Such development, I'd like to point out that without electric power lines, fence posts and the like Idaho would still be in the neighborhood and we wouldn't be here and they (those who are against such development) contemplated in the White Clouds wouldn't be here either.

He said emphatically that the multiple-use concept should be used in "all of Idaho" and that anything should be looked up for exclusive use of anyone.

He also touched on rumors that the White Clouds area would be developed like the Yankee Fork dredge area.

"And The Band Played On!"

TONY WARNER

A young, old-time member of the Twin Falls Band, Tony Warner is a professional musician. He makes his living now selling and servicing musical instruments, and in 1937 he started his career with the Twin Falls Band.

"He retired from active band service 10-years ago, but has been associated with the band in one way or another ever since. At the present time he loans instruments to old-timer members of the band so they can get in a few tunes before the special anniversary concert of the band July 24 at the City Park Bandshell."

Remembering his days with the band, Mr. Warner says, "We had a good cross-section of the community in the band in 1937. We had physicians, farmers and businessmen. We have that cross-section today. Anyone who likes music and who can play can join up."

The Twin Falls Band used to be a marching band back in 1937.

"I remember we used to have to march behind the Twin Falls Post. You know what horses like to do streets?"

He chuckles.

"Well, there we were slipping and sliding all over that street. We finally asked if we couldn't march in front of the horses."

The snare drum band marched in front of the horses.

Mr. Warner will be one of the old-time members of the Twin Falls Band honored at the special concert, to begin at 8 p.m. July 24.

Somé Worry Shows At 'Headquarters'

SPACE HEADQUARTERS (UPI)—The rest of the world is certain. They take it for granted the Apollo 11 flight is going to land two men on the moon. Down here in the little Texas town that rings the Manned Spacecraft Center, there is the excellent born of anxiety.

"This peripheral community of linked worriers, totaling more than 45,000, doesn't show outward restlessness because, as one observer puts it, 'They're so danged wrapped up in technical details of the minute, minute business that they don't have time to worry about anything else.'"

But they are excited. It's just another space flight—but it's the big one. On the stage, it looks quiet. But little things tell you different.

Mrs. Mary Gregory of the Manned Spacecraft Center usually just takes complaints about the phone service with a business-like efficiency and lets it go at that. Today she was called by UPI and told:

"We've got another headache for you. Can you get a man here to do a repair job on it?"

"Now wait a minute," Mrs. Gregory said. "Before you tell me the flight is wrong, how is the flight going?"

A man long familiar with the town on the flatland here south of Houston says:

"These people are so close to the program that they know how easy it is for things to go wrong. The rest of the world doesn't tell you there are astronauts and Buzz Aldrin are going to land on the moon."

Down here they'd say: "Well, we're not there yet."

The only outward manifestation so far is the signs and legends on the public display outside building hours of the center and other business establishments. Some of these are downright doggerel.

Says the NASA's Deputy Resident Manager in the Columbia and Major Inn: "It's a moon sea ya son."

In competition, the King's Inn across the main street on NASA Boulevard, says: "If your flags fly for our heroes, in the sky."

Blaze On Wheels Fought At G.F.

GLENN'S FERRY — A stubborn blaze on wheels was brought to a halt at the site of the Glenn's Ferry volunteer fire department earlier this week, when a Union Pacific freight train rushed a burning boxcar into town.

Firemen battled the stubborn blaze in closely packed merchandise for four hours in a tactical fashion. Since water wouldn't penetrate the burning material, firemen had to punch a hole at 45 mph, plunging down through the ashes to the next ambulading layer.

The cause of the fire was not determined, Norman Tripp, fire chief, said.

Elusive Star Is Sought By Space Crew

SPACE CENTER — Houston (UPI) — A hidden week-long search for an elusive star Thursday morning highlighted Apollo 11 space talk.

The conversation between ground-control and space-ship went this way:

Astronaut Michael Collins: "I was trying to tell you yesterday about it. The M-line (on the sextant) is nowhere near the horizon. I thought you had some process for computing that down there."

Ground Controller Bruce McCandless: "OK. It's in the range of coffee store. I guess you got that one."

Collins (suggesting the star might be hidden by the earth's light): "The earth is very bright and the sky isn't black. There's a gray glow."

The glow, apparently, came from a sextant filter.

Collins (commenting on the view of earth through the sextant): "It's really a fantastic sight through that sextant."

A minute ago, through that

Collins (automatic star-fighting maneuver): "The sextant (cross-hairs) swept across the Mediterranean. You could see all of North Africa — absolutely clear, all of Portugal, Spain — absolutely clear."

McCandless: "We all envy you up there."

Collins: "But still no star."

Most of Thursday's conversation before the midcourse correction was limited to technical details covering the flight. At one time, McCandless thought the crew was calling him.

