TWIN FALLS, IDAHO, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1968

TEN CENTS

Beki Sullivan Is 1969 Junior Miss

Dark haired and vivacious, Beki Sullivan, a senior at Twin Falls High School, is Twin Falls' Junior Miss for 1969. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Sullivan, she won out over 17 other girls from this area as the public portion of the annual contest was presented before an overflow audience at Robert Stuart Junior High School auditorium Tuesday evening. The talented Miss Sullivan, who sang a low-toned melody depicting "Love Is All Around Us," brought sustained applause from the spectators. The med-

Sen. Brooke Refuses Post In Cabinet

ward W. Brooke, R-Maine, said he had discussed a cabinet post with President-elect Richard M. Nixon today but had turned it down. Brooke, the first Negro senator since Reconstruction, talking to newsmen after conferring with Nixon, said he did not desire a position in the administration. "I think I can best serve the country and the Nixon administration by continuing in the Senate," Ron Ziegler, Nixon's press spokesman, later said that New York's Republican governor, Nelson A. Rockefeller, also told Nixon at a secret meeting Tuesday that he did not desire a position in the administration. Ziegler said that at the Nixon-Rockefeller conference no job offers at all were made. "The press also has belatedly disclosed that Nixon had a second secret meeting Tuesday with David Rockefeller, the governor's brother who is board chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank."

Delay Of Approval By Counties Endangers Area CAA Program

Loss of the Community Action Agency in this area was considered a definite possibility Wednesday, as commissioners of Twin Falls, Cassia and Jerome counties dangled over making a decision on whether to approve the program. An application for $328,208 in federal operating funds was submitted to the regional Office of Economic Opportunity, Kansas City, Mo., Tuesday by Al Morgan, director of the South-Central Community Action Agency, without the signatures of the county commissioners. Mr. Morgan said there is considerable doubt it will be approved in this form, but that he had no other choice, since the application was past due and could not be held up any longer. Morgan, the commissioner of the three counties have agreed to withhold any decision on the matter until after a meeting of the state county commissioners group Dec. 5, 6 and 7 in Boise. "The South-Central CAA has been operating for several years, and would not cost the taxpayers any money. One of the things that has been mentioned as causing some dissatisfaction with the program is that people employed by the CAA are paid higher salaries than the counties are paying their own comparable employees. Another complaint is that although teachers in the Headstart program are paid the same as teachers in the regular school system, they work longer allegedly by moonlight. Commissioner Carlson said there is no intention on the part of the commissioners to imply that the CAA programs are all bad, but that the commissioners want to know more about them. No one seems to know for certain whether the delay in negotiating is effective Dec. 31, he will take the last three weeks of December off as vacation. A holder of a real estate license, Mr. Morgan indicated he may pursue this field at a later date. From 1951 through 1951 Mr. Morgan served as superintendent of School District No. 41. He spent several years teaching in Alaska and served as a superintendent of a school there. He also taught in Blackfoot. "I am extremely sorry Mr. Morgan is leaving. He has done an outstanding job for us," Mr. Boardman served as chairman of the board since the agency's beginning in Twin Falls. Persons wishing to apply for the director's position should go to the State Department of Employment, Twin Falls. Qualifications required are one year of experience in public relations, administrative and supervisory work and/or social work with a working knowledge of social research and statistical methods.

Al Morgan Resigns As Director Of CAA

Al Morgan, director of the South Central Community Action Agency, has resigned his post effective Dec. 31. He accepted the position on March 13, 1966, and has been instrumental in developing programs through the Office of Economic Opportunity in Twin Falls, Cassia and Jerome counties. Headstart programs, two neighborhood centers and a Neighborhood Youth Corps program have been instituted since he accepted the job. The Community Action Agency is presently trying to start an On-the-job Training program for this area.

GIs Praised

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has singled out the nation's 3.5 million service men and women — whom he said bring hope and freedom to Americana — in his Thanksgiving Day message. "Foremost among those whom we remember," the brave men and women who protect our nation and preserve our cherished heritage of freedom. "We are in gratitude on this Thanksgiving Day as we are reminded of your constant courage and unquestioned devotion to this country. "For thanks to you, there is hope in the homes of America today, and the hearts of America are free from fear." Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, in his own message to the forces, said "none of our citizens deserves . . . gratitude more, than those serving in uniform."

Post Office Gives Crews Holiday Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department said Tuesday mail service will be curtailed on Thursday as most postal employees can take off the Thanksgiving holiday. "Operations will be made on normal Sunday schedules, and there will be no courier or delivery service except for special delivery mail. "Some post office regions may curtail mail pickup service even further, eliminating collections entirely from what the department calls "nonfrequency boxes."

Idaho Board "Okays" Salmon Falls Project

The Salmon Falls Project, a proposed Reclamation project to provide water to more than 10,000 acres of land south of Twin Falls, has been tentatively approved by the Idaho Water Resource Board. The proposed project would bring supplemental water to the land south of Twin Falls. The water would come from the Snake River, and in normal years would not interfere with existing projects which get water from the river. George L. Crookham, Caldwell, board chairman, said the board's tentative approval Tuesday facilities a hearing Dec. 13 in Twin Falls on the project. The hearing will begin at 9 a.m. in the American Legion Hall. Glenn Nelson, chairman of the Twin Falls Soil Conservation District, said the board's tentative approval will help the project. He added that years ago farmers were the only ones fighting for more water, but now with public as well as state help, this project soon will be a reality. Board member Charles J. Marshall of Jerome questioned the wisdom of the endorsement of a provision that in water-short years, the proposal would involve an exchange of water. Water from wells north of the Snake River in the Jerome area would compensate for water taken from the river. Marshall said he was certain water users in the Jerome area would oppose the project. He and board member Leroy Stanger of Idaho Falls opposed endorsement of the project during the hearing, but supported insertion of the word "tentative" in the approval. Proposed legislation creating a revolving fund to aid in water project development was reviewed by the board. Money made available for feasibility studies of a project and could be loaned to irrigation districts or water companies in cities or counties for construction purposes. It would be repaid, with interest, and return to the revolving fund. "The estimated cost of the project is $46,561,000, with the bulk of costs being charged to irrigation needs and $233,000 charged to fish and wildlife uses. Those costs are based on estimates made in July, 1967. The proposed project is designed to lift and divert an average 181,600 acre feet annually from the Snake River onto the Salmon Falls Division land. A 45-mile-long canal would carry the water from a new pumping plant above Milner Dam, with an initial capacity of 1,100 cubic feet per second. Four re-lift pumping stations and a series of smaller canals would distribute the water above the main canal to augment local water supplies to 49,500 acres of irrigated land and 11,730 acres of dry land. The existing wells, pumps and other works of the present Salmon Falls company are to be integrated into the project. Storage facilities to preserve the Snake River spills for use in the Salmon Falls Division are to be provided at River, American Falls and Palisades Dams, while an additional ground water well field in the Snake River plains recharge area would allow underground storage.

