Russ Say Venus Probes Succeed

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union announced Saturday its twin Venus probes "successfully" completed their missions within 24 hours but left unclear whether they actually achieved "soft landings" on the cloud-covered planet.

The Venus 6 space capsule parachuted Saturday through the Venus atmosphere and "reached" its surface, thus duplicating Friday's "smooth descent" of Venus 5, an official announcement said.

But there was no official claim the twin probes made "soft landings," such as Soviet officials said the Venus 4 probe made in October 1967.

Western experts in Moscow said the Venus 6 probe may have actually achieved soft landing but this could not be ascertained since radio communications were interrupted before they hit the surface.

They also suggested the twin craft may have crash-landed or even "exploded" due to high pressure and great temperatures.

In any event, the twin probes represent "a remarkable achievement" of Soviet space scientists and give Russia an edge over the United States in interplanetary explorations, these experts said.

Both Friday and Saturday Soviet experts lost contact with the landing craft and the last stages of their 16-million-mile journey remain as mysterious as the earth's nearest planetary neighbor itself.

Tass, the official news agency, hinted the two probes are having "successfully" completed their missions. It said the probes, "with all their instruments," "functioning flawlessly" entered about 185 miles apart into the atmosphere of "the night side of Venus."

As the twin probes began their "smooth descent," Tass said, "was information began to stream into (the ground controls center) from aboard the apparatus."

Russian scientists said they maintained a 53-minute contact with the descending Venus 5 and a 51-minute communication session with Venus 6. But they were in touch with Venus 4 for about 90 minutes before its radio went dead.

According to Tass, Venus 6 entered the atmosphere at the speed of 6.6 miles per second.

"The Venusian atmosphere did not meet the visitor well," Tass said. "Flames began to flicker on (its) outer shell. But the apparatus held out in the encounter with the elements."

Problem In Cabin Is Solved

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Engineers apparently overcame a problem in the Apollo 10 moonship Saturday to clear the way for today's launch on a trail-blazing trip around the moon.

Astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, 38, John W. Young, 38, and Eugene A. Cernan—all of them space veterans— took things easy on their final day on earth before beginning the "sheer ecstasy" of America's final eight-day trial run for a manned moon landing in July.

Weathermen were optimistic for an on-time blastoff at 12:48 p.m. EDT today.

The latest problem was balky "wicks" which must extract excess moisture from the cabin oxygen of Apollo 10. But as the countdown went into a 10-hour 48-minute rest period, launch officials said "it looks good."

2 Gooding Jail Escapees Caught Near Shoshone

SHOSHONE—Two prisoners who escaped from the Gooding County temporary jail early Friday morning were caught at dusk Saturday along the Little Wood River, about three miles west of here.

Lincoln County Sheriff Thomas W. (Wild) Conder and Special Deputy Lavagun Sturgeon apprehended the two men, Arthur William Neal, 28, and his brother, Joseph Wayne Neal, 26, both of whom have lengthy police records in Chicago and Los Angeles.

Sheriff Conner said he received a call from a Mrs. Jacobson saying that her son, who had been irritating, saw the two men walking through the willows along the river. The Jacobsons recently moved here and Sheriff Conner said he did not know their first names.

The sheriff, Deputy Sturgeon, Shoshone Police Chief Bill Anderson and State Policeman Ron Eggleston closed in on the area from the east and Gooding County officers closed in from the west.

Sheriff Conner said he and his deputy picked up the trail of the two escapees near the river and "walked right up on them."

He said they surrendered without resistance.

"They hadn't had anything to eat since they escaped," the sheriff said. "They were sure hungry."

The two escapees told the sheriff they had been hiding in the area since they broke through a door in the temporary jail facilities in the basement of the Tuberculosis Hospital at Gooding. The county has been without a regular jail since the courthouse facilities were destroyed in the fire which burned down the Lincoln Inn last year.

They said they had been hiding along the railroad tracks and the river, between Gooding and Shoshone.

The sheriff Conner said the two men are being detained in the Lincoln County Jail here.

Death Cause Is Announced At Gooding

GOODING—A 58-year-old defendant in a Gooding murder case died of pulmonary complications, Gooding Sheriff Earl Brown reported Saturday.

Results of an autopsy performed Friday by Dr. B. N. Carle, Twin Falls pathologist, on the body of Mrs. Mary Hiatt, 1957, slaying of Ira Treadwell, March 27 in a grave on the Treadwell farm near Hagerman, the Hiatts were arrested the next day in Ogden and returned here by Sheriff Brown.

Mrs. Hiatt became ill Thursday afternoon at the Memorial Hospital, where she died a short time later.

National Meet Of Public Lands Counties Opens Here Monday

An estimated 200 to 250 delegates from several western states will begin registering Sunday in Twin Falls for the 29th national annual convention of the Interstate Association of Public Land Counties.

County commissioners who will host the convention said they expect most Idaho counties to be represented, and delegates from numerous other western states.

Convention headquarters will be in the Holiday Inn, with sessions continuing through Monday and concluding with side tours of the area on Tuesday.

Morris W. Carlson, former president of the Idaho Association of Counties, extended the invitation to the national association last year in Montana at the annual meeting. Mr. Carlson said, regional representative, National Association of Counties.

Registration begins Sunday at 4 p.m., followed at 4:30 p.m. with a meeting of the executive committees of the Interstate Association of Public Land Counties and the National Association of Counties.

An executive committee meeting of the public lands group will be held Sunday evening.

Monday morning, opening sessions at 9 a.m. include an address of welcome by H. B. Longhiller, chairman, "Twin Falls County Commission, and a welcome from Mayor Egon Kroll, Twin Falls, Frank O. Reeler, president of the Public Land Counties Association, will preside.

Rising taxes will come in for some heavy discussion during the two-day convention. Mr. Carlson said, Al Massoni, western region representative, National Association of Counties.

Big Jets Stage First Raid On Red Troops in Cambodia

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. forces Saturday reported the first air raids of the Vietnam War by B-52 jets against Communist troop sanctuaries in northern Cambodia.

The strikes were apparently carried out with the tacit approval of the Cambodian government.

North of the B52 target area, along South Vietnam's frontier with Laos, a force of about 800 U.S. paratroopers using C-119 cargo planes landed on a mountain peak held by North Vietnamese regulars as a command post for operations in the A Shau Valley.

Communications Saturday evening indicated a slowing down in the pace of the Communist offensive, but Allied forces throughout the country were on the alert for the possibility of widespread attacks during the week.

U.S. intelligence sources said it was possible that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces would launch a new wave of assaults to coincide with Ho Chi Minh's birthday on Monday.

Viet Cong gunners fired rockets or mortars at 41 targets Friday night and early Saturday, but for the first time since last Sunday there were no major attacks reported against American bases.

The disclosure of B52 air raids into Cambodia came from U.S. witnesses who said the strikes were pre-planned missions which hit North Vietnamese "concentration" straggling the border in the Fishhook area about 60 miles north-northwest of Saigon.

Outlook Optimistic As Rivers Lower

For the fifth consecutive day, water levels on Big Wood River in the Halley area went down Saturday.

Woodrow Watis, watermaster, said the reading at the Halley measuring station was at four feet even Saturday, compared to 4.02 on Friday.

Work was continuing along the river to reinforce banks against possible washing and rising waters, despite what officials said appeared to be an optimistic outlook.

It also was noted Saturday that snow cover remaining at higher elevations, especially in the vicinity of Galena Summit, is melting rapidly. Most snow slopes are now clear of snow, which will also lessen flood dangers.

Application For Migrant Aid Readied

The South Central Community Action Agency will file an application with the Office of Special Services, Migration Division, Washington, D.C., for funds to operate a migrant center for Jerome, Cassia and Twin Falls counties.

Larry Mack, agency director, said the form is being filled out.

Nixon Views Naval Firepower From Carrier

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

ABOARD THE USS SARATOGA (UPI)—President Nixon observed Armed Forces Day Saturday by watching a display of Naval anti-aircraft firepower from an aircraft carrier in the Atlantic Ocean off Norfolk, Va.

Earlier in the day, Nixon awarded Medals of Honor to two Army servicemen in a White House ceremony before flying by helicopter to the carrier's Task Force 45 miles off the Virginia coast.

Before landing on the Saratoga's flight deck, Nixon's marine helicopter circled the 14 ships of the Task Force, steaming in formation on a glassy-smooth sea.

At times, the chopper appeared to hover near deck level where sailors manned the rail in summer white uniforms.

Then he touched down on the Saratoga and took a seat on the starboard side to watch a firing demonstration of surface-to-air missiles by other ships in the fleet.

The Saratoga also launched several of its 62 aircraft to give the chief executive a show of Naval air capabilities, including a superb fly-by with accompanying sonic boom, several bombing runs and a refueling demonstration.

In addition to the Saratoga, two cruisers, a tripartite, six destroyers, three destroyer escorts, a submarine and two Coast Guard cutters took part.

After two hours and 20 minutes at sea, Nixon left by helicopter for an overnight stay at Camp David, his reticent retreat in the mountains of Western Maryland.

At the White House ceremony, Nixon placed the nation's highest military honors medal around the necks of CWO Frederick E. Ferguson, 31, of Centuria, Calif., and Spc. 4 Thomas A. Kistman, 24, of Onalaska, Wash.

"Nixon told the group of family members and friends gathered in the White House south lawn that the United States was fighting in Vietnam "not for glory, not for conquest, not for an inch of territory, nor for any concession, not for conquest of any other people but for the preservation of peace with freedom."

"What a great goal you have fought for," Nixon told the two servicemen, "you make us proud of our flag, proud to be Americans and, of course, proud of you."

Ferguson is the first Army aviator to win the Medal of Honor. On Jan. 31, 1968, he flew his helicopter through intense enemy fire to the aid of another helicopter which had been down inside the city of Hue with wounded passengers aboard.

Kistman was decorated for sheltering his comrades by throwing himself over a hand grenade near the city of Vinh Long on Feb. 8, 1968.

Spud Pact Offers 30 Per Cent Hike

BURLEY—pre-season contract negotiations have been completed between the Potato Growers of Idaho and all major processors in the state, offering about a 30-per-cent increase over contract prices last year.

Clarence Farr, Burley, contract committee chairman, said Saturday the new contract will mean about 40 cents per hundredweight on field run potatoes.

It is estimated that some 4,000 hours were spent by association members in completing the state-wide contract negotiations, which were reached with Lamb-Weston American Falls.

"Major processors with which the association has signed agreements are J. R. Simplot, Orinda Foods, Sun Spiced, R. J. French, Rogers, Zellers, Idaho Supreme and Lamb-Weston, Mr. Farr said.

Many smaller processors have adopted the terms of agreement reached with the major processors. With the Lamb-Weston contract, an additional $4 million more than last year's contracts will go to producers, Mr. Farr added.

Laird Doubts Spending Cut If War Ends

CHICAGO (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Friday he does not foresee any big cut in defense spending after the Vietnam war ends. "As long as the Defense Department is assigned the job of providing security for our nation in this real, uncertain and highly risky world, it is going to cost a lot of money," Laird said in an Armed Forces Day banquet speech.

"We will eliminate cost overruns, improve our cost estimates, cut out the unnecessary items and keep our systems simple. We are going to come up with a not defense budget," he said.

"No, even if we are succeeding in eliminating the war in Vietnam, our highest priority—we are still not going to come up with a drastically reduced defense budget—will not recommend drastic reductions in defense spending under presently foreseeable circumstances," he said.

Senator Sees Peace Hope In Nixon Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday the peace plans of President Nixon and the Viet Cong are similar enough to form a basis for a negotiated end to the war.

But Mansfield said he was distressed by the "one-sided" nature of the Nixon plan and warned that increased military pressure could dash hopes for peace.

The Montana Democrat urged talks to bargain in good faith on Nixon's eight-point proposal and the Viet Cong's political arm, the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

"A close reading of the two sets of proposals indicates more unity than difference," he said in an interview. "It would be my hope that the good intent of the Nixon proposals will be recognized by the other side."

Mansfield was asked about reports from Saigon that 152 bombers for the first time have attacked Viet Cong sanctuaries in Cambodia, a U.S. military source at an airport along the Cambodian frontier disclosed.

"If that report is true, I am distressed and feel that the results will be counter-productive," he said. "The result is not keeping the pressure on the Viet Cong to win the peace."

County Agent Don Youtz is trying to solve a serious problem.

"I need a beekeeper to help him. Every year several calls a month are received in his office during summer months by residents who find swarms of bees in their back yards or on their buildings.

"Anyone who will perform this service for the ownership of the bees is urged to contact the Twin Falls County Agricultural Agent's office."

LDS Members Flee Boat Fire, Blast

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. (UPI) — An excursion boat chartered by a group of Mormons was swept by flames and sank Saturday, but the 101 passengers and crewmen jumped into the Gulf of Mexico and were miraculously saved.

Only three persons were injured as weekend fishermen and Coast Guard planes and a cutter rushed to the stricken craft and plucked the survivors, many from the children, from the warm Gulf waters.

The boat, the "Miss Go-go Girl," was some five miles offshore when the flames were first spotted, said Capt. John Billins.

"We got through checking the bilges," Billins said. "We sat down to have a sandwich and then someone said 'Smoke! Fire!'"

Then we saw smoke in the engine room and emptied our life extinguishers into the flames. We checked another hatch, then the engine room burst into flames and the whole thing couldn't see. We got on our life jackets and put out the life rafts and called out 'Mayday' on the radio."

Billins said jackets were put on the 80 youths on board, most of them in the 10 to 15 age range. The church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints from throughout the Tampa Bay area. Some of the boys were Boy Scouts, but it was not a scouting expedition.

"Then we called abandon ship immediately."

Within two minutes of the first sighting of smoke, Billins said everyone was in the water, most of the life rafts that had hurriedly been launched from the ship.

Others bobbed in the water and were picked up by the three Coast Guard helicopters and two amphibious planes, a cutter and some private boats that rushed to the scene after the distress call was picked up on radios.

