Romanians Cheer Arrival Of Nixon

PRESIDENT RICHARD NIXON shakes hands with Romanians during a motorcade from the airport to the government guest house in Bucharest on Saturday. At the airport, men, women and children at the outer fringes of a

President Vows To Help Nation Cut Kremlin Ties

BUCHAREST (UPI)—President Nixon arrived Saturday in Communist Romania to a tumultuous welcome by an estimated one-million Romanians who surged cheering around his motorcade. He offered to cooperate in a search for peace, but with the independence Romania covets.

Nixon, the first American President to visit a Communist nation since Franklin D. Roosevelt visited Josef Stalin at Yalta in 1945, thus began a 27-hour visit that could have important repercussions in Eastern Europe. The Russians barely concealed their displeasure.

The clated Nixon told his host, President Nicolae Ceausescu, the United States welcomes Warsaw Pact overtures toward European freedom. He said the United States would support any effort to bring about a change in the status quo in Eastern Europe.

Romania is a maverick in the Communist camp and Nixon touched on Ceausescu's quiet campaign to find a measure of freedom from Moscow's line. He said the United States would support any effort to bring about a change in the status quo in Eastern Europe.

Nixon was making a point of trying to improve relations with Communist East Europe with the hope that it could lead to a breakthrough in back East but whether the references to independence would frisk the Kremlin more remained to be seen. Diplomats said the Nixon visit could lead to a breakthrough in back East but whether the references to independence would frisk the Kremlin more remained to be seen.

County To Lease Voting Machines

In a deadline vote late Friday afternoon, Twin Falls County Commissioners authorized the lease-purchase of 90 voting machines for Twin Falls County.

The motion to purchase the equipment was made by William J. Loughmiller, chairman of the committee. The motion was approved by a 4-1 vote.

The cost of the 90 machines will be $1,795 per machine or $161,640. Interest payments would range from the maximum of $3,728 the first year down to $369.84 the last year and would total $14,000 if payments are extended over the full ten years.

County Auditor Harold Loughmiller said the machines would cost $100 more per machine after the August increase. Terms of the contract with the Automatic Voting Machine Co., Jamestown, N. Y., stipulate the county's first payment of $16,164 due on August 1, 1969.

Richfield Youth Is Cycle Crash Victim

RICHFIELD — A 15-year-old Richfield youth died about 10 a.m. Saturday at St. Benedict's Hospital, Jerome, of injuries received Friday night when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car two miles west of Richfield.

The victim is Fred Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Powell. He was rushed to the hospital where he underwent surgery for a broken arm, broken leg and shoulder and head injuries.

Deputy Sheriff Martin White-sell, investigating officer, said the motorcycle collided with a car driven by Rev. Don Mason of Richfield rancher, about 6:30 p.m. Friday in front of the Powell home.

The youth hit the windshield of the flora car, then landed on the rear bumper, it was reported. The deputy said the boy was not wearing a helmet at the time of the accident.

Dr. Carlyle Small, the victim's attending physician at the hospital, said Saturday night he had not "seen" the cause of death.

Officers said the boy was a diabetic and because of the accident and lack of an immediate supply of insulin, may have gone into shock. However, Dr. Small would not confirm that the boy was diabetic or that he went into shock.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Richfield High School auditorium by Rev. Don Mason of Salt Lake City, Utah. Concluding rites will follow in the Richfield Cemetery.

Services are under the direction of the Bergin Funeral Chapel of Shoshone.

Riot Flares

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Roman Catholics and Protestants demonstrators attacked each other with rocks and bottles Saturday night, causing at least 10 injuries. One policeman who tried to break up the street fight was stabbed.

Four policemen and six civilians were taken to a hospital an ambulance service spokesman said.

Top Scientist For Spacemen Resigns Post

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—The Space Center's chief scientist resigned without explanation, dropping a different kind of puzzle into the investigation of moon mysteries underway here Saturday.

Dr. Wilmut N. Hess announced Friday he was quitting as director of science and applications at the Manned Spacecraft Center. The unexpected announcement was all the more surprising since it came amid the center's biggest scientific effort—the study of lunar fragments and other information brought back from the moon by Apollo 11.

Hess will become director of research laboratories of the Environmental Sciences Service Administration at Boulder, Colo. He refused to discuss his reasons for leaving, or the timing of the announcement.

In an interview Saturday, however, he called the Apollo 11 mission "a tremendous success scientifically."

"We accomplished all the scientific experiments planned," he said. "The crew did a terrific job in the sample collection."

Water Vapor Found In Martian 'Air'

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Preliminary evidence of water vapor as found by Mariner spacecraft is a "positive indicator" that Mars can support life, project scientists said Saturday.

They cautioned however that no nitrogen had yet been detected above the red planet and without this element there can be no life.

At an evaluation news conference on the picture-taking probe this far of Mariner 6 and 7, the scientists were optimistic about their findings and the success of the double mission.

However, they said that although it was thought earlier that Mars and earth might be somewhat similar, this thinking was being revised to liken Mars more to the moon.

Mariner 6 made its nearest approach to the Martian surface about 2,000 miles last Wednesday night and Mariner 7 is due to make its closest pass Monday night.

Mariner 6 performed flawlessly in its mission and returned sharply detailed pictures of the Martian Equator area. They showed a crater-pocked surface similar to that of the moon where the U.S. spacecraft landed July 20.

And the similarity of the surfaces of Mars and the moon prompted one scientist to comment that "if indeed there were Martians traveling and trying to decide where to go, they would go to the moon instead of earth because the moon would be more hospitable to them."

Mariner 7 ran into technical troubles in its telemetry when apparently struck by a meteorite Wednesday. After being out of communication for nearly seven hours, contact was restored and scientists at Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory said 20 of the probe's 92 signal channels were behaving erratically.

However, they said these dealt mainly with engineering data and would not interfere with the scientific experiments or photographic aspects of the mission. Mariner 7 already has started picture-taking from a distance of more than a million miles from Mars.

Dr. George C. Pimentel of the University of California at Berkeley said the temperature on Mars ranged from 75 degrees above zero to minus 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

Hansen, Jordan Will Tour Disputed 'Clouds' Region

By United Press International
Rep. Orval Hansen and Sen. Len Jordan, both Idaho, will make a trip this month into the back country region of the White Clouds area to get a first-hand look at Molybdenum mining operations now underway.

Hansen said Saturday that the trip will probably take place sometime around the middle of the month. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, made a similar trip last month.

Hansen said this weekend that the real need is to establish maximum protection in the shortest possible time and that the amended version of the Sawtooth Recreation Bill now in Washington offers the best hope of achieving their goal.

Hansen added that there was a possibility that the White Clouds area could be made into a national park.

"It could possibly serve as a recreation area," the Idaho representative said. "Ultimately this could be achieved. The need now is to protect and preserve the area."

Youth Shot In Fight Aftermath

A 10-year-old Twin Falls man was hospitalized Saturday in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital with a gunshot wound in the upper left shoulder and neck, as county officers continued investigation of the early morning shooting.

Mike Janssen, 10, 1804 Otterloch St., was being treated for the bullet wound. Officers said the bullet apparently passed through the flesh on his upper shoulder and through the base of his neck.

Sheriff Paul Corder said the shooting took place about 2 a.m. Saturday on a county road about six miles south and two miles east of East Pava Point. He said the injured youth was seated in the back seat of an automobile with a number of friends when shot.

Sheriff Corder said the shooting apparently was the climax of a series of disturbances that began Thursday night in a drive-in restaurant on Addison Street.

Throttle Jams, Car Races To Fiery Crash

At 5:15 p.m. Friday, with the streets clogged with homebound motorists, a car turned off Addison Avenue West and slammed into a change booth and gasoline pump.

Flames roared into the air and flames were quickly summoned. Steve Hegland, 16, 503 Sixth Ave. N., staggered from the flaming vehicle. "The throttle jammed," he yelled to a friend standing nearby.

It took only a few minutes to bring the fire under control after two fire trucks arrived. Then the mop-up operation started.

David Hollinger, a workman at the LNH Blending Station at 169 Addison Ave. W., picked up cash and Friday's sales receipts that had been scattered when the car slammed into the change booth.

"What's the loss?" he was asked. "I don't know. I don't think it's too great. The car right after it was thrown out of the booth and away from the fire," he said.

Young Hegland said he was turned into the station where he works when the throttle jammed on the car. He said he had no time to control the car.

It ran straight into the change booth, reducing it to rubble, and landed on top of the gasoline pump. Fire destroyed the front of the car and ruptured the pump.

It was the hot part of the day and business was slow. When a car slammed into a change booth and gasoline pump, things changed. It got hotter and business got slower.

Here, David Hollinger, a workman at the LNH Blending Station at 169 Addison Ave. W., tries to recover cash and receipts from Friday's sales after the accident. Two fire trucks were sent to the scene and flames roared high for a short time.

Personal OPINION

QUESTION

Do you feel the farmer is getting his fair share of the current retail price for food products?

LOCATION

Interviews in this case were taken on the streets of Eden.

ANSWERS

LES McNEIL: "I definitely don't believe they are. Prices are too much the same as they were years ago. The labor costs and other costs of raising products were less then."

GLEN FRAZIER: "No, expenses are higher and not in proportion with the increase of the price of the product."

FLOYD HARREL: "It's rough for a farmer to even make a living and it seems even worse this summer."

FRANCIS UTT: "No! A loaf of bread costs 32 cents and the farmer gets less than eight-tenths of a cent of the material that goes into making this loaf of bread." Do you call that fair?"

McNeil Frazier Harrel Utt

Lance Tilton Bowlin Pharris

VERNON LANCE: "It doesn't seem to me that the farmer is getting his fair share of the dollar. The cost of labor keeps going up, but the prices don't."

KEITH TILTON: "No, I don't believe he is, according to what I've read recently."

MRS. FLOYD BOWLIN: "I've always felt the farmer has been underpaid for his work and his products."

JOE PHARRIS: "Of course I don't feel it is. Crop prices are dropping now and they will be even lower by harvest time."

Pre-School Vision Tests Are Offered

Children who will be enrolling in first grade classes next month are being offered an opportunity for free clinical eye tests to alert parents and school officials to any sight difficulties.

Dr. J. F. McNeese, president of the South Idaho District, Idaho Optometrists Association, said all optometrists in Magic Valley will be cooperating in the on-site test program. Parents need not make appointments, but are urged to call early at the office-of-optometrists in their communities.

Tests will continue from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Purpose of the program, Dr. McNeese said, is to make certain all 1969 first graders are given an eye examination to determine any sight difficulties before they begin their education.

"These children are too young to know if they are not seeing properly, and most would not receive examinations without a school program," Dr. McNeese said.

The testing program, sponsored by the Idaho Optometric Association, is held statewide, but varies in some areas. In Magic Valley there is no charge, except in Burley where a slight charge is being made.

Participating doctors include Dr. Tom Tappen, Buhl; Dr. Ed Ryan, Gooding; Dr. Charles Parker and Dr. Wesley Rose, both Jerome; Dr. R. C. Phillips and Dr. John Hood, Rupert; Dr. Orr Keen, and Dr. Howard Donaldson, Burley; and Dr. McNeese, Dr. Gayland Erickson and Dr. Robert Shaw all in Twin Falls.

Participating in the Wood River Valley are Dr. McNeese in Hetchum, and Dr. Rose and Dr.

Parker in Hailey. Because all three doctors maintain offices in these two communities, an opportunity for free clinical eye tests is being offered to children desiring the tests are asked to make appointments and the tests will be available throughout the month of August.

Members of the Parent-Teachers-Associations will assist in staging the examinations.

Dr. McNeese said records show from 10 to 20 per cent of the children enrolling in schools start their education with gross visual handicaps. Results of tests taken here are sent to parents and the schools and it is then up to the parents to take corrective steps.

WASHINGTON — The rising mood of revolt among liberal Republicans—and the reasons why it is spreading into non-liberal ranks—were dramatized by a recent closed-door meeting of Senate Republicans. The tune proceedings suddenly became political drama when Sen. John Tower of Texas, a conservative power in both the Administration and Senate, rose to challenge liberal Sen. Charles E. Goodell of New York. "President Nixon would have strayed far off the party reservation and was damaging his President. But before Goodell could answer," freshman Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, an organization man with pit-egged conservative credentials, jumped up to indicate some support for Goodell. "President Nixon would have strayed far off the party reservation and was damaging his President. But before Goodell could answer," freshman Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, an or-

Where's Jim McClure?

Rep. James McClure, Idaho's Congressman from the First District, is scheduled to spend a few days resting in the Sawtooth Mountain area starting Aug. 8. In our opinion he could better use the time to do a bit of soul searching and preparation of a "true" statement of just where he stands on the Sawtooth-White Clouds-NRA proposal. Two distinct stories of his stand have come out of Washington following the recent hearing before the sub-committee on parks and recreation of the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. In the one instance we were informed that he was against including the White Clouds area in the NRA section. Then we received what we were told was a copy of the remarks Rep. McClure had made before that group. In these remarks he clearly indicated that he could back the Sawtooth-NRA proposal and the inclusion of the White Clouds area in the area while at the same time achieving inadequate results without a damaging period of delay. I urge the committee to act upon this legislation, in order to protect and define one of America's most appealing recreation areas. So the Times-News reported that Rep. McClure's views were not much different than those of Senators Church and Jordan and Congressman Hansen—and that the entire delegation seemed united on

About Those Rising Prices

WASHINGTON — People who were here yesterday probably will take some comfort from the Labor Department's observation that while consumer prices continue to rise, so do the wages of non-form workers. The implication that this takes some of the sting out of high-cost stewing meat doesn't quite wash. In the first place, wage increases under the present circumstances merely feed inflation, as Labor's own monthly report shows. Most prices, for example, have jumped again not because of any shortages of beef or hogs but because of continued high consumer demand, despite the higher prices. In fact, the average worker is worse off than he was a year ago. One-cent an hour wage boosts and a 0.4 per cent rise in the work week more than offset the most recent price increases — by 40 cents a week — in take-home pay. This would be nice, except that the worker is not keeping pace at a comforting rate. His purchasing power — because of higher prices — is 0.5 per cent below a year ago and 1.2 per cent under that of September, 1968. And overall, the price boosts have increased the Bureau of Labor Statistics' consumer price index to 127.8 per cent of the 1957-59 average. That is to say a cross-section of goods and services that sold for $100 ten years ago now costs $127.80. White House economists and assorted tame bureaucrats are trying to put a good face on this horror story, of course. They are mumbling that the June price increases could have been worse, considering the Vietnam War and high costs of military supplies. Actually, the situation has been worse because the June figures revealed a downward trend in prices. Until now, these same experts U.S. hopes prices were improving off. The rise had been 0.6 per cent in March, 0.6 per cent in April and only 0.3 per cent in May. The price index, they say, looks loud and clear. Here we go again. Another fact of life with inflation is even more depressing. It is that the year's pattern is continuing. There is some slowing down of the upward climb of prices, but it is not a continuing rise in prices for consumers. Indeed, the rise in prices for the first half of 1969 was the greatest since the Korean War. Prices for many commodities are pessimistic enough to predict that 1969 price increases will eclipse the Korean War period. Consumer prices now are rising at a yearly rate of 6.8 per cent, shopping costs have risen 11.5 per cent since June 1968, and the boost has been across the board — affecting everything people buy. And the June increase of 0.6 per cent is acknowledged to be unusually large for a single month. A couple of items can be considered other things more optimistic among the citizenry. Although costs of medical care and clothing continue to rise, they are not rising as fast as in most other countries over the 10-year period. I expect this will please only those among us who are not in any misery. In an event that is small consolation to the poor, whose principal expense is scraping up enough to eat regularly. The price of food in June went up 1.7 per cent, with meat, poultry and fish leading the 4.5 per cent rise. Since they are not to have to be poor to be hurt by those prices.

Unfortunately, the White House and Congress seem to have discovered that lavish government spending is the mala vita. There are signs of a determined economy strike at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue. But this campaign comes late, after a decade in which nobody seemed to care. Now even the spending is drastically cut, the effects won't be felt for at least another six months.

Budget-Paying

WASHINGTON — Top officials in Congress and the Nixon Administration, are discussing a rather "simple" change in accounting which could pave the way for substantive government reforms. Under consideration is a shift in the federal government's fiscal year. The current fiscal year, or business, year runs from July 1 through each June 30. The proposed change would extend the deadline and perhaps even make the fiscal year coincide with the calendar. As if accounting revision such a change would be a reversal of the current fiscal year, it has been discussed in current discussions are important however, because the arbitrary fiscal year, as it now exists, has been causing real problems in Congress and in the executive departments. The trouble is that Congress, in recent years, has not been able to budget to appropriate appropriations — for a fiscal year — before that year is well underway. (As of this July 1, what is present in the budget, not a single regular appropriation bill had been finally approved by Congress.) In such circumstances, the House and Senate are left with a series of "continuing resolutions" allowing the various federal agencies to spend at substantially less than the amount which would have been approved. That is a minor inconvenience for Congress. Government departments are more seriously affected, however, because the cabinet level on down, administrators are uncertain about their spending authority. Old budgets are not being renewed, and authorized programs are not started until funds are finally appropriated. States, local governments, federal employees and other taxpayers are affected too when old programs are not expanded and new ones are delayed and federal programs are not started until funds are finally appropriated. Some government budget experts think those problems would be solved if the fiscal year began on July 1, better, or even on January 1. They think a shift would help solve other federal funding problems too. For example, local school districts are not getting their present appropriations process. How much federal help they will collect when they all down to take similar action on school budgets. Other federal aid programs have similar problems. Some of the experts believe that those programs could be brought into phase if an orderly shift could be made in the fiscal year. Some states might have to take similar action, but since, more than half of the states are on a July 1-June 30 basis. Rep. George Mahon, D-Texas, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the problems posed by the continuing resolutions, has urged a very careful study of a change in the fiscal year. He has mentioned October and January 1 as possible starting dates.

