Higher Tax No Inflation Cure, Says Banker

SUN VALLEY — Higher taxation is not a solution to inflation in America, the president of the Idaho Bankers' Association told the Times-News in an interview here Monday.

Richard M. Leisman, executive vice-president of the Bank of Idaho, said banks, like most other businesses, are more optimistic about the dollar's future.

Mr. Leisman said it's possible for Americans to talk themselves into a depression.

He said Idaho banks should be able to take care of legitimate money needs of Idaho people but that the national level said easy credit has caused the current money problem.

"This has also encouraged the government to raise discount rates," he said.

"This has caused inflation to rise to eight and a half per cent, effective last June."

He continued, "This has caused Idaho's prime rate to jump to nine and a half to 10 per cent." Mr. Leisman said prime rates in New York and other major money markets are the amount of interest blue chip companies must pay for their money.

Mr. Leisman said the Idaho Bankers' Association convention being held at this resort retreat.

The interview was held during the first session of the Idaho Bankers' Association convention being held at this resort retreat.

Mr. Leisman said the money market in Idaho is good but added credit will be tight and supervised.

"Idaho is not as tight with loans as other areas in America. But credit is closely screened and there will be no speculative loans in the Gem State for some time," he said.

"Right money had an unstable economy were blamed on the conflict in Vietnam. He said, "If the government takes the appropriate measures to stop the war, things will get back to normal."

HE'S 'VINDICATED,' SAYS Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, pictured in Bimbi, Grand Bahamas. Rep. Powell said he felt "vindicated" by the Supreme Court decision which "restored" his faith in the three branches of government. The Supreme Court ruled that Congress erred in denying Powell his seat. U.S. Forces Launch Vietnam Offensive

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command disclosed today it swept back into the A Shau Valley near Hamburger Hill the mountain that was captured in a controversial and costly battle and then abandoned.

The new operation called Montgomery Rendezvous began five days ago and is continuing in 100 companies killed, spokesman said. U.S. losses were listed at 21 killed and 130 wounded in fighting near the hill that overlooks the border of North and South Vietnam.

Size of the operation was not officially disclosed but a spokesman said it involved a "multi-battalion" force of New Airborne Division paratroopers, the same division that a month ago carried the brunt of an earlier operation, Apache Snow, in which the 4th Airborne Division paratroopers of Hamburger Hill was fought.

A multi-battalion force can range from a few hundred to 800 or more men. Fifty-three paratroopers were killed and more than 300 were wounded in an 11-day battle to capture the hill which is on the western edge of the A Shau Valley two miles from the border of Laos. A spokesman said "many" how "close the present fighting was to the military spokesman said U.S. and South Vietnamese troops broke a Communist ambush in the Central Highlands and turned back two ground attacks near the Demilitarized Zone and on the approaches to Saigon. He said the fighting which killed 211 Communist guerrillas.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese stopped up the level of their shelling attacks with barrages into 25 miles, including Saigon where two rounds landed in the heart of the city but did no damage. One round fell a block from the U.S. Embassy.

Renewal Unit Buys 11th Bit Of Property

Officials of the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency have purchased the 11th piece of property in the downtown improvement project.

The property is behind the First National Bank and measures 100 by 125 feet. It is an old building being used for storage space at the present time.

Officials did not reveal the purchase price.

James Kelsch, executive director for the agency, said there are no plans for use of the property at the present time. He said the urban renewal project in Twin Falls is proceeding on schedule, and added that a "downtown improvement" would be a reality in three years if the present pace is kept.

The effort is to change the downtown area into a modern shopping mall with adequate parking space and easy access to cars.

The purchase of property began earlier this year.

Officials of the agency are now working with individuals in the downtown area on relocation, Mr. Kelsch said.

Idaho Soldier Dies In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department Monday identified another Idaho serviceman killed in the Vietnam war.

He was Army Pfc. Kenneth L. Small, 31, of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Small, Salmon, Idaho. Officials said Small was killed as a result of hostile action. He was among 10 U.S. servicemen identified by the department as killed in recent fighting.

Sawtooth Recreational Bill Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Forest Service has been asked to come up with more accurate cost estimates for the proposed Sawtooth National Recreation Area in Idaho.

The recommendation came from Chairman Alan Bible, D-Nev., of the Senate Parks and Recreation subcommittee during a hearing on legislation to establish the new recreation area. Bible said current estimates of costs and to get together with the sponsors of the bill on needed changes.

The bill is sponsored by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Lon B. Jordan, R-Idaho.

Church at first expressed hope that the bill, similar to one taken up last year, could be sent to the Senate floor this week. However, it appeared that several amendments, requested by the Nixon Administration might slow action.

Among the amendments asked by Cliff was one providing for what he termed "reversal condemnation." This would permit land owners to ask the government to take over their lands and carry out the "reversal condemnation." Cliff, who at one point said a land acquisition might cost as much as $3 million, said it was not known how much the "reversal condemnation" proposal might add to costs.

Defiant House Assails Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House members, angered at the Supreme Court ruling they had no right to exclude Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, lately vowed they wouldn't let the bill for the Harlem Democrat's back pay even if the court orders them to pay it.

"We'll never pay it," was the defiant word around the House.

Most members argued hotly the Supreme Court ruling was no business considering the case of Powell's 22-month exclusion from the 80th Congress. They said the Constitution gives the House the exclusive right to judge the qualifications of members. But the court said the Constitution sets the qualifications for House members and Powell was eligible.

Monday's 7 to 1 ruling, which also sent to the lower courts the question of Powell's right to back pay, cleared up the last of the legal problems that have beset the Harlem lawmaker since 1968 and kept him heavily in the March 1967, House vote to exclude him.

And it threatened to put the House itself in the contempt of court role that dogged Powell for years after he refused to pay a slander judgment against a Harlem widow he called a "bag woman" for police bribetakers.

Under the court's direction, members of the House themselves could not be subject to any eventual court order that might grow out of the case. The court said members of the House such as the sergeant-at-arms could be defendants but not members themselves.

But since the members would be subject to a court order to issue any eventual pay order for Powell, they do in effect hold the purse strings.

And it appeared that because of the various legal appeals left open to both sides, any eventual court order for payment might not come until well into next year. The case could even wind up in the Supreme Court again, by which time there would be a new chief justice—Warren E. Burger—and a replacement for Abe Fortas. The color of the case, and the court as well, could be changed by then.

