By JACK WALSH

Vietnam entirely last Nov. 1. Guerrilla gunners fired three rockets at the city from rice paddies to the south Sunday night, two of them landing in rice paddy and the third in the Saigon River. No one was hurt.

Later last Nov. 1, he completely stopped the bombing with the understanding the Communists would spare major South Vietnamese cities from attack and stay out of the DMZ.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have done neither. The shelling of Saigon Sunday was the seventh in their now 31-day-old nationwide offensive.

South Vietnam's three biggest cities—off limits to Communist attack. All three have been shelled in the reds' offensive.

There were unconfirmed reports that a four-rocket in the Sunday night attack on Saigon had fallen short and landed a mile and a half from an own-U.S. armored cavalry soldiers and tanks protecting the capital reported 63 guerrillas slain Sunday in three clashes 45 miles northwest of the city. The U.S. troops lost 11 killed and 16 wounded, front reports said.

Is There Inefficiency Inside The SBA?

WASHINGTON—The Mafia-controlled ANR Leasing Co. of New York City continued to receive government loans under the Small Business Administration's (SBA) supervision even after that agency had been advised by the FBI that gangsters were running the company.

Quite apart from $468,000 in direct SBA loans to ANR Leasing that were uncovered by New York State investigators, the company received an additional $160,000 in indirect SBA loans funneled through a quasi-governmental investment company. What's more, $60,000 of that amount was loaned after the FBI sent its secret report to the SBA.

This suggests, at the least, massive administrative inefficiencies inside the SBA. Beyond that, it shows the need for a thorough investigation of the SBA's New York regional office, headed by Charles Kriger.

suspended from the post last fall but recently reinstated at the urging of the SBA.

Yet, the Republican administration now controlling the SBA, made the SBA a reluctant target to attack the Mafia loans. Both Republican members of Congress and conscientious civil servants inside the SBA are amazed that Hillary Sandoval, President Nixon's new Small Business administrator, has not suspended Kriger.

We report last week there is reasonable doubt in fixing the blame for loans totaling $468,000 made to ANR Leasing in 1965 and 1966.

The ANR loans were uncovered quite by accident in a New York State investigation of Masello's loan shark racket. What that probe did not uncover was the fact that ANR received additional subsidized government loans in 1966 and 1967.

The later loans came from a wholly owned subsidiary of the Royal National Bank: the Royal Business Funds Corp., a Small Business Investment Company (SBIC) operating as a private company but capitalized with government money from the SBA under a 10-year-old Federal program.

The Royal Bank's SBIC loaned $100,000 to ANR Leasing in mid-1966, shortly before the FBI submitted a secret report to the SBA revealing the hoodlum domination of the company.

Yet, the shocking fact is that officials in Washington supervising SBIC operations were not informed of the FBI report. Moreover, after the report was received, an additional $60,000 loan was made by Royal Business Funds Corp. to ANR Leasing.

Up to this very moment, officials supervising the SBIC program have not been informed of the nature of ANR Leasing Corp. Accordingly, since SBIC loans are not examined by the government except under unusual circumstances, $160,000 in loans have never been subject to Federal investigation. Whether this money or $468,000 loaned directly by the SBA was used to finance Masello's loan sharking is a mystery to Uncle Sam.

The tight secrecy imposed by the SBA makes it impossible to tell exactly who is to blame. But it is clear that Kriger in New York office, lighted with loan applications by black ghetto merchants, readily accepted the approval by the Royal National Bank and its president, William Goldfine, in making the direct loans to ANR Leasing. Even after Kriger was aware of the ANR's Mafia connections, he did not suspend Royal Bank's SBIC loans to the company.

The common factor threading its way through this bizarre case is Dwight D. Eisenhower's Democratic organization. Kriger owes his job almost wholly to his strong position with the Brookings Institution. Goldfine is similarly well regarded by the organization, having financed the contribution of the Brookings Institution to Democratic campaigns in 1964 and 1965.

Amid this Byzantine intrigue, fledging SBA boss Sandoval (fresh out of 25 years of prison) seems lost. In private discussion last week with Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, Sandoval expressed his inability to get rid of Kriger even if he so desired.

In fact, the new SBA team's reaction to disclosure last week that hoodlums could get loans easier than black merchants was to announce the appointment of a 42-year-old New York Negro banker, Phillip Prutt, to run the agency's minority enterprise program. But Prutt, a stockbroker, is utterly unknown in Harlem's black ghetto. Prutt, East Side (330 East 89th St.), and was voted for the job by both the state's Republican Senators—Javits and Charles Goodell—and by the state's Democratic Senator, Sandoval is off to a bad start.

COMMENT

Inflation The Villain

Idaho State Journal

IF THERE IS A villain in the action of the Idaho Legislature in raising the legal bank interest rate limit to 10 per cent, it is the galloping inflation which is pushing the cost of everything else higher.

Some lawmakers in Boise-blamed Bankers for a poor job of lobbying, and said the Legislature would get the blame for higher loan rates.

But the fact is the latest boost in the prime interest rate by major U.S. banks to 7.5 per cent makes it impossible for any banks to operate with a limit of 8 per cent. The interest rate levels are being dictated in Washington, in an attempt to discourage demand for borrowing and thus stem the inflationary trend.

So Idaho must go along — or there simply will be no money available for those who have to borrow.

ACTUALLY, most borrowers pay more than 8 per cent now — much more in many cases. If you pay 1 per cent per month on a loan, that's equivalent to 12 per cent a year. Some merchants and others charge as high as 1.5 per cent per month.

Raising the bank interest limit is likely to strike hardest at those who get a home mortgage loan, where a rise of even 1 per cent will mean thousands of extra dollars to repay over the life of a typical mortgage.

No one knows for sure whether the government's attempt to slow inflation by higher interest will work, or how soon interest rates will drop again. But money is just like any other commodity — subject to the laws of supply and demand. Many lenders would like to keep interest rates high, but if someone down the street offers a better rate to the borrower, he's going to take it.

America seems irreversibly wedded to the credit system. But that's not to say it will always be a smooth union. Right now appears to be a rough spot.

Man Of War—Man Of Peace

ANDREW TULY
Melvin Laird Has A Plan

WASHINGTON—Defense Secretary Melvin Laird has a plan to take some of the heat off the Nixon administration's handling of the war-and-peace situation in Vietnam. An outline of the plan could be announced before the first of several anti-war demonstrations is staged next Friday.

Assuming there is no massive escalation of the war by the enemy, the administration is prepared to withdraw "some" infantry units from Vietnam this year. No figure as to the size of this withdrawal is officially available, but it is unlikely to amount to more than 75,000 troops. Fifty thousand is probably a more realistic estimate. In embracing this option, Secretary Laird and President Nixon, of course — are facing up to a fact of life. This is that the South Vietnamese armed forces cannot today stand alone against the enemy and probably will not be prepared to do so for another year. That is to say, they cannot replace American forces in an important area.

