Moon-Dust Exposure Isolates Two

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—The space agency said today it had quarantined two more men with the Apollo 11 astronauts because one of the men may have been exposed to lunar matter when a pressure glove he was using to handle moon rocks in a vacuum chamber broke.

It raised to 19 the number of men quarantined with the astronauts, including their support crew.

The agency identified the two as Ronald Buffum, who actually was handling the rocks during the night through the glove, and George Williams, who helped Buffum pull his right arm out of the vacuum chamber.

Dr. W. W. Kemmerer, head of quarantine operations, said blood samples had been drawn from both men. But he said he did not expect them to suffer any ill effects.

Dr. Wilmont Hess, chief scientist at the laboratory, said the glove broke while still being evaluated. He said he does not think it will delay operations with the moon rocks.

The Apollo 11 astronauts themselves began the last half of their 21-day isolation period today. Kemmerer said he did not expect the addition of the two rock technicians to the quarantine area to force an extension of the isolation period.

Mariner Returns Excellent Photos

PAISADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Dr. Robert H. Leighton of the California Institute of Technology, the principal investigator of the pictures, as he examined a relatively flat, grey surface of the planet Mars. The cratered area near the Mariner equator, "much like the mare (seas) of the moon."

The tiny, windmill-shaped spacecraft Thursday night relayed the first pictures made during its closest approach to the Red Planet—no within 2,100 miles of the surface.

Some photographs showed large areas covered with what appeared to be very old craters, their edges eroded away; some showed smaller, newer craters with sharp edges and deeper, rounded bowls.

Again and again the scientist scanned the pictures, searching for the lunar surface to describe what they saw on the pocked face of Mars.

"There must be a hundred craters in that picture," said

Prince Quits Ruling Role In Cambodia

By VENG KENG
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI)—Prince Norodom Sihanouk renounced his position as chief of state and changed Cambodia's governmental structure Thursday in the face of a governmental change proclaimed by the United States, the Communists and a drought.

The prince, addressing a meeting of his Sangkum, or Popular Society of Community, which claims the loyalty and membership of 90 per cent of Cambodia's 6.5 million people, accompanied by the resignation of Prime Minister Penn Nout, renounced his role in governing the country.

The prince said the crisis prompting his moves was caused by declines in rubber and rice production and a state of insecurity within the kingdom.

Senate Backs Surcharges; Major Tax Revamp Slated

Pakistan Seeks Aid Of U.S.

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI)—President Nixon and Gen. Ayub Khan agreed today that relations between the United States and Pakistan had worsened since the days of the Eisenhower administration. They sat down together to try to do something about it.

Even before he began five hours of talks with Pakistan's new military president Nixon said in an arrival speech he was not "optimistic" as to what they might accomplish.

But Nixon said he hoped during his 24-hour stay he could lay the basis for eliminating any differences of opinion between the two countries. Zia said he would at least permit the two leaders to get to know each other.

Still outstanding and unlikely to be solved at this meeting was Pakistan's request for the United States to lift its arms embargo. Pakistan said it needed more Patton tanks and other things, bringing its military strength back to normal.

Zia said he would accept Nixon's offer of a broad program of regional and bilateral projects in Asia as the best way of bringing peace and progress to the area.

Spud Growers 'Disc' Crops In Protest

By United Press International
PLAINS, Idaho (UPI)—Eastern Oregon today continued destroying about four per cent of their crops in an attempt to end a reported crop surplus and drive prices higher.

The farmers in Central Oregon and the Klamath Basin joined in large numbers Thursday in protesting the government's price controls.

The protesting move was apparently part of a nationwide effort by the National Farmers organization.

Over 100 Idaho counties and those near Vale and Ontario in Oregon said they had started plowing up the potatoes.

Joe Taylor of Paul, chairman of the Minidoka County NFO unit, said about 100 farmers in his county are participating.

He estimated the farmer in Idaho would plow up from five to 30 acres of unharvested potatoes.

In Cassia and Payette Counties in Idaho the farmers were reported participating in some crop destruction.

"Go Directly To Jail, Do Not Collect $200"

When Sheriff Paul Corder dashed into the jail complex Thursday night, he thought someone was being murdered. He had been on duty on the first floor office in the court house when he heard shouting. The sounds were coming from the fourth-floor jail with the first floor office. It was about 7:30 p.m. The sounds were coming from cell No. two, a cell nearly torn apart in the past two months by three men. These three men have since been removed to the state prison at Boise. The cell was repaired earlier this week and Thursday night Sheriff Corder moved three new tenants into the cell. They were transferred from cell No. five, which is across the hall on several steel doors removed from the cell where all the noise was coming from. On entering the cell, Sheriff Corder found his three inmates eagerly waiting his arrival. "Hey, Paul," one said. "You forgot to give us our monopoly set when you moved us over here." Sheriff Corder rolled his eyes. The prisoners were given their monopoly set, then warned to keep the noise down. The sheriff said he expects no trouble, now that the men have their monopoly set.

Hamer Budget Faces Charges Of 'Conflict Of Interest'

Budge denied it. But before he had a chance to defend himself, the crowded hearing before the Senate Securities subcommittee broke into a partisan argument between the SEC chairman's Democratic accusers and Republican defenders.

