BYU Curbs Hecklers At LeMay Speech

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Brigham Young University laid strict ground rules against demonstrators for the appearance today of third-party vice presidential candidate Curtis LeMay.

"It is the rule at BYU that in public assemblies we have no booing, hissing or disruption of meetings," said school President Ernest Wilkinson.

Wilkinson added no signs or placards would be allowed on the campus — the Mormon school.

A Salt Lake City appearance by George Wallace, the American Independent candidate for president, was met by hecklers and sign-carrying demonstrators.

In San Antonio, Tex., this morning, LeMay promised that if he and George Wallace are elected, they will see that the crew of the USS Pueblo is returned by North Korea.

LeMay said he thought the United States ought to try to get the Pueblo crew back through diplomacy — "for a couple of days" — and then start applying pressure on North Korea.

In addition to his speech at Brigham Young University, LeMay also planned to attend a fund-raising dinner tonight in Santa Ana, Calif. He plans to spend tonight in Los Angeles and vote Tuesday in Bellare, Calif.

LeMay said he will not and general intend to fly Tuesday morning to Montgomery, Ala., for a victory celebration.

From Whistlestops To Front-Porch Talks, Presidential Campaigns Show Vast Change

By The Associated Press From torch lights to television lights, from whistle stops to jet stops, there have been vast changes in the style of presidential campaigning since the first contested election in 1796.

Though the coming of radio brought a "radio-revolution" in the art of political persuasion, the advent of television brought about the swiftest and most radical innovations of all time.

With the beginning of television campaigning came the end of choosing a President primarily by an intellectual ballot. Once the candidate entered the voter's living room via the TV screen, consciously or subconsciously, emotions entered into the voter's choice.

A striking example of the impact of personality over policy, of image over issue, came in the series of four television debates between John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon in 1960.

From the moment of their first confrontation in Chicago on Sept. 28, it was evident that Kennedy's personal charm and photogenic qualities would henceforth outweigh rational discussions of national and international problems in affecting the outcome of the election.

Handsomeness, wit and well-spoken, Kennedy projected an air of youth, energy, self-assurance and competence. Nixon seemed uncomfortable and unsure of himself.

On all counts against the electronically generated, all-American boy, Kennedy personally proved a poor match in the channel challenge. And the results were far-reaching. Both John and his brother, Robert, Kennedy admitted to newsmen that without the debates he could not have won the election.

This development set a precedent for future campaigns by pointing up the domination of looks over logic. Since then hairdressers, make-up artists and lighting experts have assumed a major role in political strategy.

Dwight Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson, in 1952, had felt the initial impact of television proper, which for the first time that year played an important part in the campaign that ended with Ike's victory in November.

Previously, in 1920, radio had created a completely new climate for electioneering. "With the use of the microphone — an ordinary speaker could challenge the powerful oratory of an iron-lunged professional."

Alfred E. Smith's nasal, East Side New York speech, typified by his pronunciation of the word radio as "radio," was one of the factors in his defeat by Herbert Hoover. His lack of eloquence and lack of oratorical elegance aided the Republicans in their effort to picture Smith as a typical Tammany lawyer.

Similarly, in 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt's mellifluous voice and natural acting talent castigated, telling against Hoover's flat Midwestern tones. FDR's magnetic personality came over exceptionally well on radio and, with his famed fireside chats, that medium played an important part in his political fortunes.

Radio and television have inaugurated other changes. The printed word, formerly supreme, because speeches had to be reported by newspapers to all but the handful who had heard them, gave way to the spoken word, which could be brought to millions at the same time.

Through these modern means of communication, public opinion undergoes swift changes and the printed word, formerly supreme, because speeches had to be reported by newspapers to all but the handful who had heard them, gave way to the spoken word, which could be brought to millions at the same time.

Contrary to the old adage, talk is not cheap — at least on the air — so a "radio" kind of speech-making and a new kind of speechwriting appeared on the political scene to make sure that every word was worth its weight in the gold that it cost.

Advertising agencies merchandise the candidates with spot announcements, billboards and newspaper ads in the same manner in which they would buy a new soap product. Public relations men create a personality pleasing to the public and instruct the candidate in how to confirm to his ready-made image. They even learn by means of polls how the public wants him to feel on certain issues and advise him to adhere to the desired policy.

The computer-age has turned the art of gaining votes into a science. But though the means may differ today, the end is the same as always — to make one candidate the good guy, and his opponent the bad guy.

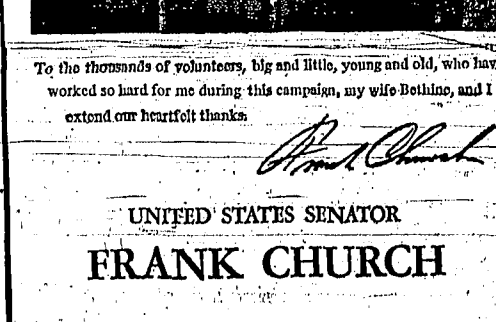

George Washington had no rival for the first office of the nation to escape vilification, calumny and blobs of mud that have been slung ever since Federalist John Adams defeated Republican Thomas Jefferson in the first election to be contested.

This violent campaign, in which the Federalist-opponent Jay Treaty between the United States and Britain was the main issue, started in September 1796. Immediately it became bitter, with charges and countercharges hurled, and newspapers, handbills and speakers on both sides attacking the candidates.

In subsequent years sometimes the issue was one of policy and other times it was merely a contest between two personalities. Slogans and emotionalism landed a President in the White House in 1840, when wealthy William Henry Harrison, "old Tippecanoe," was conventionally turned into the "log cabin candidate."

The slogan "Tippecanoe and Tyler too" caught the public's fancy and log cabin hedges, log cabin songs, almanacs, Tippecanoe handkerchiefs and coonskin caps were seen everywhere. The Democrats tried to counteract the appeal to emotion with reason, discussion and argument, but to no avail.

To Our Friends...

To the thousands of volunteers, big and little, young and old, who have worked so hard for me during this campaign, my wife Bethune, and I extend our heartfelt thanks.

There's A Surge Of Humphrey Sentiment

Monday, November 4, 1968... PHONE 733-0931... GENE CARPENTER... DALE THOMPSON... PAUL STANDINGER... G. J. SMITH

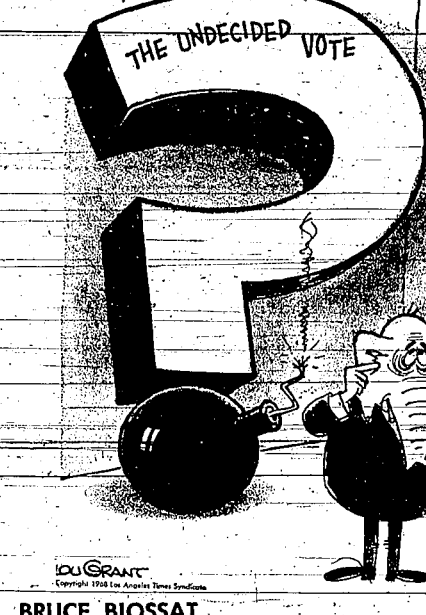

WASHINGTON—There is, indeed, a surge of Humphrey sentiment. If the polls are to be believed, it is one of the only available public devices of measurement—the Vice President has gained on Richard Nixon ever since the week of September 22.