Billins said the boat's owner who stayed aboard the burning vessel with Billins until the searing heat forced them to jump into the water to safety, saying the Coast Guard, saying "They got there as fast as I've ever seen anything happen."

He estimated they were in the water for 30 to 45 minutes.

G Club Holds Awards Fete At Gooding

GOODING — Gooding G Club held their annual awards banquet Thursday night at the high school cafeteria.

Chris Oakes was selected as the outstanding athlete of Gooding-High School—with Randy Hopkins chosen as the outstanding football player.

Walter, former coach and principal, talked on the many advantages of athletics in the schools. He pointed out that the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is a philosophy of life, with young people learning that there is something more important than winning, as long as a winner.

They also learn to be resilient, for many times they will fail and learn to pick up and start over.

Athletes also learn self-discipline, to follow directions without question, and how to deal with people, through their contact during their school years, he said.

The Story: Nixon, Rocky And The ABM

WASHINGTON — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York made a private, low-key attempt to convert four Republican Senators to the embattled Safeguard anti-ballistic missile (ABM) plan last week, the latest step in a long campaign by the White House — so far unsuccessful — to round-up Republican strays without President Nixon himself making a face-to-face plea.

According to the Republican opposition list, the arguments applicable to the Safeguard system are: Rockefeller's soft self-appeal made in the office of Sen. John Sherman, Cooper of Kentucky, a leader of the Republican anti-ABM bloc. Present were Jacob Javits, Perry of Illinois, and Sen. James Pearson of Kansas.

Let's Not Fail

The drive for funds to build a YWCA sports building is about to come to a close. The final scheduled report meeting is set for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. Right now it looks as though it will be something less than a "Victory Dinner."

If it turns out that way, it won't be the hundreds of Twin Falls citizens working on the drive that have fallen down, however; it will be the entire community that has failed. Workers have come in with countless tales of contacting prospects who couldn't see their way clear to pledge anything to help build the facility.

For a number of years now, Twin Falls has been preparing to take its place in the modern world. It has become a growing, progressive, vital community. As such, it not only can afford to have a complete program, it can't afford not to have one.

Those of us who are contacted should give the matter serious thought, and help as much as we can. If we are not contacted — and obviously, the workers won't be able to get around to everyone — we should call the drive office, 734-2190, express our interest and ask that someone contact us.

Those who contend, "Ah, the kids wouldn't be interested in this kind of stuff," just aren't being realistic. This is just the kind of thing the "kids," the much maligned teenage generation, is interested in. Somewhere where they can meet to

It's easy to sit around and criticize the teen-agers for doing things of which we don't approve, but do we give them a choice? The general attitude is just to say, "What you're doing is wrong. Don't do it." The way to get the job done, however, is to say, "Why bother doing these things that are just going to harm you? We'll give you something better to do, something you can enjoy that won't harm you."

Barney is now in real trouble because, thanks to his demands, profits of Filpper's are up 30 per cent, and he is made a vice president in charge of promotion. He is so busy thinking up new ideas that he has little time for formulating new ideas. In keeping with his position, he has a new apartment, a new car and he spends his evenings here. Stricken with fear that he is spilling out, Barney hands in a list of reforms which he says the store must agree to before he will take the job. These include Filpper's Department Store getting involved in the community, donating part of its profits to the employees and setting up an "Ara" American club boutique.

BRUCE BLOSSAT

Red Herrings

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Democratic Party (D) liberals keep on insinuating that Hubert Humphrey might have been nominated in 1968 if the military establishment elsewhere than in the traumatic setting of Chicago.

It should be noted further that neither McCarthy nor his supporters challenged the delegate selecting process in advance of its unfolding. They accepted the rules of the game as applied to the election. . . . McCarthy, who got a mere 601 delegate votes against Humphrey's 1,761, would not have won whether the convention was held in Chicago or San Francisco, or Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

Alert party officials, indeed, might more properly demand apologies from McCarthy's partisans for their own consistent distortions of the democratic process — and its results — in 1968.

When McCarthy's great "unfairness" hue and cry got to the convention Credentials Committee, it quickly faded into a red herring.

Barney is now in real trouble because, thanks to his demands, profits of Filpper's are up 30 per cent, and he is made a vice president in charge of promotion. He is so busy thinking up new ideas that he has little time for formulating new ideas. In keeping with his position, he has a new apartment, a new car and he spends his evenings here.

These demands are sent up to the president of Filpper's, and after reading them he says, "Why didn't we think of this first? I don't want Longstreet working as floor manager. He's too valuable to waste there. Bring him up to the executive offices."

MR. SPECTATOR

Only 10 Years Back

As time flies, 10 years isn't such a long time. But a lot of water can flow under the bridge in some 3,650 days.

As we promised, here are some items from the Times-News of May, 1959. So read on:

Six girls were competing for the title of Miss Buhl. They were Ronda Erickson, Linda Grayson, Virginia Aremson, Mary Thompson, Judy Peterson and Carol Peterson. The contest was set for June 13.

National Music Week was observed at the Methodist Church with a public concert featuring organ, piano and vocal selections. Artists included Donald Hoffman, Mrs. Charles Allen, Mrs. Robert Denton, Richard Smith, Marcia Messman, Mrs. Tom Gray, Mrs. Gene Hull, Mrs. U. N. Terry, John Angerbauer, Dr. George Scholer, Bert Sweet Jr., John Soden and Neil Olmstead.

Twin Falls Chamber members formulated plans calling for formation of the Twin Falls Industrial Development Corporation. Harold Hove and Ed Heay outlined plans for community sponsorship with 10,000 shares of non-profit stock offered at $25 a share.

Members of the local zone commission were pondering what changes to make in Blue Lakes Blvd. North. If you drove out that way today — 10 years later — you can see the permitted changes with little effort.

Because they didn't like the results of the city election, four Gooding employees quit. They were N. O. Griffith, city clerk for a seven years; Edward Culver, police chief for three years; Molyvn McGehee, patrolman, and J. R. Zollinger, patrolman and dog catcher. The "Gooding citizens' elected mayor" at that time was Leo Rice.

Fred M. Fritzer, president of the new Sylvania Life Insurance Co., announced head offices for the company would be in Twin Falls. The company is now known as the Sierra Life Insurance Co.

There were 120 people at the ninth annual parent's banquet at Carney's YEA chapter, Doug Patterson was president.

James R. Ingalls, city sanitationer, reported while rats had been found in Rock Creek Canyon refuse piles, dumped from industrial plants located along the rim.

ready for a "pop" concert and among the artists to be featured were Robert Jackson, David Nelson, Cary Carpenter and Roger Fordyce. A new council at Filer kept all city employees on their jobs. Councilmen were Harry Westendorf, Harry Carver and Ralph Pitts.

First expansion of approximately $13,000 for construction work at Morningside and Harrison grade-schools was made by the school board. Earl Peck was the contractor. David Barry, William Powell and Henry Colner were school board members. Ernest Ragland was superintendent.

Ten years ago — back in 1959 — names of those receiving $1 parking tickets were published. On one list those who paid the "buck" included J. H. Carver, Ivan Skinner, E. J. Goodrich, Lee Fillmore, G. S. Greathouse, Mrs. Richard Bann, Mrs. Rodney Tegan, Willard Bonar and E. C. Green.

Joseph H. Littlemore, W. C. Hemmingsway, Eugene Brienholt and Robert Baker were officers of the local Lions Club.

Nationally, there just wasn't much going on although Winston Churchill was visiting President Eisenhower.

J. R. Simplot officials announced an extensive expansion program at the Heyburn plant. General Manager of the plant was Leon Jones. One of the six stockholders in the newly formed First Security Bank confirmed reports that the bank probably would be located in a building to be erected next to the J. C. Penney Co.'s store.

Second section of the Times-News of May 9, 1959, was devoted to Outdoor Living.

And next Tuesday we'll come back to the present for the first time. We'll show you a picture of the most disregarded sign in Twin Falls. So, see you Tuesday.

NOTE: Please send us your address for our records and we will be glad to print your letter in the Forum section.

A LARGE CAVE with snow in the bottom is visible in the section of the Great Rift of which the Crystal Ice Caves are a part. The caves, which are known to be at least 2,000 years old, are part of the scenic attractions to be viewed on a tour planned for Wednesday between Minidoka and Arco. Rupert-Chamber of Commerce officials, who are sponsoring the tour, have erected signs pointing to the caves. Gov. Don Samuelson will be among the participants who will leave the Safeway parking lot in Rupert at 9 a.m. Wednesday. Persons wishing to make the trip are asked to contact the Rupert Chamber.

Open Tour Planned Wednesday To Arco, Past Ice Caves

By LIZ BOLTON
Times-News Correspondent

RUPERT—All signals are for the special road tour of the area between Minidoka and Arco Wednesday, and signs have been erected to point the way.

Rupert Chamber of Commerce officials, planning the open tour, made a "dry run" of the caves area this week and reported the road ready for travel, with a few extremely rough spots which would eliminate any low-clearance vehicles trying to make the trip.

While on the run, the officials, with the help of Jim Papadakis, manager of the Crystal Ice Caves, erected 15 destination signs pointing the way to the caves and back to Minidoka.

The tour, in caravan form, will leave the Safeway parking lot in Rupert at 9 a.m. Wednesday, travel to the Ice Caves under the direction of Mr. Papadakis, and then tour the caves. Dignitaries will then be flown over the area and arrive in Arco for an early evening meal before returning to Rupert.

Those who wish may drive on into Arco for the meal. The public is invited but participants are encouraged to take high-clearance vehicles, wear jackets, take a good spare tire, and pack a lunch as no food is available until reaching Arco.

Participants are asked to contact the Rupert chamber office to help determine how many vehicles are going and how many persons need rides.

The tour is planned to acquant public officials and the public with the road situation between Minidoka and Arco. Most of the roadway is dirt, although a small section just off the Minidoka highway has been graveled. Chamber and Ice Caves officials feel the road could be made into a scenic route because of the many attractions. If it were improved, the Bureau of Land Management is reportedly in the process of securing a 28-foot right-of-way on the private land in the area to begin the highway from Arco to Minidoka.

Among the attractions along the route are the Bear Trap Caves, known to extend about 13 miles; the Wapi Field; Split Butte; and the Great Rift, which is a series of large cracks in the earth extending at least 41 miles long. Mr. Papadakis explains that the crack opened about 2,000 years ago and allowed hot lava to flow forth, creating the existing mile and a half square lava field.

Spatter cones also appeared from which the hot lava was thrown into the area and created the miniature volcanic structures. The largest of the spatter cones in the lava field near the caves is the South Groat, known to extend at least 800 feet into the ground.

The Crystal Ice Caves are part of the Great Rift and were discovered about 1937, but opened to the public in 1955.

Gov. Don Samuelson will be among the host of dignitaries attending the tour. Others include Len Jordan and his asstant; Orval Hansen, representative of the State Bureau of Land Management; State Highway Commission; State Park Board, Paul Fritz, supt. of the Craters of the Moon; and representatives of the Arco Chamber of Commerce.

Also invited are Minidoka, Butte, and Blaine County commissions; state department of commerce and development; Eastern Idaho Chamber of Commerce, South Idaho Chamber, Nighthide Communities, a national members of the chambers of American Falls, Idaho Falls, Aberdeen, Blackfoot, Pocatello, Heyburn, Paul, Burley and Twin Falls.

Collectors Of New England Garner The Strangest Items

By JIM CROSSLEY
NEA Staff Writer.

If it ever existed, someone in America collects it now.

"Have matchbook collection, colored glass, old cookbooks, Florida seashells, and beads to swap for small-carved birds or gulls, loose polished stones, Indian double bedheads."

If someone collects it, sooner or later it will be offered in the "swap" column of an intriguing magazine, "Yankee," published monthly in Dublin, N. H., for the everlasting glory of the New England states.

"I have tools, old bottles, helmets, knives, marine hardware, 'Want 'S' or 'O' gauge trains, glass paperweights."

Some of the magazine, published by the people who get out Old Farmer's Almanac, carries exactly 100 four-line "swap" items, no more, for free in an "Original Yankee Swappers" column that offers the fascination and excitement of a horse trade.

"I have a complete set of golf clubs with bag and tote cart. Will swap for marine sextant or bagpipe."

"Want TootsieToy and other small toy cars and trucks made before 1935. One or an antique swap antique roll-top desk, etc."

Under the rules names are held confidential. Other readers mail the offers to the magazine. The communication is forwarded to the advertiser and the whole transaction is safe.

Chamber To Meet May 27 At Shoshone

SHOSHONE—Chamber of Commerce meetings will be held at the Manhattan cafe on Tuesday nights, rather than Thursday, members voted at their meeting this week.

The meetings will be held the second and fourth Tuesdays, the next meeting being May 27.

The July 4 celebration will be held in Shoshone this year and the Chamber solicits assistance in purchasing the fireworks. The cost of the fireworks is set at about $500.

Herbert Forbes is chairman of the July 4 celebration, assisted by Myron Johnson and Francis Bond.

Discussion was held on a possible tourist day, similar to one held a few years ago.

The merchants keep an accurate record of travelers' money spent in the entire county on that day. Dennis Everett, vice president, who conducted the meeting, pointed out that statistics show increased travel by tourists on Interstate Highways, rather than local highways that bring them into Idaho towns. This has an impact on Idaho towns and their economy.

The Old Time Fiddlers Jamboe will be held July 13 at the city park.

Elks Vote To Construct New T.F. Hall

Members of the Twin Falls Elks Club 1383 have voted to sell their present building at 205 Shoshone St., N., and construct a new hall on a location yet to be selected.

Exalted Ruler Roy Russell said about 300 members voted, almost unanimously, in a meeting Thursday to go ahead with plans for new construction.

Mr. Russell said the lodge has several sites in mind, but had not made a definite decision. He added no time limit has been set for construction and it could run into several or even 10 years.

Shane's Hoosier Furniture store, located on the first floor of the building holds a five-year lease.

Mr. Russell said some thought has been given to remodeling present facilities, but members felt it would be more economical to build.

