose sometime between the end of the Ice Age and a date 5,000 years ago. Nessie and her relatives were cut off from escape back to the seas. Trapped in the lakes, they probably survived because the food and environment were right. At least that's what the monster experts say.

"And the tourist season is coming on."

Drysdale's Shutout Mark: 58 2/3 Innings

Hurler Is Driven From Game After Breaking Record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Donnell examined the pitcher's Drysdale set a major league record for consecutive scoreless innings before being driven from the mound Saturday night in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-3 victory over Philadelphia.

Drysdale, 8-3, broke Walter Johnson's major league record of 58 consecutive scoreless innings when he retired the Philadelphia Peas on a grounder opening the third frame. A capacity crowd of 50,000 gave the 37-year-old right-hander a standing ovation.

But the string ended at 58 2/3 when Howie Bedell a pinch hitter delivered a sacrifice fly with two-out in the fifth inning, scoring Tony Taylor from third base. Singles by Taylor and Clay Dalrymple set up the run.

Drysdale allowed a sixth-inning homer to Bill White and was knocked from the box when he pitched to White in the seventh-inning run that narrowed the Los Angeles lead to 4-3.

The Dodgers piled up their winning margin with four runs in the first four innings against loser Larry Jackson, 6-6. Ken Boyer singled home a first-inning run. The Dodgers scored three, more in the fourth after Tom Haller doubled and took third on Boyer's single.

Boyer scored on a fielder's choice. Boyer scored on an error by Pena and Zoilo Versalles ended the rally with a run-scoring double.

Wes Parker hit a seventh-inning homer for the Dodgers.

The victory was the Dodgers' sixth straight and their ninth in their last 10 games.

U.S. Ties Up Tennis Win Over Ecuador

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — The United States won the Davis Cup American Zone tennis finals Saturday night by taking the doubles after it opened with two victories over Ecuador in the singles Friday night.

Bob Lutz employed booming services and aggressive net game to thoroughly dominate Pancho Guzman and Miguel Olivera of Ecuador, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

Sunday afternoon's two singles matches at the Coliseum will be a formality.

For the second night in a row the smaller Latin Americans failed to break the U.S. service.

Bob Lutz broke Olivera's service in the fourth game of the first set and breezed for an easy victory. They broke Olivera's service in games 3 and 7 in the second set, and in the 11th game of the final set.

Friday night Olivera, a 160-lb. 325-pounder was beaten by Graebner, and Guzman lost to Arthur Ashe.

The doubles victory completed the U.S. team which was defeated by Ecuador last year in Guayaquil.

Graebner was on the losing U.S. doubles team last year, along with Marty Riessen.

The U.S. team will face the European zone winner in the next round of Davis Cup competition.

Green, Salb Shine In USTFF Track Meet; Nine Records Fall, One Tied

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Southeast Conference champion Rapid Jim Green of Kentucky McAlhany had during the year-end Karl Salb of the Jayhawk Track Club became double winners Saturday in the windup of the United States Track and Field Federation Meet that saw nine records fall and one tied.

Green, who had times of 9.3 in the 100 and 20.9 in the 220, easily outdistanced all other competitors for the outstanding competitor award.

Salb, who won the shot with a record 60-foot 7-inch toss, took the discus Saturday with a heave of 122 feet 5 inches.

HARDCOCK McAlhany of Tennessee sprang a big surprise in the 440, with a time of 46 flat, beat of a second held by Don Payne of the old record by two-tenths of a second in 1963.

The best previous time of the 440, the rubberized asphalt track of Butler Stadium apparently wasn't to his liking. At the end of the 440 and the mile relay, which he didn't finish as anchor man, Morton took off his socks, and spiked shoes and hurled them to the ground.

Morton had run the 440 in 45.6. The second best in the nation.

In the women's 100-yard dash, Georgia Johnson of the Lone Star Track Club, won in a time of 10.5. It tied a record set by Mildredette Netter in the preliminaries.

Green's time beat the old mark of 9.4 held by Nate Adams of Purdue in 1953 and James Freeman of Murray State in 1966.

Robert Rovere of East Tennessee and Freeman also had 9.3 times but Green was a fraction ahead of the pair.

Miss McCain's run beat the old mark of 2:22.10 held by Cheryl Pedon who ran unattached in 1968.

Rosewall Tops Laver In French Net Finals

PARIS (AP) — Ken Rosewall, British Hard Courts Champion of Australia won the French Tennis Title again after 15 years Saturday, and remained king of the new open tennis circuit.

He defeated his old rival, Rod Laver, 6-3, 6-1, 2-6, 6-2 before more than 12,000 excited fans, jam-packed around the center court of the Roland Garros stadium.

The final of the world's second open event brought vintage tennis for the fans and a sentimental thrill for Rosewall. Back in 1953, as a star-eyed boy of 18, he competed in this event as an unseeded player and won it. Laver won here as an amateur in 1962.

"I guess I was just as big a thrill this time," Rosewall said. "It's a great feeling to win the world's first major open tennis event." Rosewall defeated Laver in the first open tournament, the five games in a row.

Rosewall won the first two sets with tennis of pinpoint accuracy, landing one lob or passing shot after another in the back corners.

Laver once slammed a ball 200 feet into the air in irritation as he struggled to find his touch. But suddenly he found it, and after trailing 1-2 in the third set he slammed his way through the first open tournament, the five games in a row.

BEFORE AND AFTER COMPARISON

YOUNGER APPEARANCE:

It is often said that "hairpieces make a man look younger." While this may be true it is probably more accurate to say that hairpieces make a man look his age. Boldness makes a man look older. Men who wear LIFE-LIKE hair replacements now look their age or often younger and all agree that if they had known how easy it was they would not have been bold so long.

• They can look truly natural and undetectable when made and worn properly.

• Wearing a hairpiece is not a job... but a vitally important means of success for many men and it has become a science of progressive people.

If you are a hunter or fisherman, a camper, bird watcher, almost anything to do with the outdoors, you have to feel that the world is moving in on you—not slowly but at a gallop.

Everywhere you look these days, there's a threat. Someone wants to take away your guns—your fishing rights—your land—your water—your open spaces—your solitude.

It's the matter of selling your land. It's the matter of selling your fishing rights. It's the matter of selling your water. It's the matter of selling your solitude.

But the cruelest blow is yet to come.

The National Wildlife Federation, which may be blowing a little too hot too soon, nonetheless feels it has its finger on the pulse of what's to come.

It claims in its monthly newsletter the spotters have come up with a whole lot of really good ideas for you and Idaho. It basically is this—federal control and management of all wildlife resources on federally-owned land.

It is a two-part attack. The first would be establishing ownership of wildlife on private land. The second would be to break the precedent of "public ownership" and make trespassing child's play.

Bonallack Wins British Amateur Meet

TRONOE, Scotland (AP)—Michael Bonallack, a 33-year-old Englishman, sank an 18-foot putt on the 30th green for a halve that defeated Walker, Cup captain Joe Carr of Ireland, 7 and 6 for the British Amateur Golf Championship. It is the third time he has won the title.

Bonallack finished the morning 18 holes, 69, against a 70-year-old Carr, himself a triple winner of the crown of Great Britain.

But Carr, 69, won this title—first played in 1885—in 1952, pulled back two holes and was six down at the 21st.

Top Championship Flight Expected For Idaho Golf Tourney Here This Week

Powerful Mike Sweet and crafty veteran Newt Carter of Boise and Utah's Jack Ridd head up a strong delegation of golfers who will be fighting for the 1968 Idaho state amateur golf championship over the Twin Falls Municipal course Friday through Sunday. The host professional Clyde Thomsen said at least 60 entries have been received by the tournament committee, most of them from outside the Twin Falls area. "I think we are going to have a strong championship flight and I anticipate the field will be one of the largest in several years," he said. The tournament committee is aiming for 180, about 100 more than entered last year's state playoffs.

The 29-year-old pro from Jackson, Ga., playing in his second PGA tourney, grabbed the top spot with a 10-under par total of 206 for 54 holes. Right on his heels was veteran Sam Snead who shot 69 for 209. Billy Casper, the PGA's leading money winner this year, and 38-year-old Dutch Harrision also shot 69 for 210 total. Bruce Crampton, leader the first two rounds, shot 75 and slipped to 213. He was playing with Hill after two straight days with Casper.

Middle Fork Cutthroat Study Set

SALMON — The Idaho Fish and Game Department is preparing to begin an investigation of the cutthroat fishery on the Middle Fork of the Salmon River. David Ortmann, fisheries biologist with the department the past five years in Boise, will lead the project. Object of the study is to determine the condition of the fishery and what can be done to improve it. The last study of the cutthroat fishery was done in 1960 and resulted in a three-fish limit being established. Ortmann, who has worked on salmon and steelhead investigations in the lower Salmon River drainage, primarily the South Fork, will work with the department's actual investigation will begin following high water in June.