South Vietnam has plenty of troops — about 800,000 regulars and 200,000 irregulars. But after eight years of American training and American "supply" programs, the South Vietnamese still are not well-trained enough, and still don't have the equipment and leadership to fight the enemy on their own.

Laird's plan would find a way around this scandalous situation. Since it will take time — upwards of 18 months — properly to equip the South Vietnamese military with jet fighter-bombers and helicopters it needs to stand alone, Laird has concluded that the only safe alternative is to reduce American foot-soldier strength.

Such a withdrawal would accomplish two important objectives. It would reduce American casualties, and thus deny to the war protesters ammunition for their principal argument against the continuing hostilities. That argument has been building up since U.S. troops renewed major offensive operations in Vietnam a few months ago.

The administration would like to announce this plan before the demonstrations, scheduled for April 4, 5 and 6 in at least seven American cities. Protesters are also planning a march on Washington on the following weekend. These demonstrations represent the first public reaction of the left and assorted other dissenters to Nixon's Vietnam stance, and the administration is anxious to tone down the confrontation.

Meanwhile, the Laird plan also constitutes an implied criticism of the Kennedy-Johnson policy. It says, in effect, that the Democrats wasted those eight years in which they were engaged in pulling out the South Vietnamese military machine toward the day when the Americans could go home.

To be sure, most South Vietnamese combat troops now have the M-16 automatic rifle. After a special, crash rearmament program. But they are woefully shy of the hardware without which modern war making is impossible. They lack artillery and fighter — bomber support, tanks and other military vehicles, helicopters and radios. Washington has promised the South Vietnamese 300 modern helicopters and 60 jet fighter-bombers, but their delivery has been delayed for more than a year, and so has the training of the student pilots waiting to fly them.

Despite the training program directed by U. S. military experts, the South Vietnamese of ficers' corps is still outrageously inefficient and corrupt. Some have even refused to lead their troops in battle. The majority has stood firm against drawing officers from the ranks. Nevertheless, Laird is convinced he can bring home some U. S. infantrymen this year without weakening the allied position. Air squadrons, helicopter companies and other attack support units probably will remain in Vietnam for the foreseeable future. But casualties are much lighter within these units, which is what the war's political conversations are all about.

Farm Exemption

Lewiston Tribune

The Idaho Legislature tinkered with the state-vehicle inspection law this session with mixed results. One action was taken to improve it. Another was taken to dilute and pervert it.

The improvement is a safeguard. The legislature provided that vehicle owners who believe they were mistreated by a state inspection station should report their complaint to the State Department of Law Enforcement or, in other words, to the Idaho State Police.

Vehicle inspection laws are subject to abuse in any state, because there are always a handful of unscrupulous operators willing to find non-existent imperfection in a vehicle just to create business.

But the Idaho inspection system has never been without safeguards. For instance, the department keeps a check on the amount of business each inspection station does with each customer. Inspection stations that are exceeding the norm are prime targets for an inquiry by the state. In addition, it has always been possible to contact the State Department of Law Enforcement with complaints against an inspection station. In fact, you can probably complain to anyone from the governor to your state legislator and get some action. But it is well to specify a complaint department, so the 1969 legislature has done so.

However, the other change made in the vehicle inspection law is class legislation aimed at excluding those engaged in agriculture from some of the provisions of the law. The new law specifies that trailers of 1,500 pounds or less and "slow-moving" vehicles are exempt from the law. This is another of the Idaho Legislature's infamous and discriminatory agricultural exemptions.

If you own a dilapidated old fishing car that is seldom on the road, you must comply with the law. If you run a farm equipment down the highway, you are beyond the reach of the law. — B. H.

A Sour Turn

RAY CROMLEY

SEOUL, Korea (NEA) — A private talks here with a man once one of North Korea's leading Marxist theoreticians and thought-control chieftains give a revealing look at the Pueblo incident as seen from Communist eyes.

As this psychological warfare expert says, it is North Korea's top man, Kim Il Sung, who has been pushing his people at a hurried pace since 1953 in war preparations, including a vast underground labyrinth of tunnels, coastal defense posts, hardened fortifications and submarine pens and a striking air and ground force.

Kim whipped his people along by arguing the United States was planning war. But he had given people no convincing reasons to believe that war was inevitable. That is, his arguments were beginning to wear thin.

He needed some incident to provide his people with a morale boost.

Moreover, Kim had promised Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi that he would do something dramatic to help with the war in Vietnam.

It was the United States where the "Pueblo" was held, where the "Pueblo" was held, where the "Pueblo" was held.

Kim was certain he had nothing to fear. With the United States tied down in Vietnam, he was certain Washington would be bent over backward to settle the Pueblo matter peacefully, despite Kim's repeated attempts to provoke outbreaks.

Fat Massage

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl, 13, with hairy legs. I solved the condition by wearing nylon underwear. My hair started to grow, but the hair wouldn't poke through. I'd love to wear only nylons but I can't because you can see the hair.

My parents won't let me shave my legs or use hair-remover creams because they think it hurts. Can you suggest a method will make my legs "scaly" any more than your father's face gets scaly from shaving?

Maybe you can persuade your folks to let you use one or the other of the methods which you mentioned when, any, you start high school, which ought to be pretty soon.

Neither method will cause varicose veins. You may or may not be able to use any of the creams. It depends on whether it irritates the skin. But neither method will make your legs "scaly" any more than your father's face gets scaly from shaving.

Meanwhile, probably bleaching the hair will help some. You can use peroxide which is sold for bleaching hair. It is a chemical, but it is a mild type of bleach intended for this purpose. It makes the hair less noticeable. Shaving, however, will do no harm.

Note to C.J.S., Sr.: The continued habit of taking bicarbonates of soda can upset the stomach; there is no objection to using it to clean your teeth, however. Many people do so.

You can lose weight if you really want to. Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "101 Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and to the maximum — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy, write to Dr. Thosteson, care of this newspaper, enclosing one cent in coin or a bank self-addressed, stamped, envelope.

The request of high school history teachers for repeal of a statute prohibiting criticism of U. S. "Founding Fathers" is a reasonable one. This nation owes its vitality to self-criticism. To deny students access to a censorship history is to deny them familiarity with charges which they eventually will hear, eloquently and forcefully presented, from people adverse to the United States and who appear to have facts and history at their fingertips.

Returning Dollars

Christiana Science Monitor

Like other pieces of flying paper which change direction when the wind shifts, the American dollar is reported flying westwards across the Atlantic rather than eastwards. In short, dollars are coming home to roost in American banks and businesses.

A foremost factor has been the shortage of dollars in the United States itself. This has led American banks with branches abroad to pay as much as 8.5 per cent interest on dollars deposited with them. Although this rate is astronomical in American terms, investment opportunities are apparently so good and so numerous as to make such interest payments worthwhile.

Although these so-called "Eurodollars" do not actually make the oceanic trip and are deposited in the European branches of American banks, nonetheless they count as additions to the United States financial stockpile. This has a favorable influence on America's balance of payments struggle.

