Nixon, French Chief Confer In Paris Parley

PARIS (UPI) — President Nixon and Charles de Gaulle completed the main phase of their talks in historic Versailles Saturday and a spokesman for De Gaulle said they produced "very good results" for relations between their two countries. Nixon invited De Gaulle to Washington to continue their discussions. House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon and De Gaulle had made "significant progress" toward a cooperative approach on major European issues.

MRS. ANNE POWERS, 61, who has been a member of the Twin Falls school system for 28 years, died of a long illness Friday. Mrs. Powers had most recently been serving at the school at Twin Falls High School. She died at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Powers Dies Here Of Long Illness

Mrs. Anne Durrett Powers, 61, 411 Fifth Ave. E., died of a long illness Friday night. She was born Nov. 26, 1907, at Arcadia, La., where she grew up and was graduated from high school. She received a B.S. degree from Louisiana and her Master's Degree from the University of Idaho. She also had degrees from the University of State University and other colleges. She was married to Henry G. Powers, who died at Boise. Mrs. Powers had been employed in the Twin Falls school system, as a teacher at O'Leary Junior High School and as a counselor at Twin Falls High School, for the past 28 years.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, James and David D. Powers, Ritzville, Wash., and two daughters, Lucille Danieles, Simsbury, Ia.; Mrs. Olive Hart, Okla.; two brothers, Joe D. Durrett, Missouri, La., and Carl Durrett, Arcadia, La., and four grandchildren, three brothers preceded her in death.

Mrs. Powers was a member of the Presbyterian Church, where she has been active in Sunday school many years; Chapter A.O. of the P.E.O. Sisterhood, and the Educational and Patriotic Association at both the state and national levels. She also was a member of Kappa Delta Phi national scholastic honorary. Her services will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. Monday at the First Presbyterian Church by Rev. Dr. Robert Harvey. Burial will be at Student Memorial Park. Friends may call at White Mortuary Sunday and until 1:30 p.m. Monday.

talks appeared to be thawing. Nixon said, "I am glad to see the main phase of the Grand Tripartite talks completed. It is a historic day through Paris and some demonstrators burned a dozen U.S. flags and several large photographs of Nixon." Nixon met with De Gaulle for most of the day in the imposing 17th-century splendor of the Grand Tripartite Hotel, a suburban Versailles on the next-to-last day of his eight-nation European swing.

The talks were marked by frankness, cordiality and confidence, the French spokesman said, and made it possible to define many matters on all the main issues. He said they discussed all questions "that are considered essential by both sides."

The presidential press secretary quoted Nixon himself as saying that the six hours he and De Gaulle had spent in talks provided "a real, informal, significant progress towards developing a cooperative approach on some of the issues involved in relations between the United States and Europe, particularly France."

Ziegler said De Gaulle did not immediately visit Washington. The American chief executive planned to turn from Franco-American problems briefly Saturday for a meeting with U.S. and South Vietnamese delegates to the deadlocked Vietnam peace talks. He is then to return to the Vatican for a meeting with Pope Paul VI before flying back to Washington, Sunday night.

Nixon said Nixon and De Gaulle spent about 5 1/2 hours in private discussions at Versailles. He described the talks as "real, informal, and candid." From Versailles Nixon returned to Paris for a meeting with a seven-member group of French citizens. One of the participants, editor and publisher Helene Lazareff, said afterward: "Nixon has a far-reaching view of the world and his sharp grasp of world problems."

De Gaulle is an extremely self-assured man who in spite of his prominent knowledge of world problems, remains humble and modest. He is a man who has a grasp of the world as it is, and he is a man who has a grasp of the world as it should be. Nixon then played host in De Gaulle at a U.S. embassy dinner Saturday night.

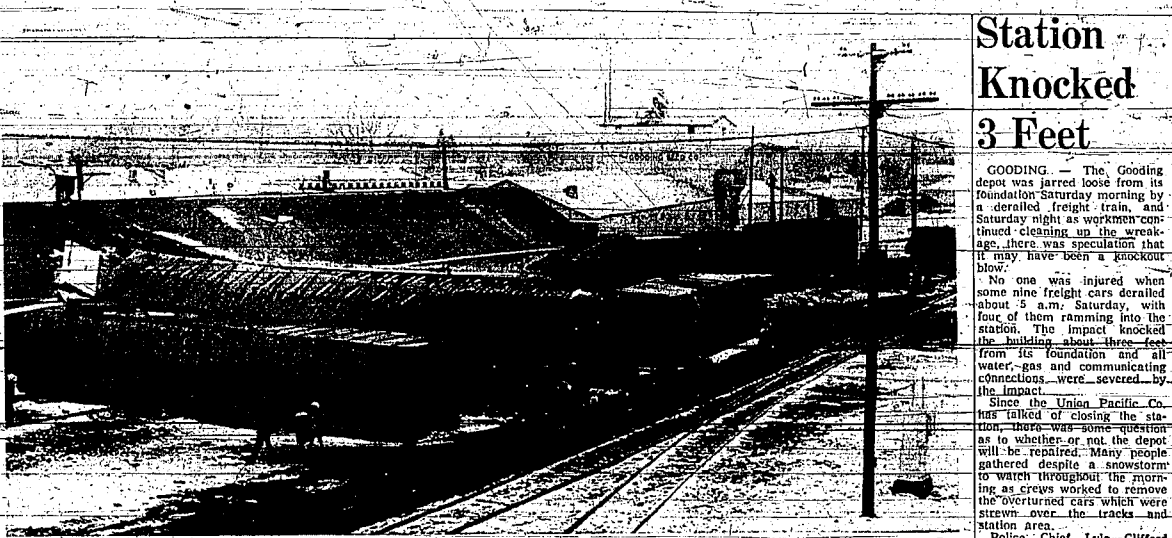

Guard Troops Quell Ruckus In Berkeley

National Guardsmen with rifles and bayonets moved onto the Berkeley campus Friday and hurled tear gas canisters at rampaging demonstrators. Negro and white students battled each other with clubs and fists at a Michigan college. The interracial clash at Ferris State College in Big Rapids, Mich., a quiet town 100 miles north of Grand Rapids, and the California confrontation were the most serious flareups of the current round of campus turbulence.

At Iowa the second time National Guardsmen have appeared at the Berkeley campus but the first time they have taken action against demonstrators. (See Picture, Page 6)

The day began at Berkeley with the clubbing of a policeman who became separated from other officers and was beaten on the head with his own fire stick. Then 500 students and faculty members were charged by police and repelled with a volley of rocks and bottles.

Gooding Depot Hit By Train

DERAILED BOX CARS are strewn over the tracks after four of them rumbled into the Gooding Union Pacific station about 5 a.m. Saturday. The depot was knocked some three feet off its foundations and about 50 feet of tracks were torn up. The deralement was caused when a whole assembly broke, crew members told Gooding police officers. Extra maintenance and supervisory personnel arrived from Pocatello to help in the cleanup work. Trains can bypass the damaged tracks by going through Gooding on sidings, railroad officials said.

Station Knocked 3 Feet

GOODING — The Gooding depot was jarred loose from its foundation Saturday morning by a derailed freight train, and Saturday night as workmen continued cleaning up the wreckage, there was speculation that it may have been a knockout blow. No one was injured when some nine freight cars derailed about 5 a.m. Saturday, with four of them ramming into the station. The impact knocked the building about three feet from its foundation and all water, gas and communicating connections were severed by the impact. The Union Pacific Co. has talked of closing the station, but was "some question as to whether or not the depot will be repaired. Many people gathered despite a snowstorm to watch throughout the morning as crews worked to remove the derailed cars which were strewn over the tracks and station area. Police Chief Lyle Clifford said that crew members feel the deralement was caused when a wheel-assembly broke. Some 50 feet of main line track was derailed by the careening freight cars. However, trains will not be delayed because of the accident for the reason that the depot area on sidings through Gooding. It will probably be several days before the damaged cars are all removed. The rest of the cars in the derailed freight train were realigned and continued on their outward destination by noon Saturday. Bill Lewis, depot agent here, was not at work at the time of the deralement and no one from Pocatello is stated in which derailed. The railroad crossing both at Main Street and Colorado Street, just beyond the depot, were closed some time after the deralement. Extra maintenance crews and supervisory personnel came from Pocatello to assist in the cleanup work and extra equipment was brought to the scene from Pocatello.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — 24-year-old Palestinian Arab Ibrahim Sirhan is a proud man and his pride was hurt when his lawyers evinced his unwillingness to call witnesses who have been crucial to his case. Trash, Junk Becoming Critical Problem Trash, junk and garbage piled up and baled. But this deal fell through. Now the commissioners are dealing with another firm. In California, to "Trash and junk are building up and it won't be long before the critical stage in Twin Falls County is reached. Right now, city officials won't accept junk cars or any other kind of junk at the sanitary land fill near the airport.

