50-Year Loan Okayed By Bureau For Salmon Tract

The dream of more water for Salmon River farmers is getting closer to reality with the announcement the Interior Department has approved a preliminary contract with the Salmon River Canal Co. under which the company will repay a $950,000 Small Reclamation Project Act loan over a 50-year period.

Making the announcement in Washington were Sen. Len B. Jordan and Cong. Orval Hansen. The two said with the loan, the Salmon River Canal Co. hopes to save water lost by seepage and to rehabilitate the delivery facilities required for efficient operation of the system.

The Salmon River Canal Co. serves about 31,000 irrigable acres on the Salmon River tract in Twin Falls County.

Elmer Parrott, chairman of the Salmon River Canal Co. Board of Directors, said his board has not yet been notified officially of the contract approval, but expected to be soon.

Mr. Parrott said, when officially notified, the stockholders will vote to accept or reject the contract. He said if okayed by the stockholders, it would probably be something in 1970 before funds are available "if everything goes alright."

He said if the project is funded in 1970, construction probably would start that fall. He added, construction of rehabilitating the system would take about three years.

The first phase of construction would be the lining of 7.4 miles of the main canal with concrete. About 6,500 acre-feet of water is lost annually in these seven miles of the main canal.

Geological Survey data, most of the upper four miles of the main canal run through fractured basalt and porous material which results in very large seepage losses.

It is estimated that if this part of the canal is lined there will be about eight per cent increase in water efficiency.

Many of the major control structures constructed in 1910-1915 are unimproved and make regulation of the water supply difficult. Part of the funds from the Small Reclamation Project Act loan would be used to construct concrete control structures to increase the accuracy and ease of regulating farm deliveries.

Also proposed by the company in its rehabilitation program is the main canal between the outlet of the second tunnel and the "A" line diversion dam. This line will be lined with concrete.

Water in the "A" lateral is conveyed deep Deep Creek by means of a concrete pipe siphon about 365 feet long and buried under the Deep Creek channel.

The total cost of the rehabilitation project proposed by the Salmon River Canal Co. is $1,032,000, of which the company will contribute $162,000 for rehabilitating many farm delivery structures, construction access into canal and scale bank, improving access roads and other small items, leaving $870,000 in the form of federal loan.

Mr. Parrott said the repayment will start the next year following completion of the total project.

With this loan the company hopes to have a more efficient water distribution system, produce more crops, thus resulting in a better economy for Salmon River farmers and a windfall on timber supports. This Falls County.

Records Broken As Fair Closes

By MARJORIE LIERMAN, Times-News Correspondent

FILER — The Twin Falls County Fair came to a close Saturday night after breaking several attendance records and causing many comments of "Outstanding fair in every way."

Friday, West End Day, swept past last year's attendance of 13,224, with 14,161 persons checking in at the gate, and Saturday showed every promise of also surpassing last year's grand-finals attendance.

Fair officials had shuddered at the word "fair" at the beginning of the week when a weather forecast predicted possible showers for the weekend, but their fears proved unfounded as cool clear weather all four days proved perfect for fairgoing.

"We feel we had an outstanding fair this year," said Harold Hove, fair board president; who added the increase in attendance at the gate, additional entries in many exhibits, more merchandise displays, and a new rodeo and carnival which have drawn many favorable comments, all add up to a new high in fairtime.

A quick check with superintendents revealed these frighteningly accurate making plans for next year's 54th fair. Mrs. Clinton Dougherty hopes to see more pies entered in the pantry department next year. This was a new class this year and probably some people were not aware of it.

Good cooks can begin now planning for culinary triumphs.

Carolyn Wins

Another Twin Falls beauty queen with accent on expert horsemanship — was named Saturday night at the conclusion of the Twin Falls Fair and Rodeo, Miss Carolyn Horvey was named Miss Rodeo Idaho.

As the top queen of Idaho, she will represent the state at the Miss Rodeo America competition in Las Vegas, Nev., in November.

First runner-up was Marcy Valentine of Caldwell, and Sue Helep Smith of Boise took second runner-up position.

Seers' Aver Pike Lives In Desert

BETHLEHEM, Israel (UPI) — The wife of former Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, disappeared by the inability of searchers to find any sign of her husband during a fifth day of combing the Judean Desert, remained firm Saturday night in her belief Pike was in a cave.

"I just cannot understand why they have not found him," Mrs. Pike said. "The details I give them were very explicit."

Mrs. Pike said information supplied by two mediums pinpointed the cave where her husband, last on the desert since Monday, would be found. The mediums, Arthur Ford of Philadelphia, Pa., and an unnamed seer in Haifa, told her the controversial former bishop had crawled into a cave with a square mouth and a row of stones across its entrance, she said.

The fifth day of searching the broiling Judean wilderness, however, failed to turn up any clues to Pike's mysterious disappearance, Bethlehem Post Chief Ernest Glynn said. Glynn said Army troops had searched a cave similar to the one in Haifa, told her the cave was empty.

The father-in-law of the hospitalized Pike would like to be certain of it, and the boy was not to be taken to a mortuary.

"There is no law in Idaho that covers a case like this," Mrs. Glynn said.

"I wanted very much to protect the civil rights of the parents in this matter," Mrs. Glynn said. "I'm a Christian, and I believe in God."

But the infant had been pronounced dead by a physician, and the parents refused to accept this, it was reported.

"They cited several passages from the Bible for me, and

Michigan School Law Said Illegal

BURLEY — Idaho's limiting statute defining a school election is in open and flagrant contradiction to the law of the land, educators were told here Friday.

Addressing a fall leadership conference of the Idaho Education Association, Wayne York, IEA executive secretary, declared the U.S. Supreme Court has said in its interpretation of a New York state statute that laws, such as the one in Idaho defining a school election as one who owns property or has children under 21 years of age, are unconstitutional.

Clearly, Idaho's limiting statute must be changed in 1970, the IEA official declared. "The U.S. Constitution is the supreme law of the land and the U.S. Supreme Court is the final interpreter of this document. Our state statute is in open and flagrant contradiction of the law of the country."

The IEA has called for a change in the law regarding the qualifications of electors in school bond elections, a new definition of school electors and an end to the two-thirds majority needed for approval of bond elections.

Some 130 educators from Magie Valley attended the concluding school election at the Ponderosa Inn which concluded Saturday noon.

Noting that school bonds already approved in Idaho cannot be sold and school bond elections have been canceled, Mr. York declared the situation is "assuming all the characteristics of a full-blown emergency."

"We question whether remedial legislation can await the regular session of the 20th Legislature. As a very minimum, the 1970 legislative session must move quickly to change and clarify the statutes regarding qualification of electors," he said.

He predicted that within the next year the courts may well provide equality and democracy for all people and decisions regarding public problems and the public welfare "finally may be decided by all the electorates with one man's vote counting the same as another man's vote, regardless of financial status or wealth."

Brazil Releases Political Foes

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — A Brazilian air force plane carrying political prisoners being exchanged for kidnapped U.S. Ambassador — C. Burke Fairbank left Saturday for Mexico to complete a 10-minute effort by 200 armed navy men to thwart the trade as a "national disgrace."

The fourcylinder C-130 Hercules plane took off at 5:03 p.m. (4:03 p.m. EDT), an hour and three minutes after a departure deadline apparently given the government by the kidnappers.

The Hercules was preparing for "takeoff" when two Navy helicopters suddenly landed beside the craft and navy men ringed both the air force base and the adjoining commercial airport.

A uniformed navy captain, who declined to identify himself, told newsmen the government's bowing to the kidnappers' demands to release 15 prisoners was a "national disgrace."

"The navy tried to impede their departure but we received orders from above to let them leave," the captain said.

The naval men remained at the airport for hours than an hour after the departure of the plane in its 4,074-mile flight to Mexico.

A reliable source said the plane carried 13 of the 15 prisoners whose release was demanded by the terrorists who kidnapped the U.S. ambassador when he was being driven to his office. "The source said the other two prisoners would be picked up in Recife and taken to northern cities on the plane's route to Mexico.

Ho Leaves Plans For North Viet

HONG KONG (UPI) — A "collective leadership" was carefully built by the late North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh to run the country after his death, Radio Hanoi reported Saturday.

Radio Hanoi, in a Japanese language broadcast monitored in Tokyo, quoted two leading North Vietnamese Communist publications as saying Ho left a legacy of "collective leadership" for his followers.

They are four major figures in North Vietnam, who have emerged as possible heirs to Ho's leadership. They are Premier Pham Van Dong, Le Duan, secretary general of the North Vietnamese Communist Party; Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the defense minister; and Truong Chinh, the chairman of the National Assembly.

FUND IN BLACK

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's general fund was $2,320,200 in the black at the end of August, reported here today, fresh from recorded for the same date a year ago.

Last In Line, Twin Falls Schools Set To Open Monday, Officially Ending Summer

Saturday night a grandmother in Utah telephoned her grandson in Twin Falls and asked him how the U.S. Supreme Court decision "don't know," the youngster, a second grader, said.

"Well, what's your teacher's name?" "I don't know," the child replied.

It was a few minutes before the connection clicked between the grandmother, somewhat confused, saying, "I don't start school 'til Monday."

The grandmother was confused also. She is a teacher and school in Utah started two weeks ago.

In Twin Falls, however, school doors have remained closed to give children a chance to attend the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo.

Monday's last in line, TWIN Falls public schools will open. All school lunch programs in the district will start on open-

Death Of Baby Has Bizarre Aftermath

By FRED DODDS, Times-News Staff Writer

The end for the boy came Sunday night at 4:30 minutes. "He's dead," a physician said. He had just completed the careful medical oblation — a doctor's solemn pronouncement of death.

In the same room the infant's twin brother, just four pounds and four and a half ounces, maintained his struggle for life. The scene was a small room in the maternity ward of Magie Valley Memorial Hospital. It was last Tuesday.

"These past three days have been hell," well, they've been hell," Mrs. Olive, administrator of the hospital, said Friday night in her office.

"Yes," Mrs. Maurice Magie said. She is the mother of Twin Falls County prosecutor.

Neither of them knew that when the little boy died at 5:03 p.m. Tuesday it would bring about the passage of a new county ordinance.

Just after the infant died, his father summoned a minister.

According to Mrs. Olive, the minister appeared at the hospital and prayed over the body of the dead infant.

"I will give the minister a report to have said," the minister is reported to have said.

The father informed hospital officials that he would like to be certain of it, and the boy was not to be taken to a mortuary.

"There is no law in Idaho that covers a case like this," Mrs. Olive said.

"I wanted very much to protect the civil rights of the parents in this matter," Mrs. Olive said. "I'm a Christian, and I believe in God."

But the infant had been pronounced dead by a physician, and the parents refused to accept this, it was reported.

How About An Apple, Teacher?

By RUTH MILLER, Times-News Staff Writer

Rosie Sinclair doesn't think about a typical teacher.

In fact, with reports circulating that many of Idaho's teachers are members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, she takes the opposite approach to education.

She's one of the new teachers in the "Twin Falls" school system this year and, fresh from college, she is 22 years old.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Sinclair.

"Rosie is a peppy, dark-haired girl who's a little concerned about getting some clothes to wear to school.

A member of the most undisciplined set she definitely feels teachers should use some indignation with their dress but is not in a mood to wear minipants to class — but I'm not going to wear real long skirts either," she said.

Another thing she's concerned about is getting the kids interested in calling her "Miss Sinclair."

While Rosie will be new to public school teaching, she has spent months for classes Monday at O'Leary Junior High School, she's not new to teaching itself.

None of her students will be the same ones who were her swimming students at Harmon Pool for eight years — the same ones who called her Rosie and pushed her in the pool.

"I'm really not too concerned about discipline. I think the kids here are much better disciplined than in many areas.

"Discipline is important. I don't want the kids tearing around the classroom or making noise for nearly 40 hours.

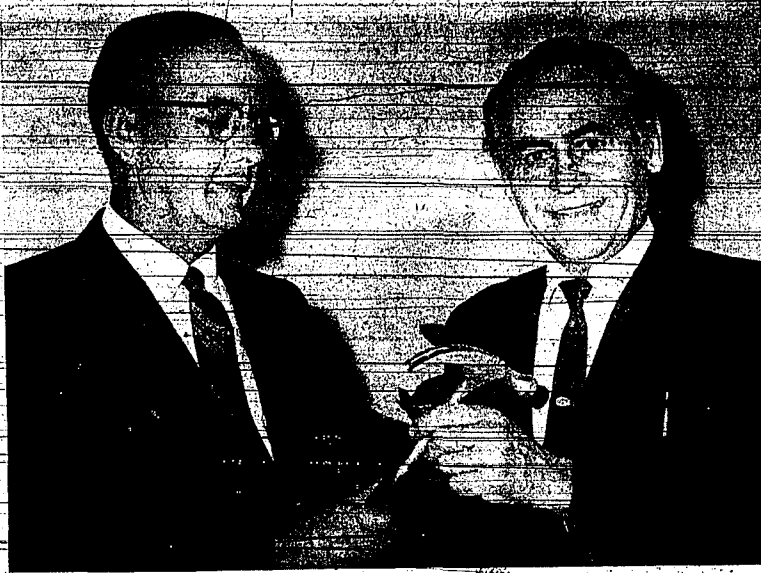

Finally, on Friday afternoon, the county commissioners stepped in and rushed through an amendment to the charter.

AN APPLE FOR the teacher! And, a teacher that looks like this is bound to get lots of special consideration from her students. Young Rosie Sinclair is one of the new teachers in the Twin Falls school system this year, an up-to-date modern who doesn't consider herself an "average" teacher.

Bad Water

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As many as eight million Americans may drink water with bacteria levels in excess of federal standards, according to a new government study.

The study of community drinking water supplies in widely varied sections of the country also indicates a "high frequency of occurrence" of pesticides in drinking water, although the levels still are below public health service standards.

Challis Forest Begins Four Projects

CHALLIS — Work on four projects amounting to $215,000 has started in the Challis National Forest.

The Little-Casino Road and Bridge are being built. This road and bridge will provide access to a timber sale, which is expected to be the largest sale on the forest to date.

Work is being done on the Livingston-Milk-Castle Peak trail and a water system, sewer system and three trailer pads and shelters from a mile above the Livingston Mill to Eng Lake. This project has been in the forest plan for five years. The trail is seven miles long. A road system is being built in moving the Stanley Ranger Station to a site where a good water supply can be developed and where ground conditions will permit a safe sewer system.

Contracts for construction of two dwellings and the installation of power at the site are anticipated this fall. It was reported.

Glenns Ferry Will Extend Sewer Lines

GLENN'S FERRY — Glenns Ferry city council has authorized purchase of sewer pipe to extend service to four new homes in the Hammers addition of the city.

The council also will investigate possibility of purchasing a local swimming pool and 5.6 acres of land on which it is situated. Edlin Streetman, Elmore Realty, has offered to sell the land and pool for $31,500.

Murtaugh Man Given 1 Year Term

A 41-year-old Murtaugh man was given a 14-year prison term for assault with intent to commit robbery in the beating of a Twin Falls man south of the city Aug. 25.

Carl Bauer, who pleaded guilty to the charge when he appeared in Fifth District Court Friday, had his sentence commuted to a year in the county jail.

His wife, Carol, was also accused in the crime but charges against her were dismissed Friday on a motion by the county prosecutor.

Mr. Bauer pleaded guilty to beating Lyric Bailey after hitting him in a bar and taking him to a lonely spot south of Twin Falls and hitting him with a beer bottle. Mr. Bailey said $300 was taken from him at the time of the incident.

In other court action, Lloyd Plazco, 24, appeared and pleaded guilty to a charge of burglarizing the Reno Club in Twin Falls last Aug. 17. He was given a 10-year prison sentence, and this was commuted to a year in the county jail.

James P. Bickell, 31, pleaded guilty to a charge of issuing a check without funds in the bank. He was placed on probation for 12 months and judgment was withheld.

All cases were before Judge Theron Ward.

Martin Larson appeared before Judge James Cunningham and pleaded guilty to a charge of burglarizing McVey's Inc. on Aug. 29. He was sentenced to 15 years in prison. Mr. Larson has been released from the Idaho prison only four days before he was arrested by city police and charged with entering McVey's.

Hearings Are Delayed On Idaho Power Rate Increase

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has decided to delay hearings on a proposed Idaho Power Co. rate increase until the first of the year. The PUC will hold public hearings into the matter, with the first hearing set at 9:30 a.m. Oct. 20 at the Capitol Building in Boise. At this time, Idaho Power's direct evidence will be admitted and heard.

