'No Losses' Marines Kill 35 In Battle

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Marines carrying out an offensive sweep on the plains southwest of Da Nang killed 35 Communist soldiers today in an assault on a bunker complex, U.S. military spokesmen reported. They said the Marines suffered no casualties.

It was the only ground action reported in South Vietnam today, following a lull in the Communists' six-week-old offensive.

Monday a series of eight skirmishes Monday ranging from the Demilitarized Zone to the Mekong Delta U.S. and South Vietnamese troops killed 159 Red soldiers.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong gunners carried out 15 shelling attacks during the night on Allied military installations, but towns and cities were spared.

However, workers at the party Monday at Gino-Duc, 60 miles southwest of Saigon, killing three members of the wedding party and wounding 20 others. The match lit the lull in the ground war. A spokesman said the B52 flew five missions Monday night and early Tuesday.

Marines captured both the jungle camp and an adjoining hospital complex.

Marines involved in today's fighting were part of Operation Oklahoma Hills which cut Communist routes from Laos to the Da Nang area.

HOME OF NEWEST INDUSTRY for Twin Falls became official Monday with the recording of a deed to 20 acres of land just south of the city. The deed was recorded by T. W. Silvers, right, Reona Land Title Co., the Twin Falls County Recorder's office. Accepting the deed is Deputy Recorder Cheryl Gartner, while Harold Hove, Chamber of Commerce Industrial chairman, observes the proceedings. The land is now recorded in the name of the new owner, Kellwood Co., which will build an industrial plant in the near future.

Heart Project Succeeds

HOUSTON (UPI)—Haskell Karp, a 47-year-old Skokie, Ill., salesman wanted to "live as a man, not like a vegetable."

Construction was halted last week when the late R. M. VanAuker in Siler City, N.C. Mr. VanAuker, head of the construction firm building the Twin Falls plant, was shot to death in North Carolina where he had been conferring with Kellwood officials.

Wednesday Bob Matthews, a representative of Kellwood, is expected to be in Twin Falls to discuss the new history manufacturing plant. He reported that will come here after attending funeral services for Mr. VanAuker Tuesday in Caldwell.

"I feel sorry that a life is gone," Shirley Karp, mother of three sons, said Monday after the surgery. She had issued an emotional appeal Saturday for a human heart for her husband.

"I am optimistic about the outcome," a smiling Cooley said of the operation, his 10th human heart transplant and the 124th in the world.

Mrs. Ewan, who died of brain damage caused by undisclosed cause, was transported to Houston early Monday aboard a limping airplane that was forced down at a Strategic Air Command base near Silverwood, La.

Kellwood Co. Gets Site Property Deed

Most of the machinery has been moved off the Kellwood Co.'s plant site in Twin Falls, but representatives of that firm have assured local interests that construction will proceed and that plans have not been changed.

The land, previously owned by Reed Good, was selected by the firm as the site for Twin Falls' newest industrial operation.

Robert McKinely, president of the Siler Division of the Kellwood Co., has assured Mr. Hove that the Kellwood plant definitely will be built as soon as possible.

BOISE (UPI)—Boise City Personnel Director Dan Evans has proposed to the City Council a proposed salary "step" plan, providing an eight per cent increase for firemen.

The firemen had earlier demanded an across the board 10 per cent pay raise.

He criticized the proposal for appearing to give the greatest increases to the higher ranks in the department.

Israeli Jets Pound Port Of Aqaba As Ground War Flares

By United Press International
Israel jets hit the Jordanian port of Aqaba with rockets today inflicting civilian casualties, in reprisal for a Jordan rocket attack against the nearby Israeli port of Elath, Israeli and Egyptian gunners battled for five hours along the length of the Suez Canal.

An Israeli foreign ministry spokesman said in Jerusalem attacks on Elath and across the Suez Canal were timed to "influence the Big Four power talks" on the Middle East restructuring today in New York.

The Arab accused Israel of starting both actions today and a Jordanian spokesman said in Amman the Israeli bombardment killed eight civilians and wounded nine others.

The trans-canal battle broke out about 150 miles to the west where Egyptian and Israeli artillery duels for the second time this month. The United Nations truce team finally arranged a cease-fire after falling twice during the more than five-hour fight.

An Israeli military spokesman said in Jerusalem, the battle spread along the entire 160-mile canal. Among the heaviest fighting was between Qantara to the north and the Bitter Lakes. Just south of the Bitter Lakes, there was no report on the situation.

In Amman, Jordan, military spokesmen said two Israeli fighters used rockets in the raid against Aqaba. Among the dead were a woman, two boys and two girls.

The Israeli attack on Aqaba was the first ever on the strategic Jordanian port city. It was also the first Israeli air raid since the U.N. Security Council last week condemned Jordan for its "attack" on Israel.

The Israeli raid came 90 minutes after Jordanian troops rocketed the port of Elath, wounding 13 persons, for the second time in a week. Israeli military spokesmen said Israeli planes flew into Jordan and silenced the batteries.

Hussein Views 'Major' Conflict

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Israel and Jordanian attacks along the Suez Canal and Egyptian artillery duels across the Suez Canal lent urgency today to the second round of Big Four talks on the Middle East.

King Hussein of Jordan said on his arrival in New York Monday night, en route to Washington, that a major war could break out at any time in the Middle East.

The ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France called their second meeting today to try to find some solution. The second round, held at the residence of the Soviet ambassador, was wrapped in secrecy.

The Israeli foreign ministry spokesman said in Jerusalem today's Egyptian attacks along the Suez Canal were made to increase this belief.

Burley Woman Dies In Salmon Mishap

SALMON—A 50-year-old Burley woman died Monday when her car in which she was riding plunged into the Salmon River about 13 miles downstream from North Fork.

The body of Mrs. E. F. (Dorothy) Watson, was recovered from the wreckage of the car which was relatively undamaged to reach shore. She included the victim's husband, E. F. Watson, 55; his son, Dennis Watson, 23; and a nephew, Christine Watson, 23.

Officers said the car plunged into the river early Monday morning from the Salmon River road about a mile below the Indianola Forest Station. The reported Dennis Watson appeared at the Indianola Ranger Station about 2:30 a.m. in a state of shock.

