Field Trips Are The Answer For Warm Days, Restless Boys

School teachers and administrators sometimes have to resort to a bit of trickery to keep education flowing during the warm spring days.

During the final few weeks of each school year, students become restless. As a result, many teachers from a R. A. C. school to high school plan field trips, taking advantage of good weather to provide field demonstrations on subjects they have been covering in text books during the winter months.

A favorite study for field trip follow-up is conservation which is covered in junior high school science classes.

For this, the schools generally call on the Sawtooth National Forest, of the local ranger.

Several such tours have been held this spring in the Rock Creek Canyon area under direction of Sawtooth Forest Personnel.

Typical of such field trips was the jaunt this week by 50 Kimberly Junior-High-School boys of the eighth grade science classes. The group traveled by bus to Rock Creek Canyon, where they were met by District Ranger George Fry; Pat Kennedy, landscape architect; Darrell Smith, fire dispatcher and rangeland conservationist; and Rod Howard for the Sawtooth Forest.

Through various stops along the canyon, the boys were told of forest methods of conserving water, protecting soil and vegetation and fire control and prevention. They also heard discussions on recreation planning and development.

A large gopher snake, also known as a bull snake, who was named "Henry" by the boys, joined the tour briefly and became part of the wildlife discussions. As all boys will, the group handled the snake, inspected him at close range and then told Henry to go on his way while they continued the tour.

Forest officials welcome the opportunity to explain to the public, and especially to the young boys and girls of school age, some of the values of forest lands and facilities.

Through understanding the forest programs and their great benefit to the area and its population, officials hope for greater appreciation of these assets. Such items as helping prevent man caused fires and leaving a clean campground, helping

Self-Segregation

What shall it profit a black man if he gain his 'soul' but lose the world — the world outside the so-called ghetto? This paraphrase of the biblical question is, in essence, what older-generation black leaders are beginning to ask as the trend toward self-segregation... intellectual as well as physical — accelerates among blacks, especially the young students in formerly all-white universities.

gies to working in the black community; he is merely being absurd, contends Lewis. American economic life is dominated by a few large corporations which do the greater part of the country's business. The world of these big corporations is an integrated world.

There will be black grocery shops in black neighborhoods, "but in your lifetime and mine," says Lewis, "there isn't going to be a black General Motors, a black Union Carbide, a black Penn-Central or a black Standard Oil!"

The road to success in America is through higher education. What a good white college can do for its black students that Howard or Risk black students at Howard colleges cannot do is open the road to better jobs. In view of this truth, Lewis finds the current attitude of some black leaders bewildering.

Black studies are fine, says Lewis, but the ones who would benefit from them most are white students. The time for blacks to learn about their heritage is in grade school or high school. To expect the colleges to eradicate the inferiority complexes of young black adults is to ask the impossible, he says, and to expect it to come about by segregating black students under inferior teachers "suggests some deficiency of thought."

Black students claim they are uncomfortable in white company. "But how," asks Lewis, "is one to be an ambassador to Finland, or Luxembourg — jobs which American Negroes have already held with distinction — if one is uncomfortable in white company?"

It is particularly the current retreat of future black leaders into their own "soul" which disturbs Lewis and other Negroes may have a long way to go before it has run its course. One can only wonder how far all Americans, black and white alike, will have been set back before it does.

MR. SPECTATOR

Things Are Moving!

Might not be long before something up there in the sky will be telling you farmers what to plant, when to irrigate, when to harvest and, perhaps, even when to go fishing. Mr. Spectator has just received word from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration that industry has been requested to submit proposals for definition and design of an earth-resources technology satellite system.

Now before you leave this column and read something else because we're always along the way, let me remember that this new system will be a research and development satellite designed to test new technology intended to verify the effectiveness of surveying earth's resources from space.

The sensors planned for flight on ERTS are designed to obtain image data in a number of different regions of the visible and near-infrared spectrum.

Cooperating scientists in the Department of Agriculture, Commerce and Interior and the Naval Oceanographic Office have already determined that much information can be derived from multi-spectral images of the surface of the earth taken by aircraft. This information includes crop species and health, cloud types and moisture content, coastal shoaling and water pollution.

Now, if you are caught up, then read on: The primary purposes of orbiting television-type imaging systems on the ERTS-A satellite are: To evaluate their ultimate utility for later operational systems.

To provide a basic data bank of space-acquired data against which similar data from subsequent satellites can be compared. (This would provide information for determination of seasonal or other changes on land and sea, such things as silt accumulation, changing shapes of shores or polar ice.)

To provide for the first time to user agency scientists' repetitively required multi-spectral image space data. (This will enable the scientists to develop effective and efficient methods for reducing and analyzing the data and transforming it into a format that will be useful to the end-user; for example, farmer, agricultural agent, land use planner, civil engineer, or hydro-electric power manager, etc.)

In addition to these imaging systems, ERTS-A is expected to carry an experimental data collection system for measurements from hundreds of thousands of remote, unattended silt river gauges, instrumentation on ocean buoys, icebergs, etc.

A design requirement for the ERTS is at least a one-year lifetime. This is necessary in order to get repetitive coverage of the same areas on a year-round basis. This will permit seasonal observations of changes during the growing season as well as ice and snow coverage during the winter months.

With all this stuff floating around in the sky, this remark might be made: the pilot but Mr. Spectator feels that the day is not far off when some gadget will be viewing—and recording—every move you make. Now won't that be embarrassing?