Apollo Crew Faces 18-Day Quarantine After Splashdown

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Apollo 11 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin are more than moon travelers—they are human guinea pigs to determine whether exposure to lunar surfaces and atmosphere holds any perils for mankind.

If lunar organisms do exist, scientists believe, these organisms may hitchhike back to earth with the astronauts, perhaps in the warm, moist tissues of their lungs.

The scientific community does not take lightly.

No traditional hugs and handshakes will greet Armstrong, Collins and Aldrin at the end of their flight—not if they are successful in placing man's first footprints on the moon and in bringing back chunks of lunar material for scientists to study.

Instead for 18 days after the scheduled splashdown in the south Pacific next Thursday, the Apollo 11 crewmen will live in elaborate isolation chambers designed to keep them quarantined from the rest of life on earth.

The air they breathe inside these chambers will be filtered and sterilized. The water before it is released to the outside world. The water they bathe in will be heated to 250 degrees Fahrenheit to high-pressure steam before it is released.

All three astronauts will be under constant medical surveillance. Two of 14 other men who will undergo quarantine with them are physicians, backed up by teams of other specialists outside the quarantine area.

Only after the specimens receive a clean bill of health can they emerge to receive world acclaim.

Their isolation is extremely more severe, says chief space physician Dr. Charles Berry, than those employed against the most serious communicable diseases known on earth, such as smallpox and the bubonic plague.

But no one knows whether any life—or threat to human life—exists in the hostile lunar environment or if it does, whether it could devastate earth by "introducing" terrestrial and animal life with organisms against which earth life has no natural immunity.

FAA Probe Uncovers 4,582 'Hazardous' Near-Collisions On Airways Of Nation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—There were more than 4,500 "hazardous" near-flight collisions last year in the nation's crowded airways, many of them over metropolitan areas, a Federal Aviation Administration study estimated Thursday.

Pilot and air-traffic controllers, operating under an FAA promise of immunity, reported an official total of 2,500 near-flight collisions.

Out of this total, 1,128, or approximately one half, were classified by the FAA as "hazardous"—meaning the separation between the two planes was reported as less than 500 feet.

But the study estimated that the real total was much greater because "four hazardous near misses occurred for each one reported."

This would bring the estimated total number of hazardous near misses to 4,582.

Before the pilots were given immunity the reported number of near-flight misses averaged about 600 a year. Last year there were 35 actual mid-air collisions which killed 69 persons.

Out of the 1,128 hazardous near misses, the FAA classified 317 as critical. This meant they were avoided "by chance rather than the action of the pilot." Another 217 were termed "potential," which meant "a crash might have resulted unless the pilot acted."

"It might be expected," the heaviest number of near misses were reported around large metropolitan cities. The FAA said, it listed the top 10 cities and the number of hazardous incidents this way: Los Angeles 97, New York 74, San Francisco 69, Washington, D.C. 55, Philadelphia 51, San Diego 27, Chicago 26, Kansas City 15, and Phoenix 15.

The report followed a slowdown ordered last month by the 8,000-man professional Air Traffic Controllers' Association in a reflective means to avoid a near collision—what is termed initial collision—is constant vigilance on the part of all pilots.

It also urged top priority for metropolitan areas around the development of a so-called avoidance system. The airline industry already is far along towards perfecting a collision avoidance system using a computer as the heart of an alerting system for two airplanes.

The computer would determine when a hazard exists and recommendations to improve pinpoint altitude, distance and closing speeds for two airplanes. Then it would tell the pilot what to do to avoid a collision.

McCalle plants that poison livestock will be among the subjects discussed at a meeting of the Idaho Weed Control Association at Shore Lodge, McCall, July 22 to 24. The program announced today by Robert Higgins, Boise, University of Idaho extension agronomist and association secretary, said Dr. Richard Hall, extension veterinarian, will list several common plants that cause livestock trouble and suggest remedial action.

Robert Martin of the Bureau of Land Management will discuss other range weeds.

The agenda for the three-day meeting includes weed control for beautification-of-recreation areas, noxious weed control on forest lands, new developments in campaigns against mesquedeed, will intersperse action wood-land, and knowledge and brush control in new plantings on forest lands. Reese Davis, Pocatello, is program chairman.

Wallace Savage, Twin Falls, president of the association, said more than 100 weed fighters are expected. Activities will include a tour of infested areas and research plots where control work is being tried.

Marathon Marchers Arrive In Boise

BOISE (UPI)—Five Mercyter, and the last is the break-down of the support trailer that Boise Thursday on their way to New York to collect money to help suffering Biafran peoples.

The five marchers, ranging in age from 17 to 22, started in Portland, Ore., and plan to raise $10,000, or $10 for each of the 4,000 miles they plan to travel on foot.