Cost Factor Might Return Big Time College Football To Ivy Loop Status

By WILL GRIMSLEY Associated Press Sports Writer NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Spiraling costs in college athletics have become so severe that some observers foresee the day that big time college football will be forced back to Ivy League status. This would mean some de-emphasis—abandonment of the two-planet system, no spring training, less high school recruiting, no blanket athletic scholarships. It's unlikely, but would it be bad? In the college majors, the Ivies come closest to being purely amateur. They play among themselves and teams that are generally not connected with their own outlook. The student venture, against such giants as Michigan State, Southern California, Texas and Tennessee. Yet they carry on a constant flirtation with the outside world. "Recruit? Sure, we recruit. We recruit like the dickens," says DeLaney Kipphut, a small forward man who is director of athletics at Yale University. "But we don't subsidize." New Facilities, Inflation Put Financial Bite On Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — The University of Washington's athletic program, like those in many schools across the country, is facing a financial crisis that may eventually change its pattern. Only a scant five years ago, Washington basked among the nation's elite in its athletic program, enjoying a profit of around $200,000 in the 1963-64 season. But university spokesmen say new facilities, expanded athletic programs and spiraling costs have squeezed the margin to almost nothing, despite capacity football crowds and increased income. Unless some way is found to hold down expenses, or boost income substantially, the university's athletic program will operate in the red next fiscal year.

Fullmer Happy About Proposed Title Bout

WEST JORDAN, Utah (AP) — That Italy's "Nino" Benvenuti is considering defending his world middleweight boxing title against Don Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, was exciting and surprising news for the American fighter's family. Benvenuti, in Rome, said Saturday a match with Fullmer was possible but that nothing definite had been decided. "I'm glad to hear Benvenuti talking in that tone," said Don's father, L. W. Fullmer, 59. "Don told me the other night Benvenuti was supposed to make a decision by September." Fullmer, 29, said he was encouraged.

ADVANCED WRITING STUDENTS from Brigham Young University, headed for a five-week tour into Alaska, stopped in Burley recently for the first day of their journey. Student Writers Taking 5-Week Tour Into Alaska

BURLEY—Freelance writing and photography will be a part of a hectic five-week tour into Alaska scheduled by eight students, two advisers and their families.

Ann Nichols, former Minico teacher, is the only local person making the trip. Miss Nichols is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Nichols, Rupert. The group left Provo Tuesday on a 4,800-mile writers odyssey to Alaska and are lunch in Burley.

Operation Midnight Sun, a venture of Brigham Young University's travel Study Department, will move eight advanced writing students into an action-filled summer of magazine and newspaper assignments that will include helicopters, float plane and seaplane trips, logging, fishing, and camping stories and a zodiac-trek into Glacier Bay National Monument where the group will be entirely isolated from civilization for three days.

Arranged in cooperation with BYU's Communication Department the writer's journey is believed to be unique among American Colleges and universities, according to Herbert E. McLean.

McLean is a magazine writing instructor at BYU and leader and tour director of the group.

Travel routes will take the Alaska stops are located on the fabled Inside Passage and include Ketchikan, Wrangell, Petersburg, Juneau and Glacier Bay.

The group will share a large prairie-schooner tent, and will camp out virtually the entire distance. The students are driving three 1968 Chevrolet station wagons for the trip, a 1968 Chevrolet pickup, using a Vista Liner camper as "command" vehicle with a Treevay camp trailer bringing up the rear.

Before the group began the trip they participated in intensive "briefings" and instructions in water safety, first aid and defensive driving.

Miss Nichols is a graduate student in communications at BYU and is associate editor of development publications on American Colleges and universities.

Daly Resigns As Voice Of America Head

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Charles Daly, resigned as head of the Voice of America with a blast at his boss, U.S. Information Agency chief Leonard Marks, for "executive under-cutting."

In a letter to Marks made public by USIA, Daly, a former radio-TV newscaster and longtime moderator of the "What's My Line" show, said he is not quitting because of any USIA effort to control what is in the Voice of America's global broadcasts.

But he is leaving "the VOA post effective Friday," Daly said, because of "maladministration" affecting senior personnel at the Voice of America carried out by Marks' office during Daly's recent trip abroad.

Daly did not name in his resignation the persons involved.

But he told Marks: "In full knowledge of the objection to such executive under-cutting, an assistant representing your office has persisted in the previous action and directed the disposition of a senior Voice of America executive without discussing with, or reference to, my office."

Lackadaisical Lion Is Lopy, Lethargic Lover

By MICHAEL CHESTER

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—The lion, king of the jungle, is not only the largest of the big cats of Africa, he is by far the laziest. Leo spends as much as 20 hours a day resting or fast asleep. And as a lover he can draw a zero.

The reputation of the lion as a handsome Casanova, holding nonchalant and constant guard over the African plains, and a regular playboy in the harem at all-duty time, has been rudely shaken by a current research project to Tanzania sponsored by the New York Zoological Society and financed by the National Science Foundation of the United States.

The social life of Leo has been under close scrutiny from George B. Schaller, an American expert who is now in the middle of a three-year study at sprawling Serengeti National Park.

Schaller has literally tuned in on the lion-at-home—with the help of Howard Baldwin of the Sensory Systems Laboratory of Arizona. They have managed the candid radio method by fitting transistor radio gadgets on collars fixed around the necks of several lions.

The routine varies of course, but the average lion now in the lions' resting or sleeping, about 3 1/2 hours roaming, and around half an hour for dining.

Schaller believes the information is essential if such predators as the cheetah, leopard, lion and hunting dog are to be preserved with their natural prey in the relatively confined sanctuaries where they usually live nowadays.

Schaller finds Leo a poor father. As a rule, lionesses among cubs is fantastically high, as much as 75 per cent, and usually occurring in the first 18 months. Leo does quite well at a 20-hour-a-day job, but junior often starves to death.

As to sex, the survey has found the lioness sometimes doesn't bother about it for as long as a year.

"Females," as Schaller put it in an interim report, "fail to live up to their breeding potential."

In addition, the survey has found that Leo is an active scavenger rather than a caddyshoe in a predator of such standing. Nomadic lions on the plains scavenge more than 25 per cent of their food, principally wildebeest, from hyenas.

On the plains, three-fourths of Leo's diet is wildebeest or zebra, easily found, easily killed. But he is too lazy to follow when they go on their distant migration route marches. If gazelles are abundant, then it's gazelle on the menu. If there are mainly buffalo around, then it's buffalo. Leo is not very fussy at meal-times.

The radio experiment with Leo is all part of a three-year study begun by Schaller in a special project to analyze predators—and their prey. The results should help conservationists and game wardens keep a healthy population balance.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

The new Kiwanis Park Ingress and trees. There various organizations held cookouts, the grade school had its annual picnic, and the small fry splashed in the cool water duty irrigation periods, where once stood a service station, a store, and a dance hall. These edifices had long since burned to the ground and the Declo Women's Club had converted the site into the park.

Another area for outdoor recreation is being developed by the LDS church next to their building. Once an open field planted with grass, where the Junior League football team practiced, there is now a soft-ball field completed. About seventy trees are already purchased for planting around the entire plot, and future plans include an outdoor fireplace for cookouts.

Declo is indeed fortunate to have these civic-minded groups working for the beautification and improvement of outdoor facilities for the enjoyment of its citizens, old and young. Their enthusiasm, hard work and altruism would be a credit to any city.

The water wheel no longer mumps Snake River water to the Kenneth Seese farm west of GLENN'S FERRY. In fact, none of the huge wheels pump water any more in this section of the river since the power dams have made it impossible and impracticable to keep them in operation. The water wheels are now used as a decorative feature and wheel adjustments to be made several times a day to keep in touch.

So, the water is propelled onto the farm, lands nowadays by power pumps instead. But the wheels had their day, and their construction is an ingenious and magnificent feat, a tribute to the ingenuity of man.

The Seese wheel was built by Emil Hansen and the late Ernest Eicholz who built his own huge wheel across the River from Glenn's Ferry, too. There were no blueprints for these constructions. Hansen and Eicholz BURLEY and looked over a wheel then in operation, and from that he worked out the design and the machinery, and helped others with theirs.

There's little left of any of these wheels along the river now, just a few have remnants remaining. They did their job to get water to the thirsty land long before there was any power in this area.

The water current striking the cups or troughs on the wheels caused them to turn, and when swung to the top of the structure with the wheel's rotation, they dumped their glittering contents into the reservoir, or trough leading to the ditch.

The wheel had to be many feet in diameter to raise the water up as high as it must be to reach the ditch; the balance had to be just right, and then all the time the apparatus was used, there had to be repairs made from time to time. A lot of time and money there. They weren't as trouble free as the electric pumps are on the flinting plant, but they were an ingenious method of providing for irrigation in the early days.

A bus trip to California was held up when the bus in door near the Nevada-California border. The story was telephoned to RICHFIELD by Dale Johnson, who was traveling with his Hawaiian Gardens, Calif., where he will be employed by McDonald's Drive-In.

Mrs. Oleen Lewis, Declo, Is Retiring After 36 Years Of Teaching School

Declo — The Declo Elementary School will not be the same next fall. The faculty roster will be diminished by the loss of one of the ablest and most respected of its instructors.

Mrs. Oleen (Anne) Lewis, long-time third grade teacher, has announced her retirement after 36 years of service in her profession, most of it spent at the Declo School.