Wendell Has Ordinance On Traffic

WENDELL—The Wendell City Council has adopted a new ordinance regulating all motor vehicles on city streets and alleys.

The ordinance forbids parking, loading or unloading of trucks and large vehicles in certain areas. The law also prescribes overservance of traffic signs, like speed limits, requires accidents to be reported and makes it unlawful to drive a vehicle recklessly or while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs.

Chief of Police Dale Bunn emphasized at the council meeting that drivers who park their cars all day on Main and Idaho Streets create difficulty for out-of-town customers who wish to shop. He asked local motorists to use the off-street parking facilities provided for their use.

If cooperation is not received it will be necessary to adopt one-hour parking on Main and Idaho streets, the chief said.

The audit of the 1968 city records prepared by Thomas Mahan was reviewed. Mr. Mahan explained the formula for certifying the tax levy which, under new legislation passed last spring, cannot be increased more than four per cent above last year's figure and must now be certified in dollars instead of mills.

Catholic Editor Quits Post In Church-Reform Dispute

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The editor-in-chief of America's largest Catholic weekly has resigned his post because of a conflict with superiors over liberal reforms in the Catholic Church.

Alger Vincent A. Zimmerman submitted his resignation as editor of Our Sunday Visitor on July 23, without public announcement of his action.

He told trustees of the weekly newspaper, which has a national circulation of 600,000, that he had decided to resign "after several weeks of serious thought."

Zimmerman gave no reason for his resignation, but he has confided to friends that he was tired of waging "the old liberal-conservative battle" week in and week out.

Zimmerman has been a forceful and articulate supporter of the reforms launched by the Vatican Council in an effort to "update" the church.

He also is a strong advocate of Christian unity and under his leadership, Our Sunday Visitor joined with the National Council of Churches in publishing a monthly report on the progress of the ecumenical movement.

The Pope's birth centennialencyclal was not an issue in the conflict which developed between Zimmerman and the more conservative managers of the weekly, headed by Bishop Leo A. Pursley.

Before taking over the editorship of Our Sunday Visitor, which is published at Huntington, Ind., Zimmerman was director of the Bureau of Information of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

'Panthers' Wound Three In Gunbattle

CHICAGO (UPI)—Five policemen were wounded by gunfire from the headquarters of the Black Panther party early today.

Three men shouting "die pigs" were arrested when police stormed the West-Side building used as Panther headquarters, police said.

The condition of the policemen was not immediately known. One officer had a shotgun pellet in the eye, police said.

"All I know is we stopped our car and they were shooting at police from the headquarters of the Black Panther office upstairs," said Patrolman Robert Flynn.

Flynn said he and another policeman had to blow the lock off the door of the building with shotguns. "We proceeded upstairs. There was no resistance. In the building we found many guns. We went through the apartment and out to the back porch."

"There were these three Panthers shouting, 'die pigs.' They kept shouting it. They fought. They were subdued."

Flynn and other officers said they did not know why the Panthers opened fire. The three Panthers were taken to Cook County Hospital, police said. The wounded policemen were taken to Cook County, St. Mary's and Presbyterian-St. Luke's hospitals.

Senate Panel Endorses Bill On Mine Health

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Labor Committee Wednesday approved a coal mine health and safety bill and sent it to the Senate.

The action came after more than a month of wrangling between coal mine operators, the United Mine Workers and the Nixon administration over procedure and costs involved.

The House Labor Committee still is working on its version of the complicated measure designed to improve the health and safety of miners. The bill was the result of numerous recent mine tragedies, including the entrapment and death of 78 miners at Mannington, W. Va., last November.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A pair of robbers picked the wrong man to strongarm and were lucky to wind up with sort of a draw.

They grabbed police lieutenant Gus Bruneman early Wednesday. He wound up arresting one suspect while the other escaped with Bruneman's wrist watch.

LONDON (UPI)—Soviet novelist Anatoly Kuznetsov hid today in a secret refuge with a promise of permanent British asylum. He said he gave his Russian chaperone the slip by excusing himself to seek a prostitute in London's seedy Soho district.

Kuznetsov got in trouble with the Soviet Union's Communist establishment with his stories of unflattering pictures of life under collectivization. But he said the biggest reason he defected was disgust with the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

The British Home Office said Wednesday night Kuznetsov had asked for and received permission to stay in England indefinitely following 44 hours as a missing person sought by Scotland Yard.

LDS Leaders Hit Sex Education in School

By LESTER KINSLOW
SALT LAKE CITY—Sex education in schools, long a priority target for the John Birch Society, has become a heated issue in the power struggle between leaders in the powerful, 3,000,000-member, Mormon organization.

John Cannon, coordinator of information at Mormon headquarters in Salt Lake City, said this was the first time the denomination's president, David O. McKay, nor its highest governing body, the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, had officially taken a stand on the matter. But one of these Twelve Apostles is former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. And at this year's 133th Annual Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Apostle Benson is expected to announce that the church is opposed to sex education in the schools.