It is all very well in comparison with the surge of Harry Truman's in 1948. Humphrey has closed the gap between him and Nixon every week since that of Sept. 22. But week after week, Truman won because he gained on Tom Dewey every week after Sept. 22. The three-week difference is important, especially in a year when the voter is particularly volatile.

Negro Job Gains

A lot of disillusioned, disaffected Negroes—those who, in fact, vehemently reject the label "Negro"—are tied up with the white man's numbers game. Venezuelan Ballet Group Will Perform At Burley

BURLEY — The first concert of the Mini-Cassia Community Concert Association will be the Danzas Venezolana Folklore ballet group at 8 p.m. Friday in the Burley High School Auditorium.

The Folklore ballet tour is under the auspices of the National Institute of Culture and Fine Arts of Venezuela and it includes among its members 22 dancers, two female singers, and 10 musicians. The latter play a unique combination of instruments, and their repertoire ranges all over Latin America.

Costumes for each number are taken from the area which is being depicted and are designed with utmost taste and imagination by the company's founder, star and artistic director, Yolande Moreno.

"I guess I started dancing when I was born," says Moreno, born of native Venezuelan parents, she would dance as a child in the square at Caracas at carnival time.

Since then she has been interesting, with spontaneous dances everything she has seen in her travels throughout the countryside. At the age of 15, she joined an artistic folklore group called, "Retablo de Maravillas."

This group was comprised of folk singers and dancers, whose major purpose was to serve as a vehicle for the entertainment of the workers from the farms and factories. Moreno was tremendously influenced by this troupe.

When the Retablo disbanded in 1958 after becoming a star of the group, Miss Moreno formed her own group, Danzas Venezolana, as well as her own school where she created her own technique and formed her own style. As if she did not have enough duties, this sparkling, energetic young woman also teaches and arranges folkloric dances at the National Institute of Culture and Fine Arts of Venezuela.

Each day from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. she practices; from 3 to 6:30 p.m. she rehearses her group. When she speaks of dancing her face lights up and her eyes glow.

She defines "Dance" as almost a perfect art and the most fleeting or ephemeral art. Of all the arts, she says it is the most difficult because it encompasses all manner of expressions and artistic means.

Latin-American dance, like its people, is not a pure art form, but a hybrid in a sense, containing a few scattered examples of pure African, European and Indian dances with musical accompaniment of similar derivation.

This complex musical and dance culture ranges from primitive uninhibited expressions to stylized and artificial imitation. Likewise while nearly all of Venezuelan music and dance is Spanish in origin, it has during the twentieth century become increasingly a mixed, or Creole form.

Nevertheless, the characteristic rhythm is quite native and unique to Venezuela. In general, Venezuelan dances can be divided into two large groups: those dances performed only on special days each year and associated with traditional rituals, and those danced whenever possible for recreational purposes.

The first group is influenced almost entirely by African and Indian traditions while the recreational dances are based upon Spanish themes and rhythms. The most widespread rhythm by far is the forope, deriving the name "National Dance."

This intensely exciting group has toured the United States, Mexico, Panama, and was very successful at Montreal's Expo 67. One need not be a farm or factory hand to appreciate Danzas Venezolana Folklore ballet for they speak the universal language of the folk spirit with grace, ebullience, gusto and radiant.

The other three concerts of this year's series scheduled by the Mini-Cassia Community Concert Association include Raymond Miekalski, baritone, Jan. 18; American Brass Quintet, Jan. 27; and Thomas Nightmann, piano, March 20.

Hopefuls Conclude Campaign

By The Associated Press

Most of the candidates ended their campaigns during the weekend, but Sen. George Hansen, Republican for 2nd District Congress, was still on the speechmaking trail today.

He told a group at Driggs that the nation's rural areas need to be revitalized through improved education, more jobs and increased industrial development.

Other steps, he said, should include greater private investment in rural areas—stimulated by tax and other incentives—and more government contracts outside major industrial centers.

Sen. Frank Church, Democrat seeking re-election, wound up his campaign with a statement that Americans should "have more confidence in freedom" and quit trying to build their own "Iron Curtain" in blind fear of communism.

"The fact that I have greater faith in freedom than fear of communism means only that I want you to show more confidence in the superiority of our own way of life," Church said.

The senator said he hoped this election would repudiate the campaign charge that he is "soft on communism."

"Now is the time to decisively reject the politics of fear," he declared.

Joseph Stump Jr., Idaho chairman of the American Independent Party, characterized his campaign for George C. Wallace as "as original as well as political."

"Wallace and the AIP are merely meeting the needs and desires of millions of Americans who have had a belly full of corruption, lawlessness and liberal permissiveness," he said.

"America, though going down but morality is still being saved by Christian nation."

State Rep. Darrell Manning, candidate for 1st District Congress, said "the people of Idaho will never be satisfied with mediocrity."

Accordingly, he have spoken out on the problems that our people face and tried to draw the basic contrasts between candidates on the issues."

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., spent an estimated $6 million to $7 million in his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination this year. Humphrey's expenses landing the nomination were estimated at $4 million to $5 million.

Work Program To Help Elderly

BOISE (AP) — A federally-funded program to provide work for elderly persons with rural backgrounds has been tentatively approved by Idaho officials.

Under a Labor Department contract, Green Thumb, Inc., would administer a project under which the poor elderly could work about 150 days a year to augment pensions or income.

Workers under Green Thumb programs in 20 other states have helped landscape parks and highways, improve parks and playgrounds, establish garden plots and restore landmarks.

George Meagher, Washington, D. C. national director, explained the mechanics of the arrangement to state officials at the invitation of Ted J. Roth, American Falls, vice president of the Utah-Idaho Farmers Union.

Meagher was accompanied by John Zupko, Salt Lake City, director of the Utah Green Thumb Project.

Fisheries Panel Plans Conclave

BOISE (AP) — Up to 150 persons are expected Nov. 19-22 for the Concur d'Alone, Idaho meetings of the Pacific Marine Fisheries Council.

John R. Woodworth, director of the Idaho Fish and Game Department, said it will be the second time the group has met in Idaho.

Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and California are represented.

Campaign Costs Estimated

Candidates To Spend $300 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Candidates for political office, from president to dogcatcher, will have spent between $250 million and $300 million by the time this year's campaign bills are paid.

A third of that total is being spent in pursuit of the presidency alone.

The estimates, compiled by experts in campaign financing, are supported by an Associated Press survey of political spending.

Aside from the presidential race, the costliest contests are those for major statewide office in the big states.

A hotly contested Senate race, such as in California, may involve expenditures of $5 million. Even a campaign for a House seat may cost a lot with records showing House races in which more than $500,000 was spent.

