Cernik's Reform Government Resigns

PRAGUE (AP) — The reform government of Premier Oldrich Cernik, which pushed through liberal programs last spring and summer to humanize Czechoslovakia's Communist society, agreed Saturday to resign.

Cernik and several of his key ministers are expected, however, to stay on in a new federal government in take office New Year's Day and attempt to salvage some of the reforms stalled by the Soviet-led invasion in August.

Communist sources have listed the reason for the change is to set up a federal system awarding some regional autonomy to the two major sections of this country—Slovakia and Czech lands of Bohemia and Moravia.

They said there will be no surprising changes in the smaller federal cabinet.

An official announcement said only that Cernik recommended the resignation at a meeting in the government presidium building, near the banks of the Vltava River in Prague. It said ministers unanimously approved the proposal.

There was no word on when the resignations would be submitted to President Ludvik Svoboda. This was expected shortly. Svoboda is due to address the nation on New Year's Day.

The changes refer only to government circles. There has been no suggestion of pending changes in the Communist party leadership. The party here is the more important body, setting the policies the government carries out.

A Soviet delegation headed by a party secretary, Konstantin Kuznetsov, is now in this country holding talks believed to cover the government changes.

Cernik granted an interview with the official news agency CTK in connection with the cabinet's decision to resign.

"The nine months of our activities were rich in events and many others," he said. "Only history will be able to judge how the Czechoslovak government stood up to its duties."

Nixon Confers With Top Foreign Policy Advisers

By WALTER R. MEARS

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President-elect Nixon met with top foreign policy advisers Saturday in a day's discussion of "the decisions we will have to make in the first 90 days" of the new Republican administration.

Nixon said the meeting on the screened porch of his bayside winter retreat was a key conference in the shaping of foreign policy.

He said every new administration has an opportunity to re-examine "American commitments around the world," and indicated the session was part of this examination.

"This is the first general meeting when all of these men get a chance to know each other and to see their different views out on the table," during a chat with newsmen on the back lawn of his villa.

The president-elect sported a green-checked cashmere sport jacket and a cut on his forehead. He was tanned and seemed relaxed in the first public appearance since beginning his vacation.

Nixon said the jacket was "a Christmas present" but indicated he bought it himself.

The scratch on his head, Nixon said, was a souvenir of Thursday's trip to Grand Cay in the Bahamas. The president-elect said he hit his head on a wire while climbing to the crew's nest of a fishing boat with his new son-in-law, David Eisenhower.

Nixon and his advisers met at a glass-topped table, laden with notebooks and yellow pads with a red-flowered Christmas decoration as the centerpiece.

For lunch, Nixon said, the menu was one of his favorites. "I think we're going to feed them hamburgers."

Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew was at Nixon's side. Secretary of State-designate William P. Rogers and Rep. Melvin Belli, R-Wis., who is to head the Defense Department, were the other participants.

Nixon said some topics on the agenda were obvious; among them the war in Vietnam, tension in the Middle East, the pending treaty to control the spread of nuclear weapons, and the question of antiballistic missile defenses.

He said the range of talks included all major trouble spots and decisions which the new administration may have to make early in the tenure which begins Jan. 20.

In addition, he said, the conference topics included questions of schedule for the new White House and of possible state visits, along with budget items.

Nixon also talked with his counselors about the future course of the Security Council, its structure, frequency of meetings and matters it should consider.

Nixon disclosed that he will ask retired diplomat Robert D. Murphy, whose assignment at the State Department covered only the period between election and inauguration, to meet with the National Security Council at sessions during the early phase of the new administration.

The meeting was Nixon's first announced business since he came to Key Biscayne Monday for a holiday vacation.

A TWIN FALLS FIREMAN, on the right, lost the battle against a Friday afternoon blaze that destroyed his trailer construction shop at the corner of Orchard Drive and Washington Street South. Clinton Earl, a city fireman, was unable to save the frame building and its contents, including a horse trailer belonging to Ralph Denton. He estimated the loss at $3,500. It is believed the fire was caused by trouble in a coal furnace.

Air West Directors Reject Offer From Billionaire Howard Hughes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Air West directors rejected a purchase offer from billionaire Howard Hughes Saturday, leaving the field open for a tender offer from Northwest Airlines.

The directors overruled the stockholders and voted 13-11 against the $95-million cash offer from Hughes. The directors had previously deadlocked 12-12 on the offer.

Results of a stockholders vote Friday were challenged by opponents of the Hughes offer, and a recount went on through the night.

Early Saturday, a company spokesman announced that stockholders had approved the Hughes offer 1,978,397 to 744,714. A total of 2,723,000 votes were represented in the proxy count out of 3,072,000 eligible on the date of record.

Friday, Northwest offered approximately the same price as Hughes for Air West, but proposed a stock swap of four Air West shares for one Northwest share.

Air West attorney Joseph Martin Jr., a director opposed to the Hughes offer, said he thought many of the directors who voted against Hughes "were greatly influenced by the fact that the Northwest offer was made so late that most stockholders had no chance to voice their feelings about it."

He noted that only 51.7 percent of the shareholders favored Hughes and said: "We felt the election might have gone the other way if the vote was two or three days later."

"I think you can safely assume that the directors who voted against the Hughes deal thought the Northwest offer was in the best interest of the stockholders and will do everything in their power to get it to the stockholders as quickly as possible," he said.

Board chairman Nick Bez of Seattle, a supporter of the Hughes offer, said after the directors meeting he did not know what would happen.

Martin said "there are no appeals from directors' votes... but in matters as complicated as this, litigation is an ever present possibility."

He said Northwest would have to take the next step and file a tender offer with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

After it is approved, he said, Northwest would then ask stockholders to tender their stock.

"This should happen within 60 or 90 days depending on how long the SEC takes," Martin said.

Air West was formed last April in the merger of Bonanza, Pacific and West Coast airlines. It operates throughout western North America from the western slope of the Rockies to the coast and from La Paz at the tip of Baja California north as far as Calgary, Alberta.

Air West recently reported a third quarter loss of nearly $2.5 million and reportedly will show a substantial loss for its short 1968 lifetime.

Bandits Rob Brink's Armored Truck, Escape With $500,000

BOSTON (AP) — Two bandits wearing black ski masks and black gloves and displaying a machine gun held up a Brink's armored truck and escaped with $500,000 Saturday night, police said.

The robbery occurred shortly after 6:30 p.m. on Canal Street in Boston's busy North End section.

Police said the driver and another guard were on a coffee break at the time of the holdup opposite one of Boston's best-known restaurants, the Union Oyster House. Police said the loot apparently was the collection of Saturday's receipts in Boston major department and other stores.

First word on the robbery came when Richard Haines of Towksbury, a messenger inside

Horse Trailer Shop Burns, $3,500 Loss

A 24 by 40-foot frame building containing equipment and a horse trailer was leveled by fire Friday afternoon. Loss was estimated by the owner, Clinton Earl, at $3,500.

"The biggest loss was in the equipment I had there — compressors, a paint gun, welding equipment, and so on," said Mr. Earl. He used the shop at the corner of Orchard Drive and Washington St. S. to build horse trailers and truck vans for hauling horses.

Mr. Earl said he was in his car when he noticed smoking coming from his shop. His wife called the labor camp for a truck from the Twin Falls County Mutual Fire-Protective Association since the shop is out of the city limits. Mr. Earl is a Twin Falls city fireman.

The firemen were unable to save the one story building, and Mr. Earl said he believed nothing could be salvaged. "And I don't have any insurance," he added.

It is believed the fire began in a coal furnace. Also destroyed was a horse trailer belonging to Ralph Denton that was in the shop for repair work. Mr. Earl hopes to eventually rebuild the shop.

Mayor Notes 1968 Progress In T. F.

Twin Falls Mayor Egon Kroll and city officials have extended their thanks to the citizens for their cooperation during the past year.

"I sincerely hope we can all work together in harmony in the years ahead to make this community even better than it is today," Mayor Kroll said.

The officials also extended best wishes to the people of Twin Falls for a happy and safe holiday season.

The mayor pointed out that much has been accomplished during the past year. He said most streets in the city now have new street name signs. City crews have constructed four miles of new streets and improved an additional eight miles of city streets. About five miles of streets were dust coated.

He said one of the highlights of the year was on July 22 when Alpheus Creek water was turned into the new system. The water project is now about 97 per cent complete.

"This past year we have done considerable work on Cascade Park," Mayor Kroll said. "This is a new park in the northwest section of the city. Tennis court lights were added at Harmon Park and Improvements were made at the golf course and at Shoshone Falls park."

The urban renewal project has been approved and soon will be in execution. In November the first mobile crime laboratory in the state was placed in service in Twin Falls. Mr. Kroll noted the FBI seems to be quite interested in the lab and is doing articles on it. He also pointed out that the local police department solved more crimes by use of fingerprints than any other city in either Idaho or Montana.

The city and county have joined forces in the operation and development of the airport. Additional land is being acquired for runway expansion and the existing terminal is to be improved.

"All in all it has been a busy year," Mayor Kroll concluded, and he extended his best wishes for 1969.

Meet Proposed 4 Youngsters Accused In 14 Burglaries

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong proposed Saturday a second meeting with U.S. officers New Year's Day to discuss the release of three American prisoners. But it laid down some conditions that will "require a high level of discussion."

The first meeting was held Christmas Day, but the five American representatives charged the Viet Cong with trying to make propaganda and refusing to say when or where the three would be released. Both sides had declared a cease-fire for that day.

The urban renewal project has been approved and soon will be in execution. In November the first mobile crime laboratory in the state was placed in service in Twin Falls. Money Granted, But Red Tape Still Ties Downtown Project

By FRED DODDS
Times-News Staff Writer

Last month a federal grant of $1.402 million was approved and the downtown Twin Falls improvement project was given the official go-ahead.

But nothing has happened yet. The project and the application for funds were steps that took several years to run through the government offices of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The approval of the funds last month was the official end to all the red tape.

Or so it seemed.

But the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency still has to sign a contract with the government, and this contract is presently being studied by agency officials.

Once this contract is signed, it will be sent to Washington for signatures there.

L. James Koutnik said Friday, "This is a matter of routine." He said relocation of businesses in the downtown urban renewal area would begin soon.

He also said the signing of the contract by agency members may come after a meeting next week. "Our attorney is looking the contract over. If everything is proper, my feeling is we'll sign it."

He said the city council is being informed of all steps being taken by members of the agency.

The downtown urban renewal project works in cooperation with a downtown Local Improvement District, which has already been approved by the city council.

Both projects, working together, are aimed at turning downtown Twin Falls into a modern shopping mall with increased parking space.

Completion of the total project is expected in three to five years.

Relocation is expected to start soon and initial construction or demolition in the downtown area is expected sometime next spring, Mr. Koutnik said.

He said relocation is pending until the contract is signed. "Then we'll have the money to work with and the project will begin to come to life."

The project is in the central area of downtown Twin Falls.

Israelis Stage Attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Helicopter-borne Israeli commandos, seeking to avenge an attack by two Arabs on an Israeli jetliner, struck more than 80 miles outside Israeli borders Saturday, causing fires and explosions at Beirut International Airport.

A Lebanese government broadcast said the hoppers of Middle-East Airlines, Lebanon's major air carrier, had been hit. A raging fire interperseed with violent explosions broke out at Beirut airport at 9:30 p.m. local time.

The pilots, when filed, will go to the Twin Falls County Probate Court, placing the youths under the court's jurisdiction. They are now in the custody of their parents.

Apollo 8 Astronauts On First Leg Of Trip Home

ABOARD USS YORKTOWN (AP) — The Apollo 8 astronauts, rested and ready to start an extensive de-briefing on their moon flight, cruised northward toward Hawaii Saturday on the first leg of their long trip home to their families.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell and Air Force Lt. Col. William A. Anders relaxed aboard the Yorktown, waiting until the carrier was near enough to Hawaii for them to be flown off its decks.

They are to fly in Hickam Air Force Base in Hawaii, transfer to a C-141 and fly nonstop to Ellington Air Force Base near Houston and only a half-hour drive from their homes. Space officials said they will arrive at Ellington about 6 a.m. EST.

The trio on board the carrier talked about their historic flight, rested in quarters de-camped for an admiral and made a final visit to the spacecraft which carried them a quarter million miles to the moon, around it 10 times and then back to a pinpoint landing in the predawn dark of the Pacific Ocean 1,000 miles south of Hawaii.

Seven hours after their landing Friday, the trio walked around their spacecraft, now a charred and blackened metal cone on the deck of the Yorktown, and looked inside the hatch.

"It's a great ship," Borman said.

The astronauts bubbled with descriptions of their flight during a candlelight dinner with the ship's officers Friday night.

"That re-entry was really something," said Borman.

"Boy, my eyes opened wide on that one."

Then he added: "It was a beautiful mission."

Lovell, a Navy captain, said he was happy to be back at sea with sailors.

"I've been living with two Air Force men for the past week," he said "and it's great to be aboard. He joked that he had to reassure his crewmates "that the Navy will be there" after the spacecraft hit the Pacific.

Anders said he was also glad to be at sea. "But to tell you the truth, I was just hoping we'd hit any ocean."

And Lovell cracked: "And he was the navigator."

While the spacemen cruised on the Yorktown, President Johnson's press secretary announced at San Antonio that Anders was being promoted to lieutenant colonel. Anders was a major at the time of the launch.

Apollo 8 landed within three miles of the carrier, almost precisely the point aimed at from a quarter million miles out in space.

After the spacecraft landed in the dark, the astronauts remained aboard the bobbing cone for about an hour, waiting for dawn and enough light for them to be taken aboard a hovering helicopter.

"I'm no sailor," said Borman. "I'm in the Air Force and I got seasick right away."

The astronauts decided not to go through an extensive check-out of the spacecraft's systems since they had all functioned so well. The spacecraft will be delivered to its manufacturer in California for examination in detail.

Space officials said Friday in Houston that Apollo 8 will lead the way to lunar landings, large space stations and trips to other planets.

Most Idaho Highways Hazardous

Most Idaho highways were hazardous Saturday. Closed were Idaho 68 from Mountain Home east, U.S. 93A at Craters of the Moon, Idaho 23 from Newdale to Tetonville, U.S. 20-28 from Arco to the AEC, and at Swan Valley and U.S. 191 from Ashton Hill to West Yellowstone.

machine gun and then disarmed him. He said one of the bandits then drove the truck a short distance away to a parking lot on Nashua Street opposite the Registry of Motor Vehicles Building where they transferred the loot to a station wagon. Haines told police robbers threatened to blow his head off and then pulled a hat over his eyes. He said the bandits took a red wooden trunk marked Filene's, a black steel trunk marked Jordan's, a black suitcase marked Raymond's and the rest of the loot in 48 and 50 money bags with assorted bank markings. Filene's, Raymond's and Jordan's are Boston's biggest department stores. In addition, Haines drove the station wagon that hauled away the loot. The bandits manacled Haines before escaping. He was handcuffed when he appeared at the police station. He suffered minor injuries to his wrists from his handcuffs. Brink's official said that one of their armored cars had been held up but declined to give any details or to say how much money was taken. It was the second major Brink's heist in Boston. On Jan. 17, 1959, the Brink's waterfront garage-office was invaded by 11 Halloween-masked men who worked swiftly like a well-drilled team and carried away $1,218,218 in what at that time was the nation's largest cash hoard. Only about $50,000 was recovered. Four of the 11 men involved in the case are dead. Six are serving life terms, and one, Joseph J. Specs, O'Keefe, 59, who testified against the others claiming he was the lead of his share of the loot, was freed after serving a sentence. The Brink's robbery was the biggest cash heist in the U.S. until a band of white-gloved bandits scooped up $1,551,277 from a mail truck in historic Plymouth, Aug. 14, 1962.

A section of the guard fence around the Bank of Idaho construction site was damaged Friday or early Saturday morning, police records show. H-Bomb Is Detonated By Red Chinese
By KAY TATEISHI

TOKYO (AP)—Red China finally announced Saturday, that it had exploded "another hydrogen bomb" successfully Friday. Radio Peking in a Chinese-language broadcast called it "a new nuclear device." But an English-language communique from the Peking News Agency later referred only to another hydrogen bomb. There was no explanation of the nearly 24-hour delay in reporting the nuclear blast—the first atomic weapon was tested Oct. 16, 1964. Successes usually are announced promptly. If the weapon were now, it could be an experiment with one designed to be attached to an intercontinental missile. There has been speculation in the United States and Japan that China is at work on such a warhead. The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announcement put the device's explosive force at three million tons of TNT, or about the same as the sixth Chinese test July 17, 1967. The 1967 hydrogen bomb, the first for Red China, was dropped from an airplane. Whether Friday's was mounted on a tower or dropped from a plane was not indicated.

Sweden Plans Crackdown On Narcotics

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The Swedish Social Democratic government of Premier Tage Erlander plans a crackdown on narcotics. The measures include harder penalties for severe narcotics crimes, wire-tapping and better facilities for police and customs to fight the drug trade. Erlander said at a news conference Friday. The government also will invite all Swedish youth organizations to a conference in February to discuss drug abuse. Erlander said he regretted granting police wire-tapping rights, but explained this would be limited to investigation of the most serious crimes, wholesale drug sellers.

Probe Into Fatal Plane Crash Begins In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Air safety specialists arrived at O'Hare International Airport Saturday to begin their investigation into the first fatal crash in North Central Airlines' 20-year history. The twin-engine Convair 580, with a crew of three and 42 passengers, slammed into a hangar while landing in fog and drizzle Friday night. North Central officials said 28 persons were killed, including two of the crew members, and 19 were injured. In addition, eight boys, members of a drum and bugle corps which had been practicing in the hangar, were injured. The plane, Flight 458, originated in Minneapolis and made stops at four Wisconsin cities—Green Bay, Wausau, Manitowish and Milwaukee. A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, which is conducting the investigation, said there was no early indication of the cause of the crash. One passenger said the plane was rocking severely as it neared O'Hare. "The plane started to rock violently as we approached the airport," said William DeGroot, 21, of Sioux Falls, S.D. "No one knew what was going on," he said. "The plane jolted. . . People were screaming and calling for help. . . There was a rush of cold air and someone at the door helped us out." The Transportation Board spokesman said it was not known if the plane was still in the air when it struck the hangar and burst into flames. The hangar is several hundred yards off to the side of the runway the craft was on an approaching. The spokesman said there was a 200-foot ceiling at the time of the crash, with visibility of about a quarter of a mile. He described this as within landing tolerance.

Four Youths Are Injured In Accident

Minor injuries were sustained by four Twin Falls youths about noon Saturday, when they were involved in a head-on collision 14 miles south of Hansen on the Rock Creek Road. Shawn Ryan, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryan, Twin Falls, and his passenger Charles Bowyer III, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowyer Jr., Twin Falls, were traveling north in 1967 Ford pickup truck when they were in a collision with a 1961 Ford driven by Jerry Fischer, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Fischer, Twin Falls. Linda Gilku, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gilku, Twin Falls, was a passenger in the Fischer car. Sheriff Corder said there was only one path along the snow covered road, and both vehicles were in it. The car which the Fischer youth was driving was as close to the edge of the road as he could get it without sliding over the embankment, the sheriff said. The four youths were taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by ambulance. The Ryan youth, driver of the pickup truck, was taken from the hospital to a local doctor's office. The Bowyer youth was admitted to the hospital for observation. The Fischer youth was treated for minor cuts and bruises and dismissed. Miss Gilku was admitted to the hospital with a broken left arm, cuts, and bruises. All the admitted are in fair condition. According to Sheriff Corder, the accident was generally due to the road conditions. Citations are pending investigation.

John Glenn May Go Back Into Politics

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP)—Re-entry into Ohio politics is being considered by former astronaut John Glenn Jr., now on vacation at this southern Idaho resort. "This has been talked about," Glenn said this morning, "but I'm not really sure." "This is one of the things I'm considering but there are many things to be considered before a final decision," the first American to orbit the Earth said. Eugene P. O'Grady, Ohio Democratic chairman, had indicated Glenn was considering a second go at Ohio politics. Glenn entered the Democratic senatorial primary in 1964, but withdrew after suffering a head injury in a bathroom fall. Glenn declined to speculate further on his plans, or indicate what office he might seek, but would only say, "The sky's the limit."

WASHINGTON — The sinister scheme of the aggressively revolutionary Student for a Democratic Society to extend its notorious rioting, violence and lawlessness on college campuses to high schools is making headway.

It was decided to employ a special "coordinator" to direct this campaign. He has still not been selected.

Instead of educating young people, the high school attempts to press upon them the bankrupt values of a decaying society.

The stellar attraction was Mark Rudd, Columbia University SDS leader, who delivered a harangue and then conducted a question-and-answer period.

involved" — whatever that meant. "Most of our kids are white, middle-class and suburban," he proclaims stately.

Heat Of Revolt

Who could have predicted even a few years ago that the monolithic, disciplined Roman Catholic Church would today be undergoing its greatest crisis since the Reformation?

"Who speaks today of hell?" asked Paul VI a few days ago as he spoke out against dissenters within the church.

The rebellion begun by Martin Luther in the 16th century arose over the sale of indulgences, or prior forgiveness of sins not yet committed, but it unleashed a flood of other pent-up grievances.

This is the core of the crisis. For growing numbers, "threat of hell and bribe of heaven" no longer motivates them as it did their forefathers.

The present rebellion centers largely on the issue of birth control, but it too involves much more than just that. The crisis of 1968 does not compare with that of 1517.

Ivan Karamazov, the character created by the Russian author Dostoyevsky, would seem to be a sort of prototype for today's dissenting Catholic.

At its base is secularism—the concerns of a world that exists as opposed to the demands of a world that is hoped to be.

"What do I care for a hell for oppressors?" he anguished. "What good can hell do, since those children have already been tortured?"

Along this line is a note received from Mrs. Gladys Russell, rather an old-timer of this Twin Falls area. She wrote that for the first time in her 72 years she entered the Magic Valley Hospital for surgery and cancer therapy.