"We don't even like to accept things that burn," Herb Derrick, city manager, said. "People complain about the smoke and odor they're trying to keep the burning down as much as possible."

The sanitary landfill is nearly full. It can be used for another year, with luck. But the city has to find another site, and to date the city hasn't had much success.

"People just don't want a dumpground or sanitary landfill near their property. We're having trouble finding a location," Mr. Derrick said.

The county commissioners are also concerned about the problem, especially disposal of junk cars.

Last year the commissioners arranged to have junk cars crushed and baled. But this deal fell through. Now the commissioners are dealing with another firm. In California, to arrange for a baler to do the work.

The county will not pay for a baler of its own, County Commission Chairman Herbert Loughmiller said recently.

He said the county would just like to turn all of its junk cars over to a "businessman. He could bale them, then sell them."

Mr. Loughmiller added, "Unfortunately, this isn't a very profitable venture and we don't have many people that are interested in baling old junk cars."

Old washers, beer cans, metal trunks and almost anything else that won't burn is giving both city officials and county commissioners headaches.

The county has dumpgrounds near Twin Falls, south of Filer, south of Hansen, on the West Tract, two of them west of Butte, another west of Castledorf and another near Murtaugh.

Kimberly operates a huge dump near the Twin Falls falls. Kimberly officials don't want junk cars there either.

That dumpground is expected to last 50 years or more, or until the canyon is full of trash.

County and city officials agree there is "no light ahead" on the growing trash and junk situation in Twin Falls County. Complaints came in all the time on the conditions of the county dumps.

"We try to keep them clean, but the wind comes up and then we have trouble all over again," Mr. Loughmiller said.

At the present time the county is paying a man hourly wages to clean up dumps in the county. This is done periodically to keep the dump grounds orderly and to keep trash and paper from blowing off the dump grounds onto private property.

"Our problems in this area keep piling up," Mr. Loughmiller said.

Mr. Derrick commented that the public has ignored the problem for years. "They can't continue to ignore it, however. We're running out of places to put things."

County commissioners and city officials said they will continue to look for a solution to the growing problem, and might examine some of the procedures used in the largest cities of the nation.

In Japan, for instance, trash and garbage is put into huge concrete burns. The forms are made a block and the blocks are used to build apartment houses.

New York City officials have proposed a similar method, but recommend dumping the blocks in the ocean to form an island where an airport can be built.

Twin Falls, might in years to come, have a Math Avenue with a foundation of junk cars and trash.

Firemen Come To Rescue Of Pup In Furnace Vent

Firemen in all cities are called upon to perform tasks that seem far from the ordinary, but the Twin Falls Municipal Fire Department received an even more unusual call Thursday.

Two firemen, Jerry Hafer and Don King, answered a call at 1711 Kimberly Road where a small dog had fallen approximately 15 feet down a furnace vent.

Mr. King first tried to reach the dog with a hooked pole, but the pole wasn't long enough. He finally had a longer pole delivered to the house, but couldn't use it because the ceiling was too low to get the pole into the room and down the vent. It seemed the only means left was to drop a small nylon rope down the vent and "fish" for the dog.

The firemen worked for about 20 minutes with a slip-knot loop — trying to get the loop around the dog's body. The task was made even more difficult by the fact that the dog was almost lodged in the small vent. But after the 20 minutes passed he hid the dog lassoed and pulled him to safety before an audience of neighbors.

"Cocoo" appeared unharmed by the fall, but was a little shaken by the ordeal.

Young Robert seemed unconcerned by the whole operation.

Hospital Blast Kills Patient

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A woman undergoing surgery for a thyroid condition died Friday four hours after ether gas used in anesthesia exploded in a Georgetown hospital operating room.

The blast and a flash fire shattered windows in the room, set draperies on fire and charred the mattress at the head of the operating table, according to Dr. John Stapleton, medical director.

Mrs. Zaida Rothberg, 40, received internal lung bruises from the force of the explosion and second degree burns on the face. The operation was nearly completed when the explosion occurred, Dr. Stapleton said.

One of the reasons tax-exempt foundations are being reviewed by the current session of Congress is because some of them have been making some questionable grants in recent months.

Miss Information? Not At Phone Co.

By RUTH KOONCE MILLER
Times-News Staff Writer

Mountain States Telephone Co. officials are trying to encourage the chiding public to let their fingers do the walking through the yellow pages and the white pages—more often.

When people dial 113 in Twin Falls, or information numbers in other Magic Valley areas, the friendly voice on the line will no longer say, "Good morning, information." She will reply with, "Good morning, directory assistance."

Operators who have previously worked as information personnel in Mountain States Telephone offices, will now be called directory assistants.

The new approach, according to K. G. Mann, district manager for Mountain States, is designed to try to eliminate callers wishing to know the "altitude of Burley" how far the interstate is completed towards Boise, and many other of the non-telephone-business calls the Twin Falls and other telephone company offices receive each day.

In Twin Falls alone, which handles information calls for Magic Valley plus over 4,000 calls a day have been made to information.

A recent study, Mr. Mann said, revealed that each call to information cost approximately 10 cents.

The new directory assistance program, Mr. Mann emphasized, is designed to encourage the use of their telephone directories. He said that the book is relatively expensive to publish and that the more people use the book, the more savings the telephone company realizes. He pointed out, also, that telephone rates are based a great deal on the company's costs.

About 100 operators work in the Twin Falls office of Mountain States. During peak periods as many as eight of these operators will be working on the information desk and during slack periods, in the early morning hours, only one operator is usually on the information board.

Mr. Mann and Neil Cronin, traffic supervisor, said that the number of calls to information peaks rapidly shortly after school is dismissed each day. They said that a portion of these calls are prohibited by youngsters not able to read well enough to find numbers in the book. The two company officials also noted that after the 1 a.m. bar closing hour, information calls also rise.

The two men pointed out that two out of three of the calls to information could be answered by the telephone directory.

Other calls, such as people asking the information operators what temperature should be oven set at to bake a roast and what was the score of the Twin Falls-Minicco game, should be discouraged by the operator answering with "directory assistance."

Mr. Mann stated that new telephone books were being delivered in this area last week. He said that additional information has been included in the front section of the book and that this information includes the new directory assistance information.

When the list at the end of 113 answers after March 3, she will begin using phrases such as, "I find that number listed in your telephone directory as," and for those numbers not listed, she will reply, "This is a new number. Will you please make a note of it?" The number in Telephone officials hope that this power of suggestion will encourage callers to make more use of their new telephone books.

Officer Excuses Shooting Mishap

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI) — Concord Police Chief James Chambers has described the shooting of three federal highway agents by one of his police officers as a "tragic accident."

He said no action was planned against detective Donald McCann, who shot the U.S. Customs agents during a stake-out Feb. 2. The policeman thought the men were involved in the narcotics case. "We're considering it just a tragic accident," said Chambers.

"No further action is warranted as far as the police department is concerned," George Gudbranson, 30, Walnut Creek, was the most seriously hurt of the federal agents. He was shot in the head and spent three weeks in critical condition. But he is now reported in satisfactory condition.