People who want to formally intervene in the matter may cross-examine witnesses and present evidence, according to Ralph Wickberg, president of the PUC.

Petitions to appear and intervene must be submitted to the commission before Oct. 6, and a copy of the petition must be served to attorneys for Idaho Power, he said.

Meet Slated

On Aug. 13 the Idaho Power Co. filed an application with the PUC asking for an increase in rates to raise $6,672,460 before taxes. This would be a seven per cent increase for power users throughout the state.

In its application, the company proposed the rates become effective after Oct. 15.

The commission reviewed the application, and Saturday informed the Times-News that hearings would be held and the proposed rate increase would be delayed until Jan. 1, 1970, unless otherwise changed by the commission.

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County Commissioners will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the county building which applies to the 1969 assessment valuations, and will approve, or disapprove the levies set by other governing units in the county—cities, highway districts, school district, cemetery districts and such.

Mrs. Lucille L. Kinsey, auditor, clerk, states the levies this year will be listed in dollars and cents instead of in mills.

SHOSHONE — School Board members will meet at 8 p.m. Monday at the high school building.

ISU To Teach 'Blacks'

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State University will initiate the first "black studies" program at a collegiate level in the state of Idaho with the fall semester, according to college President Dr. William E. Davis.

Dr. Davis told the State Board of Education, meeting in Boise, that the program "was not added because of agitation but rather it is the result of cooperation of student groups on the campus."

He said, "I think it will be an outstanding course. We have been working on the details almost a year."

In other matters, Davis pointed out to the board that under the proposed rate increase asked by Idaho Power Company, it would amount to an increase of approximately $50,000 at ISU.

He said, however, "but I guess there isn't much we can do about it."

Also, Dr. John Barnes, president of Boise State College, asked the board for approval of two graduate courses to start in the fall semester.

The request was deferred by the board with a request that it be taken up by the newly formed graduate council made up of the presidents of all institutions of higher learning in Idaho for the board's recommendation.

The two courses were "theories and techniques for guidance and counseling" and "developmental reading methods."

Barnes said that it looks as though the courses will be included in the fall but there may be a possible two-week delay because of working out the details with the graduate council.

Police Academy Chief Hired By State

BOISE (UPI) — The Law Enforcement Planning Commission has hired a full-time director for the state police academy and a juvenile delinquency prevention and control officer.

Both of the men are from Oregon.

The commission hired Thomas McDowell, Portland and Beaverton, at a salary of $11,900 to head the training academy to go into operation at Idaho State University in Pocatello in January, 1970.

McDowell will begin his duties in Boise under the law enforcement commission and then transfer, at a later date, to Pocatello.

He has a masters degree in police administration from Washington State University and has been working with the sheriff's office in Washington County at Hillsboro, Ore.

McDowell's salary will be paid on the basis of 75 percent from the law enforcement commission and 25 per cent from federal funds.

"We're shooting for a certification program, a commission Director Dave DeHlin said in introducing McDowell.

"When they pass the course they (the law enforcement officers) will be certified."

McDowell will be the first full-time law enforcement teacher in the state for the academy — upgraded by the past session of the legislature.

Hired as juvenile delinquency and prevention and control officer was Samuel L. Smith, Coeur d'Alene, who will receive $992 a month for his duties.

Smith, 55, will help the juvenile program in the state since under the new court reform package passed by the legislature juvenile probation officers were eliminated.

A graduate of Oregon State University, Smith has concentrated his duties in the fields of psychology and sociology.

He has also taught in Salt Lake City and was a playground director for the Salt Lake City Department of Recreation.

Reagan Vetoes 70 Measures Passed By California Session

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed on moral grounds a bill legalizing the sale of prophylactics to unmarried persons under 18 years old.

The measure was among 70 bills reported rejected by the Governor as he cleared his desk of 1969 regular session legislation.

Other major legislation rejected by the governor included bills overhauling the management of the fiscally troubled California Exposition, scrapping the procedure for licensing of school teachers, increasing state scholarships and granting California retirement credit to out-of-state teachers.

He vetoed and pared down about $150 million from hundreds of pieces of legislation in a veto message. Reagan told the legislature he recognized the high incidence of venereal disease among California youngsters.

"However, I seriously question whether the unlimited availability of prophylactics will prove an immediately effective remedy for this moral issue rampant in this state. It outweighs whatever medical advantages which might result from its approval."

He vetoed the bill permitting California teachers to count up to three years of out-of-state teaching credit toward retirement benefits would cost the state an estimated $91 million in the next 40 years.

"The benefits proposed in this bill accrued from service outside the State of California, and the corresponding benefit was to the residents of those states," he said. "Therefore, I cannot ask the taxpayers of California to assume their cost."

He vetoed similar legislation two years ago, up to $7,000 teachers in California would have been affected.

Cattle Killed

SHOSHONE — A cow and two calves were killed when struck by a 1950 Ford driven by Michael L. Partin, Route 1, Twin Falls, at 2:20 a.m. Friday night and one-half mile northeast of Richfield, according to Deputy Sheriff Martin Whitesell.

Owner of the animals has not yet been determined, the deputy stated. Partin was not injured but his car was demolished.

Reagan Signs California Divorce Bill Aimed At Smoothing Marital Problems

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan signed the first major California divorce reform law in nearly a century Saturday, making it easier and quicker to end an unhappy marriage.

"I believe it is a step towards removing the acrimony and bitterness between a couple that is harmful not only to their children but also to society as a whole," said Reagan, once-divorced himself.

It becomes effective Jan. 1, but any divorce complaint filed this year that goes to trial in 1970 will also be subject to the new law.

The governor said in a statement that divorce is a "tragic thing" that could not be eliminated through legislation, although the reform measure "will do much to remove the sideshow elements of many divorce cases."

The overhaul discards such traditional grounds for divorce as mental cruelty, adultery and desertion and substitutes just irreconcilable differences and incurable insanity.

Irreconcilable differences will serve as the catch-all for divorcing when a marriage has reached a hopeless impasse. It also will eliminate the need to prove fault on the part of one spouse before a divorce can be granted.

"The measures" co-sponsors, Sen. Donald L. Grunsky, R-Watsonville, and Assemblyman James Hayes, R-Long Beach, had a law that with no fault charged the bitterness in divorce proceedings will be abolished.

Community property, which historically has been the chief battleground when a marriage breaks up, will be split equally. That provision could be a boon to men.

Courts have given women most of the community property when a divorce is granted to them on grounds their husbands were cruel or committed adultery.

Hunting Signs Painted North Of Shoshone

SHOSHONE — Metal signs measuring four by eight feet have been painted in the hunting areas north of Shoshone, according to Larry Keenan, game conservationist.

The signs which read "Operation Respect," have been made by the organization consisting of landholders, the Fish and Game Department and hunters.

Hunters are to ask permission to hunt. An "Operation Respect" patch can be bought from license vendors and hunters wearing such a patch or badge are automatically judged to be responsible hunters by the ranchers.

Fugitive Fails To Greet FBI

DETROIT (UPI) — Robert F. Williams, the fugitive revolutionary who was to arrive in Detroit after eight years of exile, and sleep into the arms of the FBI, failed to appear Saturday.

FBI agents climbed aboard the nonstop TWA plane from London and returned shaking their heads. They told newsmen, "He's not here."

Approximately 200 members of the black nationalist Republic of New Africa, most of them in gaily colored African robes, and many carrying the green, red and black flag of the RWA were obviously disappointed that the president of the paper nation did not show up.

Planning Group Opposes Measure To Control Guns

By PAUL M. QUINN

BOISE (UPI) — The Law Enforcement Planning Commission has gone on record against an apparent new attempt at federal gun control legislation and voted to ask the Idaho congressional delegation to oppose it.

Commission Director David Dehlin said that Sen. Jacob Javits "is making a new approach on gun control laws."

Under the proposal, an attempt would be made to put such legislation into effect by making receipt of 50 per cent of a state's allocation of funds under the Safe Streets Act conditional upon state adoption of legislation requiring registration of guns.

The commission was unanimous in opposing the proposal. The commission also reviewed an extensive survey being undertaken on jails, both on the city and county level, across the entire state.

"It's amazing how filthy some of the jails are," Atty. Gen. Robert Robson said. "There are quarters in some towns that you wouldn't put a dog in."

He cited the Blackfoot jail as one of the poorer ones in the state.

Robson said that local law officers were having trouble getting personnel and proper facilities for keeping prisoners.

The jail survey includes such questions as: When was the jail built? How much space is available? What are the types of cells? How long since the last inspection and how many maximum security areas are available.

Dehlin said that almost without exception local law officials have complained not only about deplorable building situations but also about the fact that many do not have personnel to watch a jail after 5 p. m.

"What would happen if there was a fire?" he asked.

The extensive survey will also include pictures of many of the facilities.

Robson said one of the typical problems was in the handling of female prisoners. He said most jails do not have a matron to take care of them.

The attorney general, chairman of the commission, said there have been instances where female prisoners become pregnant while incarcerated.

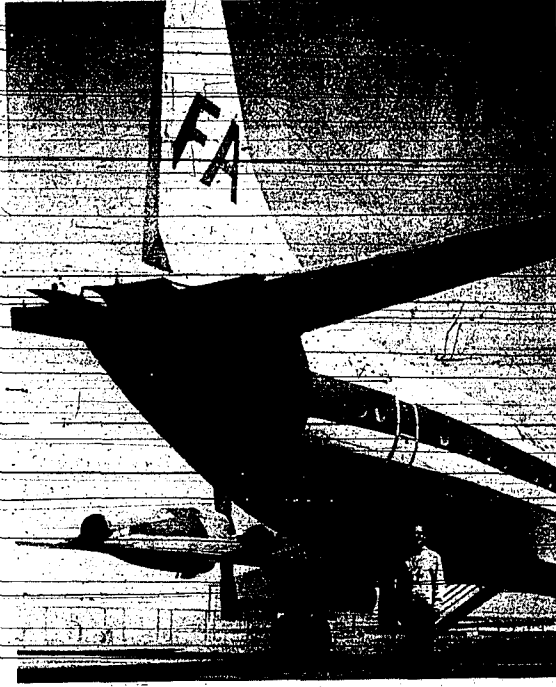

State Director of Corrections Raymond May, also a member of the commission, said throwing juveniles into jail with felons is "just adding to the cesspool."

The commission also voted to apply for $150,000 of an estimated $600,000 which the state will receive for law enforcement planning in 1970.

Since the state training academy will not be in operation until January, Idaho plans to transfer training funds into communications funds and then in 1970 training will be listed as the top priority.

The commission was also formed that of $48,880 worth of federal funds for planning, some $120,522 has been disbursed.

Some $27,067 was used for salaries so far this year and $10,475 went to consultants.

BIG! THAT'S THE ONLY way this airplane can be described. And, true to the old saying, "a picture is worth a thousand words." Here is a picture of an American Electra airplane with Twin Falls City-County Airport Manager Harry Merrick standing by to give an indication of the size. It landed at Joslin Field Monday and left Thursday. Aboard were 70 passengers, employees of the California Gas Co. from Los Angeles, who were given a company-sponsored vacation. This plane, a Lockheed Electra, has a takeoff weight of 116,000 pounds. This compares with the takeoff weight of 109,000 pounds for the DC-8 jets Air West will soon be bringing to Twin Falls. How does the local airport handle such large planes? "No problem," Mr. Merrick said.

Scientists Say Social Protest Songs Fail To Inspire Youths To Violence

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Popular critics may be full of sex, sin and drugs, but all those teenagers with transistor radios aren't hearing the words.

This conclusion, announced at the American Sociological Association convention, clashes with past warnings of critics who fear a whole generation is being subjected by rock and roll to their parents can't understand.

The conclusion was reached by John P. Robinson and Paul M. Hirsch of the University of Michigan on the basis of a survey of 70 high school students in Detroit and Grand Rapids, Mich.

The critics were correct, said the sociologists, in perceiving that the popularity of popular songs among teenagers is "nearly total. Less than one per cent of the students said they 'don't like' current hits."

But they said the critics were wrong, thinking the teenagers were really absorbing the messages concerning war, degrading the free enterprise system, in-into groups whose cars automatically tuned in their favorites, and tuned out other selections played by the same radio station.

U.S. Will Issue Regulations For Railroad Equipment

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)—The first federal regulations for railroad equipment and roadbeds will be recommended "very soon" by the Department of Transportation, Iowa Gov. Robert D. Ray said Thursday. Ray said he was told of the development by Transportation Secretary John Volpe at the National Governors' Conference in Colorado Springs, Colo. Ray said roadbeds, axles, wheels and other railroad equipment "have not been covered before—and apparently—have been the cause of some of the accidents we've had here in Iowa." The government has been upset ever since the shipment of 15 train cars of phosgene gas through Iowa in 1964. This year, Ray said, there have been 19 accidents on the route. In Iowa used for the gas shipment. Ray said the law apparently brought the problem to the attention of Department of Transportation officials. The regulations, Ray said, will prevent accidents and at least go a long way to insure safety. Besides making the shipment of toxic gas more safe, Ray said, the regulations would contribute to the largest cause of rail safety in general. Ray also said that the Chicago & North Western Railway has told him it does not want to be involved in future gas shipments, two of which still apparently are scheduled to move through Iowa. But the C&NW and other railroads operating in Iowa have agreed to take special safety precautions if they are called on to transport dangerous cargoes in an accident, and an extra car is carrying a decontaminator to neutralize the gas "in case anything should happen."

Hazards In Toys Trigger Federal Act

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress is near setting up procedures for outlawing such hazardous children's toys as "rockets and blowguns." They exposed children to burns, cuts, strangulation, suffocation, aspiration and electric shock, the National Commission on Product Safety had said in recommending the legislation. The House voted 327 to 0 Thursday to amend the hazardous substances act to include toys containing electrical, mechanical or thermal hazards. The bill was sent to the Senate, which has passed a similar measure. The bill would authorize the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to determine whether a toy was hazardous and to ban its sale in interstate commerce after a hearing. A toy that posed an "imminent hazard" could be banned even before a hearing was held. The commission held public hearings last year and found 40% not covered by law contained "shaky or protruding edges, excessive heat and accessibility of electrical connections."

Memorial Library Costs Skyrocket

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A James Madison Memorial Library building—Congress proposed to build for $75 million in 1965 now is estimated to cost $90 million. So congressional leaders are asking money to get the work started now before the price climbs even higher. As for the long-delayed extension of the west front of the Capitol, the estimated cost has jumped from $18 million to $45 million in about the same length of time. They want to go ahead with that, too, mostly because they fear the old walls may collapse.

Moon Landing Lights Fire Under Toymakers Of U.S.

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI)—Moon merchandise, inspired by America's space program and the recent Apollo 11 moonshot, is beginning to appear in toy, book, game, record, and coin stores across the nation.

Space novelties have been on the market for some 10 years but sales never really got off the ground. Manufacturers, especially toymakers, were baffled by the public's resistance to space items. It took the massive television coverage of man's first landing on the moon in July to reverse the market trend.

"It's all systems go now," said Lionel Weintraub, president of Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc. "The moon trip of Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins has practically turned the toy industry into a branch of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. There'll be plenty of rocketry under the Christmas tree this year."

Toy industry theorists believe that youngsters found space items too impersonal before television involved them emotionally with the Apollo 11 astronauts. New toys place heavy emphasis on the human aspect of the space age. Plastic astronauts togged out in space suits bear the names of Billy Blastoff, Johnny and Jane Apollo, and Major Malt Mason. They are provided with a variety of space vehicles based on NASA prototypes—modules, crawlers and tractors—with power limbs.

F. A. O. Schwarz, New York's alleged toy store, reports that an unsophisticated Snoopy dog doll dressed up like an astronaut is its best-seller. It is made in Hong Kong and retails for $4. Hong Kong and Japan are among the biggest manufacturers of astronaut dolls.

One of the most realistic space items is a Sabre V rocket model almost four feet long, one of 44 rocket model kits manufactured by Estes Industries in Colorado. An electronically ignited powder charge blasts the toy 500 feet up and three parachutes bring the Apollo capsule and two inter stages back to earth.

There seems to be something for everybody in the moonshot market. Stamp collectors are getting a commemorative 10-cent airmail issue bearing the legend "The First Man on the Moon" next Tuesday. A 70-foot rest of NASA's official film of the moon conquest, available for home viewing, is being sold commercially for as little as $5. and American Airlines is showing it on its cross-country flight.

Record collectors can choose among half a dozen $5 album recordings of the astronaut's flight conversations accompanied by commentary by astronauts from previous probes.