The former cabinet member also stated that the commission First Presidency (McKay and four "counselors"—sort of vice presidents) as having issued the following statement:

"We believe serious hazards are involved in entrusting to the schools the teaching of this vital and important subject to our children. This responsibility cannot, wisely, be left to society, nor the schools, nor the parents; it is the responsibility of each parent to see that they fully perform their duty in this respect."

Benson himself provided the Conference no hints as to what society should do about the large number of parents who, due to either ineptitude or prejudice, fail to give their children dangerously ignorant about sex.

Instead, he warned the Conference about the "amoral leadership" of the Secular Information and Education Council of the United States (SIECUS). The Board of Directors of SIECUS includes Dr. C. Everett Koop, SIECUS Professor of Family Life at Penn State, and Dr. Harold Christensen, Professor of Sociology at Purdue, both of whom are Mormons. (Other directors include eleven Ph. D.'s, eight M.D.'s, three Protestant ministers, two Catholic priests, and one rabbi.)

President Eisenhower's Secretary of Agriculture also told the Conference: "The world teaches birth control. Tragically, many of our sisters subscribe to its pills and practices when they could easily provide earthly innocencies for more of their children. They will someday suffer the pains of remorse when they meet the spirits that might have been part of their progeny. The precepts of man would have you believe that by limiting the population of the world we can have peace and plenty. That is the doctrine of the devil!"

Similarly, one of McKay's four Counselors, Alvin R. Dyer, told the Conference that describe and illustrate human reproductive organs and their functions do not harmonize with the gospel and the Church is opposed in such . . . sex education or family life education is placing emphasis on raw sex in the classroom."

Do You Have A Heavy Heart?

By KENNETH C. HEMPLE, Pastor, Tyler Street Baptist Church

One could encounter every day-numerable people who readily admit that they have a heavy and sad heart. Nothing seems to go right and after trying so many different ways, nothing seems to bring peace to their lives.

The Bible has much to say about the heart and it would be profitable for all of us to consider His teaching. Jesus declares to all in Matthew 11:28-29: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

Today's pace of living would just about do any of us in, and would surely help to make us discouraged and sad. When we really do all we can for ourselves, we almost think that there is help and it can be found in Jesus Christ. Those who have come to trust Christ as personal saviour have found that He imparts to them a help, strength, and a power that they have never experienced before. Jesus tells us "to cast our cares upon Him, for He careth for you" (1 Peter 5:7) so instead of going on and on about fretting, and having your heart heavy with cares and problems, we have a promise of help that will give us rest and comfort. Right now, we can cast our cares into the place in life that when we "delight ourselves in the Lord," and He will give us the desires of our heart, and bring us away into the Lord, trust also in Him, and He shall bring it to pass. (Psalm 37:5-6)

What a relief to find that our Lord cares enough about us to actually order the events and happenings in our lives, and then He will give us the strength and power to overcome our anguish and heaviness of heart that so many experience. They have not found the best friend in life, Jesus Christ. He will give you the strength you need to live with His problems and cares, and you will find that His help, or will give you through His shoulder your own strength, and have a heavy, laden heart?

Woman Convert May Become First U.S.-Born Catholic Saint

By RAY MOSELEY

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI once remarked that the United States has produced "the holiness of people." Yet it has not produced a single native born saint of the Catholic Church.

In just a few more years, however, a mother of five children, who was born in New York an Episcopalian and converted to Catholicism at age 30, may join the Church's long roll of saints.

She is Mother Elizabeth Ann Bayley Seton, a member of one of America's most prominent early families, who was born Aug. 23, 1774, and died at Emmitsburg, Md., 47 years later. She founded the first American Catholic order of nuns, the Sisters of Charity, in 1809, and is credited with establishing the first parochial school in the U.S. at Emmitsburg.

The late Pope John XXIII beatified her on March 17, 1963, culminating a 23-year process in which the Vatican established her "heroic virtues" and ruled that two miraculous cures had occurred as the result of prayer to her.

Now only two more miracles are needed for Mother Seton to become a saint, and according to the Vatican's first American Italian Father Lucio Giuseppe Lapalorcia of the Congregation of the Mission, those two miracles already have occurred.

He said an ecclesiastical court in the New York archdiocese has accepted one alleged miracle, and there are reports a second has occurred in Baltimore.

Lapalorcia declines to predict when the cause might be completed, but sources at the Vatican say it will be in the next few days.

Father Lapalorcia is now beginning a personal study before taking the case to the Congregation of Rites, where he will eventually argue it just as a lawyer argues a case in court.

He must consult doctors who can certify that the cause and lawyers who will advise him on legal points before he makes his presentation.

Vatican sources said the Congregation of Rites might be able to complete hearings on this alleged miracle within a year.

Lapalorcia declined to discuss the second alleged miracle at Baltimore because he was afraid of it only in an unofficial way and there has not yet been a church trial.

"Normally local church authorities wait about two years before undertaking a trial to make sure the cure is permanent," he said. "We have to proceed with great caution in all these cases."

The postulator—Lapalorcia's role in this case—is traditionally more cautious than local church authorities, whose enthusiasm for having a citizen of their country made a saint is sometimes felt to influence their judgment.

The postulator must go before the Congregation of Rites and face the promoter of the faith—the "divine advocate"—who raises objections. He must be prepared to answer.