Priory Will Be Dedicated Here Today

The Most Rev. Sylvester W. Treinen, Bishop of Boise, will lead a delegation of about 40 priests at the dedication today of the St. Benedict's Student Center and Priory near the College of Southern Idaho.

The dedication marks the end of a construction project that started late last year.

The priory, operated by Benedictine monks for the students at the college, is modern in design.

Ceremonies will officially start with a mass. Dedication will follow with the Rev. Fr. Treinen making several remarks on the use of the priory in Twin Falls.

The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Edmund Corder, pastor of St. Edward's Church in Twin Falls, also is expected to speak.

City To Ask Commission For Tax Ceiling Waiver

Twin Falls City Councilmen Monday moved to bring before the State Tax Commission the city's appeal for taking more than the ceiling imposed by the 40th Legislature.

The councilmen directed the city manager and city attorney to draft a petition to bring before the State Tax Commission to seek a waiver of the tax ceiling which limits the city's taxing to 104 per cent of the preceding year's taxation. The waiver is requested for only one year.

The city found itself in a legal bind when it found itself limited by the 104 per cent retroactive limitation after the city had approved and had begun to spend a budget which taxed at levels above the ceiling.

The commissioners decided to appeal directly to the tax commission rather than bring the issue to a vote of city taxpayers — the two avenues to bypass the ceiling permitted in the controversial House Bill 304 which imposed the limitation.

Should the commission deny the city's appeal, the city has the final recourse of appeal through the courts.

In other business the City Council unanimously approved the closure of the northwest two-thirds of the alley in the block bordered by Main and Second avenues East and Seventh and Eighth streets east. The vacated alleyway will be diverted to Second Avenue East and sitting at Eighth Avenue East.

The alley closure is contingent on a number of steps by the applicant, Theisen Motors. The auto company, which owns land on both sides of the alley, must maintain an easement for utilities now using the alley, including telephones, power, sewer and gas lines.

And the company must install curbing along the new alleyway exit to Second Avenue East upon the city's request, and must install fence screening residential property immediately adjacent to the proposed alley exit.

The alley will be converted to one-way traffic entering from Second Avenue East and sitting at Eighth Avenue East.

In other action, the councilmen:

Agreed to support a bid from Trans Magic Airlines before the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for intrastate air service.

Agreed to request from Air West — at Air West's bidding — jet service to the Twin Falls Airport.

Authorized renewal of arrangements with Sawtooth National Forest for use of certain airport facilities in firefighting operations.

Mideast Gun Duel Kills U.S. Tourist

By United Press International

A 25-year-old American woman tourist and an Israeli civilian were killed today and four other persons including an American were wounded when they were caught in an artillery and mortar duel between Israel and Jordan forces near the Dead Sea. She was the first tourist to be killed in the border warfare.

The Israeli army withheld name of the victim of the three-hour border clash but Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem identified the dead woman as Shirley Anderson of New York and her companion as Eileen Bonnet, 27, of California. Miss Bonnet suffered a shrapnel wound in the arm.

The two women had been in Jerusalem on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land on their return to the United States.

Also wounded in the attack was a 38-year-old Arab taxi driver who drove the two girls from Jerusalem to the Dead Sea. The woman was changing for a swim when a Russian-made 122-millimeter shell slammed into Qalya Beach on the northern shore of the Dead Sea in what is now occupied Jordan.

Shrapnel riddled the cabana in which the two women were changing and set fire to two taxis parked nearby.

Officials said it was the first time a tourist had been killed during Arab-Israeli fighting since the end of the June, 1967 six-day war.

A Jordanian military spokesman in Amman, Jordan, said the battle lasted more than 90 minutes but reported no Jordanian casualties. He pinpointed the location as near Al-Maghtas, four miles north of the Dead Sea.

The new clash came as a leader of a Palestinian guerrilla group said that his followers have changed their tactics from hit and run to limited confrontations with the Israelis.

Loan

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Halley has been awarded a $946,000 loan by the Farmers Home Administration for its water and sewer project, says a Tuesday telegram from the agency.

The loan will provide for construction of modern sewer collection and treatment facilities, including a new pump and spring development transmission and distribution lines.

Hearing Held For Accused Wife Slayer

BURLEY — Ray J. Messinger, 38, charged with first degree murder Friday night after his wife was slain to death, was arraigned Monday in Cassia County Probate Court before Judge Vern Carter.

The accused requested a preliminary hearing, which was set for 9:30 a.m. June 26 in Probate Court.

Herman Bedke, Cassia County Public Defender, was appointed to represent Messinger in the case. Gordon Nielson, prosecuting attorney, is representing the state in the action.

Mr. Messinger's wife, Martha, 52, died about 7 p.m. Friday from a single shotgun blast in the stomach. The defendant was arrested about two hours later in Burley.

He is being held, without bond, in the Cassia County jail.

Mess

Dogs killed an estimated 350 chickens belonging to Bryan Plett, 233 Eldridge Ave. Twin Falls County sheriff's officers reported Monday.

An investigation into the incident is continuing.

"It's real bad. A real mess," one deputy said after visiting the scene.

Dogs got into several chicken pens and apparently ran wild for some time, killing all chickens in sight.

Charges Are Contemplated In Shooting

JEROME — Law enforcement officials here reported they are considering filing charges in connection with a shooting at Devil's Corral Sunday night.

Richard O. Allen, 16, Route 3, Twin Falls, was rushed to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Sunday with a bullet in his foot. He was treated and released, hospital officials reported.

Monday, Jerome County Prosecutor Sy Kolman said, "We are contemplating filing charges in this matter."

It was learned Mr. Allen and another person, not identified, were at the corral. There was an argument and several shots were fired at Mr. Allen. Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies did the initial investigation, then turned the case over to Jerome County officials.

Devil's Corral is in Jerome County.

Mr. Kolman said he would make an announcement if charges are filed.

CSI Board Reviews New Laws

Legislation affecting Idaho's junior colleges was reviewed Monday night by CSI attorney Robert Alexander, who said "I feel we have a much more workable tuition bill than we started with four years ago."

The review was made at the regular meeting of the board of trustees at the College of Southern Idaho. Mr. Alexander said one of the most important portions of the legislation provides that area counties only are liable for tuition of those students they have certified.

In light of this, students planning to attend CSI this fall should approach their board of county commissioners 30-45 days before enrollment so that board can certify to the college those students who actually are residents of the county from which they applied.