HIGH COST OF A BEEF

For 90 cents, John Q. Citizen can now get his two cents' worth in merely paying for the telephone. For the 90 cents added to your phone bill, Western Union will send a 15-word telegram to the president, your congressman, senator, governor or state legislator.

The service is called the Personal Opinion Message and the charge includes your signature and address. Western Union will even look up your representative's name if you don't know it. Two cents' worth for 90 cents? Well, that's inflation — which, by the way, is an excellent reason to wire a beef to Washington.

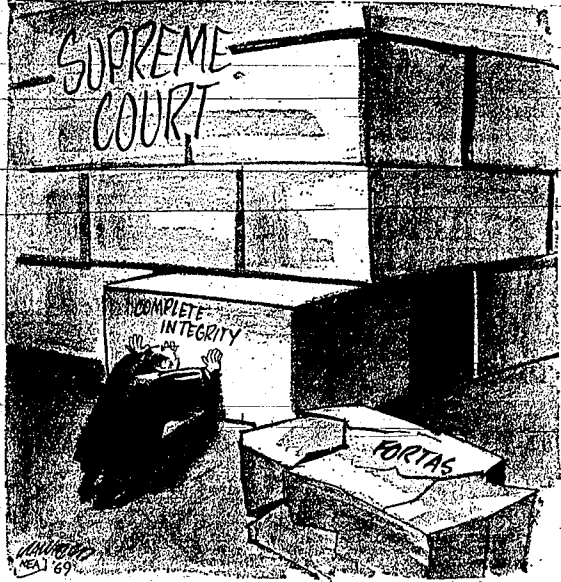

WASHINGTON—Despite hopeful bargaining initiatives from both sides, circumstances in Vietnam itself point to a long period of very tough negotiations. Fighting is expected to continue at a rather heavy level. U.S. casualties may well be heavy too. While it may be true, as President Nixon said in his televised speech last week, that "nobody has anything to gain by delaying," it is also true that neither side can afford to be hasty now.

The North Vietnamese, as Mr. Nixon noted, think a rising tide of sentiment here is pushing the new administration toward abandoning the war. Experts here think Hanoi will want to keep casualty rates up to swell that anti-war tide. Until the Viet Cong unveiled their 10-point peace plan last week, many strategists here were expecting more weeks of Communist intransigence at the Paris talks. Administration aides are still unsure of Hanoi's real intentions.

In South Vietnam, on the other hand, U.S. analysts signs that the shaky position of President Thieu's government — political as well as military — is gradually improving. Hopes are again rising that war-weary, disinterested southerners will commit themselves to Saigon at last.

The intelligence community is surprised, for example, that 70 per cent of the Communist defectors, since the beginning of the year, have come over to the "open arms" program in the IV Corps area. That McKong Delta area has been almost entirely abandoned by the forces of South Vietnamese forces. One of those defectors, in the Communist Delta stronghold, was a Hanoi-trained officer, born in the South, who had been sent back by Hanoi to ingratiate one of the Delta commands. He explained that he detected when he discovered that desertion of nearly 50 per cent of his men had been concealed by his predecessor in false reports to Hanoi.

New Cornerstone

Andrew Tully Charles Evers Has His Day

WASHINGTON—If white and black alike will let him, I suggest that a young Negro politician named Charles Evers will redeem his campaign promise to "do something to make life better" in Fayette, Miss., and perhaps in this whole unhappy country. Charles Evers has just been elected mayor of Fayette, which only four years ago had no Negro voters. He was, of course, elected by his fellow blacks, who outnumbered whites in the polls by 47 to 25, but that is immaterial. Whites have been electing whites for a long time, not only in little towns like Fayette but in big northern cities. The real significance of Evers' victory is in his own reaction to it.

lego students win few popular contests. But Evers was only doing what whites have done for a couple of centuries—making sure he and his fellow candidates had friends on the scene—and it paid off. That was another striking aspect of the Evers victory. He won because he insisted upon the blacks' right to participate in politics, not to burn down shops and lose Molotov cocktails. He recognized that power lies in the voting booth, not in street riots. He was guided by a tradition as American as apple pie — the tradition of the free vote in a free election. If he called on outside help, it was only because the blacks' experience in the Black Belt had proved they couldn't do it alone.

Fayette is little more than a village, but it can be argued that Charles Evers' name has a chance of becoming as celebrated as those of Negro Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind., and Negro Mayor Carl Stokes of Cleveland, indeed, his victory may be more astounding than either Hatcher's or Stokes' because it was won in Mississippi, where it "couldn't happen." After all, it was in Mississippi in 1963 that Charles Evers' brother, the crusading Medgar, was murdered for the crime of being white.

we're not going to do to the white people says they've done to us," says Evers. "We're going to have law and order and justice." And, in fact, Evers did not run a race campaign. His slogan was "Don't Vote for a Black Man. Or a White Man. Just a Good Man." As a result, the little town of 2,200, which four years ago would have erupted violently against any Negro rights campaign, took the election calmly. Black and white worked side-by-side at the polls all day without incident.

It happened in Shelbyway, Wis. Clarence, the apprentice loathe-or-cutter in the shoe factory, married the best daughter and opened his own shoe factory.

It is unlikely to marry the boss' daughter. Further, unions and government have conspired to emphasize early retirement until a man of 50 is likely to consider himself useless. They forget that Mr. J. C. Penny was sick, broke and in debt — a "failure" — at that age.