Man's Name "Borrowed" To Get Credit

A Twin Falls man feels he is being bilked by someone who is running up bills in his name. Friday he filed complaints, alleging an unknown person has signed his name to line contracts for items purchased at a Twin Falls department store.

Clarence Robert Saunders charged the names signed on the contracts in question were forged.

On Aug. 18, someone forged a signature on a contract for purchase for four rugs, at $250 each and on May 31, another contract purchase was made. This was for two tickets, a total of $55.68.

Mr. Saunders said he didn't sign either contract. The complaints were signed in Twin Falls County Justice Court Friday, John Doe, a legal term for an unknown person, was named on both complaints.

Twin Falls County prosecutor officials said they will investigate the matter.

Wise Teacher 'Unlocks' Skills Of 'Silent' Boy

By ELIAS LIEBERMAN
Educational Author

In 1966 I was a young and inexperienced teacher in an elementary school located on the Lower East Side of New York City.

At the start of the February term I found myself assigned to a sixth-grade class of boys.

On the roster were the names of several pupils who had not been promoted, and who were required to repeat this grade.

One of these students interested me particularly. Samuel Kull was a boy who shrugged off my simplest questions without even an attempt to answer them.

His intelligent sad brown eyes had a baffling hint of humor in them at times. I determined to find out whether he was as slow as his last term's teacher believed, and asked him to see me after school.

"Samuel," I asked as soon as he was seated, "can you talk?"

The classroom was empty except for us, but he looked around fearfully. I smiled encouragingly.

"Did you know the answers to the questions I asked you today?"

He had evidently decided to trust me. Again he said "Yes."

Probing further, I learned that Samuel had come to us recently from the Whitechapel section of London.

He spoke with a marked accent, and for some of his classmates this had made him an object of derision and petty-persecution.

First Night Audience Is Treated To Top Performance Of 'My Fair Lady'

By MRS. JAMES S. KINNEY
"My Fair Lady," a classic of the American musical theatre, was given a royal send-off by the Dilettante Group of Magic Valley Friday evening at their special presentation in the new CSI Fine Arts Center.

The beautiful auditorium was completely sold out for opening night, and a delighted audience was treated to a performance which was the brilliant, high-spirited, musical.

The story of "My Fair Lady" is based on the novel by P.G. Wodehouse and the play by Alan Ayckbourn. The plot is simple. Prof. Henry Higgins, a distinguished linguist expert, meets Eliza Doolittle—a truly unique cockney flower girl—sold on by her brilliant Colonel Pickering. Higgins decides to transform Eliza into a speech manner and dress into a fine lady and pass her off successfully as a duchess. Higgins' transformation of Eliza proves nothing short of magic—and the plot proceeds from this point. There are some penetrating social viewpoints found in laughter at false class distinctions and at the social overtures to the last curtain call, a superb job of creating the harmony of the production. This was the first time the orchestra pit was utilized, and the effect, especially for the large production numbers, was exceptionally good.

When Plokojae bounces to the center of the stage and begins to kick out a tempo rhythm, effective, a good job of why it is completely captivated. From that moment on, Mr. Plumb could do no wrong.

Henry Higgins, Eliza's brilliant, irresponsible, but philosophical father, does a superior job with his two cockney songs, "I'm a Little Bit of a Cockney" and "Go Me to the Church." Mr. Willis' chorales and cavorts about the stage with just the right amount of rough humor. His "I'm a Little Bit of a Cockney" is supported by an equally bouncy Rex Reed and group of dancers. Rex Reed, who plays the part of Freddy Eynsford-Hill, beautifully sings the moving ballad, "On the Street Where You Live." Mr. Breckenridge is exactly right as the imperious and aristocratic Mrs. Higgins, and Jerry Driscoll portrays a sympathetic Mr. Sherrin. Dan Carr and Larry Christensen are excellent as the raffish fortune teller and the dignified professor. Eliza expresses her secret defiance in "Just You Wait" and her thrill at having succeeded in speaking correctly in "I Could Have Danced All Night."

Eliza's impatience with all men bursts through in "Show Me a Good Man, a Real Good Man" and "I'm Not the Pious Woman You Think I Am." Her brilliant performance in "Without You" in all her moods. Mary Walker, a truly professional, with her magnificent voice and perfect sense of timing. She has the sparkle, radiance, spunk and talent that make her the Dilettante's big asset in a musical of this magnitude.

Henry Higgins, as Frankly presented by Dan Carr, is a make her the Dilettante's big asset in a musical of this magnitude.

Robert Blumb, a newcomer to Dilettante productions, plays the role of Pickering in his own right. The Dilettante's big asset in a musical of this magnitude.

Personal OPINION

QUESTION

How do you feel about including sex education in the curricula of our schools?

LOCATION

Interviews were taken in the lobby of the Twin Falls Post Office.

ANSWERS

MRS. ELINORA RUTHERFORD: "I think it would be a good thing. I think most children don't get enough of the proper information at home. They would probably be more informed if the information they would receive in school."

MRS. MARIAN LANGDON: "I'm against it. I feel sex education should be taught at home and not in the public schools."

Wayne Haney: "I think it has its merits. It's kind of a new thing and the matter should be very carefully studied and carefully put across to the students."

Wes Parker: "I believe it is a necessary thing. Parents can't seem to talk to their children anymore, so this matter is left up to the school and church, and the church seems to be falling out."

MRS. FLOYD SMITH: "I don't think they should go to extremes. The youngsters receive some of this information through their physical education and hygiene classes."

VIC GRAYBILL: "I think it would be all right, providing it is sanctioned by state educators, parent-teacher groups, etc."

Doug Vollmer: "I would have to know to what extent they would go with this type of education. I really feel it should be taken care of at home."

TERESA JOHNSON: "I don't think sex education should be taught in the schools. I think this is up to the parents and possibly the church."

Rainbow Of Elegance Reflects Ball Success

Sun Valley Hospital Guild Hosts Special Charity Ball

By DOROTHY POWEY
Times-News Correspondent

SUN VALLEY — An outstanding social event of the season was the first annual Charity Ball of the Sun Valley Hospital Auxiliary held in the Lodge Dining Room.

The semi-formal dinner dance for which Hap Miller and his orchestra played, was preceded by a cocktail hour in the Redwood Room.

A breath of the outdoors was wafted into the dining room by a border of evergreen trees on three sides. The fourth wall of glass framed a picture of the multi-colored lights twinkling gaily through frostings of snow on the fir trees in front of the lodge. In competition, in the heavens, the stars shone down through the crisp, still air, that special night.

Throughout the room were bright, red hearts, both large and small, and many valentines. The double bronze railing in the center of the broad stairway descending into the dining room was laced with wide, red velvet ribbon, interspersed with nosegay bouquets of valentine flowers.

The tables, ranging from quartet size to those seating 12 guests, wore white cloths on which wide red satin ribbons crossed. Tall red lighted tapers set in valentine bouquets, centered each table. Mrs. Harry Holmes was chairman of the decorating committee.

Most of the rainbow colors were reflected in gowns of the fair sex, ranging from camelia white to filmy, floating black chiffon. There were many tunic dresses over the ever-widening pants. One piece-evening pant jump suits and tunics over little flutters of pleats for skirts in the mini class were in evidence.

Greeting guests at the foot of the stairway leading to the dining room were Mrs. G. A. (Bobby) Krivor, president of the auxiliary and Mrs. Royce Asher, chairman of the guest list. Mrs. Krivor wore a sleeveless, short black velvet bolero with floor-length black and white variegated plaid-tufted skirt trimmed with midriff and long front streamer of gold ribbon. Mrs. Asher wore a white Grecian gown-trimmed in gold braid.

The 'era of the 30's' was further evidenced in the pastel shades of fur trim on some of the gowns. The utterly feminine shimmer dress was there and many of the gowns were graceful in lace.

Dinner and dancing was enjoyed until after midnight.

Mrs. Asher said the 240 tickets were all sold. Members of the auxiliary are elated over the success of the ball and plan to hold another next year.