Elks Club activities have been conducted for approximately 50 years in the present building. Members feel, Mr. Russell said, a new building would attract more members and give the club an opportunity to expand its services.

There are now about 1,500 members in the Twin Falls Elks Club.

Mr. Russell said the club maintains a building fund which will be used for new facilities. Committees have been named to direct plans for the sale of the present building and inspection of sites for a new hall.

Collegiate Desegregation Found Almost Nonexistent

By RICHARD V. OLIVER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Desegregation of the nation's public colleges and universities has been "slight—far-out-of-proportion to the ratio of whites to Negroes in the population," according to a national survey issued Saturday.

The survey, first of its kind, found that less than 2 per cent of the students at the nation's leading state universities—North and South—are Negroes. The survey was issued by the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, the Southern Education Reporting Service and the Southern Education Foundation. The survey, which was difficult to conduct because many of the institutions keep no records by race, found that of the 200 predominantly white state universities with a total student body of 1,222,382, Negroes numbered 23,630 or 1.93 per cent of the total. In 28 such institutions located in 17 Southern and border states, the percentage of Negro students enrolled approached the national average—1.78 per cent, or 6,004 out of a total enrollment of 338,249. Negroes comprise an estimated 20 per cent of the population in those states. In 11 state universities and land-grant colleges in nine Eastern states, there were 3,108 Negro students—out of a total student population of 189,079, or 1.64 per cent. About 9 per cent of the population in those states is Negro. In 15 state universities and land-grant colleges in seven Midwestern states, 2,988 per cent of the students were Negroes—10,418 out of a total of 348,978. Negroes make up about 8 per cent of these states' population. And in the 26 state univers-ties and land-grant colleges in 16 Western states with a Negro population of about 5 per cent—Negroes numbered 4,102 out of a total student enrollment of 306,088, or 1.34 per cent of the total. "Desegregation in higher education has received surprisingly little attention in the 15 years since legal segregation in education was outlawed by the U.S. Supreme Court," said a report accompanying the survey. "The assumption that colleges and universities are liberal institutions—and therefore must have established the principle of racial equality as fact—has had wide currency, and the institutions themselves have done little to correct that assumption. "Most of them have long since quit keeping records by race—if they ever started—and then have made clear their openness to all qualified students, regardless of race." "But the few statistics available on this subject indicate that desegregation in higher education has been slight—far out of proportion to the ratio of whites to Negroes in population."

Negro Youth Killed As Rioting Flares In Student Dispute

BURLINGTON, N.C. (UPI)—One Negro youth was shot to death and two others wounded Saturday in a surge of street violence in this North Carolina town, home of the world's largest textile firm.

The trouble stemmed from a festering controversy over failure of an integrated high school to elect Negro cheerleaders, and finally exploded in a wild night of sniping, looting, firebombings and rock throwing. Police said Leon Mebane, about 16, was caught in a cross fire and was shot to death while looting. A woman, Evelyn C. Richmond, was wounded in the hip in front of a liquor store, and another man, D. Everett Phillips, was hit by a bullet on the right forehead while walking along a street.

A MIXED BROOD of three foundling skunks doesn't bother Mimow, a Siamese cat belonging to Mrs. Stanley Snodgrass of Vancouver, Wash. Mimow "adopted" the offspring "kittens" when their own mother disappeared. Mrs. Snodgrass says she plans to have the young skunks desecrated when they are old enough. (UPI telephoto)

MAJ. L. F. SPARGO

T.F. Major Is Commended For Bravery

Maj. Larry F. Spargo, Twin Falls, has been awarded the Purple Heart, second Oak Leaf cluster, and his second and third Silver Stars for action in Vietnam.

He is now stationed with Co. A, 73rd Maintenance Headquarters, American Division at Chu Lai, Vietnam, after spending a rest and recuperation leave in Hawaii with his wife, Barbara, Twin Falls.

Major Spargo received the purple heart as well as the silver stars for military action Jan. 23 while serving as executive officer of the 4th Battalion, Third Infantry, 11th Infantry Brigade.

The citation reads, "Maj. Spargo left his protective cover to insure that the defensive bunker positions were ready for a possible ground attack. Observing a soldier fall wounded in an exposed area, Maj. Spargo rushed forward to the wounded man and was knocked to the ground by an exploding mortar."

"Disregarding his own wounds, Maj. Spargo moved to the critically injured soldier to administer life-saving first aid. He continued to assist the medical men in the treatment and evacuation of the friendly casualties while the enemy attack continued. Through his courage and initiative, Maj. Spargo was responsible for saving the lives of many of his men."

Apollo Flight Will Report 3,858 Times

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—There are 3,858 ways to tell how Apollo 10 is doing on its journey to the moon.

That many measurements of the performance of the Saturn booster rocket and the two Apollo spacecraft will be sent back to earth during the mission of astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, John W. Young and Eugene A. Cernan.

The measurements include readings from gauges and sensors scattered through the huge space machine. They will give ground engineers monitoring every second of the flight information on the speed of the rocket and spacecraft, vibration, fuel flow, voltage, the positions of valves and switches in the machine, even the heart rate of the astronauts.

Apollo 10 Crew Rehearses Trip

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The relaxed and ready Apollo 10 astronauts put on their space suits today in a final rehearsal for their blast off Sunday atop a "beautiful monster" on a trip 32 times around the moon.

Commander Thomas P. Stafford, John W. Young and Eugene A. Cernan, climbed into simulators about 9 a.m. EDT for the practice session. The machines duplicate the controls and responses of the Apollo spacecraft and its lunar landing traveling companion.

The space team got in two good periods of relaxation Thursday—an acrobatic ride in jets in the morning and a workout in the moonport gym at night.

A good shag — like you see here, Mohawk's "Glen Canyon" — is without equal for ease of upkeep. It conceals traffic lanes, hides household accidents, including cigarette burns, spills, puddles and puddles. It is the most really family-proof carpet a floor can wear. With Mohawk's colorations, it also is one of the most beautiful. The random, rich texture is ideal for any room in the home, sets the stage for any decor. We can put Glen Canyon in your home, installed over heavy rubber carpet cushion, all labor included, for less than you'd guess. Example: an average 36 sq. yds. for $304.20. # Kellwood Wins Rare Citation

For the fourth consecutive year, the Kellwood Co., Siler Division, has received the coveted Sears "Symbol-of-Excellence" award.

Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce Manager Ray Rostron said he was informed of the award in a telephone conversation Friday with Robert M. Matthews, who has been named to manage Kellwood's new Twin Falls manufacturing plant now under construction.

The award, given for efficiency and high-quality production, was presented Kellwood officials in Siler City May 6. In making the presentation, Robert J. Wade, plant hose buyer for Sears, noted the division was one of 285 Sears suppliers considered for the award. He said it is rarely that a firm receives the award more than once, and especially four years in a row.

Concrete is now being poured at the site of the Kellwood plant in Twin Falls, just south of the city. This plant will manufacture hostery to supply Sears stores.

MINIDOKA COUNTY Clerk Gus Bethke administered the oath of office to the newly-appointed seven-member Minidoka Memorial Hospital board of directors this week. During this week's meeting, the board also discussed prospective administrators for the hospital and said a selection should be made within the next 10 days. Mr. Duff said the administrator, when selected, will go to work as soon as possible but will not become the official administrator until the county takes over July 1.

FIVE TEEN-AGERS escaped with cuts and bruises when the late model vehicle in which they were riding missed a curve on the Shoshone Falls grade-Friday night and came to rest in rocks. The vehicle missed rolling into the canyon when it lodged on its side suspended by the rocks. Officers charged the driver with driving while intoxicated.

Driver Cited For Crash On Falls Grade

A 17-year-old driver was cited for driving while intoxicated following a one-car accident Friday night on the grade to Shoshone Falls Park. Deputies investigating the accident said the vehicle driven by Rodney Penn Berry, 17, 405 North St. Eiler, was traveling down the grade, apparently at a high rate of speed, when it failed to negotiate a curve and left the roadway. The driver and four teen-age passengers escaped with scratches and bruises.

Damage was estimated at $1,000 to the Berry vehicle. The accident occurred shortly before midnight. Judy Darlene Brown, 21, 435 Fifth Ave. N., Twin Falls, was charged with violation of the basic rule as a result of an accident west of Twin Falls Saturday. Officers said her vehicle left the highway and tore out a section of fence on the Robert Colner property. She was not injured. Damage to her vehicle was estimated at $100 and to the fence at $50. The driver told officers she dozed at the wheel.

Well-Known Seeing Eye Dog Is Dead

Shirley is dead. A German shepherd dog, she was the "eyes" for J. Hill, blind Twin Falls musician and business man. Shirley and Mr. Hill had enjoyed a companionship which lasted seven years, dating back to the time he first met her at Seeing Eye, Inc., Morrisville, N. J. She had been under the weather for about two weeks. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

She was buried in the Hill's back yard next to Sadie, the second Seeing Eye dog Mr. Hill had obtained. Mr. Hill expects to travel to the Seeing Eye headquarters in mid-July to select another dog-companion. After a period of close association at the New Jersey location the two will return to Twin Falls.

Parking Problem At Statehouse Brings Complaint

BOISE (UPI) — Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa has decided to ask the State Board of Examiners to help make more parking space available near the statehouse for state employees' automobiles.

He said the City of Boise appears to be cracking down on state employees who feed parking meters near the Capitol and that is causing a "strange situation" between the city and state employees.

Cenarrusa said, "I don't blame the city for it because I know the city wants to make parking space available for everybody." But he added that more parking space must be made available near the Capitol so employees will have a place to put their cars. He said he had received complaints from a number of state employees about the problem.

RICHFIELD—A three and one-half mile long lake has been formed in the lava beds south of Richfield since flood waters were turned down the dike which cut from Little Wood River. Measurements taken recently show 181 second feet of water still being turned into the lava lake with 200 second feet going on to Dietrich water users. The water is controlled by a rock check in the canal. A cur in the side of the canal bank sends water into lava lake bed.

Nixon Affirms U.S. Intent To Study Textile Imports

NEW YORK (UPI) — An encouraging word from President Nixon brightened the week for U.S. textile men despite reports of Japanese antipathy to proposed voluntary import controls.

In a letter to the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, Presidents Nixon reaffirmed the administration's commitment to find an international solution to the industry's problem of disruptive imports.

Though favoring free trade in general, the President has singled out the textile industry as meriting special protection. Strong administration support for the firm line on textile and apparel imports adopted by Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans in his current trade talks with far eastern nations.

Meanwhile, following discussions with the Japanese government, Stans said Japan's complete rejection of voluntary textile trade regulation has put back the timetable for an international Geneva conference on the subject originally scheduled for June.

The Japanese have agreed to accept more data from the United States on the problem, and "discussions will continue through diplomatic channels," Stans said.

Wool men attending the annual meeting of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers expressed optimism over the industry's prospects of obtaining either voluntary or mandatory import controls. "One in every eight manufacturing jobs is in textiles and apparel and this can't be overlooked by an administration."

Police Undercover Agent To Speak At Meeting Here

David Emerson Gumaer, a young man picked by one of America's major metropolitan police departments to infiltrate and report on subversive activities within the so-called "New Left" movement, will speak at 8 p.m. Monday at O'Leary Junior High School.

His subject will be "Demonstrations, Draft Dodging, Riot, Legitimate Protest or Planned Subversion from the Campus?" Mr. Gumaer will describe his personal, behind-the-scenes, observations of the violent outbreaks which rocked Chicago during the Democratic Convention. He saw much of the violence being planned after he successfully infiltrated the "Vipils" movement. He claims "it was not the police but the tipsters who instigated the rioting."

The speaker said he learned about the "New Left" by posing for two years as a dedicated member of what he calls the Communist youth apparatus at the campus based W. E. D. DuBois Clubs.

According to Gumaer, his investigations revealed a massive plot to recruit America's youth into a subversive movement aimed at the ultimate violent overthrow of the government.

This program is one in a continuing series of lectures sponsored by TACT committees. The local members of the TACT committee include Don Pace, Albert Kratz, John Glenn and Ruth Horsch. For further information on this meeting call 423-4030.

TWIN FALLS POLICE COURT Judge Harry Turner is the subject of an Idaho Department of Law Enforcement news story, circulated throughout the state. Judge Turner has been blind since childhood, but blindness has not prevented him from completing his education and earning a law degree. He conducts court daily with the assistance of Judy Brooks, court clerk. He and Mrs. Brooks are seen here working on a case.

Blindness Proves No Bar To Twin Falls Attorney, Judge

Officials of the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement have prepared and released a story statewide on Harry B. Turner, a Twin Falls attorney and judge who has been blind since childhood.

Judge Turner is Police Court judge and in the more than four years on the bench he has never been seen, the accused who have appeared before him.

This loss of sight did not prevent Mr. Turner from completing his education, and earning a law degree without using the Braille system, or relying on a seeing-eye dog.

Nor did it cause him to lose interest in nearly every outdoor sport. Judge Turner is an avid skier on snow and water. He swims every chance he gets, rides horses, takes white water trips, climbs mountains and is a football enthusiast.

Asked about golf, Judge Turner said, "I haven't attempted that yet, but I do caddy for my friends."

The magistrate's 41 years have been fruitful. He has been a U.S. commissioner for two years and he served four terms in the Idaho Legislature, 1957 through 1963. He was 23 when first elected.

Turner was born in Twin Falls, his parents being a pioneer family of the area. He suffered his sight-loss injury when he was about six years old. He punctured one eye with a kitchen knife and the injury was so severe that he lost sight in the other eye within a few months.

His mother, a teacher, tutored him in his early school years, but he graduated from junior and senior high schools in Twin Falls.

"I never would have made it," Judge Turner said, "without the help, support and encouragement of my parents and many friends."

"We, my friends and I, took classes together, we read together, with me listening and when it came time for exams I typed answers to questions read to me."

Turner attended Utah State University and Northwestern State University, before obtaining his law degree at the University of Idaho in June 1954.

He was admitted to the Idaho Bar in October of 1954.

He has high praise for the Delta Gamma Sorority which maintains a nation-wide program where members provide reading services to blind students.