Richard Stevens, ranger conservationist at Indianola, returned with Mr. Watson to the crash site where Mrs. Dennis Watson was holding onto the wheel of the car which was upside down in the water about 50 feet from shore.

The ranger threw a rope to the younger woman and hauled her to safety. The elder Mr. Watson was at the side of the road in a state of shock. The Steele Memorial Hospital in Salmon.

Lemhi county sheriff's officers pulled the car to shore by using front from which cable was hooked onto the submerged vehicle. Mrs. Watson's body was in the front seat of the vehicle.

Watson had worked as a cook at the Pomerleau Ski Lodge. Funeral services will be announced by Payne Mortuary, Burley.

City Decides Earthquake Danger Low

Twin Falls City Council approved Resolution No. 980 Monday night, which places Twin Falls in seismic Zone 2 in the Uniform Building Code.

The decision was made following a study of the seismic chart, and the resolution was prepared by the city engineer. The area falls in the border line of zones 1 and 2. Zone 1 denotes the possibility of minor damage, while Zone 2 would indicate possibilities of considerably more damage.

Jim Kelsch, director of the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency, said this resolution makes the construction requirements less restrictive than the Uniform Building Code for seismic Zone 1.

The resolution says all such buildings shall be reconstructed as necessary to meet the listed requirements. The structures must be equipped with seismic-resistant foundations imposed and lateral forces equal to at least the seismic force resistance required by the Uniform Building Code for seismic Zone 1.

All appendices and their attachments to the structure shall conform to the current Uniform Building Code for new construction. Determining the reasonable degree of compliance, the agency and building department will consider the overall structural condition of the building and the degree of safety intended under the Uniform Building Code.

Cold Nights Slow Flood Water

RICHFIELD—Little Wood River had dropped considerably Tuesday in the Richfield area because of the colder weather and work is progressing at a faster pace on flood control measures on the Dietrich canal.

High water which had threatened the moving of fuel oil from Richfield to the work site has receded, but workers are still walking to work across a swinging bridge over the river, the cold leading to the work site.

The second application was from E. J. Gyer and A. L. Wreaching to rezone from residential-medium density to residential-high density.

The trio faced freezing in the sub-zero temperature Sunday night. The Cressons left their car and rode out with rescuers, but the car was brought out later Monday night.

Soviets Charge U. S. Commander Killed Civilians

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Army newspaper has accused Gen. Creighton Abrams, the U.S. military commander in Vietnam, of personally conducting the "annihilation" of a South Vietnamese village and witnessing "furore" of civilians.

Krananya Zvezda (Red Star) bitterly attacked Abrams in a column.

"He can always distinguish a man from an animal," and he will leave the animal unharmed while he will kill the man," it said.

Red Star said Abrams "commanded the annihilation of the village of Than Lu near Saigon, and he was present at the torture of the population, including women and children."

Phoenician Port Fortifications Studied

MARSALA, Sicily (UPI) — A German archaeologist believes the Phoenicians gave the ancient Mediterranean world its first great man-made port fortifications. If that is what they are, consist of more than mile-long semi-submerged rock barrier running from the northern tip of Marsala north to the tip of narrow Grand Island.

The four-mile long island shelters a narrow neck of water off the westernmost tip of Sicily. Archeologists think one of the small islands in the area probably was the Phoenician port of Mozia which flourished from the 8th to 4th centuries B.C.

The Phoenicians, traders based on the coast of what now is Lebanon, roamed and ruled the Mediterranean before the time of Ulysses.

Prof. Holmut Schlegler, director of the German Archaeological Institute, thinks the rock barrier is proof the bay was the site of Mozia.

"Between Punta Alga (the northernmost tip of Marsala) and the tip of Grand Island there is a line, which is broken two times. These breaks may be entrances from the sea toward the island of Mozia," he said.

"This obstruction is something unique in the world because it is a construction more than two kilometers long."

Previous researchers thought the obstruction was a natural rock ledge and that such a barrier made it impossible for the bay to have been a port.

Gen. Giulio Schmidt of the Military Geographic Institute of Florence, Italy, first decided the obstruction was man-made. He was convinced by study of an aerial photograph he had taken.

"At first I thought Schmidt had made a mistake and that the aerial photo showed a

Then he flew over the site himself and the different perspective from the air convinced him Schmidt's theory was right.

Preliminary investigations showed at least part of the obstruction was formed of large blocks of stone.

This summer Schlegler plans to row up and down the obstruction in an inflatable rubber boat to determine whether the ledge is made of large stones or of blocks of tufa, a porous rock.

Bureau Of Mines Meets In Boise

BOISE (UPI) — Members of the board of control of the Idaho Bureau of Mines and Geology met in Boise Monday to hear the annual report of Director Roland H. Teske, secretary of the Idaho Mining Association, said a federal survey would be undertaken to determine the suitability of the Idaho primitive area for a wilderness area under the U.S. Wilderness Act of 1964.

Teske said that while he thought the area was suitable, he expressed concern that the area would not be left open for future development.

Reid said a team from the University of Idaho was also conducting a survey but their findings would probably not be published until after the hearings.

Reid said he felt the Altman and old Vienna mining districts should remain outside the boundary because of their mining potential.

Gov. Don Samuelson suggested that Idaho's Congressional delegation be apprised of the board's position.

Hovering Help

The yearly carnage on the nation's highways is often likened to that of a casualty-strewn battlefield. Thus it makes sense that one of the lifesaving systems that has helped take a little of the horror out of the Vietnam war should be applied to alleviating the misery we inflict on ourselves with our automobiles. This is the rescue helicopter.

The Department of Transportation has announced an agreement with the University of Arizona to conduct a one-year medical evacuation system to serve rural and remote areas of Arizona.

The funds will provide for the leasing of two helicopters with highly trained crews. One team will be on ground alert and the other on airborne surveillance over high-way routes which have a high accident history.

Similar demonstration projects are being conducted in Nebraska and the cities of Detroit, Los Angeles and New York.

Many public safety and medical officials predict that there will be a virtual boom in helicopter ambulance service when hostilities end in Vietnam and a large number of helicopters are declared surplus.

MR. SPECTATOR

It Just Goes To Prove

When you get concerned about something or other, just sit down and write someone a letter. Sometimes it does a whole of a lot of good.