Proceeds will be used to help pay for new equipment in the operating room, the exercise table in the therapy room, new cutlery in the kitchen and other items needed in the hospital.

The Sun Valley Hospital Auxiliary is a service organization. It was formed in 1968 to develop a broad basis of community understanding through public relations, to give effective assistance in fund raising projects, and to become a part of the total hospital organization by providing services of many kinds to patients, their families and visitors, and all of those persons connected with the hospital.

AMONG THE GUESTS at the recent Charity Ball sponsored by the Sun Valley Hospital Auxiliary at the Sun Valley Lodge includes, from right to left, Mrs. Ray McMartin, Omaha, Neb.; Lief Odmark, Sun Valley ski instructor; Mrs. Bernice Norman, New Orleans; Ray McMartin, and Mrs.

Odmark. Also seated at the table were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thomas, Ketchum; Dr. Norman, Patricia Syms, Florida, and Bill Butterfield, Sun Valley ski instructor. Dr. Norman and his wife come to Sun Valley each winter to enjoy the skiing.

Women's Section

MAYOR OF SUN VALLEY, Winton Gray, and Mrs. Sgt. Engl, wife of Sun Valley's director of skiing, are engrossed in conversation during the first annual Charity Ball sponsored by the Sun Valley Hospital Auxiliary.

LOOKING OVER THE guest list during the cocktail hour are Mrs. Royce Asher, Ketchum, left, and Mrs. Richard Snyder, Triumph. Mrs. Asher was chairman of the ticket committee for the ball. Mrs. Snyder is the wife of the manager of First Security Bank's Ketchum branch.

MR. AND MRS. G. A. KRIVOR dance one of the waiters during the Charity Ball held in Sun Valley. Mr. Krivor is affiliated with the Sun Valley Realty and Mrs. Krivor is president of the Sun Valley Hospital Auxiliary.

ENJOYING THE ATMOSPHERE at the Sun Valley Hospital Auxiliary's first annual Charity Ball are Mrs. Marie Schenkel and Mrs. Ryan F. Mallon, Ketchum and Warm Springs. All 240 tickets were sold for the ball.

PRESIDENT OF THE Cassia County Homemakers Council presents a check in the amount of $100 for the Ricky Berg Olympic Fund to Dale Dammarell, manager of the First Security Bank, seated, as Harry Berg, Burley, father of Ricky Berg, looks on. The fund has been opened at First Security Bank to assist young Berg in attending the 11th International Games for the Deaf in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. He is a student at Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My first marriage was one long, hard struggle with a large family and no money, and an ailing husband. When he finally passed on I was 32 and had one teen-aged daughter left at home. I felt so free — as if I were flying. Had my own social security check and no financial worries.

I met and married a very good-looking man — a go lucky man whose wife just died. He said, "Marry me and I will show you all the places I have been." He was well-traveled. So like a fool I married him and now he says he's "tired" and wants to settle down. So now I'm stuck. I'm a housekeeper and that's about all. He works only when he absolutely has to. I also have a hunch he is hoping I'll die so he can marry my teen-age daughter, who wants no part of him.

MISERY LOVES COMPANY
DEAR MISERY: Some women need a man around to make them miserable. And you certainly fill the bill. So if you love this skunk — hang on to him.

DEAR ABBY: To make a long story short, I am 24 and have three children. I am expecting my fourth very soon. My husband and I have been married for nearly five years. Thus, we didn't plan to have this many children so soon, but we would not trade our family for the world.

YOUNG MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: Why bother to reply? Such remarks deserve to be ignored.
DEAR ABBY: I have six grandchildren all under six years of age and I dearly love them, but here is my problem. They all live within 10 miles of me, so they visit very often, and when they do I cover my couch and chairs to protect them. These children aren't very careful where they put their feet and their hands are great always clean.
One daughter in particular reminds this and she hasn't been visiting me as often as she did. Her three-year-old, who will work

Public Dinner Is Scheduled
RICHFIELD — Plans for a public dinner and card party March 7 were made by members of the Richfield American Legion Auxiliary at its recent meeting. The benefit will raise funds to send a girl to Girls State.

Most of our customers wear one when they leave our place. We don't change their lives, but we do make their shopping so much nicer. Our salespeople say hello, but they aren't pushy. They'll let you browse without bugging you. On the other hand, if you want their help, they'll really try. If you find something you like and buy it, they'll say thank-you. If you don't, they'll say thank-you, too. And if it should happen (though we try not to let it) that we don't have the dress you want in the size you wear, we'll do everything to get it as pronto as possible. to carry the ball anywhere. Examples of this advance veiling of measures include liquor law changes and a study by an advisory committee on comprehensive health planning advocating fluoridation for the state. Many legislators have particularly rejected this procedure of "advancing" as if it gives them the impression that there's no open mind left to deal with and that the facts of the issue have no bearing on the issue. Some may feel that the also demonstrates a willful somewhat splintered streak on the part of the government.

We don't exactly understand what it is that has the ultra-right-wing groups all stirred-up on fluoridation. It's rather nebulous as far as we can tell it seems to involve a Communist "plot" to take over the United States. It's rather nebulous as to where this fits in, but most of the ultra-conservative groups that have been active in taking a position against fluoridation are from working class backgrounds. It's not only a first step towards mass poisoning of the public, but the fact that the American Dental Association says that they now have a "policy" that they now have that there are

It is now variable to grasp the situation, or understand the basic importance of an issue that is supposedly so clear that even a child could understand it. Equally as important as the general antagonism that develops from working closely together for the past two months is the recognition by some of the legislators that their FETTERED members do have "fly" feathers. ICC Cancels Rate Increases For Trucker
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—In two separate actions, the Interstate Commerce Commission has canceled truck freight rate increases ranging up to five percent.
 The commission overruled a tentative increase—approved earlier this year for 1964—effective again on the grounds that the truckers failed to prove their case for a rate hike.
 In another action, it also canceled a 2.5 to 3 percent rate increase tentatively approved for 335 truckers in the Pacific Coast region against the grounds that the truckers failed to present enough evidence to justify the increases.

Minidoka Sets Another School Bond Vote March 25

RUPERT — With spirits undampened by last September's defeat, Minidoka County School District trustees have determined to hold another school bond election March 25 to raise $2,200,000.

The funds, $100,000 more than sought last year, would finance the construction of two new junior high schools for the district as well as add and remodel existing facilities.

Supt. Gordon Meyer explained that the increase in the amount sought is due to two factors — the school district's desire to have a larger margin of safety in case of rising options on sites, but Supt. Meyer indicated that plans are tentatively the same as those of the September issue, details would be available.

Mini-Cassia Hospitals To Get Purchasing Director

BURLEY — Blaine Jones, formerly of Pocatello, will assume his duties Monday at Mini-Cassia Hospital Complex and will initiate programs in material management and personnel. As director of purchasing and personnel, Mr. Jones will standardize the procedures so that both hospitals will gain the advantages of volume buying as well as unifying personnel procedures for each hospital.

Mr. Jones was born in Idaho Falls July, 1940, and was graduated from Idaho Falls High School in 1958. He received an associate degree at Ricks College, following which he served as a chaplain for the LDS Church in northern California. In 1960, he returned to Idaho Falls and married Elaine Bacon. The Joneses have two children.

Jones completed his education in business management and received his BS degree from Brigham Young University in 1965. For the past three years, he has been affiliated with a major insurance company in Pocatello.

Idaho Appeal To Industry Is Explained

GLENN'S FERRY — Al Linton, secretary of Idaho Department of Commerce and Development, told Glenn's Ferry Chamber of Commerce members of the features that are selling Idaho as a good location for new industries.

He said that the second day service can be provided for more than 72 million people from Idaho businesses because of the excellent transportation facilities within the state.

The visitor also described how a community can help itself and commended the chamber on getting involved in community affairs such as the location of highways, state parks and industry.