Husband Held In Bombing

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Police deputies have charged a 30-year-old Wichita, Kan., man with assault with intent to commit murder in connection with the car bombing which critically injured his wife.

Deputies John Fife and Dean Case apprehended the insurance salesman about 4 p. m. Thursday when he arrived at the Cottonwood Hospital to visit his 24-year-old wife, Kaylyn. A complaint was later signed by Sheriff Dale Gates and Rahawi was placed in the city-county jail in lieu of $100,000 bail.

Mrs. Rahawi was critically injured Tuesday morning when the family car blew apart when she turned on the ignition switch in preparing to drive to work.

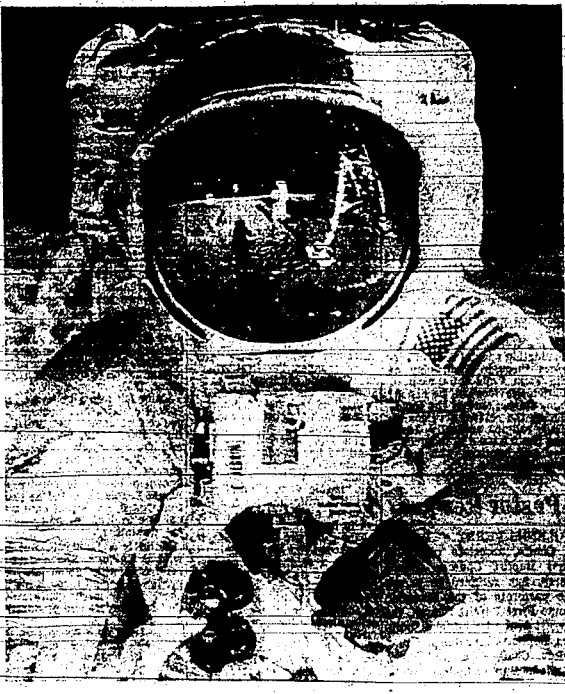

Capt. N. D. Hayward of the sheriff's office said it appeared the automobile had been wired with some sort of explosive in such a way that the device would detonate when the key was turned on.

The forces of the explosion blew the front section of the car apart, caused considerable damage to the carport and the family house and Mrs. Rahawi in critical condition with multiple injuries to her legs and abdomen. She underwent 10 hours of emergency surgery Tuesday and is still listed on the critical list.

Hayward said, "We have determined the motive" behind the bombing, but he would not elaborate.

The suspect was in the house with their 2-year-old daughter and a 17-year-old nephew when the explosion occurred, but none was injured.

The nearly-demolished automobile has been impounded by the sheriff's department for future analysis by ordnance specialists.

Inquest Asked In Kennedy Case

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis said Thursday he would seek an inquest in the death of a pretty Washington secretary in an auto accident involving Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's case — other authorities had previously insisted was closed.

Mary Jo Kopecne, 28, a former member of the campaign staff of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, drowned July 18 when a car driven by Kennedy plunged off a narrow bridge into salt water pond on Chappaquiddick Island adjacent to Martha's Vineyard.

A week later Kennedy pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of the accident, receiving a two-month suspended jail sentence and loss of his driver's license for a year.

Dinis released the text of a letter he was mailing to G. Joseph Tauro, chief justice of the Superior Court.

The letter said "I hereby make request that a justice of the Superior Court be assigned to conduct an inquest in and for the county of Dukes county (Martha's Vineyard) as provided for under Massachusetts law.

This inquest will concern the death of one Mary Jo Kopecne of Washington, D.C., who supposedly died by external means on or about July 18, 1969.

Although Dinis did not say why he was seeking an inquest, he was known to have been upset about press criticism of the case, particularly the failure to conduct an autopsy. Dinis could summon any witnesses he wanted to the hearing, which could be open.

Under Massachusetts law, only an autopsy could determine the medical cause of death. An inquest — which is not mandatory — would determine the legal cause.

Mrs. Kopecne was buried near Plymouth, Pa., and legal sources in Boston said a request to Pennsylvania authorities for an autopsy would have to be approved by the girl's parents.

Walter E. Steele, the special prosecutor for Martha's Vineyard, and the police chief in Edgartown, have said they considered the Kopecne case closed.

Steele could not be reached immediately. He and Dinis have traded "barbs" on the handling of the case in the past.

Prepare Books

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone 4-H club members held an Achievement Day to work on record books and practiced judging in preparation for the county fair Aug. 8-9.

Mrs. Marvin Laughlin, leader, said there will be one more meeting before fair time.

Foresters Gain Backing On Mining

POCATELLO (UPI) — The president of the Great Sawtooth Preservation Council said Thursday he "fully supported the Forest Service" in calling the public hearing on the White Clouds issue.

Dr. John Merriam, Pocatello, referred to the statement made by Gov. Don Samuelson Wednesday that the U.S. Forest Service should have quietly given a permit to American Smelting and Refining Co., to build an access road to a molybdenum deposit in the mountains without holding public hearings.

Samuelson told Forest Service Chief Edward P. Cliff the agency had "riled up" public opinion against a plan to mine what he said might be a billion-dollar mineral deposit.