The march is sponsored by Operation Outrage, Inc., which is a relief organization to inform Americans of the African situation.

The marchers operate in relay, changing every five miles.

The marchers said that there are three reasons for a discouraging outlook on the march: They said one is fatigue in accomplishing the 40-mile-a-day goal; another is the attitude of the people they encounter.

Farm Bureau Plan Enters U.S. Senate

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Farm Bureau Federation's new farm policy plan would wipe out most current federal farm programs over a five-year period.

Farm Bureau President Charles B. Smith said the plan would reduce government costs and help farmers get high prices.

Following the five-year transition in which present support and acreage control programs for wheat, feed grains and cotton would be scaled down gradually, farmers would be left with the freedom to free the market economy they had known in more than 40 years.

The departure of government from agriculture would not be the end of the farm Bureau plan, which includes creation of a long-term land retirement program to help keep the nation's overall farm production capacity at a level above world demand. The long-term retirement program would enroll at least 10 million acres for a rolling 45-year period, building up to a peak of at least 50 million acres by 1975.

Also, the Farm Bureau plan makes no mention of eliminating the long-standing price support and production control programs for tobacco, peanuts and rice, or the supports on dairy products and feed grains, which are relatively minor crops.

Most of the present federal farm support and control operations, however, are concentrated on wheat, wheat, cotton and soybeans.

For these crops, the Farm Bureau plan would provide a sharp cut in price support, down to a ceiling close to the average of previous three-year average prices—beginning in 1971, a gradual phase-out of supplementary direct payments which now run about $1 billion a year would also begin for grain and cotton in 1971. And beginning in

HIGHLIGHTING THE Beef Evaluation Program, sponsored by the Magic Valley Cattlemen's Association, was the evaluation of 20 carcasses of steers that have been on the gain test for about 120 days, and a picnic. These photos show local businessmen and cattlemen examining the carcasses and enjoying the picnic. The carcasses were evaluated at Independent Meat Co., and the picnic was held at the Olmstead Cattle Co., Twin Falls, where the other 40 odd steers are being fed in the program. Top left photo shows Art Kaster, left, member of the association, shows two local bankers, R. D. McKinney, Kimberly Branch, Twin Falls Bank and Trust, and Bill Miller, Fidelity National Bank, a carcass. Local Cattlemen Evaluate 20 Carcasses

The Beef Evaluation Program, which has been underway for the past four months by the Magic Valley Cattlemen's Association, was highlighted this past week with the evaluation of carcasses of 20 steers that have been on the test and a picnic.

Some 60 steers, representing most all beef breeds in this area have been on the gain test at Olmstead Cattle Co., Twin Falls, since March. Ninety of the steers were selected recently by a committee of the association that were ready for market and slaughter.

Members of the association, local beef producers and various local businessmen, including bankers, examined the 20 carcasses—Independent Meat Co. to see what type of meat is being produced on the farms in this area.

Mr. Florence Jr., general manager of Independent Meat Co., explained to those who examined the carcasses, how the carcasses are graded and how values are determined.

He said the average carcasses in this area should dress 81 percent. The 20 carcasses that were on the test, ranged from 83 to 92.8 percent.

Mr. Florence added that the carcasses were graded on the quality of the meat and then the yield of the meat into retail cuts also was determined.

After the carcasses were viewed by the visitors and all questions answered by Mr. Florence or by Herbert Boysson, head evening USDA meat inspectors.

Factors that determine the quality grade, he said, were color of the meat, texture and marbling in relation to carcass maturity. For yield grade, the amount of red meat in the carcass is determined by the area of the rib eye, and the fat over the rib eye, kidney, pelvic and heart fat and by the weight of the carcass.

Mr. Florence said the yield grade determines the value of the carcass to the producer.

1969 Wheat Crop Will Hike Surplus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1969 wheat crop apparently will add at least 100 million bushels to the nation's growing surplus stocks, an agriculture surplus report indicates.

The department's monthly crop report estimated the 1969 winter wheat crop at 1,161,455,000 bushels—up about 24 million bushels from a month earlier.

With the season's first winter wheat harvesting getting under way in southern states, and spring weather conditions reported good, the overall 1969 wheat crop may total about 1.439 billion bushels.

The outlook thus was for a crop well below last year's record 1,570 billion bushels, reflecting urgent government efforts to harvest to cut back production this year. Even with the cut, production apparently was going to be more than 100 million bushels above the amount needed to meet domestic and export demands, department estimates indicated.

The report said good growing weather, which lifted hay and pasture conditions to the highest levels since 1977, was responsible for improving winter wheat prospects. The crop in the last month, Kansas reported a 20 million-bushel gain in wheat prospects.

The report said winter wheat per-acre yields were 31.5 bushels as of June 1, well above 1968 and 1967, offsetting much of the loss in acreage.