President George Powell reported that Lloyd Barron, Fairbank, has scheduled a meeting with the chamber Monday during the regular meeting. Mr. Barron, he said, is making the trip to acquaint himself with the problems that have been presented on the proposed location of Interstate 80 N. He recently was appointed to the State Highway Board.

Mr. Powell invited everyone interested in the proposed location of the highway to attend the meeting in Hanson's Cafe at noon next Monday, explaining that time will be permitted for presentations for and against the location of the highway.

There will be a question period.

Bert Walker, general chairman of the Farmer's Night Banquet planned for March 10, announced that Walt Sparks, director of the Potato Research Center at Aberdeen, will be featured speaker.

His committees include food, Wanda Thompson, Dorothy Doyle and Florence Jyber decorations, Davey Smith, arrangements, Glenn Hall, door prizes, Homer Clark and Jim Robinson, reception, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson.

Glenn Hansen, legal department, will be master of ceremonies for the evening's entertainment in the hot lunch room at the Glenn's Ferry High School, reported Bill Thompson, publicity chairman.

Mrs. P. M. Crowder, unit president, introduced John Lommon, library board chairman. Other board members present were Mrs. Carl Paulson, Mrs. Elvive Capps, Mrs. Max Behr and Mrs. Clifford Dayley.

Mrs. Scott Dixon, librarian, reported on the proposed library facilities and service available to the community. She also showed a film, Idaho Public Libraries. Display of types of books available was a point of interest.

Supt. Nell Anderson explained five legislative measures that will affect education if passed. Ten dollars was donated to the PTA council.

Mrs. Burl Atkins reported on benefits from the silver offering that was donated.

Mrs. L.T. Sanders, Mrs. Mark Bowers and Mrs. Glen Ross were named to the nominating committee.

Mrs. Carl Paulson, Mrs. Jodey Parker and Mrs. Neil Anderson were fifth and sixth grade room mothers serving refreshments.

Officers will be elected at the March 20 meeting.

paid off another set of bonds and that there is a slight increase in valuation over last year.

On Sept. 18, 1968, only 60.13 per cent of the required two-thirds majority of these voters were in favor of the proposal.

Mr. detailed plans for the proposed bond election are forthcoming at this time because of such things as acquiring options on sites, but Supt. Meyer indicated that plans are tentatively the same as those of the September issue, details would be available.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR MRS. LYNDON B. JOHNSON

How many rooms are there in the White House? In what room did you spend most of your time?—Mrs. A. M. Lambert, Rome, Ga.

● The White House has 132 rooms. I spent most of my time working in a small study off my bedroom. It has a beautiful view of the Washington Monument and Jefferson Memorial.

FOR ALDEN BERBER, chief executive, Boy Scouts of America

What family holds the record for having the most Eagle Scouts?—R. D. Lancaster, Pa.

● As far as we know, the record for Eagle Scouts in one family is seven, jointly held by the following families: the W. D. Neal family (all sons) of Lancaster, S. C.; the Raymond W. Bot-ford family (all sons) of Helena, Mont.; the Reed Warner family (father and six sons) of Salt Lake City, Utah.

FOR JOHN HOLDEN, makeup expert for animals

What is the most difficult job for an animal makeup man?—Law M. Knud, Ripon City, S. D.

FOR AL CALLINE, outfielder, Detroit Tigers

Does a baseball player get his choice in selecting his uniform number?—Tom Cooper, Kingsport, Tenn.

● He can with the Tigers, at least. I provided the number is not already being used by another player. When Rocky Colavito was with the Tigers, for instance, he wore number 7. That was the number Charley Dressen had always worn, but when he became manager of the Tigers, he didn't get number 7 until after Colavito had been traded.

FOR LISA HUGHES, actress

Do you own all the clothes you wear on the television show, "As the World Turns"?—Marion Lange, Princeton, Ill.

● Yes, I buy my own clothes and wear them on the show.

FOR WILLIAM DRIBER, director, Veterans Administration

If a man is discharged from military service after a short time, receiving an honorable discharge on medical or other grounds, may he enjoy the same rights and privileges as veterans?—M. Picken, Los Angeles, Calif.

● A man released from a short-term military service with other than a dishonorable discharge may be eligible for the various benefits and rights of veterans. If the discharge is a medical one, it would depend upon whether the disability was incurred in the line of duty or not. If there were other reasons, the matter would have to be judged on an individual basis.

FOR SEN. EDWARD BROOKE

Could you please explain how Social Security works?—Mrs. Edward Zeal, Indianapolis, Ind.

● Essentially, Social Security is a national system of insurance paid by most salaried employees in this country. Once the individual retires, he knows that he may draw on this fund for as long as he lives and that his dependents may benefit from it as well. The important thing about the fund is that the money is there for those who need.

FOR LAWRENCE WELK

Is it true you learned to play a musical instrument through a correspondence school?—Jim Agostino, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● My father owned an old accordion, a family heirloom, and the instrument fascinated me as a young child. While I was recuperating from an illness, he allowed me to play the instrument and later bought me a mail-order accordion. But I'm self-taught, playing completely "by ear."

FOR EVELYN MARSHALL, cosmetician expert

What is the best advice for skin care (besides cleanliness and proper diet) at age 40?—Mrs. Rosemary Muter, Aberdeen, S.D.

● 1) Avoid excessive drinking, which dulls the complexion; 2) avoid the sun, which thickens the skin and makes expression lines deeper; 3) have a regular exercise program to improve circulation; 4) if you have dry skin, it may be necessary to use a night cream containing oils and humectants.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

This Ghost Stays—Dahn Williams—the "unknown" up for the title role in "Myra Breckenridge," her competition being Liz Taylor and Anne Bancroft—doesn't like ghosts tramping through her house. "It had been Elke Sommer's and up for sale cheap," the former Ford model explains, "because of the ghost. All I know about it is that the ghost is a man, and he makes noises like a raccoon, rattling around a garbage can. He drops things and slams doors. A lot of ghost specialists have insisted on coming in and studying it," and Hans Holzer wanted to exorcise it. But I prefer my privacy, and so I made peace with the ghost. I don't bother him, and he doesn't bother me."

Dahn Williams

What Was That Address?—While construction costs are flying out of sight, the building-moving business is booming. At a cost of $125,000, a four-story, 4,200-ton hospital clinic was moved an inch-a-minute, 29 feet-2 inches, to make room for new construction, without disrupting elevator or utility service—or its pharmacy. Movers in Los Angeles are bidding to move a 295-by-300-foot hangar, and in Philadelphia, an 11-story office building. Most movers believe they could even "move" the Empire State building. The hardest part is the paperwork and getting the permits.

Pet Feds—Last year's bad pet, the gerbil, is now "out." The toy company which changed the image of the mouse-like gerbil from just a lab animal to a beloved household pet reports that this year's "in" pet is the hermit tree crab. Why? Because it's clean, active, eats little, doesn't reproduce in captivity and has a cute little walk. So if you prefer your pets to be the latest model, take a hermit to your heart this year.

My Brother, the Doctor—Since the 13th century, there has been a physician in the Roman family of Enzo Cerusico, costar of NBC's "My Friend Tony." In fact, cerusico means surgeon in Italian. Rather than tamper with Costars James Whitmore, Enzo Cerusico sacrosanct tradition, Enzo did start medical school. "But I quit. I was the black sheep," he admits. "I was already involved in acting. My brother Naz zareno was studying engineering, but I persuaded him to take over. Now he's a mouth surgeon." Would Enzo use his brother's medical services? "No, I don't trust him."

Hypnotist—Serious Business—There should be a law against entertainers using hypnosis, say Dr. Fredrick P. Zuspan and Erika Fromm. "The psychotic or prepsychotic person is in danger of being overwhelmed by his unconscious mind. A hypnotist ideally should know something about medicine, psychiatry, and psychology." Night clubs take note.

How We Are Fighting the Money enclosed in tear-gas wrappers, hidden cameras, mock robberies—these are some of the new prevention techniques designed to make our banks safe.

IN NASHVILLE, Tenn., two gunmen stroled into the First American National Bank, sprayed blinding chemical Mace into the faces of every employee and customer, then escaped with $169,950.