No Sink

Practically everything, including the kitchen sink, has been reported missing from a vacant home near Curry. The report was made Wednesday morning to the Twin Falls County sheriff's office. The owner of the home, Carter Killinger, Renton, Wash., called the sheriff's office Wednesday morning to report the theft. Mr. Killinger said that his father, who lives in Twin Falls, has been checking on the house. The last time he checked was about a month ago. Besides the theft of the kitchen sink, panelling was taken from the walls and a kitchen cupboard removed. Also taken were a lawn mower, bed, springs and two mattresses, a pot belly stove and a heater and many other items. The theft was under investigation Wednesday morning by deputies.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Gene Hackman is being asked to take a fling at magazine writing. Hamilton, 28, said Tuesday he had signed a contract with Harrow's magazine to "write about styles and fashions in men's apparel." Hamilton is rated one of Hollywood's best dressers.

NLF To Participate

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today in return for the right to head the bargaining on South Vietnam's interim constitution. In Paris, a National Liberation Front spokesman said the NLF would insist on going into the four-way talks "as an independent party on the same footing as the United States, North Vietnam and the South Vietnamese." The NLF claims it is the true representative of the people of South Vietnam.

Saigon Ends Boycott

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese police have arrested 85 Viet Cong political workers in Saigon during a two-week-old roundup to crush an emerging Communist political apparatus in the capital, a highly placed police source said today. The source said 15 of the 85 "communist cadre" were women and that all of those arrested had criminal or pro-Communist records. Most of them were longtime residents of Saigon, he added. The citywide hunt also has netted 14 Chinese pistols, a number of mines, grenades and plastic explosives, the source reported. The North Vietnamese arm of the South Vietnam's Communist party is known to be creating a grass-roots government across South Vietnam, apparently in anticipation of an end to the Vietnam war. American intelligence confirms the quasigovernment network exists throughout five provinces and in more than 1,000 villages and hamlets. Approval Of $1,402,675 Grant Lauded; Downtown Change Is Close To Reality

Downtown businessmen and members of the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency had glowing reports for the future of Twin Falls. The comments came after it was learned a grant of $1,402,675 has been approved for Twin Falls' downtown improvement project. A report was announced in Washington, D. C., and was given by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. L. James Koutlik, a member of the Urban Renewal Agency, said, "This is real good news. Now we can roll with the downtown project. I expect there will be some action before Christmas." James Kelsch, director of the agency, said, "I am real pleased that this grant was approved. It's a boost to Twin Falls." Sen. Frank D. Church, D-Idaho, made the initial announcement Tuesday. The grant approved Tuesday is a boost of $530,000 from the original reservation made last June. The downtown project in Twin Falls, "U" shaped and includes the area between Second Street North and West Third Street East and South Street North, South, East and West. Part of the area is urban renewal, part a local improvement project, and a third portion is a combination of the two. Urban renewal will provide financial assistance to 39 businesses and 15 individuals who will have to relocate. According to urban renewal officials, a loan and grant contract will be received in Twin Falls probably within the next two weeks. The city council will then have to approve the signing of the contract. Approval of the local Urban Renewal Agency is also needed. The contract is then returned to Washington for approval there. When this contract is finally approved by all parties concerned, the local project is termed in the loan and grant state. The negotiation for property leases, and work on relocation will be under way. "The effort is to turn the downtown area into a modern shopping mall with adequate parking," Koutlik said. Firemen Join City Employees Group In Wage Negotiations

The Twin Falls Municipal Fire Department has asked to be represented in the Twin Falls City Employees Organization. Fred Higgins, a member of the firemen's wage committee, said the fire department is not changing its request for a wage increase of $100 per man per month, but merely wants to be represented in the other employees' group. The Twin Falls City Employees Organization has submitted a request to the city manager for a 12 1/2 per cent wage increase. They based their request on the rising cost of living. Herib Derrick, city manager, earlier had indicated he would rather negotiate with the city employees two months ago to join with them and were under the understanding that Mr. Derrick did not want any union employees in the group. Mr. Derrick later said that he had approved Tuesday a grant of $530,000 from the

Boy Scout Cabaret Is Slated

Two national figures will attend the fifth annual cabaret held at the Blue Lakes Country Club at the Blue Lakes Country Club in Blue Lakes Country Club area available from any executive board member of the Snake River Area Council. Tickets are also available at the Boy Scout office in downtown Twin Falls. Proceeds of the event are used to help county operations and to help organize additional scout units in special areas of the council. Special entertainment and the number of celebrities for the event will be announced later. It was reported.

What's Wrong With Low Income Housing?

WASHINGTON — Widespread shortcomings in both the number of housing units and their livability are seriously marring the federal government's 20-year old program to provide decent housing for low-income families.

These are the two major findings of an impending report, titled "More Than Shelter," by the National Commission on Urban Problems, headed by former Senator Paul Douglas, D-Ill. Based on a year-long study, the 213-page survey is the most comprehensive and detailed ever made of the government's housing program.

In addition to 22 principal conclusions, the report also contains 18 specific recommendations. Because of its exceptional breadth and depth the study is certain to be extensively discussed by both public and private authorities in this field.

In commenting on the two key findings, Howard Shuman, executive director of the commission, stressed the following significant facts:

The 1949 Housing Act provided federal financing for 135,000 public housing units a year, for six years — a total of 810,000 units. Today, some 20 years later, only 60 per cent of this number have been built — although all 810,000 units were to have been constructed in six years (by 1955).

In the two decades since the enactment of that Housing Act, erection of units for low-income families has never been anywhere near the intended goal of 135,000 a year. The highest number built was 69,224 units in 1951. The lowest was 4,516 in 1956. Recently, the number has been 33,172 in 1967; 31,834 in 1966; 33,658 in 1965; and an estimated 46,000 units in 1968. In a Foreword to the study, Senator Douglas asserts that the overriding conclusion is "the absolute need to continue public housing as the one best way to provide for the lowest income segment of the population. What is obviously urgently called for is a vast increase in such housing."

The revealing survey was made under the National Commission's direction by George Seligman Associates, Washington, D.C. In addition, more than 200 federal and local housing executives, city officials, social workers, tenant spokesmen and civic leaders supplied data and other information for a score of detailed case histories.

The report, due to be published next week, emphasizes three points:

- (1) The public housing program is the only one that has supplied a significant quantity of shelter for low income families; (2) public housing represents only one per cent of the nation's total shelter supply, and about 1.5 per cent of the urban supply; (3) 31 per cent or nearly 200,000 of the housing units are occupied by the elderly, 52,217 in units especially designed for this purpose.

Highlights of the principal findings of the survey are as follows:

"Federal programs to improve housing conditions for low and moderate income families have failed in a number of ways. The chief cause for failure has been an absence of national and local commitment. While the legislation was faulty, much more might have been done with the tools at hand if Congress, the federal agencies, local governments and the general public had shown greater concern."

"The social environment in public housing ranges from conditions no better than a thoroughly disorganized slum to a highly wholesome neighborhood."

"Public housing has many weaknesses. Chief among them has been lack of versatility and flexibility in its ability to generate momentum. Much better quality should have been expected of a publicly-financed program."