Production of wheat in the United States is expected to be up eight per cent from last year, and spring-potato production up seven per cent from 1968.

Output of spring vegetables, excluding melons, is down one per cent from last year.

The Gooding County 4-H leaders are planning a new project which is entitled Idaho Pride, reports Clive Stronach, county agent.

A conference at Boise has been planned where each Idaho county will present what has been accomplished in way of Idaho Pride improvements during the past year. They will be held Aug. 14-15 at the county club with the most accomplishments.

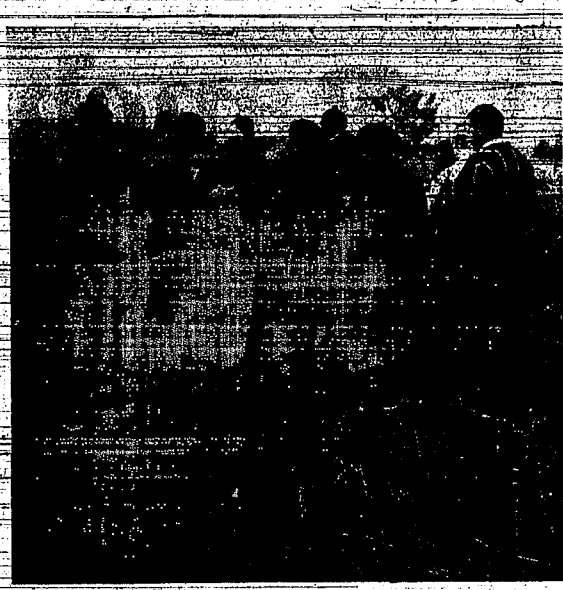

Projects include roadside tree and flower plantings, general cleanup of roads and parks, flap-up and paint-up campaigns at parks and historical places, planting programs in burned-out and blown out areas.

Soils, crops, timber, water and other natural resources were explained to the scouts. Helping with the tour were extension service and Soil Conservation Service personnel.

Conservation Shown To Scouts

Conservation of Idaho's natural resources was explained to several local Boy Scouts recently during a Boy Scout Conservation Tour.

The first stop of the five-day tour was spent looking at soils and crops in Twin Falls County.

The first stop was at the Gene Thomas farm along Highway 93 between Twin Falls and Filer. Here the pasture rotation system was explained and shown to the Scouts by Dave Thomas.

Also at this stop, Lew Pence, Soil Conservation Service, discussed grasses and legumes for various soils.

Soils on the Thomas farm was explained by David VanHouten, soil specialist with the SCS. Characteristic soil textures, soil structure, depth and slope.

Various crops in Twin Falls County were examined by the Scouts and Donald Youst, Twin Falls County agent, described the importance of these crops to the area.

Area Wheat Growers To Get Payments

Producers of eligible 1968 crop wheat will get $1.28 per bushel when Aug. 7, 30 cents more than the 1968 crop certificate value.

The chairman said payments made to producers on about 150 farms and will total around $1,500,000.

Certificate value is based on the difference between July 1, 1969, wheat parity price of $2.77 per bushel and the 1968 crop annual average loan rate of $1.23 per bushel, he explained.

Certificate payments add substantially to the income farmer receive from marketing their 1968 wheat crop.

Twin Falls Sugar Plant Wins Pennant For 2nd Straight Year

For the second consecutive year the Twin Falls Amalgamated Sugar Co. plant has won the company's pennant and a permanent plaque for its production during the 1968-69 year.

At an honorary banquet for all permanent employees of the plant and their wives, the award was presented to the plant's local management, Henry Jenkins, factory manager; K. J. Stewart, superintendent; and A. S. Brown, master mechanic.

There were 230 persons in attendance at the banquet, including company officials from the company's Ogden head office.

The pennant has been awarded annually for the past 45 years to one of the company's five plants. It is awarded on a point system basis for total plant performance.

A release to the Twin Falls plant stated "It would be difficult on my part not to mention the Agricultural Department. It is difficult to win a pennant without good beet processing."

At the Twin Falls factory, they have the largest beet acreage over the other plants in this respect as the beets held very well in storage," said Burl Hill Brown, vice president in charge of operations for Amalgamated Sugar Co.

The company's other plants are in Nampa, the Mill-Cassia area, Lewiston and in Myra, Ore. The award is figured on tons of sugar beets chopped and percentage of sugar obtained.

The Twin Falls plant increased from 3,900 tons per day in 1967-68 to 4,800 tons per day in 1968-69.

In 1968 the company also received an award of merit from the National Safety Council for noteworthy safety performance.

UNDER THE PENNANT awarded for outstanding production is K. J. Stewart, superintendent, at the Twin Falls Amalgamated Sugar Co. plant. A recent honorary banquet for permanent employees of the plant and their wives was hosted by the sugar company.