Merriam said, "We feel the Forest Service is in charge of administering the public lands and we think it is a fine idea to consult the public with regard to how these lands should be administered."

This gives all sides a chance to be heard — the governor, the conservationists, the mining interests and everyone."

Sen. Church Opposes Law On Tax Load

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho charged Thursday that extension of the 10 per cent surtax "proves once again an inequitable system of taxation which, more than ever, is in need of drastic reform."

Church said "The surtax only six-month extension of the levy, which passed the Senate by a vote of 70-30."

Church said "The surtax only magnifies the present inequalities of our income tax laws. For most of our citizens for whom taxes are insupportable, the hard-pressed wage-earner, farmer, and small businessman, the surtax means an extra 10 per cent at the end of the year."

Church added, "Among lower and middle-income tax payers, there exists a crisis of faith in our entire tax structure. If allowed to continue, we face growing trouble with taxpayers tired of inequities and burdens for special interests."

Wilbur Henke who has been employed for a year by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Robinson, Tuttle, at their ranch has moved to Pinedale, Wyo., where he will be foreman of a ranch. Mike Thompson, Mounin Home, and nephew of Mrs. Robinson, is helping with milking chores for the Robinsons. They milk 41 Holsteins and have 25 heifers to come into the milking herd soon.

A good aim came in handy for Clifford Dayley, Richfield, last week when he threw a wrench and connected with a large coiled rattlesnake. Dayley noticed the snake while on a hay biter and threw the only thing available. The wrench broke the snake's back and he finished it off with a piece of fence post. The snake had 11 rattles and a button.

Cutting of sweet corn on the D. H. Gold and Dean William ranches, Hagerman, began this week.

David Ayanor has a large wash-out on his King Hill place, caused when water being pumped from the Snake River escaped through a gopher hole along the ditch. The water pump is on a floating raft in the river. The break occurred during the night and was not discovered until a hole some 30 feet across, and about as deep had been washed out. The dirt went into the river, and at high water mark, was deposited underneath the raft, putting the pump out of reach of the water for practically all the time. Mr. and Mrs. George Terry have been in charge of irrigating the farm, which is the former Byram-Greer place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Monaghan, Central Point, Ore., have purchased the D. J. Grimes ranch south east of Hagerman. Mr. and Mrs. Grimes and family have moved to Oregon.

Potential Of Steam Tractor Outlined At Engineers Meet

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—The latest design improvements in the steam engine can make it "a most advantageous power unit" for agricultural and industrial use, James R. Hammerle, assistant professor of biological and agricultural engineering, North Carolina State University, Raleigh, reported at the recent annual meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

Hammerle, in a session of the power and machinery division of the ASAE meeting, called the external combustion engine a "ready replacement for the internal combustion engine," and referred to these improvements:

Through improved design, water mileage now equals that of the radiator of an internal combustion engine.

The water reservoir can now be designed to withstand freezing or oil may be mixed with the water and is extremely light weight. A small pilot light might be used or the reservoir could be drained.

Accessory power can be supplied by a small auxiliary turbine. No clutch or transmission means a mechanically simpler partment, lower cost, and lighter weight, resulting in reduction of 35-40 percent to as little as five percent.

The steam engine operates at a higher combustion temperature because combustion takes place at a constant burning rate without explosion as in the ICE (internal combustion engine). "The engine is completely inaudible at 25 feet," he said, "and, when beside the engine there is only a barely audible hissing sound."

Operation is smoother because the vibration is inherently balanced and engine-free. A two-cylinder, double acting, reciprocating ICE (external combustion engine) has the same number of power strokes as an eight-cylinder ICE, with power strokes on both the up and down strokes of each cylinder."

Fuel costs are considerably lower. Recent tests, for example, show fuel consumption at 30 miles per gallon on kerosene.

It is safer because the fuel burned is less flammable.

"Since no combustion occurs internally, there is no resulting carbon buildup," Hammerle pointed out. "Internal engine wear would be negligible."

Hammerle also stressed the engine's adaptability. "Lightweight, simple, and rugged innovations in application as the mounting of multiple engines on individual wheels of heavy tractors, soil speller of the field conditions."

Discussing the future of the external combustion engine, Hammerle said that others who have reviewed this automotive power source believe that "economic factors such as resistance to change and so-called barriers to entry, including the high capital investment necessary to establish a new automotive corporation, all of which play a part in keeping the steam producer from successfully competing with the ICE manufacturer, will seem to be nearing solution, with the continuing intensity of government interest."

Social Security Question-Box

Nancy Berrett, Towncrest Manor, Twin Falls, got more than she realized when she recently purchased a dozen eggs.

She was making a dessert after purchasing the eggs, when she cracked open four eggs and found each had two yolks. She then examined a hard boiled egg she had boiled earlier and found three yolks.

All five eggs were from the same carton.

Q. My question is, I'm not ready to retire yet, but I would like to know how much social security I'll get when I do retire. How can I find this out?

A. Feel free to call our social security office for an estimate of your future check. Most likely your monthly social security check will be based on your earnings after 1950. You should be able to tell the interviewer your yearly earnings since 1950. If you don't have this information you can write to Social Security Headquarters in Baltimore to get this information. The Social Security office for your area is available for this purpose. Call and ask the office for one.