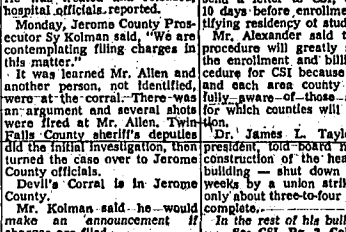

He said each county then must send a letter to CSI, at least 10 days before enrollment, certifying residency of students.

Mr. Alexander said the new procedure will greatly simplify the enrollment and billing procedure for CSI because both it and each area county will be fully aware of those students for which counties will pay tuition.

Dr. James L. Taylor, CSI president, told board members construction of the health-P.E. building is shut down for two weeks by a union strike — is only about three-to-four per cent complete.

In the rest of his building report CSI, Fr. 2, Col. 8.

Prince Charles Expresses His Sense Of Duty, Responsibility

LONDON (UPI)—Britain is seeing more of its future king and liking what it sees.

Prince Charles, who will be 21 in November, has matured from a gangly, bashful teenager to a candid and sensitive heir apparent who expresses a sense of duty about his job and country.

The enthusiastic press and public reaction to the Prince's first newspaper interview—with the British Press Association, a domestic agency—was typical of the good reviews he has drawn in his increasing public appearances.

"If every public figure interviewed as well as he did, they would be doing very well," a member of Parliament said of the Prince's interview in a Thursday which covered subjects from university disorders to the role of modern royalty.

Another MP called him "refreshing, frank and direct in his opinions."

"The Prince thinks one of the reasons for recent university troubles is that some students do not have a sense of responsibility. I can't help feeling that a lot of trouble at universities is because people don't have any responsibility to do anything in particular," the son of Queen Elizabeth says. He is a Cambridge student and is enrolled this summer at Aberystwyth University prior to his July 1 investiture as Prince of Wales.

"I'm not the demagogic type, unless it came to the absolute crunch, you know, and I felt this is the only way of getting something done. I felt strongly enough about it."

"I always try and keep away from mobs because I think the effect they can have on the individual is no danger. Some of those people who've demonstrated in Grosvenor Square (site of the U.S. Embassy) never went out with the intention of shouting or bashing a policeman on the head, but they were amazed when they found they did," the Prince says.

Charles considers himself not as hidebound by conventions and precedents as many people think.

"I have this feeling of duty towards England, towards the United Kingdom, the Commonwealth, and I feel that there is a great deal I can do if I am given the chance to do it. I, don't, think I would change my life."

Duty, he adds, might impel Jim to serve in the British Armed Forces, although he has not made a definite decision yet.

Black Panthers: Milking The Program

WASHINGTON—The notorious Black Panther Party, which preaches and practices murderous violence and armed revolution, is reaching out for a new class of disciples — ghetto children.

For that purpose the BPP has launched what it emphatically calls the "Breakfast for Children Program."

Scope of this plan is nationwide. It is already under way in a number of cities, foremost among them Oakland, Calif., a main BPP headquarters, and Kansas City, Mo.

Money, food and equipment to feed ghetto children are being obtained from neighborhood merchants and others through strong-armed "donations" and "contributions."

The nature and vicious background of this project is chillingly portrayed in an article in a recent issue of The Black Panther, official publication of the BPP. It discusses ways and means to induce merchants to "cooperate," as follows: "The Black Panther Party has founded the avocative business men infesting the black community who rob, steal and abuse the black people. Some of them have come across with donations but other live-time stores charging space-age prices for stone-age quality food have refused to cooperate. Therefore we call on the masses of oppressed people to kill this worm of economic exploitation. "Large businesses (a m i n g some) have been the main source of food for the program. The price of milk is too high for them to donate. (Obscurely) Who sets the price? The (x)chain store refused to cooperate with the people's revolutionary program because they claimed they already donate food to Soul 'In."

revolutionary song of "We want a pork chop off the pig." (In ghetto vernacular, "pig" means police.)

It Makes Sense

A few, a very few, voices in the noisy chorus of Negro leadership have been striking some discordant notes recently on the drive for black studies which figures so prominently in today's campus turmoil.

Bayard Rustin in particular has been outspoken in questioning the value of grounding in Swahili and soul culture when what counts where the action is, the mainstream of American business and professional life, is how you handle language and figures. And a piece of the action supposedly is what the black revolution is all about.

For its pains, the lonely minority usually succeeds only in bringing down upon itself the wrath of the militants. Yet cold facts from the employment marketplaces increasingly support the minority rather than the militants.

A current survey by United Press International for example, indicated that black can be not only beautiful but, for the technically qualified, highly profitable as well. A check of placement offices at 15 colleges and universities shows that the job-seeking Negro graduate not only has it better than ever before but, in some fields, better than his white classmates.

Demand by business and industry for black graduates is at an all-time high.

So are beginning salaries, topping $8,000 in many fields.

But since the demand for their services often exceeds the supply, black graduates may pull down even more, sometimes 10 to 20 per cent more than the starting salaries for whites.

Even so, many jobs for which employers are actively seeking blacks go unfilled.

All of this, of course, applies to qualified graduates. And employers define qualification as a thorough grounding in the essential business, industrial and professional skills, not as a firm grasp on the philosophies of Kwame Nkrumah and Malcolm X.

There may well be a place for black studies on the American campus (although there is considerable sentiment that it is the white student, shut out in most cases by the black-only policies of the militants, who might benefit most). If nothing else, they may have their symbolic value as a recognition by the academic community of the Negro identity. Already there is evidence from the campuses that once black studies are accepted, once the symbolic goal is achieved, interest in the new courses tends to slacken. Class enrollments are initially high but shrink rapidly.

Whatever the value and future of black studies, preoccupation with this new wrinkle in academic introversion will only short-change black students themselves.

In the job market the Negro may not yet, may never, have it made. But when he possesses the skills in demand, he has an ever better opportunity of making it.

MR. SPECTATOR

Big And Juicy!

Everyone has a press agent — and the hamburger industry is no exception. The other day Mr. Spectator received the above picture of a big — and juicy — hamburger together with a story that made him want to run right out and have one.

Of course, Mr. Spectator is an old hamburger — rather a hamburger, leaving the old out — authority. He has been eating them for years because he just can't afford much else.

As a kid in high school he can remember when you would go to the hamburger stand down the street in his hometown and get 12 of the things — that's right, a dozen of them — for $1. No trimmings for that price but you could put on all the mustard and pickles you wanted to.

Well, so much for the "old days." Now the hamburgers have p r e s agents, as we said, and so we thought you might be interested in the latest release along this line. Read it then try to order a steak!