Staubach And Cowboys Defeat New York 25-9

By ED FITE
UPI Sports Writer

DALLAS (UPI)—A Rookie quarterback Roger Staubach passed for good with four touchdowns and a pass for another Saturday night to rally the Dallas Cowboys to a 25-9 victory over the Super Bowl champion New York Jets.

The 22-year-old, one-time Navy man Trophy winner from New York rushed to the rescue late in the first half after the Joe Namath Jets had forced a 9-3 lead on 35 and 15-yard field goals by Jim Turner.

Staubach was pressed into service and the Cowboys started Craig Morton suffered a dislocated left finger on his throwing hand.

Election Set

Two Pitch Yanks Over Indians 1-0

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Stan Bahnsen and Jack Aker combined on a three-hitter and Roy White singled home Gene Michael in the first inning Saturday night to give the New York Yankees a 1-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Bahnsen, who lost eight of his first nine decisions this year, picked up his ninth victory against 13 losses. Aker replaced Bahnsen with runners on first and third and one out in the ninth inning and got Tony Horowitz to strike out to end the game.

Michael, who doubled with one out in the first and scored the only run of the game, was killed-off by a Cleveland rally in the fourth. With runners on second and third and one out, Kent Harrison lined a smash toward leftfield but Michael made a leaping one-handed catch and doubled Horton off second.

Mike Paul, who has yet to pitch a complete game in the major leagues, went eight innings for Cleveland before being relieved by a pinch-hitter.

Paul gave up four hits, struck out two and walked two in losing his ninth game against five victories.

Foy Bats Royals Past Seattle 6-2

SEATTLE (UPI)—Joe Foy drove in two runs with a home run and touched off a four-run fourth-inning rally with a double to back the seven-hit pitching of Whitey Burger Saturday night and lead the Kansas City Royals to a 6-2 victory over the Seattle Pilots.

Foy, who pitched his ninth homer of the season in the seventh inning by Scott Norrhey.

In the fourth, Foy opened with his double and scored on the opening play and recovered on a three-yard rollout from White early in the second quarter, and a five-yard White to Phil McIntyre pass in the third quarter.

Angels Dump White Sox On Cowan-Hit

ANAHEIM (UPI)—Billy Cowan smashed his third home run of the season to lead off the bottom of the 12th inning and give the California Angels a 1-0 victory Saturday night over the Chicago White Sox.

Cowan, who had entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the 10th inning, connected on his second pitch offered to him by lower Wilbur Wood and sent it far over the left field barrier.

The round tripper "beat" after the "Angels" had stranded 15 men, including 11 from the eighth inning on.

Cowan's blast gave ancient Hoyt Wilhelm, who pitched the 12th inning, his fifth victory against seven losses. Wood, who came out in the 10th and allowed only the one hit, is now 8-10.

Sisk, Padres Drop Sliding Dodgers 3-1

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The San Diego Padres, with Tommie Sisk turning a brilliant relief appearance for the 22nd time, beat the slumping Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 Saturday night for the third straight time.

The loss, coupled with San Francisco and Cincinnati who showed the Dodgers 2-2 games off the pace, in the National League's Western Division.

Don Sutton was the victim of the Padres, taking his 14th loss against 15 wins. It was his third defeat in a row.

Sisk, who had an 0-10 record, started the night out great for the win. He stopped the Dodgers before hitting in the eighth inning and needing help from Bill McCoy.

Packers Rally To Overhaul Pittsburgh

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Travis Williams, showing signs of his sensational rookie season, led the Packers to a 21-17 quarter touchdown to lead Green Bay to a 31-10 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday night.

The round tripper "beat" after the "Angels" had stranded 15 men, including 11 from the eighth inning on.

Cowan's blast gave ancient Hoyt Wilhelm, who pitched the 12th inning, his fifth victory against seven losses. Wood, who came out in the 10th and allowed only the one hit, is now 8-10.

Rams, 50-20

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Rams overwhelmed the Buffalo Bills, 50-20, Sunday night before 60,000 fans, many of whom came out to see O. J. Simpson make his pro debut on his old playing grounds.

Birmingham, Ala. (UPI)—

Quarterback Bob Griese's pinpoint passing directed the 40-14 victory of the Miami Dolphins to a 13-0 upset of the Boston Patriots in an American Football League exhibition football game Saturday night.

Completing nine passes in a string at one point, Griese marched the previously winless Dolphins to within kicking range of Miami, which had dropped five previous exhibition games.

Patience went 23 with the pass.

The game's only touchdown came in the middle of Griese's pass completion. The former Purdue great got the ball when Boston's Jim Whalen fumbled a pass from Kim

Boston Raps Solons For 9-5 Victory

BOSTON (UPI)—Carl Yastrzemski and Syd O'Brien gave the Boston Red Sox to a 9-5 victory over the Washington Senators.

Yastrzemski hit a two-run, 42-foot homer, his 35th and added a single and a double before being lifted after five innings. O'Brien had a single, triple and two-run homer, his eighth, as the Red Sox pounded six Washington pitchers for 13 hits.

Steve Stange gained credit for his sixth win, although he was driven out in the seventh and it took the combined efforts of Jose Santiago, Bill Landis and Samy Siebert to stop him.

The Red Sox pounced on losing Washington starter Joe Coleman for four runs in the first. Alvin Anderson walked, Yastrzemski homered, Reg Smith and Rico Petreolli doubled and Tony Conigliaro singled for two runs.

O'Brien's homer came after a walk to Tom Satriano in the second and his triple scored Smith who had singled in the fifth.

Pirates Rip 19 Hits, Top Chicago 13-4

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Pirates scored six runs in the third inning on two doubles and six singles and erupted in a 19-hit onslaught that routed the Chicago Cubs 13-4 Saturday.

The loss, coupled with the New York Mets' 3-0 victory over Philadelphia, cut Chicago's lead over New York in the Eastern Division to 3 1/2 games.

All the Pittsburgh starters except for pitcher Bob Veale got at least one hit. Carl Taylor led the barrage with four singles.

Catcher, Manny Sanguillen and first baseman Al Oliver doubled in Pittsburgh's third inning, and Taylor, Fred Patek, Marty Alm, Gene Alley, Roberto Clement and Oliver singled, as 10 men went to the plate.

Lewiston Spills

LEWISTON, Mont. (UPI)—Haliback Rick Finney took a pitchout from quarterback Greg White and raced 61 yards for a Lewiston touchdown on the opening play of the game.

The Bengals defeated Missoula Sentinel, 20-14, Saturday afternoon in an interstate non-conference football game.

The White-to-Finney tumbling pitchout confused the Spartan defense all afternoon.

Lewiston's other scores came from White early in the second quarter, and a five-yard White to Phil McIntyre pass in the third quarter.

China Plans Fete For Little Champs

TAIPEI (UPI)—Nationalist China will give a hero's welcome Sunday to the 14 boys who won the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., last month.

The young Chinese baseball players, all under 12 years of age, will be presented flowers by 5,000 Chinese representatives when they arrive at the Taipei Airport at noon.

Their parents, brothers, sisters, schoolmates, sports leaders, school officials, and government officials—expected to number more than 1,000—will greet them at the airport. A parade will follow.

A dinner party will be held for them in the evening by the association of civic organizations of the nation.

Hammond on the Dolphin 40

ANDY EDMUNDS picked it up in the middle of the game when Stan Mitchell, Jack Cheney and Jim Whalen combined with Mitchell's running brought the ball from their own 40 to the Boston 22 where Krusey set up his first field goal from 20 yards out.

An interception by Dick Anderson at the Boston 29 gave the Dolphins their other field goal. After an incomplete pass, Griese scrambled for 10 yards to the 15 and passed to place the ball at the two with only seconds remaining. Krusey hit his nine-yarder from there.

Dietrich Outlasts Rimrock 8-6

DIETRICH.—Russen McCrae forced a two-point conversion in a 34-yard touchdown pass to another Coach Y. McNease's talented sophomore, flanker Terry Moreland. Moreland also pulled down several other passes during the scrimmage.

The best part of the Vandal running game was displayed by sophomores Frank Doctor and Henry Boomer. Both are shifty runners for their size—over 200 pounds each—and in addition, can blast for that extra yard or two when boxed in.

Defensively, the best performance of the day was turned in by former NCAA high jumper champ Steve Brown, who turned out our collegiate football stars Saturday for the first time last spring. Brown drew the assignment of covering Hendren

Hendren And 4 Sophs Shine In Idaho Scrimmage

MOSCOW (UPI)—University of Idaho superstar Jerry Hendren caught six passes for 157 yards and two touchdowns Saturday as the white team downed the blue 29-13 during the annual press day football scrimmage.

Hendren's performance was about the only bright spot ofensively among the veterans, who seemed lethargic most of an afternoon, with missed blocking assignments seemingly the order of the day.

Offensively, four sophomores were impressive—and should force the veterans to work for their spots as the season goes along.

John Hathaway, who has been working behind Steve Olson and Mitch Lansdel at quarterback, showed them the way as he mimed up his plays and passed to the outside something the others had not done. Guiding the white team to the last touchdown of the day.

He said the only weak spot the Vandals have is at offensive guard.

"We have two good ones but no one to back them up," McNease said. "If one gets hurt, we're in trouble."

Hendren And 4 Sophs Shine In Idaho Scrimmage

MOSCOW (UPI)—University of Idaho superstar Jerry Hendren caught six passes for 157 yards and two touchdowns Saturday as the white team downed the blue 29-13 during the annual press day football scrimmage.

Hendren's performance was about the only bright spot ofensively among the veterans, who seemed lethargic most of an afternoon, with missed blocking assignments seemingly the order of the day.

Offensively, four sophomores were impressive—and should force the veterans to work for their spots as the season goes along.

John Hathaway, who has been working behind Steve Olson and Mitch Lansdel at quarterback, showed them the way as he mimed up his plays and passed to the outside something the others had not done. Guiding the white team to the last touchdown of the day.

He said the only weak spot the Vandals have is at offensive guard.

"We have two good ones but no one to back them up," McNease said. "If one gets hurt, we're in trouble."

By PAUL BUKER
Times-News Sports Writer

Devils Strike Early, Stave Off Kimberly

MURTAUGH—The Murtaugh Red Devils piled up a 20-0 first-half lead, then outlasted the Kimberly Bulldogs for a 28-22 decision Friday night. Murtaugh broke on top early when Doug Stanger scored on a 20-yard rollout. Minutes later Stanger's touchdown capped the four-yard line and Greg Stanger ran the two-point conversion across. In the half, Doug Stanger led the zone for six more points in a 15-yard pass play.

Mike Erickson got Kimberly going in the third period when he kicked a 20-yard field goal and a 45-yard field goal. He passed to Nelson for the two-point conversion.

Midway through the third period, Kimoning went 50 yards for the touchdown and Komeley got the conversion. The Bulldogs had one late chance, blocking a punt that gave them possession, at the 28-yard line, but they couldn't pull the win out.

Oakley Stuns Wood River By 12-6 Tally

OAKLEY—The Oakley Hornet, after battling to stave off the Wolverines through most of the first half, turned to their passing game for two to a 12-6 win and a 12-6 victory over Wood River Friday afternoon.

Wood River, playing without some key men sidelined by injuries, took the opening kickoff and drove to the end zone before being stopped. Oakley spent most of the time trying to kick out of trouble after that.

Wood River converted late in the second quarter when Jim Brown intercepted a pass and went 10 yards to score.

Early in the third quarter, Keith Adams hit Kim Martindale with a short pass and Martindale sailed 58 yards to tie the game. The same play scored another touchdown early in the fourth quarter, but a clipping penalty nullified it although Oakley had the ball at Wood River's 45.

After Wood River punted out of that hole, Oakley ran one play, then went to Mike Goring for 43 yards and the decisive points with 1:30 left in the game.

Carey Tips Camas County By 26-18

FAIRFIELD—Carey scored three times in the second quarter and punched across an insurance touchdown late in the game Friday afternoon to take a 26-18 decision from the Camas County Panthers.

The Panthers jumped out to a quick 12-0 lead after a quarter when Ashmed climaxed a drive early in the game with two-yard punts and Cleator tallied later in the period on a 12-yard run. Both extra-point attempts failed.

Carey stormed back in the second quarter scoring from 10 yards out, narrowing the margin to 12-0, then using a 20-yard pass to split end Briggs and a two-point run to tie the game at 12-12. The Panthers scored again late in the frame when a lineman pounced on a blocked punt in the end zone.

Camas clicked in a pass play from Glester to Bauscher with a 10-yard pass in the third quarter after a blocked punt from the second-half kickoff.

But Carey put the game away on a 15-yard scoring run, after the coverage failed.

ing in a confrontation usually reserved for Veteran's Day. The Spartans, who only went to the air five times in the first half, in the last seconds of the game got something on the board in a hurry, raked up 250 yards on the ground in the first half. On the 23rd Rogers topped for a fantastic 100-yard drive.

Included in Rogers' performance were runs of 35 and 38 yards, along with a 25-yard run which was called back. Stimpson unleashed runs of 11, 24 and 15 yards, in addition to the 20-yard punt pass. The quarterback John Powell in the second quarter.

Although the Minico crew looked unstoppable in the first half, the second half saw Burley control the ball and get nowhere, while the Spartans got it back several times. Burley recoveries but couldn't cash in because of several long-yardage penalties.

Minico began the game by marching from its own 28 to the Bobcat 25-yard stripe, where Rogers' sweep around end took the ball to the 10-yard line. Two plays later the Spartans' quick-kicked Burley back to its own 11.

In the next three plays, Burley kicked a 21-yard punt from a 2 and 15 by halfback Tom Shults, who was the only spark for the Bobcats all night, and the offense got a 10-yard punt. Kerbs. This came early in the game and for the rest of the half the Bobcats' yardage read as 14 yards, so completely were they contained.

Minico began its first scoring march on its 32 with Stimpson, Rogers, and Rich Sheen taking the running lead. With 32 seconds left in the opening period, Rogers swept around the right end for the touchdown. Burley's Steve Cole blocked the point-after attempt.

With just 15 seconds gone in the second quarter, Charles Cresson picked off a Doug Manning pass at his 40 and took it to the Bobcats' 15. Three plays later and a penalty, Stimpson tallied up the middle from 11 yards out and a perfect kick made it 13-0.

On the ensuing kickoff, Mike Kueper twisted for 23 yards but was held short by a bunch of hits, which left the ball on punting on the loose ball at the Burley 45. Minico drove down to the 18, was pushed back several yards, but then drove out for a perfect down-and-out pattern with Stimpson on the receiving end for the touchdown from Powell at 5:55 of the second quarter. Now behind 20-0, Burley once again had to cough up the ball. This time with about five minutes left, Minico started on its own 40 and took just two plays to score again. The most spectacular run of the night came on the Bobcats' scoring play, which came in the third quarter when the Bobcats' all break on the Bobcats' 48-yard line on a third and six play. Quarterback Doug Manning had to pass, was intercepted once, squirreled out, and finally lobbed a desperation pass to Shults, who was standing about 20 yards in front of Manning. Shults headed for the sideline at mid-field, then cut to the middle where he was met by three defenders. He somehow escaped and cut for the far sideline, then ripped up the middle to finish a 53-yard scoring jaunt, which actually covered about 75 or 80 yards.

was on a victory string of 28 straight matches which started in Wimbledon where he had beaten Ashe in the semifinals. Laver and Ashe twice exchanged service breaks in the first set. Laver broke in the leading 6-6, 6-3 and the third set 6-1, 2-1.

The 18th 6-foot-1 American from Gum Springs, Va. battled the top-seeded Laver throughout the third set and the 24th game was ordered started at 7:20 p.m. with Ashe leading 4-2. Laver served out at love and they will resume play at that point Sunday.

In the third set, there had been only one set point, that for Ashe in the 18th game.

Laver's fellow Australian, John Newcombe, lost to Arthur Ashe in the first round. Newcombe completed a comeback from a two-set deficit against Stolle. Their match had been halted by darkness at 11 a.m. in the first set. Friday, but Newcombe took only 15 minutes to wrap up the match—7-9, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 13-11.

Roche defeated Duchholz 6-1, 6-6, 6-7, 6-0. Roche played in the tournament, interrupting Ashe and Laver for 47 minutes in the first set and delaying play for two hours and 26 minutes earlier in the day. The downpour forced postponement of play on both Wednesday and Thursday.

Laver was seeking an unprecedented second grand slam of the world's four major titles as well as the $100,000 first prize money in the $137,000 event. He man's call.

“We’d build too, if interest rates weren’t so blamed high.”

Lloyd and Char talked about that new house forever. A bedroom for each of the kids, private bath for Mom and Dad. And a big limestone fireplace.