During law school, he said, the sorority girls would read cases and class assignments for him and he would type his examination answers and class papers.

He follows a similar schedule every day. An office girl usually guides him to his court where his "right arm," clerk Judy Brooks, takes notes.

When court opens at 10 a.m., five days a week, clerk Judy Brooks reads the cases.

Judge Turner listens as a plea is entered. The same procedure is followed during trials.

His law office routine is about the same, with his assistants doing the reading and research. "It's necessary that I memorize a lot," Judge Turner said, "especially case histories and citations. When I appear in court" (he has argued three cases before the Idaho Supreme Court)—"one of my girls follows my written brief and corrects me when I err. I have no problem when it comes to oral arguments."

Regarding his handicap, Judge Turner says, "It's only as much as you allow it to be. There is nothing you can't overcome if you try hard enough. I like my following my instructor down the slopes when I learned to ski."

The judge said, "I certainly am thankful to my family, especially my father, who convinced me I shouldn't ever consider my loss of sight as an insurmountable handicap."

He added, "I have been most fortunate in having such tremendous friends who offered so much assistance along the way. Without them I never could have accomplished the things I set out to do."

Judge Turner believes the new court arrangement is a good program, especially where a District Court can assign cases to attorney magistrates who have the legal background necessary to handle such matters.

Judge Turner's court is limited to misdemeanor offenses where penalties do not exceed six months confinement, fines of $500 and delay preliminary hearings. He hears about 3,000 cases a year.

About his court, attorneys and those who have appeared before him say, "Justice may be blind and in this courtroom we are fortunate in having a blind justice who sees as well."

Graduation Set

GOODING — Eighth - grade graduation exercises will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday for 90 students at Fráhn Junior High School.

Carol Zlatnik will give the welcoming address and Karlo Miller will play the piano. Perry Scanlon and Cindy LeFurgey will give readings. Mike Silman will give the closing address.

Principal Louis Durfee will present the class and Supt. Don Keller will present diplomas.

Dog Licenses

Due, But Only 472 Issued

Mrs. Connie Leiser, Twin Falls city clerk, reminded residents the old dog licenses expired April 30.

She said only 472 new licenses have been purchased so far. More than 1,000 licenses were issued last year.

All dogs over 6 months old must be licensed. Information required for licensing is the name and address of the owner, sex and color of the dog and a certificate indicating the animal has been inoculated with anti-rabies vaccine.

The owner of any newly acquired dog of licensing age or of any dog which reaches licensing age must make application for the license within 10 days after the acquisition or the age attained.

The license fee for a male or spayed female is $2 and for an unspayed female, $4. Unlicensed dogs are subject to impoundment.

The city hall office hours are 8 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Pools Being Readied For June Opening

The city parks department has begun repainting the swimming pools at Harmon Park and Harry Barry Park for their June opening.

Howard Johnson, parks superintendent, said a new sand filter is being installed at Harry Barry Park Pool. He said the pools had weathered the heavy winter well and there is no more damage than usual.

Cascade Park work has been completed except for some work on playground equipment. Mr. Johnson said the trees and shrubs have been planted and the grass seeded.

The park is about five acres and nearly three acres are in grass. The plaque on the Dolse Cascade monument will be installed soon, he said.

Suspects In $10,000 Kidnap Are Arrested In Virginia

PETERSBURG, Va. (UPI)—A man and a woman accused of kidnaping a University of Pennsylvania coed and getting $10,000 in ransom from her father, were arrested Saturday at a motel, where they were registered as man and wife.

U.S. Magistrate Jack Barney said he would hold a preliminary hearing May 22 for Edward Lee Dull, 39, and Aivina Marie Spriggs, accused of abducting Anne Elizabeth Jenkins, 22, of Waterloo, Iowa.

Her father, Richard T. Jenkins, president of a savings and loan company, ransomed her last Monday.

Barney said Miss Spriggs was lodged in the Hanover County Jail, some 25 miles north of here, and Dull was taken to the Federal Reformatory in Petersburg.

The magistrate said both suspects pleaded insolvent and that he will arrange legal counsel for them.

The couple, registered as Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Collins, was arrested when agents tapped on their door at 3 a.m. Dull had a revolver with him but did not resist.

your daughter will be sent home in pieces."

Jenkins got two more telephone calls and then was told to take the ransom money to Baltimore in a briefcase, and to wait in the Pennsylvania Railroad Station until he was paged.

Once there, he was summoned to the telephone again and told to take the money to a bar, then to another bar, and then to just step outside and walk down the sidewalk.

As he walked, a taxi pulled alongside. A woman told him to give her the money and keep walking.

A few hours after Jenkins handed the briefcase through the cab window, his daughter reportedly in shock was freed.

The warrants against Dull and Miss Spriggs charges them with "domestic kidnapping" through the use of interstate communications for the safe return of a kidnap victim. The penalty is a maximum of 20 years in prison and up to a $5,000 fine.

The FBI, which honored Jenkins' request to keep out of the case until his daughter was free, said Dull has a police record dating back 19 years in Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and Ohio.

The FBI declined to say if the couple had any money with them when they were arrested.

The suspects were indicted by a grand jury in Baltimore Friday on 14 charges, including kidnaping, rape, larceny and perverted practices.

Kidnap and rape carry a possible death sentence in Maryland. Some of the other charges are burglary, extortion and assault.

Miss Jenkins appeared at the Baltimore hearing in dark glasses, her face showing signs of mistreatment.

She has been recuperating in a Baltimore hospital.

Miss Jenkins, a part-time social worker in Baltimore who commuted to her classes at the University of Pennsylvania, was reported missing May 10 by her roommate, Patricia Comes.

Miss Comes told police she returned to the Baltimore apartment after Miss Jenkins failed to make a luncheon date and found the apartment locked and a strange woman inside.

Miss Jenkins' father didn't learn about the abduction until Sunday night when he got a call from a woman in Baltimore.

He said the woman told him his daughter had been kidnaped and asked him, "Is she worth $10,000 to you?"

Jenkins told police he could hear his daughter "screaming hysterically" in the background. He said the woman told him to "bring the money or

Rep. Hansen Backs Bills To Aid Aged

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. Rep. Orval Hansen has co-sponsored legislation to extend the Older Americans Act for three years, to establish a new Senior Companions Program and expand the Foster Grandparents Program.

The Idaho Republican said through establishment of a Senior Companions Program, opportunities would be extended for older persons to provide personalized care and services for other older persons in need of assistance, as well as for children, in hospitals or homes.

He said the Foster Grandparents Program, created in 1965, recruits, trains and employs low-income men and women over 60 to work with neglected, deprived, mentally and physically handicapped children.

"These programs have two unique functions," Hansen said.

Socialized Medicine Fears Voiced

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chief actuary of the Social Security Administration, Robert J. Myers, charged Saturday that "expansionist" seeking to broaden social security coverage have a goal of nationalizing medical care in the United States.

Robert J. Myers, who has been in charge of making cost estimates of existing and proposed social insurance programs since 1947, suggested that one such "expansionist" is Wilbur J. Cohen, former secretary of health, education and welfare under President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Myers is known to regard Robert M. Ball, the social security commissioner, as another of those who he says believe that only the federal government can provide economic security for most Americans, through broader and increasingly costly programs.

Myers pointed to a Johnson administration proposal, never acted on by Congress, to expand the Medicare program to include prenatal, obstetrical and infant care. This plan, he said, "would be another step toward the attainment of the expansionist social goals of nationalizing medical care. Myers' views were contained in a paper prepared for a symposium here on private pension systems. He told UPI Saturday that his views were his own and represented "my professional and scientific analysis of two conflicting social security philosophies."

Besides expansionists, he said, there are "moderates" who believe that the present system is "reasonably adequate and plays a proper role in our society." He said he did not know which philosophy is favored by the Secretary of Health, Education and the Nixon administration.

Myers' views were disowned by the Social Security Administration.

A spokesman for Ball, asked about his reaction to Myers' paper, said: "Mr. Ball made certain comments which indicated he wasn't crazy about it."

The spokesman said Myers' position "of course" does not represent the agency's policy.

Myers, who has been a Social Security actuary since the system began in 1935, said expansionist views would "significantly" affect the national economy and virtually eliminate private pensions for all but the very well-to-do.

You'll Never Recognize The Old Campgrounds

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Feature Editor

More than 50 years ago the phrase "mobile home living" had not yet been coined, but a Twin Falls man could see the need for accommodating the public which had already begun living and traveling by means of a home on wheels.

He was the late Benjamin Franklin Hoover, whose Quaker father was named George Washington Hoover.

Mr. Hoover, himself a contractor, acquired some land by what is now East Five Points in Twin Falls. Here he set up a campgrounds for traveling caravans of the early automobile owners.

In 1922 he built a completely new type of potato cellar on his property on Blue Lakes Blvd. S., near East Five Points. Designed for potato storage, the building was almost completely above ground and was covered by a frame structure rather than the conventional dirt covering.

So dry was this structure, that Mr. Hoover soon converted it to a major facility on his campgrounds.

As a result his camp area became known as the "Cave Campgrounds" and was prominently shown on all of the early day maps and thus known across the nation as one of the few improved camp facilities for vacationers and travelers.

Inside the former potato cellar, the Hoovers placed four coal stoves, back to back, installed some sinks and across the back installed showers and restroom facilities.

Especially in rainy weather, campers would move into the cellar with their tents, setting them up in the areas partitioned off for potato bins that measured about 10 x 20 feet along the sides of the walls.

Harold Hoover, son of the original owner, who now operates a mobile home court on the site, says he can recall people in those days traveled in caravans.

Those early-day automobiles were known for their problems of tires and breakdowns, so for safety, there would usually be 10 or 20 vehicles of vacationing families traveling together.

"They would move in groups, eat their meals like one big family, and generally invite the rest of the campers to join them in pot-luck style, either in the cellar at tables we provided, or out on the grass in the park area," Mr. Hoover said.

At that time Mr. Hoover's father was also building an early day version of a "travel trailer." It consisted of a small two-wheel type trailer with benches extending inside for beds — and generally storage areas under the beds.

Across the end opposite the entrance was a shelf or two for cooking, eating and washing up. The top part was of canvas and folded up into the trailer for traveling and out over it for shelter.

Mr. Hoover didn't build these commercially, but as a hobby for his friends and family and on request from others.

In those early days Twin Falls was served by the Oregon Trail and by the "road to California."

A man named Sampson, who owned music stores in Boise, Twin Falls, Pocatello and Idaho Falls, became Idaho's first tourist promotion agent. He took it upon himself to make maps which he gave away at his music stores. These showed the route and distance from various towns, noted points of interest, including the "Cave Campgrounds" in Twin Falls.

"If you wanted a road map in those days, you went to a music store instead of a service station," Mr. Hoover recalls.

Mr. Sampson also marked Idaho's roads with the first mileage markers. He would take a large boulder, paint it bright orange, and place it beside the road showing miles to the nearest stage.

"His mileage was so accurate that when the state began placing road markers, they used his boulders as a guide," Mr. Hoover said.

The Hoover family progressed with the times, and the Cave Campground gave way to the Hoover Trailer Camp, as traveling trailers came into being.

Later it was named the Hoover Trailer Court and with improvements now under way, the area will soon have a new and fourth title — East Five Points Mobile Court.

In 1917, after the close of World War I, a new type of living began to appear. People, more of them transient or misplaced persons, began living in small trailers. These were generally no more than 20 feet long and some less than eight feet wide.

These were the people who gave the trailer courts a bad reputation that is still being lived down. Many spent part of their time in jail, and some had highly undesirable living quarters," Mr. Hoover said.

Some were simply too poor to establish permanent homes and others chose to live in their small trailers.

TREES PLANTED IN 1922 by the late Benjamin Franklin Hoover, pioneer in the field of providing facilities for the traveling public, once abated a large campground. Now they will be used for expanded lots in the mobile home court operated by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoover. This area was once known as "Cave Campgrounds" and was noted on all early day maps, gaining recognition for Twin Falls as one of the few Western areas with improved camping facilities for the traveling public. It was a midway stop for many tourists enroute to Yellowstone Park from Salt Lake City or Nevada.

Harold Hoover and his wife, Pauline, took over the operation in 1951 and have gradually made changes to keep pace with mobile home and travel trailer needs. Mrs. Hoover operated the business as Mr. Hoover's health keeps him partially inactive.

"We took a trip through California and Nevada in 1956 and built our new mobile home spaces to the latest standards we could find."

"The first new trailer that moved in as soon as the facilities were complete, proved out new modern lots were already outmoded. Nothing on the new trailer fit our new stalls as the sewer connections had been moved to the opposite side of the home, electrical connections required higher voltage and the home was too long for the new lots."

In the early days of the trailer court, the Gypsies made annual visits at fair time and would set up wagons, trailers and tents at the rear of the court, and parking their Cadillacs near by King Marks usually accompanied his group, until one fall an argument developed between two of the Gypsies and one chased the other in his car, mashing the running man, but crashing into the trees.

After that the Gypsies were no longer welcome, although they continued to ask for space for several years.

Mr. Hoover says there is a great need for more and better mobile home facilities and travel trailer accommodations throughout the nation, and Twin Falls is no exception.

From May to October, more and more travel trailers and campers are filling the nation's highways by a new type of tourist who likes to take a bit of home with him.

"Those people tell us," Mrs. Hoover says, "there is a scarcity even in scenic western states like Idaho of well-kept convenient facilities for overnight parking."

In addition the mobile home industry is growing by leaps and bounds. Mr. Hoover says he feels especially with new industry in this area mobile home living will see a marked increase within the next few years.

In addition to the 10 new lots being installed by the Hoovers, many other mobile home courts are being developed in adjoining communities. A mobile home manufacturing plant is now under construction near Kimberly. Many local residents design and build their own campers and mountain resorts with trailer facilities crowded to capacity throughout the summer.

Mr. Hoover said he doesn't know if his father had any idea of what was to come when he began providing overnight camping for the early day tourists.