It was with mixed emotions that I finished my teaching career," said Mrs. Lewis, understandingly.

After completing one year at the Albion State Normal School, at the age of 19 she began teaching in a one-room school, with all eight grades, in Varn Creek, Idaho. "I was principal, teacher, and janitor," she recalls with a smile.

The next year she taught at the Miller School in Burley, after which she returned to the Normal School for another year, receiving her life diploma. The following nine years she taught at the Southwest School in Burley.

From then on, with the exception of one year spent caring for her aunt, Mrs. Ephraim Nichols, with whom she had made her home for many years, she has taught continuously at the Declo School.

Keeping abreast of the times, Mrs. Lewis took summer courses at the University of Utah, State Teachers College in San Francisco, Bellingham Normal in Washington, and Caroly Swapp School in Long Beach, Calif., and Idaho State University in Pocatello. She also took various extension and correspondence courses which she has taken up to go forth into all walks of life, and achieve success in many fields. Among students she has taught are doctors, dentists, nurses, teachers, and business men, for example. She derives much satisfaction from seeing them doing so many worthwhile things with their lives.

"I would like to think," she says, "that I had inspired at least a few to more fully develop their talents; and be able to

AS HER MOTHER. Mrs. Leon Pagoga, looks on, Miss Katharine Pagoga, 16, is handed a solo certificate certifying she is the second girl that age to make a first solo flight at the Twin Falls Municipal Airport. Handing the certificate to the girl is Ken Hepper, chief pilot for Reeder Flying Service. He was the pilot who sent Miss Pagoga on her initial flight which she accomplished on her birthday. Federal law prohibits solo flights before that age. The young pilot is a resident of Shoshone and will be a member of the junior class of the high school in that community this fall.

Shoshone Girl Makes Solo Flight At 16

SHOSHONE — A 16-year-old plane flight. Katherine Pagoga, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Pagoga, Shoshone, is the second girl ever to fly solo at that age at the Twin Falls Municipal Airport officials of the Reeder Flying Service there report.

She had met the prerequisites for the solo flight, eight hours of flying, and taken classes on weekends prior to the big event. In addition to adding to the record for young pilots at Joslin field, Katherine is the only girl who has taken flying lessons from Lincoln county.

Her instructors are Kenneth I. Kepner, director of training; Harry R. Merrick, chief flight instructor; and Robert V. Ford, flight instructor.

She was not permitted to solo before she was 16 and she cannot pilot until she is 17 or commercial until 18. She is beginning the pilot training now and plans to continue to commercial flying.

"An interest in space has not do a bit kindled the Shoshone girl's desire to learn to fly, that coupled with the fact that her mother had taken some lessons a number of years ago along with the pilot training now and plans to continue to commercial flying.

a half hour to about an hour, usually, depending on regulations and weather.

She has just finished her sophomore year at Shoshone High School, where she received a number of awards for her activities.

Among the awards from Shoshone high are a scholastic for all A's in five subjects, a perfect attendance a w a r d; letter in track, national Beta Club, typing, F.I.A., Tattler, drama; and Annual awards. She took second in the science fair this spring and was named, by the faculty, as the most cooperative girl. Her out-of-school activities also include piano lessons from Mrs. Edward Savaris and lessons at Herrett's Art and Museum at Twin Falls. She has prepared to lecture classes, there, having taken an interest in the work when she visited the museum along with other youths in a campfire group which was led by her mother.

Katherine is a member of the Shoshone DeSales Club and St. Peter's Catholic Church and teaches a catechism class.

She is an ardent fisherwoman, having fly fished since she was 5 years old. The last two summers she spent with her grandmother, Mrs. C. F. Meiser Buhl, and plans to go there again this summer.

The flying course is controlled by regulations and she had to have a medical certificate issued within the 24 months prior to the class, must maintain satisfactory attendance and a schedule and progress rate that will insure completion of the course within one year after date of enrollment unless special conditions exist that will warrant additional time extension by the school.

Each flight is graded by the instructor and the overall grade must be 70 per cent or better to be considered satisfactory. The percentage is in relation to a perfect grade of 100 per cent.

The school maintains a log book of flights, progress record and daily flight record. All students must comply with F.A.R.'s airport rules and school regulations.

Prison Sentence Set In Blaine County For Man

HAILEY — Sheriff Orville Drexler left Hailey Friday morning for Boise with Anson Bernhardt, 38, who will begin serving two concurrent sentences at the Idaho State Penitentiary after pleading guilty to first degree burglary charges in Blaine and Cassia Counties.

The young man was placed on probation by Judge Charles Scoggin after pleading guilty to burglarizing the Silver Dollar Bar in Bellevue. He had been held in Blaine County jail two months before being sentenced.

Following his sentence of three years in the state penitentiary, Judge Scoggin placed him on probation. He was then arrested in Cassia County on charges of burglary. He was sentenced to five years by Judge Sherman Bellwood. Judge Scoggin then revoked the probation and ordered that Bernhardt serve the two sentences concurrently.

Something About A Boy And His Dog...

There is something about a boy and his dog that makes the world a better place.

It is the affection they show each other. And it is the genuine love they share.

There is no joy so expansive as the joy of a young boy who is given his first dog. And there is no grief greater than the grief shown by a young boy whose dog has died.

It is often a boy's first genuine friend. And the dog's loyalty is often a boy's first graphic example of the power of kindness.

No boy is truly lonely who has his own dog. And no dog can do better than to have his own boy.

It is a very nice arrangement.

Question Of Religious View Interests Writer

By JAN ARTHUR SAINSBURY

Times-News Feature Editor

A religious view is an interesting thing. Question a man about it and he becomes defensive, as if you are probing into a zone of secrets meant only for others in agreement. Discuss it and the conversation often ends in argument, as if the very mention of religion was somehow taboo. Ignore it and it does not go away. If one wants to lose friends and alienate people the way to do it is to ask their religion the first meeting. Somehow distrust is born of such a statement. And yet, religion is defined by most people as a type of mortar for mankind. It is a substance to hold a thousand bricks of various sizes and shapes together in a massive wall of commonality.

Religion is the social device men use in a hurried attempt to save the world from destruction by its own inhabitants. It is the hope they cling to as they watch the world sink by degrees into a dangle of prejudice and religion itself.

Religion is both cause and effect for much of the illness clinging to our contemporary society.

The preaching and pleading of old and new religions is for brotherly love, goodness, belief in God, and a utilization of the pre-Christian tenet, do unto others as you would have them do unto you. And at the same time, because of their very organization into the "I am right, and you are wrong," denominations, they factionalized our world into various groups all seeking the same goal, immortality, and refusing to believe that any path except their own will lead to that end.

Religion, the organized kind, often splits families and will make enemies of friends. It separates lovers and discards sweethearts. It tries its best to ignore those who do not agree with it, and to absorb those who do. It desires growth, for in growth is money needed to grow further and to acquire power. Money, Power, and Growth form the secular trinity on which organized religion bases its claim to divine inspiration.

Organized religion inspires increasing belief and therefore degrees of intolerance. The hard core prejudiced and bigoted are usually of firm foundation in some organized religion for it gives them the basis to hate or pity others with impunity. The organized religions will admit that prayer can be served and God respected just as well from a tent as from a million dollar building. And yet, millions are still spent to glorify God while billions of people live in squalor and wretchedness. Surely a magnificent building can do without carpets to feed a few hundred starving people for a year. Surely a magnificent building can do without a spire to see that cancer research is accelerated. Surely a magnificent building can do without marble fountains and rich fabrics to build schools in countries which will someday have the population of ours. Surely a slightly less magnificent building would not offend God. Surely He would understand. And yet the buildings continue to be built bigger and better and brighter and bolder. And as the billions starve, God must smile down on his congregations and say, "First things first," as another new slab of paneling is placed on the "prettiest church in town."

Organized religions meet at favorable times so that the congregation will not be inconvenienced too much. It is a matter of convenience. Most would rather send their check than work wrapping packages with twice as long to homeless children in a war-torn city.

Most would rather attend church for two hours a week and play the role of a hypocrite the other six days, than live a truly religious life for six days, and have a neighbor catch them washing their car on Sunday.

Don't work on the sabbath, some say, and so they take their families out to dinner, wherever, and others to work on the sabbath for pay. It somehow doesn't make sense. To say "hell" or "damn" is taboo, but cheating on income tax is to some church goers an accepted way of life.

Having a daughter become pregnant prior to marriage is a tragedy. Having her marry the "right" kind of boy whether she loves him or not is a much more "religious" course. When the youngster gets straight A's in college, because he uses crib notes and fraternity tent sheets and sleeps with the teacher, it makes him desirable to the business world, and he becomes an advertising man lying in clients about how much he enjoys their product. He is successful and speaks from the church pulpit.

But when the youngster struggles honestly to achieve C's and lets his hair grow and wears inexpensive clothing, he is not desirable to anyone. He is an honest man and a religious man, but few pulpits will honor his address.

A religious view is an interesting thing. Question a man about it and he becomes defensive, as if you are probing into a zone of secrets meant only for others in agreement. Discuss it and the conversation often ends in argument, as if the very mention of religion was somehow taboo. Ignore it and it does not go away. It is with us forever.