But while the dollar reverse may be stabilizing, it is less pleasing to many European capitals, which are so reluctant to see dollars moving westwards as the U. S. and States is to see them skipping in the opposite direction.

Along with this dollar depositing, there has come what seems to be a steadily growing tendency on the part of Europeans to invest in American stocks. This has been a stabilizing influence on some stocks during the current uncertain period of the market. But it also means that European concerns, which are in competition with American firms for other reasons, now find the latter being strengthened by European investors.

Of course, the money market is slightly. And today's situation may have evaporated a half-year hence. But at the moment, the dollar again looks mighty good to Europeans.

Biography Of Ike Will Be Published

NEW YORK (UPI)—United Press International and American Heritage Publishing Co. announced today that they will shortly publish a memorial biography of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The book will be hard-cover and be ready for distribution in about three weeks. Its title will be: "Eisenhower: American Hero."

The announcement said the book, which will go to press in a few days, has been under preparation for some time, and can be completed rapidly.

The memorial volume will contain 144 pages of text and pictures, many in color, covering the story of Eisenhower's early life, his long military and public career, and his retirement years. It will include special text and picture coverage of his state funeral.

The front cover will carry a four-color picture of Eisenhower in his five-star general's uniform.

Among its more than 125 illustrations will be a special picture essay on the Alamo, Kansas, countryside where the World War II hero and 34th President of the United States was raised. There also will be pictures of D-Day and other World War II combat scenes.

It will have a foreword by Walter Cronkite, Pulitzer prize-winning historian and senior editor of American Heritage. The narrative will be by Kenneth Davis, historian and author of earlier books on Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson.

Special contributors to the book will include Dr. Milton Eisenhower; Edgar Eisenhower; Admiral Arthur W. Radford; General Mark Clark; Omar Bradley and S. A. Marshall; Viscount Montgomery of Alamein; UPI White House reporter Merriman Smith; as well as other prominent wartime and peacetime associates of Eisenhower.

A highlight will be President Richard M. Nixon's personal appraisal of Eisenhower published in 1962.

Sections will be devoted to the Presidential campaigns and Eisenhower's two terms in the White House. In addition, the book will contain excerpts from memorable Eisenhower speeches and proclamations.

The announcement said the first copies off the presses will be reserved for readers and listeners of UPI subscribing newspapers and broadcasters. A bookstore edition also will be distributed, following initial shipments to UPI subscribers.

Soviets Fire At Czechs After Game

PRAGUE (UPI)—Soviet occupation troops fired submachine-guns into the air to drive off demonstrators who smashed windows in their barracks in celebration of a Czechoslovak hockey victory over the Soviets, a regional newspaper said today.

The newspaper Svoboda (freedom) said demonstrations broke out in Mlada Boleslav, 25 miles northwest of Prague, Friday night after the Czechoslovaks had beaten the Soviets for the second time in Stockholm.

It said the demonstrators hurled bottles and rocks and the Soviet troops fired submachine-guns into the air at one point and kept the gates to their military compound locked.

It was the same night that demonstrators sacked the offices of the Soviet airline here on a celebration in Prague's Wenceslas Square.

In Moscow, the Soviets accused Czechoslovak Communist leaders of permitting "reactionary elements" to use sports "in the struggle against the socialist order."

Talented Trio Scheduled For Recital At LDS Hall

The Thunderbird Hotel in Las Vegas, the battles of Vietnam, a university lecture series, and campus hopping across the United States and Canada have kept the Three D's busy lately. The Trio will appear at 8 p.m. Thursday at the LDS Cultural Hall, 600 Harrison Street.

The Three D's, Dick Davis, Denis Sorenson and Duane Hatt, record for Capitol and are among the top college attractions in the nation, according to Billboard Magazine's annual campus poll.

As the past schedule indicates, the trio performs for a multitude of other groups. To entertain them all takes a fast-paced variety show with something for everybody.

They begin with two big opening numbers, and from there they range through Broadway show tunes and "Top Forty" hits. They include hilarious parodies on such varied topics as football, bullfights, travel customs, and the history of stringed instruments.

With significant dramatic skill they interpret poetry and talk of love, patriotism, and the worth of a man.

But the Three D's unique contribution to the entertainment world is their original music set to classic poetry. Dick Davis' baritone in the trio, is also the group's musical arranger and composer. He wrote all the music for the Three D's first album, including musical settings for "The Charge of the Light Brigade," "Jabberwocky," and "Gunga Din."

All this diversity in material demands equal versatility in accompaniment. The Three D's provide their own backing, working out on guitars, drums, bass, and sometimes trumpet, melophone, harmonica, bongos and finger cymbals as the production requires.

Tickets can be purchased at the Lloyd Hamilton Agency, CSI business office, CSI academic building, LDS Institute of Religion and from seminary teachers.

Ike's Last Thoughts Are Told

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—As President Nixon said in his moving eulogy in the capitol Rotunda Sunday afternoon, some of Dwight D. Eisenhower's last thoughts were of the "tragedies and the angry divisions of our time."

In a voice that cracked occasionally with emotion, Nixon said the man whom he served for eight years as vice president.

"He was genuinely puzzled by frenzied and by hate because he was incapable of it himself. He could never quite understand it in others."

The last time I saw him (last week at Walter Reed Hospital) that was what he talked about. He was puzzled by the hatred he had seen in the world needs most today is understanding and an ability to see the other person's point of view and not to hate him because he disagrees."

"That was Dwight Eisenhower."

Perhaps Nixon reflected the spirit of the thousands who lined majestically broad Constitution Avenue to watch in silence a few in tears, as a black, horse-drawn caisson carried Eisenhower's body from Washington National Cathedral to the state through the night in the cavernous Rotunda.

The Sunday street crowds were anything but large by Eisenhower standards—the line who attracted spectators by the millions during his presidency as he traveled not only his own but also the globe, and the turnout for the departed hero general of World War II was impressive.

The weather dulled Eisenhower's standards as a snow and rain to cold wintry sunlight that pierced the overcast almost on cue as the Eisenhower casket was carried up the Capitol steps.

Perhaps the most distinctive thing about the crowd was the many young couples holding their children aloft for a first-person view of an historic moment; a surprisingly large number of young men and women of student age; girls in mod ponchos, and boys whose long hair Eisenhower once had to comb.

There were no protest signs, no outcries or displays—just block after block of grave-faced young men and women, some stirring ritual of farewell to a national hero many of the younger people knew only from their history books.

Officers Are Named By Hansen PTA

HANSEN—Mr. and Mrs. Rex Gardner were elected co-presidents of the PTA at the regular meeting recently at the school.

First Stanger was elected first vice president; Mrs. Joe Froelich, second vice president; Carl Crockett and Frank Houtly, and Mrs. Leonard Daw, treasurer.

It was announced a leadership training session for new officers will be held April 28 at District. The treasurer's report stated that $107 was netted from the Farmer's Family Bazaar sale. A total of some $174 is in the treasury with a few outstanding small bills unpaid.

It was announced the amount for Girl State, Susan Norris, has been paid.