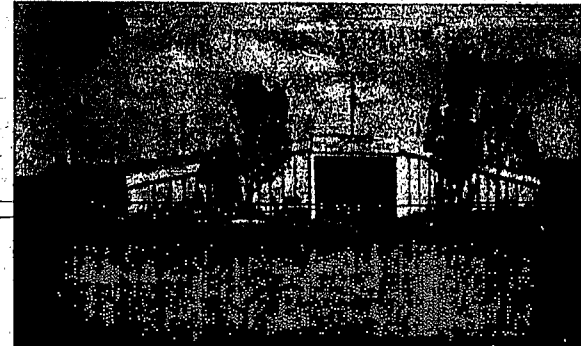

"He was a roamer all of his life and this is probably why he understood the need," Mr. Hoover said.

Benjamin Franklin Hoover died in 1963 and at that time was in his 80's.

"I think he still had itchy feet when he died and would have been more than willing to take off on an extended trip if he could have figured out how to manage his wheel chair," Mr. Hoover added.

WATCHING EQUIPMENT REMOVE grass from the old campground, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoover say they must keep pace with the times. Mobile homes will soon park here. The old potato storage cellar that provided shelter for campers was removed to make way for new trends in travel and living.

"CAVE CAMPGROUNDS," early Twin Falls landmark derived its name from this structure. Built in 1922 as a potato cellar, it was converted to a campground shelter. It was extremely dry as nearly the entire structure was above ground. Stoves, sinks, shower and restroom facilities and space for 30 tents were provided inside the cellar.

EARLY TRAVEL TRAILERS weren't too luxurious, but they kept out the weather. Here Charles Hoover, left, and Benjamin Franklin Hoover, are in one of the first travel units designed by the late Benjamin Franklin Hoover.

HOME ON WHEELS in today's meaning is a far cry from trailers in which people lived during World War II when temporary housing for families of servicemen often consisted of small trailers.

MANY PEOPLE STILL think of this type of housing in connection with mobile home living. These were the "trailer houses" of 1947 when a post war group of transient persons, their homes disrupted by war service or war jobs began living in small trailers. Units generally measured six to eight feet wide and not over 20 or 25 feet in length.

ROWS OF MOBILE HOMES now stand on what once served as a campground for people who traveled in automobile caravans and camped at night in tents. Harold Hoover, who operates the East Five Point Mobile Court can recall when this area would be filled with tents on any summer evening.

Modern Helicopters, Cowboy Tactics Trap Wild Sheep

By JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department

A small band of transplanted Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep returned to the upper reaches of Mahogany Creek near the snow line of Mt. Borah last month after an absence of the species of nearly one-half century.

Management workers of the Idaho Fish and Game Department are trying to parlay one 2-year-old ram, four pregnant ewes, and two lambs of opposite sexes from last year's crop into a huntable population of these fine trophy animals within a few years in the short drainage of this tributary of the Pahsimeroi River.

The seven wild sheep were live-trapped on Morgan and Darling creeks near Challis and released on range that is chiefly mahogany, with a good understory of bunch grass. There will be virtually no competition for feed from other species of big game animals such as antelope and deer, or even domestic livestock. The bighorn horns on new range will be monitored twice a week by radio telemetry.

Back on the home range, 50 airline miles or more away, the breeding, feeding and social behavior patterns of bighorns on Morgan and Darling and East Creeks and the East Fork of the Salmon River near Challis have been going on since July 1968, and will continue at least through the next several years.

This is the first time radio telemetry equipment has been used in this country to monitor wild sheep. Seven bighorns were trapped and "bugged" last February. Management work on Morgan Creek is complicated by the existence of a public road through the best winter range, and the competition for available forage by deer. Radio tracking studies on the East Fork of Morgan, Darling and Eddie creeks. In fact, the accessibility of these winter ranges and their availability to Challis were points in favor of wild sheep studies in these drainages.

Other remnant bands of Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep are known to exist in the Lemhi and Lost River mountains. Though small, their numbers are maximum and carrying capacity of the ranges they occupy without significant increases or decreases. Scientific studies of the ecology of bighorn sheep on other ranges.

Ecologists already know much of the ecology of mountain sheep—when and where they go for lambing, breeding, fighting, summering and wintering. For example, Dwight Smith wrote a book on the subject while a student of the Idaho Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at Moscow. The field work was done with the help of the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

The thesis was completed in 1952. It is called "The Bighorn Sheep in Idaho: Its Status, Life History and Management."

James Morgan, Challis big game biologist, started the field study on mountain sheep on the East Fork of the Salmon River, near Morgan, Darling and Eddie Creeks in 1966. The main focus of this work is on central Idaho winter ranges, where the bighorn sheep have been precisely determined. Although summer range limits are not so well known, tagged bighorns have migrated as much as 20 airline miles from where they wintered on Morgan Creek, and 10 airline miles from the East Fork to summer ranges.

Several trapping methods were tried and the success of each has been evaluated. Baiting bighorns into traps of several different kinds was found unsuitable because deer entered the traps, excluding bighorn sheep. Deer are more easily lured into traps than bighorns. One of the most effective means of getting wild sheep into traps is driving them ahead of a helicopter. In much the same way cattle are herded with a muskang. Success depends on trap location and the experience of pilot and observer. It helps to have enough snow to concentrate sheep on surrounding hills.

As sheep were rounded up and driven into the trap, they were bulldozed and moved three miles by helicopter to a truck, which hauled them nearly 1,200 miles down the length of Idaho to a release site on the East Fork of the Owyhee River.

Basically, the plan for trapping wild sheep requires a trap with two long wings leading to the entrance of a holding pen. Nylon netting is used on such installations to prevent the sheep from injuring themselves as they try to escape. Subdued animals are given shots of a tranquilizer by a veterinarian biologist to quiet them as quickly as possible after capture.

Two "choppers" were used in British Columbia to herd bighorns into traps, but Morgan charters just one turbine-powered chopper from Boise Intermountain Helicopters, Inc., to do the "steak job." He says that the newer aircraft design is faster, has several times more maneuverability and can fly at a higher altitude performance. Such turbine-powered choppers have a more stable rotor system and can ferry four ground crewmen at a time from place to place.

Bighorns sometimes "break," bolting away outside the broad wings of the trap, or back under the helicopter as it tries to crowd them through the wings. This is prevented by members of the ground crew who lie in wait behind rocks or brush, on each side of the wings on the outer edges. Then, when the "chopper" herds several bighorns through the wings of the trap, these men jump up behind the animals and haze them into the narrow chute, or bulldoze and rope them along the netting of the wings.

Hop-tied and blind-folded, trapped bighorn sheep usually are marked for future identification and sometimes outfitted with radio-beep transmitter equipment so that they can be tracked systematically by aircraft. They are loaded at the trapping site into plywood carrying cases, then carried in a sling beneath the "copter" to the road several miles away. They were unloaded and allowed to get comfortable in the straw-covered bed of the waiting truck. Despite the rough ride and dust, the bighorns came through in good shape to the release site some 70 road miles away.

Of course, Jim Morgan says, the most efficient way to capture bighorn sheep alive is to ride one of the skids of the "chopper" as it paces the animal a few feet above it. When the terrain through which the sheep is running is reasonably level and without too many boulders, he drops off the skid and wraps arms and legs around the animal. Morgan, who bulldozed steers in rodeos as a high school lad, says the ewes and yearling lambs go down and can be hog-tied fairly fast. He has not yet tangled with a mature ram, whose weight would be nearly twice his own, but that ride is planned sometime next winter—when there is plenty of snow.

The recent Challis trapping and transplanting was done in April, rather than winter when bighorns are easier to catch, because the wild sheep could almost be released on summer range almost at the head of Mahogany Creek drainage. In this way, the ewes can drop their lambs in this spring, spend a few weeks summering and fall in good habit, then migrate to winter range in the foothills of the Pahsimeroi Valley.

Fined by Shoshone Justice of Peace C. W. Gwin for speeding were Douglas Barlose, Ketchum, $15; James B. Hampton, Mountain Home, $18; Phillip Pucher, Ketchum, $13; Evelyn Kellner, Arco, $11; and Evelyn Wolverton, Richfield, $12.

Vincent Fulco, Sun Valley, was fined $25 for passing over a double line; Kevin Guthrie, Shoshone, was fined $5 for not wearing a helmet; and Judge Gwin fined Perry Fincham, Paul, $10 for stop sign violation, and Ernest L. Roessler, Shoshone, $7 for improper backing.

BURIED HALF A CENTURY, old bottles that probably contained some "home brew" were uncovered by Mrs. Lillian Meuser in her back yard. Age of the bottles was established at no more than 32 years by an authority on such antiquities, which would indicate they were buried during the prohibition era. Many back yards probably contain similar "buried treasures" as a result of traffic in this illegal liquor during prohibition.

Skeleton In Someone's Closet Revealed In Find Of Bottles

Shades of the prohibition days? That's the probable conclusion of Mrs. Lillian Meuser, 538 Second Ave. E., who uncovered a cache of old bottles while digging up a flower bed.

Mrs. Meuser said she was digging near the fence at the boundary of her lawn to plant some new flowers in a bed that had been there for many years. Suddenly, the shovel struck glass and kept on striking glass. Before she realized there was a number of bottles buried there, she had already broken three. With a little more care, she unearthed six more. All had caps on, although they were badly rusted, and whatever the contents of the old bottles were had long since run out.

As she is somewhat of a collector of old relics, Mrs. Meuser said she believed the bottles could be old enough to have some value.

A friend who collects bottles established their age as shortly after 1917, however, because of a slide seam on each bottle. This would fit in with the prohibition era, Mrs. Meuser believes. As the prohibition years ran from 1917 to 1933, it seems natural the bottles were buried during that time.

It's entirely likely the bottles of "home brew" were hidden from possible law enforcement officers of a suspicious wife and never dug up again until Mrs. Meuser decided to plant some new flowers.

She said she has lived in the house herself the past 21 years and is not certain who may have owned the property in the early 1920's.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

Burning an American flag in a respectable and dignified way was demonstrated by members of Boy Scout Troop 73 at a recent meeting in the FILER American Legion Hall.

The flag had been charred in a recent fire which gutted the Courtesy Market and Max Henry, owner of the store, inquired of Wayne Klaus, former Scoutmaster, if the boys would like to have the flag to dispose of in a manner befitting the national emblem.

All the members of the troop, and Danny Lammers, Scoutmaster, gathered at the side of the building for the ceremony. A metal barbecue receptacle was placed on the ground and the flag was placed on it after first being soaked in burning fluid. The troop watched solemnly while flames quickly consumed the flag.

Before the match was applied to the emblem, the Scoutmaster and Mr. Klaus, who has been interested in scouting for more than 10 years, explained the correct procedure to the boys.

The scouts were told if a flag becomes damaged or torn, it is not to be cleaned or repaired but burned in a dignified way. So that it will be completely consumed by fire, it is first soaked in a lighter fluid. Flags should never be thrown in garbage cans, trash heaps or litter cans.

The final rite consisted in taking the ashes when they were cooled and burying them, which was done by the troop. The boys were very interested in the entire procedure, noted Mr. Klaus, and serious and respectful in handling and burning the flag.

"I am quite sure that each of these Scout members will keep this in their memory for many years to come," said the former Scoutmaster.

Youngsters at HAILLEY had a one-ring circus staged just for them last week. A black bear, weighing an estimated 200 pounds, put on the show in the yards of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Vernon and their neighbors on the Broadford road.

He appeared last Sunday morning and spent his time climbing the large cottonwood trees and playing along the canal bank. To the delight of the "young fry," he literally "hopped" up the trees.

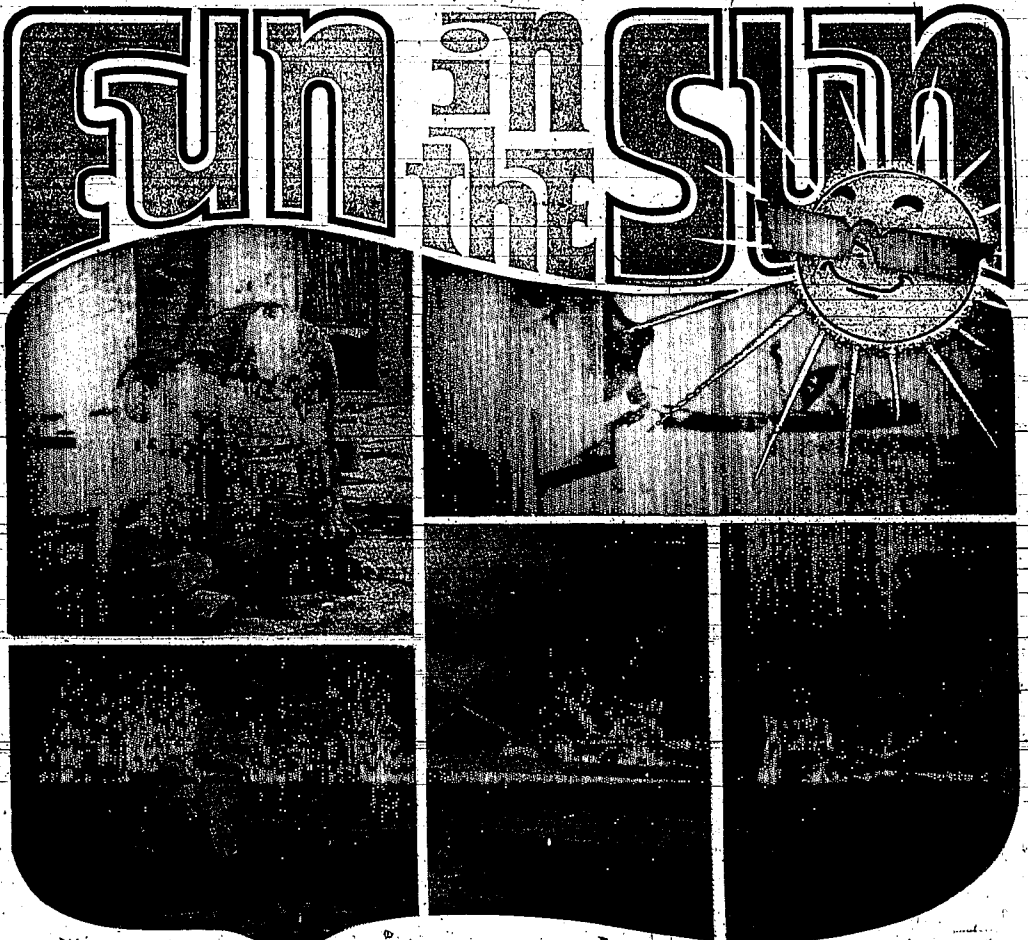

Dogs chased him one day and the next morning the little bear was gone. Conservation Officer Ray Lyon said he was a last year's cub and that the mother and her present baby probably wore up one of the canyons back of the ranches.