HAPPY IDAHO ANGLERS like the above are not uncommon. However, recent tests conducted by the Idaho Fish and Game Department may possibly make even more fishermen happy. These tests involve exercising catchable sized, hatchery reared, rainbow trout by forcing them to swim against increased water velocity. This has the same effect as the businessman's workout at the gym. Since the fish are in better physical conditions when they are planted, they survive longer and therefore are available longer to Idaho anglers.

Exercise Improves Rainbows

By DONNA HURD
Idaho Fish-Game Department
Callisthenics for fish may sound a little strange like an idea discovered on an LSD "trip." However, results of preliminary tests conducted by the Idaho Fish and Game Department indicate that this may be an important way to improve Idaho fishing.

Although the fish are not required to jump rope or to do pushups, they are made to swim against increased water velocity for 15 minutes a day. This has the same effect as the businessman's daily workout at the gym.

Like the businessman that sits at his desk all day, the hatchery fish have little physical activity. All of their necessities are provided for them. There is no reason why they shouldn't be lazy. Consequently, when they are planted in a stream, they are not too well equipped to live there. In the stream they must find their own food and cover in strange surroundings.

This is not at all like the quiet life of the hatchery raceway. Idaho Fish and Game Department hatcheries annually raise around three and one half million catchable size trout (6 inches and over). It is important that as many as possible of these fish are caught during the same season they are planted as there is very little carryover into the next year.

Fisheries scientists have long recognized and documented the rather short life of hatchery reared trout after planting in streams.

According to Stacey Gebhardt, fishery management supervisor, last year was the first year fish exercising tests were run in Idaho. Tests were made in five rivers and two lakes—St. Joe, Little Salmon, Big Lost, North Fork of the Snake, and Blackfoot rivers; and Waha-Lake and Spring Valley Reservoir. To test whether or not the exercised trout did provide more fishing, both exercised and regular hatchery trout were released at the same time and place. The fish were planted as soon as possible after exercising was finished. Both kinds of fish were marked and intensive C.R.E.I. checks were made to determine when and how many of each kind of fish were caught.

Some groups of fish were exercised for five days and other groups for 10 days. This allowed the biologists to determine not only if there was an improvement in fishing over exercised and nonexercised fish, but also if there was a difference between fish from groups that had been conditioned for different lengths of time. To be most economical, the exercise program should run no longer than necessary to obtain significant improvement as it does involve extra work for hatchery personnel.

Analysis of data collected showed that there appeared to be increased returns from fish conditioned for 10 days and generally very little or no increase in returns for fish conditioned for five days. However, this applied only to fish planted in streams. These fish planted in lakes did not show any differences between exercised and unexercised fish.

Another important aspect of this study was to determine if the exercised fish survived longer than the unconditioned fish. Tags from unconditioned fish were returned from the St. Joe River for a period of eight weeks after the planting. No tags from unconditioned fish were returned after this period, while tags from exercised fish were returned over a period of 17 weeks.

Also the Blackfoot River was shut off near the end of the fishing season which enabled salvage of the remaining fish. Exercised fish outnumbered the regular hatchery fish 30 to six. The above indicates that exercised fish may have a longer life and therefore be available to the angler for a longer period of time.

In two of the studies, the fish were all planted in one place enabling observations to be made on downstream drift. In both studies (North Fork of the Snake River and Blackfoot River) unconditioned fish displayed more downstream drift, indicating better physical condition of the fish that had been exercised. Gebhardt noted that the "regular" of last year's tests were quite encouraging and more tests are planned for this year. In addition, to those tested last year, there will be four new sites—Johnson Creek, a tributary of the South Fork of the Salmon, Big Wood, Middle Fork of the Boise and Portneuf rivers.

Book Review

THE DOUBLE HELIX
By JAMES D. WATSON, along with Francis Crick and Maurice Wilkins, was awarded the Nobel Prize for Medicine and Physiology together. Watson, Crick and Wilkins had merged data from chemistry, physics and biology to solve the structure of DNA. A discovery made in 1953, has according to British physicist Sir Lawrence Bragg, been one of the major scientific events of the century, causing an explosion in biochemistry which has transformed the science.

"The Double Helix" is Watson's account of the events which culminated in this achievement. DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) is the molecule of heredity, and an understanding of its structure enables science to learn how genetic directions are written and transmitted. Genes consist largely of nucleoproteins, the components of which are protein and nucleic acid. DNA determines the function of genes. The essence of the Watson-Crick discovery is that DNA has a double helical structure. The DNA in genes is a spiralled double chain of nucleotides, one chain parallel to the other. The two chains are held together by purine-pyrimidine attachments, adenine being attached to thymine, and guanine to cytosine.

Those who have neglected to brush up on high school or college biology need not be discouraged, however, for the book is more an autobiographical fragment than a treatise in biochemistry. Not only is it an account of the gestation of a scientific discovery, but it is also an unparing evaluation of the people involved in that discovery.

Watson's penchant for gossip, although not always judicious, reveals the foibles of scientists, who are, after all, human. The author's intent is in fact to show that "science seldom proceeds in the straightforward logical manner imagined by outsiders. Instead, its steps forward (and sometimes backward) are often very human events in which personalities and cultural traditions play major roles."

Watson met Francis Crick, whom he never to see "in a modest mood" when he came to the Cavendish Laboratory of Cambridge University in 1951. Watson was on a post-doctoral fellowship in Europe to learn the biochemistry of DNA, having received his degree in genetics from Indiana University in 1950. This fortuitous meeting soon developed into a partnership that led to the discovery of the double helix.

The narrative of this drama is never dull. There were disappointments; miscalculations resulted from erroneous solutions that would not be relinquished. There were tedious hours of experiment and frantic competition between individuals and even countries. There were violent arguments with the notable and notorious Rosalind Franklin, Maurice Wilkins' lab partner in London. And there was

The Dirty Game Of Politics

 party and it automatically made the politician one too.
 Some accused Stevenson of being homosexual because of his "elegant phrasing and courtly manner."
 LBJ was to have been suspect because of the 1964 incident involving Walter Jenkins, a long-time associate of Johnson.
 "Jenkins' career came to an end in the men's washroom of the YMCA across from Lafayette Park in Washington, D.C. He was caught by officers stationed at peepholes behind a wall in the men's room... or at least that is how the hatemongers would like it to go."
 In actuality Jenkins was arrested the evening of October 1, 1964 and the blotter read "disorderly conduct (indecent gestures)." Two days went by and a story didn't appear on the front pages and so anonymous tips began coming into the newspapers and radio-television stations saying that something interesting was on the record concerning a morals charge against Jenkins. The Republicans made great fun of it... issuing a statement that there was a "report sweeping Washington that the White House is desperately trying to suppress a major news story affecting the national security."

 And that did it.
 The story broke and was blown up all out of proportion to the original incident.
 True as it was that Jenkins should have been fired, etc., everyone who had ever known Jenkins should not have been pointed at in suspicion. But dirty politics works that way.
 Goldwater handled the situation with a great deal of tact. Johnson accepted Jenkins' resignation with regret.
 But, Goldwaterites in California printed bumper stickers by the thousands which read, "Johnson is King and Jenkins is Queen."
 Segregationist Leader Perez handed out "three-dollar bills" good for three bucks at Jenkins' House, each having a picture of President Johnson on it, and a drawing of the White House under which the legend "Baker and Jenkins' House" could be read.
 The simplest kind of dirty politics and yet often the most effective is the use of a candidate's own statement to hang him. In the case of Eisenhower it was easy. One statement was printed and used again and again against Eisenhower and went like this: "Every time you eat a boiled egg, unless you raise it yourself, you pay 100 taxes on that egg. One hundred taxes and then we wonder where the prices come from." Syntax was no one of Eisenhower's long suits.
 And just think... we have a nice big unpredictable election coming up in a few months. Undoubtedly, there are many who can hardly wait.

College Gets Memorials, Radio Set

MAGIC VALLEY CHRISTIAN COLLEGE, Albion — Several gifts have been received recently by Magic Valley Christian College, Dr. Don R. Nielson, college president, reports.
 Dr. D. A. Moellmer, Rupert physician and Albion resident, has donated an amateur radio set to the college. He and his wife are leaving soon for a Peace Corps assignment to British Guiana.
 Amateur radio has been a hobby of the doctor's for many years and he recently acquired a new portable radio transmitter and receiver to take with him on his Peace Corps assignment.
 Dr. Nielson, who is scoutmaster for a Boy Scout troop sponsored by the college, said the boys currently are learning the Morse code from a record Dr. Moellmer donated with the radio set.
 Gifts also have been received by the college in memory of the late O. Harvey Evans, Boise, a charter member of the college board of trustees, who died May 24.

Burglary Attempt

HATLEY — Blaine County officers are looking for a tall-burglary suspect.
 Sheriff Orville Drexler said someone attempted to break into the Hatley office of the Mountain States Telephone Co. by removing weather stripping from above the window over the large front entrance doors.
 Sheriff Drexler said the window, about three feet square, is located about eight feet from the ground. Officers said apparently the would-be burglar or burglars were frightened away.

clubs would give East and West a chance to see what South's problems really were.