"The program for public housing are well within the shelter allowance limits of most state public assistance agencies. The major fiscal problem with public housing is not rent per se, but the system by which annual contributions are calculated. Many local authorities have been so low that the rent plus the annual contributions are not sufficient for services, maintenance and improvements. Unless either subsidies or rents can be increased, many public housing developments will continue to deteriorate."

Prefacing its 18 wide-ranging recommendations, the report lists the most important goals of the Urban Renewal Act passed by Congress this year — "including most of the additional tools required for implementing the program set forth in this study." Listed as the "top priority" of these recommendations is "a vast increase in the production and improvement of housing available to low- and moderate-income families and persons. An adequate supply of widely dispersed, key to all other improvement."

Foremost among the proposed improvements are the following: "Governmental assistance must be applied to: (a) stimulate and foster physical development of both shelter and communities; (b) directly assist families and persons; (c) increase the amount and quality of municipal, community and social services."

"Subsidies related to development, should be of the type and amount required to stimulate production only. No subsidy-limiting occupancy to low-income families should be attached to particular structures. A federal system of cash assistance for housing should be made directly available to qualified moderate- and low-income families."

"Much more emphasis should be placed upon improving conditions in the neighborhood and in the homes where people are living."

"Local housing authorities must become much more concerned for and identified with the housing and community problems of low-income families."

Have We Acted?

Americans, as a nation and as individuals, need not look for specific reasons to be thankful at this moment in our history.

They can be found in two issues of preeminent national importance, both of which can tell us much more of the real nature of blessings, public and private, than the customary editorial platitudes on our well-being and the prospects of even better to come if only we keep the faith.

We are thinking of the skin-of-our-teeth presidential election and of Vietnam.

From the first, we have emerged with our political processes intact, if shaken, escaping the constitutional crisis that threatened had not these processes by great good fortune produced a certified victor. For this, we can be very thankful indeed.

As for the second, there is at long last the barest glimmer of hope that an agony seemingly unending may be approaching, if haltingly, a conclusion.

The connection and, for this occasion, the significance lie in the roles action and inaction have played in the two developments.

If there is hope in Vietnam, it is because of our action, because of the steps, small and hesitant though they may often seem, that we are taking toward creation of the conditions which permit a conclusion short of annihilation of either side.

In the election, we have less cause to thank our actions for averting crisis than to blame our inaction for having made it an ominous possibility. By failing to overhaul a long-rotted electoral system, we have been inviting disaster for generations. There could be no better way of offering thanks for deliverance at this time than moving now toward a constitutional amendment spelling out a more direct, democratic and decisive procedure for electing a president.

In public affairs and in private lives, blessings are rarely undeserved. If we wish to be in a position to count any, we should ask ourselves what we have done to bring them about. Have we acted? What more do we have in our power to do to ensure our own well-being?

It has all been said before, long ago and much more succinctly: God helps those who help themselves.

MR. SPECTATOR

Wired Up For Sound

Medical science — because of space science — is moving ahead. One of the very interesting experiments now under way is one that features a tiny sensor and radio transmitter that sounds an alarm if the patient wearing it experiences breathing difficulty.

With data arriving from the space agency, and crossing Mr. Spectator's desk, he thought you folks out in never-never land might be interested in various degrees. Because so many medical findings are such hush-hush affairs, it is stimulating to find one advance that is out in the open.

This tiny temperature sensor and an FM transmitter forms what could be termed a radio-alarm system.

Persons suffering from wheezing obstructions are the beneficiaries in this medical application of space technology.

The device promises to eliminate thousands of costly hours of continuous watching by nurses of infants and adults suffering from breathing difficulties.

The system was developed by Children's Hospital Medical Center of Northern California, Oakland, in cooperation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

It was NASA's Ames Research Center, Mountain View, Calif., which invented one of the basic components.

This past summer, the system was first used in an experimental basis with a four-month-old infant at the hospital.

The child was recovering from delicate heart surgery performed at the hospital and a tracheostomy tube was inserted after the operation to help overcome her breathing difficulties.

The infant wore the tube with the tiny radio-alarm attached, fastened lightly to her neck with a cloth strap. Making sure the system performed as it should, the child was also under constant surveillance by nurses.

When individuals suffer injury or disease blocking the upper air passage to the lungs, a tracheostomy often is performed. This involves cutting an opening through the front of the neck into the windpipe or trachea, below the obstruction, to provide a free passageway to the lungs and reduce a free flow of air. To maintain this opening, a small curved breathing tube is inserted through the hole into the windpipe. As clogging of the tube with mucus or other material is a frequent problem, a constant watch must be kept on the patient.

Doctors and scientists at the Urrice Lyman Memorial Research Laboratory of the medical center joined NASA researchers at Ames to develop a monitoring system which detects clogging of the breathing tube and radios an alarm to a nurse.

Heart of the system, the tiny transmitter, was developed at Ames in mid-1967 for such jobs as radiating electrocardiograms from subjects being tested on a centrifuge to simulate reentry from earth orbit.

Ames researchers took an existing FM transmitter about the size of a sugar cube and a transmitter — temperature sensor — of much the size. When combined with an aspirin-tablet sized battery, the complete system weighs about an ounce.

The hermetically sealed box, which is attached to the breathing tube, measures only 1 1/2 by 3/4 by 1/2 inch.

Signals from the transmitter are picked up by a nearby FM aerial and sent to an FM receiver. The radio reproduced the signals as a continuous wailing tune.

A timer connected to the receiver throws a switch, turning on a loud buzzer, when it falls for 10 seconds to receive the signal at a different alarm if there is a breathing failure.

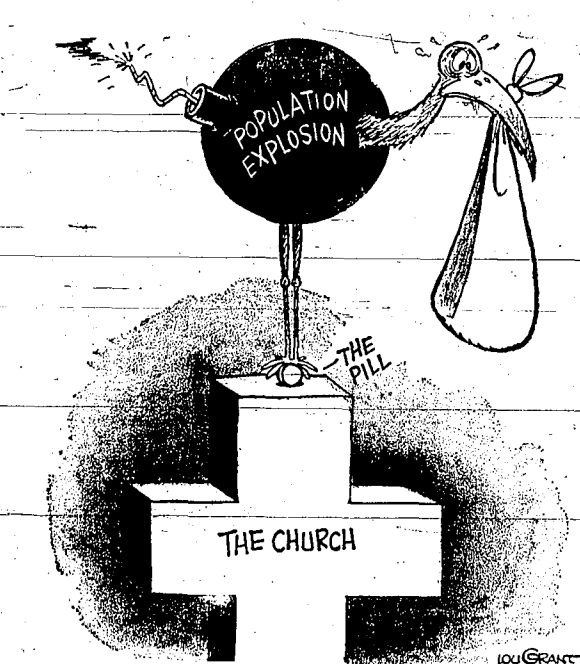

The buzzer can be easily heard 600 feet away, so a nurse can rush to the patient and clear the breathing tube.

Further testing of the device, under nurse surveillance, is planned.

Since the rugged moisture-proof equipment is basically simple and non-invasive, a child with a breathing obstruction and a tube could be sent home. Family members could clear the tube if an obstruction in the tube sounded the alarm.