Nearly 150 Farmers Attend Research Center's Field Day

KIMBERLY — Nearly 150 farmers attended the irrigation and fertility field day this week at the Snake River Conservation Research Center near Kimberly.

Specific results of irrigation and fertility experiments in the past few years were explained to those attending the field day by various scientists at the research center and others from the University of Idaho extension service and experiment station.

Dr. Marvin Jensen, director of the center at Kimberly, told the group of the irrigation and fertility studies. Many of them may be adapted to present irrigation systems using existing structures.

Mr. Humphreys said surface flooding systems using borders, basins or contour ditches are easiest to automate. Furrow and corrugation systems are much more difficult because of the problem of distributing the water uniformly into all furrows.

Two main reasons for automating irrigation systems, he said, are to save both labor and water. It is common practice to use either of the two irrigation sets because it is convenient to change the water only once or twice a day. Many times the irrigation of less than 12 hours or between 11 and 24 hours is sufficient to refill the root zone.

Water can be saved if it is changed from one set to another whenever the root zone is filled. More efficient use of irrigation water will also result because greater attention will be given to land preparation, improved maintenance and increased use of flow measuring devices.

The second reason for automatic surface irrigation, Mr. Humphreys said, is to save labor.

He added because most of the structures are experimental, accurate cost information is not available. However, some gates have been fabricated and built times for use on existing border wall structures in Hawaii for about $1250 respectively for drop and pressure gates.

Irrigation management studies on beans and potatoes were outlined by Marshall LeBaron, superintendent of the Twin Falls Branch Experiment Station, and by D. C. Larsen, extension irrigator, University of Idaho.

Following the discussion by the various researchers, a tour of various plots at the research center was held. Here the visitors were shown experimental plots on residual nitrogen on sugar beets and small grains, irrigation studies on peas, alfalfa, wheat and on alfalfa, alfalfa production.

Officials at the research center said this year's field day was one of the most successful ever held at the center.

Water Development Loan Money Available

BOISE — The half-million dollar Idaho Water Resource Loan Development Fund is now in the bill and ready to fulfill obligations of the new law passed at the last session of the Legislature.

When the Legislature established the law to administer the fund and approved the $500,000 appropriation, this was the first time in Idaho history that the state provided a means for construction of small projects, although several other western states have had such loan fund programs operating for many years.

Verl Kring, assistant director for development for the Idaho Water Resource Board, said his staff has prepared information explaining application procedures, eligibility for loans, types of projects, construction and loan requirements, and many details concerning the loan fund. He said agencies, individuals, districts, and companies have been contacted to inform them of standards and to assist in preparing applications. Several applications have been processed and field inspections made, but actual loans could not be made until funds became available July 1.

BRIDGE

EXCEPTION THAT PROVES THE RULE

Two of the first rules a student of bridge learns are: Second hand low and third hand high. They are pretty good rules but there are plenty of exceptions to both of them.

Today's hand shows a third-hand-low play by Ted Lightner that helped him and Mike Gottlieb win the 182 Masters' Pairs.

Mike opened the seven of hearts in response to his partner's heart overcall. South called for dummy's queen and almost any player would have covered with the king but not Ted.

Back in those early days, almost everyone led top of three-small but Mike had already started the more modern practice of leading low from three.

Ted knew that South was attempting to win with the ace, 10 and nine.

He also knew that he might never get a heart trick if he played low but Ted also noted that dummy had a possible opening bid and that in a by'e there was some chance to come out with a nice plus-score.

Therefore, Ted led the queen heart, he did play the eight to tell his partner to lead another heart if he over got in.

South saw his best line of play would be to go after the club suit. As trick two he led his lack of clubs and let it ride after Ted played low.

Mike was in with the queen and led his four hearts. Now the jack forced South's ace. Ted still had the ace of clubs as an entry for his last four hearts.

If Ted had covered the queen with the king, South would have let him hold the trick. He could lead a second heart or something else that his fancy suggested and bring in his suit and South would come home with the marbles.

Carlos Leads U.S. Track Team Against Best From Russia, Commonwealth

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sprinter John Carlos, who was expelled from the Olympic Village at Mexico City last year for a high-profile protest, led the U.S. track team against squads from Russia and the British Commonwealth Friday night.

The first head-to-head track competition between the Americans and Soviets since 1967 concludes Saturday at Memorial Coliseum, where the United States is favored to win the competition.

Carlos, who has refused to expose black militancy, this year is expected to win both the 100- and 200-meter dashes. Carlos must beat Ivory Crickett, a 19-year-old Southern Illinois freshman, and Jamaica's Lennox Miller, a 100-meter sprinter, Friday night and Australia's Peter Norman at 200 Saturday.