Take, for instance, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Seaburg, who have the Greenidge Orchards out on Route Three in Twin Falls. Both of them were concerned about that mess in the Santa Barbara Channel. Not only were they concerned about the mess the leak caused, but they were also concerned about how much tax money was going to be used for this mistake.

So they fired away a letter to Gov. Ronald Reagan in Sacramento. The other day they had their answer.

It came from Norman B. Livermore Jr., who is secretary for resources for the State of California. Gov. Reagan forwarded the original letter to him for answering.

"We appreciate and share your concern," Mr. Livermore wrote, and then explained:

"The well—from which the leak occurred was being drilled under Federal regulation in Federal waters several miles beyond the three-mile limit of state jurisdiction.

"State submerged lands within the three-mile limit seaward from 16 miles of coastline centered on Santa Barbara have been in a no-drilling sanctuary since the late 1950s.

"All offshore California drilling from platforms a half-mile has been halted, both in State and Federal waters. The leak has been stopped except for minor seepage.

"Preliminary indications are that, except for the tragic loss of many birds, there will be no major long-term adverse effect on the marine ecology.

"Union Oil Co., through its president, has publicly accepted full financial responsibility for the cleanup operations."

And that's what the Seaburgs wanted to hear. This cleanup will not cost tax money.

So remember — if you want to find out something that ask someone. Or write a letter and you might be very surprised to answer that letter of concern will bring you.

ONCE MORE

Dear Mr. Spectator: You may remove your tongue from your chest. You were absolutely right to advertise for the lady about that Cockapoo.

You see, a Cockapoo is a dog, part Cocker Spaniel and part Poodle. There are also Pekenpoos. Those are part Pekinese and part Poodle.

There was the guy that was part Cocker and part French. He was called a Frank.

A NOTE

Mr. Spectator received a note from Mrs. P. C. Moreno of Twin Falls. It was signed John C. Moreno and had been written since June, 1968. Every once in a while he will write a poem.

He sent them home to his mother and his mother sent them to Mr. Spectator. Here's one of them:

SILENCE STALKS

While I'm sitting here and silence stalks me, I think and wonder of many different things.

Some men must die and some go on living. But those who live cannot stop giving.

Their "best" their "all" for a well known cause.

Internal fortitude is what it takes. To make the best of us break. I feel that there is a just cause to die.

But still I'm afraid like many other guys: I pray to God — and I'm sure you do too.

That we will soon all be home and life renew.

These are but a few things that cross my mind.

As silence stalks me in my spare time.

Tell me, What do you think of?

SOMETHING NEW

If you don't think that something new, some improvement makes a place look different then notice the new white fence which bounds the Claude Bacon Reservoir Ranch along Highway 83, northeast of Jerome. It is really something to look at.

WASHINGTON — Concerned Democrats are spreading the word that the GOP is trying to raise an $8 million war chest, in this "off" year, to begin a drive to elect a Republican Congress in 1970.

At this early date most of the attention is focused on the Senate where simple arithmetic gives an advantage to the GOP. Democratic strategists fear their GOP counterparts are ready to exploit that advantage by spending an average of $1 million per senate race in 1970.

The arithmetic edge stems from the fact that 25 senate seats now occupied by Democrats will be GOP targets in 1970, while only nine Republicans are vulnerable.

The GOP needs a net gain of eight seats to take clear control of the Senate, but a gain of seven plus the vote of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew would be enough to take over.

With this sort of arithmetic a financial problem is doubly tough for Democrats. There is no doubt, however, that with the White House in GOP hands the money will be easier to come by for Republican candidates.

Sen. Fred R. Harris, who inherited a $5-million campaign debt when he became the Democratic National Chairman, wants Congress to approve a plan which would provide public financing for federal election campaigns.

Harris, as a member of the Senate Finance Committee, will push for a tax credit on modest political contributions.

Harris knows, however, that a tough struggle is ahead for such public financing for political campaigns. For the present he would be very happy if Congress would assure each House and Senate candidate a small allotment of free television time.

By persuading the faithful to pay sums up to $500 in bi-monthly contributions, members of the Democratic party, Harris plans to finance the operation of a regionalized national committee.

publican, Sen. Edward J. Gurney, last year, and Republicans think they might also lose Sen. Spencer H. Holland, D., who will campaign at age 78 if he decides to seek reelection.

New Jersey — Sen. Harrison A. Williams may not be in trouble with some of his home state Democrats. Williams may face a fight for reelection in 1970, which will help the Republican nominee.

Despite their arithmetic handicap, Democratic strategists think they can offset the loss of some Senate seats by making a few break-throughs of their own. They are eyeing these seats now held by GOP incumbents:

New York — Sen. Charles E. Goodell is serving by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's appointment, as successor to Robert F. Kennedy. Former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg may make the run against Goodell.

Delaware — Sen. John J. Williams has announced that he will not seek reelection. Democrats believe that they may have a chance in Delaware against a less prolific vote getter.

California — Sen. George Murphy, the old motion picture star, has a health problem—a throat ailment. Democrats think he might be vulnerable. They may shove their own factional feud.

Hawaii — Sen. Hiram L. Fong, R., is up for reelection. Democratic leaders think he could be beaten by comely Rep. Patsy Mink, D., who was elected "at large" to Congress and is known to state voters.

Alaska — Sen. Ted Stevens, R., is another appointee, named by then Gov. Wally Hickel, now secretary of the Interior. Democrats, who elected Sen. Mike Gravel last fall, think they can knock off Stevens.

Those Military Decisions

Frightened by the big bomb our leaders have been ordering our soldiers to fight pulled-punches wars.

After 23,000 Americans died and 103,000 Americans were wounded, the best we were able to leave the people of South Korea was an enforced military dictatorship.

Similarly in Vietnam, American troops are engaged in half-a-war with bayonets and mortars, a goal is the limitless blood of Asia, while fat enemy targets remain off-limits to our bombers.

Military men in Vietnam told Defense Secretary Melvin Laird that, fighting the war this way, they see no prospect of gaining "military control" of the situation.

Of course no responsible American would challenge the importance of civilian supremacy in the direction of our nation's affairs. We don't want America ever to become a police state or a military dictatorship.

International policy must remain the prerogative of our President, with the advice and consent of the Congress.

Our President should determine whether and when we should fight a war.