Thus he regretfully and respectfully returned his "entrance ticket" to heaven.

"I can't say I was scared for I knew I was not alone. But it was a new experience for me.

Today's Catholic is not returning his entrance ticket, but he is increasingly questioning the terms and conditions which his church prints on the back of it.

"My doctor, whom I love, every purse or aide and all those who kept everything so immaculate and all those I met in the lab—and even those who prepared my food are to be singled out for praise.

Against this is the Pope's vow that the church will not yield on any matter of faith, whatever the cost.

It was out in the kitchen when I heard such a clatter I sprang to the front room to see what was the matter.

The crisis within the Catholic Church is of an elemental nature. And when elemental forces clash, heaven and earth shake.

The turkey carcass reposed on its sodden greasy platter. Minus breasts, wings and legs—you could tell something was the matter.

Water cranberries lie spattered as they reposed in "deep peace."

Can I boll up the bones and make a kettle of weak soup? No, said my stomach with a nauseating droop.

College and non-student SDS chapters were instructed to actively cooperate in infiltrating high schools and organizing students.

This nationwide drive to subvert high school students was approved at a meeting of the SDS National Council at the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colo., in October.

After much discussion a resolution adopted a resolution of which the following are the principal highlights:

One of the most important divisions of the American educational industry is the high school. This public institution affects the lives of 30 million Americans.

Basic to these are the same tenets and tactics that underlie SDS revolutionary violence, lawlessness and disruption of college campuses.

In Chicago, a high school organizing "conference" was held in the University of Illinois Circle Campus with around 150 attending.

An article titled "High School Reform: A New Student Movement" by Mark Kleinman, identified as a California high school student, and a small leaflet titled "An Introduction: SDS. Our Struggle is Just Commencing."

This so-called Freedom School allegedly was held in Takoma Park, Md., last summer under the auspices of SDS for the purpose of training high school student organizers.

Jonathan Lerner, 20-year-old Anloch College dropout, who attended the Boulder, Colo., conference last October, was in the forefront of SDS high school organizing in the capital's Maryland suburbs.

Further, the site of the conference — the Kay Spiritual Life Center — is under the direction of Reverend Charles R. O'Brien, Methodist, who is a militant "peacenik," civil rights activist and long prominent in SDS-sponsored demonstrations and other activities.

Actually, the university had nothing to do with the affair. As disclosed by this column, the so-called conference was an outgrowth of SDS propaganda scheme.

Further, the site of the conference — the Kay Spiritual Life Center — is under the direction of Reverend Charles R. O'Brien, Methodist, who is a militant "peacenik," civil rights activist and long prominent in SDS-sponsored demonstrations and other activities.

He sometimes forgets to clean his teeth but never his rifle. He keeps his sex dry, his canteen full; he can cook his own meals, fix his own rips—material and mental.

He will share his water with anybody thirsty, spit his rations with anybody hungry and throw you half his ammo if you're fighting for your life.

He does the work of three civilians, draws the pay of one, yet finds ironic humor in it all.

He has learned to use his hands as a weapon and his weapon as his hands.

He's a pink-cheeked, tousle-haired, tight-muscled, 18 fighting to make 10, then he's 19 fighting to make 20.

He doesn't understand fighting no-win wars in unpronounceable names, and he's got our best weapons with fat targets off-limits. He doesn't understand killing Communists in Vietnam and tolerating them in Cuba.

Word from home is almost all about the home-front struggle among the Hanoi Not and the Do Not and the Will Not and the Wash Not and the Work Not and the Nut Not.

So he grumbles sometimes. But then he gets a night's sleep and a letter from home and returns from a patidy patrol still forked-end down and figures he's lucky.

And he closes his eyes and thanks God and says a prayer—for us.

Got His Ear Already?

It's Twilight For Dean Rusk

WASHINGTON—Relations between the Pentagon and Clark Clifford and the State Department's Dean Rusk have now reached a point of bitterness unsurpassed in modern cabinets.

In the twilight days of the Johnson administration, the contrast between the cabinet's two key figures is dramatic. While Secretary of Defense Clifford wheels and deals toward a Vietnam settlement, Secretary of State Rusk sits in the shadows.

As we reported one month ago, the basic reason for the split is Clifford's high-voltage campaign to start troop-withdrawal talks with Hanoi immediately without waiting for a ceasefire protocol to be worked out.

But beneath this surface aspect is a fundamental dispute about the intentions of Hanoi. Clifford, strongly backed by Averell Harriman, believes Hanoi really wants to negotiate a state of mutual troop withdrawal.

Rusk and his allies, which include White House national security chief Walt W. Rostow and the U.S. ambassador in Saigon, Ellsworth Bunker, are far less certain. Moreover, they regard Clifford's repeated criticism of top Saigon politicians as highly destructive to U.S.-Saigon relations and to the stability of the Saigon regime.

The fact that Rusk has said nothing publicly (as of this writing) to refute Clifford does not mean he accepts his line. To the contrary, Rusk has exerted iron-self-control to a point that has amazed his colleagues.

He is taking a longer look down the road, refusing to do anything now that would jeopardize the long-range goal: a stable Southeast Asia immune from Communist expansion. To Rusk's way of thinking, Clifford's public spanking of Saigon is going to make that road infinitely harder.

presumed preeminence in foreign policy. Clifford's verbal takeover as the Administration's chief spokesman has brought no sign of White House rebuke.

Some of Rusk's intimates hint that, if this situation continued long enough and if the Administration were not in its twilight days, Rusk would have to resign. No such dramatic step is ever contemplated, however, at this late stage.

Thus what the country is witnessing is the general disintegration of a steady Administration in its sunset hours, with the established sources of authority no longer under total direction of the White House Oval Office. Making this inevitable is the fact that the new Administration will be Republican.

A Democratic President-elect could settle the Rusk-Clifford policy dispute in a way President Johnson, a lame duck, cannot.

The President's attitude to the Rusk-Clifford dispute is viewed by top aides of Rusk and Clifford in exactly opposite fashion. Rusk men are certain Mr. Johnson intends to hold to a hard line on the Paris talks, giving Saigon every chance to agree to the shape of the negotiations table without undue pressure from Washington.

But Clifford men say the President wants nothing so much as a quick agreement with Hanoi on mutual troop withdrawal, hopefully before he leaves office. The hint: Clifford would not dream of spanking Saigon publicly without White House approval.

Indeed, Clifford holds the high political cards. It was notable, for example, that Sen. John Stennis, a hawk on Vietnam, privately informed the U.S. negotiating team on a recent trip to Paris that, if Saigon tries to stall the talks and hamper progress, he would denounce the Thieu government. The U.S. Stennis said; could not allow itself to be wagged by the Saigon tail.

been the slightest indication that the incoming Nixon foreign policy team is unhappy about Clifford's performance.

What this strongly suggests is that the politicians now read the national mood as fed up with the war and are ready to take the quickest exit, almost any exit, that can be found. This is the mood Clifford has been exploiting and why he is winning his bitter battle against Rusk.

The Red Tide Is Rising

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It has not been publicized here, but Asian officials and China watchers are alarmed and disturbed by a recent step-up in Communist underground activity in six Asian countries.

The puzzling reports come out of Malaysia, northern Burma, the Philippines, Indonesia, Laos, Cambodia. Add the steadily growing North Korean infiltration south and you get a not very optimistic picture for future peace in the area.

Most disturbing of all the reports that indicate that in at least five of the above countries the growing insurgents are led by Chinese Communists.

One of these nations — Malaysia — is so alarmed that its government recently issued a White Paper on the recent expansion of the Communist underground. Terrorism is on the increase. The Reds have made progress in infiltrating labor and student groups. A Chinese general reportedly has been put in charge of the Malaysian operation.

For years, the Burmese Communist units have been torn by internal dissension. Apparently, now there's an attempt to pull rival factions together under orders from Peking.

The Huk movement in the Philippines has been growing recently in Luzon. As in South Vietnam, some areas are government-controlled by day but Communist-ruled by night.

The Huk have now underground control in areas disturbingly close to the major U.S. air base in the Philippines. The Huk are said, in fact, to raise considerable amounts of their financing from profits in businesses patronized by air base personnel.

Considerable new guerrilla activity is taking place on the Thai-Malaysia border. In at least one area in northern Thailand, Chinese are reported to be directing operations.

ports of new infiltration in that part of Laos not occupied by North Vietnamese troops.

Some Asian experts see some sort of a pattern or coordinated effort in these East Asia-wide guerrilla activities. The forecasts seem to increase and disappear in a pattern. Some make sense. Some seem senseless, individually.

The Asia watchers don't know the significance of what seems to be going on now. But there's a feeling it's coordinated with the Vietnam peace talks. Some experts insist it's part of a plan to convince Americans that the situation in Asia is so hopeless we should cut our losses and get out.

MR. SPECTATOR

On A Note Of Praise

This season of the year, everyone seems to be happier than usual. The smiles are a little broader, the waves a little longer and the "hello" is louder.

All in all it is a great season for most people so we will go along with that.

"I can't say I was scared for I knew I was not alone. But it was a new experience for me.

"I just want to say God bless every one of them and may God look down and give them the blessed peace they so richly deserve."

Which leaves Mr. Spectator not too much to say except—isn't that a nice note for this time of year?

Can I boll up the bones and make a kettle of weak soup? No, said my stomach with a nauseating droop.

Soggy dressing, graying creamed onions and a dish of cold spuds, Yesterday's delicious gilet gravy resembled a dish of cold mud; The oven spattered with grease, you'll have to work like a dunce, The whole miserable mess looked like it had "been ate once."

Water cranberries lie spattered as they reposed in "deep peace."

You knock yourselves out to cook, then gorge yourselves with food, Our stomach rebels—the Tom and Jerries did no good. You need all that stuff like you need a hole in your head. You feel like the dickens and wish you wore dent.

Come pop, come all the neighbors, come old pooch Bessie. You're all on K.P., see if you can make it less messy! A few take the kitchen and a few the front room, I'll supervise the deal and furnish dishpan and broom.

One consoling thought, folks, there are only 365 days. For you to rest up and drift into your old ways. Then all of a sudden, and it will come like a blow, Wherever in hell did 1968 go?

Then again there's shopping, gift wrapping the old headache once more. It's a true vicious circle that all creatures adore— We all have to admit, we think it's a ball; So from me to you, God bless you and Happy New Year to all.

... Ada M. Journey Gooding

Children Of Pueblo Crew Are Happy

By DON HORINE

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "I like this Christmas best of all — my daddy's back," said Janice Lacy, 8-year-old daughter of CWO Geop Howard Lacy. And several other children of Pueblo crewmen nodded agreement.

Neither Janice nor her sister Melissa has missed the pretty presents that lay unopened under Christmas trees in their home at Seattle, Wash.

"I like my necklace," Melissa said Friday of the jewelry Lacy bought Christmas morning in the San Diego Navy Hospital store. "I like being here with daddy."

Of the 400 relatives who arrived for Christmas Eve reunion in San Diego with the freed Pueblo crewmen, only nine families had left by Friday. The Pueblo men are undergoing medical tests and debriefing following their 11 months as captives of North Korea. Their families came from as far as Japan and the Philippines.

Elaine Wood, 4, skipped across a carpet in the playroom set up Thursday by Red Cross volunteers in El Cortez Hotel, where most of the dependents are staying.

Elaine's 11-month-old sister has seen her father, Elton A. Wood of Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash., for the first time. "I missed him," Jimmy Bouden, 7, said of his father, Ralph Bouden of Washington, D.C. Jimmy is spending his school's Christmas vacation in San Diego because "I wanted to see my dad."

Sonja Peppard, 10, of Bremerton, Wash., said she would have come home "if I missed my daddy." Sonja's father, Donald R. Peppard, is a communications technician first class like Jimmy's dad.

It's daddy different from when they last saw him.

Michael Lacy, 11, brother of Janice and Melissa, said with a grin, "He's kind of skinny."

Johnson Says Demos Must Continue To Meet Problems As Majority Party

By JAMES R. POLK

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says Democrats cannot turn away from election losses and take a four-year breather, but instead must continue to meet problems as the nation's majority party.

Johnson asked fellow Democrats to back the Nixon administration when it offers sound and acceptable programs—and to take the initiative when it doesn't.

"As the Republicans told me often enough, no political party has a monopoly on ideas," the departing President said. "It's up to us now to show them how right they were."

He noted the White House defeat did not strip Democrats of their majority control of both houses of Congress and added:

"Our course of action is clear. We must continue acting like a majority party and a responsive party."

Writing a farewell message in a party publication, The Democrats, Johnson suggested to Democrats a code of political conduct that paralleled his own six years as Senate majority leader the last time Republicans occupied the White House.

The President said, "Whenever the new administration proposes sound and acceptable programs—either foreign or domestic—we should support them."

"But when we feel that the administration is moving too slowly in certain areas—or not moving at all—the Democrats must take the initiative, just as we did in the 1950s. Johnson said Democrats should shun the idea that the opposition's job is simply to oppose.

"We have lost a presidential election. But this is not a signal for us to begin fighting a holding action, or an excuse to take a breather. Nor can we afford to spend the next four years in partisan sniping," Johnson wrote.

He said Democrats must remain a progressive party, one of ideas and one that is open in particular to the concerned youth of today.

Without mentioning antiwar dissent, Johnson said, "We must make room in our ranks for the millions of dedicated and concerned young men and women who want to make their voices heard."

Ride Again

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The all-Negro "Buffalo Soldiers," famed Indian fighters of the 1800s, will ride again New Year's Day in the Rose Parade.

Fourteen Negroes interested in black military history will ride in the parade dressed in the uniforms of the 10th Cavalry.

The all-black regiment served in the West from 1868 until World War II, when it was renamed and re-equipped as a tank and mechanized infantry outfit. The present members of the historical-equestrian group are veterans of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and many fought in World War II and Korea.

Lady Bird Reflects On 5 Years

By TOM SEPPY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Looking back on five years in the White House, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson says the "most eroding and painful thing about this job" is the straining of relations between old friends caused by presidential decisions.
"Not necessarily just old friends, but with different segments of the United States," says the 30th first lady of the United States. "Because there must be a bill, a program, on which not only might be on one side and not all the wrong on the other."
"But there comes a time when you don't have the luxury of discussion or evaluation or an attempt to change it anymore, adjust it, or make it more palatable. And — and that is the hardest thing here, I think."
Mrs. Johnson reminisced about her years in the White House in an interview with Howard K. Smith taped for TV broadcast Friday night over the American Broadcasting Co. network.
Mrs. Johnson gave some intimate glimpses into the relationship between the President and herself, reviewed some of the official ceremonies held at the White House and told of her involvement in conservation and educational programs.

Cardinal Cushing Puts Off Retiring

BOSTON (AP) — Richard Cardinal Cushing, 73, who said in October he would retire at the end of this year, announced Friday night he will not retire until he is 75 years old.
He said on Oct. 25 that he was advancing his retirement date because of criticism he said he received on his views on the marriage of Jacqueline Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis.
His latest word came after a caller asked on WEEI's "Nightline" talk program why nothing more had been heard of the October announcement.
Cardinal Cushing called a few minutes later and announced that James Westover asked if he had any official word on his proposed retirement.
"Nothing doing," Cushing replied. "I have to wait until I'm 75."
He explained that a bishop cannot retire without permission of the Pope.
"I propose to retire Aug. 24, 1970, when I'll be 75 years old," he added. "But even then I cannot retire unless the Holy Father approves."

Heavy Snow Grips Parts Of Britain

LONDON (AP) — Heavy snow and shivering cold gripped parts of Britain Saturday and air force helicopters had to fly food and blankets to villages and motorists in Yorkshire and Lincolnshire.
Snow and cold wind whipped north and central and eastern France. A thin layer of snow covered Paris. The temperature dipped to below freezing in the usually balmy Riviera.
Northern areas of Britain were hit by the worst winter conditions in 23 years. Hundreds of persons were cut off in snow-bound villages and cars were abandoned on blocked roads.
London was blanketed by a brief snowfall but the capital and some other regions got their sunshine later in the day.
Parts of Yorkshire were buried under drifts up to eight feet high. Aberdeen airport in Scotland was closed because airport firemen on a semistrike refused to clear snow from the runways.
Snowplows cleared drifts for an ambulance to reach a snow-bound inn near Scarborough to rush an expectant mother to hospital.
More than half the soccer games in Britain were postponed and all horse racing was cancelled.
Driving was risky on slippery roads.

McCormack Supporters Say He Has Enough Votes To Squelch Ouster Try

By EDMOND LEBRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of House Speaker John W. McCormack say he has enough firmly pledged votes to squelch an attempt to oust him as presiding officer and chief of the Democratic party in the House.
But other Democrats associated with Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona in his challenge to the speaker insist they have a fair chance of prevailing when the secret vote is taken in the Democratic caucus Jan. 2, the day before Congress reconvenes.
Still others say the likely outcome will be re-election of the 77-year-old Massachusetts congressman but with pledges on his part to put into effect some elements of Udall's platform and perhaps to step down voluntarily when the 81st Congress leaves office in 1971.
McCormack partisans say that before and after Udall issued his appeal Thursday for a caucus, Udall said in his letter to Democratic members that he would view the initial vote between McCormack and himself as a sort of referendum on whether there should be a change. If he prevailed, he promised, he would call for a second vote in which others might be considered for the top leadership post.
McCormack has refused any public comment.
Two members who have been discussed as possible successors to the present speaker, Majority Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma and Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas both have told associates they will not allow their names to be put up in any way that would imply opposition to McCormack, both are expected to support him actively in the caucus.
McCormack is described as having practically unanimous support of Southern Democrats and important help from the deans of several big-state delegations.

Czech Invasion By Reds Overshadows Succession Of European Money Crises

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia sent a shudder across Europe that will reverberate long into the new year.
The August invasion overshadowed a succession of European monetary and social crises. Some will continue to plague the continent in the new year. And West Germany's growing economic ascendancy may presage a shift in Western Europe's power balance away from France.
French university students, whose riots in early May sparked six weeks of social and industrial strife, have been showing signs of renewed militancy. Student unrest and how to handle it were problems facing government leaders from Dublin to Warsaw and from Stockholm to Rome.
An Associated Press survey of Europe showed these hopes and fears for the future:
Britain—Prime Minister Harold Wilson has promised the country 1969 will bring the first surplus since 1962 to enable a start on repayment of the huge sums borrowed from foreign bankers to defend the pound. The British people hope it will also mean a loosening of the belt-tightening austerity in effect more or less since July 1966.
Soviet Russia—The Soviet Union will continue in 1969 to try to picture its invasion of Czechoslovakia as a Communist family affair and hopes that some other Communist parties will have gotten over their dismay in time to side with Moscow in a world Communist conference in the Soviet capital next May. The Kremlin wants to re-establish authority in a Communist world rent by the feud with China and independent tendencies in some parties within and outside the Communist bloc.
Soviet officials are pushing for disarmament and missile limitation talks with the United States but they plan to boost military spending and probably will alarm some Western nations with stepped up naval activity.
France—Charles de Gaulle faces two immediate new year's challenges: a successful conclusion to a save-the-franc economic program of austerity and an orderly application of a far-reaching university reform program. On the international front, no change is expected in his great design of becoming the pivot between East and West.
West Germany—National elections will be held in September. The coalition government, grouping the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats, must be under increasing strains as the ballot nears. The national economy is booming and the coalition intends to keep it that way. A major 1969 issue: the government must decide whether to extend beyond next year the statute of limitations on war crimes.
Italy—With a new center-left coalition government, Italy faces the threat that renewed student and labor unrest may hamper the country's prospects for increased prosperity.
Iberian Peninsula—There were signs of moves toward greater freedom in Portugal under Prime Minister Marcello Caetano. Many Portuguese hope this will develop further in 1969.
Spain, vaguely defined moves were reported toward permitting formation of political groups within the framework of the National Movement, the only political organization now permitted. Many Spaniards were wondering if this presaged any greater freedom. More serious candidates for the speaker's office were discussed as possible successors to the present speaker, Majority Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma and Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas both have told associates they will not allow their names to be put up in any way that would imply opposition to McCormack, both are expected to support him actively in the caucus.

Anti-Flea Items Can 'Bug' People

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Those anti-flea items may keep the bugs off Fido, but some of them can cause irritations to pet owners, two Atlanta skin specialists say.

The doctors reported tracing irritations in four humans to petting or handling of dogs wearing flea collars.

War-Spawned Inflation Will Dominate Economy In 1969

By TOM STEWART
WASHINGTON (AP) — The war-spawned inflation that could be kicked out by the Johnson administration in 1969 will continue to dominate the fever chart of the U.S. economy in 1969.
Even when a sizable fraction of 1968 had yet to unfold, Chairman Arthur M. Okun of the Council of Economic Advisors sized up the coming year as a rough one.
"If there was ever to be a year of bills for the American economy," he said in a looking-ahead speech, "it will not be 1969."
The new year Okun sketched for his listeners—and his guesses tally with those of many economists and businessmen of both parties—features a slowing down of economic activity to the loss of inflationary pace in the first half, followed by a pickling up from midyear on.
Planned for and induced by the Johnson administration as an inflation buster, the deceleration intended to be a slow one—not a halting of the rate of expansion.
The 1968 growth of the Gross National Product—market value of all of the nation's goods and services—from $700 billion to an estimated $800 billion represented an increase of 14 per cent but "real" growth, far too hot by the administration's yardstick.
Okun, for instance, has pointed to "anything between 1 and 3 per cent" as the target for the period up to mid-1969.
With prices rising at the fastest rate since the Korean war, the administration went to the mat twice with big business in 1968 to spike price hikes it felt would worsen the situation. Bethlehem Steel and Chrysler Corp. yielded to White House muscle and rolled back part of their new price schedules.
But these were relatively minor skirmishes. The administration planned its hopes in the inflation battle mainly on the 10 per cent income tax surcharge that began pinching the flow of money into consumers' pockets books last July.
While President-elect Nixon said during the campaign the surtax would be scrapped if he got in, the betting is better than even that he will ask to have it extended beyond its scheduled expiration date, June 30, though perhaps at a rate less than 10 per cent.
When the surtax was slapped on, many observers expected dramatic and speedy dampening of consumer demand, followed by production cutbacks and a rise in the number of jobless.
But it has proved a study in slow motion, some critics writing it off as a flop.
"Instead of being red hot," the newsletter of the National League of Insured Savings Associations said, "the economy has become white hot, and the prophets can't point to anything now that might slow it down."
But most business spokesmen haven't given up on the surtax. They see emerging in early 1969, months behind schedule, the cooling off they have been watching for since fall.
They look for smaller wage gains for labor, tighter profit margins for business and some rising of unemployment, currently at a 15-year low.
While few forecasters predict an end to the Vietnam war in 1969, the belief that it will become quieter and less costly is widespread.
Labor may not react docilely to tighter wage gains if they materialize. Even with first-year wage increases averaging above 7 per cent in major contracts negotiated in 1968, the year had more than the usual number of man-days lost to strikes.
Housing starts are expected to top 1.6 million units in 1969, up 8 to 10 per cent from 1968, when sales didn't seem to suffer from mortgage rates averaging above 7 per cent.
Willingness of borrowers to be saddled with loans at high interest was cited repeatedly by economists as evidence that "inflation psychology" was getting into the public's blood, leading to decisions to "buy now" in the belief things can only get worse in the future.
"This kind of thinking has gone pretty far" and overconfidence is a "formidable challenge" the new administration faces, said Guy E. Noyes, senior vice president of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.

