Senate Hearings On Nomination Impress Fortas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas says the hearings on his nomination to be chief justice "have impressed upon me anew the acute interest and concern that exist with respect to the work of this court."

Senate Questions Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge Homer Thornberry, the friend who followed Lyndon B. Johnson to Congress, sat quietly under a stream of criticism Saturday at a Senate hearing on his nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court.

After an hour's questioning by a Southern senator on his ruling casting out Texas' poll tax, the white-haired federal judge was told to return Monday.

The Judiciary Committee's split badly over whether to take any action on President Johnson's choice of Thornberry to succeed Abe Fortas as an associate justice in the Senate battle over approval of Fortas chief justice.

Thornberry sat with his hand on his chin in tight-lipped silence as Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., assailed his 1968 appellate court ruling that pointed the way for all poll taxes to be tossed out.

As Fortas had done before him, Thornberry insisted the Constitution prevents him from commenting or being called into account on decisions of the court bench.

Ervin disagreed and said, "I don't think there is anything in the Constitution that gives everybody else the freedom of speech and denies the freedom of speech to a judicial nominee when he comes before a Senate committee to pass upon his appointment."

Thornberry, 59, had waited eight days to undergo questioning by the committee. He wore a dark suit and gold cufflinks that bore the seal of the President of the United States—a personal gift from Johnson.

COINS CIRCULATED
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thirty million Olympic commemorative coins with total value of 750 million pesos—$60 million—are in circulation, the Mexican treasury ministry reported.

MINOR WIND DAMAGE was reported in Twin Falls Friday night when a storm joggled trees and caused a few temporary power shortages. Trees such as the one above fell in Twin Falls city park blocked streets and shored out power lines but no reports of major damage were received. Air West officials at Twin Falls airport said they measured gusts up to 55 miles per hour before closing their office for the night. The last flight had left for Salt Lake City seconds before the major wind hit and no wind readings were taken.

Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — The Democratic National Convention is bound by contract to stay in Chicago, the head of a citizens committee said Saturday.

James C. Worthing, chairman of the Chicago Nonpartisan Committee which helped bring the convention to Chicago, gave his views in the midst of speculation that the nominating sessions may be moved because of a strike of electrical workers.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, who has been predicting for days that the convention will remain in Chicago, expressed the opinion that the strike will be over by "Monday or Tuesday." He did not mention the basis for his opinion.

"There are many difficulties in the way of working out specific improvements," Fortas wrote, "but as public interest in the court's decisions has increased, the need for finding some solutions to these problems seems to me to have increased."

Although Fortas did not refer to it, some senators have noted that a recent poll showed public confidence in the court to be at a low ebb.

Fortas' first suggestion was that efforts be made to find some way to help newsmen covering the court so that "the stories that appear in the press would be more informative—particularly in the sense that they could more adequately convey to the public the substance and tenor of the court's opinions."

LBJ And Thieu End Conclave

HONOLULU (AP) — President Johnson and President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam sought Saturday to put pressure on North Vietnam to halt all fighting as a prelude to final settlement of the war. At the same time they said Hanoi seems to be preparing renewed offensive action.

In a communique climaxing a brief summit meeting, the two presidents concluded North Vietnam has yet to respond constructively to the geographical bombing restrictions which Johnson ordered March 31, and which were followed by the opening of preliminary talks in Paris.

Shortly after the communique was issued, Johnson told reporters, "There were no great differences that appeared" in the talks.

Johnson, summing up the conference in his own words, emphasized that it "was not very exciting" in the sense that there was no significant friction or conflict among the participants.

The U.S. President used strong language to knock down any idea that he and Thieu had taken up such potentially important policy matters as a total halt in the bombing of North Vietnam or "a pullout."

He called these rumors and described them as "just pure political get-together before the presidential nominating conventions—and campaigning New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller sought to make the most of it."

The New York governor proclaimed a political rally to mark his arrival, and his political agents home to make some headway among the GOP governors in Cincinnati.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan was due Sunday, and his arrival promoters planned a welcoming rally, too.

But two presidentially uncommitted Republican governors already on hand gave little support to campaigners looking for convention commitments.

Czechs Bow To Soviets' Demand For Conference

THE WADING POOL in Twin Falls city park was empty again Saturday as the hot weather has come to Twin Falls. The pool has remained empty several days out of the week and parents and children expressed their disappointment Saturday. One child asked: "How come it's always empty when mommy brings me to town on Saturday?"

Soldiers, Reds Clash At Battlefield Near Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. infantrymen clashed with a large enemy force late Saturday on an old battlefield north of Saigon and artillery and helicopter gunships were called in to help the Americans.

Officers reported that a company of the 1st Infantry Division made "sharp contact" with the enemy and came under heavy small arms and mortar fire.

There was no word on casualties. The fighting broke out near Song Be, 70 miles north of the capital and just south of the Cambodian border where strong enemy forces mounted a series of large-scale attacks on the central highlands last fall. It was only 25 miles east of Loc Ninh, where troops of the U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry Division killed 39 enemy in fighting Thursday and Friday.

Although there were no details of the Song Be action, some U.S. sources speculated that enemy forces moving from Cambodia are again building up in the area.

No other ground actions were reported Saturday. On Friday government troops rescued 39 manacled captives who had been chained to stakes by the Viet Cong. The guerrillas were scared away by U.S. B-52 bombers, who pounded the Viet Cong positions in the Mekong Delta before South Vietnamese infantrymen charged into an open field to free the prisoners.

Spokesmen said 20 other prisoners were unaccounted for and presumably were taken along with the fighting. The civilian captives included 13 women and 20 men and teenage boys who had been held by the Viet Cong for periods ranging from two months to two years.

The South Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing six, 200 sticks of TNT and 250 mortar and antitank rocket shells. Government casualties were three wounded. Nine miles north of the ambush site, other government troops reported killing 20 guerrillas in September and 20 were wounded in the engagements.

Governors Gather In Political Rally

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The nation's governors began assembling Saturday for their annual meeting, a prelude to the presidential nominating conventions—and campaigning New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller sought to make the most of it.

Richard M. Nixon, the Republican front-runner, was opening a five-day California visit and said he would not be coming to Cincinnati.

But a force of Nixon political lieutenants was deployed to keep watch on the situation. Twenty-three of the 24 Republican governors and 21 of the 24 Democrats were expected to attend the 60th National Governors Conference.

Democratic politicians abandoned, too. Republican Rhodes, the host governor, said he had invited President Johnson to address the conference.

Cincinnati democratic leaders and invitations had gone out to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, to attend a party reception Monday.

Truck Stolen

HAILEY—A stolen pickup truck belonging to Idaho Secretary of State Pete W. Conrath has been recovered.

The truck was stolen Wednesday and located in Tonnah Valley, Nev. Mr. Conrath and Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler flew to Tonnah Friday and retrieved the truck, which was found in good condition. The pair also brought back to Hailey the man accused in the theft of the vehicle, James Richard Martin, 27, of Burbank, Calif. Mr. Martin is now in custody in the Blaine County jail.

Mr. Conrath's son, Joe, and a friend, drove the truck back to Hailey Friday.

Idaho Rodeo Queen Event Slated Here

Rodeo queens from top shows, will compete for the title of Idaho Rodeo Queen. The contest will be held in conjunction with the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo Sept. 4 through 7. It is said many inquiries have already been received from contestants and sponsoring organizations. It urged contestants to obtain entry blanks as soon as possible.

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's liberal communist leaders were reported Saturday to have acceded to a Russian call for a showdown meeting in the Soviet Union this week on the liberalization program the Prague reformers refuse to halt.

Usually reliable sources said the Czechoslovak leadership under Alexander Dubcek, the first party secretary, accepted the Soviet invitation. There was no official confirmation.

The Soviet 11-member Politburo, or ruling council, called Friday on the Czechoslovak party's 11-man presidium to meet in Moscow, Kiev—or Lvov, Prague sources said the meeting will probably take place in Kiev, about 350 miles from the nearest Czechoslovak border point, on Monday or Tuesday.

In principle, this would be after the withdrawal, promised for Sunday of the last of the Soviet troops who lingered here since Warsaw Pact maneuvers ended June 30. One tank unit was still en route to the east of the Prague on Saturday, however.

The acceptance represents a concession on the part of the Czechoslovaks who have repeatedly said any bilateral talks with other parties would take place in Czechoslovakia. It also has aspects of a risk because a few of the presidium members of the last of the Soviet troops who lingered here since Warsaw Pact maneuvers ended June 30. One tank unit was still en route to the east of the Prague on Saturday, however.

There was speculation that the French Communist party chief, Waldeck Rochet, who talked with Dubcek here before returning to Paris Saturday, may have been instrumental in arranging the meeting. Waldeck Rochet is reported to have taken place in Czechoslovakia. It also has aspects of a risk because a few of the presidium members of the last of the Soviet troops who lingered here since Warsaw Pact maneuvers ended June 30. One tank unit was still en route to the east of the Prague on Saturday, however.

It was not known whether Dubcek won any concessions from the Soviets in return for accepting a Soviet site for the meeting. An obvious one would be a firm promise on the complete withdrawal of Soviet troops.

The Soviet Union has been using the slow pull out of the original force of 18,500 Red army men as political pressure. Official Czechoslovak announcements reported Soviet units still in Bohemia and Moravia, more than 200 miles from the border checkpoint where they would have to leave Czechoslovak territory.

Newspapers published a picture of Soviet tanks at Podbrady, about 30 miles from Prague.

In another development new details were disclosed about the discovery of a small-arms cache near the West German border. The Soviet party organ Pravda reported on the find Friday and suggested the weapons were destined for rebel-type bands who would want to reinstate the pre-Communist "old regime."

Pro-Nasser Factions In Iraq Coming Under Fire

BAGHDAD (AP) — The men who took over Iraq in a bloodless military coup last week have cracked down on followers of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, excluding them from the government and throwing many of them in jail.

This is an early sign that the overthrow of President Abdul Rahman Aref Wednesday may put a heavy strain on relations between countries of the Arab world and perhaps herald further political upheavals.

In his first policy statement since what is being called here the "white revolution," premier Abdul Razzak al Naeef made no mention of socialism, required dogma for Arab revolutionaries of Nasser's ilk.

Iraq's new head of state is former Gen. Ahmad Hassan al-Baker, a right-wing Baathist. Without saying so in many words, they make clear they believe Nasser was among those to blame. It is likely to change its tough line on Israel and in view of continued Israeli occupation of Arab territory such a move would likely be fatal to any gains.

Labor Force Up

BOISE (AP) — Idaho's civilian labor force during June was 236,700, the State Department Employment said in its monthly newsletter Saturday.

The figure was up 2,200 from last year and 1,200 up from May of this year.

Good weather brought a buildup in the logging and construction employment in the state, the department said, but increased use of automatic harvesting equipment and chemical weedicides kept farm employment gains below average.

MEASURE OKAYED

WASHINGTON (AP) — A measure to require mandatory prison sentences for persons who use or carry a firearm in connection with a new federal law passed 169-30 by the House Friday.

Rep. Hansen Will Visit Magic Valley

Congressman George Hansen, R-Idaho, will be in Twin Falls Thursday through Saturday for a number of appearances, including a visit to the College of Southern Idaho campus.

Congressman Hansen will address a joint meeting of the Buhl Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs in the R and R Cafe, Buhl, on Thursday. He also plans a special commendation for the fire crews working under the direction of the Sawtooth National Forest. The crews have helped in control of forest and range fires in the western half of the nation.

As a climax to his visit, Congressman Hansen will ride in the Frontier Days Parade which begins Saturday at 3 p.m. Several other candidates will also appear on floats in the parade.

Electrical Workers Quit Work At Hall

Electrical workers installing the new television antenna system of the Republican National Convention next month walked off the job Saturday in a jurisdictional dispute with CBS, network and city officials said.

Bill Leonard, vice president of CBS News and the network's supervising executive in Miami Beach, said the strike by 23 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers involved a dispute over a device for supporting names and titles over television pictures.

A convention hall spokesman said 200 other workers, in the center on overtime, walked off in sympathy with the IBEW members. The IBEW members are from New York City and Hollywood, Calif.

Speakers for NBC and ABC said they were not involved in the dispute, although most work at the convention hall came to a standstill.

Two Boise Men Hurt In Wreck At Buhl Corner

BUHL—Two Boise men were injured Friday night in a motorcycle accident on Highway 30 at the northwest corner of Buhl.

Deputy Sheriff T. M. Kendrick said the two were traveling north on the Buhl Truck Route at 7:20 p.m. As they approached the stop sign on Highway 30, the machine went out of control and crashed into a utility pole and fence.

The driver, James Cleophous Isaac, 21, Boise, suffered a compound fracture of the leg, and the passenger, Glen Lewis Blair, 35, Boise, suffered leg cuts. Both were taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by Magic Valley Ambulance Service. The younger man was treated and returned home and Mr. Isaac was transferred to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Boise.

He told Deputy Kendrick he was not familiar with the motorcycle he was operating, and his foot missed the brake as he attempted to stop at the stop sign.

Story About Utah Outlaw To Be Filmed

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — The story of one of Utah's most well-known outlaws will be filmed late this summer by 20th Century Fox near St. George.

John D. Rose, director of the Utah Travel Council, said the cost for "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" would include Paul Newman and Robert Redford.

His sister Katherine Ross, who made her film debut in "The Graduate," will also be in southern Utah.

Rose and Redford, who makes his home near Wildwood in Provo Canyon, was instrumental in attracting the studio to film in Utah. Redford starred in "Barefoot in the Park" last year.

The cast and crew of about 250 will have headquarters in St. George in mid-September for about four weeks, Rose said.

Cassidy and his gang were notorious in the 1890s, having a wide reputation in Utah and surrounding states for banditry.

Reagan Hits Demo Policies At Dinner

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan said Friday that the Democratic administration's Vietnam policy and war on poverty constitute a "grand design for the Apocalypse."

Reagan told the 2,000 cheering persons at a $100,000 GOP fund raising dinner that the seizure of the U.S.S. Pueblo by the North Koreans and the "multi-billion-dollar Vietnam black market" are putting an unbearable load on the average American citizen.

"Only a great people can build a great society," he said, "and the great society of President Johnson is neither great nor new."

Reagan en route to Cincinnati for a "Republican governors' meeting" told newsmen on his arrival in Amarillo Friday afternoon that "George C. Wallace's third party campaign 'can hurt the Republicans worse than the Democrats.'"

He said that the former Alabama governor "seems to have a good chance of playing the destroyer." This would help keep the Democratic administration, which he says he opposes, in power.

Reagan repeated an earlier statement that he will become a Republican presidential candidate when his name is placed in nomination at the national convention at Miami Beach in August.

Asked if there were any circumstances which might induce him to seek the vice presidency, Reagan replied, "Not unless the state of California blows up or something at the national convention at Miami Beach in August."

Lewiston's Ahmed The Camel Awaits A Beautiful, Blushing Girlfriend

By JAMES RAGSDALE LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — Ahmed, the candy and kids love camel, is finding his new home just as lonely as his old one.

For camels, and especially for the affectionate 2-year-old Ahmed, Lewiston is just not where it's happening—girlwise. As camels do, Ahmed groans a lot in his isolated corral and his owners believe some of it is caused by loneliness. Ahmed needs a girl to keep him company. His arrival here Ahmed's new addition could be the start of Lewiston's own camel corps.

Fatality Markers Decided Against

BOISE (AP) — A proposal that white crosses be placed along highways at spots where traffic fatalities occur is not in keeping with good traffic safety standards, the Idaho Traffic Safety Commission has decided.

David J. Dehlin, executive director of the commission, said reasons included:

—The markers were grim reminders to survivors who frequently pass by.

—Installation and maintenance was costly.

—They were a distraction to motorists and effectiveness wore off quickly.

Dehlin said the reasons are based on a national study available to the commission.

Gov. Don Samuelson and the governor had asked the commission to study the proposal.

WASHINGTON — It remains to be seen whether moderate Negro leaders like the NAACP's Roy Wilkins and the Urban League's Whitney Young...

As Young implies, there is no reason why the Negro should instinctively desire close social association with whites.

is an integral ingredient of genuine liberty. Young has done a service by rejecting the myth that the Negro prefers the company of Negroes...

Lame Reasoning

Congressmen like to make a lot of noise, but the odds are that in the end the Senate will confirm President Johnson's nomination of Supreme Court Associate Justice Fortas as chief justice to succeed retiring Earl Warren.

That is to say, Wilkins and Young have infiltrated the Black Power ranks. They have endorsed Black Power as a movement designed to give more political muscle to the Negro...

There is something to be said also for Young's statement that the Negro has found that America "does not respond to people who seek to be moral groups."

There is something to be said also for Young's statement that the Negro has found that America "does not respond to people who seek to be moral groups."

Written In Stars

The stars, planets and moons in the universe and their relationship to earth at any given time are playing an important role in the war in Vietnam and it is almost a certainty that this once obscure hobby is receiving more attention from military intelligence.

Since Wilkins and Young both have earned reputations as non-violent moderates, they deserve a fair hearing from the white community.

There is something to be said also for Young's statement that the Negro has found that America "does not respond to people who seek to be moral groups."

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK NRA Privileges Are Target

WASHINGTON — During four months last summer, 41 persons with concealed criminal records came within a hair of being permitted to buy $20 surplus Army carbines solely because they were bona fide members of the National Rifle Assn. (NRA).

Illinois point to a runaway victory of unopposed propositions by Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen against his Democratic foe—State Atty. Gen. William C. Clark, a virtually unknown party regular.

These statistics have been quietly slipped by the Army to two Senate associates of gun control legislation—Sens. Thomas Dodd of Connecticut and Joseph Tydings of Maryland. They bring a valuable argument against continued special treatment for the NRA's millions of members.

ROBERT ALLEN AND JOHN GOLDSMITH New Peace Offer Considered

WASHINGTON — President Johnson and his key advisers are gingerly weighing the advisability of making a "go for broke" peace offer to Hanoi. In exchange for the Communists' agreeing to an immediate cease-fire, the U.S. would halt all bombing in North Vietnam and freeze its ground, air and naval forces in the theater at existing levels.

Humphrey Okays Debate With McCarthy

By The Associated Press
 Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, calling Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's Vietnam position "a public discussion," said today that the two Democratic presidential rivals on the war issue "may be desirable."

McCarthy repeatedly has called for debate on the issue recently on a southern swing where he said Friday that Humphrey may be edging away from the Johnson position on the Vietnam stand and toward McCarthy's.

The Washington Post today said Humphrey, as saying of McCarthy's latest proposal for a "public discussion": "It may be desirable to have such a discussion before the convention." "I don't think he (McCarthy) believes in unilateral withdrawal," Humphrey said in the interview. "I don't think that he wants a Communist takeover of Southeast Asia and neither do I. But he hasn't spelled that out."

McCarthy, at a news conference in Louisville, Ky., had said Humphrey's position on the war also needs clarification. "There have been some signs of some change from the rather pure administration position," the Minnesota senator said, but he said he wanted to see a firmer declaration of Humphrey's position. McCarthy said "one sign" of what he called a change in Humphrey's position was the vice president's indication in a Scripps-Broadway interview that he could run on any Democratic war platform other than unilateral withdrawal from Vietnam. On the Republican side, California Gov. Ronald Reagan began an effort against votes for independent candidate George C. Wallace. And New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said he believes the Soviet Union wants an end to hostilities in Vietnam. Reagan, on a GOP fund-raising swing through the South, said in Amarillo, Tex., that Wallace's third party presidential bid may work as a "destroyer" that would keep Democrats in the White House. "The Wallace campaign," Reagan said, "can hurt the Republican side of the coin."

Fire Guts Ore-Ida Plant In Oregon

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP) — Fanned by wind gusts up to 70 miles per hour, fire gutted a large onion-packing plant at Ore-Ida Frozen Foods Friday night. Damage to the 4-year-old building full of burlap sacks was estimated in excess of $100,000, said Robert Peterson, president of the company. Company officials noticed the fire after sounding the alarm for the smaller plant in the office building. The smaller fire was caused by wind blowing a metal window sash into a power line. By the time fire trucks arrived, the onion plant was nearly gutted. The roof collapsed and part of the cinder-block walls crumbled. Kenneth Groat, 55, an employee, suffered a minor head injury when a ladder collapsed. Larry Homan, an Ontario volunteer fireman, suffered burned hands. Both were treated at a hospital. No other injuries were reported.

DR. THAD SCHOLES will be heading the United Fund campaign drive which starts Sept. 30 in Twin Falls. No goal has been set, but funds will be collected to support nine agencies in the Twin Falls area.

United Fund Drive Starts In September

Dr. H. Thad Scholes, Twin Falls physician and county coroner, has been named chairman of the 1968 United Fund drive, according to Robert Day, president of the United-Fund of Twin Falls. Dr. Scholes recently reported to the board that manpower recruitment is well under way, and that more agencies are becoming involved in the drive. The drive, scheduled to kick off Sept. 30, will solicit funds from nine agencies in the community. These agencies which receive funds from United Fund are the American Red Cross, Archelus Foundation, Salvation Army, YMCA, YWCA, Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts of America, USO, and Mental Health Association.

Bellwood To Stay In Race Despite Pleas

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (AP) — District Judge Sherman J. Bellwood said Saturday he would not step down from his seat in the Idaho Supreme Court race, despite pleas from his opponents that he withdraw. Bellwood, 57, is running for the seat being vacated by Justice C. J. Taylor, who has reached the mandatory retirement age. Taylor is a former Idaho Falls district judge. The campaign chairman for Boyd Thomas of Idaho Falls, also running for Taylor's seat, had asked the other candidates to bow out of the race. "Thomas is also a district judge. The campaign chairman, Jim Watkins, contends it is an unwritten law that justices be elected from regions within the state. "I don't think there is such a rule," Bellwood said Friday. "The law says justices are elected on a statewide basis. If the people decide differently through the Legislature, there'd be no argument. But right now the election is statewide."

Broadcasters Will Open Convention

BURLEY — The Idaho State Broadcasters Association will open its convention today at the Ponderosa Inn. Mel Blanc, the man of many voices, will address the group Monday evening. Mr. Blanc is best known for his cartoon character voices of Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig, Speedy Gonzales, Daffy Duck and several others. One of his recordings, "The Woody Woodpecker Song," sold over a million copies. He first started his career in radio with Jack Benny, Judy Canova, Abbott and Costello, Burns and Allen and many others. Robert Saxvik, local convention chairman, announced a limited amount of tickets will be available for the general public to hear Mr. Blanc. Interested persons should contact the Burley Chamber of Commerce or Mr. Saxvik at KBAR Radio Station.