All this spending is financed by contributions and loans—some large, many small. And some candidates dig deep into their own pockets for needed funds.

Herbert E. Alexander of the Citizens-Research Foundation in Princeton, N.J., a recognized expert, estimates the total cost of 1968 political campaigning at $250 million to $275 million.

Stephen Horn, a senior research fellow with the Brookings Institution in Washington, estimates $250 million to $300 million.

It is impossible to obtain complete and accurate totals because of loose and varied laws regulating the reporting of campaign contributions and expenditures.

Federal law doesn't require any reports by candidates on their expenditures in winning party nominations. States have varying requirements; some have none at all.

Presidential and vice presidential candidates aren't required to file statements, although national committees working in their behalf must report expenditures to Congress.

The camps of the three leading contenders have provided The AP with these estimates of their costs for the general election campaign.

Republicans Richard M. Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew, more than $20 million.

Democrats Humphrey and Edmund S. Muskie, about $12 million.

American Independents George C. Wallace and Curtis L. LeMay, $10 million to $20 million.

To these totals must be added another $20 million to $35 million with the candidates and their unsuccessful opponents litical spending this year would exceed $250 million compares with his estimates of $200 million in 1964, $175 million in 1960, $135 million in 1956 and $100 million in 1952.

Available figures indicate Republicans have consistently outspent Democrats in recent presidential races and will do so again this year.

In 1964, reports indicate 18 Republican national political committees supporting Barry Goldwater spent $16 million.

Thirty-two Democratic committees supporting President Johnson spent $3.5 million.

In 1960, expenditures of $10 million were reported by GOP committees, $3.5 million by Democratic committees.

Where does all this money go? Most candidates report their biggest cost item is advertising on television and radio and in newspapers.

Travel, billboards, balloons, bumper stickers, campaign letters and circulars spent prior to the party nominating conventions.

Swelling the total by an unknown but large amount are expenditures made by state and local groups on behalf of their chosen tickets. These groups, except in a few states, make no reports.

State party committees also usually assign a portion of their budgets to plugging the national ticket.

These amounts, Alexander said, probably add up to another $10 million or more.

Thus the total spent in the effort to elect "one man" a president exceeds $50 million and may reach $100 million.

A century ago, Abraham Lincoln spent his first $100,000 on winning his first presidential campaign, during which he roamed Springfield, Ill., and made no major talks.

Alexander's estimate that postage and salaries all account for sizeable expenditures.

As reported by the Federal Communications Commission shows that political candidates spent $44.6 million for television and radio time in 1964.

This figure is expected to reach $50 million this year. Added to this are network and station production costs, a particularly large item for recorded shows.

Nixon forces estimate they are spending about $10 million, or nearly 50 per cent of their total budget, on radio and television broadcasts.

Most candidates for Congress also report heavy expenditures for television and radio.

The National Broadcasting Co. says it charges $100,000 an hour for use of its network in prime time. A half hour goes for $2 per cent of that, $33,200.

A one-minute spot commercial during network prime time costs $70,000.

In many races, more has been spent by losing candidates than by the winners.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., spent an estimated $6 million to $7 million in his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination this year. Humphrey's expenses landing the nomination were estimated at $4 million to $5 million.

These amounts, Alexander said, probably add up to another $10 million or more.

Thus the total spent in the effort to elect "one man" a president exceeds $50 million and may reach $100 million.

Available figures indicate Republicans have consistently outspent Democrats in recent presidential races and will do so again this year.

State party committees also usually assign a portion of their budgets to plugging the national ticket.

These amounts, Alexander said, probably add up to another $10 million or more.

Thus the total spent in the effort to elect "one man" a president exceeds $50 million and may reach $100 million.

Most candidates for Congress also report heavy expenditures for television and radio.

The National Broadcasting Co. says it charges $100,000 an hour for use of its network in prime time. A half hour goes for $2 per cent of that, $33,200.

A one-minute spot commercial during network prime time costs $70,000.

In many races, more has been spent by losing candidates than by the winners.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., spent an estimated $6 million to $7 million in his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination this year. Humphrey's expenses landing the nomination were estimated at $4 million to $5 million.

These amounts, Alexander said, probably add up to another $10 million or more.

Candidates Seek Power of Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — In and maintain it," the committee American folklore — any boy can say that to be president of the United States is less than a fact. But its promise of power and glory has goaded men to seek what Theodore Roosevelt called "a position as great as that of the mightiest monarch." It offers to make a man, in Herbert Hoover's words, "a link in the long chain of his country's destiny."

But of the men who have spoken their disillusionment. "My God! What is there in this place that a man should ever want to get in it," cried James Garfield. "The responsibilities of the office ought to be avoided before he approaches it," said Woodrow Wilson. "The presidency, in George Washington's eyes, required 'unflinching attention' to 'disfigured slavery' to Andrew Jackson; 'anxiety, tribulation and abuse' to Abraham Lincoln.

Harry S. Truman likened being president to riding a tiger: "A man has to keep riding or be swallowed." The ride confronting the man who becomes the 37th president next January is certain to be as rough as the one he rode as president. "The presidency has become a colossal unimagined before World War II. That is, the White House oval office resists authority and influence far beyond that envisioned by the framers of the Constitution. It is a seat of presidential powers and duties in 333 words. Today the president's presence is felt in every facet of modern life, and he is held accountable for its failings."

Richard E. Neustadt, in his widely acclaimed book, "Presidential Power," contended that "like our governmental structure as a whole, the executive establishment consists of a vast number of agencies and departments. The president heads one of these: Cabinet officers, agency administrators and military commanders. He is the only one who has the departmental level, virtually independent bureau chiefs head many more. Federal operations split activity in a wide variety of lines on organization charts; almost every policy entanglements many agencies; almost every program calls for interagency coordination. "Everything somehow involves the president."

To run the White House office alone, takes 250 people with a payroll of more than $3 million a year. Lyndon B. Johnson's roster lists no fewer than 14 special assistants and seven special consultants or counsels. Despite the growth of presidential authority, no one in the White House occupant can get results merely by giving orders. "I sit here all day trying to persuade people to do the things I want them to do. I have sense enough to do without my persuading them," Harry Truman said. "That's all the power of the president amount to."

Neustadt agrees with Truman: a president's power is the power to persuade. "Effective influence for the man in the White House stems from three related sources," he says. "First are the bargaining advantages inherent in his job with which to persuade others that what he wants of them is what their own responsibilities require them to do. Second are the expectations of the other men regarding his ability and will to use the various advantages they think he (the president) has. Third are those motives which lead him to public views him and how their public views may view them if they do what he wants. In short, his power is the product of his range points in government, together with his reputation in the Washington community and his prestige outside it."

As the White House has grown more powerful, presidents have increasingly attempted to delegate authority to their subordinates. "These assistants have become better known and more influential than members of the president's Cabinet, who often must forego their function as advisors to tend to their own bureaucracies, or elected officials."