"Drive-in hamburgers are big business. This year people will drive in and buy about 2.6 billion of them. And the number grows every year. "Americans are crazy about the hamburger. And the good part of it all is they're getting better all the time . . . the ones you buy ready-made, that is. Of course, there are exceptions. Some places are still serving up the skimpy kind, the little dab of burned meat hiding in the entrap . . . the kind anyone can make at home.

"Ever wonder why you can go buy perfectly good ground round or hamburger at the supermarket, cook it with loving care, and it still turns out like a burnt offering?"

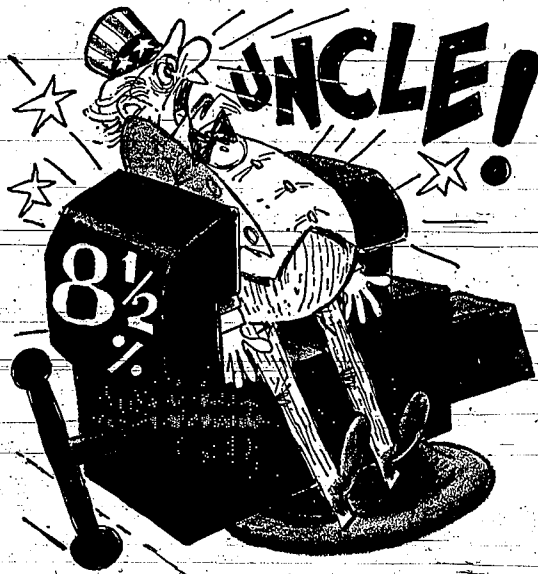

"It's all in the mix. Many drivers are now using ingredients in their patties that keep them from cooking away. At the same time, this new kind of patty is tastier and also even more nutritious.

"The most widely used of these anti-shrink, juice-holding ingredients is soy protein. It's a 70 per cent pure protein made from the meat of the American soy bean. When mixed with pure ground beef in very small quantities (usually less than 3 per cent) it not only boosts protein content of the patty, but also helps the patty hold its moisture all through cooking.

"The result is a bigger, juicier, more nutritious patty that tastes a lot better. Home cooks can't yet buy soy proteins that they can mix in hamburger meat to get the same results. But there's a next best thing.

"Most stores now carry frozen, pre-shipped patties. Many of these have soy protein added for better cooking and eating quality. "You'll be able to tell from cooking them and from the compliments later on. Try some out, and settle on the brand that gives you the best results."

Oil Control Costs Us Money

(Editor's Note: Andrew Tully is touring Europe. Today's column is guest written by Sen. Philip A. Hart.)

WASHINGTON — Government production limits and import quotas controlling the supply of oil cost this nation $4 billion a year.

The consumer picks up that tab by paying a nickel more per gallon for gasoline and heating fuel than he would if competition were allowed in the oil industry.

As high as these figures seem, they were among the more conservative estimates made at Senate Anti-Trust and Monopoly Subcommittee hearings on the effect of government policies on the oil industry.

Oil importers set the annual cost as high as $7 billion, not including tax revenue lost through the 27.5 per cent oil depletion allowance.

Dr. Walter Adams, acting president of Michigan State University and a distinguished economist, says the cost probably is far greater.

Dr. Adams points out that petroleum supplies 75 per cent of all energy consumed in the United States, and the higher price multiplies as it is passed along. He adds that the high price of domestic oil makes it difficult for the U. S. petrochemical industry to compete with foreign firms using cheaper oil.

The price differential between domestic and foreign oil is spelled out this way: Middle East crude oil can be delivered to our East Coast ports for a barrel cost of $12.50. Texas crude costs $3.75 a barrel at the same ports.

Import quotas limit the amount of foreign oil available, and production limits on U. S. wells help protect the domestic market from price competition.

An Interior Department study estimated that the price of oil east of the Rocky Mountains is $1.50 a barrel higher. If import quotas were abolished, critics of our oil policy further contend that.

The solution to the problem is quite simple: A law should be passed prohibiting anyone from going to an airport who doesn't have a plane ticket and be within 500 yards of the airport an hour before flight time and still miss a plane.

National security requires that the U. S. produce enough of its own oil to be self-sufficient in war and immune from "diplomatic blackmail" by oil-exporting nations in peace.

The depletion allowance provides capital to explore for new sources and production, and import limits ensure a thriving domestic oil industry.

Critics are quick to point out that a thriving oil industry uses reserves which might otherwise be available in a world crisis.

Thus the hearings have raised the basic question of whether oil program hurts rather than helps the national security.

Further, the hearings have made clear that even if the aims of the program are justified, alternative policies should be considered to achieve these aims at less cost to the consumer.

Airport Problem

WASHINGTON — The thing about flying is not that it has plenty of time on the ground at airports to think about it. I have been making a personal study of airport congestion, and I believe I know how to solve the problem.

Airport congestion, particularly in the spring and summer months, is not caused by people who fly, but rather by people who come to the airport to see other people off.

For every person with a ticket to another destination, there are five standing around who have no place to go. I don't remember when I became aware of this, but it must have been several months ago when I was taking a flight to Joplin. There must have been 200 people standing at the gate, and I had no idea how we were all going to fit in the plane, which was a DC-3.

But when our flight was called, only four of us got in the plane. The rest stood there waving handkerchiefs and holding their children on their shoulders.

As anyone who travels by air knows, the lineup on the runway to the airport can be bumper to bumper, and the parallel lanes are jammed with cars of people seeing other people off. It's gotten so bad that you are within 500 yards of the airport an hour before flight time and still miss a plane.

The solution to the problem is quite simple: A law should be passed prohibiting anyone from going to an airport who doesn't have a plane ticket and be within 500 yards of the airport an hour before flight time and still miss a plane. Now I know this sounds like harsh medicine, as people like to see their loved ones take off and arrive. But at the same time, if you have to make a choice between those who are trying to take a plane as against those who are only there to wave goodbye, you must be a little bit of the bona fide traveler.

The reason why I believe my plan will work is that I've been taking a survey among people at airports who have been seeing other people off, and it turned out that 70 per cent of them really didn't want to be there.

At Kennedy Airport, where most of the flights go to Europe, one man said, "My brother-in-law and sister-in-law insisted we see them off so we could eat our hearts out."

A woman at Washington National said, "I hang around the airport because it's the only thing my husband sees the children."

A man at Los Angeles International Airport said bitterly, "My mother-in-law insists we see her off so she wouldn't have to tip a porter."