Launching Of S.S. Idaho Set

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The S.S. Idaho was to be christened and launched today in ceremonies in New Orleans, presided over by Atty. Gen. Alan G. Shepard. The 800-foot cargo liner will be operated by the States Steamship Co., which operates ships out of West Coast ports, Shepard said. The ship, to be launched at New Orleans' Avondale Shipyards, will join other liners in the firm's fleet named after U.S. states.

Paul Chamber Approves Motion For Two Schools

PAUL—A resolution concerning the siting of two new proposed junior high school buildings in the Minidoka County school district was prepared recently by members of the Paul Chamber of Commerce. The resolution reads: The Paul Chamber of Commerce hereby goes on record as urging the Minidoka County School Board to select the two most geographically and economically operated sites for the junior highs without prejudice and pressure from any particular group or organization.

Rupert Man Is Held On Theft Charge

RUPERT — A 21-year-old Rupert man was in custody Saturday, charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of a tool box and tools valued at $300. Remijio Carrillo, Rupert, was taken into custody by Rupert city police at his motel room shortly after the operation of Schow's American Station on Highway 24-25 reported the theft. Officers received the report at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and apprehended the suspect at 6:30 p.m. The tools and tool box were recovered, police said.

South Korean CIA Arrests 27 Persons In Spy Network

SEOUL (AP) — South Korea's Central Intelligence Agency today announced the arrest of 27 persons accused of operating a spy network that set the ground for North Korean guerrilla raids. The spy ring, reportedly organized by a North Korean Communist party official who slipped into the South seven years ago, also was said to have tried to infiltrate left-wing and intellectual groups. Some 40 pieces of spy equipment, including six code sets and seven radio transmitters, were confiscated in the roundup, the agency said.

Named as head of the ring was Chung Tal-Hong, 45, a business executive alleged to have visited North Korea at least four times for instructions and money. The Seoul intelligence agency said the underground group had received at least $67,000 from its members.

It used the money to set up a legal "cover" and to publish a monthly magazine aimed at reaching intellectuals, the agency charged. The publication, called "Blue Ridge" went out of business last year after 28 issues.

Spies also were said to have resumed operations earlier this year and began preparing for North Korean guerrilla activities in the South.

Charges Of Urban Renewal Ills Leveled By T.F. Man

Editor, Times-News:

Citizens of Twin Falls are being given a beautiful snow job and having false pictures of the ills of the community and the benefits of Urban Renewal. Furthermore, the truth is not being given us regarding the powers vested in the Urban Renewal Board.

Mr. Jack Mallowney, who manages who supports the Urban Renewal Board of five men, that their actions should go unquestioned and that the appointed board has all the control from the public necessary. This board has absolutely no way of being released even by the city commissioners except by a formal hearing. They don't even have to account to the city commissioners for their actions, but the law doesn't in any way restrict any newcomer from being appointed. Furthermore, it is known fact that many men are given a little authority to carry out the board's orders, but the city commissioners are not in any way involved in the program.

The board can force any property owner to improve his property to conform to their master plan, should your property be attached to them. This includes all property within a five-mile area beyond the Twin Falls city limits except for property in the city limits of towns which fall within the five-mile limit.

They can confiscate, by the power of eminent domain, any property within the area of operation they choose and you have only the right to fight the price paid in the courts. The officials have assured us that they don't intend to force anyone but I assure you they will have to complete their plans.

Confiscated property can be sold to whomsoever they wish and without any consideration being given for the losses between what they paid and what it sells for. They can sell bonds, manage property, rent property, borrow money and without any limit set, engage attorneys to protect them and to complete their programs. All failures and future problems of financial loss can be pushed onto the tax rolls by the city commissioners.

Hansen Woman Writes About Modern Movies

Editor, Times-News:

I recently took four impressionable young people to see the movie, "Through the Magic Millie." Also shown were previews of the coming movie, "The Wild Bird."

This is advertised for "mature audiences only," but we were shown two nude scenes unfit for young audiences (or any age for that matter) through my choice of my own.

I believe that the vulgarity and violence brought to us through movies and television is disgusting and it is up to you and me, or anyone who cares about the moral fiber of our America, to speak up.

I understand that there are no more censorship boards and if there are, they are ineffective as I see it. It's up to us.

First, select your movies carefully. "Parents Magazine," "I believe," "The New York Times," "The Washington Post," and other newspapers, have a record of affiliation with known revolutionary and revolutionary groups. You can't deny that the child and his friends are shocked almost beyond belief!

Five years ago, no president would have dared to appoint such an avowed leftist to such an important job. The very fact that Fortias can be given serious consideration for the Chief Justice is a alarming in itself. It can only mean that America's time is growing short . . . that the time of crisis is as near that as we can get. It is necessary for the revolution to take the risk of revealing itself in order to insure its success.

The American people owe it to themselves, their children, and nation to investigate Fortias a closer than they investigated Earl Warren. They must understand the background, philosophy and character of the man who may soon become America's third highest-standing official.

Senator Jordan is on record as opposing this appointment and wonder about Senator Church?

Won't you join me today in writing to your senators to let them know how you feel about this critical issue facing our republic?

MRS. JERRY CALLEN (Jerome)

Jerome Woman Urges Check Of Justice Fortas

Editor, Times-News:

I feel that the appointment of Abe Fortas by the president is the last straw in LBJ's stack of disappointments to the people of America. It is in fact, the last straw that could even be considered for the Chief Justice in the light of his background. The truth is, he has a record of affiliation with known revolutionary and revolutionary groups. You can't deny that the child and his friends are shocked almost beyond belief!

This request will then be considered by the editors and it will either be granted or the letter will be returned to the writer.

Letter Accuses News Media Of Remaining Silent

Editor, Times-News:

In their anxiety to avoid any chance of being called anti-Semitic, American newspapers have gone overboard in tolerating the dangerous activities of a small Zionist segment of the American Jewish community. These few trouble makers are rich and influential far beyond their numbers. They have been exerting every effort to invade the United States in the Middle East as a defender of Israel and its conquests. This would be another Vietnam on a vastly larger and more expensive scale. It was bowing to this crowd that got Bobby Kennedy shot. Newspapers are failing their responsibility by remaining silent in the face of this conspiracy.

Writer Is Glad Youngsters Are Being Praised

Editor, Times-News:

At long last people are taking notice of the nice things youngsters are doing. Why condemn all of them because a few get into trouble. All rich kids are not spoiled either. I still remember the nice girl who held the door open for me as I came from the grocery store carrying a large sack of groceries. She is of a rich family, but has had good bringing up. Troublesome teenagers seem to come from all classes. However, they usually have one thing in common. Most of them have alcoholic fathers.

A few are from Christian homes. A preacher's son we once knew used to try to knock the crutches from under a little crippled boy. Cases such as this are very few.

Most youngsters are nice. Now who puts out the pornographic literature and filthy pictures? It is done for the money. Seems the law allows this if they say "it's for adults only." Well it is for kids if it's no good for adults either.

Light Turnout Is Indicated For Idaho Primary

By EARLE L. JESTER
BOISE (AP) — Idahoans will cast ballots in their 1968 primary election just two weeks hence, but indications now point to a light turnout.

Only one political party nomination is contested, for representative from the Second Congressional District on the Republican ticket. There are three candidates.

Probably top interest is centered on the four-way nonpartisan race for a seat on the state supreme court. Controversy over geographical representation on the court has added fuel to that one.

The election is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 6, and polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m. local time. That means that in the North, which is the Pacific Time Zone, the polls are open one hour after those in the South. In the Mountain Time Zone, close.

Idaho elects only three members of its congressional delegation and two justices of the supreme court, along with legislative and some county officials this year. Interest always is lighter in the off-election years.

Four years ago, when the situation was similar, 105,728 votes were cast in the primary.

Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa, the state's top election official, said he expects about the same proportion of registered voters to cast ballots this year and predicts the total at about 110,000.

Two years ago, when both parties had contests for governor and some other nominations, the primary election drew a record 157,632 voters.

For a general election, the Idaho record is 200,450, set in 1960.

"There doesn't seem to be too much interest this year," Cenarrusa said. "However, it is possible something could happen in the final two weeks that would cause the number of votes cast to be larger than now indicated."

Soaking the Republican nomination for representative in the Second District are two state senators, Orval Hansen of Idaho Falls and Don Loveland of Burley, and a probate judge, Mrs. Mary Adams of Idaho Falls.

The winner will meet Democrat Darrell Manning of Pocatello, now a state representative, in the November general election. Manning is opposed for his party's nomination, as are all other congressional aspirants.

Seeking re-election are incumbents Sen. Frank Church, a Democrat, and Rep. James A. McClure, a Republican.

George V. Hansen of Pocatello, serving his second term as Second District representative, is the Republican aspirant to oppose Church and Compton I. White of Clark Fork, a Democrat, is his party's choice to oppose McClure.

White has served two terms in the House but lost to McClure two years ago in a bid for a third term.

One of the supreme court seats at stake this year will be filled in the primary election. It is now held by Justice E. B. Smith of Boise, who has reached retirement age.

Aspirants for the seat are Atty. Gen. Allan G. Shepard and District Judge Merlin S. Young, both of Boise. Idaho law provides that if a candidate gets a majority in the primary, he wins election and does not run again in the general election.

With only two candidates, one is certain to get a majority — unless they tie.

Four candidates filed for the supreme court seat held by Justice C. J. Taylor, who also has reached retirement age. They are District Judges Boyd R. Thomas of Idaho Falls, Sherman J. Bellwood of Rupert and Charles R. Donaldson of Boise and a Sandpoint lawyer, Stephen Bistline.

Taylor, prior to his election to the supreme court, was a district judge in Idaho Falls. Backers of Thomas' campaign contended the Idaho State Bar long has followed the custom — in recommending appointments for court vacancies — of retaining the existing geographical distribution of the justices.

They said that because Taylor was from the eastern Idaho area his successor also should come from that section. They asked Bellwood, Donaldson and Bistline to withdraw.

Bistline agreed but Bellwood and Donaldson gave no public answer to the request and, lacking their acceptance, Bistline said he would continue in the race.

12 Wounded

SAIGON (AP) — Twelve Viet names were reported wounded by a grenade thrown on a Saigon street today during a dispute between members of the Hoa Hao, a splinter Buddhist group.

Police could not determine the cause of the dispute. The grenade exploded in front of a Hoa Hao office.

The blast occurred near a big U.S. Agency for International Development office building, and set off rumors about terrorist attacks. But police said there was no Viet Cong involvement.

Bill Praised

BOISE (AP) — A bill sponsored by Idaho's two senators designed to increase the amount of money given to counties under federal Forest Fund appropriations has been praised by Idaho Supt. of Public Instruction D. F. Engelking.

The bill, sponsored by Sens. Len Jordan and Frank Church, would require that counties get 25 per cent of gross sales from products on national forest lands, instead of the present 23 per cent of net sales.

Engelking said the counties received $1,234,311 in 1966-67 and that figure would have been increased by $88,212 had the appropriation been on the basis of gross sales.

The measure has passed the Senate and is now in the House.

FIRE MARSHAL Fred Higgins gives basic instructions on fire prevention to members of the YWCA-sponsored baby-sitting class. Mr. Higgins was one of several guest speakers for the classes in training baby sitters. The enormous responsibility involved in baby-sitting was pointed out by each speaker. Dr. Luther Thompson and Ernie Marlow were other speakers.

Class Members Ready For Occupation: Baby Sitter

Women's Section

DOING CLASSROOM WORK in conjunction with the YWCA-sponsored baby-sitting course are members of a recent class. The clinic was set up for girls and boys who have completed the fifth grade and through Junior-high school.

Youths Learn Responsibility Of Being Good Baby Sitters

Baby-sitting — one of the major sources of income for young girls in this community—has gone professional, providing real "pros" for the jobs, complete with good recommendations.

To provide better baby sitters as well as teach youngsters the responsibilities of accepting a "job," the YWCA sponsors a course, Occupation: Baby Sitter.

Junior high school girls receive such instruction during their home economics classes while many others in the community have taken advantage of the YWCA training.

Just what kind of a business is baby-sitting? Most people will say it's a very easy way to earn spending money — but just how many people take the time to explain to the average baby sitter, especially the younger ones, the enormous responsibility involved.

Many will say baby-sitting is fun and most young girls (as well as many boys) look forward to the time they will be old enough to baby-sit for neighbors or friends. Many working mothers rely on those young people and often find it very difficult to find one that meets all their standards and qualifications.

Whatever else it is, baby-sitting is a job — demanding definite responsibilities. It is one of the most important jobs ever undertaken by a teen-ager as well as an adult. Like every job, baby sitters need certain qualifications to do it well and often those qualifications are not adhered to.

The YWCA classes included the do's and don'ts of baby-sitting, noting the general rules to follow, guest speaker on emergencies such as fire and accidents, along with basic instructions from the police departments.

Class members made a "sitter's kit" to help keep the youngsters entertained come rain or shine and before they receive a certificate of completion, each student must pass a written examination containing 15 pertinent questions and write a 60-word paragraph telling what she learned by attending the baby-sitter's clinic (that she thought would make her a better baby sitter). Among the first things asked

DISTRIBUTING CERTIFICATES of completion to members of the recent baby-sitting classes is Mrs. Marvin Gally, class instructor and YWCA director. Names of those completing the course are kept on file at the "Y" for references when a baby sitter is needed.

TAKING A WRITTEN examination to complete the YWCA-sponsored baby-sitting course is Cheryl Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Fox. Each student must pass a written examination which contains 15 pertinent questions and write a short essay.

Area Couple Recites Vows

YWCA Classes Train Local Baby Sitters

The group of potential job seekers was "Will you make a good baby sitter?", noting one must have basic qualities before even starting the class. The following questions all had to have "yes" answers.

No. 1—Do you like children?
No. 2—Do you have a well-developed sense of responsibility?

No. 3—Are you safety-minded?
No. 4—Can you keep your head in an emergency?

Getting along with the parents is an item found high on the "must" list. Students were told there are many different kinds of parents as there are different kinds of children. Some are strict, some are easy going. Some tell the sitters exactly what they expect of her—others leave things pretty much to her discretion.

The girls were asked to compile an information check list and were instructed on ways to stay awake while on the job as well as tests on safety and health.

The YWCA baby-sitting clinic was set up for girls and boys who have completed the fifth grade and through junior high school, however, no boys were enrolled in the latest class.

Among the speakers during the last sessions were Fred Higgins of the Twin Falls Fire Department, Dr. Luther Thompson of the Twin Falls Public Health Department; Ernest Marlow, Twin Falls Police Department, and Mrs. Marvin (Sally) Molyneux, instructor and YWCA director.

Names of those completing the course are kept on file at the YWCA and anyone who baby sitters can call the YWCA office for the names of those listing close to them.

Members of the graduating class have a baby sitters pledge, which is very good and complete and is a constant reminder of the vast responsibility they have undertaken.

"I have one of the most responsible jobs in the world. I am in charge of a precious person. From the moment I start my duties until the parents return, I will keep awake, alert, watchful.

I will know where to call the doctor, the police, and the fire department. I will surely have the telephone numbers where parents, nearby friends or neighbors may be reached.

I will know how to properly care for the simple burns, cuts and bruises.

I will find out the means of exit.

I will not permit my charges to play near stoves, electrical appliances, open unguarded windows or on stairways.

I will feed my charges only what their mother specifies and nothing else.

I will faithfully follow her other instructions.

I will lock all outside doors after parents leave. I will not open them to strangers.

I will not permit them to play with matches, knives or other sharp objects or with unsafe toys.

I am fully aware that a child's life is in my hands.

I will do all in my power to protect that life.

HOLLISTER — Marilyn Marie Schroeder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schroeder, Buhl, Idaho, and David Lee Kramer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kramer, Schuyler, Neb., were united in marriage June 23 at the Church of the Lutheran, Church, Buhl.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas A. Johnson, before a large group of coral sprigged chrysanthemums and white gladioli and gold-candelabra with white candles flanking the altar. The flowers were arranged by Mrs. Robert DeBer, Del Rapids, S.D., aunt of the bridegroom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza styled with a scalloped neckline and an empire waistline. A beaded motif accented the bodice, and alencon lace adorned the front of her gown and edge of the train, which fell into a chapel-length. The skirt of the gown was slim and the back fell into graceful fullness.

Her elbow-length veil, borrowed from her sister, Mrs. Richard Dinder, fell from a cluster of white and pink flowers (fringed with pearls and crystals. Her cascading bridal bouquet was of Tropicaea roses and white and yellow daisies, long tapering ribbons. Her jewelry was a single strand of pearls and teardrop pearl earrings.

The bride's attendant, Mrs. Martin Anderson, sister of the bride, Twin Falls, was matron of honor.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Finner, Aberdeen, Wash., sister of the bride, and Faye Roser, Filer, friend of the bride. The bridesmaids' dresses were arranged under the direction of Mrs. Alfred Kramer, Castleford, aunt of the bride.

Flower girl was Michele Anderson, carrying a white net basket filled with Tropicaea roses and white daisies. Ring bearer was Ross Rasmussen, Eganston, Calif., cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Ushers and taperlighters were Don Bank, Castleford, and Gary Bohling, Buhl, friends of the bridegroom. Best man was Dan Kramer, Schuyler, Neb., brother of the bridegroom. Groomsman were Gary Schroeder and Eugene Schroeder, friends of the couple.

Jarl Kramer, Castleford, and Karl Rasmussen, Pleasanton, Calif., cousins of the bridegroom, presented each guest a wedding program. The ceremony, Vayne Reinke and Terry Kramer were gift carriers. Presiding at the gift table were Robert Larson, Sharon Schroeder, Anna Myer, Epacello, and Mrs. Wayne Jagels, all classmates of the bride.

More than 200 persons attended the reception held at the Clover Parish Hall after the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace tablecloth over coral satin and was centered with a three-tiered cross-shaped wedding cake flanked by two large round ring-shaped cakes bearing the names of the bride and bridegroom. The floral arrangement around the cakes was Oregon grape leaves and white gladioli. Double crystal candelabra—holding green candles decorated the table.

Mrs. Ben Peiffer, Seward, Neb., aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. John Jagels, Mrs. Arnold Schroeder, Buhl, aunts of the bride, cut and served the wedding cake. Mrs. Alfred Kramer served the coffee and Mrs. Robert DeBer, Del Rapids, S.D., aunt of the bridegroom and Mrs. Orville Reinke, Buhl, aunt of the bride, presided at the punch table. Serving ice cream were Wayne Jagels and Don Kramer, Buhl, cousins of the bride and bridegroom. Receptionists were Rev. and Mrs. Harold Schroeder. In charge of the guest book was Lillian Meckel.

The couple's honeymoon was spent in Schuyler, Neb., where a reception was given June 27 by the bridegroom's parents.

The bride plans on teaching at Memorial Lutheran School in Twin Falls. Mr. Kramer is engaged in farming near Hollister in the McMeister Flat area.

A kitchen shower was given for the couple by Mrs. Lester DeBower and Mrs. Walter DeBower, Seward, Neb., and three miscellaneous showers were given by Lynette Rothenburg and Betty Gerken, Faye Roser, Rosemary Lassen, Mrs. Wayne Jagels, Mrs. Clifford Masfield Jr., Mrs. Albert Turner, Mrs. Gaven Malone and Mrs. James Louda.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the country home of the Alfred Kramers, Castleford.

Special out-of-town guests attended from Schuyler, Columbus and Seward, Neb.; Chicago, Ill.; Concordia, Mo.; Del Rapids, S.D.; Aberdeen, Wash.; Pleasanton, Calif.; and Boise, King Hill and Potomac.

Program Topic Is Presented For Haus Frau

The program topic for the Haus Frau Home Extension Club meeting was "Add Spice to Your Life." Demonstrations were presented by Mrs. Don Smith and Mrs. Earl Hoffman.

A hamburger fry will be held Aug. 3 at the Twin Falls Idaho Power Park, with husbands of members as special guests.

Work shifts were arranged for the annual YWCA pancake breakfast to be held July 27 at the Twin Falls City Center.

A rummage sale will be held Aug. 30 and 31 at the old U.S. Beauty Shop building, with proceeds to help send the club to the state convention in October.

Members decided the club will help serve two luncheons each month for the YWCA instead of the usual one each month.

A sun party with the children is planned for Tuesday at Blake's Swimming Pool.

ATTEND WEDDING KING HILL — Mr. and Mrs. Bud Allen and family have returned from Baker, Ore., where they attended the wedding of their niece, Susan Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Allen, and Richard Nine.

WAGON WHEEL SALAD — On a fluffy bed of finely shredded western iceberg lettuce, make a ring of overlapping green pepper slices, with rings of drained canned whole kernel corn and sliced tomatoes inside. Heap canned crisp shoestring potatoes in center and drizzle with a creamy-buttered dressing from center to edge, like spokes. Feas in July.

Social Calendar

SHOSHONE — Past Matrons Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. July 28 at the home of Mrs. Claudine Chess. According to president, Mrs. Floyd O. Kisting, the meeting was postponed from July 27.

The July meeting of the Mary Davis Art Club has been postponed. The August meeting will be announced later.

Breakfast Set For Tuesday

The annual breakfast for the Past Officers Club at the home of Mrs. William Arma was planned for Tuesday when a recent meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Donald Treddwell.

The group held a potluck picnic with members of the Royal Clubhouse Lodge as guests. Prizes were awarded to game winners and Mrs. Frieda Evans received a special gift. Mrs. Evans assisted her daughter with arrangements and servings.

Guests were Mrs. Elva Olson, Mrs. Alice Woodley and Bill Arma.

Reunion-Held

SHOSHONE — A family reunion for the John Platz family was held at the Platz home with 54 in attendance.

The celebration was preceded by a family patio-dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McKay.

The highlight of the occasion was the birthday celebration of 17 members of the group who have their birthday anniversaries in July.

Honored Queen Installed

LuAnn Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stevens, was installed honored queen of Halley Bethel No. 30, International Order of Job's Daughters, at an open ceremony recently at the Masonic Temple.

Susan Rathke, retiring honored queen, was installing officer.

Miss Stevens was presented a hand-turned gavel from her parents and other gifts and flowers from special friends and members of her family, including her aunts and uncles, Mr. and Mrs. Rutland Brown, Boise, and Mrs. Owen Carter, Falls, and her brother, Gary.