For hospital wards with several tracheostomy patients, different frequencies or buzzers could be used to identify which patient was in trouble.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Report: A Political Lawsuit

WASHINGTON — Convinced that polite requests won't work, the Democratic National Committee is about to get back some $700,000 of its money that was originally frozen on President Johnson's order.

Robert Short, the hard-driving millionaire trucker and sportsman from Minneapolis who is Vice President Humphrey's hand-picked treasurer of the National Committee, at this writing is preparing a lawsuit that would order the funds turned over to him.

The target of the suit: Robert Maurer, senior partner of a Washington advertising firm with intimate ties in national Democratic politics. Maurer for the past three years has been trustee of the $700,000 Short is demanding back for the National Committee — a closely guarded secret until now. What also has been kept behind closed doors is that Maurer, in secret negotiations with National Committee officials last month, refused to release the funds.

Whether he was or was not acting under White House orders is anybody's guess. If this actually results in a lawsuit, it would be a fitting climax to a bizarre story typifying the undercover antics of the LBJ era in the Democratic party.

The story begins in the autumn of 1965, heyday of the Great Society, when the Democratic National Committee operating behind the front of the so-called "Committee on Voter Education and Registration," published a book called "Forward America Greatness," the word an Agency spokesman. The book was its advertisements — sold to make a political contribution without running afoul of the Corrupt Practices Act barring such corporate contributions; the contribution would be disguised as a campaign contribution.

The corporation could even claim a tax deduction for the "advertising," something not possible for regular political contributions.

The total take was $800,000, but was quickly followed by charges that the Democrats were circumventing Federal statutes. President Johnson, Democratic leaders now believe, panicked over the criticism. He ordered Maurer, whose firm of Maurer, Fleisher, Zorn and Associates had prepared the book — to put the money in trust. It was placed in a New York City bank and, drawing interest for three years, now amounts to around $700,000.

Short, a confidant of Humphrey's, reviled the matter when he entered the party treasurer's office two months ago. Faced with a desperate financial condition and creditors demanding cash on the barrel head, Short found out that Maurer was trustee for the $700,000 and asked him that the money be released for voter registration.

The showdown came last month at a meeting attended by four men: Short, Maurer, Maurer's lawyer, and John Criswell, an LBJ lieutenant and a D Short's predecessor as a city treasurer. Maurer would not give an inch. To spend the money for any political purpose, he insisted, would subject the corporation who bought those 1965 advertisements to Federal prosecution.

President Johnson's precise role in all this is deeply shrouded as are all his incursions in Democratic politics. Early in the campaign, Humphrey was informed by a reliable LBJ spokesman that the President definitely did not want the money, transferred from the trust, whether he gave this order to Maurer is unknown, but it is clear that Maurer would have had to release the funds had there been one word from the White House.

Whatever Mr. Johnson's attitude, Short is tired of the blackmail ploy. A lawyer friend, Youngman and Rowland, says that "each House shall be the judge of its own qualifications." Another constitutional clause says that Congress shall not be questioned in any other place "for their official actions. Either or both of these clauses would offer the House sufficient cause to ignore any Supreme Court order."

Powell, recently reelected by his Harlem constituents, was excluded from the 1967 Congressional March 1967, for payroll abuses and for ignoring court orders and House investigating committees printing on charges of corruption and defamations of a Harlem woman. He has claimed that the House has the right only to pass on qualifica-

Committee's three-year-old fiduciary that it had nothing to do with the money or with its creation, the "Committee on Voter Education and Registration."

Instead, Short is ready to go to court to claim the money as the National Committee's share to be applied to its heavy 1968 registration expenses (and thereby to its $6 million — plus deficit). If Maurer does not yield, the dirty political financing line of the Great Society could be aired in public for months and even years to come.

ANDREW TULLY

Adam Powell's Court Fight

WASHINGTON — There is a mischievous flavor to the Supreme Court's decision to consider whether Adam Clayton Powell had a constitutional right to the seat denied him by the House in the 90th Congress. It is hard to disguise the suspicion that the four or more justices required to grant such a review simply decided to give the House a hard time for election

This suspicion is supported by the hard fact that the House can tell the Court to go suck its head, whatever decision finally is handed down. The House leadership has maintained from the start that it is the sole judge of the qualifications of its members and that no court may challenge this power, let alone disturb it.

Article I, Section 5, of the Constitution says that "each House shall be the judge of its own members." Another constitutional clause says that Congress shall not be questioned in any other place "for their official actions. Either or both of these clauses would offer the House sufficient cause to ignore any Supreme Court order."

Powell, recently reelected by his Harlem constituents, was excluded from the 1967 Congressional March 1967, for payroll abuses and for ignoring court orders and House investigating committees printing on charges of corruption and defamations of a Harlem woman. He has claimed that the House has the right only to pass on qualifica-

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Stretch Marks

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you explain what happens during pregnancy to cause stretch marks? Why does it happen to some women and not to others? Is there no help? If not, why don't all doctors discuss this possible marking with all women? Perhaps it could be prevented before it happens. — Mrs. B.S.C.

A stretch mark is the result of broken fibers below the skin surface. They result, not until the dirty political financing line of the Great Society could be aired in public for months and even years to come.

Once the stretching has occurred and the mark has appeared, there is nothing to do about it. The tissues heal readily enough, but the mark remains, a reddish or yellowish mark which in time fades in color, although the mark is still visible. This causes no harm except in appearance.

Why does it happen to some women, not others? Two reasons. Some women gain too much weight, others don't. And some skins are more subject to the tearing of fibers than others.

Some stretching of the skin is unavoidable in pregnancy, yet some women will get a large stretch marks even though they limit their total gain to the recommended 20 pounds. Others, whose skin is of different texture, may exceed the ideal weight gain by quite a bit, yet not have as many stretch marks.

Why don't doctors discuss it with all patients? Well, it's just good sense to tell a pregnant woman to keep her weight gain to that 20 pounds, but not just because of stretch marks. There are more important reasons: earlier births, healthier babies, less risk of all sorts of complications, ranging from toxemia to varicose veins, and finally it is much easier for a woman to regain her figure without droops and sags if she watches her weight. So why make an issue of stretch marks? It's a matter of scant (if any) significance to health compared to those other considerations?

If a woman won't control her weight for the sake of her health and her baby's, why should it be to avoid stretch marks?

Besides, doctors don't especially like to make themselves look foolish. They don't like to tell a woman that if she controls her weight she won't get stretch marks—because some will. And others will exceed the weight limit and get off-reefer.

However, a lot of doctors do advise women that weight adds to the risk of stretch marks. There's no known precaution except weight control.

Aside from this strange indecision, however, the Supreme Court seems to be demanding that it have a both ways. In the recent Douglas case on the nomination of Associate Justice Abe Fortas for Chief Justice, Fortas refused to answer numerous questions raised by curious senators on the grounds it would violate the principle of the separation of powers to be asked by the other branch of the government.

That, of course, was the principle raised by the House leadership, relating any interference by the courts in the conduct of its sovereign business.