MR. SPECTATOR

Jumping Your Way?

Somebody missing a frog? H. H. Ballenger called Mr. Spectator to report that one hopped into his yard at 520 E. 10th Avenue, North, and apparently has decided to stay. Mr. Ballenger reports this is sort of a very special frog because it seems to be smiling all the time. So we sent the Times-News photographer right out to catch one of those smiles. The result is noted in the above picture. If you look real close you can see that smile! It ain't a great big one but it is there — sort of a smilic; shall we say? The new "owner" of the frog reports that he suspects it is a pet of someone and has just wandered away, either looking for the lost master or for a new home. He doesn't seem to speak English — the frog, that is — so he might even be from the moon! But Mr. Ballenger does point out by way of identification that the little critter is a beautiful green with dark spots. With this to go on — and that smile — there shouldn't be much trouble in finding the frog's owner, if, indeed, there is an owner somewhere. So hop right over and see Mr. Ballenger if you have lost a friend!

NOTE Mr. Spectator received a note from a boy overseas who wants to correspond with some ladies. He promises to answer all letters. Here's what he wrote: "American soldier overseas, middle thirties, wishes correspondence with ladies in approximately the same age-bracket, or younger. Will answer all letters. Please write to: 'K. GIVEAWAY DEPT: Purebred Norwegian Elkhound to be given away. About eight-months old. Will make a good pet or watch dog. Six the dog three and one-quarter miles west of Gooding on the old Bliss highway. Telephone is 834-0088. I have three part-Terrier puppies ready for new homes. I live three miles north of Curry and one-quarter of a mile west. Ask for Patricia Milone. We have six very cute puppies to give away. Five are the pups of a brindle in color and one is white and black. Or, we would give away the mother. She is a small dog about two and one-half years old. She's good with children. Those pups may be seen in the Gooding area, one mile west and two miles north of the State Tuberculosis Hospital. Thanks, Mrs. Howard Hoelkin.

PAUL HARVEY

Long Way, Baby

President Nixon said it: "As I look around the world I find that India has a woman prime minister. Ceylon has a woman prime minister. Israel has a woman prime minister. Certainly in the next 50 years — and maybe-much-sooner—we shall see a woman President of the United States." As the song says, "You've come a long way, baby." Fifty-some years ago it was women who were demonstrating, often violently demanding "equal rights." Women organized the suffragettes and demanded equal voting rights. They got 'em Aug. 18, 1920, the 19th Amendment of the Constitution was ratified. Today we do have a few women in Congress and a handful have been governors. With their vote, women doubtless helped shape history, but they did not—as anti-feminists ominously predicted—"destroy us all." Indeed, women are in a field of "unrequited" sexuality and "discriminated against" in employment, in unions and in the courts. In 1963 came the federal equal-pay-for-equal-work law. In 1964 came civil rights legislation which specifies that it is to be implemented that law, color, religion or sex. The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission was formed to implement that law. Yet nobody can seriously contend that women do receive equal pay for equal work. In my own profession, a woman must be many times more capable than a man to receive any recognition at all. Even then she is excluded from membership in the all-male National Press Club. In 1964 Congress was told that the median income for women in each general job category is about half that of men. There is little evidence of much improvement in that ratio in the five years since. The EEOC has been forced by the physical requirements of some jobs to concede that the 1964 Civil Rights Law must be compromised. Now, under specific guidelines, employers are allowed to advertise for "Men Wanted." Similarly in Russia, the law provides for women equal pay for equal work and equal opportunities in all careers. Yet what the book says and what happens are two different things. Prof. Nina Orlov, a doctor of law in Moscow, is spokesman for powerful women's organization of 40 million Russian women representing membership in professional organizations, trade unions and those on state and collective farms. She says women must continue to fight for every consideration for the simple reason that "the nature of man is to consider himself superior." Worldwide, and especially in the United States, women are measurably probably better off than heretofore. Whether they are happier than heretofore is another question. But women are discovering—as others seeking equal rights must—that evolution, at its most accelerated pace, is agonizingly gradual. You've come a long way, baby, but you still have a long way to go.

George Mahon, D-Texas, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the problems posed by the continuing resolutions, has urged a very careful study of a change in the fiscal year. He has mentioned October and January 1 as possible starting dates.

Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., Mahon's Senate counterpart, favors a change to January 1. The matter has been discussed by the Senate Democratic Policy Committee. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., (who also favors a change) has been asked to consider the matter with House leaders and administration experts. In the past the Budget Bureau, the accounting arm for the White House, has taken a dim view of changing the fiscal year. That is apparently no longer true, and Budget Director Robert P. Mayo is now said to favor such a shift. Current budgetary procedures are really left over from another era, from a time when Congress had a lighter work load and shorter sessions. The President regularly submitted his budget—in late January. The House and Senate could grind out the necessary appropriations bills by July 1, and then take the rest of the year off. Now congressional sessions run longer, even in election years. Budgetary calls from congressmen back to their home districts. The money bills are delayed, as already noted, and to complete the problem, additional authorizations are approved which require more appropriations. A last year's supplemental money bill carries over a parcel of budgetary appropriations for a number of government agencies, is a horrible example of what can happen. It finally cleared Congress in March, but it took more than a week after the end of the year for it provided funds. Some congressional budget experts look to the day when the fiscal year starts on January 1. The President's budget could be submitted on March 1, giving the Budget Bureau a little more time to prepare. Congress, under such a timetable, would have a full nine months to complete action on the regular appropriations bills — nearly twice the time the present schedule is supposed to allow. That would make for a more orderly procedure. It would also give the eyes of the congressional expert a move towards a more thoughtful consideration of the nation's needs and a more orderly assignment of the federal government's resources.

Gooding Fair To Open

GOODING — The 1969 edition of the Gooding County Fair will begin with a kid's parade at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, with the adult parade scheduled immediately following. The fair concludes Saturday evening.

The kid's parade is open to anyone in the Gooding area under 14 years of age. Three cash prizes will be offered in each of the following categories — tricycles and dollbuggies, floats, bicycles, pets, cowboys, cowgirls, and Indians, historic and modern characters and comedy.

There will be five categories in the adult parade, which is expected to begin about 2 p.m. Thursday. They include commercial organizations, novelty, historical and riding groups and individual participants.

Everyone entering the parade should be at the Gooding arena at 10 a.m. according to Ray Pruitt, chairman of the parade.

The rodeo, which will be held Friday and Saturday evenings at the arena, will be produced by D. A. Kerby, Salt Lake City.

Purse money being offered at the rodeo is $1,500, which is $100 more than last year, to which cowboys' entry fees will be added, says Andrew James, rodeo committee chairman.

Sports fans will see competition among the cowboys in saddle and bare-back bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping and steer wrestling. The Gooding rodeo is one of more than 500 approved by the Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Entries close at 6 p.m. Thursday.

Two Cleared On Charges Of Burglary

BURLEY — Charges of attempted first-degree burglary have been dropped against a Salt Lake City couple for lack of evidence, reports District Judge Sherman Bellwood, while sentencing of a 21-year-old man is set for 10 a.m. Monday.

Newell M. Lindsey is in Cassia County jail in lieu of $3,000 bond awaiting sentencing. He was arrested along with Linda Martin, 18, and Johnny M. Collins, 16, all Salt Lake City, last week as they were trying to gain entrance to Miller Drug Store.

Miss Martin was held in jail in lieu of $1,000 bond after pleading guilty, but the judge did not accept her plea. Friday the cases against the girl and Collins were dismissed.

Lincoln Boy Enters U.S. Rodeo Meet

RICHFIELD — Richfield's hopes ride high in the National high school rodeo in San Antonio, Tex., which begins Tuesday. Richfield's entry will be Bill Patterson, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Patterson.

He won the chance to enter the national event by winning first place in saddle bronc riding in the district high school rodeo at Filer, and third place in the state rodeo at Burley.

Bill, who will be a sophomore at Richfield high school this fall, will compete in saddle bronc, calf roping, and bull-riding events. He has spent the last evenings practicing at the Richfield arena for the coming big events.

Bill will be accompanied to Texas by his father and Jerry Gorrell, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gorrell. Burley, Jerry took first place in saddle bronc riding at the state high school rodeo in Burley. He will compete in saddle bronc, calf roping, and bull-dogging in Texas.

The rodeo will run through Aug. 10.

Demolition Experts End 10-Hour Ordeal Of Terror For Teen-Ager

By DONALD BERNS

FESTUS, Mo. (UPI)—A husky 18-year-old high school graduate stood silent on a football field early Saturday while four men measured what they thought was a bomb in a pipe, placed around the youth's neck by his former teacher.

Gary Miller had carried his burden for the past 10 days. The ordeal ended when demolition experts removing the pipe found no explosives, but only a small piece of wood with a metal screw in it.

"Mrs. Miller, the youth's mother said, 'Gary is just proud to be alive. He never broke down, but I was hoping and praying that everything would be fine.'

Authorities said the four-sided pipe had been placed around Miller's neck at gunpoint by the tenser of his former high school teachers, Rupert Johnson, 60. The pipe, complete with a coupling and an air valve fit highly around Miller's neck and apparently was made especially for that purpose.

Authorities said the only motive they could determine was that Johnson was dissatisfied with some repair work done on his car by Miller's father, Charles D. Miller, a garage mechanic. Johnson, described by authorities as "not very rational" was being held in Jefferson County Jail at Hillsboro, Mo., and was to be charged with felonious assault.

Deputy Sheriff Ervin Ferguson said Johnson picked up the youth late Friday afternoon at a used car lot where the younger Miller worked. Miller graduated from Crystal City (Mo.) High School, where Johnson is a teacher and counselor.

Ferguson said Johnson took the youth to Johnson's home and placed the pipe around his neck. He was going to show him something in his workshop. Authorities said that inside the basement workshop Johnson drove a .32-caliber automatic, tied the dark-haired youth to a post, blindfolded him and then placed the pipe around his neck. The youth said he heard Johnson insert air into the pipe through the valve, and this act led to demolition experts to believe later that an explosive was in the pipe.

Johnson telephoned the elder Miller and told him to come to the house. He also called a lawyer, former Circuit Judge Edward T. Eversole. When Eversole made a dash for the bathroom in Johnson's home, the elder Miller seized Johnson's gun.

Bomb experts from Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., and the U.S. Army depot at Granite City, Ill., were called to examine the bomb.

The bomb experts X-rayed the pipe with a cobalt X-ray borrowed from Pittsburgh laboratories in St. Louis. The youth had been taken to the deserted football field of the St. Plus X High School on the edge of town as a precautionary measure.

The X-ray disclosed the wood and the screw which was thought at the time to possibly be a battery. Johnson had boasted of a timing device, but the pipe was thought too small to contain a timer.

The demolition men decided to dismantle the pipe and, standing in the middle of the football field they gingerly disassembled it until the threatened explosives were found to be the harmless scrap of wood and screw.

Unruffled Burglar Gets 5-Year Term

Twenty-nine-year-old Michael R. Tincek, who got caught last week trying to burn his way into a safe in a downtown Chevrolet Co. building, pleaded guilty to a second-degree burglary Friday.

Tincek was sentenced to five years in the Idaho State Penitentiary.

Judge Theron Ward sentenced him to five years in the Idaho State Penitentiary.

W.A. King, out of court, Mr. Tincek said, "Well, that wasn't too bad."

He was seen crunched over a safe in the motor company July 26. Two salesmen approached him and asked what he was doing.

Turning the wrench for a key away from the safe, Mr. Tincek said, "I'm bustin' into your safe." He then continued to work.

This was related to Judge King in court Friday.

Police were called to the scene and Mr. Tincek was quickly taken into custody.

Judge Ward asked how Mr. Tincek got into the safe.

"I went through an unlocked window," was the reply.

"Were you alone?"

Public Asked To Mental Health Meet

A public meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Twin Falls Judicial Building, to take initial steps toward formation of a planning board to obtain mental health services in Magic Valley.

The League of Women Voters and the Falls chapter of the Mental Health Association are co-sponsoring the meeting.

More than 150 letters have been received from the public, city legislators, county commissioners, city officials, as well as public health nurses, mental health association members and interested individuals.

Lotus Schumcker, chairman of the League committee stressed that anyone is welcome to attend and it is hoped a cross section of each county in Magic Valley will be represented in the planning.

Anyone can serve on the planning board, which will be a temporary group, being replaced later by a similar permanent advisory board.

All details of how the different counties will be represented on the advisory board, and where the mental health services will be located will be worked out later by the permanent advisory board, League officials said.

They pointed out the purpose of Tuesday night's meeting will be to get representative groups from throughout the entire Magic Valley. Professional people who come in contact with mentally disturbed persons and their families are especially invited to become involved in at least the temporary planning group, so that the needs in the different communities can be made known, Miss Schumcker said.

Mental counseling, juvenile problems and the children's problems which would be served by comprehensive mental health services.

Familiar Sight On T.F. Streets, But It's New Dog

J. Hill can be seen these days walking around town with a new dog.

Mr. Hill, blind musician and businessman, recently acquired "Armo," a 19-month-old German Shepherd, at the Seaside Ely Center in Atlantic City, N.J.

While Mr. Hill was away getting acquainted with his new seeing eye dog, the Twin Falls landscape changed somewhat. The protective barrier on the city's main intersection was removed, unveiling the new Bank of Idaho building.

The pair's first walk past the intersection took a moment of confusion as a dog disoriented between Mr. Hill and "Armo," but the two are now as common a sight around Twin Falls as when Mr. Hill and his previous dog, "Shirley," who died earlier this year.

Weekly Market Review

Stocks Finally Turn Upward After Long Period Of Losses

By RICHARD ROSSI
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The sun finally came out on Wall Street as the week's stock prices went up for the first time in nearly a month, but there were those who saw dark clouds on the horizon.

Prices had fallen for seven consecutive days and, coincidentally, it had rained in New York for most of that period. By noon Wednesday popular indexes had fallen to their lowest levels in nearly two and a half years. But shortly after-noon, the sun was shining and somehow a rumor got started.

"The sunshine had nothing to do with what happened next, because a rumor—later was denied—triggered a buying surge that was to continue for the rest of the week. The rumor was that the Morgan-Guaranty Trust Company had about to lower the prime interest rate."

"The prime rate is what banks charge their most creditworthy customers."

The New York Stock Exchange began an "informal" investigation into the rumors in an attempt to determine if someone was trying to manipulate the market. But most analysts agreed with Robert Allen of Shearson Hamhill who said they were "bothering up the wrong tree." They said the market's slide had continued for so long and had depressed prices so much that it was ready for a rally and just about any excuse would do to start a recovery.

Lucien Hooper, analyst for W. F. Hutton, said "The market is going up because it was oversold and that's the only reason."

Monte Gordon, vice president of Dache & Co., said he expected the rally would soon "run out of steam."

"It has nothing to sustain it," Gordon said.

"I'm generally agreed that extension of the income tax surcharge may have given the rally a psychological boost by relieving uncertainty, but the basic economic conditions which had served to depress prices still existed.

Profits and expansion in the next few quarters because of the "Federal Reserve Board's" restrictive economic policies.

Volume for the week soared to 70,282,290 shares, a daily average of just over 14 million, compared to 41,940,639, an average of more than 4 points above for the previous week which had only four trading days.

The UPI marketwide index for closed up 0.23 at 103.84, a 51.6 point gain over the 1.707 point this week. Of the 1,073 points crossing the tape, 853 advanced in price and 756 declined. There were 2 issues reaching new highs and 1,028 hitting new lows.

The New York Stock Exchange index registered a gain of 1.23 points to 1,038.47, an average share of common stock.

Idaho Solon Rakes Stand Of Governor

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI)—Sen. Art Manley, D-Coeur d'Alene, claims that Gov. Don Samuelson's position against hearings in the White House issue of "harks back alarmingly to that of long ago when politicians had a public-be-damned attitude."

Former president of the Idaho Wildlife Federation, Manley said he referred to Samuelson's criticism of Edward Cliff, chief of the U. S. Forest Service at the Western Governors' Conference.

Samuelson told Cliff the Forest Service should have issued a permit to American Spring and Refining Co. to build a road to its molybdenum deposit without holding hearings. Informal hearings were held at Boise, Idaho Falls and Challis.

Manley said, "I am amazed at such an attitude on the part of a public official in a position of statewide responsibility. This involves public land owned jointly by all U. S. citizens and public interest and concern."

The state senator said that Cliff and the Forest Service should be commended for seeking public sentiment and advice "in a policy matter as far-reaching and of such significance as this."

Times-News Forum—Voice of the Reader

Opinion On Church; Faith Expressed In Forum Letter

Editor, Times-News:

Before replying to Rev. Lester Kingsolving's article, "Strange Rules For Episcopalians: Remarriage," in the Friday-May 22, 1969, issue of the Times-News, I would like to express my opinion on the church to understand my background and beliefs.

First, though my family is Episcopal, I am not. In fact, I am agnostic. Second, my background touches a great many religions. Among these, Lutheran, Episcopalian, Mormon, Christian Science, and Catholic. My study of religions includes, Christian, Jewish, and Islamic. My reading runs the gamut from Bertrand Russell's "Why I Am Not A Christian" to the book so many people have and yet so few have read, the "Bible."