But military men should prescribe how.

Historically, this latter formula was won for the United States every military situation in which we engaged. Civilian leadership determined whether and when we should fight; students of military weapons, tactics and strategy were then expected to employ our best weapons to win a decisive victory in the least possible time.

That's the way, however, most wars were kept arms' length from home. These days, the threat of nuclear war endangers us all—including the children.

It's better this way! In a world governed by sane men, sensible personal fear for their own and their own families is a pretty dependable deterrent to involvements which may result in war.

That bigger bomb means that chiefs of state can no longer send unwilling sons out to do their fighting for them while remaining themselves, out of sight, out of sound, a safe distance behind the front.

Now we all go to war together. Unless, of course, you lead.

perhaps Vietnam is no longer worth what victory would cost. We lacked the stomach for an all-out military effort when it might have been both meaningful and decisive.

But let us not make the same mistake a third time in the same generation.

With today's technology, we intend to fight to win, probably we will never have to fight again.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D. Fertility Drug

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the new "fertility" drug that is causing all the multiple births? I have been having twins but have not been taking this drug? If so, does it have any bad side effects?—Mrs. R.—J.

The drug is called Clomiphene and it appears to work by stimulating the ovaries.

Couples should be warned in advance that multiple births are possible when the drug is used which does not mean that twins or other multiples will always result, but there is much more chance of it.

The drug is intended for use in cases in which the husband has been unable to obtain an adequate sperm count but the wife still has difficulty in becoming pregnant. Such women should be in good health and also free from any known liver disorder or pelvic disease. The drug is not advisable for women who have excessive menstrual bleeding.

Side effects vary as is usual with most potent drugs, there can be side effects. Principal ones in this case are also the type of disturbances of vision, abdominal or pelvic pain, and hot flashes.

Recommended practice is to use moderate doses of the drug for five days. If pregnancy does not ensue, the dose is doubled, but beyond that, even if there still is no success, further increase of the dose is not increased. (The drug has no apparent effect on other endocrine glands, as pituitary, adrenal, or thyroid.)

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a significant incidence of multiple births in pregnancies following use of the oral contraceptive of "birth control pills"?—Mrs. M.R.

No.

White Water Trip Provides Test "Right In Backyard"

By FRED DODD
Times-News Staff Writer
A white water trip through violent, boiling rapids is something that appeals to the adventurer. Whenever white water rafting is mentioned in Idaho the Salmon River comes to mind.
But Magic Valley has a lot of white water of its own. In fact, between the Twin Falls Falls and Shoshone Falls on the Snake River there are a series of rapids ready-made for the outdoorsman—who is properly equipped and knows what he is doing.
The trip is a short one, only about two miles. There are four stretches of rough water to shoot.
A friend, Wes Gardner, and I decided to give the rapids a try last weekend.
At that time the water was down about eight feet from its high of three weeks ago. Both the Twin Falls Falls and Shoshone Falls are roaring, but not as loudly as before.
It was for this reason that Wes and I wanted to shoot the rapids.
To try it while the water is high and the falls are in full bloom is probably foolhardy.
We were met Saturday at the Twin Falls park by an Idaho Power Co. official who expressed his doubt about the trip. "That water's pretty rough," he said.
"Yeah, we know."
"Well, give me your names in case there's any trouble," he said.
Wes and I gave him our names, then assured him we thought the trip would be safe and showed him our equipment.
We were met by a five-man rubber boat crew, wet suits and life jackets. The wet suits Wes and I use in Scuba diving in the summer, and they will float a man. The life jackets are insurance.
"It looks like you guys are prepared," the Idaho Power man said.
After some small talk about the weather, he left and Wes and I hoisted the boat, jackets and oars on our shoulders and started down the long staircase that leads to the bottom of the falls.
Two hundred plus steps later we waded out onto the rocks along the river and pumped up the boat. Our legs quivered from the long climb down. The falls roared and heaved and the water of the Snake rose and fell against the huge rocks.
Although the sky was overcast, there was a warm spring breeze in the air and we felt in our wet suits we soon began to sweat.
When the boat was ready, we put on the jackets and shoved off.
At first the water was choppy, from the falls. But soon we were in a calm and Wes and I stretched our legs and zipped up the wet-suits.
Up ahead we could see the river narrow and hear the roar of rapids.
"Sit up, hold the rapids," Wes said. "We don't want to hit any rocks just under the water." We paddled the boat, canoe style.
Then we were in the first of the white water. The waves washed over the sides of the rubber boat and we were forced to keep the boat pointed ahead and away from the rocks that swept by only a few feet away.
A rubber boat is the best thing to have in this kind of water. It is almost impossible to turn over and it bends with the waves. The boat is easy to turn with the stroke of an oar and a man rides with the boat, not against it.
We felt the cold water on our hands and faces, but the suits kept us dry and warm for the most part.
Bursting through the first set of rapids, we found we had been going from shore about five minparing the way for the building, which is expected to be completed by fall, 1970. In the background can be seen the CSI tower.

Leaves Ties Education Details Are Reported

MANILA (UPI) — Retiring U. S. Ambassador G. Mexican "Sonny" Williams departed the Philippines today but left behind dozens of green polka dot bow ties as a reminder of his 10-month tour here.
The ties, a Williams trademark, were his going-away gifts to government officials, other diplomats and friends.
Vice President Fernando Lopez wore a Williams tie when he headed a large group to the airport to see off Williams and his wife, Nancy.
Idaho Veterans attending school under the G.I. Bill can take a summer vacation without losing any of their remaining VA education and training entitlement when they return to school in the fall. M. W. Allen, director of the Boise Veterans Administration Center, said.
Further, he said, if they plan to return to the same school and pursue the same course next fall, they need not apply for a new certificate of eligibility.
Mr. Allen also pointed out to the veteran hoping to find a summer job that G.I. Bill education and training allowances are not affected by the amount of money a veteran earns on his own.
Allowances are determined only by the amount of training (full-time, three-quarters, half-time) a veteran is taking and by the number of his dependents.
Veterans who may decide to continue working after their vacation is over and defer returning to school until next year or later were reminded that they must complete their G.I. Bill education and training within eight years after their discharge from service or by May 31, 1974, whichever is later.