Crockett upset Carlos to win the 100-yard dash at the National AAU meet in Miami, Fla. last month and Miller, competing for the British Commonwealth in the weekend meet, is the 1968 Olympic 100-meter silver medalist. Norman edged Carlos for the 200-meter berth. Smith in the 200 meters at Mexico City.

Neal Steinhauer, who beat the world record holder, Ray Rouse, for the shot put title, isn't returning from an Army meet tour in Europe. But Francis has Karl Salo, Kansas State's star, who won the NCAA crown.

The Russians pulled out of their track and field series with the U.S. just before the 1968 meet here in a protest to American involvement in the Vietnam War.

Soviet javelin thrower Tanko Laskic, the Olympic champion and former world record holder, is happy the competition has been resumed.

"It is just fantastic," the Russian veteran said, "that we will be here in the United States when your communists are on the march."

"Everyone's 20-year team knows this quite well. The world knows. There is very great interest from all of mankind over men getting to the moon."

Another Russian, who is almost sure of getting a first place in triple jumper, Viktor Saneyev, who shattered the world record with an effort of 57 feet, 3-4 inch to win a gold medal at the Olympics.

Romuald Kilmy, the Soviet hammer thrower who won a silver medal at Mexico City, holds the world record of 214 feet.

The British Commonwealth athletes include Australians Ron Clarke and Ralph Doubell. Doubell won a 200-meter run at the Olympics but he will face strong opposition from British Commonwealth teammate Byron Dyer, a Jamaica coach who attends New York University and won both the NCAA and AAU titles. Clarke is entered in the 5,000-meter run, a distance at which he set the world record of 13:16.6 in 1966.

There are 35 events for the men and women athletes with each team restricted to two entries in each event.

Lull Strikes Melodramatic Namath Serial

NEW YORK (UPI) — And now for the latest chapter in the continuing saga of the life and times of Joe Namath.

As in all good soap operas, there was a full-on action Thursday after the latest flurry of developments at the New York Jets training camp Wednesday night.

Namath, who explained his case to the Jets' veterans Tuesday night, received a leave of absence from coach Weeb Ewbank to try to settle his affairs and his wife to reach an understanding with commissioner Pete Rozelle, although coach Weeb Ewbank remained optimistic.

The Jets continued to practice without their quarterback Thursday but Tom Sampedro, the team spokesman in Namath's absence, said that Namath wants to get back in uniform as soon as possible.

Meanwhile, the Jet players are becoming annoyed because Ewbank hasn't gone out to Hofstra to talk to them.

"I tell you these guys aren't going to stand for much more," sample said, "they're getting fed up. They're madier than hell. They're waiting for Rozelle to come out here and if he isn't here by the end of the week, anything could happen."

When asked if he might be a player strike or mass walkout, Sample replied: "I don't know but it's going to be something."

Strategy Will Be Important In Auto Race

KILGART LAKE, Wis. (UPI) — Strategy could replace speed as the determining factor Sunday when the Road America 500—the longest and richest of the "Continental road racing series—is run.

Nearly all of the nation's Formula 4 races—the open-wheeled, Grand Prix-type type cars that are moving up fast on the road racing circuit—will be off hand for the 500 kilometer outing on the twisting, hilly closed circuit course near Kilgart.

The race will be run in three segments, with the winner determined on total laps—and if the front runners have completed the same number of laps, on least overall time.

Each of the segments will be 100 miles and cars which are forced from any of the segments because of engine trouble could still take it all if enough laps are completed.

Even a car not running at the finish could win if it has completed more laps than the car that may still be running. There will be an hour between each heat so that cars experiencing difficulty can be brought back into competitive shape by the time the next heat starts.

The unique method of selecting a winner, could make the pit work as important as the speed of the huge, 500-horsepower cars.

Top threats in the race, the sixth of 13 on the Continental circuit, are Sam Posey of Cannon, Mich., who is leading the circuit with 21 points, Californians John Cannon and George Wintersteen, runners-up with 19 points, and England's Peter Gethin, unbeaten in the British Grand series—England's equivalent of the Continental.

Another top threat could be Jerry Hansen of Minneapolis, who set the course record of 2 minutes, 20.4 seconds in a Lotus-Chevy last year. That averages out to 102.564 miles an hour on the four-mile track.

Wintersteen is expected, but has not yet sent in his official entry. The others are all officially entered.

There were more than 30 cars in and final entries were expected to be around 40 for the race. The most entries in any of the other Continentals has been 23.

Bill Tufts, Road America president, said there were 23 entries for a separate 100-mile event for Formula B and C cars, also a national high.

The two races will offer a combined purse of nearly $20,000.

Giants Edge Dodgers In Slugfest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Bob Burdick's three-run homer in the eighth inning brought the San Francisco Giants a 14-13 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday after the slugfest had lasted five times.