It is important to understand that I write this solely for the purpose of argument contribution to the Times-News. I have no opinion to my mind, is nothing more than a statement of a person's ignorance. That is, opinions are formed only by those who believe they understand and not by those who do not.

I approach the affair of Bishop Pike on two levels: 1. The church is based on a great deal of ignorance and needs criticism. 2. Although the church needs criticism, it is important that order not be broken down and make ineffective the duties of the church. (Notice, that in both cases, I believe the church is in need of criticism.)

In order to justify criticism of the church and show that church philosophy is open to attack, it is perhaps best to give an example.

The "Bible" is the backbone and of particular importance to the Christian religion. It is supposedly connected to that which is the word of God. The "Bible" (old testament) was not canonized until about the fifth century A. D. This was done by a group of biblical scholars, who using their own judgment, decided on certain books to be included. Others that would make up the "Bible." Due to differences of opinion, certain books were added or others. This is only one example of inconsistencies within religion, possibly the weakest position of the church.

Assuming the church is open

Forum Rules

Forum letters must be concerned with topics of general interest and must be of a reasonable length.

The editors of the Times-News reserve the right to refuse publication if, in their opinion, the letter is of a libelous nature, is not in good taste or is repetitious and has previously been thoroughly covered in the forum.

All letters must bear the signature and address of the writer. The name of the writer will appear with published unless there is a personal request that it be withheld and the reason for such a request stated. This request will then be considered by the editors and it will either be granted or the letter will be returned to the writer.

Washington Man Writes Of Unity On Religious Matters

Editor, Times-News:

Rev. L. Kingsolving's article "Fighting Lutherans" deserves some comments. If the gentleman in typical denunciation of the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, he missed the main point, which was UNITY and not division as he implies.

Among the purposes of conventions are attempts to solve problems, establish policies, and resolve differences. This is the usual in typical democratic fashion. Open hearings and intensive committee sessions preceded floor consideration. Once committed to the floor of the convention, the simple majority decided elections, issues, and policies. There is no hierarchy in the LCMS—not even the regional synods are binding upon the local congregation, which is autonomous.

Any organization with 3 million members is bound to have differences in any issue. Differences are not necessarily a bad thing. A careless reading of St. Paul's letters will show that it is honorable and workable thing to do is to debate, vote, and then support the will of the majority. Speakers on both sides of the important issues including Dr. J. A. O. Preus and Dr. Wolbert, pledged to support the decisions of the convention.

The "awesome political machine" referred to by Rev. Kingsolving is a grandiose exaggeration of an attempt by a few well-intentioned but misdirected individuals who did not understand that thoughtful men will be guided more by sound reason and the counsel of God's Word than by emotional pleas to "save our synod." As evidence, I offer the fact that the church-body accepted the altar and pulpit fellowship proposal of which its newly elected president was not in favor.

I was at the Denver convention two weeks ago and what impressed me most was that those who favored Dr. Harms' candidacy applauded the election of Dr. Preus and promised to support and aid him; also that those who wished to decline entering into fellowship with the American Lutheran Church, vowed to back up the synod's decision—to declare fellowship. The overriding concern of the delegates was the unity of the church. It is unfortunate in this regard that some delegates chose to continue to dwell on differences that were resolved.

I prefer not to be judgmental about what motivated Rev. Kingsolving to write his column as he did. I am satisfied to let him answer his own conscience, something it seems to me he was unwilling to let the Denver delegates do.

Boise Cascade Plans Plant For Plywood

BOISE (UPI)—The Boise Cascade board of directors has announced approval of construction of a $3-million plywood plant at Emmett, to be in operation by March of 1970.

The plant will manufacture exterior sheathing. Wood residues will be used at the company's pulp mills and particle-board plants in the region.

The board met Friday at Incline Village, Nevada, and declared a 2 per cent stock dividend, payable November 21 to holders of record Oct. 20. The board also approved the third-quarter dividend of 6 1/2 cents per share on the company's $2.50 par-value common stock.

The dividend is payable October 23 to shareholders of record at the close of business September 18.

In other actions, the board approved expenditures for three new mobile home plants in Minnesota, Texas and Florida to expand the company's capability to provide low-cost housing—in a period of high interest rates for conventional on-site home construction.

An open letter to our Senator Frank Church, Dear Senator Church,

It is interesting to know if you feel that "Playboy" Magazine is the kind of magazine that every home should have and you would suggest it as appropriate reading material for young people who are trying to know your views on foreign affairs?

If you are wondering what I'm referring, it is your article, that you sanctioned, in the August issue of "Playboy" on page 102. In your piece, that you voted for your might think twice before they make the same mistake five years from now. In the article, you refer to the SMUT stand and buy-up the August "Playboy" magazine. Law Enforcement Support Is Mentioned By T.F. Writer

Editor, Times-News:

Re: Letter from Paul Musard (Public Forum, July 27, 1969).

To our local law enforcement agencies, our highway department, our city street department: Shame, shame on you for your neglect. You have bumpy roads for getaway cars. The criminals must use our streets all because the streets are too much and you fail to take your prisoners to a nice motel for those flashing a wide grin. Shame on you for an afternoon swim before snacks.

Your calls are not air conditioned and these poor, misguided infants who may get an inferiority complex.

Shame on you mostly for not having our roads in good enough repair for those who are so happy here to get out of this morose Christian community.

Shame on Sheriff Paul Corder for spending the city's recreation money on tearing the fall apart. Shame on our sick teenagers for doing the same thing we did when we were kids. Shame on our barbarous and illiterate citizens who, through their attributes, attained the wealth of our state, county and city. Shame on those who have had been civilized and educated, they may have gotten somewhere, instead of sitting on their hands and building a "fine Christian community."

Shame on our jails and prisons for complying with statutes and regulations for supplying food for the minimum daily requirements. We have fine restaurants and cafes where our prisoners could eat and perhaps relax in comfort afterward.

Donations To Send Delegate To Education Confab Asked

Editor, Times-News:

All over the United States, independent committees have started spontaneously to oppose such school problems as sex education, sensitivity training. The Wall Street Journal has labeled it the greatest crisis in education today.

And now is the time for these committees, representing literally millions of worried and concerned Americans, to gather for a convention which will shake the educational establishments of this country and open the issues to national attention and publicity they deserve.

The purpose of the National Convention of the Crisis in Education will be to hear reports from authorities in the field of sex education, sensitivity training and progressive education, to plan strategy, to collect the national petitions and letters for their presentation to the President of the United States.

Also to organize national committees to press important resolutions and to afford us an opportunity to exchange information, ideas and materials.

Idaho Families United wants and needs to send a delegate to represent Idaho in this most important convention, but no one individual should be expected to stand the expense of plane tickets, hotel reservations and so on. The delegate we need would be representing you and all the parents who oppose this Satanic program in our public schools so isn't it fair for all of us to contribute to the expense involved?

Here is your chance to help and support the opposition to sex education, sensitivity training and progressive education in your schools so that your children will not be subjected to it.

Send your donation, no matter how small, so that you may be represented at the National Convention of the Crisis in Education in Chicago Aug. 29, 30 and 31.

Idaho Families United is planning a state convention Sept. 27 in Boise at which time we hope to have John Stenbocker, editor of the Annabell Bulletin, as speaker. Plan now to attend and help us to attend your Idaho Families meetings.

Mary Calderone of SIECUS (National Sex Education Council) cannot be successful unless the community supports them. By working with and supporting Idaho Families United, you can be sure your community will support them. We can keep sex education out of our schools if we unite and work together. Right now we need people to

Vietnam Peace Move Questioned By Buhl Woman

Editor, Times-News:

In a recent issue of our boys or coming home from Vietnam, I have finished reading an article in "Newsweek" about the send off President Nixon gave them, showering them with gifts and flowers. There are pictures of them leaving Vietnam and landing in Seattle. They look so tired and war weary. There are no smiles on their faces, however they are flashing a wide grin.

Well, he can afford to feel that way. He and his kind are safe and sound. Of course our boys are glad to be home with their families, yet the times they have seen have scarred their souls, which only time can heal. Some of them look off the garlands of flowers and threaten on the ground. One GI says, he can truthfully say he sees no reason why 36,000 Americans should have died in Vietnam.

Yet death is a blessing compared to the way some of them have to live and suffer the rest of their lives. People I talk with would know what they mean by the term "honorable pain." Dishonorable would be a better word for what they are doing and being.

They have set up a puppet government in Vietnam and want to keep it that way. Conquering nations always do.

They pick natives who do everything will be fixed nicely. For one thing they are taking the money fast and get out of paying taxes just as they do here in the U.S. Meanwhile most of the payments will be working for almost nothing in the plants. Others will still be alighting ground in the rice paddies and living in huts built for American labor is not organized over there. That makes it very nice for big business. All this is why the young people to risk up. It concerns them. While things are this way they cannot plan their future.

Pocatello Man Wonders About Gem Politics

Editor, Times-News:

An open letter to Sen. Wall Yarborough, Grand View.

That Mr. W. C. Burns of Idaho, who was a legislator through here the other day and said it wasn't worth $200 a month to up end an over sized pig house in the state capital, a second hand typewriter in it and charge $200 for an office.

Mr. Burns was afraid all of the politicians in here and as Idaho is God's little green acres he did not want a bunch of foreign politicians tramping over it.

You did not need the typewriter. A politician never wrote to one of the people he represents.

I don't know if he can't read or write. His Chicks might be able to tell you.

He never wrote a letter, may be he is too big for the job. It's a shame when a man has a chance to sign an honest bill and instead he writes up his chances. There just ain't any justice anymore.

Lack of Insulin Sidelines Driver

JEROME—No injuries and no damage resulted from what motorists are told was a routine accident on Interstate 80 north of Twin Falls at about 6:45 a.m. Friday.

State police said a driver working on the resurfacing project on the Interstate is ill and had worked too long without taking his medication. He passed out after pulling his paving truck to the side of the highway and was rushed to the hospital by ambulance.

Given an injection of insulin, he was released. Officers said they did not have the name of the driver.

Lombardi Debut Success As Washington Cops Mud Battle With Bears 13-7

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A heavy downpour marred the setting for Vince Lombardi's return to pro football Saturday night, but his Washington Redskins still made it a successful debut by sloshing their way to a 13-7 victory over the Chicago Bears.

Astros Tip Expos For 7th Straight

MONTREAL (UPI) — Norm Miller's sixth-inning single drove in the winning run Saturday after Miller scored the tying run in the third on Coco Laboy's error and the Houston Astros won their seventh straight game by topping the Montreal Expos 5-3. Miller had singled and moved to third on Joe Morgan's single. Denis Menke slapped a ground ball to Laboy who bobbled the ball, allowing Miller to score. Houston jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first when Mike Wagner's line drive drove in Jim Wynn, and Curt Blefary tripled home both runners. John Edwards scored from second on a single by Miller in the sixth and Edwards scored again, after doubling in the eighth, on a sacrifice by winning pitcher Jim Ryan. Ray went eight innings and reliever Fred Gladning came on to preserve Ray's seventh win against two losses.

It was the Expos' sixth consecutive loss. Montreal scored in the first on a single by Clint Church and Rusty Staub's single. Ron Fairly hit his third homer with no one on in the third inning, and Staub hit his ninth home run in the fifth. Pitchers: Lefty Niekro (2-0), Steve Carlton (1-1), Jim Livanos (1-1), Steve Carlton (2-0), Steve Carlton (2-0).

Santo HRs Shove Cubs Past Padres

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ron Santo crashed his pair of solo homers in support of Kenny Holtzman's two-hit pitching Saturday and the Chicago Cubs took a 4-1 victory over the sagging San Diego Padres. The loss was the seventh in a row for last-place San Diego, which has dropped 39 of its past 48 games. Holtzman picked up his 13th win of the year against five losses. He walked three men but was never in trouble. Cubs' shortstop Don Kessinger doubled in a pair of unearned runs in the second to give Holtzman all the cushion he needed. Santo hit his 23rd home run in the third inning and his 24th in the seventh, and Willie Smith walked. Randy Hundley singled and Roberto Pena fumbled Don Young's grounder to load the bases to set the stage for Kessinger's hit.

Way, Gladding (4) and Pinard (1) were the Padres' pitchers. Lefty Niekro (2-0), Steve Carlton (1-1), Jim Livanos (1-1), Steve Carlton (2-0), Steve Carlton (2-0).

Jeff Thomsen Makes Cut In Pro-Proxy

COLUMBUS, Ind. (Special) — Jeff Thomsen, who will be a Junior at Twin Falls High School next month, earned out a 159 to make the final cut in the pro-proxy national golf tournament Saturday. His brother, Curt Thomsen, fired a 169, which left him one shot out of the final two rounds which will begin Monday. Young Thomsen is playing under the proxy of Dow Finsterwald and will play with Don Sikes in Monday's action. Jeff shot an 80 to go with his opening day 79 while Curt bettered his Friday score of 83 to 77 over the tough 72-par layout and just missed the cut. The boys, sons of Municipal Courthouse Chief Judge Thomsen, played with boys from Oklahoma, Indiana and Nevada in their first two rounds.

The rain that started at the opening kickoff quickly made the field a quagmire but Lombardi's Redskins turned a pair of pass interceptions into touchdowns to make him a winner in the first exhibition game with his new club. Sam Huff, who came out of retirement when Lombardi took over at Washington, got the Redskins started with a second period score after the Bears tied the contest 7-7 in the third period. Bobby Mitchell slipped to take a 15-yard touchdown pass from Sonny Jurgensen.

In a game played before 45,933 rain-soaked fans, Huff grabbed a fumble on the Washington side of the field and stashed his way to the seven-yard line. Two plays later, Washington rookie Larry Brown bucked over for the score. The Bears tied the game with a 6-yard drive in the third period with Concanon punching over from the one.

But Tom Ruffell intercepted another Concanon pass with 1:15 left to give Washington possession on the Chicago 31. Three plays later, Jurgensen hit Mitchell in the end zone to give the Redskins a 13-7 lead.

Heavy rain began falling at the opening kickoff and the basically infield at one end of the field was quickly packed quickly into a vast puddle of mud while the rest of the field was a splashy morass. The downpour was so heavy that the players had to make a round detour to a far corner of the stands to reach their dressing rooms because the tunnels in their regular dugouts had flooded. The rain stopped at halftime.

Washington's second period touchdowns had to be audited for nearly a half-minute by the officials to determine if Brown had crossed the goal line that had been erased by the water. Gale Sayers, Chicago's all-pro halfback who was lined with a knee injury late last year, returned the opening kickoff 69 yards but Mac Percival of the Bears then missed a 33-yard field goal. The Chicago star was used mainly on kickoffs but showed no ill effects of his off-season surgery.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Grant Jackson became the third left-hander to beat Cincinnati this season when the Philadelphia Phillies scored three runs in the eighth inning to beat the Reds 5-3 Saturday night.

Jason Jim Merritt had retired 11 straight batters when Mike Ryan led off the eighth with his 10th homer — snap — a 2-2 to Merritt, retired Jackson by Tony Taylor and John Callison singled. Pete Rose threw out Callison trying to stretch the hit into a double but after Jim Taylor intentionally walked, Pedro Ramos retrieved Merritt. Ramos committed a balk, allowing Taylor to score and moving Allen to second. Allen stole third and scored on Deron Johnson's single.

Tommy Lee took a strong relief job by Joe Hoerner to save the triumph after the Dodgers scored five runs in the seventh inning, to come within one run of wiping out a 7-1 St. Louis lead.

Tom Haller opened the Dodger seventh against starter Mike Torres with a single, and Bill Sudakis forced him at second. Torres walked Tom Hutton and after two had singles to Ted Sizemore. Torres tossed two more hits to walk Sizemore.

Andy Kosco then singled Ted Sizemore and Linton Maury Willie infield out, Sizemore scored. When Gluski walked Manny Mota, Hoerner entered the game.

OPERATION CLEANUP on Whiskey Slough and the dam site at Salmon Reservoir was conducted by members of Eagle Post 307 Saturday. The boys, assisted by personnel from the sponsoring Idaho Fish and Game Department, erased two pick-up loads of eyecore from two of the more popular fishing spots in Magic Valley.

A crew of Boy Scouts policed Stakesberry, Hazelton and Roy two of the popular fishing and Porter, Dave Holdemann and camping areas on Salmon Reservoir Saturday and after two overlying pickup loads of cans and garbage had been removed, the scouts definitely had their own opinion of the great American outdoorsman.

The scouts, members of the Eagle Post 307, which is sponsored by the Idaho Fish and Game Department, cleaned up the litter around the dam, which was considerably overgrown. The Bureau of Land Management has installed garbage cans. They then turned to Whiskey Slough, a small area and took out a huge load of debris.

Charles Gallaher, Buhl, district conservation officer, pointed out littering had cost the public access on considerable private land in Idaho and spoiling of public land could result in tighter regulations.

"Right now it is illegal to leave your garbage," Gallaher pointed out, "but I don't see how people can do things like that knowing they'll be coming back to use the area again themselves let alone all the people that will be there after them."

The BLM empties the garbage cans around the boat launch at the dam weekly and all the debris picked up Saturday was the result of fishermen being too lazy to walk 20 or 30 steps to dispose of their garbage properly.

Scouts participating in the clean up were John Meyer, Lex Hoyer, Pat Gillespie, Ben Kerlin, Chuck Wagner, Greg Helm, Dan Romares and George Wright, all Twin Falls, Mol

Yaz Fined $500 For Failure To Hustle

OAKLAND (UPI) — Carl Yazarski is $500 poorer today but the Boston Red Sox outfielder is determined to prove that the hefty fine was unnecessary.