It seems to me this was so because the white people of Fayette felt they could trust Evers, even though he has been a vigorous campaigner for black equality as Mississippi Field Director for the NAACP. His election to the city of Fayette is in the electricity of a man who is in such stark contrast to the rampaging black militants and such ill-mannered and unapproachable black leaders as the "Poor People's" Rev. Ralph David Abernathy. Had the whites distrusted Evers, they'd have beaten him, side-by-side at the polls.

Clarence Evers even also makes time to participate actively in his church, his community—giving these the same enthusiasm and talent which has built his business on the street and opened his own shoe factory — on April Fool Day 50 years ago.

And they forget Winston Churchill was "nobody" at 50. And once upon a time there was a career military officer, virtually unknown outside the military. At the age of 50, when nowadays the State is thinking of retirement, that colonel got going. Despite that late start he went on to become a general, to win a world war and to stop another.

Curiously, too, Fayette's white people did not resent the massive turnout that gave Evers' campaign and those of 178 other black candidates for municipal and Democratic party posts in the state. As a close friend of the Kennedys, Evers was able to recruit some 40 volunteers New York lawyers and dozens of college students to poll the polls and help get the vote out throughout Mississippi.

Clarence Evers even also makes time to participate actively in his church, his community—giving these the same enthusiasm and talent which has built his business on the street and opened his own shoe factory — on April Fool Day 50 years ago.

So there is more than one way up — and there is no age limit — but there is no substitute for hard energy, the willingness, and the enthusiasm necessary for the climb.

There is a risk in over-stressing intelligence of that sort, of course, and no one underestimates the difficulties of the basic problems was highlighted by mass funerals in Hue early this month.

The funerals were to mark the final interment for hundreds of Hue residents killed in the 1968 Tet offensive. It is estimated that some 200 people were murdered during the Communist occupation of Hue. About 800 bodies have since been discovered in makeshift graves.

Former Alabama Governor George C. Wallace is reported "very well pleased" with the quiet hope to convert his presidential drive into an active, permanent third political party for the United States.

By those murders — of women and children as well as men — the Communists made it clear that the terrible vengeance may await residents of South Vietnam who throw in with the Saigon regime.

This is the word from Richmond, Va., businessman T. Coleman Andrews Jr. In case it has all escaped your notice, a new national chairman of what is now to be known as the American Party.

Considered in this context, the level of support for the Thieu government is surprising. Some analysts here think it is remarkable that Thieu felt strong enough to say that his government would discuss a political solution in Vietnam with the Viet Cong. President Nixon called that "a dramatic step forward."

Andrews, long a conservative Democrat in the original campaign of the late Sen. Barry F. Byrd, took on his new political job early this month. He was elected by 160 delegates to a national gathering that gathered in Cincinnati to give a new direction to the Wallace-for-President dream.

One statement going the rounds here is that Thieu has done very well indeed in passing the "old" power politics to Vietnam. He is, according to this appraisal, still learning the Vietnamese equivalent of "participatory democracy" with such matters as relations with the Buddhists and with the Saigon Press.

And lest you forget, Wallace, running mostly on the ticket of the American Independent Party, got nearly 10 million of more than 72 million votes cast last Nov. 5. That was good for the 45 electoral votes of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi.

From captured documents, it is known that the Viet Cong in the South have fallen short of Hanoi's expectations. Even the 1968 Tet offensive, for all its casualties, is not viewed as a wholly successful feat by U.S. commanders, said it was not.

Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia were not represented in Cincinnati, but Andrews says there is no division and that Wallace forces in those states support the new party. Indeed, Andrews returned the Cincinnati gathering that fragmentation has been the bane of conservative movements in the past.

Diabetics

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has diabetes. The doctor says do this and do that, which we try, but we still can't understand the ways of this disease. Please send us your booklet, "Diabetes, The Slinky Disease."

Can you tell me where to get a cook book for diabetics, and deserve using artificial sweeteners? I have had no luck finding one in book stores.—Mrs. L.E.W.

When not enough insulin is available, that's diabetes. The answer: either give extra insulin by injection, or use the new oral diabetes pills. These will reduce the sugar level in cases that are not too severe, or in very mild cases, changing the diet. The more sugar that can be handled, the better.

Usually a combination of diet plus either insulin or pills is necessary. Remember that it isn't just ordinary table sugar. You also have to calculate the amount of sugar in other foods, and other foods. And starches are quickly turned into sugar in the system, and protein is converted to sugar through the liver.

Nixon Explains Actions

By MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon broke precedent when he discussed with about 50 reporters the reasons behind his selection of Chief Justice Warren Earl Burger to be the new chief justice of the United States.

Normally, presidents over the past 30 or 40 years have been most reluctant to go into any sort of detail about why they select a prominent American for a particular job.

With little warning Thursday, Nixon called reporters into his office to begin to explain why he had selected Burger for the nation's highest judicial post and furthermore, the standards he would use to create a new religious or geographical balance on the court.

Nixon also said that because of the size of the court, he was determined the appointees should not be a personal friend and closer adviser—a consideration which in varying degrees had plagued former Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Nixon said that in naming future justices he would look to federal appellate and district judges as well as legal scholars and constitutional lawyers. He said he would not be bound by attempting to create a racial, religious or geographical balance on the court.