But the best laid plans... First, Gramps got sick. Eighteen months and $5500 later he was gone. So was the special building fund they'd hoarded. Not that they regretted spending it; everybody knows that.

They were in the mood again a couple years later. Money, tight. "Walt awhile," Lloyd said.

The last straw fell at a meeting of the church's building committee. The architect said building costs went up 6.6% in 1967, 8.4% in 1968. "And look for an increase of 10% in '69."

By the time Lloyd got home, his mind was set. He reckoned that three years of waiting had cost him $5,000 in additional building costs.

And that's all there was to it. Except to get a new quote from the builder.

And borrow the money from the Land Bank.

Because, the kids are still home now. In 10 years building costs might be lower. Money may be cheaper. Who knows? But the children will have grown up and moved away.

Nobody—least of all the Land Bank—likes high interest. But Land Bank's exceptional prepayment privilege gives Lloyd and Char:

All possible options, if interest rates decline.

They can pay off all or part of their loan in advance—without penalty. For example, they can take advantage of good crop years. Or if another lender offers a better rate sometime, they can pay off the Land Bank. Land Bank might even rewrite the loan, if rates go down, to save the borrower's money.

The Land Bank people are specialists: the largest source of long-term agricultural credit in the Northwest. Credit at lowest possible cost.

And Char is becoming a home decorating specialist. You ought to see the orange carpeting she picked out this morning.

Faces At The Fair

Last week some 1,500 animals and birds gathered at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds to watch in excess of 52,000 people walk past their pens, cages and stalls.

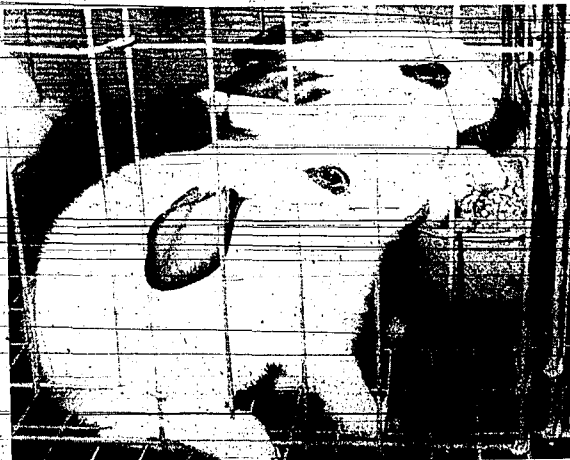

Most of the animals spent about five days there with little else to do but judge the procession of humans that passed in review.

Most of the animals were there on business — to compete for blue ribbons and special awards. Many have been there several years in a row and are no doubt becoming quite expert at judging some of the better qualities of the several thousand people they see in a day. As the "people" who "pass" admission to the fairgrounds stare at the animals they may have noticed the animals are staring back.

Seldom do they have an opportunity to express their views and unless you have a good imagination or a touch of extrasensory perception you may never know what they thought of you.

But if you looked closely at the "faces" of some of the many animals and fowl the expressions may have pretty well told the story.

Library Page Says It With Art

TAKING A SUGGESTION from her own poster, Jan Hutchings, Twin Falls Public Library page leafs through a heavy book at the local library. During the summer she has designed and displayed more than 50 large wall posters using everything from modern art to cartoons to get her point across to library patrons.

When the Twin Falls Public Library selected summer leaflets in the form of pages to handle non-technical jobs around the library, they gained a few bonuses in the way of extra talent. An example was Jan Hutchings, a 1969 Twin Falls high school graduate who will enroll in the College of Southern Idaho this fall.

During the summer she has put her art talent to work for the library, and when not putting books on the shelves for a specific item of research material, has designed and completed more than 50 wall posters. Designed to call attention to everything from the county fair to the summer reading program and back-to-school activities, the posters have been displaying comment throughout the summer from library patrons.

The 18-year-old student, who didn't leave any room in her college schedule for 2 1/2 classes, says she hasn't made up her mind about a career, but it might be in art.

Her library posters included several for the children's department, some covering specific new books, some on evening science and other special departments of the library.

Beth Dickson, adult librarian, said her talent enabled the library to have its own art gallery throughout the summer.

Money Travels

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI)—Personnel at Syracuse Traffic Court are looking for change for 350 piasters and five dong.

The currency arrived by mail recently from Burton Manning, stationed with the U.S. Army in Saigon, in payment of a $3 parking ticket he received while on leave.

If the court can find a bank to exchange the Vietnamese money, the city will receive about 100 piasters more than the fine based on the current exchange rate.

The Money Box

BY FRANK SCHELL

When an inspector rejects coins produced from a specific row of tooling, the offending tools can be replaced during the short period when the machine is inactivated with a new coil of metal. Obverse punches are changed quickly by replacing a one-third section of the roll containing the die. Reverse punches are changed individually.

Following inspection, the coins are processed through an edge rolling machine. In this machine the coins move along a track where wire brushes remove any burrs that might have formed. The track leads the coins into a groove of diminishing size between a spinning wheel and a stationary block. Here the edges are rounded and polished their edges.

The new coin rolling machine is compact, requiring floor space only 25 by 35 feet, with overhead clearance of 10 feet. These dimensions include aisle and trucking space. The coin rolling machine will produce approximately 10,000 coins per minute. This compares to about 600 per minute produced by the present conventional four-strike press.

This column thought that its readers would be interested in the quoted news story. Records indicate that the first year coinage of our mint when first established, totaled 144,125 coins.

The new mint is the most modern and undoubtedly the most efficient plant in the world and will be able to produce one million coins an hour, or 300 every second, when it is placed into full operation early next year. The coin machine was produced by General Motors manufacturing section in Warren, Mich.

Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

Food From Home Served In Vietnam Mess Halls

By HELEN GIBSON

15,630,000 eggs stream monthly straight from the American north via refrigerated ship onto Army mess hall tables throughout Vietnam. This does not even include the five northern provinces, where the Navy takes charge of feeding all troops.

And on the hot tarmac of some little airstrip in the boonies, passengers might wait until crates of carefully packed iceberg lettuce are hauled off the cargo plane. Every month over 800,000 pounds of Army lettuce careen across the Pacific in specially chilled Sea-Land vans.

Although troops in the field are certainly not feeding off steak and salads every night, they do get a hot meal, daily, where conditions permit. The big exception seems to be for Marines in northern Viet, Corps, helicopters plus a reputation for toughness keeps these troops on a diet of combat "C" rations long past the time others would be eating hot chow.

In contrast, the choppers of the 1st Air Cavalry Division often receive two meals a day. The chow of Viet Cong territory. In thermos containers shaped like five-gallon Jerry cans, arriving from a hospital and mess hall, chilled fruit salad will come swooping into some lonely company position blown out of heavy jungle.

The units with the tank-like armored personnel carriers (APCs) are even better off. Having along the odd case of frozen beef stew, they will provide the same meal on the same day every month.

ELABORATE TESTING EQUIPMENT which George Carter assembled from kits or acquired through surplus purchases, helped him in building and perfecting the computer project. Second place in the regional Science Fair was good enough to win young Carter a week long cruise with the U.S. Navy and a look at naval science programs.

Science Fair Project Earns Navy Cruise And Tour For Young Twin Falls Student

A Twin Falls youth who has been building scientific and electronic projects since grade school days, has just completed a tour of U.S. Navy facilities in the San Diego, Calif. area.

George Carter, son of Dr. and Mrs. John N. Carter, 681 Sunrise Blvd., was one of 10 young men and women who were guests of the Secretary of the Navy during the week of Aug. 17-25.

He was winner of the Navy Science Fair award at the area Science Fair held last spring in Boise.

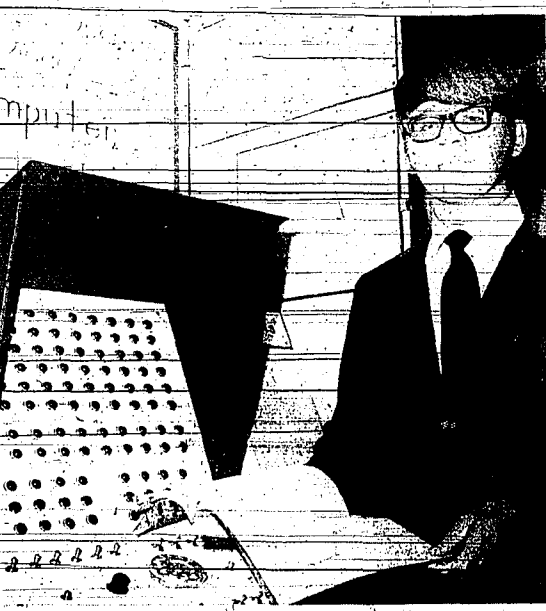

This was the second place award, with the first place winner going to the International Science Fair. His prize winning exhibit was a special computer which he designed and built.

Young Carter said he started building the computer when a sophomore in High School, but did not decide to enter it in a science fair until last year.

The project involved the design, construction and operation of a special state-digital computer.

On the science cruise, the young scientists were given an overview and to observe combat aircraft at Miramar Naval Air Station. While there, a simulated high altitude chamber and a pilot election training facility also were examined.

On Wednesday the 105 young men and women went to sea aboard one of the Navy's newest destroyer-escort type ships, the USS Bradley. Each had an opportunity to steer the 3,500-ton vessel and to observe rescue training at sea and the firing demonstration of one of the ship's computer-directed, five-inch guns.

Botulism Hits Ducks In California Flood Areas

BY JIM HUMBIRD
Idaho Fish-Game Department

This is a good water year—too good in some places. In general, more marshes and pot holes for ducks and geese to nest on filled last spring in the Canadian Provinces and northern states of the United States, leading to good production and more migratory waterfowl winging southward from breeding grounds than expected this fall.

But all is not good. A side effect of the good water year is the flooding of Tulare lakes, bed, covering hundreds of thousands of acres of lower Sacramento Valley in California, which usually dries out by late August. This shallow water, averaging 6-12 inches in depth, has killed thousands of ducks to death from botulism, an extremely powerful poison formed by a bacteria that occurs naturally in some western soils.

Waterfowl poisoning this year will not be affected by botulism poisoning because ducks are hunted in Idaho before going on southward to Tulare Lake Basin.

It is a wintering area for concentrations of ducks totaling as high as a quarter million birds. Most of them are wintering that return to their natal grounds in August and September. The number had reached 125,000-150,000 the last week in August, according to Neal Arty, Boise game management agent.

U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service Migratory waterfowl are just beginning to show up in large numbers in Idaho. There were about 4,000 ducks in the Minidoka Wildlife Refuge week ago and lesser numbers at Mgd Lake, but no species breakdown was made. Pintails, however, generally migrate through the area at the end of the duck and goose hunting season which starts October 24 in eastern Idaho.

Unless conditions change drastically, and they are not likely to, the loss of waterfowl will rise swiftly as the first of nearly 10 million ducks in the Tulare Basin begin to filter in from the north. The Tulare Basin has a long history of disastrous outbreaks, the last in 1967, when about 40,000 birds perished. Conditions this year point to a serious outbreak.

Large reports that 50 or more federal and state workers are using 11 airplanes, two airplanes and a helicopter to try to get waterfowl to move out of the Basin. Crews are also picking up birds from the water, burning dead ones and inoculating sick ducks. He says that 65 in 10 percent of the treated birds do recover from botulism.

Present Idaho does not have any waterfowl concentrations as high as those in California, although the waters of Killarney Lake near Coeur d'Alene sometimes were toxic to waterfowl in years past. This was caused by pollutants from the mines.

Botulism in ducks is much like the same kind of poisoning in human beings. The extremely powerful poison is formed by bacteria that occurs naturally. Under certain conditions of soil moisture in the low-lying areas of summer, and early fall large numbers of birds may be poisoned. Scientists are not sure whether the poison produced by the bacteria is taken into the birds' bodies only by feeding on contaminated materials, or whether it might form in the birds' intestinal tracts when the bacteria is ingested along with natural plants and insect foods.

Flight Aid On GI Bill Is Listed

More than 23,000 veterans nationwide are currently a flight training for a commercial pilot's license under provisions of the G.I. Bill. M. W. Allen, director of the Boise Veterans Administration Center, disclosed today.

Since flight training was approved by congress in October 1957, a total of 28,588 veterans have taken advantage of the course.

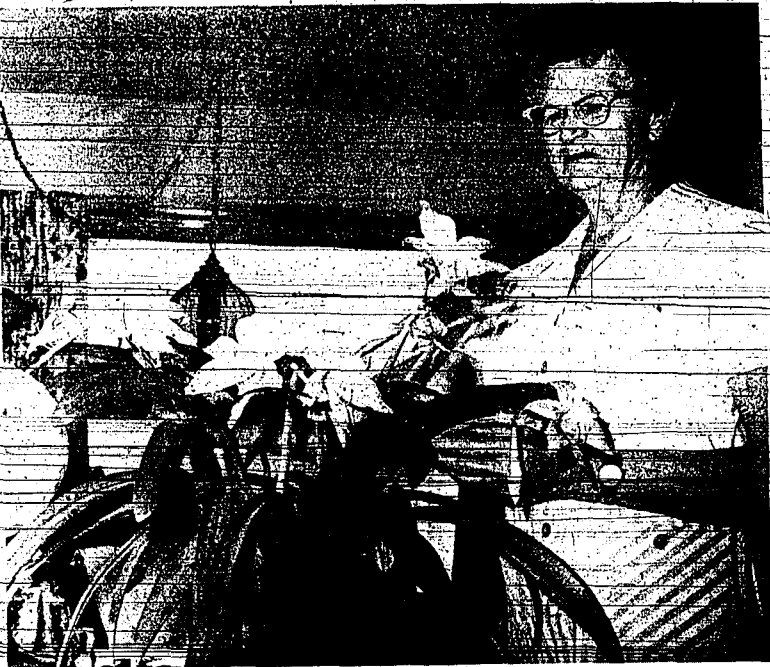

Provisions under the G.I. Bill require that a veteran must first possess a private pilot's license or its equivalent, and must meet the medical requirements for a commercial license. Mr. Allen said that the flight course must be certified by the Federal Aviation Administration and must also be approved by the state approving agency in the state where the school is located.

An eligible veteran entered into an approved flight course will receive educational assistance computed at the rate of 90 per cent of the established charges for tuition and fees which non-veterans enrolled in the same flight course are required to pay.

According to Mr. Allen, these allowances may be paid monthly by the VA upon receipt of a certification from the veteran and the school as to the flight training received and the cost to the veteran during such month.

The eligible veteran will be charged one month's educational entitlement under the G.I. Bill for each $100 which is paid to him for educational assistance allowance for a flight course.

Mr. Allen said that flight training as a part of an approved college degree program is also available to veterans.

Book Review

By LARRE CRAWFORD
Twin Falls Public Library

"Walkabout's Australia," edited by A. T. Bolton, is an anthology of articles and photographs from "Walkabout" which is the monthly geographical magazine of Australia. This is a very appropriate title for a travel magazine, since a walkabout is a trip into the bush country, which Australian aborigines make periodically to get away from the cities.

"The Devil that is Lake Eyre" is about the exploration of Australia's huge salt lake which is now, practically all the time, a dry lake bed. It is seven times as salty as the sea.

"The Charmed Spell" tells of Ernest Giles' explorations of the interior of Australia from 1872-1876. It was Giles' dream to be the first man to cross the western Australian desert to the ocean. He made four expeditions in the deserts and on each trip he had thirst, starvation, heat, wild aborigines, flies, ants, and snakes. What did he do to reach his distant companions?

"World Biggest Schoolroom" describes the operation of the school of the air and the flying mail service of Australia. In 1964 there were seven such schools of the air operating in Australia, teaching grade school children between the ages of five to fourteen.

"The South Pole Story" is the story of Captain Scott's fatal Antarctic expedition of 1910-1912. It tells how they failed to reach the south pole first, but Scott and the four men with him died on the return trip.

But it is not all — there are articles on Australia's wild dogs called dingoes; kangaroos; koalas; Australia's leddy bears; and bird migration — there is a good article on the native dances of the Australian aborigines. Life on the sheep and cattle ranches is also described. There is even an article on the popular sport, surfing. In other words, there is something to interest just about anyone in "Walkabout's Australia."

FOUR MARINE SCIENTISTS who spent 60 days at the bottom of the ocean are ready to try it again, this time for a longer period. This artist's sketch of their underwater living quarters shows the type of structure to be designed and tested. ## Tektite I Crew Ready To Try It Again With Longer Test In Underwater Living

By AMEI WALLACH

NEW YORK (UPI)—While millions of Americans are gazing upwards toward the moon, where such a short time ago man took his "one small step," a group of marine scientists have their sights set in the opposite direction—toward the depths of the ocean.