AMONG THOSE ATTENDING the recent Family Life Institute held at the Holiday Inn are Rev. and Mrs. Richard Laux, Ashton, and their four-month-old son, Richard. The institute, sponsored by the Utah-Idaho District of the LWML, was set up to help equip the Christian woman to fulfill her role as a wife and mother.

ENGROSSED in the speaker's topic is Mrs. R. C. Bryan, Ogden, one of 200 women attending the recent Family Life Institute held in Twin Falls.

Family Life Conclave Hosted In Twin Falls

By NORMA HERZINGER
Women's Editor

"The unity of marriage is a specialness," this statement, made by Dr. Donald Smith during the recent Family Life Institute held at the Holiday Inn, covers a multitude of ideas from all points of the compass.

It was evident from the various group discussions during the institute that all 200 women attending left Twin Falls a little wiser and much more informed on their role as wives and mothers. As the three main speakers, Dr. Smith, Mrs. L. L. Schkade and Dr. W. J. Fields, discussed the bold truths of the shortcoming of women in today's changing society, they shocked a few, pleased a few and generally educated others. One statement made by Dr. Smith sums up very well what every woman knows, but often finds hard to religiously live by: "We are living under the Lordship of Christ and under this type of life we understand and love other people—thus accept the members of the family AS THEY ARE, NOT as we want them to be."

He pointed out that living the role of wife and mother, we have to deal with what is—not what ought to be. This is often easier said than done—but nevertheless—a must in today's rapid living society.

Dr. Fields in his lecture on sex, pointed out that in our new-found freedom of social attitudes, since the Kinsey report, the church and home have failed to step in and take the initiative in educating our children. Mass media in turn has flouted sex and used it for financial gain. "We by our silence have communicated to our children that our sexuality is something to be ashamed of," he noted.

He further pointed out that we must educate our children in the correct attitude, just teaching the biological facts is not sex education, but rather reproduction education. Dr. Fields, author of various essays, short courses and books, noted in his discussion of the material he has edited, he was able to point out the value of proper sex education over and over, the wonderment and wholesomeness of each person—God-given sexuality.

When Mrs. Schkade addressed the group, she explained that facing the challenge of motherhood is a difficult job which involves creating in the home an atmosphere of loving acceptance. "The mother, conscious of her need to grow as a person, will be aware of a like need in her child and will try to guide him toward responsible maturity and independence," she commented.

This institute, themed "Strengthening the Home," is the 18th in the United States in a series of 17 set up by the International Christian Growth Committee, under the direction of the 1968 International LWML convention, held in Washington, D.C.

The 200 women attending belonged to several different religions from Washington, Oregon, Utah, Missouri, Wyoming, California, Nevada and Idaho.

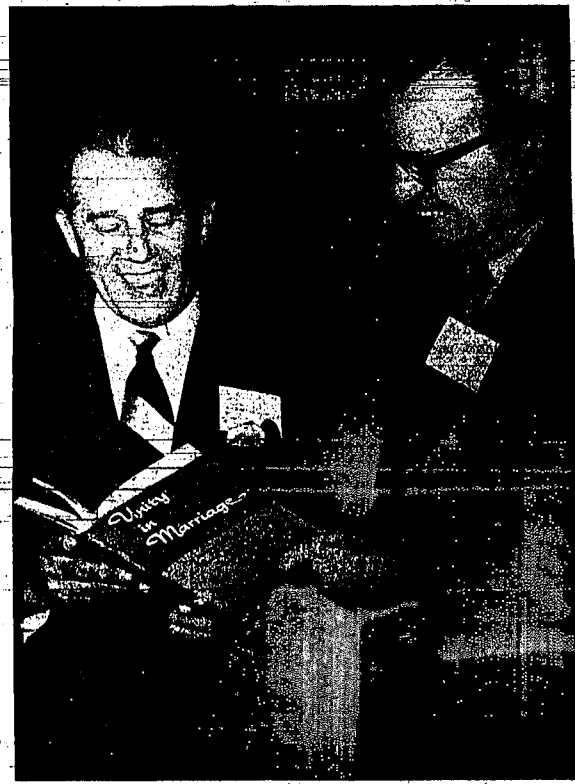

Steering committee members for the institute include Mrs. Elmer Fischer, chairman; Mrs. Louise Reinke, president of the Utah-Idaho district; Rev. Harold Iben, counselor of Utah-Idaho district, and audibly; Mrs. H. W. Kammerlohr, Salt Lake City; Mrs. Herbert Zaff, Murray, and Mrs. Dale Patterson, Twin Falls.

Members of the spiritual arrangements included Mrs. Arthur Kaster, Clover; Mrs. Lyle Cullip, Mrs. Duane Elmspahr and Mrs. Henry Maynard, all Twin Falls; food and housing, Mrs. Marlin Risher, Twin Falls; Mrs. Orval Reinke, Clover; Mrs. Ken, Beth James, Twin Falls; Mrs. Erhard Dohse, Klappery, and Mrs. Theodore Belan, Butte.

In charge of registration, included Mrs. Iben, Twin Falls; Mrs. Robert Adolph, Wendell; Mrs. John Frose, Jerome; Mrs. Elmer Eilers, Eden; Mrs. Donald Heller, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Edwin Lierman, Clover.

ONE OF THE MAIN speakers during the recent institute was Dr. Donald Smith, consultant to the clergy, working through the Lutheran Family and Child Service of Seattle, Wash.

DISCUSSING ONE OF the books authored by Dr. F. W. Fields that was on display at the two-day session at the Holiday Inn is Gary Klammer, St. Louis. Various books relevant to family harmony were displayed along with several books authored by Dr. Fields.

DR. F. W. FIELDS, Ames, Iowa, and Mrs. L. L. Schkade, Denton, Tex., right, discuss the institute with Mrs. Elmer Fisher, Elmer, chairwoman of the sessions, left, and Mrs. Doris Reinke, Twin Falls, president of the Utah-Idaho district of the LWML. Dr. Fields spoke during a special evening program Wednesday evening at the Immanuel Lutheran Church on "A Christian's View of Sex" and "Guides for Sex Education."

"STRENGTHENING THE HOME" was the theme of the Family Life Institute held in Twin Falls. Participating in the sessions were, from left, Mrs. Duane Elmspahr, Twin Falls; Mrs. Arthur Kaster, Elmer; Rev. Harold Iben, counselor

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY:—What do you think of a 45-year-old man who meets his girl on street corners because if his mother finds out he's serious about anybody just yet it might "upset" her. The girl is 39.

I am the girl and I am sick of it. If I want to talk to him on the phone, I have to have someone call and ask for him because his mother won't call him to the phone if it's a woman's voice. It's not that she doesn't LIKE me. She hasn't even MET me.

Sonny says he doesn't want to "use her" but he has been upsetting ME for six years. His mother has been a widow since 1963. She has a lot of money which Sonny will get when his mother dies, but she's only 68 and healthy as a horse. I'd like to get married and I love Sonny. What is your advice?

DEAR GIRL: A 39-year-old "girl" who meets her boyfriend on street corners has a lot of money to go to. And so does the 45-year-old boyfriend who meets her. Illid-and-go-seek is for children, so tell Sonny to rise already and introduce you to Mamma, or find another playmate.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are planning to go to Las Vegas soon. My problem is my husband's sister. She lives in Las Vegas with her husband and family. Since this is going to be a vacation for us we would like to spend it in our own way, coming and going as we please. (We'll stay at a hotel.)

How can we make our wishes known without being tactless or curt? My sister-in-law likes to conduct your program from start to finish, which is most annoying.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Use an elementary algebra rule. The shortest distance between two points is a straight line. Write (or call) and let her know that you'll "be seeing them," of course—but not to plan anything as you want to have the freedom to "play it by ear."

DEAR ABBY: A new man has come to town and he works to my husband's department. He is nice looking, clean-cut, single, and he's always alone, which has given me an idea.

I have a friend who is about the right age for him. Laura is a lonely quiet girl who doesn't get around much because she looks after her invalid mother. I keep thinking how nice it would be if these two young people knew each other, but when I mention it to my husband, he says, "If PAUL asks me to introduce him to a girl, I'll tell him about Laura, but I'm not fixing up any dates unless he asks."

Abby, I still think there's a

SURE THINGS TOPS GUESSY FINESSE

It is a sad thing indeed to watch declarer mangle a slam contract. If you are defending the hand your sorrow may be tempered with a slight amount of pleasure.

There was nothing wrong with South's two no-trump call and North certainly had a sound slam bid. In fact, North felt that he might be missing seven but North had seen his partner perform on other occasions and decided on a conservative course.

South won the spade lead, looked over dummy carefully and noted that he had 11 top tricks plus opportunities for a 12th in any one of three suits. Then he cashed the rest of the spades to see what would happen. He found out that West had started with five spades and that East could afford a diamond discard.

South cashed three clubs and once more East led a diamond. Then South tried the hearts. This time it was West who showed up on the third lead. Of course, West discarded a spade. South now had a perfect count with two diamonds and still held both of them and that East had started with five and still held three. Clearly the odds favored finding the queen of diamonds in the East hand. South led to dummy's ace, finessed his jack and was two down when West took his diamond queen and the last club.

Do you see where South mangled the hand? He had a sure thing. All he had to do was to throw East in with the last heart. East would have to lead a diamond and it wouldn't matter where the queen was. South would pick it up automatically.

Robot Bartender Can Mix Drinks, But Can't Smile

The thing can mix any one of the and the one I delivered so 1,000 drinks in four seconds. Don't know the sale price of in the bar. Q. WHAT'S THIS alcoholic computer, but it THE DIFFERENCE between hobo, a tramp, and a bum? A hobo is a wanderer who still, whether a bartender is good doesn't depend on his sav- who doesn't work. And a bum- he's a panhandler who neither wanders nor works, but just stands around with watery eyes. SALES MINDS—Sales managers, please stop the following in a prominent place. A shoe manufacturer hired two men to carry his line into Africa. Three months later, one wrote: "AM returning immediately. No market here. Everybody goes bare-foot." The other wrote: "Enclosed, 105 orders. Market unlimited. Everybody here goes barefoot." REALITY—Our Chief Pro-nosticator expects men shortly will invade women's beauty shops—to get-fander-hair-dos. The opposite happens. For a while in 1925, the record who so correctly noted, "There are beautiful flowers—that are grinning almost as many women as men. Then two men about because the women then were still on an equality campaign. Now, it is our C. P.'s contention the other side can be expected to go on an equality campaign, too, a sign thereof being mass male attendance at hair dressing salons. Mrs. T. ## POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—Save that empty waxed paper or aluminum foil carton. It can be a handy carrier for silverware, such as a slicing knife or other serving pieces, which one must take to a covered dish social or picnic.—MRS. A. L. C.

DEAR POLLY—If your family's favorites are two different kinds of fruit or berry pies, you can make two pies in the same pan. Just by rolling out two pie crusts, line the pie tin with one crust, add the prepared fruit on one side only, fold the crust back over it and crimp the edges. Do the same with the other crust and use the other kind of filling.—MRS. R. K.

DEAR POLLY—When I have a lot of sewing to be done I take an old button card or a piece of paper and on the left side write the things I need to buy for the project such as thread, buttons, zippers, etc. On the right hand side I staple a piece of each fabric so it can be matched perfectly. This is handy to carry in my purse and eliminates dry guesswork.—LINDA

HEY, WHO CUT ALL THE HOLES IN MY HAT?

GOSH, JUNIOR, I DON'T THINK YOU...

DEAR POLLY—When our heater filters get dirty we take them to the gas station and blow the dirt out with the air hose. This makes them like new and saves buying new ones.—KATHY

DEAR POLLY—When you've lost the brush to your eyebrow makeup, just use one of baby's cotton tipped sticks. It makes your eyebrows more even, rounded and smoother. When finished, just throw it away.—JEAN

DEAR POLLY—I keep my plastic sprinkling can handy when warming corn bread, biscuits, etc. for I give them all a few sprinkles, wrap them in foil and place them in the oven. This way they taste freshly baked.—MRS. H.

DEAR POLLY—I find that one tablespoon of salt in hot water will help to remove stubborn spots on dishes. Let them soak in it for about five minutes.—SHERI.

DEAR POLLY—To make a great-looking bow box package, corsage, scoring pad, pompon or pendant take three sheets of nylon net—each one a foot long and five inches wide. Stack them neatly, run long stitches through the middle down the long way and then pull the thread up and wrap it around, tie a knot and trim the edges. After the net is all fluffed out you'll have an attractive bow.—JONELL

Ask Them Yourself

FOR SEN. HENRY JACKSON

Just what can be done about protecting our scenic public lands? —Mrs. Clarence Horenth, Seattle, Wash.

● Laws now are in effect regarding air and water pollution, and there is proposed legislation to control surface mining and to reclaim surface-mined lands. Private-citizens-can-form groups to obtain facts, make specific proposals to either their Senators or Congressmen, or act on a state or local level. Direct dealing with the threatened despoilers of an area sometimes brings results. Best of all is an alert, interested, and informed public which will present specific facts and recommendations to legislators.

FOR DR. EDMUND KLEIN,

Is there any known cure for a skin disease called dermatitis herpetiformis? —John C. Sauer, Oak Hill, W. Va.