Of course, there are going to be some hard-core cases in my plan is adopted. For example, the other day I was on my way to Atlanta and I saw a man and woman at my gate in "tender embraces" my heart went out to both of them. He was leaving and she was crying, and I thought to myself how cruel it would have been if the woman wasn't permitted to come to the airport to say goodbye.

But then we took off and two hours later when our plane landed in Atlanta another woman ran up to the same man and began running from her eyes.

Now I know this sounds like harsh medicine, as people like to see their loved ones take off and arrive. But at the same

Orange Juice

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You discussed the matter of orange juice (fresh or frozen) losing its vitamin content after a day or so.

I use frozen juice which I keep four or five days in a tightly sealed jar in the refrigerator. Can I use it any faster. Does that mean it is valueless as a source of vitamin C? — L. G.

I think you are overvaluing the vitamin C in orange juice or other juices begin losing vitamin C fairly soon — but that doesn't mean that they lose all of it.

It's fine to know these things — that the vitamin C declines. But don't think your orange juice is "valueless." (Besides, it contains other nutrients.)

Don't mix or prepare it in needlessly large amounts. Don't prepare it too long in advance of drinking.

That's why you'll get maximum vitamin C. But don't be disturbed if it takes you a few days to use up a batch.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could eating grapes daily be harmful? I've discovered that if I eat them in six prunes in mid-evening my blood pressure is practically non-existent and my hemorrhoids are so much better.

Also please send me your booklet "How to Stop Sinus Trouble," for which I enclosed 35 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. — Mrs. J. G.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How can I know if I have gonorrhea? I've heard it's hard to detect in women. I have read that I'll have to consult my doctor, but what are the possible results if not treated? — T. Y.

If you think you have it but don't want to consult the doctor, you can't get a test. I can do for you.

Consequence of not having it treated? Chronic infection; sterility; prospect of including others in your family — including your children; disease of bladder, kidneys, arthritis, heart disease; even blood poisoning.

There are an estimated 12,000 children in the United States who get the germ from toys, towels, etc., although adults rarely contract it other than by sexual contact.

I have no sympathy for people who think they have a venereal disease and won't go to the doctor, or for people who refuse to themselves, their families, and their friends.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 70 and have had two doctors and a specialist, tell me nothing can be done to relieve flatulence (gas) caused by dairy products. What do you say about this? — R. S. G.

If you go as far as proved to be a result of milk products, it's as simple as that. Most such patients can tolerate a little and if they stay below that level, they aren't bothered.

What can you do? Avoid milk. It's as simple as that. Most such patients can tolerate a little and if they stay below that level, they aren't bothered.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble" is the title of my booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is and encouraging sinus sufferers to do something about it. For a copy write to Dr. Thosteson in care of "Times-News," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson is happy to receive letters on subjects he can do. Whenever possible uses them in his column. However, due to the great volume of mail received, they are not all answered. Most unanswered letters, individually.

Engelking Demands Court Ruling On Endowment Funding

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho State Supreme Court was asked today to "look at the intent of the people in ratifying the amendment in the last election," Monday.

The plea was made by Richard Greener, Assistant Attorney General in a suit brought by Public Instruction Supt. D.F. Engelking which calls unconstitutional the new law extending the scope of investment of the state's endowment funds.

Engelking's attorney, Theron Z. Roberts, Tuesday questioned the constitutionality of the new law. He said that if the new law superseded article 8, section 2 of the Idaho Constitution, there is nothing to stand in the way of the state entering into business just like any one else.

Roberts referred to the section of the constitution prohibiting the state from becoming a stockholder.

Roberts also contended that the constitution made the state treasurer custodian of the endowment funds and that, under the new law, the funds would be put under an endowment funds investment board.

He then said that the state treasurer could point out that most of the funds in the endowment fund are in the hands of that particular office and might refuse to turn the funds over to the newly created board.

Greener said that prior to the last session of the legislature, responsibility for the funds had been given to the Bureau of Public Investments. He also pointed out that the new law was only for "policy making" and that the actual funds would still be held by the office of the state treasurer. Greener added that "the people of Idaho intended to allow the legislature to enact laws which would allow investment in the private sector of business and that the private sector included common stock in corporations."

He went on to say that if the new law conflicted with the section of the constitution prohibiting the state from becoming a stockholder, that "the subsequent in time would prevail."

Thomas G. Nelson, Twin Falls, representing School District 411, pointed out that the original reason for the prohibition against becoming a stockholder was necessary to prevent "the direct financial assistance by the state of various new and speculative enterprises which were of doubtful stability and whose collapse would impair the financial well-being of the state."

"This would not apply to the investment board, he said, because it would be guided by the 'prudent man' investment act."

Nelson referred to "the economic erosion of inflation resulting in a loss of the people of the state of Idaho of almost 60 per cent of the value of the endowment funds that existed in 1935."

Supreme Court Justices Allen Shepard and Clay Spa distinguished themselves from hearing the case. They were replaced by District Judge Edward J. Lodge of Caldwell and Theron Ward of Twin Falls.

Astronauts Could Inhale Moon 'Bugs'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If Apollo 11 brings any moon bugs back to earth, they will probably be in the lungs of the astronauts, a Space Agency official said Monday.

The chances are extremely small of any extraterrestrial organisms existing on the moon, said Col. John E. Pickering, director of the Space Agency's quarantine operations. But he told a news conference.

The astronauts themselves would be the best carriers for such organisms if any exist.

"If there is any, will be from the material contained in the astronauts," Pickering said.

He said the two Apollo 11 pilots will be quarantined on the moon, Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin, would be completely isolated from the earth's environment by their space suits until they return to their spacecraft. Then they will peel off the suits and come into contact for the first time with lunar dirt.

Pickering said they might inhale some of this lunar dust "just as they breathe in anything else."

"It would be trapped in their bronchial trees, and the lungs provide the most viable place for an organism to exist," he said.

"But one of our concerns in back-contamination (from the moon) is knowing what we take up because in the lungs, that is what we will bring back."

Apollo Mission Director George M. Hugo told a news conference that preparations for Apollo 11's flight next month were going well.

"We had a very profitable weekend in that field," he said.

Jago said one flight Monday morning in the wingless, rocket powered trainer duplicated the 500 feet of Apollo 11's descent to lunar surface.

Two additional flights, each repeating the landing practice, were scheduled to complete this phase of training.

Jago said a flight readiness review was scheduled at Cape Kennedy Tuesday and that initial loading of fuel into Apollo 11's Saturn 5 rocket was to start Wednesday.