Land-Law Commission Meets With Gov. Don Samuelson

By Paul M. QUINN
BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Commission on Federal Land Laws, after a 35-minute, no-door session with Gov. Don Samuelson to "get acquainted" met Thursday afternoon for the first time and selected Rep. Walter E. Little, R-New Plymouth, as permanent chairman.

Newsmen cooled their heels in the reception room of the governor's office while Samuelson and eight of the nine members of the new commission "discussed problems," which was set up by the 40th Session of the Legislature and appointed by the governor, was funded to the tune of $100,000.

It is to represent the state of Idaho and its interests before the U.S. Public Land Law Review Commission, other appropriate federal agencies and the Congress of the United States.

Samuelson said before the meeting with commission members, "We want to all coordinate. They will advise me. I don't want a congressman going off in one direction; the commission member and the governor's office in still another."

Samuelson said the purpose of the elected-door meeting in his office was "just to meet them (the members) personally."

Little said following the session "we discussed some of the problems."

The new commission selected James Ellsworth, R-Leads, as vice chairman. He and Dennis Olsen, Idaho Falls, had to flip a coin for the vice chairmanship after both tied with four votes each. Ellsworth, senate president pro tem, won.

Other members of the commission include former State Sen. R.H. "Bill" Young, R-Nampa, representing the public; Robert Donnell, Priest River, forestry; Joe Gordon, Kellogg, mining; Russell Bishop, Coon, recreation and parks; and Weston Henry, Grangeville, oil.

three persons on a consulting basis rather than a full time director to handle all of the categories of study.

Members of the commission are allowed $25 a day and actual necessary expenses while in session.

The appointments of the members are on a two-year basis.

Atty. Gen. Robert Robson met with the commission and told the members, "You are going to get into some interesting but complicated work."

He urged, "the commission members, 'Work with the legislature and the land board.'"

Robson said that a lot of the federal and state land in Idaho is contiguous and "This requires a great deal of careful study. This is very important."

The attorney general said his office would offer all help possible to the new commission. He added, "There has been a long period of neglect on land use policies...Some of it should have been done 50 years ago. But it can't be changed overnight."

"You are just starting new and although you are just dealing with federal lands the decisions you make will affect the state," Robson added.

Meanwhile, the new commission took in testimony. Oregon Attorney A.B. Curtis and Boise attorney Lloyd Haight as ex-officio commission members.

Curtis and Haight are advisory council members to the National Federal Land Law Review Commission.

BIDS OPENED
BOISE (UPI)—Bids were to opened Friday for the new general classroom and faculty office building at Boise State College.

Accord Listed In Walkout Of Educators

CHICAGO (UPI)—The first teachers' strike in Chicago's history was still on today but a tentative settlement has been reached and teacher ratification this weekend would reopen schools Monday.

The agreement was reached at 10 p.m. Thursday, 16 hours after the strike began, closing the city's 523 public schools and giving nearly 600,000 students two days vacation.

John Desmond, president of the striking Chicago Teachers Union, said teachers would continue picketing today until a meeting by the union's house of delegates to ratify the agreement and present it to the membership.

Terms of the settlement were not divulged, pending house of delegates action, but it appeared the package fell short of the CTU's demands for a $150-a-month across-the-board raise for the nearly 23,000 teachers in the system. The CTU claims 17,000 members.

Heart Surgeon Is Divorced

-CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—The wife of Dr. Christian Barnard today applied to the supreme court for a divorce from the surgeon who carried out the world's first successful heart transplant.

Mrs. Louwille Barnard, in a brief appearance before the court, said her husband told her in March that he was going overseas and would not return to her when he came back to South Africa. He did not, she said.

Barnard currently is on another trip abroad and not expected to return here until mid-June.

In the proceedings, which lasted only two minutes, Mrs. Barnard told Justice M. Theron that she had married Barnard in Cape Town on Nov. 6, 1948. He was 25 and she 24. They have two children—a daughter, 19 and a son 18.

"My husband went overseas in March this year. Before he left, he told me he was not returning to me. He returned from overseas but did not come and live with me," Mrs. Barnard said.

According to an agreement filed in court, Barnard will pay his wife $5,000 yearly until her death or remarriage.

Mrs. Barnard will receive full custody of the children, although Barnard will have reasonable access and must pay for their studies and medical expenses.

PET PRODUCTION
About $100,000 each year is paid for Idaho furs. The species sacrificing their pelts are principally beaver, mink and muskrat.

DEAR ABBY: There is a very attractive young woman who works for me. She has a lot of problems, mostly due to a recently broken marriage. I happen to be an older man, and she confides in me, and I know I've been helping her a lot.

When my wife and I go to parties I make sure this young woman has plenty of attention. I always tell her how nice she looks, I dance with her and old to it that she's never sitting alone.

My wife is very jealous. In fact she almost made a scene the last time.

How can I convince my wife that she has nothing to be jealous about? I assure you, she hasn't.

USDA Gets Comments On 'Chickendogs'

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If the Agriculture Department uses the use of chicken in federally inspected hot dogs without explicit labeling, consumers may some day face the prospect of frankfurters which also contain frank, according to a Wisconsin meat packing firm.

The comment was among a series of pro and con arguments in the "chicken frankfurter" debate currently raging soundlessly in the corridors of the department's hearing clerk here.

The department last month proposed to allow up to 15 per cent poultry meat in hot dogs and other cooked sausage without requiring special distinctive product names, such as "chicken frank," which now must be used if poultry is put into federally inspected sausages. The proposal also required, however, that if poultry is used it must be listed in ingredient statement on the product label.