Thereafter South played dummy's three diamonds at trick two and went right up with his king. At this point West could have taken his ace and returned a diamond to set the slam two tricks or he could just have taken his ace and let South whittle for his 12th trick, but unfortunately for the defense West had been thinking while South was planning his play and West had come to the conclusion that South's hand was just what it was plus the queen of diamonds. In that case, if West took his ace of diamonds South would fall back on the spade finesse for his 12th trick, while if West ducked South might lead a second diamond to make the needed trick in that suit.

But after the king of diamonds held South cashed the clubs and hearts. Then he took the spade finesse to make his contract.

South was one point shy for his jump to three no-trump and North was quite a bit shy for his jump to six. Not that the contract was hopeless. South had 10 top tricks and would make his slam if East held both the king of spades and ace of diamonds.

The first trick went to dummy's ace of hearts and South looked things over. Should he start by running off the club suit? East and West would have trouble discarding but South would. Furthermore, play of the

Theatrical Activity Is Great Outlet

In our daily column we frequently suggested that you enrich your life by joining a non-profit or community-theatrical group. That advice stands. We know of no cluster of people more accepting and turned on than theater people.

The stage is a world of illusion; can't the people who play it be real? An enthusiastic yes! To act in or stage a play, you must be attuned to the joys, pains and perplexities of others. You must empathize with them means liberation. You finally look beyond yourself, and your love-affair-with-the-mirror-and-understand how others feel.

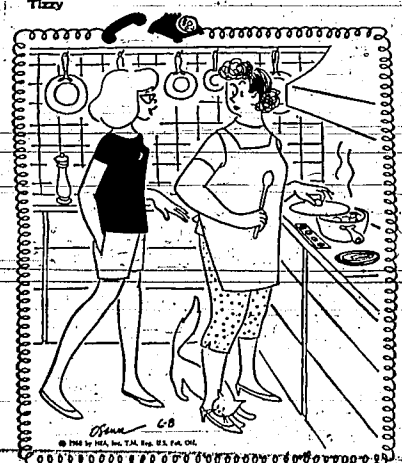

This reaching out means you actually look at, listen to and touch life. The sunniest musical, "Hello, Dolly!" makes you explore the meaning of love, the anxiety of common people, the pang of death and the fear of commitment. Imagine what a workout "Hair" of Rain" (drug addiction), "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" or "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" give their cast and crew.

HUMANISTIC OUTLOOK
 The pay-off doing a really serious play is to see every worst villain as a flawed human being, misshapen by life. Today's theater does not go for the melodramatic villain-in-a-black cape with an evil mousethroat.

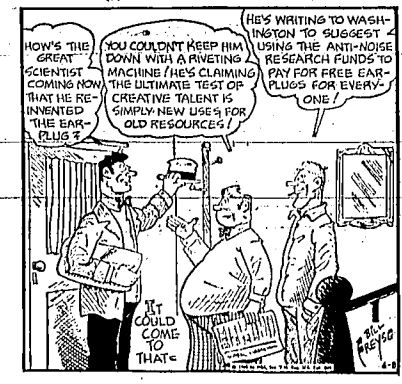

Be realistic about your romance with the theater. There are very few people who can make a living in show business. As an avocational activity, a supplement to your work-a-day world, it can be enchantment. As a full time career, it's heart-breaking for nine out of ten persons.

Even if you're sure you want to spend your life behind the proscenium arch, prepare yourself with many means of support. Gals are wise to complete a full secretarial course as a back-up. Guys might use their talents to major in the art of selling insurance or real estate.

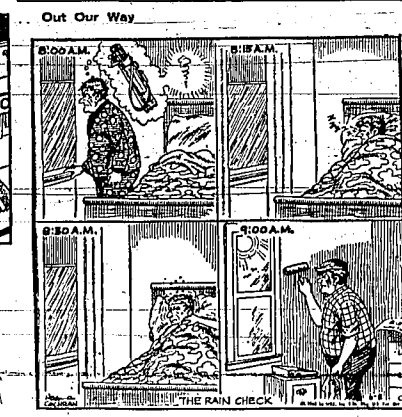

There's no business like show business. If you've the slightest urge to find out, get moving!

Ask Them Yourself

FOR SEN. MARGARET CHASE SMITH, Maine

Do you think we will have a woman as President in the near future?—Mrs. Jean Burson, Sunset, Utah

● I can answer that question in one word—"No."

FOR MSGR. NICHOLAS H. WEGNER, director, Boys Town

What is the predominant age group of boys entering Boys Town?—Mrs. Joe Jacob, Saskatchewan, Canada

● Boys are accepted at Boys Town between the ages of 10 and 16. During 1967, which can be considered typical, the 14-year-old age group had more boys accepted than all others.

FOR CHUCK CONNORS

On "Cowboy in Africa," who does the riding and roping for you and Tom Nardin?—Bob McClary, Coppell, Texas

● My TV stuntman is Mickey Gilbert. Tom's is Joseph Yrigoyen.

FOR SAMUEL G. KLING,

attorney and author of "The Career Guide to Everyday Law" Can a person be sued for slander because of something said in a gossip session?—D. L., Lewiston, Maine

● Yes, it is the damage to the person's character or reputation in the eyes of others that is the essential ingredient of slander. If that "something" is damaging and the statement is made in front of at least one other person, a suit for slander can be instituted.

FOR ROBERT BALL,

Commissioner of Social Security Why do Social Security checks come with odd cents, instead of being rounded off to the nearest dollar?—Mrs. George Toustley, Sr., Florissant, Mo.

● The Social Security Law states: "The statutory maximum payable to an individual may be exceeded only by rounding off odd cents to the next ten cents."

FOR PAUL EHRLICH,

biologist, Stanford University In your book "Time of Families," you advocate "treating" food and water to halt the world's population explosion. Wouldn't this create a kind of "Hydrogen Bomb World"?—Ben R. Dely, Monterey Park, Calif.

● Treating food and water was not the only solution suggested. Since it is not feasible technologically or socially, I have suggested less drastic steps including revised taxes, education to change attitudes, and revised foreign-aid policies. We have refused to take the necessary steps to decrease the birth rate, and will soon see the inevitable consequences of this in an increasing death rate. Giving up the "right" of irresponsible reproduction is the price of retaining our freedom to live.

FOR VINCE LOMBARDI,

general manager, Green Bay Packers What prayer do you and your players say before and after each game, win, lose, or draw?—Urban G. Bley, North Hollywood, Calif.

● We say "The Lord's Prayer."

FOR S. E. CHARLTON,

marketing vice president, Hahn Oil & Refining Company Why do gasoline companies give their customers 10-digit credit-card account numbers when the U.S. Government only uses nine digits for Social Security numbers?—Larry W. Seltzer, Austin, Texas

● We have found that the 10-digit number is the surest way correctly to identify the company and the customer. The first two digits identify the issuing company and the billing office; the next two identify the alphabetic and cycle-billing group; the next five digits make up the customer identification; the final number is determined by a formula and is essential in billing.

FOR CLAIRE BLOOM, actress

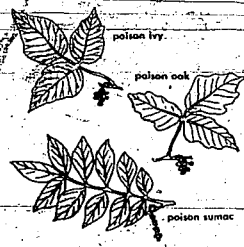

Being fashion-conscious, where do you stand on miniskirts?—N. C. Huron, S.D.

● In them—I think they are smashing. The only time a woman shouldn't wear them is when she feels too old for them.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Rash Action The best thing to do about poison ivy, poison sumac, and poison oak is to stay away from them. If you should be exposed, though, the American Medical Association suggests you wash all affected areas with warm water and soap; then sponge with a 50 to 70 percent alcohol solution. Don't scratch. Calamine lotion or wet borax acid dressings may make you feel better but, if the inflammation is extensive, you should see a doctor.

Mini-Cigarette In the U.S., cigarettes are getting longer and longer. North of the border, though, a Canadian tobacco company has come out with a new butt that's one-quarter inch shorter than the regular length. It costs a little less and is for the man who wants to smoke a little less, too.

Tycoon Talk The man who wants to succeed in big business has to develop a "talent" for "committeepeak," a roundabout way of saying what you really mean at meetings. For example: "Are we quite sure we want to do this?" (I'm 100 percent against it.) Or, "I'm not quite as well-briefed as I should have liked..." (I just this minute found out what the meeting is all about.) Or, "If I am wrong, I hope someone will correct me." (I'll fire the first man who tries.)

About Face The lady is usually recognized by her one-of-a-kind hairdo and by costumes that drip rhinestones by the pound and feather boas by the mile. But for her first straight acting role, as Mrs. Zero in the film version of Elmer Rice's "The Adding Machine,"

Phyllis Diller will look like this. She's not stepping too far out of character, though; she still plays a nagging wife. Guess who?

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Benjamin and Paula Prentiss are looking around for more husband-and-wife roles as they played on TV's now divorced "Ho and She." "There are advantages," says Dick. "The work goes faster because a husband and wife have a built-in shorthand. And if you're working with your wife, you don't have to wait till you get home at night to fight with her." Still, if the offer's good enough, "they're willing to star in separate love scenes. 'We have a good marriage now,'" says Dick. "We feel we can stay together without playing together."