● No, but there are drugs available that partially or completely control it—treatment with sulfanilamides, particularly sulfa pyridine and sulfones. Both drugs, which must be given daily, can produce side effects. Discontinuation of either results in rapid return of the disease.

FOR HELEN ROSE,

Oscar-winning designer I know you designed Grace Kelly's wedding dress. Where is it? —Jane Rudolph, New York, N.Y.

● It is on display in the Philadelphia Museum, and I am told it attracts more attention than any other display.

FOR BILLY GRAHAM

You once said that you were going to try to reach teen-agers instead of adults. Why did you say this? —Sandy Paul, Worcester, Calif.

● This is not really correct. I have intimated that I have more hope for the young than for the elder people. Statistics show that the young respond to the challenge of Christ and the appeal of the gospel more than those who are older. I am also aware that the older generation is not passing on to youth a good moral and spiritual image of our present-day culture and achievements. Thus, I am more hopeful for the youth who are determined to build a better world.

FOR WILLIAM CUTTENBERG,

president, Boque Electric Mfg. Co., Paterson, N.J. When do you think America will have an electric car available at a competitive price? —N. D., Lancaster, Pa.

● Electric vehicles will be fairly prevalent on the streets by 1972—mostly small delivery vehicles for stores and services and "plything" type cars. Discovery of a new lightweight, economical power source (battery) could change all this.

FOR DR. HUGHES DAY,

Bethany Hospital, Kansas City, Kansas Just how and when did you originate the first intensive coronary-care unit? —Mrs. Frances Fenton, Columbus, Mo.

● In 1961 a coronary-care unit was conceived, where cardiac patients could receive intensive and special medical and nursing care using electronic techniques. The John A. Hartford Foundation, New York City, provided funds for the first coronary unit. It was opened at Bethany Hospital in 1962. As a result, the mortality rate has dropped.

FOR MONTY HALL

of ABC's "Let's Make a Deal" Is the money shown on your program real? —Christine Lykesale, Trenton, N.J.

● The money is real, and it is also well guarded always by an armed guard.

FOR JACK MARKS,

director, Portland, Ore., zoo You have had seven elephants born in your zoo. Is there a great demand for zoo-born baby elephants? —Mrs. Laura Hill, Humboldt, Sask., Canada

● If one wanted to sell a new-born elephant, the market is there, but we do not separate mother and baby until the mother indicates she wishes to wean the calf. There always seems to be a market for elephant calves, whether zoo-born or imported.

FOR PEGGY LIPTON

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Half-Baked Man Capt. Grant D. Collin, a research physicist at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, has a job that runs hot and cold. For 16 years he has personally tested what temperatures the human body can withstand. From these tests have come new developments in Arctic, gas, and jet-pilot pressure suits. He has undergone tests at low as minus 80F and as high as 406F. Once, his backside was subjected to intense cold, his front-side intense heat; his body compensated so that he felt perfectly comfortable. Oh, yes, technicians occasionally bake-cookies while he is "working" in the research oven.

Beauty Is Pocketbook Deep American men and women spend $5 billion, on year on beauty aids, according to Drug Trade News, from $217 million on lipsticks to $1.5 billion on oral hygiene products and shaving gear. What does $5 billion mean? Well, in 1966 the Office of Economic Opportunity spent less than $1.3 billion; Housing and Urban Development, about $772 million.

Walk-On Pitch John Berardino, who gave up baseball (highly paid former second baseman for the Cleveland Indians) for acting (Dr. Steve Hardy in ABC-TV's "General Hospital"), still likes to talk baseball. "They didn't have Little League when I was a kid. Today, with so few playgrounds, it's the only way most boys can get to play. But why don't more Little Leaguers go up to the majors? Because they are not taught. There are too many base on balls—they don't get any hits! So what? They don't in the majors, either.

Merry Moving Month May is one of the more popular months to move. By now, most of the uprooted are still unpacking, trying to settle in—and worrying about the possible ill effects of relocation on their families. The Menninger Foundation's eight-year study finds adults resilient—but unhappy at first about new surroundings. While children make new friends more readily than adults, they tend to miss the old neighborhood with its familiar surroundings. A good way to help children adjust is to let them participate in moving chores and not just "keep them out of the way."

Church of the Future? With church building at a new low, an "air cathedral" may be the answer, at least temporarily. The Firestone people have made a 60x200 foot inflatable "church" of nylon-reinforced vinyl, complete with gold-and-white plastic "stained glass windows." Weighing 17,000 pounds, it takes three pieces of equipment to inflate it. The cathedral boasts an air-lock revolving door, which will admit 3,500 people—all of whom no doubt want to sit in the back.

We Cruised

This family learned that inland traffic-free and leading to new

LAST AUGUST my wife and I were traveling through the lovely dairy country of southern Vermont. I at the wheel and she looking at the scenery, when suddenly she exclaimed, "Look at that magnificent old elm."

"Where?"

"Over there," she said, "to starboard."

"Over there to starboard? What kind of nonsense is that in the landlocked state of Vermont?"

It's not so landlocked, though; in fact we were just then in the process of floating past its west coast in a boat on our way from New York to Canada. Our highway was a twisting stretch of one of the country's least-appreciated road systems: the inland waterways.

While we Americans tour the motor highways by the tens of millions every summer, only a relative handful of us know that the United States possesses a network of rivers and canals, whose wonderful beauty is unsurpassed and whose extent is unmatched by any other waterway system in the world.

Though it is actually a commercial system, built and maintained for barges and tankers, anyone with a boat can use it. And, thanks to a new kind of cruising vehicle, the houseboat, the trip can now be made in the kind of comfort that's usually associated with renting a cottage by a lake.

Ten years ago a houseboat was essentially nothing more than a house with a buoyant basement with which one tied it to a dock. But in the early 1960s a group of smart boat builders began to redesign the craft, and today the house part sits on a ruggedly designed hull of steel, aluminum, or fiber-glass—that's often seaworthy enough for ocean trips and fast enough to tow water skiers.

Basically, though, it's not an ocean boat; the houseboat is to the conventional cruiser what the station wagon is to the sports car, and for ocean-going and fishing you can't beat the cruiser. It is in the inland waterways that the houseboat has no peers. The reason is this:

By sacrificing the conventional cruiser's race lines and its open-sitting area stern, designers have crammed two to three times as much living space into a given length of hull. They've widened the hull a few feet and used almost its entire length as a platform for an honest-to-goodness, square-shaped house—equipped with such blatantly houselike appointments as screen doors, picture windows, stall showers, and "queen-sized" studio beds.

The result is that many of the craft look, inside and out, as if they'd been ripped loose from a Holiday Inn. The house illusion is so strong that one night a departing guest on our boat opened the front door, and turned into the river!

A scene I saw through the picture window of a 32-foot houseboat at a marina one rainy day last summer sums up the transformation. Spread out on the wall-to-wall carpeting of the living-room floor at the bow were three children playing a game, and down three steps behind them in the kitchenette amidships was their mother, cooking on a gas stove. I didn't see the father, but I like to think he was asleep in one of the beds farther aft.

Houseboat sales and rentals are now the fastest-growing segment of the booming pleasure-boat industry, and it will soon be as easy to rent a houseboat as a car. My boat, for instance, came from a national service called Rent-A-Cruise of America (Florence, Ala.) that works much like Hertz or Avis. It has about 500 boats at more than 800 locations around the country. The company provides everything you need, from charts to linens and kitchenware, so that all you have to bring aboard is your clothes.

We could have gone to a local boatyard or marina, many of which keep a few houseboats strictly for rental purposes. In fact, these places are multiplying so rapidly all over the country that Family Houseboating magazine, which tries to keep track of them, has to publish a new list every six months or so.

In terms of person-per-day costs, a rented-houseboat vacation isn't as expensive as you might think. My 32-footer cost $325 a week (or slightly less in certain areas of the South, where the season is longer). If you fill up all a boat's beds and eat all your meals aboard, it will cost about the same per person as a sleeping-in-motel and eating-in-restaurants car trip!

Having rented the boat, the next problem was, where to go? The choices are many. From my home town of Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y., if you sail upstream to just past Albany, you will come to a sign at a branch in the river. One arrow points to the left: "Erie Canal, Syracuse, and Buffalo. Speed Limit 10 mph." Take this fork and you will wind up on Lake Erie. From there you can continue on to Chicago, and via the Illinois River to the Mississippi. Then you can travel for 12,000 miles on a vast system of locks and channels from Minneapolis, Minn., to Brownsville, Texas—all without stepping on dry land once.

But instead, my wife and I took the right fork that led by canal, river, and Lake Champlain to the St. Lawrence—from which additional endless mazes of Canadian waterways were available to us. So huge is the whole interlocking system—more than 30,000 miles—that if we were to spend the rest of our summers cruising it we would never have to pass the same point twice.

Once waterborne we quickly discovered what is probably the most compelling single fact about waterway touring: for long stretches, the America one sees tends, even today, to be an America untouched by the 20th century. For our civilization has developed mainly along the highways and railroads and has left the riversides to the farmer—and the rich man's great mansion.

It's true that we sailed through some hideously discolored water reeking of pollution and that sections of the shore line matched in industrial ugliness anything along the roads. But for hour after hour on the Hudson, we sailed past the old Dutch patroon country with stately châteaux presiding over baronial river views; past long, narrow stretches where the river is more like a creek and its banks are hidden by marshes full of red-wing blackbirds; past miles of rolling cow pastures with weathered-red barns and white silos.

The peace of river life, too, seems a throwback to a past century. Cruising at eight miles per hour (some boats cruise at more than 30 mph), we didn't gauge our progress in terms of miles per day but rather in hours traveled, scenery seen, sun bathed in, or fish caught.

Often the scenery was so overpow-waterways are among our most beautiful highways—almost worlds of discovery

By JAMES NATHAN MILLER

ering that we elowed to little more than a drift, and once a dog who had a stick he wanted us to throw for him followed us along the aide of a canal for 20 minutes before turning back.

Even the volume of traffic was about what it must have been in the pre-20th century. In fact, one of the best things about river sailing is how few people seem to know about it. For while boating is a fast-growing industry, most of the sailing is concentrated around a few high-density points, and on the long reaches of river between cities we often found ourselves alone. The magnificent Champlain canal system in upstate New York, as beautiful a waterway as can be found and one that's close to the country's densest population area, is traversed by only about 2,000 pleasure boats in a year. Often on this canal, we were the only boat in a lock.

Which brings us to a fly in the ointment of this idyllic life that you should know about: the process known as "locking through," which on some waterways can be required every few miles as the canal goes up or down a hill. Locking through can be a pleasant break in the routine, but the procedure is miserable if you get mixed-up with commercial traffic for pleasure boats on the inland waterways are at the bottom of every lock-keeper's priority list. Freight goes first, as we discovered one day when we waited two hours for three turtle-slow petroleum and pulp-papé barges to go through, even though we had arrived first.

But mostly the life of the waterway tourist is lovely. Can any landlubber just walk in off the street and rent a boat to enjoy it? Legally, yes. To pilot a boat of up to 65 feet, there is no age requirement, no driver's test, no license. When I left the dock with my new command, I had never before sailed a powerboat, and my total training consisted of a half-hour cruise around the bay under the tutelage of the man who had rented it to me.

But I called the head of the local Coast Guard Auxiliary squadron and asked him how a landlubber like me could prepare for a houseboat trip.

He told me about the free boat-handling courses offered every spring by the Coast Guard Auxiliary and the U.S. Power Squadron.

I was already too late for that, but I was told about a book called "Piloting—Seamanship and Small Boat Handling" by Charles F. Chapman (Motor Boating Pub. Co.). This wonderful bible of the small-boat handler told me everything I needed to know, from how to make fast to a dock to what flag to fly when the Secretary of State comes aboard.

Learning chart reading and the meanings of various buoys was a matter of a couple of evenings' study. (By memorizing the phrase "red-light-returning"—always keep red buoys on the right when going upstream—I had it half-made.) The important rules of the road are few and easy—the main one being to pass to the right of approaching boats, just as in a car. Things like how to get the anchor to grab bottom and what kind of weather to be leery of turned out to be mainly matters of common sense.

A 30,000-mile inland waterway, much of it unspoiled, is open to houseboat travel.

There is no dearth, we found, of marinas where, for a charge of 10 or 15 cents per-foot of boat length, we could tie up for the night. Some are little more than a gas tank, water hose, and an electricity supply that blows its fuse as soon as more than a couple of boats plug in. Others are elaborate, with swimming pools, bars, restaurants, showers, and even coin laundries.

But in a houseboat you don't have to depend on marinas, for you carry most of their facilities with you and you can anchor wherever you want for the night. (The waterways are all government-owned, so no one will tell you're on private property.) For instance, one evening we tied up to a tree in a lovely deserted cove on Lake Champlain, miles from the nearest marina, with our bow in the woods and our roof-sundeck commanding a sweeping view of the Green Mountains. We had fresh-caught perch for dinner, and after dinner we sat on the sundeck and watched the stars come out.

And that is what we found best about this business of floating across the landscape in a houseboat: You do it in your own way, at your own pace, unburied and unpressured. Whether you choose the staying-at-marinas way or the lying-to-a-tree way, whether you prefer to catch fish or watch birds, whether you like champagne for breakfast or ham and eggs, if my experience is any guide you'll find that there is no vacation like it on land or on sea. ♦

A youngster was having trouble with a telephone call, and the operator was trying to help him. "What number are you calling from, honey?" brought no answer. She encouraged him, "It's right there on your dial."

The time between baby blocks and college books will fly by faster than you think. That's why it's never too early to start planning. And that's where we come in.

With insurance from New York Life. Insurance that can help cover college costs. (And they can run as high as $15,000 over a four-year period.) Insurance that means the money will be there. Even if you're not. Making sure college funds are available is something we know a lot about. Our experience dates back to the class of '45—1845!