The awards banquet was planned for the evening of May 1 at the school luncheon.

Mrs. Gene Johnson, present PTA president, thanked all those who helped serve and furnish for the basketball game.

The third grade again received the room count award for attendance. This is the third time successively.

The debate team with Dennis Pellygrove, Curran Bligh, Carl Crockett and Frank Houtly, with Charles Daw as the alternate, debated the subject, "We Believe Everyone Should Serve Two Years in some service in his country in some capacity."

The seventh and eighth grade mothers were hostesses.

Prominent Washingtonian Hears Kennedy Death Wish

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Back stairs at the White House, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the U.S. Secret Service may have moved by now into an interesting situation involving something of a laboratory case—how does the government evaluate an assassination threat?

Several weekends ago, a rather prominent Washington figure was in fashionable Boogie parlor and restaurant with several friends. Near them was a young white man who was described later as a foreign agent—apparently was with some people, too.

In any case, the prominent Washingtonian heard the foreign-sounding young man say that for a variety of reasons, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., would "have to be killed."

The Washingtonian, a man who knows the Kennedy family well and who suffered with them through two other assassination attempts, turned quickly to the foreigner and inquired whether he had understood him correctly.

The younger man repeated what he had said—that Kennedy would "have to be killed."

Whereupon, the man hauled off and punched the young foreigner in the face, knocking him to the floor.

What happened after that is not entirely clear, but the astounded Washington figure got the name and local address of the man whom he slugged.

There was no police action at the time, but the man who slugged the young man was approached by a concerned friend who urged him to report the case at once. There was one drawback. He had thrown away the name and address.

Sex Of Baby Predicted By New Means

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The sex of a baby can be predicted as early as six months before birth with 100 per cent accuracy under improved laboratory procedures, a medical researcher reports.

Dr. Robert B. Solves of the University of Southern California said he correctly predicted the sex of 60 unborn babies at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center.

Solves used a six hour test in which cells from the fluid surrounding the fetus in the womb were examined.

Microscopic dot on the nucleus of a cell indicated the child would be female.

Solves, an instructor in obstetrics and gynecology, said accurate prenatal sex determination is important in treating sex-linked diseases such as hemophilia, which occurs only in males.

Seal Of Royal Good Housekeeping Is Coveted By Great Britain Tradesmen

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth II has at her service eight purveyors of the finest catering services in the country.

Not to mention her piano tuners, butchers, bakers, candle makers and a company that turns out cast iron sectional boilers.

These tradesmen are among more than 1,000 who are asked to provide the royal household with the goods and services to the Royal Family.

The seal of Royal Good Housekeeping allows them to carry the Royal coat of arms on their product and display a special "By Appointment to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II" or "By Appointment to His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh" on their labels.

Queen Elizabeth I started these warrants more than four centuries ago with a rule that still holds true today forbidding the holders to make any profit warranting that they supply goods or services to the Royal Family.

They are threatened with losing the Royal clients if they "initiate or assist in the connection of any press article, book, television or sound broadcast concerning the Royal Family, or the Royal Household."

For all that, they benefit greatly from the "By Appointment" sign because it is intended as synonymous with quality.

The list of warrant holders, published every New Year's Day, provides fascinating insight into the domestic life at the royal palaces.

Food for the Royal Family's pastorgious comes from several different manufacturers.

The Buckingham Palace kitchen takes deliveries from a purveyor of pitted shrimps, a purveyor of ice cream, milk and eggs, several suppliers of ham and sausages, a muffin maker and the comparatively large number of champagne manufacturers.

Several larger companies were added recently. The list shows the Queen has a weakness for peppermint sweets. Her mother has a sweet tooth as well because her separate list includes a large number of chocolates, biscuits and cakes. They both use the same beauty preparations (Elizabeth Arden and Yardley).

Few other households can boast the demand for services of several robe-makers, a horologist, a picture restorer, a sword maker, a supplier of hand oiled to the Royal carriage horses, not one but three makers of bagpipes, a contractor for woodwork and dry rot, a sawyer, a supplier of nosegays and two weed tatchers.

The Royal homes do not have thatched roofs. The Royal coat of arms on the royal crests do.

To satisfy the needs of the Queen's estates, the list shows a small army of farm machinery makers and an equally large number of suppliers of flower bulbs, seed potatoes and other seeds. A relief milking firm supplies—a milkman—for the dairy herds where the regular ones need a vacation.

The Royal gardens are exceedingly well supplied with lawn mowers and chrysanthemums.

Queen Elizabeth's racchoses are cared for by several saddlers and makers of racing colors.

Her husband's great love of sports shows with his list of gun makers, suppliers of polo sticks and the only officially appointed polo player in the Royal Family: Bill Russell, who chauffeurs Prince Philip around the Isle of Wight when he visits the island for his annual sailing regatta at Cowes.

The wind-of-change that Prince Philip blew through the antiquated workings of Buckingham Palace is evidenced by the manufacturers of telephone answering gadgets, dictation machines and radio-telephone equipment on his list.

He also still brushes up on languages because he buys recorded language courses.

Mexico Is Staying Out Of United States-Peru Battle

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Mexico is staying out of the U.S.-Peruvian fight over the exploitation of petroleum in the American-owned International Petroleum Company. The Mexicans have promised to live up to the 1955 agreement with the Peruvian State Oil Company but will refuse to let the technical know-how of Pemex, the Mexican government oil monopoly, be used against the United States.

The Mexicans expect President Richard M. Nixon to meet with Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz but in the interim, Mexico is unlikely to make the visit until after New Year's.

The Russians are making his swing through Mexico as Nixon's personal representative and after installation of new U.S. ambassador.

Any delay in his talks with Diaz Ordaz after June will reinforce a suspicion south of the border that Nixon places importance on Latin American relations than did President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Diplomats in London are predicting difficulties for the United States when Big Four power talks begin on a Middle East settlement next week.

The Soviets are totally committed to support the Arabs who already are showing increasing displeasure over Soviet failure to produce any political let for the Arabs over victory for the Arabs over Israel.

France also backs the Soviet line.

In Paris it is believed that Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny's visit to Algeria may lead to increased economic cooperation—but not military.

They noted that while praising Soviet-Algerian friendship at a gala dinner for Podgorny, Algerian Premier Houari Boumedienne insisted on Algeria's refusal to allow any foreign bases on its soil, and urged the evacuation of all foreign naval forces from the Mediterranean.

American and South Vietnamese negotiators remain optimistic about the possibility of an early breakthrough in the Paris peace talks. And many allied officials also think that the South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, omitting publicity stated tough conditions, the offer may be accepted.

North Side Unit To Hear Legislators

SHOSHONE—State legislators in each of the counties in the North Side Communities will be asked to speak at a meeting being held by the group at 7:30 p.m. April 24.

Reports of civic activities in nine North Side communities were given at a meeting at the Manhattan Cafe here last week, reports James Muffley, Gooding president.