In Northlake, Ill., three masked gunmen robbed a bank of $83,000 and fired such an intense barrage of bullets from their submachine guns that they killed two policemen and wounded two others—before two of them were shot.

In Seabrook, Md., three armed men forced 16 of the Equitable Trust Company's employees and customers to lie on the floor while they emptied the cash drawers. Then they threw a tear-gas grenade into the bank and drove off at speeds of up to 110 mph for 11 miles before police shot out their tires and captured two of them.

Violent incidents from the Roaring 20's? A typical day in the lives of Bonnie and Clyde? Not at all! Bank robberies such as these now occur an average of 10 times every weekday in the U.S. Another statistic underscores this disquieting trend: robberies of banks and savings-and-loan associations rose an astonishing 278 percent between 1957 and 1967 and last year nearly doubled over the previous year. The increase in bank robberies is five times higher than the nationwide rise in all other types of serious crime.

Specifically, a bank in Oxon Hill, Md., that was equipped with new, sophisticated alarm systems was robbed so many times (six) in a two-year period that 1) its employees eventually refused to work any longer; 2) many customers withdrew their deposits; 3) the insurance company cancelled its coverage of the bank; 4) as a result, the bank was forced to close.

This bank is not an isolated example. Branches of the Bank of America in San Francisco have been robbed with such alarming frequency that the bank now purchases full-page newspaper ads offering $1,000 rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any of its "five most-wanted bank robbers."

Asking why men rob banks has been futile since, Willie Sutton, the master bank robber, explained, "Because that's where the money is!"

But there is reasonable agreement among law-enforcement personnel on one reason why bank robberies have multiplied. The number of suburban banks and branch offices have doubled in the last 10 years. Such banks, which account for 40 percent of all bank robberies, are structurally esthetic but often more vulnerable to armed bandits.

Furthermore, it is easier for would-be robbers to "case" these banks; then park their automobiles and subsequently escape onto an uncrowded six-lane superhighway.

At the same time, however, armed robbers have intensified their assaults on banks located in the most congested downtown areas. FBI statistics show that, in one 12-month period, 586 bank robbers apparently sensed that roads were too crowded and simply walked away from the banks that they robbed. Four such robbers escaped on bicycles or motorcycles, two quickly abandoned their panel truck and escaped by motorboat. One even used the subway.

A second reason for the increase is the unprecedented emergence of both organized criminals and "amateurs" as bank robbers. John "Sonny" Franzese, for example, who the FBI calls "a ranking member of the Cosa Nostrum" was recently sentenced to 50 years in prison following his conviction for masterminding six bank robberies in New York, Massachusetts, and Utah.

By contrast, the novices have included a 21-year-old barefoot man who wore Bermuda shorts as he nervously robbed a bank in Delaware; a 68-year-old pensioner who robbed an Eastern bank of $3,637 and left in a cab; and two college students and their girl friends who took $59,441 from three banks before being apprehended.

What type of person is committing the vast majority of these robberies? An FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says: "There is no single person who could point to and say he is a typical bank robber, just as there is really no typical bank robbery or method of solution."

A remarkable uniform profile of bank robbers' working habits, though, has emerged from the FBI's study of 2,200 recent bank robberies. Most bank robbers are men between the ages of 26 and 36 who, in 53 percent of the cases, prefer to work alone and, in 75 percent of the robberies, walk into a bank between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on a Friday, wearing either sunglasses, phony mustaches, or ski masks as disguises. Almost 55 percent of the robbers are armed with pistols, and 86 percent of them leave with money—with an average haul of $5,951.11 each.

There was little similarity, though, in the FBI's techniques of identifying bank robbers and recovering $2,715,216 stolen from banks in fiscal year 1968. Consider the case that began when a man wearing a stocking over his face robbed a drive-in bank in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and left with $12,513 in a brown shopping bag. An FBI agent detected a resemblance between the description of the robber and Steven Orval Stiles, a convicted car thief and escapee from a Federal penitentiary.

The FBI's suspicion was heightened the next morning when 17 fingerprints matching those of Stiles were found on shopping bags inside a stolen automobile that had been uncovered. A review of Stiles' background, meanwhile, showed that he enjoyed being a big spender in Omaha, his home town; interviews with clerks and cash drawers confirmed this. Furthermore, one driver said he took Stiles to an apartment house.

The building's superintendent said that a man who "sounds like your fellow" did have a small apartment and had telephoned that he would "wire the rent the first thing tomorrow morning." By this time, FBI agents had learned that a man matching Stiles' description had purchased a plane ticket to Los Angeles. Whereupon, FBI agents hid in every Western Union office in Los Angeles and arrested Stiles within five hours. He was convicted of bank robbery and sentenced to 15 years in prison.

Stories of FBI investigations such as this are legend. But what is being done to stop bank robberies before they take place?

Perhaps the most successful method of reducing them has been for police to urge bank employees to report any suspicious-looking person seen in the vicinity of a bank. Simply consider the results of such a report in downtown Washington, D.C. Two patrolmen used the "stop-and-frisk" law to question three "suspicious-looking" men as they approached the Independent Savings and Loan Association and arrested them for illegal carrying three .38-caliber revolvers and a tear-gas gun.

Even more protective steps are being taken inside banks. The Federal Reserve Board, for example, has just stipulated that any new vault constructed within a bank under its jurisdiction must have doors constructed of special "drill and torch resistant materials."

Many banks are suddenly augmenting their security systems by 1) employing more armed uniformed guards with their revolvers plainly visible; 2) hiring former FBI agents to review their security measures and determine how vulnerable they are to robbers; 3) keeping only a small amount of currency in the tellers' drawers; 4) installing bulletproof glass on tellers' windows.

Such banks, moreover, have followed J. Edgar Hoover's advice that nearly all banks are thoroughly "cased" before they are robbed, and, therefore, employees should be trained to watch for "loiterers and suspicious-looking individuals who seek change or attempt to open small savings accounts and even uniformed workmen who don't offer proper identification when they request access to restricted bank space."

Law-enforcement agencies have encouraged many banks to stage mock robberies in order to alert tellers to the modus operandi of actual bandits and, significantly, what to do if a bank robbery does occur. Employees are shown how to give a robber "halt" money in which the serial numbers have been recorded without taking an unnecessary risk that might provoke the bandit into firing his weapon. Then, while obeying a robber's orders, employees are taught how, if possible, to keep the robber's note and observe facial features, clothing, and any scars or unusual markings that would help police or FBI in identification.

A variety of implements that eject tear gas are being installed, too. Some smaller banks already use money wrappers that discharge tear gas.

Another new device being used in clear plastic vinyl hidden in money wrappers that, if secretly broken by robbers during a robbery, causes the money to emit a sickening odor when it is carried outdoors.

After the chemical was used in a robbery of $1,500 from a West Coast bank, the two robbers' getaway car smelled so badly that they abandoned it and ran. Though the men were not immediately caught, bank officials maintain that the money "smells so awful that it will never be spent."

Furthermore, Congress' new Bank Protection Act, and subsequent orders on Jan. 6, 1969, by four Government agencies, will require all Federally insured banks and savings and loan associations to take certain protective steps that, surprisingly, had not always been done:

1. Install, repair, and maintain equipment that can secretly notify police if a robbery occurs during banking hours or if someone breaks into a building at night. Many bank officers assumed their burglar alarms operated properly—until they were robbed! After the banks were robbed a second time, police frequently found that the banks hadn't contacted the alarm after the first robbery.

2. Use lighting devices that will illuminate lobbies and entrances to vaults at night.

3. Install cameras that photograph anyone who walks up to a bank teller's window.

Although such photographic equipment doesn't necessarily frighten away all bank robbers, it has brought legal dividends when the bandits have been apprehended. Take, for example, the recent case of 27-year-old Raymond Clardy who entered a plan of "not guilty" in a Boston court in the charge of robbing the Suffolk-Franklin Savings Bank.