School Formula Committee Vetoes Reorganization Study

By PAUL M. QUINN

BOISE (UPI) — One of the most important committees of the 40th Idaho Legislature, the School Formula Committee, not and organized Monday and vetoed the idea of making school consolidation an integral part of its survey.

The vote against such a proposal was 6 to 3 following the motion by Rep. Lytle Cobbs, R-Boise, who said "reorganization is the school formula, it should be a part of our study."

"We were joined in the unsuccessful vote by Sen. Diana Bilyeau, D-Pocatello, and Rep. Lester Hatwiggson, D-Idaho."

Sen. John Barker, R-Duluth, said he felt the legislative council, which meets Friday, "could consider that we have gone a little far astray. If reorganization or consolidation of school districts was considered as a specific subject."

All agreed, however, that it would enter into the school formula study in one way or another.

The committee, after deciding to meet again July 28 to hold a public hearing for anyone who wishes to testify, came up with the general consensus that coming up with an equitable school formula "isn't going to be an easy task."

Sen. John Mox, D-Moscow, said, "We like to avoid going into a mini-special session within this group."

Cobbs argued that reorganization should be considered as a separate topic. He stated, "This is one of the major problems with the present formula."

There is a bill pending in the House now that would set up 44 school districts in the state instead of the present 117.

But Sen. Neil Solberg, D-Grangeville, said, "We're trying to put consolidation into the school formula and it shouldn't be there. If we need consolidation the legislature should face up to it with a consolidation bill."

The 11-member committee spent only two hours outlining its areas of study.

The committee was named by the first half of the legislature and instructed to come up with a workable formula in time for the January opening of the second half of the 40th session.

Committee member Rep. Ernest Allen, R-Nampa, said, "I'm skeptical that we will come up with a simple formula."

Sen. Fred Bagley, R-Boise, said, "I'm optimistic."

On July 28 testimony will be given by interested groups including the Idaho Education Association, the School Trustees Association, the State Board of Education, Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, R-Boise, and the League of Women Voters.

The women voters, asked by mail, that one of their members be named to the study committee but no action was taken on the request.

After some discussion the committee finally decided formally to take testimony, in written and oral form, "from any responsible group."

They did not specifically single out the 13 school districts that have questioned the school formula via a suit in Fourth District Court attempting to overturn the constitutionality of the present program.

However, Sen. Bagley said, "We have before us the problem of what is a uniform educational system... we might find out through the court case before us."

Solberg argued against including consolidation or reorganization in the study, stating "We just don't have the time or the jurisdiction from the legislature. We don't have the authority to do it."

Committee members agreed that tax equalization and school district consolidation will play major roles in their final declarations.

The committee members agreed that the suit in Fourth District Court questioning the constitutionality of the present school formula might have an effect on the committee study but Bagley pointed out, "The fact that the lawsuit was filed was not the reason we are meeting. We're not involved in that suit."

He said, "I'm not sure we should be getting involved with the plaintiffs."

The suit was filed by 13 school districts in the state that maintain they are not receiving a fair share of the school funds under the present distribution formula.

Some 19 of the state's 117 school districts received no additional funds this biennium even though the public school education fund was increased by $18.65 million.

Solberg said he did not feel the suit would be successful and added he did not feel that full equalization would ever be worked out.

Rep. Lester Hatwiggson, D-Malden, told the committee at present there is "highly inequitable situations between the high valuation districts and those with low property tax valuations."

"This means there is actually a taxation problem along with the formula distribution problem."

He cited Utah as a state where there is a "real attempt to come up with equalization," which school district is required.

Lost Couple Stirs Widespread Search

JACKSON, Wyo. (UPI) — Fifty search Friday for the Paynes men on horseback and on foot after their four-wheel drive vehicle was found seven miles south of Jackson. The vehicle was sealed and towed into Jackson by law enforcement authorities after they discovered what appeared to be blood stains on the passenger side of the car.

The search, organized by Teton County Sheriff Lawrence Cheney and headed by Deputy Sheriff Bill Edwards, swept into the rugged wilderness area as rain showers poured from overcast skies and on through-out the day.

Payne's 25-year-old son, Russell, appeared before Justice of the Peace Robert Stewart Monday morning and pleaded guilty to the charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol. Russell was sentenced to 30 days in the Teton County Jail.

He had been picked up Friday in front of the home of Highway Patrolman Sonny Lankford while driving a yellow sports car.

Cheney called an area-wide search Friday for the Paynes after their four-wheel drive vehicle was found seven miles south of Jackson. The vehicle was sealed and towed into Jackson by law enforcement authorities after they discovered what appeared to be blood stains on the passenger side of the car.

Saturday, sheriff's officers conducted an extensive search of the Payne residence, a $50,000 structure located in an isolated area three miles south of Wilson. Stains were found on the premises and were sent to St. John's Hospital in Jackson for laboratory analysis to determine if they were human blood. Results of the tests have not as yet been released.

The search continued Sunday in the dense wilderness area surrounding the house, but no clues were uncovered.

Dr. Payne, a prominent orthopedic specialist, and his wife Emmalyn, resided in Las Vegas, Nev., for about 15 years before moving to the Wilson area in 1964. Mrs. Payne was

Sen. Kennedy Protests End Of Drafting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts wants that ending the draft under the Vietnam War, could aggravate a split between the U.S. military and the nation's civilian population.

In an introduction to a new book on the Selective Service System by George E. Reedy, President Lyndon B. Johnson's top secretary, Kennedy pointed to the author's concern that an all-volunteer army could lead to a largely black army.

"This," said the Massachusetts senator, "is a very real concern only to increase the separatism between the military and civilian sectors of our society."

Kennedy endorsed Reedy's conclusion that "it is highly unlikely that the draft will be abolished in the foreseeable future, or at least in time to effect the lives of those who now stand in the shadow of military service."

He agreed with Reedy that major overhaul of the draft system is urgently needed.

Reedy gave strong support to proposals to start the draft with 18-year-olds under a lottery system. Similar proposals were made by the advisory commission and endorsed recently by Nixon.

He also suggested overhaul of draft boards, discarding the myth that they are made up of "friends and neighbors" of the youngsters to be drafted.

Proposed using local boards as the first step in a draft appeals process.

Innkeepers Act To Organize Unit Between States

BOISE (UPI) — Tim Brannan, executive director of the new Idaho Innkeepers Association, said Monday that he would unite and increased influence with both federal and state government.