John LeMayne and Merle Owsley, Hagerman, reported on water pollution, an irrigation development at Salmon Falls development and the slate park project still under way at the Johnson and Dick Waite, Jerome, said a cafe will be opened near the interchange from Interstate 80 to Highway 29.

Snow conditions in Fairfield were discussed by Derral Hupler, and Joe Leeper, Wendell.

The recipients of the awards include Albert Franzmann and Duane Asherine, with fellowships of $1,000 each, and Theodore Bailey, with a fellowship award of $800.

The awards were given this week by the National Wildlife Federation.

Franzmann already holds a DMV, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, degree, and will be working on diseases of game animals in Idaho, particularly the big horn sheep.

Duane Asherine is a candidate for a Doctorate and his research project is concerned with the effects of prescribed burning on natural prairie or rangeland species, particularly with relation to white-tailed deer.

Wendell Students Get High Ratings

WENDELL—Two Wendell students received superior ratings and two excellent ratings at the State Declaration Competition at Nampa last week.

Jill Bruzeau and Elaine Thompson received superior ratings. Excellent were awarded to Randy Drake and Rick Thompson.

Miss Bruzeau, a junior, received her superior by giving recited stories, and Miss Ambrose, a senior, received her original poetry.

Drake, a junior, received an excellent for his after dinner speech and Thompson, a sophomore, received an excellent for impromptu speaking.

The ribbon awards will be presented by Mrs. Annette Eaton, speech teacher, at a public speech festival later in the year.

Mariner 7 Left To Guide Itself

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—The "perfectly operating" Mariner 7 spacecraft will be left to guide itself on its journey to Mars until April 7 when engineers will slightly alter its course, a Jet Propulsion Laboratory spokesman said Sunday.

The spacecraft experienced "three irregularities in functioning" after "takeoff from Cape Kennedy Thursday but engineers said they could partially explain one.

A spokesman said one of the irregularities, a drop in electric power, was caused by scientists shifting a sun shade inside the craft while it was in flight. This shift, the spokesman said, was the major cause for a loss of power in the craft's batteries.

However, engineers "don't quite understand" the two other difficulties—a faulty operating onboard computer and a drop in radio transmitting power. The difficulties corrected themselves but engineers have continued to study telemetry data to ascertain the causes.

The $64 million craft and its predecessor, Mariner 6, will transmit to earth 188 television pictures of Mars' surface. The data from the reconnaissance missions will be used by scientists to determine if there is sufficient water to sustain some primitive form of life as it is known on earth.

Mariner 7's 193-million mile course is to take it within 2,000 miles of Mars in early August. Its twin cameras will photograph the Martian surface in 10 times better detail than ever before seen.

Sensors will probe the planet's transparent atmosphere and measure its surface temperature. Their findings will lay the groundwork for land detection robots scheduled to land on Mars in 1973.

Spring Fabrics Reflect Persian

The Persian influence is seen in Spring fabrics. Shades of Scheherazade: it's the most exotic of spring seasons. Sheer seer suckers, middle eastern purrlan prints of all types, Persian pelton as a fashion accent, pink alabaster, star sapphire, Shalimar green, Turkish coffee and deep, red Rubyart Spotlight on plaids, handwoven doubleknits and striking '69 textured innovations.

Pockets are big again—often low on sight. See pockets on everything, everything! Shoes for milderly continue in the chunky mood. A more pronounced toe, a straight '2" heel, for outdoor hours to sustain Bravura hardware on day shoes. For evening, pop pompons or huge paste buckles on black moire pumps. Takes a slender, young foot.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me how to get a virgin—no, keep waiting. A woman's virginity is still the greatest gift she can offer a man in marriage. Even the best man makes excuses for himself, he still prefers a virgin for a wife. Please don't conclude from my signature that I know nothing about life. I was in the business world for over 30 years before I became a priest.

Respectfully,
SAN DIEGO PRIEST

DEAR ABBY: To the 41-year-old virgin who is holding out for marriage. Forget it. You're not getting it. "Package returned unopened," HANDSOME

DEAR ABBY: For "WAITING": Lady, you are waiting to be commended. Don't let a cloud set you off—be a big fish. He will be doing you a big favor.

R. B., OKLAHOMA CITY

DEAR ABBY: Why all the emphasis on virginity? A man who insists that he be "one and only" probably does so because he doesn't want the woman to marry to be able to make comparisons and find him lacking. Me? I don't have that problem.

A MAN NAMED "MANN"

DEAR ABBY: I am a U.S. serviceman with 18 years' service and three overseas tours of duty, and all my life I've practiced a code of morality some call "Victorian." I've taken tremendous pride in my "and" "truly admirable" character always been easy. I married a wonderful girl who held the same moral principles as I, and I began to expect the closeness, trust and warmth of feeling it has brought to our lives. We've been married 10 years and have five children, and we're still "in love."

OLD SARGE
Vandenbergh AFB, Calif.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to "WAITING," who claims she's been waiting for a "big fish" approach, is romantic, sensitive, and not ugly. She has got to be kidding! I'm all for purity, but at age 41, what kind of a "prize" is she?

ADOLPH G., L. A.

DEAR ABBY: Please forward to "WAITING": My advice to you is to go out in the country, buy a little farm, and raise chickens. One rooster and a half dozen hens will feed them yourself and keep your eyes open. You'll notice that the hens always run away from the rooster, but they never run so far or so fast that they avoid getting caught. Try it. You'll be glad you did.

AN OLD ROOSTER

DEAR ABBY: This is for "WAITING": I was all for your clinging to your virginity—until I read your age. Come on now, at 41, what are you waiting for? There is a happy middle ground between waiting and swinging, and it's called "DISCREET IN N.Y."

DEAR ABBY: If at age 25, an attractive, normal, fun-loving woman surrenders her virginity without marriage, I wouldn't be too hot on her. It's nice to marry a virgin, but I think it's more important for a woman conducts herself AFTER marriage than before. I married a virgin who didn't confine herself to me afterwards. That is why I am—

Wilson Ends Talks With Nigerians

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI)—British Prime Minister Harold Wilson concluded talks with Nigerian officials Sunday and announced he was trying to arrange a meeting with Col. Odemwansi Ojukwu, the leader of Biafra, to discuss chances for ending this African nation's bloody civil war.

In a dramatic announcement at a news conference, Wilson said he had sent a cable to Ojukwu proposing a meeting somewhere in Africa before the end of the week on Monday. Wilson said he urged a "quick reply."

Wilson said he was acting in full agreement with Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, head of the Nigerian government. Biafra, Nigeria's former eastern region, seceded from the federation in July 1967, touching off a civil war that has killed or wounded thousands and brought hunger to millions of millions of African civilians.

Wilson was scheduled to fly to Addis Ababa Monday morning for talks on the Nigerian civil war with Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, head of the Organization of African Unity (OAU). The organization is trying to act as mediator in the war.

Wilson said he had several questions he wanted to ask Ojukwu, including problems of the Niger River Delta, an area rich in sulphur-tre petroleum. In his statement Sunday, Wilson said he would go to the Niger River Delta, an area rich in sulphur-tre petroleum.