There is also the suggestion that the Supreme Court is putting the cart before the investigative horse. A grand jury investigation of the alleged payroll abuse is the first part of the House's misconduct charges. It has lain dormant for almost two years. Presumably, a Republican Congress will bring it right after Jan. 20, but the Supreme Court is expected to hear arguments in the Powell suit in February and hand down a decision in the spring.

Some lawyers have offered as a precedent in Douglas's case the Supreme Court's 1966 ruling which struck down the exclusion of Julian Bond, the Negro parliamentarian from the Georgia legislature. There's no connection, says the House leadership, between a state legislature and an independent Federal legislative branch endorsed by the Constitution with sovereign powers.

And so the country is to be treated, if that is the word, to an interlude of Sturm und Drang. For those who taste run in that direction, it could be a spat of good, unclean fun, but I expect that in the end the fury will signify nothing. By law, the House could exclude Powell for wearing a loud tie, or mixing good Scotch with milk.

Two Children Perish As Home Burns

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Two small children were burned to death near here Tuesday when their two-story frame house caught fire. A younger sister was rescued by their mother.

Dead are Galen, 3, and Theresa, 1 1/2, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Cook, who live about four miles west of here on U.S. 10.

Deputy Sheriff Harry Capaul said Mrs. Cook had gone to a neighbor's house to use the telephone, and the fire was discovered by a passer-by.

Capaul said Mrs. Cook and the neighbor kicked in the back door of the house and the mother "picked up one child, one month old. She and the neighbor were unable to reach the other children," Capaul said.

Capaul and Idaho State Police officers also were driven back by the heat when they attempted to enter the home.

Both bodies were recovered in a downstairs bedroom. Cause of the fire was not established immediately.

The children's father was at work when the fire broke out, Capaul said.

Jurist Vetoes Move To Free Negro Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Thurgood Marshall of the Supreme Court refused Tuesday to keep Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver out of prison.

Flatly and completely without comment, Marshall turned aside Cleaver's claim that his parole was being revoked because of his political beliefs.

Cleaver, 33-year-old minister of information of the militant Black party, was to be taken to San Quentin Prison in California Wednesday. His parole from a state prison had been revoked by California courts.

Cleaver appealed Monday to Justice William O. Douglas, who has jurisdiction over California courts. Douglas turned the case over to Marshall to act in his place.

Douglas' office said he had to leave Washington this morning to fulfill a speaking commitment at Wisconsin State University.

Cleaver was among a group of Black Panthers arrested in April following a shooting incident with Oakland policemen. A 17-year-old Black boy was killed. Cleaver and two policemen were wounded.

As a result of the incident the California Adult Authority revoked Cleaver's parole and returned him to the California prison medical center to serve the remainder of a 13-year term imposed in 1958 for assault with intent to commit murder and assault with a deadly weapon.

Cleaver had been released on parole in December 1965. The California Supreme Court refused to hear his appeal last week.

Air Travel Clubs Reach 'Adult Status' In U. S.

By JIM CROSSLEY

Air travel clubs have reached adulthood. The Federal Aviation Administration has just inducted them into its commercial air plane fraternity.

It was simple at the start. If a half-dozen fellows interested in sports flying could band together, for economy, and buy a Piper Cub jointly, why couldn't a few dozens of people in search of cheap air travel get together similarly and buy their own Super Constellation? They could and did.

In 1961, under the reounding title of the Emerald Shuttle, Chowder and Marching Society, the first such nonprofit group got together in Washington for this purpose. That started it. Today there are 50 air travel clubs in existence over the country.

They got their impetus because it was bargain day on the used airplane lots. Passenger lines were switching from prop planes to jets. The clubs were customers for the discarded, but still good, prop ships. The Ports-of-Call Travel Club in Denver got its start with a DC-7 that cost $105,000, a plane which now cost $2 million.

Such an undertaking as a travel club is so big that the memberships must be large as well, ranging up to 2,000. Even so, some have small beginnings and that same Ports-of-Call started with a nucleus of 30. Clubs schedule frequent trips. One can be a weekend fly-over to Las Vegas, another a three-week vacation, or edge-hopping in Europe or Japan.

About eight per cent of the membership will take any scheduled trip and that's the reason for the large size of the clubs.

Usually there is a family initiation fee of $150 or up to become a club member and annual dues run anywhere from $120 to $200. These funds handle plane payments — or leasing — the cost of professional crew and maintenance.

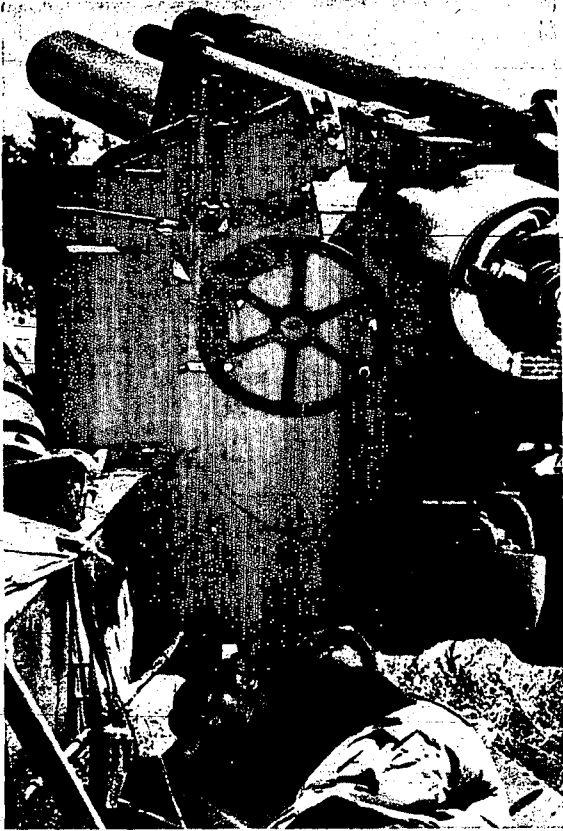

Trip fares are well under airline rates, as little as two cents a mile. Those who go also have the advantage of package rates and special treatment in ground accommodations.

Previous to the new FAA rule, the travel co-ops, being nonprofit, operated under less rigid general aviation regulations. From now on the club planes will have to conform to the same rules governing commercial airlines.

Certificates which will be renewed each year must have been applied for by December. Operating crews and even club officials must be registered and meet specific requirements. Under FAA authorization, the former happy vagabonds will be fitted into the over-all commercial passenger carrier operation while in flight and at airports, as just another airliner.

Humphrey Hints He May Return To U. S. Senate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said today he had "great experience" as a U.S. senator and it was "good enough so that I may look at it again."

Humphrey made the comment to staff members at the U.S. mission to the United Nations who gathered in the auditorium to pay their respects to the outgoing vice president.

He was quoted Monday by the Miami News as saying he was considering running for the U.S. Senate and would not accept a position in the administration of Richard M. Nixon.

Humphrey commented Tuesday that he intended to be "a member of the loyal opposition" — "I won't be a carrying critic."

After the visit to the U.S. mission he paid a call on Under Secretary Ralph Bunche at U.N. headquarters.

Tax Bill Handed Bankers

BOISE (AP) — A recommendation that national banks pay state taxes before receiving state deposits was included in reports of study committees accepted Tuesday by the Legislative Council.