Q. Do I lose money if I wait until after I retire before I file for social security?

A. If you wait too long you could lose money. However, your social security will pay benefits as far back as 12 months. If you wait until after you retire, there may be a delay in getting your first check. Also, if there are any problems in your social security application, you'll want them worked out before you retire, so your checks won't be delayed past the time you need it. There is another consideration also. If you wait there may be a delay in getting your medical insurance to be effective in the month you reach age 65. You should file your claim in the three months before your birthday.

Bee Boards Dot Alfalfa Fields

A common sight in alfalfa fields throughout Magic Valley are bee boards.

The bee boards are there because it takes a lot of leafcutter bees to do the job of pollinating the blossoms of alfalfa for seed production. The boards are the bees' home and headquarters for summer work that is essential to making the crop.

For adequate coverage, growers provide five or six boards per acre with 2,000 cells each. The holes are drilled. That number will produce 15,000 to 25,000 bees. The (QRM) is greater than usually needed to pollinate the field, but is required, according to Norman D. Waters, research entomologist at the P. A. M. branch experiment station of the University of Idaho, because of high mortality caused by weather, birds, insecticides and roaches.

Within the last 10 years the alfalfa leafcutter bee has become the most important pollinator in Idaho alfalfa seed districts. In contrast to other alfalfa pollinators, it flies only a short distance to gather nectar and pollen. This flight pattern enables growers to manage the bee flocks.

Waters says under natural field conditions in most areas of Idaho, the bees begin emerging early in June. The peak comes about 20 days later and ends in early August.

By the end of the first day after emergence, a female bee has usually selected a nest and started construction. She will build it for about a month, bring in nectar and pollen and deposit an egg in one or two cells per day.

Depending on weather, Waters said, from one to 50 per cent of the bees in cells constructed early will begin to come out late in July as a second generation. Occasionally a few bees appear in the first generation.

The remaining bees change into overwintering pupal forms to emerge the following year. It is a good idea for growers to provide good holes throughout the summer so females will have space to begin new nests. Satisfactory nesting materials include holes drilled in wood — known as bee boards — grooved boards and soda straw sheaths.

Sheaths range in size from those holding a few standard four-foot boards up to large units holding 100 or more boards for enough bees to pollinate 10 acres of seed. Sheaths are needed to protect nests from 100-degree heat by providing shade during the day. They also protect bees from rain and wind.

Nesting materials are removed from field sheaths in October, after all larvae have had time to range in size. The nests are placed in cold storage at 35 degrees and 50 per cent humidity. These conditions during the winter dormant period will keep temperatures below 40 degrees.

In the spring, nests, taken from cold storage, should be placed on the floor of the incubation room to act as traps for bee parasites. In areas that are in bloom, bees can be moved from the incubator about the 20th day of incubation and placed in field sheaths. The incubator temperature can be lowered to 65 degrees. Bees can be held at that temperature for one week.

The nesting materials are uneconomical to keep after two or three seasons. Waters said, because accumulation of roaches, smothering bees, dead bee larvae, unconsumed pollen balls, etc. After bees have been salvaged, the old material should be burned.

One of the major problems of using leafcutter bees is the spraying of alfalfa crops with unwanted insecticides without harming the bees or drifting insecticide. Spraying of alfalfa is done in late evening when the bees have returned to their nests.

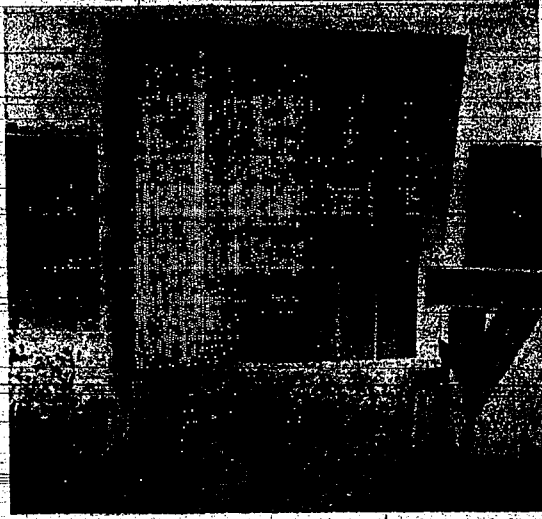

Three other kinds of bees are helpful in pollinating alfalfa seeds. The diversity of entomologist said, honeybees, alkali bees and miscellaneous wild bees take a share of the load. All are important in their particular localities.

Do leafcutters sting? Only the females, naturally, and their sting is relatively mild. It is that reason they are easy to care for and require no special handling equipment such as required with honeybees.

Local growers of alfalfa seed realize they must have pollinating bees in sufficient numbers in the right fields at the right time to produce a commercial seed crop. Waters said, "Growers can make some cultural mistakes, and still produce a crop, but poor judgment about pollinators guarantees less profit."

Grass Production In Idaho Noted

BOISE — In Idaho, prospects for Kentucky bluegrass, other than bluestem, production are good. The bluegrass is being raised in the state, mostly from increased acreage. The bluegrass is being raised in the state, mostly from increased acreage. The bluegrass is being raised in the state, mostly from increased acreage.