Harry Hopkins, the man Franklin Roosevelt turned to most often, acted as ambassador without portfolio; Truman had Clark Clifford; Lyndon Johnson had a "kitchen cabinet" which passed all access to Eisenhower. Kennedy had his brother Robert and Ted Sorensen. Eisenhower had a "first secretary of the government" to take on some of the presidency's burdens. A Senate committee rejected the proposal. "Only one official has the constitutional and political power required to assume that role

AN AFFAIR OF HONOR pits Admiral Benigno Varela, right, with Yulivan Biglieri on Sunday in a suburban field near Buenos Aires in Argentina's first reported duel in many years. Varela, a retired officer and former Argentine naval commander-in-chief, challenged Biglieri, a newspaper editor, after the latter declared editorially that "another traitor is gone" when Varela retired recently. Final Idaho Poll Says Voters Lean To Nixon Victory

BOISE (AP) — Campaigns ended today for Idaho's first multi-party election in 20 years. Most candidates for local, legislative and national offices have returned home to await Tuesday's balloting.

Idahoans will have a choice of three presidential candidates and three candidates for Congress in the 2nd District Republican, Democratic and American Independent.

The American Independent party won its place on the ballot through a state Supreme Court decision last summer. AIP leaders continue to predict victory for presidential nominee George C. Wallace.

In a final Associated Press poll, the voters selected Richard M. Nixon as Idaho's projected vote, versus 36 per cent for Democrat Humphrey and 13 per cent for Wallace. Humphrey's predicted vote has increased in the past two weeks, with most of the shift from those who formerly said they would vote for Wallace.

In the other statewide race the voters said they thought Democrat Frank Church would keep his Senate seat with 55 per cent of the vote versus 46 per cent for Rep. George Hansen, a Republican who was also endorsed by the AIP.

Church, a 12-year Senate veteran, is already the only Democratic senator in Idaho history to serve consecutive terms.

The writers forecast a victory by Republican State Sen. Orval Hansen in the 2nd District congressional race, with 52 per cent of the vote. The projection for Democratic State Rep. Darrell Manning was 44 per cent, and AIP nominee Joel Anderson 4 per cent.

That was a slight decrease for Hansen from a poll two weeks ago, and an increase for both Manning and Anderson.

On November 2, 1967, Frank Church said if the Republican's nominated Richard Nixon he would have no trouble in supporting Lyndon Johnson. He emphasized his personal friendship with Mr. Johnson and his agreement with his domestic programs. (Idaho Daily Statesman)

State Officials Tentatively Approve Green Thumb Work Project For Idaho

By BOB LORIMER
Idaho State News Writer

BOISE (AP) — State officials tentatively have approved a Green Thumb work project to start in Idaho in January. The program, which provides meaningful employment for elderly persons with rural backgrounds, is in effect in 20 states.

George Meagher, Washington, D.C., national director of Green Thumb, Inc., explained the mechanics of the arrangement to state officials at the invitation of Ted J. Roth, American Falls, vice president of the Utah-Idaho Farmers Union. Meagher was accompanied by John Zupko, Salt Lake City, director of the Utah Green Thumb project.

Meagher said Idaho will be able to share in a five-county pilot program provided funds are made available through the Department of Labor, with which Green Thumb contracts its programs.

Green Thumb, Inc., resulted from an idea submitted by Farmers Union Provisions of the Economic Opportunity Act, Green Thumb work projects would not be relief work, but all ment for beautification, allowed for creation of the non-profit corporation headed by Meagher. Roth has spearheaded the drive to allow Idaho to participate. Under regulations of the Green Thumb program, economically deprived persons are given an employment for 150 days a year, three days a week. They must receive about $1,200 to augment pensions. Desirable income. In quality, an applicant must be at least 55 years old, physically fit to do the work and fall into a specific low-income category.

The pilot program in Idaho would be run in conjunction with Utah Green Thumb project. It is act as director for both states, with a field representative to take charge in Idaho.

Because of the need for close coordination with the established Utah Green Thumb project, it is likely the initial five counties will be chosen in the southern part of the state.

Meagher stressed that the Green Thumb work projects would not be relief work, but all would meet needs of the communities.

He said they would work under a state advisory board made up of members of such agencies as parks, employment, highways and other responsible for providing facilities.

Green Thumb workers have been responsible for landscaping, and improving access to recreation areas, improving playgrounds, establishing gardens, plots for beautification purposes and developing and restoring landmarks.

Portland Buses Resume Service

PORTLAND (AP) — Bus service in Portland resumes Monday morning, following approval Sunday of a new contract between Rose City Transit Co. and Amalgamated Transit Union Local 907.

The mayor's office announced the settlement Sunday night after the union voted earlier in the day to accept the proposal. Buses stopped running late Thursday night when the company, which operates buses in the city under a franchise, shut down operations just before the old contract expired.

The new contract provides for an hourly increase of 45 cents for drivers and 50 cents for mechanical employees. Basic rate under the old contract was $2.10 hourly.

Here's the story...

- In November Idaho will vote on Constitutional Amendment, S.J.R. 4, which will allow the Idaho Legislature to pass laws saying how Idaho's $75 million in endowment funds should be invested.
- Presently, Idaho's endowment funds are invested ONLY in government bonds yielding 3.5%. Other states receive as much as 8% return on their investments, through sound, modern investment practices.
- Had Idaho invested its $75 million in endowment funds in the same manner the Idaho Public Employees Retirement System did in early 1967, Idaho would be more than $4 million richer, today.
- The Idaho Daily Statesman reported editorially on S.J.R. 4: "... the state is losing over $3.5 million a year. About two-thirds of that is money that should be going into the endowment funds for the public schools. Idaho's taxpayers are paying now for the failure to make this change years ago."

S.J.R. 4 IS SUPPORTED AND ENDORSED BY:

Frank Church Wants Manning As His Partner In Congress

DARRELL MANNING has flown to South East Asia many times as an Air Force command pilot. He knows what's happening there from first hand experience. He's proposed a positive plan to make the South Vietnamese assume a greater burden in the conflict over there, because he knows that we cannot do for them what they are not willing to do for themselves. That plan can get us out of that mess honorably and safely.

Eight years in Idaho's House of Representatives have brought honor, respect and admiration from members of both political parties—Floor Leader—Outstanding Young Man in America

Darrell's independent judgment—tuned to Idaho's needs—brought overwhelming victories—more than 70%—in his last two elections.

THE MAN IN MOTION

In the finest tradition of Senator Church, Darrell Manning is an Idahoan first and a politician second. He's not a glad-hander or a back-slapper. Manning will represent you with dignity. He has always worked and will continue to work, for YOUR benefit.

Darrell has said, "This has been a strange, dull and passive campaign. I've spoken out and advocated specific solutions about Vietnam, water and air pollution, government spending, water, consumer protection, natural resources and tax reduction. Yet, there has been no direct response from my opponent."

Manning has proved that he is willing to speak out and ready to act—in Washington as well as Idaho.