Yazarski, a three-time American League Batting Champion, was unceremoniously taken out of Friday night's game against the Oakland Athletics by manager Dick Williams for not hustling.

The incident which led to the ejection occurred in the first inning when Yazarski was thrown out at the plate on a slow roller to the left of the mound.

He took the field in the bottom of the first but rookie Joe Lahoud was sent to leftfield in the bottom of the second.

Williams said he did not think Yazarski ran as hard as he could on George Scott's hit. However, Yazarski said he was giving it 100 per cent.

"He asked me if my leg was hurt," Yazarski said, recalling the exchange of words in the dugout in the second inning. "Williams said, 'You should have run harder.' I told him I was running as hard as I could. But he said, 'You weren't running hard enough.'"

"He said I was fined and there was no doubt about it. It was $500."

Williams warned the team after two losses in Anaheim that players failing to hustle would be fined. Apparently, he's not kidding.

Williams added that his play has been spotty the past two months. He went into the game with a .25 batting average but was leading the club in runs batted in with 77.

"I don't want to alibi, however," he said. "I might have been letting down subconsciously — not hustling."

"I don't care about the money — it could have been $2000. I just want to help the ball club win."

When Williams was asked if he felt any bitterness, he said, "I'm not ticked off at Williams," he added. "There's no bitterness between us — at least not from my end."

Voyage To Mars Outlined

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — America's top space official has outlined a possible timetable for a flight to Mars launched on Nov. 12, 1981, to land astronauts on the planet in the summer of 1982 and bring them home in 1983 after a sight-seeing swing by Venus.

Dr. Thomas D. Paine, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said America — and the Soviet Union — would be technologically able to carry out such a feat in 1981 and it was a matter of "the will" of the American people.

In a talk before the Commonwealth Club of California Paine gave a vivid account of the mission, which he said he has "bounced around" with Werner Von Braun, director of the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

"By Feb. 12, 1981 would be a particularly good date" for such a flight because of the position of the planets, he said.

Space rockets currently being developed would propel twin space ships "locked together side-by-side" toward Mars — about 40 million astronauts aboard, Paine said.

On Aug. 9, 1982, the ships' rockets would fire after coasting through millions of miles of space to send the ships into orbit around Mars.

From there, "reusable stages much like jet planes," Paine said, would continuously ferry three or four astronauts down to the surface of Mars and back to the mother ship in orbit.

On Oct. 28, 1982, the rockets' nuclear engines would again fire to blast the space pioneers out of Mars orbit but, instead of toward home, in the direction of Venus, he said.

On Feb. 29, 1983, Paine said, the rocket ships would swing by Venus, using that planet's orbital motion and gravity to slingshot them back to earth on Aug. 14, 1983.

Paine said during his talk and at a news conference that preceded it there was "no question" in his mind that both the

Runway Plans Are Reviewed

Electrical plans for the high intensive runway lighting at the Twin Falls City-County Airport were reviewed Friday by Jean Miller, city engineer; Nancy Early, Salt Lake City FAA official; and Dale Ruteness, consulting engineer.

Mr. Miller said there are some minor changes to be made in the plans. He said Mr. Ruteness will make the necessary revisions and resubmit the plans to the Salt Lake City FAA office next week.

The FAA will make its second and final review of the plans on Aug. 12. Mr. Miller said it appears now the plans will be accepted at this time and this will enable them to call for bids about Aug. 14.

U.S. and the Soviet Union would be sufficiently advanced by 1981 to successfully carry out a Mars mission.

Young Athlete Faces Murder Charge In Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — A handsome student athlete charged with the sex torturous murder of the seventh young woman slain in this academic area within the past two years was appearing in police lineups Saturday in the continuing search for killers of the other six victims.

Police were refusing to make any statements about the case following the brief announcement that John Norman Collins, 22, an Eastern Michigan University senior "who seemed to like motorcycles more than he liked girls," had been charged with slaying of Karen Sue Beiteman, 8, Grand Rapids, Mich., an EMU freshman.

But UPI learned that several lineups which included Collins and other inmates of the Washtenaw County Jail were held Friday night and early Saturday.

Police would not say whether the persons viewing the lineups were possible witnesses in Miss Beiteman's slaying, or in the other six killings.

"We still have six other murders that have to be solved and we're not going to quit until we have 'em," Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey said.

The nude body of Miss Beiteman, battered beyond recognition, was found July 26, face down in a gully near Ann Arbor. She had vanished three days earlier after shopping for a wig.

Collins, a husky six-footer who was an English major and hoped to be an elementary school teacher, was arrested Thursday night and charged Friday with killing Miss Beiteman.

Stunned by Collins' arrest, friends of the brown-haired high school football star described him as a "respectful, popular young man, who sometimes showed a moody streak."

One EMU student said she stopped dating Collins because "he seemed to be more interested in motorcycles than in girls."

Miss Beiteman was last seen on the back of a motorcycle driven by a tall, dark-haired young man.

MINE KILLS TWO

ROEBBY, Denmark (UPI) — Two Danish fishermen were killed Saturday when their trawler struck a World War II mine off Roebby, police said. Authorities said the area was clearly marked on maps as dangerous.

SOUTHERN PLANTATION TYPE home, built in about 1908 by J. B. Van Wagoner looked somewhat out of place on the Idaho desert. Located six miles southeast of Jerome, the home was covered with a manufactured slate. Without trees and vegetation in this early photograph, the pattern of the slate can be seen on the walls and roof. This photo, taken by Clarence Bisbee, pioneer photographer sometime before 1912, notes "four months out of sagebrush."

TODAY THE PIONEER HOME is almost hidden by tall trees and other heavy foliage. The early day builder apparently tired of the hot Idaho summer temperatures and decided he wanted some shade for his luxury home. The appearance greatly different from the first photo taken by pioneer photographer Bisbee. Other than for the heavy growth of trees, the home is almost unchanged from its first appearance in the Idaho sagebrush.

House Of Slate Practical Indeed, Say Owners Of 60-Year-Old Home

BY BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Feature Editor

Builders of 60 years ago may have had some "worthwhile" ideas, especially when it came to durability and cutting maintenance costs.

Take for example the home of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Campbell, north of Twin Falls in Jerome County.

The house was built about 1908 or 1909, as nearly as can be determined. J. B. Van Wagoner, the first occupant and owner of the stately two-story home used a manufactured slate for the exterior walls and roof. So durable is this product, it has never been necessary to refinish or replace any of the small or large sections that cover the walls and roof.

"It never needs painting," comments Mrs. Campbell—and this is one of the reasons she felt we could afford to buy the property."

The giant size three-story rock barn also has a slate roof and the cost of reroofing, were it ever necessary, would probably be prohibitive. On a large timber over the front door of the barn is the date 1912, and an early photo of Clarence Bisbee, pioneer photographer shows the carriage house in the original picture has been added to but is still in use.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell who have lived in the house the past 20 years say they have done nothing in the way of remodeling and don't ever intend to change the floor plan.

"I could never improve on the original owner's plan," says Mrs. Campbell.

The large two-story house is identical in appearance from either the front or rear. It has a large living room, wide entrance way with attractive stairway leading to the second floor bedrooms and main bath. Just off the main entrance is a large dining room and central hallway leading to the kitchen. Mrs. Campbell says she finds the arrangement handy, especially with the many cupboards in the central hallway.

Bonney also hopes to modernize the kitchen as it has only a few cupboards and shelf space is limited.

Since the original builder created the home with the wide verandas front and rear and from both the first and second floors, successive owners of Mr. Van Wagoner have enclosed these with screens. The second floor verandas make ideal sleeping quarters on warm summer nights. Large lavender shutters framing all of the windows except one first floor window, are still in use and as far as Mrs. Campbell knows have been repainted only once—a project she undertook a few years ago.

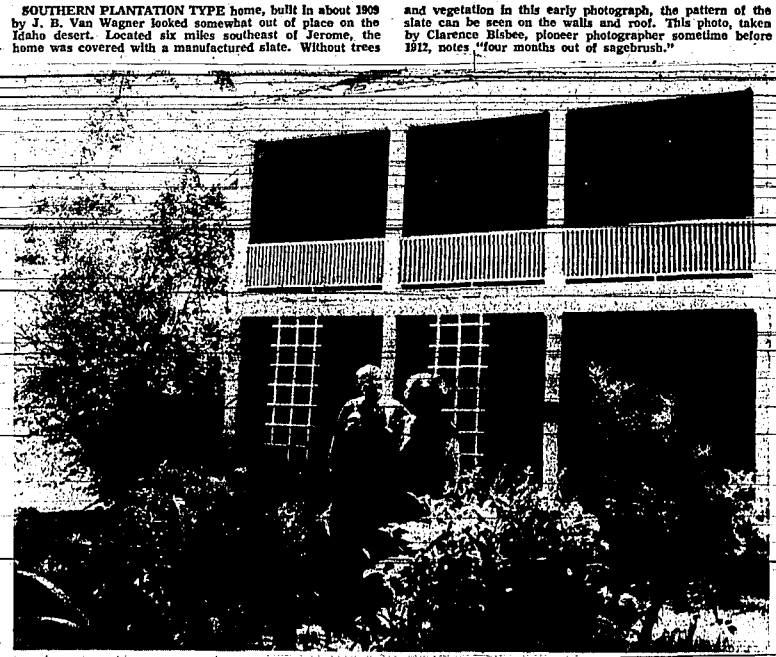

When Mr. Bisbee photographed the home there was not a sign of a tree or blade of grass—only surrounding sagebrush. Now it is almost impossible to see the home because of the many trees. At the rear of the building is a complete park with large trees, grass and ideal play area for the grandchildren. Sufficiently large to provide picnic space for several families, the park separates the large home from two smaller homes at the rear. One is occupied by the Campbell's son and his family and another is for an employe.

The large barn constructed of rock and cement, is about 100 feet by 50 feet. It has a lower main floor and a loft, livestock operation to beef calves. Large feed lots join the barn and the main floor and part of the loft provided ideal space for grain and feed chopping and mixing for the beef cattle during the winter.

The present owners say Mr. Van Wagoner, starting from scratch on sagebrush land north of Jerome, has converted the PRESENT OWNERS, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Campbell, stand on the walk leading to the back door and through the garden. The design of the building, with wide screened verandas, is identical from the front and rear. A complete park filled with giant trees and wide expanses of green grass covers the area behind the home.

Former Hagerman Biologist Now Testing Live Fish Reaction To Moon Particles

HAGERMAN— I can't wait to get my fingers into my two life, including fresh air and water life. In his particular Special Test System, the 35-year-old graduate of Oregon State University will be in charge of four other men.

He was chosen for the job in March after medical men at Houston, Texas, conducting experiments with aquatic life in anticipation of the real thing, got a big scare.

Warren explained the species used were exposed to pulverized volcanic lava transported from Oregon, thought to be the nearest thing to chemical and mineral composition to what scientists expect to find on the moon.

The species—mummichogs from the Carolina swamps—were transported, none too carefully, to Houston. When the fish were exposed to the lava, they died and had scientists worried about a test animal.

A more intensive and knowledgeable approach to the problem was in order, and Warren was notified. He explained that his background had led with what ICBC officials were looking for: a bachelor of science degree in biology at OSU and about six years in aquatic biology.

Warren went to Houston twice in the ensuing months. On the first occasion he analyzed the fatality rate of the specimens and his findings restored a large amount of the confidence of many of the medical men afflicted with the problem.

Warren explained the specimens used were filled with internal parasites and, weakened by stress, had fallen victim to the parasites by the time they were placed in the experimental environment in Houston.

He spent most of his second trip to Houston in breeding fathead minnows and their salt water counterpart, the mummichog minnow, which will be used in the lunar-aquatic experiments.

For example, the species are chosen because of their adaptability to experimental conditions. The pure specimens will be ideal standard types because they will not be affected by such variations as parasites and exhaustion, as were their predecessors in the lab.

The mummichog is especially important to the project because it is representative of all salt water residents and because Apollo 11 would land in the ocean.

However, any adverse effects moon matter may have on marine life may come before scientists could study them. This is partly because of the method of getting the astronauts from the ocean to the laboratories and partly because of the nature of the Apollo trip.

For example, other than the box of lunar matter, little conceivably contaminating elements will be transported back to earth since the landing craft (LEM) will be abandoned in a solar orbit before the trip back to earth. However, the astronauts could theoretically act as carriers for some unknown bacteria that, exposed to the earth's environment, might develop into a "green cheese monster." Warren laughingly explained, "Although theoretically, the possibility exists that some sort of unknown germ could get out of hand when the astronauts become exposed to the earth's environment, Warren explained that the chances are 'nil' that anything could live far out in the Pacific where the astronauts were scheduled to touch down."

The lunar "cargo" was delivered back to earth in a container made of what is claimed to be the purest aluminum ever manufactured. This container will be gas tight which means that the atmosphere of the moon—whatever small amounts exist—will be sealed into the box to maintain the identical relationship between matter and atmosphere which existed on the lunar surface.

This special container cost $3 million. The moon matter was rushed to the lunar receiving lab in Houston and placed in a simulated moon environment. This is a room about half the size of a basketball court with temperatures comparable to the moon's 200 degrees below zero. Here physicists and geologists working with mechanical manipulators will get a first look at the lunar soil and will spend 21 days intensively examining it for any gross cosmic radiation or chemical hazards. Thanks to the Surveyor moon shots several years ago, scientists got a good idea of what to expect. Continued on Pg. A-2, Col. 2

AN ORGAN, TWO PIANOS are part of the living room furniture of the Campbell home. Mrs. Campbell, who says she is much more a piano player than organ player, renders a number on the large and old organ. Much of the home is now furnished in antique furnishings Mrs. Campbell has collected across the country and from her parents and an aunt.

THREE-STORY STONE BARN was added to the property in 1912. It was used by Mr. Wagoner for dairy operations as he imported Guernsey cattle from the Guernsey Islands. It now serves as storage for machinery and equipment, and provides facilities for grain and other feed mixing for Mr. Campbell's beef herd.

TAR AND ASPHALT formation in the famed La Brea Tar Pits near Los Angeles, has yielded some unusual archaeological evidence. Here a team from ISU, Pocatello, dig through the sticky formation for evidence that man lived in the region from 10,000 to 15,000 years ago. Working on the projects are Sharon Johnson, Sterling, and Sharon Metzler, Twin Falls, bottom, both on the left, and Eric Obermyer, Pocatello, right.

It's Sticky Work But ISU Archaeology Team Digs Out 10,000 Year Old Evidence

POCATELLO (ISU)—An Idaho State University vertebrate paleontologist has made an important discovery that may lead to evidence of the oldest human habitation in the United States.

George Miller, now on a year's leave of absence from ISU to supervise archaeological digs at La Brea Tar Pits, Los Angeles, has discovered that animal bones 10,000 to 15,000 years old were apparently cut while fresh by primitive humans.

Miller and three ISU students, including a Twin Falls girl are now searching the tar pits for more conclusive evidence that man inhabited the area during this period.

Up to now, according to Dr. John A. White, ISU curator of vertebrate paleontology who has worked with Miller on the research, the oldest verified human bones excavated in the U.S. are only 11,000 years old. Because of Miller's discovery the La Brea pits have been reopened after a lapse of almost 50 years.

Dr. White recalled that the pits were almost destroyed 10 years ago when a proposal to expand parking lots over the area was considered. Fortunately, the pits were saved by 120 animal bones 10,000 to 15,000 years old which were found in Los Angeles and anthropologists around the world.

For thousands of years the La Brea pits' sticky pools, formed by seeping asphalt, trapped and preserved animal and plant life. Bones found in tar pits are much better preserved than those in regular cavities, Dr. White explained. Often, he said, even soft parts such as arteries are kept intact by tar.

Assisting Miller in the diggings are two ISU anthropology graduates, Sharon Metzler, Twin

House Of Slate Practical Book Review

By ROBERT BRUCE

"Ernest Hemingway—A Life Story" is a book with great appeal for a wide range of readers. For the numerous readers who enjoy biographies; for the equally numerous readers who are fascinated by Hemingway, the man; for those who consider Hemingway to be one of the most significant of American writers; for those who do not admire the writer but are fascinated by the drama of his life. In fact, this is a book for every serious reader.

In the book's preface (which should not be skipped), Professor Carlin Baker, the author of "Ernest Hemingway's complex and contradictory character. The balance of this book is an evolution of this theme. He does not attack the unpleasant phases of the Hemingway temperament, but he does justice to the man's numerous admirable traits.

It is unfortunate that here, as in all biographies, unpleasant traits of character and behavior are not most easily depicted. Like all other Hemingway biographers, Baker says that Hemingway could exercise great personal charm.

However, charm is a quality almost impossible to convey in words, and in spite of the author's scrupulous fairness, his subject comes through as an unpleasant personality.

There are moments when the biographer's fairness benefits his subject. Hemingway's relations with his son and with his first wife show the man at his best. His love of dogs and cats was in odd contrast to his pleasure of the floor apparently did quite a bit of planning before he built his home, farm and dairy.

Both agree that, if building today, they could make very few improvements over his plan of some 60 years ago.

One addition, was a partial bath on the first floor as only one bath was needed back when the house was built. The master bedroom on the second floor is larger than many living rooms of today. The two smaller bedrooms open onto the front veranda and the master bedroom overlooks the park and garden to the rear.