Bucher Says Confession Was False

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher has told authorities he signed a false confession admitting his spy ship Pueblo was in North Korean waters only after the North Koreans threatened to kill his crew, the report was reported today.
Bucher's report includes detailed information on North Korean threats to shoot the 81 surviving members of his crew one by one if he did not sign the confession.
The report was tape recorded at the San Diego Naval Hospital where the Pueblo crew was taken after its release last week. It was forwarded to the State Department at the request of Secretary Dean Rusk.
Department officials said they were looking into every possible action that could be taken to bring the North Korean treatment of the Pueblo crew to world attention.
The Bucher report is part of the investigation President Johnson ordered into North Korean brutality which Bucher and the crew reported after their release last Monday.

Political Point Of View

By L. James Koutnik

Well, if is the end of another year, which automatically qualifies all columnists to make predictions of things to come, Joan Dixon does it by looking at the stars, or intuition, or something, but we political observers like to base ours on what we think is just plain common sense and a feeling of political acumen that comes from knowing most of the people involved.

On the state level, the future is particularly bright. The legislature that will go into session Jan. 13 is probably the best the State of Idaho ever had. Never have we had a group where there were more people who are interested in the entire state and its progress than we have at this time. Many previous Idaho legislatures have been pretty thoroughly sailed with people who represented not only their own interests, but frequently their own pocket-books.

Now we have an experienced, public-minded group, which, thankfully, is receiving adequate pay so the legislators devote a great deal of time between sessions to state problems.

Our legislators have never been more familiar with the operations of each of the various state bureaus and agencies than has this new, incoming body. We don't think anyone is going to pull the wool over their eyes in an attempt to expand a department bureaucratically with no basis or value to the people. Neither do we think that any of the state administrative officials will be able to bamboozle these legislators into thinking that they are performing more efficiently than they really are.

You are going to see a lot of gubernatorial candidates develop this time also. The Democrats have at least three that are early front-runners, including Cecil Andrus, Vern Ravnecraft and John Evans.

The Republicans have probably a dozen people who would make outstanding governors and the members of the legislature are fully aware of their talents.

Some names that come to mind and some of them who aren't too vigorous about promoting their own interest now are: Ray Lincoln of Twin Falls; newly elected Supreme Court Justice Allan Shepard; former State Sen. Bill Roden; former Ada County Prosecutor and now State Sen. Wayne Kidwell; former Senate Pro Tem R. H. "Bill" Young of Nampa, and Pat Harwood, a former state legislator.

Let's not sell Pete Cenarrusa short, as he hasn't been short-circuited by his appointment as Secretary of State.

And last but not least let's not forget George Hansen. Don't overlook the fact that George and Gov. Samuelson were not the friendliest of bedfellows in the recent election.

Bad Move

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Three bandits robbed Phillip Maxwell of a bulky bag Friday as he was walking to the computer room of Tyson and Meek accountants. The bag contained $2 million in non-negotiable canceled checks from a local bank.

Hunter Meek said, "The thieves see the armored cars coming up here and think we've got a bunch of money. Actually we don't have a nickel."

Meek said the checks had been microfilmed at the bank and there will be no loss.

Dyan Reported 'Most Popular'

TEL AVIV (AP) — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan's popularity is rising steadily, and 60 per cent of the Israeli public would like to see him premier, a public opinion poll reports.

Only 20 per cent of those questioned said they preferred Premier Levi Eshkol to Dayan.

Among the sound legislation that you might possibly expect to come from his 40th legislature, will be a sound teachers' salary program that will enable Idaho to get back into the good graces of the national teachers organizations and one that will attract and keep a highest type of teacher than they have been able to in the past.

You will also see a consolidation of many of the state's various "do-gooder" organizations, including the various welfare agencies, under one administration. Probably, the various welfare groups come in for more criticism than any other type of agency in the state.

The election laws are sure to be revised and it is long overdue. The Constitution Revision Committee has submitted its report and we can probably expect to see a series of sound constitutional recommendations come before the electors or a constitutional convention. Actually, we feel that in total the Idaho State Legislature will have a far better record behind it than will the U.S. Congress.

This brings us to the new administration and we are just

We are sure also that Congress will probably go very slow on all new programs. This is not only because the administration is inclined this way, but Congress itself is desirous of slowing up a bit to see where they have gone so far.

our observation that Idaho will have a solid progressive year with its state government and that nationally we are going to have a period with steady hands, trying not to rock the boat and giving the public an opportunity to reassess and assimilate what has taken place in the past eight years.

In conclusion, it would be

Apollo's Success Spurs Efforts For Landing On Moon

By JIM STROTTHMAN
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 8's trail-blazing flight around the moon has given space planners a firm foothold to try for a moon landing in the next few months—maybe April or May.

One major piece of Apollo hardware still remains to be qualified, the lunar module spacecraft that will taxi future astronauts from a three-man Apollo craft in lunar orbit to the moon's surface.

That four-legged lunar lander is to get its first manned space test about Feb. 20 during Apollo 9, next three-man mission, Apollo 9.

If the lunar module performs perfectly in earth orbit on Apollo 9, astronauts conceivably could land on the moon on the following flight, Apollo 10, in April or May.

Present plans for Apollo 10—to be flown by a three-man crew headed by veteran astronaut Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford—call for the pilots to fly a moon orbit mission in which the lunar module separates from a three-man Apollo spacecraft and approaches within 10 miles of the surface, but does not land.

"Our present plans are to not commit Apollo 10 for a landing," said Air Force Lt. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program director. However, "we might want to exercise a more ambitious option," he noted, as was done when the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) decided to send Apollo 8 around the moon.

The first lunar landing mission is now expected by Apollo 11, next May or June. Astronauts have not yet been assigned for that flight.

The particular lunar module assigned to Apollo 10 does not have fuel tanks with enough capacity and weighs too much for a lunar landing. So if a decision is made to fly the Apollo 10 crew to the moon's surface, another lunar module would have to be assigned to the mission, Phillips pointed out.

Television will continue to be an important factor in the space flights.

Thursday it gave a glimpse of three explorers returning home as the last of six scheduled TV broadcasts from Apollo 8 was made at an altitude of 112,000 miles. It showed the sunlit side of the earth, including North and South America, covered by numerous clouds.

Apollo 8 television is completed, but as Borman told earthlings, "Stay tuned in."

There will be flights and rendezvous and earth orbits, he said.

Apollo 9 in February may include a live telecast of astronaut Russell L. Schweickart walking in space from the lunar module back to the three-man Apollo craft. With him in Apollo 9 will be Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and Lt. Col. David R. Scott.

And television cameras will also be aboard on the following missions—including the lunar landing itself.

John Glenn May Reconsider Role As Politician

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Former astronaut John Glenn Jr. is thinking of a second try at Ohio politics, the state Democratic chairman says.

Glenn entered the Democratic senatorial primary in 1964 but withdrew after suffering a head injury in a bathroom fall. Sen. Stephen M. Young, the Democratic incumbent, has indicated he will not run in 1970, and Gov. James A. Rhodes, a Republican, is barred by state law from seeking reelection in that year.

Eugene P. O'Grady, the state chairman, declined comment on whether Glenn, the first American to orbit the Earth, would seek the State House or the Senate seat.

Bob Hope Ends Christmas Tour

KHORAT AIR BASE, Thailand (AP) — Bob Hope ended his Christmas visit to Southeast Asia today with two shows in Thailand and the remark, "I hope we don't have to come back again under conditions of war."

"When you walk through these hospitals and see the casualties—the different bugs, the end of this war would really brighten this world up," Hope said.

Idaho Falls Girl Dies In Blizzard

ISLAND PARK, Idaho (AP) — An 18-year-old Idaho Falls girl, huddled in a snow cave, died of exposure while her companion struggled through a blizzard to get help Saturday morning, officials said.

Dennis K. Norman, 19, Idaho Falls, staggered into a service station near the Montana border north of Island Park, Idaho, authorities said, and reported he had left Mary Ellen Barnes in a shelter they dug in the snow. Supervisor Steve Brunt of the Idaho Falls port of entry said searchers returned to the area and found the girl's body.

Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Barnes, parents of the girl, had reported the youths were missing when they failed to return from a skiing trip at a resort near Jackson, Wyo.

Brunt quoted Norman as saying he and the girl had been traveling in car Friday night, but abandoned it when it became stuck during the blizzard. The youth said they dug a cave in the snow and he asked Miss Barnes to remain there while he went for help. Brunt reported.

'Vanishing' Fish Worry Icelanders

By LYNN HEINZERLING Associated Press Writer

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — This is not the snow-encrusted home of Santa Claus as so many third graders believe. It is the home of the cod and the herring and it is in deep trouble. The herring, which have been swimming in Icelandic fisheries by the millions for years, have headed for unknown shores. Iceland without herring is like Pittsburgh without steel and industry. The Icelanders, some of them descendants of Vikings, are worried about their cozy standard of living.

Fish, and especially herring — fresh, frozen, dried, pickled, smoked or ground into meal — are normally 90 to 95 per cent of Iceland's exports. In the past two years, fish exports have dropped 45 per cent. This year, the herring catch is expected to be only one sixth of the 895,000 tons captured in 1967.

The national reserves of foreign exchange have plummeted to $12 million from $50 million. There have been two devaluations of money since November 1967.

Add all that to Iceland's winter, when a day is limited to three or four hours of surly light, and you might think the Icelanders were ready to throw up their hands.

Not the Icelanders. There are only 300,000 of them, descendants of people who have been clinging to this rocky, volcanic island since Ingolfur Arnarson, the first settler, arrived from Norway in 871.

They intend to stay. After all, says Dr. Gylfi Gissarson, minister of education and trade, "The charm of a flower does not depend on its magnitude, nor the beauty of a piece of music on the number of instruments that play it."

To stay hasn't been easy. There have been 150 eruptions from 30 volcanoes since Ingolfur arrived; the Icelanders expect one about every five years. About 6 per cent of Iceland's 40,000 square miles is covered by lava fields. Another 12 per cent is covered by glaciers and 84 per cent by water wastes.

Earthquakes are common. The earth under parts of Iceland bubbles and gurgles with huge pockets of boiling water, mud and steam. Most of Reykjavik's 80,000 inhabitants enjoy central heating with hot water piped from the springs.

Reykjavik is a pleasant architectural blend of very old buildings, some of corrugated iron, solid structures of the early 1900s and glassy, modern apartments, schools and hotels.

The next most important town is Akureyri, a fishing port and commercial center in the north, not far from the Arctic Circle.

"In the back of most minds here," one Reykjavik businessman said, "is the thought of earthquakes, volcanoes and ice — ice drifting down from the Arctic in such masses that all Iceland could be surrounded and cut off."

Also in most minds in Iceland is the fact that the country has been completely free of Norwegian and Danish rule for only 50 years. Anything which might make Iceland dependent on another nation is repellent.

But emigration is not thought of. The gloom of winter is replaced each year by equally long days of sunshine, clear skies and gorgeous solar colors.

And, until recently, the Icelanders have been catching more fish per person than any other nation — about six tons per person each year. The standard of living has been high thanks to the herring. Nearly every home has a telephone and a radio.

The 180 automobiles for every 1,000 inhabitants are almost matched by television sets. About 90 per cent of the homes and apartments are owned by their occupants. There is a sense of self-reliance.

Taxi drivers, barbers, porters and waiters refuse tips. "No thanks," one taxi driver said, "I'm doing all right." Icelanders make a point of telling you that their language is so pure they are unable to speak or understand any of the Scandinavian languages although some words sound familiar.

Visitors find the Iceland telephone book a little confusing. The names are listed under subscribers' first names. There are five pages of "Jon." The following surnames are listed alphabetically.

Each generation gets new surnames. For example, the son of Johann Sigurdsson would receive a Christian name chosen by the parents, but his surname could only be Johannsson — the son of Johann.

If the Christian name given the child were Jon, Johann Sigurdsson's grandson would have the surname Jonsson.

If Johann Sigurdsson had a daughter, her surname automatically would be Johannsdottir, for daughter of Johann. Succeeding sons or daughters would receive the same surnames of Johannsson or Johannsdottir, but different Christian names.

A woman does not take her husband's name when she marries, but carries on as Mrs. Johannsdottir or Mrs. Jonsdottir, as the case may be.

Most outsiders have an exaggerated idea about the weather. Actually, the average temperature for January in Reykjavik is 30; girls wear miniskirts all winter. The reindeer in eastern Iceland were imported originally from Norway.

Changeable weather makes farming hazardous and farmers grow mostly potatoes and hay for their livestock. The hot spring water heats greenhouses for tomatoes and other vegetables.

There are no trains, but Iceland has developed an efficient plane service to all main points. Some farmers even ship their sheep carcasses to Reykjavik by plane.

Iceland has no army, navy or air force and only 400 unarmed policemen — one for every 300 Icelanders. There are only about 40 cells available in Reykjavik.

If somebody drinks too much Brennivin and there is no cell for him, police just drive him home. Brennivin is made from potatoes.

Iceland had prohibition in 1915-21. It was relaxed because the government wanted to export fish to Spain and Spain didn't have much to offer except wine.

Stock Market Declines On Light Volume

NEW YORK (AP) — Caution about the outlook and year-end selling accompanied another stock market decline last week on very light volume.

The week's turnover sank to 45.4 million shares from 66.2 million the week before and was the smallest since the week ended Aug. 31, when 39.0 million shares changed hands.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a loss of 14.48 at 952.51.

Since Nov. 20 when it closed at 985.98 the closely watched barometer has sunk 32.57 points instead of soaring to "new" heights as many in Wall Street had confidently expected.

Unexpected boosts in interest rates, tightening credit and fears of a "money crunch" such as accompanied the 250-point plunge of the Dow in 1967 were thought to be the major factors in this year's decline from near-record heights. As the year drew near its end, puzzlement over what business and the market will really face in 1969 brought extreme caution. The light volume of this week was one reflection of this.

The Associated Press average of 40 stocks fell 3.9 to 359.5. Of 1,708 issues traded during the week, declines outnumbered advances by 1,052 to 657.

Wall Street's holding forward to Monday and Tuesday as institutional investors such as mutual funds and others go through their habitual reinvestment switching buying and selling maneuvers to make their portfolios look better for their annual financing. Prices were sold "regular way" right to the end of the year for purposes of reporting losses on 1968 tax returns.

The five most active issues this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

- Norwich Pharmaceutical, up 1/4 at 46 1/2 on 766,000 shares; Glen Ald, off 1/4 at 19 1/2; Lehigh Valley Industries, up 1/4 at 14 1/2; INA Corp., off 3/4 at 49 1/4; and Loew's Theatres, unchanged at 50.

Government bond prices continued to slide during the Christmas holiday week, reflecting the Federal Reserve's tight credit policies.

Most short-term interest rates rose sharply during the week, although long-term rates, except for departments of the market the previous week, tended to stabilize.

In the corporate market, the holiday week was marked by a lack of any significant new financing. Prices were mixed and there were occasional periods of strength.

Interest Rates Increase, But Credit Crunch Not Foreseen

By JACK LEFLER
Ap Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates are going higher but some economists say they don't expect another credit crunch such as gripped the economy in 1966.

Rates for short-term Treasury bills and bankers' acceptance rates to record levels this past week.

These moves followed increases as the previous week in the Federal Reserve Board's discount rate — the interest it charges on loans to member banks and in commercial banks' prime rate — the interest charged to their biggest and most credit-worthy borrowers.

The average rate of return on short-term Treasury bills — sold to finance government operations — climbed to record levels.

The average rate of return on 13-week bills rose to 6.278 per cent from 5.96 per cent the previous week.

Rates for bankers' acceptance rates also went to record levels, touching at high as 9 1/2 per cent bid. Acceptances are bills to finance the import, export, transfer or storage of goods. They are deemed accepted when a bank guarantees their payment at maturity.

The current rise in interest rate has aroused apprehension that there could be a repetition of the 1966 credit crunch — a tightening of available lending money. At that time home sales fell as mortgage loan applications were rejected, corporate mergers and acquisitions slowed as financing became less available and unemployment rose as credit for automobile purchases and factory construction dwindled.

The same economists see a tightening of the money situation but not to the proportions of a crunch.

The Commerce Department said this past week that despite government efforts to slow the economy's rate of inflationary expansion there will be a sizable increase in the gross national product — total of all goods and services — in the fourth quarter of this year.

The increase was calculated at about $1.1 billion — much the same as the surprising gain in the third quarter after imposition of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

A strike by 60,000 dock workers tied up hundreds of ocean freighters in ports from Mexico to Texas. It was estimated the

Burley Police Blotter
A counterfeit $1 bill was reported found in a change machine at Ore-Ida Foods plant by plant personnel. The bill was turned over to the Burley Police Department, and investigation is continuing. The counterfeit bill was a photostatic copy of both sides of a real $1 bill which had been glued together. There was just the one counterfeit bill found in the machine and apparently the machine did not return change for the bill.

Allégation Of High Crime Is Leveled By Man
Editor, Times-News:

In reference to Mrs. Enright's article in the Times-News forum, Sunday, Dec. 22, I am sure Mrs. Enright has not suffered the grief my family and I suffered the evening of Oct. 18, 1965, when our 14-year-old son was brutally killed by a motorist while crossing the street near his home.

And then, the humiliation on March 14, 1966, at the hearing of this case my family and I were denied admission into the court of which we pay taxes to support, by the law and law enforcement department of this city and county.

And the anxiety and expense my family and I suffered for two long years of being denied any access to the court records of testimony given in this case.

I am sure Mrs. Enright has never encountered a bureaucracy like this and I am sure if larger cities had this caliber of law, the crime rate would be three times as high.

West Stars Use Passing To Defeat Easterners 18-7 In Shrine Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Louis Thomas of Utah recovered a fumble on the East 13-yard line in the second quarter, setting up the go-ahead touchdown. The West went on to defeat the East 18-7 in the 44th annual Shrine College Football Game Saturday.

The fumble came after Nebraska's Joe Armstrong punted to the East 23-yard line, where Ed Podolak of Iowa was jarred loose from the ball and Thomas recovered it in the air and was downed at the 13.

Two plays later, West quarterback Ron Johnson of Oklahoma State hit Thomas with a pass at the one-yard line. Two plays after that, Johnson felt across the goal for the go-ahead touchdown.

That made the score 12-7 midway through the second period and it stood that way in a bruising defensive battle until, with 3:52 left in the game, Johnson found Starbuck's Gene Washington in the end zone with a 20-yard pass.

The East scored first when Podolak, playing quarterback, found that despite a backfield of potent runners—Purdue's Leroy Keyes, Michigan's Ron Johnson and Army's Charlie Jarvis, he could do better himself.

Podolak, who was a running back-jumper at Iowa this year, played all three positions in this game. He gained 39 yards on three keepers. Then after Michigan's Johnson brought the ball to within a foot of the goal line, Podolak bulled over for the score, giving the East a 7-0 lead.

The West came back on a 27-yard pass from Brooks Dawson of Texas-El Paso to Washington and a brilliant 33-yard reception by Wyoming's Gene Huey, who broke three tackles to get to the East line.

Three plays later, Huey made a diving catch of a five-yard Dawson pass in the end zone. California's Ron Miller missed the extra point.

After the West moved out front with a touchdown in the second quarter, Nebraska's Coach Bob Devaney elected to have his squad try for a two-point conversion.

Dawson hit Washington with a pass, but Washington was tackled short of the goal line, and the half ended 12-7.

After the third touchdown, Miller tried to kick the extra point again, and this time the ball hit the upright and bounced away.

National Title Rides On Final Score Of USC-Ohio State Battle

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California, led by the great O.J. Simpson, takes on the rugged Ohio State Buckeyes for the national collegiate football championship Wednesday in the grand finale of one of the best series of New Year's Day Bowl games ever.

Eight of the first nine teams in the nation will clash head-on in the Rose, Orange, Sugar and Cotton bowls—with the collision of top-ranked Ohio State and second-ranked Southern California in the 55th Rose Bowl Classic the topper of a 9-hour feast for football television fans.

The eight teams involved have lost a total of four games and no team has lost more than one. This has happened only once before, in the 1941 games.

The New Year's Day pairings with starting times (EST) and television networks:

Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif.—Ohio State, No. 1, 10-0, vs. Southern California, No. 2, 9-0-1, NBC 5 p.m.

Orange Bowl, Miami, Fla.—Penn State, No. 3, 10-0, vs. Kansas, No. 6, 9-1, NBC, 8 p.m.