Dividends Of Investors Are Reported

A second quarter dividend totaling approximately $26 million will be paid to the shareholders of Investors Mutual, Inc., largest mutual fund in the nation.
The board of directors declared a dividend of 24 cents a share, payable March 28 to shareholders of record March 27. It is the 14th consecutive dividend paid by the company.
Harold K. Bradford, president and chairman of the board, said the dividend will go to approximately 413,000 shareholder accounts.
The payout for the second quarter of the 1968 fiscal year compares with 104 cents per share in the same quarter a year ago.
Investors Mutual had approximately 267 million shares outstanding, compared to 264,500 a year ago. It has net assets of about $2.9 billion.
The large mutual fund is one of six open-end investment companies whose shares are distributed by the 3,500-man national sales force of Investors Diversified Services, according to L. J. Dolphin, local representative.

Hernandez earlier had pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

West German Influence Gains As French Impression Falls

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
As French influence on the continent of Europe wanes because of President Charles de Gaulle's application of policies of German influence and outside of NATO and the European Common Market.
As foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization meet in Washington this week, West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt will arrive with two specific proposals in mind.
One will urge that the NATO council consider a response to an appeal from Communist Germany of the Warsaw Pact for a European security conference. It was a mark of West Germany's growing confidence in the part it is to play in foreign affairs that Brandt instantly welcomed the Communist proposal without waiting for a response from other NATO nations.
U.S. reaction was cool.
A second proposal will urge that the Western powers take a new initiative on the deadlocked German problem.
The West Germans believe that the Soviet Union increasingly desires to improve its relations with the West, and that now is the time for the United States, Britain and France to ask the Russians to join in a move toward improving human contacts between the divided Germans.
The British support the German plan. The French are indifferent.

The Bonn proposal looks toward a series of "partial" agreements which would sidestep the troublesome issue of diplomatic recognition of Communist East Germany.
One such agreement would provide improved arrangements for visitors from one part of Germany to the other.
Another possibility would be negotiations between the two central banks on payments required by the growing trade between East and West Germany.

White Water Trip Provides Test "Right In Backyard"

utes. Our speed must have been close to 10 miles an hour through the rapids. One point shoved an oar into a rock and it bent under the pressure.
Now we were in calm water again. But this calm was short-lived. We passed into another narrow stretch of river.
Taking our posts again, we saw a cable zip past overhead and knew that we had only a few hundred yards to go before hitting the big test at the outlet to Devil's Corral.
Water sprayed over the sides of the boat again and in the distance we could hear the massive roar of falls.
We knew the river narrowed to no more than 30 feet at this point. It also drops about 10 feet. This particular situation causes waves nearly six feet high and they are bunched together so a boat is shoved by one wave into the next with tremendous force.
But coming up on this falls, one can't predict the situation unless he has scouted it in advance. Fortunately, we had.
The water is calm just above the falls and the white water can't be seen until the boat is perched just on the brink. Once on the brink, there's no getting out of it.
"Here we go," I said, and I could see Wes paddling hard to keep the boat away from the rocks on the left.
I worked hard to keep the boat away from the rocks on the right and we went in the falls straight on.
At first it wasn't bad. Worse than upriver, but bad. When we hit a huge wave, it turned the boat and threw us into another, larger wave.
White water gushed over the boat. The force of the water threw us back into the rapids. We were still paddling, but as he caught at this point was a I remember seeing white, foaming water with Wes' head sticking up in it. In that moment I feared both Wes and I would be thrown from the boat, but then we were through the falls and into the calm waters of a large bay at the outlet to Devil's Corral.
"Wow!" Wes said.
I agreed.
There was one more test, but after the falls this test was an anti-climax. Then we rowed the boat down the quiet river to Shoshone Falls.

Reprive Given Doomed Convict

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A stay of execution has been granted a young convicted murderer whose father died in the Arkansas electric chair 22 years ago.
Lee Arthur Henley, 23, was granted a reprieve until May 10 by Gov. James A. Rhodes on Monday. Henley had been scheduled to die Friday in the Ohio Penitentiary electric chair.
Henley, whose father was one of the last persons executed in Arkansas, was convicted of the 1946 shotgun slaying of a store clerk in Cincinnati. The governor granted the stay to allow young Henley's attorneys to file a post-conviction appeal.
Last week, Rhodes overruled a state parole board recommendation to commute Henley's sentence to life imprisonment.
Ohio has not executed a prisoner for more than six years. There have been no executions in the United States for two years.

Llamas Add Confusion

Touring Tiger Terrorizes Trucker

ROYAL, France (UPI)—Zookeeper Marcade put a tiger in his truck with two llamas.

The tiger ate one of the llamas, then joined Marcade on the driver's seat.

Marcade, 43, said his troubles began when he picked up the two llamas and the female tiger near Paris for the return trip to Royal Zoo.

Having only two cages, he put the tiger in one, one of the llamas in the other and let the second llama roam about the panel truck with a rope around its neck.

On the return journey Sunday, Marcade stopped off in the early hours to eat and take a nap at a wayside restaurant. At 4 a.m. he returned to his truck and opened the back door to check on the condition of the animals.

Marcade found himself nose to nose with the tiger, licking its whiskers and making a noise that sounded halfway between a growl and a purr.

A dead and half-eaten llama lay on the floor of the truck beside the broken cage.

Marcade slammed the door. Watching through the windows at the rear of the truck he saw the tiger settle down, apparently to sleep.

Deciding to take a chance at making the return journey while the animal was asleep, he jumped in the driver's seat and set off at top speed.

After a few minutes' driving which he reached speeds of up to 35 miles per hour, Marcade felt a soft breath on the side of his face.

For the remainder of the two-hour drive, he talked quietly to the tiger, while she padded around the truck. Occasionally, she sat in the passenger seat with her paws planted firmly on the dashboard, watching the road unblinkingly ahead.

Zookeeper Michel Gallie was waiting for Marcade when he arrived.

Together, the two coaxed the gorged tiger into a cage before her hunger, apparently satisfied by the meat of llama meat, was aroused again.

Marcade shortly afterwards suffered what his doctors described as "a nervous crisis."

He is now recovering at home and thinking seriously about his future with the zoo.

Union Seizes 'Local'

DETROIT (UPI)—The ruling body of the United Auto Workers Monday took control of a local union in an attempt to force its members to end a wildcat strike against Chrysler Corp.