BEES BOARDS, similar to this one, dot hundreds of alfalfa fields throughout Magic Valley. Bees that nest in these boards help pollinate the blossoms of the alfalfa which is necessary for seed production.

Housewives Consider Quality First When Shopping For Meat

BOISE — When homemakers in the United States shop for meat, they consider quality first. That's the conclusion of a survey of 3,000 people by the statistical reporting service of the USDA. A summary of the report was received this week by the University of Idaho extension service.

Next to quality, the buyers looked for flavor, least waste, and healthfulness. None of the four meats considered in the survey — beef, chicken, ham and fresh pork — passed all the tests with flying colors, the summary said. Beef and chicken had an "excellence" image. A majority of those interviewed said beef was tasty, easily digested, versatile, healthful, and relatively free of waste. Beef scored well in all ways but one: it was found wanting when eaten cold. Beef was reported served more often than any of the meats studied. Chicken was another favorite. It was cited as "tasty," easy to digest, easy to prepare in many ways, and good to eat cold. Its chief disadvantage, according to the survey, was poor keeping quality when raw. Some people also noted that it got tiresome if served too frequently. Ham was rated as tasty and good to eat cold, as well as hot. Many rated it favorably for keeping quality and its suitability for "company" fare. However, ham was served less often than the three other meats. Ham was considered unsuitable for weight watchers. Many homemakers pegged fresh pork with all the disadvantages of ham, plus three more — difficult to digest, not always safe to eat, and too much waste. Many said they felt fresh pork did not keep well before cooking and was not tasty when served cold. Lamb was considered by the survey in a "minor" role compared to the other meats. It was "low" on the "quality" pole in terms of household servings. Many infrequent users said it was too expensive. Some disliked its flavor. However, many of those who did not use lamb said their parents had given them little opportunity to acquire a taste. The survey said most homemakers shied away from the idea of buying frozen meat at the store mainly because they "couldn't" judge its freshness and quality.

Elmore County Fair Activities Outlined

GLENN'S FERRY — "Most of the events will take place this year at the Elmore County Fair in the 4-H arena, where spectators can enjoy comfort of a new, shaded grandstand," announced Karl Carnahan, chairman of the fair board. Carnahan expects the 4-H livestock judging, possibly the 4-H Fair Stock Sale, the rodeo class horsemanship (a judge is still needed), the Miniature Rodeo, and any activities connected with the Elmore Fair Queen coronation will take place in this arena. Members of the Moose Lodge turned out in full force recently to erect a new 18-to-26-foot cinder block building at the fairgrounds where the lodge will offer diversion for fairgoers.

Herbert Edwards, Elmore County agent, announces a total of $750 will be awarded among the first three place winners of exhibits. Entertainment at the fair this year will include the miniature rodeo each of the first three evenings, and a carnival. The 1969 Fair parade is being sponsored by the Glenn's Ferry Chamber of Commerce, co-chaired by Jim Carpenter and Charles Grov. Entries may be checked in at the fair exhibition building, and the same activity from 9 to 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. From then until 8 p.m., will be judging of home economics and open class exhibits. From 8 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, livestock judging will be held at the fairgrounds. At 8 a.m. Thursday, 4-H horse judging and showing will last until 1 a.m. Sunday morning. Livestock judging contest

9:30 a.m., enter farm crops, garden-p-p-o-d-o-e-o, flowers, and Grange projects. At 1 p.m. Friday will be the agriculture dog, horse, health, and safety demonstration contests, and at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 9, the fitting and showing of dogs, with the dog obedience classes, coming at 10 a.m. with the popular Fat Stock Sale starting immediately after the fitting. Newspaper awards in seven categories, at 1 p.m. The crowning of the new Fair Queen will be accomplished during the intermission of the rodeo that evening. While the actual fairground activities culminate that evening, the horse racing, particularly controlled, is held every afternoon starting at 5 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and on Sunday post time will be 2 p.m. The Myd Knights of Blackfoot, state winner this year of the Jaycee Battle of the Bands, will play for the Fair Queen Dance on Aug. 9 in the Glenn's Ferry City Hall. Immediately after the crowning festivity at the Little Rodeo on Fairgrounds, it will last until 1 a.m. Sunday morning.