Sugar Bowl, New Orleans, Georgia, No. 4, 6-2, vs. Arkansas, No. 9, 9-1, NBC, 2 p.m.

Cotton Bowl, Dallas-Texas, No. 5, 8-1-1, Tennessee, No. 8, 8-1-1, ABC, 2 p.m.

There will be two games earlier in the week, one on Monday and the other on Tuesday, to get television fans' eyeballs prepared for Wednesday.

Florida State, 8-2, and 10th ranked, will meet unranked but formidable Louisiana State, 7-3, in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta, Ga. Monday, 8 p.m., EST game will be telecast by Sports Network.

On Tuesday, 10th ranked Oklahoma, 7-3, and led by ranked running Steve Owens, takes on Southern Methodist's aerial circus in the Bluebonnet Bowl in the Houston Astrodome, 7:30 p.m., Sports Network TV, SMU, 7-3, is ranked 20th.

Seventh-ranked Notre Dame, 7-3, which ruined Southern California's perfect record and knocked the Trojans out of the No. 1 spot with a 21-21 tie, is the only team in the Top Ten out of bowl action. The Irish do not participate in post-season games.

The favorites include Florida State, 6½ points; Oklahoma 12½; Ohio State 3; Penn State 2½; Texas 6½; and Georgia 7.

Because of the close battle for top honors between Southern California and Ohio State and because they were matched in the Rose Bowl game, The Associated Press decided to hold a final poll after the New Year's Day games.

The Buckeyes, naturally, will key on Simpson, the Heisman Trophy winner who set a season's record of 1,709 yards rushing. Notre Dame held O.J. to 35 yards, keeping the breakthrough back to the inside.

Coach Woody Hayes of Ohio State and his staff have almost worn out the film of that game

Hot Skyline Overhauls Burley 68-58

BURLEY—Revolving on the inside-outside scoring punch of Rich Rennie and Daw, the Skyline Grizzlies exploded away in the second half Friday night to defeat the Burley Bobcats 68-58 in an Eastern Idaho Conference game.

Daw tormented the Bobcats with uncanny accuracy on 14 to 16-foot jump shots all night and Rennie, a left-handed, wheeled inside on an assortment of short hooks and fade away jumpers. Rennie wound up with 20 points and 10 rebounds.

Burley, getting a good start from Greg Bunn, who hit his season average of 24 points, jumped in front 20-15 in a hot-shooting display in the first quarter. But Skyline proved the better team than on an amazing Burley for 24 points in the second quarter and 21 more in the third period.

Burley fell behind late in the second period but managed to stay within easy hitting distance.

Auburn Intercepts Eight Arizona Passes En Route To 34-10 Sun Bowl Win

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Auburn's second-half explosion as the Sun Bowl game opened in the third quarter for a 34-10 Sun Bowl victory.

Auburn reserve quarterback Tommy Traylor sparked the Tiger's second-half explosion as he ran four times in five plays, capping his brief performance with a nine-yard touchdown scamper with 3:15 remaining in the quarter.

Less than half a minute later, Auburn's defensive back Buddy McClinton grabbed a Bruce Lee pass and ran 32 yards for the touchdown. It was Lee's third interception of the day, as he gained most valuable player honors for this 34th annual Sun Bowl contest.

In a pun, throttled Arizona's passing attack, hauling in eight interceptions, while Arizona's pass defense showed serious lapses.

The Tiger wasted little time as the final period started with quarterback Brian Carter hitting end Tim Christian who galloped into the end zone on a 43-yard scoring play.

Auburn's John Riley ended the scoring with a 41-yard field goal, his second of the day in five attempts.

Carter passed 28 times, completing seven for 156 yards and three touchdowns. Auburn's tailback Dwight Hurston led the Tigers in rushing with 41 yards in 14 carries.

Lee passed 24 times, completing six for 89 yards, but he had as many interceptions as he completed. Mark Driscoll completed seven of 20 for 75 yards.

Arizona's fullback Noki Fulmano led rushers with 48 yards in 18 attempts.

Auburn tackle David Campbell won the award for outstanding lineman of the game.

Kentucky Takes 110-90 Hoop Win

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's razzle-dazzle passing and torrid shooting in the second half boosted the fourth-ranked Wildcats to a 110-90 basketball victory over seventh-ranked Notre Dame Saturday night.

The Irish had eaten away an eight-point Kentucky lead to go ahead early in the second half. But Kentucky, sparked by Phil Argeno, Dan Issel and Mike Pratt, staged a scoring burst to stun the Irish for a 20-point lead just nine minutes later.

Issel led the Kentucky charge, scoring 14 second-half points for a total 31. Argeno, who put the Wildcats on top early in the game with a 13-point effort, finished with 27.

Kentucky hit a sizzling 23 of 33 for 69.7 per cent in the second half.

Wind Factor Was Arizona's Downfall

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — "We were too anxious to get on the scoreboard when we had the wind," Arizona Coach Darrell Mudra said of his team's 34-10 loss to Auburn in Saturday's Sun Bowl football contest.

Mudra referred to the 20-20 mile an hour wind which swept through the Sun Bowl throughout the game.

He said his team's anxiety gave Auburn two cheap touchdowns. Quarterback Tommy Traylor scored five plays after an Arizona fumble and a Buddy McClinton's 32-yard pass interception touchdown came within a minute of each other.

"If we had stayed on the ground we would have been all right," Mudra said. "We were more conservative in the second half."

Four of Auburn's eight interceptions came in that second half.

Auburn's Coach Ralph Jordan, a veteran who coached his sixth bowl contest and third victory Saturday, said, "the unpredictable wind hurt both teams."

Oregon Takes Overtime Win Over BYU

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Reserve Glen Campbell's scrappy rebounding and clutch-shooting led Oregon to a come-from-behind 82-74 overtime basketball victory over Brigham Young in the semifinals of the Far West Classic Saturday night.

Oregon State met Washington State in the other semifinal contest. Oregon meets the winner of that game Monday night for the championship.

Brigham Young had a 66-62 edge with four minutes left. Campbell, a 6-6 230-pound senior, scored Oregon's final seven points in regulation play making it 69-69.

BYU lost 6-0 Paul Ruffner and 6-0 Scott Warner on fouls and Oregon's 6-0 Stan Love scored six of Oregon's 13 points in the overtime.

Oregon's Billy Gaskins took scoring honors with 19. Campbell finished with 17.

Freak Play Provided Sun Bowl Comedy

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — They'll be talking for years in El Paso about the double-punt which provided laughs and bewilderment as the 106th Sun Bowl football game neared its end Saturday.

With Auburn's punter Connie Frederick back to kick on his own 17, his punt was blocked. Frederick chased after the ball as it rolled toward the end zone. He picked it up, running back into the end zone.

He ran back out of the end zone and proceeded to kick the ball again.

Auburn's Ron Gardin took the ball about the 37 yard line and promptly was stopped.

Confusion reigned among the official staffs.

After some discussion the officials finally ruled that it was one kick for 17-yards.

Baltimore Rated Slight Favorite Over Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Jimmy Orr and tight end John Mackey, a powerful runner who shreds defenses make Baltimore the favorite over Cleveland Sunday in the National Football League title game.

The running power of Jerry Kelly and the air threat of the Browns' Bill Nelsen.

The winners will take home about $10,000 each and a shot at the rich Super Bowl game Jan. 12 in Miami against the American Football League champion who will take home an additional $15,000 and a Super Bowl ring.

The loser of this game at Cleveland Municipal Stadium will receive about $7,000.

Kickoff is scheduled for 7:35 p.m. EST with national radio and television coverage by the Cable Broadcasting System, Cleveland and Youngstown, Ohio areas are blocked out on television. A crowd of about 82,000 is expected on a cold day with possible snow flurries.

Cleveland led in regular season, upset the Dallas Cowboys last Saturday 31-20 for the Eastern Conference crown. Baltimore, 13-1 in regular season, knocked off a stubborn Minnesota team last Sunday, 24-14 for the Western Conference title.

The Colts closed with a rush, running up a nine-game winning streak since they were beaten by the Browns, 30-20 on Oct. 20 at Baltimore. The Browns won eight in a row before losing their season finale at St. Louis and then manhandled the Cowboys last week, intercepting four passes.

If this game is tied at the end of regulation time, the teams will go into sudden death overtime in which the game ends automatically upon any score, including a safety.

The Colts' first NFL championship game in a sudden death game with the New York Giants in 1958. They won again in 1959 but bowed to Cleveland, 27-0, in 1964, in a tremendous upset. In fact, Don Shula, the Baltimore coach, has yet to beat the Browns, with whom he played as a defensive back.

Cleveland is 4-5 in NFL title games and 1-1 since Blanton Collier succeeded Paul Brown in 1963. Collier masterminded the Browns' 1964 shutout of the Colts but saw his team lose to Green Bay in the snow in 1965.

Both of the starting quarterbacks are hand-me-downs who were traded during the off season. Morrill, 34, who played with San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Detroit and New York, came to the Colts last August from the Giants as a back-up man for John Unitas. When Unitas' tenure with the Colts ended, Morrill took over and did such an outstanding job that he was named the league's Most Valuable Player.

Nelsen, 27, was traded to Cleveland by Pittsburgh last May. He was considered of doubtful value because of a history of knee surgery.

The Colts go for the long ball with Morrill throwing to flanker Willie Richardson, split end and fullback Jerry Hill. Hill is primarily to set up the pass. Morrill also is a fine receiver as well as a back-up passer in an emergency. Unitas, 35, the greatest of them all when healthy, also is available if needed.

Collier stresses the running game more for one big reason. He has the league's top rushing champion who averages 5.6 yards per carry and has scored 20 touchdowns.

Kelly is the heavy duty runner, averaging almost 20 carries per game. Ernie Green is his usual running mate but he had been sharing the job with Charley Harraway because he still is handicapped by his knee injury of 1967.

As the Cowboys can attest, Kelly also is a dangerous receiver. He took a Nelsen pass last week on the Dallas line-backer and deep defense messed up their coverage.

Paul Warfield, the split end, and Mill-Morin, the big tight end, are Nelsen's prime targets. However, he now has Gary Collins, a flanker, after missing several games due to a shoulder operation. Collins went all the way last week and may be getting primed for a repeat of his three-touchdown performance in 1964. If Frank Ryan, the man he displaced, will take over.

POCATELLO — The Twin Falls sophomores were ousted from the Pocatello Invitational basketball tournament Friday night when Highland stung them with a 48-41 setback. Highland led all the way.

St. John's Topples Tar Heels By 72-70

NEW YORK (AP) — Stirred up St. John's ruined the expected clash between North Carolina and top-ranked UCLA when the Redmen stunned the second-ranked Tar Heels 72-70 Saturday night in the semifinals of the Holiday Festival Basketball Tournament.

UCLA, led as usual by multi-talented Lew Alcindor, rode into Monday night's final with a methodical 83-67 triumph over outclassed Princeton in the second game of the doubleheader at Madison Square Garden.

Fifth-ranked Villanova jumped to an early lead and then held off underdog Michigan State in the second half and rolled to a 75-69 victory while Ed Sludut powered Holy Cross to a 78-66 decision over Providence in afternoon consolation semifinals.

Two free throws by reserve Jim Smyth clinched the St. John's victory with seven seconds left after North Carolina had cut a 58-49 deficit to 70-68 with 25 seconds remaining.

Dick Grubar scored the Tar Heels' last basket to keep seconds to go, not enough to keep them from falling to a 71-record. Unranked St. John's is 8-1.

Colorado St. Classic Title Takes Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Twins Floyd and Lloyd Kerr sparked Colorado State to a 70-58 victory over Utah Saturday night for the championship of the Utah Classic Basketball Tournament.

Floyd scored 22 points and was named Most Valuable Player. Brother Lloyd scored 14. Utah kept the battle close except for the final minutes, and trailed only 33-31 at halftime. Bob Martin hit 9 of 14 field shots and finished with 19 points, his first for Utah.

Mike Newlin had 13 and Ken Gardner 11 to follow Martin. Colorado State is now 8-1.

Safety Guides

CHICAGO — When waterfowl season opens, hunters by the thousands, from the Atlantic Ocean to the Gulf of Mexico, will take their guns and head for the blinds.

Many of them will get their limit and have a fine time, but in an unfortunate few will have accidents. Nevertheless, the National Safety Council says that guns and hunters can be safe.

Missouri Outclasses Alabama By 35-10

New Formation, Vicious Defense Help Tigers To Victory In Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Missouri quarterback, directed the Tigers' newly-installed Power I offense that humbled the Alabama defense before a crowd of 68,011 and a vicious defense that swept the Tigers to a 35-10 Gator Bowl triumph Saturday.

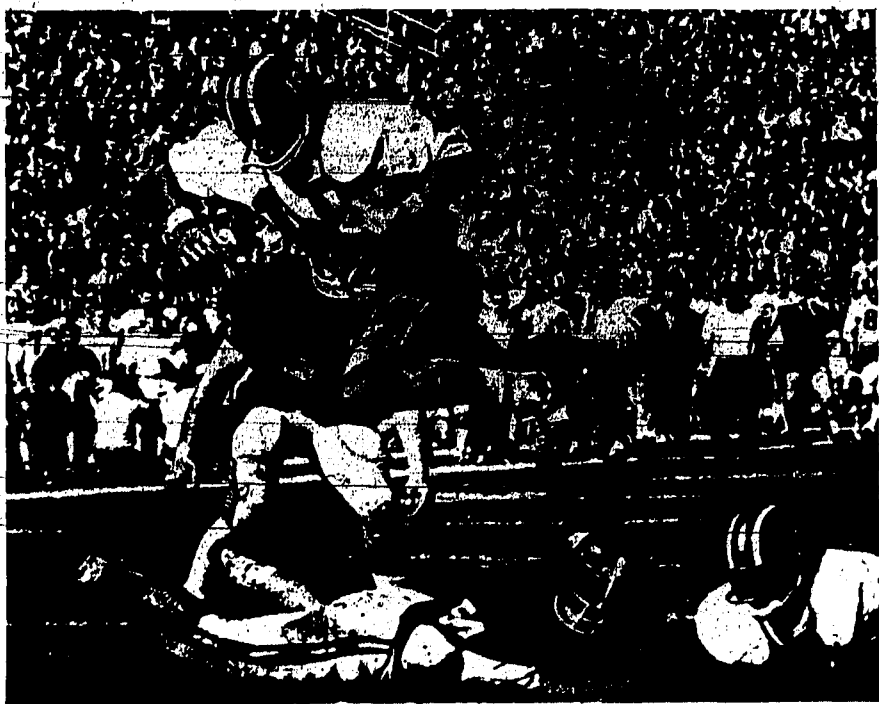

Tricky Terry McMillan, lanky at Coral Gables, Fla., scored three Tiger touchdowns on short runs and buffed Alabama through the nationally telecasted football battle with his deft pichouts on the option play.

However, McMillan never completed a pass, and he had a pair of tosses picked off that gave Alabama its only points. Defensive back Donnie Sutton raced 38 yards with an interception for an Alabama touchdown in the second quarter, and Mike Dean's fourth quarter interception set up his 25-yard field goal.

The Tiger defense, anchored by Elmer DeBarth and Bill Schmitt, blunted Alabama's running and passing attack. Tide-quarterbacks were thrown for losses nine times. Alabama, losing three games in a season for the first time since 1958, managed only three first downs in the first three quarters.

But Roger Wehl, Missouri's All-American safety, clinched the Tigers' fourth straight bowl triumph with a late interception that set up McMillan's third touchdown in the closing minutes. Greg Cook ran 37 yards from scrimmage and Dennis Poppe raced 47 yards with an interception to pad the margin.

MISSOURI TOUCHDOWN is registered by quarterback Terry McMillan Saturday as he dives over the goal line for the score in nationally telecasted football battle with Alabama's Crimson Tide in the Gator Bowl. Missouri's strong running attack plagued the Tide all afternoon, as they chalked up a convincing 35-10 win over the twice-beaten Alabama squad. (AP wirephoto)

Boise Club Takes Outlaw Tournney Win

GLENN'S FERRY — Duffy's Realty of Boise took championship honors in the Glenn's Ferry Outlaw Tournament Saturday night, as they dumped Valley Nursing Home of Buhl 42-36.

Willard canned 10 points for Duffy's to pace the winners, while Kirk Williams and Stradley led Valley Nursing Home scoring.

In the game for third place, Faux Cigar Store of Buhl topped Gridley's Market of Mountain Home 45-42. Horton of Faux tallied 17, and Sharp of Faux tallied 13.

Friday night semi-final action saw Faux beat Rex Motors of Mountain Home 51-34 with Moreland topping all scorers with 19 points. Gridley's Market took a 65-35 win over Red Barn of Mountain Home. Duffy's dumped Gateway Trailer of Twin Falls 48-41, as Willard canned 20, and Valley Nursing Home topped the Trophy Club of Buhl 51-34, behind Stradley's 15 points.

Bearcats Top North Texas State 74-62

CINCINNATI (AP) — Don Opatore shot holes in North Texas State's zone defense and keyed a first half spurt to give the Bearcats a 74-62 victory Saturday night in the Missouri Valley Conference opener for both teams.

Opatore, who finished with a game-high 27 points, made all nine of his first half points in a spree in which Cincinnati outscored the Eagles 22-5 and took a 30-17 margin. He connected on 12 of 17 field goal attempts.

The victory upped Cincinnati's record to 7-1 and dropped the Eagles to 7-3.

Namath-Lamonica Aerial Duel Expected In AFL's Title Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Sam Walton is just a rookie, and he may be on the bench when the New York Jets host the Oakland Raiders in the American Football League championship game Sunday.

But he knows as well as Oakland's 19-year veteran, George Blanda, what it's all about. "Look at it like this," said Walton, an offensive tackle from East Texas State. "They got the money, and we have to take it away from them. They look at it like we have the money, and they have to take it away from us. We're trying to take it away from each other."

field goals and 43 of 43 extra points. Oakland's Blanda was third, with 117 points, booting 21 of 34 field goals and 54 of 54 extra points.

If either kicker has an advantage in the game that will be leveled nationally by NBC starting at 1 p.m. EST, it will be Turner because he's been with the Jets for five years, and he's an expert on the wicked wind currents that swirl around Shea Stadium.

In the running department, Oakland probably has an edge because Dixon has been a more powerful runner than Matt Snell. New York's fullback, while rookie Charley Smith has been more explosive than Emerson Boazer, the Jets' halfback who has been plagued by knee trouble much of the season.

When it came to scoring, though, New York's Jim Turner was the best in the league, amassing 145 points on 34 of 46 field goals and 43 of 43 extra points. Oakland's Blanda was third, with 117 points, booting 21 of 34 field goals and 54 of 54 extra points.

If either kicker has an advantage in the game that will be leveled nationally by NBC starting at 1 p.m. EST, it will be Turner because he's been with the Jets for five years, and he's an expert on the wicked wind currents that swirl around Shea Stadium.

FLIGHT OF GESE, one of the most sought after of Idaho's game birds, is shown flying over the Raft River country. Goose hunting has increased in tempo over the past few days with snow and colder weather making field hunting good in the eastern side of Magic Valley through the American Falls area.

Hunting Rabbits With Bow, Arrow Challenging

Hunting the ever-present cottontail rabbit is fun anyway you take it. But for a challenge, nothing can compare with seeking this crafty little fellow with bow and arrow.

To stand a reasonable chance of getting a rabbit for the dinner table, the bowhunter must stalk close to his quarry, preferably within 20 yards, and he must catch his target immobile, which is quite an accomplishment. At the slightest hint of danger, the wary cottontail will bound away, its white tail flashing in the underbrush.

The only thing in the bowhunter's favor is that he usually gets several opportunities. Rabbits have the knack of rapid multiplication. Because of this abundance, more ammunition is fired at rabbits each year than any other game animal.

To give some inkling as to its availability, records kept in the state of Missouri show that more than six million cottontails are bagged by hunters each year.

It takes an adept hunter to catch a cottontail off-guard. Usually the rabbit sees the hunter first and takes off. With a shotgun, the hunter can pull down on the moving rabbit. Zig-zagging through the underbrush, a speedy cottontail can be a formidable target, indeed.

The cottontail, however, has one bad habit which leads to the demise of more rabbits than any other singular reason. When jumped from an area, it invariably will make a wide circle, even when pursued by dogs, and will return to the same spot. The hunter who stays put and watches will shortly see the rabbit come hopping back.

In shotgun hunting the best weapon is a 20-gauge shotgun modified to take lead with No. 5 or 7 shot-shell. If the brush is dense, striking it difficult to get an open shot, you may want to use heavier No. 4 shot. Both the 12- and 16-gauge shotguns are all right, but there is no reason to suffer from the added recoil punishment.

The hunter armed with a .22 rifle finds his task more demanding. More accent is put on hunting skill than shooting. He cat-foots through rabbit cover, looking intently around and in by all means, trying to spot the rabbit before he sees him. A specked rabbit that isn't overly alarmed usually will bound off a few yards and pause to see what has scared it. The alert rifleman will take advantage even on cottontails. The .22 long is a hybrid, utilizing the same case and powder of the long rifle and the same bullet of the short. It doesn't match the performance of either.

The best times for catching rabbits out in the open, feeding, are just at daybreak and again just prior to dusk.

Weather also plays an important role in their everyday habits. A dewy, calm, warm fall morning is best; when a gusty wind is blowing or the temperature is down, they're more apt to be in the cover.

Another prime time is in the winter on a warming day when there's a slight thaw and just enough snow on the ground for tracking. Follow a fresh trail, watching infinitely ahead of you, until you spot the unsuspecting rabbit.

But if the sport and thrill of the hunt, rather than meat for the stew pot, is your intent, then you might consider the bow and arrow. The bowhunter won't kill many rabbits, but he'll have twice as much fun trying.

The major advantage of the bow is that you can hunt rabbits anywhere. An arrow doesn't travel far, and it is noiseless. The bowhunter won't lose many arrows that go astray if he keeps his eyes on the arrow and traces its path.