The new plan shifts the defense shield from cities previously designated as Sentinel sites, indicated on map, to key points in the nation's nuclear deterrent complex—Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile sites, air bases and the Polaris submarine base at Charleston, W. Va. Work will begin on two sites, Malmstrom and Grand Forks, first and another 12, indicated on map plus Hawaii and Alaska. Later sites will be equipped with both Sprint rockets, to intercept attacking missiles up to 400 miles from the target, and short-range Sprints, to pick off missiles missed by the Spartans.

California Ponders Creation Of Giant 'Super-University'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—California may be about to drop drastically to fit its system of public higher education into the 21st century. Its legislature is talking about setting up by 1973 a gargantuan superuniversity composed of every public institution of higher education in the state. The huge institution would be composed of 125 campuses and over a million students. Those students would receive every form of aid, including money, tutors and even free living quarters. No longer would the university be the almost-exclusive preserve of the white-midwest and upper classes. The goal would be a college population reflecting the ethnic and economic makeup of the state.

Successful Investing

By ROGER E. SPEAR
Q—Last summer I bought 28 percent of Concord Fabrics, a new issue. Should I hold? I use their fabrics in sewing but guess that isn't a good reason to buy their stock. If I had bought it in 1967, I would have sold it in 1968. I have followed your column since 1968—through 11 years. I have invested in many stocks and have made a profit in four years. I have only Social Security and dividend income. We hold Ford, General Motors, and Long Island Lighting. My wife has a Quaker Oats, RCA, Southern California Edison, Southwest Forest Industries, Sperry Rand, and General Electric. We also hold Dixie B. We are also accumulating two funds. Any advice you can give would be followed.

A—I appreciate your very kind words, but the ability to come to a decision and then take appropriate action is the real key to your success. Four portfolios appear to be in good order and I have no changes to suggest.

I approve the decision to extend your dividend-bearing Winn-Dixie shares for the new accumulating convertible class B shares. With holdings now worth about $25,000, continued growth over the next four years should add significantly to funds available for retirement income.

Yarborough Is Atlanta '500' Winner In Ford

HAMPTON, Ga. (UPI)—Cale Newman of Ford Motor Co.'s "boss Yarborough, leading for all-but-new Ford and—Dodge—never, 32 miles, staged a blazing materialized.

Yarborough, starting fifth in a field of 40 of the nation's finest stock cars, finished the pole-sitter Charlie Glotzack in a Ford's bullish new 429 engine.

An estimated crowd of 85,000, largest in Atlanta stock car racing history, watched Yarborough pit his Mercury under a caution flag late in the race and surrender the lead briefly to Pearson's dark blue Ford, then roared back to overtake Pearson in the first turn after the green flag was dropped. He won $100,000 for the victory.

Pearson chased Yarborough for the last 14 laps, but Yarborough, of Timmonsville, S.C., widened the gap between the two regular rivals, and they more-than-two laps ahead of third-place Paul Goldsmith in a 1969 Dodge.

An expected duel between the two drivers was cut drastically by five late caution flags. The finished with an average speed of 132.758 mph—slightly below Fred Lorenzen's 1964 record speed of 134.146 mph.

Lorenzen is the only other driver to win the Atlanta 500 on three consecutive occasions—from 1962 through 1964.

The record crowd began jamming the grandstands and infield of the mile-and-one-half oval track well before dawn. Chills in the air and a morning overcast failed to dim the enthusiasm of the gaily-dressed spectators, many of whom lunched on fried chicken and beer as the race began.

Beer flowed freely in the stands. In a race when there was supposed to be a Ford-Dodge duel, there was only one race—between the Ford-engined Mercury of Yarborough and Pearson's 429-Ford.

"I feel just great," Yarborough said after the race. "This new hemi-engine is just great. All us chillun got hem's!"

Glotzack, awarded the pole position and a 100-horsepower number one qualifier, elected to change from the fires on which he qualified to a more-sturdy competition. He stayed in the lead, but Yarborough's steady super-Mercury quickly overcame the early Dodge advantage and grabbed the lead.

Pearson and Bobby Isaac's Dodge, which also started at the rear for the same reason after qualifying ninth, was the only competitor other than Yarborough to hold the lead at all in a race dedicated to the memory of Dwight Eisenhower.

Pearson grabbed the lead on lap 60 and held it until lap 318 of the 334 lap race, when he pitted under caution on lap 319 with Pearson riding his bumper.

LAST STOP is made for about 5,000 pounds of steelhead smolts at the Pahlsmeyer holding ponds, some six miles above Ellis. The seven-inch steelhead, eyed by man in Hells Canyon and hatched and raised at the Niagara Springs hatchery,

FISH LADDER leading into the newly constructed weir on the Pahlsmeyer River will catch returning Niagara Spring hatchery steelhead to repeat the cycle of man-raised hatchling and raising to reduce natural mortality and keep the ocean-going rainbows on the Idaho sport list. Through Wednesday, 14 returned from the original middle Snake River steelhead planting three years ago.

Diet, Size Key Idaho's Steelhead Success Outlook

Newer Plants Triple Smolt Escapement

BY LARRY HOVEY

Diet, size and money are the three key words right now in Idaho's hopes to maintain and lock-state. But another word also must be given prominent billing—wait.

After a tour of the Idaho Fish and Game Department's steelhead facilities ranging from the fully modern Niagara hatchery to the old-fashioned experimental ponds on Hayden Creek out of Salmon, the future of the ocean-going rainbow's remaining on the Idaho sports list could best be described as "encouraging." In fact, early returns might indicate success, but as of now they are only partial returns and the department is sitting on pins and needles waiting for all precincts to report.

The continued optimistic outlook of the battle is predicted on so many variables it is small wonder that Paul Guplin, Idaho department hatchery supervisor, shies away from sweeping statements or even more than guarded hints of success.

But even he must acknowledge an impressive first in wholesale return of Chinook salmon that were eyed, hatched, reared and released at the Rapid River salmon hatchery near Riggins. Through Wednesday 14 adult steelhead, evidently but perhaps not positively, that started in the Niagara Springs incubators have returned to the weir on the Pahlsmeyer River.

FIRST EGGS taken from middle Snake River steelhead returned to their transplanted home in the Pahlsmeyer River are inspected in their incubator by C. R. "Bob" Quidor, superintendent of the Niagara hatchery.

But I don't want anyone thinking that the biologists deserve all the credit. The men connected with fish culture started the idea and contributed to what ever success has been attained all along the line," he continued.