Miss Stevens' line officers include Gail Ramsey, senior princess; Susan Overfield, guide, and Marilyn Stapleton, marshal. Her appointive officers are Terry M. O. re; musicians—Marilyn Cox, librarian; Vicky Rutter, recorder; Patricia Stephens, treasurer; Natalie Nygmik, chaplain; Maria Wunderlich, Paul Jo Moran and Radene Smith, messengers; Sally Overfield and Winnie DeBoard, guards; Julie Door and Chris Smith, custodians; Sue Swanner, choir captain; Barbara Vernon, custodian of lights, and Cindy Schlosser, flag bearer.

For the refreshment hour after the ceremonies, the banquet room and table were decorated in Miss Stevens' chosen colors of shades of lavender and purple, with accents of silver. The table was centered with a white Bible and light was from white tapers set in lavender net puffs fringed with silver. White-ice cream floated in the punch bowl.

Regular meetings of the Bethel will resume in September.

Piano, Organ Recital Given

BURLEY — Robert D. Hamblen presented 13 students in a piano and organ recital recently at his Burley studios.

The students were Tammy Harding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harding, Rupert; Colleen Bird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Bird, Rupert; Gary Ottman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ottman, Hazelton; Nancy Montgomery and Karen Montgomery, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Montgomery, Rupert.

Dale Fowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Fowers, Rupert; Colleen Wilkie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wilkie, Rupert; Sylvia Kraus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kraus, Buhl; and Lorene Dille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Dille, Burley.

Reshel Martich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Martich, Paul; Cammy Rae Harding, Rupert; Cindy Wilkie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wilkie, Rupert, and Amy Hamblen.

Most of the students appearing in the recital were experiencing their first recital. Mr. Hamblen explained the need of public performance in the musical education of the student.

Guests were served by Mrs. August Martich.

Mrs. Murrel Blades received a special gift and Mrs. Cliff Burgess won a novelty gift.

Plans Made For Fair Booth

JEROME — Plans were made for a booth at the county fair for the Town and Country Homeowners Club met at the home of Mrs. Everett Luedert to their annual sale-luncheon.

Mrs. George Van Lieshout was named chairman of the fair booth and the booth will be decorated the Saturday preceding opening of the fair.

Guests were Mrs. Howard Beving, Mrs. Ben Kober, Mrs. Cliff Burgess and Christine Larson, Washington.

Mrs. Murrel Blades received a special gift and Mrs. Cliff Burgess won a novelty gift.

Stain Remover

If you've dropped your baby's wet diaper on a hardwood floor and a stain has resulted, try this: First scrub with No. 1 steel wool and a good commercial floor cleaner, following the directions on the label. If the stain remains, apply a hot oxalic-tartaric acid bleach solution—one tablespoon of each in one cup boiling water. And do be careful—It is poison.

Use a glass or enamel container to heat or reheat the solution, which must be hot to be effective. Leave on for 30 minutes to an hour; blot up. Rinse with a solution of one tablespoon ammonia to one quart warm water. This stops the bleaching action. Blot up, rinse with clear water; dry. Next day, examine treated area. If some stain still remains, repeat operation. If this doesn't work the area may have to be sanded or replaced.

Jerome Club Observes Golden Year

By SARAH BEEM
Times-News Correspondent
JEROME—A lot of memories were recalled when the Canyon-side Community Club celebrated its 50th Anniversary at a party at the Carillon, Twin Falls.

Approximately 40 women attended the salad luncheon. All the ladies wore the corsages, the club flower. The programs were gold lettered and held by a tiny gold mit.

Mrs. Marie Snyder, president, welcomed members and guests and Mrs. Herman Stammerjohn was featured soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Harry Ray. She sang with her piano teacher, Maria Mounsey, Seattle.

Mrs. Leo Olson gave two readings, "Vive La France" and a humorous reading regarding club members.

Mrs. Jean Duffek gave the club history and this was a time of reminiscing. The club started in 1918 with 10 members.

One of the early highlights was a talk in 1919 by a Miss Hultala, a missionary from India who told of women's life there. In October, 1919, the club moved a church from the Barrymore area to the Callen place and later it was moved to the school property.

Lloyd Roberts, a Presbyterian minister, served the church from 1920 to 1925. Some of the early club projects were buying hymn books and a piano for the church. When Rev. Mr. Roberts left the church, the club held an ice cream social and presented him $43.

Club dues in early years were 25 cents and in 1958 it was raised to one dollar. It was noted that the roll called used most often was labor saving ideas.

Club meetings were not all business. It was noted how much entertainment they provided themselves with evenings. In February, 1920, they held a Washington a d d Lincoln Day and all came dressed in colonial attire. An annual husbands banquet has been held down through the years and is still one of the special occasions. On Mother's Day a special party is also held.

In 1938 the club became a Home Demonstration Club and had a booth at the county fair for many years. Every year a barrel of fruit is sent to the Boise Children's Home. Two boys the club has sponsored cooks award in competition with other area organizations. A few of their numerous projects have been to contribute to the Youth Ranch and to help pay for an Islette for St. Benedict's Hospital.

Presently the club earns most of its money serving lunches at farm sales. When the Grange disbanded, members turned the use of the hall over to the club. At present they are attempting to purchase it from the school district.

Some of the women commented on washing clothes on a washboard and using sage for fuel.

All in all, 50 years have gone by, with club members active in various projects and all looking forward to another 50 years.

50 Years

... of service to the community was observed by members of the Canyon-side Community Club when they observed the club's Golden Anniversary recently at a social at the Carillon. Off to the left, Mrs. Marie Snyder, president; Mrs. Bernice Colings, secretary; and Mrs. Doris Harper, vice president. Among those attending the social were, bottom picture from left, Mrs. R. H. By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I must have started a dozen letters to you and tore them all up, hoping each time things would work themselves out. Well, they haven't to this time. I am writing to you for advice.

I'm not quite 18 and have been married for 10 months to a man who is 26. When I told my mother I wanted to marry Phil, she begged me not to, saying I was "too young" and would regret it. I wouldn't listen to her, said I was "in love" and I talked her into signing for me.

Now I realize my mother was right. I can't begin to tell you how unhappy I am. Phil is cold, suspicious, treats me like a child, and he even "spanks" me on my bare bottom if I don't obey him. All the love I had for him is dead and I can hardly stand for him to touch me. Abby, this is just not working out. I talked to my pastor and he says, "Give your marriage a chance." All day long thoughts keep running thru my mind. Should I just leave and go home and regret it, or should I get a divorce? Could I get an annulment? Or, now that I've made my bed must I lie in it? Please, please, help me.

SICK AT HEART!
DEAR SICK: Tell Phil what is in your heart and go home to your mother. A lawyer can tell you if you're eligible for an annulment. Fortunately you are childless. Better to leave the bed "you made" than to lie in it and conceive children there you don't want, in a marriage you feel is a mistake. Write in your mother. She will understand.

DEAR ABBY: I have asked many people this question and they have all come up with different answers, and I would love to know yours.

I am a 16-year-old girl. Just for fun, an 18-year-old girl challenged me to a race. I won. Should I have let him win for the sake of his masculine pride, or should I have beat him as I did, fair and square?

FAST GIRL!
DEAR FAST: Since I'm challenged you, and you accepted the challenge, you should not have "let him" win. Naturally, it was a blow to his masculine pride. Let him win a lesson to you. Never accept such a challenge with a boy again, because if you win, you lose respect for his mistake. I attended the wedding of a relative. I wore a very nice black cocktail dress with long sleeves, and an intricate design on my hair-do. I wore a black lace mantilla on my head. Now I know they say that black is out for weddings, but I have seen plenty of black dresses at weddings so there is nothing so unusual about that.

Well, outside the church, a friend of my mother-in-law's asked me "WHOM HAD LOST?" It took a minute for me to realize what she meant. At the reception my husband's uncle asked me the same thing. I am furious. What should have said to these rude people! Do you share my opinion that these remarks were ignorant and uncalled-for?

HURT
DEAR HURT: If the remarks were intended to ridicule, I would agree with you. But perhaps they were not. It was probably not so much the black dress that gave the impression of mourning as the black lace mantilla.

CONFIDENTIAL TO RICK:
You probably talk too much. Nobody ever listened, himself out of a job.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NUTTY!

Pecans, walnuts and peanuts are a favorite of the nut lover. The meat from these nuts is wonderful for removing scratches from all kinds of furniture.

Just remove the nut from its shell and break the nut in two. With the broken side of the nut meat, rub the scratch gently. The oil from the nut meat will eliminate any discoloration and the furniture will look like new.

Apple Blossom Cobbler
1 can refrigerated biscuits
1 can (1 pound-5 ounces) prepared apple fruit filling
1 package (3 ounces) cranberry flavored gelatin

TOPPING
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 stick (1/4 cup) butter

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Makes eight servings.

Separate biscuit dough into 10 biscuits. Place in bottom of a greased 8 by 12-inch or 9-inch square pan. Spread apple filling over dough. Sprinkle with dry gelatin. Sprinkle topping over gelatin. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Serve with cream or ice cream.

For the topping—in a mixing bowl combine flour, sugar and salt. With pastry blender, cut in butter until mixture is coarse and crumbly.

BETTY CANARY'S Wonderful World

My six-year-old daughter snapped down the lock on the car door and said, "We don't want any had people getting in here!"

I was pulling off the dashboard a plastic spider, and a small sign that said, "No Disturb While Enting, so I answered, "Oh, Tad put the bug here as a joke. I don't think he's had!"

"You know," she said, checking her door, "had people."

I do not know how she learned to be afraid. There it was a television show, because she cannot read well enough to have acquired this fear from a newspaper or magazine article. Or perhaps recent-time gossip has taught her. At home we have gone over sensible habits and safety rules, such as not talking with strangers, but, not seeing any point to surrounding myself with a household of neurotics, I have not spent hours dwelling on the uglier happenings in life.

It saddened me that a little girl who had fun picking violets and dandelions this morning was afraid of some mysterious had person at noon. And, I did what would be called the sensible thing. I explained that we locked our car doors for the same reason as we buckled the seat-belt for safety in case of an accident.

Keep Menu Simple For Outdoors Entertaining

SHOSHONE—"When you take the dining room outdoors in warm weather, keep the menu simple," advises Mrs. Mary Lou Ruby, home economist for Lincoln County. Only a few dishes should be planned with generous amounts for healthy appetites.

Organizing food and supplies for easy carrying helps, and large trays and baskets are useful. If electrical outlets are available, the coffee-maker can be used, griddle, fry pan, or toaster should be a check to see there is enough power for all appliances.

She adds "Use simple table settings. Many kinds of disposable can simplify the meal, particularly at clean-up time. Provide waste containers in handy places."

The cooking should be planned carefully. Larger quantities can be prepared over small

WCSB Brunch Held in Jerome

JEROME—A brunch, hosted by Circle Two, was held recently for members of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Orville Bean, president, gave the devotional service. They heard a report on the condition of Mrs. Ira Foster, who is in the LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City. The group signed a card to be sent to her.

Mrs. Vera Vining thanked the group for the cards and letters she received while in the hospital in Boise.

Mrs. Carter Luther told of the WCSB Mission School in Caldwell that her daughter, Lorna, attended.

It was reported that five packages of Sunday school study books and pictures were sent to the mission at Cascoval, Brazil.

The change of circles will take place Aug. 15 when they meet at the home of Mrs. Vera Vining for a potluck picnic.

Mrs. Grace Hopkins conducted a memorial service for Mrs. Ray Hiett. Mrs. H. C. Bentinger, Mrs. Irene Williams and Mrs. Rose Womble, past members.

Miss Stevens, Loop Exchange Nuptial Vows

RICHFIELD — Carlene Fay Stevens and Eugene L. Loop exchanged marriage vows in a ceremony June 29 at the Richfield LDS Church.

Bishop Jay Ward performed the double ring afternoon ceremony in the Relief Society Rooms. Beauty baskets of summer flowers carried out the bride's theme of orchid and a white.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Stevens, Richfield. Mr. Loop is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kimball, Bellingham, Wash.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a wedding gown which she designed and made. Of floor-length white satin, the gown was fashioned with a rounded neckline, fitted bodice, lace sleeves and a floor-length train falling from the shoulders. Her veil of bridal illusion banded with lace, was held by a single satin rose touched with lilies of the valley.

A pair of crystals complemented the gown. White carnations centered with a lavender orchid and ivy made up her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. David Marble, Boise, attended the bride as matron of honor. Sharon Appell was maid of honor and Della Stevens, small sister of the bride, was flower girl.

David Marble served as best man. William Stevens and Donald Stevens, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Special guests included grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hubsmit and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stevens, all Richfield.

A reception in the LDS Cultural Hall was held after the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a lavender cloth with a bridal skirt of white illusion accented with lavender ribbon and bows. The three-tiered wedding cake, surrounded with air fern, centered the table.

Mrs. Leon Wright, aunt of the bride, and daughter, Donna Blakeslee, both Filer, served the cake. Mrs. Jack Hubsmit, aunt of the bride, poured punch.

Guests were served at quarter tables centered with crystal dishes of lavender water holding single white roses. Serving girls were Leann Crowther and Marie Hubsmit.

Pamela Edwards attended the guest book. Jancene Fridmore and Linda Akins were in charge

Woman Is Second In Charge Of Life Insurance Company

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Page Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—On weekday mornings Amelia E. Reichert catches the 7:33 train out of Huntington, Long Island, to be sure of two things: getting a seat and reaching her office in midtown Manhattan by 9 a.m.

You might think that by this time, in her life and career she would allow herself the luxury of coming in late some mornings.

But Amelia Reichert didn't get to be the only woman vice president among the nation's 10 largest corporations in terms of assets by indulging herself.

In June 1963, she was elected the first woman vice president in the 123-year history of the New York Life Insurance Co. She had joined it in 1927 as a stenographer when she was 15 years old, was appointed an assistant vice president in the 1940s.

At the gift tables, Joy Alexander entertained with song numbers, with Maria Hiatt as piano accompanist.

Guests attended from Rupert, Filer, Twin Falls, Stone, Richfield and Shoshone.

The couple will reside in Margreley until late July when they will move to Bellingham.

yourself too seriously.

"I firmly believe it's the individual and the ability that count—not the sex. They're going to have to be recognizing people on the basis of ability, not sex, by the 1970s. There are too many jobs to be done by just people. There aren't enough people who aren't women to do all the work that needs to be done."

She thinks discrimination because of sex is on its way out because newer and newer management is moving in. "These young men out of college are more accustomed to sitting by girls or seeing their mothers return to work."

In her early days in business, she says, a man went with a company and nine times out of 10 stayed with it the rest of his life. The company invested in him. At the same time it felt it was not worthwhile investing in a woman—she'd soon marry, have children and quit forever.

Now women are coming back. They're not out too long for child-bearing. And with men nowadays there are lateral moves and many young men now go into service. A company is better off training people, not women or men.

Her husband, Arthur G. Reichert, whom she married in 1942, is in real-estate and general insurance on Long Island. They rarely discuss insurance and related interests at dinner, she says. "Because I never bring the office home." They have no children.

Mrs. Reichert has some definite opinions about women in business.

"The masculine woman executive is on her way out," she says.

"There's an increase in the number of women in managerial positions and the masculine woman executive is less and less apparent."

She turns thumbs down on flouting sex. "It doesn't get you anywhere"—and taking

Miss Savaria, Helsley Reveal Wedding Date

SHOSHONE—An announcement party recently, the engagement of Cheryl Ann Savaria and David W. Helsley, Shoshone, was made public by her father, Edward D. Savaria.

The lawn event was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Savaria at their home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Helsley, Shoshone, assisting. Close friends and relatives of the couple were present. A special guest was his grandmother, Mrs. E. D. Webb.

The serving table was set with the formal card announcements distributed from there as guests filed by. The names of Cheryl and David added to the cake decorations of white icing and pink roses.

Mrs. George Todd, Wendell, poured punch, Mrs. Ray Webb, Shoshone, poured the coffee and Mrs. Carl Kinnery, Shoshone, served the cake.

Miss Savaria is a graduate of Bonneville High School, Idaho Falls, and will be a junior at the University of Idaho this fall, where she is majoring in elementary education.

Mr. Helsley is a graduate of Buhl High School and served three years with the Army, one and one-half years of the time in Vietnam. He is attending the University of Idaho, majoring in the field of education, counseling and guidance.

An early September wedding is planned.

CHERYLE ANN SAVARIA

COLLEEN JORGENSEN

Miss Jorgensen Is Engaged To Gene Stocking

HEYBURN — Mr. and Mrs. Roger Jorgensen, Milton, Freeewater, Ore., announce the engagement of their daughter, Colleen, to Gene E. Stocking, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stocking, Emerson District.

Miss Jorgensen was graduated from McLoughlin High School and from Ricker Junior College, Rexburg, May 10, with an associate in science.

Mr. Stocking was graduated from Minidoka High School and Ricks College. His name appears in the 1968 volume of Who's Who Among Students in America Junior Colleges. He served an LDS Church mission in Germany and is employed at Burley.

They will be married Aug. 2 at the Idaho Falls LDS Temple and will be honored during an open house from 8:30 and 10 p.m. that evening at the Emerson LDS Ward Cultural Hall. A reception will be held Aug. 9 at Milton-Freeewater.

MR. AND MRS. MORLEY BLACKHAM

Valley Jamit Club Convenes

BUHL — Mrs. Glen Roland, vice president, presided at the business meeting in the absence of Mrs. Paul Kennedy, president, when members of the Jamit Club met at the home of Mrs. Blanche Smith.

Members of the group voted to hold meetings twice each month and to vacation during the summer months.

Mrs. Leslie Stroud read the nominating slate of officers. They were duly elected and installed by Mrs. Margaret Miller. Officers for the coming year are: Mrs. Ora Sumner, Twin Falls, president; Mrs. Roland, vice president; Mrs. Lila Studebaker, secretary; Mrs. Lawrence Roubinek, treasurer.

Mrs. Smith read a humorous poem—and the afternoon was spent in sociality. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Smith, with Mrs. Elva Fuller as assistant hostess.

The next meeting is July 28, with Mrs. Glen Roland and Mrs. Roubinek as hostesses.

Room Dimension Aids In Plans For Furnishing

Square rooms are difficult to furnish. An oblong or rectangular room lends itself most easily to convenient arrangement and is the shape most acceptable to many people, says Wilma Shyrack, home furnishings specialist of the University of Idaho extension service. An exception, however, is a square, separate dining room which can be furnished with a round table.

Many authorities feel that the proportions of an oblong room should be not less than one and one-half times, in measurement, this would be 12 feet by 12 feet, for 16 by 20. Proportions less than that tend to lose the rectangular effect, Miss Shyrack said.

In planning location and number of doors, leave unbroken wall space for large pieces of furniture. Solid walls are best backgrounds for large or heavy pieces. Small pieces should be placed in front of window walls. Placement of furniture is largely determined by location of doors because they govern the traffic pattern.

Nanette Bunce, McDonald Plan August Wedding

FILER — Mr. and Mrs. William M. Bunce, Filer, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nanette, to Scott Bruce McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Glen McDonald, Nampa.

The bride-elect was graduated from Filer High School in 1967 and is attending Idaho State University.

Mr. McDonald was graduated from Nampa High School in 1964 and recently served a two-year mission for the LDS Church. He will resume his studies at Idaho State University this fall.

An Aug. 31 wedding is planned.

Diana Brown Reveals Truth

Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Brown, Twin Falls, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diana Jean, to Darrell Wayne Belka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin S. Belka, Granger, Utah.

Miss Brown is a 1965 graduate of Twin Falls High School. She will be a senior at the University of Utah, where she is affiliated with Mu Phi Epsilon, University Symphony and University Choir.

Mr. Belka is attending the University of Utah, where he is majoring in architecture and is a member of the student A.I.A. An early September wedding is planned.

Two cycles. First do it the regular way; then rewash it using only detergent and no bleach.

Sleeping To Feel Better Is Valid Plan

GLENN'S FERRY — "To feel better, get more sleep," advises Mrs. Marilyn Jordan, Elmore County extension home economics agent.

The widely-accepted theory that the older you get the less sleep you need just isn't so, according to scientific studies, she continued.

A new official group study of patients over 80 who had no organic disease showed that the group who slept less than seven hours a night—had a preponderance of tension, fatigue, and apprehension as compared to those who slept eight or more hours a day.

Hundreds of schemes for combating insomnia "come" down to one simple rule: whatever has a soothing or relaxing effect is bound to encourage and hasten sleep, while anything that sets or excites the mind or body has the opposite result.

Don't take any medication for sleep unless prescribed by a doctor.

Castleford Couple Observes 50th Wedding Anniversary

CASTLEFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Morley Blackham were honored on their Golden Wedding Anniversary with an open house at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, west of Castleford.

Mrs. Blackham wore a blue and silver-knit dress enhanced with a corsage of white carnations and gold ribbons.

A picture board was displayed of all the family members, centered with the honored couple's wedding picture.

The reception table was covered with a lace cloth over pink and purple candleholders, a flanked gift to the couple. The candleholders with gold candles were decorated with greenery and small white chrysanthemums flecked with gold and tied with white ribbon. A crystal punch bowl and silver coffee service completed the table setting.

The table displaying the gift book and cards was covered with a cloth matching that of the reception table and centered with a gold and orange feathery flower arrangement.

Kim Johnson, Nicki Blackham and Janice Blackham were in charge of the guests book. Mrs. Byron Downard cut and served the cake. Mrs. Marvin Burrell poured coffee and Jan Coval presided at the punch bowl. Assisting was Mrs. John Honeck, Mrs. Ralph Smith and Mrs. Wanda Lauridsen.

DEAF MAN PERFECTS TINY HEARING AID—OFFERS FREE MODEL

(non-working)

A remarkably tiny all-in-the-ear hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly 40 years. This small device has no dangling cords. No separate transmitting units. Just slip it in your ear and hear again as you would naturally intend.

This new hearing instrument was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand clearly. It provides "ear-level" hearing. The wearer picks up speech, television, radio and general sounds more naturally. Due to the use of transistors, the unit cost is extremely low. The instrument weighs only 1/8 oz. Hardly noticeable, yet very powerful.