The bow should be at least 30 pounds pull (poundage required to draw the arrow full length) with matched arrows. The only way to gain any semblance of proficiency with the bow and arrow is to have balanced equipment.

Some people advocate using a bow, arrows and cottontails, the idea being that the flattened arrow will create a tremendous shock when it hits, bringing death. But a broadhead, of the type used in big-game hunting, is more reliable and humane. It's sure the roadrunner is headed to a razor sharpness. An arrow kills by hemorrhage rather than shock, and only a sharp broadhead will bring a quick and practically painless death.

The problem, of course, is hitting one. Because of its small size, the rabbit doesn't offer much of a target to the bowhunter. Trying to stalk close without alarming the rabbit, then hitting it with an arrow is a demanding and often frustrating venture.

The person who kills a rabbit with the bow and arrow can be justifiably proud. It is quite a feat.

Seattle Pins 90-77 Defeat On Vandals

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle University Chieftains overcame an early 11-2 deficit Friday night and went on to whip the Idaho Vandals 90-77 in a nonconference basketball game.

Idaho coach Wayne Anderson started five of his tallest in an effort to slow down the Chieftains' fast break and the Vandals held Seattle to only two points in the first seven minutes of play.

Seattle then began to move through the Idaho zone and caught up at 20-all. The Chieftains led 25-28 at the half and had little trouble the rest of the way.

Lou West led all scorers with 26 points for the winners. Jim Christensen was high for Idaho with 24.

Utah State Takes 81-65 Tournney Win

HOUSTON (AP) — Four Utah State basketball players hit in double figures Saturday night as the Aggies whipped Portland 81-65 to take third place in the Astro-Bluebonnet Classic.

Robert's rebounds gave him 41 for the two-night tournament and broke the record of 40 set by James Ware of Oklahoma City in 1963.

Portland scorers were paced by Stan Talley, who had 20. Forward Bill Ricks added 10 for Pilots.

The victory left Utah State with a 4-7 record. Portland dropped to 0-9.

Sun Devils Top Syracuse In Classic

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Arizona State led Roger Deiter's 28 points, downed Syracuse, 93-77 in the consolation round of the Far West Classic basketball tournament in Portland Saturday.

California defeated Yale, 66-50, in the first consolation game of the afternoon.

The championship semifinals were Saturday night. Deiter hit six of his first seven shots.

Syracuse trailed by two points at half, 39-37, and nine minutes into the second half they were only four off the pace. But Syracuse's chance retired with 6-11 Billy Smith when he fouled out with 7:27 left in the game.

Smith got 16 points and 16 rebounds in just over 30 minutes. Deiter was high scorer for the game with 28 points. Arizona State's Gerhard Scherer sank 15.

Yale's speedy Jim Morgan scored 20 points, but California out-rebounded the Ivy League's 75-52. While 6-11 Billy Smith was on the bench more than 20 minutes with foul problems, Cal's Jackie Riddle and Paul Loveday took over the rebounding.

Leading California scorer was 5-9 Bob White, who went into the game with a "Yale zone" defense. He hit from outside for 5 field goals, and sank 5 of 5 free throws to lead California scorers with 15.

The victory moved California into the consolation final Monday.

Snow Is Many Things To Many Area Residents

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Feature Editor

Skiers, children and farmers love it. Highway Department crews hate it. Street superintendents deplore it.

Housewives, drivers and postal employees are not especially delighted with it.

Traffic department officers would rather not have it. That's the situation for the record snow fall that has graced the Intermountain Region and especially Magic Valley for the month of December.

Although December is not yet over, it has all the indications of a record precipitation month in the local area.

Weather records at the U.S. Entomology Research Station in Twin Falls show a total of 2.18 inches of precipitation thus far in December.

This might be compared with December of 1937 in which only .21 of an inch of precipitation was recorded for the entire month.

The records show the wettest December on record was 1964 when 3.89 inches of moisture were recorded. Officials say this December's total could equal this if present conditions continue through the final days of the month.

As for snow depths this December measurements show 11 inches of snow in Twin Falls compared to the record set in 1924 when 19.3 inches of snow fell in the last month of the year.

Three years, 1958, 1960 and 1962, saw only a trace of snow in December and last year only one inch was recorded.

Snow measurements are currently being made by Soil Conservation crews and will be recorded as the Jan. 1 readings. Two snow courses shown Thursday showed 20 to 20 inches of snow.

Both courses had almost no snow cover in December of last year.

At ski resorts measurements are about double those of a year ago. Magic Mountain reports about four feet of snow at the top of ski runs and three and one-half feet on lower levels. This compares with 18 inches to two feet a year ago following Christmas Day rains.

Sun Valley skiers find 48 inches at the top of Baldy Mountain and 24 inches on the valley floor, again well ahead of a year ago at the same time.

Salmon Tract farmers who watch snowfall in the south hills as closely as the skiers, say few people realize just how bad last year was on the Salmon Tract, unless of course they farm there.

One farm owner said it was the worst year since 1933 and that every farmer in the area left half or more of his land unplanted and had difficulty watering some that was planted to grain or hay.

Most land owners in that area are working hard toward achieving the proposed Bureau of Reclamation Salmon Falls Division Project to bring water to the land via canals from Milner and those who are working toward this goal are asking their neighbors write Idaho's congressional delegates urging their support and earnest effort on behalf of the project. Addresses of Idaho's U.S. Congressmen and Senators may be obtained from the Public Library, Chamber of Commerce or political party county chairman.

DECEMBER SNOWS are piling up some new records in the Magic Valley area to the delight of skiers and farmers. Here three skiers pause at the top of Magic Mountain south of Twin Falls to enjoy the scenery before trying their skill in new fallon snow. The ski resort has reported new snow fall every day for the past two weeks. Snow in this area is also watched closely by Salmon Tract farmers as drainage on the opposite side of Deadline Ridge feeds reservoirs that serve the Salmon farms. Last year was a critical one for these farmers.

It Was A Good Year, But Oh, The Year-End Bills

YEAR END BILLS PILE up on Mr. Average Citizen, portrayed by Dale Crist, Twin Falls, but all in all, 1963 was a good year in Twin Falls. Mr. Crist, father of four

Mr. Average Citizen may be greeting 1969 with more than the usual "morning after" headache.

Living costs have gone up, but chances are his income is about the same as last year.

The end of the year brings with it a flood of extra costs and may find Mr. Citizen scratching his head to figure out how he can meet the extra demands and still remain solvent.

Somewhat, he believes, there should be some better planning higher up to prevent all of the annual expenditures falling on the head of the family with one heavy blow.

First of all there's Christmas expenses. If Mr. Average Citizen has two to four children, holiday spending will run several hundred dollars. In addition to gifts there's the extra cost of fancy food and drink items for holiday guests and parties.

Then of course, Mr. Average Citizen owns his home or farm so before he finished his Christmas shopping he had to shell out from $100 to $200 for his annual property tax payment.

There are license plates to be purchased and if he didn't anticipate extension of the deadline to Jan. 16 he may have already licensed the average two vehicles at from $12 to $17.50 each.

If a automobile inspection sticker only costs $2 but it is an added year end expense as Mr. Average Citizen didn't get around to doing it earlier in the year as he should have. With the inspection often comes a number of extra costs for repairs — say $50 or so.

This time of year brings winter weather and if he is to drive to work and to his favorite ski resort he has to put snow tires on at least one of the family vehicles. That's another cost of $30 to $70 for the average vehicle.

Many family insurance policies including home and automobile insurance fall due on a six months or yearly basis at the end of the year—so add that to the headache of Mr. Average Citizen.

Chances are the Mr. Average Citizen in Twin Falls is drawing up his 1969 resolutions with TREES BENDING UNDER heavy snow frames two skiers. In addition to providing economic benefits to the agricultural and ski industries, snow also provides photographers with excellent subject matter.

a thought of cutting a few corners or making preparations to better meet the next year-end situation.

But if what local business firms report is a true indication things were not all bad for Mr. Citizen during 1968. In fact he spent more than he did in 1967 by anywhere from three to 20 per cent.

He might take heart in the fact that he contributed to a "good" economy in general in Twin Falls during the past year.

If Mr. Average Citizen purchased an automobile during 1968, chances are he by-passed the economy model and selected a moderate or high moderate priced vehicle with automatic transmission, power steering and other conveniences items. If he purchased a used vehicle, it was a later model and a larger vehicle.

One automobile dealer, new to the area, estimated business on new vehicles sales were up 40 per cent over the previous year. Others said there were increases, mostly in the high moderate price range and set their increases from ten to 10 per cent. All dealers contacted said it was a good year for the automobile business.

Mrs. Average Citizen purchased as many or more clothes during the year and generally she bought quality items with a slight emphasis on sportswear. One dress store said Christmas business was off as much as 10 per cent while year over business was up. Another said the year's business was up 15 per cent and holiday buying was "just normal".

For his own clothes, Mr. Citizen purchased a few more and generally again wanted quality items.

New lines in men's clothing appealed to him and may have encouraged his buying. Iocal men's stores said there was no pattern except buying was later than usual and was hampered by heavy storms during the last week of Christmas buying.

One local merchant said that all businesses who offered proper consideration to the customer could score a good business year in 1968. He said moderate priced appliances and household goods sold best and that holiday buying was late but very good. Drug stores which handle an assortment of items from cameras to appliances and luggage reported good business throughout the year and most said Christmas buying was very good.

Recreation contributed to the economy with sports items such as golf, ski and fishing items selling well. Toys were also good for the holiday buying and buyers selected modern automatic, battery operated type items.

As far 1969 local business leaders say it should be equally as good a year as 1968. The new Bank of Idaho building is now under construction, which will enhance the downtown area, and the city's down town planning program is also expected to get into full swing.

The Twin Falls city's new water system is now in use and will be fully completed early in the coming year. It should contribute to the encouragement of industry and growth of the area, community leaders say.

The College of Southern Idaho campus which became a reality during the past year, is doing nothing but grow and improve. College officials explain the college should also contribute to the growth of the area. The Chamber of Commerce and business groups are working to attract more business to the area and to provide more jobs for the community.

Mid-Winter Waterfowl Inventory Set January 6 For Pacific Flyway

By JIM HUMBRID
Idaho Fish-Games Department
Counting several hundred thousand ducks and other species of migratory waterfowl, including trumpeter and whistling swans and geese as well as the lowly coot will start in Idaho and throughout the Pacific Flyway Jan. 6. This extensive survey of the waterfowl wintering grounds will continue through Jan. 10, or until the big job is completed. Then ducks and geese soon will start pairing off, and the May and July surveys on the breeding grounds—particularly in Canada—will be in the offing.

The mid-winter waterfowl inventory basically is the responsibility of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Neil Bolger, Boise game management agent, the Idaho coordinator. There will be about three dozen ground and aerial observers, some federal but mostly state personnel. Plane time will amount to something like a score of hours, covering roughly 1,500 miles. Ground vehicles will inventory nearly as much area. At the same time, all important waterfowl wintering areas in the country will be covered to learn the distribution of ducks, geese, swans, coots and eagles. Many years of work banding ducks and geese by state and federal game management agencies show that waterfowl migrations follow fairly defined paths from breeding grounds in the north to wintering areas. Out of this body of facts has grown the recognition of general "flyways." Waterfowl management now is carried out on the basis of these administrative units. Occasionally the boundaries of the flyways are changed, based on refinements of banding data. Such alterations occurred a few years ago with the switch of those portions of Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico lying west of the Continental Divide from the Central Flyway to the Pacific.

All Idahoans whether waterfowlers or not, are interested primarily in the Pacific Flyway. It extends from Alaska to South America, with boundaries reaching out to Hawaii and Siberia on the west, and the Continental Divide on the east. It includes Alaska, the Canadian Provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Yukon, a portion of the MacKenzie District, and the American states lying on the west slope of the Rocky Mountains.

From 1935 until 1947 only a winter waterfowl survey was conducted. It was supposed to measure the size of the breeding population available for the next nesting season. Because of many uncontrollable factors, the survey did not provide an accurate count of the continental waterfowl population. Therefore, the winter survey is now used to determine the status of habitat and its effect on the distribution of waterfowl.

Only wintering ground counts on geese, swans and birds ducks are used in determining population status. Since an average fall flight of waterfowl is made up of more young than adults, annual variation in production can be of greater importance in determining the size of the fall flight than the previous wintering population.

Experimental surveys of the waterfowl breeding grounds were started in 1947 throughout the important prairie production areas in an effort to find statistically sound ways of measuring annual changes in breeding populations and in production. Over half of the Prairie Pothole Region is found in Alberta and Saskatchewan, although a strip of it includes the Flathead Valley in the northwestern corner of Montana, the eastern edge of the Dakotas and the western part of Minnesota.

Experimental surveys of waterfowl breeding grounds continued through 1950. The next year they became an operational waterfowl management tool. The continental breeding range has been divided into units of a size that can be conveniently surveyed by one aerial crew in a short time. The southern half of Alberta is an example. Nine of these units cover all of the major breeding grounds. These survey units are divided further into strips with similar characteristics of habitat and waterfowl density. Within these strips, transects are established in an east-west direction from seven to twenty miles apart in the areas of the greatest duck population to be wintered in six miles apart in the northern areas where the breeding duck population is less dense. Nearly 70,000 miles of transect are covered during two surveys in May and July.

Observation of ducks, waterfowl, broods and the like on transects are recorded separately on 18-mile segments along the transect lines to facilitate analysis of data. The crew of pilot-biologist and observer flies the same, straight line transects during both the May and July surveys. The aircraft is flown at an altitude of about 100 feet and the pilot and the observer count birds on both sides of the plane in a strip 220 yards wide in the May survey, and 110 yards wide in July. Observations are recorded on a dictating machine or voice recorder. The average number of birds per square mile can be calculated and then expanded to the total number of birds present in each survey stratum. These breeding population surveys determine the number of potential breeding birds for the various species. It also indicates the ratio of single drakes to pairs which gives an index to nesting progress. In addition, this survey determines the number of water areas present in May throughout the pothole country of southern Canada, Montana, the Dakotas and Western Minnesota.

In the July production survey, duck- and coot broods are counted, as well as the number of adult birds still on nesting territory. The latter count gives an indication of how much nesting still is in progress. Data on age class and number of young per brood are recorded to learn the progress and success of the season. The number of water areas present throughout the prairie pothole country again is determined and provides a measure of brood habitats. The number of water areas remaining in July compared with the number present in June gives an index of the relative stability or deterioration of the habitat.

The federal-state waterfowl regulations must be based on solid information about annual production, population trends and kill statistics. Management people must know how many ducks made it back to the breeding grounds and are available for the next nesting season. How many were raised last year? How many killed? How many came from each of the far-flung breeding areas? Birds alive at the close of the present hunting season will be the breeding stock available to begin the next annual cycle.

SITTING DUCKS rest on pond at Hagerman Wildlife Refuge. The poorer than average waterfowl migrations this year were traced to poor water and nesting conditions last spring in the Canadian pothole country. The annual midwinter waterfowl inventory this year runs from January 6-10, or until the big job is completed in Idaho and throughout the continent.

What's With Music

By J. Hill, OPTA

"Nuts to that stuff," said a young student recently. "I want to play, but I'm not going to count out loud for anybody." Before you go a step further with that kind of thinking, let's sit down and talk sensibly about this nasty business of counting. I don't suppose any one of us likes it too well, but... maybe... just maybe, there is a good reason. Teachers have harped on counting for years, and as long as there are people who study music, they will continue to harp on it. Why?

O.K. Let's find out. Today you were listening to the radio and heard a tune you liked. It really sounded good. You could hardly wait to buy the sheet music. You went home, sat down at the piano and tried to play it. Brother! What a time you had. As you worked your way through the song, the notes flashed by like pickets on a fence, but the tune just didn't come out right—didn't sound anything like what you heard on the radio. So, you were real disappointed. If the gal at the store would take it back, you'd charge down town and get a refund.

Well now, before you get all bent out of shape, let's take a second look at that piece of music. Somebody wrote it and it was recorded, perhaps by several different groups. The record sounded fine, but YOU couldn't make it sound right. Is it possible that you waded through that tune without even looking at either the key signature or the time signature? I thought so. You just played through it, and the reason it didn't turn out right is that you didn't follow your teacher's advice. O.K., don't get excited. You forgot, just like a lot of other people do. Let's get over to the piano and try again.

You've had four years of piano, you're a good student, and when you try to play a piece of music, there's but one catch—you don't like to count out loud. Now—if by counting out loud, you could learn to play this tune and play it right, would you be willing to go along? You would? Then let's count.

All right, let's put the melody and chords together. Slowly, slowly. When you get this finished, you'll be ready to apply the rhythm, but not until your count is correct and your chord changes are smooth. There, let's try the rhythm. Take that fifth measure. It's the tough one. Let's get it first. The rest of the song is pretty easy. What happened? You didn't count your time; so it didn't fit. Try it again, but count, boy, count—"out loud." O.K., once more. There it is. A good half hour's diligent work, and the tune is yours. True, it needs to be polished, but what happened? You were all ready to take the music back until you decided to try counting your time. When you did, the piano started to wobble. You know it doesn't sound like the record. But after all, there was a group playing on the recording. All you have is a piano. But... you accomplished the tune. YOU got it. Why? Because you followed the advice of your teacher. YOU counted OUT LOUD.

Isn't it strange that we often throw away the key to success? In playing music, the key is counting; and yet people fight it as if it were Communism. If that's what you were supposed to play! All right, boy, you were being careless. This song—in the key of "F"—is based on the "F" scale. You forgot about that, didn't you? Now, what kind of time is indicated? Four-four? K. Does the tune start on one of the measure, or are there pickup notes? You know how to count up and find out. You were taught those birds," think again. Birds don't need to count, but YOU do.

Use what you know. Hold on, boys, don't rush into it. Play the melody with the right hand and count OUT LOUD. You bet your life. Try that second measure again. You didn't quite get the time right. The first note is a eighth note followed by a dotted quarter. You've had a lot of those in your classical music. Here they are again in this tune. Slowly, now, gal. Take your time. You'll get it, but be patient with yourself. You don't have to have this stuff learned by now. You can meet Johnny later. He'll wait for you. Try the melody over and over until you are sure you have it right. There's a tough measure. Let's go back and try that one again. It has to be right, you know. Now come the chords. Take them separately. There's one change you are not sure of. It's a D7 followed by a G7 minus 5. You can figure that out if you won't panic. There it is. Now practice that change until you are sure of it. Don't stop over and over. Get it right this time and you won't have to come back to it.

GIANT BOUQUET OF ROSES will highlight the float of Chrysler Corp. in the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's Day. At right, a young employee of Chrysler attaches some of the several thousand vanda orchids that cover each rose that measures five feet in diameter.

Vanda orchid petals are attached by special glue and it takes five people more than 18 hours to cover each of the roses. The work will be done one day in advance, but no earlier to insure fresh orchid petals for the final product. There will be many elaborate floats in the parade.

Parade Is Ready To Say It With Roses

Things are reaching fever pitch in Pasadena, Calif. here that the Tournament of Roses Parade, with its theme of "A Time to Remember," will make its 80th annual spectacular appearance on New Year's Day. With only a short time to go before the greatest parade on earth is set to roll, float builders are working round the clock adding the final touches to their masterpieces, and hundreds of young workers are standing by ready to decorate them with countless thousands of beautiful flowers.

There will be sixty entries in the winding procession, but perhaps the most stunning of all is Chrysler Corporation's "Thanks for the Memory" float, as viewers will see when the Parade is telecast on NBC-TV and CBS-TV, Wednesday, January 1 (11:30 a.m.-1:45 p.m. EST).

Chrysler has used Bob Hope's famous signature tune as the theme for its entry as a tribute to the famous comedian, whom it has sponsored for the past six years and who is also Grand Marshal of the upcoming event.

float is beautiful bouquet of parrot pink roses, handsomely sculptured and artistically put together with vanda orchids. The graceful white flow of ribbons will be delicately covered with Phalaenopsis orchids with accents of pastel roses.

All the roses on the float have been made out of paper mache and are five and a half feet in diameter. It takes five people over 18 hours to completely cover each rose with the petals of thousands of vanda orchids as each petal has to be stuck on separately with a special glue.

Painting the giant roses begins days in advance. Thousands of clusters of roses are put in place, and finally the petals of beautiful Phalaenopsis orchids are glued onto the ribbons which tie the huge banner together.

Riding on the Chrysler float will be Dorothy Lamour, Linda Bennett, Barbara McNair, Rosemary Clooney, Barbara Eden and Jerry Colonna, all of whom have a special reason for saying "Thanks for the Memory" to Hope. The ladies will wear white chiffon dresses made out of 16 yards of material with a red velvet trim, and Mr. Colonna will wear a white suit with a white tie. The float will cost $40,000 which means that the total cost of the parade runs into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. But everyone who enters the spectacular floral parade will be doing one day in advance, but no earlier to insure fresh orchid petals for the final product. There will be many elaborate floats in the parade.

Noted Hiawatha Hotel Keeps Pace With New Wood River Economy

By DOROTHY POVEY
Times-News Correspondent

PIIONEER HIAWATHA HOTEL that dates back to the turn of the century has just undergone some major changes. The exterior of the building is much the same as it was more than 65 years ago, but on the inside things are different. Located in Halley, the hotel was built during the mining era and has just been renovated to meet the demands of the present Wood River Valley activity which revolves around outstanding recreational facilities and resources. The building was purchased last May by Richard Hill and renovation was completed for a grand opening Dec. 23. In addition to 82 rooms, the building has a dining room, natural hot water swimming pool, bar and modern jobby.

Erected in the booming mining days of Wood River, Valley, the historic Hiawatha Hotel has come back to life to the tune of a new type of economy.

Prominent as a landmark in the late 1880's and early 1900's, the then -Alturas Hotel was known as the finest between Denver and the West Coast. It hosted many of the nation's most prominent mining figures.

In the past two weeks an extensive renovation and remodeling program has been completed to provide plush quarters for skiers and other recreation seekers who now come to this area from throughout the nation and other countries.