The strike threatened to idle half the hourly employees in Chrysler's North American automotive plants by the end of this week.

The union's international executive board took the unusual step of placing an administrator over Local 1264 at the Sterling Heights, Mich., stamping plant. A five-day strike by the 3,500 Chrysler plant employees already had put 34,300 UAW members out of work at four Detroit area plants and in Ohio.

Chrysler said two more plants could be forced to lay off another 7,100 workers Tuesday unless the strike ended.

Douglas Fraser, head of the UAW's Chrysler department, told a news conference after a three-hour meeting with officials of the local that the local had been placed under the administrator "to persuade the leaders to get their members back to work immediately."

Fraser said Jim Sexton, president of the local, and other local officials "were reluctant to do this, so we had no choice."

The administrators of the local will be Fraser and Ken Morris, a regional director of the UAW.

Fraser said he was urging the local to remove pickets from the Sterling Heights stamping plant immediately and asking workers to return to their jobs on their regular shifts Tuesday.

The employees of the stamping plant walked out after 12 officers of the local were suspended for refusing a formal order for the removal of scrap metal from a conveyor belt in the plant.

Local officers contended such work was unsafe.

"We think the fellows had a very, very good foreknowledge," Fraser said. He said the UAW will negotiate that grievance with Chrysler after a return to work.

Magistrates Slate Seminar In Jerome For Law Officers

JEROME — More than 100 people are expected to attend the Magic Valley session of the Idaho Magistrates Association law enforcement training seminar here Tuesday.

The seminar will be held in the District Court room at the Jerome County courthouse.

Glenn A. Phillips, Area president of the Idaho Magistrates Association, said the seminar is for law enforcement personnel and valley magistrates.

The seminars are planned around a full-scale jury trial which will cover the entire day, including a verdict by a jury.

The seminar in Jerome will be an Idaho Fish and Game Department case where a resident purchased a hunting and fishing license and is charged with not meeting the resident requirements of the Idaho law.

The session will open at 9:30 a.m. The defendant in the case is Dave Jones. His father, Fred Hills, grandfather A. B. Cronin and a friend Dennis Caps all of Jerome will be witnesses. Attorney for the defendants will be William T. Goodman of Ru-

Changes Eyed In Auto Law By Operators

BOISE (UPI) — Representatives of various interest groups Monday to discuss changes in the motor vehicle inspection manual to bring the booklet up to date with changes made by the Idaho Legislature.

Some 10 representatives of the motor vehicle garages, vehicle dealers, the department of law enforcement, state police, attorney general's office and legislature met for the "house-keeping" chore.

The group will ask the attorney general's office for a ruling as to whether all vehicles sold will have to be re-inspected if the current inspection period is not terminated. The group said it felt it would benefit both the buyer and seller of new and used cars if the vehicle were re-inspected and a new sticker issued.

Commissioner Warner Mills of the Department of Law Enforcement said his office would be meeting with local law enforcement agencies to seek assistance in checking the vehicles.

Mills said there are not enough state police to check all vehicles and noted there would be greater enforcement if local agencies would cooperate.

The group decided that duplicate stickers will be available from the Department of Law Enforcement for 20 cents upon presentation of proof of prior inspection and proof of loss, theft or mutilation.

Any changes made in the current manual will be taken to public hearings for consideration.

Collapsing Roof Injures Two Men

BOISE (UPI)—Two Boise men were injured Monday when the roof collapsed on the city-owned Sparks Air Terminal at the Boise airport.

The 450 foot building had been leased to Intermountain Helicopters by Boise Aviation.

Injured were Peter Norquist, treated for lacerations, and Eugene Wikke, treated at a local doctor's office for minor injuries.

An eye witness from Boise said one of the employees was driving a truck up in front of the hanger and it struck a steel center beam.

Approximately 100 feet of the roof collapsed, damaging three helicopters inside the building. Two cars parked outside were hit by building blocks which flew as far as 30 feet.

Bad Spelling

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Somebody goofed and misspelled the word "President" on the presidential seal displayed on the railing of Robert F. Kennedy Stadium Monday for the season opener between the Senators and the New York Yankees.

The emblem in front of the box used by President Nixon was "Seal of the President of the United States."

Officials said the Hargrove Displays Company handled the decoration of the stadium for the opener. A spokesman for Hargrove conceded that his firm put up the seal, but said he did not know exactly who made the spelling error.

"I was not aware it was noticed the mistake," he said.

Czech Police Stand Guard At Monument

PRAGUE (UPI)—Police and soldiers armed with machine guns stood guard Monday at the St. Wenceslas monument in Prague to prevent Czechoslovaks from decorating it with Easter flowers.

The soldiers and police officers removed several dozen bouquets placed at the monument over the weekend, fearful they might antagonize the Soviets. The statue depicting the patron saint of Bohemia astride a horse is located in St. Wenceslas Square and has become a symbol of resistance to Soviet domination.

Most of the flowers appeared to be offerings to the memory of St. Wenceslas and not signs of protest. One bunch, however, did bear a flag of Italy and the words "Italy with Czechoslovakia."

Czechoslovakia has been warned by the Soviets that troops would be ordered to intervene if there is a repetition of demonstrations like those of

The St. Wenceslas statue was a rallying point during the demonstrations.

At the height of the Soviet invasion last August, it was covered with signs attacking the Soviet- and supporting Czechoslovak leaders.

Manufacturer Recalls All Rolls Royces

NEW YORK (UPI) — There was a mild panic on Park Avenue Monday, and in Washington an agitated ripple ran across Embassy Row—all the Rolls-Royce Silver Shadows and Bentley Model Ts made during the past four years have been recalled because of a "potential defect."

What happened? Had someone traveling at 100 mph in an hour, heard something besides the clock? Nothing so class.

"Recent test experience," said a Rolls spokesman in suitably muted tones, has shown that exceptional overload conditions may cause the side steering level of securing seat screws on Silver Shadow and Bentley T series cars to relax their torque tightness.

In other words, there may be a couple of screws loose in the steering mechanism.

The callback affects about 5,000 cars, of which an estimated 2,300 are in the United States.

Women's Section

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 28, a bachelor, and a college graduate. I recently returned to this town to head my late father's business. I have been decorated in combat and have seen my share of this world, and now I am ready to settle down for the right girl.