The former Idaho Motel Association and Idaho Hotel Motel Members of the Tri State Association completed the final merger at a meeting in Salt Lake City last week.

Officers for the association include Dave Hand, Falls View Motel, Idaho Falls, president; Harry Hume, Sun Valley Lodge, Sun Valley, national director; and Brennan, executive director.

Tulsa Stuns Texas 4-2 In NCAA World Series; Meet Favorite Ousted

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The New York University Violets and the Golden Hurricane from Tulsa remained the only undefeated teams in the college world series Monday when they won their second round game and set the stage for a battle of the underdogs Tuesday night.

N.Y.U. blasted Massachusetts, 9-2, and Tulsa clipped the Golden Hurricane from Tulsa 4-2. Money after the Mississippi Rebels bumped the Southern Illinois Salukis from further competition with an 8-1 victory.

Except for N.Y.U. and Tulsa, all other clubs left in the tournament had 1-1 records. Arizona State will play Massachusetts Tuesday in the first round. N.Y.U. will meet Texas prior to the N.Y.U.-Tulsa game.

Tom Collins pitched the distance for N.Y.U. and ran his record to 1-1. He struck out five batters in the first inning and pitched a fourth-inning homer by Bob Binkley to tie the score 1-1.

Bowen struck out 14, including three batters in the ninth. He walked seven, but he allowed seven hits, but no runs.

McLain Wins 10th; Tigers Edge Yankees

NEW YORK (UPI)—Denny McLain pitched a six-inning run and a fifth-inning run to gain his 10th victory of the year.

McLain, who was 11-2 last June 16 enroute to his 31 victory season, boosted his mark this year to 10-5.

McLain was touched for a first-inning run when Horace Clarke singled and was forced by Jerry Kenney, who went to second on McLain's balk and scored on Roy White's single.

Today's Market And Financial Report

Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market turned mixed after some early strength Monday. Turnover was moderate.

As trading moved into the final hour, the UPI market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, showed a gain of 0.03 per cent. Of the 1,811 issues crossing the tape, 646 advanced, 589 declined.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which reflects movement in the blue-chip group, rose at 894.45 although it had been several points earlier in the session.

The technical spurt was viewed as a tactical recovery following last week's sharp plunge. But tight money, a lull in Vietnam peace progress and uncertainty over the fate of the income tax surcharge, scheduled to expire at the end of this month, restricted demand.

Q — I noticed that Japan Fund has been hitting new highs while the rest of the market was declining. I can't seem to find much information on the company. Have you any?

Q — I am retired with ample income. Two holdings, in spite of stock dividends are considerably more than I need. Should I hold or sell? Cerro Corp. and Hold Corp.?

A — The future of Cerro Corp. because of its involvement in Peru and the attendant uncertainty of the political situation there is not clear. Company President Koening in an optimistic statement at the annual meeting predicted higher earnings for 1969 and a more favorable climate for foreign investment. I would be inclined to wait it out until nearer the year-end before possibly taking a tax loss.

Rosson's President Aronson has predicted a record year for his company with sales reaching $102 million. Several very promising new products, in the absence of nonrecurring charges and greater efficiency from plant consolidation should also boost earnings. Five new consumer products, including a flame, will be introduced in the last half of 1969. Gradual long-term growth should result in higher earnings and stock price.

DUPLICATE LUCK VARIES WITH LEAD
 Today's hand decided a match in the World Bridge Olympiad of 1960. The bidding was the same at both tables. At the first table the dealer of diamonds was king. Later on East's 10 of trumps set the contract.

This solved one of South's problems immediately—his spade diamond loser. All he needed to do was to avoid the loss of more than one spade trick. He wasn't worried about 2-2 breaks and could do nothing about four to the king-10 in the West hand—or five spades in either hand. Therefore his only concern was with four spades in the East hand and just one in the West hand.

If that was the situation, the best play would be to enter dummy with a heart or club, lead a spade and finesse, the jack. A repeated finesse in

 Your partner bids four no-trump. You show two aces and he bids five no-trump to ask for kings. What do you do?

Grape Men Will Fight Union Efforts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The majority of California's table grape growers pledged Monday to continue to fight Cesar Chavez's efforts to unionize grape pickers despite a decision by 10 major growers to bargain with the United Farm Workers.

Ten growers who produce one-third of the table grapes in the Coachella Valley and Arvin areas, where about one-fourth of the state's table grapes are grown, agreed Friday to negotiate with the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, headed by Cesar Chavez.

It was the first time in the three-year labor dispute, which has resulted in a nationwide boycott of California table grapes, that growers had agreed to recognize UFWOC as the bargaining agent for vineyard workers.

But Martin Zanovich, president of the South Central Farmers Committee, who said he represented growers of about 70 per cent of California's table grapes, told a news conference Monday:

"California grape growers, as an industry, will not sell out the American consumer to the coercive pressures of Cesar Chavez and his United Farm Workers Organizing Committee."

Zanovich admitted, however, that the defection of the majority was a breakthrough for Chavez's efforts to unionize the workers. He said they asked for formal meetings to end the long and bitter dispute because "we are definitely hurting. It's costing us more to produce and sell our grapes than we are getting for them."

Flights Still Are On Time For Air West

Air West flight operations were 92 per cent on time in May at the Twin Falls City-County Airport, officials of the airline revealed today.

Air West led the airline industry in on-time performance during May, and Idaho operations led other states which Air West serves.

Systemwide statistics showed that 88 per cent of the 14,889 flights operated in May left on schedule. This was the 11th consecutive month that Air West flight operations have been more than 80 per cent on time. The average in April was 86 per cent.

An "on-time" flight is defined as one leaving within 15 minutes of schedule.

In Idaho every Air West station dispatched 90 per cent or more of its flights on time. The performances in Idaho were: Boise, 90 per cent; Buhl, 90 per cent; Lewiston, 91 per cent; Pocatello, 93 per cent; Sun Valley, 93 per cent; Twin Falls, 92 per cent; and Moscow-Fullan, 91.5 per cent.

Apollo 11 Crew Should Be Able To Hit Target Right On Mark

By EDWARD K. DELONG UPI Space Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Sending Apollo 11 around the moon in an orbit that nearly followed the lunar equator may have saved the Apollo 11 landing team from getting an ugly surprise in July. Like a landing several miles away from the planned touch-down spot.