The aquanauts who surfaced last April in a 60-day sojourn under Caribbean waters are ready to submerge again. The target date: January or February, 1970.

"Sixty days is simply not enough," insisted Richard A. Waller, the intense, compact scientist who headed the Tektite I project in December, 1969, from a base at the U.S. Virgin Islands last spring.

That 60 days living and experimenting underwater was simply a "one-shot deal," and scientific research is not conducted like that," he told UPI on a recent tourist visit to New York.

So Waller, a scientist with the Department of Interior, is heading up an inter-agency task force that will study the cost of a second Tektite project, with the hopes of winning a go-ahead signal for it, possibly, this month.

Watching the Tektite plans with considerable interest are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Koch, Castleford. They are the parents-in-law of one of the four aquanauts. Their daughter, Norma Jean, formerly of Castleford, is married to John C. VanDerwalker, the fisheries biologist on the four man aquanaut crew.

Represented on the task force are the Department of Interior, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), the Navy, the Smithsonian Institution and the National Sciences Foundation.

Their assignments are to report on their findings to the inter-agency steering committee on Sept. 12. "And if the price is right, it takes a few weeks to start the project in early 1970," Waller said.

The scientist estimates the project—planned to last six months, this time—will cost about $2.5 million in all.

Unlike Tektite I, which set a record for living underwater, the new project will involve seven teams of a total of 40 to 45 marine scientists who will conduct scientific experiments underwater for from two to four weeks at a time, Waller said.

The inter-department cooperation is a key to the success of the proposed underwater research project, he emphasized, since unlike the space program Tektite will probably not make headlines.

"There probably won't be a dramatic breakthrough in oceanography like there was in the space program," he said. "It's a building block type of thing... Just continually adding to what we think we already know and finally reaching some level of proficiency where we can make some predictions."

Tektite I was financed by the Office of Naval Planning, with help of the Department of Interior, NASA and the General Electric Company. And while Waller thinks the Navy did a very good job, "it's the count down to the interior, he's counting on to provide the biggest support."

"I think it's important to think the Navy is going to develop all the technology necessary to do scientific research on the continental shelf, an deeper. It's simply not going to happen unless it's fantasy to think we are going to get what we need from the Navy's efforts," he said.

"It was the Navy that invested $10 million in the ill-fated Sealab project on the West Coast, which was halted abruptly after the mysterious death of a series of problems with the capsule in which the aquanauts was to have lived with eight other Marines 600 feet under Pacific waters.

"The Department of Interior interest in marine research was evidenced by Secretary Walter J. Hickel.

"I think their accomplishment last April is ample proof that interior is serious about developing the resources of the ocean floor; that this is not a conservative old line department which has no interest in new ideas and techniques as some people have said in the past," Hickel said.

The program is being headed by Assistant Secretary for the Interior, Spiro T. Agnew.

Ultimately, Waller would like to have a research dwelling on the ocean floor 300 days a year with aquanauts manning it "two months, a week several weeks at a time," to learn as much as they can about the oil and gas, mineral and petroleum resources—and perhaps even military and industrial uses.

The ocean offers some ready-made answers to the need for more and more food supplies and mineral resources in an increasingly overpopulated world. "And the time to worry about that is now, not 20 years or 30 years from now, when the crisis is upon us," Waller said.

With Tektite I, the Navy was primarily interested in discovering whether men could live and work for weeks on end in a relatively shallow depth in intense isolation. Waller and his three fellow aquanauts proved they could.

Waller, H. Edward Clifton, a geologist, John Van Derwalker, a biologist, and Conrad V.W. Mahken, an oceanographer, led their mission. A start for underwater research proved successful, though there "were problems, of course."

Where most of the equipment was concerned, "Waller said, "we had quite a bit of trouble. There were too many generators, more than enough of most other things, but then we didn't have enough auxiliary CO2 scrubbers." These "scrubbers" were supposed to absorb excess carbon dioxide from the air. "Our primary scrubber stopped functioning one day and we noticed that CO2 levels were rising to a level we really couldn't tolerate," Waller said. "It hadn't reached the critical stage yet, but it was uncomfortable."

So the aquanauts improvised with a vacuum cleaner.

He is interested in charting and mapping the ocean floor.

Van Derwalker, 32, a fisheries biologist, studied the behavior of spiny lobsters in the area, a task that could yield valuable information on the eventual farming of lobsters for commercial use.

Mahken, 31, a geologist, studied the productivity of the water to determine how fast plants and organisms could grow.

And Waller, 34, tended to duties in the home capsule, looking after an intricate system and atmospheric monitoring, establishing the best safety procedures.

Others pursue their own research activities," he said.

There were personal differences in the men as well.

"John and I are low key, not really creative," Waller explained. "Ed Clifton has a sunny disposition most of the time, but a quick temper. And Conrad (Mahken) is very explosive, quick to make judgments and decisions."

But the work was a unifying force. "As long as you can keep scientists busy and motivated, personalities tend to disappear. We became friends as a result of the project."

"Now we've found out men can remain motivated under these conditions, we've established scientific research in the ocean environment, and we've learned what we're lacking. We're ready for Tektite II."

Prince Nears Legal Age, Inheritance

By MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, is about to become a man of 21—and a very rich one. On his 21st birthday Nov. 14, he starts to collect an annual income of 110,000 pounds ($284,000) a year free of tax. He also inherits stocks, jewels and valuable objects of art left to him by his grandfather, King George VI. How much this amounts to a royal family secret but the total is guessed to be a handsome one. His mother, Queen Elizabeth, may be the world's richest woman. However wealthy he actually is, Prince Charles was in line to be even wealthier. But two weeks ago it was announced the prince had decided to accept only half the annual income of $28,000 from the Duchy of Cornwall, a 140,000-acre estate that was created by King Edward III in 1337 and since then has always become the property of the eldest son of the reigning monarch. Prince Charles began receiving some of this income, about $7,000 a year, on his 18th birthday.

There was no formal announcement why the prince will take only half the duchy's profits and turn the other half over to the government. But a Buckingham Palace spokesman said that with the government in financial straits, Charles "felt he wanted to make a gesture of this sort."

Should the prince marry, as seems probable, the financial arrangement will be subject to review.

Although the princely birthday is still two months away, plans are already in the making for Queen Elizabeth to give a big party, probably at Windsor Castle, with all the British and many European royals invited for a state-of-the-art celebration. Remaining European bluebloods. Likely names on the invitation list are exiled King Constantine of Greece with Queen Anne-Marie, Prince Juan Carlos of Spain and his wife, members of the German ex-royal house who are Prince Charles' cousins, and royal representatives from Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

The prince's 21st birthday is a time for special gifts and celebrations as with any other person, but it is not his official "coming of age." Under special royal law, he officially became an adult on his 18th birthday.

Let's Take A Tour Of Homes

By NORMA HERZINGER

The Magic Valley Harbor House will benefit from the Junior Club's third annual Tour of Homes scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 14.

This type of fund raising project has augmented its popularity in Magic Valley the past few years, with families opening their homes to the public for tours. Five homes have been chosen by the Junior Club this year, each with a bit of the unusual about it and each maintaining an entirely individual approach to home comfort.

The newest of this year's homes is the striking two-year-old home of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Anderson, 525 Sunrise Blvd. N. This home, a delight for any family, has a definite Spanish influence which blends well with the French and Italian Provincial accents used in the decor.

The 50-year-old home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon E. Edgar, 1429 Maple Ave., is a pleasure to visit. Mrs. Edgar's skill and foresight in decorating has made this a real eye-catcher, displaying a gracefulness that comes from mixing the best of several styles of design. One outstanding feature is the Early American decor of the up-to-date kitchen, with its Corning Ware stove top.

A circular drive and a beautiful entry way will lead you to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Frazier, 1201 Madrona St. N. This couple's home is six years old and very attractively located. The color scheme of cool, soothing blues and lavenders of the formal living room gives a feeling of real elegance, while the warm colors of the family room encourage informality and cheery comfort.

The tile-paved floors and the spacious master bedroom with a sunken tub in the bath area are outstanding features of the Early American-styled home of Dr. and Mrs. Roy O. Shaub, Highlawn Drive. The Shaubs designed their home and did all the masonry, hard wood treatment. The Early American mood is established both inside and out by used brick from Elko, Nev.

The lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wadsworth Sr., located on 100 acres overlooking Snake River Canyon, features a Mediterranean decor. This home was once situated where the First Federal Savings and Loan building now stands. It then was used as the Episcopal Rectory. Seventeen years ago it was moved to its present location.

Junior Club hostesses will be at each home to guide the tours and explain the styling and decor, and to answer any and all questions. Hostesses include Mrs. William Kahn, Mrs. Steve Lund, Mrs. Jerry Meyerhoeffer, Mrs. Craig Neilson and Mrs. Ward Pack.

A map showing the exact location of each home, as well as a brief resume of each home, will be given to each person taking the tour. Tour hours are set from 1 to 5 p.m., with the public asked to vary the order in which they visit the homes.

Tickets for the tour are available at Saline's Clinic and Bookery from all Junior Club members, or by calling Mrs. George LaGrange, 733-3132, or Mrs. Ed. Peterson, 733-7603.

All proceeds will go to the Magic Valley Harbor House. Last year $1,000 was given to the YWCA for the swimming pool project, and the first year, $1,000 was presented to the acute coronary care unit at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Cochairmen of this year's project are Mrs. Don Pfefferle and Mrs. Richard Reed, with Mrs. Shaub in charge of preparation. Mrs. John Heston is publicity, Mrs. Fred Heston advertising, Mrs. Elbert Davis, arrangements, and Mrs. LaGrange and Mrs. Peterson, ticket sales.

POURING COFFEE for Mrs. Craig Neilson, right, a Junior Club hostess, while she shows the Corning Ware stove top in her kitchen is Mrs. Gordon E. Edgar, 1429 Maple Ave. Mrs. Edgar's home is one of the five chosen to be toured during the Junior Club's annual Tour of Homes set for Sept. 14.

ENJOYING THE SCENERY from the balcony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wadsworth Sr., Canyon Rim Road, is Mrs. John Heston, left, and Mrs. Jerry Meyerhoeffer, a Junior Club hostess. Mrs. Heston is general publicity chairman for the tour, which is set from 1 to 5 p.m. Sept. 14.

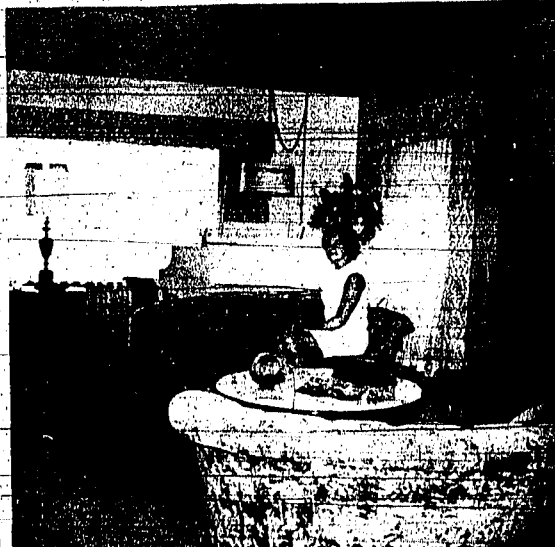

THE UNIQUE DECOR in the spacious master bedroom at the Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Anderson residence, 525 Sunrise Blvd. N., shows the special talent of Mrs. Anderson in the finish of the doors, woodwork, wall paper and painting. This home is the newest one of this year's tour.

MRS. FRED M. FRAZIER, 1201 Madrona St. N., reads her attractive dining room as she prepares for the annual tour. A circular drive and a beautiful entry way leads you to the spacious Frazier residence. Mrs. William Kahn is head Junior Club hostess for the Frazier home tour.

VARIOUS ATTRACTIONS to be seen during the forthcoming Junior Club's annual tour of homes are shown in these pictures taken at the five homes to be toured.

THE SPACIOUS LIVING room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wadsworth Sr., is a favorite of Mrs. Jerry Meyerhoeffer, Junior Club hostess at the Wadsworth home. The home features a Mediterranean decor and overlooks Snake River Canyon.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The letter, signed OFF MY CHEST, hit the spot. The new generation lacks something vital that the generation before them had. Example: Recently I telephoned the public high school in our neighborhood asking for a student who wished to earn $5 by moving a pile of wood from one location to another. I explained that it wouldn't take more than one hour. It was told that someone would call me within a day or two. No one called. I telephoned the school THREE times, and when I had no response, I finally moved the pile myself. It took me exactly 45 minutes. Pretty good pay—$5 for 45 minutes work. I'd say!

Again I called that high school, asking if they could send me a young man to clear off a lot. We had two calls, but as soon as they heard it was "yard work," they said they weren't interested.

We have two sons who are married now, but if they had heard of any such opportunities to earn a little extra pocket money while they were in high school, they'd have been at the door at the crack of dawn.

What is the matter with our young people today?

L. B. OF L. A.

DEAR L. B.: Many of them don't—not all—are interested in earning a dollar because they HAVE A dollar.

DEAR ABBY: I am heartsick. My 15-year-old daughter has been picked up for shoplifting. She is a good girl and has never been in any trouble before. I can't understand what got into her. She gets a generous allowance, has never been denied anything she wanted or needed. She was with two other girls, and all three were caught red-handed. The other girls were even better off financially than my daughter. I have tried to talk this bird-right—where have I failed?

SHOPLIFTERS' MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't be so quick to accept the blame. YOU haven't failed. You'r daughter has. She's failed to realize that shoplifting is a crime. She thinks it's a "game" . . . or a challenge. Or a new "sport." It's a strange new epidemic. I can offer seven rules for parents as a preventative to curb this new game:

1. Explain to your youngsters that shoplifting is a CRIME, which leaves a criminal record. And a criminal record is a lifetime shadow.
2. Emphasize that "going along with the crowd" for fear of being "chickened" is the coward's way out.
3. When youngsters go on a shopping expedition, know where your child is going, how much money he has and what he expects to buy.
4. If your child comes home with more merchandise than he or she had money to buy, ask about it. And don't take any one's answers about where it came from.
5. If your daughter goes shopping with an oversized purse, be wary.
6. Outlaw all clothes swapping.

Helpful Hints For Hostesses

Always store your crystal right side up, and as you're putting it away, check for nicks. If you find any nicks, you can repair with care by using an emery paper wrapped around a blunt tool.

This filling will make a frosted edge which you can touch up with polishing rouge on a leather strap. Rub gently in both operations. This tip and hundreds of helpful ideas appear in Better Homes and Gardens new "Guide to Entertaining."

Delegate Named

Mrs. Orin Capps was elected as lodge deputy for the year. The group met at a local cafe for refreshment. The next meeting is Oct. 1.

The uglies are over. Fashion's brought the beauty out in monsters. Tamed them down. Shaped them up with lighter looking hardware. Prettier heels. Rounder toes. # Men's World No Problem For Most Working Women

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — If there are problems for the woman working in the man's world, they're problems of the woman's own making.

The opinion comes from Patricia Noot Lahatte, who has spent most of her successful career in positions usually filled by men.

"I don't want to sound precocious," says Mrs. Lahatte. "But a woman who behaves like a lady has no problems."

Currently, Mrs. Lahatte is president of the International Newspaper Promotion Association (INPA), representing more than 300 newspaper executives department and in four years of the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico and 24 other countries. The job in essence: "to sell the newspaper" to the world.

Mrs. Lahatte fits none of the stereotypes of the successful business woman. She's an all-round person; assured, direct, unimpressed with life in the executive suite, and believes that with a woman at the helm.

Mrs. Lahatte, a divorcee, started in the art world. A graduate of the Atlanta High Museum of Art, her first job was art director of the Atlanta Journal and Constitution Sunday Magazine and the Sunday Intogravure section. Later she became picture editor of the Atlanta Journal, a post then held by no other woman on major newspapers. She moved then to head up the paper's promotion department and in four years of "coming up through the ranks" moved into the INPA presidency.

Atlanta has honored her as "Woman of the year in the Business," for Mrs. Lahatte is seemingly endless "struggle" of served on practically every her "refuge," she says. "It sounds far equal rights of the major civic committee. She helps to reverse what I've done ever for every person to develop his or her talents to the utmost."

Valley Couple Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

FILER—A double-ring ceremony at the Peace Lutheran Church united in marriage Faye McFarland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris McFarland, Twin Falls, and Victor Brunkow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brunkow, Filer.