When highway crews widened U.S. 93, they were forced to remove an entire row of grape vines which had been planted on the property. Those along the south still protect the house, and poplars and many other trees and shrubs shade the building at all hours of the day, a far cry from the 1809 picture of the stark two-story house surrounded only by sagebrush.

Orchards also cover part of the 180 acres and at one time the property was owned by the Mayhew Packing Co. It has had several owners down through the years. Mrs. Campbell says, but surprisingly no one bothered to remodel or change the home to any major extent.

Other owners have included Mai and Buchanan, two brothers, one of whom later married, and J. O. Chevallier, Twin Falls, from whom Mr. and Mrs. Campbell bought the property.

Exact date of the building of the home is not known by present and former owners. In an early Blaine photo there is a house, leading to the conclusion the house was built in advance of 1912, the date on the barn

MUSIC IS SERIOUS BUSINESS for Mike Norris and Geri Hansen. The two have been playing only a few months, but already have been given a contract with the Horse Shu Club in Nevada, to perform there nightly. Miss Boyer, a Hanson High School student and Mr. Norris has been attending CSI.

Young Hansen Couple Working Toward Career In Music With Own Sound

HANSEN — Friends of Mike Norris say they can't remember when he wasn't singing or playing a guitar.

Therefore, they aren't too surprised that he is now a full-time musician. Mike, 21, and his best girl Geri Hansen, 17, have teamed up to make music not only for their "own enjoyment" but now for the entertainment of area residents in general.

Gerl, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mont Boyer and Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Norris, all of Hansen. With an electric guitar played by Mike, and the drums which Geri has been playing seriously only for the past few months, they think they have found a new "sound," and it seems to be catching on over a wide area.

Mike, who played solo and has done lots of singing, has appeared for the past several years in clubs in Twin Falls, Jerome and other nearby towns.

He decided some accompaniment would be a good idea and if his girl friend joined him they would be able to spend a lot more time together as playing nights doesn't leave time for much social life.

As a result the team has gained in popularity and they are now playing under contract at the Horse Shu Club in Nevada six nights a week.

When school starts this fall, Geri will have to return to classes, but she has completed some summer school courses so she can carry a lighter load in her senior year at the Hansen High School and continue with her musical career.

Right now, she says, she is more interested in music than a college education, and her continuing education after she graduates from high school will depend on what develops music wise.

Although he took some guitar lessons many years ago, Mike says he plays by ear as a rule, but can read music when he needs to. He makes most of the arrangements himself after several attempts to a number of times. When Geri decided to play drums, he insisted she not do so until she had learned the basics.

She also plays drums in the Hansen school orchestra and Mike was the orchestra's drummer for several years.

While playing for local clubs, he entered a jazz contest in Seattle some 10,000 young musicians entered. He finished in the northwest entered by sending tape recordings. Of these 60 were selected to perform during the festival. Mike was one of the 60 and returned home with third place in his division.

For the most part Mike and Geri play popular or western numbers, but they have a wide range of talent and can usually play any request from the audience.

Mike, who doesn't believe you have to wear long hair to be a good musician, says he hopes to record a number of songs and also hope to continue playing for the public as long as possible.

After appearances in the local area and Mountain Home, the two were given an opportunity to play at the Horse Shu Club for a regular entertainer and made such a hit with the audience, they became regulars.

Their investment in musical equipment amounts to about $2,000 at present. Mike, who attended the College of Southern Idaho for the past year and a half, said he will probably discontinue his education for the time, depending on what his musical career produces.

'Unique' Plant-Animal Link Explains Human Ailments

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Plant pathologists employed by the U.S. Agricultural Research Service recently made an astounding discovery.

While examining the infected tissue of a diseased pea vine, they found a micro-organism closely related to three microorganisms that produce diseases in animals. Imagine that!

"Scientists are now investigating the implications of this unique relationship with respect to both plant and animal diseases," the Agriculture Department said this week in its report on the affair.

Well, you can wait around for further word from the scientists if you want to. But I think I already know what the implications are.

I am confident the investigation will confirm something I have suspected for a long time — namely, that human beings may catch certain diseases from plants, and vice versa.

A few years ago I developed an ailment the identity of which completely eluded my physician. He kept telling me that the symptoms I described did not fit any malady known to medicine.

I was about convinced the problem was psychosomatic. Then one night I happened to mention it to a free surgeon, who was a member of my bowling team.

He told me the symptoms I had related coincided exactly with the classic syndrome for Dutch Elm Disease.

"I don't wish to alarm you," he said, "but it's usually fatal in elms."

The fact that I survived could mean that diagnosis was faulty. Or it could mean that Dutch Elm Disease is less acute in persons of English blood.

Further evidence that plant diseases may be contagious to man came last summer when I had an attack of something that strongly resembled tomato wilt.

The tomato plants in my backyard began to droop badly and turn yellow. And I noticed I was doing the same thing. But when I bought an anti-wilt preparation from a garden supply dealer and sprayed it on the plants and myself, we both perked up overnight.

Instances of plants' contracting human diseases also may be fairly common. This spring there was something wrong with my roses. They broke out with a lot of red spots. This happened at the same time my son was in bed with chicken pox.

And last winter three of my Chinese holly bushes died. I guess I should have given them the Asian flu vaccine.

Nuclear Plan About Oil Is Presented

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Talks between the U.S. Bureau of Mines and a company will determine whether "Project Bronco," the nuclear plan to recover oil from shale is to be carried out, Rep. John S. Wold, R-Wyo., said Friday.

"A recent briefing by the director of the Bureau of Mines showed a nuclear experiment in the underground conversion of oil shale is in the works," Wold said in a statement.

The Project Bronco appears to be revived," he said.

He said the proposal is to set off an underground explosion that would fracture layers of oil shale and create a cavern. The shale would then be put through a heat process to draw out the oil.

"If the experiment is successful, then we will have made a great stride toward an economical means of extracting oil from shale," Wold said.

He said experiments already conducted in the Rock Springs, area with heat applied to shale fractured by electricity, water pressure and conventional explosives. The data from those experiments — he says — show the groundwork for Project Bronco, he said.

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

From D. M., Burley, Idaho: I have a brass coin, a little bigger than our nickel. On one side is a cross, and around it is says OSTER 1924. On the other side is a great, big "X" with two little "o's" above it. Can you tell me anything about it?

Answer: You have a 200-krona piece from Austria (Republic of Austria). Minted in 1924 and made from brass. This coin was struck after Austria became a republic, as the result of the first World War. Collector value is about seventy-five cents, brand new, and it has no value other than that.

From Mrs. I. T., Twin Falls, Idaho: I have a rare silver coin with a woman's head on it and the lettering "Wilhelmina Koniglin Der Nederlanden." On the other side is a shield with a crown on it, and "1910 G." and the words "Coniale Curacao" and the date 1901. Can you tell me anything about it? Do you think it is from the United States?

Answer: You are correct — it is not from the United States. This is a coin struck for the Island of Curacao, a part of the Netherlands Antilles group in the West Indies. The coin was struck under the rule of Wilhelmina of Holland, in 1901 only. Collector value is about seventy-five cents, exchange value much less than that. This particular coin has a young head on it, while later coins depict Wilhelmina after she became older.

From T.M.A., Wendell, Idaho: I have a large, copper-looking coin. On one side is a shield with a cross in it, with a crown above it. It has the date 1901. There is a large letter C with an "X" in it, and a large letter R. On the other side it says "Holland 2 Kronen" with the "X" in the center. Can you tell me about it?

Answer: You have a 2-kroner piece of Iceland. This coin was struck in 1901. It is smaller than the 100 (CXR) shortly after Iceland became a sovereign state. The coin has a collector's value of about $100, and the exchange rate is very small. The column has had a great many telephone calls about the so-called "BARR" notes, ($100 and $50) we have heard all kinds of reports — mostly exaggerated — about their value. Barr was in office as Secretary of the Treasury only a few months and it is popular opinion that the notes with his signature are worth a great deal over face.

This is not true. Many millions of them were printed — although for only five of the Federal Reserve Districts — and they are not now, nor likely to be, worth much more than face value. They can be bought in any quantity you can afford, from dealers, who usually ask $1.25 apiece for them, but will sell them at about $1.10 to $1.00 lots. This is the price for brand new, unhandled, crisp banknotes. Circulated they have no value, since a great many of them have been saved.

In answer to V.D.L., Twin Falls: Mexican coinage is not worth very much in collectors' value. It is not hard to get a few cents over face value with only a margin you are likely to get except for silver coinage.

The peso — worth about 8 cents — does have some extra value for the silver content, but it is so small that you could make very little more melting them down. Some of the commemorative pesos are worth more for collectors items, but there are so many of them you would have to send me a list of those you have in order for me to check them for you.

Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o the Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

MAKING APRICOT JAM at the local canning kitchen is Mrs. Melvin Van Noy with the assistance of her 11-year-old daughter, Amy. Mrs. Van Noy was

Abundant Fruit Crop Makes Canning Kitchen Busy Place

BY NORMA HERZINGER

The busiest place in Twin Falls this past week had to be the Twin Falls Canning Kitchen.

In fact, it was so busy it had to be open an extra day to accommodate the patrons — all interested in taking advantage of the abundant fruit crop this year. Every other person was canning apricots of some kind — fruit, nectar, jam, etc.

The fun part about going to the canning kitchen, according to one woman, is that all the mess is kept out of her kitchen. "It certainly assures one that all cans are sealed and there will be no spoilage," she noted.

Those who were not canning apricots were making applesauce, chili and pork and beans, and one woman was even making applesauce cake.

One of the women noted last year she was unable to "put up" any fruit because of the scarcity and high cost, so this year she is going to do her share of apricots, then peaches and pears in the near future.

The high cost of buying canned fruit in the stores is almost too much for the family feeding six children, she noted. "I can put out of necessity — but really enjoy every minute of it. It makes me feel real good to know my fruit shelves will be well stocked for winter."

It's not just the women of the Twin Falls area who use the facilities at the canning kitchen. Many husbands go along to help, and believe it or not, many husbands go alone. One fellow said he always goes out and cans his catch of fish and still another one said he enjoys the chicken he and his wife can each year best of all.

Those using the canning kitchen facilities pay a registration fee plus the cost of the cans. For this, they have free use of the kitchen and competent help to supervise or lend assistance in use of the equipment.

The kitchen opened this year in early July and has been a buzz of activity since. Last year the kitchen processed a total of 30,000 cans of items ranging from fish, chicken and other meats to vegetables, soups, fruits and desserts. Under the capable management of Mrs. J. H. (Faye) Sharp, more than that

Two-Night Ballet Program Slated

FREDERICK ASHTON'S witty spoof of the 20's — its ballroom fashions and its music hall and vaudeville turns — is based on the antics of the same name by Dame Edith Sitwell. Facade will be performed by the City Center Joffrey Ballet during its performances in Twin Falls Wednesday and Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center.

When the City Center Joffrey Ballet comes to Twin Falls this Wednesday and Thursday it will not be their first appearance in Magic Valley.

Ten years ago, under the auspices of the Community Concert, the company appeared at O'Leary Junior High School, in recalling their performance here, Mrs. Louis Thorsen says, "Of all the dance programs we have had, they were by far the best." She also remembers how the dancers — at that time only six — were hampered by the limited room on stage.

She, along with Mrs. E. W. McRoberts, Mrs. James Kinney, and others who look back over the past ten years, marvel at how the company has grown — not only in size (which now has reached 65) but in their successes in the West, East, Far East, Europe (including Russia), and New York.

The little band of six dancers originally set forth from a studio in a former chocolate factory in New York with a repertory of four ballets, created by Joffrey, with a trusty tape machine and a rented station wagon, to play 21 one-night shows in no less than 11 states.

After years of incredibly hard struggle, when the company received an outside support whatever, the Joffrey Ballet "came of age" in the 1961-62 season. It was then that the Rebekah Harkness Foundation provided sponsorship for a 12-week creative project — and off-season work period — when choreographers and dancers might develop new works.

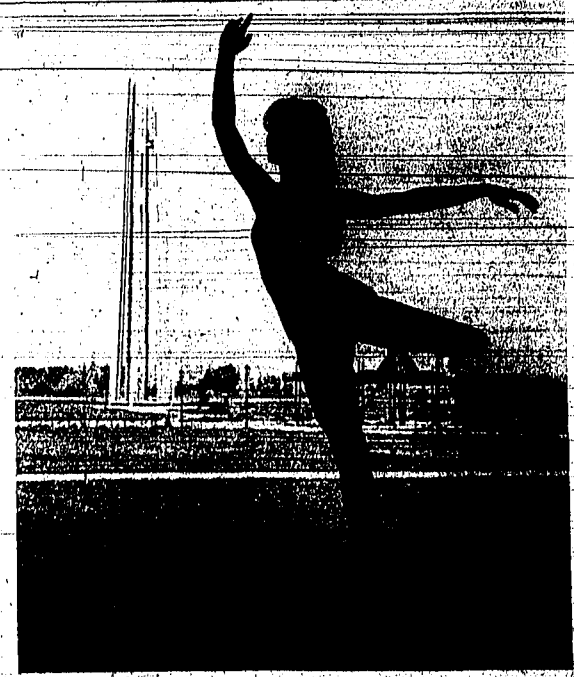

The Foundation also offered to underwrite the cost of new productions, which the State Department had chosen for the first of the foreign tours under State Department auspices; tours which were so highly successful they have become cultural-exchange history.

In addition to the State Department tours, the Joffrey Ballet was invited by President Kennedy to appear at the White House in a performance honoring the state visit of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia. This was the first of three White House appearances. In 1965, the company was the only ballet represented in the First White House Conference on the Arts. Again, on April 26, 1968, it was invited to perform in honor of King Olav of Norway.

From an artistic standpoint, one of the major needs, and objectives, for real growth in a ballet company, is a creative period, preferably outside of its "home base" (in this case, New York), where dancers and choreographers, free of the pressures of a great city and in a great American setting and atmosphere, can develop new works — and hopefully, contribute something to the host city or area. That has now happened.

In the summer of 1967, thanks to the vision and foresight of the Pacific Northwest, a ballet association was formed and the Joffrey Company moved in — intact and in toto — for a residence period which produced new ballets, seen first there later in New York. It also offered promising dance students from the entire area a chance for auditions and highly professional training. For Robert Joffrey, native of Seattle, this was, of course, the realization of a dream. In 1967, Mrs. Dahmer, the former Peggy Kolker, Twin Falls, was chosen as an alternate to the scholarship program. This year, Ann Marie Tolson Rupert, is one of four Idaho students to be awarded a scholarship. In Time magazine, March 15, 1968, the Joffrey Ballet was featured as the cover story.

AMONG THE MANY INTERESTED in the forthcoming City Center Joffrey Ballet program is Mrs. Larry Dahmer, the former Peggy Kolker, who in 1967 was chosen as an alternate to the Joffrey Company scholarship program. This year, Ann Marie Tolson Rupert is one of four Idaho students to be awarded a scholarship. Tickets for the performances are still on sale at the Twin Falls Boy Scout office.

In reference to ballet being thought of as "God's gift to goddesses" lippy-topping through the glades, Joffrey's comment was to quote "Time," "Ah, nuts. I look upon ballet as total theater. I want to attack all the senses. I want my dancers to express my thing, the now thing, good or bad. That's the success of his approach to ballet, and of the tremendous talents of chief choreographer, Gerald Arpino, is that audiences flocking to their dance performances these days are getting more and more youthful and including more men. Everyone in the 'youngest ballet' is young—conductors, artistic staff, technical staff, and the dancers, with the physical, technical and artistic requirements none of them in the wide and varied range of the repertory, had better be young.

The Wednesday night performance at the CST Fine Arts Center will be at 8:30 p.m.; the Thursday night curtain will open at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the Boy Scout office, phone: 733-7726, and in specified places in surrounding areas.

Pamela Kemp Is Bride Of Gail Hoskove

BLISS — Pamela Lee Kemp, daughter of Mrs. Burl Cole, Bliss, and John Kemp, Sparks, was the bride of Gail Leo Hoskove, in an early morning ceremony June 7 at the St. Catherine's Catholic Church, Herman.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hoskove, Hagerman.

The double ring nuptials were performed by Father Stephen Holtmann.

The couple knelt before an altar arrayed in floral arrangements of pink gladioli and carnations.

Mint green bows with a single long stemmed carnation marked the church pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride recited her vows in a floor-length traditional bridal gown of white satin with applique of lace.

Lace covered the fitted bodice and cascaded down the front. The neckline was scalloped and enhanced with iridescent sequins. Her cathedral train which was attached at the shoulders was fashioned of white satin with applique of lace and sequins, matching the wedding gown.

Her fingertip veil of bridal blue was attached to a white ring of satin with sequins and seed pearl iridescents. The veil was fashioned by Mrs. Malcolm Henley, aunt of the bridegroom.

The carried a nosey bouquet of pink roses with pink satin streamers tied in love knots.

Mrs. Stanley Bertagnoli, Wendell, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Jeannette Wood and Linda Stroud, both Bliss, Ruth Ann Cole, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

Stanley E. Hoskove, Hagerman, was best man for his brother-in-law, Stanley Bertagnoli, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was usher.

Kelley Hoskove, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was altar boy and Stanley Ray Bertagnoli, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Ralph Anderson, organist. She also accompanied Mrs. Frank Karel and daughter, Teresa Karel, who sang.

After the wedding, a reception was held in the Hagerman American Legion Hall. The bride's colors of light pink and white gown were carried out in refreshments and decor of the hall.

Kay Ward, Bliss, registered the guests at a table skirted in white ruffled lace and blue and white. The bride's table was covered with a full white ruffled chiffon skirt trimmed in pink satin.