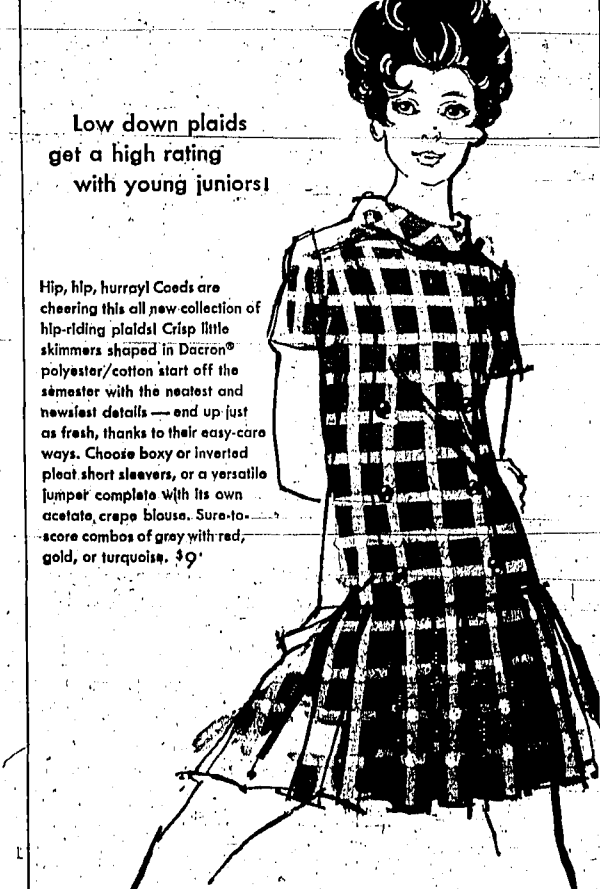

FREE. Actual size, non-working model of the new all-in-the-ear hearing aid is available to you absolutely FREE. Try it on in the privacy of your home. No cost or obligation of any kind. It's yours to keep FREE.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES S. ROSS

Nuptial Mass Said For Miss Knoble, Ross

Teresa Knoble became the bride of James S. Ross in a Nuptial Mass June 15 at St. Edward's Catholic Church, Twin Falls.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knoble and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ross, all Twin Falls.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Cody performed the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length gown of pearl de soie and Chantilly lace, featuring a fitted bodice, rounded neckline and elbow-length sleeves. A row of small daisies accented the edge of the neckline and sleeves.

Her bouffant waist-length veil was held by a large satin rose. The bride wore a string of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom's mother that belonged to the bridegroom's grandmother. The bride carried a small ivory-covered prayer book, topped with a small pink orchid.

The prayer book had been carried by the bridegroom's mother at her wedding. The prayer book was complemented with a rosary made of small pink rosebuds that was designed and made by the bride's mother.

Mrs. John Banyard, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Diana Brown was junior bridesmaid and Janice Brown served as ringbearer and flower girl. The Brown children are the niece and nephew of the bride.

The bridegroom's father served as best man.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Jack Cubitt and soloist was Bob Fries.

The reception was held after the ceremony at St. Edward's Parish Hall. The three-tiered pink and white wedding cake was served by Mrs. Robert Brown, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Betty Bayer, aunt of the bride. Coffee and punch were served by Mrs. Russell Wells and Ann Holliday. Ginger Wells was in charge of the guest book and Mrs. John Waters, Mrs. Steve Killey and Shirley Ball displayed the gifts.

The couple took a honeymoon trip to Sun Valley and reside at 957 1/2 Buchanan St., Pocatello.

Lana Stimpson Is Married To Kevin J. Terry

SHOSHONE — A June wedding united in marriage Lana Jean Stimpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Stimpson, Buhl, and Kevin Joe Terry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Terry, Shoshone.

Bishop Douglas Hansen officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a Bridal Original gown of pearl de soie. Embroidered alencon lace in a grape pattern of pearls trimmed the A-line skirt and sleeves. The fitted bodice featured the border trim banding to enhance the empire styling. Longilly flared sleeves were caught at the wrists with tiny miniature covered buttons.

A double row of orange blossoms held her elbow-length veil of English silk illusion. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. Her bouffant veil featured pink rosebuds and bridal wreath, with long white streamers, which she carried on a white Bible, belonging to the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Art Martin.

Her only attendant was Joyce Johnson. Marvin Rands performed the duties of best man.

The reception honoring the newlyweds was held at the LDS

Cultural Hall. Arrangements of white stock and pink peonies were featured. A four-tiered pink and green wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom centered the bride's table, which was covered with a pink lace cloth over pink taffeta.

The cake was made by an aunt of the bride, Mrs. Gordon Sorenson, and served by her aunts, Mrs. Sorenson and Mrs. Anita Bateman, a n d Mrs. Art Martin, grandmother of bridegroom. White lace cloths over pink covered the guest tables. Those serving during the evening were aunts, cousins and schoolmates of the bride.

Juanita Harris presided at the guest-book. Mrs. Willard Peterson and Mrs. Oscar Stimpson, aunts of the bride, and Kathy Newman, a girl friend, cared for the gifts. The bride and bridegroom helped open and display gifts.

The newlyweds took a wedding trip to Sun Valley. They will reside in Shoshone for the summer, where both are employed. In September they will reside in Twin Falls, where the bridegroom will continue his education at the College of Southern Idaho.

Linda Johnson, Bozzuto Recite Nuptial Vows

SHOSHONE — Linda E. Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern E. Johnson, Shoshone, became the bride of Robert T. Bozzuto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bozzuto, in a double ring ceremony at the First Baptist Church, Shoshone, June 29.

Rev. James Holt officiated at the ceremony before an altar graced by tall baskets of white chrysanthemums and yellow gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long gown fashioned of white tulle with a lace jacket and train. The bell-three-quarter length sleeve added to the bodice design as the pearl buttons on the train.

Her bouquet was of yellow roses, adorned with greenery and white streamers. She wore a pearl necklace belonging to her mother, and earrings made by the bridegroom's uncle.

Mrs. Verdene Anderson, sister of the bride, Torrance,

Call... was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Vicky Bozzuto, sister of the bridegroom and Judi Hannah, Fort Collins, Colo.

Bill Bozzuto, Chicago, Ill., brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Harold Canada, Salt Lake City, was soloist, and pianist was Carole Canada, Salt Lake City.

A reception was held at the church fellowship hall after the ceremony. Sandra Haddock, Shoshone, registered guests and reception assistants included Mrs. Merle Eden, Mountain Home, and Sylvia Baralza and Linda Berriochap, Shoshone.

In charge of the gift tables were Kathy Slinger, Janet Fort and Steve Myers, Shoshone.

The young couple will reside in Pocatello, where she is employed and the bridegroom will

John Day Dam Is Causing Crisis In Fish Passage; Heat Halts Run Up Snake

PORTLAND (AP) — Salmon and steelhead are not getting up the Columbia River this year and the Oregon Fish Commission says a crisis has developed in the river's newest barrier, John Day Dam, may be the cause of the trouble, technicians hinted, blocking as much as 50 percent of the run.

The increase in the temperature of the Snake River, The report said the Snake was nearly 10 degrees warmer than the Columbia at the confluence of the streams and virtually all migration into the Snake had halted. The commission said 50 percent of the sum in r Chinook passing over Bonneville Dam had failed to appear on schedule at ice Harbor Dam on the Snake or Priest Rapids Dam on the upper Columbia.

By the time they have reached those dams they have gone over Bonneville, The D alleles, John Day and McNary dams.

They said that from the number of dead summer chinook counted below John Day Dam Thursday, "the loss in this area may be substantial."

In other years the sockeye salmon has been able to get over the dams but this year, the commission reported, that species has had trouble and "many thousands may have perished" below John Day Dam.

The commission issued a statement late Friday saying that "even the ubiquitous shad... is apparently experiencing serious difficulties at and below John Day Dam. Thousands of shad are getting in the fish ladders at the dam but few are passing into Lake Umatilla, the reservoir above the dam."

The commission said biologists were trying to find out why the fish were dying.

It said that problems between the dams had taken an increasingly heavy toll in recent years but that this year, the difficulty had become acute.

It blamed "the virtually complete transformation of the natural river environment by hydroelectric developments."

The commission said that in addition to the problems of passage between the dams, two other possibilities were being investigated with the help of the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries. One is that the increase of nitrogen in the water as it spills over the dams and the other is

Hook A Salmon In The Mouth—It's Idaho's Big Challenge

By LARRY HOVEY

Times News Sports Editor

Undoubtedly the most rewarding of any sport is catching a salmon. The blue Chevy pickup cruising down U.S. 93 in the Sawtooth valley would take one to the ocean in a matter of minutes. Immediately place them high on the "probable snagger" list.

Instead he is watching a band of terminally young men salmon fishermen the legal way. When the run is on Gary Jenkins, Dale Crist, Ken Mink, and Jack Holloway, and some others in those knit fishing fraternity sneak over Galena as often as financing and their wives let them. They have a ball, catch a few fish, line the Salmon River bottom of lead and hooks and hate to go home.

"My dad (Dol Jenkins) got me started when I was just a kid. He brought me up here every weekend over that old Galena road and I can remember riding all the way over it I scared me no bad," Gary recalls. "And ever since I can remember he has been telling me the only place to hook a salmon is in the mouth. He always made it a challenge for me and he said I'd have to become a good fisherman if I was ever going to catch a salmon."

"For a long time there I did it the way only because I was scared to do it any other. I'd lose what few I was hooking and run into some of my buddies who had run some down or snagged a few. It took me quite a while to get over the idea that just carrying that fish down the road wasn't the important thing," he says.

Crist fish in some other backcountry. Gary's dad is pretty well known along the river as a fine Salmon fisherman. But Gary's coming along, in fact, "I think he outshined his dad."

The men are quick to point out that the legal way is the most challenging, frustrating and rewarding. "That make us 50 per cent," Gary said after pulling out a small Jack Saturday morning. I've hooked 14 and brought in seven."

"I'm on a quick eight and two," Crist said.

One of Jenkins' landed fish went back into the stream, most anglers gasping at the idea of the move and suggesting psychiatric help.

"I hooked this pretty good sized one and it felt like it was definitely in the mouth. Crist was waiting down along the shore to fall in and when he got his first look at it he told me I had it snagged in the head," Jenkins reports. "I couldn't believe it. Finally we got it in and my hook was in the mouth. What Dale had seen was this hole in the top of the fish's head, a big hollowed out, bloody hole that looked like it was made either with a blunt stick or maybe a bullet that was cushioned just enough by the water to keep from killing it. I figured that fish—it was a female—had had enough trouble getting up here and deserved to spawn so I turned it loose."

A year ago Jenkins turned another fish loose and it so infuriated some by-stander, that he was afraid he was going to have to fight.

While they are working their heads off for fish, they know the water to keep from killing it, getting a lot of fish illegally.

SILHOUETTED by a late evening sun, Ken Mink and Dale Crist, Twin Falls, try for a salmon on the Salmon River near Redfish Lake. The salmon season, closed on much of the high headwaters, will end in Idaho July 31.

SPLASHING AWAY, a small Jack Salmon nears the beach but keeps on fighting as Dale Crist, Twin Falls, watches.

BEACHED, a small Jack Salmon winds up the fishing year for Gary Jenkins, with pole. Looking on is Jack Holloway. Jenkins hooked 14 and landed seven this year, a good average for "hook 'em in the mouth" anglers.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Mank Joces' two-run pinch single keyed a four-run sixth inning burst and Alex Johnson drove in three runs with a single and double Saturday night as the Cincinnati Reds drubbed Philadelphia 9-3.

Joces' single sent the Reds ahead 4-3 in the sixth and they added two more runs in the inning on singles by Johnson and Tommy Helms.

Johnson drilled a two-run double as Cincinnati pulled away with three more runs in the seventh. Six of the Reds' last seven runs were unearned—the result of two throwing errors by Phils third baseman Ricardo Joseph.

Don Lock socked a two-run triple for the Phils in the first inning and hit his second homer of the season in the sixth, breaking a 2-2 tie.

Leo May's 10th homer, in the second inning, and a run-scoring single by Helms in the third had pulled the Reds even.

Gerry Arrigo squandered his pitching record at 5-5 with relief help from Ted Abernathy. Phils' starter Larry Jackson, 9-11, was the loser.

Fleckman, Beard Maintain Tie In PGA

Duo Has 2-Shot Lead Over Field; Par Is Undefined

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The nerves of young Marty Fleckman and unemotional Frank Beard held like stanchions of steel Saturday and Sunday in the climactic final round of the 50th PGA Golf Championship.

Sports FROM ALL ANGLES

By LARRY HOVEY
Times News Sports Editor
One would think a family vacation in Hawaii would be good enough but Joe Van Leeuwen, Twin Falls, and his son, Joe Junior, capped their special outing by catching a 356-pound Pacific blue marlin.

They had a 54-hole score of 210, even par for three rounds over the maligned, 7,066-yard Pecan Valley Course baked by steamy-102-degree heat.

Two strokes back, at 212, came a closely packed cavalry charge of seven men, including some of the most glamorous names in golf.

In there with them were dandy Doug Sanders, the golfing rainbow who has never won a major title, Les Belfrage, former Charles of the British Open; tough little Miller Barber, with a hand in the best on a Stevevoro, and 32-year-old Dick Ryan of Sylvania, Ohio, a genuine dark-horse.

Next at 213 was Tennessee Lou Graham, followed by a half-dozen at 214, including capitalist Bill Casper, former PGA champion Al Geiberger and tall George Archer, who recovered from a horrendous quadruple bogey eight on the opening hole.

They all have a chance going into Sunday's last round, to be televised by ABC.

The 24-year-old Fleckman, a pro of less than a year, held grimly as fortunes fluctuated throughout the sultry afternoon and came to the treacherous and lengthened 18th hole needing only a par for the undisputed lead.

Old-timers were trying to recall the last tournament in which not a single player was under-par going into the final round.

Joe Junior made the first contact with marlin, putting the hook in a three to four-hundred pounder but after a 20-minute skirmish the fish shook loose.

Shortly after Van Leeuwen hooked the grandpa. "When it first struck 600 yards of line went flying in a couple of seconds," he reports, and that started a three-hour duel.

"When he ran they would throw the boat into reverse and I'd keep trying to relieve him," he says. "It was a sea-saw affair after that, the fish taking off line and Van Leeuwen fighting for every inch to get it back."

"I always thought elk hunting was tough," he explained in describing the exertion.

Van Leeuwen said the thing that saved the day came when the fish literally drowned itself. But that added another problem. "When it died it just sank," he said, "and I had to haul it up and over hand."

For the interested, the deep sea outfit had 150-pound-test line and bait was a large lure that resembled a young squid.

After the picture taking of the dock, Van Leeuwen started thinking about the eating. "I asked them if they (the marlin) were good eating and they told me 'yeah, if you're Japanese!' I guess they are very dry but the Japanese grind the meat up and use it in a recipe for fish cakes."

It was Van Leeuwen's first attempt at deep sea fishing—except for a couple of off-the-peg days for sea bass—and it doesn't leave him much to look forward to.

Everyone has his opinions on why the hitting is down in the major leagues this year. Light, whippy bats designed for homers, better pitching and many other things have been cited. We feel that a real difference can be found in defense.

Basically, we mean speed of the defense. Can you imagine the number of hits that fell in around Babe Ruth, for instance, that someone like Lou Brock or Curtis Flood would have caught today? Think back on the games you've seen on TV recently and think about the number of those little short pops that used to fall in just over the shortstop and just ahead of the in-charging outfielder. You used to see it all the time. It doesn't happen much anymore. It wasn't long ago that a line drive was a base hit. Men like JOHNNY POTT blasts from the rough of the second fairway in the third round of play on the PGA National Championship in San Antonio Saturday. He parred the hole. (AP wirephoto).

Vicki Mallea Tops Boise Miss To Claim Women's Golf Crown

BOISE (AP)—Vicki Mallea of Nampa battled back from a two-down deficit at the end of eight holes of the morning round to score a convincing 5-1 victory over Boise's Kari Voyce Saturday and capture the 1968 women's state amateur golf championship.

The two girls, both teenagers, played with the poise of veterans.

"It was tough playing Kari after both of us pulled for each other all week long," the new champion said after closing the match. "I didn't feel I played well in the morning round, but I was satisfied with the afternoon round."

Miss Mallea who defeated the defending champion, Virginia Undheim of Twin Falls Friday, finished the morning round with a two-up lead but didn't have the victory in reach until she reeled off wins at the eighth and ninth holes of the afternoon round.

Kuna Youth Wins Memorial Shoot

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A 16-year-old who began shooting only five months ago won the Pappy Smith Memorial event of the Grand Pacific Transmontane Championships Friday with a perfect 100 from 22 yards.

Lynn Lewis of Kuna, Idaho, defeated Willis Thompson, runner-up with 98 from 20 yards—and a field including two All-Americans.

Dan Orlich of Reno won the doubles with 96.

Nadine Ljutic of Yakima, Wash. won the women's with 85.

Alcindor Couldn't Face Music After Competing In Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) — Lew Alcindor, UCLA's basketball All-American, said he decided not to try for the Olympic team because of schoolwork and "the atmosphere that it's wrong to represent this country and then have to come back and face the music all over again."

The 7-foot-1/2, 21-year-old New Yorker explained his position Friday on NBC's "Today Show," while being interviewed by Joe Garagiola and Ed Newman.

NBC made the transcript available Saturday.

Alcindor was asked about the Negro movement to boycott the Olympics in Mexico City, Oct. 1967, and for his opinion "should black athletes be on the Olympic team, the American Team?"

"Well, I know I'm not going because there's just too many things that point against it," he said. "I have to go to school and, plus, you know, the atmosphere is that it's wrong to represent this country and then have to come back and face the music all over again."

"Yeah, I live here, but it's not really my country, you know," said Alcindor.

"Well, then, there's only one solution then," said Garagiola. "Maybe you should move."

"Well, you see, that would be fine with me, you know, but it all depends on where we are going to move," said Alcindor.

At this time, there was a station break. When the program resumed, Garagiola said he and Newman talked further with Alcindor about his statement that "it's not really my country."

Garagiola said Alcindor clarified the comment.

"Well, I think that in fairness to him," said Garagiola, "we thought to clarify it, because . . ."

Alcindor, in answer to another question, said there was resentment among Negroes against some Negro stars who have refused to take a militant stand in the civil rights struggle.

"They come under a lot of criticism," said Alcindor, "because . . . there are certain evident truths that they seem to disregard. Certain people will say, 'Well, look, I made it. How come other people don't work so hard?'"

"But they're a talented bunch. You know, I couldn't expect all the kids in the community to be as good as I am."

Gary Hall Breaks Swimming Mark

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Hall, a 16-year-old from Garden Grove, Calif., smashed the world record in the 400-meter individual medley Saturday with a time of 4:43.4 in the Los Angeles Invitational Swimming Meet.

His time bettered the listed world mark of 4:45.4, set by Dick Roth of the Santa Clara Swim Club in the 1964 Olympic Games at Tokyo.

Brook and Flood gobble them up now.

In the infield the shortstops and second basemen are coming up with such fine ranging now that any ball getting through has to be pretty well hit, shortstops are going into the hole and making great plays look routine. Third basemen are getting tough on the swinging bat.

So while we'll readily agree that the pitching is good—particularly with the slider's advent—and there is more power consciousness, we feel that the defense deserves quite a bit of credit. When there are center-fielders like Willie Davis who have been clocked in 9.5 in the 100-yard dash, you just have to look for the ball to get twice as many fly balls as the old 10.7 or 11 flator.

It doesn't take much to effect a batting average. If defensive speed takes away say 15 hits a year, it drops the yesterday's .300 hitter to around .280 and the .275 hitter to a dismal .255.

In Idaho alone, the Union Pacific Railroad in 1967 paid out in taxes and wages $30,041,067!

In fact, 3,338 of your neighbors in Idaho are members of the Union Pacific family.

Union Pacific is indeed an important contributor to Idaho's economy, through the wages paid to employees, vast sums spent for equipment and supplies, and through the taxes paid by the railroad. In fact, in many instances it has been due to the taxes paid by the railroad that needed civic improvements have been possible: new school buildings and teachers' salaries, fire stations, hospitals — where the "U.P." has borne a big share of the cost through its taxes. Otherwise, of course, there would have been an additional burden on local taxpayers.

We're proud of our employees — your "good neighbors" — and we're proud to be a vital factor in the growth and development of Idaho.

a way with words

Here are a few odds and ends about elections and politicians in an election and political year:

—There were 15 "Presidents of the United States in Congress assembled" before George Washington was inaugurated. The first of them was Peyton Randolph, a Virginian, in 1774. So Washington might be called our 16th President instead of our first.

—Rush Holt of West Virginia was too young to serve when he was elected a senator in 1834. He was only 29 and had to wait until he became 30 to take office.

—In 1872 some members of the electoral college voted for a candidate for President who was not even alive. Candidate Horace Greeley died before the college met, but electors conscientiously voted for him nonetheless, following the preference of the voters they represented.

—The Republican Party was the original name of the Democratic Party. Founded by Thomas Jefferson, it split into two opposing groups in 1824—the National Republicans and the Democratic Republicans, later called simply Democratic.

—Ulysses S. Grant was not the real name of the famous general and President at all. He was born Hiram Ulysses Grant but didn't like the initials, "H.U.G.," and transposed his first and second names before he applied for admission to West Point. The congressman who appointed him mistakenly wrote the middle initial S. instead of H., and he was stuck with U. S. Grant the rest of his life.

—The official news of his nomination was mailed to Zachary Taylor in 1848, and arrived with postage due which Taylor refused to pay. So in reality he didn't get the word—officially—until a month later.

—And Taylor, "Old Rough and Ready Zachary," who was President in 1849, could easily have gotten the hippy vote if he were running for office today. He is reported to have appeared often in the army wearing a straw hat, checked gingham coat and blue pants. And on the battlefield he often found it more comfortable to ride side-saddle.

—John F. Kennedy, inaugurated at 43, was the youngest President. Theodore Roosevelt was 42 when, as Vice President, he became President after the assassination of President McKinley.

—Franklin Delano Roosevelt, in 1932, was the first candidate for the Presidency to personally appear at a convention to accept the nomination, according to the Encyclopedia Americana. The practice is now customary.

—William Rufus DeVane King, Vice Presidential candidate with Franklin Pierce, had represented North Carolina in the House of Representatives in Alabama in the Senate, took his Vice Presidential oath in Cuba, and died before he ever served in the office.