Rev. Thomas Johnston performed the July 25 rites before a background of baskets holding yellow gladioli and white daisies and candelabra with lighted tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white satin, fashioned with a white lace overdress enhanced with white and blue flowers. Her hair was styled in a classic updo with a headpiece of miniature daisies. She carried a nosegay bouquet of yellow roses and white daisies tied with streamers.

Mrs. Loyd Carey, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Joan Hull and Linda Morrow.

Martin Brunkow served as best man for his brother. Groomsman were Loyd Carey and Larry Lammers. Ronald Stutzman ushered the guests.

Candlelighters were Kell Filmore, niece of the bride, and Brad Lammers, nephew of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Keith Gross played the wedding music on the organ and accompanied Tommie Cline, soloist.

A reception was held after the ceremony in the church Fellowship Hall. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over yellow and centered with a three-tiered square cake which was iced in yellow and decorated with white roses and bells. It was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Two white cross-shaped cakes bearing the couple's names flanked the large cake.

Yellow candles entwined with white daisies were turned on the side of the large cake. A crystal punch bowl and silver coffee service completed the table appointments.

Mrs. Lydia Stutzman and Mrs. Fred Rose, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Herbert Thieme, aunt of the bridegroom, baked and decorated the cakes. Mrs. Fred Thieme, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Mary Henry poured punch and coffee. Members of the Lutheran Women's Missionary League assisted with the reception.

Mrs. Delbert McFarland and Brenda Bauer were in charge of the gifts. Karla Filmore registered the guests.

The couple will reside in Pensacola, Fla., where the bridegroom is stationed with the Navy.

'Little Brown Dress' Is Real Winner For Winter

Those "little black dresses" have hogged the fashion scene and won the "hottie" couture stakes for far too long. Brown now appears to be a safe winner.

In all its subtle shades color range from bitter chocolate, sepia, ochre, tan, chestnut, cinnamon, khaki, putty and palest coffee cream, brown is perfect and sensible for days at the office, yet splendidly sophisticated for evening wear.

It is an utterly dependable color—giving a woman value, as well as a switched-on look, discerning women rate it better than black because it is softer toned, looks marvelous on brunettes, brunettes and redheads. Choose it with confidence if you want to reduce the apparent size of your figure.

Reunion Held

DECLO—Eighty-five members of the Windfall and Arvick Hurst family spent the Labor Day weekend in Declo. They attended church services at the Declo LDS Ward.

After the services, they met at the old Hurst home, which is presently owned by Leo Hurst, where they were served a buffet luncheon.

Montana Miss, Kleinkopf Marry In August Ceremony

The Chapel of the First Presbyterian Church, Missions, Mont., was the setting for the traditional high noon ceremony uniting Katherine Ann Ziegler and William Karl Kleinkopf in marriage on Aug. 23. Rev. Richard A. Jones officiated at the double ring service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ziegler, Missoula, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark E. Kleinkopf, Twin Falls.

The chapel, decorated by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Taylor, was attractive in the early autumn theme carried out in the large bowls of flame-colored plaid and clusters of mountain ash berries, backed by cattails and sheaves of ripe grain providing a pleasing contrast to the rich walnut paneling of the altar. Gold satin bows marked the pews.

MRS. W. K. KLEINKOPF

The bride, in an ivory crepe floor-length gown, fashioned with a wide black necktie, bell sleeves and chapel train, and wearing a lace mantilla and pearl trimmed mits, entered the church on the arm of her father as the organ sounded the organ wedding the traditional Wagner Wedding March. Her nosegay bouquet included Pearly roses and lacy hydrangea buds, accented by coral-tone roses from the garden of the bridegroom's parents. She carried a heirloom lace handkerchief and carried by her mother and her sister at her wedding. Her only jewelry was a jade and pearl bracelet, a gift from the bridegroom.

Her sister, Margaret Ziegler, was maid of honor.

Karl Kleinkopf served as best man for his brother, Usher, and were Loren Butler, Jerome, and the bride's brothers, Phillip Ziegler, Battle Mountain, Nev., and Gerald Ziegler, Missoula.

The soloist was Linda Ward, Mrs. Michael Murry, longtime friend of the bride, presided at the guest book.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the country home of the bride's parents. Arrangements of white gladioli, yellow snapdragons and golden grain stalks graced the rooms.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR JIM BISHOP,

author of "The Day Kennedy Was Shot"

Who paid for John F. Kennedy's casket?—D.L., Lancaster, Pa.

● I had ambulance services bought from Oval funeral service in Dallas. Verlan-Oncal, senior member of the firm, told me he sent bills to the Kennedys for 16 months, then the Government paid $3,400 for it. The Government also paid for another casket—the one in which President Kennedy was interred.

FOR TOM JONES, singer

What do you think of men's fashions today? Do you like them?—Kathy Early, Brick, N.J.

● I really don't care too much for today's fashions. They're too far out. Today's accent on style is good, and it puts excitement into dressing. But it must be done with good taste and in moderation.

FOR BESS MYERSON GRANT,

Commissioner, New York City Consumer Affairs

What is the worst unfair practice in consumer affairs you have found to date?—A.S. Kravitz, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● Prime consumer difficulties arise from the sellers lacking unfair advantage of the buyers' lack of expertise. Whether the seller induces the buyer to sign a blank sales contract on which an exorbitant price is later filled in, or whether the customer consumes a mixture of meat and says he's believing it to be hamburger, the buyer will always be at the mercy of the seller. The answer: Who sue! Assert your rights!

FOR ROGER MARIS

When you hit 61 home runs in 1961, who was the pitcher who threw number 61 to you?—Rob Ridley, Casper, Wyo.

FOR BOB EUBANKS,

host of "The Newlywed Game"

For prizes, do you choose certain gifts for each couple, or do you choose just one kind of gift for all of them?—Beverly Reynolds, Glendale, Calif.

● The grand prize is especially chosen for the winning couple. When the couples are interwoven prior to being chosen for appearance on the show, they are asked what they would like for a prize.

FOR SEN. EDMUND S. MUSKIE,

of Maine

Are there any prospects in the near future of a Federal crash program to clean our waterways and to save our natural resources?—Larry Leach, Oceansboro, Ky.

● The Water Quality Act of 1965 is basically responsible for cleaning up our nation's waters. But more adequate funds are needed to save our water resources. Appropriations have lagged far behind, and public pressure must be brought to bear for more adequate funding.

FOR PEGGY LIPTON,

"Julie" of Mod Squad

To settle an argument, is your hair as long as it appears on the show, or is it a wig?—Joi Spadafore, Pasco, Wash.

FOR DR. GEORGE P. CRESSMAN,

Director, U.S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D.C.

How powerful is a recorded wind of 100 miles an hour?—Joe Jille, Brien, Wash.

● A 100-mph wind is 100 times as powerful as a 10 mph breeze. Disregarding tornadoes and hurricanes, 100-mph winds occasionally occur at the earth's surface under unique circumstances. They are powerful enough to cause considerable damage, ranging from roofs being blown off to buildings collapsing. Empty railroad cars have even been blown from their tracks.

FOR BOB HOPE

Are there any plans for another road picture with that crooner, what's his name? I hope so.—L. L. Johnson, Galdwell, Idaho

FOR ELMERT L. LITTLE, JR.,

entomologist

Why do most autumn leaves fall to the ground face down?—Mrs. Sarah E. Warren, Elkland, Pa.

● Leaves fall to the ground with upper and lower surfaces exposed in approximately equal numbers. This ratio may be confirmed by counting a sample of leaves in a small area. However, in certain tree species with upper and lower surfaces of contrasting colors, the showy surface might seem to be much more numerous.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Idol Golfer Arnold Palmer will be 40 on Wednesday. He was honored with a unique advance birthday present. Students in Prof. David L. Lewis' "entrepreneur in history" course at the University of Michigan cited Palmer as being one of the businessmen in whose footsteps they'd like to follow. As a result of his career, Palmer is identified with several businesses, some far removed from golf. "Name a better way to become a millionaire," said one admirer, "than by playing golf the world over and then selling the goods and services of one's trade."

Scholastic Windfall Social Security officials estimate that $490 million in benefits will be paid to 500,000 high school, college, and other full-time students in the upcoming year. That is more money than is granted in scholarships at all American colleges ($415.5 million in private and Government grants). Who is eligible for this newest and fastest-growing benefit program? Any full-time, unmarried student, 18 through 21, who is a dependent or survivor of a parent eligible for Social Security. Check with your local office.

Clear Signals "Our greatest problem with our feelings comes in communication," declares Dr. Everett L. Shostrom in his book, "Man, the Manipulator." The error in communicating or sending out ideas is not asking for what we really want, hoping people will comply with our secret wish only how. The error in receiving ideas is pretending to ignore a message. For example, someone hurts us, and we don't say so but instead become unresponsive and crushed. "A healthy relationship," says Dr. Shostrom, "does not always have to be an agreeing relationship." Next time, say so.

Tall in the Classroom Did you ever wonder how telephone repairmen work atop those poles without getting dizzy? Some learn the skill at a pole-climbing school run by the General Telephone Company of California. During the five-day course, the aspiring linemen toss an ordinary basketball around from the 25-foot high poles. Those who miss must climb down and retrieve it. The students become so agile that their only occupational hazard is an occasional case of splinters.

Higher learning

Cry, baby, cry

See Baby Cry For about $8 a year, London's Royal Institute for the Deaf rents to deaf parents a transistorized amplifier with an ordinary light bulb instead of a loudspeaker. Mrs. Ruth Carstairs, mother of four-month-old David, became totally deaf during a sudden illness and was worried how she could look after him properly. "Since we got this electronic baby alarm," she says, "I can go about my work in the house with my mind at ease, knowing that as soon as David cries, the lamp will light. Even if he was right next to me, I could not hear him. Now I can see him cry, even when I'm in the next room."

What Should Parents Tell

College campuses are no longer secluded retreats for the wealthy—the goldfish-swallower has given way to the social-protester—and is

By SLOAN WILSON

■ Sloan Wilson's The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit is just one of his accomplished author's many novels which have headed best-seller lists over the years. His latest book is Away from It All. He also wrote the novel A Sense of Values. He has had a voice in education since 1949, when he served on the National Citizens Committee for Public Schools until 1953. He was assistant director of the White House Conference on Education for one year.

WHEN I FIRST left home for college some 30 years ago, my father said, "Son, you now have an opportunity to forget the present and study the past as prelude to the future." A few minutes later he added, "And please don't come home with a raccoon coat and a ukulele!"

Right now I have three children, a son-in-law, and two nephews enrolled in American universities, and I can't think of anything like that to say to any of them. I feel more like giving them the advice I got when I went to war: "The important thing is to learn how to stay alive and keep a good conscience, too."

As everyone knows, college campuses are no longer secluded retreats or playgrounds. Instead, they are battlefields, where scholars must ask themselves whether they are striking their responsibilities if they refuse to take an active part in making the great political and moral decisions of the day.

I might as well admit right now that I can't mourn this; I've talked to a lot of college students lately whom I have met while lecturing. They are a new breed, and some of them are frightening.

But I prefer them to the members of my Harvard class who made headlines by swallowing live goldfish or the young of a later day who rioted only when they tried to steal underwear from the women's dormitories. What with football rah-rah, fraternity high-jinks, and the listless studying of dull, eminently forgettable courses, I don't think the colleges of the past can be treasured as an ideal worth recapturing.

Students today are more serious, and they should be, for they have greater problems than my generation. For one thing, this Depression instilled in us the need to earn money and security. A lot of today's youngsters have been brought up prosperously unhappy. They can't see the point of working hard to get a good job and a mortgaged house in the suburbs. That's what they're trying to escape.

Present-day colleges have lots of students from the slums, both black and white. In my day, the poor seldom went to college, and we rarely heard their complaints: Our era of prosperity is in some ways harder on slum children than the Depression was. It makes their poverty unique and more hopeless.

Most of the youngsters nowadays are also far more confused and angrier about war than my generation was. When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor and when we understood what Hitler was doing to the Jews and other Europeans, my generation experienced the great joy of taking up a righteous cause that we knew we could win soon.

The war in Vietnam is, of course much harder to get enthusiastic about. Our youngsters hear some of their elders, both at home and abroad, protest that it is immoral and insane; others shout that we must win to protect the world against communism. And the history of the Vietnam war, which isn't even legally a war, is foggy and complex. But one thing is clear—any war, pushed to its ultimate conclusion, will blow up everybody. It's also clear that while the elderly argue about the war, the youngsters are forced to fight it, no matter what they believe, unless they can prove that they are conscientious objectors, a burden which the present laws make almost impossible.

Is it any wonder that the youngsters are angry and bewildered? But the great majority of them go calmly along taking the prescribed school courses, falling in love, and trying to make reasonably constructive plans for the future.

I do not think, however, that this great majority of quiet ones react the way their parents did. They couldn't, for the world has changed too much. They listen to the wild ones screaming of injustice and try to figure things out. In the quiet ones there is a constant struggle between their desire to lead productive, private lives and to make public protest against injustices.

There is not much doubt that many of the quiet, sensible students admire the wild ones. That is why the campus radicals are important nowadays far beyond their number, which is still small. The bearded, long-haired rebel screaming of the outrage of war when this country has not been attacked, poverty in the midst of prosperity, and racial prejudice in the midst of reforms is the big man on the campus these days. The football hero, fraternity president, or that quaint old-fashioned character—the man judged most likely to succeed—run poor seconds.

Our youngsters are not stupid! How could they be with us as their parents? They know that there are radicals of many kinds. Some are psychotics who at heart want to destroy everything; some are disciplined Communists. Others are simply using the great problems of the day as an excuse for stepping up the ancient struggle of the young against the old. There are also a good many genuine idealists who feel that the world is going mad and that it is the job of every sane man to work toward saving it.

The great majority of quiet students are listening carefully to the rebels, and when they are convinced that they are right on some particular cause, follow them. Youngsters today need a lot of strength to concern themselves with the great issues of the day and at the same time to work toward the high marks which good jobs and graduate schools universally require.

Students, who even in normal circumstances might have difficulty making the grades, are often bewildered and depressed by the demands made on their conscience and intelligence. But colleges emphasize the fact that they are supposed to be dealing with mature persons, not children. A large university is an especially impersonal place with few advisers who have the time to cater to a confused student and offer much encouragement. Colleges do not attempt to supervise the private lives of the youths who have come there for the sole purpose of improving their minds. What they do in their spare time is their own business.

Today's sudden freedom can be as frightening as it is heady to the youngsters who have been kept under tight reins by schools and parents. They find all the old basic assumptions being challenged. Why is it wrong for a young couple to live together without being married? Why is it wrong to smoke pot when so many of their friends do?

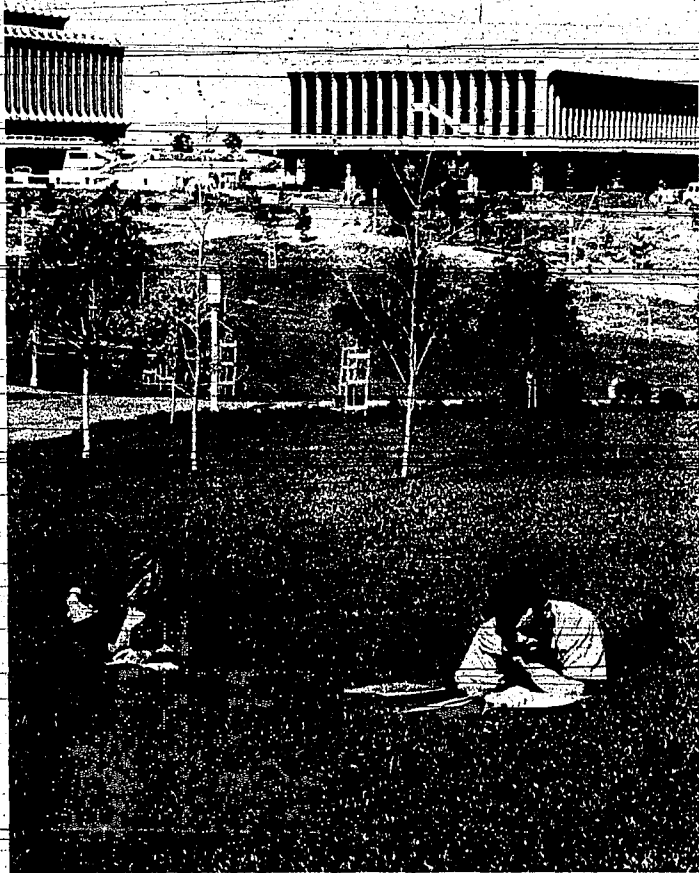

It is a rare and lucky parent who hears these questions asked at home. But they are there in the eyes of our children, and in one way or another they will find the answers, with or without our help.