Curly—The Dog That

As a child, this famous author found himself in grave danger many times, yet on each occasion he was saved from death by his mongrel pet

By STERLING NORTH

Author of "Basal", "So Dear to My Heart", "Raccoons Are the Brightest People," etc.

ONE OF MY first memories was that of grasping the glistening pelt of my constant friend and childhood companion, Curly.

I remember that I was learning how to walk and that only the dog kept me from falling. Curly was a beautiful mongrel standing at least 28 inches high at the shoulders and combining the many virtues and vices of her mixed ancestry.

She was jet black except for a white, heart-shaped shield on her chest and four immaculate white mittens. Her hair was long, curly, and very glossy. She had two large, deep-brown eyes that were full of merriment at one moment and full of compassion the next.

She walked very slowly and sedately beside me while I, hanging on with one hand, toddled down to the barn or the spring or any other place of interest on our 40-acre farm on the shores of Lake Koshkonong in southern Wisconsin.

I had other protectors, of course, including my brilliant but overworked mother (who was to die when I was only seven), my gentle but impractical father, and my two sisters and brother who were in their teens. During the long days when the older children were away at high school, however, and my mother was busy with house and farm work, my only companion was frequently that same dog, Curly.

Curly had two bad habits. She sometimes clamped her teeth on the switch at the end of a cow's tail to get a "free ride" when she was sent to the pasture to bring the herd in for milking. She also loved the taste of eggs, which she would steal from the chicken house. We were far too poor then to allow her the luxury of those forbidden eggs, so another of my early memories was that of Curly running in circles pawing at her mouth and crying with the pain inflicted by the red pepper that had been placed in a decoy egg in one of the nests to break her of the habit. Curly was a sensitive dog and felt her disgrace very deeply not only because of the physical pain but also because of the strong disapproval from the members of the family. She often retreated under the porch, where no adult or teenager could reach her because they were too large.

I felt that I should bolster her in this protest and therefore crawled under the porch to join her. I comforted her as best I could and howled sympathetically when she howled. Now the family was distraught—not only their dog, but their vociferous two-year-old seemed to be on a sit-down strike. I said clearly and distinctly, "I'm staying with Curly." My mother begged me to come out, but I said, "Not unless you're sorry." Eventually the family was able to coax us both out, and we were both forgiven and petted.

Water has always fascinated me. It was this allure that caused three of my early misadventures before I was four years old. Our metal stock tank from which the horses and cattle drank was about 10 feet across and 2½ feet deep. It was always kept brimming full of cold, clear water. Black bass, pickerel, and catfish caught in the lake were kept alive in this tank. I was too short to see over the edge of the tank, so I dragged a wooden box to a vantage point and climbed upon it for a ringside seat to watch the fish.

One day, when I leaned too far over the edge of the tank, I lost my balance and fell in. I got my mouth and nose full of water and began screaming, "Help, Mother! Help, Curly!" Quite conceivably I could have drowned. My mother came running, but before she got there, Curly, who was part retriever, had dragged me, dripping and walling, from the tank. After this drowning, it was some weeks before I was tempted to cross the pasture to the gleaming lake. Unfortunately, on the day I tried to cross the pasture, my movement annoyed our bull. He was a mean creature in any case who had charged my sisters when they had been in the pasture. The bull, seeing me, bellowed and began pawing the turf. Curly barked sharply, but the bull was undeterred.

After a few moments of pawing, he started after me with his horns lowered ready to pick me up and toss me. Curly saw the danger. She used her regular tactic of grabbing his tail and as the bull turned in circles trying to throw off the dog, I scrambled back under the fence.

Not all of my time on that little farm was spent being endangered by the bull or falling into the tank. In fact, I learned much during those first years, merely by following my mother or my brother and sisters to the strawberry patch, into the orchard, or into the woods, where we gathered hickory nuts in the fall. I learned to recognize many of the common birds and flowers. I learned the names of each cow and each horse, and I had friends among these animals. My mother already was teaching me a few songs and poems. That was one of her great virtues—she was a born teacher.

All of my life I have loved to canoe and sail. We always have lived on water and played with water. As I write this, I look out from one of the many wide windows of the house we have built on 27 acres of wood and water near Morristown, N.J.

As I have said, water has always captivated me. When I was three the best stream of running water that I knew was a small spring-fed brook called "Short's Run," which ran through an adjacent farm. It was cold and clear and seldom more than four feet wide and six inches deep, although there were deeper pools, too.

I had failed to get to the alluring lake beyond the pasture, but I was determined to play in "Short's Run." So one day when Curly and I were rambling, I had the notion to run away, at least as far down the country road as the bridge over "Short's Run."

Sterling North is the author of numerous books dealing with animals and Americana.

I had graduated from rompers to blue denim overalls, which looked much like those worn by my father and also by my big 17-year-old brother. They were sturdy and ripproof, a fact which was to help save my life later on that same adventuresome day.

As I started out the gate into the public road, Curly danced and romped around me. Her red tongue lolled out of her mouth, and her brown eyes were shining with excitement. It was the first time I had ventured down the road, and Curly didn't remember that she should have barked a warning and, if necessary, pulled me back to the safety of the yard. The truth was that Curly was as eager for adventure as I.

This particular dirt road wound its way toward Edgerton, our nearest market town. It was down this road that my sisters Theo and Jessica and my brother Herschel went to high school. It was along this road, too, that our wagon carried the loads of farm produce to town.

When we reached the brook, Curly brought me a stick, dropped it at my feet, and stood back expectantly. I threw it as far as I could, and in a few leaps she was on it, growling playfully. A moment later she again dropped it at my feet. This time I threw it into the swirling little brook, and Curly happily ran after it.

She loved water as much as I did and did not mind at all having to swim in one of the deeper pools. For a time I lay on my stomach on a flat rock which jutted into the stream, watching the minnows swimming against the current in the clear, cold water. I could also see the crayfish backing across the bottom to disappear into their holes in the mud.

After a time I rolled up my overalls, took off my shoes and stockings, and began to wade in the shallow water. It was not yet barefoot time, which came in June, and the stones felt sharp under my not-yet-toughened feet. I built a small dam in the stream out of the many rocks available.

Once I slipped and sat in perhaps eight inches of water. Curly realized I was in no danger and romped around me, laughing and kissing my face with her big wet tongue. I was thoroughly soaked and thoroughly happy but a bit cold as I scrambled out of the water and started for home. I realized that I would surely get a spanking. So, cold-though I was, I began picking a bouquet of wild flowers as a peace offering for my mother.

As Curly and I came dripping up the middle of the country road we heard a man far behind us crying, "Whoa, whoa there! Help! Runaway!"

The dog and I turned toward the sound which was now mingled with the rumbling of a heavy wagon, the wild neighing of the horses and pounding of their hooves as they came toward us. I heard my mother cry from the farmyard, "Sterling, get out of the road! Curly! Curly, fetch Sterling!"

I was not a stupid boy, but I was paralyzed with fright and stood stock-still, fascinated by the approaching team of big Clydesdales pulling the banging wagon behind them. I heard my mother's scream from what seemed a great distance, but I still could not move. And it was then that Curly's loyalty and intelligence saved me from being crushed under the big hooves and heavy wheels. She grabbed me firmly by the seat of the overalls and literally lifted me off the road and into a ditch. For the third time in as many years she had saved my life.

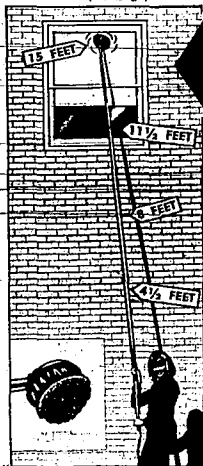

There were no more punishments for Curly during her all-too-short life. When she stole an egg or two from a hen's nest, everybody pretended that they did not know it. If she sinfully rode the cow's tails while bringing them up from the pasture for milking, no one scolded her. For as long as she lived, she was treated like the heroine she had proved herself to be, and her grave site was marked by a big granite boulder, which, as far as I know, still may be guarding a special place on the hill overlooking the lake.

There Curly's spirit can watch with excitement the flocks of wild ducks and Canadian geese which thrilled her each spring and autumn in the days when she was my best friend and loyal baby sitter. ♦

A Feast for Father

MELANIE-DE PROFT Food Editor

■ Next Sunday is Father's Day. Preparing dishes he likes is one way of honoring him. Either the fish or beef with vegetables suggested and his favorite salad, rolls, and dessert should delight Father.

Pickle Baked Trout

- 2 pkgs. (12-oz. each) frozen trout, thawed, or 4 pan-dressed trout (5 to 8 oz.)
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup finely chopped celery
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ to ¾ cup coarsely chopped sweet mixed pickles

1. Arrange trout on a greased heat-resistant platter or in a greased shallow baking dish.
2. Heat butter or margarine in a skillet; add celery and cook until tender. Mix in remaining ingredients. Spoon into cavity and over trout.
3. Bake at 350°F. 20 to 25 min. or until fish is tender when tested with a fork, basting occasionally. Garnish. 4 servings

Note: If serving 6 or 8, increase amounts accordingly, allowing 1 trout per serving.