The council made no recommendations on the reports, but it did decide to provide lawmakers with supplementary information on finances of state agencies.

The council's staff was directed to prepare budget requests from agencies funded by general appropriation to supplement information on the governor's proposed 1969 general fund budget.

The legislators also will be provided with information on the agencies' appropriations from the last legislature and federal grants dependent on those appropriations.

The proposed law requiring national banks pay state sales and use and personal property taxes before they can receive state deposits was said by State Sen. William Roden, R-Boise, to be punitive.

"The right of a bank to do business with the state of Idaho should not be contingent upon its paying taxes," he said.

State Finance Commissioner John D. Silva said, "There's nothing punitive about equality," and state chartered banks are already required to pay the taxes.

The legislation was proposed by the council's Public Depository Committee which also suggested a bill to allow savings and loan institutions to receive state deposits. A companion bill would limit deposits in a single account to the $15,000 amount insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

The committee also recommended a law to allow payment of interest at the federal reserve discount rate on Idaho funds invested by the state and its political subdivisions. It would eliminate existing security requirements on deposits, but banks would have to meet certain liquidity requirements.

Tiny Flower Is Cause Of 'Asthma'

By BURL OSBORNE

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Janet Young, 16, who was treated for asthma for nearly five years, left National Jewish Hospital Tuesday night, carrying in a test tube the tiny plastic flower—a fly of the valley—that actually caused her coughing and wheezing.

Two weeks ago surgeons here removed the small bit of plastic from her left bronchus, the part of the windpipe leading to the left lung.

The coughing subsided, the wheezing stopped and when she left the hospital to fly home to her family in Boise, Idaho, she was breathing normally.

The attractive, brown-eyed blonde was referred to National Jewish on Oct. 14.

"When she arrived, doctors listened to her breathing and one heard what he described as a "suspicious noise" in the left airway to the lungs. "We suspected that either a tumor or some foreign body was blocking the bronchus," he said.

The doctor then asked Janet if she had swallowed anything. "I said I had swallowed a plastic flower five years ago, but it went straight through," she said.

The doctors theorized it may instead have found its way into an air passage. Surgeons confirmed this and removed the flower.

Golf Course Debate Flares

Boise Ponders New Governors' Home

BOISE (AP) — A proposed land trade to provide land for a Boise city golf course and an Idaho governor's mansion is under discussion again between the State Land Board and city officials.

Land board members were told Tuesday the Boise City Council planned to exercise a lease agreement suggested by the land board for the golf course site near the Boise River.

Councilmen Bill Onweller and Buck Jones told the board terms of the lease — under which the city would pay the state 4 percent of the course's gross revenue — would make the venture unprofitable to the city.

Onweller said such terms would cost the city 25 percent of net revenues and the city would have to abandon the project.

Board members agreed a land trade might provide the state with a good site for a governor's mansion on a hill in back of the veterans home in Boise.

Gov. Don W. Samuelson said only about five acres would actually be required for the governor's residence and needed parking, but up to 20 acres might well be included in the bargain for landscaping and to make the plot square.

Atty. Gen. Allan G. Shepard said the original golf course site east of Boise, owned by the state penitentiary, was about 52 acres. Since the deal was first discussed an additional 40 acres has been added by a change of course in the river.

Onweller said such terms would cost the city 25 percent of net revenues and the city would have to abandon the project.

Vote In Utah Sets Record Of 422,479

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A record 422,479 votes were cast for president and vice president in Utah, well above the previous high of 401,881 vote cast in the 1964 general election.

The official canvass was completed Monday. Figures released by the secretary of state's office showed the presidential race drew more ballots in Utah than anything else on the Nov. 5 ballot.

The governor's race was next with 421,012 votes. Liquor-by-the-drink, the most talked-about matter on the ballot, received 415,867 votes. This was a surprise, because the controversial issue had been given credit for generating a record registration in Utah.

These were the final official figures on top races:

President — Richard M. Nixon 238,728; Hubert H. Humphrey 137,885; George C. Wallace 6,906; Corky Gonzales, Peace and Freedom candidate for vice president, received 150 votes.

Senate — Rep. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, 225,075; Milton Wellenmann 192,168; Bruce Phillips (Peace and Freedom) 2,176.

U. S. House Rep. Laurence Burton, R-Utah, 139,456; Richard Maugan 61,265; Rep. Sherman Lloyd, R-Utah, 130,127; Galen Ross, D-Utah, 13,000.

Hagerman Miss, Wray Exchange Nuptial Vows

HAGERMAN—Pamela Misseldine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hark Misseldine, Hagerman, became the bride of Paul Steven Wray, U.S.M.C., of Nov. 15. Mr. Wray is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wray, Blackfoot.

The evening nuptials were performed by Bishop David Nelson at the Hagerman LDS Church. Beauty baskets of white and pale yellow chrysanthemums formed the background for the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white crepe. The gown, designed by the bride and made by her mother, featured a scooped rounded neckline, slim skirt and "choir boy" sleeves. Lace appliques enhanced the bodice front, the shoulder section of the full sleeves, gathered to deep cuffs at the wrist.

Matching lace appliques decorated the skirt front and formed the scalloped hemline.

Her bouffant fingertip veil of bridal illusion was held by tiny fabric roses and lace petals. She carried a cascading bouquet of white chrysanthemums and gladioli tied with white satin streamers. A large pompano chrysanthemum centered the bouquet.

Bridal attendants were Sherri Elliott, Twin Falls, maid of honor; Barbara Anderson, Rexburg, roommate of the bride at Ricks College and Mrs. Jerry Laughlin, Pocatello.

Kent Hanson, McCammon, was best man. Usher were Farrell Wray, Blackfoot, brother of the bridegroom, and Steve Felt, Blackfoot, cousin of the bridegroom.

Organist was Lana Butler, Salt Lake City, Janis Horan, Rexburg, roommate of the bride, was soloist, accompanied by Johnnie Cole.

Gifts were arranged by Carmen Misseldine, Pocatello, Ora, cousin of the bride, and Nelda Howard and Karen Low, both Hagerman, assisted by Steven Misseldine, brother of the bride and Tommy Ficus, Hagerman.

The four-tiered wedding cake centered the refreshment table. Pale green roses and Lilies of the Valley carried on the bride's colors of green and white. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Sylvan Clark, Hagerman. Mrs. Bob Butler, Hagerman, presided at the cash service.

Quartet tables were covered with lace cloths over pale green and centered with arrangements of miniature chrysanthemums and ferns.

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: When we go to visit the son and his wife, they are always playing cards. I matter what time of day or evening, it's cards, cards, cards.

"Pull up a chair and watch," they say. Now Abby, I don't go to anybody's house to watch them play cards. I feel insulted. I say they should play out their hands and quit, as we stay only half an hour. My husband says they should go on playing. What do you say? PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: If you stay only half an hour, I would feel your card-crazy son and his wife are rude. Perhaps your son should have been introduced to a different kind of "hand" when he was younger.

DEAR ABBY: I have what most think they want—a husband who does everything for me. He decides "where" we should go and "what" we should do. He and a decorator did our house. He and his secretary pick out my gifts we have to send. They even select our Christmas cards. (He has yet to ask me how I like them.)