The minority presidents are interesting cases in American political history. John Quincy Adams was one of four candidates in 1824 who received no majority of electoral votes, and the election was decided in 1825 in the House of Representatives where Henry Clay threw his influence to Adams, and Adams became President—even though Andrew Jackson had had the original plurality.

Rutherford B. Hayes, won over Samuel Tilden in 1876 even though Tilden had 251,724 more popular votes than Hayes; Tilden received 184 Electoral votes to 185 for Hayes; and so Hayes, although he had over 250,000 less popular votes, was elected President.

And in 1888, Benjamin Harrison won over Grover Cleveland with an Electoral vote of 233 to Cleveland's 168. And yet Cleveland, the loser, had 95,000 more popular votes than Harrison.

And the Vice Presidents make interesting studies:

Of the 37 Vice Presidents of the United States before Hubert H. Humphrey, 15 of them ultimately became President or sought the nomination. Humphrey makes 16.

Of the 15, four were denied the nomination by their own parties: Vice President Alben Barkley in 1952, and Presidents (former Vice Presidents) Chester A. Arthur in 1884, Andrew Johnson in 1868, and John Tyler in 1884. (Johnson and Tyler, however, did receive support in the conventions of the opposition parties. Tyler, elected as the Whig Vice President in 1840, was nominated for President in 1844 by an irregular Southern Democratic convention, but subsequently withdrew.)

That leaves 11 who actually ran for President at the end of their Vice Presidential terms or after having succeeded to the Presidency. Of the 11, eight ran on major party tickets, and all but Richard Nixon won. The other seven were Lyndon Johnson in 1964, Harry Truman in 1948, Calvin Coolidge in 1924, Theodore Roosevelt in 1904 (all of whom became incumbent presidents when nominated), Martin Van Buren in 1836, Thomas Jefferson in 1800, and John Adams in 1796.

No Vice President who has succeeded to the Presidency through the death of the incumbent has ever run for a second consecutive full term.

Four former Vice Presidents ran on minority party tickets and lost: Henry A. Wallace of the Progressives in 1948; former Whig Millard Fillmore of the American Party (Know-Nothings) in 1856; John Breckinridge of the Southern faction of the Democrats in 1860, and former Democrat Martin Van Buren of the Free-Soil Party in 1848.

Seven Vice Presidents died in office, and another died within a few months after his term expired.

Most Vice Presidents continued, after their terms ended, to be active in public life.

Two are remembered particularly for memorable phrases:

John Adams, our first Vice President, said: "In this (the Vice-Presidency) I am nothing, but I may be everything."

And Thomas R. Marshall (Wilson's Vice President) said: "What this country really needs is a good five cent cigar."

Splash, Slosh, Slap, Slip,

Kids can make more out of a puddle of water than anyone else. And the bigger the puddle, the more fun they have.

They splash and slosh a n d slide and slap and slip, and everything else you can think of, except swim. They haven't time for that.

Often, in a wading pool, the water isn't deep enough for real swimming, and that's the point. It's more fun to splash a n d slosh and slide, and so on.

During the week children can be found soggy and happy in the city wading pools. For the adult who had never visited the pools during the week, to see their tots stagger fully clothed through the foot deep water just haven't seen anything yet.

Bathing suits don't stay up, and everybody splashes everybody else. It is a traumatic experience for the adult who hasn't seen it. The youngsters slip and fall, get back up again, and do it all over. They survive, but somehow it is difficult to reason why.

Some sit on the lawn for a while getting either warm enough or brave enough to tackle the teeming mass of youngsters who dominate the center of the pool. Fools rush in where wise men fear to tread—of something like that. And the kids love it.

For the adults it is a spectator sport that can rival any other. The problem is trying to stay out of the action yourself. An adult looks a bit odd when he tries to reach for a youngster he thinks needs help, only to have the youth run off as the adult loses his balance and steps in a foot of water. Alas, it's a young world.

Work Agrees With Clyde Greenwell, Heyburn Rancher And Civic Leader

PAUL—"Youth is this country's biggest industry," says Joseph Clyde Greenwell, 88-year-old Paul area rancher and civic leader.

It's far better than anything else we've ever known, he says. "Youth is the face of the earth and we have nothing. Without youth, this country wouldn't be worth a five-cent piece."

Mr. Greenwell believes that youth should be educated, disciplined and provided with a good start. "It's not the way in the world today."

"If a boy or girl strays from society, then somebody should do it for him or her. I have time to help them get back to where they should be," he said. He believes this theory to the extent that he donated 100 hours of the Idaho Youth Ranch board of directors, of which he currently serves as chairman.

He is really sold on the youth ranch and feels that time should be spent to help youth get a good start. "You can't have a good start unless you have a good start," he said.

Mr. Greenwell is a confirmed Republican, he tells the reporter. He has voted for the late Senator Robert Kennedy in the presidential race.

Mr. Greenwell was born in 1910 to Mr. and Mrs. Lee Greenwell, Paul, He has three brothers and two sisters.

Some of his best memories come from school years, he often says. Clyde Bud Jones, his first grade teacher who now lives at Boise.

He attended grade school at the old Washington School, West of Paul. He graduated from Paul High School, immediately he pursued his first love which was being around animals, especially animals in the hills.

He went to work as a shepherd for Jim Shaw in the hills south of Paul. He had a very hard time, because after working there about two years, he moved back to Paul to begin work for the MacRae Sheep Co. Many of his friends and boss for 29 years.

On March 22, 1939, he married Gladys Rust, Paul, and they reared three sons, Burton, Nyle and Van. The couple has five grandchildren.

Mr. MacRae, who died in September, 1958, was considered the finest, fairest man Mr. Greenwell has ever known. He said Mr. MacRae was a very good thing of which many people were unaware.

Mr. Greenwell has worked to ward the preservation of Idaho's water, "Idaho is a wonderful state," he said. "It has a lot of opportunities, I think because of its water."

Frank Church, whom he greatly admires, told him two years ago, that in Idaho 10 years ago the income from recreation was $10-million, today it's $178-million, and 10 years hence it will be second to agriculture.

"If our recreation is going to be that great, there is only one thing that is going to make it—and that's water," he said.

He noted that recreation brings economy to our country and the economy of our country looks good to him. He said that a agriculture is depressed and he (the farmer) needs help, but that the general economy of this state, providing that we develop the water, looks good to him.

"You have to have these recreation and have a place for them to go," he said. "It has to be developed so that it has to have a place for them to go."

CLYDE GREENWELL

SINCE HE CAME to Gooding county in 1909, Joseph Buster Leeper, Wendell, has seen many changes from the horse and buggy era to modern jet transportation. He was honored on his 90th birthday anniversary recently at the home of a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leeper, Wendell.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

A WENDELL pioneer who came to GOODING county when the city of that name was called Topois, celebrated his 90th birthday recently. Gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leeper, Wendell, were the children of Joseph Buster Leeper, and their families.

Wade Anderson also was graduated from the local high school and Ricks college and LSU before he received a master's degree. He now teaches at Rigby High School.

The Anderson's fourth child, Mrs. Larry (LaDawn) Gibbons, teaches physical education at the Evrgreen Junior High School in Holiday, Utah. Like her sister and brothers, LaDawn has degrees from Ricks and LSU and anticipates finishing her master's degree this summer.

The children either earned money while working through the summers and some years they worked in addition to carrying their college work, their mother notes.

During his lifetime, Mr. Leeper was worked as a butcher, janitor, warehouseman, farmer and a sheepman, which he was for some years before retiring.

There were no cars and only huggies for transportation when the Leepers came to Gooding county. He recalled that when the former Lincoln Inn was built in Gooding it was considered a very plush hotel.

Many of Mr. Leeper's grandchildren were born at the Magic Valley Manor, where he now lives, when it was formerly St. Valentine's Hospital.

Family members attended from JEROME, IDAHO, and Wendell and Gooding.

A history of high goals and achievements, despite financial difficulties, marks the Glenn D. Anderson family, RUPERT.

Their five children have set themselves through college so far, with the youngest of their two children, Beverly Anderson, who was consoling for at Minico High School this spring, plans to attend Ricks College, Rexburg, this fall, to major in either physical education or French.

The Andersons, who were married in Preston in 1936, moved to Rupert in 1946 where Mr. Anderson owned the Central Meat Market for four years. In 1950 he sold this business and moved to a farm which he and his wife still operate.

Both the Andersons are active in the LDS church. She is MIA charter, Relief Society church leader and a Sunday school teacher. She previously was Relief Society president and a charter for the State Primary.

Mrs. Anderson works with the hot lunch program at Pershing Elementary school in Rupert and her husband is a home teacher in the LDS church. Their children include Mrs. Bob (Sharel) King, who was graduated from the Rupert High School in 1964 and earned her bachelor's degree from Utah State University and her master's degree in 1969. She now teaches at the University of New Mexico.

Albion Area Has Camping, Fishing Site

ALBION — The Albion Division of the Sawtooth National Forest offers recreationalists in Southern Idaho many opportunities.

Camping and picnicking are available from May until October and fishing after the early part of June. The City of Ricks also may be enjoyed from April through November, where one can marvel at the astonishing rock formations and their geological significance.

For enjoying the wonderful fall colors, October is the month and deer hunting is also at this time of year. Some people think fall is the most beautiful time of the year for the area.

Three main points of interest are the Howell Canyon area, the Independence Lakes vicinity and the picturesque City of Ricks. A day is needed to explore any one of the three.

Howell Canyon just six miles south of Albion is the focal point of recreation on the Albion Division of the Sawtooth National Forest. Several thousand visit the canyon to camp, picnic, fish, hunt or just look around annually.

Winter sports enthusiasts visit Powdered Ski area as soon as the snow is deep enough to ski. A new lodge has been built during the last year for enjoyment of skiing fans and outlookers.

Some of the finest camping facilities are offered in Howell Canyon at campgrounds in Thompson Flat, Lake Cleveland and Brackenbury.

A Visit to Lake Cleveland is a must. It is a small scenic lake located at the head of Lund Creek and offers good trout fishing.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A 24-year-old Cuban exile identified as Roberto Hernandez Leyva was charged today with air piracy for using a gun and an object he said was a hand grenade to force National Airlines Flight 1046 to Havana.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today that the complaint was authorized by the U.S. attorney in New Orleans and filed before a U.S. commissioner in that city who had issued a warrant for Hernandez' arrest.

The plane, with 57 passengers and a crew of seven, was hijacked at the Jacksonville station. The FBI said, landed in New Orleans for refueling before going to Cuba.

The hijacker, who used the name "R. Hernandez" when he boarded the flight at Los Angeles, remained in Cuba outside the jurisdiction of American courts.

School Has Atmosphere Of Circus

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) — Wilka Flunger is a schoolteacher with a difference. Her classroom is a circus wagon and her pupils are the sons and daughters of people who work for West Germany's largest traveling circuses.

Since circuses thrive on superlatives, the classroom in wagon No. 100 of the Circus Krone is billed as the world's smallest. It measures seven square yards and Wilka, a dark-haired 21-year-old Bavarian girl eight months out of teachers' college, lives in the back.

"That is why her 10 pupils, aged 6 to 10 years, have to take off their shoes before entering the classroom at 8 a.m. each weekday."

"I like traveling and I don't want to work for the government," says Wilka, explaining why she took the circus job. "Having several grades in one makes teaching more difficult. On the other hand, the group is small and I am able to devote more time to each child," she added.

"The circus kids — six Germans, three Italians and a Belgian — get only two weeks summer vacation. Each time the circus moves, the classroom on wheels is loaded on a railway car and school can't go on. The children move so often in the summer that they have a lot of time to make up."

According to Wilka, her pupils like school. "Once one of them woke me up at 8 a.m. because he couldn't wait until school started," she said. "The kids are used to elephants, horses and zebras and hardly pay any attention when the animals go past the window."

The school wagon is parked only 20 yards from the big top where the show goes on twice a day. The children do not take part. They leave the performing to their parents.

Wilka says she watches the show almost every night. "I know most of the performers, especially those who have children in my school and I like to watch them," she says.

Hansen Student Joins Ship Tour

HANSEN — Terry Hofffield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hofffield, Route 1, Hansen, and a senior at the University of Idaho, will join other students on a ship tour for the fall semester at sea aboard World Campus Afloat — Chapman College.

He will join 60 other students from throughout the state in New York Oct. 9 and will board the SS Rydamer, the next day for the 110-day voyage to Europe.

Chapman, one of California's oldest liberal arts institutions, located in Orange, near Los Angeles, administers the one-semester transfer program, which begins its fourth year and seventh voyage this fall.

Getting Sick: Marine Corps Style

Editor's Note: This is one more installment in the continuing story of one man's life in the Marine Corps.

By FRED DODDS
Times-News Staff Writer
The Navy has a bad habit of giving all its personnel shots at odd times. There are shots for flu and polio and other diseases. On my first tour overseas, I got shots no less than three times. Each time I caught the flu. Leaving the Severn River Command I got another round of shots and sure enough I caught the flu. However, the flu bug really hit it was on the night of Oct. 21, 1957, and I was in the orderly room of the guard house covered with blankets trying to sweat it out.

I wanted out of that MP command so bad I was willing to risk anything to get away. I thought I could get my orders, leave the command and spend a quiet day or two in a Washington, D.C. hotel before going on to Camp Lejeune, N.C. By 1 a.m. on the 22nd, I was in no shape to move and the corporal of the guard ordered me to get over to the Navy sick bay just across the street. He logged in the time and two other guys helped me out of the building.

Sweat rolled from my forehead, but I was shaking with chills. Cramps wracked my body and I was curiously faint. A Navy corpsman was on duty when supported by two MPs. I came through the swinging doors of the sick bay and stood in front of his desk. "What's wrong with him?" the corpsman asked. He was an intelligent fellow. "Sick," one of my buddies said. "Sick, humm. Name?"

It seemed like four days before he finished filling out the long form needed for admittance to the sick bay. Finally the corpsman said, "Okay, take him in there and get out fast or my guys will be sick too." Sick bay was just a large, but clean room. There were bunks against the bulkheads in traditional Navy style and the room was nearly full. Sick men were and turned in their sleep. The Navy flu serum was at work. I fell into bed at about 1:30 a.m. and woke only occasionally when a doctor came around to read my temperature and administer two APC tablets. Days blending into nights and nights again became days. On the 23rd my fever broke, and at noon on the 24th, still weak, the doctor on duty said, "This guy's ready for duty." It wasn't that I was happy to leave the Severn River Command, but I had my gear packed. I left then and there. The only thing left was to report to the company headquarters and pick up my orders.

I entered the busy administrative offices and spoke to a Negro sergeant that I knew. "Can I get my orders," I asked. "Where's Dodds? Hell, you left two days ago for Camp Lejeune." "No I didn't. I've been sick. I want to leave now. The orders have been sent to Camp Lejeune and that's where you should be right now."

I felt sick all over again. It looked some fast talking, but finally I managed to get him to amend the orders slightly. "Now, with my order in hand (reading the 25th as a due date) I left the Severn River Command. I got a bus in Annapolis, rode to Washington, D.C., and spent that night and the following night in the Annapolis-Manderson hotel in downtown Washington. It was very pleasant. I ate in the best places, saw the best shows, toured the city, and on the 26th caught a bus and rode for eight hours through the rolling hills of Virginia and North Carolina.

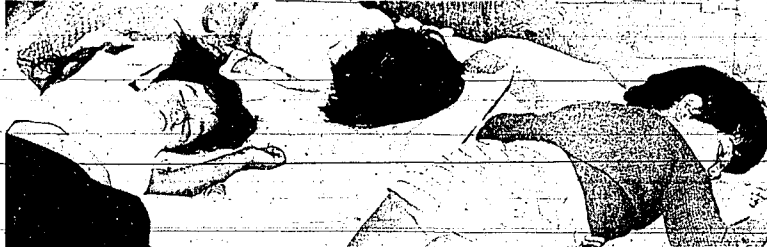

It was early evening on the 26th when I got to Jacksonville, N.C., and caught another bus that took me into the sprawling Marine Base at Camp Lejeune. By the morning of the 27th I was on my way to division headquarters. It's a day I'll never forget.

It was coincidence, but nevertheless what happened after I reported to Camp Lejeune. My division headquarters still sticks in my mind as something in the hands of fate. There are the air division units. There are the air wings and guard units, the ceremonial commands and the sea gull detachments. There are all of these in none represent the Marine Corps.

The real heart of the corps is the divisions, the fighting units. They are the air wings and guard units, the ceremonial commands and the sea gull detachments. There are all of these in none represent the Marine Corps. The real heart of the corps is the divisions, the fighting units. They are the air wings and guard units, the ceremonial commands and the sea gull detachments. There are all of these in none represent the Marine Corps.

—THE PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE to the flag in two languages is part of the everyday activities at Bickel School where some 160 migratory children are attending a six-week school program. Duke Wiseman, center, sports and outdoor activities director for the program, is assisted by several aides in conducting the flag salute. Mr. Wiseman who also directs the swimming classes, baseball and other popular "subjects," is a favorite among the youngsters attending classes, and can usually be seen walking through the school building or playground with a large following of youngsters.

A HARD DAY at nursery school for children three to five years of age usually includes some nap time. Here some of the young children catch a few winks. Children from three to five attend the summer migratory school, not to catch up on their studies, but to enter nursery classes and free their older brothers and sisters for regular studies. Unless the program provides care for the smaller children, many of the school age boys and girls would have to stay home as baby sitters.

Migrant Children Have Summer School

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Staff Writer

School with no tests, no report cards and where no one ever fails.

These are some of the advantages of a special, summer migratory school program now under way at Bickel School.

Students attending are children of the Mexican-American families who provide vitally important farm labor for Magic Valley crops. Many attend school several months each winter in Texas but because the families follow the crops as the seasons change they are not in one location long enough to complete a full year of school.

To help them catch up with their classwork, the six-week program in Twin Falls is open to all children of school age. However, Clarence Parker, program administrator points out, nearly all youngsters—14 years of age or older are working in the fields to help enhance the family's income.

Younger children are often busy as baby sitters for their older brothers and sisters. To counter this, the program includes nursery classes for children three to five years old to help their older sisters and brothers—after school.

Attendance is strictly on a voluntary basis and classes are available to those who wish to attend.

The families of Spanish descent are very proud and parents who must be in the fields by 7 a.m. and do not have time to scrub and dress their children for school often decline to let them attend," Mr. Parker explained.

For the most part it is up to the older children to get up and get dressed, and help their younger brothers and sisters to be ready for school. As a result some have to skip breakfast to catch the bus. They make a snack, thus unusually popular. A hot lunch is served the children at noon and for the younger enrollment there are checks in the morning and afternoon. Some of the hot lunch cooks are of Mexican-American background and skilled at preparing the type of food the youngsters are accustomed to eating. However, the hot dogs, hamburgers and other typical lunches are often the most popular.

All financing of the program is provided from the federal government and the local school district does not participate. The building is leased from the district and a charter school bus driven by the administrator picks up the students on each morning from the Twin Falls Labor Camp.

For the older children there is a two-week swimming program which in some cases, Mr. Parker said, required obtaining bathing suits for the children. Other class members attend a project to raise money by conducting a car-wash and doing other odd jobs. With their parents, they enjoyed a downtown restaurant dinner. For many it was the first time they had eaten in a restaurant other than a drive-in or cafeteria. Classes for the young Mexican-Americans are of a special nature. Teachers who say they are the most interesting students they have ever worked with, also find many have something of a chip on their shoulder. They feel they are treated as outsiders, but that they are not a part of any local community and that they are looked on as inferior by the local residents. This makes it difficult for teachers to gain their confidence and full cooperation.

Elsa Murphy, one of the social workers who handles the many problems that arise from getting youngsters enrolled to settling first fights among some of the quick-tempered five year olds, says it is unfortunate the local community does not take greater interest in the migrant families. Mrs. Murphy, born in France, but of Spanish parentage, is one of several involved in the program who can speak both Spanish and English.

"Almost without exception," she said, "our eleven teachers and 14 aides say this is the most rewarding job they have ever had."

Working with the youngsters, she said, is much different than regular school teaching. It requires a great deal of understanding, patience and "cool," but some of the talent displayed by the youngsters, enthusiastic for work and play and their admiration make it worthwhile.

One of the biggest problems, Mrs. Murphy says, is teaching the children to listen and to hold their attention during study time.

ART CLASS is a favorite for most of the young students of the Twin Falls migrant summer school program. Art instructor Mrs. Ronald Knestle assists two of the youngsters in their efforts to convert chunks of clay into interesting animals and decorations.

A NEW HOME, equipped to house 12 boys, is reportedly three-fourths complete at the site of the Idaho Youth Ranch. The home is expected to be ready for occupancy by January, 1969, and will increase the capacity of the ranch from the present 24 boys to 36. The home is being constructed under the supervision of Charlie Caywood.

New Structure At Idaho Youth Ranch At Rupert Creates Homelike Atmosphere

By LIZ BOLTON
Times-News Correspondent
RUPERT — Work on a new home for 12 more boys at the Idaho Youth Ranch near Rupert is progressing steadily, with an anticipated completion date of January, 1969.
The structure, which will represent a total construction bill of about $80,000, was begun three years ago but has been held up mostly because of finances.
When complete, the building will be a multiple-use structure, containing in addition to bedrooms for the boys, a separate bath, a mess room, recreation room, library, a quiet room for visits from ministers and such, central laundry, a general kitchen for the preparation of the evening meal, office, and a home area for the ranch administrator.

ONE OF THE Youthful "franchers," Greg Lockard, 15, is learning to install insulation at the site of the new home now under construction at the Idaho Youth Ranch near Rupert. Greg is tutored by Charlie Caywood, who is in charge of actual construction of the home.

And as for the training ground for the boys.
Jerry Embry, 17, is in charge of the dairy operations and the ranch's dairy provides milk for the boys living there in addition to extra that is sold.
Also located at the ranch are two loafing sheds, also donated by the Eagles, and a bunk house where certain of the boys are permitted to sleep, on an honorary basis.
A storehouse on the grounds contains a cooler and freezer, and a meatcutting program is hoped for in the future, according to Mr. Childs. For emergencies, there is also a fire-house which contains a fire engine, owned by the ranch. The boys are each trained to the techniques of handling a fire.