College today can be so overwhelming that far more students drop out than in my day, despite the fact that it is harder than ever to get a good job without a degree, and despite the vulnerability to the draft that dropping out provokes. Faced with such circumstances, fond parents can't help but be worried about more than the soaring expense when they start their sons and daughters on the great adventure of getting a higher education. What do you say when you see the children off to college? What do you say to them, and what do you say to comfort yourself when you return to your suddenly quiet home?

Of course, the important thing for us elders to remember is the extraordinary fact that the great majority of the students are somehow coping very well with all the confusion on the campus. The youngsters are working hard to try to figure out answers to the great problems of the day which they did not create, and which all too many of their parents simply try to forget.

One way to keep in touch with youth is to show them that the old as well as the young care about the war in Vietnam, and the other great problems which concern them. The generation gap should not simply be between those who care and those who don't.

If students drop out, that should not be regarded as too great a tragedy, for many of them return to college and do better than ever, after a few months of work at dead-end jobs. The youngsters of today are living to discover new ways to live meaningful lives, new paths that lead to something better than a big bank account and a new car. We shouldn't be surprised if the bravest explorers sometimes get lost.

In my opinion, the great majority of the students are learning a lot more than my friends and I did in college, not only from their professors, but also from each other. They use the word "love" a lot, and if you watch the way they deal with each other, you can't doubt that most of them mean it. They keep saying that the most important thing is to care about people, to be involved, and I think they are groping for the truth.

I have given up trying to give advice to college students these days. I just try to offer sympathy, understanding, respect, and a little money. My simple reward is that they often talk to me.

Much of what they say is foolish, but the old should be used to forgiving that. The extraordinary thing is that so much of what they say and do is wise and good. *

ROYAL CRYSTAL SWAN

tonight

What a beautiful and delightful way to tell the weather! Set up this sparkling Royal Crystal Swan. Place it on your TV, table, shelf, mantelpiece, near a window, etc. Then be prepared for pleasant surprises! As you watch, the ruby-red liquid creeps up or down in a strange, almost eerie sort of way. If it surges up into the graceful swan's neck, you are forewarned of stormy weather in the offing. But when the liquid drops, be of good cheer! A beautiful, fair day beckons. Young and old are entranced by the uncanny-like actions. Swan everyone's asking:

"WHAT MAKES IT WORK?"

The truth is, this Royal Crystal Swan is really a clever Rudimentary Barometer in disguise. The shimmering ruby liquid surges up or falls in direct response to atmospheric pressures. Exactly like weather bureau barometers in Washington, San Francisco, New York, Chicago, etc.

NOW . . . OUTGUESS THE WEATHERMAN!
It's such fun to be your own weatherman! Put this Royal Crystal Swan to work for you. Then see how you score against that furaway weatherman. See if you can't beat him in divining local weather conditions — within a radius of 25 miles of your home!

SO EASY TO OPERATE!

No easy to use! No complicated readings to interpret. No difficult adjustments. Yet this simple little invention really works. It always reacts to changes in atmospheric pressure in the same manner as a $1000.00 instrument.

A MASTERPIECE OF CRYSTAL ART — Our picture gives only a faint idea of the true beauty of this statuette. Note the finely detailed body — the long, majestic neck . . . the pure, gleaming crystal. Not stamped or mass produced from cheap brittle plastic! Each and every one is individually blown and hand shaped by a clever, deft artisan. So exquisite — so truly artistic! But you must see it to really appreciate it. You will be delighted to see how it adds new beauty and drama to any room!

QUIPS AND QUOTES

Little Mary, a first grader, was listening intently as her older brother talked with a couple of friends about the merits of college. The conversation turned to the average student's inability to read quickly. They exchanged helpful hints on the subject for several minutes. Finally Mary decided to give some advice of her own.

I've announced gravely: "Well, I've found that you can read a lot faster if you don't stop to color the pictures." —Dan Requet!

One of the few times a man hears every word his wife says is when she's bragging about him.

—Hal Chawtwek

An American couple was checking out of their French hotel, and the husband complained to the manager: "Your bill lists 'fruit, 200 francs.' We haven't had any fruit."

"The fruit was placed in your room every day. It was not the fault of the hotel that you did not eat it."

The husband replied calmly, "Very well. But I am deducting 100 francs for kissing my wife."

"But, Monsieur, I have never kissed your wife!"

"Well, she was here. It isn't my fault if you didn't."

—John Shatwell

Quiet!

She has the tv going; Her record player blares. And while she's telephoning, She gazes pop and eats.

The Double Life of Meredith MacRae

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

MEREDITH MACRAE, who stars in "Petticoat Junction" as a demure country girl named Billie Jo, remembers her singer-actor father exploding in anger because, as a child, she spilled milk.

Meredith MacRae, who is anything but a demure country girl off-camera, remembers her actress-comedienne mother Sheila MacRae—as being—so permissive she allowed her to spend the summer at a boyfriend's house when she was only 15.

After 25 years of marriage, her parents divorced—almost simultaneously with Meredith, who married at 19 and divorced a few years later. Now she has remarried (so have her parents), and the life she lives still upsets her strict father but seemingly delights her permissive mother.

The manner of her marriages gives a clue to the real Meredith MacRae, a hybrid of her father's conservatism and her mother's liberalism. She married her first husband, Rick Berger, now a movie executive, in a formal church wedding with 500 splendidly attired guests.

This year she married actor Greg Mulvey at "a church of all religions" off a Pacific beach with a Buddhist monk presiding and friends who came dressed—period. These friends were from a group-therapy cult which often holds nude meetings in sulphur baths. "Casual living," explains Meredith, "dissolves inhibitions and provides expression."

About her first husband, she says, "We were different personalities. Rick was an only child and conservative. I was the oldest of four children and an extrovert. We were good friends but not good mates."

About her second husband, she says, "I don't like being away from Greg. Last year I had to make 22 trips. Any time away from him is too much. That's one reason we hope some day to work together with our own production company."

Meanwhile, she hopes her own career will go beyond the "Petticoat Junction" image of her as a sweet rural lass in Hooterville. She has appeared in some bikini-bench movies and has just finished Paramount's big film, "Norwood"—in which she also wears a bikini but with some acting thrown in.

Gordon and Sheila MacRae did all they could to help Meredith in show business. "My first part was as an extra in one of Dad's films, 'By the Light of the Silvery Moon.' I was seven years old. After that I did a lot of singing with my father.

"At first, I wanted a career as a singer, but seeing what happened to my father's career made me decide it was better to become an actress who could sing than be known as a singer who always had to prove she could act."

Meredith is delighted that her younger sister Heather appears in Broadway's rock musical "Hair," and she thinks that it is natural that the cast often appears nude. She herself is noted for the briefest of dresses (blouse and skirt) and minimal bathing suits. When I met her, though, she was dressed demurely. "Well," she said, "I have an appointment connected with 'Petticoat Junction,' so..."

How do her parents feel about the mod behavior of their two daughters?

"Dad's not happy. I didn't tell him about my divorce until I filed. I knew he'd be disappointed. He thinks Heather's stripping is unnecessary—actually she keeps her clothes on when a member of the family is in the audience. What does my mother think? She thinks it's great!"

Meredith still has some old-fashioned kinks which would please Hooterville and Gordon MacRae. She does her own housekeeping and cooking. Running a home isn't a new experience for Meredith, who, at 16, took charge of her brothers and sister when her parents went on the road as a night-club act.

The Mullavey's life is relatively quiet. "Greg doesn't like the typical Hollywood scene. Neither do I."

That didn't sound to me like she was much different from her image as Billie Jo. There's just some Hollywood mixed in with that basic Hooterville.

126 Wonderful Activities For Beginning Learners

6 new exciting sets of FIRST LEARNING GAMES featuring Walt Disney favorites

Now young children can learn as they play... play as they learn

Did you know that a young child can develop his learning skills faster today... just by having fun... than children could only a few years ago even with hours of boring drills?

Yes... an amazing new development, hailed by parents and teachers all over the United States, now makes it possible to give your child the start in life he deserves... while he plays!

This is important news for every family with young children, for scientists and educators agree that the years between three and eight will set the whole direction of your child's life. The choice you make right now can make the difference between his being an "A" student... or a dropout.

There is no excuse any longer for leaving this choice to chance. Now you can be sure you are giving your child the start in school and life he deserves, with the delightful help of the Walt Disney Characters First Learning Games.

What are First Learning Games?

First Learning Games were developed by Golden Press in consultation with educational experts. To add to their appeal, arrangements were made with the Disney Studios to use the beloved Walt Disney characters. The result is six sets of stimulating, colorful games, each sturdily boxed, complete with everything a child needs to make learning fun. Each set has an easy-to-follow Parents' Guide to lead you every step of the way. There are 126 fascinating activities in all, covering six major learning areas: Numbers; Colors; Shapes and Sizes; Animals; Things that Go; and Friends.

These games teach as they entertain... teach skill in numbers... relationships between colors... open up the wonderful world of animals... explain occupations... increase vocabulary... speed social growth... develop your child's readiness for reading, mathematics, and other school subjects.

With the wonderful Walt Disney characters as helpers, your child acquires essential habits, attitudes, and skills. He begins to observe, analyze and compare... just by playing. He learns all he needs to know to take advantage of formal learning in school.

You never thought it could be so easy!

Every child is a natural learner. But too often learning is presented to him in the wrong way. He develops attitudes that will hold him back all his life. Learning becomes a hard, wearisome task, to be avoided whenever possible.

That need never happen to your child! With the beloved Walt Disney characters as helpers... with a special Parents' Guide to tell you exactly how every one of the 126 activities can be used most effectively... you will see your child's mind grow and blossom faster than you had ever thought possible. He will play these games with parents'... brother and sister... friends... learning every minute of the time!

An advantage your boy or girl will never lose

Scientists say that a child has completed more than three-fourths of his learning growth by the age of eight—two-thirds before he reaches his sixth birthday.

Yes... wherever little children look, they see something new. Every time they play together, they learn something important about relationships with others. When they first choose between one toy and another, they are beginning a lifelong process of making decisions. Even before nursery school, they are putting things together, taking them apart. They are developing exciting differences among colors... shapes... sizes.

Now is the time to take advantage of this precious, all-too-brief period when your child's mind is most open, most alert, most impressionable. With the First Learning Games you can give him a learning edge that he will never lose. It will show up in his grades... in his zest and interest in his studies... in the way he reads, writes and thinks almost seem to teach themselves. It will be with him still in high school and college—in any career he may choose in later years.

You have to see it to believe it!

You cannot possibly imagine in advance how quickly and permanently these games lift small children's learning readiness. You have to see it for yourself.

And we invite you to do exactly that—without spending or risking a penny. Try the big learning-readiness sets—126 exciting activities in all, sturdily boxed, with the boards, markers, spinners, wall posters, and Walt Disney characters. Every colorful game is tailored exactly to the interests and capacities of beginning learners.

Don't just turn these games over to your child and forget them. Set a few minutes aside to play them with him yourself. You will find them fun for him, yet challenging even for you. You will see him tap the hidden powers of his own mind—simply by playing... enjoying himself... doing what comes naturally!

Imagine how happy you will feel later on when your child is bringing home those "A's"—because you had the foresight to introduce him NOW to these marvelous games!

Teen-Age Danger— DiETING Until Death!

Anorexia nervosa, doctors call it—an aversion to food caused by psychological hang-ups—so strong even hunger cannot overcome it

By CAROL AMEN

RECENTLY an 18-year-old wanting to look like her modeling idol, Twiggy, died, a 45-pound skeleton. She had dieted herself to death—a victim of malnutrition and anorexia nervosa, which is an aversion to eating.

"Anorexia" means loss of appetite. "Nervosa" is self-explanatory, but the disease is far more serious than a high-strung absence of hunger pangs. Anorexia nervosa sufferers literally cannot force themselves to eat, even when they are starving and, in some cases, craving food.

The typical anorexic is emaciated, young, surprisingly lively, probably constipated. If male, he is most likely impotent; if female, she is probably not having menstrual periods. Except for the staggering weight loss, there is nothing physically wrong—it is psychosomatic.

Anorexia nervosa occurs more often in adolescent girls and young women than it does in males of the same age group. The background usually includes extreme family focus on food, possibly obese parents, and frequently a lifelong desire to be thin. It can be triggered by fears of physical maturity, usually starting during a diet. It is a symptom of deep-seated psychiatric distress.

From actual anorexia cases historians account of: 1) a boy who hid food in a bag held between his legs during meals. He routinely scraped butter off his bread onto the underside of his chair and put other objectionable food into the bag, which he disposed of later; 2) a girl who slipped most of her food, meal after meal, to the family dog sitting under the table while her parents bickered; 3) a girl who weighed her underclothes with a large collection of half-dollars whenever her mother put her on the scales; 4) a girl who kept a marked satin ribbon around her waist, not allowing herself to expand beyond it. "I prefer dying of hunger than becoming as big as Mama," she said.

"Teen-age is a time of hypersensitivity. Often anorexia patients admit feeling desperately lonely, ugly, cut-off from others, and unwanted. They can't cope with being called 'chubby.'"

In addition, there are general factors. Middle- and upper-class adults often fluctuate between overeating and crash diets. Confused young people, especially in families where one or both parents are obese, may determine to avoid the same mistake.

The average person can diet without too much fear of aftereffects. The unknown anorexic, however, has no guarantee that normal eating habits can be resumed after the extra poundage is gone, and the disease does not erupt during a single traumatic incident with food.

One girl, for example, felt sure that if she ate squash she would vomit, so her family agreed that she should eliminate it from her diet. Gradually, more and more foods reminded her of squash and gave her the same nausea. By the time she saw a doctor, almost all food tasted like squash.

Certain victims believe that only a specific food will not cause bad symptoms. One girl kept evaporated milk until it dried out into hard curds, which she considered a delicacy and ate exclusively.

One articulate girl told her doctor, "The fear of being fat has to this day constituted my most terrifying problem. Without a doubt, my inferiority complex has arisen from this one deep-seated fear. I won't be the same as when I was growing up—fat and insecure."

From psychiatrists' notebooks come accounts of childhood contributing factors. One mother followed her daughter to school and physically forced her to eat the remainder of an unfinished breakfast. Extremely common was the practice of using food as a bribe—"You've been a good boy. Have some cake."

Another anorexic's mother alternated between food orgies and starvation crash diets. The daughter had similar tendencies, but overreacted. She just couldn't stop dieting, even when told that she was starving.

Food equals evil, self-indulgence, or sexuality to some. Under psychotherapy, one girl revealed that food had come to stand for sex. Because her upbringing did not permit her to date boys (though she wanted to very much), she denied herself food as a punishment for her lustful impulses. Some anorexics of this type alternate between almost total abstinence and binges, only to induce vomiting when finished.

There is no safe leeway for any home-stay cures. Psychiatrists stress that best results are obtained with early and vigorous treatment. It is the doctor who must decide if the "loss of appetite" is truly anorexic.

Treatment is on two levels, physical and psychic. Frequent high-calorie meals are sometimes prescribed, but in severe cases the anorexic is hospitalized and given tube feedings. Then immediate psychotherapy discloses causes. The doctor must reassure that there is no organic basis for the disease. With early treatment, the majority of anorexics recover.

If you suspect someone in your family of having anorexia nervosa or being a borderline case, get help fast. Never try do-it-yourself psychotherapy. Confide your fears to the family doctor. Let him decide if specialized treatment is needed.

Tips on Teen Food and Diets

TEENS: Don't be afraid of food. It is an important fuel. During adolescence, large amounts of calories are burned. If you have a weight problem (over or under), consult your doctor.

A hamburger is just as nourishing for breakfast as bacon and eggs. If you like it better, why not?

Never risk fat diets. Check with your doctor before you start any diet.

PARENTS: Avoid using food as a bribe, reward, or punishment, particularly during early years.

Keep mealtimes as relaxed and tension-free as possible.

A three-year-old finicky eater does not have anorexia nervosa, but, by adolescence, he could develop it if overanxious parents turn mealtimes into a nightmare. A pint-sized person actually requires little food.

Appraise your own attitude toward sex. Maintain a balanced, healthy environment as much as possible.

Just do your best. That's all anyone expects. It's usually more than enough.

A Breakfast Spectacular

MELANIE DE PROFIT Food Editor

■ There may be occasions when a breakfast at nine is a more desirable time to entertain a crowd than a brunch at eleven. If you enlist many silent helpers—namely, cans and packages of convenience foods along with electric appliances—you'll probably be able to prepare all of the food yourself.