Excellent Apple Crop Noted For Idaho; Harvest Time Here

SHOSHONE—Apple munching time is here and the 1968 crop is delicious and plentiful, the county's agriculture agent, Mrs. Mary Lou Ruby, observed this week here.
"The national harvest is expected to be slightly less than last year. Western states were hit by spring frost, but Central states are harvesting more than average. The Idaho crop is said to be of excellent quality.
The agent offered a few suggestions about buying apples. She makes "Do's" (ways to buy) the bushel!" This depends on how quickly you will use them and whether you have adequate storage space with proper temperature. If the family refrigerator is the only storage space and if you are not expecting to eat them soon, it may be better to purchase smaller quantities.
Apples stored in a refrigerator will retain flavor and crispness. Store them in the hydrator or plastic bag.
Here are some pointers in apple arithmetic:
A bushel of apples weighs 35 pounds. It varies slightly with the variety and condition. A bushel contains 96 to 144 apples, depending on size. Three medium-sized apples weigh about a pound. Three or four apples of that size will yield about one and one-half cups of applesauce. Six to eight apples make a nine-inch apple pie. A bushel will make 16 to 20 quarts of applesauce.
And, a fresh, crisp apple with a slice of Idaho cheese makes a happy eater at snack time.

Percival Field Goal In Last Seconds Catapults Chicago Over Green Bay

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Sayers has ever amassed in a single game as a professional football player. The victory was the Bears' third straight and catapulted them into contention in the scrambled Central Division race.

And it was the second straight Sunday the Bears have gained victory in the closing seconds on a Percival field goal.

The winning kick came under a rarely-invoked NFL rule which allows a team a free kick if they get the ball after a fair catch of an opponent's punt.

Percival had all the time in the world to aim his kick—his second field goal in three attempts—in the wild and woolly encounter.

Despite his great rushing day—and a 46-yard kickoff return that set up the Bears' only touchdown—Sayers appeared headed toward a goat's role in the game.

Sayers fumbled on his own 39 midway through the fourth period. Herb Adderley scooped up the ball and returned it to the Chicago 14.

But the Bear defense held and a Chuck Mercein field goal try—the Packers' fourth—was wide.

Super-Sub Morrall Sinks Giants 26-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Morrall, traded to Baltimore by New York during the training season, returned to Yankee Stadium Sunday and threw two touchdown passes in a 26-0 victory over the Giants.

It was the first time the Colts have been shut out since 1954 when they were beaten at Pittsburgh 31-0. Baltimore, making its first visit to New York since the sudden death thriller in 1958, won their seventh in eight National Football League starts.

Baltimore's fine defensive unit, which manhandled Los Angeles last week, climbed all over Frank Tarkenton and his would-be receivers. Bubba Smith, Billy Smith and Ordele Brasse led the charge.

Morrall connected with Willie Richardson for a 13-yard touchdown pass in the second period, climax of a 61-yard drive in nine plays that included four passes.

The ex-Giant, playing for injured John Unitas who saw no action, hit Jimmy Orr for a 15-yard scoring pass late in the second period.

Tom Matta dove over center from the two on the first play of the final quarter after a Morrall-to-Orr pass for 33 yards.

Lou Michaels, the Colts' burly place kicker, booted a 10-yard field goal in the first period and a 25-yard in the finale after Denny Gaubatz intercepted a Gary Wood pass.

Morrall completed 16 of 24 passes for 201 yards in a game played in a drizzle.

The Giants had gone 75 games without being shut out until the Colts came along to light the attack that had been second best in the league.

Tarkenton was rushed and forced to scramble for 33 yards. Strong defensive unit gained only 93 yards with 10 completions in 20 attempts.

Coach Al Sherman sent Wood into the game and used a rookie backfield that got to the Baltimore nine before Wood was intercepted by Jerry Logan.

Baltimore moved the ball at will in the first period only to meet a stout defense that had to settle for Michael's field goal.

Richardson's touchdown followed a 21-yard run by Jerry Hill. Morrall hit with three straight passes to take the Colts straight for the score.

Colts scored again in less than four minutes when Boyl intercepted a Tarkenton pass and ran it to the Giant 10. It took Baltimore only three plays—two over-scoring on pass to Orr who beat Willie Williams.

It was Orr beating Williams changing an 80-yard drive during which Trull hit Jim Belton for two passes, good for 55 yards.

Belton closed the game 17-10 in the third quarter when Paul Robinson scored from the four-yard line, ending an 80-yard drive—Rookie quarterback Sam Wyche completed eight straight passes for 64 yards in the thrust.

Belton opened the game in 27-10 when Halk caught Trull's touchdown and Walker added a 41-yard field goal.

Trull Passes Oilers Over Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Don Trull passed for two touchdowns Sunday as the Houston Oilers turned back Cincinnati 27-17, handing the Bengals their sixth straight American Football League setback.

Trull, the former Baylor star, completed 13 of 20 passes for 181 yards and found Jack Sanders for four yards to Al Reed and 10 yards to Mac Haik.

Houston, winning its fourth game against five defeats, broke on top 10 in the first quarter when Wayne Walker booted a 27-yard field goal and Trull found Reed in the end zone.

The Bengals, now 2-7, got three points in the second quarter when Dale Livingston kicked a 26-yard field goal. But with 2:13 remaining in the half, fullback Jovlye Granger crashed across from the one-yard line, changing an 80-yard drive during which Trull hit Jim Belton for two passes, good for 55 yards.

Belton closed the game 17-10 in the third quarter when Paul Robinson scored from the four-yard line, ending an 80-yard drive—Rookie quarterback Sam Wyche completed eight straight passes for 64 yards in the thrust.

98-Yard Run Paces Vikings Over Reds

MINNEAPOLIS, ST. PAUL (AP) — Rookie Charlie West returned a punt a record-tying 98 yards for a touchdown and the Minnesota Vikings shelled the Washington Redskins in a National Football League game 27-14 Sunday.

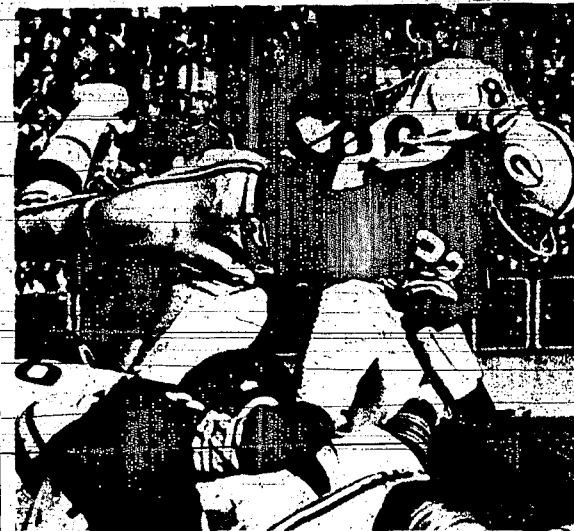

West's return, with the Vikings riding a 20-0 lead, tied the NFL record set in 1933 by Cincinnati's Gil LeFevre against Brooklyn.