Grand opening of the remodeled hotel with more than 60 guest rooms, has been followed by a series of gay holiday parties as guests gather to enjoy the warm atmosphere of the Alturas Lounge, the spacious dining room and the Sweetwater Saloon and dance squares.

Relaxing in deep upholstered chairs, which add splashes of color to the lounge, guests not addicted to riding the snow slopes either on skis or snowmobiles, relax in the steam-heated warmth to watch the sun shining on snow-covered Dells-or-Carbonate mountains, framed by the large picture windows.

On the walls of the Alturas room are many of the approximately 200 Charlie Russell prints to be found throughout the hotel.

We have all his prints with the exception of a few line sketches," said Richard Hill, hotel owner.

Dominating the room is an original oil painting of an Indian chief done by Bonnie Keim, Ketchum, who has won acclaim for her portrayals of the "first American."

Large double doors lead from the lounge into the dining room. Here and in the kitchen with all stainless steel fixtures and appliances, Chef Jerry Johnson is in charge. A large infrared broiler will cook dinner meat to perfection. Dining facilities will accommodate up to 80 persons for convention banquets and other large gatherings. Quartet type tables are provided in order to serve informal dining and "coffee breaks" as well as large groups. Frequently diners will be able to glimpse deer on Carbonate Mountain, all part of the dining room view.

Home made pastries and breads are prepared by Ann Jones of Halley.

A favorite feature of the renovation is the Sweetwater Saloon. Here the "old west" atmosphere has been captured with dried spruce boards stained to a dark shade, a western print by Fred Winchester and many others by Charlie Russell which are not only used to decorate walls but are set in the bar top to provide unusual conversation items for the guests.

A pot-bellied stove, shining from old-fashioned stove polish and elbow grease, is part of the decor but also provides

IN CHARGE OF THE gleaming new kitchen and dining area of the remodeled hotel is Chef Jerry Johnson. All fixtures and appointments in the kitchen are stainless steel. A large infrared broiler is a favorite item in preparing meals for the many dining guests.

NOW A LOUNGE, and formerly lobby area, the Alturas room takes its name from the original hotel that was renamed the Hiawatha in 1915. This view looks down on the Alturas room with its new modern furnishings, carpeting and large picture windows. Furnishings of the building are all in bright colors with a western decor. Many parties and large gatherings have been held in the hotel during the current holiday season and following the grand opening.

some of the necessary heat when fed from a nearby wood-burner.

"We didn't add the little stove for heat, however," Mr. Hill commented, "just for the aroma of burning wood."

The handle on the outside of the saloon door is made of an old harness hump with the wooden portions wrapped in leather. Without leaving the hotel proper, guests may take a dip in the warm water pool. The 50x120 foot, tiled-edge pool is surrounded on three sides by patios protected by porch-type roofs and carpeted floor, where diners may have their meals served.

The pool has a blue plastic liner and all algae will be removed by vacuum. Temperature of the water during the winter months ranges from 85 to 90 degrees.

The natural hot water for the pool and for heating the building is piped underground from a spring some two miles west of Halley. At present Mr. Hill is placing 10-inch transit pipe over the whole distance.

Old timers recall when the healing qualities of this water was known far and wide—when such famous persons as the Jay Gould family came annually to bathe in and drink it for its medicinal properties.

The springs were discovered in 1881 near the site of the present Rotarun ski area. Here the area's first hotel was built in 1881. The grand ball for its official opening was held June 20, 1889, and on July 27, 1899 it was totally destroyed by fire.

For some years the hot water plunges that had operated in conjunction with the hotel, but in separate buildings, continued in operation under management of Lizzie Vorberg who lived near by. There was a separate plunge or swimming area for men and another for women. Many families of the area drove by horse and buggy to enjoy the natural hot water even though they had to cross on ice to get to the dressing rooms.

The present Hiawatha Hotel, originally the Alturas Hotel, was built in 1883. Construction began March 22, 1883, but it was three years later before the hotel was opened to the public. Hot water was piped to the new hotel for heating purposes.

For many years Leon and Lucille Friedman operated the hotel selling it in 1947 to David Ayarra and Pete Elin of Elko, Nev. Mr. Ayarra and his wife, Marie, operated it until last May when it was sold to Richard B. Hill.

The original 88 rooms of the hotel, renamed Hiawatha Hotel in 1915, were reduced to 68 rooms and 12 apartments.

Snowmobile machines are also available at the hotel for guests who wish to tour the surrounding snow-covered countryside.

There are 28 men and women on the hotel payroll including cocktail waitresses, desk clerks, bellman and Chauffeur Red Anderson who is in charge of the buses and snow machines. There are six maids to clean and service the 62 rooms.

Bob Welsh, hotel manager, is assisted by his wife, Frances, in heading up the office staff. Their two children, Debbie, 8, and Margaret, 10, assisted in conducting guests through the hotel during the recent grand opening.

Mrs. Hill, the former Miss Loma Heagle of Halley, and the three Hill children, Debbie, 16; Charlotte, 14, and Larry, 13, arrived to spend Christmas and the Holiday Season with their husband and father and their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Heagle. They will return to their home in Bloomfield Hills, Mich., to remain until school is out.

Before purchasing the hotel Mr. Hill was Western Regional Manager of Industrial Equipment for the J. I. Case Co., Detroit.

Plans are for the Hill and Welsh families to build homes on the 700-acre ranch on which the hot springs is located.

In addition to the hotel and ranch, Mr. Hill has purchased the Sawtooth Motor from his father-in-law, L. F. Heagle. A story appearing in the Wood River Times in 1953, tells of a sad experience of the then owner of the Alturas Hotel on

A POT-BELLIED STOVE is fed by Red Anderson, chauffeur for the hotel. The stove is located in the Sweetwater saloon, more for decoration and the aroma of burning wood than for heat.

Mr. Hill has taken four of New Year's Eve. "So many of the boys were out in the hills New Year's Eve, re-locating mines, that the town was deserted. The bartender and two others were the only occupants of the elegant bar room in the hotel up to 11:45 p.m. They concluded to gather in a few men and women to welcome in the New Year.

Making up a big bowl of eggnog and opening two boxes of choice cigars, the bartender went out on the street and shot several times into the night. Only the dull reverberations, echoing back from the hills greeted his ears.

Then one of the boys fancied he heard faintly a c o c k i n g laugh, and it made him mad. The three men rang the fire bell clamorously, but not a sound was heard, nor a man seen on the street.

After waiting a few minutes they returned to the hotel and drank of their salute to 1883 in loneliness of spirit, and retired to bed.

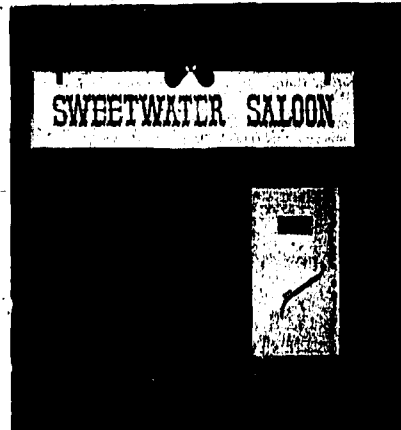

Had they seen the many bonfires atop the hills around the town they would have realized where the population of this growing metropolis was."

There are two lights atop the highest mountains overlooking the Wood River Valley this year. Both can be seen from any point in the valley. One sheds its light over the Federal Resources Silver Star Queen mine at Bradford and typifies the industry which brought this area to life. The other gleams atop Sun Valley's Bald Mountain and typifies the way of life that even the earliest businessmen of Halley predicted would some day come to this area.

Looking at the reservation list one knows it will not be necessary for the Sweetwater Saloon in the Hotel Hiawatha to go to the streets looking for guests to help them welcome in 1969.

AN OFFICE AREA in the remodeled Hiawatha Hotel still contains one remnant of earlier days. The old safe in the background is the only item retained. Here Mrs. Bob Welsh, wife of the hotel manager keeps busy with reservations and other hotel business. The 62 rooms range from bunk bed accommodations for economy minded skiers to the deluxe suites which will accommodate families in grand western style. The hotel caters to skiers with bus service to Sun Valley and Rotarun in Halley each day. Snow machines can also be rented.

FOR THE COCKTAIL DRINKER, there's the Sweetwater Saloon, more for decoration and the aroma of burning wood door handle is a harness hump wrapped in leather and attached to the outside of the door.

DINING ROOM FACILITIES of the remodeled hotel will seat some 80 persons and can be used by large convention groups or for family dinners or just a coffee break. Quartet tables can be separated to accommodate just four persons or moved together for a banquet arrangement. From left, Mrs. Orlin Shirts, Mrs. Gary Bliton and Mrs. W. D. Martindale, First Security Bank employees enjoy a coffee break in the new dining room.

Bound Up

BRISTOL, England (AP)—Two youths who took turns at their end of a marathon conversation in a cozy phone booth suddenly found themselves imprisoned by three truck drivers and a woman who had waited in the cold outside to make calls and ended up by angrily binding the booth around with a tow line.

"We never noticed anyone was waiting," said William Williams, 22. "We talked to the police and they sent a patrol car crew to untie us."

Daughter Of Australian Pen-Pal Makes A Long Awaited Visit To Home Of Kimberly Family

Twenty-four years ago Mrs. Gerald Heidemann, Kimberly, began writing letters to a pen pal in Australia, but not until a few weeks ago has she had an opportunity to meet a member of his family.

"When we started writing letters, he was in the service and I was in school," Mrs. Heidemann recalls.

Since then they have both married and have families half a world apart.

It all began, the Kimberly woman recalls, when her roommate was writing to a serviceman and one of his "buddies" asked that she write to him or have a friend write.

"Nearly everyone was writing to several servicemen at that time," Mrs. Heidemann recalls. "It was sort of a war project for the young women attempting to keep up the morale of the servicemen."

The serviceman was Ewald Wade who now lives in Parkes, New South Wales, Australia. Twenty-four years ago he was a member of the Royal Australian Air Force.

They exchanged letters for approximately five years and when he left the service and entered college they lost contact for a period of years.

Then 11 years ago Mrs. Heidemann received a letter from Mr. Wade. He was then married with two children and was farming in Parkes.

Shirley had moved from her native Minnesota to Idaho, was married to Gerald Heidemann, had two children and they were also farming.

"We found we had a lot more in common and our letters became family affairs. The youngsters exchanged notes and the wives compared notes on their homes and the men exchanged farm ideas."

Whenever there was a birthday anniversary, a graduation, or a coming out party, gifts or flowers were sent or received.

The Kimberly family had long discussed possibilities of a trip to Australia, but this fall they received a letter from Cheryl Wade, daughter of the Australian pen-pal, stating she was planning a trip to the United States.

At 21, Cheryl is the oldest of the children in the two families. Because of the different school systems, she has been out of school for six years.

During that time she has diligently saved her earnings from various jobs in her home town and in Sidney so that she might "do it."

"I don't plan to attend college, but I want to use the money I would spend for that in seeing the world," commented the attractive Australian visitor.

Cheryl did a bit of pen-palting in the past. She has written several "Magic Valley" residents whose names were sent her by Mrs. Heidemann. As a result she has been visiting friends including a Carey friend and will also visit in Arizona with a friend she met en route from Australia.

According to Cheryl there are a number of contrasts between her home and southern Idaho. The most startling change was the snow. Friends look her to the Idaho mountain ski area south of Hailey shortly after her arrival so she might see snow for the first time.

However, they needn't have gone to the trouble for last week there was some eight inches of snow on the lawn of the Heidemann home. Cheryl showed some pictures to send home to Australia where it is now mid-summer.

Because she is staying with friends while in the United States, she is keeping expenses at a minimum, but the young visitor says it costs quite a bit any day.

She plans to visit several other states and if possible would like to see Europe. This would be a good time, she says, as she's already halfway there and if her money holds out, she may depart for Europe next fall.

For the summer, however, she has other plans. She and a friend plan to tour Canada by automobile.

"We hope to see the Canadian scenery and parks by touring some anxious days wishing for moisture, the visitor explained, and if there is enough rain and at the right time of year both livestock and crops will benefit.

It's true that the kangaroo is a popular animal. Cheryl had a pet named Miss Phlipps until Miss Phlipps took a fancy to a young boy kangaroo and gave up her civilized home.

Shooting kangaroos, in any season, is a sport in that area and as they are a crop-damaging animal, residents look on them much as Idahoans do the Jack Rabbit.

As the Wade family lives only 240 miles from the ocean, surfing and swimming are also favorite recreational outlets. Cheryl also enjoys flying, with a boy friend as she is not a pilot, and often drives or flies 100 miles to water ski.

Cheryl thinks food is extremely expensive in the United States and says this is one of her problem budget items.

In Australia, for example, you can buy a hamburger for 20 cents and a milk shake for 15 cents. Fish and Chips or similar diner items are generally no more than a dollar.

"I haven't dared to drive," the visitor commented. "In Australia we all drive on the other side of the road and the steering wheel is on the opposite side of the vehicle. At first I almost panicked when cars approached because I felt we were in the wrong lane."

ENJOYING SNOWFALL in Kimberly is Australian visitor Cheryl Wade. This was the first time Miss Wade had seen snow and she arrived prior to heavy storms that dropped some eight inches in lower elevations. Although it was beautiful, she had a little difficulty coping with the depth and temperature.

SOUVENIRS SENT FROM Australia bring back memories for Cheryl Wade, Parkes, New South Wales, at left, and her hostess, Mrs. Shirley Heidemann, Kimberly. The Heidemann and Wade families have corresponded some 24 years but Cheryl's present visit marks the first time any of the family members have met.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

A former Twin Falls business man has put his spare time and talent to use to provide something different in the way of pocket sized publications for leisure reading.

El L. Lloyd, who operated Lloyd's Photos in Twin Falls until moving to Boise two years ago, has published a small book called "Camera Grammar."

A photographic play on words, Mr. Lloyd has worked out 18 pages of photographs using double exposures, superimposing, back projection, montage, printing a picture with two negatives and other tricks of his trade.

Each picture has a double meaning or a phrase to be finished by figuring out the photo puzzle.

Mr. Lloyd said he has collected some of the pictures over a period of years and others were taken for the book. Some involved considerable effort and time while others were simple one-shot photos.

A separate page contains the answers and according to Mr. Lloyd a score of 74 per cent is average and 99 per cent means you have real "word power."

"I'm not sure how the book will go. It may be popular, in which case I have some ideas for several others, or it may be a poor sales item," Mr. Lloyd said.

Printed by Ace Printing Co., Twin Falls, the small book is currently on sale there.

An unusual address on a Christmas card caused a few pucker brows at the RICHFIELD postoffice last week. The letter reached its destination; the Frank Cliff family, because Postmaster Melvin Popo is a fellow Lion Club member of Mr. Cliff, and Richfield is a small town.

The envelope carried this address:

To: The Owners of 1) a female horse, "Lady," who had a colt last summer.
2) a pony, "Sweetie," that the kids ride.
3) a dog, Prince.
Who lives across the street from the local park and have charge of the Lions hospitality book.
In: Richfield, Idaho 83340
The return address was from

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Saffell, 825 N. Ave. 50, Los Angeles. Enclosed with the card were pictures of one of the Cliff children, Marel, on the pony.

Mrs. Frank (Bobbie) Cliff has given the envelope to Postmaster Popo to send to Lion-International magazine. Mrs. Cliff stated 243 families signed the Lions Club park register last summer. They were from 38 states, two families from Canada, and one from Australia.

It is cougar hunting time again in ALMO and the surrounding area. Arley Cahoon and Curtis Durfee—a 180-pound cat recently in the City of Rocks Area near Almo after it was tracked down by dogs.

Earlier George Reardon, BURLEY, tracked a 7700, 3-inch mountain lion near Almo. The animal weighed 155 pounds and was trailed by three dogs who started from a day-old scent and ran the cat down. Reardon followed the case by snowmobile.

While hunting in the Marsh Creek district near ALBION, Dean Clark killed a 180-pound male cougar. His dog, "Featur," treed the cat before it was shot with a .22 pistol.

Clark said the cat was feeding on a five-point buck deer when he came upon it.

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

In answer to several letters: The 1921 Philadelphia Peace Dollar was the first of the Peace Dollars minted, and is one of the most eagerly sought after, since the mintage was only a little over a million pieces. Going prices for an uncirculated specimen are between $15.00 and $25.00 at the present time.

The 1895 Philadelphia Morgan dollar was minted only in Proof condition, and while a few of them got into circulation, it is still possible to recognize that the coin is a Proof coin. Only 12,890 were minted, and the coin currently will bring in the neighborhood of $3,000. It is genuine and an uncirculated Proof. A great many of the 1895-O and 1895-S dollars have been sold as 1895 Philadelphia dollars simply by removing the Mint Mark, but such tampering is easily recognizable under a powerful glass, since the marks of removal are readily seen.

From Mrs. L. T. Pocatello, Idaho: My father has a $2 1/2 dollar gold piece, dated 1848, which has the letters "CAL" over the eagle on the reverse side. Does this stand for California? The coin is pretty badly worn but you can see everything on it, and read it. Is the coin valuable? Where could I sell it?

Answer: I would advise that you take the coin in a safe deposit box until you have a chance to see a reputable dealer and have it verified. In 1848 some gold was sent to Washington by the military governor of California and the mint made the gold into quarters. Eagles ($2.50 gold pieces). The letters "CAL" were punched on these coins to identify that they were made from California gold, and only some 1400 of them were made. This coin, if genuine, could be worth in excess of $600 depending on its condition.

It may be a counterfeit—that is, the letters "CAL" may have been stamped on it since it left the mint, but I would certainly suggest you have it checked by an expert. You can contact Zion Coin Company, 57 East Broadway, Salt Lake City, Utah, and they will send a representative

Sophia Loren Given Hefty Bill For Taxes

ROME (AP) — Actress Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti have been given the largest city tax bill of any couple in Italy.

Rome tax assessors listed Thursday a combined tax bill income for the couple of $1 million and called for $147,000 in taxes. Miss Loren was credited with $500,000 in earnings. Her tax equals that of Giovanni Agnelli, president of Fiat Industries and considered Italy's richest man.

'MAO' FLU NAMED NEW DELHI (AP) — India has tagged its winter epidemic Mao flu rather than Hong Kong flu as the ailment is known elsewhere. Authorities reported that besides the human sufferers a chimpanzee at the Delhi zoo was stricken with the Mao type.

New Year Approaches

By NORMA HERZINGER

Another new year. In just two short days we shall be ushering in a new year and bidding farewell to the old.

For some of us thoughts of a new year bring about nostalgic ideas of dreams come true and the divine faith that the year can be no other way. We always make such a long list of new year's resolutions and with good intentions, too, but it is only logical that some of the things we had to cope with in 1968 will be on hand again to make us stop and think, rationalize and yes, even enjoy.

Judging from the resolutions I've heard (along with my own) and the predictions for 1969, both amateur and professional — it can only prove to be most interesting and exciting.

During 1968 we saw the return of the curl and the feminine form; skirt lengths still above the knees and turtlenecks for formal events, along with such national publicized events as the marriage of Jackie Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis; three men circling the moon; peace talks on the war in Vietnam; major riots in France, Mexico and the U.S.; assassination of Martin Luther King and Robert Kennedy; record breaking summer Olympics in Mexico; advent of 1969 automobiles; sleeper success of "Bonnie and Clyde," "The Graduate" and "BlowUp"; first heart transplants; the predictable outcome of the Republican and Democratic Conventions, with their unpredictable sidelights, and only two more shopping days left until Leap Year ends.

The year ahead could be filled with all sorts of triumphant happenings.

We could see — another White House marriage; expansion of transplants to other human organs; end of the war in Vietnam; men walking on the moon; major reforms in higher education; the rise and the fall of extreme movements; a less eventful year-in-conjunction with the simmering down of national emergencies, and even a shift from Hollywood's cowboys, spies and Julie Andrews.

We have a new first lady in the White House who will tend to set the fashion pace throughout the nation, and, — it just might be interesting to see if something will be devised so we can more readily be able to tell the boys from the girls, or will the long hair and merging styles continue between the sexes? Wigs, wiglets and false eyelashes have become very common place for the average American woman — it will be fun to see what new plausible accessories will be adopted.

The new and unpredictable events often prove to be the most rewarding and pleasant. But, whatever the New Year brings for you and yours, I hope, it will be a happy one.

1968 Was Really Great!

Be It Ever So Fine

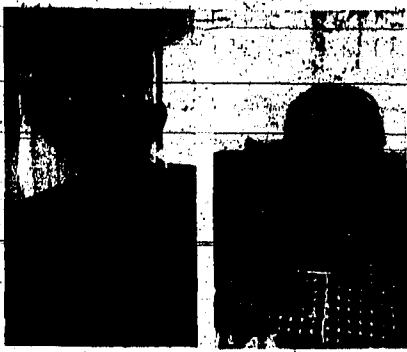

During 1969

IT TAKES ALL KINDS of people to make a world just as it takes all kinds of best wishes and "Happy New Year" greetings to keep things interesting. Peace on earth and the very best of new years are the sincere wishes of all Americans to friends and neighbors this holiday season. Here an undisturbed section of snow served to hold the New Year wish. It not only served the purpose for an unusual picture, it provided a sincere wish for patients at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital who could view the message from the north windows. The picture was taken through the courtesy of Jim Rosenbaum, Magic Valley Memorial Hospital assistant administrator, from the hospital's third floor. The picture was taken by Bonnie Baird Jones and was artistically stamped in the snow by the Times-News' own, Ruth Koonce. Happy New Year to all.

Spain Is Like A Vast Museum . . .