"The main goal at the ranch," Mr. Childs explained, "is to help the boys learn to accept their responsibilities. Of course, this involves 24 different programs because each boy is an individual. But each needs recognition so we must find a way to give it to him."
"Most young men know right from wrong. Consequently we have as few rules as possible. When a boy does wrong, he is corrected immediately. Often, when a person talks about discipline, one talks in terms of the boys to prevent serious problems when they leave the ranch."
"Most boys who end up in placement are educationally retarded," Mr. Childs said, "and find it difficult to compete with others in their own classes. Therefore, we hope to help these boys with our remedial program which will begin this fall. Last year, three of the boys did not pass in any of their classes."
On the religious aspect, each boy is required to attend the church of his choice.
"The boys work closely with the youths at the ranch," Mr. Childs said, "and find it difficult to compete with others in their own classes. Therefore, we hope to help these boys with our remedial program which will begin this fall. Last year, three of the boys did not pass in any of their classes."
On the religious aspect, each boy is required to attend the church of his choice.

Funding of the new building has mostly come from private donations from such sources as memorial funds, people sympathetic to the ranch's cause, and the collecting society.
The ranch already has two homes, each housing 12 boys, which are filled at the present time. The building itself is based around the family setting and home parents are in charge of each home.

Silver Ore Found In North Idaho

SEATTLE (AP) — Sunshine Mining Co. announced the discovery Tuesday of a rich body of silver ore in North Idaho and at the same time estimated earnings for the first half of the year would be triple those of 1967.
President Thomas McManus said a special stockholders meeting, 100,000 tons of ore assaying 68-108 ounces a ton have been blocked out in the company's Hook-Chester vein in the Court Adams mining district.

The ranch administrator, Merlin Hill, and his wife are in charge of one home, and their son, and Merlin, and his wife, the other. The who have educationally retarded, and the elder Mrs. Hill is experienced in remedial education, which will be offered to the boys who have educational problems this fall.
Administrator Hill had extensive experience working with delinquent girls in Wyoming, has been a teacher for over 20 years, and worked with the scouts for that same length of time. He also served as a minister for more than 20 years in charge of the public relations and business management of the ranch.

"That way, the boys could have a closer contact with their families even though the families are scattered throughout the state."
"In addition," Mr. Childs explained, "we need homes else where for boys from Rupert to go to. Since one of the main purposes of the ranch program is to get the boy out of his problem environment, boys from the local area cannot be included. Therefore, many of the troubled youths are sent to St. Anthony, where they are tucked up."
Mr. Childs explained that the enrollment at the Elite Life Homes doubled in three years because of interested parties either leased or donated other homes there with a little remodeling, would be suitable for group homes for the youths.

Several changes have been made in the overall operation of the homes since Mr. Childs accepted the position, this major change being the changing of the staff from single persons to a couple, giving the ranch a homelike atmosphere.
"It is believed that a troubled boy will profit more from a family environment than from an institutional one," Mr. Childs explained.
Several programs have also been added and continued, including 4-H work, photography, electronics and dairy management. An A-grade dairy barn was donated to the ranch by the

"This is the kind of situations we are faced with, and that is not getting the problem solved," he said. "What is needed are more group homes throughout the state. Homes are needed in all major sections, such as Boise, Twin Falls, Nampa, Lewiston, Idaho Falls, and Pocatello."
"We had reached a point 18 miles out of Pocatello when I heard a thump come from the engine of the car. And yet it continued to run well.
"We waited a moment or two and then the little red light which says 'Gen-Fan' on my car glowed. And when we stopped, we found that the generator fan belt had frayed and busted.
"The car was overheated and it was ten minutes after six p.m. I saw a number of cars coming, so I held up the frayed fan belt and stuck out my hand. The last car in a line of about six pulled over and the driver hit the brakes. I ran toward it and the driver gave me a lift to Pocatello. There were four men in the car and as we got near a

I told him that it wasn't necessary, but I was sure I could get a ride; but he insisted.
I got the fan belt and waited outside for a couple of minutes, and the man drove up again, alone this time, and took me back to my car. I didn't have the right size wrench to use on the generator bolts, and so we had to force the fan belt

1,000-YEAR-OLD STRUCTURE
JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli archeologists digging under the West Wall have uncovered an unidentified structure which may have housed a synagogue about 1,000 years ago.
The building appears to have had square arched ceilings. Government archeologists who had found only the top of the structure decided to continue digging until the entire building is uncovered. Old bones had quitted travelers in Palestine at about the 10th century of the Common Era as having said there was a synagogue at the site.

By JAN ARTHUR SAINSBURY

Pocatello, Idaho (AP) — The aspect of human nature was restored recently, and the story should be passed on.
A bit over a week ago I took my wife and children to Pocatello to visit my family there, and to leave my children with their grandparents while my wife and I attended a political banquet which was being held in Pocatello. We left Twin Falls shortly after four p.m. intending to arrive in Pocatello at about six p.m. in time to drop the children off, change, and be at the banquet at seven. We were sure we could make it. But we were wrong.
We had reached a point 18 miles out of Pocatello when I heard a thump come from the engine of the car. And yet it continued to run well.
We waited a moment or two and then the little red light which says "Gen-Fan" on my car glowed. And when we stopped, we found that the generator fan belt had frayed and busted.

BRUNEAU DUCK PONDS at left and bottom of this aerial photo of C. J. Strike Wildlife Management Area were planted last year with sprouted bullrush seed—a by-product of California rice fields, to grow a fast crop of feed and cover for waterfowl this year. C. J. Strike Wildlife Management Area is located on the Snake River canyon, as well as on the Bruneau River arm of the reservoir.

at such as the Bruneau duck ponds is not a new discovery. There is a compelling need for what can be called "shooting habitat."
Bruneau duck ponds are being "discovered" by residents of waterfowl. Some 2,000 to 3,000 ducks and a few geese in the area now and six different species of ducks with broods have been seen on the ponds. These include mallard, pintail, gadwall, redhead, scaup and lesser scaup, and also Canada geese. In addition to resident ducks and geese, migrating waterfowl also will be attracted to the ponds during the fall and winter months.
Man-made habitat such as the Bruneau ponds have a great place in the world of waterfowl management. It not only serves as nesting, feeding, resting habitat for both resident and migrating waterfowl, but also fills a role as shooting habitat for duck hunters.
Realists do not waste time kidding themselves with the idea that many people support waterfowl management policies just out of sheer joy of seeing ducks and geese. Most people want to hunt them. Sportsmen who look behind the headlines to learn the basic facts of waterfowl production when it takes to the air, keep on flying year after year—soon know that there is an annual surplus of waterfowl in good years and bad, which needs to be hunted. This is a hard idea to get across to the public. But it is a sound, well-documented fact.
The annual surplus of ducks and geese cannot be stockpiled any more than muskrats, ducks and other wildlife creatures can be saved for a rainy day.
In short, more shooting hab-

These stop-over points are Idaho's big irrigation reservoirs. Several are in the eastern part of the state — Island Park Reservoir, Mud Lake, American Falls Reservoir and Blackfoot Reservoir. Further down the Snake River are Lake Walcott, C. J. Strike Reservoir, and Lake Lowell or Deer Flat Refuge. These are used heavily by ducks and geese in fall migration. Fortunately, much of the surrounding land is in state or federal ownership.
Two pumping stations on the Snake River arm of the Bruneau Reservoir provide feed and cover for waterfowl. In the years to come, the bullrushes will seed themselves.
Some 40,000 to 50,000 mallards and other duck species congregate toward the end of November on down the flyway.
Strike Reservoir, where they feed and loaf—and usually provide good hunting—until the waters freeze over. Duck blinds are fashioned along the Snake River arm of the reservoir.
The C. J. Strike Wildlife Management Area was established in 1952. Some 6,000 acres of land above water are managed for wildlife and public recreation. The full-time manager's house was built in 1955. The entire area has heavy public use from about March through the duck hunting season in December.
While accurate counts are difficult to make because of the physical layout of the WMA on both river arms of the reservoir, monthly public use figures average from 3,000 to 6,000 people, depending on the time of year.
Good fishing throughout the season is found in the waters of the reservoir for bullheads, crappie, bass, trout and a few sturgeon. Most crappie weigh about a pound each, and some trout are in the five pound class.

Charcoal Performs Cleaning Black Magic

NEW YORK — The greatest cleanup discovery since the broom has armed man with a multi-purpose weapon which is virtually as indispensable to the carbon-based housewife as it is to the orbiting astronaut or the submarine cruising for weeks at end beneath the polar-ice.

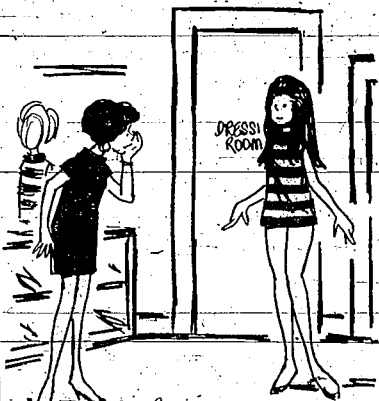

The miracle element is activated charcoal, not too different in appearance from the black stuff used in the backyard barbecue. One of Man's oldest purifying agents, it is being entangled into new prominence in the campaign to control both air and water pollution.

World War I brought the first general public awareness of activated charcoal's herculean purifying powers, although there is evidence that science learned of its specialized abilities more than 3,000 years ago. The use of chlorine gas by the German army led to the search for an effective gas mask — a means of purifying the air being breathed by the men in the trenches. Protection was found in a mask with an activated filter which screened out impurities in the air.

Scientists didn't quite understand why it happened, but she knew that a lump of charcoal in the icebox helped capture welcome food odors. Today porous packets of activated charcoal are built into refrigerators to prevent odor transfers; activated charcoal is housed in the hoods over many modern kitchen ranges to remove odor and grease. It even is used in drawers containing the family's "good silver" to take up sulphurous gases that cause tarnishing.

The secret of activated charcoal's purifying power lies in its ability to absorb — that is, to attract and hold molecules to its surface. In activating charcoal—the relatively smooth-natural surface pattern is altered through a high temperature baking process—with the result that petizing white. Your favorite drink wouldn't be the same without the millions of pounds of activated charcoal that go into purifying municipal water supplies and the water that goes into liquor, beer and soft drink production.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Oh, my goodness! That's not a dress—it's a BLOUSE!"

As for cigarettes, activated charcoal is generally regarded as one of the most efficient filtering materials now in use.

At a more elevated level, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration specifies charcoal filtration not only for manned capsules but for space walks. So does the U.S. Navy for its long-submerging nuclear submarines. The astronauts must re-use the same modest supply of air—throughout—their voyage. Charcoal makes it possible. As for life in a submarine, experts say that cooking odors alone would reach a toxic level in three days beneath the sea. Charcoal takes care of these odors for the sailors just as it did for great-grandma.

In terms of volume, the largest single share of the activated charcoal industry's yearly output of 100,000 tons goes to purify municipal water supplies. Chicago, Philadelphia, Dallas and some 2,000 other cities are among the regular customers. Air pollution also creates a sizeable demand for activated charcoal, both for building filtration systems and for room air purifiers. Los Angeles, plagued by lethal ozone, uses more activated charcoal in its civic auditoriums and municipal buildings than any other American city. Even airports wear activated charcoal building sized "gas masks" to protect travelers from the pollutants unleashed by modern jet aircraft.

Chicago's O'Hare Airport, the nation's busiest, uses some 100,000 pounds of charcoal annually to filter the air in its terminal buildings. It is just one of more than 50 airports now using this pollution protection.

Similar systems keep down the cleaning bill for striped pants at the United Nations headquarters, protect the Rembrandt hanging in New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art and pamper the spectators who jam Houston's gigantic Astrodome.

In these and scores of other ways, activated charcoal is giving America a "retro" taste of tomorrow's pollution-free living today.

Visiting Professor Praises U.S.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)— Argentine poet and essayist Jorge Luis Borges, now visiting professor at Harvard, leads the double life of a man involved in the world of people and enchanted with the world of books.

The 68-year-old poet holds the Charles Eliot Norton Visiting Chair of Poetry at Harvard, a chair held at different times by Robert Frost, T.S. Eliot and Igor Stravinsky.

Borges, who recently became blind, as did his father and grandfather in his later years, loves the life of the university. "The university is the finest place," he says, "because the university is where the world of people and the world of books intersect."

Borges is especially fond of American students. They are very keen on their subjects, not just their diploma," he says.

A professor at the University of Buenos Aires, Borges says he is happy if two or three of his students there out of a class of 30 are interested in his studies.

The author, who is of Spanish, English and remotely Portuguese ancestry, is conversant with the literatures of all three languages as well as with French, German, Latin and Greek literatures.

"I learned to speak Spanish and English before I knew they were Spanish and English," he recalls. "I had to spend one way to my English grandmother and a different way to my Spanish grandmother."

In discussing the poets and writers of a dozen different countries and eras, Borges moves his hands gracefully and opens his eyes widely, evidencing his excitement and delight with one part or another of the world of words.

Of all literatures, however, he singles out English as being "above all the rest."

"The incredible variety and richness of English is the result of its combination of sources in the Germanic and Romance language groups. For example," he says, "a poem that demands the words 'Holy Ghost' could be ruined by 'Holy Spirit.'"

Borges, who spent one semester at the University of Texas in 1961, says he has had a long-standing love affair with the United States.

"But," he says with some resignation, "the United States puzzles me. As a South American, I wonder why the United States refuses to be an empire. It is a commercial empire already, but I suppose there's no planar in that."

 are hours' pleasure in furnishing a home. Whether used in a hall, against a wall in another room, or as your main (and square) expand. No home ever has enough storage, especially in your decorating plans.
 Besides the functions of extra storage space, chests are wonderfully decorative. You can accent them with color or with hardware. Their surface can display a piece of sculpture, an antique mirror, a bowl of flowers. Above them you can mount a mirror or a painting.
 Very popular today are the long, low chests. They fit well into homes with lots of windows and lower ceilings typical of modern homes, and are available with beautifully designed or carved doors and elegant details.
 We have chest prices in our showroom, in just about any size you need. Bring us your room plan and measurements. We'll gladly help you select a beautiful decorative chest, or a pair of smaller ones, to meet your storage problems handsomely!

STRUKEN, THE DESERTER, SPIES UPON KEVIN AND THE MUSKETEER COMPANY NEARING THE PASS GUARDING GROSSTEIN

SIR KEVIN, I'LL LEAD THE TURKS AROUND AND ATTACK YOU FROM THE REAR! I WILL USE THIS HIDDEN TRAIL!

THE TURK IS ON SCHEDULE, SERGEANT!

I'D INVITE THEM TO THE BALL— FORGIVE THE FLIN— EXCEPT THAT A MUSKET BALL WILL NOT CARRY SO FAR!

PEREZ CARRIES A NEW TYPE OF WEAPON, SIR! A RIFLE— VERY RARE INDEED!

I'VE USED ONE, SERGEANT! THAT MIGHT STIR THEM UP!

TO KEEP THEM FROM GETTING BEHIND US, WE MUST KEEP THEM OCCUPIED. ORDER PEREZ TO BRING HIM HERE!

WITH A BROKEN LEG, THE TURK COMMANDER, MOAB, IS AN IMPATIENT PATIENT!

MAY ALLAH SHRIVEL YOU! DON'T JOLT THIS LITTER!

AND WHAT DO YOU WANT?

WE HAVE CAPTURED AN AUSTRIAN DESERTER, SIR!

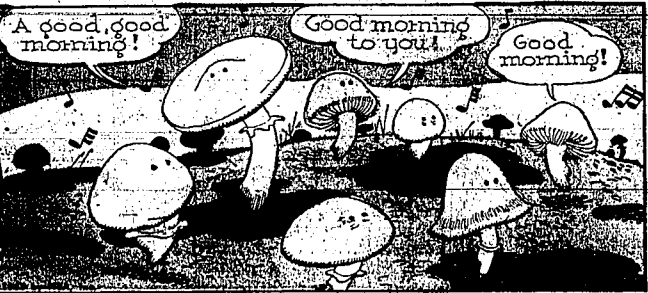

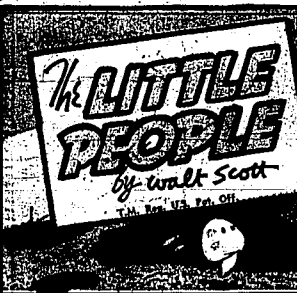

MAY ALLAH LEND ME PATIENCE! THOU KNOWEST WE CAN'T BE BURDENED WITH PRISONERS! BESIDES, I LOATH DESERTERS!

EXCELLENCY, THIS WRETCH CLAIMS HE CAN GUIDE YOU AROUND THE PASS BY A TRAIL ONLY HE KNOWS!

A FEW DETERMINED MEN COULD HOLD THIS DEFILE FOREVER, UNLESS STRUCK FROM BEHIND!

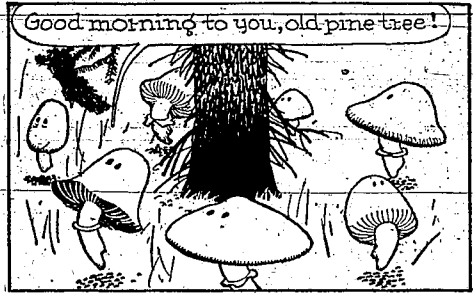

I'D RATHER MAKE A DEAL WITH SATAN, BUT BRING THE INFIDEL DOG HERE!

A good, good morning!

Good morning to you!

Good morning!

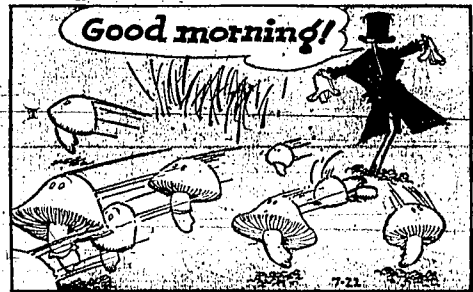

Good morning to you, old pine tree!

Good morning, Guffer!

Good morning!

Ask Them Yourself

FOR W. MARVIN WATSON,

U.S. Postmaster General
Who chooses the people and events to be honored on U.S. commemorative stamps?—Larry Seiler, Austin, Texas

● All themes for these stamps are carefully studied by the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee before its recommendations are submitted to the Postmaster General, who, by law, has the final say.

FOR JOAN CRAWFORD

Who are your adopted children now? What do they do?—R. T., Atlantic City, N.J.

● My son Christopher is in the Army, stationed in Vietnam. My oldest daughter Christina is an actress and is married to Harvey Medlinsky, an associate of director Mike Nichols. One of my twin daughters, Cindy, is married and living in Wisconsin. The other twin, Cathy, is attending fashion school in Miami and will be married to Jerome LaLonde next month.

FOR BOBBY RICHARDSON,

former N.Y. Yankee star
There has been wide coverage of baseball teams having champagne celebrations after a pennant victory. Do you think this practice may have a bad influence on our youth?—R. L. M., Cumberland, Md.

● It hurts me to see professional athletes taking part in these activities, which are seen by millions. But you'll never see a Raymond Berry of the Baltimore Colts, Bill Glass of the Cleveland Browns, Jim Kaat of the Minnesota Twins, or Felipe Alou of the Atlanta Braves taking part in these activities. These are Christian men active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. They are genuinely concerned about the responsibility they have as athletes to the youth of our country.

FOR DICK VAN DYKE

Were you really married on the "Bride and Groom" radio show on St. Valentine's Day, 1948?—Dun Young, Ono, Calif.

● Yes, my fiancée, Marjorie Willett, joined me in California, where I was appearing at the time, and we were married on the show.

FOR GABE PAUL,

general manager, Cleveland Indians
How much does it cost to "explode" the scoreboard each time a home run is hit?—Frank Tornichio, Mansfield, Ohio

● In the daytime it costs $45, while a nighttime "explosion" (because of different fireworks used) costs $60.

FOR HUGH DOWNS

of the "Taddy" show
Of all the guests you have interviewed, who impressed you the most? Why?—S. B. Kraner, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● Cesar Chavez, head of the United Farm Workers, who is trying to organize the migrant-workers of America. He impressed me most because of his quiet strength and steadfastness. He is a non-violent man but unyielding in his demands for justice.

FOR ROY THINNES

of "The Invaders"
I read recently that you attended the fourth Annual Congress of Scientific Ufologists. Do you believe in "flying saucers"?—Robert W. Young, Bowling Green, Ky.

● Why not? It is presumptuous for us to think we are the only form of intelligent life in the universe.

FOR JULIA CHILD

of "The French Chef"
What is the secret for making a perfect meringue?—T. T., Huron, S.D.

● The secret is to follow your recipe precisely, slowly adding sugar to stiff egg whites, beating constantly, then baking in a very slow oven to dry the meringue. To prevent cracking, turn off oven heat and let meringue cool as oven cools. Do not expose it to a sudden change in temperature or it will split.

FOR A. J. FOYT, auto racer

Of all your exciting experiences, what has been your biggest thrill in racing?—D. R., Somerville, Ala.

● My biggest thrill was winning my first National Driving Championship at the age of 25.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Kate and Cass Mama Cass, the big blonde of the popular "Mamas and the Papas" singing group, has been called "the new Kate Smith." "There's room for us all," says the still hearty, original Kate. "I've never heard Cass sing, but over the years, many people have been called 'the new Kate Smith.' They disappear, but I still keep going." One reason for that is the way Miss Smith keeps up with the times: "I just recorded a Beatles' song, 'Yesterday,'" she reports enthusiastically. "I love those boys. I love this new music."

Mama Cass

Strange Bedfellows The lowly bedbug has been drafted in the Vietnam war. It seems that when the bedbug gets close to a human being, the prospect of biting this choice morsel makes it squeak with delight. This gave the Army an idea. A packet of bedbugs is hidden in the dense foliage and attached to a sound amplifier. When the enemy approaches, the bedbugs squeak an advance warning to our jungle fighters.

Walk in the Dark More than half of the pedestrians killed or injured each year are struck down after dark. "I didn't see him," the driver usually says. It helps to wear something white at night. But the best idea, says the U.S. Public Health Service, is to wear reflective material in some form. You now can buy clothes that come trimmed with reflective strips. Or you can sew this safety fabric onto clothes you already have, make arm bands of it to slip on or off, or tape it to the instep of your shoe (it stays surprisingly clean there and can be seen when you take the shortest steps).

Name Change Bill Dana, often known as Jose Jimenez, was actually born Bill Szathmary. "People may wonder why somebody with a perfectly good name like 'Szathmary' would want to change it," he notes. "These people should be looked into." He came by the name Dana by changing a vowel in his mother's first name, Dena.