He disciplines the children, and tells them what HE thinks. He never asks what THEY think. They love him, but they rebel in their own way by taking it out on me and the whole neighborhood.

When I tell my husband our children "have no friends," he says, "Nobody needs friends. They just have to be rich to get along in this world."

Well, at least the children have a way of releasing their feelings, but as for me, I feel absolutely USELESS.

DEAR USELESS: You don't say how long this has been going on, but I would guess it started the day you said, "I do." You only complain—you don't ask for a solution, which would indicate that you are resigned to your unhappiness. "Useless" life. I'm sorry for you, but sorrow for your children. They cannot "love" this tyrant, but only fear him. And kids who fear their fathers make miserable fathers themselves.

DEAR ABBY: If I were to tell you that I am a young, unknown actress who became involved with a movie producer (divorced) I would sound like a made-up letter, but it happens to be the truth.

I am 23 and he is about 50. We've seen a lot of each other.

OUR FAVORITE! Our favorite of the new designs—and sure, it's yours, too—is the side-buttoned design with a wide-set collar and slim, young lines.

Printed Pattern 9000: New Half Sizes 10½, 12½, 14½, 16½, 18½, 20½. Size 14½ (bust 37) takes 3½ yds., 35 in.

Boise Trustees To Leave Group

BOISE (AP) — The Boise School Board voted 4-3 Monday night to withdraw from the Idaho School Trustees Association.

The action followed a week-end meeting of the association in Boise at which delegates voted to suspend the constitution in order to keep in office for another term President Zane Harrison of Fairfield.

De Morgan, a member of the Boise School Board, had been president-elect of the state association, and was scheduled to become president this year. After the convention action retaining Harrison for another term, Morgan resigned as president-elect.

Neal Newhouse, a member of the Boise board, said the action resulted from "anti-Boise" feeling among state association members.

He noted that each local school board has one vote in the state association but dues are based on school enrollment.

Robert Hendron, who moved for withdrawal of the Boise board, said it pays about $200 per year to the state association in dues. The Boise district has about one-eighth of all Idaho's public school students.

Pilot Of Jet Stir's Alarm As Tanks Drop

BOISE (AP) — An Air Force T37 jet trainer dropped two fuel tanks as it approached the Boise Municipal Air Terminal Tuesday, leading to reports that a plane had crashed.

Emergency vehicles were sent to the scene about two miles from the end of the airport runway.

The tanks landed in a field and broke into pieces. Some horses were grazing nearby but were not hurt.

A spokesman at the Mountain Home Air Force Base said a mechanical failure caused the tanks to jetison as the two-man crew in the plane was making an instrument approach as part of a training maneuver.

SEC Scolds Stockbrokers For Disclosure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission Tuesday scolded Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith and ten of its executives and salesmen for disclosing inside information to selected big investors.

The agency action took the form of accepting an offer by Merrill Lynch, the world's largest securities firm, to settle a case involving antitrust provisions of federal securities law.

In making the offer and accepting the findings of the SEC, Merrill Lynch, however, did not admit the charges of wrongdoing and agreed to the agency action, it said, solely for the purpose of winding up the case as far as it and its employees are concerned.

Meanwhile, a federal antitrust case was filed today in New York City involving 14 mutual funds and large investors alleged by the SEC to have received the inside information from Merrill Lynch in June 1966.

The information had to do with a report that the Douglas Aircraft Co. would show a sharp drop in earnings for the first part of that year and that the outlook for the remainder of 1966 was gloomy.

The SEC ordered Merrill Lynch to suspend all activities of its New York institutional sales office for 21 days starting Dec. 5 and the firm's New York underwriting office to shut down for 15 days starting Dec. 11.

2:30 P.M. SUMMARY NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market late this afternoon had trouble maintaining a higher level as weakness in key blue chips dragged down the Dow Jones industrial average to a loss of about 100 points.

For the overall market, gains outnumbered losses - about 200 issues. A variety of good gains were scored by assorted stocks.

The market was higher from the start even though the closely watched Dow industrials wobbled.

There was opportunity for profit taking after Tuesday's vigorous rally and, in addition, traders exercised usual caution before the Thursday holidays giving holiday when exchanges will be closed.

United Aircraft bobbed to the top of the most active list when it traded on a huge block of 159,400 shares, 3% at 75.

Lionel and Glen Alden were heavily traded fractional gainers.

All of the top four steelmakers, Big Three motors and biggest rubber manufacturers were fractional losers.

United Nuclear was up 3.0% on a bid for the company from Ashland Oil, which rose fractionally. SCM, up 2, continued its recent strength.

Prices continued mostly higher on the American Stock Exchange.

Trade opened on a rather moderate pace, then slowed down but picked up again, saying, near the close.

The principal factor in the buying of what was a trade-off wheat from Canada that the wheat crop in Canada this winter may suffer some damage because a large part of it was relatively damp when put away.

This news brought some fresh buying into the pit and, coupled with short covering, prices advanced 1/2 cent above Tuesday's close.

There was some profit taking late in the session that trimmed the advance.

At the close wheat was 1/2 to 3/4 cent higher, December 1.16 1/4, soybeans were 1/4 lower to 1/2 higher, January 2.95 1/2.

NEW YORK (AP) - Despite its obvious prosperity, as evidenced by the big bonus checks now being received - for pre-Christmas delivery to workers, the brokerage business today is one beset by many trials and contradictions.

The overall calm, the neat and precise manners, the aura of confidence, hide failures in effort, in technological knowledge, in self-regulation and even in self-identity.

For years, apparently, these defects were hidden from view, even from the sight of those deeply involved. But in recent months no business has had its weaknesses and failures so nakedly revealed.

To the credit of the stock market community, sweet and effort is now being exerted, but it has a long time before the sediment of procrastination is shoveled away. It was piled high.

The brokerage business for years sought high volume by advertising and promoting the value of participating in American enterprise, but when the volume came many firms found themselves in a quandary. The stock exchangeicker proved inadequate.

The stock and bond industry is essentially service oriented, but some of the better known firms, having been caught unprepared for high volume, cannot now provide the high quality services that customers expect.

The business preaches the necessity of self-regulation, but has permitted obvious failures in its methods to be challenged, only to be become a laughing stock.

Some members, for example, have argued for a commission structure with a minimum at the bottom but no maximum at the top, although in most businesses volume means discounts. Now it has been ordered from without.

The principal medium for handling business is paper, whether it be dollar bills or stock or bond certificates, but the industry has failed to develop a technology to handle the mountains of paper brought by good times.

Today it has the opportunity for more prosperity than ever before, but some of the largest firms have been forced to curtail business, even to close their doors and lay off workers, because they can't handle prosperity.

The industry has spent millions to encourage the small investors to the market but now some of the best known firms refuse his business, suggesting they buy mutual funds instead, even though the biggest broker, age house of all won't handle any mutual fund business.

Q. I hold Itel Corp. and Solvent Devices, both of which have a sizeable long-term losses. Should I take these losses to offset two long-term gains and one short-term gain? Even with these gains I will still have greater losses than gains. Can my loss be used for more than one year? -G.S.