But, says space center middleman James C. McPherson, because Apollo 10 uncovered a couple of new and somewhat startling effects of lunar gravity on a spacecraft's path, the Apollo 11 crew should be able to hit its intended target "Right on the mark."

In effect, McPherson said, unexpected variations in lunar gravity "dragged" Apollo 10 off its course in two different ways during the craft's 61 hours in moon orbit. These effects were precisely measured and can be compensated for in future flights, he said.

Oddly, he said, it appears that though the moon was slightly pear shaped, "It acts as though the heavy end was facing toward earth and the small end was facing directly away from earth," he said.

He said scientists do not know whether this is because the moon really is not round or because it has an uneven distribution of heavy and light material below its surface.

The moon rotates on its own axis about 12 degrees a day, or one full revolution every 30 days. Originally mission planners had believed that a spacecraft's orbit around the moon would be unaffected by this rotation.

If this were true, a space craft traveling at an angle to the equator would cross the equator at a different point on each orbit around the moon. The lunar surface would appear to shift slowly and steadily to the right under the spacecraft's path.

And a spacecraft hoping to land at a given point would have to "lead" that point when first dropping into lunar orbit, like a hunter leading a flying bird. Not so, at least in Apollo 10's low inclination orbit, McPherson said.

"It's just like the moon reached out there and grabbed that orbit and dragged it around with it," he said.

Taking these new factors into consideration, McPherson said, Apollo 11 should be able to hit within 2,200 feet downrange and 1,200 feet crossrange of the exact center of the 3 by 7.8 mile landing zone.

Evangelist Cites Need Of Proper Living

NEW YORK (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham Monday night blamed the rebellion of American youth on their materialism and lack of faith in God when he finished his speech, hundreds of young people came forward to make decisions for Christ.

"All the materialism, the desire for happiness, the desire to bring happiness," Graham told nearly 20,000 people in Madison Square Garden.

"Happiness and peace and joy are found only in God," he said. "It's either Christ or chaos."

Standing in the bright television lights, surrounded by Graham's colorful and shabby plastic flowers and shawbery, he called on the young people to give up sex, drugs and alcohol, and turn to Christ.

Then, while the 2,000 voice choir sang "Just As I Am," Graham called on the young people and as many of their elders walked down to the main floor of the arena and stood before the podium.

Earlier, singer Anita Bryant said that Christ had changed her life and could change the lives of teenagers, too.

"I've worked all over the world," she said in a hoarse, hushed voice. "I've sung for kings and queens and I've worked with some of the most famous personalities you've ever heard of."

"Just Jesus Christ is the most wonderful personality I've ever known," she said.

Outside the Garden members of the United Church of Christ, a Protestant group, handed out leaflets which argued that baptism should involve total immersion in water and should be in the name of Jesus alone, rather than in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost.

Many of the thousands of people who filled the Garden and spilled over into the West Form, where they watched the service on television, came in buses from surrounding communities.

Mrs. George Hunk of New York Park, L.I., said her husband, an 22-year-old son David came every night to sing in the choir.

"I've heard the story of the prodigal son many times," said Mrs. Dunn after the evening service. "But this was the best. I was here 12 years ago during his first crusade, too. But this was the best."

North Idaho Forest Fire 'Contained'

ST. MARIES, Idaho (UPI) — Forest Service officials here said Monday an 80-acre forest fire on private land located in the middle of the St. Joe National Forest near Clarkia has been contained but not controlled.

Oliver Goldammer, forest dispatcher, said a combination of wind and low humidity was complicating control of the blaze, which broke out Sunday afternoon about 30 miles southeast of here and four miles east of Clarkia.

About 225 men were fighting the blaze, which was burning in logging slash.

GROUND-BREAKING SET TO BEGIN (UPI) — Gov. Don Samuelson and J.R. Simplot will break ground for a new processing plant near Caldwell on the Wilder Highway Thursday morning.

Old Problem

BOSTON (UPI) — The litterbug is older than you think. Keep America Beautiful, Inc., says an editorial in a Boston newspaper in 1784 urged the city fathers to do something about the large amount of litter left behind after an Independence Day celebration.

ON WAY OUT COPENHAGEN (UPI) — The last trolley lines in Denmark's capital are on their way out. Only four lines were left after May 1 and traffic authorities said they'll reach the end of the line by 1972.

Russians Find Mideast Route Is Increasingly Sticky

By PHIL NEWSOM UPI Foreign News Analyst

The Russians are finding the going in the Middle East increasingly sticky. They also are finding President Gamal Abdel Nasser far less tractable than they could wish.

That seemed to be the situation as of last week end when Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko flew back to Moscow after a series of urgent sessions with the Egyptian leader.

Gromyko's mission was to lay before Nasser the details of a United States plan for peace settlement of the June, 1967, war, including Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai peninsula, the Gaza Strip and the West bank of the Jordan River.

Israel would retain Old Jerusalem and the Golan Heights of Syria. Nasser rejected it and Gromyko had little else to do than go along with him.

Through the weeks of U.S.-Soviet discussions, the Soviets had demonstrated their desire for a Middle East settlement by giving way on one important point. That was they no longer insisted on Israeli withdrawal to old boundaries as called for in the United Nations resolution of November, 1967.

And the fact that Gromyko considered his trip to Cairo a success was demonstrated by his departure from Moscow while the world conference of Communist leaders still was going on.

Pressures on the Russians to achieve some sort of forward motion toward a Middle East settlement are mounting.

First of all is Arab impotence at Russian failure to achieve Arab demands against Israel and a fear that Arab extremists might touch off a war which could involve both the Soviet Union and the United States.

Second is the role Red China might play in helping to touch off such a conflict.

While the Russians have warned that Arab demands are unrealistic only strengthen Israeli resolve to stand pat in present position, the Red Chinese have offered the communists all the help they need.

Col. Glenn Says Daughter Plans August Wedding

NEW YORK (UPI) — Retired Marine Col. John H. Glenn, the first American astronaut to orbit the earth, Monday announced the engagement of his daughter, Carolyn Ann, to John Michael Power of Houston.

Glenn, now president of the Royal Crown Cola International Ltd. and a small family holding company, will take place Aug. 2 at the Stanford University Chapel. Miss Glenn, a former student at Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, Mass., is a senior at Stanford, majoring in political science.

Her fiancé, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Power, Jr., is a doctoral candidate at the Stanford Graduate School of Engineering and Economic Systems. His father is an Houston independent oil operator in Houston.

The couple will live at Palo Alto, Calif., where Stanford is located, until they complete their studies.