Artistic Treasures Are Big Attractions

The Romans have left Spain not only this stately aqueduct at Segovia, located not far from Madrid, but other remains including the ruins of ancient Italica, Merida, Tarragona and a host of bridges, archways and pavements scattered along the many of Spain's highways. Spain is like a vast museum with its display extending from the prehistoric cave paintings of Altamira to present-day abstract art exhibits. The changing landscape is dotted with castles, palaces, mansions, monasteries and cathedrals of world artistic value. There are just a few of the things Magic Fleeta tourists will see when they tour Spain in February. The Times-News sponsored tour is scheduled from Feb. 8 through 22 and will be hosted by Nancy Hernandez, Times-News women's editor. Deadline for reservations has been rescheduled for no later than Jan. 8.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this and help wake up a mother who is neglecting her 4-year-old son. She happens to be my divorced daughter. She works, taking him to a nursery Monday thru Friday. She gets home each day at 5:30 p. m., gives him supper and puts him to bed. On Monday she starts trying to find someone to keep the boy from Friday after work until late Sunday evening, so she can kick up her heels and act like a teen-ager at some cheap dance hall. Abby, she is 24. This little boy begs to go to Sunday school, but our daughter won't take him. She says he has plenty of time for that, and she has her own life to think about. She never takes the child anywhere. His grandmothers take him occasionally, but he needs a mother's love. His daddy is as bad as his mother. He promises to come and see him, and the poor kid looks in the window for him all day Sunday and no daddy shows up. What can I do? CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: If you can't make your daughter realize what an injustice she is doing her son during his impressionable, formative years, take the child whenever you can and try to compensate for the love and attention he is being denied by his parents. (I've always said, before marriage mental tests should be required by law, not blood tests.)

DEAR ABBY: It was bad enough when my girl friend found out about my wife. But when my wife found out about my girl friend I really was in trouble. To make matters worse, these two have become very good friends and they have coffee together about once a week. What do you think they're cooking up?

HARRY

DEAR HARRY: Your goose, probably.

DEAR ABBY: You've got to help me. I'm an 18-year-old girl who is going steady with a 22-year-old guy who keeps after me to "prove my love." We've gone together for a year now, and Abby, I DO love him, but I just can't see myself "proving" it the way he wants me to. He says it's not wrong if two people love each other and plan to get married some day. But Abby, I just wasn't raised that way. We fight about this all the time. He's really a swell guy, and I'd give my right arm for him. What should I do? BLUE EYES

DEAR BLUE EYES: Tell him to be a man, "prove" his love and control himself. And if he still keeps after you, he's not worth your right arm. What he needs is a right hook.

FIRST TRICK IS SUCCESS KEY

South's jump to four spades was a substantial overbid. He had a six-card suit, but a high-card holding was a mere five points. However, he made up for his overbid in the up East's last two trumps, finessed the diamonds again and discarded one of his clubs on the ace of diamonds. He had to lose two clubs plus one heart, totaling only three lost tricks. Had South made the mistake of winning the first heart, we might still be hearing about his hard luck.

He could still finesse diamonds and drop West's queen of spades but after that series of plays he would have no way to get out of dummy without putting West into the lead. West would then play his queen of clubs and the defense would cash three clubs and a heart.

South would have also made the hand against a queen of clubs lead. He would let West hold that trick but would cover the second club lead. This would make it impossible for West to lead a heart later and eventually South would get rid of his losing heart on a diamond or a club.

play. He covered West's jack of hearts with dummy's queen and was quite unhappy when East produced the king. This didn't stop him from coming up with the key play of the hand. He let East hold the trick! East led back his small heart. He had nothing better to do. South took his ace and successfully finessed dummy's jack of diamonds. Then he cashed the ace and king of spades and was rewarded by seeing the queen drop. Now all that remained was the mopping up. He returned to his hand by ruffing a small heart, picked

Sad Dad Admits Generation 'Gap' With Nudist Daughter

"WHY PARENTS can't get along with their older children isn't so hard to understand." Best first name depends on the last name. For instance, there's a lady in Kingsburg, Cal., named Linea Lind. A dandy, what? Instead of inserting it in our Musical Monickers file right below Millicent Monymaker of St. Louis and Heather Harvester of Roanoke, Okla.

A BIBLICAL SCHOLAR quotes the Scriptures as follows: "When Jolu was come to Jerroll, Jézé-él heard it and painted her face." Make mention of this to point out the use of face make-up by the ladies is no recent thing. Know you know that. But apparently a Traverse City, Mich., man did not. Writes her: "Never before have girls with such big bodies and such little faces exposed so much of the one and concealed so much of the other."

CUSTOMER SERVICE: Q. "Do you have any readers in Utah?" A: Know of none. This makes me sad, too. Not bitter. Just sad. It's widely known Utah turns out the most beautiful girls in the United States. However, am proud to report I have a feminine reader in Montana who came from Utah originally. Got a snapshot from her. She said she moved to Montana to become a fan dancer, but gave it up because Montana law requires its fan dancers to wear costumes that weigh no less than 3 pounds, 2 ounces. Was obvious from the photo she could not make a living in Montana under such harsh restriction.

Your questions and comments are welcomed and will be answered wherever possible in "Checking Up." Address mail to L. M. Boyd, in care of P. O. Box 99187, Seattle, Wash. 98109.

Ask Them Yourself

heart surgeon
Have there been any major advances in the use of artificial hearts?—Kirk Hile, Danville, Ill.

Recent developments in cardiac transplantation have pointed up even more sharply than before the need for artificial replacement of the heart. The artificial device would solve the problems of insufficient donors and of logistics. Moreover, the ethical, moral, and legal questions raised by transplantation do not apply to artificial hearts. We already have a partial mechanical pump that will support the heart temporarily. There remains, however, a number of unsolved problems before a complete artificial heart can be used in a human being. Extensive research to solve these problems is now being pursued, and progress to date is encouraging.

FOR HENRY FOWLER, Secretary of the Treasury

Is it true that the two-dollar bill is being taken out of circulation?—Jerome C. Blankinship, Las Vegas, Nev.

The printing of two-dollar bills was discontinued in August, 1966, because of lack of public demand. The small supply on hand at that time was distributed to commercial banks throughout the country.

FOR ARNOLD PALMER

Have you ever made a "hole in one"? What is your best score for 18 holes?—Cayle Green, Lowell, Mass.

I have made eight holes in one in my lifetime. I have shot 62 twice in professional tournaments, once in Palm Springs and once in Los Angeles.

FOR SYLVIA PORTER,

financial columnist
The price of wheat has gone down from $1.80 per bushel two years ago to only $1 per bushel today. Why has the price of bread gone up?—H. F. Mair, Worcester, Ohio

Wheat prices are down because the weather in the wheat-growing areas has been excellent, and farmers have expanded their ability to produce per acre. Bread is up because the cost of the wheat is actually a minor part of the over-all price. The costs of handling, packing, transporting, and distributing are soaring.

BETTY FURNESS, Presidential

adjutant on consumer affairs
Why is it almost impossible to buy one pair of men's or boys' underwear instead of the "package of three"?—Mrs. Fred C. Kniesler, Allentown, N.J.

I am sure it is possible to buy one pair of underwear in most retail stores. In many self-service stores, however, it has been found easier and, of course, more profitable to stock packaged merchandise. If enough people complain, though, something might be done about it.

FOR KEN HARRISON,

outfitter, Boston Red Sox
How did you get the nickname "The Hawk"?—Dorothy Curran, East Pepperell, Mass.

Because of my nose!

FOR H. MARVIN WATSON,

Postmaster General
When did the postal service begin in the U.S.?—Isabel Blanco, Beverly Hills, Calif.

The first official notice of a postal service in colonial America appears in a 1639 ordinance of the General Court of Massachusetts, designating Richard Fairbanks' tavern in Boston as the first official "post office."

FOR REX SCHESSLER,

executive director, Senior Bowl football game
How do you manage to make the playing field so colorful for the Senior Bowl game?—W. M. Mason, San Antonio, Texas

To make the colored patterns on the field we use a water-base paint, a spray gun, and stencils or patterns cut out of plywood for the letters and figures.

FOR HUGH DOWNS, host of the "Caddy" show

The press has tended to apply the word "hippie" to long-haired burners, and I do not admire that kind of withdrawal and reaction. But I think today's younger generation's broader movement to establish its own fashions and its own values—and to live up to some of our values—little better than we have—is good for society.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

A Little Litter Goes a Long Way
Scientists are working on packaging which will disintegrate or be worth redeeming. Pick-up and disposal of litter is already a $500-million problem for the taxpayer, and with population and affluence zooming, they are worried that trash will soon edge out people. Meantime, the careless public, according to Keep America Beautiful, Inc., uses highways for disposal. In Texas, some notable throwaways were a tombstone, an artificial leg, a fully equipped doctor's satchel, and a loaded revolver. In New Mexico, the uncrowned champion litterbug was fined $5 for leaving a dead horse on the highway.

The Litz Luck Tommy Litz, winner of the world's free-style skating crown in 1964, and current Ice Capades star, once was a very bitter loser. The boy from Hershey, Pa., was odds-on favorite to win the U.S. Junior National Skating Championships in 1961. But he placed only sixth. That year the entire U.S. delegation to the World

Figure Skating Championships died in a plane crash. Tommy says, "Whenever the going gets rough, I can't help but remember how that early defeat literally saved my life."

Pain Relief on Demand Now there is do-it-yourself help for patients in pain after an operation, according to the American College of Surgeons. The patient presses a button on an electronically controlled injection device, and a pain-killing syringe is emptied into a manifold which is already connected to the patient's vein. The system contains four syringes, but a timer prevents reinjection until a specified time has elapsed.

Back to the Old Grind Coffeemaster Al Huffman tells what a professional coffee taster does. First, he sniffs the roasted beans for impurities and contamination. Next, boiling water from a copper kettle—which leaves no after-taste—is poured over the sample, and he sniffs for aroma. Finally, he sucks up the coffee quickly, spraying it over all the taste buds, then quickly spits it out. For superior coffee, don't let the brew wait more than an hour before serving and never reheat it. Incidentally, coffee is a favorite late New Year's Eve beverage. If not, it certainly should be.

Hairy Tail For grooming the hair around the eyes of small, silky-coated dogs, a medium-soft toothbrush works well. For overenthusiastic, long-haired, short-haired dogs that injure tails by too much wagging, use a thick roll of cotton as a bandage, extending a few inches beyond the tip and secured with adhesive tape. Extra padding will let the tail heal before it gets banged against objects with more wagging.

Julie Nixon Talks About Youth,

Her father will be inaugurated President of the important event in her life took place last week

By SANDRA SHEVEY

David's "first date" with Julie was at her coming-out party just two years ago.

those days. We were both too young. We used to sort of look at each other across the White House dinner table, when Daddy was in President Eisenhower's administration."

It wasn't until fate impelled David to apply to Amherst and Julie to Smith—colleges "seven miles or five minutes apart, if you're in love"—that they formally started dating.

Julie smiled nostalgically at me as she went on. "I would go to Amherst for the weekend, or he would come to Smith, depending on where the best concert was. David loves music, especially jazz. We like to do simple things—go to mixers, for walks, and on bike rides. We both like people, so we usually did things in a group. Other times, we'd come into New York for the weekend and just spend the day walking around.

"After a year, we became engaged. Mr. Eisenhower kept asking when the wedding would be, and his grandmother prodded David to hurry up. We all got impatient. Originally, it was supposed to be around graduation in 1970, but David didn't think we should wait, so we kept moving up the date."

Julie became more animated when I asked "girl questions" about her wedding plans. "I always dreamed of an old-fashioned wedding dress—the kind our mothers and grandmothers wore. Something with a high collar, lace, or pearls, something to give a traditional look. Simple and girlish, nothing mod, of course. I wanted a full, swinging skirt.

"You know, I saw one just like it one night in a shop on Fifth Avenue. David thought it was too expensive, but Dad said he thought we could rent it for one night."

She sighed like many young ladies who find that a wedding is not something the betrothed plan by themselves. "Mom and Tricia (her older sister) wanted a White House reception, but I didn't care. I always wanted to be married in a small church and even have the reception party in a hotel."

At the time I interviewed Julie, the couple's future plans were hazy. They thought then they would look for an apartment somewhere between their colleges. Julie took off a semester to campaign for her father but has applied for readmission to Smith. After graduation, plans are even more hazy. David must first complete his military obligation; then he intends to go to law school.

AT FIRST Julie Nixon appeared distracted by the hustle and bustle of her father's New York headquarters. Then I started asking questions about love and life—and her concentration became almost total.

I found her an extreme optimist, an incurable romantic in the midst of a storybook romance. Literally, her brown eyes misted when she told me recently:

"The most exciting moment in my life was when David and I realized we were in love. I adore great love stories—I could read about the Duke and Duchess of Windsor over and over again." She sat back and sighed as though she had finally put into words something very important.

David, of course, is David Eisenhower, grandson of former President Dwight Eisenhower; and Julie, at 20, will see her own father—Vice President under Eisenhower—move into the White House next month. Julie played an important part in Richard Nixon's campaign for the Presidency, but when I talked to her, the most important man in her life was David and the most important event her marriage to him on Dec. 22.

"David was my first real boy friend. We were childhood sweethearts. Of course, we didn't date in

Even at Ike's inauguration ceremonies in 1957, Julie had eyes only for David

Love, and Her Marriage

United States next month, but the most —her marriage to David Eisenhower

Being a wife and homemaker are the most wonderful things in the world to Julie. "David wants a girl who enjoys puttering around the house. I love to cook and serve tea at a party. My career will be him." Among the Secret Service men, I learned, Julie is known as the girl who makes the best pies and cakes, and David loves her light, fluffy pancakes. An ideal housekeeper, you'll never find a messy corner or a disordered desk in Julie's room.

"When men and women try to do the same things, there's too much tension," Julie said, with the authority of someone who has given much thought to the subject. "People start taking from each other, rather than giving. Dad was always the breadwinner in our family, and Mom the homemaker. When David will come home, I'll want him to sit down, relax, and forget the problems at the office. I wouldn't be able to do this if I were competing in a man's world all day, too.

"I also want him to be the boss. Many men today feel the rug has been sort of pulled out from under their feet. In our family, Daddy makes the decisions. A man should listen to what his wife has to say, but he should have the last word. David's like this."

Her eyes began to sparkle again. "He's gentle and makes me feel my opinion is important to him, but he always takes charge. Mother has always been Daddy's right arm. When over his spirits were low, she has always been there to perk him up. I want to be David's strength, his support in that way.

"It's also important to be friends with the person you're marrying—to enjoy the same things and to be able to let your hair down with each other. I've never been much of an athlete, but lately I've become quite a good first baseman. And David loves to dance, so we've been going to a lot of discothèques. David's more serious than I am. He says I think life's a big joke! I think it could be very tragic if you took everything to heart. My lightness lifts David's mood sometimes."

Julie Nixon is a very practical girl. Trends don't influence her. The teen revolt doesn't seem to have made a mark. And coming from a notable family doesn't show much, either. At all times she seems sweet and completely down-to-earth.

"We've always been taught to appreciate everything we get and to give something in return," Julie said, brushing back the strands of brown hair that had fallen over her pale forehead.

"I never expected growing up to be easy. I never thought things were due me. I took in stride the time and hard work. At some colleges you have a small group of troublemakers who feel the world owes them something. Though they're in the minority, they want to run the school. They're like the hecklers who, during the campaign, tried to disrupt our speeches. The rest of the people wanted to listen, but one or two can make things terribly hard.

"I know young people sometimes feel left out. I do, too. That's why Dad is trying to get the vote for 18-year-olds and set up talk sessions across the country where teens can have their say and be heard by the Government.

"You can achieve a lot in an organized way. At Smith, our student governing board got us a new curriculum. The dean and the president have a veto power, but why not? They're professionals."

Julie looked deeply at me as if to see whether I understood what she was trying to say.

"My parents and I always have understood each other. I respect what they have to say. We have a few taboos, like drugs, which I don't question because I know my parents are right."

If you saw Julie Nixon on campus or in a crowd, you'd be able to spot her immediately. Her youthful, energetic appearance is consistent with her bountiful optimism. She wears little make-up, except for a pale lipstick and a sheer, clear nail-polish. Her face is so shiny and cleanly scrubbed she looks like the girl in a cold cream ad. Her hair is drawn softly back, and it falls loosely to her shoulders.

"David doesn't like women who look made-up. And he prefers what's natural to anything artificial. He loves my hair after it's just been washed and is soft and wavy. I don't tell him I've just used a hairsetter," she added mischievously.

Her clothes are practical and tasteful rather than mod. During the campaign, you might have found Julie taking along a thin knit because "it keeps its shape so well in a suitcase." You also might have seen her picking out a soft tweed skirt and casual flannel blouse in a department store rather than buying clothes at a designer show.

On fancy dates, she wears lace and velvet though, "I love organdy, but it crushes so easily."

Minis are out. "David likes to admire them on other girls but not on me." And you'd never find her in a pants suit or textured stockings. Fitted dresses with belts are more her forte. To match her snappy personality, she likes bright yellow, green, and red.

For both men and women, Julie prefers the simple, clean, all-American look. "Thank goodness David is an Ivy dresser. I couldn't bear it if he wore a Nehru jacket and love beads."

The magic of Julie Nixon can be seen in a story David Eisenhower tells about the past campaign. "We were in St. Louis on the eve of the first-World Series game. Julie cheerfully greeted the crowd before I got there. To avoid my slipping, she told them the truth—that I was a Detroit Tiger fan.

"I arrived later and, trying to cover myself, hinted that I was rooting for the St. Louis Cardinals. I already told them you're really for," she said, as if we weren't in front of thousands of people. She nearly bowled me over. We still kid about it today."

It was typical Julie Nixon—or rather Julie Nixon Eisenhower. ✦

- Each shoulder raises, lowers. Each bust expands, contracts, raises, lowers.
- Waist narrows, widens, shortens, lengthens.
- Hips widen, narrow, raise, lower.
- Entire form gaize, reduces with you—adjusts to other family members.
- Strong steel stand—and form take apart easily—goes away in drawer.

If you're without a dress form—just trying this one (at our risk) can change your life.

This form guarantees a custom fit expensive look to each dress you alter or make—or no cost. Yet it saves you money so fast it often pays for itself the first or second time used.

This custom fit form saves hours adjusting patterns—and fitting cloths—up to 50% of sewing time. It saves struggling, twisting, turning—trying to get the right fit. It saves ripping out seams for a simple alteration, or just because your skirt didn't hang properly the first time.

It's perfect for beginners. Here is why all of this is so.

THE SECRET OF CUSTOM FIT

Would you like every dress you alter or make patterned for its custom fit expensive look?

While you smile—inside—at the money and time you've saved—at the end of embarrassment of poor fit "home made" clothes—or the success of your first dress making attempt.

The secret is custom adjusting of standard patterns to your differences (there's only one you). When you pin the pattern to an exact duplicate of you this adjusting is simple and easy.

And this custom fit life size dress form becomes—exactly YOU—with YOUR waist—YOUR shoulders—YOUR neck—YOUR bust line—YOUR hips.

This is because in each body area an ingenious size computer "dial" your measurements. A Tab (like a tape measure) slides through a slot under the area answer window. When your measurements appear in each window just clip lock in position. Automatically the DUPONT NEOPRENE processed body material has already adjusted—in each body area—to become YOU! Custom adjusting of patterns to you has become as easy as before if you was difficult.

A LIFE SAVER FOR BEGINNERS

Because the hardest part of home sewing is making adjustments—exactly what ADJUST-O-MATIC makes so simple.

With it beginners easily make hems—adjust hemlines—make alterations to perfectly store bought clothes fit like made to order. You save the $3 to $5 paid before to fit a shoulder line—shorten a hem (take in a waist line). You're more satisfied with the way your clothes fit.

Fitting in this form is so easy you quickly form old dresses into new. Too tight or too loose—too large or too small dresses fit again. You easily alter, redesign, remodel your own dresses, coats, skirts, blouses. You begin to make your own simple dresses then more complicated ones. Later, you even design your own styles, and all on this form.

DOES MORE THAN ANY OTHER FORM

This master pattern maker's form has every possible professional dressmaker trick and short cut built right into it.

It's unlike any other form. To adjust there's no maze of wire and bolts to struggle with. Simply slide adjust and clip lock. It's pinnable—throughout. No gaps down front or side or around neck give difficulty.

Scientifically placed guide lines let you know when your dress is perfectly centered on the form. The light steel stand is so adjustable, raises or lowers precisely to any point 4' 2" to 5' 6" (add length of your head from neck up to measurements of any form). It's handsome rubber tipped gives steady support. It assembles, takes apart easily.

The inventor has built a LUGO CELLA DRESS FORMS maker for leading pattern companies into this form. U.S. Patents All his life — he designed #202288, #140031, #314022, #314022. dress forms — some of the world's most expensive — to give custom fit to the very rich. But he built this custom dress form for you — to adjust more precisely than any other — do many dressmaker tricks others can't — yet costs a fraction of the others.

Work with this form anywhere. Lap, table, chair. Want to work on shoulders—back—underarm seams—front—waist—hips? Precise! One hand lifts form off stand. Without ever getting up from your chair you can take ADJUST-O-MATIC apart and work in sections.

Every adjustment—each contour line—the height range—the angle of the darts—posture angle of the form—all have been checked and rechecked by fashion fit leaders, home dress making authorities and fashion editors.

Those Super-Secret Think Tanks: Good or Evil?

Starve China? Rule the world?
These are plans considered by hired brains who may exert undue influence on U.S. foreign policy

By LEONARD C. LEWIN

Leonard C. Lewin wrote the introductory material to "Reason from Iron Mountain: On the Feasibility and Desirability of Peace," a controversial think-tank style report which became a 1968 best-seller.

LAST FEBRUARY, readers of the New York Times were given an unusual glimpse into the military mind at work.

The story in question, by E. W. Kenworthy of the Times' Washington bureau, dealt with a secret research study commissioned by the Army in 1965. The project originally had been called Pax Americana, but this title later was changed to conceal its stated purpose, which was to suggest "a basis for the U.S. to maintain world hegemony in the future." The language is the Army's.