Tips Offered For Cassia County Fair Booth Displays

BURLEY — Items to remember in preparing a display booth at the Cassia County Fair were outlined last week by Evelyn Owens, Cassia County Home Economics Agent. Products should be arranged so they can be easily seen. (Threshed grains, beans, peas, small seeds and similar material in sacks or containers should be placed in the lower part of the exhibit so you can easily see the material in the container.) Sacks and other containers should be of a size and color that they will accentuate rather than detract from the products displayed. They should also be of a size and color that will contribute to the unity and color harmony of the exhibit as a whole. A background and shelf coverings should be of such color and texture that they will emphasize rather than detract from the products shown. (Soft, mild tints of most colors with a soft texture will do this. Strong, harsh colors and hard textures are apt to detract from the product displayed.) Large articles like melons, pumpkins and other pumpkins should ordinarily be displayed in the lower foreground. However, some of these large articles might be used to set up primary or secondary points of interest within the body of the display. From an artistic point of view the objective is to build the display and background into one unified, harmonious, pleasing background that accentuates and emphasizes the products displayed. Backgrounds and decorations should be interesting and pleasing but the interest should be at a sufficiently low level so the attention will be returned to the display of products. (Backgrounds add decorations with too strong colors or too high interest level will tend to pull the attention away from the products displayed and make them rather than the products the main focal point of the exhibit.) The colors in the background should harmonize and blend in with the colors of the products displayed. The products to be displayed should be sorted by types of colors. (Strong, bright colors such as bright reds, oranges and yellows; medium colors such as bright greens, purples, blues, medium yellows and reds; dull or neutral colors such as dull greens, dull brown and grey; high light colors such as white, pale yellows and pale greens.) Strong, bright colors should be used to set up major points of interest, focal points and secondary points of interest. A major point of interest and the main focal point of the exhibit is usually located in the center at the top of the product display and at the bottom of the background wall. A second major point of interest might be located at the bottom foreground of the display. When this is done minor points of interest should be located near the sides of the display in such a way to achieve balance or symmetry and draw the attention to the least interesting parts of the display. Duller more neutral colors are placed in the spaces between the points of interest and along the borders of the display. The intermediate colors should be used to blend the points of interest into the more neutral colors of the backgrounds and

Cattle Prices Said In Line With Total Economic Picture

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — "Today's beef prices are economically justified and entirely reasonable," declared C. W. McMillan, executive vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Association. McMillan reported the results of extensive ANCA research into the beef price structure at ANCA's eastern regional meeting today. He ticked off the following as important considerations: 1) Effective consumer demand for beef is booming because of (a) relatively high levels of employment, (b) increasing consumer incomes, (c) steadily increasing population. 2) Average per capita consumption of beef has doubled of the past 20 years. 3) Average take-home pay has increased 150 per cent in the past 20 years. — yet today's consumer uses only about 25 per cent of his take-home income to buy beef, while the percentage was 3.3 20 years ago. Today's branding works just one-half as long to buy one pound of much higher quality beef than he did 20 years ago. 4) Cattle and beef prices lag parity levels by 10 to 15 per cent — behind many other segments of the economy. Average live cattle prices during the first half of 1969 were below what they were in 1951. 5) At the retail level, current beef prices are just about equal to those the consumer paid in 1951, yet during the same period

37 Gem Soil Districts Seek Funds

BOISE (UPI) — Alvin Benson, chairman of the State Soil Conservation Commission, announced Tuesday that 37 soil conservation districts had submitted budget requests to the commission. Benson said the requests were for funding assistance under terms of recent legislation authorizing the state and counties to assist in local conservation efforts. Benson said total requests for state funds amounted to $48,500. Under terms of House Bill 225, which established the procedure for funding county governments must first agree to contribute a specified amount to the program. State money can then be appropriated in amounts up to twice the county total, but not to exceed $3,000 annually. Benson said only Dry Creek, Balanced Rock, and Kootenai counties have agreed to contribute. Other requests ranged down to a low of $200 in Adams Soil Conservation District. The budgets submitted indicated that the majority of the state and county funds will be used by the local districts to increase the amount of clerical

Mr. Claborn said all four meetings will begin at 8 p.m.

WEST SHUTS EYES TO NEW ATTACK

West was one of those players who don't like to open a four-card suit headed by the jack, so he decided not to open a heart against the no trump game. He opened the spade or diamond lead and put the seven of clubs on the table.

West as top of nothing and shifted to the deuce. West's eight forced North's king. South went after the diamond jack by leading low to his king, back to dummy's ace and continuing with the 10.

West was on lead with the queen of diamonds and could have beaten the hand by just leading out his queen of spades.

Furthermore, he should have made that play. East would not have been necessary by the apparent success of his club lead and had gotten the idea that East held the ace and queen of diamonds. Therefore West led another club. This gave South time to cash his clubs and knock out the ace of hearts. To win up with three tricks in each minor suit and a heart for a nine-trick total.

Rupert Eyes Lack Of Air Facilities

RUPERT — Rupert's lack of air facilities was discussed again during the Thursday meeting of the city's Chamber of Commerce.

The discussion was led by George Falkner, chamber president. Bob Balch, who attended the air meeting sponsored by the Boise Chamber of Commerce in Boise Wednesday. The Boise meeting was called to explain what the operation of the state's new airport commission and to seek suggestions from the various chambers concerning the state's air flight problems.

Mervin Ling, a local flier, said, in response to a question concerning the regional airport proposal, that he did not believe the regional airport was an "either-or" situation, that both are needed. "It's like having an interstate highway into the town without having paved streets in the town," he said of the regional airport proposal.

It was noted that towns smaller than Rupert have airports, and that Mimidoka County is the only county in Idaho without air facilities. It was the consensus of the group that the taxpayers in the area will not okay a proposal backed only by the area fliers, that some other hard based support was needed if the area is to install its own air facilities.

Mr. Falkner was assigned to prepare an approach for the chamber airport committee to get the necessary support for the air facilities and to present it to the chamber within 30 days.