Irrigation Factors For Spuds Listed

BURLEY — The most important factor to the production of smooth, uniform U.S. No. 1 potatoes is the first irrigation.

Geo. Rinebold, Burley, area potato specialist, said first moisture needs must be met with a light irrigation which doesn't drown the loose, mellow soil structure in the potato field.

Results Given For Grange Sewing Event

BUHL — Mrs. E. B. Hicks, Women's activity chairman, reported the results of the all county sewing contest when Cedar Grange met.

Mrs. Gary Grindstaff won second place in the class A division for a dress made and Glenda Wetzel won second place in the class B division for her dress.

Despite protests from consumer groups, the department canceled previous plans to hold public hearing on the issue and instead, invited written comment up to May 25.

The comments, now piling up in a file in the hearing clerk's office, include sharply conflicting advice — some of it directly to the point, some of it rambling into general consumer "gripes" about foods in general and frankfurters in particular.

Mr. Rinebold said among the factors which influence the percentage and degree of malformation in the potato tuber are soil moisture and soil temperature.

Just as the tubers are beginning to set on the potato plant is a critical time to guard against malformation. Lack of soil moisture in combination with high soil temperature for only a few days in June or early July can greatly increase malformation.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Burnett and Mrs. G. G. Cobb are in charge of the grange cleanup committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Burnett and Mrs. G. G. Cobb are in charge of the grange cleanup committee.

The department late last week kicked open an allied controversy by announcing a proposal to limit fat content of cooked sausages to 33 per cent. This plan, replacing a 30 per cent ceiling proposed by the Johnson administration, will be argued out at public hearings here next month.

Attention Needed For Top Tomatoes

Generally, tomatoes are easy to grow. A reasonable amount of attention can bring in a heavy crop of top quality fruit for many weeks.

However, choose varieties suited to your climate. Transplants offered by your nurseryman are the best bet.

Generally, the best time to set out plants is at noon, at the danger of frost has passed.

The ideal transplant is 8 to 10 inches tall, dark green, with a stocky stem and well developed root system. Set plant deeper than it grew originally. Unlike most plants, tomatoes will stand deep planting, with half or more of the stem in the soil. Roots will form along the buried stem.

Big hole wide enough for roots to dig leave air pockets in soil around roots. When plant is set in hole add fine soil over roots and press it down to make sure soil is in direct contact with the roots.

Tomato plants need continuous moisture supply. Avoid fluctuations in soil moisture. Plants may survive a drought but their fruit will be worthless. The root system of a mature tomato plant extends to six feet. If soil is favorable. Start with soil that has been deeply watered. In the early stages of growth, water frequently but lightly, then less frequently and more deeply as the plant develops.

When fertilizing, remember that frequent, light feedings are most effective. For pest control, simply use the "ounce of prevention" technique. Some companies, like the Ortho Division of Chevron Chemical Company, provide highly-specialized products such as light tomato fertilizer, tomato vegetable dusts and other materials for better gardening.

Rustlers Are Still Problem In Idaho

BOISE — No Wyatt Earps ride the night trails and modern-day shoot-outs are not at the OK Corral. But there's one remnant of the colorful old West — the cattle rustler.

James H. Benham, Idaho State Brand Inspector in Boise, former Twin Falls resident and county sheriff, estimates that the loss of cattle to Idaho's Livestock Industry from rustling exceeds a hundred thousand dollars a year.

"We are sure cattle theft today is a bigger problem than ever," said Benham. "There is quite a ready market for livestock, live or butchered."

Idaho has 30 livestock markets and 17 slaughterhouses. However, cattle thieves can also peddle a fresh carcass or a live steer to backyard farmers. Requiring brand inspection makes it difficult to dispose of cattle at these places.

One of the most difficult ones to catch is the "Country Butcher" who simply slaughters a steer or calf at the roadside, takes one or all four quarters, and fills his own freezer with meat," Benham said.

The Bureau cites the case of an Eastern Idaho rancher who was driving down a road when he noticed a car parked on the side. He made a note of the description of the car. This past day a rancher found the entrails of an animal near the area. He called the sheriff and the brand inspector. After tracing the car, officers went to the owner's house and found evidence for the case. An arrest and conviction were made in this case.

"Many thieves hit mainly unbranded cattle," Benham said. "We do not have a mandatory brand law in Idaho, but the only proof of ownership is a registered brand. The law is, if you're going to brand, you must register the brand with the State Branding Office."

Cattle rustling dates back to Biblical times. Civilizations of ancient China and Egypt have recorded the earliest use of brands as identification. Rustling flourished in the United States during the 19th century when the Spaniards drove cattle up from Mexico.

Today the cattle rustler expects and gets a fair trial instead of the quick solution of the old West. The penalty now can be from 1 to 14 years in prison.

One thing is unchanged. Ranchers detest cattle thieves today as much as they did the rustler of the old West.

Prune After Bloom Stage, Says Agent

BURLEY — Prune after bloom for best results from flowering shrubs. That's a bit of advice from J. Wayne Cole, Cassia County extension agent.

The time to prune is as soon as the flowers fade. That's the season to change or control patterns.

Blossoms of next spring will come from the growth that follows this year's pruning. Cole says trimming should be done now rather than in winter because tender growth would be subject to weather damage if cold is severe.