A. In deciding whether to take a tax loss, the issue in question should meet certain requirements: (1) has there been a sharp price drop during the year in question, and (2) is the prospect of turning around several months away? If these conditions are satisfied, it is probable that other investors will be accepting losses before the year-end, so that recovery would not come prior to January.

I think your holdings meet these conditions. Selling off using capital losses to offset capital gains plus $1,000 of ordinary income, the excess can be carried forward for an unlimited time, except for corporations where there is a five-year limit.

I read an article which condemned mutual funds and urged that investors should have a large amount in diversified Diversified Mutual Fund. We have been retired eight years and draw money from this investment to meet living expenses. We have always been happy with our fund but wonder now if we should sell out.

A. Your fund stresses income, growth and stability. In order to illustrate its performance I will assume you invested $10,000 on 12-31-58 and have withdrawn $600 annually. As of 12-31-67 your shares would have had a value of over $13,000. On this same date 25 funds with smaller balanced investment goals would show an average value of $14,900.

If dependable income is your primary goal, your fund provides this and I would not sell it on the basis of adverse industry reviews. However, if you would like faster growth, you might investigate other balanced funds and compare their growth records with your fund's performance.

Legislative Council Urges Completion Of New Prison

BOISE (AP)—The Idaho Legislative Council passed on Tuesday 1969 legislation today without recommendation suggestions from several of its study committees.

They included one proposing completion as rapidly as possible of the Idaho State Penitentiary at its new site south of Boise. Gov. Don W. Samuelson has es- tablished a special committee to correct to eliminate "the agency's administrative responsibility at the penitentiary."

Instead, administration would be in the hands of a warden who would be a trained penologist. The council authorized preparation of bills carrying out the recommendations of the committee but it took position on the proposed legislation.

The committee on timberland taxation reported it was unable to reach agreement on a proposal to remove the property tax on timberland.

It suggested the problem be left to the legislature.

Still to be considered by the council was a report from the Public Depository Committee.

The committee said it would submit three separate bills to the council for consideration.

One authorized payment of interest on public funds deposited in banks, and sets up a collateral system similar to that used in Utah. It would require collateral for deposits beyond a certain limit.

Another bill would make savings and loan associations eligible to accept public deposits.

A third bill would authorize public deposits in savings and loan associations, but limited at a maximum of $5 million.

The Public Depository Committee approved Monday proposed legislation which would broaden investment possibilities for the $75 million state school endowment fund.

Workshops For Art Are Planned

The College of Southern Idaho art department will conduct workshops for various groups in the college district, according to Laver Steel, department chairman.

Mr. Steel said the physical facilities of the art department, as well as the staff, will be available for the workshop.

Any group interested in organizing workshops is asked to contact Mr. Steel at the art cottage at the corner of Falls Avenue and Washington Street, North or by calling 733-9554, extension 60.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals or to accept the proposal or proposals deemed best for the State of Idaho.

Proposals sent through the mail should be plainly marked as such and addressed to the Department of Public Works, Capitol Building, Boise, Idaho 83725. DO NOT SIGN PROPOSALS TO THE IDAHO FISH AND GAME DEPARTMENT. It is the purpose of the Commission to complete this improvement as soon as possible.

U. S. Refuses To Confirm Rumors On Crew Of Pueblo

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department officials offered no support Tuesday for reports that two fishing vessels being built in the Netherlands for North Korean firms may hold the key to release of the Pueblo and its crew. High U.S. authorities held out no prospect of early release of the intelligence-gathering ship Pueblo and its 82 surviving crewmen, held captive since North Korea seized the vessel last Jan. 23. The New York Times, mentioning an implied "threat of possible U.S. seizure of the fishing vessels said some Johnson administration officials think North Korea might move to release the crewmen to avoid that possibility. The United States has not indicated what efforts it could make to discourage delivery of the ships. But the likelihood of any interception on the high seas after title passed to North Korea appeared dim. Official sources pointed out that the fish processing vessels were not an item on the list of strategic items which the allied nations may not sell to Communist countries. There has been no secret about the contracts to provide the ships, which will have a capacity for processing about 150 tons of fish a day. The two vessels were ordered about one year ago, according to State Department officials. One is now nearing completion and would be turned over within the next two or three months to North Korean crew members to sail home. The vessels have a total value of about $14 million. The Times, in a Washington dispatch by William Beecher, said American agents in Rotterdam are "tentatively showing interest" in the vessels, which it said might be seized on their long trip home.

Shelled Corn Spills When Truck Upsets

HAGERMAN — Nels F. Heath, 17, King Hill, escaped injury Sunday afternoon when the 2½-ton truck loaded with shelled corn he was driving overturned, landing upside down practically on the doorstep of the Rock Lodge on Highway 30 about 2½ miles north of Hagerman. Heath told investigating officer Gooding County Deputy Sheriff Earl Brown, that he attempted to pass a green and white car while traveling south. The driver, who was unidentified, began to make a left turn apparently intending to drive into the front parking lot of the Rock Lodge, but seeing the truck, turned back into the right lane of traffic. Heath, endeavoring to keep from hitting the car, also swerved back into the right lane of traffic and in the process the truck overturned. The unidentified car did not stop. Loren Hill, who was using the telephone in the Rock Lodge at the time, told officers he saw the green and white car but he did not happen to see the accident. — A police bulletin has been issued on the car in an attempt to locate it and the driver.

Caldwell Artist's Paintings To Be Seen At CSI Center

The paintings by Robert Max Peter, Caldwell artist, will be shown in the College of Southern Idaho fine arts center until Dec. 1, according to Lavar Steel, chairman of the CSI art department. The show was set up in conjunction with the grand opening of the fine arts center and is still open for viewing by the public. Mike Green, art instructor at CSI who took his undergraduate studies from Mr. Peter, said that the current showing features Mr. Peter's work from 1949 until the present. "Because of the fact that the exhibition covers almost 20 years of painting, the overall impact is rather diluted," Mr. Green said. "The exhibition," he continued, "would be more exciting if there were 10 to 12 paintings of more recent vintage." "Marked" — painted in 1961, is the only painting prior to 1966 that has any real impact, Mr. Green feels. "There is an ink triptych entitled 'The Circle: My Mystery Series' painted in 1966 that is an exceptionally fine painting. It tends to be a culminating point in Mr. Peter's development of the circle," Mr. Green said. "Two of Mr. Peter's more recent paintings, 'The Explorers' and 'Space Feelers,' both painted this year, represent a new direction. The paintings are simpler, more controlled, and somewhat more personal," Mr. Green stated. "By departing from the influence of action painting these two paintings seem to be more original. Had the whole exhibition been of his more recent work, it could have shown a more unified and consequently powerful image. His recent works do show, however, the reason for his being one of Idaho's most influential artists. This reason is that he is continually discontent with past success and always manages to

Thalidomide May Be Useful

Immuno-suppressive drugs are designed to prevent the body's natural rejection of transplanted organs. Thalidomide is banned in develop his work in a higher degree. — Mr. Green concluded.