Astronauts Are Influence On New Fashions

ROME (UPI)—The Daniele sisters went into orbit for winter today with a fashion line based on the shape of the Apollo astronaut's capsule.

Dresses, coats and trouser legs flared out like the capsule, the waists tapered to a flat doughnut of fabric which hung almost horizontal to the ground. The inner edge of the doughnut is stitched to a narrow vertical hem of the same fabric, jewel encrusted for evening.

Head hugging helmets like the popular cartoon conceptions of moon men's headgear went with all outfits. Colors ranged from white through the lighter shades of blue.

The other colors came in the finale, where there were seven evening palazzo pajamas in the seven colors of the rainbow—violet, indigo, blue, green, yellow, orange and red. Veils and sables, two things traditionally associated with princesses, were sprinkled through the fall and winter collections of Princess Irene Galtzine.

The princess stressed a luxury look for evening Tuesday night in her first show given in her new, mirror-walled studio with turquoise-tinted, suede-textured carpet.

The see-through look she loved in January was almost gone, although there was an occasional eye-opener like the basketweave black pantsuit through which the model's white panties, plainly, showed. Silver squares with squares were woven on sheer white for an evening gown with two-panel skirt over silver lame trousers.

A sable ball gown, sleeveless, was sewn from shoulder to hip, open from hip to hem.

Fox came floor-length for evening coats, but diminished to fluffy hoods for daytime wear. The hoods teamed with slim maxi coats of maxi suits worn over trousers.

HOW YOU LOOK AT IT

The average price for cattle recently reached its highest point since 1957—about $32.00 per hundredweight. Looking at it another way, this means cattle prices are no higher than they were 17 years ago. Because the standard of living has increased—much more rapidly than food prices, consumers today spend only about 2½ percent of their after-tax income for beef, less than five percent for all meat products. This is a smaller portion of takehome pay than it took to buy meat 20 years ago.

Colorado Marriage Unites T.F. Man, Georgina Dunn

An evening candlelight ceremony July 31 at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Grand Junction, Colo., united Georgina Dunn and Mark Phillips in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daere Dunn, Grand Junction, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Phillips, Twin Falls.

Reverend Richard Foster read the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with baskets of flowers in brilliant hues of red, yellow and deep blue interspersed with trailing garlands of ivy. The rood screens in the front of the chancel were hung with graceful sprays of the same flowers and tiered stands of lighted candles completed the sanctuary setting. The center aisle formed the background for the bridal procession and was complemented by tapers in blue wrought-iron candelabra.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a sleeveless gown of white sarrano-cut and changed into a fitted waistline. A full train flared from a large self-bow in back. The neck, neckline and train were banded in a narrow ribbon of white embroidery with delicate touches of green. She wore a French-bow of white roses in her hair and her bridal was a cascade of white Stephanotis and rose buds entwined with ivy and white satin streamers.

Attending the bride were her cousin, Mrs. William Bowden, Fort Collins, matron-of-honor and as bridesmaids, her sisters-in-law, Mrs. Daere H. Dunn, Denver, and two school friends, Mrs. Robert Keller, Irvine, Calif., and Miss Kay Lynn Bowman, Grand Junction.

All floral arrangements used for the wedding were made from sketches drawn by the bride who also designed the gowns and her going-away pant suit. Her aunt, Mrs. Allen Wolfe, made the gowns.

Scott Phillips, Jackson, Wyo., served as best man for his brother and the groomsmen were Daere H. Dunn, Denver; Kenneth Louder, Salt Lake City, Utah, and Leonard Dunn, Grand Junction.

Richard Dunn and Brag Newman were candlelighters and Mrs. Kenneth Bullen played organ selections for the ceremony.

Following the wedding a champagne reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where Mrs. Glen Gausman, aunt-of-the-bride, Mrs. Scott Phillips, Mrs. Burr Bolton, Mrs. William Buthorn, Mrs. Kenneth Louder and other close friends and relatives assisted in serving. The floral bouquets carried the same color scheme of yellow, red and blue at the punch table and throughout the reception with the exception of the bride's table holding the three-tiered wedding cake. Here everything was in white, white linen cloths, white candles in silver holders, white roses and trailing strands of ivy.

After a wedding trip to Glenwood Springs, Colo., the couple will live the summer months in Jackson, Wyo., and will return to Salt Lake City, Utah, in September where Mr. Phillips will continue his schooling at the University of Utah. The bride was graduated in June

Big Words Can Trip Tongues Of Youngsters

NEW YORK (UPI) — Little children, if you've been privileged to hear one lately, have trouble with big words.

Yet at the same time they tackle the "see Dick Run books and other simple tomes, every day in school they've got to wrestle with some real jaw-breakers.

The words include allegiance, public, indivisible.

It happens when they begin their school day with the Pledge of Allegiance. Even a pledge sometimes trips their tongues.

"I've eavesdropped enough on the pint-sized set to hear: — "Liberty and justice for all" come out as "liver trees and juices for all."

"And to the republic for which it stands" comes out as "and to the rubber-licks for which it sands."

"One nation under God" comes out as "one nation under-gone."

"One nation indivisible" comes out as "one nation indivisible."

Rev. Howard Larson, Kimbly performed the double-ring ceremony before a background of candelabra and baskets of blue chrysanthemums and white gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown fashioned by the bride's mother, made of imported blue tulle, and featured empire lines. Tiny applied flowers accented the front of the skirt and the floor-length train. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. Her colonial bouquet was of gardenias and feathery arrangements with white streamers.

Mrs. Don McDowell, Jerome, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

Mr. Bell, Los Angeles, served as best man.

Ushers and taper lighters were Russell Young, brother of the bride, and Mitchell McDowell, nephew of the bride. Carmen Young, sister of the bride, was the flower girl.

Mrs. Teri Butler was soloist and Mrs. Blake Froelich was the organist.

A reception was held after the wedding ceremony. Guests were registered by Bonnie Road.

KEEP MEAT ON TABLE

A strong, stable market for cattle and other livestock is the consumers' best assurance of adequate supplies of meat.

It costs stockmen, like every one else, more to do business today than 15-20 years ago, but they, unlike most everyone else, are getting fewer real dollars in return. Livestock prices which reflect a sound return on investment in feed, buildings, livestock insurance and equipment make it possible for the industry to continue to provide consumers with the meat they want and need.

Newborn Babies With Big Feet

May Walk Early

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, Illinois — Big feet may mean early steps.

An Air Force doctor, Col. Kenneth Shepard, who has been comparing the foot sizes of newborn babies with the dates they start walking, says there seems to be a distinct connection. Babies with larger feet take their first steps at about one year of age whereas babies with smaller feet tend to start walking at about 21 months.

Colonel Shepard has solved the problem of separating large feet from small feet by dividing a newborn's foot length by body length from the crown of his head to his rump. The larger the ratio, the bigger the foot relatively.

GAS GRILL USE GROWING

More outdoor chefs will cook their meat specialties on gas grills this year. Sales, that have been increasing annually, are expected to total $600 million in 1969, a jump of 30% over last year. Cooks, it appears, appreciate the quick start and complete temperature control possible with gas grills. Reusable, permanent briquets "take only" minutes to preheat. That moderate temperature, so hot for meat cooking, can be maintained easily.

MILLION PLUS COOKOUTS

More than 70% of American families own equipment for outdoor cookery. It's estimated 1.3 million meals will be cooked in back yards, on beaches, in parks or in camping areas this year.

DEAR ABBY: The man I am married to is very intelligent about most things, but he has one very childish fault. Every time he hears a siren he has to follow it. We have been late to more places because this thrill-seeking nut of mine has chased a fire engine, ambulance or squad car. He never leaves your column, so maybe if you mentioned this, you'd make an impression. I can't get thru to him.

LEONA.

DEAR LEONA: It's nuts like your husband who make it difficult for firemen, police and rescue squads to reach the scene where they're desperately needed. Many lives have been lost and buildings burned to the ground because curious spectators and thrill-seeking puts have created a traffic problem. Tell your overgrown boy that if he doesn't pull over to the curb when he hears a siren, he is in violation of the law.

DEAR ABBY: A friend and I were recently discussing "pick-ups." Do you think it is all right for a woman (age 23) to accept a ride from an attractive, polite man on a rainy evening when she is waiting for a bus?

I have always felt that a man who could pick up a strange woman might get the idea that she was a "pick-up." My friend says that anyone could tell by just looking at me that I am not that type, so it would be all right to accept the ride. What do you think?

CAROL.

DEAR CAROL: Anyone who thinks I can tell much by "looking" should think again. No sensible woman would get into an automobile with a strange man regardless of how "attractive and polite" he appeared to be. And a man who would pick up a stranger is also taking a chance.

DEAR ABBY: Things like this always seem to happen in some one else's family, but this has happened in mine: My son and daughter-in-law had a beautiful church wedding.

Charcoal Fumes Convert Rooms To Death-Traps

NEW YORK — The charcoal fire that whets everyone's appetite at a barbecue can convert a room into a death trap.

Burning charcoal gives off carbon monoxide, which is colorless, odorless and potentially lethal, warns Mrs. Marjorie B. May of the Greater New York Safety Council.

The only safe way to burn briquettes indoors is to make the room or tent is well-ventilated. A hibachi or barbecue stove should be placed in an outward draft near an open window or door. If you build a charcoal fire in a fireplace, or shift your cooking to the kitchen stove.

REUNION HELD

GLENNIS FERRY — Eighty members of the Shrum family held a reunion recently at Lake Tahoe. A family history is being suggested by an account of those who "came west" to Idaho, while another chapter is being updated in Germany from where the family migrated in the 18th century. This will be published in book form when completed.

Wide open to encourage a free-flowing upward draft.

Beware particularly of cool-overs disrupted by summer rainstorms. The natural, dangerous reaction is to reconvert the barbecue inside in a room whose windows are shut against the rain. But there are only two safe courses — let in a bit of rain along with the saving air, or shift your cooking to the kitchen stove.

Mia Honor Night Held

HAGERMAN — The Mia Maid Honor Night was held this week at the LDS Church. The Mia Joy award was presented to Debbie Larson, Brenda Clark, Shirley Hulse and Roberta Dalton.

The welcome was given by Mrs. Daryl Nelson, Mia Maid leader. Micel Akers gave the opening prayer. "O Rose" was narrated by Roberta Dalton, accompanied by Debbie Walter.

Miss Larson gave the requirements for the Mia Joy award. The "Symbolism of the Rose" was recited by Miss Hulse. All girls participated in the "Rose Tying Ceremony." The rose bouquet was presented to Mrs. Dale Turner, YWMA president, from the class by Mrs. Nelson.

The table was centered with a single Mia-Maid rose, a pink rose-bred especially for the YWMA Mia-Maid class.

Each girl was presented a special gift from Mrs. Nelson. A benediction was given by Miss Hulse. * * *

Tent Coats Top-Elegant Trouser Suits

By JOAN DEPPA

PARIS — (UPI) — French designer Philippe Venet opened the Paris fall-winter collection with a new variation of his best idea of last season: Full tent coats to pop over elegant trouser suits.

For winter, Venet made them in double-face wool, very short and very full.

The prettiest — in pale green wool twill over a matching vest-like tunic and straight trousers. It was worn with a forest green turtleneck shirt and jersey turban in the same color.

Venet also made some coats over dresses in the same flattering tent shape, stopping them just above the knee. The tent coats are variations of the full coats that were high style more than 10 years ago, but more much more gracefully.

Wool means they need no lining. Venet steered away from the trend towards longer hemlines which some Paris houses have already announced they plan to follow, his hemlines varied from just above the knee to about four to six inches up the high — it suited the clothes he designed.

The shortest hemlines were reserved for softly constructed dresses that dropped straight to a panel about eight inches wide at the hem. They were usually shown under equally short little coats which were slightly full at the bottom.

161 MAIN AVENUE, WEST TWIN FALLS

Meet The "Poor Man's Pucci"

MIAMI — (NEA) — The white stucco building with the pink tile roof looks like a palazzo in Florence. The palm trees surrounding it conjure up Granada. Tourists have entered to make dinner reservations.

The building is neither a palazzo, nor a restaurant. It's the manufacturing plant for Mr. Dino fashion.

Color is the keynote in today's fashion world. And color is what Mr. Dino fashions is all about. Max Cohen, who started this firm eight years ago, brought his engineering know-how into textiles and developed a silk-screen printing process for fabric which produces vivid shades that can be worked into the most intricate designs.

For his summer line, Mr. Dino selected Egon for his designs. The fabric lends itself well to the casual resort clothes he designs. It's wrinkle-resistant and fluid so that the print flows with the line of the clothes.

Shirts, dress over pants, slacks, shorts and one-piece culottes come alive in Paisley and floral prints. As many as seven different colors can be used on one garment.

Inside, the reception area of the plant retains the Florentine flavor of the outside, with Michelangelo frescoes, fruit-wood desks and marble-topped tables accenting the decor.

In the plant itself, esthetics is replaced by utility. Huge machines and skilled technicians plan fabric designs, blend colors and bake them into the fabrics. Two barefoot workers, dressed in shorts and paint-smearing shirts, mix colors to come up with new shades.

Because of its Miami location, the plant employs many Cuban refugees and, in some cases, has turned them from laborers into skilled technicians.

If Pucci is the Cadillac of the fashion print world, then Mr. Dino is the Ford. He has managed to produce color prints for the medium-price market. Like Ford, Max Cohen had a "better idea" in producing the "poor man's Pucci."

BUGS BUNNY

by Ralph Heimdahl

JO AND BILL ROWE ON THE SANDS OF THEIR HONEYMOON WEDDING.

I NEVER ENNIED YOUR ROBIN MALONE UNTIL I SAW THIS BIT OF PARADISE SHE SO GENEROUSLY LOANED US! WHAT A BEAUTIFUL SPOT!

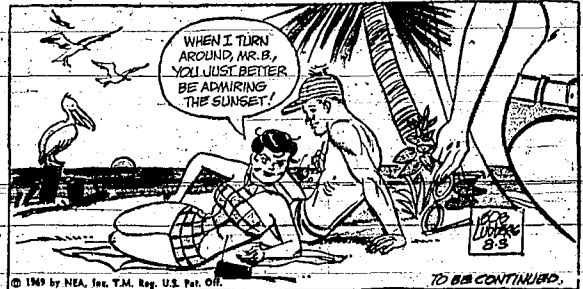

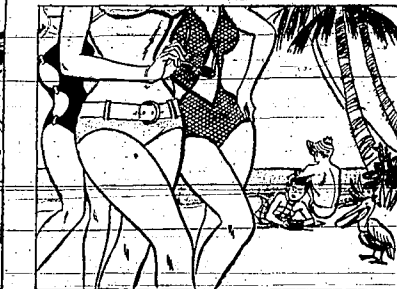

SOMETIMES I THINK ALL ROBIN'S MONEY EVER BUYS HER IS TROUBLE, DARLING.

THAT'S RIGHT. SHE MENTIONED A SPAT WITH HICKORY WHEN SHE CALLED DIDN'T SHE?

YES! AND NOW SHE'S HAD TO HOP OVER TO IRELAND WHERE HER WARD, KATHY, IS KICKING UP HER TEENAGE HEELS!

I FEEL BAD! WHILE SHE WALLOWS IN WORRIES, I SIT HERE ON HER BEACH AND DRINK IN THE ABSOLUTELY BREATHTAKING SCENERY!

WHEN I TURN AROUND, MR. B, YOU JUST BETTER BE ADMIRING THE SUNSET!

Polly's POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—My daughter is getting married in August. I bought a walnut recipe file and ordered her new name imprinted on file cards. I am giving these cards to her close friends and asking them to write favorite recipes on them and sign their names at the bottom. They will return these cards to me to go in the file which I will take to her shower.—MRS. L. J. DeR.

DEAR POLLY—When cutting out material that reveals a place to base on a table or the bed, put the material on top of it and then cut. When finished the sheet is gathered up and the wrappings and strings shaken out into the bathtub. Then I wipe them up with a facial tissue and throw into the waste basket. Mess is gone with little effort.—MRS. A. H.

DEAR POLLY—To give my hair a silkier look I always rinse it with vinegar. It always comes out beautiful.—LESLIE

Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

HEY MOM, WHEN I WAS THE CAKE TRY PUTTING IT ON THE MIXER STAND WHERE THE EQUILIBRIUM GOES!

YOU'RE A BIG HELP JUNIOR. IT WAS SO QUICK AND EASY—A YUN JOB!

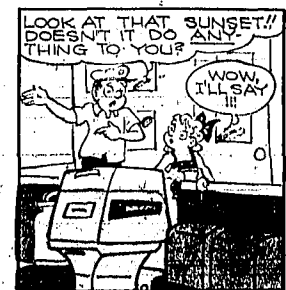

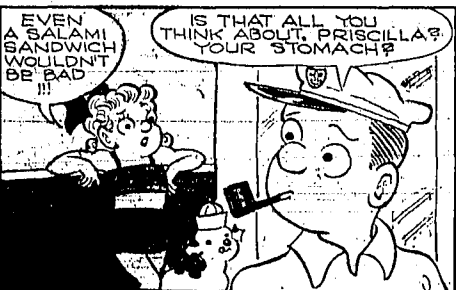

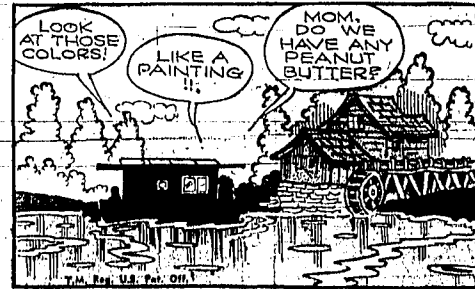

DEAR POLLY—One day I ran out of waxed paper and tried the following when making a pie. I slit a plastic bread bag down one side and across the end and had a marvelous surface for rolling out the crust. Dough does not stick to this as it sometimes does to waxed paper and a piece can be reused several times.—MRS. D. A. C.