Pruning tips are offered in an extensive bulletin by Anton Horn, horticulturist. A free copy is available at the county agent's office, basement of Cassia County Courthouse.

If plants are bruised or battered it is a good idea to prune the damaged parts immediately. Use a sharp knife for that operation as well as for other pruning. Clean cuts heal faster and are less subject to insect damage. If the cut is longer than half an inch it is advisable to apply a wound dressing.

Pruning plants are recommended. But, Cole said, if you can't get a wound dressing, swab the place with alcohol and coat with shellac white dry. One coat of dressing usually does the job.

Coniferous evergreens are also best pruned in the spring, usually May or June when buds and shoots are new. If pruning is done every year, pruning can be limited to cutting back the new growth. When they need more severe cutting, prune them back to a growing shoot, about the time spring growth begins.

The evergreens usually seal their wounds with natural resins. If no resins form, a coating of dressing is helpful.

Social Security Question-Box

If you have any questions about your social security, address them to: Jim Davis, P.O. Box 1239, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

Q. My husband is nearing 70, yet he has not applied for social security. Will he be eligible if he decides to apply at a later date? For the past several years he has paid no income tax as our farm income has been low. Also, is he eligible for Medicare's without being on social security?

A. Yes, your husband will be eligible if he decides to apply at a later date. This is so because that he has proof of his age and has enough quarters worked under social security. However, since you mention that the farm income has been low, I would advise your husband to come in now and file a claim. He is allowed to have $1,800 net income from the farm and still receive his monthly benefits. He is also eligible to sign up for the Hospital Insurance under Medicare even if he is earning too much to be eligible for monthly benefits. Even though his income exceeds $1,800, he may still be eligible for part of his benefits, so it isn't necessary for him to wait until he is 72 years old to sign up. It would be wise for him to come in now and discuss his situation with me.

Q. Since my husband is an invalid due to multiple sclerosis, I am no longer free to work at anything. He is drawing his social security due to disability. I am 60 years old and have been old and may correct some social security. Is this correct? Please explain.

The earliest age that a wife can receive benefits is age 62 unless she has minor children in her care. However, if anything were to happen to your husband before you are age 62, it might be well to know that a widow can start receiving benefits as early as age 60.

CONSERVATION PRACTICES ARE explained to some of the sixth graders from Minidoka and Cassia Counties during the recent conservation education tour, sponsored by seven governmental agencies, in Howell Canyon, south of Albion. Martel Morache, left, state educator for the Idaho Fish and Game Department, explains the importance of burning these items that can be burned and carrying away those that cannot when they transport them into the forest areas. On the right Dorothy Carroll examines a can of loamy fine sand used to illustrate the types of soils in this area.

1,100 Students Attend Conservation Tour

RUPERT—Another successful conservation education tour, National Forest, the extension Tuesday and Wednesday was a sponsored by seven governmental agencies in cooperation with the Cassia County and Minidoka County School districts at Howell Canyon, about three miles below the Pomerelle Ski Area. Nearly 1,100 sixth graders were given the opportunity to see first-hand what they had been learning about conservation in text books in their classrooms. The tour was conducted by experts from the Sawtooth National Forest, the extension service, the Bureau of Land Management, Bureau of Reclamation, Wildlife Refuge, Soil Conservation Service and the Idaho Fish and Game Department. Early Tuesday morning about 250 Cassia County students arrived at the site and were followed by as many Minidoka County students that afternoon. The same routine was followed for Wednesday's tour.

Along Fences And Canals

Irrigation water was back in the Richfield West Main canal late Saturday after a last repair job on a break above the Cascade Ranch. Water was turned through the Marley siphon after the Friday night canal break.

Ruport from the Markdon and Little Wood River country is expected to Little Wood River because Carver Reservoir in Fall Little Wood River started running uncontrolled Saturday when the reservoir overflowed. No flooding is expected in the Richfield area because of extra water running off into the desert lava lake east of the Dietrich canal at Richfield.

Florida Leads Nation In Number Of Corporate Farms

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A survey of corporate farming showed today that excluding California—Florida leads the nation in the number of corporate farms.

Data published today, confirming an earlier report by the department of Agriculture show the corporate farms can have more than 60 per cent of the farmland in 25 states in the Northeast, Appalachian, Southwestern, Southern Plains and Delta regions.

The reports were nearly identical to similar data published last summer for 22 states in the South, the Pacific Northwest and Alaska.

A final national report including surveys of California, Hawaii and Alaska will be published later.

Today's report reinforced earlier department statements that corporations, especially big, publicly-held corporations, have not yet made major inroads on the traditional U.S. family farm system. Both reports showed that corporate farming is heavily concentrated in a relatively small number of states.

Florida leads the 45 states surveyed 47 in number of corporate farms with 1,215. Montana is second with 764 and Wisconsin third with 624.

Also, a dozen states with 300 or more corporate farms accounted for 53 percent of all farm corporations in the 45 surveyed states. The top 12 also accounted for 65 percent of the $3.1 billion acres farmed by corporations in the 45 states.

Other members of the top dozen state group, with their numbers of corporate farms, were: Colorado 407, Idaho 368, Nebraska 407, Texas 405, Washington 381, Utah 384, Indiana 315, Wyoming 302, and Arkansas 301.