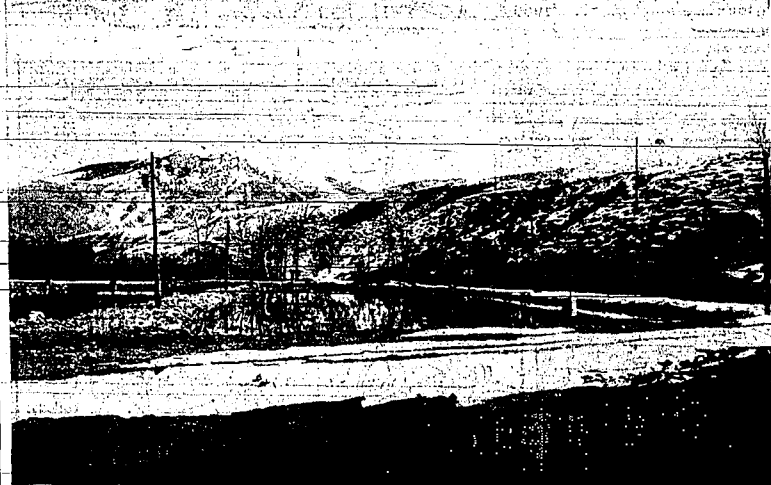

He said two major things have become apparent although there are many smaller factors. The first is size. "We have found that if a steelhead is released much less than six and three-fourths inches, his chances of survival and returning to spawn are negligible." The other is diet. "Every tiny bit of vitamin and mineral required by fish was found and tested. The biggest thing for Chinook salmon was discovered they needed 30 percent moisture in their diet. Oregon developed what we call 'one wet food' and that solved the major problem. We have our own Idaho formula, mixed exactly to our specifications, that seems to be doing a good job on steelhead."

From there Cuplin touched on other matters, such as exercise and new ideas in fish pond construction that will cause the fish to work more and increase their chance of survival once in the wild, fighting streams, predators and dams.

With the Rapid River Chinook station having such good success last year, the eye now is on the steelhead. The history of this project starts with construction of three dams in Hells Canyon by Idaho Power. The utility, in compliance with its FCC license, is underwriting the project totally from a financial standpoint. The state department provides personnel.

In a nutshell, the Middle Snake River steelhead run, downed by the dams, is caught and stripped of spawn. The eggs are eyed in Hells Canyon with hatching and one-year's rearing completed at the Niagara Springs plant. They're reaching smolt size, the steelhead are transported to holding ponds on the Pahlsmeyer River and then introduced to the Salmon River drainage.

Now the first of those first transplants apparently are coming back and a new weir and experimental station has been completed about one mile upstream from Ellis. Since mortality is vastly reduced in raceways against the high death rate in a natural state, the department plans to maintain the cycle, this time getting the eyed eggs from the Pahlsmeyer and then shipping the resultant off-spring between

EXPERIMENT STATION on Hayden Creek, a tributary to the Lemhi River above Salmon, is contributing Steelhead and Chinook Salmon smolts to the downstream migration each

CSI Reduces Applicants To Final Six

Trimming of an impressive list of about 50 applicants for the College of Southern Idaho basketball coaching job to six or seven finalist apparently has been accomplished.

Eddie Sutton, outgoing athletic director and basketball coach, said he and Dr. James Taylor had studied the list of applicants in a long session Friday. "I'm really impressed," said Coach Sutton. "I'm very happy with the caliber of men who are seeking the job."

Cuplin admitted that the crowded dorsal fin was indicative of hatchery raising but said it also could occur in natural state. "I want to see more of these, we have clearly marked returning before getting really optimistic," he said.

The native Pahlsmeyer steelhead run is estimated at 200 so the possibility of natives is there. Cuplin assured sportmen the native run would be protected, stating anything over 27 inches or a fish thought clearly to be a wild one will be allowed to go upstream and spawn. "In any event, 200 spawners will be allowed to use the upper spawning grounds of the Pahlsmeyer," he said.

While the middle-Snake project is the major one, the Hayden Creek experimental station, under written by the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, also is contributing. This one is stocked with Clearwater smolts, the Clearwater River is the largest, at Hayden Creek, the department is using different methods of raising the fish, using ponds rather than raceways and experimenting with other theories that have yet to be proved or disproved. No spawners have returned to Hayden Creek as yet.

"There is no doubt that we (the combined Idaho facilities) have had a tremendous impact on the number of downstream migrants," Cuplin stated. "Samples of smolts are taken regularly, many times a day, at the Harbor Dam. From these we get estimates of total escapement. In the 1964-65 area, it was estimated that about one million steelhead smolts were escaping over Ice Harbor. Last year. The station currently is studying the benefit of pond-raising over conventional raceway methods among other things.

Tiny 'Chapel' Inspires Faith For Housewife

By BELLE DANIEL
Homeowner, Grand Junction, Colo.

The days after we moved into our home were filled with the confusion of unpacking, arranging furniture, cleaning. My husband's business schedule left little time for him to help but the four other children tried to be useful.

I was relieved when Holly, age 9, decided on a project of her own: a chapel in the attic. Only once did she intrude on my "business." Would I unpack the brass cross which formerly hung in the living room?

When a brief search failed to find the cross, I pushed Holly's project from my mind, trying not to notice her disappointment.

Tempers flared more than once during those hectic days. It seemed futile to try to have family prayer times—we were tired, busy, and the children were not cooperating. But we did hang our prayer book, "Christ is the Head of His Church," on the front porch.

A new neighbor seeing our sign stopped to visit, but I hurried him off until a better time. "Christ lived in our house," of course, but it just wasn't appropriate for Him to take over yet. Not until we got things straightened out.

Weariness and eagerness intermingled with the excitement when school finally opened and I could be alone. And then one day I confronted Holly in the attic. I stepped over the attic clutter at the top of stairs, made a slight turn towards the morning sunlight, and there it was: a small white space with a cross, a window under the eaves and by sheets of light wallboard I had seen stacked there the day we moved.

Holly had covered the floor with a worn Mexican tablecloth; the colors glowed like stained glasses in the sunshine. A table was laid and seemed to be waiting to refresh me. There was no wine, no water; nor was the piece of white cloth placed over the blue tablecloth according to any prayer book rubric.

But the hollyhocks were still fresh, and the little white Bible, open, invited me to a feast. Centered above the table was the cross. Not the lovely brass one Holly had asked for, but a small white space with a cross that she had fashioned with infinite patience from a bit of white cloth.

It was this nail that held my attention from Holly. It was against the white—how deeply it pierced! And how necessary, I suddenly realized. For the nail was the white—black—unpleasantness of daily life.

I had forgotten the true meaning of the cross—a Christ who died for us, but who lived in our hearts. I had learned to run from His creatures; from Holly, from my neighbor. I had feared the things and self, daring to think I could exclude God from parts of the whole. At that moment I knew he was to sanctify all of life.

President Johnson Halted Bombing Year Ago Monday

By NAT GIBSON
SAIGON (UPI)—It was a year ago today and former President Lyndon B. Johnson had just announced he was stopping the bombing of North Vietnam's heartland.

The announcement that all but the Communist nation's southern panhandle was off limits to U.S. bombers was cause for celebration for American pilots. They never wanted to go back to the likes of Hanoi.

"Give them (the North Vietnamese)—a month and the hawk will stop," he said. "They will have all of their roads and bridges fixed by then, too."

It was right, North Vietnam today has undone all the damage hundreds of thousands of U.S. bombs had done since the bombing campaign started on Aug. 4, 1964.