The tempo of the game was set when Mauro Willy hit the first pitch of the game over the right field fence for his second 1969 homer. The Giants scored two in the bottom of that inning, only to have Los Angeles take the lead away with three second-inning runs, two driven in by Willy's triple.

Dickson And Boynton Tie For Early Lead In Golf Classic

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Bob Dickson and Frank Boynton, a scrupulous youth and a buoyant veteran, shot five under par 67's Thursday to share a one stroke lead after five times of the $180,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

The two golfers, both wearing flannels and both seeking their first big win, had 170 birdies and bogey-free rounds during play in sweetening humidity and near-100-degree weather at the suburban Philadelphia Valley Country Club.

The heat took its toll among the field of 147 contestants. Orville Moody, the U.S. Open champion, collapsed from heat prostration in the 15th fairway and was forced to withdraw from the 72-hole tourney. Nine others also dropped out, many of them suffering from the heat.

Four players were grouped right behind Dickson and Boynton with 68's. Dickson was paired with London, Dale Douglas, New Zealand's Bobby Charles and Lou Graham.

The seven at 69 were Joel Goldstrand, Donnie Henry, Ray Floyd, Bob Stone, Dave Hickey, Deane Bejman and Tommy Jacobs.

Former U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino was bunched with six others at 70 while Dave Hill, the second leading money winner this year, was in a crowd in the 15th fairway.

Defending champion Bob Murphy had an even par 72, as did PGA champion Julius Burges. Arnold Palmer was a stroke over par at 73.

The soft-spoken Dickson let his putter do his talking as he recorded only 21 putts, including seven one-putt greens. His longest birdie putt was a 35-footer he canned on the par four-eighth hole.

The 25-year-old Dickson, winner of both the U.S. and British amateur in 1967, is only in his second year on the pro tour. He has won $28,000 in prize money, captured the 1968 Halc Open in his rookie year.

His most spectacular birdie was on the 15th hole when he is seeking his first during this round. He hit a sand wedge to the green and on the third-putt he went into the cup. Dickson, a native of Oklahoma, expressed surprise at his round. "My first tournament appearance in five weeks due to Army reserve commitments. Normally I should miss the practice, but apparently I haven't," he mused.

Cubs' Jones Stops Giants 1-0

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (UPI)—Caldwell pitcher Gary Jones hurled a three-hitter and scored the only run of the game to lift the Cubs to a 1-0 Pioneer League victory over the Great Falls Giants Thursday night.

Jones set a 1-0 lead with a 1-1-1 butterfly and took the backstroke in 1:57.8. Some 20 seconds under the goal qualifying time.

Carlton Gardner took the freestyle, bronstroked and butterfly while Vester Van Leuven won the individual medley with a 2:28.00. He took the 100-meter backstroke.

Twin Falls' next action comes July 25-27 when it hosts the Intermountain AAU test.

MR. AND MRS. D. R. Young pose at the entrance of the new Twin Falls county museum which will be dedicated at a program at 2 p.m. Sunday. Mr. Young, first official historian of Twin Falls County and chairman of the Twin Falls County Historical Society, will speak at the service. Juneau Shinn will act as master of ceremonies.

New Museum Culminates Years Of Work For Society

By MARJORIE LIPPMAN
Times-News Correspondent

FILER — "It's very satisfying to see what people in a community can do when they set their minds to it," remarked Don Young, Twin Falls mayor and her husband, reminded as the past years of the Twin Falls County Historical Society and the bright outlook of the new museum, which the group sponsors and which is now open to the public.

Mr. Young was the founder of the group which organized in January, 1957. He was chosen president at its first meeting, with Don Gibbs, Kimberly, selected vice president, and Mrs. J. Woodson Greed, Twin Falls, secretary. The meeting in the city hall was attended by 18 members.

Mr. Young had served a number of years as Twin Falls County historical representative on the Idaho Historical Society board. When he observed the growing interest of many people in the area in preserving for posterity articles and accounts of early settlers, he realized a group might be formed on the local level and the Twin Falls County Historical Society came into being.

The society began meeting once a month, with a good amount of interest shown according to the organization.

John Hayes wrote the by-laws for the new organization and Mrs. Young kept the scrapbooks for a number of years.

A similar society formed some years before had left a balance in its treasury of $38.17 which was donated to the new association.

"We were one organization that started out with a bank account," teased Mr. Young.

Interesting programs for the meetings were planned, which included outside speakers such as an Indian agent from the Fort Hall Reservation, a surveyor who had been instrumental in the Salmon Dam and others.

The first field trip taken by the group was to the Oakley City of Rocks. Since that time the members have toured many scenic and historical spots in the area.