Washington's punter, completely shackled offensively until the final minutes of the game by a punning Viking defense, spoiled Minnesota's bid for its first shut-out ever with two touchdowns in the last two minutes.

RESERVE QUARTERBACK Harry Theofides passed five yards to Pat Richter for Washington's first touchdown with 1:48 to play.

Then with 32 seconds left, Jim Smith blocked up a Minnesota fumble by Bill Brown at his own 39 and ran down the sidelines 61 yards for another Washington touchdown.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals handed the winless Philadelphia Eagles their eighth defeat Sunday with a quarterback Jim Hart scoring two touchdowns and passing for another in a 45-17 National Football League victory at Franklin Field.

The Cardinals, in winning their fifth against three defeats, wrapped up the game in the third period after a 12-yard touchdown run by Tom Wedderburn gave the Eagles a short-lived 17-14 lead.

St. Louis marched 75 yards on five plays, including a 39-yard pass completion from Hart to flanker Dave Williams, and a 13-yard run by Willis Crenshaw.

Casper Streaks For Lucky Open Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Calloway Gardens, Ga., at 275. Billy Casper made a shambles of the competition with five birdies on the first nine holes and then a hole-in-one on the 10th. Casper's 67-77 record in the Open Golf Tournament Sunday and he and George Archer of Gilroy, Calif., were the second $200,000 yearly money winner in professional golf history.

Among the front runners after three rounds of the par 71, Casper's sparkling final round, 67-77, Harding Park course of 65 gave him a 72-hole total of who fell back over Bob Rogers' 268, 15 strokes under par and a St. Louis and Dow Finsterlin by four strokes over Ray who tied at 279 with Doug San-Floyd and Don Messing. The ders and others, and Jacky Cup's $20,000 first prize money gave it who shot a 72.

The 35-year-old Casper total with back to 274 U.S. Open winner flings of $203,359 on the 1968 Lee Trevino finished at 281.

Floyd of St. Andrews, Ill., and Matteson of Jacksonville, Tex., were the bank with more money won. White Still, Murphy, Barber and playing golf in one year. If Casper can take either first or second place in this year, he will win the Open, his last tournament of the year, he will surpass Nicklaus' total.

Big Jack Nicklaus, who has won 35 tournaments, has won $155,285 this year, second to Casper.

Casper, who has now won six tournaments this year, began the day's play one stroke behind young Dave Stockton of San Bernardino, Calif., but Billy chipped shots into the cup from off the green on the first and second holes for birdies, then birdied the fifth, sixth and seventh holes in succession, while Stockton slipped with two bogys—and just one birdie—before the turn.

Casper birdied the 10th and 16th holes but bogeyed the 14th and 15th as the rest of the field had no chance to catch him. The previous record in the money was 272, shared by Gary Player, who did it in 1961, and Chi-Chi Rodriguez, 1964. Chi-Chi finished well back at 277 this time.

Stockton, who finished one over par at 72, was tied for fourth place, five strokes behind Casper at 274, with Ken Sill of Tacoma, Wash., Bob Murphy of Bartow, Fla., and Miller Barber of Sherman, Tex.

Oakland Has Win Over Chiefs With Lamonia Passes

OAKLAND (AP) — Daryle Lamonia passed for two touchdowns and ran for another Sunday as the Oakland Raiders directed Oakland to a 35-21 American Football League victory over Kansas City, putting the Raiders back into the Western Division title picture.

Jefferson Grabs Pace Steeler Win

ATLANTA (AP) — Pittsburgh's Roy Jefferson defied Atlanta's revamped defenses by snagging four touchdown passes Sunday which swept the Steelers to a 41-21 National Football League whipping of the Falcons.

The victory boosted Jefferson to the first place since 1963 to catch four scoring tosses, and he came within one touchdown grab of the NFL.

Jefferson wound up with 11 catches for 199 yards, best in the league this year, as he baffled the shuffed Atlanta secondary.

Three of the tosses were thrown by starting quarterback Dick Shaver, who opened Jefferson open for starting throws of 27, 61, and 9 yards, and Kent Nix added another late in the game on a 35-yard pitch.

The victory boosted Pittsburgh's record to 2-6 with the defense contributing heavily by intercepting a fumble that led to Atlanta.

Atlanta, playing without four of its usual defensive starters, who were dropped from the roster early in the week, was never in contention.

The Steelers bolted to a 14-0 lead in the first 12 minutes and led 34-0 before the Falcons scored.

THIS TIME VOTE LIKE YOUR WHOLE WORLD DEPENDED ON IT.

To My Friends in Idaho:

I need a man in the U. S. Senate like George Hansen who will stand with me and not against me as we develop the new policies that will restore the strength of America; restore our national respect so that we can build the kind of land that we all want. America desperately needs new leadership, not just in the White House, but in the Senate as well.

George has devoted his life to the people of Idaho. His legislative, agriculture and administrative background is extremely impressive. He will give Idaho the able and effective voice it needs in Washington to help solve the problems of the state.

I need George Hansen's wisdom and advice in the critical days ahead to help plan a new farm program that will guarantee a good income and living standard to the people of Idaho.

I would like to personally ask for your help in these last few hours before the election. May I ask you to talk to your friends and relatives and ask them to vote this coming Tuesday to send a new team to Washington — Dick Nixon and George Hansen.

Sincerely,

Richard M. Nixon

The motto for this year's campaign is "Save Sight By Light." The light bulb package on sale this year contains eight standard Westinghouse bulbs, four 60's, two 75's, and two 100 watt

New Christmas Stamp Is Reproduction Of Painting

A reproduction of Angel Gabriel, with wings of peacock feathers, will be one of the most familiar sights this Christmas season. That is the design of the 1968 Christmas six-cent postage stamp which goes on sale Nov. 4 in post offices across the country. The stamp reproduces a portion of the famous painting "The Annunciation" by Jan van Eyck, 15th century Flemish artist, and is the seventh in the series of "Christmas" stamps begun in 1962. New processes in color printing have made the stamp increasingly beautiful. "The Annunciation" is one of the major works in the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. It was produced by van Eyck about 1425-30, when he was court painter to Philip The Good of Burgundy. A Brussels resident sold the small painting to William II of the Netherlands in 1818. Ezar Nicholas of Russia acquired it in 1850, and it was sold by the USSR to Andrew Mellon, Pittsburgh, in 1937, as part of a $2.5 million purchase. Van Eyck perfected the new technique of oil painting, which displaced a method of the Italian school of art. The egg yolk tempera method dried so quickly the artist could not blend his paints to achieve subtle gradations. His more flexible oil paint revolutionized art. He was able to render the texture of fabrics, ranging from cold, polished stone to the fragile petals of flowers. Consequently, he is regarded as one of the most important figures in the history of art. "The Annunciation" was originally painted on wood, and measures 30 1/2 inches tall and 14 1/2 inches wide. It has since been transferred to canvas. The Christmas stamp will be printed in five colors, with red, yellow, blue, brown and green supply other details. Across the top of the stamp is "Christmas 6 cents" in red. Across the bottom, also in red, is "van Eyck National Gallery of Art, United States." Van Eyck's career preceded by one generation that of Hans Memling, a fellow Flemish artist, whose "Madonna and Child With Angels" was reproduced in last year's Christmas stamp.