Skillet Roast Beef Hash with Eggs

4 cans (15 oz. each) roast beef hash
1 cup sweet pickle relish
½ cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon horseradish

1. Mix hash with a blend of pickle relish, chili sauce, and horseradish in a large bowl.

2. Turn into a skillet and set over medium heat, mixing occasionally until thoroughly heated... about 30 min. Spread lightly and evenly to sides of skillet. Sprinkle entire surface lightly with paprika.

3. Before serving, top with fried or poached eggs. Sprinkle eggs with paprika. Surround hash with buttered toast points (see photo). Serve from skillet. 12 servings

Glazed Smoked Ham for 16

Place a 5- to 7-lb. butt, half of a fully cooked smoked ham, fat side up, on rack in a shallow roasting pan; insert roast meat thermometer. Heat uncovered at 325°F. until meat thermometer registers 130°F. (allowing 18 to 24 min. per lb.). About 45 min. before end of heating period, trim and score fat surface of ham to make a diamond pattern. Spread with a glazing mixture of ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar, 2 teaspoons flour, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, and 1 tablespoon elder vinegar. Return to oven for about 45 min.

Frosted Nut Bread Ring Loaf

1 pkg. (13½ oz.) hot roll mix
1 pkg. (about 1 lb.) yellow cake mix
3 eggs
2 cups water
1 cup pecans, coarsely chopped
Mocha Frosting

1. Thoroughly grease a 10-in. tubed pan; set aside.

2. Empty pkg. of hot roll mix and its packet of yeast into a large bowl; mix. Add cake mix and blend thoroughly.

3. Add the eggs and water. Using an electric mixer at medium speed beat for two min. Stir in the nuts.

4. Turn into the greased pan. Using a spoon or spatula, gently pull batter from tube toward edge of pan.

5. Bake at 375°F. 10 min. Reduce heat to 350°F. and bake 45 min. or until a cake tester comes out clean.

6. Remove from oven to a wire rack and allow to stand about 10 min. before removing from pan to cooling rack. Cool completely and frost top. If desired, garnish with chopped candied-fruit.

One 10-in. tubed bread

Mocha Frosting

Following pkg. directions, prepare about ¼ the pkg. of 1-13½ oz. or 14-oz. creamy white frosting mix, or vanilla butter cream frosting mix. Stir in 1 teaspoon instant coffee powder until blended. For a thinner spreading consistency, mix in 2 or 3 teaspoons of water.

Instant Breakfast Pie

A pie filled with succulent fresh pears, in gelled vanilla instant breakfast in a cool, refreshing contrast to the sweet, buttery, cereal topping in this unusual pie.

1 baked 9-in. pie shell prepared from a pie crust mix
8 env.-unflavored gelatin
½ cup water
3 packets (about 1 oz. each) vanilla-flavored instant breakfast
3 cups milk
2 fresh pears, quartered, pared, cored, and sliced
½ teaspoon almond extract
½ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups high protein ready-to-eat cereal
¼ cup brown sugar

1. Sprinkle gelatin over water in a saucepan, stir over low heat until gelatin is completely dissolved. Set aside to cool.

2. Empty contents of instant breakfast packets into a saucepan. Stir in the milk until blended. Mix in gelatin; stir until smooth. If gelatin tends to clump, set mixture over low heat; stir until smooth.

3. Chill in refrigerator or over ice and water, stirring occasionally if refrigerated, and frequently if over ice and water, until almost set.

4. Blend in pears and extract. Turn into baked pie shell; chill.

5. Prepare cereal topping. Put butter or margarine in a heated skillet and stir until melted and slightly browned. Remove from heat, stir in cereal and toss until coated. Add the brown sugar and continue tossing until well mixed.

6. Remove pie from refrigerator. Cover with the cereal topping. If desired, spoon whipped cream around edge of pie and tuck in small pieces of unpared pear (see photo).

One 9-in. pie

*Ready-to-eat cereals high in vitamin and iron content may be substituted for those high in protein.

Hot Bread Duo

Team apple cinnamon muffins, prepared from a mix and topped with finely chopped nuts before baking, with crescent yeast rolls, prepared from packages of refrigerated fresh dough. Before baking, brush crescents with egg white and caraway seeds.

The How-To-Do-It Plan

(Follow steps in order)

1. A day in advance, bake and store the pastry for one or more pies (and the nut bread, if necessary).

2. The morning of the breakfast, put the ham in the oven early enough (about 3 hrs. in advance of serving) to allow for thoroughly heating and glazing it.

3. If a second oven is available, pre-heat it; mix the batter and bake the tubed nut bread.

4. Reconstitute frozen orange juice concentrate or orange drink and refrigerate in pitchers. Empty cans of tomato juice or vegetable juice cocktail into a pitcher and refrigerate. Cut orange slices into quarters and lemons or limes into small wedges for garnishing juice glasses; wrap and chill.

5. Make the pie filling. Turn into the pastry shell and refrigerate.

6. Prepare the hash mixture and put it in a large skillet for heating.

7. Mix cereal topping; complete pie.

8. If using only one oven, get muffin batter and crescent roll dough ready for baking. Remove ham, reset oven control for muffins; after baking, reset for rolls.

9. Spread glaze over ham; set aside.

10. Put nut bread on a plate; frost.

11. After baking rolls, reduce oven temperature and return ham to oven; heat until glazed, 45 min.

12. While hash is heating, prepare toast points—tuck-in-around-hash. Fry eggs for topping and additional eggs to be kept hot in an electric skillet set on table with hash.

13. Also set on the buffet table the electric toaster with an assortment of fruit-filled pop-ups.

14. Put the breakfast pie, a server, plates, and forks on the side table after removing the juice service.

15. Have freshly brewed hot coffee available throughout the morning.

Juices and Coffee Service

Set up a side table with a tray of garnished juice glasses and the pitchers of chilled juices, a shaker of seasoned salt and a bottle of Worcester sauce so guests can easily serve themselves. For those who like coffee before breakfast, keep a carafe of water boiling at this table. Accompany with jars of freeze dried coffee and instant coffee powder, teaspoons, cups and saucers.

Cereals with Instant Breakfast Service

On the buffet table, place a tray of 10-oz. glasses with spoons in them for stirrers. Alongside, set a basket filled with packets of instant breakfast in assorted flavors, a large pitcher of cold milk for mixing the instant breakfast, bowls of granulated and brown sugar, a stack of cereal bowls, and a choice of ready-to-eat cereals such as those high in vitamins and iron, others high in protein, and an assortment of bran and oat flakes. Guests may blend cereals if desired before pouring over their instant breakfast.

The Patented Formula that Cleans, Polishes and Protects with a Plastic Coat

AND WILL LAST ALMOST A YEAR!

Live the Good Life with the exclusive plastic liquid that cleans as it glazes, shines as it seals, and protects as it lasts...and it lasts almost a year with just one coat. Six different formulas by Plasticon were carefully designed to protect just about everything you love in your home, both inside and out. If you hate the monthly and sometimes weekly job of scrubbing, rubbing, polishing, waxing—and who doesn't—you'll love the Plasticon formulas that will save you work and money while restoring your furniture, your home furnishings, your car to the just-bought look that made you select that item originally. And Plasticon is guaranteed to keep it that way for unbelievably long periods of time under all sorts of conditions...like shore living, or winter slush, or dirty air.

Plasticon, the exclusive formula, is approved by The National Testing Laboratories and has been accepted and used by Federal Agencies.

Plasticon works like nothing else you've ever tried. It cleans a surface and fills the pores with a "glass-like" coating to shut out dirt, grime and even harsh chemicals. Here are the six revolutionary formulas. You'll find a use for every one of them:

- 1. PLASTICON FOR GLASS—Use it on windows, mirrors, crystal, and watch it smooth the surface so that it really repels dirt and dust particles so that even a simple wiping brings it back to a perfect sparkle.
- 2. PLASTICON FOR FURNITURE—Cleans, restores, and protects fine wood furniture, finished wall panels and varnished, lacquered or painted wood cabinets. Protects against water and liquor stains.

- 3. PLASTICON FOR CARS—A car lover's delight—cleans, restores and plastic coats the entire car's paint and metal trim. Forget compounding, waxing, chrome polishing and even tar removal. The harshest detergents won't wash it away. And even living at the shore or driving under winifer road salt conditions, won't get through the Plasticon seal.

- 4. PLASTICON FOR METALS—This formula covers aluminum, brass, bronze, stainless steel and chrome. It will clean and remove tarnish oxidation, corrosion and rust. Provides that show-room shine for all these metals wherever they're used.

- 5. PLASTICON—HEAVY DUTY CLEANER—Formulated for hard stains and scuff marks on enamel painted surfaces, porcelain tile and even pitted aluminum. Will remove even ink markings on these surfaces and spot them against similar damage.

- 6. PLASTICON FOR MARBLE, PORCELAIN AND COUNTER-TOPS—You'll never worry about these expensive surfaces once you've used Plasticon. And this works, even in the bathroom. Like all our formulas, there is no excessive build-up, no matter how much you use, and it will not peel, crack or yellow!

All cans come in a big 7 ounce size (except car Plasticon which is 8 ounces). This is a full 7 ounces, more than enough to do the biggest job. All formulas are guaranteed not to crack, peel, chip, discolor or wash away or we'll give you your money back.

Appliances Step Up to the Space Age!

By ROSALYN ABBEVAYA

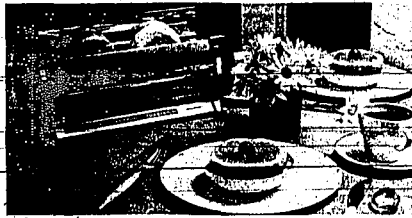

West Bend's ultra-detuzze humidifier, with exclusive solid-state sensor system, precisely regulates a home's humidity. Comes with a cover to top vent when unit is not being used.

A uniquely designed laundry center combines in a single cabinet a standard-height electric dryer and an automatic washer. The space-saving combination is ideal for home areas too small for standard-size equipment, in or near bedroom, bathroom, closet. Has setting for permanent press loads. Frigidaire.

A product of the space age, Dominion's electronic Toastron toasts everything from sandwiches to the thinnest waffles by simply adjusting a lever. It can even rewarm your toast without burning or darkening.

WITH MEN flying to the moon and tolerating tight quarters to get there, we earthlings are experiencing similar living restrictions—~~not to mention less time to do all we want.~~

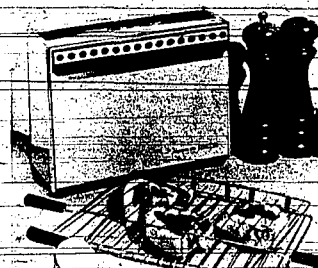

Now, it's a treat to learn, one segment of our economy is trying to solve these problems with new appliances.

What's happening with the majors and the minors—the large, usually stationary, appliances such as refrigerators, ovens, and dishwashers—and the smaller, portable appliances?

Big, bold innovations are happening in both categories—in the splash of color, ingenious design, more specialized appliances for our burgeoning leisure life, and in the trend toward the do-more-than-one-chore or one-step combination appliance.

And you don't have to orbit the moon to own them. Those pictured here are available, or will soon be, at your appliance dealer or department store.

Broil chops, chicken, or thin bacon, on both sides at once, in Pronto's vertical broiler. Tri-position rack is chrome-plated, easy to clean. No smoke or spatter. An avocado and chrome.

Salton's electric Hotray keeps food warm until everyone is seated. Its nickel-bin can be removed to oven for defrosting. For beverages, a "hot spot" gives added heat.

Press the dispensers for ice cubes or chilled water in G.E.'s 23.5 cu.-ft. Americana side-by-side refrigerator. Wheels out for cleaning. Freezer holds up to 295 pounds. In colors or white, model is completely front-free.

AGE SPOTS*

FADE THEM OUT.

Weathered brown spots on the surface of your hands and face tell the world you're getting old—perhaps before you realize it. Fade them away with ESOTERICA, that medicated cream that breaks up masses pigmented on the skin, has made hands look white and young again. Esoterica is effective on the face, neck and arms. Not a cover-up. Acts in the skin—not on it. Fragrant, greaseless base for softening, lubricating skin as it clears up those blemishes. If you have these age-revealing brown spots, blotches, or if you want clearer, lighter skin, use ESOTERICA. At your favorite drug and toiletry counter. $2.00.

GI Wives Who Wait—and Serve

1st Lt. Gwyn Bush drills a platoon at Ft. McClellan. Her husband serves in Far East.

ACROSS AMERICA today thousands of women watch the mail for a letter from a husband in Vietnam—and wait for him to come home.

Some of these women, however, wait with a difference—they wear Army green like their husbands and serve their country while waiting.

A number of these wives-who-wait-in-uniform are stationed at the Women's Army Corps Center, Fort McClellan, Ala., the home of the WAC near Anniston, Ala.

A waiting wife may be like 20-year-old Sp/4 Claire Nelson, who had been married only a week when her husband left for Vietnam. Or she may be a career officer like Maj. Anne H. Hudnal, whose husband Vernon, also a career officer and a major, is on his second tour, flying helicopters in the combat zones.

The waiting is no easier for these wives in uniform than for any others. Claire is a clerk in WAC Center headquarters. At the end of the day, she thinks of Edwin beginning another day halfway around the world as she watches the flag float down the staff to the notes of a retreat.

Back in the barracks, she and other

WAC wives exchange news, pass around pictures, and work on hobbies. Sp/5 Natalie Laird crochets an Afghan; Sp/5 Patricia Bacina of Eugene, Ore., trains a hunting dog; Capt. Veda D. Manley is troop leader of a Brownie Scout group.

Though days may be filled with duties, lonely evenings in the barracks or quarters are 'time for writing letters, recording taped messages...and wrapping packages.' And they think of the two most important dates in their year of waiting. The first is that R&R (rest and recreation leave) meeting with their husbands in Hawaii, which Veda Manley called "the fastest six days of my life."

The second important day is when their men come back. Till then, they wait—and they serve.

Sp/5 Patricia Bacina explains lesson to typing student in clerical school. Her husband, serving in Vietnam, also is a Sp/5.

Maj. Anne Hudnal has a special interest in Huey helicopters. Her husband, a major, too, whose picture stands on shelf, flew such a chopper in Vietnam.

FREE BOOK tells how these people—and hundreds of others—got started in this Big Money business. Send for your copy now.

Let me give you the same start I gave these men!

In one way, the big earnings reported here might be called exceptional. In another way, there is nothing exceptional about them. That's because any man who will follow instructions and is willing to work at his own Duraclean business should be able to do as well under similar conditions.

Each of the men quoted here had talents and abilities different from those of all the rest. But each had one thing in common—a desire to win personal independence in a business of his own. And each man took five identical steps to reach his goal.

1. Each one read an announcement such as you are reading now. 2. He wrote for complete information. 3. He read the literature we sent him. 4. He gained new confidence in himself and the belief that he could succeed with Duraclean. 5. He accepted our offer to help him get started. Later, he wrote to tell us about his success.

In each case, remember—the first step was to write to Duraclean for information. If you would like to own a business of your own, you don't need you do as these men did—right now.

When I hear from you, I will send you facts about the Duraclean Franchise that will open your eyes. You will see why a Franchise business such as ours makes success for the individual (the rule rather than the exception,

The Duraclean home service business has been tried and tested. The market for Duraclean Service is tremendous—and growing. The methods that lead to success have been clearly charted. When an ambitious man follows these methods, success is the logical result.

Some Franchise businesses require investments as high as $50,000. With ours, you can get started for less than $1,000 and we finance the balance. Monthly payments are so small that the profits on less than one day's service can cover your payment for the entire month. Even with this small investment and operating as a one man business, your potential is $250.00 a week net profit. With two men working for you 35 hours a week, you should gross a profit of $420.00. Allowing 20% for advertising and incidentals, the net would amount to $336.00.

The most important part of Duraclean home service is cleaning rugs, carpets and upholstered furniture by a revolutionary modern process known as the "Absorption Method." You do the work right in the customer's premises. No harsh scrubbing with motor-driven brushes. No soaking. Instead, an aerated foam loosens the dirt and holds it in suspension until removed. A test conducted by an impartial laboratory showed that the modern Absorption Method removed twice as much dirt as was removed by old fashioned machine scrubbing.

If you are tired of working for others or of jumping from one proposition to another—if you have a real yearning for independence in a business of your own—then send for "The Duraclean Route-to-Success." There is no obligation—no charge. No salesman will call to high pressure you. Send for the book now. Read it. Then if you want to take the next step toward independence, you can write to me and let me give you the same help I've given so many other successful men.