President Johnson's declaration last March 31 put North Vietnam's heartland off limits. Later, on May 1, all the bombardment of the Communist nation stopped in a U.S. effort to get peace talks going.

U.S. analysts with access to intelligence reports and aerial photos today describe the Communist nation as completely rebuilt but suffering from social and economic problems.

North Vietnam's air traffic systems are better than ever before, these analysts said; all important highways, railroads, ports, highways and bridges have been re-repaired.

Basin Planned

SPARROWS POINT, Md. (UPI)—A $16 million shipbuilding basin, designed to handle tankers larger than 200,000 deadweight tons, will be constructed here by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. The new facility will be more than 1,000 feet long and wider than any vessel ever built. Construction is scheduled for completion in late 1970.

But the hit in the bombing has created a lackadaisical attitude in the North Vietnamese men on the street, according to intelligence reports, and the Hanoi regime doesn't like it.

The people up there are getting a "What the hell, the war is over" attitude," one U.S. analyst said. "It is becoming a real problem for them."

Pope Appeals To Youth In Sunday Talk

By RAY MOSELEY

VATICAN CITY, (UPI)—Pope Paul VI appealed to the world's young people Sunday to abandon "negative" rebellion and take up what he called the more difficult and unpopular task of serving as apostles of Christ.

Even as the Pope Sunday evening his Palm Sunday message, youth in Rome were staging demonstrations, including some just outside St. Peter's Square.

The 71-year-old pontiff, leading the world's Catholics in the first of Holy Week rites, spoke to more than 30,000 people in St. Peter's Basilica and distributed palm and olive branches to about 50 of them, including several youths and crippled persons.

"An overriding need for novelty, originality and liberty propels the youthful spirit and today even often in a rebellious way," the Pope said. "The vitality of the young is expressed in a 'negative' way and it is almost pleased with the disorders it knows how to provoke and the problems it knows how to arouse."

But the Pope said young people must undertake the "so delicate, so difficult, so unpopular" mission of revealing to the world that Christ "is the Saviour of the world."

As he spoke, about 80 young people outside St. Peter's Square called for peace in war-torn Nigeria and sang in English the hymn of the American civil rights movement, "We Shall Overcome." Similar demonstrations occurred at the same time in other parts of Rome.

Pope Paul's sermon came after a traditional ceremony in which priests read from the gospels the story of Christ's passion and death on Calvary. The Holy Week rites close with the Pope's blessing to the world on Easter Sunday morning.

T.F. Youth Concert On Tap

The elementary choirs of Washington, Lincoln, Lincoln-Harrison and Morningside schools will combine to present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Twin Falls High School gymnasium.

The choirs are composed of approximately 600 fifth and sixth graders. Elementary choir is an exciting activity with rehearsals being held before school twice a week. Presentations by individual groups are usually given at Christmas and in the spring.

The concert will begin with a three-part arrangement of "Star Spangled Banner." Other numbers to be presented include "Singing School," a four-part round, by Lowell Mason, and two Negro spirituals, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" and "Two Wings," "Oleanna," a Norwegian folk song, and "Shoanah," the first known American sea chantey, will be accompanied on autoharps which are played by John Channan, Tracy Dawson, Russell Shner, and Lorin McArthur and Jerry Vanderdoes. Bryan Smith will play Dory and Craig Day, viola; Kathy Hoffman, Jim Musser and Neil Merrill, cello. Mrs. Del Staughter, Mrs. Vernon Smith and Kenita Shew will assist.

Other numbers include "What's more American?" and will feature Steve Dunham, harp, and Terry Donnelly, drums; Mark Slaughter, Jr., tenor soloist for the selection, "Battle Hymn of Republic" and Terry Donnelly plays the drum accompaniment.

Other numbers are a three-part arrangement of "Marching to Pretoria," "Bill Grogan's Accompaniment" and "Now the Day is Over."

Mrs. Dale Platt is pianist for the concert. Cheryl Lawrence and Javier Gonzalez will act as narrators. Mrs. Keith Turner and Mrs. Ernest Theener, elementary music supervisors, will direct.

There will be a small admission charge for adults. All children will be admitted free of charge.

AMONG STUDENTS who will be participating in an elementary school concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Twin Falls High School, are back row, from left, John Channan, Lincoln School; Jerry Vanderdoes, Morningside School, and Russell Shner, Washington School, and Lorin McArthur, Harrison School, and Tracy Dawson, Bickel School. The boys are holding autoharps which they will play. Choirs from the five schools, about 600 fifth and sixth graders, will be participating in the concert.

Rat Population May Be Eliminated By New Means

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A scientist has developed a new means of achieving what has been considered impossible: the elimination of the entire rat population of the United States.

The means are defective male rats—defective in only one particular. They're sterile. Nevertheless, they have the normal male rat's interest in female rats and their attentions to them create false pregnancies. Not only do the females fail to produce young, they're inoperable to any male, whether fertile or not, for the 60 days the defusion lasts.

Dr. Allan J. Stanley who developed these reproductively blank males in his laboratory at the University of Oklahoma Medical School in Oklahoma City, proposed turning them loose on the rat population of the United States.

Stanley has no doubt they could compete successfully with wild males for females, he told the annual Science Writer's Seminar of the American Cancer Society. Their "libido is high and they're tough and aggressive," he said, and they can be bred in unlimited numbers in the laboratory.

They are the only practical way of eliminating the entire rat population, in his opinion. No matter how many rats are poisoned or trapped in conventional anti-rat campaigns, "there will always be remnants of the population too smart to take poisoned bait or get into traps," he said.

Those rats quickly restore the population once the campaign is over. The female rat is fertile the year round when she is not pregnant. The gestation period is short and a female can produce six litters a year of five to 22 babies each when conditions are favorable.

Some rat authorities claim there is one rat for each American or a total U.S. rat population of 200 million. Each rat is said to do at least $10 property damage annually which adds up to $2 billion in rat damage every year, and they're a major health hazard to people as spreaders of more than 20 diseases.

Stanley has planned "a field trial" of the sterile males in a selected city's rat population. First, the population would be vigorously poisoned and trapped. Then the blank males would be turned loose to compete with surviving males for surviving females.

Each female succumbing to a blank male would be removed from the reproductive merry-go-round for two months. In relatively short order, there would be no female rats for fertile male rats, and soon thereafter no wild rats at all. The technique has been

Seminar Set At Hagerman

HAGERMAN—Gerald Prince, guidance counselor at Hagerman High School, has planned a seminar dealing with family communication. The seminar will be presented in a series the last three Tuesday evenings of April, beginning at 8 p.m.

A film will be shown each evening, followed by a short discussion period. The three topics that Mr. Prince plans to cover are Parent to Parent communication, Child to Child communication and child to parent communication.

The community is invited to attend and Mr. Prince hopes there will be good participation. "With the major problem of the world today being lack of communication, this seminar is an attempt to aid in better communication within the family," Mr. Prince said.