Beef Brisket Barbecue

Serve with Potatoes à la Röstli, Green Beans with Garlic, and corn on the cob.

- 6-lb. brisket of beef
- 1 large onion, sliced ½ in. thick
- 1 bay leaf
- 16 whole cloves
- 1 clove garlic, cut in half
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons dry mustard
- 2 cups catsup
- ½ cup Worcestershire sauce

1. Put meat into a large saucet; cover with water. Add next four ingredients, cover, and simmer 4 hrs., or until meat is tender. Cool in liquid; drain. Trim off excess fat. Refrigerate several hours or, if desired, overnight.

2. Cut meat across the grain into very thin slices. Place meat slices together and stand them on edge in a large, shallow baking pan. Pour a mixture of the remaining ingredients over meat.
3. Heat in a 350°F. oven about 40 min., basting occasionally with sauce in bottom of pan.
4. Arrange overlapping slices of meat on a heated serving platter and garnish as desired.

About 12 servings

Potatoes à la Röstli

Serve these delicious potatoes with a thick, juicy steak; Pickle Baked Trout or the Beef Brisket Barbecue.

- 1 large potato, pared
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ¼ teaspoon salt

1. Cut potato lengthwise into ½-in. slices. Cut each slice into strips ½ in. thick. Pat potato strips dry with absorbent paper.
2. Melt butter or margarine in a 6-in. skillet. Pour off all but 1 tablespoon into a saucapan.
3. Arrange strips crisscross-fashion to a 1½-in. depth in the hot skillet. Pour remaining melted butter or margarine over the strips. Sprinkle with the salt.
4. Heat rapidly until fat sizzles. Reduce heat and cook 15 min., or until underside is browned.

Chopped sweet-mixed pickles impart surprise flavor to trout baked in a lemon butter sauce.

5. Drain off fat and reserve. Using wide spatula, turn carefully, keeping potato cake intact. Return about one half of the fat to the skillet; reserve remainder to use for frying additional potatoes. Cook 8 to 10 min. over medium heat or until potatoes are browned on second side. (fat should be sizzling).

6. Drain off fat, transfer potatoes to a serving dish, and keep warm while preparing additional potatoes.

1 or 2 servings

Zucchini Provencale

Serve in individual sauce dishes to accompany Pickle Baked Trout.

- 1 lb. mushrooms, sliced lengthwise
- 1/2 cup shredded Parmesan cheese
- 2 cans (6 oz. each) tomato paste
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon Accent
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper

1. Wash, trim off ends, and cut zucchini crosswise into 1/4-in. slices.

2. In a covered saucepan, cook zucchini, onion, and mushrooms in hot oil 10 to 15 min., or until zucchini is just tender; stir occasionally.

3. Remove from heat and, with a fork, mix in about one half of the cheese.

Blend in a mixture of the tomato paste and seasonings. Turn into a 2-qt. casserole and sprinkle with remaining cheese. 4. Set in a 350°F. oven 20 to 30 min., or until thoroughly heated. 5 servings

Iced Coffee: Prepare double-strength coffee beverage. Pour at once over ice in tall glasses. Serve with sugar, whipped cream, and ground cinnamon.

Yes, The Bible Has a LIVING Witness

It may sound absurd to say this about a collection of writings prepared so many centuries ago.

For in that space of time every living thing on earth has been repeatedly replaced. Empires and civilizations have run their course and disappeared. Who, then, could possibly be still around to bear living witness to events so remote in human history?

The answer is, of course—the Catholic Church.

The Church had been carrying on its work of salvation for years, before the New Testament writings were completed. And from the very beginning the sacred texts were in her custody and were used in her ceremonies. When the time came to decide which writings were to be accepted as divinely inspired, it was the Church, which made the official decision.

For more than a thousand years prior to the invention of printing by movable type, all copies of the Scriptures were laboriously hand-made by monks and scholars of the Catholic Church. With the perfection of the printing process in 1440, one of the first and certainly the most famous publication was the Vulgate version of the Catholic Bible—the celebrated Gutenberg.

Not all Christians agree exactly in all their interpretations of the Scriptures. But all can agree that the Bible is the inspired word of God... that the New Testament presents the life and teachings of Jesus Christ. For we have in the Catholic Church, a living witness to prove it.

Being responsible for the formation of the New Testament, and as custodian for the Old, the Catholic Church can provide a great deal of interesting and helpful information about the Bible.

We have put some of this into a pocket-size pamphlet—which we will be happy to send free to any Bible lover who requests a copy.

It contains a short story of the Bible... explains why the Catholic Bible contains 46 Old Testament books, inherited from the Jews, and 27 New Testament books, which the Church approved as inspired... gives you solid reasons why you can believe the Bible, but why the Scriptures are not easy to understand... tells you what Catholics believe about the Bible and how they use it.

You can get your free copy of this interesting pamphlet by writing your name and address on the accompanying coupon and mailing it today. You can study it in complete privacy and without obligation. If it raises any questions in your mind and you want additional answers, we will be glad to supply them. But nobody will call on you.

QUIPS AND QUOTES

An optimist and a pessimist were shipwrecked and floated for days on a makeshift raft. At last they sighted a small tropic isle in the distance.

The pessimist looked at it gloomily and said: "I'll bet it's inhabited by wild men."

"Cheer up," said the optimist. "Where there are wild men, there are bound to be wild women."

How You May

Never Take a Laxative Again!

New Miracle Regulator
Helps Relief Come
Naturally

New York, N.Y. (Special)—Research has discovered a wonder-working substance that helps correct constipation without laxative!

Doctors say most constipation occurs when waste collects moisture in the colon. To give relief, laxatives have to force action—flush, irritate or distend the intestine.

The new miracle substance works in a completely different way. It helps natural moisture in the colon work more effectively. Thus by working on the problem, not on you, it helps correct constipation as no laxative can. This discovery is now available under the name RESURON. It is not habit-forming. No warning on the label—no prescription needed. Try RESURON—you may never take a laxative again!

DOUG SANDERS: Can He Win the U.S. Open?

He plays like a duffer, scores like a champion—and this year—the course and man are well suited

By BYRON NELSON

Winner of U.S. Open, 1939; PGA Championship, 1940, 1945; The Masters, 1937, 1942; currently ABC golf commentator

THE FIRST round of the U.S. Open, golf's most prestigious tournament, will be played next Thursday on the famed East Course of the Oak Hill Country Club in Rochester, N.Y.

Of all the touring pros who will test Oak Hill's par 72, one will be trying to break a jinx that has spanned his 11 years as a pro. Doug Sanders is perhaps second only to Arnold Palmer in fan appeal, consistently attracts large galleries, and has won $489,123 in prize money—but never has captured a major title (Masters, PGA, Open).

Handsome, witty, charming, and twice divorced, Doug has a unique reputation in the world of golf. As big a swinger off the course as on it, Doug is famous for his fancy clothes, sense of humor, high living, and "all-around" golf game.

Manufacturers are happy to get this clotheshorse's endorsement, since many fans come out just to see what he's wearing. But even with all the sportswear he gets free from his endorsements, Doug spends $8,000 a year on clothes and carries 25 pairs of shoes with him to match his ensembles.

The 35-year-old pro from Cedartown, Ga. (shown on our cover competing in Shell's Wonderful World of Golf) has a droll sense of humor. A reporter once asked him to assess the qualities of golf's great players. He did, but when he got to the almost legendary Ben Hogan, Doug couldn't help but compare himself to the great man. "He and I are not exactly alike. Ben can play a whole round without saying a word," Doug added. "Me, if I had to play 18 holes without talking, especially to the 'birds' (the girls that comprise much of his galleries), I think I'd crack!"

Even in defeat, Doug's sense of humor doesn't wane. In the 1964 Greater Greensboro Open in North Carolina, he tied for the lead after 72 holes, but lost a sudden-death playoff to Julius Boros. Walking away with a second-place check-for Doug's golfing antics delight fans.

$3,800, Doug, in alimony trouble then, chuckled, "This'll sure disappoint my ex-wives."

There are scores of amusing stories about Sanders' swinging social life, and when his game goes bad, the blame usually falls there. But Doug never has denied his love of the "good life" and his distaste for sleep: "Einstein said you could get along on four hours' sleep a night. All my life I've been living proof that you can do it on three."

Doug's golf style endears him to fans as much as his appearance: One famous pro says of Doug, "He plays like a duffer but scores like a champion." Perhaps that's the secret of his appeal on the course—people like to see the awkward player beat the polished pro: Doug's swing is "all-wrong." He takes an extremely short backswing, has an absurdly wide stance, and a nervous, wiggling address to the ball. But when he is right, he makes perfect contact.