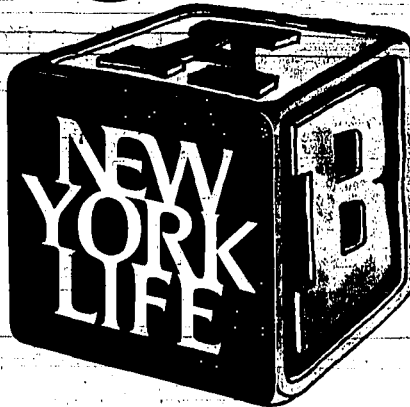

Our dividend payments to policyowners go back a long ways, too. Well over a century. Right now they're at an all-time high, bringing the cost of life insurance for millions of our policyowners to an all-time low.

The Shirtdress Revival

By ROSALYN ABREYAYA

A crisp, cool, classic shirtdress is fashioned by Russ in Avril-cotton. $9. Sandals are Grasshoppers

WITH the popularity that blouses and shirt tops have enjoyed recently, it's no wonder designers are beginning to elaborate on a good theme; they've simply elongated the shirt into a dress! It's a revival, of course. But today's shirtdress looks very contemporary in crisp fabrics fashioned into high-necked ruffle fronts, easy open-at-the-throat designs, even a shirtdress that divides into pants. The over-all effect is to render the female soft and pretty, rescuing her from recent primeval fashions that have been spinning off so many drawing boards.

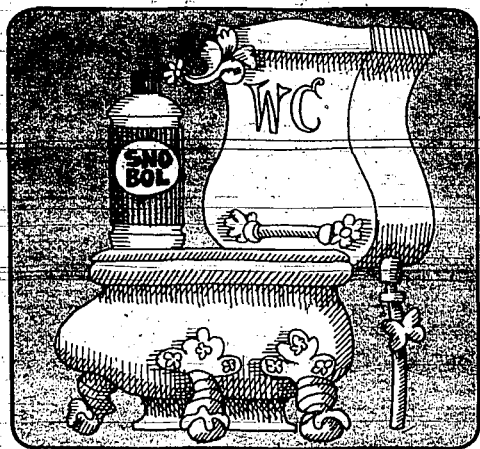

Aileen divides a packable cotton-knit shirtdress into pants! $20. Bag by Dojan; sunglasses, Riviera

General purpose cleaners are fine for most jobs. But not for cleaning toilet bowls. They don't deodorize, sanitize, and remove rust stains like Sno-Bol.

Liquid Sno-Bol cleans in seconds while it deodorizes and sanitizes. It's faster and more efficient than any dry bowl cleaner. You can pour Sno-Bol full strength to remove rust stains and calcium deposits. And it works better and costs less than other leading bowl cleaners.

Entire families may be victims and, unfortunately, to the dread of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayno's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First, a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they are absorbed. Then, a modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily, and painlessly.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayno's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults.

Will EARTHQUAKES

By BOB GAINES

IN GEOLOGY laboratories throughout California, engineers, geophysicists, and seismologists are calmly working out a scenario for the next big quake—to hit the state. It could well happen like this:

A quiet, warm day, perhaps sometime in the late spring or summer of this year. Suddenly, up and down the state, family dogs come to their feet, ears alert. They whimper nervously, already catching an almost inaudible rumble in the ground. The rumble gets louder, houses begin to shake. Pipes and electric lines snap, plaster and walls collapse.

The great, roaring quake pounds at California for interminable seconds. Hills crumble into valleys, the freeways bend like rubber bands, the Golden Gate and Oakland Bay bridges twist and pitch. The quake eases, now a cloud of dust and smoke 650 miles long billows the length of the state. In the dusty murk, the cities are exploding. From San Diego to San Francisco they are fiery explosions that light up the haze like a sparkling Fourth of July spectacle.

If this sounds like the conclusion of an old Cecil B. DeMille extravaganza, don't be deceived. Currently a rumor is raging through the state that a quake as big as the one that wrecked San Francisco in 1906 will hit this year.

As a result, several small Pentecostal congregations have sold their homes and moved away. Seers like Jeanne Dixon and Maurice Woodruff are prognosticating earth tremors for 1969. And Hollywood agents say many of their stars have suddenly asked for foreign film assignments which will take them out of the state all this summer.

Most California geologists admit there is a chance of a major quake hitting the state sometime soon.

"The problem is that these acute predictions obscure the real dangers of earthquakes," complains James Bruno, a geophysicist with the California Institute of Technology. "A date passes and people say, 'Forget about quakes.' But we're long overdue for a big one."

Cal Tech geologist Dr. Charles Richter, dean of this country's earthquake watchers, agrees: "It is inevitable that there will be a major quake in California. It could happen tomorrow. No place is exempt from the danger."

The focus of most of this anxiety is a deep crack into the crust of the earth called the San Andreas Fault. More than 650 miles long, it emerges from the Gulf of California below San Diego and eventually disappears back into the ocean north of the San Francisco area.

It is part of a zone of restless, constantly shifting rock that extends up through

The San Andreas fault at Carrizo Plains appears as if nature ripped the earth apart.

What to Do in an Earthquake

- Here is Dr. Charles Richter's advice about what to do if you get caught in a quake:
- Don't panic, don't run wildly. Avoid damaged localities, broken wires.
  - At the first gentle rumble, if possible, seek out a safe place to stand outside the house; otherwise, stay under a load-bearing doorway. If not possible, get under a near table. Avoid walls.
  - If driving, pull over and drop to the floor.
  - When the quake is over, check your home for fires and gas leaks. If you smell gas, turn off the main valve. Don't waste water (your lines may be broken). If your house is safe, stay there. Don't travel until you are certain you won't hamper clean-up crews and rescue workers.

destruction on a not-too-distant day—

Rock California?

Alaska, out along the Aleutians to Japan, then back through the Pacific via New Zealand, and up along the western coast of South America.

Geologists call the San Andreas a "strike-slip" fault. There are two large land masses literally rubbing each other the wrong way.

For millions of years, the west side has been moving northwest at a rate of one to two inches a year. Certain areas, however, do not seem to be moving. According to geologists, these "locked" sections are building up pressure much like a spring under tension. Eventually the spring has to snap. When it does, California will have a mammoth quake. The force released will be millions of times greater than that released by a nuclear weapon.

A $220 million Government program has Poles of the earth occasionally shift a few feet, and whenever one of these unexplainable polar shifts takes place, earthquakes follow. Scientists suggest a more careful tracking of this polar wobble.

Creeper watching: Researchers are presently developing a variety of new, ultra-sensitive instruments for measuring earth movements. Scientists have already reached the point where they can now predict with some degree of reliability where the next tremors in the rock will take place.

"But the problem is that we still can't predict the violence of the movements," says Dr. Richter.

While the scientists are busy learning to predict quakes, California's politicians are equally busy trying to soft-pedal the danger of earthquakes. "We've lived with quakes 'all our lives,'" San Francisco's been recommended to study earthquakes further. Scientists want to learn what causes earthquakes—and, equally important, how to control them. Here are some techniques being tested:

City official leaps across one of many fissures which split a section of Los Angeles.

Two lines on a winery floor show distance sections have shifted in movement of earth.

Fluid Injection: Scientists believe they could drill holes into danger areas and pump a large quantity of water into them. This conceivably would "loosen" the tense sections, producing some mini-quakes but no serious major ones.

The Wandering Poles: Geophysicists have noticed that the North and South

Major Joseph Aliota says fretfully. "San Franciscans know what to do if and when they do occur."

And what does the average Californian have to say about all this earthquake furor? Most of them seem fatalistic. Typical is the comment of a Los Angeles builder.

"The small ones can't hurt you," he says, staring up at the steep, brush-covered slope that looms over his home in the Hollywood Hills. "As for the big ones," he shrugs, "I guess you never think that a big one is going to 'hit.'" ♦

Wasn't I looking better in those old and faded? I was 150 pounds.

I'd probably never be married now, if I hadn't lost 49 pounds

Dear Ruth McCarthy: You don't know me, but I've been reading your stories about people who've lost weight and I'd like to tell you my tale.

I was a junior in high school. A fat, dateless-teenager who spent her lonely-evenings at the refrigerator. Either at my house or baby-sitting at someone else's. The bad thing about baby-sitting was that there was always food in the house, which turned into fat on my hips. Whenever I got a chance to dance (usually in the arms of my father at a family wedding), I looked like a bowl of jelly, jiggling across the floor. Sounds funny, doesn't it? But it wasn't. Particularly not when you had a slim sister, who dated regularly.

She and her boyfriend tried to fix me up with fellows, but who wanted to do the Twist with 150 pounds of fat. I kept telling myself that I'd outgrow it. I didn't. And you don't when you eat like I did.

My mother is Maltese and my father Czechoslovakian. When he married my mother, he insisted that she learn how to bake all those fancy Czech pastries. Of course, she had a few Maltese specialties of her own. And me, I just lapped them up.

By the time I'd become a junior in high school, however, I began to think more about boys than baked goods. Not too far from where I lived, in Flushing, New York, there's a very nice place that has dances for teenagers on Friday evenings. I used to go sometimes, but nothing ever came of it. I always wound up a wallflower.

Summers were hard, too. Bathing-suit time. Mine would always be one-piece. And black. I'd stay in the water, up to my neck, as much as possible. On the sand, I'd wrap myself in a robe and watch the others have fun. I'm sure they thought I was shy, but I was really ashamed.

After unhappy times like these, I'd try to "starve" myself. I'd lose a couple of pounds, but at the end of the week, I'd go on a binge and gain it all back.

Then one day I read an ad about a reducing-plan candy, called Ayds. And the word "candy" got me. This sounded like the answer to my problem.

After all, I thought, it wouldn't be like taking a reducing pill. And it wasn't, once I tried Ayds. One thing I liked, this candy contained no harmful drugs. And it was sweet enough to satisfy my sweet tooth, so I didn't feel I was denying myself at all. I just took one or two before meals as directed, with a hot drink. And it helped me control my appetite. Really. It was as pleasant as could be. I lost 25 pounds in three months. That's when my friends began to notice my looks. I even began to like the way I looked myself. In fact, I began to think about getting contact lenses. "Might as well go all the way," I thought.

When I reached 125 pounds, one of the girls got me a date for Rye, Beach. It was great. And it was only the beginning. There were dates, and more dates.

Every pound I lost motivated me to lose another. By the time I graduated, I had dropped to 115 pounds. And it wasn't long before I lost more. The only reason I took baby-sitting jobs from then on was to make money. Not fill up my evening.

After years of being wrapped in 150 pounds of fat, I was slim—and free. I'm 5'2½" tall and today, I weigh, 101 pounds, down from 150. In the measurements department, I've gone from 40" to 33½" in the bust; from 29" to 23½" in the waist; from 40" to 34" in the hips; and from a size 16½ to a size 5 dress.

Isn't that wonderful? And what really makes me feel good is knowing that I haven't gained any of the weight back in six years. And I haven't even had to continue using Ayds to stay slim. On the Ayds Plan, I had trained myself to eat less. And like it. And the habit has lasted.

In January, I was married to a wonderful man, who found it hard to believe I was ever heavy. During our engagement, I showed him the enclosed pictures of myself. I suppose it wasn't the brightest thing to do, but, thank goodness, it didn't scare him off. He did say though: "If I'd seen you when you were that big, I'd never have asked you out." And I'm sure that, without Ayds, I'd never have this wedding band on my finger today.

It is a business which you can completely own and control, yet have the training, the financing, and the continuing help of the parent company. It is a business in which you make profits not only on your own efforts, but many times more from the work of others whom you supervise.

It is such a business that we invite ambitious men to consider. With a spectacular record of response in many areas of the United States, our corporation is now ready to appoint Pathway Plan Sales Coordinators in a limited number of additional marketing areas. Our success and the success of our coordinators has been built on two things—Product and Plan. Both are unique.

In describing just one of our products, a highly regarded marketing consultant said:

"Seldom have I had a product submitted which so completely meets the requirements for instant public acceptance; for tremendous volume; for substantial profit margin; and for sustained and growing repeat business. The fact that $3 worth of Taste® gives the housewife the equivalent of about $30 worth of products she now buys from the supermarket, makes her an eager and steady customer. The fact that all your products are used up and bought over and over gives your franchised Sales Coordinators a growth and profit potential found in very few other non-food products."

All the Pathway Products are the result of modern technological advances in the research laboratory. Based on Space-age knowledge, they were designed primarily to make household chores easier for the housewife; secondly to make demonstrations so dramatic that the housewife who witnesses their action cannot resist buying.

The second factor which makes possible a profit potential of $2,000 a month or more is the Pathway Plan. No Pathway Product is to be found in any retail store. As Sales Coordinator in your area you may have from five to 30 people acting as your distributors. Since they must get their products from you as Coordinator, you make a profit on everything they sell.

If you have the desire, and if you can qualify for one of the areas now to be opened, you will receive complete training in all facets of the operation of your business. You will be shown how to hire and train others, how to keep records, how to build for steady growth. Experienced members of the headquarters staff will work with you in making a successful start and then will be available for help and guidance in promoting the rapid expansion of your business.

The Pathway Plan gives you many of the advantages usually found only in a costly franchise. Yet there is no "franchise fee" and no continuing royalty to pay. Your initial investment quickly comes back in cash as your staff sells the starting supply of products. Your total investment is $3,950.00, but for responsible men or women our Corporation will arrange financing for 2/3 of the cost so that your initial investment need not be more than $1,350.00.

The Pathway Plan is not one for dreamers or for those who expect success without effort. If you have the determination to be master of your own destiny; the determination to become personally and financially independent in a business of your own you may qualify. To learn more, merely send your name.

We will be glad to mail complete information free and with no obligation. Read the facts in the privacy of your home. Discuss the opportunity with other members of your family. Then, if you are interested in learning more about one of the areas now available, we will arrange for a personal interview during which we will reveal every detail of the Pathway Plan and acquaint you with every unique Product in the Pathway Line. Based on what you learn, you can then decide whether you wish to apply for appointment as a Sales Coordinator.

Asking for this information does not obligate you in any way. Merely mail the "Request for Information" printed below. But do not delay as the areas which are now open for new Coordinators may be closed within the next few weeks. Delay of even a few days might deprive you of this opportunity.