Finding a desirable mate among vet-nosed college co-eds, divorcees, and town tramps is virtually impossible.

Nonetheless, there is one who has become rather special. We dated in high school. She was the local beauty queen and is still very attractive. However, she is divorced and has two children.

I could care for this woman, and the question of marriage has crossed my mind, but in my present business position I shudder at the thought of shaking my head with children who aren't mine, and a "second-hand-Rose" with crumpled petals.

Medication, Cosmetic And Stain Remover—All From One

RANGOON (UPI)—Thanakha makes an excellent cosmetic. And it can be carved into smoking pipes, is prescribed for malaria and is just the thing to remove oil stains from clothing.

Thanakha, a versatile tree, grows wild in the hot, dry jungles of central and northern Burma, and few Burmese women would be without it.

The coarse bark of the tree produces the basic makeup used by most Burmese women. And the tree's yellowish-wood-scented, tough and close-grained bark has been carved for centuries into combs, hairpins and smoking pipes.

In this Buddhist nation of 23 million people living between Indochina and India, women start the day with a strange exercise. They take a chunk of bark from a thanakha tree, wet it with water and grind it in a circular motion on a polished whetting stone.

Grinding the bark on sandstone produces a golden yellow paste, which is the basic cosmetic used by Burmese women.

Thanakha cream is applied to face, neck, hands and feet. It softens and perfumes the skin, and blends with perspiration into a golden sheen.

It is a dry, prepared thanakha paste in the form of dried cake can be purchased in the market. But most Burmese women prefer to make their own cream by hand each day after their morning bath. Shops sell pre-cut chunks of thanakha bark for millday's toll.

Experts say thanakha trees may become extinct because they are cut extensively without any systematic replanting or cultivation.

The tree grows slowly. It takes 10 to 15 years for a tree to reach its full height of about 10 feet with a girth of about 12 inches.

Since the middle ages when kings ruled Burma (now ruled by a revolutionary military council), Burmese have tinkered with thanakha wood.

From its hard woods, artisans carved combs and pins to adorn women's hair, rosary beads for Buddhist worshippers, ladles for kitchen kitchens and smoking pipes with fine grains in the bowls.

An old Burmese remedy for malaria prescribes a broth made by boiling thanakha leaves and salt.

And to remove oilstains from clothes, dab the stain with thanakha paste, allow it to dry and brush.

Is it any wonder that in Burma, poets have composed ballads praising the thanakha tree?

Clement Atlee Blames FDR For Controversial Strategy

NEW YORK (UPI)—In a hitherto unpublished appreciation of Dwight D. Eisenhower, the late Clement Atlee, Britain's wartime deputy prime minister, said Franklin D. Roosevelt may have been still an imperialist power and responsible for a strategy for which Eisenhower was sometimes criticized.

Atlee's recollections will appear for the first time in "Eisenhower: American Hero," a special biography being published by American Heritage magazine.

Atlee said he personally always regretted that Eisenhower had gone into politics. He said he felt Eisenhower was a man of the highest moral courage. Atlee recalled that the general was criticized in the later stages of the war for failing to advance more vigorously, thus allowing the Russians to penetrate so far to the West, with the result that Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland all appreciations written expressly

Rockefeller Ousts Hunt From Seat

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller ousted a member of the Dallas of millionaire H. L. Hunt from a reserved box at President Nixon's inaugural ball while Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., applauded the move.

Hunt, contacted in Dallas, would not comment except to say, "I don't think he (Rockefeller) likes me."

Rockefeller said he had been told by an unidentified person that Hunt, who opposed both Fulbright and Rockefeller in reacting campaigns last year, was occupying one of his reserved seats.

Rockefeller said he went to Hunt, 79, and told him he was not welcome in the box and asked him to leave. Rockefeller said Hunt refused, and he took Hunt by the arm and started pulling him out of the seats.

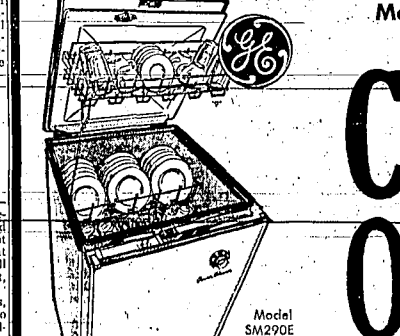

Rockefeller said Fulbright, who was his guest, applauded. The governor related the story to a reporter who asked Rockefeller about a report that the governor's and Hunt's names had been linked in real estate developments in the Dallas-Fort Worth, Tex., area. Rockefeller denied any of his money was being pooled with Hunt's in the development.

GREAT PLAY SAVES REDOUBLED SLAM

The Jacoby column has just about reached its 20th anniversary. During that entire period, Russ Winterbohm has had the extra duty at Newspaper Enterprises Association of checking it. We are pretty sure that Russ enjoyed the task because from time to time he sent us hands with the definite instruction, "Don't mention my name!"

Today's article is based on one he sent us several years ago. We put it away at the time, but now he can't stop us.

able, and Russ was never a man to refuse a challenge. He redoubled.

If West had been kind enough to lead anything but a trump, there would have been 13 easy tricks on a cross-ruff, but West did lead a trump.

Russ won in his hand and led a heart to dummy's ace. Then ruffed a heart, ruffed a club and ruffed another low heart.

If hearts broke 4-3 Russ could have discarded his last two clubs on the king and eight of that suit, but they broke 5-2. This worried Russ but didn't cost him the grand slam. He ran off all his trumps, and the last trump lead squeezed West. He couldn't hold two hearts and the king and queen of diamonds.

We are going to miss Russ. His cheery comments, infinite patience and general friendship will be gone, but we are looking forward to hearing from him occasionally, and he sends us hands, he can't stop us—from using them now.

Scribe Refutes Psychologist; Says Wisdom, Age Do Mix

"WHEN YOUR Name Game smarter at 50 than ever he was man, said women called Ardis at 40 or 30. And consider—can't stand criticism," writes a ably smatter.

Missoury, you'll, "my age" says the average, bust whose name is Ardis, tore the newspaper to shreds: "I HEARD A YOUNG LADY play the tuba last night. Sounded pretty good, but it didn't look quite right. A girl blowing a tuba is like a man buffing his nails."