Today's report on 25 states also showed as did the 22 state report last year—that most farming corporations were not the massive, publicly-owned, multi-industry giants usually pictured when corporate farming is discussed. Instead, nearly two-thirds of the corporations in the 25 states were family-

How to keep alfalfa weevils from eating holes in your yields

The most effective way to keep alfalfa weevils, as well as other destructive pests from taking a share of the profit from alfalfa out of your pocketbook is to control them with GUTHION Insecticide.

Year after year, growers who have applied GUTHION on each cutting have reported a consistently healthy, high yielding stand.

And by following application directions on the label, you've not encountered any weevil problems.

So, for top performance against alfalfa weevils, as well as other pest problems, just bugs, grasshoppers, fleas, beetles, and caterpillars, use GUTHION Insecticide.

"JUST AS GOOD after nearly 30 years," says Faye Chatfield, Lincoln County commissioner, left, as he samples water delivered by the Lone Star Water Users Association, a system that was constructed in 1940. This domestic water system was the first in the United States to be financed with a then new loan program from the Farm Security Administration, now the Farmers Home Administration. Standing in the center is Frank Dallas, Lincoln county FHA supervisor, and Ervin F. Braun, Shoshone, right, is one of the original association members.

It was in 1940 that the area 10 miles northwest of Shoshone was opened for settlement. There were no ready sources of domestic water, so five families in the immediate area wanted drinking water in the winter months, when water was out of the irrigation ditches, water also had to be hauled for the livestock. WORKING OUT on the exerciser at Mr. and Mrs. Dale Kilgler's "horse haven," are several thoroughbred racing horses. The set-up, being built by the Kilglers, is a lay-up horse for race horses that need rest and recuperation from races. The "horse haven" is located near Rupert.

Rupert Couple Building "Horse Haven"

RUPERT — Kilgler is not an unknown name among farmers and ranchers in the Mini-Cassia area, and is now becoming more known in racing track circles. Dale Kilgler, who has owned ranches in the Minidoka area since 1955, has turned his time and attention to thoroughbred horses and is now in the process of erecting a lay-up "home" for racing horses that need rest and recuperation. Juanita, or Mrs. Kilgler, owns the land with her husband. They recently sold all of their row crop land, about 1,800 acres, having 8,000 acres in pasture, hay and range. Some 1,000 head of herefords were raised on the Kilgler ranches annually.

The couple has become increasingly interested in the thoroughbred race horse business, first as an avocation, now as a vocation. "As we began making the rounds at the California track," Kilgler explained, "we discovered that the California horse owners were looking for an ideal place to lay-up their horses after a rough racing season."

To contain the animals, the Kilglers are constructing 50 individual paddocks, some dry lot and other pasture paddocks. Fifteen of the structures are complete to date, and each is about an acre in area. Also at the new site, a large corral for training horses has been built as has a 10-stall concrete barn. Each stall in the barn, which was constructed by Victor Braegger, is 12 foot square.

A regulation half-mile race track south of the paddocks was finished in 1958. Future plans call for a housing development at the top of the hill north of the paddocks, where the Kilgler home will be built. A lake in the southern corner of the tract is also planned for development, and plans call for eventual expansion of the horse site to surrounding properties in the area. In the southwestern corner of the site, the old Paul Freight Depot has been moved in and when remodeled will be used for office, living quarters, and the stallion barn. The Kilglers, who have four daughters ranging in age from 2 years to 13 years, own 18 horses. Among them is a thoroughbred stallion from Ireland who was once anticipated to be the two-year-old of the year in Europe. Adriatic Star, a 6-year-old was purchased four years ago by Los Angeles attorney Neil McCarthy for $100,000. The McGraw Trust Company, Ireland, owner of the famous Sir Milstein produced Adriatic Star and sent him to the Ascot races as a juvenile. He twice finished in money six outings. He has also won three stakes races and placed in three others. He has raced at Santa Anita and Caliente. Adriatic Star will be at stud at the Kilgler ranch all year. Five other horses owned by the Kilglers are presently running in the Hollywood Park races in California. Those races are ranked fourth in the United States. One of the horses, Song and Dance Boy, recently placed first by a length and a half in a $10,000 claiming race which held a purse of $4,000. The Kilglers also claim Sunday Club, who broke the track record for the half mile at the Caliente races in 1958, with a time of 45 seconds. The mare recently had a foal

BRIDGE

By Jacoby

RHYTHM MAKES FOR POOR BIDDING

Rhythm is fine for musicians. It's dangerous for bridge players. In particular a bridge player should be careful about getting into rhythm in his bidding.

Today's hand was used by the late Albert Morehead as an example of the danger of getting into a doubling rhythm. AI held the North cards and made a sound vulnerable overall of one heart.

West couldn't double two clubs but he hoped that his partner could. Hence his bid. Now it was up to AI. He was more than happy about the club cue. His partner had found a home. What could AI do to get doubled at a low contract in clubs?

AI found a way. He rebid two hearts. East doubled gratefully. He had AI on the tossing fork. South tried a second rescue — two spades this time. West doubled like the trumpet of doom. Now AI was ready to spring his trap. He ran to three clubs. The doubling rhythm was in full swing. East doubted that the combination of a very bad trump break with no aces or kings in the South hand, but South decided to try to get AI out of his troubles and rescued to two clubs.

It wasn't sound enough. If South had let AI suffer he would have been set one trick due to the combination of a very bad trump break with no aces or kings in the South hand, but South decided to try to get AI out of his troubles and rescued to two clubs.