Despite repeated requests from Senators J. W. Fulbright (Ark.) and Vance Hartke (Ind.), the Pentagon refused to release the document. Why? Because it contained military secrets? No; such material, if any, could have been deleted. Rather, because it "would be susceptible to misinterpretations and could produce serious repercussions abroad."

In other words, since our Army had hired some brains to work out various plans for America to rule the world, foreign governments might think that rulling the world was actually what our military had in mind.

What this story highlighted was not so much the fact of military meddling in foreign policy, but the revelation of the kind of thing that goes on in the name of planning for the future—under military sponsorship.

For Pax Americana is a good example of a "think-tank" report. The Pentagon currently spends $25 million a year for studies much like this one. Most of it goes to such institutions as the Rand Corporation, the Institute for Defense Analysis, and the Hudson Institute. These are the best known of the celebrated think tanks. Pax Americana, as it happens, was prepared by the "social-science research" department of the Douglas Aircraft Corporation.

During the past 20 years these institutions have achieved enormous, if generally unseen, influence over Government policymakers. Let me try to describe this kind of thinking, and, in so doing, indicate why I am concerned about it.

The first, and perhaps the most visible, characteristic of the think-tank mentality is the pseudo-scientific language in which its reports are cloaked; scientific jargon that sounds authoritative.

An important part of this language is the use of numbers. A typical think-tank production can make ordinary guesswork sound awesomely quantitative. It will start, normally, with broad, unproved working assumptions (usually about anticipated economic or political trends). These will be programmed into a computer, together with available statistics that seem relevant. The results then are expressed in new statistics, charts, equations, graphs, and all the other trappings associated with carefully measured research. The projections look precise. But they are unfounded.

The seemingly scientific conclusions are usually so elaborate and detailed that the reader tends to lose sight of the fact that they have been developed from premises that often amount to no more than off-the-cuff opinions. This is not to deny that such speculations can be useful or brilliant or even accurate. What is misleading is the implication that they are more than speculation.

A notorious example is the series of studies which persuaded the Department of Defense that American military action in South Vietnam could succeed—and by 1965!

Another characteristic of this thinking is its claim to some kind of godlike objectivity, that it is possible to make plans for the future of humanity without regard for any human values. The usual phrase used by the think tankers is that their work is "value-free."

One noted think tanker, whose descriptions of nuclear escalation and annihilation are the best-known examples of such coldly "objective" thinking, defends such studies as hard-headed realism. But the implications of this brand of "scientific" objectivity are, in fact, monstrous.

We have, for example, the spectacle of a respected scholar proposing the mass starvation of the Chinese people (by cornering international grain supplies) as a "practical" political lever against their government.

This thinking quite predictably reaches its zenith when it turns to warfare. Your friendly neighbor, a gentle man who will risk injury to himself to avoid hitting a dog with his car, will talk quite casually five minutes later about the desirability of ending the war in Vietnam by dropping an H-bomb simply to "get it over with."

Herman Kahn (L) of the Hudson Institute represents think-tank reasoning; Sen. J. W. Fulbright questions its influence on U. S. policy.

So far as he is concerned, he isn't talking about mass murder; he is being "realistic." He is reflecting a barbaric point of view that has been made respectable by the "value-free" strategic studies emanating from the think tanks.

I hope it is clear that I am not attacking objectivity in particular or scientific method in general. We need more of both in dealing with our increasingly complex social problems.

But objectivity can exist only insofar as one's own points of view are recognized and acknowledged. There is no such thing as not having any. And the use of scientific jargon and computers by itself offers no evidence whatever of bona-fide scientific method. The fraud of the think tanks is that they offer us scientism—the appearance of scientific method—in the guise of the real thing.

This is bad enough. But far more disturbing is the indirect moral and political influence it exerts on our national policy. It is frightening to realize that the men who personify the think-tank mentality have had access to the highest Government levels since World War II.

It is no morbid accident that the few examples of think tankery I have used have concerned war in one form or another. The think tanks themselves were created by the military in the first place and are supported by what President Eisenhower called the "military-industrial complex." Or, to be brutally blunt, those who have a vested interest in war.

Perhaps even more dangerous is the way in which the "think-tank" morally contributes to our national myths. These myths are substitutes for rational thinking about serious problems; they offer easy, instant answers to complex questions.

One myth in question is our blind faith in anything that calls itself science. The scientific miracles of this century have been so spectacular that we tend to accept the proposition, encouraged by the think tanks, that all problems, including moral and social dilemmas, can be resolved by computers.

Scientism begets another great, peculiarly American myth; that we, as a nation, can do whatever we want, that we are invincible, that our relations with the rest of the world can be determined solely by our own decisions. To suggest otherwise, according to our political demagogues, is unpatriotic. This is cheap and lazy patriotism—and terribly dangerous nonsense.

Add to this myth number three, an assumption of American righteousness, that whatever we do anywhere is automatically good because we are doing it, whatever any other peoples may think of it.

In the nuclear age, these myths make up an explosive mixture without historical precedent. They can be neutralized only by a massive infusion of reason into our political life. The substitute for reason offered by the think-tank mentality does not challenge these myths. On the contrary, it perpetuates them.

In short, it offers us only a fool-proof recipe for disaster. ♦

Frank's and Mia's Troubles Made Her a Star

"FOR HEAVEN'S sake, I don't want to be known just as the girl who replaced Mia Farrow in a movie!"

That's Jacqueline Bisset, talking, the actress who did indeed replace Mia in "The Detective" opposite Frank Sinatra. "I am glad I got the role," says Jacqueline, "but I hope that in time people will forget how."

"The Detective" was supposed to be a showcase for the newlywed Sinatras. Then studio officials announced that "due to previous commitments" Mia Farrow would not be able to appear. More than likely, Frank's and Mia's marriage already was in trouble. Almost out of desperation, studio bigwigs turned to an unknown for the choice role—lovely Jacqueline Bisset.

Until she got her break, the beautiful 24-year-old from Waybridge, Surrey, England, had distinguished herself more as a model than an actress. She grew up in an environment typical of a girl whose father is a country doctor and whose mother quit her job as a lawyer to devote full time to her family.

"In those days I never thought of acting as a career. I was mad about ballet. But I was put in a few school plays because I was kind of pretty as a child. Even at that age, I was frightened of being known as 'just a pretty girl.'"

At the time, Jacqueline was a bit on the heavy side. Her biggest concern is still her weight. "This particularly handicapped me when I decided to become a model." Getting started wasn't as easy as expected. "I was told I had to look sophisticated. When I did, I was told I had to build a reputation in the modelling industry. So I went the usual rounds of the agencies, and most of them told me to lose weight. When I did, I got work."

Jacqueline won her first movie part in "The Knack" in January, 1965, followed it with a small role in "Cul de Sac," then had parts in "Two for the Road" and "The Sweet Ride."

But when Mia suddenly became unavailable for "The Detective," Jacqueline ended up with the plum role opposite Frank Sinatra.

Her acting contribution in the film was something less than outstanding, but the attendant publicity has propelled her toward stardom. As a result, she was given the female lead opposite Steve McQueen in the highly successful "Bullitt." And even before that film was released, she was assigned yet another lead in "The White Ladder," in which she is the only known name. It may well turn her into a full-fledged star.

Jacqueline is torn by doubts about herself as an actress and as a woman. "I've got ups and downs constantly. And big depressions. I am not secure in my work. There are a lot of areas of life that I know nothing about."

Ever since she played opposite him in "The Sweet Ride," Jacqueline has been romantically linked with a promising young actor named Michael Sarrazin. The reports that the two of them have gotten married or are about to are as consistent as their denials. "I don't believe marriage is a working system. Not for me. Not yet, anyway," Jacqueline says.

Although she loves her parents, she feels she never was treated as an equal. "They would hide the papers from me because there were things in them I shouldn't read," she says. "Or books—I was always looking up words in the dictionary which I didn't understand and which they refused to explain to me."

In spite of her background and in spite of her exposure to people both as a model and as an actress, Jacqueline has remained basically shy. "I don't like to throw myself at people, and I don't like them to throw themselves at me," she insists, "and I don't like crowds at all."

What does she want out of life? "A sense of well-being, friends, dignity, and self-respect."

"But mostly I want to be recognized as an individual."

DESSERT TO Highlight NEW YEAR'S DINNER

MELANIE DEPROFT Food Editor

■ For New Year's Day, plan an easy-on-the-hostess dinner. A large roast of meat, a choice of frozen or canned vegetables, a relish tray, refrigerated rolls, and our featured dessert will keep the emphasis on ease. Happy New Year!

Pineapple Swirl Trifle

- 1/2 cup cold milk
- 1 tablespoon (1 env.) unflavored gelatin
- 2 pkgs. (3 1/2 oz. each) vanilla pudding and pie filling
- 3 cups milk
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) pineapple slices, thoroughly drained
- Jelly roll (commercial or see recipe), cut in 12 slices
- 2 env. (about 2 oz. each) dessert topping mix, prepared according to pkg. directions

1. Sprinkle gelatin over the 1/2 cup milk and set aside.

2. Prepare the pudding according to pkg. directions using the 3 cups milk. Remove from heat. Immediately add the softened gelatin and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Mix in extract and cool thoroughly.

3. Line sides of a 9-in. springform pan with 4 pineapple slices alternated with 4 jelly roll slices.

4. Fold prepared topping into pudding. Spoon a third of the pudding into pan. Arrange a layer of jelly roll slices over pudding. Repeat layers ending with the pudding. Top with the remaining pineapple slices.

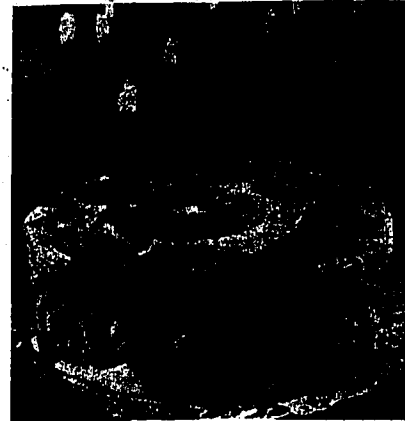

Guide for Roasting Meat

Place roast on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Season with salt and pepper, if desired. Insert meat thermometer so tip reaches the center of the largest muscle, being sure that tip does not rest in fat or on bone. Roast in a 300°F.—325°F. oven (325°F.—350°F. for fresh pork) to the desired degree of doneness. Remove from oven and remove thermometer. For easier carving, allow the roast to "set" 15 to 20 min.

About 10 servings

Jelly Roll

- 1/2 cup (about 4) egg yolks
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 cup sifted cake flour
- 1/2 cup (about 4) egg whites
- 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 Jelly or jam (about 1 cup)

1. Grease bottom of a 15 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1-in. jelly roll pan; line with waxed paper cut to fit bottom of pan; grease paper. Set aside.

2. Beat egg yolks, 1/2 cup sugar, water, and extract together until very thick. Fold in flour until just blended. Set aside.

3. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar and salt until frothy. Add 1/2 cup sugar gradually, continuing to beat until stiff peaks are formed.

4. Fold in the egg yolk mixture until blended. Turn batter into the prepared pan and spread evenly.

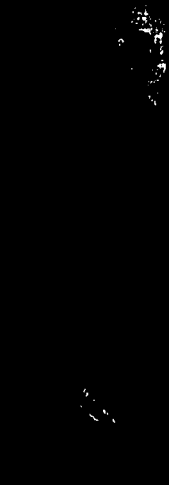

5. Bake at 350°F. 20 to 25 min. or until top springs back when lightly touched at center. Loosen edges of cake and immediately turn onto a towel with confectioners' sugar sifted over it. Peel off the paper and trim any crisp edges of cake.

6. To roll, begin at one end of cake. Using towel as a guide, tightly grasp nearest edge of towel and quickly pull it over beyond opposite edge. Cake will roll itself as you pull. Wrap roll in towel and set on wire rack to cool about 30 min.

7. When ready to fill, carefully unroll cooled cake, spread with jelly or jam and reroll. Slice and serve.

It's New Year's Resolution Time Again!

What we need, says this famous humorist, is a 13th month—so we'll have time to keep last year's promises

By GOODMAN ACE

Author of "Book of Little Knowledge" and "The Fine Art of Hypochondria"

A chubby, pink-faced little boy joined Father Time. "You're certainly a healthy-looking New Year," I said.

AS WE all know, New Year's resolutions go in one year and out the other.

I thought I had that little human frailty licked last New Year's Eve, when the first resolution I made was, "I resolve to keep all my New Year's resolutions this year." I was so sure that would work that I added all the broken resolutions from past years to my 1968 list. It was a long one.

And here it is a few nights before the year runs out, and I find myself with a long list in as disreputable repair as in any other year. It's not that I didn't "try." As a matter of fact, it was my most trying year. And it went by too fast. To rid myself of feelings of guilt, I went into my usual ritual of complaints:

Where has the year gone? Why isn't there someone to remind me that time grows short? Why didn't I have time to carry out all these idealistic resolutions? Why can't there be an extra month in the calendar to remind all of us to mend a rift, to speak a word, to fill a void, to right a wrong, to heal a wound, to grant a wish, to make peace, to end a war? Just one more month.

I talk a lot when I talk to myself. And I don't expect an answer. But this time there was an answer.

"It'll never work."

I looked up and there in a chair across the room sat a tall, gaunt, elderly gentleman.

"How'd you get in here? Who are you?" I demanded.

"I'm Father Time," he replied.

He was obviously an imposter. This natty old gent in his gray-fannel suit with narrow lapels and tapered slacks, Oxford loafers, white shirt, and sincere tie, was like no Father Time I ever saw.

"Father Time?" I asked. "Where's your long hair, your flowing robe, your long beard, and your sandals?"

"I gave up all that," he laughed. "Your kids have given that image a bad name, and I don't carry a scythe any more. It has become a symbol of violence."

"O.K., look, I'm pretty busy right now with these resolutions. I don't have much time."

"Me, too," he said. "I don't have much time, either."

"That's a laugh. I'd think you were well stocked with that commodity."

"You'd think so, wouldn't you? But it's not so. I don't usually make house calls, but in passing I heard you'd like a little more time to heal a wound, to mend a rift, etc. It'll never work—that suggestion of yours, adding an extra month in the year to give you more time."

"Why not?" I asked. "A month in which to remember to do all the good things I so earnestly resolved last year to do this year. Just one extra month in which to remember."

"Forget it."

"That's even a good name for an extra month. 'Remember.' It rhymes—October, November, December, Remember. It even scans."

"Scans, schams, it'll never happen. In the first place, you being human, an extra month would only give you that much more time to delay."

"But if I had an extra month, I promise faithfully that I . . ."

"No. Your record is against you. It's a noble idea, but it'll never work. And don't go spreading the idea around. Somebody might take you up on it, and I'll be in big trouble."

"How would you be in trouble?"

"Because the 12 months are named for Janus, Februarius, Mars, Junius, Jullus, etc. You don't know that crowd the way I do. Every one of them is pretty touchy about anyone fooling around with his particular month. That's the 'Establishment.' I work for. I'm not a rebel. And I don't fight 'em. So lay off that extra-month foolishness. I don't want to lose my job."

"Lose your job? Aren't you 'Time Immemorial'?"

"Oh, that's just one of those fancy titles. All my job consists of is getting a kid ready to show up for the new year."

"What kid?"

"The little baby—the spanking new, lovable, little kid you folks down here like to imagine the new year looks like at your New Year's Eve celebrations. Never thought when I started this job I'd be in show biz. I've been making the rounds with the kid, showing him the ropes."

"Let me get this straight. Before the New Year starts, you show the boy the ropes?"

"That's right. It's tradition. I have to break him in. When I deliver him, I'm through for the year, and then I start rehearsing another kid. I better be getting along. He's waiting in the next room."

"He is? Could I see him? I'd like to talk to him. Maybe he'd go for the month of Remember idea."

"Don't you dare mention it to him. He has enough to think about before he makes his debut. Hey, kid, come in here."

In toddled a chubby, pink-faced little boy dressed in a red ribbon on which was printed "1969"

"Well," I said, "you're a healthy-looking New Year."

"Yes," said the old gent, "they all start out that way. But what happens to them after you people are through with them is something I don't like to think about."

"Well, time's a-waatin' and that's one habit I don't want this kid to get into. Come on, boy, we got a lot of things to do."

"Wait," I pleaded. "What about me and this long list of resolutions that I haven't had time to keep? If you won't give me the extra month, Father Time, how about standing still for a few extra days. You know, 'Time stands still.'"

"That ain't the way I heard it. It's 'Tempus fugit.' Come on, Sonny, we're late. It'll be no time at all before midnight and Guy Lombardo."

"Lombardo?" the kid wailed, "How about the Supremes? You promised."

"O.K., O.K. On that night you'll meet all of 'em. Honestly, these kids these days, I just don't understand 'em at all."

"Are you going to leave me stuck with more than 100 broken resolutions, Father Time?"

"One hundred? You people down here kill me."

"Yes, I'll admit that we do kill a lot of time."

"You sure do. You don't need to kill time making 100 resolutions. Eleven will take care of everything quite nicely."

"What 11?"

"Just the 10 Commandments and the Golden Rule." ♦

QUIPS AND QUOTES

No Joking

A moment that strains our matrimonial ties
Is when my better half
Puts down the book he is reading to slap his thighs
And laugh and laugh and laugh.

And I pick up the book, a loving wife,
To see what can evoke
Such lordly mirth and read—and for my life Cannot discover the joke!

That Usually Clinches It

Most fathers are somewhat in doubt
Before they have stopped to consider
How often that hand has been out.

Wife looking up from her book: "It says here that the Chinese make it an invariable rule to settle all their debts before New Year's Day."

"How can I?" asked the youngster sadly. "He's used

STOP SMOKING FOREVER

Over and over again we hear that tobacco is the cause of 98% of all lung cancer cases. Recent studies show that one out of every four smokers is a potential victim of this dread disease. Yes, tobacco is the most deadly poison developed by our civilization. Aside from lung cancer, cigarettes are the cause of other extremely serious diseases.

Think it your chance to find a heavy smoker may be mistaken and say by long owner.

Tobacco smoke is composed of 84 substances, 5 of which are carcinogenic (cancer causing) and 30 are toxic (poisonous).
Every time you draw on a cigarette, cigar or pipe, you are exposed to at least 40 different chemicals and poisons by inhaling the smoke directly into your lungs, trachea, carotid sinus, formaldehyde, methoxyphenyl, acrylonitrile, cadmium, vinyl, acrolein, formaldehyde, nicotine, hydrogen, sulphide, pyrrole, furfural, benzopyrene, methyl alcohol, prussic acid, nicotine, ammonia, methoxy, carbon monoxide, pyridine. Quite a handful of deadly poisons for just one puff of smoke!

In a recent survey conducted by a leading American doctor the incidence of cancerous diseases (industrial, engine exhaust, etc.) has been found to be 60% higher in smokers than in non-smokers.

So, if you want to stay healthy, you've got to stop smoking. But, be careful!
Don't stop smoking all at once. That could be dangerous.

Now, where's the advice coming from?
Some cigarette or pipe tobacco advertiser trying to make the sale of a bad situation?
Of course not!

This is the advice of the Anti-Tobacco Center of America, an organization developed especially to help you rid yourself of your addiction to tobacco.

OBESITY LURKS JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Well, our experience has shown that a "softened" or "heavy" smoker should not stop smoking all at once, as this may seriously endanger his health and well-being.

For years your body has been accustomed to the regular daily intake of toxic substances such as nicotine, tar, etc., and by now it is adjusted to that situation.
Cutting tobacco out overnight will result in a shock to your physiological system accompanied nearly always by psychic disturbances. Which usually is an indication of the sympathetic nervous system.

The digestive system becomes disturbed; the central nerve system becomes irritated; you become "fed-up-and" you can't be bothered by friends, spouse, children, etc., so the head little irritation will make you fly off the handle.

Life becomes hell for you and everybody around you.

But, that's not all! It has been effectively proven that lungers who attempt to stop smoking by sheer will power alone, will suffer terrible headaches of frustration.

A VICE THAT CAN KILL

In order to progressively, he begins to and just cut and quit. This is why so many former smokers just an occasional puff and begin to feel. Stopping smoking all at once has been the cause of many serious cases of obesity.

So, giving up smoking, by yourself, is not the real solution, as it might endanger your health. . . .

Then, how should you stop smoking?
Well, this is what the Anti-Tobacco
Center of America is going to teach you.

Just clip and mail the coupon below to receive full information on a program which will help to rid you of your need to smoke. You'll be amazed to learn that you can stop smoking without any danger and without obtaining your will power; after only a few days the desire to smoke will vanish.

Just think how much happier you will be!

This is the experience of an ex-smoker
we all know: MAURICE CHEVALIER
"I was stuck in a vice which had left little no breathing at all. I was chronically distressed by a mountain of cigarettes, which like a growing invasion of grasshoppers succeeded in ruining my nerves. I stopped smoking twelve years ago. (Chevalier wrote this in 1960) And it's since this fortunate decision that my unusual success to smoke. And I - who had had all interest in life - would accept that growing temptation and resistance toward it what happened around me. I was able again to relax and . . . to remember what I had read!"

Among the 21,000 former smokers helped by the Anti-Tobacco Center, we give you the testimony of many doctors.
We have chosen this profession intentionally, because doctors know the harm that tobacco causes. They are able to appreciate the results of our program.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY!

Dr. A. C. "The efficacy of your product surprised everybody. I stopped smoking in ten days exactly. Thank you sincerely."

Dr. J. Y. "I have used a supply of your product . . . I was informed of the composition by a friend, Dr. C., who was, truthfully speaking, rather skeptical. But after having used it, I do not smoke any longer and have no desire whatsoever to start again. The result is absolutely clear, without a shadow of a doubt, and I feel it my duty to tell you so."

Dr. M. C. "Since January 22, 1962, I no longer smoke. I have already given the "Gift" to several of my friends and patients."

Dr. P. C. "I am happy that I do not smoke any more, this of course being due to the use of your product. All my thanks."

Dr. L. B. "The result was rapid. I think that nobody who wishes to stop smoking can do so."