BID INVITES TRY FOR SLAM

Oswald: "The bidding of today's hand appears slightly abnormal. North would usually respond one heart or jump to three diamonds but because the game was rubber-bridge and North and South had a part score of 90, the two diamonds bid could be read as a 'mild slam try.' South's two spade call was an acceptance and North's jump to four diamonds showed that his two diamond call had slam that depends on a finesse. Did South make seven?"

Oswald: "As a matter of fact I made up the bidding. As it was actually played, North responded one heart, South went to one spade and North bid one trump. South passed and North managed to make a starter. The hand is given as a trick for a discussion of rubber bridge bidding when there is a part score."

Jim: "It's about time we devoted a few articles to this subject. It is very complex, since each pair score presents its own problems. When you have 80 on score any bid of a new suit is a bid of game and may be passed, so if responder wants to invite a slam he has three choices. He can make a pump shift, jump in no-trump, or he can raise his partner's bid. Oswald: "Anyway, the box shows how the bidding should have gone. Let's discuss more part score bidding situations the rest of the week."

Something of interest turned up in the research, too. The world's record egglayer is not a chicken, but a snail called a testis. It's about a foot long. It lives in salt water. And it has been known to lay 40,000 eggs a minute. Don't know how many those eggs Mr. Barham could handle, either.

Las Vegas 'Thumpers' Are Exciting, But They May Trigger Disaster

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The earth jumps high as a two-story house. More than half a mile below, a great spherical cavern throbs thirty blocks across, forms as thousands of tons of volcanic rock vanish into vapor, hot as a blazing sun.

For a brief time this man-made cavern is contained in a vast glassy bubble. Then, as the vapor cools, the weight of the violated earth above bursts the bubble and a Niagara of rubble cascades through the roof of the cavern.

On the surface, the earth settles heavily, sinking into the crater formed by the underground bubble's collapse.

Outward from the crater the earth's crust ripples in ever-widening circles, lapping at the foundations of cities hundreds of miles away before they subside.

A "thump" is felt as distant, in the glittering fountains of Las Vegas, tourists clutch momentarily at gaming tables as the floor rocks.

Thrilled and happy—where else could you experience an earthquake guaranteed to be harmless—they mutter, "man, what a thump!" And as the queasy-rilling dies they resume their gambling.

"Thumpers" are underground nuclear explosions in the megaton range, not up to a million tons of TNT.

Two have been set off on the Atomic Energy Commission's testing grounds north of Las Vegas this year, and at least one more is expected by year's end.

Although they add to the excitement of a trip to Las Vegas, where you can drink and roll like a well as musically, underground megaton blasts are rapidly becoming a major issue.

The trouble is that scientists have just learned, somewhat to their surprise, that large underground explosions are followed by a swarm of small earth tremors, and that measurable on delicate instruments called seismometers.

Since tremors have been known to trigger other tremors with cumulative effect, some experts are beginning to wonder if some day a thumper might trigger disaster.

On one side of the controversy are civic leaders who want underground testing of superweapons halted pending positive proof that it is safe. Ranged against them are makers of government policy who insist the risks are outweighed by the need to perfect nuclear weapons.

At stake for Nevadans is the AEC's $2-million-a-month pay-off. They must balance possible loss of the state's second largest industry—topped only by gambling—against the death and damage that could follow a major earthquake. Since Nevada is one of the most quake-prone areas in the country, any likelihood of altering the earth's strain levels is disturbing.

At stake, for the nation, is the urgency to develop warheads for the Sentinel antimissile system, now nearing the deployment stage. If safety requirements or public resentment forced the AEC to find a new site for megaton tests, costs would skyrocket.

The price of a nuclear test now ranges from $2 million to $20 million, exclusive of the weapon itself, in Nevada. On Amchitka Island, off Alaska, where the AEC is spending millions preparing to set off devices too powerful to be tested in Nevada, costs are expected to exceed $100 million because of transportation problems.

The thumper that started all the furor came last Jan. 19. Although not the most powerful of the more than 250 underground blasts set off in Nevada up to that time—one in December 1966 had a bit more yield—it unexpectedly jolted buildings as far away as Salt Lake City and Los Angeles. It registered 6.2 on the Richter—magnitude scale, which pegs major earthquakes at 7.

It was called, for some unexplained reason, Faultless.

Like all nuclear shots, Faultless started out as the brainchild of scientists seeking to create nuclear devices for special purposes: smaller, lighter and more powerful weapons for bombs and warheads, or clean or explosives for peacetime uses such as digging canals.

Months were spent in designing the Faultless device and instruments, many of them buried with it, which would tell distant observers how it performed. Then came additional months of safety checks, as experits tried to calculate the worst that could happen and guard against it.

Eventually the proposal went to congressmen in Washington, D.C., and to the President, who must approve all use of nuclear material. The time and expense were balanced against the need for the weapon and the shot date was set, some two years after conception.

Meanwhile, in anticipation of such a test, an incredible hole had been bored 3,200 feet deep in a now-proving grounds—200 miles north of Las Vegas.

Before Faultless was set off last January, the AEC said it was a calibration test, mainly to determine if larger shots planned for the area would be safe. It was not expected to be felt in distant Las Vegas.

But soon after the shot, buildings in Las Vegas swayed sickeningly and a rolling motion was felt in San Francisco, twice as far away.

Nonetheless, an even bigger blast 100 miles closer to Las Vegas was set off April 26 at a slightly greater depth, 3,800 feet. It was called Boxcar, and had a magnitude of 6.5.

After checking Faultless and Boxcar, Dr. Alan Ryall of the University of Nevada privately circulated a report showing that all explosions of magnitude 5 or greater were followed by an increase in seismicity—earthquake activity—for at least one day and in some cases up to five days.

Seismologist Ryall also found that after five recent explosions the number of earthquakes recorded was at least twice as great as normal.

Ryall's report concluded that effects of continued firing could be cumulative, "possibly resulting eventually in a sizeable earthquake."

Dr. Wendell Weart, the AEC's own earthquake expert and chairman of its ground-shock-effects committee, later said that evidence of greater seismicity after blasts had been noted as early as 1964, but the AEC had said nothing because we're sure what it was or whether it was directly related to the shots.

Last Sept. 30 the AEC issued a statement that it "recognizes that some seismic energy releases occur shortly after, and in the vicinity of, underground nuclear detonations."

Weart insisted, however, that he was not convinced that any increased seismicity more than 50 miles from the shot point was caused by the blasts.

Weart said he would not hesitate to recommend another Nevada shot in the megaton range. He saw "no chance" that megaton tests in Nevada could trigger an earthquake along the great San Andreas fault, a crack in the earth's crust that underlies San Francisco and passes near Los Angeles. The closest it comes to the Nevada test site is 170 miles.