This brings me to Doug Sanders, the golfer, and this year's U.S. Open, which incidentally, I'll cover for ABC tv from Friday till the final round. How will Doug fare? Well, let me say that the course and the man are well suited. The East Course is 6,912 yards of lush turf, soft, like moist Northeastern courses. Built in the late 1920s, it still has many of its famed oak trees lining the fairways, relatively few but strategically placed sand traps, and out-of-bounds on only four holes. Since it is an old-fashioned course, most of its putting surfaces are flat, with the exception of a new 180-yard par three with a modern undulating green built especially for the Open.

Doug's style complements the course. He keeps the ball in play, waiting for the hot putting streak. The streak may come this year because the greens will be close-cropped and fast, and Doug has one of golf's lightest putting strokes.

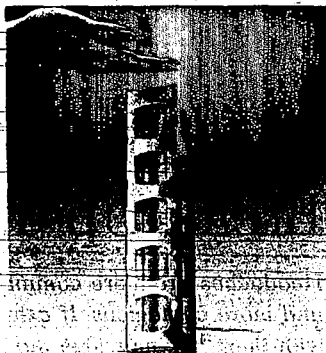

It won't take a man long off the tee to win this year's Open and that will suit Doug, too. While not a short hitter, his abbreviated backswing normally guarantees him good placement off the tee. The lush grass on Oak Hill's fairways will be allowed to grow in, becoming more dense and making approach shots out of it more difficult, but Doug is an adept iron player.

While the course is not unusually long or heavily trapped, there are two unseen hazards that await the unwary. The sand in the bunkers is very soft and thus more difficult than the harder blend which pros handle with ease. The other is the rough, and this is what has made the Open so difficult. If Doug can keep his game together, he may successfully avoid both hazards.

The three finishing holes at Oak Hill are crucial, all being four-pars over 440 yards long. They have spelled the downfall of many great pros in past years. Ben Hogan, Ted Kroll, and Peter Thompson all had tournaments almost won until misplaying one or more of the last three. On these holes, placement off the tee is essential.

Add all this together and you get the picture of the greatest golf tournament in the world: But there is one more thing: pressure. The man here will play for a first prize of $30,000 plus lush endorsements.

It will take a real man to win this year's Open, and the flashy dresser with the unorthodox swing may well be that man. ♦

The Illness That Can Break Up Your Marriage

Headaches are more common than the cold—and more contagious. If a husband or wife is plagued with them, the marriage may be affected, too

By CLAIRE SAFRAN

JOHAN M. wishes his wife would keep the house and herself neater and the children quieter.

"But I accept the way she is," he says. "I don't let it bother me." They haven't had a serious fight in years. But regularly as a clock John suffers from severe tension headaches that feel "like a band being pulled tightly around my head."

Mary L. opens the door to her mother-in-law three or four times a week. She welcomes her warmly, though she feels the woman has never approved of her marriage. "I don't let it bother me," she says. But every now and then, Mary feels a surge of depression and a warning pain, the beginning symptoms of a migraine headache that may last for days.

Five days a week, Gary P. sits behind a battery of phones, making a stream of snap decisions involving tens of thousands of dollars. On the sixth day, he goes home to his wife and two children—and has a "weekend headache."

These three people suffer from an ailment more common than the cold—and more contagious. It infects their families with worry, impatience, and guilt. As doctors know, one sick member can result in a family and a marriage that are ailing, too. Gary's wife, for instance, doesn't know what she has done wrong, but she is plagued by guilt. "He never gets headaches at work," she says. "Is it me? Am I making him sick?"

The answer is—"Probably no." The reason for severe, chronic headaches can usually be traced to the physical and emotional make-up of the sufferer. But though a husband or wife may not be the direct cause of the headaches, they do have the power to be a major part of the cure.

Doctors estimate that nine out of 10 Americans suffer from headaches at one time or another. We spend $400 million a year on remedies, but headaches come in as many guises as the tablets that promise to cure them.

Headaches can be caused by boredom, hunger, or lack of adequate ventilation. They can come from too little sleep—or too much alcohol. There is the "weekend headache" that strikes when the high pressures of work are suddenly turned off on Saturday. There is the "caffeine headache" that hits heavy coffee drinkers when they miss a usual cup.

Perhaps yours is an allergy headache, a weather headache, or a fever headache. Many of us blame eyestrain or sinus for our headaches, although they are rarely the true culprits.

All headaches, of course, are painful, but most of them are short-lived and will respond to the aspirin or aspirin-compound you can buy over the drugstore counter. For most headaches, these simple first-aid measures will do the trick.

But for one out of 12 persons, headaches are so severe and so frequent that they disrupt the normal flow of living. For these people, there is no do-it-yourself cure; they should see a doctor.

The doctor may do two things to make you feel better almost immediately. The first is that he may allay your anxiety over the true cause of your headaches. They can be a symptom of a serious disease or organic disturbance, although this is true in only about 10 percent of chronic headache cases.

Secondly, the doctor now has new medications and new knowledge to treat tension headaches and migraines, which is what 90 percent of chronic headaches turn out to be.

In the case of migraines, the pain is usually concentrated on one side of the head and is caused by changes in the blood vessels in the head.

Doctors have found that they can control most migraines with ergotamine tartrate. Often given in combination with caffeine, the drug can stop a migraine in its first warning stage, if taken early enough.

With a new drug, methysergide maleate, doctors can now "cure" or prevent migraines. This medication is coming into wide use, although for some patients there are bad side effects.

Where migraines are caused by vascular or blood-vessel changes, tension headaches are the result of contractions in the muscles. Unlike migraines, these headaches usually occur simultaneously with the tension or anxiety that produces them. The tension or conflict will cause a person to stiffen his neck muscles. The result is a pain on both sides of the head, or the back of the head and neck, or the forehead, face, or jaw.

For this headache, the doctor will probably prescribe an analgesic (painkiller) possibly in combination with a tranquilizer.

Research into headaches, a fairly recent development, now indicates that there is a hereditary factor. In patient after patient, Dr. Arnold P. Friedman—who is physician-in-charge of the famous Headache Unit at Montefiore Hospital in New York—has discovered that one of the parents, usually the mother, also had severe headaches. Often childhood car-sickness and frequent vomiting are a prediction of migraines to come.

"Some people are born with more sensitive autonomic or involuntary nervous systems. Under stress, they are likely to suffer from headaches. Persons with different genetic make-ups may react to the tensions of life by developing ulcers or having insomnia."

People who get tension headaches or migraines also have many personality traits in common. According to Dr. Friedman, they are usually worthwhile people who are often unusually successful. "In general, they are intelligent, sensitive persons. They are apt to be highly competitive, rigid perfectionists who approach problems intellectually rather than emotionally. They are apt to work too hard, relax too little, and worry too much about gaining the approval of others."

There are lessons that often can be learned inside a marriage. Perhaps the wife of a perfectionist needs to remember to empty the ashtrays more often. Perhaps the husband of a migraine sufferer needs to learn to ease the tension times by taking the children out underfoot.

Most of all, they need to learn to give each other freely of love and understanding. They have to help each other see what really matters. A hard-driving business executive has to be reassured that he's loved even if he doesn't make vice president this year. A perfectionist wife needs to realize that, if she's giving a party, a relaxed and gracious hostess is more important than an upstairs corner she forgot to dust.

Fortunately, according to Dr. Friedman, tension headache and migraine sufferers tend to marry someone who is a calming, soothing partner. "I've hardly ever seen a husband and wife who are both perfectionists, headache personalities," he says. "But of course, that may be because they've gone to see a divorce lawyer before they come to see a doctor. ♦"

Give Dad The Unusual

By ROSALYN ABREVA

Photographs By Leonard Nones

It's an accepted fact that fathers are often embarrassed by festive occasions on their behalf. Father's Day, Dad can rightly claim, is not even dubbed "official" by Congress as Mother's special day is. Then why all the celebration on June 16? Why not forget about offering gifts?

Because, despite all the bluster, everyone knows that fathers would be secretly disappointed if they weren't excited on at least one day of the year!

With that thought in mind, FAMILY WEEKLY has assembled suggestions for gifts that boast style but are even longer on practicality. They should earn huzzas from Dad—even though he may not express himself loud.

1. If Dad is health-minded, he'll cotton to a new portable steam-sauna. It assembles in seconds, comes complete with a folding stool and mat. From Dynamic Classics ($25).

2. After his sauna or shower, he might enjoy donning a terry leisure coat from R. G. Barry ($7) with roomy pockets; matching terry scuffs! ($3).

3. Handy for the man who travels or to adorn his dresser top, is a do luxe jewel box, manicure set, and clock all in one. The Joy set from Rex Cutlery, made of genuine topgrain cowhide, is velvet lined ($30).

4. A corduroy go-anywhere grooming kit features a lined spillproof interior, zippered side pocket. From Trina ($35).

5. Whether Dad's sport is golf or handball, if he has a club locker he may need some organizational help. To the rescue, a slim gold-toned steel chest with a drawer for accessories, shelves for shoes. By Super Sturdy ($10).

6. A clothes valet and then some, from Lee-Rowan ($35), is a Father's Day gift that could save Mom steps. Handsomely vinyl upholstered, it has this plus: the extra-large tray and hanger can disappear beneath flip-top lid!

Most of these gifts are available in one-stop shopping at notions counters or men's gift bars. ♦