Everyone passed. West opened the ace of diamonds and when the smoke of battle had cleared away. South had just managed to make his three clubs doubled.

East shouldn't have walked into the trap — but he did. Rhythm plus AI's deception had accomplished his downfall.

What do you do now? And three questions. There is no hurry at this point.

TODAY'S QUESTION Your partner rebids to three no-trump. What do you do now?

Dog That Sips Water Is Believed To Be Dangerous

A ST. LOUIS animal expert Q. "WHEN DOES a baby's hair start to grow?" A. About six months before it's born.

up its water; but slips it instead, it is apt to be dangerous. . . .

HAIR — These hair tatters don't know how to name their colors. Am I carping? Guess so, but let's have at it. Why do they identify their rines with such inexpressive labels as "Slater Burnt Umber" and "Autumn Ecstasy Auburn" and "Young Ansel Paley"? They ought not. Now about some hair-dye nomenclature that's a little less arch? Like "Tire Iron Black" or "Trout Belly Gray" or "Primer Coat-Red" or "Paper Bark Brown" or "Whisky Blonde"? I don't intend to drop this matter.

"CATHERINES — Patron saint of unmarried ladies is St. Catherine. For this reason, spinsters some years ago were called to us as Catherinees. Our Name Game man finds that odd. Does not lie with his understanding of girls' and women's every life variation thereof. Catherinees not only tend to marry, he insists, but they tend to marry young. Believe he's right. Never met a spinster named Catherine.

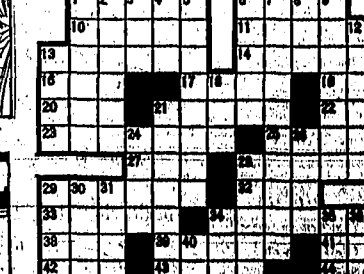

ADLINE — When our Name Game man insisted no woman over 67 was named Adeline, he was operating under the delusion that Adeline was coined 67 years ago by Harry Armstrong in that ditty, "Sweet Adeline." Such was Mr. Armstrong's contention. However, that's wrong. Adeline was mentioned in Charlotte M. Yonge's "History of Christian Names," published more than 100 years ago. And even now, elderly Adelines abound.

Knudson And Cupit Score 5-Under 67s For Early Lead In Atlanta Tourney

ATLANTA (UPI) — Brassy George Knudson of Canada and Jackie Cupit, youngest of the five golfing Cupits, finished early with a 5-under 67s Thursday and saw that score stand up for a one-stroke lead in the opening round of the Atlanta Golf Classic.

Right on their heels with 68s over the hilly, 7,053-yard Atlanta Country Club course in a hot, muggy round that left all the golfers wringing wet were leading golf king Arnold Palmer, Mason Rudolph and young Bob Johnson, a former stevedore from Tacoma, Wash., who is about to lose his PGA card for playing so poorly of late.

Knudson, who won the Phoenix and Tucson Opens back to back last year, and Cupit, whose last victory was the 1968 Cajun Classic, were among Thursday's early starters in the $125,000 tournament. Knudson, 31, started on the back nine and was even with par at the turn, but then ripped off five birdies over an eight-hole span with a streak of hot putts. That 18 was his least spectacular but just as effective as he started on the front side with a 34 and then came home with a 31.

Astros Drop Expos 7-4 For Fifth In Row

HOUSTON (UPI) — Joe Morgan drove in three runs with a double and a grand slam and Jim Wynn knocked in two more with his ninth homer of the season Thursday night as the Houston Astros beat the Montreal Expos 7-4 for their fifth straight victory and seventh in their last eight games.

Yogi Berra went on a 2-3 lead in the seventh when Curt Blefary singled off starter Larry Jaster and Wynn followed with his home run. The Astros added three more in the second when Norm Miller walked, Jesus Alou singled and Don Bryant doubled home Miller. Alou scored on Blefary's infield out and Morgan singled in Bryant.

Morgan cracked a two-run home run in the seventh after Alou's infield hit and a walk to Blefary. Montreal scored three unearned runs in the fourth on only one hit. Manny Mota was safe on Doug Rader's high throw from third, Rusty Staub walked and Wilson threw high attempting to force Staub at second. Bob Bailey singled for two runs and he scored on John Bateman's forceout.

Ferguson And Cubs Blank Dodgers 3-0

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Don Kessinger kept alive his streak of reaching base in each of Chicago's 40 games by singling in two runs in the seventh and Ferguson Jenkins hurled a four-hitter Thursday night as the Cubs blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0.

It was the 11th shutout for a Cubs hurler in the 40 games since Ferguson's debut. Kessinger, hitting a stout .329 going into the game, was robbed of a hit in the third on a leaping grab of his inner by third baseman Bill Sudake.

But the Chicago shortstop delivered a wo-out, bases-loaded single after loser Bill Singer in the seventh. Wynn, who won his first four games, is now 6-4. Singer fanned nine men, giving him 69 strikeouts.

Idaho To Honor Former Coach

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — The University of Idaho's new baseball field will be named in honor of Guy P. Wicks, former Idaho athletic coach, Ernest W. Hartung, UI president, said Thursday.

Wicks, who died last year, served at the University of Idaho for more than 20 years in every athletic capacity. Hartung said the field would be dedicated Friday, preceding Idaho's District Seven NCAA regional playoff game with the Air Force Academy. Wicks' widow will be guest of honor at the ceremonies, Hartung said.