FREQUENTLY the longest column in the classified section of Egyptian newspapers is that listing headed "Available for Courtship."

KEEPSAKE—Frank C. Clark of Towson, Md., is a sentimental fellow. His apparent wife failed him some biscuits when they got married 22 years ago. He ate two, bravely, as she recalls. Then he tenderly placed the third in a safety-deposit box at his bank. There it remains to this day, a treasure, endurable, unalterable, perfect. He has a diamond in one manner of speaking, a little like gold in another. Here's to Mr. and Mrs. Clark—clink!

AGE AND I.Q.—"How much and how fast a man learns things, says a tapers off about 47, he reaches 30, and he thereafter doesn't become more intelligent, but just shuffles." opinions? Such is the statement in print of a youthful collegiate psychologist. Is it putting it too strongly to say this young fellow is all wet? That the "maturity of geniuses do their best at the age of 43 is an historical conclusion. That most business men do their best at the age of 47 is a statistical fact. And that generally dramatists do their best in their 50's, natural scientists in their 60's, and law professors in their 70's, these are widely known. Why, it is Boyd, in care of P. O. Box a rare fellow indeed who is not 8987, Seattle, Wash. 98199.

CATALINA HARDTOP COUPE

Everytime we bring out a new Catalina, some of our competitors suggest we're in league with the little Green people. Not so. It's just that we've built quite a following with this money. And we aren't about to lose it by sitting on our hands. So we come up with things like a wraparound bumper with an Endura center insert. And concealed windshield wipers. We give you a standard 290-hp, 400-cubic-inch V-8 engine, with a Turbo Hydraulic transmission, power steering, power brakes, radio, rear speaker, soft ray glass and white wall tires. We also wanted you to have tasty, new horizontally patterned fabrics and long wearing, loop-pile carpeting. There's a new more heavily padded instrument panel, with attractive leather-grained dash inserts. So you see we don't have any contracts with the midnight elves. We just build a better car year after year, and serve it up at a price that makes sense. Come to think of it, maybe there's a little magic in itself.

Idaho Praised For Training Of Young Drivers

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho was one of three states honored Monday for their student driver education programs.

Gov. Don Samuelson accepted on behalf of the state a plaque commending Idaho for its driver education achievement program.

The citation, presented to the state by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, was based on Idaho's enrollment of at least 80 per cent of its eligible students in qualifying courses for three consecutive years.

Brazil "Soul Food" Popular Before Negro Cuisine In U.S.

By JOHN VIRTUE

SALVADOR, Brazil (UPI)—Brazil's equivalent of "soul food" gained general popularity long before the current interest in Negro cuisine in the United States.

As with "chitlins" and such in the United States, the Brazilian Negro dishes trace their origins to discarded from the master's house during the time of slavery.

For instance, the best known Brazilian dish is "feijoadá," a heavy mixture of pigs' ears, stomach, assorted pieces of meat, beans and rice. Even the poorest restaurants usually offer "feijoadá" once a week, most often at noon Saturdays so that the diners will have plenty of time to recover.

Almost all Afro-Brazilian cooking originated in the former colonial capital of Salvador and is called "bahianese" after the full name of the city—Salvador da Bahia de Todos os Santos.

However, "soul food" would be a more applicable name here because the Afro-Brazilian dishes do have a definite religious connection, especially in Salvador, a city of nearly a million with the largest percentage of Negroes and mulattoes in Brazil. Dishes like "sarapatel," originally made of discarded pork fat, and "ero," prepared from cow's tongue, are religious offerings on festive occasions, as well as being everyday fare.

Donna Ieda, whose popular restaurant consists of one table in her old hillside home, prefers not to serve "sarapatel," as a regular dish.

"I usually just make it in September for the religious days," she says. "I have a special holy day then."

In Salvador, "bahianese" food is served everywhere from high society mansions to street corners, where thousands of Brazilian robes prepare and sell over make-shift stoves to laborers and office workers.

The class Bahianese restaurants in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo—and they are among the most expensive in these two cities—dress their waitresses in the same flowing robes worn by the street vendors in Salvador.

Because of the wealth of cheap sea-food at hand in Salvador, "bahianese" cooking expanded to include many shrimp and crab dishes, as well as the discarded shells, which are served with a hot oil sauce—applied to taste—which makes Mexican food as mild as custard.

German Shepherd Decoys Snarling Wolf Into Trap

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (UPI)—A pet Canadian timber wolf under quarantine for possible rabies broke loose from its pen Monday night and terrorized a neighborhood before it was shot to death by police.

One of the officers, ironically named Wayne Fox, praised an unidentified woman who lured the 80-pound wolf into a vacant lot with her pet-German Shepherd so the snarling animal could be destroyed.

Charles Chantland, the owner, asked the officers to shoot the wolf, after it broke out of its cage in his back yard and bit him in the hand before leaping from his yard.

Fox and his partner, Officer Bryan Mahoney, were asking a neighbor walking a Cocker Spaniel if she had seen the wolf when the animal slipped out between two parked cars and slunk toward the group.

A second woman who arrived in the meantime with the German Shepherd offered to lead the wolf to the vacant lot, with her dog. Without panic, she managed to lure the wolf as far as the lot while the policemen flanked it to keep it there.

Another Shepherd was borrowed from a neighbor to lure the animal into the lot and up to an embankment which would absorb the bullets.

After sending all the neighbors back to their homes, Fox and Mahoney fired a total of six shots into the wolf. The city Animal Regulation Department said rabies tests would be performed on the carcass.

Police said the wolf was born in a Canadian zoo and was purchased at a pet store here in San Pedro.

Tommy Smothers Reports Backing From Johnson

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tommy Smothers, one half of the comedy team fired by CBS, Monday read a letter of support he had received from Lyndon B. Johnson after he made critical remarks about the former president.

Smothers, recording a segment to be shown Tuesday on NBC's Today show, said the Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour had been using a lot of "teasers" putting down then President Johnson and he wrote to him to apologize.

"I told him I forgot about some of his good things," Smothers said. Johnson replied, "It is part of the price of leadership of this great nation to be the target of clever satirists."

"You have given the gift of laughter to our people. May we never grow so somber or self-important that we fail to appreciate the humorous in our lives."