Bill Szathmary

Divorce Dangers People who stay married stay healthier, too. In California, where the divorce rate is almost double that of the rest of the nation, a recent census study showed that divorced men and women of all ages died at a higher rate than their wedded counterparts. The figures also indicate that divorced and separated people are more prone to illness.

For trivia collectors

Collectors' Corner There are two things you can do with "junk." The first is throw it away, the second is save it and hope that today's trivia—such as the sculptured hand shown here—will become tomorrow's treasures. The following items, according to exhibitors at New York's famed Flea Market, will be worth good money in the camp and trivia market of the future: bottle caps, Coke bottles, gum wrappers, political and theatrical memorabilia, cigar bands, and paper dolls. If you fancy antiques over trivia, save these items: Victorian silver, Bowie knives, and Early American pewter, brass, and copper.

One of the men was foundering in the raging water. “Help me,” he cried. Another man went to save him.

LORD, IT'S GOING to take a miracle to get us out of this. God, give us a miracle! Stop the water from drowning us.”

I fall to my knees, about 4,000 feet down a dark, flooded mine tunnel. Above me was the scarred, lumpy rock or so that is Saxewell Mine No. 8 in Hamby Falls, W. Va. Around me a raging river of water thundered its way to the air coursing and the conveyor belt, blocking the exits.

For 10 days, while the world outside counted me as dead, I was buried alive on that spot where I had first knelt, a dark space a little higher than a coffin. Before I was rescued, God had performed not one miracle, but many.

On Monday morning, May 6, 1968, I had kissed my wife Nina good-bye—twice. I had left for work as usual and then come running back up the porch. “Forgot the gas money,” I told Nina. I kissed her for the second time, smiled, and said, “See you.” I'd never said that before. I'd seldom had to retrace my steps. I remembered that when I was a child (before my family was born again as Christians) my mother would make us sit down for a few minutes before starting out again. Otherwise we thought it bad luck to double-back.

At 7 a.m., 26 of us went into the mine, including the cursey driver. Fifteen men got off to work at one section, and the rest of us went on to another in a different direction. We had to crouch or crawl as we worked because of the low ceilings, and, as I went back and forth, I noticed a stream of water about as thick as a pencil rushing out.

It must have been about 9:30 when Renick McClung crawled past me, softly singing a hymn. A fine man, I remember thinking as he crawled by about 15 feet from me. I hope that he belonged to the Lord because shortly after Renick was dead.

Minutes later, the mechanical drill bit into a wall of coal that our map said was 200-feet thick. Instead the drill cut through it like paper.

“Larry, c'mon!” someone shouted. “There's water!”

I started to move out and the shout came again. “Larry, c'mon!” I swiveled in the direction of the voice and crawled after it to a slightly elevated point. Water roared through the hole-the drill had made, pushing down huge chunks of wall, and raged past us. One of the men was foundering in it, his cap off, his light out. “Help, help me!” he was gasping. Another man went after him and helped him to safety.

“Let's try for the conveyor belt,”

John Moore, our foreman, shouted. “Maybe we can ride it out of here.” We waded into the swift water, holding tight to the shoring timbers to keep from being washed away. Once my hand slipped, and I could feel the water pulling me with it. Finally we reached the bolt. To make my way farther I grabbed for the messenger wire. I received a severe electric shock. Everything was hot! The water had gotten to a loose end of the ground wire. I jerked free of the wire and shouted. “Get back, we're into the power. Get back.” I turned to retreat and my legs became tangled in the loose end of the messenger wire. I was shocked again and again before I made my way free.

One of the men got to the belt and tried to ride it out, but it had been overturned, and it flicked him off like a bucking bronc. Our exit blocked, we made our way back again, hand over hand on the shoring timbers through the raging river of water, to the high ground.

There were two rooms, a total of some 90 by 140 feet that had not yet been flooded. But if the water kept rising, a football field would not hold enough to keep us from drowning.

There were just six of us perched together above the flood. We had only the battery-powered lamps on our heads to see by as we peered into the darkness. We hoped the other four men had escaped by way of the conveyor belt.

I knelt in that space and prayed. “Lord, I know you can perform miracles. I am asking for one now.” In that space too low to stand but high enough to kneel and pray, God heard me and answered. The rising water stopped.

Two rolls of brattice cloth, a specially treated burlap, lay in one of the corners. Working hurriedly, we built a barricade with the brattice cloth, fastening it to the shoring timbers. We knew this barricade couldn't protect us if the water began to rise again, but it would help as an air barricade in case poisonous black damp (mine gas) threatened us.

We also made a small tent formed by a circle of timbers with the brattice fastened to it. This tent became (Continued on page 14)

Do Monsters Exist in America?

By WARREN SMITH

SINCE THE dawn of time, convincing stories have been told about real or mythical monsters. Today many people claim there are mysterious monsters lurking in the U.S. wilderness.

While few persons give credence to these fanciful tales; scientists admit certain strange species of life could have survived in isolated areas.

There are definite patterns to the stream of "monster" reports over the past two decades. These include:

Sasquatch or Big Foot: This creature is described as a two-footed mammal that walks upright and is believed to be a species between man and ape. Seven to ten feet in height, the creature weighs between 400 and 900 pounds. Except for the feet, hands, and nose, the monster is covered by one-inch-long reddish black hair. It has been sighted on more than 600 occasions in California, Washington, Idaho, Oregon, Canada, and Alaska.

At 3:30 p.m. on Oct. 20, 1967, "monster hunters" Roger Patterson and Bob Gimlin were searching the great forest northwest of Eureka, Calif., when suddenly they sighted a strange, fur-covered beast walking upright through the timber. Patterson grabbed his movie camera and zoomed in on the beast as it scurried away. The result is a highly controversial strip of 16 mm. color film.

Scientist Ivan T. Sanderson, author of "Snowman—Legend Come to Life," arranged for several distinguished scientists to view the film in Washington, D.C. A biologist from the Smithsonian Institution "observed nothing to point directly to a hoax." Another scientist speculated that hairy, humanlike creatures possibly could have migrated from Asia to America, thus giving rise to the speculation that the Sasquatch is a relative of the "Yeti" ("Abominable Snowman").

Florida's Abominable Sandman:

Residents of Holopaw, Fla., locked their doors and oiled their guns last year when a midget version of the Sasquatch invaded the state. Something described as "five-feet tall, covered with hair, and twice as broad as a man" raided garbage cans, plundered homes, and frightened dogs and livestock. When the community settled down, no one was ever sure whether it was a bear or a real monster.

In 1946 a similar apelike creature killed livestock and destroyed property around Coatesville and Lebanon, Pa. Terrified farmers hired a professional hunter to track the beast which "screamed like a baby." Elusive as ever, the creature disappeared into obscurity.

Lake Monsters: Since 1933, Scotland's Loch Ness monster has been a topic of conversation among monster lovers. Less publicized are similar creatures sighted in North American waters.

A Lyons Falls, N.Y., fisherman was astonished a few years ago to see a "15-foot something" rise out of the Black River. The dark brown monster had a round, tapered body and "eyes that stood out like silver dollars!"

Flathead Lake, Mont., and Payette Lake, Idaho, contain long-necked "Loch Ness" monsters. Local newspapers frequently report sightings by dozens of witnesses. The long-neckers "have a cow-like head on a long, slender neck. There are humps on their backs, and they travel with an up and down motion."

Oscar, the friendly monster in Big Pine Lake, Minn., has surfaced to stare quietly at boaters on the lake. Few fishermen have tried to lure him, though.

Scientists pay little attention to the sightings, but eyewitnesses strongly believe "there is something in our lakes."

The Mammoth Mothman: "I am a hard guy to scare, but I was for getting out of there," Roger Scarberry told police in Point Pleasant, W. Va. He said his car was chased by a flying monster on the night of Nov. 16, 1966.

Scarberry, his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Mallette all said "the bird was about six-feet tall, gray-colored, with two-inch eyes that glowed in the dark." The "thing" chased their speeding car for several miles. It was named the "Mammoth Mothman."

What can we believe about monsters? Repeated sightings indicate there may be "something" out in the boonocks. Until someone hauls a monster into a news conference, however, we can only maintain an open—but skeptical—mind. ♦

10 Ways to Keep Your Home Safe from Burglars

An American home is robbed every 28 seconds; it needn't be yours, says this former Federal agent, if you take some basic precautions

By ULRICH KAUFMANN

Author of "How to Avoid Burglary, Housebreaking, and Other Crimes"

"WE NEVER lock our doors," your mother used to boast. "This is a town where we can trust our neighbors."

Perhaps you still like to think of yourself as living in one of those Utopias where every house is wide open, nothing locked because everybody in town is honest. Yet, as the crime rate rockets upward, even you need to be on the alert.

You can still trust your neighbors, but what about the stranger who drives through at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning, when most of the townpeople are in church? Before the service is over, he has time to rob three or four houses and then speed off to Detroit or Chicago, where he spreads the word of the "easy pickings" in your town.

As F.B.I. director J. Edgar Hoover recently reported, arrests for burglary increased in a single year by 9 percent in rural areas and 3.3 percent in suburban areas. Burglars now visit American homes at the rate of once every 28 seconds.

Here, then, are some ways to stop them at your own doorstep.

1. Your Front Door: If you're like most people, this is the most secure portion of your house. It probably has at least one good lock and possibly a chain. If you're extra careful, it may have an additional lock that can be operated only from the inside. Those metal strips you may have installed to keep out the wintry winds also help keep out unwelcome visitors. The outdoor light fixture that says welcome to honest people is another naysayer to burglars.

2. The Neglected Back Doors: This is usually the first entrance a burglar will try. The first thing to check is how solid the door is. Can it be moved, pushed, or jarred sufficiently away from its encasement so that whatever bolts or latches you have are holding onto thin air? You may need new hinges or wood stripping to close up that space between door and frame.

Many back doors have windows which a burglar can break and then reach through to unlatch the door. At least one of your locks should be out of such handy reach.

3. Your Windows: A burglar is unlikely to try to crash in through your large picture window; the reason is simply that the bigger the glass he breaks, the bigger the noise he makes. If you have sliding glass doors, though, many police chiefs suggest putting pieces of wood in the tracks so that, if anyone tries to jimmy the doors, they can't be slid open.

The burglar's choice is a small basement or rear window where he can enter with less noise and less chance of being seen. Your first step is to check that the windows are solidly installed so they can't simply be pushed in. For the basement window, where looks don't count, one or two steel bars is a good idea. For other windows, the traditional sash lock, in which one half-moon piece of steel engages another, is an effective device—provided the two pieces are completely joined. In summer, when you may want to keep your windows ajar, there are bolts you can buy for 50 cents or so that will keep an intruder from opening them any farther.

4. How Many Locks? One lonely lock on a door, no matter how good it is, is just not enough. Two or three locking devices seem reasonable for just about any situation; more than that can mean that it will be, too difficult for you to get out in case of fire.

You don't want to build either a freetramp or a fortress. What you do want to do is make it no difficult for a burglar to enter your house that he will go elsewhere.

In my opinion, the best lock you can buy is the magnetic one that has just come on the market. It cannot be "picked"; only your key, with magnets to match the ones in the tumblers, will open it. A "dead bolt" lock makes an excellent night latch, too.

The time-tested chain is a good security device but not if it is hung in the traditional way—with the slide parallel to the chain. Instead, you should mount the slide just above and at a slant toward the chain—mounting. For temporary safety on a back door, turn whatever key you now have as far as it will go, then insert a wire hanger hook through the hole of the key (or key ring) and hook the hanger over the doorknob.

5. Don't Advertise: When a burglar "cases" your lock, he is shopping for the biggest possible haul. He looks for the only house with a swimming pool or a large compressor unit for air conditioning, the expensive toys rusting in the yard because nobody cares, the objects of art prominently displayed in several windows facing the street. In a less-wealthy neighborhood, he looks for the only garage on the block or for the only lawn that shows its owner could afford a five-dollar bag of fertilizer.

If you look like the richest house on the block, you're likely to be his target for tonight. This doesn't mean you have to present a shabby exterior. It does mean that a few strategically placed bushes might shield your pool or air conditioner from casual street view: It doesn't mean you have to closet your treasures, but it does mean that you needn't put the most expensive ones in the window.

6. Don't Admit Strangers: The fewer people you admit to your house, the fewer chances you take of being burglarized. Meet delivery men at the door and have your money ready for them. Talk to that magazine salesman on the doorstep.

If it's a repairman, he must, of course, come inside. But you should accompany him without seeming rude or suspicious. A friendly, "Let me show you where the light switch is," will do.

It's highly unlikely that any of the people who come to your house on legitimate business will burglarize it. But the delivery boy will join his buddies that night at the local hangout. In all innocence, he may say, "Boy, you should see what they have at the Smith's house!" Overhearing him may be a young boy who will then commit his first crime. Or it may be a professional who senses ripe pickings.

7. World's Best Burglar Alarm: In keeping your house safe, your dog is truly your best friend. He doesn't have to be school-trained, a pedigree, or a man-biter. He does have to bark loudly when strangers approach—to warn you if you're at home, to scare off a burglar with his noise if you're not.

Especially at night, you should keep your dog inside the building he's supposed to protect and give him free run of the house, if possible. If he's outside, a rag drenched with the scent of another dog may distract him or some form of poison may silence your pet forever.

8. On Vacation: If you're going to be away, your house should not advertise the fact. While you're gone, its outward appearance should be the same. If your shades are not normally drawn all day, you should not leave them closed now. If it's an extended vacation, you should arrange to have the grass cut or the snow shoveled, so the house doesn't look deserted.

Don't do too much to the inside, either. If dust covers can be seen through the windows, then your absence is established. The old trick of leaving a light burning constantly while you're gone doesn't fool the burglars any more, but an automatic timer—or a friendly neighbor—to switch the light off during the day may make him think somebody's at home.

9. Who to Tell: Again, don't tell too many people about your vacation. Don't tell the painter he must hurry and finish today because you're leaving tomorrow. He may mention it casually to others—and unfriendly ears may be listening.

Do furnish your local police with a "Vacant Premises Report." In most towns, this will get you free periodic inspection by the officer on the beat or a cruising squad car.

10. Burglar in the House: What happens if, after all your precautions, you awake one night to hear the sound of a burglar downstairs? If you're a woman, the first thing to do is to lock your bedroom door. Then call the police. You should have, taped to your phone, the number of the nearest precinct.

Another handy thing to have is a whistle. Open the window and start blowing it as loud as you can. If you were a burglar, wouldn't that noise start you running?

Some people have a switch in their bedroom by which they can turn on the outdoor lights. If you do, by all means, flip it now. The sudden lights, like the sudden noise, will send most thieves packing.

If you're a man, this becomes an individual decision. You should call the police first. Then, if you have a handy weapon, you may feel you want to go down and defend your castle. Remember, though, that you never know what you're going to find. The burglar may be armed; he may be so crazed with drugs that he will do something desperate. You also may be lying in one of those states that have laws limiting the force you may use—even to protect your own home.

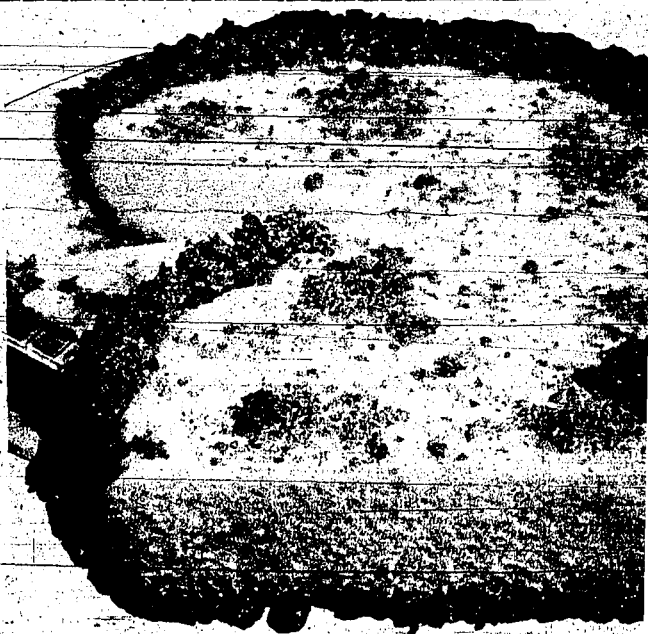

My own advice would be: don't try to be a hero.

PIN-WORMS

OUT OF 3 DOES

Stinging, itchy, and annoying itches are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infect 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it.

First, a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Let your pharmacist.

Savory Summer Soups

■ Chilled soup takes on added hot-weather appeal when each bowl is nestled in a bed of crushed ice, or poured over ice cubes in attractive glasses. Try these tantalizing cold soups throughout the hot summer.

Iced Olive Tomato Soup may be served as soup course or afternoon pick-me-up.

Iced Olive Tomato Soup

- 1 cups canned tomato juice
- ½ cup salad or cooking oil
- ½ cup cider vinegar
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 1 clove garlic, sliced
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon Accent
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 tablespoon rosemary leaves, crushed
- ½ teaspoon thyme leaves, crushed
- ½ teaspoon basil leaves, crushed
- ½ teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
- ¼ cup milk
- ¼ cup finely chopped pimiento-stuffed olives
- ½ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
- ½ cup cucumber wedges

1. Mix the first five ingredients in a large bowl. Stir in a mixture of the sugar and next six ingredients, milk, and then the chopped olives. Cover and chill at least 6 hrs. or overnight to develop flavor.

2. Strain into a chilled tureen. Put sliced olives and cucumber into a serving dish.

3. Ladle chilled soup into mugs and garnish each with the sliced olives and cucumber. Accompany with crusty bread.

About 1½ qts. soup

Chilled Strawberry Soup

- ½ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- Few grains salt
- ¼ cup cold water
- 1 qt. fresh strawberries, rinsed, drained, and hulled
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

1. Blend sugar, cornstarch, and salt in a saucepan. Mix in the cold water. Bring to boiling and stir and cook about 2 min., or until thickened and clear. Remove from heat and set aside to cool.

2. Put berries and lemon juice into an electric blender container. Cover and blend thoroughly.

3. Mix strawberry puree with cooled sauce. Chill. Garnish soup with sliced strawberries and mint leaves.

About 3½ cups soup

Jellied Borscht

- 1 can (10½ oz.) condensed beef consommé
- 1 soup can water
- ½ clove garlic
- 2 stalks celery, cut in pieces
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1½ tablespoons (1½ env.) unflavored gelatin
- 1 jar (1 lb.) pickled sliced beets, drained (reserve liquid)
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 1 cup dairy sour cream

1. Heat consommé and water to boiling in a saucepan. Stir in garlic, celery, brown sugar, ginger, and cayenne. Remove from heat, cover, and let stand 30 min.

2. Meanwhile, soften gelatin in reserved beet liquid in a saucepan. Stir over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved.

3. Strain the consommé; stir in dissolved gelatin. Chill until the consistency of unbeaten egg white, stirring occasionally.

4. Put beets and lemon juice into an electric blender container. Cover and blend thoroughly. Add to gelatin mixture along with the sour cream; blend thoroughly.

5. Pour into a shallow 3-qt. dish; depth of mixture will be about ¾ in. Chill until firm.

6. To serve, cut into cubes. Spoon into bouillon cups and garnish each with a dollop of dairy sour cream.

Avocado-Almond Potage

- ¼ cup toasted almonds
- 3 cups chicken broth
- 2 ripe avocados, cut in pieces
- ½ clove garlic
- ½ cup cream
- ¼ teaspoon seasoned salt
- ¼ teaspoon white pepper

1. Put nuts into an electric blender container. Cover and grind nuts.

2. Add one half of the broth, the avocado, and garlic; cover and blend until smooth. Add remaining ingredients; cover and blend.

3. Chill, covered, until serving time.

4. On each serving float a dollop of dairy sour cream garnished with green pepper and toasted almond slivers.

YVETTE MIMIEUX: Lovely Loner

YVETTE MIMIEUX is living proof that appearances can be most deceiving. A delicate five-foot, four-inch blonde, she seems to be the embodiment of fragile femininity.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Utterly fearless, with the stamina and energy of an athlete, 27-year-old Yvette, current star of "Three in the Attic," is best described as a loner, a truly rugged individualist. Her long-time friend, "discoverer," and business associate, Jim Byron, goes further: "She is downright stubborn. When Yvette makes up her mind to do something, it's final."

Her recent jaunt to remote Easter Island is a good example. Yvette read that eight archeologists and their wives were going to the island, some 2,350 miles off the coast of Chile, and wrote to them asking whether she could go along—at her own expense, and they agreed to take her with them. When she called her business manager to inform him that she would "be away for a while," he demanded that she call it off, but Yvette had made up her mind to go—and did.

In a way, Yvette has a contradictory outlook on life. On one hand, she has an intense desire to participate, to become totally involved. On the other, she refuses to be a "joiner."

Although she and her brother Eddie live in Beverly Hills, Yvette prefers to live alone. She likes to feel that she doesn't need people, but she doesn't like to be shut out from the world, either.

How involved Yvette gets was evident when she made the film, "Monkeys Go Home." She became fascinated by the way the film's animal trainer worked and inquired whether she could learn to train animals, too. Later he gave her a baby jaguar—which grew into a 260-pound beast. Although her neighbors are not happy over it, Yvette insists, "Zazi is as gentle as a kitten."

Yvette's lack of fear shows up in every aspect of her life. A few months ago she became interested in flying and wrangled an introduction to Col. Ralph Maglione of the famed "Thunderbirds," who invited her to participate in a close-formation flight. She now is in the process of getting her pilot's license, then intends to take up sky-diving "to see how it feels to fly without wings."

Not that Yvette is a daredevil or foolhardy, she merely trusts her own judgment above all others. In many ways, she relies on herself too much. This dates back to her early school days when her father, French artist René Mimieux, and her mother, Mexican-born Carmen Montemayor, were faced with financial difficulty.

Yvettes wore the same carefully laundered dress to school every day, causing schoolmates to tease her mercilessly. It is no wonder that she became self-conscious, withdrawn, and self-reliant.

Yvette's ability to withdraw came into sharp focus in 1959 when she married graduate student Evan Engber. Whenever anyone questioned her about the marriage, she stared right through him and assumed her "Mona Lisa" smile. According to Jim Byron, the only reason the marriage lasted six months was Yvette's loyalty. "She's too loyal," he says.