As people began donating articles for a future museum, the problem of storage arose. At first the Youngs stored things in their own home, but soon ran out of space. A room in the old hospital building was then rented by the society and used for several years.

When the Twin Falls County fair board offered display space at the county fair, the offer was gladly accepted as it was felt it would grant more people the opportunity to tour the museum as they came to the fair.

The antique building on the fairgrounds was divided with half of its space given to the display of antiques and the other half devoted to museum exhibits. This arrangement worked for several years, but with the explosion in antique-collecting and the ever-increasing volume of museum exhibits, lack of space for both necessitated another move.

The fair board offered the building on the grounds which had been formerly used as a restaurant and this was gratefully accepted by the historical group. Peter Coertzen, Twin Falls, was instrumental in securing the new museum for a number of years and was later assisted by Ed Jagels, Byhl, who is now director of the new museum.

"A good friend of the Youngs was C. B. Biebee, prominent Twin Falls photographer, whose pictures of early days in Magic Valley are a very important part of the museum's display. Mr. Young accompanied his friend on many of his trips for which, he recalls, they had to rent a livery rig for traveling.

He was anxious to buy some of Mr. Biebee's pictures for the state museum, but the cost at that time was somewhat prohibitive. However, some years later, after the photographer's death, the estate lowered the price of the collection and the local society was able to purchase them.

Some 2,000 of the Biebee negatives on glass plates are stored for preservation in the Bank and Trust building. Early negatives were made on glass plates.

The original camera and tripod belonging to Mr. Biebee have been donated to the museum and are on display there.

Another of the first items donated to the group was the heavy oil desk belonging to L. W. Perrine, and a photograph given to Mr. Perrine by Thomas Edison for his help in constructing one of the first electric powered railroads in the United States.

The Youngs, like all the members of the historical society, are pleased to see their dreams of a museum coming true. They feel the museum is something of which the entire community can well be proud.

Historical Society Officials To Dedicate Museum Sunday

DeWitt R. Young, first official historian of Twin Falls County and organizer of the Twin Falls County Historical Society, will speak Sunday for the official dedication of the county's museum.

A program, beginning at 2 p.m., will feature several historical society members including Juneau Shinn, master of ceremonies, Orrin Fuller, bugler for the flag raising ceremony and organ music by Alva Olson.

Other program features will include Harvey Pleasant and his musical group, displays of the "Senseless Marriage" Club, American antique vehicles, and flag raising by the Cavalry Unit of Magic Valley.

The Twin Falls Historical Society was organized in 1957. Mr. Young, appointed county historian by the Idaho Historical Society, as the first president.

Other active members included late Don Alworth, Norman Creed as secretary, Don Gibbs and Juneau Shinn. Early work of the society included the establishment of historical displays for the Twin Falls County Fair and the collection of photos and articles of early Twin Falls County.

A major step was the acquiring of the old Union School which has now been converted to a museum to house the society's collection. Ed Jagels has been named curator and the museum is open from 1 to 5 p.m. each day except Monday.

For the dedication, no charge will be made for admission throughout Sunday afternoon. A concession stand will be available for the sale of snacks and cool drinks.

HOSPITALIZED
HANSEN — A recent vacation trip was interrupted for Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Johnson, Hansen, when he was hospitalized at a veterans hospital in Topeka, Kan., requiring surgery after becoming ill. Mrs. Johnson has returned home, and says Mr. Johnson will be released later.

ATTEND FUNERAL attended funeral services for Mrs. Gose's brother, C. H. Fife Dowd, 44, Enid, Mr. Dowd, Frank Gose, Twin Falls, returned from Enid, Okla., where they had visited at his home in Enid.

U.S. To Honor Two Russians On Moon Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said Thursday the Apollo 11 moon team would leave behind on the lunar surface insignia or medals of three — two American astronauts and two dead Russian cosmonauts.

The president said in a statement "in recognizing the dedication and sacrifice of brave men of different nations, we underscore an example we hope to set: That if men can reach the moon, men can reach agreement."

Nixon said the medals of Col. Yuri A. Gagarin and Col. Vladimir Komarov were being carried to the moon's surface.

"The two men we hope will set foot on the moon represent all mankind," Nixon said, referring to the scheduled moon walk Monday morning of Neil A. Armstrong and Col. Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr.

"This achievement will be fitting, therefore, that the first lunar explorers carry with them some recognition of the sacrifice made by other space pioneers who helped to blaze their trail."

Armstrong, Aldrin and Michael Collins will leave the patches of Virgil I. Grissom, Roger B. Chaffee and Edward H. White. They will carry the medals of those Apollo astronauts but will return them to their widows.

"There is no national boundary to conquest," Nixon said, "the names of Gagarin and Komarov, of Grissom and Chaffee, share the honor we hope will come to Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins."