DEAR POLLY—Before wearing new shoes for the first time I rub a dry cake of soap on the inside of the heel. The shoe slides on more easily and there is less chance of a blister.—IRENE

Ask Them Yourself

FOR REP. CLAUDE PEPPER

What do you suggest to curb young Americans from growing disillusioned and disrupting our campuses?—A. S. Kravits, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● In an effort to involve young people in responsible positions of Government, I have proposed the creation of a Department of Youth Affairs. This department, represented by a secretary of cabinet rank, would co-ordinate and expand programs that draw on the many talents of our nation's young men and women.

FOR LAWRENCE SPIVAK

Do your guests on your to program know in advance the questions interviewers will ask? Their answers are so prompt and to the point?—Harold C. Kanger, Walnut Creek, Calif.

● "Meet the Press" is a spontaneous, unscripted, press conference. No advance questions are given to the guests.

FOR ELIZABETH POST,

It is proper to pick up chicken and put it with your fingers?—Miss Gale Houston, Salinas, Calif.

● In a friend's home, your own home, or in an informal restaurant, chicken may be picked up with the fingers. In a more formal atmosphere, it is not correct.

FOR SANDY KOUFACH, sportscaster

When the pitcher goes to his mouth with his fingers, why does an umpire call it a ball?—Mrs. Alice Slutz, Austin, Texas

● In an effort to eliminate a pitch called "spitball," the baseball rules committee in 1968 set up a new rule; whenever a pitcher places his fingers to his mouth, he shall be charged with a "ball." The new rule ostensibly will prevent a pitcher from placing saliva on the ball which, due to air currents on the added weight, can make the pitched ball behave in an unusual manner.

FOR JOHNNY CARSON

How do I get tickets for your show? I get constant refusals.—Mark Kravits, Teaneck, N.J.

● Write for tickets at least five months before you plan to attend.

FOR BERGEN EVANS,

Why are newspapers called the "Fourth Estate"?—David Deutsch, Jamaica, N.Y.

● One meaning of "estate" is a class regarded as a part of the political body. In early English parliaments there were three estates: the Clergy, the Barons and Knights, and the Commons. Author Thomas Macaulay said that the gallery of the House of Commons, in which reporters sat, "has become a fourth estate of the realm." Historian Thomas Carlyle picked up the phrase (and incorrectly attributed it to Burke), and it passed into the language.

FOR DIANHANN CARROLL

In your to show, "Julia," you appear to be so cool and standoffish with men. Are you this way in everyday life? Aren't you interested in a husband?—Foss Heiner, Ogden, Utah

● "Julia" is a little cool, I'll admit. But not Dianhann Carroll. I'll marry "Mr. Right Guy" one of these days, but he'll also have to be a father to my eight-year-old daughter Suzanne.

FOR JAMES T. ROWLEY,

Does the Government since 1964 do not reimburse a person for unknowingly accepting a counterfeit note, why does it reimburse a bank for doing the same?—Victor Paulson, Mankato, Minn.

● The Government does not reimburse any organization for accepting counterfeit money. If it did, a counterfeiter might avail himself of this policy to have the Government reimburse him for counterfeit currency he produced.

FOR NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

If God would grant you one wish, what would it be?—Mrs. Maurine Clements, Nalcrest, Fla.

● My one wish is that I could carry out God's guidance in everything.

FOR JACK WEBB

Have the names of the guilty people been changed on "Dragnet"?—Gary Wilson, Rochester, N.Y.

● Yes, we change them. But the real names of police officers are used.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Say, Can You See? You read a lot about flag-burning—but not much about flag-waving. This surprises Harry Holtzer, president of 3M Company, who started a modest program offering an American flag stickers on a reflective material. Within three weeks, 3M had 675,000 orders. The company expects several million orders in a matter of months.

Hub Nub With so many British aristocrats struggling with their enormous taxes on their ancestral estates, and so many Americans curious about this almost extinct way of life, a young London banker opened a new business to satisfy both: "About his 'Country Homes and Castles' program, David Morse says, 'American tourists apply to be weekend house guests (paid) and enjoy the same hospitality we offer our friends." That includes meeting neighbors and sharing elegant dinners, complete with brandy, before a blazing fire, served by liveried family retainers. The all-inclusive prepaid rate is "suitable" and too crisp to mention further.

Light on Romance British singer-actress Petula Clark ("Good-bye, Mr. Chips.") told Family Weekly how she met her French husband, Claude Wolfe. "This Paris record company wanted me to sing for them in French. But I couldn't speak French and didn't intend to learn. During our argument, the office lights went out, and everyone began screaming. 'Claude, help us!' Someone stumbled in and fixed the light. He ignored me, didn't speak English, but I couldn't take my eyes off him. 'Who's that?' I asked. 'Our public-relations man'—somebody answered. "If you decide to cut a French record, he will take you around.' I decided to make a little effort." Now Petula and Claude are bilingual.

Poodle Palaces The cost of housing is going sky-high. That includes doghouses. James De Vries of New York City has a thriving business selling doghouses in the $250 to $750 range. They are really pieces of scaled-down furniture (a Ming dynasty bed, shown here, which also serves as a coffee table), which you could use even if you didn't have a dog. De Vries gets a little huffy if you question high-priced dog dwellings. "If a woman spends $3,000 for a dress, why not $500 for her dog? Besides, I'm also designing houses for the disadvantaged dog—at $100 or so!"

No Bugs Here Youngsters often bring their parents to the "let's" show at Rochester's Strykerburgh Planetarium, recent recipient of the New York State Council on the Arts award. One day some 225 sat in rapt silence, watching the domed ceiling at pinpoints of light representing thousands of stars glowing in the dark. The audience was impressed at how much it was like sitting in a park on a clear summer night. Suddenly a little voice cried, "Mom, are the mosquitoes out?"

What You Should Know About Lawyers

A family attorney can be as important to you as your family doctor—and should be selected with the same careful consideration

By SAMUEL C. KLING

Author of "The Complete Guide to Everyday Law"

many factors. One of the most important is the question of negligence or legal fault. Either is determined by a thorough investigation of the facts and witnesses. This requires an experienced negligence lawyer who would be able to evaluate what a damage suit is worth. But it's hardly worthwhile to employ counsel if the property damage is only about $50 and if it's obvious that the claimant was legally in the right.

What qualifies should a lawyer have?

A lawyer should have an all-around good reputation and the respect of his fellow lawyers. He should be thorough, meticulous, and have a sound grasp of legal principles.

While it's impossible for any lawyer to know all the law, a successful one will not only have a firm grasp of basic fundamentals but also the legal mind capable of wrestling with an involved set of facts and coming up with a conclusion that makes legal sense.

To what extent should a client shop around for an attorney?

Many laymen are likely to seek an attorney merely in terms of price. If one attorney asks a $500 fee for representation in a case, the client may engage another attorney who will represent him for $350, or even less. It is primarily important that the client should consider the attorney's experience, intelligence, character, and reputation. The fee should be secondary.

Should you choose a specialist lawyer rather than one with a general practice?

Like physicians, lawyers lately have tended to specialize. There are attorneys who specialize in labor, divorce, criminal, tax, or negligence law.

But the fact that a lawyer handles many negligence cases doesn't mean that he isn't qualified to handle divorce cases or write wills. He often does, though, usually, with the know-how of the specialist who has devoted almost his entire legal career to one special branch of the law. Obviously, the specialist is better equipped to handle cases in his particular field.

Are there specialists in all communities?

Most practice in larger cities. In smaller towns, the general-practice lawyer is similar to the general-practice physician. But even in larger cities, the majority of attorneys practice general law and can deal with almost any legal matter.

How should one choose an attorney?

A recommendation from a friend or relative who has encountered a similar legal problem is as good a reason as any for making a choice. But beware of persons who recommend a particular lawyer only because they expect a part of the attorney's fee for the recommendation.

Many lawyers obtain clients, especially when negligence is involved, in this unethical manner. Under the code of ethics of the American Bar Association, no attorney is permitted to solicit business directly or indirectly, nor is he allowed to pay those who refer legal business to him.

Is it wrong to sign a power of attorney in an accident case?

Not as a rule—but certainly don't when it is presented by an "ambulance-chasing" attorney or his representative, who asks that he be allowed to represent you. Otherwise, there is no objection.

A power of attorney simply authorizes the lawyer to represent the client in a given matter, under the terms that are defined in the contract.

What are those terms?

They usually authorize the attorney to represent the client in negotiating a settlement. But, if the latter is impossible, the lawyer will then institute a suit on behalf of the client against the defendant. For such services, the attorney usually charges a percentage fee of the amount recovered. If nothing is recovered, either by settlement or suit, usually no fee is charged.

Who determines a proper settlement?

Usually the attorney does, but he rarely ever makes any settlement without the approval of his client.

What happens if the client isn't satisfied with the settlement?

Depending on which action has been taken, he may ask his attorney either to reopen negotiations or to file suit. He may also dismiss his lawyer, provided he has compensated him for legal services already rendered.

How can one engage counsel in a nonnegligence matter if he has no funds?

He can seek assistance from one of the many legal-aid societies throughout the country. These are listed in the Yellow Pages of the telephone directory under "Lawyers—Legal Aid." To be eligible for the services of a Legal Aid Society, a client must prove that he has no income and assets are so inadequate that he can't afford to pay any fee. Legal Aid Society services are free. Most legal-aid societies are community-service agencies, supported by city or state contributions.

What is "Lawyers' Referral"?

This is a service provided by the local bar association. Any financially able person needing a lawyer is referred to one of the bar's members. Typically, the applicant pays a registration fee of about $1 for the referral. He pays the counsel a fixed fee of about $5 for the initial consultation that may last up to a half-hour. Lawyers' Referral is halfway between free legal aid and private legal counsel. The fees charged for divorce, for example, are much less, since clients are apt to come from low-income groups. Many clients are directed to Lawyers' Referral by legal-aid societies if they can afford to pay some fee. It also is listed in the Yellow Pages.

Does a Legal Aid Society handle all cases?

It will not handle criminal or divorce cases. However, Lawyers' Referral handles all kinds of legal matters.

How Does Lawyers' Referral work?

It consists of a pool of lawyers who serve in rotation and provide a "potluck" of legal assistance. A client doesn't have a choice. He must hire the lawyer whose name currently heads the list. If he is dissatisfied, he may pay another consultation fee for the attorney next on the list.

What about representation in a criminal case if the defendant is without funds?

Under recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions, the accused is entitled to counsel at every stage of the criminal proceeding. This means that he has a right to be represented at the time of his arrest; when he is questioned by the police; when he signs a confession; when he is indicted; and when he is tried for the crime for which he is charged. All is at the expense of the state.

Is it good practice to retain counsel on an annual basis?

Yes, if the client's business so warrants. Many businessmen retain an attorney on an annual basis. They pay either a flat fee for all the routine legal work likely to come up during the year or a combination of a flat fee and additional fees for nonroutine matters such as litigation.

By far the best arrangement is for client and counsel to have a written contract that specifies the work to be done by the attorney or legal firm. Then there will be no misunderstandings about what the retainer covers.

How confidential is the relationship between attorney and client?

The most confidential known to the law. No lawyer is permitted to disclose information given to him by his client, even when the lawyer is called as a witness. For violation of his trust, an attorney may be subject to disciplinary action by his local bar association and to suit, if damages occur from a breach of the communication.

What responsibility does a lawyer have?

An attorney is both an officer of the court and the agent of the client who employs him. He has an obligation to be fair and honest with both. He undertakes to exercise ordinary care, skill, and diligence in handling the affairs of the client whose case he has accepted. A lawyer has the right to refuse to accept a client for any reason. Generally any agreement by the attorney, within the scope of his authority and particularly any agreement respecting procedure or the conduct of the trial, binds the client.

The attorney must keep his client informed at all times of the state of his business and what action is being taken. However, this does not mean a blow-by-blow description of everything that is taking place. It means keeping his client posted on the major legal steps being taken.

What does a client owe his counsel?

The duty to give a full and fair disclosure of all the facts relevant to his case. Be sure to tell your attorney the truth; the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. For only when counsel is in full possession of all the facts can he act intelligently on the matter. Many clients withhold facts in the mistaken belief that the less a lawyer knows about the real situation, the better. But, given all the facts, an attorney can determine which are relevant, which are harmful, and which are useful to his client's interests. No layman is qualified to do this. Presented with information that may be damaging, a careful attorney will prepare his defense accordingly. In order not to be caught unaware by the opposition.

Is criticism of the legal profession justified?

To some extent, yes. Bar associations haven't always been responsive to people's needs nor to law changes because most lawyers are conservative and interested in maintaining a status quo. Nor have attorneys gone after "ambulance chasers" and other abuses as diligently as they might. Most lawyers feel they're capable of handling any legal matter, no matter how complex or remote, from their own experience. So they hesitate to refer a case to a specialist. Law has become increasingly a matter of specialization. Today there are lawyers for every conceivable field. An attorney with no real expertise in tax law, for example, may be doing his client a grave injustice by not calling in a specialist.

On the other hand, few professions are better disciplined than the law. Admittedly, there are practicing shysters and thieves, just as there are quacks practicing medicine. But as a whole, the legal profession is highly regarded.

Should a lawyer defend a guilty person?

Yes. Everyone accused of crime is entitled to a defense. Under our system of law, a defendant's guilt or innocence is determined not by his attorney, but by a jury or by a judge's serving as a substitute for a jury. A lawyer's function is to present the facts in their most favorable light to see that the accused gets a fair trial. ♦

Editors' note: A lawyer can be as important to the financial well-being of a family as a family doctor is to its physical well-being. But when does the average family need a lawyer? And how does it select one?

FAMILY WEEKLY asked these questions—and other pertinent ones—of Samuel Kling, a leading authority on legal matters. His advice on divorce and other family problems has been read by millions. Mostly, however, he is interested in preventing legal tangles, and his suggestions here may help you minimize them—even eliminate many of them.

Should a layman attempt to handle legal matters without a lawyer?
There may be a few times when the well-informed layman can get along without the aid of legal counsel. He may, for example, be able to handle a rent or collection item in a small-claims court. He may even be able to handle his own traffic-court case, if it's trivial.

Is it always necessary to employ counsel in a divorce case?

No, not if the defendant doesn't contest the case for some reason; if he or she has little or no property or assets; if the wife seeks neither alimony for herself nor support for the children. However, whenever there's any doubt about one's legal rights, an attorney should be consulted.

Is it always desirable to hire an attorney in a negligence case?

For the most part, yes. Recovering damages for injuries to your person or property depends on

Puddings Plain and Fancy

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

Fresh blueberries are blended with lemon pudding in the filling for tender, rich pastry shells and are also used to adorn the tops of these Blueberry Tarts.

■ A plain, ready-to-serve chilled canned pudding, served from your prettiest bowl along with an assortment of toppings, fruits, garnishes, and other additions, is a pleasant, effortless ending to a family meal. With little more effort and a bit of imagination, you can also prepare fancy party desserts from these puddings. Here are a few recipes carrying simple ideas for glamour.

Blueberry Tarts

- 6 baked tart shells, prepared from a pie crust mix.*
- 1 can (15½ to 18 oz.) ready-to-serve lemon- or vanilla-flavored pudding, chilled
- Fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
- 1 cup whipped dessert topping or thawed, frozen whipped topping
- Flaked coconut

1. When ready to serve, fold about 2 cups of blueberries and the topping together. Blend into the pudding and spoon into tart shells.
2. Top with additional berries as desired, and sprinkle edges with coconut.

*Note: Fit pastry into individual skillets (see photo) or tart pans and flute edge. Thoroughly prick pastry with a fork and place skillets or tart pans on baking sheet. Bake as directed on pkg. for pie shell until golden brown. Cool on racks.

Frozen Chocolate Pudding Pie with Cherry Flair

- 1 10-in. chocolate cookie crumb crust (see recipe)
- 1 can (15½ to 18 oz.) ready-to-serve vanilla pudding, chilled
- 2 cups whipped dessert topping or thawed, frozen whipped topping
- 1 can (16 to 18 oz.) ready-to-serve chocolate pudding, chilled
- 3 tablespoons chilled caramel topping sauce
- ½ cup salted almonds, coarsely chopped
- Maraschino cherries with stems

1. Empty vanilla pudding into a large bowl and blend in 1 cup of the whipped dessert topping or thawed, frozen whipped topping.

2. Empty chocolate pudding into the same bowl and draw a rubber spatula or spoon through the chocolate and vanilla puddings until partially streaked to give a marbled design.
3. Turn into the chocolate cookie crumb crust. Set in freezer to chill, about 15 min.
4. Remove from freezer and drizzle with the caramel sauce. Top with the salted nuts.
5. To garnish, drop spoonfuls of the remaining dessert topping onto the nuts around outer edge of pie. Put a stemmed maraschino cherry onto each mound of topping. Set in freezer for several hours or until filling is firm. If necessary, allow pie to remain at room temperature to soften slightly before cutting.