"What of her future? Does she want a happy marriage? Children? You ask her and she shakes at you, shrugs, and assumes her "Mona Lisa" smile. Suddenly you're sitting opposite Yvette Mimieux—beautiful loner.

Family Weekly Readers: This special introductory $100.00-A-WEEK EXTRA YOU OR YOUR FAMILY

-Only 25¢ enrolls your entire family for the first month

- Pays $14.28 cash each day starting the very first day you spend in the hospital... even up to 100 weeks
- Pays up to $10,000.00 tax-free cash for each hospital stay
- Pays all cash direct to you (not to doctor or hospital)
- Pays in addition to all other coverage you have — including Medicare
- Pays you cash benefits that increase each year... to a maximum of $130.00-A-WEEK... at no extra cost to you!
- No age limit — no medical examination required

ACT NOW—YOUR ENROLLMENT FORM MUST BE MAILED BY MIDNIGHT, SATURDAY, AUGUST 3, OR IT CANNOT BE ACCEPTED

One out of two families will have someone in the hospital this year! It could be you—or some beloved member of your family tomorrow... next week... next month. Sad to say, very few families have anywhere near enough coverage to meet today's soaring hospital costs. These costs have tripled in just a few short years. They are expected to double again in the few years ahead.

Stop for a moment and pose your husband went to the hospital. Think how much a long stay would cost your family. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do if your husband's pay check stopped, but living expenses went on the same as ever? The same, rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do? We believe we have the answer for you and your husband in the famous Presidential Extra Cash Plan that ... Pays you $100.00 a week tax-free cash when you go to the hospital.

What a blessing it is when you know you have an extra $100.00 cash coming in every week — beginning the very first day you enter the hospital.

Now, Presidential's economy plan enables you to enjoy this protection at once. Because it will NOT cost you $200.00, it will NOT cost you $100.00 — or even $50.00 to enroll. Your special low price is just 25¢ for the first month's coverage. Then continue at regular low Presidential rates shown below.

Your cash benefits increase each year — at no extra cost to you!

The first year you get $100.00 a week. You get $103.00 a week in the second year, $106.00 a week in the third year, $109.00 a week in the fourth year. By the eleventh year, your policy will be worth a full $130.00 a week in benefit payments.

... The increasing benefits come to you at no extra cost. You still pay the regular low Presidential premium!

What other Plan protects you like this? What other Plan keeps protecting you against rising costs in the years ahead without increasing your premiums? And that's not all. This special Presidential Extra Cash Plan (CHP-1BL-1067)...

... Pays you $100.00 a week CASH for a registered nurse at home.

Yes, if your doctor says you need a registered nurse full time within 5 days after you come home, we'll send you checks for $100.00 a week — for as long as you need the nurse — even up to 50 weeks. It's like having a reserve of $5,000.00 cash to draw on when you need it. These benefits also increase each year by $3.00 a week. Another exceptional feature you have with Presidential...

... Pays you $100.00 a week cash maternity benefits.

Ordinary hospital insurance may take care of part of your expenses when you go to the hospital to have a baby. But what policy can you think of that gives you cash to buy all the things you need for the new baby? Now, if both husband and wife are insured in the wonderful Family Plan With Maternity for the entire period of the pregnancy, you get extra cash to use any way you want. If a pregnancy, childbirth or even miscarriage puts you in the hospital for one day, five days, 10 days — as long as necessary — you get $100.00 a week for every day of your confinement, up to 100 weeks.

All these added cash benefits.

Added cash benefit: $1,000.00 cash to your family if death occurs within 90 days from any accidental injury. Think of how handy the cash can be in time of loss. It can take care of burial expenses without burdening your loved ones.

Added cash benefit: Up to $2,000.00 cash for loss of limbs or eyesight, when the loss occurs within 90 days of the accident. The loss of a limb or eyesight is a terrible thing. Nothing can replace the loss, but a check for $1,000.00 or $2,000.00 will bring great peace of mind during the period of adjustment.

Added cash benefit: Choose either Family Plan... and your children will be covered too! Presidential pays up to $5,000.00 any time your youngster goes to the hospital... for tonsils, appendicitis, or any other illness or injury! Yes, you will receive $50.00 cash, week after week — for as many as 100 weeks, if necessary.

IF YOU ARE 65 OR OVER YOU WILL COLLECT IN ADDITION TO MEDICARE

Even though Medicare is a great boon to folks over 65, Jill Witt, of course, pay all the bills that quickly pile up as a result of illness or accident. We have designed this plan as the important addition to what you receive from Medicare — or any other health insurance you may have. In addition to what you receive from Medicare, Presidential pays you $70.00 a week... EVEN FOR 100 WEEKS if necessary! You can receive as much as $7,000.00 for each illness or injury when hospitalized!

We pay your premiums when you are not able... As a special consideration to you — if you are hospitalized just 6 weeks or more... all premiums that come due while you are still in the hospital after this period will be paid by Presidential. And your protection continues as if you were paying the premiums yourself! Then if you leave the hospital and must return for the same condition before you have resumed full normal activities for 90 days, Presidential will again PAY ANY PREMIUMS WHILE YOU ARE IN THE HOSPITAL... TO A MAXIMUM OF 100 WEEKS per confinement! This means you pay no premiums, yet your full protection remains in force — you collect up to $10,000.00 for each confinement!

These are the ONLY exclusions!

Your Presidential policy covers every conceivable kind of sickness or accident except conditions caused by war or any act of war; or where care is in a Government hospital; mental disorders; intoxicants and narcotics; pregnancy except as provided under the maternity benefit provision; and expenses resulting from any sickness or injury you had before the Effective Date of your policy... during the first 2 years only!

How can 25¢ buy so much?

You can buy ordinary insurance at any time and pay the regular rates; if you wish. But Presidential can now provide you and your entire family with $100.00 a week tax-free Income Protection for just 25¢ the first month only because we enroll a large number of people at one time — direct by mail! This highly efficient "Mass Enrollment" method cuts costs to the bone — and the savings are passed on to you!

Why you must act before the deadline date shown in the enrollment form.

Why must you act by the deadline? Because, as mentioned above, we must receive your Enrollment Form the same time as all the others in order to pass on to you the savings that come from processing many policies at one time.

PAYS	Up to $10,000.00 CASH for each accident or illness, starting the very first day in the hospital.
PAYS	$100.00 A WEEK CASH — if you need a full-time registered nurse when you come home from the hospital... up to 50 weeks.

Offer brings you as much as INCOME GO TO THE HOSPITAL

We mail you the policy as soon as we receive the Enrollment Form. When the policy arrives, examine it. It's a very short document. There is NO FINE PRINT—Then show it, if you wish, to someone you trust. Perhaps your lawyer, accountant, or banker. Better still—show it to your own insurance man... even though he may very well be working for another insurance company! So you can believe him when he tells you there is no better bargain available anywhere—at any price!

Money back guarantee — in case you change your mind.

You are free to return the policy within 15 days and your quarter will be refunded at once. There will be no obligation whatever.

Meanwhile, all during the 15 days you are making up your mind—you'll be protected by $100.00-A-WEEK extra cash benefits, just as if you had already said "Yes." That's right, you will be fully covered all this time for any accident which puts you in the hospital, even if you finally decide to return the policy.

However, after you've seen the policy for yourself, you'll surely agree that this is tremendous value—and you'll want to continue this $100.00-A-WEEK extra cash protection under the Plan that's best for you.

PLAN I — INDIVIDUAL(S) ONLY PLAN

If you want to cover yourself — or yourself and one or more adult dependents (including your spouse) — then this is the Plan for you. Each person must be 18 or over, and shall pay the rate applicable to his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Monthly Premium
18-29	only $3.95
30-39	only $4.95
40-49	only $5.95
50-59	only $6.95
60-74	only $8.95
75 and over	only $8.95

PLAN II — FAMILY PLAN WITH MATERNITY

This plan is for the family that is still growing. To the total of the monthly premium for the adults to be insured, just add $5. This entitles you to all maternity benefits. It also covers your unmarried, dependent children between the ages of 3 months and under 19 years who live at home. Future dependent children will be covered when they reach 3 months of age and without any additional charge.

PLAN III — FAMILY PLAN WITHOUT MATERNITY

This plan is for the family that is no longer growing. To the total of the monthly premium for the adults to be insured, just add $3. This covers all your unmarried, dependent children between the ages of 3 months and under 19 years who live at home.

NOTE: The regular Monthly Premium shown above (for your age at time of enrollment) is the same low premium you will continue to pay; it will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next. Once you have enrolled, your rate can never be changed because of how much or how often you collect from us — or because of advanced age — but only if there is a general rate adjustment, up or down, on all policies of this type in your entire state.

Act now — "later" may be too late!

TIME IS PRECIOUS! Act quickly! (No salesman will call.) Get your enrollment form into the mail today—because once you suffer an accident or sickness, it's TOO LATE to buy protection at any cost. Act today — before anything unexpected happens.

The Presidential® Extra Income Plan

11401 Roosevelt Blvd., Philadelphia, Pa. 19154

The Presidential Life Insurance Company of America (Home Office: Chicago, Illinois) is licensed under the laws of your State and carries full legal reserves for the protection of all policyowners.

THESE 19 QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

- Tell you how the Presidential Plan gives you the protection you need—at amazingly low cost!
- How much will my policy pay me when I go to the hospital? The full amount you are paid $100.00-A-WEEK extra cash benefit. And it starts the very first day you are in the hospital.
  - Will I be paid if I am hospitalized for less than a full week? You certainly will—regardless of whether you are in the hospital for as short a time as one day—every day—up to one week—month, year or more. Coverage begins when we receive your first premium—that is the day you are covered for any accidents. Sickness coverage begins 30 days after the effective date of the policy.
  - How much do I receive for a Registered Nurse at Home? $100.00-A-WEEK for up to 65 days, no matter how long you have received nursing benefits for 90 days or more, and your doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse within 5 days after you leave the hospital.
  - Are there any accidental death benefits? Yes—$1,000.00 cash when death occurs within 90 days of an accident.
  - Will I be paid extra if I lose a limb or organ? Yes. $1,000.00 for complete accidental loss of one hand or one foot or sight of one eye; $500.00 for loss of both hands or both feet or sight of both eyes; and $250.00 for permanent loss of both hands or both feet of the accident.
  - How much do we receive for pregnancy? If you have the Family Plan with Maternity, you receive $100.00-A-WEEK for each pregnancy, with no coverage that results in hospital confinement when both husband and wife are enrolled under this plan for the entire period of pregnancy.
  - Suppose I am paid benefits for any sickness or accident. What happens if I am again hospitalized for the same condition? You still collect $100.00-A-WEEK for a total of 100 weeks. And if you have already received full normal activities for just 90 days, it's considered a new confinement, and you can collect for an additional 100 weeks.
  - How many times may I use these benefits payments? You may use them in any way you wish.
  - May I supply my own nurse? Yes, you may; follow any age or welcome-to-apply—there is no age limit!
  - Can I collect from the Presidential Plan even if I carry other insurance? Yes... and in full!
  - Why do I need this Presidential Plan in addition to my other hospital and health insurance? While hospital costs have tripled in recent years, very few people have tripled their insurance. The chances are one in seven that you will need money to take care of all your other expenses as well as your hospital bills.
  - What benefits do my eligible, dependent children get? If you choose a Family Type Plan, dependent little children, ages 3 months to under 19 years, receive 50% of all the cash benefits of the Plan (excluding Value of Premium).
  - May I add future dependent children to my policy after it is in force? Yes... indeed, if you have the Family PLAN with MATERNITY, just notify us when they are 3 months old, they will be covered without expense of insurability and without any waiting period.
  - Will my protection be cancelled because I sign a new claim? No, definitely not! Presidential guarantees never to cancel your protection because you have too many claims or because of advanced age. We also guarantee never to refuse to renew your policy unless the premium is not paid before the end of the 31-day grace period, or unless renewal is declined on all policies of this type in your entire state. (If description is used in making application, the policy may be "restricted.")

15. What is not covered by this policy? The only conditions not covered—those caused by mental disorders, intoxicants and narcotics, expenses resulting from any sickness or injury you had before the policy Effective Date (during the first 2 years only), acts of war, care in a Government hospital, EVERYTHING ELSE IS COVERED.

16. What does the requirement that member ship be one of the President's plans? You must not have been refused any health, hospital or life insurance, and to qualify during this enrollment period, you must enroll before midnight of the day the coupon, EVERYTHING ELSE IS COVERED.

17. Can other members of my family take advantage of this special offer? Yes, as long as they can meet the few requirements listed under Question 16.

18. How does the money-back guarantee work? We guarantee your policy carefully in the privacy of your own home. If for any reason you are not completely satisfied, return it within 15 days and we will promptly refund your money. Meanwhile you will be fully protected while making your decision.

19. How do I get? We guarantee the enrollment form and mail it, with just 25¢ for the first month's protection for your entire family. Mail to: The Presidential Life Insurance Company, 11401 Roosevelt Blvd., Philadelphia, Pa. 19154.

"A doomed man cried out in agony—but we couldn't reach him"

Two miners, in surprisingly good condition, are brought out by rescue workers.

our home. We found some rubber belting and then some sheet metal to make a floor. It helped keep off the dampness, although it bruised our bones as we sat or lay on it.

The six of us crawled into the tent, wondering how long we would be there. We didn't know then that the water had flooded other points even higher than the one we perched on. Yet it stopped at the point where I had prayed.

"It'll be three or four days before we can expect any help," John Moore said. He began to take stock of our few supplies.

At the first cry of "Water," God told me—get your lunch bucket! I thought, "I don't need it. It will only slow me down."

Now that lunch bucket would help to save the lives of six men. As we huddled in our tent, we had three lunch buckets among us. But one was too soaked to be salvaged. In my lunch bucket and the other, we found four small sandwiches, three candy bars, thermoses of milk, coffee, and some water. We ate a small portion of our meager food.

At that first rush of water, I feel certain most of the men thought, This is it—we've had it. Now we clung together, and I said, "It is in the hands of God. We are up against something men can't handle, and no it is up to Him."

We heard a noise we thought was one of the doomed men moaning and calling out in his last agony, but there was no way to reach him. There was nothing to do now but pray and wait. We spoke the Lord's Prayer together, but mostly we sat quietly, each with his own thoughts.

On the second day we shared another of the sandwiches and a candy bar. We sat in darkness most of the time to conserve our lights. The day passed by and then another. We knew it would take time for help to come. Still as we listened, we could hear no signs that it was on the way.

On approximately the fourth day we heard sounds of drilling. One of the men wept. Perhaps, as we sat there in the darkness, all the men wept. After a while, the drilling sound stopped. We ate the last of our food that day. After that glimmer of false hope, some of the men came close to giving up.

By the fifth day, food was gone and hope was going. We drew some of the mine water to drink; it was all we had now to keep alive on, and each time we drew it, we blessed it before we drank. We prayed over it as you would over food, thanking God for this nourishment for our bodies and asking His protection against the typhus and dysentery that might lurk in it. It came from an underground feeder stream, and, after settling, tasted fresh and clear.

Crouching in that damp, dark pit, I prayed to see the trees, to hear the birds, to see the grass grow again.

On Sunday, the sixth day of our entombment, we heard drilling again. Unknown to us, the 15 men in the other crew had been found and brought up to daylight. We had long been given up for dead, and they were just searching for our bodies.

We checked the water and found it had risen a couple of inches. But on the seventh day, the water began to recede, little by little. The rescue teams had put a pump in. The next day our fomb reverberated to three dynamite blasts. "They're trying to reach us," we told each other. We also heard from the hole that was drilled—a shout of "Hello!" We shouted hello back but received no answer. I then vowed that the next "hello" I heard, I would answer with "Praise God."

We knew the miners' code: the search would go on until everyone had been found—dead or alive.

Enough water had been pumped out now so that we could reach the air courses and try to crawl through it—perhaps to freedom. It was uphill, but when we reached the first wagon, we saw that it was flooded. No good. The air in there was heavy with carbon monoxide, and we were gasping for breath as we crawled slowly back.

The water ebbed, but so did our strength. I looked at the men about me and pondered God's plan. Which of us would come out alive from this black grave? I felt that my work for God wasn't finished and that, somehow, He would deliver me. I prayed that: He might deliver us all.

On the ninth day, John Moore and another man struck out to try to reach the phone. A little while later we heard an agonized cry—like somebody weeping. Two of the men got their lights and went to help.

When they got back, John gasped out what had happened. He crossed the conveyor belt to where the phone was supposed to be, but all had been washed away. He then made his way back to the belt, and, as he crossed the belt, he almost put his hand on the body of one of the dead men.

We prayed together and then, huddling close to keep each other warm, we pulled the brattice cloth over us and tried to sleep. I lay awake that night thinking of God.

"Our Father who art in heaven . . . I prayed now from my underground coffin. . . . They will be done . . ." I said.

Suddenly, there was a shout, "Hellooooo, down there!"

It was two in the morning of the tenth day. "Praise God!" I shouted back. I kept my vow. "Praise God!" "Praise God!"

It took only minutes after that for our rescuers to reach us, to raise the opening of our tent and stare in joy and amazement at us.

The six of us had had four sandwiches to keep us alive for 10 days, but we crawled out of that mine on our own power. It was 4 a.m. when all of us were out. Four of us joined hands and said a prayer.

"Thank you, God," I said. "We will always praise You because You have delivered us from a living death. We know it was You, Lord, who kept us alive and have delivered us."

Only then did I let them take me in an ambulance to the hospital. The doctors who examined us were amazed. "The six of them seemed in better shape than the other 15 who had been trapped half the time," stated one doctor.

"Larry Lynch was the only Christian who went down there," one of the miners said. "But six came out, Christians. Larry gave us hope. He gave us faith."

If that is true, it is the work God meant for me to do. He delivered me so that I might testify to His miracles to all whom I can reach.

as long as he is able. By the time you read this, I, too, will have gone back into the mines. I know it is dangerous, but I am not afraid. I would be weak of faith if I thought that, having saved me once, God would not protect me again.

That first night in the hospital I heard the wind rustling in the trees, the croaking of frogs. The next morning the song of a peeper greeted me. "Thank You, dear God," I whispered. "Thank You." ♦

You Can Be "Fat"— and Healthy!

A little bit of overweight doesn't hurt anyone, says this physician—in fact, it may be just what the doctor ordered

By EUGENE SCHEIMANN, M.D. with Paul G. Neimark

A PATHETIC young woman in a state of deep depression over what she called a "weight problem" phoned my office recently.

I have talked to thousands of such persons in my 40 years of medical practice, the great majority of them in the last 10 years. It is in that time that our great country has become so weight-conscious.

In her 30s and attractive, with a successful husband and three active children, Mrs. G. was what I call a "diet-sick" person. She had made her life and the lives of her family miserable because of a false idea she had about overweight.

She weighed 185 pounds (on a medium frame of five feet, five inches), but she thought she should weigh 115. To get her weight down, Mrs. G. often had half-starved herself on different diets.

When she was on one, almost every waking hour revolved around avoiding food and curbing her appetite. And when she went off the diet and satisfied her craving for food, she felt guilty and depressed.

She had finally become so distraught that when she came to me, she also was seeing a psychiatrist. Mrs. G. was plagued by a feeling of worthlessness because she was "fat" and didn't "have the will power" to become thin.

What I told Mrs. G., after giving her a thorough physical examination, shocked her. I simply said that she should not lose a single pound.

Why? Because Mrs. G., like millions of other Americans, was "pleasantly plump." And, though plump has become a dirty word nowadays, more and more doctors are concluding that a little bit of overweight can often be a good thing—in fact, it may not be overweight at all.

Dr. William Sheldon's classification of body "types"—the thin, nervous ectomorph, the muscular, active mesomorph, and the heavy, gregarious—endomorph—has been talked about too much and applied too little. It has become a parlor game whereby we figure out a personality from physique.

But what we should have learned from Dr. Sheldon's categories is that many Americans are not meant to be slim. Nature designed them to be plump. If they try to conform to the models in the fashion magazines, they will be fighting a losing battle. And if by any chance they "win" the battle, they may find themselves much worse off than when they were heavy. They may be irritable from nearly constant hunger and have a lower resistance to disease.

Dr. C. W. Dupertuis of Cleveland's Western Reserve University has been studying body types for more than 30 years, and he feels that most women basically are endomorphs. For them, "obesity is a natural thing," says Dr. Dupertuis. His research has made him believe strongly that reducing can be a big mistake—and slenderness even worse.

But Mrs. G. and a great many others are not endomorphs. They are a combination of the three types. For them, too, there are assets in "overweight"—physical, mental, and sexual advantages.

First, food makes us happy and healthy. In our fast-paced, high-pressure society, sitting down to an enjoyable meal is a pleasure. We should not underestimate the human psyche needs pleasure. If we continually pass up food as a source of gratification, sooner or later we will find other sources—sources that do more harm than good.

Another important fact, of course, is that by eating a little more rather than a lot less, you improve your chances of getting all the nutritional elements you need. I personally have never seen a I've eaten with malnutrition, but I've seen many a dieter with deficiencies.

be fat. Like every doctor, I'm against obesity or gross overweight, since it carries definite health risks—heart disease, diabetes, arteriosclerosis, for example. So if you are the kind of person who can eat three good meals a day with a couple of snacks in between and still stay slim, I say "fine!"

But I also say that you will be in the minority. The vast majority of us gain 10 or 20 pounds as the years pass. And, no matter what we've been brainwashed to think, those few extra pounds don't make us one bit less healthy.

I know that in my own practice and those of many physicians I have known over the years, mild overweight has not turned out to be a health hazard. But dieting often has—even a balanced, nutritious diet!

Why? Because by dieting you are trying to achieve an unnatural weight for your body type and life situation. You know that you won't be able to attain the weight you want and then stay there with normal eating. What you will do is what almost every dieter does: go up and down, up and down—often with a series of dangerous medications.

This is not healthy. I can assure you that such a roller-coaster ride year after year is much more wearing on your system than a moderate amount of overweight could possibly be. As Dr. Dupertuis states, "It changes the whole body chemistry."

Then, too, are you really more attractive as a slender man or woman? It has been my experience with patient after patient that sexual adjustment is much better among plump people than in their slim sisters and brothers.

I know that Mrs. G. and her husband were both much happier once I convinced her to do what healthy and attractive people from Winston Churchill to Elizabeth Taylor to Jack Nicklaus have done: be a little "overweight" and enjoy it.

What worked for them can work for you.