Whereupon, the prosecutor requested permission to show a film of the robbery. After Clardy watched himself leave the bank with a pistol in his right hand and a bag of money in his left, he changed his plea to guilty and was sentenced to a term of six-to-ten years in Massachusetts State Prison.

Dishes From Down East

Clams, native to the New England Coast, go into a sauce for linguine.

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

As much at-home on our tables as those of New Englanders are dishes using native foods from Down East. Modern techniques in canning and bottling, freezing and shipping make it easy to stock our shelves or freezers with maple products, cranberries, lobsters, and clams—to name only a few.

White Clam Sauce for Linguine

If clam sauce is one of your favorites, be sure to double this sauce recipe.

- 2 cups water
- 2 doz. cherry-stone clams, washed; or see note
- 8 oz. linguine
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons regular all-purpose flour
- 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon salt

1. Bring the water to boiling in a large saucepot or Dutch oven. Add clams. Cover and steam until shells are partially opened.

2. Drain, reserving 1 1/2 cups of the cooking liquid. Remove clams from shells; coarsely chop clams and set aside.

3. Cook linguine in boiling salted water as directed on package; drain and keep hot.

4. Meanwhile, add onion, parsley, and garlic to hot oil in a large skillet; cook about 8 min., stirring occasionally.

5. Mix in flour, salt, and a few grains pepper; cook until bubbly. Add reserved liquid gradually, while blending thoroughly. Bring rapidly to boiling, stirring constantly, and boil 1 to 2 min. Mix in the chopped clams and heat; do not boil.

6. Serve clam sauce on the linguine. 1 serving

Note: Canned minced clams

(three 1 1/2-oz. cans) and the drained liquid (about 1 1/2 cups) may be substituted for the whole clams and the reserved liquid.

Cranberry-Apple Mold with Lobster-Stuffed Celery

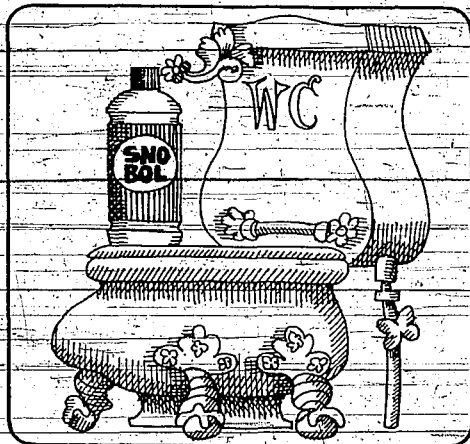

- 4 cups cranberry-apple drink
- 2 tablespoons (2 env.) unflavored gelatin
- Lobster-stuffed Celery (see recipe)

1. Sprinkle gelatin over 1 cup of the cranberry-apple drink in a heavy saucepan. Set over low heat and stir until gelatin is completely dissolved.

2. Remove from heat and mix in remaining cranberry-apple drink. Pour into a 1-qt. mold and chill until firm.

3. Unmold onto a chilled large plate. Surround with crisp salad greens. Spoon a narrow ribbon of lemon mayonnaise (1/2 cup mayonnaise blended with 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel and 2 teaspoons lemon juice) over the greens. Arrange stuffed celery around salad mold-between the greens, radiating from mold to edge of plate. 6 servings

Lobster-Stuffed Celery—Mix together 1/2 cup chopped cooked lobster meat and 2 to 3 tablespoons of the lemon-mayonnaise (see step 3). Diagonally cut stalks of fennel celery into twelve 3-in. lengths. Stuff celery with lobster and garnish with a sprinkle of grated lemon peel.

A nickel's worth of Sno-Bol sanitizes, deodorizes and removes rust stains from your you-know-what.

General purpose cleaners are fine for most jobs. But not for cleaning toilet bowls. They don't deodorize, sanitize, and remove rust stains like Sno-Bol.

Liquid Sno-Bol cleans in seconds while it deodorizes and sanitizes. It's faster and more efficient than any dry bowl cleaner. You can pour Sno-Bol full strength to remove rust stains and calcium deposits. And it works better and costs less than other leading bowl cleaners.

MENOPAUSE DISCOVERIES:

"Change of Life" Made Easier?

"I DEFINITELY WANT this girl fired. I can't work with her," Edith, a supervisor in a big company, cried hysterically to her department head.

"But why?" her superior asked. "I won't discuss it!" Edith exclaimed. "You'll have to discuss it," said her boss. "Two girls have already left because of you. What's troubling you?"

Edith calmed down enough to confess, "I feel ready to explode. I'm only 42, and my menopause has already begun; you'd be upset, too."

The department head, a kindly, charming woman of 50, smiled. She, too, was in her menopause, but wasn't suffering nor causing anyone else to suffer. Why were these two women so different? Here's what new research has revealed about menopause and ways to ease it:

Predicting: An early prediction of menopausal reactions is a relatively new discovery. According to psychiatrist Edwin Dunlop, director of research at Fuller Memorial Sanatorium, North Attleboro, Mass., the way many women react is related to the ways they have adapted to the problems of life. Those who experience a rocky menopause have already reacted to life with great tension.

They are often: the club women, the leaders in a community, the volunteers," Dr. Dunlop said at a symposium cosponsored by the Academy of Psychosomatic Medicine and Schering Corporation, "or women at the prime of their careers." What they have in common is that they all have a need to feel important. Their ambitions and drive are self-centered.

By the time the menopause has started—the early 40s for some, later for others—some of these women are likely to have become aggressive, angry, defensive or equally difficult—sweet, suffering martyrs.

While the woman experiences a profound psychological and physiological adjustment, the family doctor can be of enormous help. The time to prepare emotionally for menopause, then, is long before it happens.

Hormones and Other Remedies: The advancement of hormone-replacement therapy is a menopause discovery which has made the change of life easier for numerous women, overcoming many problems.

As the Information Center on the Mature Woman explains, the physiological process behind menopause, the pituitary gland "signals the ovaries that childbearing time is up and the ovaries stop producing estrogen." Except for the rarely fortunate woman, that once meant "she would soon lose her figure, develop wrinkles, lose her sex appeal and femininity, suffer hot and cold flashes, chest pains, and myriad other maladies attributable partly to her fears and largely to her diminished estrogen levels. Today's synthetic hormones, individually prescribed by a physician, have been the answer to many of these problems."

Dr. Sherwin A. Kaufman of the New York University School of Medicine reports a study of 200 patients using estrogen-replacement therapy: 98 percent achieved lasting freedom from hot flashes; 95 percent from sweats; all showed relief from vaginal irritation.

Psychiatry: Some aspects of the menopausal syndrome may have a psychological and emotional basis only, requiring medication other than—or in addition to—estrogen. Among these may be a belief that any unfulfilled hopes and aspirations are now lost forever, accompanied by feelings of worthlessness and irritability.

For those women whose emotional reactions are severe and persistent, short-term psychotherapy is now recognized as beneficial. It can also help a woman come to terms with the panicky feeling of "the closing of the gates" (and of childbearing).

Edith's problem was in this category. Fortunately, her understanding boss had a talk with her and suggested treatment. This woman, basically intelligent but unable to explain why she turned on her co-workers, gained a new insight: she'd always had—but covered up—a deep-seated resentment of the many women who seemed to get more out of life than she. Self-understanding and medication combined to make a new woman of Edith.

For about 16 percent of American women, the menopause is relatively trouble-free; simply the beginning of a new aspect of living. And now that so much has been discovered about menopause, it should be easier for millions more.

"Grasshoppers are the kind of shoes that don't inhibit a woman."

Paul Young, President of Paraphernalia boutiques

"In today's fashions, there's no longer one look. Instead there's the freedom to wear just about anything. You see, today, a woman wants to express her individuality.

"Now, I think Grasshoppers are the kind of shoes the woman of today would appreciate.

They're young, exciting and say it's wear what you want. The kind of shoes and colors you want. All you want is to have a woman who can be herself."