8 to 10 servings

Chocolate Crumb Crust

- 2 cups finely crushed chocolate cookie crumbs (may be prepared from baked refrigerated cookie dough, commercial chocolate cookies, or wafers)
- 5 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 1 oz. (1 sq.) unweetened chocolate, grated

1. Adding gradually, drizzle butter over crumbs and mix thoroughly with a fork. Blend in chocolate.
2. Gently, but firmly, press mixture over bottom and up sides of a 10-in. pie plate. Chill in refrigerator until firm or set in freezer about 15 min. Fill and top as desired.

Choco-Bananna-Lemon Pudding Pie

The chocolate crumb crust will accentuate the delicate flavor of any one of the ready-to-serve canned puddings such as chocolate, butter-cream, vanilla, or lemon. Follow directions on cans for use of gelatin or cornstarch in preparing pie fillings made from ready-to-serve canned puddings. For the 10-inch crust, use two cans of pudding (one flavor or a blend of two flavors). Mix in 2 sliced bananas. Turn into crust; top with mixture of whipped cream and miniature marshmallows. Sprinkle with small pastel-colored disc candies. Chill. 8 to 10 servings

Emerald-Topped Lemon Rice Pudding

- 1 can (16½ to 18 oz.) ready-to-serve lemon pudding
- 1 can (15½ oz.) ready-to-serve rice pudding
- 1 pkg. (3 oz.) lime-flavored gelatin
- ½ cup boiling water
- ½ cup unweetened pineapple juice

1. Empty the canned puddings into a bowl and mix thoroughly. Set in refrigerator several hours, allowing flavors to blend.
2. Pour boiling water over the gelatin and stir until dissolved; blend in the pineapple juice and pour into a shallow pan. Chill until very firm.
3. Turn gelatin onto a flat surface such as a baking sheet. Using the straight edge of a spatula, chop through all of the gelatin, crisscrossing as you cut, until all is a shimmering mass.
4. Spoon about ¾ of the shimmering gelatin into a crystal bowl. Cover with the chilled pudding and pile remaining shimmering gelatin on top.

And since overweight is America's No. 1 public health problem, we have decided to attack it with an entirely new, exciting program: the Ladies' Home Journal Diet Club. It is potentially the most massive, promising step ever aimed at one of the key risk factors contributing to our No. 1 killer, heart disease, and other chronic diseases associated with overweight. If you are one of the more than 30 million overweight Americans, here is a safe, sensible approach toward the achievement of a healthier, happier YOU; and to assist thousands of others whom you will join in this cooperative help-one-help-all venture.

WHAT'S UNIQUE ABOUT THE CLUB

Your health is a personal responsibility, and dieting is a private affair. You will not be asked to go to meetings. You will not be part of any weight-reducing "group." You can achieve the slender new YOU in the privacy of your own home with the help of a Personal Menu Planner designed for your weight goal. You will learn to choose wisely from nourishing, satisfying ordinary foods. But you will not be alone. Each week you will receive by mail fresh, easy-to-apply diet counseling that is as authoritative as the most up-to-date scientific knowledge can produce. All guidance on nutritional problems is approved by the Club's panel of experts on nutrition (doctors, professors, and home economists). All guidance on the psychological aspects of nutrition and dieting is approved by the Club's panel of psychiatrists.

HELP OTHERS AS YOU

ACHIEVE YOUR OWN WEIGHT GOAL

The Ladies' Home Journal food editors and kitchens will supplement this scientific counseling with a constant flow of diet recipes, menus and kitchen tips. And because of the unique scientific design of the Club program, you will contribute to medical research, without extra effort or disclosure of your confidential records, by voluntarily furnishing information to our Diet Data Bank. We hope and expect that this accumulated experience will help many other people to achieve their weight goals, as you can.

WHAT THE CLUB WILL DO FOR YOU

As soon as you fill out and send us the attached confidential membership application, you will receive from the Club:

1. A suggested realistic, permanent weight goal as determined by your sex, age, weight history, your body build and your life style.
2. Your Personal Menu Planner with five ample food lists so you can select for yourself the foods you prefer, yet restrict your caloric intake to a sensible level. The variety from which you choose will allow you to satisfy your craving for food and minimize the monotony that so often turns dieting into torture. Your food selection list is designed to insure an adequate level of nutrition, which is most important in any weight control program. Losing weight with the Ladies' Home Journal Diet Club can be educational and even fun!

3. Your Diet Progress Chart to keep track of your weight losses, day by day, through the very effective first three months as you achieve your primary objective. The chart continues for an entire year so you can make sure that you keep your weight and figure where you want them, or even lose a few additional pounds.

4. Your copies of the Journal Diet Club Newsletters and Magazine. The Newsletters will arrive each week except for one week at which time you will receive the very authoritative and handsome Magazine. These publications will be like nothing you have ever read before. They will be packed with brief, practical diet, nutritional and exercise advice — information and inspiration ready to be used right now! Answers to diet questions that you send us. Tips on how to organize your refrigerator. What to do about cocktails. How to cut down on fats. How to diet in restaurants or in front of friends. How to speed weight control through exercise. And, always, detailed personal case reports of successful dieters — their problems and how you can overcome them.

Then, every two weeks, you will get a simple form so you can deposit your new weight in the Club's Diet Data Bank. Results will be analyzed and reported in the Club publications so you can match your own progress against the performance of other club members.

Some dieters love company. If you do, you can hold your own coffee klatsch among your friends and neighbors for mutual support. We shall supply simple instructions to make these get-togethers rewarding, sociable and calorie-controlled.

A delightful way to add even more enjoyment to your Diet Club membership is to have a friend join at the same time you enroll. Then, whenever you feel like it, and perhaps even daily, the two of you can compare each other's successes. When one dieter makes even more progress than the other, it provides inspiration and incentive for the one whose progress isn't so great. And talking about your experiences, about your diets, about taking in waistlines, about receiving unexpected compliments... all that is such fun when you have someone to share your thrills and success. If you have a friend who wants to join you, just ask her to write us for her own membership application.

WHEN DO YOU RECEIVE YOUR MASTER DIETER CERTIFICATE?

Just as soon as you reach your desired weight goal, you will receive your Master Dieter's Certificate. At that time, you will also receive an appropriately liberalized Menu Planner to maintain your new reduced weight and more attractive figure permanently without backsliding.

When you maintain your weight goal for a certain time, you will be eligible for prizes for the slim new YOU. Even better, you will take satisfaction in knowing that you succeeded where so many failed. You will think better of yourself, and so will your family. Ask anybody who ever took weight off and kept it off: There is no better feeling, no achievement more rewarding in admiring glances, in sincere compliments, and in being able to wear a much wider selection of those smart, smaller sized fashions.

WHAT THE CLUB WON'T DO

The Club won't fool you by pretending that weight reduction is easy. It won't lure you with promises of magic methods. It won't saddle you with fads, crash diets or rituals that become so inflexible and distasteful that you would soon give up and regain your hard-earned weight. If you lose an average of only one to two pounds weekly on your Club diet, we will have fulfilled realistic objectives. We believe that this goal is feasible. Even more importantly, you will have established a new way of life so that these lost pounds will stay off. The Club does not encourage your use of drugs; if medications seem necessary, they would only be used under recommendation and direct supervision of your personal physician (and we do strongly urge you to stay in touch with him while you lose weight). Finally, the Club won't treat you as a greedy, immature neurotic, but as a responsible individual who can master the weight problem on your own, once we supply the know-how, the scientific tools and sympathetic support.

YOU HAVE NOTHING TO LOSE BUT POUNDS

If you adhere to the regimen, doctor designed for you, you will achieve your reduced weight goal. Your bathroom scales will report your success; your mirror will reflect a more slender you.

If you do not lose weight, if you conscientiously remain on the diet and it does not work for you, your entire Journal Diet Club Membership costs will be refunded. So you have nothing to lose but pounds; everything to gain. Rush back this no-risk Membership Application TODAY.

Sincerely,
LADIES' HOME JOURNAL DIET CLUB

Dorothy Holmes

(Mrs.) Dorothy Holmes

PLEASE READ THIS CAREFULLY BEFORE FILLING OUT THE APPLICATION FORM BELOW:

If you are now pregnant or if you are a nursing mother, the Journal Diet Club cannot accept your membership, because your nutrition should be closely and directly supervised by your doctor; for the same reason, you should consult your doctor about your diet and follow his instructions if you become pregnant while you are a club member.

Sorry, we cannot accept your application if you are over 66 or under 18... or if you have a particular medical problem, in which case you should diet only under the close personal supervision of your family physician. And no man, please, our Diet Club is exclusively for women.

Please follow the directions below with utmost care. Your exact wrist measurement is required to help calculate your over-all body build. The measurement should be taken with a cloth tape measure, with arm extended and fingers spread out, just below the widest protrusion of your wrist-bone (see drawing at right). The tape measure should be pulled snug, but not tight enough to indent the skin.

Achieve Your Own Weight Goal. Help Many Others. Mail This Membership Application TODAY!

GLEN CAMPBELL

How a Country Boy Survives Stardom

Glen and his wife Billie—part of their family—Travis, Kelli, and Debbie.

HE WAS LATE. His hotel suite was in confusion. His managers were making muffled phone calls to locate him.

Fifteen minutes later he rambled in—big Glen Travis Campbell in a big green suit, abundant blond hair, holding a big cigar. After an enveloping handshake, he headed immediately to the amplifier, fiddled intently with the dials, picked up a guitar, and absent-mindedly strummed some random sounds.

Glen Campbell, the country-boy star in the hectic world of tv, music, and movies is anything but hectic himself. He has about as much hustle and bustle as a stroller on the main street of his home town of Delight, Ark.

"Delight is just a little town of 290 people, last I knew. Everybody knows everybody. We lived eight miles out on a farm." (Strum, strum) Glen says that a guitar at least gives him something to do with his hands, and he punctuates his comments with strums.

Glen got married when he was only 17. "Didn't last long," he admits. "A conflict of personalities. I was too young." There was a daughter, Debbie, 8, from that marriage. She spends summers with Glen and his present family.

At 21, he married Billie Nunley. He met her while playing with his own band in Albuquerque. "Perhaps you were more ready for marriage this time?" I suggested. "Not much," he laughed. "My wife is a great person, though. Sensitive, a great mother and wife. She's a gas!" (Strum, strum)

The Campbells live in Laurel Canyon above Los Angeles in the same "nice little house" they have had for four years. Glen spent most of that time accompanying other singers and doing a few of his own releases for Capitol Records. None, however, caused much of a stir.

Then in 1967 he became a smash with Gentle on My Mind. The success made Tom Smothers aware that his tv program's guitarist had a voice and would be a worthy summer replacement for the Smothers Brothers show last year.

Today Campbell has his own CBS-tv show which will resume its second year come September. He also has been signed to make six movies. In the first, "True Grit," he costars with John Wayne, a boyhood idol. "I used to pick cotton to get the money for all his movies," Glen said.

Glen's and Billie's children, Travis, 3, and Kelli, 7, are being raised "different, not better, than the way I grew up," he says. "I think Mom and Pop did a good job. I'd like my kids to grow up where I did—the sticks. They'd get a much better outlook on life than in Los Angeles."

He himself never finished high school and regrets it now. "But," he adds quickly, "ever since I can remember, this here guitar (strum, strum) was all I ever knew. My father got me a mail-order one when I was four. I was on the radio, regular, by the time I was six."

Glen is 30, right on that "don't-trust-anyone-over-30" borderline. But his fans are in all age groups. "They look at life so differently. When they stop me on the street, I like to ask them what they think."

Recently a third child, Wesley, was born. Like the other children, Wesley's not being baptized. Says Glen, "We'll wait and let them pick their own religion." His only comment on the new arrival: "He's a gas." STRUM, STRUM. —TERRY SCHAERTEL

Good news for the 20 million men and women in the U.S.A. who have had Heart Attacks...

Or have a Cardio-Vascular Condition
(and the 500,000 who can expect to have one before the end of 1969)

The information in this new magazine can speed recovery and help you lead a normal life. It can prevent a recurrence—in fact, as one important heart specialist says, "It can conceivably save 200,000 lives each year."

Medical science now knows that heart disease is not inevitable, not a penalty of aging, not hereditary—due to "a weakness that runs in the family."

Coronary heart disease is our own fault. In large measure, we create it—in the way we live—and we can prevent it. Yet despite the warnings often sounded by family and friends, the annual toll from heart attacks is appalling. Each day 1,400 Americans lose their lives through heart disease. And another 500 more succumb each day from cerebral brain strokes.

Continuing research proves conclusively that the way we live, what we eat, our smoking habits, how we control our tensions, how we exercise are directly responsible, not only for the original heart attack—but for our chances for a complete recovery.

Your doctor knows you—and your condition. But remember, he is a busy man. Pamphlets, brochures, papers from various organizations have been available to the public, many of them containing excellent information on specific topics relating to heart disease.

This material is not always available to the average person.

It can shorten the road to recovery.

SCIENCE EXPLORES

MAN HAS long wondered about the phenomenon of sleepwalking: Are sleepwalkers magically protected from harm? Are they potentially dangerous? What motivates their strange behavior?

Until recently, the answers were based on myth. Now science is studying the subject much more objectively and has come up with some very surprising facts to counter the fiction.

How many sleepwalkers are there today?

"The clinical estimate is that there are about four million sleepwalkers in the U.S.," says Dr. Joost M. Meerlo, New York School of Psychiatry. But many never leave their bedrooms.

What causes sleepwalking in most adults?

"Dr. S. L. Andelman, a specialist in public health and a medical columnist says, "Adult cases of sleepwalking are associated with financial woes, marital problems, or other worries. When they are solved, the sleepwalking often stops." If new difficulties arise, it is likely to resume.

Is sleepwalking safe?

No. Some may go their way unharmed. A woman, for example, got up, dressed, slid behind the wheel of her car, and drove safely 23 miles. Yet some have suffered serious injuries—falling from windows or off of roofs. There was even a lad who stepped out the door of a car on the San Diego freeway. One woman drank disinfectant; a man stabbed himself.

Do sleepwalkers perform superhuman stunts?

There is no such proof. However, according to New York psychiatrist Dr. Ernst Jolowicz, it is true that since the sleepwalker has no inhibitions, he can exert great physiological powers.

Do sleepwalkers murder?

There have been a few rare cases reported. Dr. Edward Podolsky in Diseases of the Nervous System tells of a man who shot and killed his wife. The husband testified at his trial that he had not awakened until several hours after the crime and that he did not even hear the shot he fired. The jury found this incredible until medical evidence supported it.

Which age groups have the most sleepwalkers?

Dr. Allan Jacobson, Dr. Anthony Kales, and associates at the University of California at Los Angeles—say somnambulism is practiced mainly by children, with boys outnumbering girls. It seems to be caused by an immaturity of the central nervous system.

Do sleepwalkers remember their "accidents"?

No. Upon awakening, they have no recollection of what they did.

Is it safe to awaken the sleepwalker?

For his own safety, he should either be led back to bed or awakened—not be sure that the walker is just in a dangerous position, where he might lose his balance. Actually, according to UCLA's Doctor Kales, since walkers can thrash about on waking, you are the one who should be careful. You might receive a blow of extraordinary force.

'ROUND THE WORLD

"I started a 38,000 mile trip by air to Cape Town, South Africa and return. Under my seat was the convenient, brown flight bag. For seven weeks I was on and off planes, in and out of taxis and buses in London, New York, Zurich, and Cairo. Then on to Kenya, Uganda and Rhodesia. Then on to Johannesburg, Athens, Frankfurt, Zurich, and New York and home. This bag shows little if any wear. I would now like to send one to a friend in Johannesburg."

The Interchangeables

WHAT'S BETTER (and less costly) than buying a complete school wardrobe for your little girl? Sewing one. With easy-to-follow instructions, you can make one that encompasses the latest styling and interchangeable parts!

To wit: create a dazzling hat and overcoat, complete with fringed scarf, that turns a coordinating dress, jumper, or skirt into a costume; fashion a pair of contrasting pants (in the new wider leg) to keep little ones warm on the way to school; sew a color-mated knit shirt or turtleneck that interchanges with a skirt or pants, or nestles snugly under a jumper. And, for a quick change after school, make a great-looking jumpsuit (the kind that zips down the front with ease) to slip your youngster into.

The trick to making this wardrobe is to keep the fabric formula simple: three solid colors and a bright plaid will provide enough variety. Using remnant pieces for trim is a clever way to eliminate waste while coordinating your child's wardrobe.

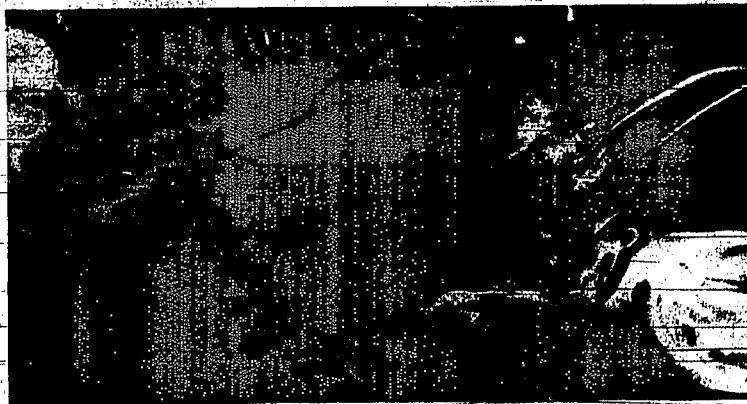

These simple up-to-the-minute silhouettes were created exclusively for FAMILY WEEKLY readers by children's-wear designer Gabriele Knecht of Skak.