He was less confident, however, about a zone of more than average seismicity running from Winnemucca, in central Nevada, in Ventura, Calif., intersecting the San Andreas fault over 70 miles north of Los Angeles.

The AEC has not announced the date of its next megaton test in Nevada—so, weart said, whether there will be one—but the word around town is that another thumper is expected in December.

So far it has generated little if any public concern. People here have a lot of faith in the AEC—none of them has been hurt yet.

Birth Control Gives Birth To Its Own Family Of Scientific "Children"

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

Today's advanced new science of birth control is giving birth to its own large family of scientific "children."

The pill and the IUD—intrauterine devices—are top results from this modern contraceptive science.

But already on the way is a second generation of new products—least five of them—that may bring safe and sure newer methods of birth control.

Micro or mini-dose pills that may cause fewer unwanted pregnancies than the present pills.

Single-shot injections or implanted hormone capsules that might prevent pregnancy for months to a year or many years.

"Morning after" pills for women who don't take or who forgot regular pills.

Contraceptive pills for men.

Vaccinations for women, or even men, against conception.

These promising developments are based upon deepening understanding of the intricate delicate processes through which within a woman's body, an ovum or egg is prepared and released, each month for possible fertilization, and upon numerous other conditions that contribute to a successful marriage of the ovum and viable sperm.

utility is affected in a desired way.

Exactly how the small daily doses of past progress in this is not known. But egg and sperm, when and if they meet, do not start new life.

This mini-dose technique, first demonstrated in animals, but then proved out in tests on women by several research teams.

A drawback to the mini-dose pills is that they frequently cause irregular bleeding and irregularities in the monthly cycle. Advantages are that they do not produce changes in the blood clotting mechanism that might bring on dangerous blood clots, nor do they cause the other side effects as present pills.

With mini-dose pills, a woman doesn't have to keep the calendar in mind. She takes them every day, not for 20 or 21 days and then a week's halt.

"Shots," and hormone implants.

Mini-dose doses work, an approach is to put the doses all together into a long-lasting single injection or implant.

At the Population Council, Dr. Rudel, Sheldon J. Segal and Howard J. Tatum are developing a Silastic capsule filled with a progestin. The kind of progestin capsule permits steady, daily release of a little bit of the hormone.

Sealed at both ends, the Silastic capsule is about as long and about twice the diameter of the lead in a pencil. It can be placed under the skin with a needle under local anesthetic.

The capsule could contain enough hormone to prevent pregnancy for a year or even many years. It could easily be removed when a woman decided she wanted to have a baby.

Hormonal balance studies, to determine the proper dose of progestin to put into such capsules are starting soon, and human tests with capsules may begin later this year.

Morning-After Pills.

On the horizon, from testing in animals and with some women, are morning-after pills in case of oversight or forgetfulness. Dr. John M. Morris of Yale University and Dr. Gertrude von Wageningen have been leading leaders in this quest.

They are adding pills containing large doses of estrogen, or synthetic estrogens, or drugs that have similar effects. It takes within three or four days after the time when conception might have occurred during a woman's fertile period, these pills apparently prevent the fertilized egg from becoming implanted in the uterus.

Male Pills.

This drug that men could take that would prevent production of spermatozoa, or that would make sperm less vital, is being sought, and some potential candidates are coming from newer animal experiments.

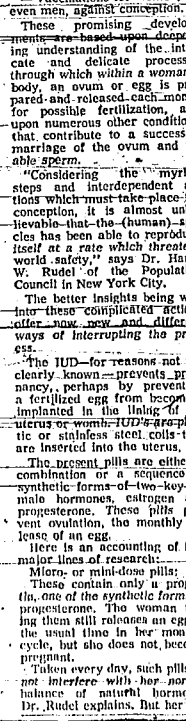

A few years ago, prison volunteers took drugs—diarrhea compounds—that were found to stop sperm production within six to 10 weeks' time. Normal fertility was restored five to 12 months after they stopped the pill-taking.

Vaccination.

One curious finding of newer research is that some women began to delay entering pregnancy because they produce antibodies to their husbands' sperm. This reaction is similar to that of vaccinating women or killed viruses or bacteria, against diseases.

This line of investigation holds some potential. It is to help some women achieve their dreams of becoming mothers. The other is to use this phenomenon as a means of vaccinating women or men against having more children than they want and already have.

Empty-Handed Fisherman Plugging For Old-Tire Fish Havens

By JIM CROSSLEY
NCA Writer

Inland rod-and-reelers may find it hard to believe that the boundaries could suffer from the same depletions that have struck their poor ponds. It's true.

In 1963 it was estimated that 8,305,000 salt-water sport fishermen spent $799,656,000 for bait, boats, equipment and lodging," says Edmund. "My conservative estimate is that well over $200 million of that was wasted on unproductive fishing."

"The causes are an old tale for conservationists. This is how Edmund tells it:

"In recent years insect spraying, the damming of rivers and pollution have seriously harmed the whole life chain of marine organisms, vegetation, shellfish and fish.

"Nature provided marshlands as a food source, shelter and breeding area for bay and ocean fish. These marshes are now being bulldozed for housing purposes.

"In order to meet the increasing demand for fish, more and more commercial fishermen have been dragging the ocean bottom with their nets, destroying natural protective cover and sources of fish food.

"The increased efficiency of modern fishing trawlers plus the activities of great numbers of Russian and other foreign trawlers off our coasts have resulted in a scarcity of many favorite fish of our recreational fishermen.

"To top it off, there has been a constantly increasing pressure on the fish population as more and more Americans turn to boating and fishing.

"It is up to the plain old, worn-out auto tire to reverse this trend, Edmund preaches. With 150 million new tires being manufactured each year, it is actually a problem to dispose of the discarded. Many are burned, adding to air pollution.

In Japan, there have been generations of experimentation with artificial fish farms. Building havens with old s.u.n.k.e.n boats is quite successful.

In this country, same protective cover has been established by fish and game people, clubs and individuals. This, too, seems promising. Various materials—rocks, dead trees, old auto bodies, even expensive cement fish houses—have been tried.

Edmund advocates wired-together and weighted clusters of tires for various reasons, chiefly because they are inexpensive, easily planted and last longer.

He says these fish havens will work in fresh water, too, but most likely he envisions the coast line of the nation ringed with an artificial reef offering nurseries for natural vegetation to nurture species now being starved out.

Most frustrated fishermen just grouse. Not the irate Edmund. He did something about it in an interesting way.

He has tossed his proposal into the laps of all the fishermen and conservationists with a 16-page pamphlet. In word and illustration he shows dozens of ways tires can be used, reports on already established reefs and outlines how to go about getting a permit to experiment.

If any of the 20,000 pamphlets he had printed are left, he'll send one to individuals or clubs interested, for a dime and a stamped, self-addressed number to envelope. His address is Norman W. Edmund, Box 509, Edgescorp Building, Barrington, N. J. 08007.