PETULA CLARK:

Her Struggle Against Stardom

AFTER 10 years in show business, Petula Clark wanted to call it quits. The rigors of the profession force many would-be stars to do that. But Petula's case was unusual—after all, she was only 17 then.

"I just wasn't getting along with people," she recalls. "Because I was in show business since childhood, I thought I knew everything. I was becoming snobbish. I suddenly discovered that I knew nothing—nothing about love, about real relationships. I wanted out."

The fact is that Petula (Pet, to her friends), who burst onto the American music scene with the smash rock-'n'-roll hit, "Downtown," never really wanted in. "I was sort of pushed into a career in the first place," she says. "I was seven years old when my father heard me singing around the house. He thought the radio was on. Right then and there he decided that I was going to be a professional singer. He never even consulted with me!"

Pet can't remember much of her childhood except performing in front of an audience. The teens were no better. "I missed a lot of things. I wasn't allowed to go on dates except when boy friends were picked for me."

Then came the first hint of rebellion. "I really wanted to quit, but my father kept after me to go on. So I compromised by at least starting to go out and live my own life." By this time, Pet was making movies for Britain's Rank Company. "By the time I was 22, I already had made 20 movies—all terrible—and then I knew I had enough. So I quit Rank and left home. I suppose Rover reacted by going in for fast cars, but they made me feel independent and free."

What money Pet had saved soon ran out, and she had to turn back to the only thing she knew—singing. She cut a couple of records which were moderately successful in Europe but unknown here. The records did get her invited to perform in other countries, though—and, indirectly, got her a husband, too.

"I was working in France," Pet remembers, "when I met Claude Wolff, who was a public-relations man, and we married 18 months later."

More than anyone else, Claude is responsible for turning Pet into an international star. "Claude gave my career direction," Pet admits. "I lose confidence easily, but Claude has enough for both of us. That's one of the advantages of our marriage. There are others, too—Barbara, 7, and Kathryn, 6."

With Claude directing her career, Pet now finds herself back in the movies. She's now getting star billing in such big-budget films as "Finian's Rainbow" and "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

When you talk with her about her children, some hint of the old bitterness toward show business comes out. "I keep my career separate from my home life," Pet says stiffly. "I won't even mention it in front of them. They'll not go through the same things I did."

And that includes a lifelong struggle to avoid stardom.

"I was always for the Magic English Pellets and not cagerful one bit as far as buds, flowering stems and roses also concerned. I have not yet tried the pellets on vegetables, but I use the same results. I was raised in a nursery and have had considerable experience with shrubs and roses. Your product is the best fertilizer I have ever used. It is much more economical liquid or solid fertilizers now on the market. — G.A.M., Augsburg, Mann.

"Enclosing a snapshot of 'Scabogee' I raised last year with the use of your Magic Pellets, and it weighs fifteen pounds. My roses, aspidragras, flag ornamentals, dahlias, were the largest and most colorful and beautiful in the block! I shared my pellets with my friends and the flowers that were almost dead came to life. — Mrs. W.H.H., Nashville, Tenn.

"My zinnias grew six feet high, the blooms were bigger than tea saucers. I had merrigolds bigger than teacups they grew six feet tall! My roses came to see them! — Mrs. C.M., Carleton Hill, Ont.

"I'll never see anything in my life do so much good. I had never so beautiful roses in town last summer, and my mums were still gorgeous. You know I had to pinch them back more than usual but they were like talk of the town — I sold no more! — REV. C.W.D., Charles, Mo.

"Two of my rose bushes died all the way to the crown — I put these pellets around them and now they came back to life and are growing new stems. I also put pellets back more than usual but they were like their ever twice their size in just one season. — Mrs. F.P., Brewersport, Pa.

"I have no garden now and your pellets only for house plants. My African violets have been a mass of blossoms for months. The streptocarpus plant is growing like a weed, and another violet which did nothing for a long time is developing. Never buds now! — A.M.H., Buffalo, N.Y.

"I am five feet two inches and my gladiolus sprouted above me and they were the most beautiful ones I have ever seen. And I know what garden beauty is because I am from Dublin, Ireland, and before my father's death he won many trophies in flower shows, but my flowers and foliage outdid anything I have ever seen after using your pellets! — Mrs. J.M., Wilton, Ala.

FLIGHT NURSES:

Airborne Angels of to Our

AIR FORCE Flight Nurse Donna Cleland of Kearney, Neb., was administering medication to a wounded GI when a choking sound came from behind her.

Another patient—a civilian woman whom the Air Force was transporting because poor weather had shut down commercial airlines—was gasping for breath. With two medical technicians, Captain Cleland rushed a special pump to the woman's side and performed an emergency tracheotomy, opening the woman's windpipe and allowing her to resume breathing unimpeded.

Quick and skilled reaction to medical emergencies is characteristic of flight nurses such as Captain Cleland, a member of the 12th Aeromedic Evacuation Squadron. Her unit shuttles military patients—mostly wounded from Vietnam—to medical centers throughout the United States aboard C-131s. (Convairs). Casualties from Vietnam are transported across the Pacific on larger C-141s by other Air Force medical teams.

A flight nurse's long tour of duty starts with gathering medical records of her patients—usually 12 litter patients and up to 120 walking wounded. On the basis of the records, she assigns positions on the plane and continues treatments—medication, intravenous feedings, and plasma transfusions. Off flight duty, she must be on 30-minute call, carry flight clothes with her even when visiting.

It's a tough job emotionally and physically (Air Force nurses are assigned flight duty for only two years). Donna sometimes feels she walks so many miles up and down the aisle as the plane logs. "But there is no other job quite so satisfying to a nurse," Donna says.

That, too, was the feeling of Flight Nurse Lea Simon, based in Yokota, Japan. When she received word that her husband, a fighter-bomber pilot, had been lost in Vietnam, her commanding officer told her she would be relieved of flight duty. Major Simon refused.

"More than ever before, I had to stay on the job," she recalls. "Helping them (wounded GIs) kept me alive."

Science Finds Way To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids
And Promptly Stop The Itching. Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

A scientific research institute has discovered a medication with the ability, in most cases—to promptly stop burning itch and actually shrink hemorrhoids.
—In one hemorrhoid case after another very striking improvement was reported by doctors who conducted the tests. Pain and itching were promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.
—Tests conducted on hundreds of patients by doctors in New York City, in Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center proved this so. And it was all done without narcotics or astringent astringents of any kind.

—The secret is Preparation H! There is no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like it! Preparation H also lubricates, soothes irritated tissues, and helps prevent further infection. Preparation H comes in ointment or suppository form. No prescription is needed.

Together you'll explore, through plain words, pictures and self-analytical tests, virtually every question that might trouble you about love and marriage, child care and training, in-laws and quarrels, homework and budgets, family planning and adoption, alcoholism and infidelity, divorce and remarriage, dieting and appearance, success in careers, many more.

Month by month, together with Dr. Brothers, you'll find ways to erase little problems one by one, and to save the big ones if you can't be eliminated entirely. Here, for example, is just some of the specific practical knowledge you can gain and profit from through the next few Guidebooks, during the next few months: How to correct bad habits... How to help children adjust to their father's family... How to keep your wife within the budget... How to be a mother to your daughter-in-law... Why husbands become lazy loafers, and what to do about it... How to care for aged parents... How to get a job promotion... Taking the tensions out of social training... How psychology can help you lose weight... Making sure your date will ask you out again... Solutions to problems of housework... Why husbands mistreat instead of just his wife... Bridging the teenage communications gap... What a man looks for in a woman, and what a woman looks for in a man.

GAUGE YOUR PROGRESS WITH TESTS AND LETTERS FROM DR. BROTHERS

At the start of each Guidebook a brief quiz will indicate your strengths and weaknesses in the subject; at the end of each volume another self-checking test will measure your progress.

And, along with each Guidebook, Dr. Brothers will include a special letter relating a true case history of particular interest. Here, you'll be able to compare your solution to the one she suggested. This way, as the months go by, you can gauge your gradual progress in practical psychology, as well as your increasing knowledge of human relations.
